of doubt" as to enforceability, the releases "extend[] to, but only to, the fullest extent permitted by law." Settlement Agreements at ¶ 28. By using these legal terms of art, the parties correctly restricted the releases' scope. The Class members would have been bound by res judicata if the case had proceeded to final judgment, and the releases impose no greater preclusive effect from settlement. Every Class member was free to weigh their competing claims and make a choice. They could have opted out and would be free to pursue buyer claims either individually or in the Batton cases[7] (should a court ever certify those classes). And people with buyer-only claims are completely unaffected because they are not part of the class.

71. The Batton objectors argue that the settlements release indirect purchaser buyer claims "for no additional consideration." (Doc. #471, p. 8.) Having properly limited the scope of the releases based on the "same factual predicate" standard, however, the Court finds the parties were under no further obligation to assign separate settlement values to every distinct claim that class members might have asserted. As the Eighth Circuit recognized in In re General American Life Insurance Co. Sales Practices Litigation, 357 F.3d 800, 805 (8th Cir. 2004), that argument ignores "the way settlements usually work."

72. Like the objectors here, the General American plaintiff tried to void a class settlement release by complaining that "the class representative gave away all modal-billing claims (in the release) and received nothing in exchange for them." Id. Thus, the argument went, class members (including the plaintiff) received compensation for one type of claim, but "plaintiff and others similarly situated received nothing for their modal-billing claims." Id. But the Eighth

[7] References to the Batton cases include each of the following actions: (1) Batton et al. v. The National Association of Realtors, et al., No. 21-cv-00430 (N.D. Ill), (2) Batton et al. v. Compass, Inc. et al., No. 23-cv-15618 (N.D. Ill.), and (3) Lutz et al. v. Homeservices of America, Inc. et al., No. 24-cv-10040 (S.D. Fl.).

Circuit rejected this contention because it ignored the give-and-take nature of the settlement process:

> It simply is not true that modal-billing claims were given away for nothing. It is true that no separately stated consideration was paid for those claims, but that is quite another thing. In addition to the claims specifically pleaded in the class action, all claims related to policy charges, necessarily including modal-billing claims, were released. The release of the latter category of claims was one of a series of benefits conferred on the defendant by the class as part of the settlement. On the other side, defendant conferred benefits on the plaintiff class, including a monetary settlement, from which the plaintiff in this case has benefitted, and a claims-evaluation procedure that could produce additional relief. No part of the consideration on either side is keyed to any specific part of the consideration of the other. Each side gives up a number of things.

Id.; accord Wal-Mart Stores, Inc. v. Visa U.S.A., Inc., 396 F.3d 96, 113 (2d Cir. 2005) (quoting same). The Eighth Circuit further declined to enmesh itself in trying to determine "the relative value of the modal-billing clams," and instead deferred to the judgment of the class representative and class counsel that releasing all claims arising from the same factual predicate "was a proper thing to give up to obtain the benefits offered by General American." In re General Am., 357 F.3d at 805.

73. Plaintiffs here bargained for and obtained great benefits: money at the limits of Defendants' ability to pay, along with injunctive relief eliminating the challenged business practices. This relief is immediate, eliminating litigation and bankruptcy risk threatened by complex additional proceedings. But every negotiation has two sides, and Plaintiffs made the judgment that providing a release tracking federal law by releasing all claims arising from the same conspiracy was "a proper thing to give up to obtain the[se] benefits." Id. There was no "discount applied" to buyer claims because "[n]o part of the consideration on either side" was "keyed to any specific part of the consideration of the other." Id. Rather, a complete release – including indirect purchaser buyer claims – was "part of the consideration necessary to obtain [one of] the largest antitrust settlement[s] in history." Wal-Mart Stores, 396 F.3d at 113. Nor were any class members bound by this determination involuntarily; dissenters retained the right to opt out. The Batton objectors have offered no evidence to enable the Court to second-guess Plaintiffs' determination, and the Court declines to do so.

74. The Batton objectors also argue that indirect purchaser buyers require their own subclass. Yet "[a] class need not be subdivided merely because different groups within it have alternative legal theories for recovery or because they have different factual bases for seeking relief." 7AA C. Wright & A. Miller, Federal Practice and Procedure: Civil § 1760 (3d ed. June 2024 update). Rather, conflicts arise (and subclasses are required) only "when the class is found to have members whose interests are divergent or antagonistic." Id.; see also DeBoer v. Mellon Mortg. Co., 64 F.3d 1171, 1175 (8th Cir. 1995) ("There is no indication that DeBoer's interest was antagonistic to the remainder of the class or that the claims were not vigorously pursued."). Cf. Petrovic, 200 F.3d at 1146 ("If the objectors mean to maintain that a conflict of interest requiring subdivision is created when some class members receive more than other class members in a settlement, we think that argument is untenable. It seems to us that almost every settlement will involve different awards for various class members."). No such division of interest is presented here.

75. The only people included in the settlement – and thus the only people giving any release – are people who sold homes during the class period.[8] Their interests are common and focused on achieving the greatest relief for the class. See In re Corrugated Container Antitrust Litig., 643 F.2d 195, 208 (5th Cir. 1981) ("[S]o long as all class members are united in asserting a common right, such as achieving the maximum possible recovery for the class, the class interests are not antagonistic for representation purposes."). That many of these class members also bought homes during the class period does not make their interests divergent or antagonistic.

[8] People who only bought homes during the class period are not class members. They have released nothing and can continue to litigate indirect purchaser claims should they so desire.

76. The Supreme Court's decisions in Amchem Prods., Inc. v. Windsor, 521 U.S. 591 (1997), and Ortiz v. Fibreboard Corp., 527 U.S. 815 (1999), provide no support for objectors' argument. As the Eighth Circuit has recognized, Amchem and Ortiz were completely different product liability cases that involved stark conflicts of interest not present here. Petrovic, 200 F.3d at 1146. Both cases represented attempts to settle all asbestos cases, now and forever. Id. The "injuries involved in those cases were extraordinarily various, both in terms of the harm sustained and the duration endured." Id. Worse yet, the diseases had a latency period of up to 40 years, meaning that many class members currently suffered from no illness. In re Target Corp. Customer Data Sec. Breach Litig., 892 F.3d 968, 975 (8th Cir. 2018) (discussing Amchem). The Eighth Circuit stated that this latency period created an inherent conflict "between class members who already had asbestos-related injuries (and who would want to maximize immediate payout) and class members who might develop asbestos-related injuries in the future (and who would want to maximize testing, protection from inflation, and future fund size)." Petrovic, 200 F.3d at 1146. Adding to the problem, "the settlement offered no assurance that sufficient funds would remain to protect the interests" of future claimants. In re Target Corp., 892 F.3d at 975 (discussing Amchem). In other words, both Amchem and Ortiz involved a strong likelihood that some claimants would be paid, but others (numbering in the hundreds of thousands) would receive nothing. That concern is not present here, where every Class member sold a home and therefore will receive compensation.

77. The Batton objectors imply that Amchem and Ortiz require subclasses whenever Class members claim different amounts or types of damage. But Petrovic forecloses that argument. Petrovic was a class action arising from underground oil seepage originating from a petroleum refinery. In crafting settlement relief, the parties created three zones, labeled A, B, and C. Claimants in Zone A, situated above the underground oil, were "guaranteed to receive 54 percent of the value of their properties." Petrovic, 200 F.3d at 1145. Claimants in the surrounding Zone B were guaranteed $1,300 per property. Id. And claimants in Zone C, the area farthest removed from the oil, could apply for compensation only by proving damage. Id. Faced with objectors from different zones, the Eighth Circuit held that Amchem and Ortiz required no subclasses: "If the objectors mean to maintain that a conflict of interest requiring subdivision is created when some class members receive more than other class members in a settlement, we think that the argument is untenable." Id. at 1146. Indeed, "almost every settlement will involve different awards for various class members." Id.

78. The same is true here. Every Class member stands to gain from the settlements, both in terms of money and injunctive relief. Each Class member could try to prove individual damages at trial and these amounts would all vary. But courts approve class settlements all the time that forgo these individual determinations. Indeed, the most common method for allocating settlement funds in antitrust cases is on a pro rata basis. In re Namenda Direct Purchaser Antitrust Litig., 462 F. Supp. 3d 307, 316 (S.D.N.Y. 2020) ("courts uniformly approve as equitable" plans in antitrust cases that "allocate[] funds among class members on a pro rata basis."); see also Cardizem CD Antitrust Litig., 218 F.R.D. 508, 531 (E.D. Mich. 2003) (approving pro rata distribution of settlement fund as fair and reasonable).

79. Amchem and Ortiz also presented procedural settlement problems not presented here. As the Eighth Circuit recognized, each involved a settlement before litigation, presenting the district court with a complaint, proposed class, and proposed settlement all at the same time.

Petrovic, 200 F.3d at 1145-46. This deprived the trial courts of "'the opportunity, present when a case is litigated, to adjust the class, informed by the proceedings as they unfold.'" Id. at 1146 (quoting Amchem, 521 U.S. at 620). This case, by contrast, arises from facts extensively developed during the Burnett litigation and trial, giving the Court an extensive record on which to base its findings. Id. In addition, Amchem and Ortiz presented the possibility of collusion between class counsel and the defendants. Id. No objector meaningfully alleges here any facts reflecting such collusion in connection with these settlements. The difficulties associated with Amchem and Ortiz therefore are not present.[9]

80. The Batton objectors also fail to demonstrate that the class representatives or counsel provided inadequate representation. The mere fact that some Class members might allege indirect purchaser buyer claims presents no divergent interests that would preclude general representation of an undivided class. This is because "[t]he interests of the various plaintiffs do not have to be identical to the interests of every class member; it is enough that they 'share common objectives and legal or factual positions.'" Petrovic, 200 F.3d at 1148 (quoting 7A Wright, Miller, and Kane, Federal Practice and Procedure: Civil 2d § 1769 at 367 (2d ed. 1986)). All Class members here "share the common objective" of ending Defendants' anticompetitive conspiracy and recovering the excessive commissions they paid as a result of that conspiracy. In re Uponor, Inc., F1807 Plumbing Fittings Prods. Liab. Litig., 716 F.3d 1057, 1064 (8th Cir. 2013).

[9] The Batton objectors' other cases are similarly distinguishable. See In re Bank of America Securities Litig., 210 F.R.D. 694, 712 (E.D. Mo. 2002) (finding settlement unreasonable where it allocated no damages to set of claims that plaintiffs had previously pursued and represented as among the strongest in the case); Branson v. Pulaski Bank, No. 4:12-CV-01444-DGK, 2015 WL 139759, at *6-7 (W.D. Mo. Jan. 12, 2015) (rejecting settlement where there was no evidence of the merits of plaintiffs' claims and settlement appeared to stem from unequal bargaining power); Martin v. Cargill, Inc., 295 F.R.D. 380, 385-87 (D. Minn. 2013) (rejecting proposed settlement submitted the day after complaint was filed when the court had no information about the potential damages or relative strengths and weaknesses of claims). The rest are cases where there were intractable conflicts between subclasses of class members holding present, known claims and those holding claims for potentially future, unknown injuries.

81. The Batton objectors brush aside the valuable injunctive relief obtained by the settlements. But the financial payments to Class members are "not the only, or perhaps even the primary, benefit of the settlement agreement[s]." Marshall, 787 F.3d at 509. Rather, "the injunctive relief offered under the settlement[s] has value to all class members." In re Target Corp., 892 F.3d at 974 n.6; accord Sullivan v. DB Invs., Inc., 667 F.3d 273, 329 (3d Cir. 2011) (en banc) (argument that some class members "receive no money" fails because it "fails to acknowledge the injunctive relief offered by the settlement," which "is intended to benefit all class members regardless of individual monetary recovery.").

82. The Batton objectors also ignore the fact that the only people included in the settlements are people who sold homes during the class period. People who only bought homes are not Class members. Such "buyer only" individuals have released nothing and can litigate indirect purchaser buyer claims any way they desire, whether individually or in the Batton cases. Those cases will continue to be litigated. The sole limitation imposed is that people who accept settlement benefits here cannot turn around and pursue a second recovery for the same conduct. This is not a case where anyone is releasing claims without compensation. Instead, all Class members "share the common objective of maximizing their recovery from [Defendants] for the same alleged misconduct." Schutter v. Tarena Int'l, Inc., No. 21-CV-3502, 2024 WL 4118465, at *5 (E.D.N.Y. Sept. 9, 2024).

83. For these reasons, Objectors' reliance on In re Literary Works in Elec. Databases Copyright Litig., 654 F.3d 242 (2d Cir. 2011), is not persuasive. Literary Works involved a settlement that placed claims in groups A, B, and C (each group arising under a different provision of the Copyright Act). Literary Works, 654 F.3d at 246. If claims exceeded a set cap, then Category C claims would be reduced first and might be eliminated entirely. Id. The Second Circuit therefore found a lack of adequate representation because Category A and B claims were "more lucrative" than Category C and "because the reduction of Category C claims could 'deplete the recovery of Category C-only plaintiffs in their entirety before the Category A or B recovery would be affected.'" In re Equifax Inc. Customer Data Sec. Breach Litig., 999 F.3d 1247, 1277 (11th Cir. 2021) (quoting Literary Works, 654 F.3d at 252, 254). The settlement agreements here, by contrast, present "no risk that any members of the class will have their ability to get settlement benefits reduced to zero because some other members got more relief from the settlement." Id. Instead, "all class members are entitled to the same class benefits." Id. Again, the fact that many Class members both bought and sold a home presents no "fundamental conflict" that requires the use of subclasses or additional lawyers.

84. The Batton objectors also complain that "the settling parties have not made any plan of allocation available." (Doc. #471, p. 5.) But this argument is premature and should be raised in the allocation phase. "[C]ourt approval of a settlement as fair, reasonable and adequate is conceptually distinct from the approval of a proposed plan of allocation." 2 McLaughlin on Class Actions § 6:23 (20th ed. Oct. 2023 Update). "The prime function of the district court in holding a hearing on the fairness of the settlement is to determine that the amount paid is commensurate with the value of the case," which "can be done before a distribution scheme has been adopted so long as the distribution scheme does not affect the obligations of the defendants under the settlement agreement." In re Agent Orange Prod. Liab. Litig., 818 F.2d 145, 170 (2d.

Cir. 1987).[10] Once the allocation plan is proposed, the Court will be in a position to consider that plan and approve "a second notice to Class Members, followed by a right to object and/or file a claim." In re Domestic Airline Travel Antitrust Litig., 378 F. Supp. 3d 10, 22 (D.D.C. 2019). That distribution decision will be "governed by the same standards of review applicable to approval of the settlement as a whole, i.e., the distribution plan must be fair, reasonable and adequate." In re Namenda Direct Purchaser Antitrust Litig., 462 F. Supp. 3d 307, 316 (S.D.N.Y. 2020). Any Class members who disagree with the proposed allocations—e.g., because they believe that plan insufficiently compensates home purchases—will be able to present such argument to the Court at that time. Nor do any Class members need allocation information in deciding whether to opt out of the settlements. The Eighth Circuit rejects the notion that class members must be provided "a formula for calculating individual awards" when receiving notice – a description of the "potential aggregate payout" is enough. Petrovic, 200 F.3d at 1153.

85. Finally, the Court disagrees with the Batton objectors' argument that buyer claims lie outside the same factual predicate as seller claims. In fact, releases in antitrust direct-purchaser settlements commonly cover all claims the settlement class members could raise against the settling defendant arising out of the same conspiracy, including when those direct purchasers may also have indirect-purchaser claims. See, e.g., In re Transpacific Passenger Air Transportation

[10] See also In re Washington Pub. Power Supply Sys. Sec. Litig., MDL No. 551, 1988 WL 158947, at *4 (W.D. Wash. July 28, 1988) ("[D]eferral of allocation decisions is routinely followed in" these circumstances because "the appropriate allocation among class members can best be determined when further settlements have been achieved or the litigation is completely resolved."); In re Domestic Airline Travel Antitrust Litig., 378 F. Supp. 3d 10, 22 (D.D.C. 2019) ("In a case such as this, involving a large number of Class Members and two Non-Settling Defendants, it would be inefficient to distribute and process claims until the entire case has been resolved through litigation or otherwise and the Total Funds Available for Distribution are known."); In re Packaged Ice Antitrust Litig., No. 08-MD-01952, 2011 WL 717519, at *2 (E.D. Mich. Feb. 22, 2011) (developing plan of allocation is properly delayed until after final approval of settlement where "the potential for additional settlements with other Defendants . . . may affect the final plan of allocation"); Manual for Complex Litigation, Fourth § 21.312 (2005) ("Often . . . the details of allocation and distribution are not established until after the settlement is approved.").

Antitrust Litigation (N.D. Cal, 07-cv-5634), ECF No. 900-2 § 1.11 (releasing "any and all claims . . . on account of, arising from, or in any way related to, the pricing of passenger air transportation by JAL or Defendants . . . with respect to the facts, occurrences, transactions or other matters that were alleged or could have been alleged [in the action] . . . regardless of legal theory, and regardless of the type or amount of relief or damages claimed"); In re: Processed Egg Products Antitrust Litigation (E.D.P.A., MDL 2002), ECF No. 349-1 ¶ 25 (similar); In re Intuniv Antitrust Litigation (D. Mass., 16-cv-12653), ECF No. 480-1 ¶ 10 (similar); In re: Prograf Antitrust Litigation (D. Mass. 1:11-md-2242), ECF No. 652-2 ¶ 10(a) (similar); In re Pre-Filled Propane Tank Antitrust Litigation (W.D. Mo. 14-md-2567 / MDL No. 2567), ECF No. 362-1 ¶ 12 (similar); In re HIV Antitrust Litigation (N.D. Cal, 19-cv-02573), ECF No. 711-2 at 11-12 (similar); In re Broiler Chicken Antitrust Litigation (N.D. Ill. 16-cv-8637), ECF No. 3324, ¶ 26 (similar). Courts have approved these settlements even over objections that the settlement improperly released or otherwise devalued a subset of claims. See In re Transpacific Passenger Air Transportation Antitrust Litig., 701 F. App'x 554, 555-56 (9th Cir. 2017) ("The district court properly certified the settlement class and was not obligated to create subclasses for purchasers of U.S.-originating travel and direct purchasers of airfare. Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 23(a) does not require a district court to weigh the prospective value of each class member's claims or conduct a claim-by-claim review when certifying a settlement class."); In re HIV Antitrust Litig., No. 19-CV-02573-EMC, 2023 WL 7397567, at *1 (N.D. Cal. Nov. 8, 2023) (rejecting indirect purchasers' request to set aside portion of direct-purchaser settlement).

86. Comparing the complaints in the Batton cases with Plaintiffs' complaint here shows that the buyer claims arise from the same factual predicate as the seller claims. See also Batton I, Mar. 5, 2021 Plaintiffs' Initial Joint Status Report, No. 21-cv-00430, at Doc. #48 ("In filing this case, Plaintiff took the position that this case is related to Moehrl v. NAR et al."); Id. at Doc. #59 – Transcript of Proceedings held on Mar. 23, 2021 (reflecting Mullis's counsel's representation that Moehrl "raises substantially similar allegations"). All such claims arise from the same common nucleus of operative fact, and any class member with both seller and buyer claims would "ordinarily be expected to try them all in one judicial proceeding." North Dakota v. Lange, 900 F.3d 565, 568-69 (8th Cir. 2018). The Court therefore rejects the Batton objectors' attempt to force claim splitting between the seller and buyer claims. The seller and buyer claims share the same factual predicate.

87. Finally, the Court finds that Mr. Mullis appears to be a Nevada resident. Over 7,200 Nevada residents have already submitted claims; and none have objected (aside from the clients of class counsel with competing class litigation). Keough Decl. at ¶ 51. If the Settlements are not approved, these class members risk receiving no compensation for their injuries.

88. The Court finds the requirements of Rule 23(g) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure are met, and the Court reaffirms the appointment of the law firms of Ketchmark and McCreight P.C., Williams Dirks Dameron LLC, Boulware Law LLC, Hagens Berman Sobol Shapiro LLP, Cohen, Milstein, Sellers & Toll, PLLC, and Susman Godfrey LLP as Co-Lead Counsel for the Settlement Class ("Class Counsel").

89. The 46 persons and entities identified in the Parties paperwork (see Exhibit L to Keough Decl.) have timely and validly requested exclusion from the Settlement Class and are therefore excluded from the Settlement Class and are not bound by this Order, and may not make any claim upon or receive any benefit from the Settlements, whether monetary or otherwise. Nothing in this order should be construed as a determination by this Court that the excluded persons and entities are members of the Settlement Class or that they meet other prerequisites, such as standing, for bringing claims alleged in the Actions. Each Settlement Class member who is not listed in Exhibit L to the Keough Declaration is bound by this Order and will remain forever bound, including by releasing all Released Claims of Releasing Parties against Released Parties. The Court specifically approves these releases as set forth in the Settlement Agreements.

90. Members of the Settlement Class, unless they excluded themselves from the Settlement Class, are hereby enjoined from filing, commencing, prosecuting, intervening in, or pursuing as a plaintiff or class member any Released Claims against any of the Released Parties, which include Settling Defendants' franchisees and affiliated brokerages, and agents affiliated with those franchisees or affiliated brokerages. See 28 U.S.C. § 1651; Bank of Am., N.A. v. UMB Fin. Servs., Inc., 618 F.3d 906, 914 (8th Cir. 2010) (noting that "the district court has the inherent ability to protect its own jurisdiction over the dispute pending before it"); Janson v. LegalZoom.com, Inc., 2012 WL 13047852, at *2 (W.D. Mo. Apr. 30, 2012) ("In order to protect the continuing jurisdiction of the Court, prevent a multiplicity of lawsuits, and protect and effectuate the Court's Judgment in this Litigation, Plaintiffs and Class Members . . . are barred and enjoined from instituting, commencing, or continuing to prosecute . . . any action in this Court, any other state or federal court, or any other tribunal or forum of any kind, against any Released Party that asserts any claims that are Released Claims under the terms of the Settlement[.]") (granting final approval); accord Almanzar v. Home Depot U.S.A., Inc., 2024 WL 36175, at *13 (E.D. Cal. Jan. 3, 2024); Smith v. Floor & Decor Outlets of Am., Inc., 2017 WL 11495273, at *6 (N.D. Ga. Jan. 10, 2017); In re Ortho. Bone Screw Prods. Liab. Litig., 176 F.R.D. 158, 188 (E.D. Pa. 1997). Released Claims include claims that arise from or relate to conduct that was alleged or could have been alleged in the Actions based on any or all of the same factual predicates for the claims alleged in the Actions, including but not limited to commissions negotiated, offered, obtained, or paid to brokerages in connection with the sale of any residential home. For the avoidance of doubt, this injunction extends to claims arising from or relating to transactions where Settlement Class Members either sold or purchased a home on any multiple listing service nationwide, regardless of affiliation or association with NAR or not, and thus includes, e.g., NWMLS, WPMLS, and REBNY/RLS. This injunction does not extend to any individual claims that a plaintiff or class member may have against his or her own broker or agent based on breach of contract, breach of fiduciary duty, malpractice, negligence or other tort claim, other than a claim that a class member paid an excessive commission or home price due to the claims at issue in the Actions.

91. This Order does not settle or compromise any claims by Class Representatives or the Settlement Class against entities or persons other than Released Parties, and all rights against any other person or entity are specifically reserved.

92. Settling Defendants shall issue payment in accordance with the Settlement Agreement.

93. Plaintiff's request for service awards for Class Representatives is hereby approved. The Court finds these individuals not only put their names on the line to advance the litigation, but that they have provided invaluable work on behalf of the Class through participating in discovery and the settlement process. Courts routinely approve service awards to compensate class representatives for the services they provide and the risks they incur on behalf of the class. The factors for deciding whether the service awards are warranted are: "(1) actions the plaintiffs took to protect the class's interests, (2) the degree to which the class has benefited from those actions, and (3) the amount of time and effort the plaintiffs expended in pursuing litigation." Caligiuri, 855 F.3d at 867. Here, Plaintiffs seek a service award of $10,000 per Settlement Class Representative.

The Settlement Class Representatives performed important work on the case, including time-consuming gathering of facts and documents and assisting Class Counsel with the specifics of their transactions. That work materially advanced the litigation and protected the Settlement Class's interests. Id. Indeed, without their time and effort, these Settlements would have been impossible. Finally, the requested service awards are consistent with other awards approved in the Eighth Circuit. Tussey, 850 F.3d 951, 961–62 (8th Cir. 2017) (approving $25,000 service awards); Rogowski, 2023 WL 5125113, at *6 (approving $25,000 service awards for named plaintiffs); Wolfert v. UnitedHealth Group, Inc., No. 08-CV-01643 (E.D. Mo. Aug. 21, 2009), ECF No. 38 at 4–5 (approving a service award of $30,000). Accordingly, Plaintiffs' request falls within a fair range of service awards—especially given the landmark nature of this litigation. The Court will therefore approve the requested service awards for each Settlement Class Representative.

94. Class Counsel has adequately represented the Class. Their application for an award of attorneys' fees and reimbursement of costs as set forth in the Motion for Attorneys' Fees and Costs (Doc. #399) is hereby approved and shall be paid in accordance with the Settlement Agreements.

95. Courts in the Eighth Circuit typically use the "percentage-of-the-fund method" to award attorneys' fees from a common fund. See, e.g., Rawa v. Monsanto Co., 934 F.3d 862, 870(8th Cir. 2019). "In the Eighth Circuit, use of a percentage method of awarding attorney fees in a common-fund case is not only approved, but also 'well established,'" In re Xcel Energy, Inc., Sec., Derivative & "ERISA" Litig., 364 F. Supp. 2d 980, 991 (D. Minn. 2005) (quoting Petrovic v. Amoco Oil Co., 200 F.3d 1140, 1157 (8th Cir. 1999)), or even "preferable,'" Barfield v. Sho-Me Power Elec. Co-op., No. 11-CV-4321, 2015 WL 3460346, at *3 (W.D. Mo. June 1, 2015) (quoting West v. PSS World Med., Inc., No. 13-CV-574, 2014 WL 1648741, at *1 (E.D. Mo. Apr. 24, 2014)). The percentage method aligns the interests of the attorneys and the class members by incentivizing counsel to maximize the class's recovery. See Johnston v. Comerica Mortg. Corp., 83 F.3d 241, 245 (8th Cir. 1996) ("[T]he Task Force [established by the Third Circuit] recommended that the percentage of the benefit method be employed in common fund situations.") (citing Court Awarded Attorneys Fees, Report of the Third Circuit Task Force, 108 F.R.D. 237, 255 (3rd Cir. 1985))). The Court will therefore use the percentage approach to award fees in this case. This Court and others within the Eighth Circuit confirm that one-third of the common fund is an appropriate amount for class counsels' fees in complex class actions, including antitrust litigation. Eighth Circuit and Missouri courts "have frequently awarded attorney fees between twenty-five and thirty-six percent of a common fund in other class actions." Huyer v. Buckley, 849 F.3d 395, 399 (8th Cir. 2017) (quoting In re Xcel, 364 F. Supp. 2d at 998); see also Rawa, 934 F.3d at 870 ("courts have frequently awarded attorneys' fees ranging up to 36% in class actions") (quoting Huyer, 849 F.3d at 399); Yarrington v. Solvay Pharm., Inc., 697 F. Supp. 2d 1057, 1064 (D. Minn. 2010) (holding fee award of 33% reasonable); In re U.S. Bancorp Litig., 291 F.3d 1035, 1038 (8th Cir.2002) (affirming fee award representing 36% of the settlement fund as reasonable)); In re Xcel, 364 F.Supp.2d at 998 (collecting cases demonstrating that district courts routinely approve fee awards between 25% and 36%). Just recently, this District approved one-third of the fund in a settlement valued at $325 million. See Rogowski v. State Farm Life Ins. Co., No. 22-CV-203, 2023 WL 5125113, *4-5 (W.D. Mo. April 18, 2023). Thus, judges in the Western District of Missouri and the Eighth Circuit routinely apply the one-third-of-the-fund fee calculation, even to large settlements.

96. In doing so, courts typically consider some or all of the relevant factors listed in Johnson v. Georgia Highway Express, Inc., 488 F.2d 714, 717–19 (5th Cir. 1974). See In re Target

Corp. Customer Data Security Breach Litig., 892 F.3d 968, 977 (8th Cir. 2018). The Johnson factors are:

> (1) the time and labor required; (2) the novelty and difficulty of the questions; (3) the skill requisite to perform the legal service properly; (4) the preclusion of employment by the attorney due to acceptance of the case; (5) the customary fee; (6) whether the fee is fixed or contingent; (7) time limitations imposed by the client or the circumstances; (8) the amount involved and the results obtained; (9) the experience, reputation, and ability of the attorneys; (10) the "undesirability" of the case; (11) the nature and length of the professional relationship with the client; and (12) awards in similar cases.

In re Target, 892 F.3d at 977 n.7. To be sure, "[m]any of the Johnson factors are related to one another and lend themselves to being analyzed in tandem." Swinton v. SquareTrade, Inc., 454 F. Supp. 3d 848, 886 (S.D. Iowa 2020). Therefore, courts in the Eighth Circuit often focus on the most relevant Johnson factors in evaluating fee requests. See Huyer, 849 F.3d at 398–400 (affirming trial court's award of one-third of the common fund after review of Johnson factors 1-5 only); In re Xcel, 364 F. Supp. 2d at 993; Tussey v. ABB, Inc., No. 06-CV-4305, 2019 WL 3859763, at *2 (W.D. Mo. Aug. 16, 2019); Yarrington, 697 F. Supp. 2d at 1062; Hardman v. Bd. of Educ. of Dollarway, Arkansas Sch. Dist., 714 F.2d 823, 825 (8th Cir. 1983). The Court has considered the Johnson factors here, and finds that each weighs in favor of Plaintiffs' fee request. See also Klonoff Fee Dec. at ¶¶ 24, 34, 39.

97. Here, Class Counsel's time and labor invested was substantial and necessarily precluded other work. In addition to the over 105,000 hours they have dedicated to the litigation through July 31, 2024, Class Counsel were also required to expend over $13 million of their own money toward the combined litigation. That work was undertaken without any guarantee of payment. Moreover, the litigation faced low odds of early settlements given the attack on practices that were central to the real estate brokerage industry. See, e.g., How the $1.8 Billion Real-Estate Commissions Lawsuit Came to Be, Wall Street Journal, November 26, 2023

("Antitrust cases almost always settle before trial, giving attorneys some assurance they will get paid something. But in this case, the damages were so high and the threat to the industry so existential that plaintiff attorneys thought it unlikely NAR would settle."). Indeed, NAR took the position that the cases were "baseless." See, e.g., Realtor Group Moves to Dismiss Class Action Lawsuit Alleging Collusion, Forbes, May 21, 2019 ("According to John Smaby, president of NAR, all three claims have no merit. 'In today's complex real estate environment, REALTORS and Multiple Listing Services promote a pro-consumer, pro-competitive market for home buyers and sellers, contrary to the baseless claims of these class action attorneys,' he said. 'Our filing today shows the lawsuit is wrong on the facts, wrong on the economics and wrong on the law.'"). In sum, "the extraordinary level of work and result achieved here in the face of enormous risk warrants a substantial fee percentage." Klonoff Fee Decl. at ¶ 88.

98. "Courts have recognized that the risk of receiving little or no recovery is a major factor in awarding attorney fees." Yarrington, 697 F. Supp. 2d at 1062 (quoting In re Xcel, 364 F. Supp. 2d at 994); Theodore Eisenberg & Geoffrey Miller, Attorney Fees In Class Action Settlements: An Empirical Study, 1 J. Emp. L. Studies 27, 27, 38 (2004) ("Fees are also correlated with risk: the presence of high risk is associated with a higher fee, while low-risk cases generate lower fees . . . . [This] is widely accepted in the literature.")). "Unless that risk is compensated with a commensurate award, no firm, no matter how large or well-financed, will have the incentive to consider pursuing a case such as this." Tussey, 2019 WL 3859763, at *3. "Courts agree that a larger fee is appropriate in contingent matters where payment depends on the attorney's success." Been v. O.K. Industries, Inc., No. 02-CV-285, 2011 WL 4478766, at *9 (E.D. Okla. Aug. 16, 2011). And critically, "[t]he risks plaintiffs' counsel faced must be assessed as they existed in the morning of the action, not in light of the settlement ultimately achieved at the end of the day." In re Xcel, 364 F. Supp. 2d at 994.

99. Because antitrust claims are especially complex, expensive, and difficult to prosecute, courts have recognized that antitrust settlements should result in attorneys' fees equal to one-third of the fund. See In re Peanut Farmers Antitrust Litig., No. 19-CV-00463, 2021 WL 9494033, at *6 (E.D. Va. Aug. 10, 2021) ("[A]n award of one-third is also common in antitrust class actions.") (citing cases); In re Urethane Antitrust Litig., No. 04-CV-1616, 2016 WL 4060156, at *5 (D. Kan. July 29, 2016) (awarding one-third of $835 million settlement, noting "a one-third fee is customary"); In re Flonase Antitrust Litig., 291 F.R.D. 93, 100, 106 (E.D. Pa. 2013) (awarding one-third of the settlement fund as attorneys' fees in which court relied upon the fact that class counsel had litigated a number of hotly contested Daubert challenges). See also Klonoff Fee Decl. at ¶¶ 41.

100. Here it is undeniable that the antitrust claims at issue in these cases were challenging to prosecute.

101. Courts often judge class counsel's skill against the "quality and vigor of opposing counsel . . . ." In re Charter Commc'ns, Inc., MDL No. 1506 All Cases, No. 02-CV-1186, 2005 WL 4045741, at *29 (E.D. Mo. June 30, 2005) (citing In re IBP, Inc. Sec. Litig., 328 F. Supp. 2d 1056, 1064 (D.S.D. 2004)). In the litigation, Class Counsel faced off against no fewer than thirty highly-respected law firms over the course of the litigation. Although Class Counsel's team included some of the country's most accomplished class action and trial lawyers, Defendants also hired some of the country's most prominent and respected defense attorneys. This weighs heavily in favor of the requested award.

102. In the Eighth Circuit, courts have "frequently awarded attorneys' fees ranging up to 36% in class actions." Huyer, 849 F.3d at 399. Courts have recognized that prosecution of antitrust claims should result in a one-third-of-the-fund fee award. See In re Peanut Farmers, 2021 WL 9494033, at *6 ("[A]n award of one-third is also common in antitrust class actions.") (citing cases); In re Urethane, 2016 WL 4060156, at *5 (awarding one-third of $835 million antitrust settlement, noting "a one-third fee is customary").

103. Moreover, the requested one-third fee award is equal to or less than what the actual Named Plaintiffs—those with the most on the line and most involved in the case—agreed to at the outset of the case. Class representatives in Burnett agreed to 35%. Dirks Fee Decl. at ¶29. Class representative in Moehrl agreed to up to 33.3%. Berman Fee Dec. at ¶ 6. These factors also support Plaintiffs' request. Klonoff Fee Decl. at ¶¶ 60-61, 77-78.

104. Here, the Fund is pure cash and non-reversionary; so, the Settlements, plus interest earned until its distribution, require no further valuation. In requesting a fee as a percentage of the Fund, Class Counsel necessarily seeks a fee proportionate to the degree of monetary success obtained.

105. Equally important, the Settlements include significant practice change relief which require the Settling Defendants, among other things, to not enforce the Mandatory Offer of Compensation Rule and to train their agents that commissions are negotiable. Counsel is not seeking any additional fee for this valuable relief on these Settlements, but the value of that relief is substantial in itself and should be considered when evaluating the fee that is sought. See Klonoff Fee Fee Dec. at ¶¶ 96-98.

106. Here, the request is supported by both the size of the recovery and the results obtained as compared to the risk of a lesser recovery or none at all. Moreover, the Settlements represent only a part of the recovery to the Class because Class Counsel have continued to prosecute these joint and several liability claims against other Defendants. Thus, any past and future settlements or judgments will also benefit the Class. This factor supports a contingency percentage of one-third, particularly given the benefits achieved. Importantly, success—including "exceptional success"—is not measured solely by the maximum damages alleged but must be evaluated against any "unusually difficult or risky circumstances and the size of plaintiffs' recovery." Allapattah Servs., Inc. v. Exxon Corp., 454 F. Supp. 2d 1185, 1204–05 (S.D. Fla. 2006).

107. Although a lodestar crosscheck is "not required" in the Eighth Circuit, Keil v. Lopez, 862 F.3d 685, 701 (8th Cir. 2017); PHT Holdings II, LLC v. N. Am. Co. Life & Health Ins., 2023 WL 8522980, at *7 (S.D. Iowa Nov. 30, 2023)[11]—performing such a crosscheck here confirms that the requested fee is reasonable and should be approved. As noted above, Class Counsel have spent over 105,000 hours through July 31, 2024 in Gibson, Umpa, Burnett, and Moehrl. These hours result in an overall lodestar through July 31, 2024 of $90,853,364. Dirks Fee Decl. at ¶ 43. Combined with the fee already awarded in Burnett, the current fee request constitutes an approximately 1.17 multiplier on lodestar which is well within the range of reasonableness. See Klonoff Fee Dec. at ¶¶ 29, 122; Rawa, 934 F.3d at 870 (observing a lodestar multiplier of 5.3 is within the bounds of reasonableness); Huyer v. Buckley, 849 F.3d 395, 399–400 (8th Cir. 2017) (observing lodestar multipliers of up to 5.6 times class counsel's lodestar to be in the reasonable range for a lodestar crosscheck); In re T-Mobile Customer Data Security Breach Litigation, No. 23-2744, 2024 WL 3561874, at *6 (8th Cir. July 29, 2024) (observing that in a case that settled early in the litigation, a multiplier of 5.3 is on the "high" side of reasonableness) (citing Rawa, 934 F.3d at 870)); In re Charter Commc'ns, Inc., Sec. Litig., No. 4:02-cv-1186-CAS, 2005 WL 4045741, at *18 (E.D. Mo. Jun. 30, 2005) (finding 5.61 lodestar multiplier reasonable); In re Syngenta AG MIR 162 Corn Litig., 2019 WL 1274813, at *5 (D. Kan. Mar. 20, 2019) ("a multiplier of 3 is well within the range allowed in other cases involving large settlements").

[11] "'[T]o overly emphasize the amount of hours spent on a contingency fee case would penalize counsel for obtaining an early settlement and would distort the value of the attorneys' services.'" Rawa, 934 F.3d at 870 (quoting In re Charter Commc'ns, 2005 WL 4045741, at *18). Cf. In re T-Mobile Customer Data Security Breach Lit., No. 23-2744, 2024 WL 3561874, at *7 (8th Cir. July 29, 2024 (observing a crosscheck is not required but can be warranted "when a megafund case settles quickly")).

108. Additionally, upon review the Court finds that Plaintiffs' request of fees of one-third of the fund is reasonable in light of the Eighth Circuit precedent in In re T-Mobile Customer Data Security Breach Litigation. Unlike the parties in T-Mobile, who following "a few days of mediation, and less than a month after class counsel had filed the complaint," agreed to the basic terms of a settlement, here Plaintiffs have spent more than five years, $13,147,775.19 in reasonable and necessary expenses, and 105,000 hours working on the Gibson, Moehrl, and Burnett cases. In re T-Mobile Customer Data Sec. Breach Litig., 111 F.4th at 855; Dirks Fee Decl. at ¶ 9. Additionally, Plaintiffs' counsel dealt with over thirty different firms representing multiple Settling Defendants. The current settlement was only reached after significant arms-length and adversarial negotiations with each Settling Defendant. While "recovery in a particular case [may] stem[] more from class size than attorney effort and so might merit a lower fee award," given the immense time and effort by Plaintiffs' counsel with multiple Settling Defendants and their respective counsels, Plaintiffs' request of fees of one-third of the fund is reasonable. Id. at 860.

109. The Court also grants Plaintiffs' request for their costs. The expenses submitted were reasonable expenses in such a large and complex litigation.

110. The Settlement Administrator shall be paid in accordance with the Settlement Agreement.

111. The Court authorizes payments to be made from the Escrow Accounts under the Settlement Agreements as qualified settlement funds ("QSF") as defined in Section 1.468B-1(a) of the U.S. Treasury Regulations and retains continuing jurisdiction as to any issue that may arise in connection with the formation or administration of the QSFs. Co-Lead Counsel are, in accordance with the Settlement Agreements, authorized to withdraw up to the amounts allowed by the Settlement Agreements out of the Escrow Accounts.

112. Co-Lead Counsel are directed to prepare and submit for Court approval a plan of allocation for the Settlement Fund, and to propose a schedule for comment and Court review. The proposed plan of allocation must be posted to https://www.realestatecommissionlitigation.com and emailed to all individuals who submit a claim in order to provide those individuals an opportunity to comment on the plan. After the plan of allocation is proposed and an opportunity to comment has been provided, the Court will evaluate the proposed plan and any objections thereto. The Court's review of the plan of allocation will be conducted separately from this final review of the Settlements. The Court believes that this additional layer of protection to the Class bolsters the Court's finding that the Settlement treats class members equitably.

113. Pursuant to Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 54(b), this Court directs entry of final judgment of dismissal with prejudice and without costs (except as provided in the Settlements) as to the defendants covered by the Settlements. This case contains claims against multiple parties, and there is no just reason to delay the entry of final judgment as to these Settling Defendants, especially considering the practice change relief and money to be paid to the class should not be delayed.

114. Settling Defendants have denied any liability, fault, or wrongdoing of any kind in connection with the allegations in the Actions, and as such, neither the Settlements, nor any of their respective terms or provisions, nor any of the negotiations or proceedings connected with the Settlements shall be construed as an admission or concession of the truth of any of the allegations, or of any liability, fault, or wrongdoing of any kind by Settling Defendants.

115. The Court expressly retains continuing and exclusive jurisdiction over all matters relating to the administration and consummation of the Settlements and to interpret, implement, administer and enforce the Settlements (including with respect to the scope of the Settlement Class, Released Claims, and Released Parties), in accordance with their terms, and to implement and complete the claims administration process, in accordance with the Settlements, for the benefit of the Settlement Class. The Court does this for the purpose of satisfying the requirements of Kokkonen v. Guardian Life Ins. Co. of Am., 511 U.S. 375 (1994), concerning the obligation of a Court entering a settlement agreement to speak clearly when it wishes to retain jurisdiction.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

/s/ Stephen R. Bough
STEPHEN R. BOUGH
UNITED STATES DISTRICT JUDGE

Dated: November 4, 2024

TAB 35B

IN THE UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT FOR THE WESTERN DISTRICT OF MISSOURI WESTERN DIVISION

DON GIBSON, LAUREN CRISS, JOHN MEINERS, and DANIEL UMPA, on behalf of themselves and all others similarly situated, Plaintiffs, v. NATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF REALTORS, et al., Defendants.	Civil Action No. 4:23-cv-00788-SRB [Consolidated with 4:23-cv-00945-SRB]

PLAINTIFFS' MOTION FOR ATTORNEYS' FEES, COSTS, EXPENSES AND SERVICE AWARDS AND SUGGESTIONS IN SUPPORT THEREOF

TABLE OF CONTENTS

INTRODUCTION 1

FACTUAL BACKGROUND 2

I. CLASS COUNSEL PERFORMED EXTRAORDINARY WORK AND ASSUMED SIGNIFICANT RISK ON A CONTINGENT BASIS ON BEHALF OF THE SETTLEMENT CLASS TO OBTAIN THE SETTLEMENTS. 3

ARGUMENT 5

I. THE REQUESTED ATTORNEY'S FEES ARE REASONABLE UNDER THE FACTS AND CIRCUMSTANCES PRESENTED HERE. 5

A. Contingent Fees Are Awarded Using the Percentage-of-the-Fund Approach. 5

B. A Fee Equal to One-Third of the Fund is Reasonable. 6

1. Class Counsel worked on a contingent basis, despite the numerous risks and time commitments. (Factors 1, 4, 6-7 and 10) 7

2. The claims were difficult to prosecute. (Factor 2) 9

3. Class Counsel's reputation and skillful resolution of the Litigation supports the award. (Factors 3 and 9) 10

4. The percentage requested is supported by other awards under the facts and circumstances of this Litigation. (Factors 5 and 12) 11

5. The amount involved and results obtained for the Settlement Class given the risks of the Litigation support the percentage requested. (Factor 8) 12

C. The Requested Fee Is Reasonable Under a Lodestar Crosscheck. 13

II. THE COURT SHOULD APPROVE CLASS COUNSEL'S REQUEST FOR REIMBURSEMENT OF REASONABLY INCURRED EXPENSES. 15

III. THE COURT SHOULD APPROVE THE REQUESTED SERVICE AWARDS. 15

CONCLUSION 16

TABLE OF AUTHORITIES

Cases

Allapattah Servs., Inc. v. Exxon Corp., 454 F. Supp. 2d 1185 (S.D. Fla. 2006) 13

Barfield v. Sho-Me Power Elec. Co-op., 2015 WL 3460346 (W.D. Mo. June 1, 2015) 5

Been v. O.K. Industries, Inc., 2011 WL 4478766 (E.D. Okla. Aug. 16, 2011) 9

Burnett, 2024 WL 2842222 (W.D. Mo. May 9, 2024) 14

Caligiuri v. Symantec Corp., 855 F.3d 860 (8th Cir. 2017) 9, 16

Hardman v. Bd. of Educ. of Dollarway, Arkansas Sch. Dist., 714 F.2d 823 (8th Cir. 1983) 7

Huyer v. Buckley, 849 F.3d 395 (8th Cir. 2017) 6, 7, 11, 14

In re Automotive Parts Antitrust Litig., 2020 WL 5653257,n.5 (E.D. Mich. Sept. 23, 2020) 13

In re Capacitors Antitrust Litig., 2018 WL 4790575 (N.D. Cal. Sept. 21, 2018) 13

In re Charter Commc'ns, Inc., MDL No. 1506 All Cases, No. 02-CV-1186, 2005 WL 4045741, at *29 (E.D. Mo. June 30, 2005) 10, 13, 14

In re Equifax Inc. Customer Data Sec. Breach Litig., 2020 WL 256132 (N.D. Ga. Mar. 17, 2020) 9

In re Flonase Antitrust Litig., 291 F.R.D. 93 (E.D. Pa. 2013) 10

In re IBP, Inc. Sec. Litig., 328 F. Supp. 2d 1056 (D.S.D. 2004) 10

In re Media Vision Tech. Sec. Litig., 913 F. Supp. 1362 (N.D. Cal. 1996) 15

In re Peanut Farmers Antitrust Litig., 2021 WL 9494033 (E.D. Va. Aug. 10, 2021) 10, 11

In re Syngenta AG MIR 162 Corn Litig., 2019 WL 1274813 (D. Kan. Mar. 20, 2019) 14

In re Target Corp. Customer Data Security Breach Litig., 892 F.3d 968 (8th Cir. 2018) 7

In re T-Mobile Customer Data Security Breach Lit., 2024 WL 3561874 ..... 13, 14

In re U.S. Bancorp Litig., 291 F.3d 1035 (8th Cir. 2002) 6

In re Urethane Antitrust Litig., 2016 WL 4060156 (D. Kan. July 29, 2016) 10, 11

In re Xcel Energy, Inc., Sec., Derivative & "ERISA" Litig., 364 F. Supp. 2d 980 (D. Minn. 2005) ..... Passim

Johnson v. Georgia Highway Express, Inc., 488 F.2d 714 (5th Cir. 1974) 7

Johnston v. Comerica Mortg. Corp., 83 F.3d 241 (8th Cir. 1996) 6

Keil v. Lopez, 862 F.3d 685 (8th Cir. 2017) 13

Petrovic v. Amoco Oil Co., 200 F.3d 1140 (8th Cir. 1999) 5

PHT Holdings II, LLC v. N. Am. Co. Life & Health Ins., 2023 WL 8522980 (S.D. Iowa Nov. 30, 2023) 13

Rawa v. Monsanto Co., 934 F.3d 862 (8th Cir. 2019) 5, 6, 13, 14

Rogowski v. State Farm Life Ins. Co., 2023 WL 5125113 (W.D. Mo. April 18, 2023) 6, 16

Swinton v. SquareTrade, Inc., 454 F. Supp. 3d 848 (S.D. Iowa 2020) 7

Tussey v. ABB, Inc., 2019 WL 3859763 (W.D. Mo. Aug. 16, 2019) 7, 9, 15

Tussey v. ABB, Inc., 850 F.3d 951 (8th Cir. 2017) 16

Wal-Mart Stores, Inc. v. Visa U.S.A., Inc., 396 F.3d 96 (2d Cir. 2005) 6

West v. PSS World Med., Inc., 2014 WL 1648741 (E.D. Mo. Apr. 24, 2014) 5

Yarrington v. Solvay Pharm., Inc., 697 F. Supp. 2d 1057 (D. Minn. 2010) 6, 7, 8, 15

Other Authorities

Alba Conte,1 Attorney Fee Awards § 2:19 (3d ed.) 15

Court Awarded Attorneys Fees, Report of the Third Circuit Task Force, 108 F.R.D. 237, 255 (3rd Cir. 1985) 6

INTRODUCTION

After years of hard-fought litigation in multiple lawsuits, Plaintiffs have achieved proposed nationwide settlements now totaling at least $987.1 million in monetary relief, in addition to significant practice change relief. These include settlements with the Anywhere, RE/MAX, and Keller Williams defendants that this Court finally approved in Burnett,[1] settlements with NAR and the Homeservices defendants that this Court preliminarily approved in Burnett,[2] and settlements with nine defendant families that this Court preliminarily approved in Gibson.

Through this motion, Plaintiffs seek as attorneys' fees one-third of the $110.6 million recovered under the nine Settlements preliminarily approved in Gibson, recovery of certain case expenses, and approval of service awards to the named plaintiffs and settlement class representatives. See Docs. 163, 297, 348. Plaintiffs' final approval motion for these nine Settlements will be heard on October 31, 2024. Doc. 358. As with the other settlements that Plaintiffs have obtained, the $110.6 million fund created by these nine settlements is non-reversionary. To achieve this result, Class Counsel worked for more than five years to file and prosecute multiple lawsuits pending in different jurisdictions: Moehrl, Burnett, Umpa, and Gibson ("the litigation"). Class Counsel faced substantial risk representing the Settlement Class. They worked on a fully contingent basis, investing over 105,000 hours of labor through July 31, 2024 and advancing over $13 million in out-of-pocket costs without any guarantee of success. They did so despite this litigation having no pre-ordained path to a recovery. Indeed, Class Counsel faced off against well-funded and entrenched opponents represented by at least thirty of the most high-profile defense firms in the country.

[1] See Burnett Doc. 1487.
[2] See Burnett Doc. 1460; 1520.

Class Counsel are a diverse group of well-respected antitrust, complex litigation, and trial lawyers who spearheaded the litigation. In doing so, Class Counsel were not able to rely on any governmental prosecutions or on preexisting litigation by other private attorneys. These Settlements are the independent product of their wholly contingent, risky, costly, and time-intensive work seeking a recovery against Defendants, not the work of anyone else.

This Circuit's precedent applied to the facts here support Class Counsel's requests for attorneys' fees representing one-third of the settlement fund and for reimbursement of case expenses. In the Eighth Circuit, a fee based on a percentage of the fund recovered is the favored approach for calculating attorney's fees in contingent representation, including class actions. The percentage-of-the-fund approach aligns Class Counsel's interests with those of the class because the greater the recovery Class Counsel obtains, the greater the fee to which Class Counsel is entitled. It incentivizes counsel to continue pursuing additional claims beneficial to the class even where, as here, counsel have already obtained substantial recoveries for the class. And it also avoids disincentivizing early settlements that may be benefit the class.

For these reasons, Class Counsel respectfully request that the Court approve a fee of one-third of the Settlement Fund, reimbursement of current expenses in the amount of $13,147,775.19 that have not already been reimbursed in prior settlements, and service awards of $10,000 to each of the new Gibson Settlement Class Representatives.

FACTUAL BACKGROUND

A background of the litigation and Settlements is well-known to the Court and can be found in Plaintiffs' motions for preliminary settlement approval (Burnett Doc. 1192 at ECF 8-19; ECF 1371; Gibson Docs. 161, 294, 303). The Settlements are non-reversionary meaning the entire amount is for the benefit of the class and upon approval no amount will revert to the Settling Defendants regardless of the claims' submitted. Moreover, the Settlements include substantial practice change relief aimed at ending the Defendants' support for the challenged restraints, including their enforcement of the Mandatory Offer of Compensation Rule. To achieve these results for the Class, Class Counsel performed more than 105,000 hours of work through July 31, 2024 across of all four of their litigations and invested over $13 million of their own money. Counsel continues to work on behalf of the Class even after these settlements.

I. CLASS COUNSEL PERFORMED EXTRAORDINARY WORK AND ASSUMED SIGNIFICANT RISK ON A CONTINGENT BASIS ON BEHALF OF THE SETTLEMENT CLASS TO OBTAIN THE SETTLEMENTS.

Plaintiffs allege that the National Association of Realtors and other entities who agreed to engage in anticompetitive conduct inflating broker commissions, including by following and enforcing NAR's Mandatory Offer of Compensation Rule and associated restraints promulgated by NAR and its members. Many of these Defendants fought the litigation at every conceivable step.[3] To date, Defendants in Gibson, Umpa, Moehrl and Burnett have been represented by at least thirty defense firms – including many of the most highly-regarded firms in the world. Dirks Dec. at ¶ 13. These firms have extensively litigated the cases, filing jurisdictional challenges, motions to compel arbitration, motions to dismiss, Daubert motions, challenges to class certification, summary judgment motions, several appeals, and—in the case of Keller Williams, NAR and HomeServices—even a jury trial. Id. at ¶¶ 14, 20.

Moreover, in undertaking this substantial commitment on behalf of the Settlement Class, Class Counsel assumed significant risk. There was no roadmap of previous cases or settlements, and no assistance from governmental entities or regulators through parallel litigation. Id. at ¶ 17.

---

[3] See generally Declaration of Eric L. Dirks ("Dirks Decl.") for an overview of the procedural history and efforts to reach the Settlements. Attached as Ex. 1. Also attached are the declarations of Michael S. Ketchmark (Ex. 2), Brandon J.B. Boulware (Ex. 3), Steve W. Berman (Ex. 4), Marc M. Seltzer (Ex. 5), Robert A. Braun (Ex. 6).These declarations cover many of the same topics set out in the Dirks Decl. as well as each firm's individual lodestar and expense amounts.

Despite the odds, Class Counsel achieved tremendous success. They obtained favorable rulings on key issues including on class certification, summary judgment, and Daubert. Id. at ¶¶ 14, 20. However, these successes required years of briefing, reviewing a universe of millions of pages of documents, retention of at least 20 experts and consultants, and approximately 180 depositions to achieve this result. Id. at ¶ 15-16. Reflecting these efforts, Burnett, Moehrl, Umpa, and Gibson have over 2,400 docket entries as of the date of this filing.

Moreover, Plaintiffs' Counsel did not stop with their trial victory in Burnett. They worked to maximize the recovery for the Class by filing the Gibson and Umpa complaints against additional Defendants. The Moehrl and Burnett actions originally included claims against five defendant families on behalf of home sellers who listed their properties on 24 covered MLSs. The Gibson case, by named Plaintiffs Don Gibson, Lauren Criss, John Meiners, and Daniel Umpa, advances similar claims against additional Defendants on behalf of a nationwide class of home sellers.[4] The six law firms appointed Co-Lead Class Counsel in Moehrl and Burnett also represent Plaintiffs and the putative class in the consolidated Gibson action. The Court appointed them as Interim Co-Lead Class Counsel in this case, with responsibility "for any settlement negotiations with Defendants." (Doc. 180). The Court also appointed these six firms as Co-Lead Counsel for the Settlement Classes in this case. See Doc. 163, 297, 348.

With their successful track record, Class Counsel bring substantial knowledge and expertise to the prosecution of the Gibson action. Plaintiffs and their counsel have worked diligently to advance the litigation in Gibson. Prior to filing these actions, class counsel undertook significant research into the Settling Defendants, their participation in NAR, their enforcement of the Mandatory Offer of Compensation Rule, and their market share and presence. Counsel reviewed publicly available information, including SEC filings, company websites, third party websites, YouTube videos, and other sources in order to investigate the connection between these companies and the practices found to be antitrust violations in Burnett. (Dirks Decl. ¶ 9). Plaintiffs and Class Counsel then filed detailed complaints against the Gibson Defendants and have diligently prosecuted the case. Class Counsel have worked cooperatively, including moving to consolidate the Gibson and Umpa complaints for purposes of efficiency. Class Counsel also handled various early steps in the case, including negotiating a scheduling order, preparing ESI and protective orders, and serving and responding to discovery; and they are in the process of responding to numerous motions to dismiss.

[4] The cases were originally filed as two related actions, Gibson, et al. v. NAR, et al., Case No. 4:23-CV-788-SRB ("Gibson") on October 31, 2023, and Umpa v. NAR, et al., Case No. 4:23-CV-945-SRB ("Umpa") on December 27, 2023. On April 23, 2024, the Court granted Plaintiffs' motion to consolidate the Gibson and Umpa matters and to file a consolidated class action complaint under the Gibson caption. Gibson Docs. 145–146; Umpa Docs. 245–246.

ARGUMENT

I. THE REQUESTED ATTORNEY'S FEES ARE REASONABLE UNDER THE FACTS AND CIRCUMSTANCES PRESENTED HERE.

Under well-established Eighth Circuit law, a fee equal to one-third of the Settlement Fund should be approved.

A. Contingent Fees Are Awarded Using the Percentage-of-the-Fund Approach.

Courts typically use the "percentage-of-the-fund method" to award attorneys' fees from a common fund. See, e.g., Rawa v. Monsanto Co., 934 F.3d 862, 870 (8th Cir. 2019). "In the Eighth Circuit, use of a percentage method of awarding attorney fees in a common-fund case is not only approved, but also 'well established,'" In re Xcel Energy, Inc., Sec., Derivative & "ERISA" Litig., 364 F. Supp. 2d 980, 991 (D. Minn. 2005) (quoting Petrovic v. Amoco Oil Co., 200 F.3d 1140, 1157 (8th Cir. 1999)), or even "preferable,'" Barfield v. Sho-Me Power Elec. Co-op., No. 11-CV-4321, 2015 WL 3460346, at *3 (W.D. Mo. June 1, 2015) (quoting West v. PSS World Med., Inc.,

No. 13-CV-574, 2014 WL 1648741, at *1 (E.D. Mo. Apr. 24, 2014)). The percentage method aligns the interests of the attorneys and the class members by incentivizing counsel to maximize the class's recovery. See Johnston v. Comerica Mortg. Corp., 83 F.3d 241, 245 (8th Cir. 1996) ("[T]he Task Force [established by the Third Circuit] recommended that the percentage of the benefit method be employed in common fund situations.") (citing Court Awarded Attorneys Fees, Report of the Third Circuit Task Force, 108 F.R.D. 237, 255 (3rd Cir. 1985)).[5] The Court should therefore use the percentage approach to award fees in this case.

B. A Fee Equal to One-Third of the Fund is Reasonable.

This Court and other courts within the Eighth Circuit confirm that one-third of the common fund is an appropriate amount for class counsels' fees in complex class actions, including antitrust litigation. Eighth Circuit and Missouri courts "have frequently awarded attorney fees between twenty-five and thirty-six percent of a common fund in other class actions." Huyer v. Buckley, 849 F.3d 395, 399 (8th Cir. 2017) (quoting In re Xcel, 364 F. Supp. 2d at 998); see also Rawa, 934 F.3d at 870 ("courts have frequently awarded attorneys' fees ranging up to 36% in class actions") (quoting Huyer, 849 F.3d at 399); Yarrington v. Solvay Pharm., Inc., 697 F. Supp. 2d 1057, 1064 (D. Minn. 2010) (holding fee award of 33% reasonable); In re U.S. Bancorp Litig., 291 F.3d 1035, 1038 (8th Cir. 2002) (affirming fee award representing 36% of the settlement fund as reasonable)); In re Xcel, 364 F.Supp.2d at 998 (collecting cases demonstrating that district courts routinely approve fee awards between 25% and 36%).

Just recently, this District approved one-third of the fund in a settlement valued at $325 million. See Rogowski v. State Farm Life Ins. Co., No. 22-CV-203, 2023 WL 5125113, *4-5 (W.D.

[5] In contrast, undue focus on hours or hourly rates "creates an unanticipated disincentive to early settlements, tempts lawyers to run up their hours, and compels district courts to engage in a gimlet-eyed review of line-item fee audits." Wal-Mart Stores, Inc. v. Visa U.S.A., Inc., 396 F.3d 96, 121 (2d Cir. 2005) (cleaned up).

Mo. April 18, 2023). Thus, judges in the Western District of Missouri and the Eighth Circuit often apply the one-third-of-the-fund fee calculation, even to large settlements.

In doing so, courts typically consider some or all of the relevant factors listed in Johnson v. Georgia Highway Express, Inc., 488 F.2d 714, 717–19 (5th Cir. 1974). See In re Target Corp. Customer Data Security Breach Litig., 892 F.3d 968, 977 (8th Cir. 2018). The Johnson factors are:

> (1) the time and labor required; (2) the novelty and difficulty of the questions; (3) the skill requisite to perform the legal service properly; (4) the preclusion of employment by the attorney due to acceptance of the case; (5) the customary fee; (6) whether the fee is fixed or contingent; (7) time limitations imposed by the client or the circumstances; (8) the amount involved and the results obtained; (9) the experience, reputation, and ability of the attorneys; (10) the "undesirability" of the case; (11) the nature and length of the professional relationship with the client; and (12) awards in similar cases.

In re Target, 892 F.3d at 977 n.7. To be sure, "[m]any of the Johnson factors are related to one another and lend themselves to being analyzed in tandem." Swinton v. SquareTrade, Inc., 454 F. Supp. 3d 848, 886 (S.D. Iowa 2020). Therefore, courts in the Eighth Circuit often focus on the most relevant Johnson factors in evaluating fee requests. See Huyer, 849 F.3d at 398–400 (affirming trial court's award of one-third of the common fund after review of Johnson factors 1-5 only); In re Xcel, 364 F. Supp. 2d at 993; Tussey v. ABB, Inc., No. 06-CV-4305, 2019 WL 3859763, at *2 (W.D. Mo. Aug. 16, 2019); Yarrington, 697 F. Supp. 2d at 1062; Hardman v. Bd. of Educ. of Dollarway, Arkansas Sch. Dist., 714 F.2d 823, 825 (8th Cir. 1983). The Johnson factors favor Plaintiffs request here. See, e.g., Declaration of Professor Robert H. Klonoff ("Klonoff Decl."), Exhibit 7 at ¶¶ 24, 34, 39.

1. Class Counsel worked on a contingent basis, despite the numerous risks and time commitments. (Factors 1, 4, 6-7 and 10)

Here, Class Counsel's time and labor invested was substantial and necessarily precluded other work. Dirks Decl. at ¶¶ 17-18. Prosecuting the Litigation required over $90,000,000 in lodestar through July 31, 2024. Dirks Decl. at ¶ 43. In addition to the substantial number of hours it took to reach the Settlements, Class Counsel were also required to expend $13,147,775.19 of their own money toward the litigation through July 31, 2024, with more bills coming due every day. Dirks Decl. at ¶ 48. All that work, which precluded other less-risky employment, was the result of Class Counsels' efforts undertaken without any guarantee of payment. Moreover, the litigation faced low odds of early settlements because they challenged practices that were central to the real estate brokerage industry. See, e.g., How the $1.8 Billion Real-Estate Commissions Lawsuit Came to Be, Wall Street Journal, November 26, 2023 ("Antitrust cases almost always settle before trial, giving attorneys some assurance they will get paid something. But in this case, the damages were so high and the threat to the industry so existential that plaintiff attorneys thought it unlikely NAR would settle."). Indeed, from the outset, NAR took the position that the cases were "baseless." See, e.g., Realtor Group Moves to Dismiss Class Action Lawsuit Alleging Collusion, Forbes, May 21, 2019 ("According to John Smaby, president of NAR, all three claims have no merit. 'In today's complex real estate environment, REALTORS and Multiple Listing Services promote a pro-consumer, pro-competitive market for home buyers and sellers, contrary to the baseless claims of these class action attorneys,' he said. 'Our filing today shows the lawsuit is wrong on the facts, wrong on the economics and wrong on the law.'").

"Courts have recognized that the risk of receiving little or no recovery is a major factor in awarding attorney fees." Yarrington, 697 F. Supp. 2d at 1062 (quoting In re Xcel, 364 F. Supp. 2d at 994); Theodore Eisenberg & Geoffrey Miller, Attorney Fees In Class Action Settlements: An Empirical Study, 1 J. Emp. L. Studies 27, 27, 38 (2004) ("Fees are also correlated with risk: the presence of high risk is associated with a higher fee, while low-risk cases generate lower fees . . . . [This] is widely accepted in the literature."). "Unless that risk is compensated with a commensurate award, no firm, no matter how large or well-financed, will have the incentive to consider pursuing a case such as this." Tussey, 2019 WL 3859763, at *3. "Courts agree that a larger fee is appropriate in contingent matters where payment depends on the attorney's success." Been v. O.K. Industries, Inc., No. 02-CV-285, 2011 WL 4478766, at *9 (E.D. Okla. Aug. 16, 2011). And critically, "[t]he risks plaintiffs' counsel faced must be assessed as they existed in the morning of the action, not in light of the settlement ultimately achieved at the end of the day." In re Xcel, 364 F. Supp. 2d at 994.

This was the riskiest litigation at least some of Class Counsel have ever prosecuted, due both to the possibility of no recovery and the investment of time and money required to pursue the litigation and reach settlements or other judgment against entrenched defendants. Dirks Decl. at ¶ 22; generally Exhibits 1-6; see also Caligiuri v. Symantec Corp., 855 F.3d 860, 866 (8th Cir. 2017) (affirming fee award where lower court reasoned, in part, that "[p]laintiffs' counsel, in taking this case on a contingent fee basis, was exposed to significant risk"); In re Equifax Inc. Customer Data Sec. Breach Litig., No. 17-md-2800, 2020 WL 256132, at *33 (N.D. Ga. Mar. 17, 2020) ("This action was prosecuted on a contingent basis and thus a larger fee is justified."). And that risk continued to grow throughout the years of litigation through trial, with every hour of work and every dollar of expenses compounding the risk to Class Counsels' investment. Dirks Decl. at ¶ 22. The riskiness of the cases is also confirmed by dearth of similar cases filed by other attorneys until after the Burnett trial verdict and the decision by attorneys in the few cases that were filed to "slow-track" them (avoiding a significant investment) pending the outcome of the Class Counsel's Litigation. In sum, "the extraordinary level of work and result achieved here in the face of enormous risk warrants a substantial fee percentage." Klonoff Decl. at ¶ 88.

2. The claims were difficult to prosecute. (Factor 2)

Because antitrust claims are especially complex, expensive, and difficult to prosecute, courts have recognized that antitrust settlements attorneys' fees equal to one-third of the fund are often appropriate in antitrust suits. See In re Peanut Farmers Antitrust Litig., No. 19-CV-00463, 2021 WL 9494033, at *6 (E.D. Va. Aug. 10, 2021) ("[A]n award of one-third is also common in antitrust class actions.") (citing cases);[6] In re Urethane Antitrust Litig., No. 04-CV-1616, 2016 WL 4060156, at *5 (D. Kan. July 29, 2016) (awarding one-third of $835 million settlement, noting "a one-third fee is customary"); In re Flonase Antitrust Litig., 291 F.R.D. 93, 100, 106 (E.D. Pa. 2013) (awarding one-third of the settlement fund as attorneys' fees in which court relied upon the fact that class counsel had litigated a number of hotly contested Daubert challenges). See also Klonoff Decl. at ¶¶ 41.

Here it is undeniable that the antitrust claims at issue in the litigation were challenging to prosecute. As the Court saw, no stone has been left unturned by numerous Defendants and challenges have been made at every stage (i.e. motions to dismiss, motions for summary judgment, Daubert motions, class certification, efforts to appeal from class certification orders, appeals on arbitration issues, and trial). See Dirks Decl. at ¶¶ 14, 20. The case also required extensive discovery, including well over 100 depositions, the production and review of millions of pages of documents, and dozens of expert reports.

3. Class Counsel's reputation and skillful resolution of the Litigation supports the award. (Factors 3 and 9)

Courts often judge class counsel's skill against the "quality and vigor of opposing counsel . . . ." In re Charter Commc'ns, Inc., MDL No. 1506 All Cases, No. 02-CV-1186, 2005 WL 4045741, at *29 (E.D. Mo. June 30, 2005) (citing In re IBP, Inc. Sec. Litig., 328 F. Supp. 2d 1056, 1064 (D.S.D. 2004)).

[6] And observing that "[o]ther courts have determined that a higher percentage rate is appropriate where discovery has been completed and the case is ready for trial." Id.

Here, Class Counsel faced off against no fewer than thirty highly-respected law firms over the course of the litigation. Dirks Decl. at ¶ 13. Although Class Counsel's team includes some of the country's most accomplished class action and trial lawyers, Defendants also hired some of the country's most prominent defense attorneys and firms. This weighs heavily in favor of the requested award. See Klonoff Decl. at ¶¶ 56-58.

Class Counsel in their own right are well-known on both a national level and local level. See generally Exhibits 1-6. Indeed, trial counsel for the Burnett case was named as the most recent Missouri Lawyer of the Year. See Ketchmark named Lawyer of the Year, Missouri Lawyers Weekly, December 7, 2023. And Class Counsel for the Moehrl case have been repeatedly recognized for their skill and expertise in antitrust litigation. See, e.g., Berman Dec. at ¶ 2; Seltzer Dec. at ¶ 3; Braun Dec. at ¶ 2.

4. The percentage requested is supported by other awards under the facts and circumstances of this Litigation. (Factors 5 and 12)

In the Eighth Circuit, courts have "frequently awarded attorneys' fees ranging up to 36% in class actions." Huyer, 849 F.3d at 399.[7] Courts have recognized that prosecution of antitrust claims should result in a one-third-of-the-fund fee award. See In re Peanut Farmers, 2021 WL 9494033, at *6 ("[A]n award of one-third is also common in antitrust class actions.") (citing cases); In re Urethane, 2016 WL 4060156, at *5 (awarding one-third of $835 million antitrust settlement, noting "a one-third fee is customary").

Moreover, the requested one-third fee award is equal to or less than what the actual named plaintiffs—those with the most on the line and most involved in the case—agreed to at the outset of the case. The class representatives agreed to maximum fees between 33.3% and 35%. Dirks Decl. at ¶ 29; Berman Dec. at ¶ 6.

[7] See also supra pp. 6-7.

These factors also support Plaintiffs' request. Klonoff Decl. at ¶¶ 60-61, 77-78.

5. The amount involved and results obtained for the Settlement Class given the risks of the Litigation support the percentage requested. (Factor 8)

Here, the Fund is pure cash and non-reversionary; so, the Settlements, plus interest earned until distribution, requires no further valuation. In requesting a fee as a percentage of the Fund, Class Counsel necessarily seeks a fee proportionate to the degree of monetary success obtained.

Equally important, the Settlements include significant injunctive relief which requires the Settling Defendants, among other things, to not enforce the Mandatory Offer of Compensation Rule and to train their agents that commissions are negotiable. See also National Association of Realtors Verdict Will Send "Shock Waves" Through the Industry, The Wall Street Journal, November 1, 2023 ("There is no question that Tuesday's nearly $1.8 billion verdict against the National Association of Realtors and brokerage firms is going to send shock waves through the industry. Commissions have stayed pretty stable at about 5% to 6% of the sales price for decades now, despite major technological upheaval in the industry. We may finally start to see those costs for home buyers and sellers go down quite a bit."); Examining Some of the Big Changes Coming to Real Estate Commissions, National Public Radio, August 16, 2024 ("Over time, home buyers and sellers are expected to save tens of billions of dollars a year in lower commissions"). The value of this non-monetary relief to consumers is substantial in itself and provides additional justification for the requested fee. See Klonoff Decl. at ¶¶ 96-98.

This factor supports a contingency percentage of one-third, particularly given the benefits achieved. Importantly, success—including "exceptional success"—is not measured solely by the maximum damages alleged but must be evaluated against any "unusually difficult or risky circumstances and the size of plaintiffs' recovery." Allapattah Servs., Inc. v. Exxon Corp., 454 F. Supp. 2d 1185, 1204–05 (S.D. Fla. 2006). Here, the request is supported by both the size of the recovery and the results obtained as compared to the risk of a lesser recovery or none at all. And rather than stop at the Burnett and Moehrl defendants, Class Counsel continued to prosecute these joint and several liability claims against additional Defendants in Gibson and Umpa. Thus, these and any future settlements or judgments will also benefit the Class.

C. The Requested Fee Is Reasonable Under a Lodestar Crosscheck.

Although a lodestar crosscheck is "not required" in the Eighth Circuit, Keil v. Lopez, 862 F.3d 685, 701 (8th Cir. 2017); PHT Holdings II, LLC v. N. Am. Co. Life & Health Ins., 2023 WL 8522980, at *7 (S.D. Iowa Nov. 30, 2023)[8]—performing such a crosscheck here confirms that the requested fee is reasonable and should be approved. As noted above, Class Counsel have spent over 105,000 hours through July 31, 2024 in Gibson, Umpa, Burnett, and Moehrl. These hours result in an overall lodestar through July 31, 2024 of $90,853,364. Dirks Decl. at ¶ 43.

In performing a lodestar crosscheck in litigation involving multiple settlements and multiple cases, the appropriate method is to consider the "holistic approach." See Klonoff Decl. at ¶¶ 104-09; see also In re Capacitors Antitrust Litig., 2018 WL 4790575, at *6 (N.D. Cal. Sept. 21, 2018) ("courts typically base fee awards in subsequent settlements on all work performed in the case," based on the reality—applicable here—that "the total work performed by counsel from inception of the case makes each settlement possible."); In re Automotive Parts Antitrust Litig., 2020 WL 5653257, at *3 n.5 (E.D. Mich. Sept. 23, 2020) ("In calculating the lodestar for purposes of the cross-check, it would be impractical to compartmentalize and isolate the work that . . . Class Counsel did in any particular case at any particular time because all of their work assisted in achieving all of the settlements and has provided and will continue to provide a significant benefit to all of the . . . classes.").

[8] "'[T]o overly emphasize the amount of hours spent on a contingency fee case would penalize counsel for obtaining an early settlement and would distort the value of the attorneys' services.'" Rawa, 934 F.3d at 870 (quoting In re Charter Commc'ns, 2005 WL 4045741, at *18). Cf. In re T-Mobile Customer Data Security Breach Lit., No. 23-2744, 2024 WL 3561874, at *7 (8th Cir. July 29, 2024 (observing a crosscheck is not required but can be warranted "when a megafund case settles quickly").

The Court previously approved a fee of one-third of the Anywhere, RE/MAX and Keller Williams Settlement. Burnett, 2024 WL 2842222, at *17 (W.D. Mo. May 9, 2024). When those prior settlements are added to the present settlements, the total monetary settlement value is $319,100,000. One-third of this combined amount is $106,366,667. Thus, the combined fee request, to date, constitutes a 1.17 Multiplier on their time. Such a multiplier is well within the range of reasonableness. See Klonoff Dec. at ¶¶ 29, 122; Rawa, 934 F.3d at 870 (observing a lodestar multiplier of 5.3 is within the bounds of reasonableness); Huyer v. Buckley, 849 F.3d 395, 399–400 (8th Cir. 2017) (observing lodestar multipliers of up to 5.6 times class counsel's lodestar to be in the reasonable range for a lodestar crosscheck); In re T-Mobile Customer Data Security Breach Litigation, No. 23-2744, 2024 WL 3561874, at *6 (8th Cir. July 29, 2024) (observing that in a case that settled early in the litigation, a multiplier of 5.3 is on the "high" side of reasonableness) (citing Rawa, 934 F.3d at 870)); In re Charter Commc'ns, Inc., Sec. Litig., No. 4:02-cv-1186-CAS, 2005 WL 4045741, at *18 (E.D. Mo. Jun. 30, 2005) (finding 5.61 lodestar multiplier reasonable); In re Syngenta AG MIR 162 Corn Litig., 2019 WL 1274813, at *5 (D. Kan. Mar. 20, 2019) ("a multiplier of 3 is well within the range allowed in other cases involving large settlements"). Thus, by this Court's and the Eighth Circuit's own standards, Plaintiffs' request of fees of one-third of the fund is reasonable.

II. THE COURT SHOULD APPROVE CLASS COUNSEL'S REQUEST FOR REIMBURSEMENT OF REASONABLY INCURRED EXPENSES.

"Reasonable costs and expenses incurred by an attorney who creates or preserves a common fund are reimbursed proportionately by those class members who benefit by the settlement." Yarrington, 697 F. Supp. 2d at 1067 (quoting In re Media Vision Tech. Sec. Litig., 913 F. Supp. 1362, 1366 (N.D. Cal. 1996)). Under the Settlements, Class Counsel are entitled to recover their expenses. The costs and expenses through July 31, 2024 were reasonable and necessary in order to reach these Settlements. Dirks Decl. ¶¶ 48-49; see also Exhibits 2-6. The total costs associated with the Litigation through July 31, 2024 is $13,147,775.19. Of this, $12,923,266.48 was already awarded by the Court in conjunction with the Anywhere, RE/MAX and Keller Williams settlements. As a result, Plaintiffs are requesting reimbursement of the additional expenses that have not already been awarded.

The largest components of these costs is for experts, depositions, class notice and administration, mediations, and online research. See Tussey, 2019 WL 3859763, at *5 ("Reimbursable expenses include many litigation expenses beyond those narrowly defined 'costs' recoverable from an opposing party under Rule 54(d), and includes: expert fees; travel; long-distance and conference telephone; postage; delivery services; and computerized legal research.") (citing Alba Conte, 1 Attorney Fee Awards § 2:19 (3d ed.))). All of the expenses submitted were reasonable and necessary expenses in such a large litigation. The Court should thus approve Class Counsel's expense reimbursement request to the extent the costs have not been awarded under prior settlements.

III. THE COURT SHOULD APPROVE THE REQUESTED SERVICE AWARDS.

Courts routinely approve service awards to compensate class representatives for the services they provide and the risks they incur on behalf of the class. The factors for deciding whether the service awards are warranted are: "(1) actions the plaintiffs took to protect the class's interests, (2) the degree to which the class has benefited from those actions, and (3) the amount of time and effort the plaintiffs expended in pursuing litigation." Caligiuri, 855 F.3d at 867.

Here, Plaintiffs seek a service award of $10,000 per Gibson Settlement Class Representative. The Court already awarded Service awards to Burnett and Moehrl class representatives, so this request applies only to the new Gibson named plaintiffs.[9] The Gibson Settlement Class Representatives are performing important work on the case, including time-consuming gathering of facts and documents and assisting Class Counsel with the specifics of their transactions. Dirks Decl. at ¶ 52. That work materially advanced the litigation and protected the Settlement Class's interests. Id. Indeed, without their time and effort, these Settlements would have been impossible. Finally, the requested service awards are consistent with other awards approved in the Eighth Circuit. Tussey, 850 F.3d 951, 961–62 (8th Cir. 2017) (approving $25,000 service awards); Rogowski, 2023 WL 5125113, *6 (approving $25,000 service awards for named plaintiffs); Wolfert v. UnitedHealth Group, Inc., No. 08-CV-01643 (E.D. Mo. Aug. 21, 2009), ECF No. 38 at 4–5 (approving a service award of $30,000).

Accordingly, Plaintiffs' request falls within a fair range of service awards. The Court should therefore approve the requested service awards for each Settlement Class Representative.[10]

CONCLUSION

Class Counsel respectfully request that the Court approve the requested fee of one-third of [9] The request is less than for the Burnett and Moehrl class representatives because while these representatives are in the process of responding to discovery, their involvement is at an earlier stage.

[10] To the extent a Settlement is reached with the additional defendants, Plaintiffs may seek additional service awards for class representatives who further participated in the Litigation.

the Settlement Fund, reimbursement of current expenses in the amount of $13,147,775.19 that have not already been reimbursed in prior settlements and service awards of $10,000 to each of the new Gibson Settlement Class Representatives.

Dated: August 20, 2024

Respectfully submitted by:

COHEN MILSTEIN SELLERS & TOLL PLLC
/s/ Robert A. Braun
Benjamin D. Brown (pro hac vice)
Robert A. Braun (pro hac vice) Sabrina Merold (pro hac vice)
1100 New York Ave. NW, Fifth Floor
Washington, DC 20005
Telephone: (202) 408-4600
bbrown@cohenmilstein.com rbraun@cohenmilstein.com
smerold@cohenmilstein.com
Daniel Silverman (pro hac vice)
769 Centre Street
Suite 207
Boston, MA 02130
Telephone: (617) 858-1990
dsilverman@cohenmilstein.com

HAGENS BERMAN SOBOL SHAPIRO LLP
Steve W. Berman (pro hac vice)
1301 Second Avenue, Suite 2000
Seattle, WA 98101
Telephone: (206) 623-7292
steve@hbsslaw.com

Rio S. Pierce (pro hac vice)
715 Hearst Avenue, Suite 202
Berkeley, CA 94710
Telephone: (510) 725-3000
riop@hbsslaw.com

Nathan Emmons (Mo. Bar. No. 70046)
Jeannie Evans (pro hac vice)
455 North Cityfront Plaza Drive, Suite 2410
Chicago, IL 60611
Telephone: (708) 628-4949

WILLIAMS DIRKS DAMERON LLC

/s/ Eric L. Dirks
Eric L. Dirks MO # 54921
Michael A. Williams MO # 47538
Matthew L. Dameron MO # 52093
Eric L. Dirks MO # 54921
1100 Main Street, Suite 2600
Kansas City, MO 64105
Tele: (816) 945 7110
Fax: (816) 945-7118
mwilliams@williamsdirks.com matt@williamsdirks.com
dirks@williamsdirks.com

BOULWARE LAW LLC
Brandon J.B. Boulware MO # 54150
Jeremy M. Suhr MO # 60075
1600 Genessee Street, Suite 956A
Kansas City, MO 64102
Tele: (816) 492-2826
Fax: (816) 492-2826
brandon@boulware-law.com jeremy@boulware-law.com erin@boulware-law.com

KETCHMARK AND MCCREIGHT P.C.
Michael Ketchmark MO # 41018
Scott McCreight MO # 44002
11161 Overbrook Rd. Suite 210
Leawood, Kansas 66211
Tele: (913) 266-4500
mike@ketchmclaw.com
smccreight@ketchmclaw.com

TAB 36A

[Submitting Counsel on Signature Page]

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT

NORTHERN DISTRICT OF CALIFORNIA

In re LIDODERM ANTITRUST LITIGATION	Master File No. 14-md-02521-WHO MDL No. 2521
THIS DOCUMENT RELATES TO: END-PAYOR ACTIONS	ORDER [AS MODIFIED] GRANTING END-PAYOR CLASS COUNSEL'S MOTION FOR AN AWARD OF ATTORNEYS' FEES, EXPENSES, AND SERVICE AWARDS

On March 20, 2018, End-Payor Plaintiffs,[1] on behalf of themselves and the End-Payor Class, entered into separate settlement agreements with (a) defendant Endo Pharmaceuticals, Inc. ("Endo"); (b) defendants Teikoku Pharma USA, Inc. and Teikoku Seiyaku Co., Ltd. (together, "Teikoku"); (c) defendants Actavis, Inc. (f/k/a Watson Pharmaceuticals, Inc.), Watson Laboratories, Inc., and Actavis plc (together, "Watson" and together with Endo and Teikoku, "Defendants") (the "Settlement Agreements"). The Court preliminarily approved the Settlements on May 1, 2018, and the settlements have now been granted final approval.

The Court has considered End-Payor Class Counsel's Motion for an Award of Attorneys' Fees, Expenses, and Service Awards, including all arguments and briefing presented and any opposition thereto, as well as any objections to the requests.

The Court GRANTS the motion and ORDERS as follows:

1. Terms capitalized in this Order and not otherwise defined herein have the same meanings as those used in the Settlement Agreements and exhibits thereto.

I. Attorneys' Fees

2. Class counsel[2] requests the payment of attorneys' fees equal to one-third of the settlement amounts ($34,916,000), plus proportionate interest from the Settlement Fund. This amount represents a 1.37 multiplier on class counsel's reported lodestar. In support of their request, each firm submitted a declaration that (1) identifies the attorneys and staff members

[1] Allied Services Division Welfare Fund, City of Providence, International Union of Operating Engineers Local 49 Health and Welfare Fund, International Union of Operating Engineers Local 132 Health and Welfare Fund, Iron Workers District Council of New England Welfare Fund, NECA-IBEW Welfare Trust Fund, United Food and Commercial Workers Local 1776 & Participating Employers Health and Welfare Fund, Welfare Plan of the International Union of Operating Engineers Locals 137, 137A, 137B, 137C, 137R, and Ottavio Gallotto.

[2] Cohen Milstein Sellers & Toll PLLC; Girard Gibbs LLP; Heins Mills & Olson, P.L.C.; Joseph Saveri Law Firm, Inc.; Hilliard & Shadowen LLP; Miller Law LLC; Motley Rice LLC; Robbins Geller Rudman & Dowd LLP; Cohen, Placitella & Roth, P.C.; Freed Kenner London & Millen LLC; Glancy Prongay & Murry LLP; Hach Rose Schirripa & Cheverie LLP; Kohn, Swift & Graf, P.C.; Krause, Kalfayan, Benink & Slavens, LLP; Labaton Sucharow LLP; Law Offices of Robert W. Sink; Lockridge Grindal Nauen P.L.L.P.; Meredith & Narine; Pomerantz LLP; Shepherd, Finkelman, Miller & Shah, LLP; Spector Roseman & Kodroff, P.C.; Weinstein Kitchenoff & Asher LLC; and Wexler Wallace LLP.

who worked on the case and the tasks they performed, (2) describes the amount of time spent by each of the firm's attorneys and staff members, and the hourly rates for each of them, and (3) breaks down the amount billed by each attorney or staff member for specific tasks.

3. Pursuant to Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 23(h), a "court may award reasonable attorneys' fees" to plaintiffs' counsel in class action cases. "[C]ourts have an independent obligation to ensure that the award, like the settlement itself, is reasonable[.]" In re Bluetooth Headset Prods. Liability Litig., 654 F.3d 935, 941 (9th Cir. 2011). "Where a settlement produces a common fund for the benefit of the entire class, courts have discretion to employ either the lodestar method or the percentage-of-recovery method." Id. at 942. "Though courts have discretion to choose which calculation method they use, their discretion must be exercised so as to achieve a reasonable result." Id. The Court finds that class counsel's requested fee is reasonable under either approach and awards class counsel one-third of the settlement amounts ($34,916,000, plus a proportional share of interest from the Settlement Fund). Co-Lead Counsel shall allocate the awarded attorneys' fees among class counsel.

A. The Lodestar Method

4. The lodestar figure is calculated by multiplying the number of hours reasonably spent by a reasonable hourly rate. Bluetooth, 654 F.3d at 941. Courts may "adjust [the lodestar figure] upward or downward by an appropriate positive or negative multiplier reflecting a host of reasonableness factors." Id. at 941-42 (citation omitted). Class counsel spent 51,668.35 hours prosecuting this litigation on behalf of the End-Payor Class with a resulting lodestar of $25,560,049.50. Class counsel's requested fee award of one-third of the settlement amounts represents a modest upward adjustment of 1.37 on their lodestar.

5. Class counsel's lodestar reflects time that was necessarily and reasonably expended for the benefit of the End-Payor Class. Co-Lead Counsel Girard Gibbs, Heins Mills, and Cohen Milstein performed the significant majority of the work in this matter. Non-lead firms carried out a limited number of non-duplicative tasks at Co-Lead Counsel's direction, primarily reviewing documents produced by Defendants and responding to discovery served by Defendants on their clients. In addition, Co-Lead Counsel undertook significant efforts to increase efficiency and avoid duplication. The record also reflects that Co-Lead Counsel worked cooperatively with counsel for the direct purchaser and opt-out plaintiffs.

6. The second part of the lodestar calculation is multiplying the hours spent by a "reasonable hourly rate for the region and the experience of the lawyer." Bluetooth, 654 F.3d at 941. Class counsel's historic rates—which range from $350 to $1,050 for partners and senior counsel, $300 to $675 for associates, and $100 to $400 for paralegals and other litigation staff (including senior cases managers)—meet both criteria. The requested rates are consistent with rates approved in recent antitrust class actions in this district. E.g. In re Nat'l Collegiate Athletic Ass'n Athletic Grant-in-Aid Cap Antitrust Litig. ("NCAA"), 2017 WL 6040065, at *8 (N.D. Cal. Dec. 6, 2017) (approving hourly rates for partners of $578 to $1,035 and rates for associates of $295 to $635); In re High-Tech Employee Antitrust Litig., 2015 WL 5158730, at *9 (N.D. Cal. Sept. 2, 2015) (partner rates of $490 to $975, non-partner rates of $310 to $800, and staff rates of $190 to $430). Co-Lead Counsel set an hourly cap of $350 for all time spent on document review (with the exception of Japanese language review, which was capped at $400 per hour). Class counsel's declarations also provided examples of other cases in which their rates have been approved and explain that class counsel assigned tasks to attorneys and staff based on their skills and experience.

7. The Court also finds that the multiplier class counsel request here is warranted. In deciding whether to deviate from the lodestar figure, courts consider "the quality of representation, the benefit obtained for the class, the complexity and novelty of the issues present, and the risk of nonpayment." Bluetooth, 654 F.3d at 942 (quoting Hanlon v. Chrysler Corp., 150 F.3d 1011, 1029 (9th Cir. 1998)). Each of these factors weighs in favor of a 1.37 multiplier.

8. Class counsel obtained a significant benefit for the End-Payor Class. Defendants will pay a total of $104.75 million in cash to settle EPPs' claims. The End-Payor Class will recover 46% of the highest single damages estimate EPPs were prepared to seek at trial ($229 million). See Rodriguez v. West Publishing Corp., 563 F.3d 948, 964-65 (9th Cir. 2009) (antitrust settlement for 30% of plaintiffs' estimated damages was "fair and reasonable no matter how you slice it"). Class counsel have reported that they are not aware of any other end-payor pay-for-delay case in federal court since 2005 that has settled for more than $100 million. The size of the recovery here—whether measured in dollars or by reference to percentage-of-damages recovery—warrants the multiplier. See Nitsch v. DreamWorks Animation SKG Inc., 2017 WL 2423161, at *10 (N.D. Cal. June 5, 2017) (awarding a 2.0 multiplier for a 30.5% recovery).

9. Class counsel provided their clients with diligent and skilled representation in this matter. Co-Lead Counsel litigated numerous complex issues and their efforts produced substantial benefits for the End-Payor Class. This case was the first post-Actavis pay-for-delay case in the Ninth Circuit, and many of the issues class counsel litigated were matters of first impression in this Circuit. The litigation also involved substantial risk. In the only pay-for-delay case to proceed through trial since Actavis, the jury returned a victory for the defendants. See In re: Nexium (Esomeprazole) Antitrust Litig., No. 1:12-md-02409-WGY, ECF No. 1383 (D. Mass. Dec. 5, 2014) (verdict form). In other cases, plaintiffs have lost at summary judgment. See In re Wellbutrin XL Antitrust Litig. Indirect Purchaser Class, 868 F.3d 132 (3d Cir. 2017). Obtaining certification of an end-payor class presents challenges that are unique to end-payors.

10. In addition, even if EPPs had prevailed at trial, Defendants were poised to appeal several important decisions, including the Court's certification of the End-Payor Class, its summary judgment order on the relevant market, and its order regarding the appropriate standard for establishing causation at trial. Here, "Class Counsel litigated this action without pay for several years, even though recovery was uncertain." High-Tech, 2015 WL 5158730, at *10.

11. Finally, the requested multiplier is within the range of multipliers awarded in the Ninth Circuit. In Vizcaino v. Microsoft Corporation, the Ninth Circuit surveyed common fund cases with settlements ranging from $50-200 million and found that multipliers ranged from 1.0-4.0 in the vast majority of cases. 290 F.3d 1043, 1052-54 (9th Cir. 2002). Courts in this district have recently awarded significantly larger multipliers in antitrust cases than the multiplier requested by class counsel. E.g., DreamWorks, 2017 WL 2423161, at *10 (2.0 multiplier).

12. Viewed in light the above factors and awards in other cases, a 1.37 multiplier on class counsel's lodestar is warranted.

B. The Percentage-of-the Recovery Method

13. In the Ninth Circuit, the benchmark for attorneys' fees under a percentage-of-the-recovery method is 25% of the settlement fund. Bluetooth, 654 F.3d at 942 (citation omitted). But "[t]he benchmark percentage should be adjusted, or replaced by a lodestar calculation, when special circumstances indicate that the percentage recovery would be either too small or too large in light of the hours devoted to the case or other relevant factors." Six (6) Mexican Workers v. Arizona Citrus Growers, 904 F.2d 1301, 1311 (9th Cir. 1990) (emphasis added). The factors courts consider when determining whether to depart from the 25% benchmark are: "(1) the result achieved; (2) the risk involved in the litigation; (3) the skill required and quality of work by counsel; (4) the contingent nature of the fee; and (5) awards made in similar cases." Larsen v. Trader Joe's Co., 2014 WL 3404531, at *9 (N.D. Cal. July 11, 2014) (citing Vizcaino, 290 F.3d at 1048-50). Consideration of these factors weighs in favor of class counsel's requested fee.

The first three factors largely mirror the considerations discussed above with respect to a lodestar multiplier. Just as those factors weigh in favor of a multiplier, they also weigh in favor of a fee award of one-third of the settlements. With respect to the fourth factor, class counsel undertook this matter on an entirely contingent fee basis with no apparently actively litigated, parallel government litigation, and litigated under the demanding rule-of-reason standard. Here, "the public interest is served by rewarding attorneys who assume representation on a contingent basis with an enhanced fee to compensate them for the risk that they might be paid nothing for their work." Larsen, 2014 WL 3404531, at *9.

As to the fifth factor, a fee award of one-third is within the range of awards in this Circuit. See id., 2014 WL 3404531, at *9 (citing cases awarding fees of 32% or greater); In re Pacific Enterprises Sec. Litig., 47 F.3d 373, 379 (9th Cir. 1995) (affirming award of 33%). Fee awards of one-third are common in pay-for-delay litigation and were very recently awarded in two such cases. E.g., In re Aggrenox Antitrust Litig., No. 2:14-md-02516-SRU, ECF 821, at 9-10 (July 19, 2018) (awarding 33 1/3%); In re Solodyn (Minocycline Hydrochloride) Antitrust Litig., No. 1:14-md-02503-RJC, ECF 1176, at 5 (July 18, 2018) (fee award of 33 1/3%; 1.08 multiplier); In re Tricor Indirect Purchaser Antitrust Litig., No. 1:05-cv-00360-SLR, slip op. at 4, ECF No. 544 (D. Del. Oct. 28, 2009) (fee award of 33⅓% of the $67,500,000 settlement fund; 1.48 multiplier); In re Relafen Antitrust Litig., No. 01-cv-12239-WGY, slip op. at 9, ECF No. 459 (D. Mass. Oct 13, 2005) (fee award of 33⅓% of the $67,000,000 settlement fund; 2.02 multiplier).

There is "no rule in the Ninth Circuit that requires a court to decrease the percentage of the fee award as the size of the settlement increases." In re Toyota Corp. Unintended Marketing, Sales Pracs. and Prods. Liability Litig., 2013 WL 12327929, at *34 (C.D. Cal. July 24, 2013) (citing Vizcaino, 290 F.3d at 1047). Instead, the size of the fund is simply one factor courts look to when determining a reasonable fee. Vizcaino, 290 F.3d at 1047. "[F]ederal district courts across the country have, in the class action settlement context, routinely awarded class counsel fees in excess of the 25% 'benchmark,' even in so-called 'mega-fund' cases." NCAA, 2017 WL 6040065, at *5 & n.30 (collecting cases, including those awarding fees of 1/3 of the settlement fund); see also, e.g., Vizcaino, 290 F.3d at 1050 (affirming 28% fee with a multiplier of 3.65); In re: Cathode Ray Tube (CRT) Antitrust Litig., 2016 WL 4126533, at *6, 10 (N.D. Cal. Aug. 3, 2016) (awarding a fee of 27.5%, which was a 1.96 multiplier). The rationales for awarding fees at or below the 25% benchmark in some cases—i.e. to avoid a windfall for class counsel—do not apply here. As detailed above, the hours class counsel reasonably spent on this case and the relevant factors support the requested fee award.

II. Expenses

Class counsel also seeks the payment of $3,948,118.06 in unreimbursed expenses. "Class counsel is entitled to reimbursement of reasonable expenses." Larsen, 2014 WL 3404531, at *10 (citing Fed. R. Civ. P. 23(h)). Class counsel seeks the reimbursement of costs reasonably incurred for the prosecution of the litigation on behalf of the End-Payor Class, including filing fees, computerized research, copies, postage and messenger services, document hosting services, experts, sales data purchased from third-parties, transcripts, translations of documents, case-related travel, and distributing notice of the Court's certification order. The categories of expenses for which class counsel seeks reimbursement are the type routinely charged to clients, and should be reimbursed. See High-Tech, 2015 WL 5158730, at *16 (awarding costs for (1) expert witness fees; (2) mediators' fees; (3) document review; (4) court reporting and videographer services; (5) electronic research; (6) copying, mailing, and serving documents; and (7) case-related travel for Plaintiffs, witnesses, experts, and counsel); In re Media Vision, 913 F. Supp. 1362, 1367-72 (N.D.Cal.1996) (costs related to experts, photocopying, legal research fees, travel expenses, postage, and filing fees may be reimbursed). Class counsel's request for the reimbursement of their expenses in the amount of $3,948,118.06 is granted.

III. Service Awards

Class counsel also request a service award of $10,000 to each of the nine Class Representatives ($90,000 total, which is .086% of total value of the Settlements). The Court finds that the requested service awards are reasonable. Each Class Representative actively participated in the litigation, including staying abreast of the progress of the case, collecting and produced documents, and responding to interrogatories and, in the case of two of the class representatives, preparing to testify at trial. Awards of $10,000 are frequently awarded to end-payors in pay-for-delay cases. E.g., Aggrenox, No. 2:14-md-02516-SRU, ECF 821, at 10; Solodyn, No. 1:14-md-02503-RJC, ECF 1176, at 4. The requested awards are also consistent with similar service awards regularly approved in class actions in this district. E.g. Alvarez v. Farmers Ins. Exchange, 2017 WL 2214585, at *1 (N.D. Cal. Jan. 18, 2017) (approving nine $10,000 service awards that in the aggregate were 1.8% of the settlement value).

IV. Objection of Pamela Sweeney

Only one individual—Pamela Sweeney—objected to the requested attorneys' fees and expense award. ECF 1035. Ms. Sweeney objects to class counsel's requested fees and expenses as too high, but she "does not cite any record evidence or legal authority in support of her conclusory argument." Rikos v. Proctor & Gamble, 2018 WL 2009681, at *13 (S.D. Ohio Apr. 30, 2018) (overruling objection from Ms. Sweeney). As discussed above, class counsel's requested attorneys' fees and expenses are appropriate and supported by the record. Ms. Sweeney's objection is overruled.

Ms. Sweeney's objection was also untimely. The deadline to submit objections was August 21, 2018 (ECF 1016 at 5) and the postmark date on Ms. Sweeney's objections is August 25, 2018 (ECF 1035-1). While may "refuse to consider" untimely objections and I could reject the objection on this ground, see In re Yahoo Mail Litig., 2016 WL 4474612, at *8 (N.D. Cal. Aug. 25, 2016) (denying untimely objection submitted by Patrick Sweeney) (citation omitted); In re TFT-LCD (Flat Panel) Antitrust Litig., 2011 WL 7575004, at *3 (N.D. Cal. Dec. 27, 2011) ("refus[ing] to consider" an untimely objection), I have considered it on its merits and nonetheless overrule it..

V. Payment Schedule

Endo will not make its second and third payments (of $10 million, or 9.5% of the total settlement amount, each) until February 15, 2019 and 2020, respectively. While the first distribution of settlement funds to class members in March 2019 will include Endo's first and second payments, Endo's third payment will not be available for distribution until March 2020.

In light of the staggered nature of Endo's payments, entitlement to attorneys' fees, expense, and service award payments shall occur according to the following schedule:

Event	Date
81% of the Court-awarded attorneys' fees, $3,948,118.06 in expenses, and the service awards may be distributed to Co-Lead Counsel for their allocation of fees and expenses to class counsel and to pay the class representatives their service awards	Thirty days after final approval and the running of any appeal(s) of the settlement approval (i.e. settlement "finality," as defined in the Settlement Agreements)
Endo's second payment ($10 million)	By February 15, 2019
9.5% of the court-awarded attorneys' fees may be distributed to Co-Lead Counsel for their allocation of fees to class counsel	Upon Endo's second payment

Event	Date
First distribution of settlement funds to class members	Early March 2019
Endo's third payment ($10 million)	By February 15, 2010
9.5% of the court-awarded attorneys' fees may be distributed to Co-Lead Counsel for their allocation of fees to class counsel	Upon Endo's third payment
Second distribution of settlement funds	Early March 2020

The schedule protects the interests of the End-Payor Class by ensuring that class counsel will receive their awarded fees related to the subsequent Endo payments only after those payments have been received.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

DATED: September 20, 2018

THE HONORABLE WILLIAM H. ORRICK
United States District Court Judge

TAB 36B

[Submitting Counsel on Signature Page]

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT

NORTHERN DISTRICT OF CALIFORNIA

In re LIDODERM ANTITRUST LITIGATION	Master File No. 14-md-02521-WHO MDL No. 2521
THIS DOCUMENT RELATES TO: END-PAYOR ACTIONS	END-PAYOR CLASS COUNSEL'S MOTION FOR AN AWARD OF ATTORNEYS' FEES, EXPENSES, AND SERVICE AWARDS Date: September 12, 2018 Time: 2:00 p.m. Courtroom: 2, 17th Floor Before: Hon. William H. Orrick

TABLE OF CONTENTS

NOTICE OF MOTION AND MOTION 1

I. INTRODUCTION 1

II. RELEVANT FACTUAL AND PROCEDURAL BACKGROUND 2

III. SUMMARY OF REQUESTED FEES, EXPENSES, AND SERVICE AWARDS 7

IV. THE REQUESTED ATTORNEYS' FEES ARE REASONABLE 8

A. The Lodestar Method Supports the Requested Attorneys' Fees 9

1. The Time Spent by Class Counsel is Reasonable 9

2. Class Counsel's Hourly Rates are Reasonable 12

3. The Requested Multiplier is Warranted 13

B. The Percentage-of-the Recovery Method Supports the Requested Attorneys' Fee Amount 18

V. THE REQUESTED EXPENSES ARE REASONABLE 21

VI. THE REQUESTED SERVICE AWARDS ARE REASONABLE 22

VII. PROPOSED SCHEDULE FOR PAYMENT OF FEES, EXPENSES, AND SERVICE AWARDS 23

VIII. CONCLUSION 24

TABLE OF AUTHORITIES

Cases

Alvarez v. Farmers Ins. Exchange
2017 WL 2214585 (N.D. Cal. Jan. 18, 2017) 23

Edwards v. Nat'l Milk Producers Federation
2017 WL 3623734 (N.D. Cal. June 26, 2017) 14

Fischel v. Equitable Life Assur. Soc.
307 F.3d 997 (9th Cir. 2002) 13

Gutierrez v. Wells Fargo Bank, N.A.
2015 WL 2438274 (N.D. Cal. May 21, 2015) 20

Hanlon v. Chrysler Corp.
150 F.3d 1011 (9th Cir. 1998) 13

In re Animation Workers Antitrust Litig.
2016 WL 6663005 (N.D. Cal. Nov. 11, 2016) 23

In re Anthem, Inc. Data Breach Litig.
2018 WL 1940418 (N.D. Cal. Apr. 24, 2018) 10

In re Bluetooth Headset Prods. Liability Litig.
654 F.3d 935 (9th Cir. 2011) ..... passim

In re Cathode Ray Tube (CRT) Antitrust Litig.
2016 WL 3648478 (N.D. Cal. July 7, 2016) 14

In re Cathode Ray Tube (CRT) Antitrust Litig.
2016 WL 4126533 (N.D. Cal. Aug. 3, 2016) 12, 13, 20, 21

In re Charles Schwab Corp. Securities Litig.
2011 WL 1481424 (N.D. Cal. Apr. 19, 2011) 15

In re Checking Account Overdraft Litig.
830 F. Supp. 2d 1330 (S.D. Fla. 2011) 20

In re High-Tech Empl. Antitrust Litig.
2015 WL 5158730 (N.D. Cal. Sept. 2, 2015) 12, 17, 21, 22

In re High-Tech Empl. Antitrust Litig.
2015 WL 5159441 (N.D. Cal. Sept. 2, 2015) 14

In re Media Vision
913 F.Supp. 1362 (N.D. Cal. 1996) 22

In re NASDAQ Mkt.-Makers Antitrust Litig.
187 F.R.D. 465 (S.D.N.Y. 1998) 17

In re Nat'l Collegiate Athletic Ass'n Athletic Grant-in-Aid Cap Antitrust Litig.
2017 WL 6040065 (N.D. Cal. Dec. 6, 2017) 12, 18, 20

In re Online DVD-Rental Antitrust Litig.
779 F.3d 934 (9th Cir. 2015) 7, 18

In re Pacific Enterprises Sec. Litig.
47 F.3d 373 (9th Cir. 1995) 19

In re Skelaxin (Metaxalone) Antitrust Litig.
299 F.R.D. 555 (E.D. Tenn. 2014) 16

In re Toyota Corp. Unintended Marketing, Sales Pracs. and Prods. Liability Litig.
2013 WL 12327929 (C.D. Cal. July 24, 2013) 20

In re Urethane Antitrust Litig.
2016 WL 4060156 (D. Kan. July 29, 2016) 20, 21

In re Vitamins Antitrust Litig.
2001 WL 34312839 (D.D.C. July 16, 2001) 19

In re Wellbutrin XL Antitrust Litig. Indirect Purchaser Class
868 F.3d 132 (3d Cir. 2017) 16

Larsen v. Trader Joe's Co.
2014 WL 3404531 (N.D. Cal. 2014) 18, 19, 21

Nitsch v. DreamWorks Animation SKG Inc.
2017 WL 2423161 (N.D. Cal. June 5, 2017) 12, 15, 16, 17

Rodriguez v. W. Publ'g Corp.
563 F.3d 948 (9th Cir. 2009) 14

Six (6) Mexican Workers v. Arizona Citrus Growers
904 F.2d 1301 (9th Cir. 1990) 18, 21

Stanger v. China Elec. Motor, Inc.
812 F.3d 734 (9th Cir. 2016) 13

Stetson v. Grissom
821 F.3d 1157 (9th Cir. 2016) 9

Vincent v. Hughes Air W., Inc.
557 F.2d 759 (9th Cir. 1977) 21

Vista Healthplan, Inc. v. Cephalon, Inc.
2015 WL 3623005 (E.D. Pa. June 10, 2015) 16

Vizcaino v. Microsoft Corporation
290 F.3d 1043 (9th Cir. 2002) 17, 18, 20, 21

Washington Public Power Supply Sys. Sec. Litig.
19 F.3d 1291 (9th Cir. 1994) 20

Statutes

Fed. R. Civ. P. 23 ..... 3, 21

NOTICE OF MOTION AND MOTION

TO THE PARTIES AND THEIR ATTORNEYS OF RECORD:

PLEASE TAKE NOTICE that counsel for the End-Payor Class ("class counsel" or "EPP class counsel")[1] will and do hereby move the Court for entry of an Order awarding class counsel one-third of the settlement amounts ($34,916,000), plus proportional interest accrued on the Settlement Fund; reimbursement of $3,647,041.43 in expenses advanced in the course of the litigation; and service awards of $10,000 to each of the End-Payor Plaintiffs ("EPPs").[2]

This Motion is supported by the accompanying Memorandum of Law, the Joint Declaration of End-Payor Plaintiff Co-Lead Counsel and exhibits thereto; and the declarations of Co-Lead Counsel and Liaison counsel, as well as the declarations of additional non-lead firms describing the work performed in the litigation.

[1] Cohen Milstein Sellers & Toll PLLC; Girard Gibbs LLP; Heins Mills & Olson, P.L.C.; Joseph Saveri Law Firm, Inc.; Hilliard & Shadowen LLP; Miller Law LLC; Motley Rice LLC; Robbins Geller Rudman & Dowd LLP; Cohen, Placitella & Roth, P.C.; Freed Kenner London & Millen LLC; Glancy Prongay & Murry LLP; Hach Rose Schirripa & Cheverie LLP; Kohn, Swift & Graf, P.C.; Krause, Kalfayan, Benink & Slavens, LLP; Labaton Sucharow LLP; Law Offices of Robert W. Sink; Lockridge Grindal Nauen P.L.L.P.; Meredith & Narine; Pomerantz LLP; Shepherd, Finkelman, Miller & Shah, LLP; Spector Roseman & Kodroff, P.C.; Weinstein Kitchenoff & Asher LLC; and Wexler Wallace LLP.

[2] Allied Services Division Welfare Fund, City of Providence, International Union of Operating Engineers Local 49 Health and Welfare Fund, International Union of Operating Engineers Local 132 Health and Welfare Fund, Iron Workers District Council of New England Welfare Fund, NECA-IBEW Welfare Trust Fund, United Food and Commercial Workers Local 1776 & Participating Employers Health and Welfare Fund, Welfare Plan of the International Union of Operating Engineers Locals 137, 137A, 137B, 137C, 137R, and Ottavio Gallotto.

MEMORANDUM OF LAW

I. INTRODUCTION

The settlements before the Court will create a fund of over $100 million to reimburse End-Payors for their purchases of branded and generic Lidoderm pain patches at supra-competitive prices. The settlements were reached shortly before jury selection after four years of hard-fought litigation. This Court presided over each step of this litigation, denying Defendants' motions to dismiss, deciding numerous discovery motions and challenges to assertions of attorney-client privilege, granting the motion to certify the EPP class, granting Plaintiffs' motion for summary judgment on relevant market, denying Defendants' motion for summary judgment on causation (which the Court again upheld on a motion for reconsideration), and denying various Daubert and in limine challenges that threatened to hobble Plaintiffs' case-in-chief at trial. Defendants Endo, Watson, and Teikoku mounted a vigorous defense through highly skilled counsel.

Counsel believe the $104.75 million settlement is the most favorable recovery for end-payors both in absolute and relative terms in similar federal pharmaceutical antitrust litigation in at least the past decade. The End-Payor Class will recover more than 45% of class counsel's highest single damages estimate now, without having to undertake the risks and delay of post-trial appeals. Upon this Court's approval, the money recovered through these settlements will vest in the plaintiff class, and the funds will be promptly distributed to the consumers and third party-payors who make up the class. The Court is thoroughly familiar with the efforts expended on both sides of the litigation, the novelty and complexity of the issues, and the substantial risk that the End-Payor Class and their counsel could come away from this litigation empty-handed.

For the risks undertaken, the resources invested, and the result achieved, EPP class counsel seek an award of attorneys' fees of one-third of the Settlement Fund ($34,916,000), plus proportional interest accrued from the Settlement Fund, representing a 1.37 multiplier on class counsel's lodestar, at the low end of multipliers awarded in this district. The requested fee falls within the range of percentages awarded in the Ninth Circuit for cases involving similar risks and results, and is also consistent with at least two recent awards to end-payor counsel in pay-for-delay litigation. Class counsel devoted more than 51,000 hours to litigating this case, foregoing other opportunities and assuming the risk of recovering nothing and losing nearly $4 million in expenses advanced to bring this case to trial. Class counsel therefore request that the Court award attorneys' fees of one-third of the settlement amounts, approve the reimbursement of the expenses advanced, and approve incentive awards for each of the EPP class representatives.

II. RELEVANT FACTUAL AND PROCEDURAL BACKGROUND

The first end-payor complaint in this multidistrict litigation was filed on November 12, 2013. See United Food and Commercial Workers Local 1776 v. Teikoku Pharma USA, Inc., et al., 5:13-cv-05247 (N.D. Cal.). Other complaints followed in this District and others. In the spring of 2014, the Judicial Panel on Multidistrict Litigation centralized all pending Lidoderm actions before this Court. ECF 1. And on May 23, 2014, the Court appointed Girard Gibbs LLP, Heins Mills & Olson, P.L.C., and Cohen Milstein Sellers & Toll PLLC as Interim Co-Lead Counsel; the Joseph Saveri Law Firm, Inc. as Interim Liaison Counsel; and Hilliard & Shadowen LLP, Miller Law LLC, Motley Rice LLC, Robbins Geller Rudman & Dowd LLP, and The Dugan Law Firm, APLC as members of the Executive Committee. ECF 63.

Since that time, Co-Lead Counsel has directed the overall conduct of the litigation and has worked with Liaison Counsel, the Executive Committee, and other plaintiffs' counsel to prosecute the litigation through the eve of trial. A detailed description of the work performed by each firm seeking payment is set forth in Co-Lead Counsel's Joint Declaration and the individual declarations of class counsel submitted herewith. Below is a brief summary of work performed by class counsel during the litigation.

Motions to Dismiss. Following transfer of all pending Lidoderm actions to this Court, the Court consolidated the end-payor actions. EPPs filed a consolidated amended complaint, which Defendants moved to dismiss. ECFs 72, 95. EPPs worked with DPPs to jointly oppose Defendants' arguments, and EPPs separately opposed Defendants' motion concerning EPPs' state law claims. Joint Decl., ¶¶ 15-16. On November 17, 2014, the Court largely denied Defendants' motion and upheld EPPs' claims under the laws of seventeen states. ECF 117.

EPPs subsequently amended their complaint and opposed an additional motion to dismiss state law claims, culminating in the filing of a third amended complaint. ECF 208.

Discovery of Defendants and Non-Parties. The parties began discovery while Defendants' initial motion to dismiss was pending. Joint Decl., ¶ 18. Full discovery commenced once the Court denied Defendants' motion. Id., ¶ 19. EPPs, along with DPPs, negotiated an ESI protocol, protective order, various discovery stipulations, and search terms and custodians that Defendants would use to produce responsive documents. Id., ¶ 20. EPPs reviewed more than 3.3 million pages of documents produced by Defendants, as well as thousands of additional pages of documents and data produced by non-parties. Id., ¶ 28. EPPs also took the lead on Requests for Admission relating to earlier generic launches. Id., ¶ 22. EPPs also collaborated with DPPs and the Retailers to depose thirty-two current and former employees of Defendants. Id., ¶ 27. To develop the record in relation to end-payors' payment structures and the implied "ascertainability" requirement under Rule 23, EPPs also conducted additional, unique discovery of non-party pharmacy benefits managers (PBMs), resulting in declarations and the production of payment data and rebate contract information from the leading national PBMs. ECF 208.

The parties litigated numerous complex privilege issues in pursuit of their claims, many of which EPPs were primarily responsible for briefing (before this Court and on petitions for writs of mandamus) and arguing. E.g. ECFs 227, 269, 276, 345, 359, 364, 377, 398, 399, 401, 402, and 427 (Joint Discovery Letter Briefs); ECFs 536 and 679 (at-issue waiver order and Ninth Circuit denial of petition for interlocutory review); ECFs 367 and 484 (common interest order and Ninth Circuit denial of petition for interlocutory review).

Discovery of Plaintiffs. Defendants served over 100 requests for production of documents, and numerous interrogatories on EPPs. Joint Decl., ¶ 39. EPPs met and conferred with Defendants over the course of several months and successfully overcame Defendants' various motions to compel the production of documents, including Defendants' efforts to compel the production of information related to premiums. ECF 435. EPPs drafted responses to Defendants' contention interrogatories and coordinated with other plaintiffs on their responses as well. Joint Decl., ¶ 44.

Defendants also served Rule 30(b)(6) deposition notices on each EPP, and Co-Lead Counsel prepared for and defended each of those depositions. Joint Decl., ¶ 42.

Defendants' Disqualification Motion. In connection with a dispute concerning Plaintiffs' use of two documents produced by Teikoku, Teikoku moved to disqualify Plaintiffs' counsel. ECF 293. EPP class counsel took the lead in drafting Plaintiffs' opposition (and cross-motion challenging Teikoku's assertion of privilege over the documents in question) and worked with counsel for DPPs to develop the factual record in support of Plaintiffs' arguments. Joint Decl., ¶ 37. The Court denied Defendants' motion on November 25, 2015, and subsequently rejected in part Teikoku's assertion of attorney-client privilege. ECFs 338 and 367.

Class Certification. In summer 2016, EPPs moved for certification of the End-Payor Class. ECF 524. In support of EPPs' motion, Dr. Hal Singer—a leading antitrust economist—submitted a report showing that market power could be established, and that injury and damages to end-payors could be determined on a classwide basis. ECF 524-1. EPPs also retained an expert on the pharmaceutical distribution chain to address ascertainability and "pass on" defenses. ECF 524-2. That report was supported by third-party discovery obtained from the largest PBMs in the country. Joint Decl., ¶ 49. Defendants countered with their own expert economist, a pharmacy payment expert and a market power expert. Id., ¶ 50. A heated "battle of the experts" ensued, with multiple depositions of the experts and Daubert challenges. Id.

On February 21, 2017, the Court granted EPPs' motion and denied Defendants' Daubert challenges to EPPs' experts. ECF 670. Defendants filed a petition with the Ninth Circuit seeking interlocutory review under Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 23(f), which EPPs opposed and the Ninth Circuit denied. ECF 756. In summer 2017, EPPs worked with KCC—the notice administrator approved by the Court—to develop and implement a notice program that used a combination of direct and publication notice to reach virtually all third-party payor class members and approximately 80% of consumer class members. ECF 872; see also ECF 751 (order approving EPPs' proposed method of distributing notice).

Certain large insurers that had opted-out of the End-Payor Class (and later rejoined the class for purposes of settlement) attempted to also opt out self-funded health and welfare plans for whom the insurers provide administrative services. EPPs filed a motion seeking to preclude the insurers' attempted mass opt-outs of their self-funded plans. ECF 893. The Court granted EPPs' motion. ECF 946.

In addition, EPPs moved for a "set aside" order under which a portion of any recovery obtained by any opt-out would be set aside and considered for payment to class counsel in recognition of the work performed by class counsel that benefited all end-payors, including any opt-outs. Joint Decl., ¶ 56. After briefing and argument, the Court granted EPPs' set-aside motion, marking only the second antitrust case in which such an order has been entered. ECF 828.

Merits Expert Reports. The trial in this case was ultimately set for February 23, 2018. In preparation for trial, EPPs and DPPs retained and worked with more than a dozen experts to prepare reports on a range of topics including patent issues, when generic entry would have been expected to occur absent the settlement, and Watson's manufacturing capabilities. Joint Decl., ¶ 57. EPPs and DPPs collaborated on the depositions of each of Defendants' experts, with EPPs taking the lead on deposing defendants' manufacturing, at-risk and authorized generic launch experts. Id., ¶ 65.

EPPs also worked with Dr. Singer to calculate and prepare merits reports concerning EPPs damages, with Dr. Singer calculating the maximum single damages for the End-Payor Class as $229 million, using the "forecasting" model. Id., ¶ 60. His "backcasting" model, which mirrored the modeling DPPs chose to use, resulted in maximum single damages of $156 million. ECF 776-25 (Singer Reply Rpt.) at 40, Table 2. Defendants' expert calculated the maximum damages for the End-Payor Class as $5.6 million, assuming plaintiffs proved that the patents would not prevent generic entry. ECF 778-5 (Bell Rpt.) at 69.

Summary Judgment. In June 2017, after expert depositions had concluded, the parties filed motions for summary judgment and Daubert motions to exclude various experts from testifying at trial. Defendants sought summary judgment on all Plaintiffs' claims on the issue of causation. ECF 786. With input from the DPPs, EPPs took the lead in drafting Plaintiffs' opposition to Defendants' motion and also argued the motion. Joint Decl., ¶ 69. EPPs also worked with DPPs to prepare successful partial summary judgment motions on the relevant market and the "contract, combination, or conspiracy" prong of Plaintiffs' antitrust claims. ECFs 775.

On November 3, 2017, the Court denied Defendants' summary judgment motion, granted Plaintiffs' motions, and granted in part and denied in part the parties' Daubert motions. ECF 900. Defendants later moved for reconsideration of the causation standard that would apply at trial; EPPs took the lead in successfully opposing Defendants' motion. ECF 978.

Trial Preparation. The parties exchanged their initial proposed pretrial materials—including exhibit lists, witness lists, deposition designations, jury instructions, verdict forms—on November 6, 2017. Joint Decl., ¶ 74. EPPs were the primary drafters of large Plaintiffs' portions of the pretrial exchanges. Id., ¶ 75. After protracted negotiations, in early December the parties filed their agreed-upon and disputed pretrial submissions. ECFs 929 and 933.

In the months leading up to the February 23, 2018 jury selection, EPP Co-Lead Counsel dedicated themselves to preparing for trial. Joint Decl., ¶ 79. Each of the EPP Co-Lead Counsel was a member of Plaintiffs' joint trial team. Id., ¶ 81. EPPs worked with counsel for other Plaintiffs to develop a draft outline of their case-in-chief, designate portions of fact witness depositions for use at trial, and identify documents to be used as exhibits. Id., ¶ 80-82.

Settlements. EPPs participated in mediation with Endo and Teikoku before the Hon. Layn Phillips in May 2017 but made only limited progress. Id., ¶ 84. Thereafter settlement negotiations took place under the auspices of Chief Magistrate Judge Joseph C. Spero. Id. EPPs reached an agreement in principle with Teikoku following an initial settlement conference in December 2017, with Watson following a January 2018 settlement conference, and finally with Endo following a February settlement conference, one week before jury selection. Id. EPPs prepared the settlement papers for each of the Endo, Teikoku, and Watson settlements, working with both counsel for Defendants and counsel for the insurer opt-outs represented by the Lowey Dannenberg firm. Id., ¶ 85. After lengthy negotiations, the parties finalized their settlements and EPPs submitted them for preliminary approval on March 20, 2018. ECF 1005.

In connection with the settlements, EPPs worked with KCC to develop a state-of-the-art notice and claims plan. The long- and short-form notices distributed to class members informed them that class counsel would seek a fee award of up to one-third of the settlement fund, expenses not to exceed $5,000,000, and service awards of $10,000 to each of the Class Representatives. ECF 1014 (long form and short-form notice documents). The notices also provided class members with the August 21, 2018 deadline to object the requested amounts, which is 21 days after the filing of this motion. See In re Online DVD-Rental Antitrust Litig., 779 F.3d 934, 954 (9th Cir. 2015) (approving similar methods of notifying the class of requested fee and expense awards). Class counsel also worked with Dr. Singer to develop an allocation plan that would fairly distribute the settlement proceeds among claimants. ECF 1005-6 (Declaration of Dr. Hal J. Singer).

The Court preliminarily approved the settlements, notice plan, and plan of allocation on May 1, 2018. ECF 1016. EPPs have since worked with KCC to implement the notice plan approved by the Court, as detailed in EPPs motion for final approval.

III. SUMMARY OF REQUESTED FEES, EXPENSES, AND SERVICE AWARDS

As detailed below and in the accompanying declarations, class counsel devoted a total of 51,668.35 hours to this case, with a resulting lodestar of $25,560,049.50. Of the total hours spent, 73.6% was spent by Co-Lead Counsel, 7.9% by Liaison Counsel, and 18.5% by other firms. Each firm's overall lodestar and expenses are listed below:

Firm	Hours	Lodestar
Cohen Milstein Sellers & Toll PLLC (Co-Lead Counsel)	13,594.00	$6,772,990.00
Girard Gibbs LLP (Co-Lead Counsel)	12,146.2	$6,237,297.00
Heins Mills & Olson, P.L.C. (Co-Lead Counsel)	12,270.7	$6,367,266.00
Joseph Saveri Law Firm, Inc. (Liaison Counsel)	4091.0	$1,994,244.50
Hilliard & Shadowen LLP (Executive Committee)	882.8	$362,700.00
Miller Law LLC (Executive Committee)	1,111.0	$423,476.50
Motley Rice LLC (Executive Committee)	18,13.8	$795,609.50
Robbins Geller Rudman & Dowd LLP (Executive Committee)	1,043.9	$429,844.50

Cohen, Placitella & Roth, P.C.	72.1	$49,012.50
Freed Kanner London & Millen LLC	667.5	$235,117.00
Glancy Prongay & Murry LLP	31.0	$22,317.50
Hach Rose Schirripa & Cheverie LLP	1,592.0	$605,232.50
Kohn, Swift & Graf, P.C.	23.4	$14,868.00
Krause, Kalfayan, Benink & Slavens, LLP	170.35	$ 71,697.50
Labaton Sucharow LLP	519.3	$313,413.00
Law Offices of Robert W. Sink	45.1	$31,268.00
Lockridge Grindal Nauen P.L.L.P.	406.7	$251,043.50
Meredith & Narine	6.0	$3,900.00
Pomerantz LLP	481.35	$249,141.50
Shepherd, Finkelman, Miller & Shah, LLP	461.3	$220,631.00
Spector Roseman & Kodroff, P.C.	57.75	$31,015.00
Weinstein Kitchenoff & Asher LLC	20.0	$9,035.00
Wexler Wallace LLP	161.1	$68,929.50

Class counsel respectfully requests the payment of one-third of the settlements amounts ($34,916,000) in attorneys' fees, plus proportionate interest from the Settlement Fund, which represents a 1.37 multiplier on their lodestar. They also request the reimbursement of $3,647,041.43 in unreimbursed expenses.

To facilitate the Court's consideration of class counsel's fee and expense requests, each firm has submitted a declaration that (1) identifies the attorneys and staff members who worked on the case and the tasks they performed, (2) describes the amount of time spent by each of the firm's attorneys and staff members, and the hourly rates for each of them, (3) breaks down the amount billed by each attorney or staff member for specific tasks, and (4) provides an itemization of the expenses incurred by the firm.

Class counsel also requests that each Class Representative receive a service award in the amount of $10,000.

IV. THE REQUESTED ATTORNEYS' FEES ARE REASONABLE

Pursuant to Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 23(h), a "court may award reasonable attorneys' fees" to plaintiffs' counsel in class action cases. "[C]ourts have an independent obligation to ensure that the award, like the settlement itself, is reasonable[.]" In re Bluetooth Headset Prods. Liability Litig., 654 F.3d 935, 941 (9th Cir. 2011). "Where a settlement produces a common fund for the benefit of the entire class, courts have discretion to employ either the lodestar method or the percentage-of-recovery method." Id. at 942. "Though courts have discretion to choose which calculation method they use, their discretion must be exercised so as to achieve a reasonable result." Id. Class counsel's requested fee is reasonable under either approach.

A. The Lodestar Method Supports the Requested Attorneys' Fees

The lodestar figure is calculated by multiplying the number of hours reasonably spent by a reasonable hourly rate. Bluetooth, 654 F.3d at 941. "There is a strong presumption that the lodestar is a reasonable fee." Stetson v. Grissom, 821 F.3d 1157, 1165 (9th Cir. 2016). Courts may, however, "adjust [the lodestar figure] upward or downward by an appropriate positive or negative multiplier reflecting a host of reasonableness factors." Bluetooth, 654 F.3d at 941-42 (citation omitted).

Class counsel here spent 51,668.35 hours prosecuting this litigation on behalf of the End-Payor Class with a resulting lodestar of $25,560,049.50. Class counsel's requested fee award of one-third of the settlements amounts ($34,916,000) represents a modest upward adjustment of 1.37 on their lodestar. As explained below, the lodestar is reasonable and the modest enhancement is warranted.

1. The Time Spent by Class Counsel is Reasonable

Class counsel's lodestar reflects time that was necessarily and reasonably spent for the benefit of the End-Payor Class, while also reflecting Co-Lead Counsel's significant efforts to increase efficiency and avoid duplication.

The Court's May 2014 order appointing the leadership for the EPPs vested Co-Lead Counsel with authority for the overall conduct of the case and responsibility for carrying out all major aspects of the litigation. ECF 63. In accordance with that directive, the three Co-Lead Counsel firms conducted the significant majority of the work in this matter, including preparing and responding to written discovery, taking depositions, working with experts, briefing, court appearances, and overall strategy.

Co-Lead Counsel also divided tasks among themselves to further avoid duplication. Joint Decl., ¶ 89. Ms. Sharp (and her colleague Mr. Grzenczyk), for example, took the lead in much of the legal briefing; Ms. Steiner was in charge of working with EPPs' economic expert, Dr. Hal Singer, and many of plaintiffs' joint experts; and Ms. Robertson oversaw plaintiff and non-party discovery critical to EPPs' class certification motion and related expert work, as well as EPPs' responses to Defendants' discovery requests. Id. Ms. Sharp, Ms. Steiner, and Ms. Robertson collaborated on overall case strategy to draw on their collective experience. Id. In accordance with the Court's direction at the May 9, 2015 Initial Case Management Conference, Co-Lead Counsel generally limited attendance on internal strategy calls or at court hearings to one attorney per firm (Ms. Sharp, Ms. Steiner, and Ms. Robertson), and otherwise staffed meetings and hearings as leanly as possible but in accordance with the needs of the case and skill set of available attorneys. Id. Liaison Counsel supported Co-Lead Counsel on key projects including research in support of EPPs' amended complaint, class certification and Daubert briefing and oral argument, legal and factual research in support of Plaintiffs' privilege challenges, pretrial preparations, and oversight of class counsel's time and expense submissions. Id. Co-Lead Counsel and Liaison Counsel billed 82% of the total hours billed by all class counsel. Id.

Aside from Co-Lead Counsel and Liaison Counsel, 23 firms billed time to this matter (with only 14 firms billing more than $70,000). Compare with In re Anthem, Inc. Data Breach Litig., 2018 WL 1940418, at *7 (N.D. Cal. Apr. 24, 2018) (suggesting a lodestar reduction where 53 firms billed time to the matter). Non-lead firms carried out a limited number of non-duplicative, discrete tasks at Co-Lead Counsel's direction, consisting primarily of conducting document review and working with named plaintiffs. Joint Decl., ¶ 93. Eight non-lead firms (including Liaison Counsel) assisted in reviewing over 3.3 million pages of documents produced by Defendants, and preparing Co-Lead Counsel for the depositions of key fact witnesses. The document review process was closely monitored by Co-Lead Counsel, including weekly conference calls and consistent oversight and adjustment of review strategy to ensure effectiveness and efficiency. Id., ¶ 30. In addition, non-lead counsel representing the named plaintiffs provided input into EPPs' responses to discovery requests propounded by Defendants, assisted with the collection of documents from their clients, and assisted in preparing their clients for their depositions. Id., ¶ 93. Non-lead firms also assisted with other discrete tasks at direction of Co-Lead Counsel, such as assisting with non-party discovery and expert discovery, which proved critical to EPPs' class certification efforts. Id. Firms other than Co-Lead Counsel and Liaison Counsel billed 84% of their time to document review and discovery of their clients. Id. A chart showing the time class counsel spent on specific types of work is included in Paragraph 92 of Co-Lead Counsel's Joint Declaration.

Co-Lead Counsel also collaborated closely with counsel for DPPs to further reduce duplication and increase efficiency. To illustrate:

- DPPs took the lead briefing the at-issue waiver motions before this Court, while EPPs briefed Defendants' unsuccessful appeal. Id., ¶ 36.
- EPPs took the lead in Watson and Teikoku meet and confers, joint statements related to discovery and privilege disputes, while DPPs took the lead as to Endo. Id., ¶¶ 24-25.
- EPPs took the laboring oar drafting Plaintiffs' opposition to Defendants' summary judgment motion and DPPs took the lead drafting Plaintiffs' summary judgment motion and reply. Id., ¶¶ 68-69.
- EPPs and DPPs split the primary responsibility for drafting and responding to Daubert motions. Id., ¶ 70.
- EPPs took the lead preparing plaintiffs' trial filings, such as deposition designations, jury instructions and statements of disputed and undisputed facts, with DPPs preparing specific portions (such as the proposed Hatch-Waxman and patent jury instructions). Id., ¶ 75.
- EPPs took the lead on jury testing in advance of the trial, with DPPs preparing Plaintiffs' exhibit list and objections to Defendants' exhibit list. Id., ¶ 83.

EPPs agree with DPPs' assessment that "[c]ounsel for the direct purchaser class and the end[-]payor class enjoyed an exceptionally cooperative relationship in this case that benefited both classes." ECF No. 1024 at 5 n.3 (Declaration of Peter Kohn).

Class counsel also took steps to ensure that the time submitted reflected only work reasonably performed for the benefit of the End-Payor Class. First, each firm kept contemporaneous records of their time and was directed to review their daily time records to eliminate inefficiencies. Joint Decl., ¶ 94. Co-Lead Counsel and Liaison Counsel also reviewed the time records. Id. Work that did not benefit the End-Payor Class—such as intra-firm conferences or "read and review" time beyond what is necessary to provide status updates to clients—is not included in class counsel's lodestar. Id. Second, time related to the JPML transfer motion or the appointment of interim lead counsel was excluded entirely from each firm's lodestar. Id. Third, each firm's lodestar includes a maximum of only twenty hours for drafting their client's initial complaint; any additional complaint-related time was excluded. Id. The number of hours reported is also conservative in that it does not reflect time that class counsel will continue to spend administering the settlements and overseeing the distributions of settlement proceeds, which will not be complete until 2020.

That class counsel spent many thousands of hours litigating this matter is a reflection of the fact that this complex antitrust action proceeded to the eve of trial. The requested hours are reasonable.

2. Class Counsel's Hourly Rates are Reasonable

The second part of the lodestar calculation is multiplying the hours spent by a "reasonable hourly rate for the region and the experience of the lawyer." Bluetooth, 654 F.3d at 941. Class counsel's historic rates—which range from $350 to $1,050 for partners and senior counsel, $300 to $675 for associates, and $100 to $400 for paralegals and other litigation staff (including senior cases managers)—meet both criteria.

The hourly rates are consistent with rates approved in recent antitrust class actions in this district. E.g., In re Nat'l Collegiate Athletic Ass'n Athletic Grant-in-Aid Cap Antitrust Litig., 2017 WL 6040065 ("NCAA"), at *8 (N.D. Cal. Dec. 6, 2017) (approving hourly rates for partners of $578 to $1,035 and rates for associates of $295 to $635); Nitsch v. DreamWorks Animation SKG Inc., 2017 WL 2423161, at *9 (N.D. Cal. June 5, 2017) (attorney rates generally between $275 to $750, and rates for the most senior attorneys of $870 to $1,200); In re: Cathode Ray Tube (CRT) Antitrust Litig., 2016 WL 4126533, at *7 (N.D. Cal. Aug. 3, 2016) (rates between $350 and $875); In re High-Tech Empl. Antitrust Litig., 2015 WL 5158730, at *9 (N.D. Cal. Sept. 2, 2015) (partner rates of $490 to $975, non-partner rates of $310 to $800, and staff rates of $190 to $430). Ms. Sharp, Ms. Robertson, and Ms. Steiner billed at historic rates ranging from $510 to $700, at the lower end of partner rates recently approved in antitrust cases this district. Each firm's rates are also its usual and customary rates that were charged by the firm in similar matters in which the firm is paid on a contingent basis, as well as the firm's noncontingent matters. Class Counsel Decls., section II. Each firm's declaration provides examples of courts approving the firm's hourly rates. Id.

Class counsel assigned tasks to attorneys and staff based on their skills and experience. Id., section I.C. Depositions and expert work were, for example, largely handled by senior attorneys while document review and legal research was conducted by more junior associates. Co-Lead Counsel set an hourly cap of $350 for all time spent on document review, including time spent compiling and preparing "deposition kits."[3] A small number of firms paid contract attorneys to review documents. Id. Co-Lead Counsel understands that the use of contract attorneys is an issue of increasing importance to courts. Here, contract attorneys, who were capped at a $350 hourly rate, billed only a small fraction of the time in this case.

While class counsel's lodestar is calculated using historic billing rates, courts in this district have recognized that use of current billing rates for all work is appropriate "'in order to account for the delay . . . in receiving payment.'" CRT, 2016 WL 4126533, at *7 (citing Fischel v. Equitable Life Assur. Soc., 307 F.3d 997 (9th Cir. 2002)); see also Stanger v. China Elec. Motor, Inc., 812 F.3d 734, 740 (9th Cir. 2016) ("'attorneys in common fund cases must be compensated for any delay in payment'" and directing the district court to use current rates or a rate enhancement on remand (quoting Fischel, 307 F.3d at 1010)). Applying current rates, class counsel's lodestar would be substantially higher and the requested fee multiplier would be lower.

3. The Requested Multiplier is Warranted

In deciding whether to deviate from the lodestar figure, courts consider "the quality of representation, the benefit obtained for the class, the complexity and novelty of the issues present, and the risk of nonpayment." Bluetooth, 654 F.3d at 942 (quoting Hanlon v. Chrysler

[3] The only exception was the $400 hourly rate permitted for an experienced Japanese language document reviewer who reviewed and identified key documents produced by Teikoku.

Corp., 150 F.3d 1011, 1029 (9th Cir. 1998)). "Foremost among these considerations, however, is the benefit obtained for the class." Id. Each of these factors weighs in favor of class counsel's requested 1.37 multiplier.

First, class counsel obtained a significant benefit for the End-Payor Class. Defendants will pay a total of $104.75 million in cash to settle EPPs' claims. The End-Payor Class will recover 46% of the most favorable single damages estimate EPPs were prepared to seek at trial ($229 million). See Rodriguez v. W. Publ'g Corp., 563 F.3d 948, 964-65 (9th Cir. 2009) (antitrust settlement for 30% of plaintiffs' estimated damages was "fair and reasonable no matter how you slice it"); Edwards v. Nat'l Milk Producers Federation, 2017 WL 3623734, at *7 (N.D. Cal. June 26, 2017) (that settlement was 30% of estimated indirect purchaser damages "strongly weighs in favor of granting final approval"); In re Cathode Ray Tube (CRT) Antitrust Litig., 2016 WL 3648478, at *7 n.19 (N.D. Cal. July 7, 2016) (describing survey of 71 settled cartel cases where weighted mean settlement recovery was 19% of single damages); In re High-Tech Empl. Antitrust Litig., 2015 WL 5159441, at *4 (N.D. Cal. Sept. 2, 2015) (approving total settlements that were 14% of the class damages estimate, and noting that "[d]istrict courts in the Ninth Circuit routinely approve settlements with much larger differences between the settlement amount and estimated damages.").

As shown in the following chart, class counsel have been unable to identify any recent federal pay-for-delay or related drug litigation brought on behalf of end-payors that has settled for more than $100 million. Joint Decl., ¶ 5. As a percentage of the DPPs' recovery, the EPP settlement is likewise unprecedented.

CASE (District and Settlement Year)	DPP (~MM)	EPP (~MM)	EPP % of DPP Total
Lidoderm (N.D. Cal. 2018)	$166	$104.75	63%
Aggrenox (D. Conn. 2018)	$146	$54	37%
Solodyn (D. Mass. 2018)	$77	$45	58%
Skelaxin (E.D. Tenn. 2015)	$73	$9	12%
DDAVP (S.D.N.Y 2013)	$20	$5	25%
Flonase (E.D. Pa. 2013)	$150	$35	23%
Toprol XL (D. Del. 2012)	$20	$11	55%

Wellbutrin SR (E.D. Pa 2011)	$50	$22	44%
Tricor (D. Del. 2009)	$250	$66	26%
Ovcon (D.D.C. 2009)	$22	$13	59%
Terazosin (S.D. Fla. 2005)	$75	$31[4]	41%
Relafen (D. Mass. 2005)	$175	$75[5]	43%
Remeron (D.N.J. 2005)	$75	$36	48%
Paxil (E.D. Pa. 2005)	$150[6]	$65	43%%
Pre-Lidoderm Average (unweighted)			39%

Whether measured in dollars or by reference to percentage-of-recovery, the size of the recovery here alone warrants a substantial multiplier. See Nitsch v. DreamWorks Animation SKG Inc., 2017 WL 2423161, at *10 (awarding a 2.0 multiplier for a 30.5% recovery).

Second, class counsel respectfully submits that they provided their clients with diligent and effective representation in this matter, and "did a good job persistently advocating for the best interests of class members, and obtained a very good result for the class[.]" In re Charles Schwab Corp. Securities Litig., 2011 WL 1481424, at *8 (N.D. Cal. Apr. 19, 2011) (awarding a 2.68 multiplier). One example is class counsel's advocacy for the forecasting approach to damages. Had EPPs used the same "backcasting" type model used by DPPs, EPP damages would have been $156 million and the settlement recovery would have been 67% of damages. As noted in the Kohn Decl. at 1 (ECF 1024), the recovery of between 67%-88% of backcasting damages would put this recovery in the top three of percentage-of-damages recoveries for DPP settlements, which historically have much higher recoveries as a percentage of damages than EPP cases. Defendants were represented by leading defense firms, including counsel brought in specifically for purposes of trial. Despite the skill of opposing counsel, class counsel obtained favorable rulings on key issues throughout the case, including motions to dismiss, class certification, discovery disputes, summary judgment, and pretrial matters.

[4] Of this amount, $2 million was set aside to pay for the fees, costs, and claims of the state plaintiffs.

[5] This amount includes an $8 million payment to a large non-class group of third-party purchasers.

[6] After accounting for opt-outs, the final settlement amount was $100 million.

Third, this case raised numerous complex and novel issues of law. The Supreme Court issued its decision in Actavis in June 2013, shortly before this action commenced in November 2013. This case was the first post-Actavis pay-for-delay case filed in the Ninth Circuit, and many of the issues class counsel litigated were matters of first impression in this Circuit. Those issues included the proper standard of proof to apply at summary judgment and trial, an issue on which EPPs led the plaintiffs' briefing efforts. And because this litigation challenged a settlement of a patent litigation, it raised issues at the intersection of antitrust and patent law and often involved complex attorney-client privilege issues. Class counsel, for example, litigated (and prevailed on) disputes involving the common interest privilege and at-issue privilege waivers. Defendants unsuccessfully petitioned the Ninth Circuit to review the Court's order on both of these issues. EPPs took the lead on briefing both appeals. Class counsel's successful litigation of the unique and difficult issues presented in this case also weighs in favor of a multiplier. Cf. DreamWorks, 2017 WL 2423161, at *9-10 (awarding a 2.0 multiplier even where a prior case "provided much of the evidence, legal theories, arguments, and prior rulings necessary to litigate this case").

Fourth, this litigation presented a substantial risk of loss at the pretrial stage or at trial. In the only pay-for-delay case to proceed through trial since Actavis, the jury returned a victory for the defendants. See In re: Nexium (Esomeprazole) Antitrust Litig., No. 1:12-md-02409-WGY, ECF No. 1383 (D. Mass. Dec. 5, 2014) (verdict form). In other cases, plaintiffs have lost at summary judgment. See In re Wellbutrin XL Antitrust Litig. Indirect Purchaser Class, 868 F.3d 132 (3d Cir. 2017) (affirming summary judgment in favor of defendants). Obtaining certification of an end-payor class is also notoriously difficult. As indirect purchasers, EPPs cannot rely on defendants' sales data to create their classwide damages model and must separately model damages for consumers and third-party payors, overcome "pass-on" arguments, account for various categories of payors that defendants argue escaped injury, and demonstrate that their class is ascertainable. These challenges are unique to end-payors and have proved fatal in other end-payor cases. See Vista Healthplan, Inc. v. Cephalon, Inc., 2015 WL 3623005 (E.D. Pa. June 10, 2015) (denying class certification); In re Skelaxin (Metaxalone)

Antitrust Litig., 299 F.R.D. 555 (E.D. Tenn. 2014) (same). Even a victory on liability and causation would not have guaranteed a recovery significantly larger than the settlement. If Defendants had persuaded the jury to use a backcasting approach to damages and to adopt a later but-for entry date than the date advocated by EPPs, the maximum EPP damages would $118.75 million.

In addition, had EPPs prevailed at trial, Defendants were poised to appeal several important decisions, including the Court's certification of the End-Payor Class, its summary judgment order on the relevant market, and its order on the appropriate standard for establishing causation at trial. See ECF 929 at 25 (reserving appellate rights as to class certification); id. at 8 n.5 (same as to market definition); ECF 948 at 2 (arguing that the Court's causation standard "would create an appellate issue that would permeate the entirety of any liability verdict"). Against the backdrop of these risks, "Class Counsel litigated this action without pay for several years, even though recovery was uncertain." High-Tech, 2015 WL 5158730, at *10; see also In re NASDAQ Mkt.-Makers Antitrust Litig., 187 F.R.D. 465, 475 (S.D.N.Y. 1998) ("Antitrust litigation in general, and class action litigation in particular, is unpredictable."). And during the course of the litigation, class counsel incurred more than $2.9 million in out-of-pocket expenses, for which there was no guarantee of reimbursement. Joint Decl., ¶¶ 98, 104.

Finally, the requested multiplier is well within the range of multipliers awarded in the Ninth Circuit. In Vizcaino v. Microsoft Corporation the Ninth Circuit surveyed common fund cases with settlements ranging from $50-200 million and found that multipliers ranged from 1.0-4.0 in the vast majority of cases. 290 F.3d 1043, 1052-54 (9th Cir. 2002). Courts in this district have recently awarded significantly larger multipliers in antitrust cases than the 1.37 multiplier requested by class counsel. E.g. DreamWorks, 2017 WL 2423161, at *10 (2.0 multiplier); High-Tech, 2015 WL 5158730, at *10 (2.2 multiplier after "Class Counsel devoted considerable time and effort litigating this case over a period of four years").

Viewed in light the above factors and awards in other cases, a 1.37 multiplier on class counsel's lodestar is warranted.

B. The Percentage-of-the Recovery Method Supports the Requested Attorneys' Fee Amount

Applying the percentage-of-the-recovery method, EPPs request a fee award of one-third of the settlement fund, including accrued interest. In the Ninth Circuit, the benchmark for attorneys' fees under a percentage-of-the-recovery approach is 25% of the settlement fund. Bluetooth, 654 F.3d at 942 (citation omitted). But "[t]he benchmark percentage should be adjusted, or replaced by a lodestar calculation, when special circumstances indicate that the percentage recovery would be either too small or too large in light of the hours devoted to the case or other relevant factors." Six (6) Mexican Workers v. Arizona Citrus Growers, 904 F.2d 1301, 1311 (9th Cir. 1990) (emphasis added). If the Court were to apply a percentage-of-recovery method here, an upward adjustment is warranted in light of class counsel's efforts, persistence, and the result achieved in this litigation. The factors courts consider when determining whether to depart from the 25% benchmark are: "(1) the result achieved; (2) the risk involved in the litigation; (3) the skill required and quality of work by counsel; (4) the contingent nature of the fee; and (5) awards made in similar cases." Larsen v. Trader Joe's Co., 2014 WL 3404531, at *9 (N.D. Cal. 2014) (citing Vizcaino, 290 F.3d at 1048-50).

The first four factors largely mirror the considerations discussed above with respect to a lodestar multiplier. Just as those factors weigh in favor of a multiplier, they also weigh in favor of a fee award of one-third of the settlement fund.[7] "With respect to the first factor, the overall result and benefit to the class from the litigation is the most critical factor in granting a fee award." Larsen, 2014 WL 3404531, at *9 (citation omitted). Class counsel recovered 46% of EPPs' most favorable damages estimate, and more than 67% of "backcasting" damages, and "[f]ar lesser results (with 20% recovery of damages or less) have justified upward departures from the 25% benchmark." NCAA, 2017 WL 6040065, at *3 & n.14 (collecting cases). Second, the EPPs faced substantial, unique risks throughout the litigation—including previous decisions denying certification of similar end-payor classes, and significant damages modeling challenges. See Part IV.A.3, above. Third, overcoming these risks and additional complex risks shared with the other plaintiff groups (including on motions to dismiss, privilege issues, summary judgment, Daubert challenges), required skillful and thoughtful representation and close collaboration with DPP counsel. Class counsel are among the most experienced class action and antitrust firms in the country, and their experience and skills were brought to bear to achieve a substantial result in for the End-Payor Class. Fourth, class counsel undertook this matter on an entirely contingent fee basis, with no (or late) parallel government litigation, and litigated under the demanding rule-of-reason standard. In cases like this one, "the public interest is served by rewarding attorneys who assume representation on a contingent basis with an enhanced fee to compensate them for the risk that they might be paid nothing for their work." Larsen, 2014 WL 3404531, at *9.

[7] When calculating the percentage, courts should use the gross settlement amount—i.e. including amounts that will be used to pay notice and administrative costs and litigation expenses—as the denominator. In re Online DVD-Rental Antitrust Litig., 779 F.3d 934, 953 (9th Cir. 2015).

As to the fifth factor, a fee award of one-third of the settlement fund is within the range of awards in this Circuit. See id., 2014 WL 3404531, at *9 (citing numerous cases awarding fees of 32% or greater); In re Pacific Enterprises Sec. Litig., 47 F.3d 373, 379 (9th Cir. 1995) (affirming award of 33%). See also In re Vitamins Antitrust Litig., 2001 WL 34312839, at *10 (D.D.C. July 16, 2001) (awarding fees of 34% of $359 million settlement fund).

Fee awards of one-third are also commonplace in pay-for-delay litigation and were very recently awarded in two such cases. E.g. In re Aggrenox Antitrust Litig., No. 2:14-md-02516-SRU, ECF 821, at 9-10 (July 19, 2018) (awarding 33 1/3%); In re Solodyn (Minocycline Hydrochloride) Antitrust Litig., No. 1:14-md-02503-RJC, ECF 1176, at 5 (July 18, 2018) (fee award of 33 1/3%; 1.08 multiplier); In re Tricor Indirect Purchaser Antitrust Litig., No. 1:05-cv-00360-SLR, slip op. at 4, ECF No. 544 (D. Del. Oct. 28, 2009) (fee award of 33⅓% of the $67,500,000 settlement fund; 1.48 multiplier); In re Relafen Antitrust Litig., No. 01-cv-12239-WGY, slip op. at 9, ECF No. 459 (D. Mass. Oct 13, 2005) (fee award of 33⅓% of the $67,000,000 settlement fund; 2.02 multiplier).

Moreover, there is "no rule in the Ninth Circuit that requires a court to decrease the percentage of the fee award as the size of the settlement increases." In re Toyota Corp. Unintended Marketing, Sales Pracs. and Prods. Liability Litig., 2013 WL 12327929, at *34 (C.D. Cal. July 24, 2013) (citing Vizcaino, 290 F.3d at 1047). Instead, the size of the fund is simply one factor courts can look to when determining a reasonable fee. Vizcaino, 290 F.3d at 1047. A presumption that a certain percentage applies based on the size of the settlement fund "flies in the face" of a court's obligation to "consider[] all the circumstances of the case and reach[] a reasonable percentage." Id. at 1048; see also Washington Public Power Supply Sys. Sec. Litig., 19 F.3d 1291, 1298 (9th Cir. 1994) ("courts cannot rationally apply any particular percentage—whether 13.6 percent, 25 percent or any other number—in the abstract, without reference to all the circumstances of the case").

In appropriate circumstances, "federal district courts across the country have, in the class action settlement context, routinely awarded class counsel fees in excess of the 25% 'benchmark,' even in so-called 'mega-fund' cases." NCAA, 2017 WL 6040065, at *5 & n.30 (collecting cases, including those awarding fees of 1/3 of the settlement fund); see also In re Urethane Antitrust Litig., 2016 WL 4060156, at *6 (D. Kan. July 29, 2016) ("although a one-third fee would be at the top of the range of awards in megafund cases, that figure does still fall within that range, especially in more recent cases"); In re Checking Account Overdraft Litig., 830 F. Supp. 2d 1330, 1366 (S.D. Fla. 2011) ("courts nationwide have repeatedly awarded fees of 30 percent or higher in so-called 'megafund' settlements") (collecting cases). For the reasons discussed above, an award above the benchmark is appropriate in this case.

While in some cases, it may be necessary to award a lower percentage to prevent "windfall profits for class counsel in light of the hours spent on the case." Bluetooth, 654 F.3d at 942 (emphasis added); see also CRT, 2016 WL 4126533, at *6 ("the best way to guard against a windfall is first to examine whether a given percentage represents too high of a multiplier of counsel's lodestar"); Gutierrez v. Wells Fargo Bank, N.A., 2015 WL 2438274, at *4 (N.D. Cal. May 21, 2015) (refusing to apply 25% benchmark where result would have been a 10.38 multiplier). This is not one of those cases, however, given the modest multiplier class counsel seek here. And just as the 25% benchmark is inappropriate in cases where it would result in a windfall, it is equally inappropriate where—as here—it would result in a fee that undercompensates class counsel. See Six (6) Mexican Workers, 904 F.2d at 1311 (benchmark should be adjusted where the recovery would be "either too small or too large in light of the hours devoted to the case") (emphasis added).

Even when courts have awarded less than 25%, they have regularly awarded lodestar multipliers of 2 or more, which is significantly more than Co-Lead Counsel has requested. E.g. High-Tech, 2015 WL 5158730, at *10 (awarding fees of 10.8%, a 2.2 multiplier). And, in light of the work performed and results achieved, courts in "megafund" cases have awarded fees that are both above the 25% benchmark and resulted in a significant multiplier. E.g. Vizcaino, 290 F.3d at 1050 (affirming 28% fee and multiplier of 3.65); CRT, 2016 WL 4126533, at *6, 10 (awarding a fee of 27.5% and a 1.96 multiplier); Urethane, 2016 WL 4060156, at *7 (awarding a fee of one-third, a 3.2 multiplier).

In short, the rationales for awarding fees at or below the 25% benchmark do not apply here. All of the relevant factors support the requested fee award.

V. THE REQUESTED EXPENSES ARE REASONABLE

"Class counsel is entitled to reimbursement of reasonable expenses." Larsen, 2014 WL 3404531, at *10 (citing Fed. R. Civ. P. 23(h)); see also High-Tech, 2015 WL 5158730, at *16 ("In common fund cases, the Ninth Circuit has stated that the reasonable expenses of acquiring the fund can be reimbursed to counsel who has incurred the expense.") (citing Vincent v. Hughes Air W., Inc., 557 F.2d 759, 769 (9th Cir. 1977)). Class counsel requests the reimbursement of their out-of-pocket expenses.

Throughout the litigation class counsel contributed to a litigation fund that was used to pay for common expenses such as expert witnesses, deposition transcripts, a document review platform, translations, and IMS transactional data used by EPPs' experts. Joint Decl., ¶ 98. The largest of these expenses were expert fees paid to EPPs' class certification and damages economist, Dr. Hal Singer. Id., ¶ 100. In total, EPPs paid $2,470,935.01 in case-related expenses from the litigation fund. An accounting of the litigation fund expenditures is included in Paragraph 99 of Co-Lead Counsel's Joint Declaration. Class counsel also incurred $434,313.80 in costs borne by individual firms and not paid out of the litigation fund. Id., ¶ 104. These include costs incurred for legal research, travel, postage, copying costs, and filing fees. Id., ¶ 105. An accounting of the non-litigation fund expenditures is included in Paragraph 105 of the Joint Declaration.

In addition, EPPs' expense request includes $356,792.62 in out-of-pocket expenses incurred by the Lowey Dannenberg firm that Co-Lead Counsel believe contributed to the result achieved on behalf of the End-Payor Class, consisting primarily of Lowey Dannenberg's contributions to the costs of Plaintiffs' joint experts. Joint Decl., ¶ 108. Class counsel also requests the payment of $385,000 in costs for distribution of notice of the Court's class certification order to the End-Payor Class. Id., ¶ 109. While KCC has agreed to carry that cost, it will become immediately due upon final approval and resolution of any appeals. Id. In total, class counsel requests the reimbursement of $3,647,041.43 in unreimbursed out-of-pocket expenses, which consists of $2,470,935.01 in expenditures from the litigation fund; $434,313.80 in individual firm expenses; $356,792.62 in expenses incurred by Lowey Dannenberg; and $385,000 for class certification notice.

The categories of expenses for which class counsel seeks reimbursement are the type routinely charged to clients and should be reimbursed. See High-Tech, 2015 WL 5158730, at *16 (awarding costs for (1) expert witness fees; (2) mediators' fees; (3) document review; (4) court reporting and videographer services; (5) electronic research; (6) copying, mailing, and serving documents; and (7) case-related travel for Plaintiffs, witnesses, experts, and counsel); In re Media Vision, 913 F.Supp. 1362, 1367-72 (N.D. Cal. 1996) (costs related to experts, photocopying, legal research fees, travel expenses, postage, and filing fees may be reimbursed).

VI. THE REQUESTED SERVICE AWARDS ARE REASONABLE

Class counsels' request for a service award of $10,000 to each of the nine Class Representatives ($90,000 total, which is .086% of total value of the Settlements) is also reasonable. Each Class Representative actively participated in the litigation, stayed abreast of the progress of the case, collected and produced documents and responded to interrogatories, and sat and prepared for depositions.[8] Awards of $10,000 are frequently awarded to end-payors in pay-for-delay cases. E.g., Aggrenox, No. 2:14-md-02516-SRU, ECF 821, at 10 (awarding $10,000 service awards); Solodyn, No. 1:14-md-02503-RJC, ECF 1176, at 4 (same). The requested awards are also consistent with similar service awards regularly approved in class actions in this district. E.g., Alvarez v. Farmers Ins. Exchange, 2017 WL 2214585, at *1 (N.D. Cal. Jan. 18, 2017) (approving nine $10,000 service awards that in the aggregate were 1.8% of the settlement value); In re Animation Workers Antitrust Litig., 2016 WL 6663005, at *9 (N.D. Cal. Nov. 11, 2016) (approving $10,000 service awards in a case with $18.95 million settlement fund).

VII. PROPOSED SCHEDULE FOR PAYMENT OF FEES, EXPENSES, AND SERVICE AWARDS

Endo will not make its second and third payments (of $10 million each, or 9.5% of the total settlement amount, each) until February 15, 2019 and 2020, respectively. While Endo's second payment will be included in the first distribution of settlement funds to class members in March 2019, Endo's third payment will not be available for distribution until March 2020.

Class counsel therefore propose that their fees are paid on the same schedule and in the same proportion as the End-Payor Class's recoveries. In other words, class counsel would: (1) receive 81% of the Court-awarded fees upon final approval and settlement finality (accounting for the full payments by Watson and Teikoku, and Endo's payment of one-half of its total settlement amount), (2) receive 9.5% of the Court-awarded attorneys' fees after receipt of Endo's second payment, and (3) receive the remaining 9.5% of the Court-awarded attorneys' fees after receipt of Endo's third payment.

In sum, class counsel propose that attorneys' fees and expense payments occur according to the following schedule:

[8] The sole exception is Ms. Gallotto, who by agreement of the parties instead responded to written questions due to her failing health.

Event	Date
Endo's first payment, Teikoku payment, Watson payment (total: $84.75 million)	Already received
Payment of 81% of the Court-awarded attorneys' fees, $3,647,041.43 in expenses, and service awards	Thirty days after final approval and the running of any appeals (i.e. settlement finality)
Endo's second payment ($10 million)	By February 15, 2019
First distribution of settlement funds and payment to class counsel of 9.5% of the court-awarded attorneys' fees	Early March 2019
Endo's third payment ($10 million)	By February 15, 2010
Second distribution of settlement funds and payment to class counsel of 9.5% of the court-awarded attorneys' fees	Early March 2020

The proposed schedule protects the interests of the End-Payor Class by ensuring that class counsel will receive their fee and expense payments on the same schedule that the End-Payor Class receives its recoveries. The schedule also prevents the overpayment of class counsel in the event of non-payment of the second or third Endo payments.

VIII. CONCLUSION

For the foregoing reasons, class counsel requests the Court award one-third of the settlement amounts ($34,916,000) in attorneys' fees, plus proportional interest accrued from the Settlement Fund; award $3,647,041.43 in expenses; and service awards of $10,000 to each of the End-Payor Plaintiffs.

DATED: July 31, 2018

Respectfully submitted,

/s/ Dena C. Sharp

Daniel C. Girard (SBN 114826)
Dena C. Sharp (SBN 245869)
Scott Grzenczyk (SBN 279309)
GIRARD GIBBS LLP
601 California Street, 14th Floor
San Francisco, CA 94108

Telephone: (415) 981-4800
Facsimile: (415) 981-4846
Email: dcg@girardgibbs.com
Email: chc@girardgibbs.com
Email: smg@girardgibbs.com

/s/ Renae D. Steiner
Renae D. Steiner
Teresa M. Jones
HEINS MILLS & OLSON, P.L.C.
310 Clifton Avenue
Minneapolis, MN 55403
Telephone: (612) 338-4605
Facsimile: (612) 338-4692
Email: rsteiner@heinsmills.com

/s/ Sharon K. Robertson
Sharon K. Robertson
Donna M. Evans
COHEN MILSTEIN SELLERS & TOLL PLLC
88 Pine Street, 14th Floor
New York, New York 10005
Telephone: (212) 838-7797
Facsimile: (212) 838-7745
Email: srobertson@cohenmilstein.com
Email: devans@cohenmilstein.com

Co-Lead Counsel for Plaintiffs and the End-Payor Class

Joseph R. Saveri
Joshua P. Davis
Ryan J. McEwan
Kyla Gibboney
JOSEPH SAVERI LAW FIRM, INC.
601 California Street, Suite 1000
San Francisco, California 94108
Telephone: (415) 500-6800
Facsimile: (415) 395-9940
Email: jsaveri@saverilawfirm.com
Email: rmcewan@saverilawfirm.com

Liaison Counsel for Plaintiffs and the End-Payor Class

Steve D. Shadowen
HILLIARD & SHADOWEN LLP
39 West Main Street
Mechanicsburg, PA 17055
Telephone: (855) 344-3298
Email: steve@hilliardshadowenlaw.com

Marvin A. Miller
Lori A. Fanning
MILLER LAW LLC
115 South LaSalle Street, Suite 2910
Chicago, IL 60603
Telephone: (312) 332-3400
Email: mmiller@millerlawllc.com
Email: lfanning@millerlawllc.com

Michael M. Buchman
MOTLEY RICE LLC
600 Third Ave, Suite 2101
New York, New York 10016
Telephone: (212) 577-0051
Facsimile: (212) 577-0054
Email: mbuchman@motleyrice.com

David W. Mitchell
Brian O. O'Mara
ROBBINS GELLER RUDMAN & DOWD LLP
655 West Broadway, Suite 1900
San Diego, CA 92101
Telephone: (619) 231-1058
Facsimile: (619) 231-7423

Executive Committee for the proposed End-Payor Class

Natalie Finkelman Bennett
SHEPHERD, FINKELMAN, MILLER & SHAH, LLP
35 E. State Street
Media, PA 19063
Telephone: (610) 891-9880
Facsimile: (610) 891-9883
Email: nfinkelman@sfmslaw.com

Jeremy A. Lieberman
POMERANTZ LLP
600 Third Avenue
New York, NY 10016
Telephone: (212) 661-1000
Facsimile: (917) 463-1044
Email: jalieberman@pomlaw.com

Lee Albert
GLANCY BINKOW & GOLDBERG LLP
122 East 42nd Street, Suite 2920
New York, NY 10168
Telephone: (212) 682-5340
Facsimile: (212) 884-0988
Email: lalbert@glancylaw.com

Michael Coren
COHEN PLACITELLA & ROTH, P.C.
Two Commerce Square, Suite 2900
2001 Market Street
Philadelphia, P A 19103
Telephone: (215) 567-3500
Email: jgoldberg@cprlaw.com

Ralph B. Kalfayan
KRAUSE, KALFAYAN, BENINK & SLAVENS
550 West C Street, Suite 530
San Diego, California 92101
Telephone: (619) 232-0331
Facsimile: (619) 232-4019
Email: rkalfayan@kkbs-law.com

Jeffrey L. Kodroff
SPECTOR ROSEMAN KODROFF & WILLIS, P.C.
1818 Market Street, Suite 2500
Philadelphia, PA 19103
Telephone: (215) 496-0300
Facsimile: (215) 496-6611
Email: jkodroff@srkw-law.com

Robert W. Sink
LAW OFFICES OF ROBERT W. SINK
1800 J.F.K. Blvd., 14th Floor
Philadelphia, PA 19103

Telephone: (215) 995-1000
Email: rsink@sinklawoffices.com

William E. Hoese
KOHN, SWIFT & GRAF, P.C.
One South Broad Street, Suite 2100
Philadelphia, PA 19106
Telephone: (215) 238-1700

Robert S. Kitchenoff
WEINSTEIN KITCHENOFF & ASHER LLC
1845 Walnut Street, Suite 1100
Philadelphia, PA 19103
Telephone: (215) 545-7200
Email: Kitchenoff@wka-law.com

Krishna B. Narine
MEREDITH & NARINE
100 Broad Street, Suite 905
Philadelphia, PA 19110
Telephone: (215) 564-5182
Email: knarine@m-npartners.com

William H. London
FREED KANNER LONDON & MILLEN, LLC
2201 Waukegan Road, Suite 130
Bannockburn, IL 60015
Telephone: (224) 632-4500
Email: blondon@fklmlaw.com

Gregory S. Asciolla
LABATON SUCHAROW LLP
140 Broadway
New York, NY 10005
Telephone: (212) 907-0700
Fax: (212) 818-0477
Email: gasciolla@labaton.com

Karen Hanson Riebel
Heidi M. Silton
LOCKRIDGE GRINDAL NAUEN P.L.L.P.
100 Washington Avenue South, Suite 2200
Minneapolis, MN 55401-2159
Telephone: (612) 339-6900

Email: khriebel@locklaw.com
Email: hmsilton@locklaw.com

Frank R. Schirripa
HACH ROSE SCHIRRIPA & CHEVERIE LLP
185 Madison Ave
New York, New York 10016
Telephone: (212) 213-8311
Email: fschirripa@hrsclaw.com

Kenneth A. Wexler
WEXLER WALLACE LLP
55 W. Monroe St., Suite 330
Chicago, IL 60603
Tel: (312) 346-2222
Fax: (312) 346-0022
Email: kaw@wexlerwallace.com

Additional Plaintiffs' Counsel

ATTESTATION

I, Dena C. Sharp, am the ECF User whose identification and password are being used to file End-Payor Class Counsel's Motion for an Award of Attorneys' Fees, Expenses, and Service Awards. Pursuant to Civil L.R. 5-1(i)(3), I attest under penalty of perjury that concurrence in this filing has been obtained from all counsel.

DATED: July 31, 2018

/s/ Dena C. Sharp
Dena C. Sharp

CERTIFICATE OF SERVICE

I hereby certify that on July 31, 2018, I electronically filed the foregoing document using the CM/ECF system, which will send notification of such filing to all counsel of record registered in the CM/ECF system.

/s/ Dena C. Sharp

TAB 37A

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
SOUTHERN DISTRICT OF NEW YORK

DEC 07 2017

Laydon v. Mizuho Bank, Ltd., et al.	No. 12-cv-3419 (GBD)
Sonterra Capital Master Fund Ltd., et al. v. UBS AG, et al.	No. 15-cv-5844 (GBD)

~~[PROPOSED]~~ ORDER GRANTING CLASS COUNSEL'S MOTION FOR AWARD OF ATTORNEYS' FEES

This matter came for a duly-noticed hearing on December 7, 2017 (the "Fairness Hearing"), upon Class Counsel's Motion for Award of Attorneys' Fees ("Fee Application") in the related actions captioned Laydon v. Mizuho Bank, Ltd., et al., No. 12-cv-3419 (GBD) (S.D.N.Y.) ("Laydon") and Sonterra Capital Master Fund Ltd., et al. v. UBS AG, et al., No. 15-cv-5844 (GBD) (S.D.N.Y.) ("Sonterra") (collectively, the "Actions"). The Court has considered the Fee Application and all supporting and other related materials, including the matters presented at the Fairness Hearing. Due and adequate notice of: (1) the Stipulation and Agreement of Settlement with Deutsche Bank AG and DB Group Services (UK) Ltd. (collectively, "Deutsche Bank") entered into on July 21, 2017; and (2) the Stipulation and Agreement of Settlement with JPMorgan Chase & Co., JPMorgan Chase Bank, National Association, and J.P. Morgan Securities plc (collectively, "JPMorgan") entered into on July 21, 2017 (collectively, the "Settlements")[1] having been given to the Settlement Class Members, the Fairness Hearing having been held, and the Court having considered all papers filed and proceedings held herein and otherwise being fully informed in the premises and good cause appearing therefore,

[1] Unless otherwise defined herein, all capitalized terms used have the meanings set forth and defined in the Settlements.

IT IS HEREBY ORDERED, ADJUDGED AND DECREED THAT:

1. This Court has personal jurisdiction over Plaintiffs, Deutsche Bank and JPMorgan (the "Parties") and all Settlement Class Members and subject matter jurisdiction over the Actions to approve the Settlements and all exhibits attached thereto;

2. Notice of the Fee Application was provided to potential Settlement Class Members in a reasonable manner, and such notice complies with Rule 23(h)(1) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure and due process requirements;

3. Plaintiffs' Counsel is hereby awarded attorneys' fees in the amount of $34,880,000.00 (approximately 23.57% of the total Settlement Funds), plus interest at the same rate as earned by the Settlement Funds, which shall be paid out of the Settlement Funds;

4. In accordance with the Court's August 29, 2012 Order (Laydon v. Mizuho Bank, Ltd., et al., No. 12-cv-3419, ECF No. 99, at paragraph 1(j)), Class Counsel is hereby authorized to allocate the attorneys' fees among Plaintiffs' Counsel in a manner in which, in Class Counsel's judgment, reflects the contributions of such counsel to the prosecution and settlement of the Actions;

5. In making this award of attorneys' fees, the Court has considered and found that:

   a. Plaintiffs' Counsel have prosecuted the Actions and achieved the Settlements with skill, perseverance, and diligent advocacy;

   b. The Actions involve numerous complex factual and legal issues and were actively litigated and, in the absence of a settlement, would have involved lengthy proceedings with uncertain resolution of the numerous complex factual and legal issues;

   c. Had Plaintiffs' Counsel not achieved the Settlements, a risk would remain that Plaintiffs and the Settlement Class may have recovered less or nothing from Deutsche Bank and JPMorgan;

   d. Public policy considerations support the requested fee, as only a small number of firms have the requisite expertise and resources to successfully prosecute cases such as the Actions;

e. Notice was disseminated stating that Class Counsel would be moving for attorneys' fees in the amount of one-fourth of the Settlement Funds; and

f. The amount of attorneys' fees awarded is fair, reasonable, appropriate and consistent with the awards in similar cases, and represents a reasonable percentage of the Settlement Funds, in view of the applicable legal principles and the particular facts and circumstances of the Actions.

6. In the event that the Settlements are terminated or the Effective Date does not occur in accordance with the terms of the Settlements, this Order shall be null and void, of no further force or effect, and without prejudice to any of the Parties, and may not be introduced as evidence or used in any actions or proceedings by any Person against the Parties;

7. Pursuant to Section 5(D) of the Deutsche Bank Settlement Agreement and JPMorgan Settlement Agreement, this fee award is independent of the Court's consideration of the fairness, reasonableness, and adequacy of the Settlements and is also independent of the Court's consideration of the proposed Plan of Allocation; and

8. The fees awarded herein may be paid to Plaintiffs' Counsel from the Settlement Funds immediately upon entry of this Order, subject to the terms, conditions, and obligations of the Settlements which terms, conditions, and obligations are incorporated herein.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

This 7th day of December, 2017.

George B. Daniels

Honorable George B. Daniels
United States District Judge

TAB 37B

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
SOUTHERN DISTRICT OF NEW YORK

Laydon v. Mizuho Bank, Ltd., et al.	No. 12-cv-3419 (GBD)
Sonterra Capital Master Fund Ltd., et al. v. UBS AG, et al.	No. 15-cv-5844 (GBD)

MEMORANDUM OF LAW IN SUPPORT OF CLASS COUNSEL'S MOTION FOR AWARD OF ATTORNEYS' FEES

TABLE OF CONTENTS

TABLE OF AUTHORITIES ii
INTRODUCTION 1
THE WORK UNDERTAKEN BY CLASS COUNSEL 3
A. Initial Case Investigation and the Laydon Complaints 3
B. The Sonterra Complaint 6
C. Laydon TAC 6
D. Motion to Dismiss Ruling in the Sonterra Action 8
E. Discovery Efforts in the Laydon Action 9
F. Expert Work and Developing a Plan of Allocation 11
G. Mediation and Settlements 12
ARGUMENT 13
I. CLASS COUNSEL'S FEE REQUEST IS FAIR AND REASONABLE 13
A. The Request is Consistent with the Fee Scale Negotiated by CalSTRS 13
B. Class Counsel's Request is Well Within the Range Used Under the Second Circuit's Preferred Percentage-Based Methodology 15
C. The Requested Fees are Supported by the Goldberger Factors 16
1. The Risk of the Litigation 16
2. The Magnitude and Complexity of the Case 18
3. Quality of Representation 20
4. The Fee is Reasonable in Relation to the Settlements 22
5. Public Policy Supports Approval 23
D. The Lodestar Cross-Check Supports the Requested Fee 23
II. CLASS COUNSEL'S EXPENSES 25
CONCLUSION 26

TABLE OF AUTHORITIES

Cases

Alderman v. Pan Am World Airways,
169 F.3d 99 (2d Cir. 1999) 24

Arbor Hill Concerned Citizens Neighborhood Ass'n v. Cty. of Albany & Albany Cty. Bd. of Elections,
522 F.3d 182 (2d Cir. 2008) 13

Beckman v. KeyBank N.A.,
293 F.R.D. 467 (S.D.N.Y. 2013) 24

Carpenter v. Paige Hospitality Grp., LLC,
No. 13-cv-4009(GBD), 2015 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 82771 (S.D.N.Y. June 2, 2015) 25

City of Omaha Police & Fire Ret. Sys. v. LHC Grp.,
No. 12 cv 1609, 2015 WL 965696, at *11 (W.D. La. Mar. 3, 2015) 25

City of Providence v. Aeropostale, Inc.,
No. 11 Civ. 7132 (CM)(GWG), 2014 WL 1883494 (S.D.N.Y. May 9, 2014) 16

Flanagan, Lieberman, Hoffman & Swaim v. Ohio Pub. Employees Ret. Sys.,
814 F.3d 652 (2d Cir. 2016) 14

Gelboim v. Bank of America Corporation,
823 F.3d 759 (2d Cir. 2016) 17

Goldberger v. Integrated Res., Inc.,
209 F.3d 43 (2d Cir. 2000) 13, 16, 20, 23

Hall v. Children's Place Retail Stores Inc.,
669 F. Supp. 2d 399 (S.D.N.Y. 2009) 15

In re Amaranth Natural Gas Commodities Litig.,
No. 07 Civ. 6377 (SAS), 2012 WL 2149094 (S.D.N.Y. Jun. 11, 2012) 16

In re Arakis Energy Corp. Sec. Litig.,
No. 95 CV 3431(ARR), 2001 WL 1590512 (E.D.N.Y. Oct. 31, 2001) 25

In re Beacon Assoc. Litig.,
No. 09 Civ. 777(CM), 2013 WL 2450960 (S.D.N.Y. May 9, 2013) 15

In re Colgate-Palmolive Co. ERISA Litig.,
36 F. Supp. 3d 344 (S.D.N.Y. 2014) 23

In re Credit Default Swaps Antitrust Litig.,
No. 13-md-2476, 2016 WL 2731524 (S.D.N.Y. April 26, 2016) 13, 14, 22, 24

In re Holocaust Victim Assets Litig.,
No. CV 06-0983 (FB)(JO), 2007 WL 805768 (E.D.N.Y. Mar. 15, 2007) 19

In re Merrill Lynch Tyco Research Sec. Litig.,
249 F.R.D. 124 (S.D.N.Y. 2008) 20

In re NASDAQ Market-Makers Antitrust Litig.,
187 F.R.D. 465 (S.D.N.Y. 1998) 15, 18, 21

In re Nortel Networks Corp. Sec. Litig.,
539 F.3d 129 (2d Cir. 2008) 13

In re Payment Card Interchange Fee & Merch. Disc. Antitrust Litig.,
991 F. Supp. 2d 437 (E.D.N.Y. 2014) 16, 18, 22

In re Platinum and Palladium Commodities Litig., No. 10 CV 3617,
2014 WL 3500655 (S.D.N.Y. July 15, 2014) 17, 18

In re Sumitomo Copper Litig.,
74 F. Supp. 2d 393 (S.D.N.Y. 1999) 16

In re Telik, Inc. Sec. Litig.,
576 F. Supp. 2d 570 (S.D.N.Y. 2008) 15

In re Vitamin C Antitrust Litig.,
No. 06 MD 1738 (BMC)(JO), 2012 WL 5289514 (E.D.N.Y. Oct. 23, 2012) 18

Maley v. Del Global Techns. Corp.,
186 F. Supp. 2d. 358 (S.D.N.Y. 2002) 21, 24

McDaniel v. County of Schenectady,
595 F.3d 411 (2d Cir. 2010) 13

Meredith Corp. v. SESAC, LLC,
87 F. Supp. 3d 650 (S.D.N.Y. 2015) 15, 17, 18, 21

Pillsbury Co. v. Conboy,
459 U.S. 248 (1983) 23

Sonterra Capital Master Fund Ltd. v. Credit Suisse Group AG,
No. 15-cv-00871, 2017 WL 4250480 (S.D.N.Y. Sept. 25, 2017) 17

Sonterra Capital Master Fund, Ltd. v. UBS AG,
No. 15-cv-5844, 2017 WL 1091983 (S.D.N.Y. Mar. 10, 2017) 8

Strougo ex rel. Brazilian Equity Fund, Inc. v. Bassini,
258 F. Supp. 2d 254 (S.D.N.Y. 2003) 15

Vizcaino v. Microsoft Corp.,
290 F.3d 1043 (9th Cir. 2002) 24

Wal-Mart Stores, Inc. v. Visa U.S.A., Inc.,
396 F.3d 96 (2d Cir. 2005) 15, 19

Pursuant to this Court's September 14, 2017 superseding order preliminarily approving Settlements with Deutsche Bank[1] and JPMorgan[2], Plaintiffs,[3] through Lowey Dannenberg, P.C. ("Class Counsel") respectfully move under Rule 23(h) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure for an award of attorneys' fees of $34.88 million, or approximately 23.57% of the $148 million common fund established by Plaintiffs' settlements with Deutsche Bank and JPMorgan in the related cases Laydon v. Mizuho Bank, Ltd., et al., No. 12-cv-3419 (GBD) ("Laydon") and Sonterra Capital Master Fund, Ltd., et al, v. UBS AG et al., No. 15-cv-5844 (GBD) ("Sonterra"). The requested fees are consistent with the negotiated fee agreement with CalSTRS, one of the largest public pension systems in the world. Further, the fees are within the percentage found reasonable in this circuit and are less than the total lodestar incurred in litigating these cases to date.

INTRODUCTION

Class Counsel has been litigating on behalf of investors in Euroyen-Based Derivatives as sole Lead Counsel for over five-and-a-half years on a fully-contingent basis. Taking on 44 of the world's largest financial institutions regarding the manipulation of Yen-LIBOR and Euroyen TIBOR, Class Counsel has achieved significant results, including a total of $206 million in monetary compensation and valuable cooperation, while facing many of the top antitrust lawyers in the country and the vast resources of their clients.

Class Counsel's ability to successfully recover for the Settlement Class is a testament to the quality of the work and resources devoted to these massive cases, which included multiple amended pleadings, more than 15 motions and 50 separate memoranda, and almost eleven million pages in discovery. The Laydon Third Amended Complaint's ("TAC") (Laydon, ECF No. 580) and Sonterra Amended Class Action Complaint's (ECF No. 121) detailed allegations describing, inter alia, the structure of Defendants' conspiracy and its economic impact on the Euroyen-Based Derivatives market represent just a portion of the effort expended to date.

[1] "Deutsche Bank" means Deutsche Bank AG and DB Group Services (UK) Ltd.

[2] "JPMorgan" means JPMorgan Chase & Co., JPMorgan Chase Bank, National Association, and J.P. Morgan Securities plc. Together, JPMorgan and Deutsche Bank are referred to as the "Settling Defendants."

[3] Plaintiffs are Jeffrey Laydon, Sonterra Capital Master Fund, Ltd. ("Sonterra"), Hayman Capital Master Fund, L.P. and Japan Macro Opportunities Master Fund, L.P. (collectively, "Hayman"), and California State Teachers' Retirement System ("CalSTRS"). Unless otherwise noted, ECF citations are to the docket in the Sonterra Action, and internal citations and quotation marks are omitted. Unless otherwise defined, capitalized terms herein have the same meaning as in the Deutsche Bank Settlement Agreement and JPMorgan Settlement Agreement. ECF Nos. 338-1; 338-2.

The Plan of Allocation is similarly representative of the effort expended. Class Counsel developed this data-driven approach over several months with one of the leading commodities manipulation experts, advancing all associated costs. Class Counsel deployed cutting-edge document review technology and a team specially trained in analyzing transactional data to mine the necessary records from the millions of documents that Defendants produced in the Laydon Action. This process was time-consuming, but invaluable and resulted in a damages model capable of fairly allocating settlement funds.

Having worked diligently for more than five-and-a-half years and having received fees representing only a fraction of the professional services provided to date, Class Counsel should now be awarded a fair and reasonable fee of $34.88 million, or approximately 23.57% of the monetary value of the settlement amounts. This request is objectively fair and reasonable because it is consistent with the graduated fee scale that Plaintiff CalSTRS negotiated with Class Counsel before joining this case. See Part I.A infra. The request is also qualitatively reasonable because it satisfies all six Goldberger factors used to evaluate attorneys' fees in this Circuit (see Part I.C-D infra) and is consistent with fee awards in other similarly complex class actions. See Part I.B infra.

Class Counsel does not seek reimbursement for the $223,272.66 in out-of-pocket expenses incurred since September 1, 2016. These expenses, described in the accompanying declaration of Geoffrey M. Horn ("Horn Decl."), and those of additional Plaintiffs' Counsel,[4] were incurred for the Class's benefit and predominantly consist of discovery costs, expert work, mediation, travel, and research expenses. These expenses have been paid or will be paid from the litigation expense fund established by this Court's prior order approving settlements with Citibank, N.A., Citigroup Inc., Citibank Japan Ltd., Citigroup Global Markets Japan Inc. (collectively, "Citi") and HSBC Holdings plc, HSBC Bank plc (collectively, "HSBC"). See ECF No. 297 ¶ 3.

[4] See Declaration of Benjamin M. Jaccarino, Esq. (Lovell Stewart Halebian Jacobson LLP); Declaration of Todd A. Seaver, Esq. (Berman Tabacco); Jennifer W. Sprengel, Esq. (Cafferty Clobes Meriwether & Sprengel LLP); and Linda Nussbaum, Esq. (Nussbaum Law Group, P.C.).

THE WORK UNDERTAKEN BY CLASS COUNSEL

These additional settlements in Laydon and Sonterra are the products of the continued investigation, diligence and skill of some of the country's most experienced commodity manipulation lawyers and experts. Class Counsel has continued to shoulder the financial risk of litigating these actions and has continued to productively use its resources to generate beneficial results for Plaintiffs and the Class. The work undertaken for the Class is fully described in previous filings with the Court (see ECF Nos. 188-89, 261-63, 278-79, 281-87, 337-38) and the accompanying declaration of Vincent Briganti ("Briganti Decl."). Below is a summary of that work, with attention on the efforts undertaken since September 1, 2016.

A. Initial Case Investigation and the Laydon Complaints

Class Counsel began investigating the alleged manipulative conduct in the Euroyen-Based Derivatives market more than five years ago, after UBS revealed it had entered the Department of Justice's "ACPERA"[5] leniency program by self-reporting criminal cartel activity involving Yen-LIBOR and Euroyen TIBOR. See Briganti Decl. ¶¶ 2-3.

Class Counsel filed the initial Class Action Complaint ("CAC") (Laydon, ECF No. 1) on behalf of Jeffrey Laydon on April 30, 2012, asserting claims under the Sherman Act, Commodity Exchange Act ("CEA"), and several states' laws against twenty-five Defendants that were members of the Yen-LIBOR and/or Euroyen TIBOR panels. Id. ¶ 4. In June 2012, Barclays became the first [5] Antitrust Criminal Penalty Enhancement and Reform Act of 2004, Pub. L. 108-237.

Defendant to settle with global regulators. Id. ¶ 10. Class Counsel filed the First Amended Complaint ("FAC") on December 3, 2012. The FAC incorporated information from Barclays' government settlements and expanded the CAC's allegations by more than 100 pages with 48 charts, graphs, and tables reflecting new economic evidence from a leading expert in benchmark manipulation retained by Class Counsel. Id. ¶ 11. Based on information from UBS's and RBS's government settlements, Class Counsel filed an enhanced Second Amended Complaint ("SAC"), replete with detailed allegations describing a conspiracy to manipulate Yen-LIBOR, Euroyen TIBOR, and the prices of Euroyen-Based Derivatives, including the Euroyen TIBOR futures contracts that Plaintiff Laydon traded on the Chicago Mercantile Exchange ("CME"). Id. ¶¶ 12-14.

Defendants filed thirteen separate memoranda of law in support of their motions to dismiss the SAC on June 14, 2013. Id. ¶ 17. Class Counsel filed an omnibus opposition to Defendants' motions to dismiss the SAC on August 13, 2013. Id. After a full day of oral argument on March 5, 2014, the Court granted-in-part and denied-in-part Defendants' motion to dismiss on March 28, 2014, dismissing Plaintiff's antitrust claims but sustaining CEA claims. Id. ¶ 19.

Class Counsel moved for leave to amend and filed a Proposed Third Amended Complaint ("PTAC") on June 17, 2014. Id. ¶ 21. The PTAC reflected Class Counsel's continuing investigation and sought to add four newly-identified Defendants. It also sought to add two named plaintiffs, Oklahoma Police Pension & Retirement System ("OPPRS") and Stephen Sullivan ("Sullivan") who transacted in Euroyen-Based Derivatives directly with several Defendants. Id. ¶ 22. The PTAC included new claims for breach of the implied covenant of good faith and fair dealing, and renewed claims for unjust enrichment based on these direct dealings. Id. The PTAC also added claims for violations of the Racketeer Influenced and Corrupt Organizations Act ("RICO") based in part on Defendant Rabobank's traders' recent guilty pleas to wire fraud in connection with the manipulation of Yen-LIBOR and Euroyen TIBOR. Id. ¶ 23.

On August 7, 2014, fourteen Defendants filed eight new motions to dismiss the SAC under Rule 12(b)(2), arguing that the Supreme Court's seven-month old decision in Daimler AG v. Bauman, 134 S. Ct. 746 (2014), created a previously-unavailable personal jurisdiction defense. Id. ¶ 24. Class Counsel opposed these motions arguing, inter alia, that Defendants had waived their personal jurisdiction defenses by not raising them sooner. Id. ¶ 26.

Defendants filed their opposition to Plaintiff's motion for leave to amend four days later. Id. ¶ 25. While Class Counsel was preparing Plaintiff's response, CalSTRS retained Class Counsel to prosecute claims based on its Euroyen-Based Derivatives transactions with certain Defendants. Id. ¶ 27. As described fully in the accompanying declaration of CalSTRS's general counsel, Brian J. Bartow, before joining the case, CalSTRS negotiated a graduated fee schedule with Class Counsel that provided for a 25% fee on the first $100 million recovered, 23% on the next $200 million recovered, and lower fee percentages on subsequent amounts added to the common fund. See Declaration of Brian J. Bartow ("Bartow Decl."), ¶ 7. The fee agreement also limited the amount of fees Class Counsel could request to 3.5 times the aggregate lodestar of all Plaintiffs' Counsel. Id. Class Counsel then drafted detailed allegations, including examples of how Defendants' misconduct impacted CalSTRS's transactions. These new allegations were included with Plaintiff's reply brief to avoid the need for an additional round of motion to amend briefing. See Briganti Decl. ¶ 27.

On March 31, 2015, the Court partially granted Plaintiff's motion for leave to amend the complaint to add the four new Defendants but denied leave to include the new plaintiffs and RICO and state law claims. Id. ¶ 28. CalSTRS's request to join the action was also denied but it was permitted to renew its application by letter within 30 days. The Court denied ten Defendants' motions to dismiss the SAC, holding they had waived their personal jurisdiction defenses. Id.

B. The Sonterra Complaint

CalSTRS filed a letter motion to intervene in Laydon on April 29, 2015. Id. ¶ 33. While that motion was pending, Class Counsel initiated the Sonterra action on behalf of two U.S.-based investment funds—Sonterra and Hayman Capital Management L.P. ("Hayman Management"). Id. ¶ 35. Like CalSTRS, Sonterra and Hayman Management transacted in over-the-counter Euroyen-Based Derivatives, including Yen-LIBOR-based interest rate swaps and Yen foreign exchange forward agreements, directly with several Defendants. Id. Class Counsel related this new case to Laydon and quickly moved to consolidate the actions as the cases involved overlapping facts, occurrences, and law, and the same Defendants, government settlements, Euroyen-Based Derivatives, and economic evidence of manipulation and price artificiality. Id.

The Court addressed both CalSTRS's motion to intervene and the Sonterra Plaintiffs' motion to consolidate on October 8, 2015. Id. ¶ 38. First, the Court denied Plaintiff's motion to consolidate the Laydon and Sonterra actions without prejudice, explaining that it would reconsider whether consolidation was appropriate after all Defendants had either answered or filed motions to dismiss in both cases. Id. Next, the Court denied CalSTRS's motion to intervene in Laydon and instructed CalSTRS to file its own complaint. Id. ¶ 39. To avoid unnecessarily spending resources on a new complaint and a round of motion to dismiss briefing, Class Counsel suggested adding CalSTRS to the Sonterra action. Id. ¶ 39. The Court agreed and ordered the Sonterra plaintiffs to file an amended complaint including CalSTRS by December 1, 2015. After a brief extension, amended complaints were filed in Sonterra on December 18, 2015. Id. ¶ 41.

C. Laydon TAC

Plaintiff filed his TAC in Laydon on December 18, 2015. Id. ¶ 41. Defendants subsequently moved to strike the TAC on the ground that it did not comply with the Court's order granting leave to amend because, inter alia, it included claims that were previously dismissed in order to preserve those claims for appeal. Id. ¶ 43. The Court granted this motion, instructing Class Counsel to submit a new PTAC with a letter seeking leave to file that complaint. Id. Plaintiff filed his motion for leave to file the new PTAC, which Defendants opposed, arguing that it too violated the Court's order granting leave to amend and that the amendment was futile because it added time-barred claims. Id. ¶ 44. The Court granted Plaintiff's motion and Class Counsel filed a new TAC on February 29, 2016. Defendants' subsequent attempts to strike that complaint were denied. Id.

Twenty-one Defendants (the "Legacy Defendants") filed 16 answers to the TAC on May 16, 2016 totaling over 2,000 pages. Id. ¶ 45. After meeting and conferring with the Legacy Defendants regarding their answers, four Defendants filed amended answers on November 14, 2016. Id.

On May 16, 2016, the Legacy Defendants filed a motion to partially dismiss claims in the TAC arising during the last six months of the Class Period (January 1, 2011 through June 30, 2011) as time-barred. Id. ¶ 47. After the motion was fully briefed, the Court held oral argument on October 25, 2016. Id. The Court granted the Legacy Defendants' motion on May 10, 2017. Id.

Also on May 16, 2016, three Defendants added to the TAC ("Newly-Added Laydon Defendants") filed motions to dismiss for lack of personal jurisdiction. Id. ¶ 46. Plaintiff filed his opposition on July 18, 2016 and the Newly-Added Laydon Defendants filed their reply on August 16, 2016. Id. After the parties completed briefing, but before oral argument, the Second Circuit decided Waldman v. Palestine Liberation Org., 835 F.3d 317 (2d Cir. 2016). The parties submitted letter briefing on the impact of Waldman on the pending motion to dismiss. Id. The Court held oral argument on October 25, 2016. Id. On March 10, 2017, the Court granted the Newly-Added Laydon Defendants' motions to dismiss. Id.

Based on the Waldman decision, certain Defendants filed motions with the Court seeking revision and relief from the Court's November 10, 2014 and March 31, 2015 Orders finding certain Defendants waived their personal jurisdiction defense, or, alternatively certification of the Orders to the Second Circuit. Id. ¶ 48. Plaintiffs opposed the motions. Id. After the motions were fully briefed, the Court denied certain Defendants' motions on May 19, 2017. Id.

D. Motion to Dismiss Ruling in the Sonterra Action

On February 1, 2016, the Sonterra Defendants filed at least five briefs and more than 30 declarations in support of their motions to dismiss arguing, inter alia, that the Court should dismiss Plaintiffs' claims for lack of personal jurisdiction, lack of antitrust standing and antitrust injury, and because they involve an extraterritorial application of United States law. Id. ¶¶ 49-51. On May 5, 2016, the Court held an all-day oral argument at which Class Counsel delivered a multi-hour presentation in opposition to Defendants' arguments with documentary evidence. Id. ¶ 52.

On March 10, 2017, the Court entered a Memorandum Decision and Order, dismissing the Sonterra Action against the non-settling Defendants for lack of subject matter jurisdiction and declining to exercise supplemental jurisdiction over the Sonterra Plaintiffs' state law claims. Sonterra Capital Master Fund, Ltd. v. UBS AG, No. 15-cv-5844, 2017 WL 1091983 (S.D.N.Y. Mar. 10, 2017) (the "Opinion"). In the Opinion, the Court acknowledged that Deutsche Bank and JPMorgan had withdrawn their motions to dismiss. Id. at *1 n.1. The Court also entered judgment on the same day, closing the case. Briganti Decl. ¶ 52. Class Counsel filed a timely notice of appeal to the United States Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit. Id. ¶ 53. On May 2, 2017, the Second Circuit placed the appeal on its Expedited Calendar, with briefing due June 6, 2017.

The dismissal of the action in its entirety, entry of judgment and appeal created uncertainty among the settling parties about the Court's ability to entertain a motion for seeking approval of the settlements. Briganti Decl. ¶ 54. While Plaintiff drafted its appellate brief, Class Counsel engaged in numerous phone calls with the Settling Defendants regarding the best procedure to follow to obtain preliminary approval of the Settlements. Id.

Plaintiffs, with consent from Settling Defendants, filed a motion for an indicative ruling pursuant to Federal Rule 62.1. Briganti Decl. ¶ 54. On May 24, 2017, the Court granted the motion for an indicative ruling under Rule 62.1 in the Sonterra Action, indicating that it intended to "amend the Judgment (ECF No. 315) entered in this action on March 10, 2017, pursuant to Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 60, to exclude Deutsche Bank and JPMorgan from the Judgment, and retain and exercise jurisdiction over Deutsche Bank and JPMorgan in order to consider approval in this action [of] their settlements with Plaintiffs." ECF No. 324, at 2; Briganti Decl. ¶ 54.

Class Counsel then filed a motion on consent of Deutsche Bank and JPMorgan for remand pursuant to Fed. R. App. P. 12.1 in the Second Circuit. Sonterra Capital Master Fund, Ltd., et al. v. UBS AG, et al., No. 17-944 (2d Cir. May 25, 2017), ECF No. 140. The Second Circuit granted the motion on June 13, 2017. Sonterra Capital Master Fund, Ltd., et al. v. UBS AG, et al., No. 17-944 (2d Cir. June 13, 2017), ECF No. 151.[6] On June 19, 2017, this Court amended the Judgment to exclude Deutsche Bank and JPMorgan. ECF No. 335, at 2. Finally, Class Counsel filed the preliminary approval motions in both the Laydon Action and the Sonterra Action (ECF No. 336-39; Laydon, ECF No. 773-76), which the Court granted on August 3, 2017 (ECF No. 345; Laydon, ECF No. 782). The Court issued a superseding order granting preliminary approval of the Settlements on September 14, 2017. ECF No. 355. While the Settlements are considered, Plaintiffs' appeal is stayed. Briganti Decl. ¶ 54.

E. Discovery Efforts in the Laydon Action

Plaintiff served his first discovery request on Defendants in June 2014, shortly after the Court's March 28, 2014 decision in Laydon. Briganti Decl. ¶ 55. Immediately, Class Counsel began negotiating for all documents produced by Defendants in the course of global regulatory investigations into Yen-LIBOR and Euroyen TIBOR manipulation. Id. These preliminary conferences produced the Joint Initial Report and discovery plan filed on August 4, 2014. Id. ¶ 56.

[6] Pursuant to the June 13, 2017 Order, Plaintiffs have been updating the Second Circuit every 30 days on the status of this Court's proceedings consistent with the indicative ruling. See Briganti Decl. ¶ 54.

That discovery plan was delayed first by a stay issued on account of Defendants' second Rule 12 motions, then by the Department of Justice's ("DOJ") request that that the Court extend the stay of discovery for at least eight months to protect the ongoing grand jury investigation. Id.

Meeting and conferring with Defendants about their responses and objections to Plaintiff's first discovery request lasted months and involved more than 45 conferences with 20 Defendants. By the summer of 2015, the parties had isolated a single issue for resolution by the Court: whether foreign data privacy and bank secrecy laws prohibited disclosure of certain documents. Id. ¶ 58. After extensive briefing and expert submissions, Class Counsel defeated certain Defendants' first motion to withhold documents under U.K. data privacy and bank secrecy laws, substantially accelerating discovery. Id. ¶ 58. Class Counsel negotiated agreements with certain other Defendants to address data privacy objections. Id. ¶¶ 58-59.

Plaintiff served his second discovery request on Defendants between March and July 2016. Id. ¶ 60. Plaintiffs met with Defendants concerning objections and responses to the second discovery request beginning in August 2016, holding at least 75 conferences and exchanging numerous letters with individual Defendants over 15 months to address objections, negotiate search terms, address data privacy law objections and reach agreement on the relevant custodians to search. Id. ¶ 61. After certain Defendants refused to produce documents held by employees who traded Euroyen-Based Derivatives ("Euroyen-Based Derivatives traders"), Plaintiff asked the Court for a pre-motion conference in advance of moving to compel certain Defendants to produce these documents. Id. ¶ 62. After receiving certain Defendants' opposition and holding an oral argument, Magistrate Judge Pitman issued an order requiring these Defendants to produce the non-privileged, responsive documents and communications from 10% of each Defendants' Euroyen-Based Derivatives traders, without prejudice to Plaintiff's right to compel the production of additional documents from traders. Id.; Laydon, ECF No. 802. Meet-and-confers continue to this date with every non-settling Defendant to address discovery issues. Briganti Decl. ¶ 63.

Class Counsel leveraged its in-house technological expertise to locally deploy Relativity, a sophisticated document review platform to process, analyze, and review Defendants' productions as soon as possible once the discovery stay expired. Id. ¶ 64. In addition to avoiding unnecessary external document hosting costs, a measure projected to save the Class millions of dollars over the course of this litigation, this decision gave Class Counsel unlimited access to Relativity's powerful analytics engine. Id. Developing an analytics-based workflow has allowed Class Counsel to effectively manage over 10.8 million pages and over 100,000 audio files that Defendants produced by suppressing duplicates and promoting documents involving key custodians, keywords, and other factors obtained from the litigation. Id. As a large number of documents were produced in foreign languages, Class Counsel leveraged the language skills of attorneys at Plaintiffs' Counsel speaking French, German and Japanese and used vendors to translate key documents to further augment Class Counsel's knowledge concerning the scope of Defendants' alleged manipulation. Id.

F. Expert Work and Developing a Plan of Allocation

Class Counsel started working with Dr. Craig Pirrong to develop evidence of impact and damages. Class Counsel worked with Dr. Pirrong to develop a model based on actual Euroyen market transactions, determining the amount of artificiality by analyzing the rates Defendants actually paid to borrow Yen during the Class Period in relation to what they reported. Briganti Decl. ¶ 72. This model is being used to carry out the Plan of Allocation and to ensure a fair claims process.

To develop a damages model, Class Counsel used its technological expertise to leverage various datasets, which collectively included millions of records. Class Counsel developed proprietary software to traverse the datasets and extract the appropriate information. Id. Class Counsel deputized a separate team to track down all cost of funding data. Id. This group utilized Relativity's analytics tools to segregate documents containing this transactional data and converted thousands of trade confirmations from images and PDFs into a machine-readable database by manually inputting all necessary data fields. Id. These additional data points supplemented the transactional records received as settlement cooperation to produce a credible model capable of calculating, on a formulaic basis, the damages suffered by each member of the Class.

G. Mediation and Settlements

Class Counsel achieved Settlements with Deutsche Bank, JPMorgan, HSBC, Citi, and R.P. Martin Holdings Limited and Martin Brokers (UK) Ltd. (collectively "R.P. Martin") after months of arm's-length negotiations, at which counsel on both sides presented the strengths and weaknesses of the claims and defenses. Briganti Decl. ¶¶ 65-70, 76-79. In Deutsche Bank's and HSBC's case, this process culminated in a full-day mediation with CalSTRS present. Briganti Decl. ¶¶ 69, 77; Bartow Decl. ¶ 11; see also ECF No. 280 (Bartow Decl.) ¶ 11. As a result, Class Counsel was well informed about the legal risks, factual uncertainties, potential damages, and other aspects of the case when each settlement was executed. Briganti Decl. ¶¶ 68-69, 76.

The Citi and HSBC settlements created a common fund of $58 million. Id. ¶ 71. The Deutsche Bank and JPMorgan deals will augment the common fund by an additional $148 million, providing monetary compensation for the Class's otherwise uncompensated injuries and additional transaction data, communications, and other documents that have greatly assisted (and will continue to greatly assist) Class Counsel in prosecuting the case. Id. ¶ 81.

Class Counsel retained Kenneth Feinberg, Esq., to oversee the allocation process and ensure a fair and reasonable distribution of settlement funds to Class members. See ECF No. 287 (Declaration of Kenneth R. Feinberg) ¶ 11. As part of this process, Class Counsel appointed separate allocation counsel to represent the interests of settlement Class members that transacted in different types of Euroyen-Based Derivatives. Id. at ¶ 12. In August 2016, Mr. Feinberg led a two-day mediation among allocation counsel to determine if any legal discounts should be applied to the value of Class members' claims. Id. at ¶ 15.

ARGUMENT

I. CLASS COUNSEL'S FEE REQUEST IS FAIR AND REASONABLE

"Attorneys whose work created a common fund for the benefit of a group of plaintiffs may receive reasonable' attorneys' fees from the fund." See In re Credit Default Swaps Antitrust Litig., No. 13-md-2476, 2016 WL 2731524, at *16 (S.D.N.Y. April 26, 2016) ("CDS Litig."). Courts "may award attorneys' fees in common fund cases under either the 'lodestar' method or the 'percentage of the fund' method" although "the trend in this Circuit is toward the percentage method." McDaniel v. County of Schenectady, 595 F.3d 411, 417 (2d Cir. 2010). Class Counsel's request is reasonable under either approach because it: (1) is consistent with the fee schedule that CalSTRS negotiated at arm's-length when it first retained Class Counsel in connection with this action; (2) is within this Circuit's range of "percentage method" fee awards; and (3) satisfies all six factors from Goldberger v. Integrated Resources, Inc., 209 F.3d 43 (2d Cir. 2000) ("Goldberger"), including the lodestar "cross-check."

A. The Request is Consistent with the Fee Scale Negotiated by CalSTRS

The touchstone of "reasonableness" when evaluating attorneys' fees is "what a reasonable, paying client would be willing to pay" for counsel's services. See Arbor Hill Concerned Citizens Neighborhood Ass'n v. Cty. of Albany & Albany Cty. Bd. of Elections, 522 F.3d 182, 184 (2d Cir. 2008); see also Goldberger, 209 F.3d at 52 ("market rates, where available, are the ideal proxy for [class counsel's] compensation."). Consistent with this measure, courts give great weight to negotiated fee agreements between lead plaintiffs and class counsel because they typically reflect actual market rates. In re Nortel Networks Corp. Sec. Litig., 539 F.3d 129, 133 (2d Cir. 2008) ("In many cases, the agreed-upon fee will offer the best indication of the market rate."). For example, there is a well-recognized rebuttable "presumption of correctness"[7] given to the terms of an ex ante fee agreement between class counsel and lead plaintiffs applied in antitrust cases where the fee was negotiated by a "sophisticated benefits fund with fiduciary obligations to its members and where that fund has a sizeable stake in the litigation." CDS Litig., 2016 WL 2731524, at *16 (citing Flanagan, 814 F.3d at 659 and In re Cendant Corp. Litig., 264 F.3d 201, 282 (3d Cir.2001)).

The attorneys' fees requested here are calculated directly from the retainer agreement that CalSTRS negotiated with Class Counsel before moving to join Laydon in September 2014. See Bartow Decl. ¶ 7. CalSTRS is a "sophisticated benefits fund" with an investment portfolio of approximately $213.5 billion. Id. ¶ 4. It is the second-largest pension fund in the United States and the largest educator-only pension fund in the world. Id. CalSTRS owes a fiduciary duty to its more than one million members. Id. ¶¶ 4-5. This duty not only motivated CalSTRS to negotiate at arm's-length a fair and reasonable fee arrangement with Class Counsel, but also to remain an active participant in the litigation. For example, CalSTRS's general counsel Brian Bartow was directly involved in settlement discussions with Deutsche Bank and traveled from California to New York to participate in the parties' January 2017 mediation. Id. ¶ 11. CalSTRS's high level of involvement is commensurate with its "sizable stake in the litigation" having engaged in tens of thousands of Euroyen-Based Derivatives transactions with nine Defendants. Id. ¶¶ 5, 8-12. CalSTRS's ex ante judgment about an appropriate attorneys' fee in this case, therefore, satisfies the three factors the CDS court identified and is entitled to a presumption of reasonableness.

Moreover, CalSTRS supports the fee request based on its active monitoring of Class Counsel's work and the results Class Counsel achieved. Id. ¶ 16. As a result of its involvement in the case, CalSTRS has an intimate understanding of this litigation's complexity and difficulty. Its ex post support of this fee request demonstrates that it is fair and reasonable. CalSTRS's judgment, expertise and involvement support a presumption of correctness applying to the negotiated fee agreement.

[7] See Flanagan, Lieberman, Hoffman & Swaim v. Ohio Pub. Employees Ret. Sys., 814 F.3d 652, 659 (2d Cir. 2016).

B. Class Counsel's Request is Well Within the Range Used Under the Second Circuit's Preferred Percentage-Based Methodology

The reasonableness of the requested fee is confirmed by cases applying the "percentage method" of fee calculation favored in this Circuit. See Wal-Mart Stores, Inc. v. Visa U.S.A., Inc., 396 F.3d 96, 121 (2d Cir. 2005) ("The trend in this Circuit is toward the percentage method") (citation omitted); see also In re Beacon Assoc. Litig., No. 09 Civ. 777(CM), 2013 WL 2450960, at *5 (S.D.N.Y. May 9, 2013) (explaining that "percentage of recovery" is "the preferred method of calculating the award for class counsel in common funds cases"). Courts prefer the "percentage method" because it is easy to administer and avoids the "dubious merits of the lodestar approach." Strougo ex rel. Brazilian Equity Fund, Inc. v. Bassini, 258 F. Supp. 2d 254, 261 (S.D.N.Y. 2003); see also In re Telik, Inc. Sec. Litig., 576 F. Supp. 2d 570, 586 (S.D.N.Y. 2008) (noting that it absolves district courts from taking on the cumbersome task of computing a lodestar); In re NASDAQ Market-Makers Antitrust Litig., 187 F.R.D. 465, 485 (S.D.N.Y. 1998) ("NASDAQ III") (noting that the percentage method is easy to administer). It also "aligns the interests of the class and its counsel" while incentivizing "the efficient prosecution and early resolution of litigation." Hall v. Children's Place Retail Stores Inc., 669 F. Supp. 2d 399, 401 (S.D.N.Y. 2009) (citation omitted). Furthermore, the reasonableness of the requested fee can be ensured by cross-checking the percentage fee against counsel's lodestar. Meredith Corp. v. SESAC, LLC, 87 F. Supp. 3d 650, 667-68 (S.D.N.Y. 2015). See Part I.D, infra.

Pursuant to the graduated fee structure with CalSTRS, Class Counsel requests approximately 23.57% of the common fund, reflecting the blended average of 25% on $42 million (the remaining balance under the first $100 million threshold)[8] and 23% on $106 million. This percentage is well within the range of reasonable attorneys' fees approved in other complex class actions in this Circuit. See, e.g., City of Providence v. Aeropostale, Inc., No. 11 Civ. 7132 (CM)(GWG), 2014 WL 1883494, at *10-12 (S.D.N.Y. May 9, 2014) (awarding 33% in attorneys' fees); In re Amaranth Natural Gas Commodities Litig., No. 07 Civ. 6377 (SAS), 2012 WL 2149094, at *2 (S.D.N.Y. Jun. 11, 2012) (awarding 33.33% attorneys' fees in a complex CEA class action); In re Sumitomo Copper Litig., 74 F. Supp. 2d 393 (S.D.N.Y. 1999) (awarding 27.5% attorneys' fees in a complex CEA and RICO class action). It is particularly significant that the fee here is a lesser percentage than many of the approved fees in complex common fund class actions where "courts have sometimes awarded contingency fees exceeding 30% of the overall fund." In re Payment Card Interchange Fee & Merch. Disc. Antitrust Litig., 991 F. Supp. 2d 437, 447 n.11 (E.D.N.Y. 2014) ("Interchange Fee Litig.").

[8] See Bartow Decl. ¶ 7. Previous settlements with Citi and HSBC totaled $58 million, of which the Court awarded 25% ($14.5 million) as attorneys' fees. See ECF No. 296 ¶ 3.

C. The Requested Fees are Supported by the Goldberger Factors

The requested fees are supported by the application of the six-factor reasonableness test set forth in Goldberger. Under that standard, courts must consider: "(1) the time and labor expended by counsel; (2) the magnitude and complexities of the litigation . . . ; (3) the risk of the litigation; (4) the quality of representation; (5) the requested fee in relation to the settlement; and (6) public policy considerations." Goldberger, 209 F.3d at 50. As the time and labor Class Counsel expended is detailed above (see supra at 3-13) and in the supporting declarations, factors 2 through 6 will be addressed.

1. The Risk of the Litigation

The risk of the litigation is the preeminent Goldberger factor. See Interchange Fee Litig., 991 F. Supp. 2d at 440 ("The most important Goldberger factor is often the case's risk"); Goldberger, 209 F.3d at 54 ("We have historically labeled the risk of success as 'perhaps the foremost' factor to be considered in determining whether to award an enhancement.") (citation omitted). While all cases involve some level of risk, this case involved a particularly high level of risk for several reasons.

Risk of Prosecuting the Case as Sole Lead Counsel: Class Counsel is the sole Lead Counsel bringing claims on behalf of the Euroyen-Based Derivatives investors represented here. The choice to litigate against 44 of the world's largest financial institutions, which have significant resources and could continue this case for years at the trial and appellate levels, presented a substantial risk that Class Counsel was and remains prepared to shoulder. See Meredith Corp., 87 F. Supp. 3d at 670 (noting "substantial risk" where counsel bore the "risk of defeat").

Risk of Establishing Liability: When Laydon and Sonterra were filed, no court had ruled that conspiring to fix LIBOR was an antitrust violation. In fact, Defendants argued (and several courts in this District agreed) that, because of the allegedly "cooperative" nature of the LIBOR rate-setting process, manipulating LIBOR did not cause antitrust injury. Class Counsel litigated this case for more than four years before the Second Circuit rejected Defendants' competing arguments and validated Plaintiffs' legal theory that fixing Yen-LIBOR and Euroyen TIBOR, which serve as a component of price in the derivatives Plaintiffs traded, is a per se antitrust violation. See Gelboim v. Bank of America Corporation, 823 F.3d 759 (2d Cir. 2016). Further, prior to the recent decision in Sonterra Capital Master Fund Ltd. v. Credit Suisse Group AG, no court in this District had ruled that foreign-based financial institutions who conspire to manipulate "IBOR" rates are subject to personal jurisdiction when they trade derivatives with investors in the United States that are priced based on those manipulated rates. No. 15-cv-00871, 2017 WL 4250480, at *50 (S.D.N.Y. Sept. 25, 2017). Additionally, this Court dismissed the Sonterra Action, finding Plaintiffs lacked standing. ECF Nos. 314, 335. This decision is currently on appeal to the Second Circuit.

Risk of Establishing Damages: There were also risks associated with establishing a class-wide damages model. See In re Platinum and Palladium Commodities Litig., No. 10 CV 3617, 2014 WL 3500655, at *12 (S.D.N.Y. July 15, 2014) ("[I]n any market manipulation or antitrust case, [p]laintiffs face significant challenges in establishing liability and damages."). For example, Plaintiffs' case depended on showing what Yen-LIBOR and Euroyen TIBOR would have been absent Defendants' alleged manipulation. While both rates are intended to reflect Defendants' cost of borrowing Yen in the interbank money market, data reflecting these funding transactions is not public and was unavailable at the start of the litigation. Class Counsel had to develop the data necessary to build a credible damages model through settlements and discovery. See supra at 11-12.

In spite of these risks, Plaintiffs' Counsel took this case on a fully-contingent basis, with Class Counsel itself devoting more than 70,000 hours and a substantial percentage of the firm's resources to litigating this case for over five-and-a-half years. As Judge Gleeson aptly noted: "Counsel should be rewarded for undertaking [the above noted risks] and for achieving substantial value for the class. If not for the attorneys' willingness to endure for many years the risk that their extraordinary efforts would go uncompensated, the settlement would not exist." Interchange Fee Litig., 991 F. Supp. 2d at 441.

2. The Magnitude and Complexity of the Case

"Class actions have a well-deserved reputation as being most complex," NASDAQ III, 187 F.R.D. at 477, with antitrust and commodities cases standing out as some of the most "'complex, protracted, and bitterly fought.'" Meredith Corp., 87 F. Supp. 3d at 670 (citations omitted); see also In re Platinum and Palladium Commodities Litig., 2014 WL 3500655 at *12 (noting that commodities cases are "complex and expensive" to litigate); In re Vitamin C Antitrust Litig., No. 06 MD 1738 (BMC)(JO), 2012 WL 5289514, at *4 (E.D.N.Y. Oct. 23, 2012). This case is no exception.

Complexity: Laydon and Sonterra involve a conspiracy among multiple banks and interdealer brokers to fix Euroyen-Based Derivatives prices over a five-and-a-half year Class Period through multiple means, including, inter alia: (1) making false Yen-LIBOR and Euroyen TIBOR submissions; (2) "spoofing" the market with false bids and offers; (3) sending fake run-throughs with artificial Yen cash prices; (4) publishing false rates on electronic screens maintained by interdealer brokers; and (5) rewarding co-conspirators through an intricate kickback and bribery system. Laydon, ECF No. 580 (TAC) ¶¶ 31-33, 387, 715, 965. See Wal-Mart Stores, 396 F.3d. at 122 (noting that the case was particularly large and complicated as it involved nearly every U.S. bank and over five million class members). Defendants often used multiple means at the same time to achieve the goal of their conspiracy. See, e.g., Laydon, ECF No. 580 ¶¶ 647-654 (describing the "Turn Campaign"). The amount of work required to reverse-engineer the inner workings of a cartel with this level of sophistication was "extraordinary" in both its "complexity and scope" and required Class Counsel to master the properties of complex financial instruments and markets by working with seasoned experts. See In re Holocaust Victim Assets Litig., No. CV 06-0983 (FB)(JO), 2007 WL 805768, at *46 (E.D.N.Y. Mar. 15, 2007).

Magnitude: This is a massive case. Over the course of five-and-a-half years of litigation involving 44 Defendants, the parties in Laydon and Sonterra have produced hundreds of docket entries associated with four amended complaints, including more than 50 memoranda and reply memoranda of law in support of and in opposition to at least 15 motions to dismiss as well as 16 answers. There have been numerous contentious discovery objections, including, inter alia, to the relevant time period, phases of discovery, foreign bank secrecy and data privacy laws, and confidentiality and privilege objections. These objections have led to more than 120 meet-and-confers, three discovery motions, and dozens of letters. The scope of discovery produced to date is just as large. The Laydon Defendants have now produced close to eleven million pages of documents, including over one hundred thousand audio files, and transaction records from hundreds of custodians. This number is likely to grow as certain Defendants have yet to produce the majority of documents from their Yen-LIBOR and Euroyen-TIBOR submitters and Euroyen-Based Derivatives traders, and well as certain documents pursuant to foreign data privacy laws. The global nature, duration, size of the case, complexity of the financial instruments, and sophistication and the depth of the conspiracy weigh heavily in favor of approving the requested fee.

3. Quality of Representation

"[T]he quality of representation is best measured by results," Goldberger, 209 F.3d at 55, which are evaluated in light of "the recovery obtained and the backgrounds of the lawyers involved in the lawsuit." In re Merrill Lynch Tyco Research Sec. Litig., 249 F.R.D. 124, 141 (S.D.N.Y. 2008).

Results Obtained: The settlements reached so far provide significant value to the Class. A total of $206 million in monetary compensation has been obtained from Deutsche Bank, JPMorgan, Citi and HSBC. Class Counsel's ability to recover for the Class highlights the extraordinary nature of the results reached here. These funds will provide Class members with an immediate recovery and ensure funding of the litigation so that Class Counsel can continue to pursue claims against the remaining Defendants in the Laydon and Sonterra actions.

Beyond monetary compensation, Class Counsel also secured significant cooperation from the Settling Defendants. See supra at 12; Briganti Decl. ¶¶ 67, 71, 81. The R.P. Martin deal also produced one of the most valuable pieces of information obtained to date—the "BOSS" transaction database—which contained millions of records, including the "wash trades" R.P. Martin brokered on behalf of Defendants UBS, RBS, and JPMorgan. See, e.g., ECF No. 580 (TAC) ¶¶ 392-94. The transaction data and information contained in Defendants' documents produced so far have helped Class Counsel specifically identify the names of Yen traders and submitters who were active participants in the alleged manipulation and aided the development of a class-wide damages model and Plan of Allocation. See supra at 11-12.

The value of this non-monetary compensation and result obtained by Class Counsel is further highlighted by Plaintiffs' settlement with HSBC. Documents obtained as settlement cooperation from R.P. Martin played a crucial role in Class Counsel's negotiations and the eventual mediation with HSBC, allowing them to present a compelling case on liability at the mediation that would have been impossible using only public documents.

Background of Lawyers Involved: Class Counsel has extensive experience prosecuting some of the largest commodities manipulation cases, including what were at the time, the first, second, third, and fourth largest class action recoveries in the history of the CEA.[9] This includes specific expertise in benchmark manipulation as demonstrated by Class Counsel's current tenure as lead counsel in cases alleging anticompetitive and manipulative conduct for several "IBOR" rates and the London Silver Fix.[10] Additional examples of Class Counsel's more than 50 years of experience with complex litigation are detailed in Lowey's firm resume.[11]

Another consideration for assessing the quality of the representation is "[t]he quality of the opposing counsel" in the case. See Maley v. Del Global Techns. Corp., 186 F. Supp. 2d. 358, 373 (S.D.N.Y. 2002). The valuable settlement that Class Counsel secured cannot be understated given the caliber of defense counsel in this action. See Meredith Corp., 87 F. Supp. 3d at 670 (noting that counsel's achievement in "obtaining valuable recompense . . . for its clients is particularly noteworthy given the caliber and vigor of its adversaries"); NASDAQ III, 187 F.R.D. at 488 (approving attorneys' fee award where defendants were represented by "several dozen of the nation's biggest and most highly regarded defense law firms."). The fact that Class Counsel was able to successfully prosecute this action for five-and-a-half years against such formidable opponents further reflects the quality of representation provided.

[9] ECF No. 338-7, at 2-4.

[10] See, e.g., Sonterra Capital Master Fund Ltd. et al. v. Credit Suisse Group AG et al., No. 15-cv-871 (SHS) (S.D.N.Y.) (Swiss franc LIBOR); Sullivan et al. v. Barclays PLC et al., No. 13-cv-2811 (PKC) (S.D.N.Y.) (Euribor); and In re: London Silver Fixing Ltd., Antitrust Litig., No. 14-md-2573 (VEC) (S.D.N.Y.).

[11] ECF No. 338-7.

4. The Fee is Reasonable in Relation to the Settlements

Courts evaluate the requested fee in relation to the settlement by looking to "comparable cases" for "guideposts." See Interchange Fee Litig., 991 F. Supp. 2d at 443-44 (evaluating a fee request in case where a class of merchants alleged that large credit card companies and banks conspired to fix certain rules and fees against other "large class cases with court-set fees"). This approach prevents "unwarranted disparities in outcomes" and provides greater predictability for counsel. Id. at 446-47. The fee requested here is reasonable in relation to the settlement for at least two reasons:

First, Class Counsel's request for a blended average of approximately 23.57% of the common fund comes directly from the graduated fee scale that CalSTRS negotiated before joining the action. See Bartow Decl. ¶ 7. This satisfies a key legal "guidepost" that Judge Gleeson identified in large class action cases—that "the percentage of the fund awarded should scale back as the size of the fund increases"—and supports the reasonableness of Class Counsel's request. See Interchange Fee Litig., 991 F. Supp. 2d at 444.

Second, the graduated fee CalSTRS negotiated is between the fees that were approved in two recent "guidepost" cases. See id. at 443. For example, in both CDS Litig., 2016 WL 2731524, at *17 n.24, and Interchange Fee Litig., 991 F. Supp. 2d at 445, courts in this District approved fee awards in large class cases based on a graduated fee scale. The fee agreement approved in Interchange Fee Litig., awarded counsel an average percentage fee of 23.9% for the first $200 million recovered, greater than the blended average fee of 23.57% requested here.[12] The requested fee is reasonable in relation to the settlement achieved here and compares favorably to other concrete "guideposts" such as the fees awarded in analogous cases.

[12] In CDS Litig., the court approved a fee award based on a graduated fee structure that started with payment of 18% of the first $200 million of the common fund as attorneys' fees. 2016 WL 2731524, at *17

5. Public Policy Supports Approval

Had Class Counsel not taken on the risk of this lawsuit in April 2012, before any Defendant had entered into government settlements, the Class would have been left without recompense for their losses. Despite the subsequent government investigations and certain Defendants' admissions of wrongdoing, investors who were actually harmed by the alleged conspiracy would not have received any money at all. See e.g., In re Colgate-Palmolive Co. ERISA Litig., 36 F. Supp. 3d 344, 352 (S.D.N.Y. 2014) ("providing lawyers with sufficient incentive to bring common fund cases that serve the public interest") (citations omitted).

Public policy encourages enforcement of the antitrust laws through private civil suits to deter infringing conduct in the future. See Pillsbury Co. v. Conboy, 459 U.S. 248, 262-63 (1983) ("This Court has emphasized the importance of the private action as a means of furthering the policy goals of certain federal regulatory statutes, including the federal antitrust laws."). Awarding a reasonable percentage of the common fund further ensures that Class Counsel retains the ability and incentive to pursue antitrust violations through trial, at their own expense and while recovery is uncertain. See Goldberger, 209 F.3d at 51 ("There is . . . commendable sentiment in favor of providing lawyers with sufficient incentive to bring common fund cases that serve the public interest.").

D. The Lodestar Cross-Check Supports the Requested Fee

Class Counsel's fee request is also reasonable under the lodestar method, which has "fallen out of favor because it encourages bill-padding and discourages early settlements." In re Colgate-Palmolive, 36 F. Supp. 3d at 353. In light of these deficiencies, courts in this Circuit have determined that the lodestar "works best as a sanity check to ensure that an otherwise reasonable percentage fee would not lead to a windfall," for example, if the multiplier is too large and "grossly disproportionate to the percentage fee award . . . ." Id. There is no windfall here.

First, in negotiating a graduated fee scale, CalSTRS capped any fee request by Class Counsel to 3.5 times the aggregate lodestar incurred by Plaintiffs' Counsel in the case. As with the percentage fee method, this negotiated rate should be given great weight in evaluating attorneys' fees. Alderman v. Pan Am World Airways, 169 F.3d 99, 103 (2d Cir. 1999) ("[A] court should seek to enforce the parties' intentions in a contingent fee agreement, as with any contract."). Plaintiffs' Counsel have spent 105,775.61 hours working on Laydon and Sonterra as of September 30, 2017, for an aggregate lodestar of $54,532,316.55. See Briganti Decl. ¶ 90. The blended average of the 23.57% or $34.88 million fee requested, when combined with the $14.5 million fee previously received, only compensates Plaintiffs' Counsel for approximately 91% of their aggregate lodestar and does not implicate the 3.5 times multiplier cap in the CalSTRS's agreement, demonstrating that a full fee will not result in an "unwarranted windfall." In continuing their work to prosecute the cases since Plaintiffs settled with Citi and HSBC, and in achieving the settlements with Deutsche Bank and JPMorgan, Plaintiffs' Counsel have worked 36,749.75 hours, reflecting a lodestar value of $17,447,929.00. Id. ¶¶ 83, 86-89. The product of Plaintiffs' Counsel's continued diligence is evident in the settlements with Deutsche Bank and JPMorgan totaling $148 million, which is more than 2.5 times larger than the Citi and HSBC settlements.

Second, the 3.5 times multiplier CalSTRS negotiated is reasonable because it is consistent with the range of multipliers approved in this and other circuits. See, e.g., CDS Litig., 2016 WL 2731524, at *17 (approving a lodestar of "just over 6" in a complex antitrust class action); Beckman v. KeyBank N.A., 293 F.R.D. 467, 481 (S.D.N.Y. 2013) (approving a multiplier of 6.3 in class action, explaining that "[c]ourts regularly award lodestar multipliers of up to eight times the lodestar, and in some cases, even higher multipliers."); Maley, 186 F. Supp. 2d at 371 (holding that a 4.65 lodestar multiplier is modest, fair, and reasonable); see also Vizcaino v. Microsoft Corp., 290 F.3d 1043, 1052 (9th Cir. 2002) (listing nationwide class action settlements where the lodestar multiplier ranged up to 8.5).

The Court should approve the requested fee as the parties intended a lodestar multiplier of no more than 3.5 and this intended multiplier is lower than that in similarly complex class action cases.

II. CLASS COUNSEL'S EXPENSES

"An attorney who has created a common fund . . . is entitled to reimbursement of reasonable expenses from that fund." City of Omaha Police & Fire Ret. Sys. v. LHC Grp., No. 12 cv 1609, 2015 WL 965696, at *11 (W.D. La. Mar. 3, 2015); see also In re Arakis Energy Corp. Sec. Litig., No. 95 CV 3431(ARR), 2001 WL 1590512, at *17 n.12 (E.D.N.Y. Oct. 31, 2001) ("Courts in the Second Circuit normally grant expense requests in common fund cases as a matter of course."). As detailed in the accompanying declarations, Plaintiffs' Counsel incurred $223,272.66 in expenses prosecuting this case between September 1, 2016 and September 30, 2017. See Briganti Decl. ¶¶ 91-95; Horn Decl. ¶ 6; see supra at 2 n.4. This amount is less than the amount listed in the disclosures in the Court-approved notice sent to settlement Class members. See Affidavit of Eric J. Miller, Ex. A, Mailed Notice at 8. These expenses, as well as $28,464.69 in unreimbursed expenses accrued prior to September 1, 2016 and previously disclosed to the Court, have or will be paid from the litigation fund established upon the entry of the Citi and HSBC settlements. Briganti Decl. ¶¶ 96-97.

These costs and expenses were "incidental and necessary to the representation of the Class," and should be reimbursed. See Carpenter v. Paige Hospitality Grp., LLC, No. 13-cv-4009(GBD), 2015 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 82771, at *5 (S.D.N.Y. June 2, 2015). The majority of the expenses incurred in this matter involve discovery costs, expert work, research, mediation, and travel expenses for the meetings and mediations that resulted in settlement. Since September 1, 2016, $157,711.45 (or 70.6% of the Plaintiffs' Counsel's total costs) went towards hosting and utilizing Relativity software for discovery and towards expert and mediation services. As the litigation fund is not yet depleted, no further reimbursement for expenses is requested at this time.

CONCLUSION

For the foregoing reasons, Plaintiffs respectfully request that the Court approve Plaintiffs' application for attorneys' fees in the amount set forth above.

Dated: October 31, 2017
White Plains, New York

LOWEY DANNENBERG, P.C.

By: /s/ Vincent Briganti

Vincent Briganti
Geoffrey M. Horn
Peter D. St. Phillip
44 South Broadway, Ste. 1100
White Plains, New York 10601
Tel.: 914-997-0500
Fax: 914- 997-0035
vbriganti@lowey.com
ghorn@lowey.com
pstphillip@lowey.com

Class Counsel

Joseph J. Tabacco, Jr.
Todd A. Seaver
BERMAN TABACCO
44 Montgomery Street, Ste. 650
San Francisco, CA 94104
Tel.: 415-433-3200
Fax: 415-433-6282

Patrick T. Egan
BERMAN TABACCO
One Liberty Square
Boston, MA 02109
Telephone: 617-542-8300
Facsimile: 617-542-1194

Christopher Lovell
Gary S. Jacobson
LOVELL STEWART HALEBIAN JACOBSON LLP
61 Broadway, Suite 501
New York, NY 10006
Tel.: 212-608-1900
Fax: 212-719-4677

Jennifer W. Sprengel
Anthony F. Fata

CAFFERTY CLOBES MERIWETHER & SPRENGEL LLP
150 S. Wacker, Suite 3000
Chicago, IL 60606
Tel.: 312-782-4880
Fax: 312-782-4485

Patrick E. Cafferty
CAFFERTY CLOBES MERIWETHER & SPRENGEL LLP
220 Collingwood Drive, Suite 130
Ann Arbor, MI 48103
Tel.: 734-769-2144

Linda Nussbaum
Bart Cohen
Susan Schwaiger
NUSSBAUM LAW GROUP, P.C.
1211 Avenue of the Americas, 40th Floor
New York, NY 10036
Tel.: 917-438-9102

Additional Counsel for Plaintiffs

TAB 38A

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
SOUTHERN DISTRICT OF NEW YORK

STEPHEN SULLIVAN, WHITE OAK FUND LP, CALIFORNIA STATE TEACHERS' RETIREMENT SYSTEM, SONTERRA CAPITAL MASTER FUND, LTD., FRONTPOINT PARTNERS TRADING FUND, L.P., AND FRONTPOINT AUSTRALIAN OPPORTUNITIES TRUST on behalf of themselves and all others similarly situated, Plaintiffs, - against - BARCLAYS PLC, BARCLAYS BANK PLC, BARCLAYS CAPITAL INC., BNP PARIBAS S.A., CITIGROUP, INC., CITIBANK, N.A., COÖPERATIEVE CENTRALE RAIFFEISEN-BOERENLEENBANK B.A., CRÉDIT AGRICOLE S.A., CRÉDIT AGRICOLE CIB, DEUTSCHE BANK AG, DB GROUP SERVICES UK LIMITED, HSBC HOLDINGS PLC, HSBC BANK PLC, ICAP PLC, ICAP EUROPE LIMITED, J.P. MORGAN CHASE & CO., JPMORGAN CHASE BANK, N.A., THE ROYAL BANK OF SCOTLAND PLC, SOCIÉTÉ GÉNÉRALE SA, UBS AG AND JOHN DOE NOS. 1-50, Defendants.	Docket No. 13-cv-02811 (PKC)

PKC

~~[PROPOSED]~~ ORDER GRANTING CLASS COUNSEL'S MOTION FOR AWARD OF ATTORNEYS' FEES

This matter came for a duly-noticed hearing on May 17, 2019 (the "Settlement Hearing"), upon Class Counsel's Motion for Award of Attorneys' Fees and Reimbursement of Expenses ("Fee and Expense Application") in the above-captioned action (the "Action"). The Court has considered the Fee and Expense Application and all supporting and other related materials, including the matters presented at the Settlement Hearing. Due and adequate notice of the Settlement Agreement Between Plaintiffs, Citi and JPMorgan entered into on November 21, 2018 (the "Settlement")[1]

[1] Unless otherwise defined herein, all capitalized terms used have the meanings set forth and defined in the Settlement.

having been given to the Settlement Class Members, the Settlement Hearing having been held, and the Court having considered all papers filed and proceedings held herein and otherwise being fully informed in the premises and good cause appearing therefore,

IT IS HEREBY ORDERED, ADJUDGED AND DECREED THAT:

1. This Court has personal jurisdiction over Plaintiffs, Citi and JPMorgan (the "Parties") and all Settlement Class Members and subject matter jurisdiction over the Action to approve the Settlement and all exhibits attached thereto;

2. Notice of the Fee and Expense Application was provided to potential Settlement Class Members in a reasonable manner, and such notice complies with Rule 23(h)(1) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure and due process requirements;

3. Plaintiffs' Counsel is hereby awarded attorneys' fees in the amount of 19 % of the total Settlement Fund ($ 34,675,000.00), plus interest for the same time period and at the same rate as earned by the Settlement Fund, which shall be paid out of the Settlement Fund; PKC

4. Class Counsel is hereby authorized to allocate the attorneys' fees among Plaintiffs' Counsel in a manner in which, in Class Counsel's judgment, reflects the contributions of such counsel to the prosecution and settlement of the Action;

5. In making this award of attorneys' fees, the Court has considered and found that:

a. Plaintiffs' Counsel have prosecuted the Action and achieved the Settlement with skill, perseverance, and diligent advocacy;

b. The Action involves numerous complex factual and legal issues and was actively litigated and, in the absence of a settlement, would have involved lengthy proceedings with uncertain resolution of the numerous complex factual and legal issues;

c. Had Plaintiffs' Counsel not achieved the Settlement, a risk would remain that Plaintiffs and the Settlement Class may have recovered less or nothing from Citi and

JPMorgan;

d. Public policy considerations support the requested fee, as only a small number of firms have the requisite expertise and resources to successfully prosecute cases such as the Action;

e. Notice was disseminated stating that Class Counsel would be moving for attorneys' fees in the amount of 19% of the Settlement Fund; and

f. The amount of attorneys' fees awarded is fair, reasonable, appropriate and consistent with the awards in similar cases, and represents a reasonable percentage of the Settlement Fund, in view of the applicable legal principles and the particular facts and circumstances of the Action.

6. In the event that the Settlement is terminated or the Effective Date does not occur in accordance with the terms of the Settlement, this Order shall be null and void, of no further force or effect, and without prejudice to any of the Parties, and may not be introduced as evidence or used in any actions or proceedings by any Person against the Parties;

7. Pursuant to Sections 8 and 31 of the Settlement Agreement, this fee award is independent of the Court's consideration of the fairness, reasonableness, and adequacy of the Settlement and is also independent of the Court's consideration of the Plan of Allocation; and

8. The fees awarded herein may be paid to Plaintiffs' Counsel from the Settlement Fund immediately upon entry of this Order, subject to the terms, conditions, and obligations of the Settlement which terms, conditions, and obligations are incorporated herein.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

This 17th day of May, 2019.

Honorable P. Kevin Castel
United States District Judge

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
SOUTHERN DISTRICT OF NEW YORK

STEPHEN SULLIVAN, WHITE OAK FUND LP, CALIFORNIA STATE TEACHERS' RETIREMENT SYSTEM, SONTERRA CAPITAL MASTER FUND, LTD., FRONTPOINT PARTNERS TRADING FUND, L.P., AND FRONTPOINT AUSTRALIAN OPPORTUNITIES TRUST on behalf of themselves and all others similarly situated, Plaintiffs, - against - BARCLAYS PLC, BARCLAYS BANK PLC, BARCLAYS CAPITAL INC., BNP PARIBAS S.A., CITIGROUP, INC., CITIBANK, N.A., COÖPERATIEVE CENTRALE RAIFFEISEN-BOERENLEENBANK B.A., CRÉDIT AGRICOLE S.A., CRÉDIT AGRICOLE CIB, DEUTSCHE BANK AG, DB GROUP SERVICES UK LIMITED, HSBC HOLDINGS PLC, HSBC BANK PLC, ICAP PLC, ICAP EUROPE LIMITED, J.P. MORGAN CHASE & CO., JPMORGAN CHASE BANK, N.A., THE ROYAL BANK OF SCOTLAND PLC, SOCIÉTÉ GÉNÉRALE SA, UBS AG AND JOHN DOE NOS. 1-50, Defendants.	Docket No. 13-cv-02811 (PKC)

PKC

~~[PROPOSED]~~ ORDER
GRANTING CLASS COUNSEL'S MOTION FOR REIMBURSEMENT OF EXPENSES

This matter came for a duly-noticed hearing on May 17, 2019 (the "Settlement Hearing"), upon Class Counsel's Motion for Award of Attorneys' Fees and Reimbursement of Expenses ("Fee and Expense Application") in the above-captioned action (the "Action"). The Court has considered the Fee and Expense Application and all supporting and other related materials, including the matters presented at the Settlement Hearing. Due and adequate notice of the Settlement Agreement Between Plaintiffs, Citi and JPMorgan entered into on November 21, 2018 (the "Settlement")[1]

[1] Unless otherwise defined herein, all capitalized terms used have the meanings set forth and defined in the Settlement.

having been given to the Settlement Class Members, the Settlement Hearing having been held, and the Court having considered all papers filed and proceedings held herein and otherwise being fully informed in the premises and good cause appearing therefore,

IT IS HEREBY ORDERED, ADJUDGED AND DECREED THAT:

1. This Court has personal jurisdiction over Plaintiffs, Citi and JPMorgan (the "Parties") and all Settlement Class Members and subject matter jurisdiction over the Action to approve the Settlement and all exhibits attached thereto;

2. Notice of the Fee and Expense Application was provided to potential Settlement Class Members in a reasonable manner, and such notice complies with Rule 23(h)(1) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure and due process requirements;

3. Plaintiffs' Counsel is hereby awarded expenses in the amount of $1,074,649.83 plus interest for the same time period and at the same rate as earned by the Settlement Fund, which shall be paid out of the Settlement Fund;

4. In the event that the Settlement is terminated or the Effective Date does not occur in accordance with the terms of the Settlement, this Order shall be null and void, of no further force or effect, and without prejudice to any of the Parties, and may not be introduced as evidence or used in any actions or proceedings by any Person against the Parties;

5. Pursuant to Sections 8 and 31 of the Settlement Agreement, this expense award is independent of the Court's consideration of the fairness, reasonableness, and adequacy of the Settlement and is also independent of the Court's consideration of the Plan of Allocation and award of attorneys' fees;

6. The expenses awarded herein may be paid to Plaintiffs' Counsel from the Settlement Fund immediately upon entry of this Order, subject to the terms, conditions, and obligations of the Settlement which terms, conditions, and obligations are incorporated herein;

7. Class Counsel is hereby authorized to allocate the expenses among Plaintiffs' Counsel in a manner in which, in its judgment, reflects the costs and expenses incurred in the prosecution and settlement of the Action.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

This 17th day of May, 2019.

Honorable P. Kevin Castel
United States District Judge

TAB 38B

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
SOUTHERN DISTRICT OF NEW YORK

STEPHEN SULLIVAN, WHITE OAK FUND LP, CALIFORNIA STATE TEACHERS' RETIREMENT SYSTEM, SONTERRA CAPITAL MASTER FUND, LTD., FRONTPOINT PARTNERS TRADING FUND, L.P., AND FRONTPOINT AUSTRALIAN OPPORTUNITIES TRUST on behalf of themselves and all others similarly situated, Plaintiffs, - against - BARCLAYS PLC, BARCLAYS BANK PLC, BARCLAYS CAPITAL INC., BNP PARIBAS S.A., CITIGROUP, INC., CITIBANK, N.A., COÖPERATIEVE CENTRALE RAIFFEISEN-BOERENLEENBANK B.A., CRÉDIT AGRICOLE S.A., CRÉDIT AGRICOLE CIB, DEUTSCHE BANK AG, DB GROUP SERVICES UK LIMITED, HSBC HOLDINGS PLC, HSBC BANK PLC, ICAP PLC, ICAP EUROPE LIMITED, J.P. MORGAN CHASE & CO., JPMORGAN CHASE BANK, N.A., THE ROYAL BANK OF SCOTLAND PLC, SOCIÉTÉ GÉNÉRALE SA, UBS AG AND JOHN DOE NOS. 1-50, Defendants.	Docket No. 13-cv-02811 (PKC) ECF Case

MEMORANDUM OF LAW IN SUPPORT OF CLASS COUNSEL'S MOTION FOR AWARD OF ATTORNEYS' FEES AND REIMBURSMENT OF EXPENSES

TABLE OF CONTENTS

TABLE OF AUTHORITIES ii
INTRODUCTION 1
WORK PERFORMED BY CLASS COUNSEL 5
A. The Retainer Agreement Negotiated by CalSTRS with Class Counsel 5
B. The Review by CalSTRS' General Counsel of Class Counsel's Work 5
C. Class Counsel's Review Under Time Pressure of the Documents 6
D. Development of the Class-Wide Models of Alleged Violative Conduct and Price Impact and Preparation of Class Certification Reports 10
E. The Depositions of Plaintiffs' Experts and Defendants' Expert Report 11
F. Mediation Briefs and Settlement Negotiations with Citi and JPMorgan 11
G. After an Impasse During the Mediation, the Parties Reach a Settlement Number Just as the Deposition of Defendants' Expert Is About to Start 13
H. Class Counsel's Additional Work Needed to Produce the Settlement 13
ARGUMENT 14
I. CLASS COUNSEL'S FEE REQUEST IS FAIR AND REASONABLE 14
A. The Fee Request Is Determined by the Fee Scale Negotiated by CalSTRS and Class Counsel's Work Has Been Reviewed and Approved by CalSTRS 14
B. Class Counsel's Request is Well Within the Range Used Under the Second Circuit's Preferred Percentage-Based Methodology 15
C. The Requested Fees are Supported by the Goldberger Factors 17
1. The Risk of the Litigation 17
2. The Magnitude and Complexity of the Case 19
3. Quality of Representation 21
4. The Fee is Reasonable in Relation to the Settlements 22
5. Public Policy Supports Approval 23
D. The Lodestar Cross-Check Supports the Requested Fee 24
II. CLASS COUNSEL'S EXPENSES ARE REASONABLE 25
CONCLUSION 25

TABLE OF AUTHORITIES

Cases

Alderman v. Pan Am World Airways,
169 F.3d 99 (2d Cir. 1999) 24

Arbor Hill Concerned Citizens Neighborhood Ass'n v. Cty. of Albany and Albany Cty. Bd. of Elections,
522 F.3d 182 (2d Cir. 2008) 1, 14

Beckman v. KeyBank N.A., 293 F.R.D. 467 (S.D.N.Y. 2013) 25

Boeing Co. v. Van Gemert,
444 U.S. 472 (1980) 14

Chatelain v. Prudential-Bache Sec., Inc.,
805 F. Supp. 209 (S.D.N.Y. 1992) 19

City of Omaha Police & Fire Ret. Sys. v. LHC Grp.,
No. 12 cv 1609, 2015 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 26053 (W.D. La. Feb. 11, 1998) 25

City of Providence v. Aeropostale, Inc.,
No. 11 Civ. 7132 (CM)(GWG), 2014 WL 1883494 (S.D.N.Y. May 9, 2014) 16

Flanagan, Lieberman, Hoffman & Swaim v. Ohio Pub. Employees Ret. Sys.,
814 F.3d 652 (2d Cir. 2016) 2

Gelboim v. Bank of Am. Corp.,
823 F.3d 759 (2d Cir. 2016) 17

Goldberger v. Integrated Res., Inc.,
209 F.3d 43 (2d Cir. 2000) 2, 14, 15, 17, 21, 24

Hall v. Children's Place Retail Stores Inc.,
669 F. Supp. 2d 399 (S.D.N.Y. 2009) 16

In re Amaranth Natural Gas Commodities Litig.,
No. 07 Civ. 6377 (SAS), 2012 WL 2149094 (S.D.N.Y. Jun. 11, 2012) 16

In re AOL Time Warner, Inc. Sec. and ERISA Litig.,
No. 12 Civ. 5575 (SWK), MDL 1500, 2006 WL 3057232 (S.D.N.Y. Oct. 26, 2006) 17

In re Arakis Energy Corp. Sec. Litig.,
No. 95 CV 3431(ARR), 2001 WL 1590512 (E.D.N.Y. Oct. 31, 2001) 25

In re Beacon Assoc. Litig.,
No. 09 Civ. 777(CM), 2013 WL 2450960 (S.D.N.Y. May 9, 2013) 16

In re Cendant Corp. Litig.,
264 F.3d 201 (3d Cir. 2001) 15

In re Colgate-Palmolive Co. ERISA Litig.,
36 F. Supp. 3d 344 (S.D.N.Y. 2014) 23, 24

In re Credit Default Swaps Antitrust Litig.,
No. 13-md-2476, 2016 WL 2731524 (S.D.N.Y. April 26, 2016) 1, 15, 23, 25

In re Holocaust Victim Assets Litig.,
No. CV 06-0983 (FB)(JO), 2007 WL 805768 (E.D.N.Y. Mar. 15, 2007) 20

In re Interpublic Sec. Litig.,
No. 02 Civ.6527(DLC), 2004 WL 2397190 (S.D.N.Y. Oct. 26, 2004) 17, 23

In re LIBOR-Based Fin. Instruments Antitrust Litig. ("LIBOR I"),
935 F. Supp. 2d 666 (S.D.N.Y. 2013) 17

In re LIBOR-Based Fin. Instruments Antitrust Litig. ("LIBOR VII"),
299 F. Supp. 3d 430 (S.D.N.Y. 2018) 4, 12

In re Merrill Lynch Tyco Research Sec. Litig.,
249 F.R.D. 124 (S.D.N.Y. 2008) 21

In re NASDAQ Market-Makers Antitrust Litig.,
187 F.R.D. 465 (S.D.N.Y. 1998) 16, 19, 22

In re Nortel Networks Corp. Sec. Litig.,
539 F.3d 129 (2d Cir. 2008) 14

In re Payment Card Interchange Fee & Merch. Disc. Antitrust Litig.,
991 F. Supp. 2d 437 (E.D.N.Y. 2014) 16, 17, 22, 23

In re Platinum and Palladium Commodities Litig., No. 10 CV 3617,
2014 WL 3500655 (S.D.N.Y. July 15, 2014) 19, 20

In re Remeron Direct Purchaser Antitrust Litig.,
No. Civ. 03-0085 (FSH), 2005 WL 3008808 (D.N.J. Nov. 9, 2005) 18

In re Sumitomo Copper Litig.,
74 F. Supp. 2d 393 (S.D.N.Y. 1999) 16

In re Vitamin C Antitrust Litig.,
No. 06 Md. 1738 (BMC)(JO), 2012 WL 5289514 (E.D.N.Y. Oct. 23, 2012) 20

Maley v. Del Glob. Techs. Corp.,
186 F. Supp. 2d 358 (S.D.N.Y. 2002) 19, 22, 25

McDaniel v. City of Schenectady,
595 F.3d 411 (2d Cir. 2010) 14

Meredith Corp. v. SESAC, LLC,
87 F. Supp. 3d 650 (S.D.N.Y. 2015) 20, 22

Pillsbury Co. v. Conboy,
459 U.S. 248 (1983) 23

Strougo ex rel. Brazilian Equity Fund, Inc. v. Bassini,
258 F. Supp. 2d 254 (S.D.N.Y. 2003) 16

Sullivan v. Barclays plc,
No. 13-cv-2811, 2017 WL 685570 (S.D.N.Y. Feb. 21, 2017) 18

Victor v. Argent Classic Convertible Arbitrage Fund L.P., 623 F.3d 82 (2d Cir. 2010) 14

Vizcaino v. Microsoft Corp.,
290 F.3d 1043 (9th Cir. 2002) 25

Wal-Mart Stores, Inc. v. Visa U.S.A., Inc.,
396 F.3d 96 (2d Cir. 2005) 14, 15

Other Authorities

Eisenberg, Miller & Germano, Attorneys' Fees in Class Actions: 2009-2013, 92 N.Y.U. L. Rev. 937 (2017) 16

Pursuant to this Court's December 4, 2018 Order,[1] Class Counsel respectfully move pursuant to Rule 23(h) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure for an award of 19% ($34.675 million) in attorneys' fees from the $182,500,000 common fund established by Plaintiffs'[2] settlement with Citi[3] and JPMorgan[4] (the "Settlement") and reimbursement of $1,074,649.83 in litigation expenses. Plaintiffs do not seek incentive awards at this time but reserve the right to seek incentive awards at the time of distribution or if there is another settlement in this Action.

INTRODUCTION

The requested fee is fair and reasonable for multiple reasons. First, the fee request is objectively fair and reasonable because it is the agreed-upon percentage CalSTRS negotiated in retaining Class Counsel prior to CalSTRS' participation in the Action. See also Arbor Hill Concerned Citizens Neighborhood Ass'n v. Cty. of Albany and Albany Cty. Bd. of Elections, 522 F.3d 182, 184 (2d Cir. 2008) (a "reasonable" fee reflects "what a reasonable, paying client would be willing to pay" for counsel's services); see Part I.A. infra. The CalSTRS fee agreement, as detailed below, features declining percentages of attorneys' fees as the size of the recovery from inception increases. Courts give great weight to negotiated fee agreements, recognizing a rebuttable "presumption of correctness" where the terms are negotiated by a "sophisticated benefits fund"—such as CalSTRS—"with fiduciary obligations to its members and . . . a sizeable stake in the litigation." In re Credit Default Swaps Antitrust Litig., No. 13-md-2476, 2016 WL 2731524, at *16 (S.D.N.Y. April 26, 2016)

---

[1] Order Preliminarily Approving Proposed Settlement with JPMorgan Chase & Co., JPMorgan Chase Bank, N.A., Citigroup Inc. and Citibank, N.A., Scheduling Hearing for Final Approval Thereof, and Approving the Proposed Form and Program of Notice to the Class (S.D.N.Y. Dec. 19, 2018), ECF No. 454.

[2] "Plaintiffs" are Stephen Sullivan, White Oak Fund LP, California State Teachers' Retirement System ("CalSTRS"), Sonterra Capital Master Fund, Ltd., FrontPoint Partners Trading Fund, L.P., and FrontPoint Australian Opportunities Trust ("FrontPoint"). Unless otherwise defined, capitalized terms herein have the same meaning as in the Settlement Agreement. ECF No. 452-1.

[3] "Citi" means Citigroup Inc. and Citibank, N.A.

[4] "JPMorgan" means JPMorgan Chase & Co. and JPMorgan Chase Bank, N.A. Together, Citi and JPMorgan are referred to as the "Settling Defendants."

("CDS Litig.") (quoting Flanagan, Lieberman, Hoffman & Swaim v. Ohio Pub. Employees Ret. Sys., 814 F.3d 652, 659 (2d Cir. 2016)).

Second, in addition to CalSTRS' ex ante negotiation of the fee, CalSTRS regularly monitored Class Counsel's time and efforts, participated in the prosecution of the claim, and observed first-hand the risks of continued prosecution, skillfulness of Class Counsel's efforts, and quality of their work in obtaining the Settlement. Based upon these factors, CalSTRS also now offers well-informed, post hoc support for the requested fee. Declaration of Brian J. Bartow ("Bartow Decl.") ¶¶ 10-29.

Third, the requested fee is fair and reasonable because, if granted, the resulting risk multiplier (approximately 1.54) will be far less than the 3.5 cap on the risk multiplier negotiated by CalSTRS. See id. ¶ 7. In this context, the negotiated fee is an "ideal proxy" for the fee that should be awarded. Goldberger v. Integrated Res., Inc., 209 F.3d 43 (2d Cir. 2000). The requested fee fully satisfies all six Goldberger factors used to evaluate attorneys' fees in this Circuit. See Part I.B-D infra.

Fourth, in performing substantial services under time pressures, Class Counsel faced greater risks in prosecuting the claims against the Settling Defendants than against the other Settling Defendants.[5] For example, Citigroup was never charged by any governmental body with wrongdoing concerning Euribor. JPMorgan had not been charged when the case was commenced. JPMorgan still disputes the subsequent government charges and continue to contest the fine assessed against it. Despite these greater risks, the percentage of the Settlement which Class Counsel have requested is significantly less than that which was awarded with respect to the recovery from the Other Settling Defendants. This is due directly to the constraints of the declining fee schedule which CalSTRS negotiated with Class Counsel.

[5] The "Other Settling Defendants" are Barclays plc, Barclays Bank plc and Barclays Capital Inc. ("Barclays"), Deutsche Bank AG and DB Group Services (UK) Ltd. ("Deutsche Bank"), HSBC Holdings plc, and HSBC Bank plc. ("HSBC").

Relatedly, the Settlement submitted for final approval increases the total amount of compensation recovered for the Class by almost 60% to $491,500,000. It is rare, to say the least, for a class action in which no competing applications for lead counsel are made, to produce settlements of almost half a billion dollars. But the complexity and high risks in prosecuting these complex claims deterred any competing class action from being filed.

To achieve this extraordinary result, Plaintiffs' Counsel spent close to 140,000 total hours litigating this case, including over 31,000 hours just since February 28, 2018 (the cutoff date in Class Counsel's last fee motion, see ECF No. 403) to take this case from the start of discovery to deep into the class certification process. The collective work of Plaintiffs' Counsel throughout this action was essential in developing the detailed factual record necessary to certify a class in a conspiracy case of this scale given the tight 16-month timeline ordered by this Court. See ECF Nos. 337, 377, 398. To achieve this Settlement, Plaintiffs' Counsel had to develop, under time pressure, evidence against each of these Defendants at a tremendous cost, including substantial attorney time and the assistance of four economists, two consulting firms, and an Euribor and Euro interbank market expert.

Class Counsel dispatched teams of attorneys, including those with specialized experience in derivatives data, to analyze hundreds of thousands of documents and transaction records received as cooperation from the Other Settling Defendants to effectively negotiate the scope of discovery during the meet and confer process with JPMorgan and Citi. This proved to be extremely challenging and required navigating both complex issues of foreign data privacy law, as the relevant documents and transaction records were located all over the world, as well as the logistical challenges associated with differences in how data was stored and formatted by each Defendant.

Next, Class Counsel had to synthesize all the information gathered, with the help of leading economists and former traders, into a cohesive set of evidence to prove Plaintiffs' case on a class-wide basis. This exercise proved essential in developing the economic models and analyses that Class Counsel believes show, among other things, that the Defendants' alleged conspiracy to manipulate Euribor had a common impact on the Class. The resulting data was invaluable to Plaintiffs' class certification experts in drafting their initial reports, responding to JPMorgan and Citi's expert's opinions, and preparing for depositions. Both class certification experts were ultimately deposed by Defendants, following over a week of intensive preparation by Class Counsel.

The challenges presented by the compressed timeline in this case only increased when—just one month before Plaintiffs were due to serve their class certification expert reports—Judge Buchwald issued the first class certification decision in a benchmark interest rate case. See In re LIBOR-Based Fin. Instruments Antitrust Litig., 299 F. Supp. 3d 430 (S.D.N.Y. 2018) ("LIBOR VII"). Plaintiffs' Counsel immediately began analyzing this several hundred page decision and worked to ensure that the approach taken in this case would satisfy LIBOR VII's class certification "roadmap."

Class Counsel engaged in on and off settlement discussions with JPMorgan and Citi. Such negotiations were hard-fought and continued for over nine months while the parties actively litigated liability and class certification issues. Indeed, settlement talks broke down in late 2017, only to be reinitiated later once discovery was underway, and LIBOR VII had been decided. Throughout the process, Class Counsel drafted multiple mediation briefs and attended several full-day mediation sessions, each of which was personally attended by Plaintiff CalSTRS's General Counsel. See Joint Declaration of Vincent Briganti and Christopher Lovell ("Joint Decl.") ¶¶ 53-60.

While Class Counsel exerted substantial effort to achieve the Settlement, Class Counsel's proposed 19% fee request is lower than the 22.24% fee request awarded in connection with the Barclays, Deutsche Bank and HSBC settlements. See ECF No. 425.

Additionally, Class Counsel seeks reimbursement for $1,074,649.73 in out-of-pocket expenses incurred since the inception of the case. These expenses, described in the accompanying declarations of Geoffrey M. Horn ("Horn Decl."), Christopher M. McGrath ("McGrath Decl."), and those of additional Plaintiffs' Counsel,[6] were incurred for the Class's benefit and predominantly consisted of expert work, mediation, travel and discovery-related costs.

WORK PERFORMED BY CLASS COUNSEL

A. The Retainer Agreement Negotiated by CalSTRS with Class Counsel

CalSTRS is the largest educator-only pension fund in the world and the second largest pension fund in the United States, with more than 950,000 members and beneficiaries, and an investment portfolio currently valued at $226.5 billion. Bartow Decl. ¶ 4. A sophisticated market participant with a keen interest in protecting its members and ensuring financial markets are free from manipulative and anticompetitive forces, CalSTRS' regular practice prior to entering a complex litigation is to negotiate a retainer agreement with a contingent fee structure. Id. ¶ 7. In this case, recognizing the attendant risks of the litigation, CalSTRS negotiated a graduated fee structure that provides for a fee of 23% for the common fund on the first $100 million recovered, 22% on the next $200 million recovered, 19% on the next $200 million recovered and a lower fee percentage on any recoveries above $500 million. Id.

B. The Review by CalSTRS' General Counsel of Class Counsel's Work

Since 2014, CalSTRS has been an active and engaged named Plaintiff, involved in nearly every aspect of the litigation. See Bartow Decl. ¶ 10. For example, Class Counsel collaborated with CalSTRS' staff to understand the impact of Euribor manipulation on CalSTRS' investments and draft allegations for the Third Amended Complaint. Joint Dec. ¶ 6. CalSTRS reviewed all significant pleadings and briefings. Id..; Bartow Decl. ¶ 11. It also regularly received updates concerning substantive legal issues, litigation and settlement strategy, and reviewed detailed time records. Bartow Decl. ¶ 24. CalSTRS' General Counsel has scrutinized every aspect of Class Counsel's work and independently concluded that it supports both the motion for final approval and the requested award of attorneys' fees. See id. ¶¶ 28-29.

[6] "Plaintiffs' Counsel" includes Class Counsel and Berman Tabacco; Glancy Prongay & Murray LLP ("Glancy"); Kirby McInerney LLP ("Kirby"); Cafferty Clobes Meriwether & Sprengel LLP ("Cafferty"); and Nussbaum Law Group ("NLG"). The Declarations of Todd A. Seaver (Berman Tabacco); David E. Kovel (Kirby); Jennifer W. Sprengel (Cafferty); and Linda Nussbaum (NLG) accompany this motion. Glancy previously provided the Declaration of Lee Albert in support of Class Counsel's previous Motion for Award of Attorneys' Fees and Reimbursement of Expenses in connection with the Barclays, Deutsche Bank and HSBC settlements. ECF No. 407.

C. Class Counsel's Review Under Time Pressure of the Documents

The Court's April 10, 2017 Scheduling Order placed discovery in this complex antitrust case on a compressed timeline. See ECF No. 337. Citi and JPMorgan were to produce their full regulatory productions by June 9, 2017, document requests to be served by August 1, 2017, and depositions to begin in December 2017. Id. The initial expert discovery deadline was June 28, 2018, later extended to August 10, 2018. Id.; see also ECF No. 398. All fact discovery was to be completed by December 4, 2018. ECF No. 337.

Plaintiffs' Discovery Efforts

To achieve maximum results in minimal time, Class Counsel deployed all of its resources, human and technological, to obtaining and analyzing all available documents and data from Citi, JPMorgan and Other Settling Defendants. Joint Decl. ¶ 18. Class Counsel reviewed over one million pages of documents, and tens of thousands of audio files and other data. Id. ¶ 32.

Lowey leveraged in-house technological expertise to locally deploy Relativity, a sophisticated document review platform. Developing an analytics-based workflow enabled Lowey to greatly reduce the hours required for review and to prioritize the most relevant files. Id. ¶ 21. Additionally, Lowey avoided unnecessary document hosting costs by deploying Relativity locally. Id. Lovell used sophisticated document review software to exploit potential key terms through smart searches, "relational searching" and other analytic tools. These tools identified relevant documents, followed themes and dates of conversations, and cross-referenced and matched them to significant individuals. Lovell identified over 1,400 potential instances of agreement or manipulation, over 400 instances of potential admissions of manipulation, and over 100,000 relevant documents. Id. ¶ 22.

Cooperation from the previously settling defendants was valuable in assisting Class Counsel to quickly analyze Citi's and JPMorgan's productions. The instances of manipulation found in the Barclays and Deutsche Bank productions enabled Class Counsel to make targeted searches of Citi's and JPMorgan's productions to assess each Settling Defendant's alleged involvement with particular cartel members and on particular dates. Id. ¶ 24.

Equally important, information from Barclays' and Deutsche Bank's productions helped Class Counsel negotiate the scope of Settling Defendants' productions. Id. ¶ 25. Class Counsel aggressively pursued issues in regular, extensive meet and confers until they were satisfactorily resolved. Id. In addition, after Citi served its initial production, which was to have consisted of all documents previously produced to regulators relating to Euribor manipulation, Class Counsel identified that Citi's production had been limited to documents dated within the Class Period. Id. ¶ 26. Class Counsel took the position that the Court's order imposed no such limitation. After several months and additional meet and confers, Citi ultimately agreed to and did produce the remaining regulatory materials in March 2018. Id. In October 2017, Class Counsel requested that Citi provide organizational charts relating to the relevant Euribor traders and submitters. Id. ¶ 27. After renewing its request in February 2018, Class Counsel received organizational charts from Citi in April 2018. Id. As part of a separate October 2017 meet and confer, Class Counsel requested from both Citi and JPMorgan documents reflecting risk analyses, exposure reports and profit and loss statements relevant to the Euribor manipulation. Id. ¶ 28. After additional negotiations, JPMorgan produced its profit and loss reports in March 2018. Citi provided exposure reports and profit and loss statements in April 2018. Id.

One-third of JPMorgan's documents and more than 90% of Citi's documents were produced in 2018, including during the months leading up to service of the expert reports. Id. ¶ 33.

Class Counsel pored over the Settling Defendants' production, reviewing almost 30,000 documents, consisting of 134,000 pages and more than one gigabyte of data consisting of hundreds of thousands of transactions. Id. Some of these documents and data were subject to foreign data privacy laws that required Class Counsel to develop creative solutions with Citi and JPMorgan to ensure necessary documents could be produced. Id. ¶ 29. Upon receiving data productions, Class Counsel had to synthesize data sets that were stored differently due to applicable data privacy laws and the use of differing computer programs and systems. Id. ¶¶ 29, 35.

Plaintiffs served their Rule 30(b)(6) Notices upon Settling Defendants, seeking targeted information on topics including policies and procedures concerning the trading of Euribor Products, Euribor submission or the fixing of Euribor; violations of such policies and procedures; whether position reports were made available to traders; compensation structure for relevant individuals; and financial reports. Id. ¶¶ 36-37. After extensive negotiations with Settling Defendants, Plaintiffs agreed to accept written answers to a number of the topics in their Rule 30(b)(6) Notices. Citi and JPMorgan produced 120 pages of answers. Id. ¶¶ 37-38. Class Counsel reviewed these responses and followed up with additional questions for Citi and JPMorgan where needed. Id. ¶ 38.

To complement the insights gained from its discovery work, Lowey sent lawyers to observe the trial in the United Kingdom involving current and former employees of Barclays and Deutsche Bank accused of manipulating Euribor. Lowey attorneys and investigators were able to quickly analyze evidence and testimony for new areas of investigation and report back to the teams stateside conducting the day-to-day discovery work. Id. ¶ 31.

With the help of experts, Class Counsel identified the relevant sources of transaction data to develop a class-wide model of price impact of Euribor manipulation. Id. ¶ 35. The transaction data provided critical information about the size of Citi's and JPMorgan's Euribor Products positions, and therefore their alleged motivations on any particular day to move Euribor in their favor. Id. The first challenge was to get a near-uniform set of data that could be used to compare positions within and across banks. Id. Class Counsel combed through the productions to find the appropriate data set for their experts, and when such data set was missing, renewed requests with the producing party or obtained alternate data sources. Id.

As discovery progressed, Class Counsel began preparing witness lists, correlating witnesses to significant documents. Id. ¶ 34. Teams of attorneys also identified documents to support Class Counsel's experts' analyses, including Defendants' codes of conduct, and relevant industry-wide statistics and practices. Id.

Plaintiffs' Responsive Discovery Efforts

Class Counsel performed its prosecutorial work while also complying with its own discovery obligations. Class Counsel worked closely with CalSTRS and FrontPoint to identify documents responsive to Settling Defendants' requests. Id. ¶ 39.

Lowey worked with former FrontPoint personnel to identify and collect relevant documents, involving both a hard copy and electronic review of documents and data stored at an offsite physical location. Id. ¶¶ 40-41. Lowey reviewed boxes of documents held in storage for information responsive to Settling Defendants' document requests and interrogatories. Id. ¶ 41. Additionally, Class Counsel took forensic images of FrontPoint hard drives and uploaded over 457,000 documents of potentially relevant documents to Relativity. Id. ¶ 42. Attorneys then performed targeted searches of key dates, personnel and transactions to identify responsive documents. Id. Between January 31, 2018 and June 12, 2018, over 44,000 pages of FrontPoint documents were produced to Settling Defendants. Id. ¶ 43. Lowey also began preparing a witness to serve as the FrontPoint Rule 30(b)(6) corporate representative. Id.

Class Counsel and Berman Tabacco engaged in ongoing discussions with CalSTRS' in-house portfolio managers to collect responsive transactional data and respond to the questions raised by the data. Joint Decl. ¶ 44; Bartow Dec. ¶ 14. In addition, CalSTRS built a historical document repository to collect potentially responsive documents. Joint Decl. ¶ 44; Bartow Dec. ¶ 15. Class Counsel and Berman Tabacco reviewed numerous documents and produced approximately 5,000 pages. Joint Decl. ¶ 44.

In total, FrontPoint and CalSTRS produced 3,901 documents, totaling more than 49,000 pages. Id. ¶ 45. Class Counsel responded to Citi and JPMorgan's ongoing inquiries regarding Plaintiffs' document productions and specific interrogatory responses through early July 2018, via multiple meet-and-confer calls and written correspondence. Id.

D. Development of the Class-Wide Models of Alleged Violative Conduct and Price Impact and Preparation of Class Certification Reports

Even before all the necessary data and documents were available, Class Counsel engaged in comprehensive discussions with industry and economic experts to outline a strategy for class certification. Class Counsel decided to use two experts to develop reports relating to (1) Settling Defendants' alleged violations of customs and standards in the euro-denominated interbank loan market and the Euribor-based derivatives market, and (2) common impact and common proof of damages. Id. ¶ 46.

To assist the expert preparing the report on Settling Defendants' alleged violations of market customs and standards, Class Counsel provided relevant policy and procedure guides produced by Citi and JPMorgan, as well as related communications. Id. ¶ 47. These documents were used to support his ultimate opinion. Id. Class Counsel reviewed his report several times, with a particular eye toward identifying and addressing any potential Daubert concerns. Id.

Plaintiffs' second expert elected to employ a benchmark comparison approach to attempt to demonstrate how Plaintiffs could show common impact and common proof of damages. Id. ¶ 48. Class Counsel obtained nearly a decade's worth of historical Euribor submissions data and benchmark data that could be used to demonstrate the artificiality caused by Euribor manipulation.

Id. Plaintiffs' expert recommended applying a regression analysis of the relationship between Euribor and the benchmark during the alleged manipulated and unmanipulated periods to assess where artificiality could be objectively observed. Id. To ensure that this model was defensible, Lovell researched the use of regression analysis in expert reports and identified the commonly accepted characteristics of such analysis. Id. Lovell also researched the use of control periods in expert analysis to understand the standards applied to such data. Id. This research helped Class Counsel to ensure the expert report properly framed the inquiry and would ultimately be deemed reliable. Id.

E. The Depositions of Plaintiffs' Experts and Defendants' Expert Report

Citi and JPMorgan deposed Plaintiffs' expert witnesses during two separate all-day depositions. Class Counsel prepared and defended each witness at the depositions. Id. ¶ 50.

Following service of Plaintiffs' expert reports on April 23, 2018, Class Counsel conducted deposition preparation for Plaintiffs' experts prior to their respective June 1, 2018 and June 8, 2018 deposition dates. Class Counsel spent more than a week total with each expert examining them about the contents of his report and posing difficult hypotheticals and questions which Class Counsel believed the experts would likely face. Id. ¶ 51.

After their depositions, Plaintiffs' experts assisted Class Counsel both in formulating rebuttal expert reports and with preparations to depose Settling Defendants' expert. Id. ¶ 52.

F. Mediation Briefs and Settlement Negotiations with Citi and JPMorgan

Citi first approached Plaintiffs regarding a potential settlement in 2015. Joint Decl. ¶ 53. On June 4, 2015, Class Counsel met with Citi's counsel for preliminary settlement discussions, which continued over the next several months. Id. Plaintiffs described their analysis of the developing case law in benchmark litigation actions, and how such law supported their arguments. Citi repeatedly asserted that it was not liable for the alleged misconduct. Id. By October 2016, the parties' negotiations had stalled. Id.

On April 28, 2017, Plaintiffs, Citi, and JPMorgan informed the Court of their agreement to pursue private mediation. Id. ¶ 54. The parties selected nationally recognized mediator David Geronemus, Esq. Id. On November 21, 2017, Mr. Geronemus held an in-person mediation session between Plaintiffs, Citi, and JPMorgan. Brian J. Bartow, CalSTRS' General Counsel, also attended. Id. This first mediation session ended in an impasse. Id. ¶ 56.

Following the exchange of expert reports and the depositions of Plaintiffs' experts, but before Citi and JPMorgan's expert was deposed, the parties met again on July 11 and 12, 2018 for a second and third mediation session with Mr. Geronemus. Id. ¶ 57. Mr. Bartow again traveled to New York to attend. Id. ¶ 60. Class Counsel now had expert reports developed both by Plaintiffs and Settling Defendants, a well-developed discovery record from Citi and JPMorgan, and analysis of recent cases evaluating similar claims. Id. Plaintiffs' experts also attended the mediations in July 2018 to provide advice and rebut Citi and JPMorgan's expert analyses. Id.

In preparation for the July 11-12 mediation, Class Counsel prepared and served a comprehensive mediation statement that presented a data-driven analysis allegedly linking Citi and JPMorgan to the manipulation of Euribor. Id. ¶ 58. This mediation statement built on all of the work Class Counsel performed in discovery and in preparation of the expert reports. Id.

The mediation statement also previewed Plaintiffs' forthcoming motion to certify the Class and described in detail how the Class met requirements for certification under Rule 23. Id. ¶ 59. In particular, Class Counsel's analysis concluding that Plaintiffs satisfied the requirements for class certification was based on the then-recent decision in LIBOR VII. LIBOR VII confirmed, among other things, that finding proof of a conspiracy to manipulate LIBOR was a per se antitrust violation subject to common proof among class members, 299 F. Supp. 3d. at 590, and netting issues did not cause individual questions to predominate over common questions. Id. at 594-95. Class Counsel also explained why other aspects of LIBOR VII did not apply in this Action.

G. After an Impasse During the Mediation, the Parties Reach a Settlement Number Just as the Deposition of Defendants' Expert Is About to Start

However, despite the progress made during the third mediation session, by its conclusion on July 12, 2018, the parties were still at an impasse. Joint Decl. ¶ 62. Class Counsel informed Citi and JPMorgan that they intended to continue with the deposition of Citi and JPMorgan's expert witness on July 17, 2018 at 9:30 a.m. While Class Counsel prepared for the deposition and consulted with Plaintiffs' experts on strategy, the parties agreed to continue negotiations on their own. Id. ¶¶ 63-64. Plaintiffs, Citi, and JPMorgan resumed negotiating on Friday, July 13, 2018, continuing until 9:30 a.m. on Tuesday, July 17, 2018, when Plaintiffs, Citi, and JPMorgan reached an agreement in principle to settle the case, just minutes before the start of the deposition. Id. ¶¶ 64-65.

H. Class Counsel's Additional Work Needed to Produce the Settlement

Between late July 2018 and October 4, 2018, Plaintiffs and Settling Defendants further engaged in difficult negotiations over, among other items, the availability, scope and timing of cooperation, and access to witnesses. Id. ¶ 66. Plaintiffs and Settling Defendants worked collaboratively and creatively to resolve their disputes. Id.

On October 4, 2018, counsel for Plaintiffs, Citi, and JPMorgan signed a Term Sheet. Id. ¶ 67. In addition to paying $182,500,000 to Plaintiffs and the Class, Citi and JPMorgan agreed to provide cooperation that may assist with reinstituting the claims against Defendants previously dismissed from this Action on personal jurisdiction grounds. See ECF No. 452-1 (Settlement Agreement) at 16-21. On October 5, 2018, the Parties reported to the Court that a settlement had been reached. Joint Decl. ¶ 68. Following additional weeks of arm's-length negotiations, Class Plaintiffs and Settling Defendants executed the Settlement Agreement on November 21, 2018. Id. ¶ 69.

While Class Counsel's work since February 28, 2018 (the cutoff date for Plaintiffs' last fee motion, see ECF No. 403) was integral in achieving the Settlement, it built upon Class Counsel's previous work, described in the declarations filed in connection with prior settlements. See ECF

Nos. 403-04, 411. Class Counsel's earlier efforts laid the foundation for this Settlement.

ARGUMENT

I. CLASS COUNSEL'S FEE REQUEST IS FAIR AND REASONABLE

"[A] litigant or a lawyer who recovers a common fund for the benefit of persons other than himself or his client is entitled to a reasonable attorney's fee from the fund as a whole." Boeing Co. v. Van Gemert, 444 U.S. 472, 478 (1980); see also CDS Litig., 2016 WL 2731524, at *16 (quoting Victor v. Argent Classic Convertible Arbitrage Fund L.P., 623 F.3d 82, 86 (2d Cir. 2010)). Courts "may award attorneys' fees in common fund cases under either the 'lodestar' method or the 'percentage of the fund' method" although "the trend in this Circuit is toward the percentage method." McDaniel v. County of Schenectady, 595 F.3d 411, 417 (2d Cir. 2010) (citing Wal-Mart Stores, Inc. v. Visa U.S.A., Inc., 396 F.3d 96, 121 (2d Cir. 2005)). Class Counsel's attorneys' fee request is reasonable under either approach because it: (1) is consistent with the fee schedule CalSTRS negotiated at arm's-length when it first retained Class Counsel; (2) is within the range of "percentage method" fee awards made in this Circuit; and (3) satisfies all six Goldberger factors, including the lodestar "cross-check." See Goldberger v. Integrated Res., Inc., 209 F.3d 43 (2d Cir. 2000).

A. The Fee Request Is Determined by the Fee Scale Negotiated by CalSTRS and Class Counsel's Work Has Been Reviewed and Approved by CalSTRS

The touchstone of "reasonableness" when evaluating attorneys' fees is "what a reasonable, paying client would be willing to pay" for counsel's services. See Arbor Hill, 522 F.3d at 184 n.2; see also Goldberger, 209 F.3d at 52 ("market rates, where available, are the ideal proxy for [class counsel's] compensation."). Courts accordingly give great weight to negotiated fee agreements because they typically reflect actual market rates. In re Nortel Networks Corp. Sec. Litig., 539 F.3d 129, 133 (2d Cir. 2008) ("In many cases, the agreed-upon fee will offer the best indication of a market rate."). For example, there is "a well-recognized rebuttable 'presumption of correctness' given to the terms of an ex ante fee agreement between class counsel and lead plaintiffs" applied in antitrust cases where the fee was negotiated by a "sophisticated benefits fund with fiduciary obligations to its members and where that fund has a sizeable stake in the litigation." CDS Litig., 2016 WL 2731524, at *16 (quoting Flanagan, 814 F.3d at 659); see also In re Cendant Corp. Litig., 264 F.3d 201, 282 (3d Cir. 2001).

The attorneys' fees requested are calculated directly from the retainer agreement that CalSTRS negotiated with Class Counsel before joining the Action in September 2014. See Bartow Decl. ¶¶ 6-7; Joint Decl. ¶ 73. CalSTRS is a large and sophisticated benefits fund with a reputation for striving to protect its members' interests. CalSTRS is very experienced with class action litigation. Accordingly, CalSTRS' negotiation with Class Counsel of the declining percentage fee, constitutes "an ideal proxy for [Class Counsel] compensation." Goldberger, 209 F.3d at 52.

Second, CalSTRS' General Counsel has reviewed Class Counsel's time on a monthly basis, and actively observed as well as participated in the prosecution of the claims here. Bartow Decl. ¶ 24; Joint Decl. ¶ 75. Based upon Mr. Bartow's knowledge of the risks of continued prosecution and the skillfulness of Class Counsel's prosecution of the claims in light of those risks, Mr. Bartow has also submitted a declaration supporting the requested fee. Bartow Decl. ¶¶ 24-25. CalSTRS' ex ante judgment about the attorneys' fees in this case, as well as CalSTRS' post hoc support, after all the facts were known of the actual fee request, amply exceed the factors identified by the CDS court to create a presumption of reasonableness here.

Third, the CalSTRS retainer agreement further limits any fee to Class Counsel to a risk multiplier of 3.5. Class Counsel respectfully submits that this cap by CalSTRS is a strong indication of the appropriate risk multiplier. In fact, the risk multiplier if the fee request is awarded will be substantially less than 3.5 regardless of how it is calculated. See Part I.D. infra.

B. Class Counsel's Request is Well Within the Range Used Under the Second Circuit's Preferred Percentage-Based Methodology

The reasonableness of the requested fee is confirmed by cases applying the "percentage method" of fee calculation favored in this Circuit. See Wal-Mart Stores, 396 F.3d at 121 ("The trend in this Circuit is toward the percentage method"); see also In re Beacon Assoc. Litig., No. 09 Civ. 777(CM), 2013 WL 2450960, at *5 (S.D.N.Y. May 9, 2013) (explaining that "percentage of recovery" is "the preferred method of calculating the award for class counsel in common fund cases"). Courts prefer the "percentage method" because it is easy to administer and avoids the "dubious merits of the lodestar approach." Strougo ex rel. Brazilian Equity Fund, Inc. v. Bassini, 258 F. Supp. 2d 254, 261 (S.D.N.Y. 2003); see also In re NASDAQ Market-Makers Antitrust Litig., 187 F.R.D. 465, 485 (S.D.N.Y. 1998) ("NASDAQ III") (noting that the percentage method is easy to administer). It also "aligns the interests of the class and its counsel" while incentivizing "the efficient prosecution and early resolution of litigation." Hall v. Children's Place Retail Stores Inc., 669 F. Supp. 2d 399, 401 (S.D.N.Y. 2009) (citation omitted).

Pursuant to the graduated fee structure with CalSTRS, Class Counsel requests 19% of the $182,500,000 common fund. This percentage is well within the range of reasonable attorneys' fees approved in complex class actions in this Circuit, including other "IBOR" cases.[7] The fee here is a considerably lesser percentage than many approved fees in complex common fund class actions where "courts have sometimes awarded contingency fees exceeding 30% of the overall fund." In re Payment Card Interchange Fee & Merch. Disc. Antitrust Litig., 991 F. Supp. 2d 437, 447 n.11 (E.D.N.Y. 2014) ("Interchange Fee Litig.").[8] The percentage is also less than the percentage award in connection

[7] See, e.g., Order Granting Class Counsel's Motion for Award of Attorneys' Fees, Laydon v. Mizuho Bank, Ltd., et al., No. 12-cv-3419 (GBD) (S.D.N.Y Dec. 7, 2017), ECF No. 388 ("Laydon Fee Order") and Order Granting Class Counsel's Motion for Award of Attorneys' Fees, Sonterra Capital Master Fund, Ltd., et al, v. UBS AG et al., No. 15-cv-5844 (GBD) (S.D.N.Y Dec. 7, 2017), ECF No. 837 ("Sonterra Fee Order") (awarding 23.57% of the $148 million common fund in cases settling manipulation claims relating to Yen-LIBOR and Euroyen TIBOR pursuant to CalSTRS' retainer with Class Counsel); City of Providence v. Aeropostale, Inc., No. 11 Civ. 7132 (CM)(GWG), 2014 WL 1883494, at *10-12 (S.D.N.Y. May 9, 2014) (awarding 33% of a $15 million common fund in attorneys' fees in a securities fraud class action); In re Amaranth Natural Gas Commodities Litig., No. 07 Civ. 6377 (SAS), 2012 WL 2149094, at *2 (S.D.N.Y. Jun. 11, 2012) (awarding 30% of a $77.1 million common fund as attorneys' fees in a complex CEA class action); In re Sumitomo Copper Litig., 74 F. Supp. 2d 393 (S.D.N.Y. 1999) (awarding 27.5% of the $116.6 million common fund as attorneys' fees in complex class action).

[8] A recent study collecting empirical evidence of attorneys' fees in class action settlements likewise supports the requested fee. See Eisenberg, Miller & Germano, Attorneys' Fees in Class Actions: 2009-2013, 92 N.Y.U. L. Rev. 937, 952 (2017) (finding that in 19 antitrust settlements between 2009 and 2013 with a mean recovery of $501.09 million and a median recovery of $37.3 million, the mean and median fee percentages were 27% and 30%).

with the Barclays, Deutsche Bank and HSBC settlements. See ECF No. 425; see also In re Interpublic Sec. Litig., No. 02 Civ.6527(DLC), 2004 WL 2397190, at *12 (S.D.N.Y. Oct. 26, 2004) ("Graduated fees scales recognize both the benefit to the class and the investment of effort by counsel").

C. The Requested Fees are Supported by the Goldberger Factors

The requested fees are supported by the application of the six-factor reasonableness test set forth in Goldberger.[9] The first factor, the time and labor expended by Class Counsel, is detailed above and in the supporting declarations; factors 2 through 6 are addressed below.

1. The Risk of the Litigation

The risk of the litigation is the preeminent Goldberger factor. See Interchange Fee Litig., 991 F. Supp. 2d at 440 ("The most important Goldberger factor is often the case's risk"); see also In re AOL Time Warner, Inc. Sec. and ERISA Litig., No. 12 Civ. 5575 (SWK), MDL 1500, 2006 WL 3057232, at *15 (S.D.N.Y. Oct. 26, 2006) (the judiciary's focus is on "fashioning a fee" that encourages lawyers to "undertake future risks for the public good"); Goldberger, 209 F.3d at 54 ("We have historically labeled the risk of success as 'perhaps the foremost' factor to be considered in determining whether to award an enhancement.") (citation omitted). The claims against Citi and JPMorgan were particularly high risk in comparison to claims previously settled.

Risk of Prosecuting the Case as Class Counsel: When this Action was initiated, it was unclear whether a private right of action was available under antitrust laws. The risks of dismissal of private antitrust claims were realized in multiple cases shortly after filing this case. See, e.g., In re LIBOR-Based Fin. Instruments Antitrust Litig., 935 F. Supp. 2d 666, 688 (S.D.N.Y. 2013) ("LIBOR I").

Plaintiffs' antitrust claims survived here because the Second Circuit's decision in Gelboim v. Bank of Am. Corp., 823 F.3d 759, 771-75 (2d Cir. 2016), vacated the prior consensus that private [9] Courts evaluating whether a fee is "reasonable" must consider: "(1) the time and labor expended by counsel; (2) the magnitude and complexities of the litigation; (3) the risk of the litigation. . .; (4) the quality of representation; (5) the requested fee in relation to the settlement; and (6) public policy considerations." Goldberger, 209 F.3d at 50.

plaintiffs did not have antitrust claims for benchmark rate manipulation. See Sullivan v. Barclays plc, No. 13-cv-2811, 2017 WL 685570, at *13 (S.D.N.Y. Feb. 21, 2017). When Gelboim was decided, Class Counsel had already been prosecuting these claims in high risk conditions for thirty-nine months. Gelboim did not, however, mitigate other risks such as personal jurisdiction and the inherent difficulty of litigating against some of the world's largest financial institutions with the financial resources and ability to prolong this case for years.

Due to these high risks and despite the presence of an ACPERA applicant, no companion or tag along class actions were filed. Accordingly, Class Counsel assumed all of the foregoing risks alone, bearing the costs and potential loss on a contingent basis. See In re Remeron Direct Purchaser Antitrust Litig., No. Civ. 03-0085 (FSH), 2005 WL 3008808, at *14 (D.N.J. Nov. 9, 2005) (identifying "the uncertain nature of the fee, the wholly contingent outlay of large out-of-pocket sums by plaintiffs, and the fact that the risk of failure and nonpayment in an antitrust case are extremely high" as risks in an antitrust class action.).

Risk of Establishing Liability: As set forth above, there were serious risks that this case would be dismissed at the pleading stage. Even after prevailing on Citi and JPMorgan's motion to dismiss, challenges remained and in some ways were amplified. These antitrust claims involving foreign conduct are inherently complex, particularly where, as here, there are no regulatory settlements to support liability. Class Counsel invested substantial time and resources to identify ways to link Citi and JPMorgan to the conspiracy. Class Counsel also had to parse technical financial language and identify patterns and campaigns used to manipulate Euribor, involving multiple banks over extended time periods.

These risks were magnified with the dismissal of the other Defendants, who might otherwise have produced helpful documents. This information deficit was partly mitigated by the cooperation provided by Barclays, Deutsche Bank and HSBC, but nevertheless the case was made more difficult by not being able to simultaneously prosecute Citi and JPMorgan's co-conspirators.

Risk of Establishing Damages: Citi and JPMorgan would have argued that the total damages for which they were liable was but a small fraction of the settlement payment they ultimately agreed to make. In addition, there were risks associated with establishing a class-wide damages model. See In re Platinum and Palladium Commodities Litig., No. 10 CV 3617, 2014 WL 3500655, at *12 (S.D.N.Y. July 15, 2014) ("[I]n any market manipulation or antitrust case, [p]laintiffs face significant challenges in establishing liability and damages."). For example, Plaintiffs' case depended on showing what Euribor would have been absent manipulation. Euribor is intended to reflect the cost of borrowing Euros in the interbank money market. Class Counsel, with the assistance of its experts, had to show that the Euribor was not reflective of such borrowing costs. Plaintiffs' experts opined on whether there were violations of the customs and standards in the relevant markets, and on how common impact and common proof of damages could be used to calculate class-wide damages. See Joint Decl. ¶ 46. These opinions were thoroughly scrutinized when Citi and JPMorgan deposed Plaintiffs' experts, and would have been further tested in Settling Defendants' rebuttal expert report had the Settlement not been reached. See Joint Decl. ¶¶ 51-52. While Class Counsel is confident in its position that class-wide damages could be determined, there is always uncertainty where a battle of experts is involved. Chatelain v. Prudential-Bache Sec., Inc., 805 F. Supp. 209, 214 (S.D.N.Y. 1992) (noting the complexities of calculating damages in class actions); Maley v. Del Glob. Techs. Corp., 186 F. Supp. 2d 358, 372 (S.D.N.Y. 2002) (citing Chatelain and stating the complex issue of calculating damages incurred by the Class requires a battle of the experts).

2. The Magnitude and Complexity of the Case

"Class actions have a well deserved reputation as being most complex," NASDAQ III, 187 F.R.D. at 477, with antitrust and commodities cases standing out as some of the most "'complex, protracted, and bitterly fought.'" Meredith Corp. v. SESAC LLC, 87 F. Supp. 3d 650, 670 (S.D.N.Y. 2015) (citations omitted); see also In re Platinum and Palladium Commodities Litig., 2014 WL 3500655 at *12 (noting that commodities cases are "complex and expensive" to litigate); In re Vitamin C Antitrust Litig., No. 06 Md. 1738 (BMC)(JO), 2012 WL 5289514, at *4 (E.D.N.Y. Oct. 23, 2012). This case is no exception.

Complexity: This case involves a conspiracy among multiple banks and interdealer brokers to fix Euribor and Euribor-based derivatives prices over a Class Period of five years and nine months through multiple means, including, inter alia: (1) making false Euribor submissions; (2) "pushing cash" with manipulative transactions; (3) "spoofing" the market with false bids and offers; and (4) sharing proprietary information. ECF No. 174 (Fourth Amended Class Action Complaint) ¶ 18. The amount of work required to understand the inner workings of a cartel with this level of sophistication was "extraordinary" in both its "complexity and scope" and required Class Counsel to master the properties of complex financial instruments and markets. See In re Holocaust Victim Assets Litig., No. CV 06-0983 (FB)(JO), 2007 WL 805768, at *46 (E.D.N.Y. Mar. 15, 2007).

Magnitude: This is a massive case. Over the course of six years of litigation involving up to 20 Defendants, the parties have produced hundreds of docket entries associated with four amended complaints and motions to transfer venue, reconsider orders, and issue a request to obtain documents via The Hague Convention. The motion to dismiss briefing involved a total of 6 memoranda of law, 19 declarations, numerous exhibits, and 14 letter briefs discussing decisions issued after the motion had been fully briefed. There have been hundreds of thousands of documents, spreadsheets and audio files produced, and thousands of hours of work spent on understanding all of this information. Even more documents may still be produced as a result of the settlement cooperation to be provided by Citi and JPMorgan. The global nature, duration, size of the case, complexity of the financial instruments, and sophistication and the depth of the conspiracy weigh heavily in favor of approving the requested fee.

3. Quality of Representation

"[T]he quality of representation is best measured by results," Goldberger, 209 F.3d at 55, which are evaluated in light of "the recovery obtained and the backgrounds of the lawyers involved in the lawsuit." In re Merrill Lynch Tyco Research Sec. Litig., 249 F.R.D. 124, 141 (S.D.N.Y. 2008).

Results Obtained: The settlements reached so far provide significant value to the Class. $309,000,000 has already been obtained from Barclays, Deutsche Bank and HSBC, in and of itself an extraordinary result by Class Counsel. The Settlement with Citi and JPMorgan will add $182,500,000, bringing the total funds available to the Class to $491,500,000. These funds will provide Class members with an immediate recovery.

The size of the Settlement Fund may continue to grow if Plaintiffs' claims against previously dismissed Defendants are reinstated. In negotiating the Settlement, Class Counsel secured significant cooperation from the Settling Defendants. See supra at 13. This cooperation was a significant source of contention during the preparation of the Settlement Agreement. Rather than relenting on the need for cooperation in light of the fact that the final two live Defendants were settling, Class Counsel acted in the best interests of the Class and protected Plaintiffs' potential ability to pursue claims against the dismissed Defendants.

Background of Lawyers Involved: Class Counsel has extensive experience prosecuting some of the largest commodities manipulation cases, including what were at the time, the first, second, third, and fourth largest class action recoveries in the history of the CEA.[10] This includes specific expertise in benchmark manipulation as demonstrated by Class Counsel's current tenure as lead counsel in cases alleging anticompetitive and manipulative conduct for several "IBOR" rates and the London Silver Fix.[11] Additional examples of Class Counsel's more than 50 years of experience with complex litigation are detailed in Class Counsel's resumes.

[10] See ECF Nos. 452-6 (attaching Lowey's firm resume), 452-7 (attaching Lovell's firm resume).

Another consideration for assessing the quality of the representation is "[t]he quality of the opposing counsel" in the case. See Maley, 186 F. Supp. 2d. at 373. The valuable settlement that Class Counsel secured cannot be understated given the caliber of defense counsel in this action. See Meredith Corp., 87 F. Supp. 3d at 670 (noting that counsel's achievement in "obtaining valuable recompense . . . for its clients is particularly noteworthy given the caliber and vigor of its adversaries"); NASDAQ III, 187 F.R.D. at 488 (approving attorneys' fee award where defendants were represented by "several dozen of the nation's biggest and most highly regarded defense law firms."). The fact that Class Counsel successfully prosecuted this action for more than six years against such formidable opponents further reflects the quality of representation provided.

4. The Fee is Reasonable in Relation to the Settlements

Courts evaluate the requested fee in relation to the settlement by looking to "comparable cases" for "guideposts." See Interchange Fee Litig., 991 F. Supp. 2d at 443-44 (evaluating a fee request against other "large class cases with court-set fees"). The fee requested here is reasonable in relation to the settlement for at least two reasons:

First, Class Counsel's request for 19% of the common fund comes directly from the graduated fee scale that CalSTRS negotiated before joining the action. See Bartow Decl. ¶ 6-7. This satisfies a key legal "guidepost" that Judge Gleeson identified in large class action cases—that "the percentage of the fund awarded should scale back as the size of the fund increases." See Interchange Fee Litig., 991 F. Supp. 2d at 444.

[11] See, e.g., Sonterra Capital Master Fund Ltd. et al. v. Credit Suisse Group AG et al., No. 15-cv-871 (SHS) (S.D.N.Y.) (Swiss franc LIBOR); Laydon v. Mizuho Bank, Ltd., et al., No. 12-cv-3419 (GBD); and In re: London Silver Fixing Ltd., Antitrust Litig., No. 14-md-2573 (VEC) (S.D.N.Y.).

Second, the graduated fee CalSTRS negotiated is less than the fee approved in connection with the prior $309 million settlement in this Action (22.24%) and the fees awarded in the recent Laydon and Sonterra settlements. See Laydon Fee Order ¶ 3; Sonterra Fee Order ¶ 3. Other courts in this District have approved fee awards in large antitrust class cases based on a graduated fee scale. See CDS Litig., 2016 WL 2731524, at *17 n.24; Interchange Fee Litig., 991 F. Supp. 2d at 445; In re Interpublic Sec. Litig., 2004 WL 2397190, at *12 ("Graduated fees scales recognize both the benefit to the class and the investment of effort by counsel"). The requested fee is reasonable in relation to the settlement achieved here and compares favorably to other concrete "guideposts" such as the fees awarded in analogous cases.

5. Public Policy Supports Approval

Had Class Counsel not taken on the risk of this lawsuit in February 2013, the class of investors in Euribor Products would have been left without recompense for their losses. Despite the subsequent government investigations and certain Defendants' admissions of wrongdoing, many investors who were harmed by Defendants' conspiracy would not have received any money at all. See, e.g., In re Colgate-Palmolive Co. ERISA Litig., 36 F. Supp. 3d 344, 352 (S.D.N.Y. 2014) ("providing lawyers with sufficient incentive to bring common fund cases . . . serve[s] the public interest") (citations omitted). None of the regulator's fines or settlements were allocated to private investors.

Public policy encourages enforcement of the antitrust laws through private civil suits to deter infringing conduct in the future. See Pillsbury Co. v. Conboy, 459 U.S. 248, 262-63 (1983) ("This Court has emphasized the importance of the private action as a means of furthering the policy goals of certain federal regulatory statutes, including the federal antitrust laws."). Awarding a reasonable percentage of the common fund further ensures that Class Counsel retains the ability and incentive to pursue antitrust violations at their own expense even when recovery is uncertain. See Goldberger, 209 F.3d at 51 ("There is . . . commendable sentiment in favor of providing lawyers with sufficient incentive to bring common fund cases that serve the public interest.").

D. The Lodestar Cross-Check Supports the Requested Fee

Class Counsel's fee request is also reasonable under the lodestar method, which has "fallen out of favor . . . because it encourages bill-padding and discourages early settlements." In re Colgate-Palmolive, 36 F. Supp. 3d at 353. Courts in this Circuit have determined that the lodestar "works best as a sanity check to ensure that an otherwise reasonable percentage fee would not lead to a windfall," for example, if the multiplier is "grossly disproportionate to the percentage fee award . . . ." Id. There is no windfall here.

In negotiating a graduated fee scale, CalSTRS capped any fee request by Class Counsel to 3.5 times the aggregate lodestar. As with the percentage fee method, this negotiated rate should be given great weight in evaluating attorneys' fees. Alderman v. Pan Am World Airways, 169 F.3d 99, 103 (2d Cir. 1999) ("[A] court should seek to enforce the parties' intentions in a contingent fee agreement, as with any contract."). Plaintiffs' Counsel have spent 139,185.78 hours working on Sullivan as of February 28, 2019, for an aggregate lodestar of $66,910,561.30. See Joint Decl. ¶ 86. The $34.675 million fee requested, when combined with the previously-awarded fee of $68,710,000 million, compensates Plaintiffs' Counsel for approximately 155% of their aggregate lodestar and constitutes a 1.55 multiplier. This is far less than the negotiated risk multiplier cap in the CalSTRS's fee agreement, demonstrating that the full fee will not result in an "unwarranted windfall." Goldberger v. Integrated Res., Inc., 209 F.3d at 49.[12]

[12] This method of calculation of the risk multiplier is appropriate under the CalSTRS fee agreement. Under such agreement, the total recovery from inception to date is used to determine the declining percentage fee that may be requested, i.e., the agreement's frame of reference is to look at the case as an integrated whole. Similarly, in calculating the risk multiplier, the facts since inception should be examined as an integrated whole. That is, the reasonableness of Class Counsel's declining percentage fee should be judged by adding that fee to the earlier fee and then comparing the sum total of the total lodestar since inception.

Second, the 3.5 times multiplier CalSTRS negotiated is reasonable because it is consistent with the range of multipliers approved in this and other circuits.[13] The Court should approve the requested fee as the parties intended a lodestar multiplier of no more than 3.5 and this intended multiplier is lower than that in similarly complex class action cases.

II. CLASS COUNSEL'S EXPENSES ARE REASONABLE

"An attorney who has created a common fund . . . is entitled to reimbursement of reasonable litigation expenses from that fund." City of Omaha Police & Fire Ret. Sys. v. LHC Grp., No. 12 cv 1609, 2015 WL 965696 at *11 (W.D. La. March 3, 2015); see also In re Arakis Energy Corp. Sec. Litig., No. 95 CV 3431(ARR), 2001 WL 1590512, at *17 n.12 (E.D.N.Y. Oct. 31, 2001) ("Courts in the Second Circuit normally grant expense requests in common fund cases as a matter of course."). Plaintiffs' Counsel incurred $1,074,649.73 in expenses from March 1, 2018 to the present. See Joint Decl. ¶ 88. This amount is well below the $1.3 million Class Counsel advised in the Court-approved notice sent to Settlement Class Members. See ECF No. 452-3 at 7.

These costs and expenses were "incidental and necessary to the representation of the [C]lass," and should be reimbursed. See Beckman, 293 F.R.D. at 482. Since February 28, 2018, $841,150.23 (or 78%) of Plaintiffs' Counsel's reimbursable expenses went towards professional, consulting and expert fees, including class certification expert work and settlement mediation.

CONCLUSION

For the foregoing reasons, Class Counsel respectfully requests that the court approve their application for attorneys' fees and costs and incentive awards in the amounts set forth above.

But even if the risk multiplier were calculated solely based on Class Counsel's incremental time since February 28, 2018 and compared to the incremental lodestar compared to the fee request in this application, the risk multiplier would be 2.39. This, also, is far less than the 3.5 cap contained in the CalSTRS fee agreement.

[13] See, e.g., CDS Litig., 2016 WL 2731524, at *17 (approving a lodestar multiplier of "just over 6" in a complex antitrust class action); Beckman v. KeyBank N.A., 293 F.R.D. 467, 481 (S.D.N.Y. 2013) (approving a multiplier of 6.3 in class action, explaining that "[c]ourts regularly award lodestar multipliers of up to eight times the lodestar, and in some cases, even higher multipliers."); Maley, 186 F. Supp. 2d at 371 (holding that a 4.65 lodestar multiplier is modest, fair, and reasonable); see also Vizcaino v. Microsoft Corp., 290 F.3d 1043, 1052 (9th Cir. 2002) (listing nationwide class action settlements where the lodestar multiplier ranged up to 8.5).

Dated: March 22, 2019
White Plains, New York

LOWEY DANNENBERG, P.C.

By: /s/ Vincent Briganti
Vincent Briganti
Geoffrey M. Horn
Peter D. St. Phillip
44 South Broadway, Ste. 1100
White Plains, New York 10601
Tel.: 914-997-0500
Fax: 914- 997-0035
vbriganti@lowey.com
ghorn@lowey.com
pstphillip@lowey.com

LOVELL STEWART HALEBIAN JACOBSON LLP

By: /s/ Christopher Lovell
Christopher Lovell
Gary S. Jacobson
Benjamin M. Jaccarino
500 5th Avenue, Suite 2440
New York, NY 10036
Tel.: 212-608-1900
Fax: 212-719-4677
clovell@lshllp.com
gsjacobson@lshllp.com
bjaccarino@lshllp.com

Class Counsel

Joseph J. Tabacco, Jr.
Todd A. Seaver
BERMAN TABACCO
44 Montgomery Street, Ste. 650
San Francisco, CA 94104
Tel.: 415-433-3200
Fax: 415-433-6282

Patrick T. Egan
BERMAN TABACCO
One Liberty Square
Boston, MA 02109
Tele.: 617-542-8300
Fax: 617-542-1194

Brian P. Murray
Lee Albert (pro hac vice to be filed)
GLANCY PRONGAY & MURRAY LLP
122 East 42nd Street, Suite 2920
New York, NY 10168
Tel.: 212-682-5340
Fax: 212-884-0988

David E. Kovel
KIRBY McINERNEY LLP
825 Third Avenue
New York, NY 10022
Tel.: 212-371-6600
Fax: 212-751-2540

Additional Counsel for Plaintiffs

TAB 39A

FILED
APR - 8 2021
CLERK, U.S. DISTRICT COURT
NORFOLK, VA

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
FOR THE EASTERN DISTRICT OF VIRGINIA
Norfolk Division

IN RE PEANUT FARMERS ANTITRUST LITIGATION	Case No. 2:19-cv-00463 Honorable Raymond A. Jackson Honorable Lawrence R. Leonard

ORDER APPROVING CLASS COUNSEL'S MOTION FOR AWARD FROM THE OLAM AND BIRDSONG SETTLEMENT FUND FOR CURRENT AND ONGOING LITIGATION EXPENSES

THIS CAUSE came before the Court on Class Counsel's Motion for Award from the Olam and Birdsong Settlement Fund for Current and Ongoing Litigation Expenses ("Motion"). The Court, having reviewed all the pleadings relating to the Motion, the exhibits thereto, including Class Counsel's Amended Declaration in Support, and having held a hearing on the matter, hereby:

ORDERS AND ADJUDGES:

1. The Court has approved Plaintiffs' settlement with Defendant Olam Peanut Shelling Company, Inc. in the amount of $7,750,000 and Plaintiffs' settlement with Defendant Birdsong Corporation in the amount of $50,000,000. The total amount of the settlements is $57,750,000, which has been placed in an interest-bearing escrow account ("Settlement Fund").

2. Class Counsel's Motion, as amended by Class Counsel's Amended Declaration in Support, seeks an award of $1,867,926.84 from the Settlement Fund for litigation expenses incurred in this case.

3. Substantial authority supports the use of funds obtained in partial settlements for reimbursement or payment to Class Counsel of expenses incurred in this case. See In re The Mills Corp. Securities Litig., 265 F.R.D. 246, 265 (E.D. Va. 2009) (permitting over $3 million of a partial settlement fund to be used for expenses paid and outstanding costs); South Carolina

National Bank v. Stone, et al., 749 F. Supp. 1419, 1434-35 (D.S.C. 1990) (permitting a $200,000 litigation expense fund for past and future costs and expenses from $3,000,000 ice-breaker settlement); see also, e.g., Newby v. Enron Corp., 394 F.3d 296, 302-303 (5th Cir. 2004) (affirming an order providing for a $15 million litigation expense fund from the proceeds of a partial settlement); In re Packaged Ice Antitrust Litig., No. 08-MD-01952, 2011 WL 717519, at *13 (E.D. Mich. Feb. 22, 2011) (permitting $750,000 of a partial settlement to be used for litigation expenses); In re Microcrystalline Cellulose Antitrust Litig., No. 01-111, Final Judgment Order at ¶ 7 (E.D. Pa. June 15, 2005) (O'Neill, J.) (permitting class plaintiffs to use up to $2.5 million of a settlement fund to pay litigation expenses).

4. Class Counsel have paid $793,349.32 for costs and expenses relating to discovery, experts, and trial preparation, and have incurred additional as-yet-unpaid costs of $1,074,577.52 relating to those same categories.

5. The expenses paid and incurred by Class Counsel were reasonable and necessary to the successful prosecution of this Action, which has thus far resulted in the creation of the Settlement Fund.

6. Class Counsel's request for an award of $1,867,926.84 for litigation expenses paid and incurred in this case is hereby granted.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

Dated: April 7, 2021

Honorable Raymond A. Jackson
U.S. District Judge

FILED
AUG 10 2021
CLERK, U.S. DISTRICT COURT
NORFOLK, VA

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
FOR THE EASTERN DISTRICT OF VIRGINIA
Norfolk Division

IN RE PEANUT FARMERS ANTITRUST LITIGATION

Case No. 2:19-cv-00463

Honorable Raymond A. Jackson
Honorable Lawrence R. Leonard

ORDER

AND NOW, upon consideration of Plaintiffs' Motion for an Award of Attorneys' Fees and Expenses and for Class Representative Service Awards (the "Motion"), the Memorandum in support thereof, and the declarations and exhibits attached thereto, and following a hearing on the Motion, it is hereby ORDERED that the Motion is GRANTED:

1. Under Fed. R. Civ. P. 23(h), "[i]n a certified class action, the court may award reasonable attorney's fees and nontaxable costs that are authorized by law or by the parties' agreement." As the Supreme Court recognized, "a lawyer who recovers a common fund for the benefit of persons other than himself or his client is entitled to a reasonable attorney's fee from the fund as a whole." Boeing Co. v. Van Gemert, 444 U.S. 472, 478 (1980). The Court has considered the relevant case law and authority and finds that awards of attorneys' fees and reimbursement of litigation costs and expenses to the Plaintiffs and their counsel are appropriate under Fed. R. Civ. P. 23(h) and Fed. R. Civ. P. 54(d)(2).

2. Two methods of calculating attorneys' fees in class actions are: (1) the percentage-of-the-fund method; and (2) the lodestar method. In re The Mills Corp. Sec. Litig., 265 F.R.D. 246, 260 (E.D. Va. 2009). The percentage-of-the-fund method involves an award based on a percentage of the Class's recovery, set by the Court based on several factors. Id. The lodestar method requires multiplying the number of hours worked by a reasonable hourly rate, the product of which the Court can then adjust by employing a "multiplier." Id.

3. The Supreme Court has suggested that percentage-of-the-fund is the appropriate method for awarding fees under the common fund doctrine. See Blum v. Stenson, 465 U.S. 886, 900 n.16 (1984) ("[U]nder the 'common fund doctrine,' . . . a reasonable fee is based on a percentage of the fund bestowed on the class . . . ."). Most federal courts of appeals have also endorsed the percentage-of-the-fund method as an appropriate method for determining an award of attorneys' fees in common fund cases. "While the Fourth Circuit has not definitively answered this debate, other districts within this Circuit, and the vast majority of courts in other jurisdictions consistently apply a percentage of the fund method for calculating attorneys' fees in common fund cases." Mills, 265 F.R.D. at 260; see, e.g., Manuel v. Wells Fargo Bank, Nat'l Ass'n, No. 3:14CV238 (DJN), 2016 WL 1070819, at *5 (E.D. Va. Mar. 15, 2016) ("District Courts within this Circuit have also favored the percentage method."); Krakauer v. Dish Network, L.L.C., No. 1:14-cv-333, 2018 WL 6305785, at *2 (M.D.N.C. Dec. 3, 2018) ("District courts in the Fourth Circuit overwhelmingly prefer the percentage method in common-fund cases . . . ."); Archbold v. Wells Fargo Bank, N.A., No. 3:13-CV-24599, 2015 WL 4276295, at *5 (S.D.W. Va. July 14, 2015) ("[T]here is a clear consensus among the federal and state courts, consistent with Supreme Court precedent, that the award of attorneys' fees in common fund cases should be based on a percentage of the recovery."); Strang v. JHM Mortg. Sec. Ltd. P'ship, 890 F. Supp. 499, 502 (E.D. Va. 1995) ("Although the Fourth Circuit has not yet ruled on this issue, the current trend among the courts of appeal favors the use of a percentage method to calculate an award of attorneys' fees in common fund cases."); Jones v. Dominion Res. Servs., 601 F. Supp. 2d 756, 758 (S.D.W. Va. 2009) ("The percentage method has overwhelmingly become the preferred method for calculating attorneys' fees in common fund cases."). These courts recognize that the percentage-of-fund method is "more efficient and less burdensome than the traditional lodestar method, and offers a more reasonable measure of compensation for common fund cases." Strang, 890 F. Supp. at 503. It also better aligns the interests of class counsel and class members because it ties the attorneys' fees award to the overall result achieved, rather than hours expended by the attorneys. Thomas v. FTS USA, LLC, No. 3:13-cv-825 (REP), 2017 WL 1148283, at *3 (E.D. Va. Jan. 9, 2017), report and recommendation adopted, 2017 WL 1147460 (E.D. Va. Mar. 27, 2017); see also Deem v. Ames True Temper, Inc., No. 6:10-CV-01339, 2013 WL 2285972, at *5 (S.D.W. Va. May 23, 2013) ("The percentage method 'is designed to allow courts to award fees from the fund in a manner that rewards counsel for success and penalizes it for failure.'" (quoting In re Prudential Ins. Co. Am. Sales Litig., 148 F.3d 283, 333 (3d Cir. 1998))). Class Counsel's application for the percentage-of-fund method is therefore consistent with the law in this and other circuits. Thus, the Court will award fees to Plaintiffs' counsel using the percentage-of-fund approach.

4. As explained below, the factors courts consider when assessing percentage-of-fund requests demonstrate the reasonableness of Class Counsel's requested fee, which is further confirmed by cross-checking the requested amount against the calculated lodestar. "In determining the reasonableness of attorneys' fees, courts look at the following factors: (1) the result obtained for the class; (2) the presence or absence of substantial objections by members of the class to the fees requested by counsel; (3) the skill and efficiency of the attorneys involved; (4) the complexity and duration of the litigation; (5) the risk of nonpayment; (6) the amount of time devoted to the case by the plaintiffs' counsel; and (7) awards in similar cases." In re Genworth Fin. Sec. Litig., 210 F. Supp. 3d 837, 843 (E.D. Va. 2016). Some district courts in this Circuit have applied a slightly different version of this standard, replacing the sixth factor with public policy considerations. See, e.g., In re Celebrex (Celecoxib) Antitrust Litig., No. 2:14-CV-00361, 2018 WL 2382091, at *4 (E.D. Va. Apr. 18, 2018); Mills, 265 F.R.D. at 261 (citing, inter alia, Goldberger v. Integrated Res., Inc., 209 F.3d 43, 50 (2d Cir. 2000)).

5. There is some disagreement as to whether to apply these seven factors, which were adopted from the Third Circuit, Gunter v. Ridgewood Energy Corp., 223 F.3d 190, 195 & n.1 (3d Cir. 2000), or the 12-factor test from the Fifth Circuit adopted in Barber v. Kimbrell's, Inc., 577 F.2d 216, 226 (4th Cir. 1978) (citing Johnson v. Georgia Highway Express, Inc., 488 F.2d 714 (5th Cir. 1974)).[1] See Galloway v. Williams, No. 3:19-CV-470, 2020 WL 7482191, at *5 (E.D. Va. Dec. 18, 2020) (Payne, J.); 5 Newberg on Class Actions § 15:82 (5th ed.) ("The Fourth Circuit utilized the Fifth Circuit's Johnson factors in a statutory fee-shifting case, so some district courts have utilized those factors in setting a percentage in common fund cases, while other district courts have used the Second Circuit's Goldberger factors and/or the Third Circuit's Gunter factors." (footnotes omitted)). However, many of the Johnson/Barber factors overlap with factors in the Third Circuit test or are "subsumed in the calculation of the hours reasonably expended and the reasonableness of the hourly rate." Galloway, 2020 WL 7482191, at *6, *10-11; see also Genworth, 210 F. Supp. 3d at 843 (using the seven-factor Third Circuit test in evaluating the reasonableness of the requested fee and incorporating the Johnson/Barber factors into the lodestar cross-check). Notably, "fee award reasonableness factors 'need not be applied in a formulaic way' because each case is different, 'and in certain cases, one factor may outweigh the rest.'" Boyd v. Coventry Health Care Inc., 299 F.R.D. 451, 463 (D. Md. 2014) (citations omitted). Given the overlap in the factors, a consideration of the relevant factors under any standard supports Class Counsel's requested fee.

[1] The Johnson/Barber factors are "(1) the time and labor expended; (2) the novelty and difficulty of the questions raised; (3) the skill required to properly perform the legal services rendered; (4) the attorney's opportunity costs in pressing the instant litigation; (5) the customary fee for like work; (6) the attorney's expectations at the outset of the litigation; (7) the time limitations imposed by the client or circumstances; (8) the amount in controversy and the results obtained; (9) the experience, reputation and ability of the attorney; (10) the undesirability of the case within the legal community in which the suit arose; (11) the nature and length of the professional relationship between attorney and client; and (12) attorneys' fees awards in similar cases." Barber, 577 F.2d at 226 n.28.

Class Counsel Obtained an Excellent Result for the Class

6. "The first and most important factor for a court to consider when making a fee award is the result achieved." Genworth, 210 F. Supp. 3d at 843; see also Hensley v. Eckerhart, 461 U.S. 424, 436 (1983) ("[T]he most critical factor is the degree of success obtained."); McKnight v. Circuit City Stores, Inc., 14 F. App'x. 147, 149 (4th Cir. 2001) (same). Class Counsel's effective and efficient prosecution of this case through fact and expert discovery, class certification, summary judgment (fully briefed), and trial (fully prepared) resulted in settlements with Olam, Birdsong, and Golden Peanut and the creation of a $102,750,000 Settlement Fund. This is an excellent result for the Class. Not only does it assure that Class members will receive a substantial cash payment to compensate them for their injuries, but it also eliminates the risk of adverse rulings on summary judgment, at trial, or on appeal.

7. Notably, Class Counsel achieved this result without the benefit of a prior governmental investigation. Many antitrust class actions—especially those alleging price-fixing—follow a government investigation, where the risk in bringing related private action is comparatively limited. See, e.g., In re Puerto Rican Cabotage Antitrust Litig., 815 F. Supp. 2d 448, 460-61 (D.P.R. 2011) (noting that preceding DOJ investigation and FBI raids mitigated counsel's risk); In re Marsh ERISA Litig., 265 F.R.D. 128, 147 (S.D.N.Y. 2010) ("Risk is not uniform in all class actions" and for "certain antitrust class actions filed in the wake of a Department of Justice consent decree . . . . the risk is limited."). Class Counsel investigated this case from the ground up without the benefit of a government investigation, which significantly increased the risk of bringing this action. See, e.g., In re Auto. Refinishing Paint Antitrust Litig., MDL No. 1426, 2008 WL 63269, at *5 (E.D. Pa. Jan. 3, 2008) ("The risk of nonpayment is even higher when a defendants' prima facie liability has not been established by the government in a criminal action."). Balanced against the many significant risks and compared to the results achieved in many other price-fixing class action settlements, the settlement value here provides an exceptional result for the Class and supports Class Counsel's request for attorneys' fees.

No Class Member Objected to Class Counsel's Fee Request

8. "A lack of objections by class members as to fees requested by counsel weighs in favor of the reasonableness of the fees." Genworth, 210 F. Supp. 3d at 844. The Court-approved notice of the Golden Peanut settlement informed potential Class members that Co-Lead Counsel would request attorneys' fees not to exceed one-third of the Settlement Fund (as well as reimbursement of litigation expenses, and service awards for the Class Representatives). Significantly, not a single Class Member objected to Class Counsel's fee request.

Class Counsel Litigated the Case Skillfully and Efficiently

9. Quality of representation is another significant factor supporting Class Counsel's fee request. As demonstrated by the Court's appointment of Co-Lead Counsel to represent the Class, Class Counsel have substantial experience litigating complex class actions and antitrust cases.[2] Additionally, "the result achieved is the clearest reflection of petitioners' skill and expertise." In re Linerboard Antitrust Litig., MDL No. 1261, 2004 WL 1221350, at *5 (E.D. Pa. June 2, 2004). The creation of the $102,750,000 Settlement Fund speaks volumes.

[2] See Memorandum in Support of Plaintiffs' Motion to Appoint Interim Co-Lead Class Counsel and Liaison Counsel, supporting declarations of Brian D. Clark, Kimberly A. Justice, and Wyatt B. Durette, Jr., and firm resumes attached as exhibits thereto (ECF Nos. 44, 44-1 through 44-2 through 44-4 through 44-7).

10. Further, courts often evaluate the quality of the work performed by plaintiff's counsel in light of the quality of the opposition's representation. See, e.g., Mills, 265 F.R.D. at 262 (noting that counsel reached a favorable settlement against "experienced and sophisticated defense attorneys"); Smith v. Krispy Kreme Doughnut Corp., No. 1:05cv00187, 2007 WL 119157, at *2 (M.D.N.C. Jan. 10, 2007) ("Additional skill is required when the opponent is a sophisticated corporation with sophisticated counsel."). Defendants here were represented by highly skilled and experienced antitrust litigators from some of the leading defense law firms in the United States, two of which are ranked among the Vault Law 100 for most prestigious law firms (https://www.vault.com/best-companies-to-work-for/law/top-100-law-firms-rankings). It was in the face of such skilled and vigorous opposition that Class Counsel obtained the benefits for the Class that they did. This factor weighs in favor of the requested fee award.

The Duration and Complexity of this Litigation Supports the Requested Fee

11. Courts recognize that "there are good reasons to award higher-than-typical fees when the issues in a case are particularly 'novel and complex.'" Good v. W. Virginia-Am. Water Co., No. 14-1374, 2017 WL 2884535, at *25 (S.D.W. Va. July 6, 2017). As to the complexity of the case, "'[a]n antitrust class action is arguably the most complex action to prosecute. . . . The legal and factual issues involved are always numerous and uncertain in outcome.'" Linerboard, 2004 WL 1221350, at *10 (quoting In re Motorsports Merch. Antitrust Litig., 112 F. Supp. 2d 1329, 1337 (N.D. Ga. 2000)).

12. "In evaluating the complexity and duration of the litigation, courts consider not only the time between filing the complaint and reaching settlement, but also the amount of motions practice prior to settlement and the amount and nature of discovery." Jones, 601 F. Supp. 2d at 761. Class Counsel not only worked extremely hard in pursuit of the Class's claims, but did so efficiently, achieving the settlements in less than two years of hard-fought litigation.[3] Since filing this case in September 2019, Class Counsel (1) fully and successfully briefed an opposition to Defendants' joint motion to dismiss, (2) completed all fact and expert discovery under an aggressive schedule, (3) fully and successfully briefed Plaintiffs' class certification motion; (4) fully briefed oppositions to Defendants' summary judgment motions; and (5) were fully prepared to begin a three-week trial. This case's complexity and duration, combined with Class Counsel's vigorous efforts on behalf of the Class, strongly support the reasonableness of Class Counsel's request.

Class Counsel Faced the Risk of Nonpayment

13. Class Counsel undertook this case on a wholly contingent basis and ran a substantial risk of no recovery whatsoever. The risk of receiving little or no recovery, which was magnified here because there was no preceding DOJ investigation or prosecution, is an important factor courts in this Circuit consider when awarding attorneys' fees. See, e.g., Mills, 265 F.R.D. at 263 ("[C]ounsel bore a substantial risk of nonpayment . . . . [t]he outcome of the case was hardly a foregone conclusion, but nonetheless counsel accepted representation of the plaintiff and the class on a contingent fee basis, fronting the costs of litigation." (citation omitted)); Phillips v. Triad Guar. Inc., No. 1:09CV71, 2016 WL 2636289, at *6 (M.D.N.C. May 9, 2016) (finding fee award justified where, "Lead Counsel bore the risks involved with surviving dispositive motions, obtaining class certification, proving liability, causation, and damages, prevailing with experts, and litigating through trial and possible appeals" knowing "that the only way [they] would be compensated was to achieve a successful result"). In addition to the risk of non-recovery at trial, "any victory at trial in this case would have to withstand appeals which could reverse or limit any award by a jury." Genworth, 210 F. Supp. 3d at 844. Courts have also recognized that there is a greater risk of nonpayment where an antitrust class action "did not benefit from the fruits of a prior government investigation," as is the case here. See Linerboard, 2004 WL 1221350, at *11. In the face of these risks, Class Counsel vigorously represented Plaintiffs and obtained a substantial recovery on behalf of the Class.

[3] See Dec. 16, 2020 Prelim. Approval Hr'g Tr. 13:25-14:4 ("[T]he Court is aware that there are so many entries in the ECF reflecting the vigorous nature with which [Class Counsel] have pursued this litigation, that the Court has no doubt that counsel has definitely been working this case."); March 25, 2021 Fairness Hr'g Tr. 6:3-4 ("The Court appreciates the efficiency and speed."), 11:19-20 ("I want to thank counsel for efficiently moving through this case . . . .").

14. Additionally, Class Counsel incurred $1,875,614.86 in total expenses to prosecute the litigation, which would not have been reimbursed absent a successful result. See Mills, 265 F.R.D. at 263 (noting uncertainty of the case outcome, defendants' rigorous defense, and that "Lead Counsel devoted thousands of hours on the case and fronted nearly $3 million in costs in the process" to conclude that factor weighed in favor of awarding the requested fee); In re Rent-Way Sec. Litig., 305 F. Supp. 2d 491, 516 (W.D. Pa. 2003) ("Aside from investing their time, counsel had to front copious sums of money . . . . Thus, the risks that counsel incurred in prosecuting this case were substantial and further support the requested fee award."). The risk of nonpayment weighs heavily in favor of the requested fee award.

Class Counsel Devoted Considerable Time to Prosecute this Action

15. Class Counsel devoted considerable time and effort researching, investigating, and litigating this case. From the time Class Counsel began its investigation through May 31, 2021, Class Counsel devoted 20,866.3 hours to prosecuting this case. This was time that Class Counsel could have spent litigating other matters, which weighs in favor of awarding the requested fees.

See, e.g., Seaman v. Duke Univ., No. 1:15-CV-462, 2019 WL 4674758, at *4 (M.D.N.C. Sept. 25, 2019) (explaining that the "attorneys and staff have worked over 12,500 hours since it began" and "spent over $3 million from their own pockets litigating this case," which "was time and money the attorneys could have directed to other simpler and less risky opportunities" supported the fee request); Genworth, 210 F. Supp. 3d at 844-45 (finding that "counsel for plaintiffs devoted an enormous amount of time and effort into this case, totaling more than 66,000 hours and investing more than three million dollars in fees towards consulting experts" to be among the considerations that "support the attorneys' fees award"). The prodigious time and resources Class Counsel committed to this case weigh in favor of the requested fee.

Public Policy Considerations Support the Requested Fee

16. "[A] central factor in fixing the amount of attorneys' fees is to ensure that competent, experienced counsel will be encouraged to undertake the often risky and arduous task of representing a class . . . ." Mills, 265 F.R.D. at 260. "Congress has expressed its belief that private antitrust litigation is one of the surest weapons for effective enforcement of the antitrust laws." Minnesota Mining & Mfg. Co. v. New Jersey Wood Finishing Co., 381 U.S. 311, 318 (1965). In complex cases, fee awards have been enhanced by courts "to provide an incentive for competent lawyers to pursue such actions in the future." In re Microstrategy, Inc. Sec. Litig., 172 F. Supp. 2d 778, 788 (E.D. Va. 2001). Public policy "generally favors attorneys' fees that will induce attorneys to act and protect individuals who may not be able to act for themselves but also will not create an incentive to bring unmeritorious actions." Jones, 601 F. Supp. 2d at 765 (citing In re Merrill Lynch Tyco Research Sec. Litig., 249 F.R.D. 124, 142 (S.D.N.Y. 2008); Microstrategy, 172 F. Supp. 2d at 789 n.36). "The cost and difficulty [of bringing a meritorious complex class action] naturally stands as a deterrent from doing so, and one object of an award of attorneys' fees should be to counteract this deterrence and incentivize competent attorneys to pursue these cases when necessary." Mills, 265 F.R.D. at 263; see also In re Se. Milk Antitrust Litig., No. 2:08-MD-1000, 2013 WL 2155387, at *5 (E.D. Tenn. May 17, 2013) ("[F]ailing to fully compensate class counsel for the excellent work done and the various substantial risks taken would undermine society's interest in the private litigation of antitrust cases."). Public policy considerations support awarding the requested fee.

One-Third of the Settlement Fund is a Typical and Reasonable Fee Award

17. A fee award of one-third of the Settlement Fund reflects a real-world arm's length transaction between the Class and Class Counsel and is a generally accepted percentage in the Fourth Circuit. In re: Interior Molded Doors Antitrust Litig., No. 3:18-cv-00718-JAG (E.D. Va. June 3, 2021); Seaman, 2019 WL 4674758, at *3; In re Titanium Dioxide Antitrust Litig., No. 10-CV-00318(RDB), 2013 WL 6577029, at *1 (D. Md. Dec. 13, 2013); In re Polyester Staple Antitrust Litig., MDL 3:03CV1516, Order and Final Judgment ¶ 10 (W.D.N.C. June 24, 2008), ECF No. 841; In re Celebrex (Celecoxib) Antitrust Litig., 2018 WL 2382091 (E.D. Va. 2018). It is justified by the remarkable results obtained for the Class and the risks faced by Class Counsel. The fee award requested here is well within the acceptable range of attorneys' fee awards in protracted, complex, and expensive litigation such as this.

18. Class Counsel's fee request is consistent with awards in similar cases. District courts in this Circuit have frequently found a percentage award of one-third of a common fund to be within the range of reasonable percentage awards. See, e.g., In re: Allura Fiber Cement Siding Litig., 2:19-mn-02886-DCN, 2021 WL 2043531, at *4 (D.S.C. May 21, 2021) ("Courts in the Fourth Circuit have held that attorneys' fees in the amount of 1/3 of the settlement fund are reasonable."); Muhammad v. Nat'l City Mortg., Inc., No. 2:07-0423, 2008 WL 5377783, at *6

(S.D.W Va. Dec. 19, 2008) ("[T]he requested award of one-third of the common fund, plus costs, is reasonable under the circumstances of this case."); Smith, 2007 WL 119157, at *2 ("In this jurisdiction, contingent fees of one-third . . . are common.").

19. In particular, "[a]n award of one-third is also common in antitrust class actions." Interior Molded Doors Antitrust Litig., No. 3:18-cv-00718-JAG; Seaman, 2019 WL 4674758, at *3; see, e.g., In re Anadarko Basin Oil & Gas Lease Antitrust Litig., No. CIV-16-209-HE, 2019 WL 1867446, at *2 (W.D. Okla. Apr. 25, 2019) (awarding one-third of $6,950,000 settlement); In re Domestic Drywall Antitrust Litig., No. 13-MD-2437, 2018 WL 3439454, at *20 (E.D. Pa. July 17, 2018) (awarding one-third of $190,059,056 settlement); In re: Urethane Antitrust Litig., No. 04-1616-JWL, 2016 WL 4060156, at *5 (D. Kan. July 29, 2016) (awarding one-third of $835 million settlement, noting "a one-third fee is customary in contingent-fee cases"); Standard Iron Works v. ArcelorMittal, No. 08 C 5214, 2014 WL 7781572, at *3 (N.D. Ill. Oct. 22, 2014) (awarding 33% of $163.9 million settlement); In re OSB Antitrust Litig., 2:06-cv-00826-PD, Order at 3 (E.D. Pa. Dec. 9, 2008), ECF No. 947 (approving requested one-third of $120 million settlement fund).

20. Other courts have determined that a higher percentage rate is appropriate where discovery has been completed and the case is ready for trial. See Trombley v. Bank of America Corp., No. 08-cv-456-JD, 2012 WL 1599041, at *3 n.3 (D.R.I. May 4, 2012) ("Higher percentage rates for attorneys' fees generally are reserved for cases that settle after the completion of formal discovery when the case is close to trial."). Class Counsel reached a settlement with Olam just prior to the close of discovery and reached a settlement with Birdsong after the close of discovery and continued preparing for trial against Golden Peanut; and, at the time of the Golden Peanut settlement, Class Counsel was ready for trial. Accordingly, the one-third award requested by Class Counsel is appropriate.

21. Courts often rely on academic and government reports to determine the "market price" for class action contingent fees. See, e.g., In re Cabletron Sys., Inc. Sec. Litig., 239 F.R.D. 30, 41-42 (D.N.H. 2006) (relying on "comprehensive studies evaluating fee awards in class action cases" and collecting those studies). Relevant here is a study of 40 antitrust class actions. Robert H. Lande & Joshua P. Davis, Benefits from Private Antitrust Enforcement: An Analysis of Forty Cases, 42 U.S.F. L. Rev. 879 (2008). The study shows that courts in the majority of antitrust class actions awarded a contingent fee of 30% or more where the recoveries were up to $100 million. Id. at 911. The median fee was 33.3% and the average was 28.2%. Id. The majority of courts in antitrust class actions where the recoveries ranged from $100 million to $500 million also awarded attorney's fees of 30% or more of the fund. Id. A more recent study found the same results. Joshua P. Davis & Robert H. Lande, Toward an Empirical and Theoretical Assessment of Private Antitrust Enforcement, 36 Seattle U. L. Rev. 1269, 1293 (2013) ("[I]n the twenty newer cases counsel tended to recover approximately 30% to 33.3% in cases with recoveries below $100 million and a similar or smaller percentage in cases with recoveries between $100 and $500 million . . . ."). These studies also support Class Counsel's fee request.

A Cross-Check of Class Counsel's Lodestar Confirms the Reasonableness of the Fee Request

22. Although not required, Courts sometimes supplement their analysis of the percentage-of-fund method with the lodestar cross-check. "The purpose of a lodestar cross-check is to determine whether a proposed fee award is excessive relative to the hours reportedly worked by counsel, or whether the fee is within some reasonable multiplier of the lodestar." Boyd, 299 F.R.D. at 467. "A lodestar cross-check first computes the plaintiffs' attorneys' reasonable hourly rate for the litigation and multiplies that rate by the number of hours dedicated to the case," and "then compares that figure with the attorneys' fees award, typically resulting in a positive multiplier." Genworth, 210 F. Supp. 3d at 845. When using the lodestar as a cross-check, courts "take a somewhat truncated approach to the lodestar analysis" and "generally do not apply the same scrutiny in a lodestar cross-check as they do when using the lodestar method to calculate the fee." Thomas, 2017 WL 1148283, at *6; see also Jones, 601 F. Supp. 2d 765 (explaining that when "using the lodestar method as a cross-check," the court "need not apply the 'exhaustive scrutiny' normally required by that method").

23. A lodestar cross-check in this case supports the requested fee. Despite the risks, complexities, and challenges posed by this litigation, Class Counsel invested 20,866.3 hours of attorney and other professional time on behalf of the Class from case inception through May 31, 2021. The work by Class Counsel was non-duplicative and performed at the direction of Co-Lead Counsel, who also audited and confirmed the validity of Class Counsels' time and expense submissions and removed unapproved hours (and hours inconsistent with the Court's fee orders in prior cases) and expenses where appropriate.

24. The historical hourly rates charged by Class Counsel are reasonable, based on each person's position, experience level, and location (and Co-Lead Counsel capped the hourly rate of attorneys conducting first-level document review at $350), and have been approved by multiple courts in similar antitrust class actions. These rates are comparable to the rates charged by other law firms with similar experience, expertise, and reputation, for similar services in the nation's leading legal markets. See, e.g., Seaman, 2019 WL 4674758, at *5 (listing comparable rates from national class action firm based in San Francisco). See, e.g., Seaman, 2019 WL 4674758, at *5 (listing comparable rates from national class action firm based in San Francisco).

25. Class Counsel's lodestar is $11,716,258.50. Awarding Class Counsel one-third of the Settlement Fund would result in a fee award of $34,250,000, which would be a multiplier of 2.92. Such a multiplier is well within accepted ranges for antitrust class actions generally and is consistent with the fee rulings in similar cases within the Fourth Circuit. Indeed, "[d]istrict courts within the Fourth Circuit have regularly approved attorneys' fees awards with 2–3 times lodestar multipliers." Genworth, 210 F. Supp. 3d at 845; see, e.g., Titanium Dioxide, 2013 WL 6577029 (court awarded attorneys' fees of one-third of settlement fund, which resulted in a multiplier of 2.39); In re Massey Energy Co. Sec. Litig., 3:12–cv–004560, Order Awarding Attorneys' Fees and Expenses at 2 (S.D.W. Va. June 4, 2014), ECF No. 203 (approving a 2.9 times lodestar multiplier); Microstrategy, 172 F. Supp. 2d at 789 (approving a 2.6 times lodestar multiplier); Deloach v. Philip Morris Cos., No. 1:00CV01235, 2003 WL 23094907, at *11 (M.D.N.C. Dec. 19, 2003) (approving a 4.45 times lodestar multiplier); Seaman, 2019 WL 4674758, at *6 (approving a 2.89 times lodestar multiplier); see also Singleton, 976 F. Supp. 2d at 689 ("Courts have generally held that lodestar multipliers falling between 2 and 4.5 demonstrate a reasonable attorneys' fee."). Further, the Court recognizes that the lodestar figure above does not include the substantial amount of time that Class Counsel will be required to devote to overseeing the claims administration process and the distribution of settlement funds to the Class. These additional hours, for which Class Counsel will not receive any additional compensation from the Settlement Fund, effectively reduce the multiplier, and have been considered by the Court in evaluating the reasonableness of the fee request. Consideration of all the lodestar cross-check factors confirms the reasonableness of the requested fee.

Class Counsel's Request for Reimbursement of Litigation Expenses is Reasonable

26. Class Counsel also request reimbursement of reasonable and necessary litigation costs in the amount of $7,688.02. As set forth in the Clark Decl., ¶¶ 62-64, invoices for these costs and expenses were received after the filing and amendment of Plaintiffs' initial motion for an award of costs and expenses and thus were not part of the costs and expenses previously awarded by the Court on April 8, 2021. "It is well-established that plaintiffs who are entitled to recover attorneys' fees are also entitled to recover reasonable litigation-related expenses as part of their overall award." Singleton, 976 F. Supp. 2d at 689. Such costs may include "those reasonable out-of-pocket expenses incurred by the attorney which are normally charged to a fee-paying client, in the course of providing legal services." Spell v. McDaniel, 852 F.2d 762, 771 (4th Cir. 1988) (internal quotations omitted).

27. The Court concludes that Class Counsel's request for the reimbursement of $7,688.02 in expenses from the Settlement Fund is reasonable and should be approved.

The Requested Service Awards are Reasonable

28. Plaintiffs request approval for a $40,000 service award for each of the six Class Representatives: (1) D&M Farms; (2) Mark Hasty; (3) Dustin Land; (4) Rocky Creek Peanut Farms, LLC; (5) Daniel Howell; and (6) Lonnie Gilbert. "At the end of a successful class action, it is common for trial courts to compensate class representatives for the time and effort they invested to benefit the class." Reynolds v. Fidelity Invs. Institutional Operations Co., 1:18-CV-423, 2020 WL 92092, at *4 (M.D.N.C. Jan. 8, 2020). Service awards are "intended to compensate class representatives for work done on behalf of the class, to make up for financial or reputational risk undertaken in bringing the action, and, sometimes, to recognize their willingness to act as a private attorney general." Brown v. Transurban USA, Inc., 318 F.R.D. 560, 578 (E.D. Va. 2016) (quoting Manuel, 2016 WL 1070819, at *6). Among the factors to be considered in determining the reasonableness of a service award are "the actions the plaintiff has taken to protect the interests of the class, the degree to which the class has benefited from those actions, and the amount of time and effort the plaintiff expended in pursuing the litigation." Manuel, 2016 WL 1070819, at *6 (quoting Cook v. Niedert, 142 F.3d 1004, 1016 (7th Cir. 1998)). Service awards are particularly appropriate where, as here, "there was no preceding governmental action alleging a conspiracy and taking a high-profile role threatened to jeopardize class representatives' relationships with their suppliers." Linerboard, 2004 WL 1221350, at *18. Moreover, no Class member objected to the requested service awards.

29. Notably, it was the Class Representatives, not a government agency, that helped initiate this case, followed by important assistance in the investigation and prosecution of Plaintiffs' claims against Defendants. Put simply, this case would not exist without the Class Representatives. The Class Representatives spent significant time assisting the litigation of this case. They (1) responded to written discovery and collected, reviewed, and produced documents relating to their claims; (2) prepared for and sat for lengthy depositions by defense counsel; (3) reviewed and approved the complaint and other substantive pleadings; and (4) considered and approved the settlements. The Class Representatives pursued the litigation knowing that Defendants might retaliate against them, thus risking their livelihoods. They assumed this risk and responsibility to benefit the entire Class, even though their claims were not among the largest. See Archbold, 2015 WL 4276295, at *6 ("Had the Plaintiff not stepped forward to prosecute these claims, the rest of the class would have received nothing."). By stepping forward and diligently performing their duties as Class Representatives, they have performed a valuable public service that will benefit thousands of peanut farmers.

30. The requested service awards are also in accord with amounts approved in other class action litigations in this Circuit and around the country. See, e.g., Interior Molded Doors Antitrust Litig. (court approved $75,000 service awards to each class representative); Seaman, 2019 WL 4674758, at *7 (awarding class representative $125,000); Celebrex, 2018 WL 2382091, at *5 (three class representatives each awarded $100,000); Titanium Dioxide, 2013 WL 6577029, at *1 (one class representative awarded $125,000 and two class representatives awarded $25,000 each); see also In re High-Tech Emp. Antitrust Litig., No. 11-CV-02555509-LHK, 2015 WL 5158730, at *17 (awarding one class representative $140,000 and four class representatives $100,000 each); Marchbanks Truck Serv. v. Comdata Network, Inc., No. 07-1078-JKG, 2014 WL 12738907, at *3-4 (E.D. Pa. July 14, 2014) (awarding $150,000 to one class representative and $75,000 each to two others).

CONCLUSION

For the reasons stated above, Plaintiffs' Motion for an Award of Attorneys' Fees and Expenses and for Class Representative Service Awards is GRANTED:

(1) Class Counsel are awarded $34,250,000 in attorneys' fees, which is one-third of the $102,750,000 Settlement Fund;

(2) Co-Lead Counsel are authorized to equitably allocate the fee award to Class Counsel in a good-faith manner that reflects Co-Lead Counsel's judgment as to each individual Class Counsel's contribution to the institution, prosecution, and resolution of the litigation.

(3) Class Counsel are awarded $7,688.02 in unreimbursed litigation costs and expenses; and

(4) Each of the Class Representatives listed in Paragraph 28 above shall be awarded a service award in the amount of $40,000.

(5) The Court finding no just reason for delay, this Order shall be entered as of this date pursuant to Rule 54(b) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

Dated: August 10, 2021

Honorable Raymond A. Jackson
U.S. District Judge

TAB 39B

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
FOR THE EASTERN DISTRICT OF VIRGINIA
Norfolk Division

IN RE PEANUT FARMERS ANTITRUST LITIGATION	No. 2:19-cv-00463-RAJ-LRL

MEMORANDUM OF LAW IN SUPPORT OF PLAINTIFFS' MOTION FOR AN AWARD OF ATTORNEYS' FEES AND EXPENSES AND FOR CLASS REPRESENTATIVE SERVICE AWARDS

TABLE OF CONTENTS

I. Introduction 1

II. History of the Litigation 3

A. Complaints and Motions to Dismiss 4

B. Discovery 4

C. Class Certification 5

D. Olam and Birdsong Settlements 5

E. Trial Preparation and Summary Judgment 6

F. Golden Peanut Settlement 7

G. Work Related to the Settlements 7

H. Motion for Attorneys' Fees and Expenses and for Class Representative Service Awards 8

III. The Requested Attorneys' Fees Are Reasonable UNDER CONTROLLING LAW. 9

A. The Settlements Create a Common Fund from Which Percentage-of-the-Fund Is the Appropriate Method for Awarding Attorneys' Fees. 9

B. Class Counsel's Fee Request Is Fair and Reasonable Under Fourth Circuit Authority. 12

1. Class Counsel Obtained an Excellent Result for the Class. 13

2. To Date No Class Member Has Objected to Class Counsel's Fee Request. 15

3. Class Counsel Are Skilled and Efficient Litigators. 15

4. The Duration and Complexity of This Litigation Supports the Requested Fee. 16

5. Class Counsel Faced the Risk of Nonpayment. 17

6. Class Counsel Necessarily Devoted 20,866.3 Hours Prosecuting this Action. 19

7. Public Policy Considerations Support the Requested Fee. 19

8. One-Third of the Settlement Fund Is a Typical and Reasonable Fee Award for Cases Similar to this One. 20

C. A Cross-Check of Class Counsel's Lodestar Confirms the Reasonableness of the Fee Request. 23

IV. Class Counsel's Request for Reimbursement of Litigation Expenses Is Reasonable. 26

V. The Requested Service Awards Are Reasonable. 27

VI. Conclusion 29

TABLE OF AUTHORITIES

Cases

, In re: Barneys New York, Inc., No. 19-cv-36300 (S.D.N.Y. Bankr. Nov. 18, 2019), ECF No. 534 31

Archbold v. Wells Fargo Bank, N.A., No. 3:13-CV-24599, 2015 WL 4276295 (S.D.W. Va. July 14, 2015) 11, 35

Barber v. Kimbrell's, Inc., 577 F.2d 216 (4th Cir. 1978) 14

Blum v. Stenson, 465 U.S. 886 (1984) 10, 28

Boeing Co. v. Van Gemert, 444 U.S. 472 (1980) 9

Boyd v. Coventry Health Care Inc., 299 F.R.D. 451 (D. Md. 2014) 15, 29

Brown v. Transurban USA, Inc., 318 F.R.D. 560 (E.D. Va. 2016) 34

Cook v. Niedert, 142 F.3d 1004 (7th Cir. 1998) 35

Daly v. Hill, 790 F.2d 1071 (4th Cir. 1986) 31

Deem v. Ames True Temper, Inc., No. 6:10-CV-01339, 2013 WL 2285972 (S.D.W. Va. May 23, 2013) 12

Deloach v. Philip Morris Cos., No. 1:00CV01235, 2003 WL 23094907 (M.D.N.C. Dec. 19, 2003) 32

Galloway v. Williams, No. 3:19-CV-470, 2020 WL 7482191 (E.D. Va. Dec. 18, 2020) 14, 15

Goldberger v. Integrated Res., Inc., 209 F.3d 43 (2d Cir. 2000) 14

Good v. W. Virginia-Am. Water Co., No. 14-1374, 2017 WL 2884535 (S.D.W. Va. July 6, 2017) 19

Gunter v. Ridgewood Energy Corp., 223 F.3d 190 (3d Cir. 2000) 14

Hensley v. Eckerhart, 461 U.S. 424 (1983) 15

In re Anadarko Basin Oil & Gas Lease Antitrust Litig., No. CIV-16-209-HE, 2019 WL 1867446 (W.D. Okla. Apr. 25, 2019) 26

In re Auto. Refinishing Paint Antitrust Litig., MDL No. 1426, 2008 WL 63269 (E.D. Pa. Jan. 3, 2008) 17

In re Celebrex (Celecoxib) Antitrust Litig., No. 2:14-CV-00361, 2018 WL 2382091 (E.D. Va. Apr. 18, 2018) 13, 27, 36

In re Domestic Drywall Antitrust Litig., No. 13-MD-2437, 2018 WL 3439454 (E.D. Pa. July 17, 2018) 26

In re Genworth Fin. Sec. Litig., 210 F. Supp. 3d 837 (E.D. Va. 2016) ..... passim

In re High-Tech Emp. Antitrust Litig., No. 11-CV-02555509-LHK, 2015 WL 5158730 36

In re Linerboard Antitrust Litig., MDL No. 1261, 2004 WL 1221350 (E.D. Pa. June 2, 2004). 18, 19, 21, 35

In re Marsh ERISA Litig., 265 F.R.D. 128 (S.D.N.Y. 2010) 17

In re Massey Energy Co. Sec. Litig., 3:12–cv–004560, Order Awarding Attorneys' Fees and Expenses at 2 (S.D.W. Va. June 4, 2014), ECF No. 203 32

In re Merrill Lynch Tyco Research Sec. Litig., 249 F.R.D. 124 (S.D.N.Y. 2008) 23

In re Microstrategy, Inc. Sec. Litig., 172 F. Supp. 2d 778 (E.D. Va. 2001) 23, 32

In re Motorsports Merch. Antitrust Litig., 112 F. Supp. 2d 1329 (N.D. Ga. 2000) 19

In re OSB Antitrust Litig., 2:06-cv-00826-PD, Order at 3 (E.D. Pa. Dec. 9, 2008) 26

In re Polyester Staple Antitrust Litig., MDL 3:03CV1516, Order and Final Judgment ¶ 10 (W.D.N.C. June 24, 2008) 25, 27

In re Prudential Ins. Co. Am. Sales Litig., 148 F.3d 283 (3d Cir. 1998) 12

In re Puerto Rican Cabotage Antitrust Litig., 815 F. Supp. 2d 448 (D.P.R. 2011) 17

In re Remeron Direct Purchaser Antitrust Litig., No. CIV.03-0085 FSH, 2005 WL 3008808 (D.N.J. Nov. 9, 2005) 28

In re Rent-Way Sec. Litig., 305 F. Supp. 2d 491 (W.D. Pa. 2003) 21

In re Se. Milk Antitrust Litig., No. 2:08-MD-1000, 2013 WL 2155387 (E.D. Tenn. May 17, 2013) 24

In re Syngenta AG MIR 162 Corn Litig., 357 F. Supp. 3d 1094 (D. Kan. 2018) 29

In re The Mills Corp. Sec. Litig., 265 F.R.D. 246 (E.D. Va. 2009) ..... passim

In re Titanium Dioxide Antitrust Litig., No. 10-CV-00318(RDB), 2013 WL 6577029 (D. Md. Dec. 13, 2013) 24, 32

In re: Allura Fiber Cement Siding Litig., 2:19-mn-02886-DCN, 2021 WL 2043531 (D.S.C. May 21, 2021) 25

In re: Interior Molded Doors Antitrust Litig., No. 3:18-cv-00718-JAG (E.D. Va. June 3, 2021) 24, 26, 27, 36

In re: Urethane Antitrust Litig., No. 04-1616-JWL, 2016 WL 4060156 (D. Kan. July 29, 2016) 26

Johnson v. Georgia Highway Express, Inc., 488 F.2d 714 (5th Cir. 1974)..... 14

Jones v. Dominion Res. Servs., 601 F. Supp. 2d 756 (S.D.W. Va. 2009)..... passim

Krakauer v. Dish Network, L.L.C., No. 1:14-cv-333, 2018 WL 6305785 (M.D.N.C. Dec. 3, 2018) 11

Kruger v. Novant Health, Inc., 1:14CV208, 2016 WL 6769066 (M.D.N.C. Sept. 29, 2016)..... 31

Manuel v. Wells Fargo Bank, Nat'l Ass'n, No. 3:14CV238 (DJN), 2016 WL 1070819 (E.D. Va. Mar. 15, 2016)..... 10, 34, 35

Marchbanks Truck Serv. v. Comdata Network, Inc., No. 07-1078-JKG, 2014 WL 12738907 (E.D. Pa. July 14, 2014)..... 36

McKnight v. Circuit City Stores, Inc., 14 F. App'x. 147 (4th Cir. 2001) 16

Minnesota Mining & Mfg. Co. v. New Jersey Wood Finishing Co., 381 U.S. 311 (1965)..... 23

Montague v. Dixie Nat'l Life Ins. Co., No. 3:09-00687-JFA, 2011 WL 3626541 (D.S.C. Aug. 17, 2011) 28

Muhammad v. Nat'l City Mortg., Inc., No. 2:07-0423, 2008 WL 5377783 (S.D.W Va. Dec. 19, 2008) 25

Mylan Pharm., Inc. v. Warner Chilcott Pub. Ltd. Co., No. CV 12-3824, 2014 WL 12778314 (E.D. Pa. Sept. 15, 2014) 28

Phillips v. Triad Guar. Inc., No. 1:09CV71, 2016 WL 2636289 (M.D.N.C. May 9, 2016) 21

Puerto Rican Cabotage, 815 F. Supp. 2d 463 29

Reaching Hearts Int'l, Inc. v. Prince George's Cty., 478 F. App'x 54 (4th Cir. 2012) 31

Reynolds v. Fidelity Invs. Institutional Operations Co., 1:18-CV-423, 2020 WL 92092 (M.D.N.C. Jan. 8, 2020)..... 34

Seaman v. Duke Univ., No. 1:15-CV-462, 2019 WL 4674758 (M.D.N.C. Sept. 25, 2019).. passim

Sims v. BB&T Corp., 15-cv-732, 2019 WL 1993519 (M.D.N.C. May 6, 2019)..... 31

Singleton v. Domino's Pizza, LLC, 976 F. Supp. 2d 665 (D. Md. 2013)..... 31, 33, 34

Smith v. Krispy Kreme Doughnut Corp., No. 1:05cv00187, 2007 WL 119157 (M.D.N.C. Jan. 10, 2007) 19, 25

Spell v. McDaniel, 852 F.2d 762 (4th Cir. 1988)..... 34

Standard Iron Works v. ArcelorMittal, No. 08 C 5214, 2014 WL 7781572 (N.D. Ill. Oct. 22, 2014) 26

Strang v. JHM Mortg. Sec. Ltd. P'ship, 890 F. Supp. 499 (E.D. Va. 1995)..... 11, 12

Thomas v. FTS USA, LLC, No. 3:13cv825 (REP), 2017 WL 1148283 (E.D. Va. Jan. 9, 2017), report and recommendation adopted, 2017 WL 1147460 (E.D. Va. Mar. 27, 2017) 12, 30

Trombley v. Bank of America Corp., No. 08-cv-456-JD, 2012 WL 1599041 (D.R.I. May 4, 2012) 29

Other Authorities

(Payne, J.); 5 Newberg on Class Actions § 15:82 (5th ed.) 15

Brian T. Fitzpatrick, The Conservative Case for Class Actions, p. 92, FN. 38 (2019) 11

Fed. R. Civ. P. 23..... 8, 9

Lester Brickman, ABA Regulation of Contingency Fees: Money Talks, Ethics Walks, 65 Fordham L. Rev. 247, 248 (1996) 28

Manual for Complex Litigation § 14.122 (4th ed. 2004)..... 13

Sherman Act, 15 U.S.C. § 1..... 4

I. INTRODUCTION

Unlike the many civil antitrust cases that follow Department of Justice ("DOJ") investigations and prosecutions, this case came exclusively from Class Counsel's own extensive, independent investigation into the shelling industry and pricing of raw, harvested runner peanuts ("Runners").[1] Based on their own steam, Class Counsel, in conjunction with Plaintiffs, recovered over $100 million for the Class.

In vigorously litigating this case to its successful conclusion, in the challenging "Rocket Docket" and during the emerging pandemic, Class Counsel incurred significant risk, committing substantial time and money—without any guarantee of recovery. In fact, Class Counsel incurred $1,875,614.86 in out-of-pocket costs and nearly $12 million of attorney and staff time (more than 20,866 hours). Clark Decl. ¶ 54.

Class Counsel's $100 million plus recovery was never foretold. This case was layered with risk from start to finish, beginning with Defendants' motion to dismiss Plaintiffs' complaint. Even before the motion was decided, Class Counsel launched into extensive discovery, subpoenaing phone records, analyzing, producing, and reviewing hundreds of thousands of documents, and engaging experts. Class Counsel did all of that—and more—leading up to Plaintiffs' motion for class certification, another major hurdle Plaintiffs had to overcome. The Court's granting of the class certification motion did not alleviate the risk, as Defendants promptly appealed the Court's certification ruling and filed motions for summary judgment. At no point was this case without substantial risk, making the ultimate $102.75 million recovery an excellent result that will return

[1] "Class Counsel" includes the two firms appointed as Co-Lead Counsel, Lockridge Grindal Nauen PLLP and Freed Kanner London & Millen LLC (hereinafter, "Co-Lead Counsel"), the firm appointed as Liaison Counsel, Durrette, Arkema, Gerson & Gill PC, as well as the other firms representing the Class that assisted with the prosecution of this litigation. See Declaration of Brian D. Clark ("Clark Decl."), filed herewith.

substantial monies to the Class.[2]

Plaintiffs obtained the $102.75 million in settlements only after prolonged and difficult negotiations with large and sophisticated Defendants represented by nationally recognized, highly experienced, and well-staffed law firms.[3] Since negotiating and executing the settlements, Co-Lead Counsel (with defense counsel) prepared the settlement agreements, prepared the preliminary approval motions and supporting documents, including the Class notices, and have been supervising the settlement administrator. The work is, of course, not over. Co-Lead Counsel will spend many additional hours preparing for the July 26, 2021 Fairness Hearing and overseeing the processing of claims and distribution of settlement funds to Class members.

Plaintiffs D&M Farms, Mark Hasty, Dustin Land, Rocky Creek Peanut Farms, LLC, Daniel Howell, and Lonnie Gilbert (together, "Class Representatives" or "Plaintiffs"), as representatives of the Class,[4] respectfully move the Court for an Order (1) awarding Class Counsel one-third of the Settlement Fund as attorneys' fees, (2) reimbursing Class Counsel $7,688.02 in

[2] The Court has approved settlements with Defendants Olam Peanut Shelling Company, Inc., and Birdsong Corporation totaling $57,750,000 (ECF No. 590) and has preliminarily approved a settlement with Defendant Golden Peanut Company, LLC in the amount of $45,000,000 (ECF No. 595). If the Court grants final approval for the Golden Peanut settlement, the total settlement amount will be $102,750,000 ("Settlement Fund").

[3] The Golden Peanut settlement was achieved with the assistance of Professor Eric Green, a nationally renowned mediator.

[4] The "Class" is defined as:

> All persons or entities in the United States who sold raw, harvested runner peanuts to any of the Defendants, their subsidiaries or joint-ventures, from January 1, 2014 through December 31, 2019 (the "Class Period"). Specifically excluded from this Class are the Defendants; the officers, directors or employees of any Defendant; any entity in which any Defendant has a controlling interest; and any affiliate, legal representative, heir or assign of any Defendant.

Certification Order at 18. (ECF No. 496).

additional litigation costs and expenses,[5] and (3) awarding each Class Representative a service award of $40,000 for his or its respective contributions to the case, all to be paid from the Settlement Fund.

As discussed more thoroughly below, the record fully supports Class Counsel's request for a fee award of $34,250,000.00, or one-third of the Settlement Fund. Courts in this Circuit regularly award one-third of common funds as attorneys' fees in class action antitrust cases, and all relevant factors favor such an award here. This fee request represents a 2.92 multiple of Class Counsel's lodestar, based on historical hourly rates and time expended through May 31, 2021.[6] The record also shows that the litigation expenses for which Class Counsel seek reimbursement were reasonable and necessary for the prosecution of this case. Finally, the record shows that the Class Representatives have earned the requested service awards.

II. HISTORY OF THE LITIGATION

Plaintiffs are peanut farmers in the United States who sold Runners to peanut shelling companies. Plaintiffs alleged, among other things, that Defendants Golden Peanut, Olam, and Birdsong conspired to depress prices paid to the Class for Runners during the Class Period, in [5] On April 8, 2021, the Court granted Plaintiffs' initial motion for reimbursement of costs. (ECF No. 591.) The instant motion only seeks an award of expenses not included in the prior costs motion. See Clark Decl. ¶¶ 62-64.

[6] Based on prior fee rulings by the Court and the time and expense protocol submitted to the Court in conjunction with the request to appoint lead counsel, Co-Lead Counsel proactively cut more than $280,563.25 Class Counsel time; the inclusion of such time would have resulted in a higher lodestar and a lower multiplier. Clark Decl. ¶ 59. Further, the effective multiplier will decrease as Co-Lead Counsel continue to work towards fully resolving this litigation, including responding to Class member inquiries, and working with the settlement administrator on claims processing and distribution of settlement funds to Class members. None of that time is reflected in the total lodestar amount of $11,716,258.50, and Class Counsel will not be seeking any additional fees from the Settlement Fund in connection with such future work.

violation of Section 1 of the Sherman Act, 15 U.S.C. § 1. Defendants vigorously deny these allegations.

A. Complaints and Motions to Dismiss

After conducting an independent investigation, Plaintiffs filed a complaint on September 5, 2019 (ECF No. 1) against Defendants Golden Peanut and Birdsong, which they moved to dismiss (ECF Nos. 47-50). Class Counsel successfully briefed oppositions to the motions to dismiss, which the Court denied on May 14, 2020 (ECF No. 135). Plaintiffs filed a Second Amended Class Action Complaint on May 27, 2020 (ECF No. 148), naming Olam as a Defendant for the first time; all Defendants answered this complaint on June 26, 2020 (ECF Nos. 178-180).

B. Discovery

At the outset of discovery, Class Counsel worked with a firm specializing in technology-assisted methods of review and negotiated a comprehensive protocol for producing electronically stored information; additionally, Class Counsel negotiated and drafted a Stipulated Protective Order governing confidential information. Clark Decl. ¶ 9. Thereafter, Class Counsel drafted and served discovery requests on Defendants and the parties participated in extensive meet-and-confers to negotiate the parameters of the requests; Class Counsel also worked with the Class Representatives to prepare their responses to Defendants' discovery requests. Id. Class Counsel also prepared and served discovery requests on various third parties, including telephone service providers and non-party participants in the peanut shelling industry. Class Counsel created, reviewed, and analyzed a database containing more than 1,740,000 documents and other records produced by Defendants and third parties. Further, working with an outside consultant, Class Counsel developed a database of voluminous telephone records to better sift through millions of phone calls for the purpose of culling out the thousands of relevant calls between Defendants. Id. ¶¶ 11, 13-15.

Through these databases, Class Counsel learned about numerous inter-Defendant communications relating to Runner pricing and used this information to question deponents from each Defendant.[7] Id. ¶ 15. Armed with this valuable information, Class Counsel took thirty-one depositions of defense witnesses and third parties. Id. ¶¶ 15-18. Class Counsel also spent a considerable amount of time preparing the six Class Representatives for their depositions and defending same. Id. ¶¶ 16-18.

C. Class Certification

In connection with the class certification process, Class Counsel worked extensively with Plaintiffs' economist expert, Dr. Michael A. Williams, in producing three expert reports and defending his deposition. Class Counsel also spent a considerable amount time and effort preparing for and deposing Defendants' three economist experts: Drs. Michelle Burtis, Robert Topel, and Kevin Murphy. Id. ¶¶ 21-23. On December 2, 2020, after the parties fully briefed Plaintiffs' class certification motion, the Court certified the case as a class action under Rule 23(b)(3) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure. (ECF No. 496.)[8]

D. Olam and Birdsong Settlements

In October and November 2020 respectively, Plaintiffs reached settlements with Olam and Birdsong totaling $57,750,000. Id. ¶¶ 33-34. On December 23, 2020, the Court entered orders

[7] Class Counsel's extensive work with the databases was also invaluable to their efforts to oppose Defendants' summary judgment motions, as well as settlement negotiations.

[8] On December 16, 2020, Golden Peanut petitioned the United States Court of Appeals for the Fourth Circuit for permission to appeal the Certification Order under Fed. R. Civ. P. 23(f), and Plaintiffs filed their opposition on December 28, 2020. On January 27, 2021, the Fourth Circuit deferred ruling on the petition, but ordered formal briefing of the appeal. Golden Peanut Co., LLC v. D&M Farms, No. 20-00502 (4th Cir. Jan. 27, 2021), ECF No. 30. Pending approval of the Settlement Agreement, Golden Peanut filed a motion with the Fourth Circuit requesting that its appeal be stayed, which the Fourth Circuit granted on February 26, 2021. Golden Peanut Co., LLC v. D&M Farms, No. 20-00502 (4th Cir. Feb. 26, 2021), ECF No. 40.

preliminarily approving the Olam and Birdsong settlements, certifying Olam and Birdsong Settlement Classes, and authorizing dissemination of notice to the Olam and Birdsong Settlement Classes, as well as notice to potential members of the litigation Class certified in the Court's December 2, 2020 order regarding class certification. (ECF Nos. 514-515.) On March 25, 2021, the Court held a Fairness Hearing to determine whether to finally approve the Olam and Birdsong settlements, and whether to grant Class Counsel's initial request for reimbursement of litigation costs and expenses. (ECF No. 586.) On April 5, 2021, the Court entered a Memorandum Opinion and Order granting final approval to the Olam and Birdsong settlements. (ECF No. 590.)[9]

E. Trial Preparation and Summary Judgment

Throughout nearly all of 2020 (during a global pandemic), Class Counsel devoted an enormous amount of time and expense preparing for a January 19, 2021 trial and opposing summary judgment. Clark Decl. ¶¶ 25-28, 30-32. Trial preparation was not minimized by the Olam and Birdsong settlements, because at trial Plaintiffs would need to prove the entire conspiracy against remaining Defendant Golden Peanut. Id. ¶ 31. On December 7, 2020, the Court notified the parties that the trial would be postponed but explicitly instructed the parties to continue litigating the case. And that is precisely what Class Counsel did. The following provides a summary of the work Class Counsel did in connection with trial preparation and summary judgment:

- Worked extensively with a jury consultant to prepare for and conduct a mock trial before multiple jury panels;

[9] Class Counsel did not request attorneys' fees or service awards for the Class Representatives at the time they sought preliminary or final approval of the Olam and Birdsong settlements, but did request reimbursement of litigation costs and expenses. On April 8, 2021, the Court entered an order granting Class Counsel's motion for litigation costs and expenses. (ECF No. 591.) At this time, Class Counsel seek only a small amount of additional expenses incurred that were not addressed by the Court's April 8, 2021 Order.

- Prepared briefs in opposition to Defendants' joint motion for summary judgment and Golden Peanut's subsequent motion for summary judgment;
- Prepared a brief in opposition to Defendants' Daubert motion to exclude Dr. Williams' testimony;
- Prepared briefs in support of and in opposition to more than fifteen motions in limine;
- Prepared a lengthy pretrial statement and met and conferred with Golden Peanut counsel regarding same;
- Reviewed deposition transcripts, designated portions for use at trial, and exchanged same with Golden Peanut's counsel;
- Prepared video deposition clips for use at trial;
- Designated potential trial exhibits and coordinated with Golden Peanut's counsel to negotiate admissibility of approximately 2,500 such exhibits;
- Drafted proposed voir dire questions; and
- Drafted proposed jury instructions.

Id. ¶ 32.

F. Golden Peanut Settlement

On March 4, 2021, Plaintiffs reached a settlement with Golden Peanut for $45,000,000. Id. ¶ 41. On April 23, 2021, the Court preliminarily approved the settlement with Golden Peanut and scheduled a Fairness Hearing for July 26, 2021 to determine whether to finally approve the Golden Peanut settlement, and whether to grant Class Counsel's request for attorneys' fees, litigation costs and expenses, and service awards to the Class Representatives. (ECF No. 595.)

G. Work Related to the Settlements

In addition to the litigation work described above, Class Counsel did the following on behalf of the Class in connection with the three settlements:

- Over several months, negotiated with counsel for Olam, Birdsong, and Golden Peanut, and worked with them to prepare and execute the settlement agreements (Clark Decl. ¶¶ 33-34, 39-41);

- Conducted a bidding process to select a claims administrator and worked with the claims administrator to establish a settlement website for the benefit of the Class (id. ¶ 35);

- Selected an escrow agent and prepared and executed the necessary paperwork to facilitate settlement payments (id. ¶¶ 33-35, 41);

- Prepared Plaintiffs' motions for preliminary approval and final approval, and supporting papers regarding the Olam and Birdsong settlements, including the related notice papers and proposed orders, and presented those motions to the Court (id. ¶¶ 33-38);

- Engaged experienced and renowned mediator Eric Green of Resolutions, LLC, and prepared for and participated in an all-day mediation, which resulted in the settlement with Golden Peanut (id. ¶¶ 39-40); and

- Prepared Plaintiffs' motions for preliminary approval and final approval, and supporting papers regarding the Golden Peanut settlement, including the related notice papers and proposed orders, and presented those motions to the Court. Id. ¶¶ 41, 44-46).

H. Motion for Attorneys' Fees and Expenses and for Class Representative Service Awards

In its order preliminarily approving the settlement with Golden Peanut, the Court approved the dissemination of notice to Class members (the "Notice"). As required by Fed. R. Civ. P. 23(h), the Notice (copy attached as Exhibit 9) informed Class members that Co-Lead Counsel would request attorneys' fees not to exceed one-third of the Settlement Fund, reimbursement of litigation expenses, and service awards for the Class Representatives for each Class Representative. See Notice (Question 14). The Notice explains how Class members can object to Plaintiffs' fee, expense, and service award requests. Id. (Question 18). The deadline for objections is July 13, 2021; thus far, no objections have been filed.[10]

Consistent with the Notice provided to Class members (by mail, email, and publication), Class Counsel seeks attorneys' fees in the amount of one-third of the Settlement Fund, or $34,250,000.00, an award of unreimbursed costs and expenses, and service awards for each of the [10] After the applicable deadline has passed and prior to the Fairness Hearing, Co-Lead Counsel will file a report with the Court on any objections.

Class Representatives in the amount of $40,000.[11] As set forth below, Plaintiffs' request for attorneys' fees, expense reimbursement, and service awards for the Class Representatives is reasonable and should be approved.

III. THE REQUESTED ATTORNEYS' FEES ARE REASONABLE UNDER CONTROLLING LAW.

A. The Settlements Create a Common Fund from Which Percentage-of-the-Fund Is the Appropriate Method for Awarding Attorneys' Fees.

Under Fed. R. Civ. P. 23(h), "[i]n a certified class action, the court may award reasonable attorney's fees and nontaxable costs that are authorized by law or by the parties' agreement." As the Supreme Court recognized, "a lawyer who recovers a common fund for the benefit of persons other than himself or his client is entitled to a reasonable attorney's fee from the fund as a whole." Boeing Co. v. Van Gemert, 444 U.S. 472, 478 (1980). The common fund doctrine is based on the inherent powers of the federal court to "prevent . . . inequity by assessing attorney's fees against the entire fund, thus spreading fees proportionately among those benefited by the suit." Id.

Two methods of calculating attorneys' fees in class actions are: (1) the percentage-of-the-fund method; and (2) the lodestar method. In re The Mills Corp. Sec. Litig., 265 F.R.D. 246, 260 (E.D. Va. 2009). The percentage-of-the-fund method involves an award based on a percentage of the Class's recovery, set by the court based on several factors. Id. The lodestar method requires multiplying the number of hours worked by a reasonable hourly rate, the product of which the Court can then adjust by employing a "multiplier." Id.

The Supreme Court has suggested that the percentage-of-the-fund is the appropriate [11] Plaintiffs are also seeking an award of litigation costs and expenses in the amount of $7,688.02. This is the amount of costs and expenses that were not included in Plaintiffs' initial cost and expense motion (ECF No. 529) and awarded by the Court in its April 8, 2021 Order (ECF No. 591).

method for awarding fees under the common fund doctrine. See Blum v. Stenson, 465 U.S. 886, 900 n.16 (1984) ("[U]nder the 'common fund doctrine,' . . . a reasonable fee is based on a percentage of the fund bestowed on the class . . . ."). Most federal courts of appeals have also endorsed the percentage-of-the-fund method as an appropriate method for determining an award of attorneys' fees in common fund cases.[12]

"While the Fourth Circuit has not definitively answered this debate, other districts within this Circuit, and the vast majority of courts in other jurisdictions consistently apply a percentage of the fund method for calculating attorneys' fees in common fund cases." Mills, 265 F.R.D. at 260; see, e.g., Manuel v. Wells Fargo Bank, Nat'l Ass'n, No. 3:14CV238 (DJN), 2016 WL 1070819, at *5 (E.D. Va. Mar. 15, 2016) ("District Courts within this Circuit have also favored the percentage method."); Krakauer v. Dish Network, L.L.C., No. 1:14-cv-333, 2018 WL 6305785, at *2 (M.D.N.C. Dec. 3, 2018) ("District courts in the Fourth Circuit overwhelmingly prefer the percentage method in common-fund cases . . . ."); Archbold v. Wells Fargo Bank, N.A., No. 3:13-CV-24599, 2015 WL 4276295, at *5 (S.D.W. Va. July 14, 2015) ("[T]here is a clear consensus among the federal and state courts, consistent with Supreme Court precedent, that the award of attorneys' fees in common fund cases should be based on a percentage of the recovery."); Strang v. JHM Mortg. Sec. Ltd. P'ship, 890 F. Supp. 499, 502 (E.D. Va. 1995) ("Although the Fourth Circuit has not yet ruled on this issue, the current trend among the courts of appeal favors the use of a percentage method to calculate an award of attorneys' fees in common fund cases."); Jones v. Dominion Res. Servs., 601 F. Supp. 2d 756, 758 (S.D.W. Va. 2009) ("The percentage method has overwhelmingly become the preferred method for calculating attorneys' fees in common fund cases.").[13]

[12] See, e.g., Heien v. Archstone, 837 F.3d 97, 100 (1st Cir. 2016); Goldberger v. Integrated Res., Inc., 209 F.3d 43, 49-50 (2d Cir. 2000); In re GMC Pick-Up Truck Fuel Tank Prods. Liab. Litig., 55 F.3d 768, 821-22 (3d Cir. 1995); Union Asset Mgmt. Holding A.G. v. Dell, Inc., 669 F.3d 632, 644 (5th Cir. 2012); Rawlings v. Prudential-Bache Props., Inc., 9 F.3d 513, 515-16 (6th Cir. 1993); Rawa v. Monsanto Co., 934 F.3d 862, 870 (8th Cir. 2019); Vizcaino v. Microsoft Corp., 290 F.3d 1043, 1047-50 (9th Cir. 2002); Gottlieb v. Barry, 43 F.3d 474, 487 (10th Cir. 1994); Camden I. Condo. Ass'n, Inc. v. Dunkle, 946 F.2d 768, 774 (11th Cir. 1991); Swedish Hosp. Corp. v. Shalala, 1 F.3d 1261, 1268-70 (D.C. Cir. 1993).

These courts recognize that the percentage-of-the-fund method is "more efficient and less burdensome than the traditional lodestar method, and offers a more reasonable measure of compensation for common fund cases." Strang, 890 F. Supp. at 503. It also better aligns the interests of class counsel and class members because it ties the attorneys' fees award to the overall result achieved, rather than hours expended by the attorneys. Thomas v. FTS USA, LLC, No. 3:13cv825 (REP), 2017 WL 1148283, at *3 (E.D. Va. Jan. 9, 2017), report and recommendation adopted, 2017 WL 1147460 (E.D. Va. Mar. 27, 2017); see also Deem v. Ames True Temper, Inc., No. 6:10-CV-01339, 2013 WL 2285972, at *5 (S.D.W. Va. May 23, 2013) ("The percentage method 'is designed to allow courts to award fees from the fund in a manner that rewards counsel for success and penalizes it for failure.'" (quoting In re Prudential Ins. Co. Am. Sales Litig., 148 F.3d 283, 333 (3d Cir. 1998))).

"Some courts incorporate the lodestar analysis into the percentage method by cross-checking the lodestar calculation against the percentage calculation." Thomas, 2017 WL 1148283, at *4 (citing Jones, 601 F. Supp. 2d at 759; Manual for Complex Litigation § 14.122 (4th ed. 2004)). The lodestar calculation "adds an extra layer of assurance as to reasonableness by ensuring that 'the fee award is still roughly aligned with the amount of work the attorneys contributed.'" Id. (quoting Jones, 601 F. Supp. 2d at 759).

[13] See, also, Brian T. Fitzpatrick, The Conservative Case for Class Actions, p. 92, FN. 38 (2019) ("Today, most judges use the percentage method").

Class Counsel's application for the percentage-of-fund method is therefore consistent with the law in this and other circuits. As explained below, the factors courts consider when assessing percentage-of-fund requests demonstrate the reasonableness of Class Counsel's requested fee, which is further confirmed by cross-checking the requested amount against the calculated lodestar.

B. Class Counsel's Fee Request Is Fair and Reasonable Under Fourth Circuit Authority.

"In determining the reasonableness of attorneys' fees, courts look at the following factors: (1) the result obtained for the class; (2) the presence or absence of substantial objections by members of the class to the fees requested by counsel; (3) the skill and efficiency of the attorneys involved; (4) the complexity and duration of the litigation; (5) the risk of nonpayment; (6) the amount of time devoted to the case by the plaintiffs' counsel; and (7) awards in similar cases." In re Genworth Fin. Sec. Litig., 210 F. Supp. 3d 837, 843 (E.D. Va. 2016). Some district courts in this Circuit have applied a slightly different version of this standard, replacing the sixth factor with public policy considerations. See, e.g., In re Celebrex (Celecoxib) Antitrust Litig., No. 2:14-CV-00361, 2018 WL 2382091, at *4 (E.D. Va. Apr. 18, 2018); Mills, 265 F.R.D. at 261 (citing, inter alia, Goldberger v. Integrated Res., Inc., 209 F.3d 43, 50 (2d Cir. 2000)).

There is some disagreement as to whether to apply these seven factors, which were adopted from the Third Circuit, Gunter v. Ridgewood Energy Corp., 223 F.3d 190, 195 & n.1 (3d Cir. 2000), or the 12-factor test from the Fifth Circuit adopted in Barber v. Kimbrell's, Inc., 577 F.2d 216, 226 (4th Cir. 1978) (citing Johnson v. Georgia Highway Express, Inc., 488 F.2d 714 (5th Cir. 1974)).[14] See Galloway v. Williams, No. 3:19-CV-470, 2020 WL 7482191, at *5 (E.D. Va. Dec.

[14] The Johnson/Barber factors are "(1) the time and labor expended; (2) the novelty and difficulty of the questions raised; (3) the skill required to properly perform the legal services rendered; (4) the attorney's opportunity costs in pressing the instant litigation; (5) the customary fee for like work; (6) the attorney's expectations at the outset of the litigation; (7) the time

18, 2020) (Payne, J.); 5 Newberg on Class Actions § 15:82 (5th ed.) ("The Fourth Circuit utilized the Fifth Circuit's Johnson factors in a statutory fee-shifting case, so some district courts have utilized those factors in setting a percentage in common fund cases, while other district courts have used the Second Circuit's Goldberger factors and/or the Third Circuit's Gunter factors." (footnotes omitted)). However, many of the Johnson/Barber factors overlap with factors in the Third Circuit test or are "subsumed in the calculation of the hours reasonably expended and the reasonableness of the hourly rate." Galloway, 2020 WL 7482191, at *6, *10-11; see also Genworth, 210 F. Supp. 3d at 843 (using the seven-factor Third Circuit test in evaluating the reasonableness of the requested fee and incorporating the Johnson/Barber factors into the lodestar cross-check). Notably, "fee award reasonableness factors 'need not be applied in a formulaic way' because each case is different, 'and in certain cases, one factor may outweigh the rest.'" Boyd v. Coventry Health Care Inc., 299 F.R.D. 451, 463 (D. Md. 2014) (citations omitted). Given the overlap in the factors, a consideration of the relevant factors under any standard supports Class Counsel's requested fee.

1. Class Counsel Obtained an Excellent Result for the Class.

"The first and most important factor for a court to consider when making a fee award is the result achieved." Genworth, 210 F. Supp. 3d at 843; see also Hensley v. Eckerhart, 461 U.S. 424, 436 (1983) ("[T]he most critical factor is the degree of success obtained."); McKnight v. Circuit City Stores, Inc., 14 F. App'x. 147, 149 (4th Cir. 2001) (same).

Class Counsel's effective and efficient prosecution of this case through fact and expert discovery, class certification, summary judgment (fully briefed), and the completion of trial limitations imposed by the client or circumstances; (8) the amount in controversy and the results obtained; (9) the experience, reputation and ability of the attorney; (10) the undesirability of the case within the legal community in which the suit arose; (11) the nature and length of the professional relationship between attorney and client; and (12) attorneys' fees awards in similar cases." Barber, 577 F.2d at 226 n.28.

preparation resulted in settlements totaling $102,750,000, by any measure an excellent result for the Class. Not only does it assure that Class members will receive a substantial cash payment to compensate them for their injuries, but it also eliminates the risk of adverse rulings on summary judgment, at trial, or on appeal. For example, although Plaintiffs presented evidence, including numerous communications between Defendants' employees relating to the Runner pricing, from which they believe a jury could infer a conspiracy, Defendants argued that the depressed Runner prices they offered to farmers were instead a consequence of the 2014 Farm Bill. Defendants asserted that the Farm Bill incentivized farmers to grow more peanuts, which led to an oversupply of Runners and naturally resulting lower prices; in other words, Defendants claimed that the decrease in pricing was not caused by antitrust violations but was the result of natural market conditions created by the Farm Bill. Any or some combination of rulings in Defendants' favor on these issues could have resulted in Plaintiffs and the Class receiving no compensation whatsoever.[15] Under these circumstances, the settlements are an excellent result for the Class.

Notably, Class Counsel achieved this result without the benefit of a prior governmental investigation. Many antitrust class actions—especially those alleging price-fixing—follow a government investigation, where the risk in bringing related private action is comparatively limited. See, e.g., In re Puerto Rican Cabotage Antitrust Litig., 815 F. Supp. 2d 448, 460-61 (D.P.R. 2011) (noting that preceding DOJ investigation and FBI raids mitigated counsel's risk); In re Marsh ERISA Litig., 265 F.R.D. 128, 147 (S.D.N.Y. 2010) ("Risk is not uniform in all class actions" and for "certain antitrust class actions filed in the wake of a Department of Justice consent decree . . . . the risk is limited."). Class Counsel investigated this case from the ground up without the benefit of a government investigation, which significantly increased the risk of bringing this action. See, e.g., In re Auto. Refinishing Paint Antitrust Litig., MDL No. 1426, 2008 WL 63269, at *5 (E.D. Pa. Jan. 3, 2008) ("The risk of nonpayment is even higher when a defendants' prima facie liability has not been established by the government in a criminal action.").

[15] Although the Court denied Defendants' Daubert motion, Golden Peanut's motion to reconsider the Court's Daubert ruling was pending at the time the parties agreed to a settlement in principle.

Balanced against the many significant risks, and compared to the results achieved in many other price-fixing class action settlements, the settlement value here provides an exceptional result for the Class and supports Class Counsel's request for attorneys' fees.

2. To Date No Class Member Has Objected to Class Counsel's Fee Request.

"A lack of objections by class members as to fees requested by counsel weighs in favor of the reasonableness of the fees." Genworth, 210 F. Supp. 3d at 844. As noted above, the Court-approved notice of the Golden Peanut settlement informed Class members that Co-Lead Counsel would request attorneys' fees not to exceed one-third of the Settlement Fund (as well as reimbursement of litigation expenses, and service awards for the Class Representatives). Although the deadline for objections to the Golden Peanut settlement and Class Counsel's fee request has not yet passed, it is notable that no objections have been received thus far, and not a single Class member objected to the Olam and Birdsong settlements.[16]

3. Class Counsel Are Skilled and Efficient Litigators.

The quality of the representation is another significant factor supporting Class Counsel's fee request. See id. ("The skill required in complex cases such as this involving massive discovery efforts and complicated issues of fact and law also weighs in favor of supporting the substantial attorneys' fees award in this case."). Class Counsel have substantial experience litigating complex class actions and antitrust cases.[17] Additionally, "the result achieved is the clearest reflection of petitioners' skill and expertise." In re Linerboard Antitrust Litig., MDL No. 1261, 2004 WL 1221350, at *5 (E.D. Pa. June 2, 2004). The creation of the $102,750,000 Settlement Fund speaks volumes.

[16] The deadline for objections is July 13, 2021. Co-Lead Counsel will inform the Court of any objections in advance of the Fairness Hearing.

Further, courts often evaluate the quality of the work performed by plaintiff's counsel in light of the quality of the opposition's representation. See, e.g., Mills, 265 F.R.D. at 262 (noting that counsel reached a favorable settlement against "experienced and sophisticated defense attorneys"); Smith v. Krispy Kreme Doughnut Corp., No. 1:05cv00187, 2007 WL 119157, at *2 (M.D.N.C. Jan. 10, 2007) ("Additional skill is required when the opponent is a sophisticated corporation with sophisticated counsel."). Defendants here were represented by highly skilled and experienced antitrust litigators from some of the leading defense law firms in the United States, two of which are ranked among the Vault Law 100 for most prestigious law firms (https://www.vault.com/best-companies-to-work-for/law/top-100-law-firms-rankings). It was in the face of such skilled and vigorous opposition that Class Counsel obtained the benefits for the Class that they did. This factor weighs in favor of the requested fee award.

4. The Duration and Complexity of This Litigation Supports the Requested Fee.

Courts recognize that "there are good reasons to award higher-than-typical fees when the issues in a case are particularly 'novel and complex.'" Good v. W. Virginia-Am. Water Co., No. 14-1374, 2017 WL 2884535, at *25 (S.D.W. Va. July 6, 2017). As to the complexity of the case, "'[a]n antitrust class action is arguably the most complex action to prosecute. . . . The legal and factual issues involved are always numerous and uncertain in outcome.'" Linerboard, 2004 WL 1221350, at *10 (quoting In re Motorsports Merch. Antitrust Litig., 112 F. Supp. 2d 1329, 1337 (N.D. Ga. 2000)).

[17] See Memorandum in Support of Plaintiffs' Motion to Appoint Interim Co-Lead Class Counsel and Liaison Counsel, supporting declarations of Brian D. Clark, Kimberly A. Justice, and Wyatt B. Durette, Jr., and firm resumes attached as exhibits thereto (ECF Nos. 44, 44-1 through 44-2 through 44-4 through 44-7).

"In evaluating the complexity and duration of the litigation, courts consider not only the time between filing the complaint and reaching settlement, but also the amount of motions practice prior to settlement and the amount and nature of discovery." Jones, 601 F. Supp. 2d at 761. As this Court noted, Class Counsel not only worked extremely hard in pursuit of the Class's claims, but did so efficiently, achieving the settlements in less than two years of hard-fought litigation.[18] Since filing this case in September 2019, Class Counsel (1) fully and successfully briefed Defendants' joint motion to dismiss, (2) completed all fact and expert discovery under an aggressive schedule, (3) successfully briefed Plaintiffs' class certification motion; (4) fully briefed oppositions to Defendants' summary judgment motions; and (5) were fully prepared to begin a three-week trial. This case's complexity and duration strongly support the reasonableness of Class Counsel's request.

5. Class Counsel Faced the Risk of Nonpayment.

Class Counsel undertook this case on a wholly contingent basis and ran a substantial risk of no recovery whatsoever. The risk of receiving little or no recovery—which was magnified here because there was no preceding DOJ investigation or prosecution—is an important factor courts in this Circuit consider when awarding attorneys' fees. See, e.g., Mills, 265 F.R.D. at 263 ("[C]ounsel bore a substantial risk of nonpayment . . . . [t]he outcome of the case was hardly a foregone conclusion, but nonetheless counsel accepted representation of the plaintiff and the class on a contingent fee basis, fronting the costs of litigation." (citation omitted)); Phillips v. Triad Guar. Inc., No. 1:09CV71, 2016 WL 2636289, at *6 (M.D.N.C. May 9, 2016) (finding fee award justified where, "Lead Counsel bore the risks involved with surviving dispositive motions, obtaining class certification, proving liability, causation, and damages, prevailing with experts, and litigating through trial and possible appeals" knowing "that the only way [they] would be compensated was to achieve a successful result"). In addition to the risk of non-recovery at trial, "any victory at trial in this case would have to withstand appeals which could reverse or limit any award by a jury." Genworth, 210 F. Supp. 3d at 844. Courts have also recognized that there is a greater risk of nonpayment where an antitrust class action "did not benefit from the fruits of a prior government investigation," as is the case here. See Linerboard, 2004 WL 1221350, at *11. In the face of these risks, Class Counsel vigorously represented Plaintiffs and obtained a substantial recovery on behalf of the Class.

[18] See Dec. 16, 2020 Prelim. Approval Hr'g Tr. 13:25-14:4 ("[T]he Court is aware that there are so many entries in the ECF reflecting the vigorous nature with which [Class Counsel] have pursued this litigation, that the Court has no doubt that counsel has definitely been working this case."); March 25, 2021 Fairness Hr'g Tr. 6:3-4 ("The Court appreciates the efficiency and speed."), 11:19-20 ("I want to thank counsel for efficiently moving through this case . . . .").

Additionally, Class Counsel incurred $1,875,614.86 in total expenses to prosecute the litigation, which would not have been reimbursed absent a successful result. See Mills, 265 F.R.D. at 263 (noting uncertainty of the case outcome, defendants' rigorous defense, and that "Lead Counsel devoted thousands of hours on the case and fronted nearly $3 million in costs in the process" to conclude that factor weighed in favor of awarding the requested fee); In re Rent-Way Sec. Litig., 305 F. Supp. 2d 491, 516 (W.D. Pa. 2003) ("Aside from investing their time, counsel had to front copious sums of money . . . . Thus, the risks that counsel incurred in prosecuting this case were substantial and further support the requested fee award."). The risk of nonpayment weighs heavily in favor of the requested fee award.

6. Class Counsel Necessarily Devoted 20,866.3 Hours Prosecuting this Action.

Class Counsel devoted considerable time and effort researching, investigating, and litigating this case. Clark Decl. ¶¶ 5, 8-46. As set forth in the accompanying Clark Declaration (and Class Counsel declarations attached as Exhibits 3-8), through May 31, 2021, Class Counsel devoted 20,866.3 hours to prosecuting this case, resulting in a total lodestar of $11,716,258.50. Id. ¶ 54. Additionally, more than 556.5 hours were devoted to this case by Class Counsel but are not being submitted for the lodestar calculation consistent with the Court's rulings in prior cases (and the time and expense protocol put into place by Co-Lead Counsel). Id. ¶ 59. Class Counsel could have spent those attorney hours litigating other matters, which weighs in favor of awarding the requested fees. See, e.g., Seaman v. Duke Univ., No. 1:15-CV-462, 2019 WL 4674758, at *4 (M.D.N.C. Sept. 25, 2019) (explaining that the "attorneys and staff have worked over 12,500 hours since it began" and "spent over $3 million from their own pockets litigating this case," which "was time and money the attorneys could have directed to other simpler and less risky opportunities" supported the fee request); Genworth, 210 F. Supp. 3d at 844-45 (finding that "counsel for plaintiffs devoted an enormous amount of time and effort into this case, totaling more than 66,000 hours and investing more than three million dollars in fees towards consulting experts" to be among the considerations that "support the attorneys' fees award"). The prodigious time and resources Class Counsel committed to this case weigh in favor of the requested fee.

7. Public Policy Considerations Support the Requested Fee.

"[A] central factor in fixing the amount of attorneys' fees is to ensure that competent, experienced counsel will be encouraged to undertake the often risky and arduous task of representing a class . . . ." Mills, 265 F.R.D. at 260. "Congress has expressed its belief that private antitrust litigation is one of the surest weapons for effective enforcement of the antitrust laws."

Minnesota Mining & Mfg. Co. v. New Jersey Wood Finishing Co., 381 U.S. 311, 318 (1965). In complex cases, fee awards have been enhanced by courts "to provide an incentive for competent lawyers to pursue such actions in the future." In re Microstrategy, Inc. Sec. Litig., 172 F. Supp. 2d 778, 788 (E.D. Va. 2001). Public policy "generally favors attorneys' fees that will induce attorneys to act and protect individuals who may not be able to act for themselves but also will not create an incentive to bring unmeritorious actions." Jones, 601 F. Supp. 2d at 765 (citing In re Merrill Lynch Tyco Research Sec. Litig., 249 F.R.D. 124, 142 (S.D.N.Y. 2008); Microstrategy, 172 F. Supp. 2d at 789 n.36). "The cost and difficulty [of bringing a meritorious complex class action] naturally stands as a deterrent from doing so, and one object of an award of attorneys' fees should be to counteract this deterrence and incentivize competent attorneys to pursue these cases when necessary." Mills, 265 F.R.D. at 263; see also In re Se. Milk Antitrust Litig., No. 2:08-MD-1000, 2013 WL 2155387, at *5 (E.D. Tenn. May 17, 2013) ("[F]ailing to fully compensate class counsel for the excellent work done and the various substantial risks taken would undermine society's interest in the private litigation of antitrust cases."). Public policy considerations support awarding the requested fee.

8. One-Third of the Settlement Fund Is a Typical and Reasonable Fee Award for Cases Similar to this One.

A fee award of one-third of the Settlement Fund reflects a real-world arm's length transaction between the Class and Class Counsel and is a generally accepted percentage in the Fourth Circuit, as evidenced by Judge Gibney's recent ruling in the similar nationwide price-fixing class action In re: Interior Molded Doors Antitrust Litig., No. 3:18-cv-00718-JAG (E.D. Va. June 3, 2021), in which he awarded class counsel attorneys' fees of one-third of a $61,600,000 settlement, plus interest (a copy of the order is attached as Clark Decl. Ex. 10); see also Seaman, 2019 WL 4674758, at *3; In re Titanium Dioxide Antitrust Litig., No. 10-CV-00318(RDB), 2013

WL 6577029, at *1 (D. Md. Dec. 13, 2013); In re Polyester Staple Antitrust Litig., MDL 3:03CV1516, Order and Final Judgment ¶ 10 (W.D.N.C. June 24, 2008) (a copy of the order is attached as Clark Decl. Ex. 11. Here, the requested fee award is 1) well within the acceptable range of attorneys' fee awards in protracted, complex, and expensive litigation such as this, and 2) justified by the remarkable results obtained for the Class and the risks faced by Class Counsel.

Class Counsel's fee request is consistent with awards in similar cases. District courts in this Circuit have frequently found a percentage award of one-third of a common fund to be within the range of reasonable percentage awards. See, e.g., In re: Allura Fiber Cement Siding Litig., 2:19-mn-02886-DCN, 2021 WL 2043531, at *4 (D.S.C. May 21, 2021) ("Courts in the Fourth Circuit have held that attorneys' fees in the amount of 1/3 of the settlement fund are reasonable."); Muhammad v. Nat'l City Mortg., Inc., No. 2:07-0423, 2008 WL 5377783, at *6 (S.D.W Va. Dec. 19, 2008) ("[T]he requested award of one-third of the common fund, plus costs, is reasonable under the circumstances of this case."); Smith, 2007 WL 119157, at *2 ("In this jurisdiction, contingent fees of one-third . . . are common.").

In particular, "[a]n award of one-third is also common in antitrust class actions." Seaman, 2019 WL 4674758, at *3; see, e.g., In re: Interior Molded Doors Antitrust Litig., No. 3:18-cv-00718-JAG (awarding one-third of $61,600,000 settlement); In re Anadarko Basin Oil & Gas Lease Antitrust Litig., No. CIV-16-209-HE, 2019 WL 1867446, at *2 (W.D. Okla. Apr. 25, 2019) (awarding one-third of $6,950,000 settlement); In re Domestic Drywall Antitrust Litig., No. 13-MD-2437, 2018 WL 3439454, at *20 (E.D. Pa. July 17, 2018) (awarding one-third of $190,059,056 settlement); In re: Urethane Antitrust Litig., No. 04-1616-JWL, 2016 WL 4060156, at *5 (D. Kan. July 29, 2016) (awarding one-third of $835 million settlement, noting "a one-third fee is customary in contingent-fee cases"); Standard Iron Works v. ArcelorMittal, No. 08 C 5214, 2014 WL 7781572, at *3 (N.D. Ill. Oct. 22, 2014) (awarding 33% of $163.9 million settlement); In re OSB Antitrust Litig., 2:06-cv-00826-PD, Order at 3 (E.D. Pa. Dec. 9, 2008), ECF No. 947 (approving requested one-third of $120 million settlement fund), attached as Clark Decl. Ex. 12.

As shown in the following chart, recent antitrust class actions in this Circuit have awarded one-third of the common fund in attorneys' fees.

Case	Settlement Amount	Attorney Fee Award	Percentage Fee Award
In re: Interior Molded Doors Antitrust Litig., No. 3:18-cv-00718-JAG (E.D. Va. June 3, 2021)	$61.6 million	$20.53 million	33 1/3%
Seaman v. Duke University, 2019 WL 4674758 (M.D.N.C. Sept. 25, 2019)	$54.5 million	$18.16 million	33 1/3%
In re Celebrex (Celecoxib) Antitrust Litig., 2018 WL 2382091 (E.D. Va. 2018)	$94 million	$30.72 million	33 1/3%
In re Titanium Dioxide Antitrust Litig., 2013 WL 6577029 (D. Md. Dec. 13, 2013)	$163.5 million	$54.5 million	33 1/3%
In re Polyester Staple Antitrust Litig., MDL 3:03CV1516, Order and Final Judgment ¶ 10 (W.D.N.C. June 24, 2008)	$33M	$10.89M	33%

Additionally, "[t]he percentage-of-the-fund method of awarding attorneys' fees in class actions should approximate the fee which would be negotiated if the lawyer were offering his or her services in the private marketplace." In re Remeron Direct Purchaser Antitrust Litig., No. CIV.03-0085 FSH, 2005 WL 3008808, at *16 (D.N.J. Nov. 9, 2005). "Attorneys regularly contract for contingent fees between 30% and 40% with their clients in non-class, commercial litigation." Id.; see also Montague v. Dixie Nat'l Life Ins. Co., No. 3:09-00687-JFA, 2011 WL 3626541, at *3 (D.S.C. Aug. 17, 2011) ("A 33% fee award from the common fund in this case is consistent with what is routinely privately negotiated in contingency fee litigation.").[19] Given that "a one-third contingency is standard in individual litigation; in antitrust litigation, a higher contingency would be reasonable, given the complexities and risks involved." Mylan Pharm., Inc. v. Warner Chilcott Pub. Ltd. Co., No. CV 12-3824, 2014 WL 12778314, at *7 (E.D. Pa. Sept. 15, 2014). Consideration of the awards in similar cases supports the requested award of one-third of the Settlement Fund.

Other courts have determined that a higher percentage rate is appropriate where discovery has been completed and the case is ready for trial. See Trombley v. Bank of America Corp., No. 08-cv-456-JD, 2012 WL 1599041, at *3 n.3 (D.R.I. May 4, 2012) ("Higher percentage rates for attorneys' fees generally are reserved for cases that settle after the completion of formal discovery when the case is close to trial.").[20] Class Counsel reached settlements with Olam and Birdsong after the close of discovery and continued preparing for trial against Golden Peanut; and, at the time of the Golden Peanut settlement, Class Counsel was ready for trial. Accordingly, the one-third award requested by Class Counsel is appropriate.

C. A Cross-Check of Class Counsel's Lodestar Confirms the Reasonableness of the Fee Request.

Courts often supplement their analysis of the percentage-of-fund method with the lodestar

[19] A one-third fee is a standard percentage in many fee agreements, including large, complex non-class cases. See Lester Brickman, ABA Regulation of Contingency Fees: Money Talks, Ethics Walks, 65 Fordham L. Rev. 247, 248 (1996) (noting that "standard contingency fees" are "usually thirty-three percent to forty percent of gross recoveries"); see also Blum, 465 U.S. at 903 (Brennan, J., concurring) ("In tort suits, an attorney might receive one-third of whatever amount the plaintiff recovers. In those cases, therefore, the fee is directly proportional to the recovery.").

[20] See also Puerto Rican Cabotage, 815 F. Supp. 2d at 463 ("[T]he Court maintains that attorneys' fee awards reasonably close to 33 1/3% should be reserved for cases which actually proceed to trial or settle on the eve of trial. The instant case did not even reach the discovery phase much less approach a trial date."); In re Syngenta AG MIR 162 Corn Litig., 357 F. Supp. 3d 1094, 1113 (D. Kan. 2018) ("The Court finds that a one-third fee is customary in contingent-fee cases (factor 5), or is even on the low side, as that figure is often higher in complex cases or cases that proceed to trial.").

cross-check. "The purpose of a lodestar cross-check is to determine whether a proposed fee award is excessive relative to the hours reportedly worked by counsel, or whether the fee is within some reasonable multiplier of the lodestar." Boyd, 299 F.R.D. at 467. "A lodestar cross-check first computes the plaintiffs' attorneys' reasonable hourly rate for the litigation and multiplies that rate by the number of hours dedicated to the case," and "then compares that figure with the attorneys' fees award, typically resulting in a positive multiplier." Genworth, 210 F. Supp. 3d at 845. When using the lodestar as a cross-check, courts "take a somewhat truncated approach to the lodestar analysis" and "generally do not apply the same scrutiny in a lodestar cross-check as they do when using the lodestar method to calculate the fee." Thomas, 2017 WL 1148283, at *6; see also Jones, 601 F. Supp. 2d 765 (explaining that when "using the lodestar method as a cross-check," the court "need not apply the 'exhaustive scrutiny' normally required by that method").

A lodestar cross-check in this case supports the requested fee. Despite the risks, complexities, and challenges posed by this litigation, Class Counsel invested 20,866.3 hours of attorney and other professional time on behalf of the Class from case inception through May 31, 2021. (Clark Decl. ¶ 54; Clark Decl. Exs. 2-9). The work by Class Counsel was non-duplicative and performed at the direction of Co-Lead Counsel, who also audited and confirmed the validity of Class Counsels' time and expense submissions and removed unapproved hours (and hours inconsistent with the Court's fee orders in prior cases) and expenses where appropriate. Id. at ¶¶ 50, 52, 59.

The historical hourly rates charged by Class Counsel are reasonable, based on each person's position, experience level, and location (and Co-Lead Counsel capped the hourly rate of attorneys conducting first-level document review at $350), and have been approved by multiple courts in similar antitrust class actions. (Clark Decl. ¶¶ 49-50).[21] These rates are comparable to the rates charged by other law firms with similar experience, expertise, and reputation, for similar services in the nation's leading legal markets. See, e.g., Seaman, 2019 WL 4674758, at *5 (listing comparable rates from national class action firm based in San Francisco).[22]

Based on Class Counsel's lodestar of $11,716,258.50, one-third of the Settlement Fund would result in a fee award of $34,250,000, which would be a multiplier of 2.92. Such a multiplier is well within accepted ranges for antitrust class actions generally, and is consistent with the fee rulings in similar cases within the Fourth Circuit. Indeed, "[d]istrict courts within the Fourth Circuit have regularly approved attorneys' fees awards with 2–3 times lodestar multipliers."

[21] Co-Lead Counsel elected to use lower, historical rates even though cases in the Fourth Circuit have deemed it appropriate to use current rates to account for the risk and delay in payment. See Daly v. Hill, 790 F.2d 1071, 1081 (4th Cir. 1986); Reaching Hearts Int'l, Inc. v. Prince George's Cty., 478 F. App'x 54, 60 (4th Cir. 2012).

[22] Co-Lead Counsel recognize that in some instances, Class Counsel's rates may be higher than the prevailing rates in Norfolk, Virginia. While a reasonable hourly rate is generally calculated by looking at the local market rates, in cases involving "complex issues requiring specialized experience"—such as this case—"it is reasonable to look beyond local rates in calculating the reasonable rate for a lodestar comparison." Seaman, 2019 WL 4674758, at *5; see also Sims v. BB&T Corp., 15-cv-732, 2019 WL 1993519, at *2 (M.D.N.C. May 6, 2019) (stating that "a national market rate is appropriate for matters involving complex issues requiring specialized expertise"); Kruger v. Novant Health, Inc., 1:14CV208, 2016 WL 6769066, at *4 (M.D.N.C. Sept. 29, 2016) ("This court finds the relevant market rate for cases such as the present case to be a nationwide market rate."). Class Counsel's hourly rates reflect their national class action practices specializing in complex, high-risk antitrust cases and are the rates they customarily charge in these types of cases. See Singleton v. Domino's Pizza, LLC, 976 F. Supp. 2d 665, 689 n.12 (D. Md. 2013) (finding hourly rates to be reasonable because, "while somewhat high for this district, [they] are within a reasonable range for firms with national class action practices"). Class Counsel's rates also likely compare favorably with those of Golden Peanut's and Olam's lead counsel, global law firms Kirkland & Ellis LLP and Latham & Watkins, LLP, based in Chicago and San Francisco respectively. See, e.g., First Interim Fee Appl. of Kirkland & Ellis at 9-10 & 62, In re: Barneys New York, Inc., No. 19-cv-36300 (S.D.N.Y. Bankr. Nov. 18, 2019), ECF No. 534 (listing average hourly rates for Kirkland & Ellis in bankruptcy matter as $1,332 for partner and $877 for associate, describing these rates as "equivalent to the hourly rates and corresponding rate structure used by K&E for other restructuring matters, as well as similar complex . . . litigation matters," and stating that "[t]he rates and rate structure reflect that such . . . complex matters are national in scope and typically involve great complexity, high stakes, and severe time pressures").

Genworth, 210 F. Supp. 3d at 845; see, e.g., Titanium Dioxide, 2013 WL 6577029 (court awarded attorneys' fees of one-third of settlement fund, which resulted in a multiplier of 2.39); In re Massey Energy Co. Sec. Litig., 3:12–cv–004560, Order Awarding Attorneys' Fees and Expenses at 2 (S.D.W. Va. June 4, 2014), ECF No. 203 (approving a 2.9 times lodestar multiplier); Microstrategy, 172 F. Supp. 2d at 789 (approving a 2.6 times lodestar multiplier); Deloach v. Philip Morris Cos., No. 1:00CV01235, 2003 WL 23094907, at *11 (M.D.N.C. Dec. 19, 2003) (approving a 4.45 times lodestar multiplier); Seaman, 2019 WL 4674758, at *6 (approving a 2.89 times lodestar multiplier); see also Singleton, 976 F. Supp. 2d at 689 ("Courts have generally held that lodestar multipliers falling between 2 and 4.5 demonstrate a reasonable attorneys' fee."). Further, the lodestar figure above does not include the substantial amount of time that Class Counsel will be required to devote to overseeing the claims administration process and the distribution of settlement funds to the Class. These additional hours, for which Class Counsel will not receive any additional compensation from the Settlement Fund, effectively reduce the multiplier, and should be considered in evaluating the reasonableness of the fee request.

Consideration of all the lodestar cross-check factors confirms the reasonableness of the requested fee.

IV. CLASS COUNSEL'S REQUEST FOR REIMBURSEMENT OF LITIGATION EXPENSES IS REASONABLE.

Class Counsel also request reimbursement of reasonable and necessary litigation costs in the amount of $7,688.02. As set forth in the Clark Decl., ¶¶ 62-64, $3,052.78 of these costs relate to three invoices that were received after the filing and amendment of Plaintiffs' initial motion for an award of costs and expenses and thus were not part of the costs and expenses previously awarded by the Court on April 8, 2021. The remaining $4,635.24 in costs relate to expenses paid directly by Class Counsel firms after the cut-off date for firm-specific costs that were included in Plaintiffs' first request for reimbursement. Id.

"It is well-established that plaintiffs who are entitled to recover attorneys' fees are also entitled to recover reasonable litigation-related expenses as part of their overall award." Singleton, 976 F. Supp. 2d at 689. Such costs may include "those reasonable out-of-pocket expenses incurred by the attorney which are normally charged to a fee-paying client, in the course of providing legal services." Spell v. McDaniel, 852 F.2d 762, 771 (4th Cir. 1988) (internal quotations omitted).

Class Counsel's request for the reimbursement of $7,688.02 in expenses from the Settlement Fund is reasonable and should be approved.

V. THE REQUESTED SERVICE AWARDS ARE REASONABLE.

Plaintiffs also request approval for a $40,000 service award for each of the six Class Representatives. "At the end of a successful class action, it is common for trial courts to compensate class representatives for the time and effort they invested to benefit the class." Reynolds v. Fidelity Invs. Institutional Operations Co., 1:18-CV-423, 2020 WL 92092, at *4 (M.D.N.C. Jan. 8, 2020). Service awards are "intended to compensate class representatives for work done on behalf of the class, to make up for financial or reputational risk undertaken in bringing the action, and, sometimes, to recognize their willingness to act as a private attorney general." Brown v. Transurban USA, Inc., 318 F.R.D. 560, 578 (E.D. Va. 2016) (quoting Manuel, 2016 WL 1070819, at *6). Among the factors to be considered in determining the reasonableness of a service award are "the actions the plaintiff has taken to protect the interests of the class, the degree to which the class has benefited from those actions, and the amount of time and effort the plaintiff expended in pursuing the litigation." Manuel, 2016 WL 1070819, at *6 (quoting Cook v. Niedert, 142 F.3d 1004, 1016 (7th Cir. 1998)). Service awards are particularly appropriate where, as here, "there was no preceding governmental action alleging a conspiracy and taking a high-profile role threatened to jeopardize class representatives' relationships with their suppliers."

Linerboard, 2004 WL 1221350, at *18.

Here, in a unique circumstance, it was the Class Representatives, not a government agency, that helped initiate this case, followed by important assistance in the investigation and prosecution of Plaintiffs' claims against Defendants. Put simply, this case would not exist without the Class Representatives, all of whom spent significant time assisting this case. They (1) responded to written discovery and collected, reviewed, and produced documents relating to their claims; (2) prepared for and sat for lengthy depositions by defense counsel; (3) reviewed and approved the complaint and other substantive pleadings; and (4) considered and approved the settlements. Clark Decl. ¶¶ 65-75. The Class Representatives pursued the litigation knowing that Defendants might retaliate against them, thus risking their livelihoods. They assumed this risk and responsibility to benefit the entire Class, even though their claims were not among the largest. See Archbold, 2015 WL 4276295, at *6 ("Had the Plaintiff not stepped forward to prosecute these claims, the rest of the class would have received nothing."). By stepping forward and diligently performing their duties as Class Representatives, they have performed a valuable public service that will benefit thousands of peanut farmers.

The requested service awards are also in accord with amounts approved in other class action litigations in this Circuit and around the country, including most recently in the Interior Molded Doors Antitrust Litig., where Judge Gibney approved $75,000 service awards to each class representative. See Clark Decl. Ex. 10. See, e.g., Seaman, 2019 WL 4674758, at *7 (awarding class representative $125,000); Celebrex, 2018 WL 2382091, at *5 (three class representatives each awarded $100,000); Titanium Dioxide, 2013 WL 6577029, at *1 (one class representative awarded $125,000 and two class representatives awarded $25,000 each); see also In re High-Tech Emp. Antitrust Litig., No. 11-CV-02555509-LHK, 2015 WL 5158730, at *17 (awarding one class representative $140,000 and four class representatives $100,000 each); Marchbanks Truck Serv. v. Comdata Network, Inc., No. 07-1078-JKG, 2014 WL 12738907, at *3-4 (E.D. Pa. July 14, 2014) (awarding $150,000 to one class representative and $75,000 each to two others).

VI. CONCLUSION

For the reasons discussed above, Plaintiffs respectfully request that the Court: (1) award Class Counsel one-third of the Settlement Fund as attorneys' fees; (2) order reimbursement of litigation expenses incurred by Class Counsel in the amount of $7,688.02; and (3) award each Class Representative a service award of $40,000.

Dated: June 7, 2021

/s/ Kevin J. Funk
Wyatt B. Durrette, Jr. (VSB No. 04719)
Kevin J. Funk (VSB No. 65465)
DURRETTE, ARKEMA, GERSON & GILL PC
Bank of America Center
1111 East Main Street, 16th Floor
Richmond, VA 23219
Tel: (804) 775-6900
Fax: (804) 775-6911
wdurrette@dagglaw.com
kfunk@dagglaw.com

Brian D. Clark (MN No. 00390069)
(admitted pro hac vice)
W. Joseph Bruckner (MN No. 0147758)
(admitted pro hac vice)
Simeon A. Morbey (MN No. 0391338)
(admitted pro hac vice)
LOCKRIDGE GRINDAL NAUEN P.L.L.P.
100 Washington Avenue South, Suite 2200
Minneapolis, MN 55401
Tel: (612) 339-6900
Fax: (612) 339-0981
bdclark@locklaw.com
wjbruckner@locklaw.com
samorbey@locklaw.com

Kimberly A. Justice (PA No. 85124)
(admitted pro hac vice)
Jonathan M. Jagher (PA No. 204721)
(admitted pro hac vice)
FREED KANNER LONDON & MILLEN LLC
923 Fayette Street
Conshohocken, PA 19428
Tel: (610) 234-6487
Fax: (224) 632-4521
kjustice@fklmlaw.com
jjagher@fklmlaw.com

William H. London (IL No. 6196353)
(admitted pro hac vice)
Michael E. Moskovitz (IL No. 6237728)
(admitted pro hac vice)
Brian M. Hogan (IL No. 6286419)
(admitted pro hac vice)
FREED KANNER LONDON & MILLEN LLC
2201 Waukegan Road, #130
Bannockburn, IL 60015
Tel: (224) 632-4500
Fax: (224) 632-4521
blondon@fklmlaw.com
mmoskovitz@fklmlaw.com
bhogan@fklmlaw.com

Jeffrey J. Corrigan (NY No. 2372654)
(admitted pro hac vice)
Jeffrey L. Spector (PA No. 207208)
(admitted pro hac vice)
SPECTOR ROSEMAN & KODROFF, P.C.
Two Commerce Square
2001 Market Street, Suite 3420
Philadelphia, PA 19103
Tel.: (215) 496-0300
Fax: (215) 496-6611
jcorrigan@srkattorneys.com
jspector@srkattorneys.com

Counsel for Plaintiffs

CERTIFICATE OF SERVICE

I hereby certify that on June 7, 2021, I electronically filed the foregoing with the Clerk of the Court using the CM/ECF system, which will automatically email notification of such filing to all counsel of record.

To the best of my knowledge, there are no other attorneys or parties who require service by U.S. Mail.

Dated: June 7, 2021

/s/ Kevin J. Funk

Kevin J. Funk (VSB No. 65465)
DURRETTE, ARKEMA, GERSON & GILL PC
1111 East Main Street, 16th Floor
Richmond, VA 23219
Tel: (804) 775-6900
Fax: (804) 775-6911
Email: kfunk@dagglaw.com

Liaison Counsel for Plaintiffs and the Class

CERTIFICATE OF SERVICE

I hereby certify that on June 7, 2021, I electronically filed the foregoing with the Clerk of the Court using the CM/ECF system, which will automatically e-mail notification of such filing to all counsel of record.

To the best of my knowledge, there are no other attorneys or parties who require service by U.S. Mail.

/s/ Kevin J. Funk
Kevin J. Funk (VSB No. 65465)
DURRETTE, ARKEMA, GERSON & GILL PC
1111 East Main Street, 16th Floor
Richmond, Virginia 23219
Tel: (804) 775-6900
Fax: (804) 775-6911
kfunk@dagglaw.com

TAB 40A

IN THE UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
FOR THE EASTERN DISTRICT OF MICHIGAN
SOUTHERN DIVISION

IN RE: AUTOMOTIVE PARTS ANTITRUST LITIGATION	:	Master File No. 12-md-02311
PRODUCT(S):	:
AUTOMOTIVE WIRE HARNESSES	:	2:12-cv-00102
HEATER CONTROL PANELS	:	2:12-cv-00402
BEARINGS	:	2:12-cv-00502
ANTI-VIBRATION RUBBER PARTS	:	2:13-cv-00802
WINDSHIELD WIPERS	:	2:13-cv-00902
RADIATORS	:	2:13-cv-01002
STARTERS	:	2:13-cv-01102
AUTOMOTIVE LAMPS	:	2:12-cv-01202
IGNITION COILS	:	2:13-cv-01402
HID BALLASTS	:	2:12-cv-01702
ELECTRONIC POWERED STEERING ASSEMBLIES	:	2:13-cv-01902
FAN MOTORS	:	2:13-cv-02102
FUEL INJECTION SYSTEMS	:	2:13-cv-02202
POWER WINDOW MOTORS	:	2:13-cv-02302
VALVE TIMING CONTROL DEVICES	:	2:13-cv-02502
WINDSHIELD WASHERS	:	2:13-cv-02802
CONSTANT VELOCITY JOINT BOOT PRODUCTS	:	2:14-cv-02902
SPARK PLUGS	:	2:15-cv-03002
SHOCK ABSORBERS	:	2:16-cv-03302
BODY SEALING PRODUCTS	:	2:16-cv-03402
INTERIOR TRIM	:	2:16-cv-03502
BRAKE HOSES	:	2:16-cv-03602
EXHAUST SYSTEMS	:	2:16-cv-03702
CERAMIC SUBSTRATES	:	2:16-cv-03802
MINIMODULES	:	2:17-cv-04302
SIDE DOOR LATCHES	:	2:17-cv-13005
This Document Relates to:	:	Hon. Marianne O. Battani
AUTOMOBILE DEALERSHIP ACTIONS	:

ORDER REGARDING AUTO DEALERS' MOTION FOR AN AWARD OF ATTORNEYS' FEES, REIMBURSEMENT OF LITIGATION EXPENSES, AND A SET ASIDE FOR FUTURE LITIGATION EXPENSES FROM ROUND THREE SETTLEMENTS

The above matter came before the Court on the Auto Dealers' motion for an award of attorneys' fees, reimbursement of litigation expenses, and a set aside for future litigation expenses relating to a third round of Auto Dealer settlements ("Round Three settlements").

The Court has reviewed the memorandum submitted by the Auto Dealers in support of their motion and has also reviewed the various declarations and submissions relating to that motion. The Court held a hearing on September 26, 2018 and appearances were noted on the record.

Based on the record and proceedings before the Court, it is hereby ORDERED:

1. The Court has considered the relevant case law and authority and finds that awards of attorneys' fees and reimbursement of expenses to the Auto Dealers and their counsel are appropriate under Fed. R. Civ. P. 23(h) and Fed.R.Civ.P. 54(d)(2). Notice of the request for fees and reimbursement of expenses was provided to the potential class members via direct and published notice and a settlement web site that identified and provided copies of relevant documents and pleadings.

2. The Court has considered the reaction of the class members to this fee request and request for reimbursement of expenses.

3. The Court engages in a two-part analysis when assessing the reasonableness of a petition seeking an award of attorneys' fees. In re Cardinal Health Ins. Sec. Litig., 528 F.Supp.2d 752, 760 (S.D. Ohio 2007). The Court first determines the method of calculating the attorneys' fees: it applies either the percentage of the fund approach or the lodestar method. Id.; Van Horn v. Nationwide Prop. & Cas. Inc. Co., 436 F. App'x 496, 498 (6th Cir. 2011).

4. The Court has the discretion to select the appropriate method for calculating attorneys' fees "in light of the unique characteristics of class actions in general, and of the unique circumstances of the actual cases before them." Rawlings v. Prudential-Bache Properties, Inc.,

9 F.3d 513, 516 (6th Cir. 1993). In common fund cases, the award of attorneys' fees need only "be reasonable under the circumstances." Id., 9 F.3d at 516. The Court has also analyzed and weighed the six factors described in Ramey v. Cincinnati Enquirer, Inc., 508 F.2d 1188 (6th Cir. 1974).

5. The Court will award fees to the Auto Dealers using the percentage-of-the-fund approach. This method of awarding attorneys' fees is preferred in this district because it eliminates disputes about the reasonableness of rates and hours, conserves judicial resources, and aligns the interests of class counsel and the class members. Rawlings, 9 F.3d at 515; In re Packaged Ice Antitrust Litig., 08-MDL-01952, 2011 WL 6209188, at *16 (E.D. Mich. Dec. 13, 2011); Delphi, 248 F.R.D. at 502; Cardinal, 528 F.Supp.2d at 762 (the Sixth Circuit has "explicitly approved the percentage approach in common fund cases."); In re Skelaxin (Metaxalone) Antitrust Litig., 2014 WL 2946459, *1 (E.D. Tenn. Jun. 30, 2014).

6. The Court GRANTS the Auto Dealers' request for reimbursement of past litigation expenses in the amount of $358,125.09. The past litigation expenses incurred in specific parts cases involved in these settlements, as set forth in the declarations submitted by counsel for the Auto Dealers, shall be deducted from the settlement funds available in those cases. The past litigation expenses incurred in the general prosecution of the cases with settlements currently before the Court shall be reimbursed on a pro rata basis from each of the settlements.

7. The Court GRANTS the Auto Dealers' request to establish a fund for future litigation expenses in the amount of $3,455,423.97. The money used to create the future litigation fund shall also be deducted from the settlements on a pro rata basis. As indicated in the memorandum submitted in support of this motion, the future litigation expenses will only be used in the cases at issue in the settlements currently before the Court. If the future litigation fund is not fully used, the money shall be returned to the members of those settlement classes that contributed to the future litigation fund. However, if this fund or the earlier litigation funds approved by the Court are not fully used, counsel for the Auto Dealers are awarded a fee of 30 percent of the unused funds when those funds are disbursed to class members. See 2:12-cv-00101-MOB-MKM (ECF Doc. No. 495, para. 22).

8. The Court authorizes class counsel for the Auto Dealers to pay the costs of the settlement notice and claims administration (being handled by Gilardi & Co.) from the settlement funds on a pro rata basis.

9. Counsel for the Auto Dealers request a fee award of 30 percent of the settlement funds remaining after the future litigation fund and the cost of class notice and claim administration have been deducted. The award requested is within the range of fee awards made by courts in this Circuit. In re Prandin Direct Purchaser Antitrust Litig., 2015 WL 1396473 (E.D. Mich. Jan. 20, 2015) (awarding one-third of the fund); In re Packaged Ice Antitrust Litig., 2011 WL 6209188, at *19; Skelaxin, 2014 WL 2946459, at *1; In re Se. Milk Antitrust Litig., 2013 WL 2155387, at *8 (E.D. Tenn. May 17, 2013); Thacker v. Chesapeake Appalachia, L.L.C., 695 F. Supp. 2d, 521, 528 (E.D. Ky. 2010); Bessey v. Packerland Plainwell, Inc., No. 4:06-CV-95, 2007 WL 3173972, at *4 (W.D. Mich. 2007); Delphi, 248 F.R.D. at 502-03; In re National Century Financial Enterprises, Inc. Investment Litig., 2009 WL 1473975 (S.D. Ohio, May 27, 2009); Kogan v. AIMCO Fox Chase, L.P., 193 F.R.D. 496, 503 (E.D. Mich. 2000).

10. Other federal courts have approved fees in this range in complex antitrust class action litigation and this Court has used that percentage, or more, for other fee awards in this MDL. See 2:12-cv-00101-MOB-MKM (ECF Doc. No. 495, para. 22) (30 percent); 2:12-cv-00102-MOB-MKM (ECF Doc. No. 401, para. 11) (33 percent).

11. The Court has considered the six Ramey factors in weighing a fee award to counsel for the Auto Dealers: (1) the value of the benefits rendered to the class; (2) society's stake in rewarding attorneys who produce such benefits in order to maintain an incentive to others; (3) whether the services were undertaken on a contingent fee basis; (4) the value of the services on an hourly basis [the lodestar cross-check]; (5) the complexity of the litigation; and (6) the professional skill and standing of counsel on both sides. Ramey, 508 F.2d at 1194–97.

12. The Court has carefully analyzed the Round Three settlements and the Ramey factors and concludes that the factors are met and justify a fee award to counsel for the Auto Dealers. The settlements total more than $115 million and provide substantial cash and non-monetary benefits including cooperation from the settling defendants and injunctive relief prohibiting certain conduct. Counsel has worked on a contingent basis and the results of this litigation have never been certain. The legal and factual issues are complicated and the parties have zealously asserted their claims and defenses. Given the length and tenacity of this litigation, the Court is satisfied that the Round Three settlements were the result of arms' length and good faith negotiations between informed and experienced counsel. Some of the settlements were only reached with the assistance of mediators and multiple mediation sessions.

13. Courts in the Sixth Circuit weigh "society's stake in rewarding attorneys [who obtain favorable outcomes for a class] in order to maintain an incentive to others," and counsel's success in complex antitrust litigation "counsels in favor of a generous fee." Cardizem, 218 F.R.D. at 534 (internal quotation marks omitted). The substantial Auto Dealer recoveries to-date serve a strong public policy of holding accountable those who violate United States antitrust laws, thereby promoting fair competition and pricing. See 2:12-cv-00103-MOB-MKM (ECF Doc. No. 578, para. 13).

14. This is an extremely complex litigation with more than 160 defendants and over 40 different Auto Dealer class actions involving different parts, different groups of alleged conspirators, and different time periods. Some of the defendants were indicted and pleaded guilty to antitrust violations while others were not indicted, did not plead guilty, or did not pay fines to a governmental entity. All defendants have vigorously disputed the applicability of Federal Rule 23 to litigated classes and have denied that the Auto Dealers sustained an antitrust injury.

15. Working on a contingent basis, counsel for the Auto Dealers have skillfully guided the cases before the Court in this motion to substantial settlements. When the Round Three settlements are added to the first two rounds of Auto Dealer settlements approved by the Court, nearly $300 million has been recovered for the benefit of the Auto Dealer settlement class members.

16. The Ramey factors and a cross-check of the lodestar incurred by counsel for the Auto Dealers indicate that the fee requested constitutes fair and reasonable compensation for the risks assumed, the work done, and the benefits achieved for the members of the settlement classes. The lodestar currently totals $70,237,227.70 when using counsel's current customary rates.

17. When performing the lodestar cross-check, the Court reviewed the hourly rates of Auto Dealer counsel and find that they are reasonable for attorneys with specialized experience in bringing antitrust cases. "A reasonable hourly rate is determined according to the prevailing market rates in the relevant community. To ascertain that community, district courts 'are free to look to a national market, an area of specialization market, or any other market they believe appropriate to fairly compensate particular attorneys in individual cases." Ford v. Fed.-Mogul Corp., No. 2:09-cv-14448, 2015 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 3399, at *2-3 (E.D. Mich. Jan. 7, 2015) (quoting McHugh v. Olympia Entm't, Inc., 37 F. App'x 730, 740 (6th Cir. 2002)). Even if counsel's "requested rates are high for this district. . . Class Counsel should be compensated at rates that reflect their skill and their success." Schumacher v. AK Steel Corp. Ret. Accumulation Pension Plan, 995 F. Supp. 2d 835, 847 (S.D. Ohio 2014).

18. The rates used by Auto Dealer counsel in this MDL are well within the parameters of reasonableness. In national markets, "partners routinely charge between $1,200 and $1,300 an hour, with top rates at several large law firms exceeding $1,400.[1] In specialties such as "antitrust and high-stakes litigation and appeals . . . [f]or lawyers at the very top of those fields, hourly rates can hit $1,800 or even $1,950." Id. Some "difference makers" in the most complex fields, including antitrust litigation, even charge $2,000 an hour.[2] This Court has recognized that rates in this matter "are well in line with the market, with recent reports explaining that senior lawyers at top law firms routinely charge well over $1,000." See, e.g., 2:12-cv-00103-MOB-MKM (Doc. No. 578) at 7.

19. Interim Co-Lead Counsel for the Auto Dealers performed a thorough analysis of the Auto Dealers' attorneys' time submissions and have, in this motion and in prior motions, provided the Court with detailed information supporting their lodestar. The rates are justified by the many years of experience, expertise, and results in prosecuting antitrust class actions. Counsel for the Auto Dealers achieved excellent results while litigating claims against Defendants that are represented by some of the most skilled and prominent antitrust defense lawyers in the world.

---

[1] See Sara Randazzo & Jacqueline Palank, Legal Fees Cross New Mark: $1,500 an Hour, The Wall Street Journal (Feb. 16, 2016), https://www.wsj.com/articles/legal-fees-reach-new-pinnacle¬1-500-an-hour-1454960708; see also Martha Neil, Top partner billing rates at BigLaw firms approach $1,500 per hour, ABA Journal (Feb. 8, 2016), http://www.abajournal.comnews/article/toppartner billing rates at biglaw firms nudge 1500 per hour.

[2] See Natalie Rodriguez, Meet the $2,000 An Hour Attorney: What it Takes to Earn Top Dollar in the Rate-Crunch Era, Law360, June 11, 2016, https://www.1aw360.com/in-depth/articles/804421 ("[E]arlier this year, BTI Consulting Group found that a handful of in-house counsel had paid as much as $2,000 per hour, after discounts, to attorneys in the past year. Several other in-house counsel, meanwhile, had paid highs of $1,900 per hour or $1,800 per hour.")

20. The Court GRANTS an award of attorneys' fees to counsel for the Auto Dealers in the amount of $33,317,881.00. These attorneys' fees, shall be paid on a pro rata basis from the net settlement funds available for each Round Three settlement currently before the Court.

21. Using the lodestar cross-check methodology and reviewing the total fees awarded with the lodestar generated on these cases from the inception of the litigation to June 30, 2018, the 30 percent fee awarded results in a lodestar multiplier of 1.09 when using counsel's customary rates. This modest multiplier is well within, if not below, the range of reasonable multipliers awarded in similar contingent fee cases. See, e.g., In re Cardinal Health Ins. Sec. Litig., 528 F. Supp. 2d at 767-68 (approving multiplier of 6, and observing that "[m]ost courts agree that the typical lodestar multiplier" on a large class action "ranges from 1.3 to 4.5"); In re Prandin Direct Purchase Antitrust Litig., 2015 WL 1396473, at *4 (3.01 multiplier). This fee award is reasonable in light of the complexity of this litigation, the results achieved for the class members, the risks assumed by counsel for the Auto Dealers, and the work remaining to be done on these cases and for which fees may or may not be available.

22. Interim Co-Lead Counsel for the Auto Dealers are authorized to allocate the attorneys' fees and expenses awarded herein among counsel who performed work on behalf of the Auto Dealers in accordance with Interim Co-Lead Counsel's assessment of each firm's contribution to the prosecution of the cases involved in the settlements.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

Date: November 5, 2018

s/Marianne O. Battani
MARIANNE O. BATTANI
United States District Judge

CERTIFICATE OF SERVICE

The undersigned certifies that the foregoing Order was served upon counsel of record via the Court's ECF System to their respective email addresses or First Class U.S. mail to the non-ECF participants on November 5, 2018.

s/ Kay Doaks
Case Manager

TAB 40B

IN THE UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
FOR THE EASTERN DISTRICT OF MICHIGAN
SOUTHERN DIVISION

IN RE: AUTOMOTIVE PARTS ANTITRUST LITIGATION	:	Master File No. 12-md-02311
PRODUCT(S):	:
AUTOMOTIVE WIRE HARNESSES	:	2:12-cv-00102
HEATER CONTROL PANELS	:	2:12-cv-00402
BEARINGS	:	2:12-cv-00502
ANTI-VIBRATION RUBBER PARTS	:	2:13-cv-00802
WINDSHIELD WIPERS	:	2:13-cv-00902
RADIATORS	:	2:13-cv-01002
STARTERS	:	2:13-cv-01102
AUTOMOTIVE LAMPS	:	2:12-cv-01202
IGNITION COILS	:	2:13-cv-01402
HID BALLASTS	:	2:12-cv-01702
ELECTRONIC POWERED STEERING ASSEMBLIES	:	2:13-cv-01902
FAN MOTORS	:	2:13-cv-02102
FUEL INJECTION SYSTEMS	:	2:13-cv-02202
POWER WINDOW MOTORS	:	2:13-cv-02302
VALVE TIMING CONTROL DEVICES	:	2:13-cv-02502
WINDSHIELD WASHERS	:	2:13-cv-02802
CONSTANT VELOCITY JOINT BOOT PRODUCTS	:	2:14-cv-02902
SPARK PLUGS	:	2:15-cv-03002
SHOCK ABSORBERS	:	2:16-cv-03302
BODY SEALING PRODUCTS	:	2:16-cv-03402
INTERIOR TRIM	:	2:16-cv-03502
BRAKE HOSES	:	2:16-cv-03602
EXHAUST SYSTEMS	:	2:16-cv-03702
CERAMIC SUBSTRATES	:	2:16-cv-03802
MINIMODULES	:	2:17-cv-04302
SIDE DOOR LATCHES	:	2:17-cv-13005
This Document Relates to:	:	Hon. Marianne O. Battani
AUTOMOBILE DEALERSHIP ACTIONS	:

AUTO DEALERS' MEMORANDUM IN SUPPORT OF MOTION FOR AN AWARD OF ATTORNEYS' FEES, REIMBURSEMENT OF LITIGATION EXPENSES, AND SET ASIDE FOR FUTURE LITIGATION EXPENSES FROM ROUND THREE SETTLEMENTS

Gerard V. Mantese (P34424)
Mantese Honigman, P.C.
1361 E. Big Beaver Road
Troy, MI 48083
Telephone: (248) 457-9200 Ext. 203
gmantese@manteselaw.com

Interim Liaison Counsel For The Automobile Dealer Plaintiffs

Jonathan W. Cuneo
Cuneo Gilbert & LaDuca, LLP
4725 Wisconsin Ave., NW
Suite 200
Washington, DC 20016
Telephone: (202) 789-3960
jonc@cuneolaw.com

Don Barrett
Barrett Law Group, P.A.
P.O. Box 927
404 Court Square
Lexington, MS 39095
Telephone: (662) 834-2488
dbarrett@barrettlawgroup.com

Shawn M. Raiter
Larson King, LLP
2800 Wells Fargo Place
30 East Seventh Street
St. Paul, MN 55101
Telephone: (651) 312-6500
sraiter@larsonking.com

Interim Co-Lead Counsel for Automobile Dealer Plaintiffs

Statement of the Issues Presented

1. Should counsel for the Auto Dealers, who obtained more than $115 million in this group of Auto Dealer class settlements, be awarded a portion of those settlements for attorneys' fees?

   Yes

2. Should counsel for the Auto Dealers be reimbursed the out-of-pocket expenses they paid in pursuing the cases in which settlements have been presented?

   Yes

3. Should a portion of the settlement funds be set aside for future expenses incurred on behalf of the Auto Dealers in the cases involved in these settlements?

   Yes

Controlling or Most Apposite Authorities

Blum v. Stenson, 465 U.S. 886, 104 S. Ct. 1541, 79 L. Ed. 2d 891 (1984)

Boeing Co. v. Van Gemert, 444 U.S. 472, 100 S. Ct. 745, 62 L. Ed. 2d 676 (1980)

In re Cardizem CD Antitrust Litig., 218 F.R.D. 508 (E.D. Mich. 2003)

In re Delphi Corp. Sec., Derivative & ERISA Litig., 248 F.R.D. 483 (E.D. Mich. 2008)

Rawlings v. Prudential-Bache Properties, Inc., 9 F.3d 513 (6th Cir. 1993)

Table of Contents

Page

Statement of Issues Presented i

Controlling or Most Apposite Authorities ii

Table of Authorities v

Background 1

Factual and Procedural Background 2

A. Disbursement of Round One and Round Two Settlements 2

B. Settlements Achieved Since the Round Two Final Approvals 2

C. Counsel for Auto Dealers Have Devoted Significant Resources to Obtain the Auto Dealer Settlements in this Litigation 5

1. The Complexity of this Litigation 5

2. The Time and Resources Devoted to Achieve These Settlements 5

3. The Auto Dealers' Unique Position in this Litigation 10

D. The Settlements Were Reached After Arms-Length Negotiation and Adversarial Proceedings 10

Attorneys' Fees and Expenses Standard of Review 11

Argument 11

I. The Court Should Reimburse Class Counsel for Unreimbursed Past Expenses and Should Approve a Set Aside for Future Litigation Expenses 11

A. Reimbursement of Costs Already Incurred 12

B. Future Litigation Expenses 13

II. The Court Should Award Attorneys' Fees to Counsel for the Auto Dealers 15

A. The Court Should Again Use the Percentage-of-the-Fund Approach 15

B. The Fee Requested by Counsel for the Auto Dealers is Appropriate 17

C. Consideration of the Factors Used by the Sixth Circuit Supports the Requested Fee Award 22

1. Counsel Secured Valuable Benefits for Auto Dealers 22

2. Society Has an Important Stake in Rewarding Attorneys With Reasonable Fees in this Litigation 23

3. Counsel for the Auto Dealers Have Worked On A Contingent Basis 24

4. The Complexity of the Litigation Supports the Requested Fee 25

5. Skill and Experience of Counsel 26

6. A Lodestar Crosscheck Confirms that the Requested Fee Is Reasonable 26

Conclusion 31

Table of Authorities

Page

Cases

Allapattah Services, Inc. v. Exxon Corp.,
454 F. Supp. 2d 1185, 1213 (S.D. Fla. 2006) 19, 20

Alpine Pharmacy, Inc. v. Chas. Pfizer & Co., 481 F.2d 1045 (2d Cir.), cert. denied, 414 U.S. 1092 (1973) 23

B & H Med., L.L.C. v. ABP Admin., Inc.,
No. 02–73615, 2006 WL 123785 (E.D. Mich. Jan.13, 2006) 13

Bessey v. Packerland Plainwell, Inc.,
No. 4:06-CV-95, 2007 WL 3173972 (W.D. Mich. 2007) 18

Blum v. Stenson,
465 U.S. 886, 104 S. Ct. 1541, 79 L. Ed. 2d 891 (1984) 16

Boeing Co. v. Van Gemert,
444 U.S. 472, 100 S. Ct. 745, 62 L. Ed. 2d 676 (1980) 16

Ford v. Fed.-Mogul Corp.,
No. 2:09-cv-14448, 2015 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 3399 (E.D. Mich. Jan. 7, 2015) 28

Fournier v. PFS Invs., Inc.,
997 F.Supp. 828, 831-32 (E.D. Mich. 1998) 16

Heekin v. Anthem, Inc.,
No. 1:05-CV-01908-TWP, 2012 WL 5878032 (S.D. Ind. Nov. 20, 2012) 18

In re Air Cargo Shipping Servs. Antitrust Litig.,
No. 06-MD-1775 JG VVP, 2011 WL 2909162 (E.D.N.Y. July 15, 2011) 15, 27

In re Air Cargo Shipping Serv. Litig. , No. 06-md-1775, 2015 WL 5918273
(E.D.N.Y. Oct. 9, 2015) 15

In re Ampicillin Antitrust Litig.,
526 F. Supp. 494 (D.D.C. 1981) 19

In re AremisSoft Corp., Sec., Litig.,
210 F.R.D. 109 (D.N.J. 2002) 19

In re California Micro Devices Sec. Litig.,
965 F.Supp. 1327 (N.D. Cal. 1997)) 14

In re Cardinal Health Inc. Sec. Litig.,
528 F. Supp. 2d 752 (S.D. Ohio 2007) 11, 16, 24, 26, 30

In re Cardizem CD Antitrust Litig.,
218 F.R.D. 508 (E.D. Mich. 2003) 13, 16, 17, 20, 23, 25

In re Cathode Ray Tube (CRT) Antitrust Litig.,
MDL No. 1917, 2013 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 137945 (N.D. Cal. June 20, 2013) 21

In re Cathode Ray Tube Antitrust Litig.,
No. C-07-5944-JST, 2016 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 102408 (N.D. Cal. Aug. 3, 2016).....19

In re Cendant Corp. Litig.,
264 F.3d 201 (3d Cir. 2001).....19

In re Checking Account Overdraft Litig.,
830 F. Supp. 2d 1330 (S.D. Fla. 2011).....19

In re Cincinnati Gas & Elec. Co. Sec. Litig.,
643 F. Supp. 148 (S.D. Ohio 1986).....17

In re Combustion, Inc.,
968 F. Supp. 1116 (W.D. La. 1997).....19

In re Delphi Corp. Sec., Derivative & ERISA Litig.,
248 F.R.D. 483 (E.D. Mich. 2008) 12, 16, 17, 22, 23, 25

In re Diet Drugs Prod. Liab. Litig.,
No. 1203, 2002 WL 32154197 (E.D. Pa. Oct. 3, 2002) 15

In re Fasteners Antitrust Litig.,
No. CIV.A. 08-MD-1912, 2014 WL 296954 (E.D. Pa. Jan. 27, 2014) 18

In re Flonase Antitrust Litig.,
951 F. Supp. 2d 739 (E.D. Pa. 2013) 18

In re Folding Carton Antitrust Litig.,
84 F.R.D. 245 (N.D. Ill. 1979).....23

In re IPO Secs. Litig.,
671 F. Supp. 2d 467 (S.D.N.Y. 2009).....20

In re Linerboard Antitrust Litig.,
292 F. Supp. 2d 631 (E.D. Pa. 2003) 14, 25

In re National Century Financial Enterprises, Inc. Investment Litig., 2009 WL 1473975 (S.D. Ohio May 27, 2009) 18

In re Packaged Ice Antitrust Litig.,
08-MDL-01952, 2011 WL 6209188 (E.D. Mich. Dec. 13, 2011) 13, 17, 18, 24, 26

In re Polyurethane Foam Antitrust Litig.,
No. 1:10 MD 2196, 2015 WL 1639269 (N.D. Ohio Feb 26, 2015) 26

In re Prandin Direct Purchaser Antitrust Litig.,
No. 2:10-CV-12141-AC-DAS, 2015 WL 1396473 (E.D. Mich. Jan. 20, 2015) 11, 18, 30

In re Pressure Sensitive Labelstock Antitrust Litig.,
584 F. Supp. 2d 697 (M.D. Pa. 2008).....14

In re Processed Eggs Prods. Antitrust Litig.,
No. 08-md-2002, 2012 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 160764 (E.D. Pa. Nov. 9, 2012).....27

In re Prudential Ins. Co. of America Sales Prac. Litig.,
148 F.3d 283 (3d Cir. 1998).....26

In re Ready-Mixed Concrete Antitrust Litig.,
No. 1:05-CV-00979-SEB, 2010 WL 3282591 (S.D. Ind. Aug. 17, 2010) 19

In re Se. Milk Antitrust Litig.,
No. 2:07-CV 208, 2013 WL 2155387 (E.D. Tenn. May 17, 2013).....18, 19, 28

In re Skelaxin (Metaxalone) Antitrust Litig.,
No. 2:12-CV-83, 2014 WL 2946459 (E.D. Tenn. June 30, 2014) 16, 18

In re Sulzer Orthopedics, Inc.,
398 F.3d 778 (6th Cir. 2005) 17

In re Sterling Foster & Company, Inc. Sec. Litig.,
238 F. Supp. 2d 480 (E.D.N.Y. 2002) 15

In re Titanium Dioxide Antitrust Litig.,
No. 10-CV-00318 RDB, 2013 WL 6577029 (D. Md. Dec. 13, 2013).....18

In re Telectronics Pacing Sys., Inc., Accufix Atrial "J" Leads Prods. Liab. Litig.,
137 F.Supp.2d 1029 (S.D. Ohio 2001) 17

In re Trans Union Corp. Privacy Litig.,
629 F. 3d 741 (7th Cir. 2011) 24

In re TFT-LCD (Flat Panel) Antitrust Litig.,
No. 07-md-01827 SI, 2013 WL 1365900 (N.D. Cal. Apr. 3, 2013)..... 20, 21

In re U.S. Bancorp Litig.,
291 F.3d 1035 (8th Cir. 2002) 19

In re Vitamins Antitrust Litig.,
No. MDL 1285, 2001 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 25067 (D.D.C. July 16, 2001)..... 19, 20

In re WorldCom, Inc. Sec. Litig.,
No. 02 CIV 3288 (DLC), 2004 WL 2591402 (S.D.N.Y. Nov. 12, 2004) 14

Isabel v. City of Memphis,
404 F.3d 404 (6th Cir. 2005) 27

Kogan v. AIMCO Fox Chase, L.P.,
193 F.R.D. 496 (E.D. Mich. 2000) 18

Kritzer v. Safelite Solutions, LLC,
2012 WL 1945144 (S.D. Ohio May 30, 2012) 24

Lewis v. Wal-Mart Stores, Inc.,
No. 02-CV-0944 CVE FHM, 2006 WL 3505851 (N.D. Okla. Dec. 4, 2006) 19

Lobatz v. U.S. West Cellular of California, Inc.,
222 F.3d 1142 (9th Cir. 2000) 28

McHugh v. Olympia Entm't, Inc.,
37 F. App'x 730 (6th Cir. 2002) 28

Missouri v. Jenkins,
491 U.S. 274 (1989) 30

Mitsubishi Motors Corp. v. Soler Chrysler-Plymouth, Inc.,
473 U.S. 614 (1985) 23

Moore v. United States,
63 Fed. CI. 781 (2005).....19

New England Health Care Employees Pension Fund v. Fruit of the Loom, Inc., 234 F.R.D. 627 (W.D. Ky. 2006).....18

Newby v. Enron Corp.,
394 F.3d 296 (5th Cir. 2004) 14

Pennsylvania v. Delaware Valley Citizens' Council for Clean Air,
483 U.S. 711 (1987) 30

Ramey v. Cincinnati Enquirer, Inc.,
508 F.2d 1188 (6th Cir. 1974) 11, 22, 23

Rawlings v. Prudential-Bache Properties, Inc.,
9 F.3d 513 (6th Cir. 1993)..... 11, 16, 17, 25

Schumacher v. AK Steel Corp. Ret. Accumulation Pension Plan,
995 F. Supp. 2d 835 (S.D. Ohio 2014) 28

Shane Grp., Inc. v. Blue Cross Blue Shield of Michigan,
825 F.3d 299 (6th Cir. 2016) 27

Standard Iron Works v. Arcelormittal,
No. 08 C 5214, 2014 WL 7781572 (N.D. Ill. Oct. 22, 2014) 18

Thacker v. Chesapeake Appalachia, L.L.C.,
695 F. Supp. 2d 521 (E.D. Ky. 2010) 18

Van Horn v. Nationwide Prop. and Cas. Inc. Co.,
436 F. App'x 496 (6th Cir. 2011) 11

Vendo v. Lektro-Vend Corp.,
433 U.S. 623 (1977) 24

Wal-Mart Stores, Inc. v. Visa U.S.A., Inc.,
396 F.3d 96 (2d Cir. 2005) 24

Waters v. Intern. Precious Metals Corp.,
190 F.3d 1291 (11th Cir. 1999) 19

Williams v. Sprint/United Mgmt. Co.,
No. CIV. 03-2200-JWL, 2007 WL 2694029 (D. Kan. Sept. 11, 2007) 19

Rules

Fed. R. Civ. P. 23(h) 1, 11, 12

Fed. R. Civ. P. 54(d)(2) 1, 11

Other Authorities

Alba Conte & Herbert Newberg, Newberg on Class Actions (4th ed. 2002) 18

MANUAL FOR COMPLEX LITIGATION (Fourth) (2004) 13

MANUAL FOR COMPLEX LITIGATION (Third) (1995) 17

Sara Randazzo & Jacqueline Palank, Legal Fees Cross New Mark: $1,500 an Hour,
The Wall Street Journal (Feb. 16, 2016) 29

Martha Neil, Top partner billing rates at BigLaw firms approach $1,500 per hour, ABA Journal (Feb. 8, 2016) 19

Background

Counsel for the Auto Dealers have negotiated and presented to the Court a third group ("Round Three") of settlements totaling more than $115 million. These settlements represent another substantial step to concluding this litigation: the settlements cover 23 Defendant groups and 25 different parts. By the time this motion is heard, eligible Auto Dealers will have received their payments from the Round One and Round Two settlements. Remarkably, some Auto Dealer class members have already received Round One settlement payments of more than $1 million dollars.

Like the first groups of Auto Dealer settlements, the Round Three settlements also provide significant non-cash benefits, such as fulsome cooperation from the settling Defendants and injunctive relief against most settling defendants prohibiting anti-competitive behavior. All of the net proceeds from the Round Three settlements will be paid to eligible new car automobile dealerships—there is no reversion to Defendants or cy pres payments to third-party charities.

Counsel for the Auto Dealers have zealously pursued this complex antitrust litigation and the Defendants have mounted aggressive defenses. The Defendants resolutely maintain that the Auto Dealers did not suffer an antitrust injury and that, even if they did, litigation classes cannot be certified. The Round Three settlements provide substantial benefits to Auto Dealer class members and are remarkable in light of the complexity of this litigation.

Pursuant to Rules 23(h) and 54(d)(2) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, Interim Co-Lead Counsel for the Auto Dealers submit this motion in support of their request for: (1) reimbursement of litigation expenses already incurred in the cases in the Round Three settlements; (2) leave to set aside three percent of the settlement funds for future litigation expenses; and (3) an award of attorneys' fees of $33,626,155 from the settlements (30 percent of the net settlement proceeds).

Factual and Procedural Background

A. Disbursement of Round One and Round Two Settlements.

The primary aim of these actions is the recovery and reimbursement of overcharges that Auto Dealers paid as a result of the antitrust violations alleged in the complaints. Counsel for the Auto Dealers, working with the claim administrator and the court-appointed allocation consultant, have already disbursed the Round One settlement funds to eligible Auto Dealers. (Raiter Decl.) Some Round One settlement payments exceeded $1 million, the highest being more than $3 million. (Raiter Decl.)

Counsel for the Auto Dealers expect that the Round Two settlement payments will be disbursed to eligible Auto Dealers in August 2018. (Raiter Decl.) The Round Two payments should be roughly twice as large as payments made in Round One. Id.

B. Settlements Achieved Since the Round Two Final Approvals.

Since the Round Two final approvals, the Court has granted preliminary approval for Auto Dealer settlements with 23 Defendant groups covering 25 different parts. These settlements provide substantial cash benefits, injunctive relief as to most of the Round 3 settling Defendants, and valuable cooperation while the Auto Dealers continue to prosecute their remaining claims in this MDL. The settlements included in Round Three total more than $115 million and are set out below, grouped by the parts case at issue:

Auto Dealer Round Three Settlements
Automotive Parts Case	Settling Defendant Group	Amount Settled	Settlement Amount
Anti-Vibration Rubber Parts	Yamashita	$1,920,000.00	$22,125,255.47
	Toyo	$10,845,255.47
	Bridgestone	$9,360,000.00

Automotive Lamps	Mitsuba	$76,381.91	$6,914,575.91
	Koito	$6,838,194.00
Automotive Constant Velocity Joint Boot Products	Toyo	$554,744.53	$554,744.53
Bearings	NTN	$2,076,000.00	$15,787,206.00
	JTEKT	$13,711,206.00
Body Sealings	NRC	$11,880,000.00	$11,880,000.00
Brake Hoses	Hitachi Metals	$360,000.00	$360,000.00
Ceramic Substrates	NGK	$3,840,000.00	$3,840,000.00
Electronic Powered Steering Assemblies	Yamada	$744,000.00	$2,086,261.34
	JTEKT	$1,288,794.00
	Mitsuba	$53,467.34
Exhaust Systems	Eberspächer	$432,000.00	$432,000.00
Fan Motors	Mitsuba	$1,157,185.93	$1,157,185.93
Fuel Injection Systems	Aisan	$1,440,000.00	$2,788,816.88
	Mitsuba	$435,376.88
	Bosch	$913,440.00
Heater Control Panels	Alps	$1,020,000.00	$1,020,000.00
HID Ballasts	Koito	$421,806.00	$421,806.00
Ignition Coils	Diamond Electric	$1,704,000.00	$1,704,000.00
Interior Trim	INOAC	$780,000.00	$780,000.00
Power Window Motors	Mitsuba	$6,057,085.43	$6,057,085.43
Radiators	Mitsuba	$1,157,185.93	$1,157,185.93
Shock Absorbers	HIAMS	$4,200,000.00	$4,200,000.00

Side-Door Latches and Latch Minimodules	Kiekert	$720,000.00	$720,000.00
Spark Plugs, Standard Oxygen Sensors, Air Fuel Ratio Sensors	Bosch	$9,157,632.00	$9,157,632.00
Starters	Bosch	$328,416.00	$3,314,948.66
	Mitsuba	$2,986,532.66
Valve Timing Control Devices	Aisin Seiki	$5,880,000.00	$5,880,000.00
Windshield Washer Systems	Mitsuba	$488,844.22	$488,844.22
Windshield Wiper Systems	Mitsuba	$10,387,939.70	$10,548,451.70
	Bosch	$160,512.00
Wire Harness Systems	Tokai Rika	$240,000.00	$1,804,800.00
	G.S. Electech	$960,000.00
	Chiyoda	$604,800.00
		Total	$115,180,799.90

The total money recovered in Auto Dealer settlements in Round One ($58,947,900.00), Round Two ($124,730,927.00), and Round Three ($115,180,799.90) is $298,859,626.00.[1] Counsel for the Auto Dealers have presented additional settlements for preliminary approval and continue to negotiate and finalize new agreements with Defendants who have not yet settled. (Raiter Decl.) These settlements will be presented to the Court as Round Four Auto Dealer settlements. Id.

[1] As of July 31, 2018, the Round Three settlement funds had earned interest totaling $847,659.26 and had paid taxes and tax preparation fees of $135,850 for a net gain of $711,809.26 (Raiter Decl.)

C. Counsel for Auto Dealers Have Devoted Significant Resources to Obtain the Auto Dealer Settlements in this Litigation.

1. The Complexity of this Litigation.

The Department of Justice ("DOJ") has described its investigation of the bid-rigging and price-fixing conspiracies at issue here as the largest criminal investigation it has ever undertaken. The DOJ has collected from certain Defendants fines totaling billions of dollars. The conduct involves a large number of parts, affected models, and conspiring participants. Most of the Defendant groups have had one or more of their employees or corporate affiliates convicted of a serious crime in the United States, Europe, and/or Asia. The 160 Defendants include well-known companies that are dominant players in their industries. There are 41 separate antitrust class actions alleging distinct violations of antitrust and/or consumer protection laws, making this a decidedly complex litigation.

Although the DOJ has prosecuted the criminal aspects of the price-fixing and bid rigging, it did not seek restitution for those injured by the conduct. The guilty pleas specifically note that "[i]n light of the availability of civil causes of action, which potentially provide for a recovery of multiple actual damages, the recommended sentence does not include a restitution order . . ." See, e.g., Plea Agreement, Mitsuba Corp., United States v. Mitsuba Corp., No. 2:13-cr-20712, para. 10(c), ECF Doc. No. 10 (E.D. Mich. 2013). Without these actions, Auto Dealers would have been left without a remedy unless they each decided to sue more than 160 defendants in dozens of individual cases.

2. The Time and Resources Devoted to Achieve These Settlements.

Antitrust litigation is inherently risky, with high stakes, and the outcome of this litigation has never been certain. From the outset, counsel for the Auto Dealers worked on a contingent basis to advance the claims of automobile dealerships authorized by OEMs to sell new vehicles. While working efficiently, counsel for the Auto Dealers could not have effectively represented these class members without the commitment of a substantial amount of time, effort, and money.

The Auto Dealers asserted damage claims under the laws of 30 states and the District of Columbia, as well as a federal claim for injunctive relief. Some states permit indirect purchaser actions under state antitrust laws; others permit them under state consumer protection laws; and others permit them under general laws of restitution. Nearly every Defendant moved to dismiss the Auto Dealers' claims, while others challenged personal jurisdiction. For the most part, the Auto Dealers prevailed on those motions.

Some of the attorneys for the Auto Dealers worked full-time on this litigation. It has been and will continue to be a huge undertaking as the cases progress through discovery, to class certification, and then to trial if necessary. Counsel for the Auto Dealers have performed the following type of work to advance the cases in the Round Three settlements:

- Research and investigation of the automotive parts supply industry and the sale of new vehicles through franchised automotive dealerships;
- Collecting information from a variety of sources, including the DOJ indictments, guilty pleas, and evidence that Defendants produced;
- Extensive research of the various aspects of the antitrust and other laws of more than 30 states and the District of Columbia, and drafting and editing dozens of initial and amended complaints;
- Analyzed and prepared liability and damages claims against more than 160 Defendants;
- Collecting and analyzing information and discovery including voluminous discovery produced by the Defendants and third parties, such as the OEMs;
- Consultation with economic and other liability and damages experts;
- Communicating and working with experts to develop appropriate damages methodologies in preparation for class certification and class-wide damages calculations for use at trial;
- Drafting and negotiating key case-management documents, protocols, and stipulations;
- Review, in conjunction with the other plaintiff groups, of millions of pages of foreign-language and translated documents produced by the Defendants;

- Receipt of cooperation materials from amnesty applicants, and attending in-person proffers from amnesty applicants who disclose the details of the conspiracies;

- Drafting, preparing for, and arguing numerous oppositions to motions to dismiss;

- Drafting and opposing numerous discovery motions, motions to quash, and other discovery sought by the Defendants from the Auto Dealers;

- Negotiating dealership and discovery issues with defense counsel including innumerable meet-and-confer sessions, each of which required substantial preparation;

- Preparing correspondence with respect to timing, stipulations, and case planning issues;

- Corresponding and attending calls with dealership co-counsel regarding client discovery and trial preparation issues;

- Obtaining and analyzing documents and data from over 40 class representative dealerships, including many in-person trips to the dealerships;

- Locating, review, redaction, and production of nearly 1 million pages of documents from class representative dealerships;

- Exchanging information and coordinating with end-payor, direct purchaser, truck and equipment dealers, City of Richmond, California, Florida, and Ford counsel regarding various issues;

- Attending calls and meetings to help formulate OEM subpoenas and discovery from third-parties;

- Responding to hundreds of discovery emails from Defendants demanding Auto Dealer discovery;

- Innumerable telephone calls with Defendants regarding Auto Dealer discovery and motion practice before the Special Master and appeals to Judge Battani;

- Exchanging information and conferring with counsel for the other Plaintiff groups regarding various discovery, procedural, and substantive issues;

- Attending MDL status conferences and motions with Judge Battani and conferences and motions with the discovery Special Master;

- Preparing for, traveling to, and attending more than 140 depositions of third-party automobile dealerships and class representative dealerships;

- Preparing for, traveling to, and attending more than 190 depositions of Defendants and their representatives;

- Preparing, through Japanese-speaking attorneys, key deposition outlines and strategy used by all Plaintiffs' groups in this litigation;

- Preparing for class certification motions by analyzing thousands of pages of depositions, thousands of pages of key discovery, working with experts, analyzing relevant case law, and drafting pleadings;

- Performing all the tasks necessary to reach more than 60 settlements, including formulating demands, negotiating, in some cases mediation, dozens of in-person meetings, exchange of drafts, preparing escrow agreements;

- Drafting settlement agreements, preliminary approval motions, and in some cases attend and argue preliminary approval motions;

- Analyzing discovery and materials received from cooperating Defendants and working with the special allocation consultant to develop allocation plans for each of the dozens of parts for which Auto Dealer settlements have been reached;

- Receiving cooperation materials from settling Defendants, attend in-person proffers from settling Defendants who disclose the details of the conspiracies, and review and analyze cooperation materials from settling Defendants and incorporate that information into the ongoing case strategy; and

- Drafting notices, claim forms, and other settlement-related documents and consult with the special allocation consultant and claims administrator

(See generally, Raiter Decl.)

The Auto Dealers were the primary target of Defendants' discovery efforts and have responded to countless discovery requests relating to nearly every aspect of an automobile dealer's business. Counsel for the Auto Dealers weathered ongoing motions to compel, meet and confers, and innumerable communications from defense counsel about the Auto Dealers and their data, documents, and information. Defendants sought documents and data located on any computer, database, or back-up tape anywhere in the dealerships, as well as hard copy documents located throughout the dealerships. Defendants also sought documents and other electronic data from the automobile dealership class representatives, including: (1) invoices documenting new car purchases;

(2) hundreds of fields of dealership management system (DMS) data; (3) data from back-up media going back to 1999; (4) monthly OEM financial statements submitted by dealers to the OEMs for 15 years; and (5) documents located in OEM portals showing monetary and non-monetary incentives, promotions and rebates offered to customers purchasing new cars and showing incentives, promotions and rebates offered to the dealers and advertisements showing special offers, promotions and incentives on new car purchases advertised to customers. (Raiter Decl.)

Over the Auto Dealers' objections, the Defendants insisted on taking an unlimited number of depositions of non-party automobile dealerships. The Court granted the Defendants' request and Defendants took more than 100 such depositions. (Raiter Decl.) Counsel for the Auto Dealers prepared for and attended these depositions, while at the same time defending the depositions of the Auto Dealer class representatives. Id. Defendants conducted approximately 140 depositions of class representative and third-party Auto Dealers in this litigation. Id.

Counsel for the Auto Dealers also invested considerable time, effort, and money in the prosecution of discovery and liability claims against the Defendants. This work included the review, translation, and analysis of millions of pages of documents Defendants produced to the DOJ and to the Plaintiffs in this litigation. Several Japanese-speaking attorneys for the Auto Dealers prepared and led the deposition questioning of Defendant representatives and received numerous informal witness statements from cooperating and settling Defendants. Counsel for the Auto Dealers received, analyzed, and put to use in the litigation the documents and other information received from the settling and cooperating Defendants. Finally, counsel for the Auto Dealers worked with their experts to prepare the opinions and economic models used to support class certification, damages, and at trial. (Raiter Decl.)

3. The Auto Dealers' Unique Position in this Litigation.

Because of their role as intermediate indirect purchasers, the Auto Dealers shouldered the burden of a disproportionate amount of discovery aimed at them by the Defendants. The Defendants sought discovery regarding both the Auto Dealers' claims and antitrust injury and the injury claimed by the End Payors. (Raiter Decl.) Since the Auto Dealer class representatives run businesses and generate financial and other records that Defendants believe are relevant to damage and pass on issues, the Auto Dealers were targeted for discovery that in reality related to the End Payors' claims. Id. The Auto Dealers were, and are, the primary focus of the Defendants' discovery relating to the transfer of antitrust overcharges through the indirect purchaser chain. As will be discussed in greater detail below, this required a substantial amount of work by counsel for the Auto Dealers that was not directly proportional to the settlements achieved for the Auto Dealers' benefit.

D. The Settlements Were Reached After Arms-Length Negotiation and Adversarial Proceedings.

In this group of settlements, the Auto Dealers seek final approval of settlements with 23 different Defendants and their affiliates. The Round Three settlements involve Auto Dealer claims covering 25 different parts and total more than $115 million. The Round Three settlements at issue in this motion are listed by Defendant and by part in Appendix A to this brief.

The Round Three settlements are the result of substantial litigation and negotiations by experienced counsel. Some of the Defendants involved in these settlements were at the forefront of the defense of the Auto Dealer claims and had mounted vigorous defenses. The settlements were reached through lengthy negotiations and in each case, counsel was armed with transactional data, documents produced in discovery, cooperation materials, and a strong understanding of the claims and defenses. (Raiter Decl.) A number of the settlements were only reached after mediation, sometimes involving multiple sessions, with the Court-appointed mediators. Id.

Attorneys' Fees and Expenses Standard of Review.

Rule 23(h) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure provides that "[i]n a certified class action, the court may award reasonable attorney's fees and non-taxable costs that are authorized . . . by law." District courts may award reasonable attorneys' fees and expenses from the settlement of a class action upon motion under Fed. R. Civ. P. 54(d)(2) and 23(h). The court engages in a two-part analysis when assessing the reasonableness of a petition seeking an award of attorneys' fees. In re Cardinal Health Inc. Sec. Litig., 528 F. Supp. 2d 752, 760 (S.D. Ohio 2007). The court first determines the method of calculating the attorneys' fees: it applies either the percentage of the fund approach or the lodestar method. Id.; Van Horn v. Nationwide Prop. and Cas. Inc. Co., 436 F. App'x 496, 498 (6th Cir. 2011). The court will then analyze and weigh the six factors described in Ramey v. Cincinnati Enquirer, Inc., 508 F.2d 1188 (6th Cir. 1974).

The "percentage of the fund" fee award sought by counsel for the Auto Dealers is supported by Sixth Circuit precedent, see Rawlings v. Prudential-Bache Properties, Inc., 9 F.3d 513, 516 (6th Cir. 1993), and the amount sought is well within the range of fee awards made by courts in this and other Circuits. See, e.g., In re Prandin Direct Purchaser Antitrust Litig., No. 2:10-CV-12141-AC-DAS, 2015 WL 1396473 (E.D. Mich. Jan. 20, 2015) (awarding one-third of the fund). The court has the discretion to select the appropriate method for calculating attorneys' fees "in light of the unique characteristics of class actions in general, and of the unique circumstances of the actual cases before them." Rawlings, 9 F.3d at 516. In common fund cases, the award of attorneys' fees need only "be reasonable under the circumstances." Id.

Argument

I. The Court Should Reimburse Class Counsel for Unreimbursed Past Expenses and Should Approve a Set Aside for Future Litigation Expenses.

Since the Court's orders regarding expenses related to the Round One and Round Two settlements, counsel for the Auto Dealers have incurred and paid expenses that were not reimbursed through those orders and were not reimbursed from those future expense funds. Counsel for the Auto Dealers seek reimbursement for those costs. Counsel for the Auto Dealers also request that three percent of the Round Three settlements be set aside for future litigation expenses for the cases included in those settlements.

A. Reimbursement of Costs Already Incurred.

The future litigation funds previously allowed by the Court have been used to fund ongoing litigation expenses for the parts cases in the Round One and Round Two settlement groups. (Declaration of Marie Thomas; Raiter Decl.) Because some of the settlements in Round Three involve parts for which no prior settlements had been reached (and hence no future expense funds were created), counsel for the Auto Dealers have paid the expenses required to advance the litigation for the different parts / cases not involved in the Round One and Round Two settlements. Id. Having achieved the settlements currently before the Court, counsel for the Auto Dealers should be reimbursed the litigation expenses incurred in the settled cases for which a future expense fund was not previously established.

Unreimbursed litigation expenses incurred in the cases involved in the settlements should be awarded to counsel for the Auto Dealers. See, e.g., Fed. R. Civ. P. 23(h); In re Delphi Corp. Sec. Derivative & ERISA Litig, 248 F.R.D. 483, 504 (E.D. Mich. 2008) ("Under the common fund doctrine, class counsel are entitled to reimbursement of all reasonable out-of-pocket litigation expenses and costs in the prosecution of claims and in obtaining settlement, including expenses incurred in connection with document production, consulting with experts and consultants, travel and other litigation-related expenses." (Citation and internal quotation marks omitted.)); In re Cardizem CD Antitrust Litig., 218 F.R.D. 508, 535 (E.D. Mich. 2003); B & H Med., L.L.C. v. ABP Admin., Inc., No. 02–73615, 2006 WL 123785, at *3 (E.D. Mich. Jan.13, 2006).

Counsel for the Auto Dealers have paid $358,125.09 in litigation expenses in the Round Three cases for which a future expense fund was not established. (See Thomas Decl.; Raiter Decl.; Declarations of Don Barrett, Jonathan Cuneo, Gerard Mantese, Dewitt Lovelace, Tom Thrash, John Kakinuki, Charles Barrett, Brian Herrington, and Pierce Gore). These costs included expenses related to: (1) experts, (2) document review, gathering, hosting, and production, (3) mediator expenses, (4) domestic and international travel, and (5) other reasonable litigation expenses. Id. These unreimbursed expenses are properly awarded, on a pro rata basis, from the Round Three settlements.

B. Future Litigation Expenses.

Auto Dealers also request approval to set aside a portion of the Round Three settlement proceeds to be used for future litigation expenses in the claims remaining against the non-settling Defendants, to be used in the parts cases included in the Round Three settlements. The requested set aside is three percent of the settlements ($3,455,423.97), which would be deducted on a pro rata basis from the settlements. Money that is not used for future expenses would be distributed to eligible settlement class members. A chart that illustrates the proposed pro rata reduction of the past and future expenses from the settlements at issue is provided with this brief as Appendix A.

The Court has granted similar requests by the Auto Dealer, End Payors, and Direct Purchasers. Allowing a portion of the settlement funds to be used for future expenses is a well-accepted practice. See, e.g., In re Packaged Ice Antitrust Litig., 08-MD-01952, 2011 WL 717519, at *13-14 (E.D. Mich. Feb. 22, 2011) (approving class counsel's request to use proceeds from early settlement to pay litigation expenses); see also MANUAL (Fourth) at § 13.21 ("[p]artial settlements may provide funds needed to pursue the litigation . . . . "); In re Linerboard Antitrust Litig., 292 F. Supp. 2d 631, 643 (E.D. Pa. 2003) (concluding that a partial "settlement provides class plaintiffs with an immediate financial recovery that ensures funding to pursue the litigation against the non-settling defendants"); Newby v. Enron Corp., 394 F.3d 296, 302-03 (5th Cir. 2004) (affirming 37.5 percent set aside for establishment of a $15 million litigation expense fund from the proceeds of a partial settlement); In re Pressure Sensitive Labelstock Antitrust Litig., 584 F. Supp. 2d 697, 702 (M.D. Pa. 2008) (approving request to set aside to pay outstanding and future litigation costs); In re WorldCom, Inc. Sec. Litig., No. 02 CIV 3288 (DLC), 2004 WL 2591402, at *22 (S.D.N.Y. Nov. 12, 2004) (creating a $5 million fund for the continuation of litigation against non-settling defendants); In re California Micro Devices Sec. Litig., 965 F.Supp. 1327, 1337 (N.D. Cal. 1997) (approving 7.9 percent of approximately $19 million settlement fund for future litigation expenses).

The size and complexity of this litigation has necessitated very significant expenses, and, as the remaining cases progress to class certification, the expenses—particularly those associated with experts—will increase exponentially. In antitrust cases, experts typically create economic and damages models that describe the mechanisms and impact of the anti-competitive behavior. Given the scope and complexity of the issues in these cases, counsel for the Auto Dealers expect that the cost of this work by their experts will be millions of dollars. (Raiter Decl.)

The Auto Dealers will also incur additional costs related to ongoing discovery. These costs include the significant expense of hosting and reviewing documents and data, interviews of cooperating witnesses, travel expenses, research, and experts. (Raiter Decl.) The Auto Dealers may also need to seek class certification, issue class notice, and proceed to trial against some of the remaining Defendants. Counsel for the Auto Dealers therefore believe that the amount they are requesting be set aside for future expenses is reasonable.

III. The Court Should Award Attorneys' Fees to Counsel for the Auto Dealers.

The Round Three settlements total more than $115 million for the benefit of the Auto Dealers. Counsel for the Auto Dealers litigated these cases on a contingent basis, some for more than six years, and have spent tens of thousands of hours in the cases in which settlements have been reached. Although the Court awarded fees from the first settlement groups, the work done by counsel for the Auto Dealers still exceeds the fees awarded. Counsel for the Auto Dealers request an interim award of attorneys' fees based on the work done to achieve the Round Three settlements, which includes work performed prior to the Auto Dealers' first settlement groups.

Fee awards for settlements are appropriate in large-scale litigation in which settlements are reached periodically. See In re Air Cargo Shipping Servs. Antitrust Litig., No. 06-MD-1775 JG VVP, 2011 WL 2909162, at *5–7 (E.D.N.Y. July 15, 2011) (interim fee award granted); In re Sterling Foster & Company, Inc. Sec. Litig., 238 F. Supp. 2d 480, 484-85, 489-90 (E.D.N.Y. 2002) (interim attorneys' fees awarded). Counsel for the Auto Dealers have litigated these cases for six years and will continue to vigorously represent the interests of the dealership class members. An award of fees on these settlements is appropriate. See In re Air Cargo Shipping Serv. Litig. , No. 06-md-1775, 2015 WL 5918273 (E.D.N.Y. Oct. 9, 2015) (awarding fourth round of interim fees); In re Diet Drugs Prod. Liab. Litig., No. 1203, 2002 WL 32154197, at *12 (E.D. Pa. Oct. 3, 2002) (awarding an interim fee after four years of litigation, noting that "to make them wait any longer for at least some award would be grossly unfair").

A. The Court Should Again Use the Percentage-of-the-Fund Approach.

The Supreme Court recognizes that "a litigant or a lawyer who recovers a common fund for the benefit of persons other than himself or his client is entitled to a reasonable attorney's fee from the fund as a whole." Boeing Co. v. Van Gemert, 444 U.S. 472, 478, 100 S. Ct. 745, 62 L. Ed. 2d 676 (1980); see also Delphi, 248 F.R.D. at 502. When calculating attorneys' fees under the common fund doctrine, "a reasonable fee is based on a percentage of the fund bestowed on the class." Blum v. Stenson, 465 U.S. 886, 900 n.16, 104 S. Ct. 1541, 79 L. Ed. 2d 891 (1984).

The Court has used the percentage-of-the-fund approach and counsel for the Auto Dealers request that the same method be applied to this group of settlements. Courts in this Circuit prefer this method of awarding attorneys' fees because it eliminates disputes about the reasonableness of rates and hours, conserves judicial resources, and aligns the interests of class counsel and the class members. See, e.g., Rawlings, 9 F.3d at 515; In re Packaged Ice Antitrust Litig., 2011 WL 6209188, at *16; In re Delphi, 248 F.R.D. at 502; In re Cardinal, 528 F. Supp. 2d at 762 (the Sixth Circuit has "explicitly approved the percentage approach in common fund cases"); In re Skelaxin (Metaxalone) Antitrust Litig., No. 2:12-CV-83, 2014 WL 2946459, at *1 (E.D. Tenn. June 30, 2014) ("the lodestar method is cumbersome; the percentage-of-the-fund approach more accurately reflects the result achieved; and the percentage-of-the-fund approach has the virtue of reducing the incentive for plaintiffs' attorneys to over-litigate or 'churn' cases.") (citations omitted).

The lodestar method, on the other hand, "has been criticized for being too time-consuming of scarce judicial resources," as it requires that courts "pore over time sheets, arrive at a reasonable hourly rate, and consider numerous factors in deciding whether to award a multiplier." Rawlings, 9 F.3d at 516-17. In re Cardizem Antitrust Ltig., 218 F.R.D. at 532 ("the lodestar method is too cumbersome and time-consuming of the resources of the Court" and "more importantly, the `percentage of the fund' approach more accurately reflects the result achieved."); see also Fournier v. PFS Invs., Inc., 997 F.Supp. 828, 831-32 (E.D. Mich. 1998) (the percentage of recovery method "allows for a more accurate approximation of a reasonable award of fees.").

Moreover, "[w]ith the emphasis it places on the number of hours expended by counsel rather than the results obtained, it also provides incentives for overbilling and the avoidance of early settlement." In re Cardizem Antitrust Litig., 218 F.R.D. at 517; see also Manual for Complex Litigation (Third) § 24.12 at 189 (West 1995). There is a "'trend towards adoption of a percentage-of-the-fund method in [common fund] cases.'" In re Delphi, 248 F.R.D. at 502 (quoting Rawlings, 9 F.3d at 516-517).

B. The Fee Requested by Counsel for the Auto Dealers is Appropriate.

The Court is well-versed with the complexity of this litigation; on the cases included in these settlements, counsel for the Auto Dealers worked for more than six years and dedicated more than 119,000 hours of work from attorneys, paralegals, law clerks, and other processionals.[2] Interim Co–Lead Counsel coordinated the efforts of counsel representing the Auto Dealers to maximize efficiency and to avoid duplicative efforts and unnecessary billing. (Raiter Decl.) They also monitored counsel to avoid unauthorized work and have been mindful of the Auto Dealers' role in this litigation and the potential recoveries for their clients. Id.

Counsel for the Auto Dealers request that the Court award fees totaling 30 percent of the settlement funds remaining after the deduction of: (1) notice and administration costs, and (2) costs set aside for future litigation expenses.[3] Reasonable fee awards generally range from 20 to 50 percent of the common fund. In re Telectronics Pacing Sys., Inc., Accufix Atrial "J" Leads Prods. Liab. Litig., 137 F.Supp.2d 1029, 1046 (S.D. Ohio 2001); In re Cincinnati Gas & Elec. Co. Sec. Litig., 643 F. Supp. 148, 150 (S.D. Ohio 1986); Alba Conte & Herbert Newberg, Newberg on Class Actions (4th ed. 2002), §14:6 at 551 ("Empirical studies show that, regardless whether the percentage method or the lodestar method is used, fee awards in class actions average around one-third of the recovery.").

Courts in the Sixth Circuit routinely approve attorneys' fees in antitrust class actions of one-

---

[2] See Declarations of Jonathan Cuneo, Don Barrett, Shawn Raiter, Gerard Mantese, Dewitt Lovelace, Tom Thrash, John Kakinuki, Charles Barrett, Brian Herrington, and Pierce Gore.

[3] Although not sought here, precedent supports applying the selected percentage to the settlement fund before deducting the litigation costs and expenses from the funds. See, e.g., In re Sulzer Orthopedics, Inc., 398 F.3d 778, 780-82 (6th Cir. 2005) (affirming fee awards from a common benefit fund based on the gross settlement amount); In re Packaged Ice Antitrust Litig., 2011 WL 6209188, at *17 ("The fee percentage is applied to the settlement fund before the separate award of litigation costs and expenses are deducted from the fund."); In re Delphi, 248 F.R.D. at 505 (attorneys' fees awarded on gross settlement fund); In re Cardizem Antitrust Litig., 218 F.R.D. at 531–535 (awarding costs in addition to percentage of the fund fee).

third of the common fund created for the settlement class. In re Packaged Ice Antitrust Litig., 2011 WL 6209188, at *19; Thacker v. Chesapeake Appalachia, L.L.C., 695 F. Supp. 2d, 521, 528 (E.D. Ky. 2010); Bessey v. Packerland Plainwell, Inc., No. 4:06-CV-95, 2007 WL 3173972, at *4 (W.D. Mich. 2007); Delphi, 248 F.R.D. at 502-03; In re National Century Financial Enterprises, Inc. Investment Litig., 2009 WL 1473975 (S.D. Ohio May 27, 2009); New England Health Care Employees Pension Fund v. Fruit of the Loom, Inc., 234 F.R.D. 627, 635 (W.D. Ky. 2006) ("[A] one-third fee from a common fund case has been found to be typical by several courts.') (citations omitted), aff'd, 534 F.3d 508 (6th Cir. 2008); Kogan v. AIMCO Fox Chase, L.P., 193 F.R.D. 496, 503 (E.D. Mich. 2000). For example, in Prandin, the court awarded one-third of a $19 million settlement fund and in Skelaxin, 2014 WL 2946459, at *1, the court awarded one-third of a $73 million settlement fund, finding that a "counsel fee of one-third is fair and reasonable and fully justified" and "within the range of fees ordinarily awarded." See also In re Se. Milk Antitrust Litig., No. 2:07-CV 208, 2013 WL 2155387, at *8 (E.D. Tenn. May 17, 2013) (one-third fee from settlements totaling $158.6 million and finding that 33 percent "is certainly within the range of fees often awarded in common fund cases both nationwide and in the Sixth Circuit").[4]

[4] The same is true in other districts. See Standard Iron Works v. Arcelormittal, 2014 WL 77815572, at *1 (N.D. Ill. Oct. 22, 2014) (attorneys' fee award of one-third of $163.9 million settlement); In re Fasteners Antitrust Litig., No. CIV.A. 08-MD-1912, 2014 WL 296954, at *7 (E.D. Pa. Jan. 27, 2014) ("Co-Lead Counsel's request for one third of the settlement fund is consistent with other direct purchaser antitrust actions."); In re Titanium Dioxide Antitrust Litig., No. 10-CV-00318 RDB, 2013 WL 6577029, at *1 (D. Md. Dec. 13, 2013) (one-third fee from $163.5 million fund); In re Flonase Antitrust Litig., 951 F. Supp. 2d 739, 748-52 (E.D. Pa. 2013) (noting that "in the last two-and-a-half years, courts in eight direct purchaser antitrust actions approved one-third fees" and awarding one-third fee from $150 million fund); Heekin v. Anthem, Inc., No. 1:05-CV-01908-TWP, 2012 WL 5878032 (S.D. Ind. Nov. 20, 2012) (awarding one-third fee from $90 million settlement fund); In re Ready-Mixed Concrete Antitrust Litig., No. 1:05-CV-00979-SEB, 2010 WL 3282591, at *3 (S.D. Ind. Aug. 17, 2010) (approving one-third fee); Williams v. Sprint/United Mgmt. Co., No. CIV. 03-2200-JWL, 2007 WL 2694029, at *6 (D. Kan. Sept. 11, 2007)(awarding fees equal to 35 percent of $57 million common fund); Lewis v. Wal-Mart Stores, Inc., No. 02-CV-0944 CVE FHM, 2006 WL 3505851, at *1 (N.D. Okla. Dec. 4, 2006) (awarding one-third of the settlement fund and noting that a "one-third [fee] is relatively standard in lawsuits that settle before trial."); In re AremisSoft Corp., Sec., Litig., 210 F.R.D. 109, 134 (D.N.J. 2002) ("Scores of cases exist where fees were awarded in the one-third to

Fee awards of more than one-third are also common. See, e.g., In re Combustion, Inc., 968 F. Supp. 1116, 1133, 1142 (W.D. La. 1997) (awarding fee of 36 percent and noting that "50 percent of the fund is the upper limit on a reasonable fee award from a common fund . . . . [D]istrict courts in the Fifth Circuit have awarded percentages of approximately one-third contingency fee"); In re U.S. Bancorp Litig., 291 F.3d 1035, 1038 (8th Cir. 2002) (fee of 36 percent); Waters v. Intern. Precious Metals Corp., 190 F.3d 1291, 1292-94 (11th Cir. 1999); In re Vitamins Antitrust Litig., 2001 WL 34312839, at *10 (D.D.C. 2001) (awarding one-third of $359 million antitrust recovery, which is "within the fifteen to forty-five percent range established in other cases."); In re Ampicillin Antitrust Litig., 526 F. Supp. 494, 498 (D.D.C. 1981) (awarding fee of 45 percent).

Although the settlements benefitting the Auto Dealers are substantial, the Court should not apply a reduced fee percentage simply because the recoveries have grown. See In re Se. Milk Antitrust Litig., 2013 WL 2155387 (stating that "the Court has not found any Sixth Circuit case endorsing [a reduced percentage] approach."). Numerous courts have criticized the "mega fund" approach because it may provide an incentive for counsel to settle early and for less money. See, e.g., In re Cendant Corp. Litig., 264 F.3d 201, 284 n. 55 (3d Cir. 2001) ("[The megafund] position. . . has been criticized by respected courts and commentators, who contend that such a fee scale often gives counsel an incentive to settle cases too early and too cheaply.") (citation omitted); Allapattah Services, Inc. v. Exxon Corp., 454 F. Supp. 2d 1185, 1213 (S.D. Fla. 2006) ("By not rewarding Class Counsel for the additional work necessary to achieve a better outcome for the class, the sliding scale approach creates the perverse incentive for Class Counsel to settle too early for too little."); In re TFT-LCD (Flat Panel) Antitrust Litig., No. 07-md-01827 SI, 2013 WL 1365900, at *8 (N.D. Cal. Apr. 3, 2013) (awarding 28.6 percent of $1.082 billion settlement fund and expressly rejecting the suggestion that fees should be reduced based on the "mega fund" concept).

---

one-half of the settlement fund.") (citations omitted); Moore v. United States, 63 Fed. CI. 781, 787 (2005) ("one-third is a typical recovery").

Many courts have awarded fees greater than 30 percent even for recoveries much larger than those made here by the Auto Dealers. See, e.g., Allapattah, 454 F. Supp. 2d at 1210-11 (awarding 31.5 percent of a $1.06 billion settlement fund and citing fourteen cases involving settlement funds between $40-$696 million with fee awards between 25 percent and 35 percent of the fund); In re Cathode Ray Tube Antitrust Litig., No. C-07-5944-JST, 2016 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 102408, at *56 (N.D. Cal. Aug. 3, 2016) (awarding 27.5 percent of $576 million settlement fund); In re IPO Secs. Litig., 671 F. Supp. 2d 467, 516 (S.D.N.Y. 2009) (awarding 33-1/3 percent of a $510,253,000 settlement fund); In re Checking Account Overdraft Litig., 830 F. Supp. 2d 1330, 1358 (S.D. Fla. 2011) (awarding 30 percent of $410 million settlement fund); In re Vitamins Antitrust Litig., 2001 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 25067, at *6 (awarding 34.06 percent of $359 million settlement fund).

The 30 percent attorney fee award being sought is fair and reasonable in light of the work performed by counsel for the Auto Dealers, the results achieved, and the work undertaken. Since 2011, some of the attorneys for the Auto Dealers worked full-time on this litigation. As described earlier in this brief, counsel for the Auto Dealers have performed, and continue to perform, an enormous amount of work to achieve the settlements and to move these cases to conclusion. (Raiter Decl.)[5]

This litigation is much more complex than typical antitrust class actions. The DOJ describes its investigation of the bid-rigging and price-fixing conspiracies at issue here as the largest criminal cartel it has ever uncovered. The litigation involves at least 41 automotive component parts, many hundreds of affected vehicle models, and more than 160 foreign and domestic Defendants. There are 41 separately filed Auto Dealer class cases within this MDL. The Auto Dealers asserted claims under federal and state antitrust, consumer protection, and unjust enrichment laws. As indirect purchasers, their claims for damages and restitution are based on the laws of approximately thirty states and the District of Columbia.

[5] In the Round One fee approval, the Court awarded counsel for the Auto Dealers one-third of the net settlement funds. See Order Regarding Auto Dealers' Motion for an Attorney of Attorneys' Fees, Reimbursement of Litigation Expenses, and Service Awards, No. 2:12-md-00102-MOB-MKM, ECF Doc. No. 401 (E.D. Mich. 2015). In the Round Two fee approval, the Court awarded 20 percent and reserved awarding an additional 10 percent that is being held escrow. See Order Regarding Auto Dealers' Motion for an Attorney of Attorneys' Fees, Reimbursement of Litigation Expenses, and a Set Aside for Future Litigation Expenses, No. 2:12-md-00102-MOB-MKM, ECF Doc. No. 188 (E.D. Mich. 2016).

The Auto Dealers' position in the distribution chain made them targets of discovery for both their own claims and for the claims of the End Payors. The Auto Dealers' position as intermediate indirect purchaser creates complex liability, damage, and class certification issues. In re Flat Panel Antitrust Litig., 2013 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 49885, at *70; s*ee also In re Cathode Ray Tube (CRT) Antitrust Litig.,* MDL No. 1917, 2013 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 137945, at *65 (N.D. Cal. June 20, 2013) (recommending class certification for indirect purchasers and noting that the plaintiffs "still have the burden of demonstrating that there is a reasonable method for determining on a class-wide basis whether and to what extent that overcharge was passed on to each of the indirect purchasers at all levels of the distribution chain.") (internal quotation marks omitted); In re Cardizem Antitrust Litig., 218 F.R.D. at 533 (granting indirect purchaser plaintiffs' motion for final approval and for attorneys' fees and noting that plaintiffs "also faced substantial additional difficulties as indirect purchasers.").

The Auto Dealers' role here caused them to carry a disproportionate share of the discovery burden of certain aspects of the indirect purchaser claims. Although the aggregate Auto Dealer settlement recoveries are substantial, they total about one-third of the amounts recovered by the End Payors. The Auto Dealers suggest that this disparity supports consideration by the Court of group-specific analyses of the proper percentage of the recovery for fee awards. When viewed in the context of the work done by counsel for the Auto Dealers and the settlements achieved, the 30 percent fee requested in this motion is fair and reasonable.

C. Consideration of the Factors Used by the Sixth Circuit Supports the Requested Fee Award.

When using the percentage-of-the-fund approach, the Court will consider the six Ramey factors: (1) the value of the benefits rendered to the class; (2) society's stake in rewarding attorneys who produce such benefits in order to maintain an incentive to others; (3) whether the services were undertaken on a contingent fee basis; (4) the value of the services on an hourly basis [the lodestar cross-check]; (5) the complexity of the litigation; and (6) the professional skill and standing of counsel on both sides. Ramey, 508 F.2d at 1194-97. When applied here, these factors confirm that the requested fee is fair.

1. Counsel Secured Valuable Benefits for Auto Dealers.

The result achieved for the class members is the principal consideration. In re Delphi, 248 F.R.D. at 503. As shown in the documents filed in support of the preliminary approval of the Round Three settlements, counsel for the Auto Dealers achieved excellent recoveries. These are cash settlements coupled with meaningful cooperation and, in many cases, injunctive relief against anti-competitive behavior. The settlement funds total more than $115 million and represent a significant recovery for Auto Dealers that sell new vehicles in the indirect purchaser states.

After the deduction of fees, notice and claims administration costs, and expenses, all of the settlement funds will be paid to eligible dealerships that file a valid claim. None of the money will revert to the settling Defendants or to a cy pres designee. Minimum payments of $350 will be made to eligible dealerships that file a claim for new vehicles and parts purchased in the indirect purchaser states. In addition to the money benefits, the cooperation terms of the settlements provide significant value to Auto Dealers in their prosecution of the claims against non-settling Defendants. With this third round of settlements, approximately $298 million has been recovered to benefit members of the Auto Dealer settlement classes who are eligible to receive money benefits. The monetary recovery alone is substantial but, when coupled with the cooperation and injunctive relief, the value of these Round Three settlements is considerable.

2. Society Has An Important Stake in Rewarding Attorneys With Reasonable Fees In This Litigation.

There is a "need in making fee awards to encourage attorneys to bring class actions to vindicate public policy (e.g., the antitrust laws) as well as the specific rights of private individuals." In re Folding Carton Antitrust Litig., 84 F.R.D. 245, 260 (N.D. Ill. 1979). Courts in the Sixth Circuit weigh "society's stake in rewarding attorneys who [win favorable outcomes in antitrust class actions] in order to maintain an incentive to others . . . . Society's stake in rewarding attorneys who can produce such benefits in complex litigation such as in the case at bar counsels in favor of a generous fee . . . . Society also benefits from the prosecution and settlement of private antitrust litigation." In re Cardizem CD Anittrust Litig., 218 F.R.D. at 534 (internal quotation marks omitted); see also Mitsubishi Motors Corp. v. Soler Chrysler-Plymouth, Inc., 473 U.S. 614, 653-54 (1985); Alpine Pharmacy, Inc. v. Chas. Pfizer & Co., 481 F.2d 1045, 1050 (2d Cir.), cert. denied, 414 U.S. 1092 (1973); Ramey, 508 F.2d at 1196; In re Delphi, 248 F.R.D. at 504; see also Declaration of Arthur J. Miller, 2:12-md-02311-MOB-MKM, ECF Doc. No. 1398-1 (E.D. Mich. 2016); Declaration of Frank J. Kelley, 2:12-md-02311-MOB-MKM, ECF Doc. No. 1398-2 (E.D. Mich. 2016). Without the willingness of counsel to assume the risks inherent to these cases (or in other cases of similar magnitude and complexity) the settlement class members would not have recovered anything, let alone the substantial recoveries secured here.

The DOJ did not seek restitution from the settling Defendants. Any recovery for Auto Dealers needed to come through the effort of lawyers working on a contingent basis. The significant expenses, combined with the high degree of uncertainty of ultimate success, make contingent fees a virtual necessity for cases like these. The public interest is served by awarding compensation in an amount appropriate to encourage skilled attorneys to assume the risks of this type of litigation.

The substantial recoveries counsel for the Auto Dealers have achieved help serve the public policy of holding those who violate antitrust laws in the United States accountable. Society benefits when those who have violated laws fostering fair competition and honest pricing are required to reimburse affected consumers in civil proceedings. Vendo v. Lektro-Vend Corp., 433 U.S. 623, 635 (1977) ("Section 16 undoubtedly embodies congressional policy favoring private enforcement of the antitrust laws, and undoubtedly there exists a strong national interest in antitrust enforcement."); Wal-Mart Stores, Inc. v. Visa U.S.A., Inc., 396 F.3d 96, 122 (2d Cir. 2005) (concluding that it is "especially important to provide appropriate incentives to attorneys pursuing antitrust actions because public policy relies on private sector enforcement of the antitrust laws.")

3. Counsel For the Auto Dealers Have Worked On A Contingent Basis.

Counsel for the Auto Dealers have and will continue to pursue this litigation on a contingent basis. The risk inherent to doing so supports a reasonable fee award from a common fund. See In re Packaged Ice Antitrust Litig., 2011 WL 6209188, at *19 (risk of non-payment a factor supporting the requested fee). The contingency factor "stands as a proxy for the risk that attorneys will not recover compensation for the work they put into a case." In re Cardinal Health Ins. Sec. Litig., 528 F. Supp. 2d at 766. Indeed, "'some courts consider the risk of non-recovery as the most important factor in fee determination.'" Kritzer v. Safelite Solutions, LLC, 2012 WL 1945144, at *9 (S.D. Ohio May 30, 2012) (quoting Cardinal, 528 F. Supp. 2d at 766). "[W]ithin the set of colorable legal claims, a higher risk of loss does argue for a higher fee." In re Trans Union Corp. Privacy Litig., 629 F. 3d 741, 746 (7th Cir. 2011). "This antitrust litigation, like all litigation of its species, promises to be extremely complex and time intensive and there is no question that if settlement fails, the Defendants will mount a strong defense." In re Packaged Ice, 2011 WL 6209188, at *19.

The Sixth Circuit counsels that the specific characteristics of a class action case can govern the appropriateness of a fee award. Rawlings, 9 F.3d at 516 (finding that the district court can determine the appropriate method for calculating attorneys' fees in light of the "unique characteristics of class actions"). The legal and factual issues surrounding these cases are extremely complex. Being rewarded only for success in litigation this complex creates a high degree of risk. The substantial risk undertaken by counsel for the Auto Dealers strongly favors the fee requested. In re Delphi, 248 F.R.D. at 503-54.

4. The Complexity of the Litigation Supports the Requested Fee.

The Court is well-familiar that "[a]ntitrust class actions are inherently complex . . . ." In re Cardizem Antitrust Litig., 218 F.R.D. at 533; In re Packaged Ice Antitrust Litig., 2011 WL 6209188, at *19; In re Linerboard Antitrust Litig., 292 F. Supp. 2d 631, 639 (E.D. Pa. 2003) ("An antitrust class action is arguably the most complex action to prosecute. The legal and factual issues involved are always numerous and uncertain in outcome.") (citations and internal quotation marks omitted).

Although any antitrust action is complex, the scale of this litigation magnifies that complexity. This litigation is decidedly complex given the numerous conspiracies and parts involved, the international Defendants, and the sheer magnitude of the conduct and regulatory investigations. This factor also supports the fee requested. Defendants focused their discovery efforts on the Auto Dealers and the Court is acquainted with much of the work done by counsel for the Auto Dealers. Responding to Defendants' nearly constant fusillade of discovery required the Auto Dealers and their attorneys to devote an enormous amount of time and resources. Defendants conducted 140 depositions of non-party and class representative Auto Dealers. The calculation of the indirect purchaser damages and the preparation of the expert opinions necessary to calculate and present those damages are extremely complicated.

5. Skill and Experience of Counsel.

The skill and experience of counsel on both sides of the litigation is a factor courts consider in determining a reasonable fee award. In Re Polyurethane Foam Antitrust Litig., No. 1:10 MD 2196, 2015 WL 1639269 at * 7; In re Packaged Ice Antitrust Litig., 2011 WL 6209188, at *19. The Court has found that Interim Co-Lead Counsel have the requisite skill and experience in class action and antitrust litigation to serve effectively as class counsel for the Auto Dealers.

In assessing this Ramey factor, courts also look to the qualifications of the defense counsel opposing the class. Defense counsel here are also extremely well-qualified and experienced antitrust and class action firms. The Court has seen first-hand the skill of the attorneys and the quality of the work done to represent their respective clients. This factor supports the fee being requested by counsel for the Auto Dealers.

6. A Lodestar Cross-check Confirms that the Requested Fee Is Reasonable.

Some courts apply a lodestar "cross-check" on the reasonableness of the fee calculated as a percentage of the fund. In re Cardinal Health Ins. Sec. Litig., 528 F. Supp. 2d at 764; In re Packaged Ice Antitrust Litig., 2011 WL 6209188, at *18. A lodestar cross-check is optional, however, and the Court is not required to engage in a detailed scrutiny of time records. In re Cardinal Health Ins. Litig., 528 F. Supp. 2d at 767. The cross-check does not require mathematical precision and it allows the Court to rely on summaries submitted by the attorneys and not review actual billing records. In re Prudential Ins. Co. of America Sales Prac. Litig., 148 F.3d 283, 342 (3d Cir. 1998). Here, however, the time counsel for the Auto Dealers had to expend confirms that the fee requested is well "aligned with the amount of work the attorneys contributed" to the recovery, and does not constitute a "windfall." Id.

To calculate a reasonable fee under the lodestar method, the court determines the base amount of the fee by multiplying the number of hours counsel reasonably expended by their hourly rate. Isabel v. City of Memphis, 404 F.3d 404, 415 (6th Cir. 2005). In multi-district cases involving multiple cases and defendants, the courts consider requests for attorneys' fees from partial settlements by looking at all of the work done on those cases to-date. See, e.g., In re Air Cargo Shipping Servs. Antitrust Litig., 2015 WL 5918273 (granting fees from settlements with multiple defendants based on an analysis of all of the work done on the cases); In re Processed Eggs Prods. Antitrust Litig., No. 08-md-2002, 2012 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 160764, at *18 (E.D. Pa. Nov. 9, 2012) (granting motion for attorneys' fees from settlement with single defendant based upon all work on case to-date).

The law firms that have worked to advance the claims of the Auto Dealers have done so under the direction of Interim Co-Lead Counsel for the Auto Dealers. An enormous amount of work has been done. Discovery has been extensive and Defendants were relentless in their pursuit of discovery and motion practice directed at the Auto Dealers. Counsel for the Auto Dealers have received substantial cooperation provided by amnesty applicants and the settling Defendants and are using that information to prosecute the claims against non-settling Defendants. All the while, counsel for the Auto Dealers have been preparing to certify classes and bring any remaining cases to trial.

Counsel for the Auto Dealers have vigorously prosecuted these case but have done so efficiently and without unnecessary duplication. To calculate a lodestar for this optional cross-check, Auto Dealer attorneys and their firms provided declarations that set forth the timekeepers, customary rates, and hours worked to advance the litigation for the Auto Dealers. As shown in those declarations, counsel representing the Auto Dealers and their professional staff have worked more than 119,000 hours in the cases involved in the Round Three settlements (up to July 1, 2018). (See Declarations of Don Barrett, Jonathan Cuneo, Shawn Raiter, Gerard Mantese, Dewitt Lovelace, Tom Thrash, John Kakinuki, Charles Barrett, Brian Herrington, and Pierce Gore).[6] The total lodestar is $70,237,227.70. (Raiter Decl.)

Using the cumulative hours worked for the parts cases included in the Round Three settlements recognizes that the work previously done by counsel for the Auto Dealers applied to and assisted the cases currently before the Court. This Court, and others, has concluded that it is appropriate to count the cumulative lodestar in a cross-check. See In re Se. Milk Antitrust Litig., 2013 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 70167, at *26-27; Lobatz v. U.S. West Cellular of California, Inc., 222 F.3d 1142 (9th Cir. 2000); see also 2:12-cv-00103-MOB-MKM, ECF Doc. No. 578, fn. 2 (E.D. Mich. 2017).

The Auto Dealers' lodestar is conservative because it does not include the time spent prosecuting these cases since July 1, 2018 or the time that will continue to be needed to bring the cases to a conclusion. While the hours already worked are substantial, they are reasonable and reflect the challenging nature of the litigation. Defendants are represented by extremely capable counsel who have asserted vigorous defenses. Defendants' efforts have required the Auto Dealers to expend considerable effort and skill in prosecuting these cases.

As the starting point for the lodestar cross-check, the hourly rates of Auto Dealer counsel are reasonable for attorneys with specialized experience in bringing antitrust cases. "A reasonable hourly rate is determined according to the prevailing market rates in the relevant community. To ascertain that community, district courts 'are free to look to a national market, an area of specialization market, or any other market they believe appropriate to fairly compensate particular attorneys in individual cases." Ford v. Fed.-Mogul Corp., No. 2:09-cv-14448, 2015 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 3399, at *2-3 (E.D. Mich. Jan. 7, 2015) (quoting McHugh v. Olympia Entm't, Inc., 37 F. App'x 730, 740 (6th Cir. 2002)). Even if counsel's "requested rates are high for this district. . . Class Counsel should be compensated at rates that reflect their skill and their success." Schumacher v. AK Steel Corp. Ret. Accumulation Pension Plan, 995 F. Supp. 2d 835, 847 (S.D. Ohio 2014).

[6] Counsel have provided declarations and summaries of the time spent on this litigation. Unlike the lodestar-based fee request in Shane Grp., Inc. v. Blue Cross Blue Shield of Michigan, 825 F.3d 299 (6th Cir. 2016), the cross-check used in a percentage-of-the-fund request may be based on summaries of time spent by counsel. Cardinal, 528 F. Supp. 2d at 767; In re Prudential, 148 F.3d at 342.

The Auto Dealer counsel charging the highest hourly rates are well within the parameters of reasonableness. In national markets, "partners routinely charge between $1,200 and $1,300 an hour, with top rates at several large law firms exceeding $1,400.[7] In specialties such as "antitrust and high-stakes litigation and appeals . . . [f]or lawyers at the very top of those fields, hourly rates can hit $1,800 or even $1,950." Id. Some "difference makers" in the most complex fields, including antitrust litigation, even charge $2,000 an hour.[8] This Court has recognized that rates charged by End Payor and Direct Purchaser counsel in this matter, which in some cases significantly exceed those being charged by counsel for the Auto Dealers, "are well in line with the market, with recent reports explaining that senior lawyers at top law firms routinely charge well over $1,000." See, e.g., 2:12-cv-00103-MOB-MKM (Doc. No. 578) at 7.[9]

The requested fee is $33,626,155, which represents 30 percent of the Round Three settlement funds after notice and administration and future litigation expenses have deducted.[10] The

---

[7] See Sara Randazzo & Jacqueline Palank, Legal Fees Cross New Mark: $1,500 an Hour, The Wall Street Journal (Feb. 16, 2016), https://www.wsj.com/articles/legal-fees-reach-new-pinnacle¬1-500-an-hour-1454960708; see also Martha Neil, Top partner billing rates at BigLaw firms approach $1,500 per hour, ABA Journal (Feb. 8, 2016), http://www.abajournal.comnews/article/toppartner billing rates at biglaw firms nudge 1500 per hour.

[8] See Natalie Rodriguez, Meet the $2,000 An Hour Attorney: What it Takes to Earn Top Dollar in the Rate-Crunch Era, Law360, June 11, 2016, https://www.1aw360.com/in-depth/articles/804421 ("[E]arlier this year, BTI Consulting Group found that a handful of in-house counsel had paid as much as $2,000 per hour, after discounts, to attorneys in the past year. Several other in-house counsel, meanwhile, had paid highs of $1,900 per hour or $1,800 per hour.")

[9] The use of current rates is appropriate to compensate counsel for inflation and the delay in receipt of the funds. Missouri v. Jenkins, 491 U.S. 274, 282-84 (1989); see also Pennsylvania v. Delaware Valley Citizens' Council for Clean Air, 483 U.S. 711, 716 (1987). This approach has been approved by the Sixth Circuit Court of Appeals and has been used in the fee awards made in this MDL. See 2:12-cv-00103-MOB-MKM, ECF Doc. No. 578, para. 18 (E.D. Mich. 2017).

[10] The calculation is: $112,087,184 X .30 = $33,626,155.

Court previously awarded counsel for the Auto Dealers attorneys' fees of $43,446,364 for the initial two groups of Auto Dealer settlements. Adding that award to the fees sought here results in a total award of $77,072,519. Using that fee award total, and comparing it to the total lodestar for the work done on the cases in the first two rounds of Auto Dealer settlements results in a multiplier of time spent to-date on these cases of 1.09 of the lodestar.[11]

Whether analyzed as a "cross-check" on the percentage-of-the-fund method—or under the lodestar method—the requested fee is reasonable. The requested fee represents a "multiplier" of 1.09 of the lodestar. This multiplier is reasonable and much lower than the multipliers approved in other cases. See, e.g., In re Cardinal Health Ins. Sec. Litig., 528 F. Supp. 2d at 767-68 (approving multiplier of 6, and observing that "[m]ost courts agree that the typical lodestar multiplier" on a large class action "ranges from 1.3 to 4.5"); In re Prandin Direct Purchase Antitrust Litig., 2015 WL 1396473, at *4 (3.01 multiplier); see also Order Granting Interim Lead Counsel's Motion for an Award of Attorneys' Fees and Reimbursement of Litigation Costs and Expenses, No. 2:12-cv-00601-MOB-MKM, ECF Doc. No. 128, para. 19 (awarding direct purchaser fees of 2.09 times the lodestar) (E.D. Mich. 2015); Order granting Direct Purchaser's Motion for an Award of Attorneys' Fees and Reimbursement of Litigation Costs and Expenses, No. 2:17-cv-04201-MOB-MKM, ECF Doc. No. 21 (awarding direct purchaser fees of 1.79 times the lodestar) (E.D. Mich. 2018).

Given the excellent results achieved, the complexity of the claims and defenses, the real risk of non-recovery, the formidable defense teams, the delay in receipt of payment, and the substantial experience and skill of counsel, the requested multiplier on the lodestar and the resulting fee is reasonable compensation for the work done by counsel for the Auto Dealers. With no guarantee about the extent of work required to conclude these cases or the fees that will be generated from that work, it is possible that the slightly positive multiplier on the current lodestar will be eroded.

[11] The calculation is $77,072,519 ÷ $70,237,227 = 1.09.

Conclusion

For the foregoing reasons, Interim Co-Lead Counsel for the Auto Dealers respectfully request that the Court grant their motion and award attorneys' fees, reimburse litigation expenses, and allow the creation of a future litigation fund.

Dated: August 1, 2018

By: s/ Gerard V. Mantese
Gerard V. Mantese (P34424)
MANTESE HONIGMAN, P.C.
1361 E. Big Beaver Road
Troy, MI 48083
Telephone: (248) 457-9200 Ext. 203
Facsimile: (248) 457-9201
gmantese@manteselaw.com

Interim Liaison Counsel for the Automobile Dealer Plaintiffs

Jonathan W. Cuneo
CUNEO GILBERT & LADUCA, LLP
4725 Wisconsin Ave, NW, Suite 200
Washington, DC 20016
Telephone: (202) 789-3960
Facsimile: (202) 789-1813
jonc@cuneolaw.com

Don Barrett
BARRETT LAW GROUP, P.A.
P.O. Box 927
404 Court Square
Lexington, MS 39095
Telephone: (662) 834-2488
Facsimile: (662)834.2628
dbarrett@barrettlawgroup.com

TAB 41A

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
SOUTHERN DISTRICT OF NEW YORK

IN RE MUNICIPAL DERIVATIVES ANTITRUST LITIGATION	)	MDL No. 1950
	)	Master Docket No. 08-02516 (VM)
THIS DOCUMENT RELATES TO:	)
ALL ACTIONS	)

USDC SDNY
DOCUMENT
ELECTRONICALLY FILED
DOC #:
DATE FILED: 7/8/16

ORDER

Upon review of the pleadings submitted to this Court, IT IS HEREBY ORDERED THAT:

1. Class Plaintiffs' Counsel shall receive a total of $33,000,000 in attorneys' fees to be paid out of settlement funds created by six separate settlement agreements reached with defendants: (a) Société Générale, S.A., (b) Natixis Funding Corp., f/k/a IXIS Funding Corp., and before that, f/k/a CDC Funding Corp., (c) Piper Jaffray & Co., (d) George K. Baum & Company, (e) National Westminster Bank plc, and (f) UBS AG (the "Settlements").

2. Class Plaintiffs' Counsel shall be reimbursed $2,484,198.24 in costs and expenses reasonably incurred in the prosecution and settlement of this litigation, to be paid out of the settlement funds created by the Settlements.

3. Class Plaintiffs' current Lead Counsel (consisting of Hausfeld LLP, Boies, Schiller & Flexner LLP, and Susman Godfrey, LLP) shall have the sole authority to allocate and distribute any attorneys' fees and expenses awarded from the Settlements awarded pursuant to this Order in a manner which, in the opinion of Lead Counsel, fairly compensates the Plaintiffs' Counsel's firms for their services.

4. An incentive award of $18,000, to be drawn equally from each of the funds created by the Settlements ($3,000 from each Settlement per Class Plaintiff), shall be paid to each of the following named Class Plaintiffs: the City of Baltimore, Maryland and the Central Bucks School District.

Dated: ~~May~~ July 8, 2016

SIGNED:

U.S. District Court Judge

TAB 41B

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
SOUTHERN DISTRICT OF NEW YORK

IN RE MUNICIPAL DERIVATIVES ANTITRUST LITIGATION	MDL No. 1950
	Master Docket No. 08-02516 (VM)
THIS DOCUMENT RELATES TO:
ALL ACTIONS

CLASS PLAINTIFFS' MEMORANDUM OF LAW IN SUPPORT OF MOTION FOR AN AWARD OF ATTORNEYS' FEES AND EXPENSES IN CONNECTION WITH THE SETTLEMENTS WITH REMAINING DEFENDANTS SOCIÉTÉ GÉNÉRALE NATIXIS, PIPER JAFFRAY, G.K. BAUM, NATIONAL WESTMINSTER, AND UBS

TABLE OF CONTENTS

I. INTRODUCTION 1

II. BACKGROUND 2

A. The Litigation and Prior Settlements 2

B. The Settlement Agreements with Remaining Defendants 5

C. Preliminary Approval, Notice, and Claims for Fees and Expenses 6

III. ARGUMENT 7

A. The Court May Award Attorneys' Fees and Expenses under the Common Fund Doctrine 7

B. Under a Percentage of the Fund Approach, the Requested Fees are Fair and Reasonable. 9

C. The Request Is Reasonable Under the Lodestar "Crosscheck" 10

D. The Request Is Reasonable under the Goldberger Criteria 12

1. The Time and Labor Expended by Class Counsel in this Case Support the Fee and Expense Award Requested 12

2. The Risk of the Litigation Supports the Fee and Expense Award Requested 14

3. The Magnitude and Complexity of the Litigation Supports the Fee and Expense Award Requested 15

4. The Settlements Support the Requested Fee Award and Expense Reimbursement 16

5. The Quality of the Representation Supports the Fee and Expense Award Requested 16

6. Public Policy Considerations Support the Fee and Expense Award Requested 17

E. Class Counsel's Expenses Should Be Reimbursed 18

F. Lead Counsel Should Be Given Authority to Distribute Attorney's Fees 19

G. The Named Plaintiffs Should Be Granted Reasonable Incentive Awards 20

IV. CONCLUSION 21

TABLE OF AUTHORITIES

Cases Page

Anwar v. Fairfield Greenwich Ltd.,
No. 09-cv-118 (VM), 2012 WL 1981505 (S.D.N.Y. Jun 1, 2012) ..... passim

Arbor Hill Concerned Citizens Neighborhood Ass'n v. County of Albany,
522 F.3d 182 (2d Cir. 2008) 10

Baron v. Commercial & Indus. Bank of Memphis,
No. 75 Civ. 1274, 1979 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 9380, (S.D.N.Y. Oct. 3, 1979) 10

Boeing Co. v. William R. Van Gemert,
444 U.S. 472 (1980) 7

City of Detroit v. Grinnell Corp.,
495 F.2d 448 (2d Cir. 1974) 14

Dornberger v. Metro. Life Ins. Co.,
203 F.R.D. 118 (S.D.N.Y.2001) 21

Duchene v. Michael Cetta, Inc.,
No. 06 Civ. 4576 (PAC)(GWG), 2009 WL 5841175 (S.D.N.Y. Sept. 10, 2009) 21

Dupler v. Costco Wholesale,
705 F. Supp. 2d 244 (E.D.N.Y. 2010) 16

Edmonds v. United States,
658 F. Supp. 1126 (D.S.C. 1987) 16

Goldberger v. Integrated Res., Inc.,
209 F.3d 43 (2d Cir. 2000) ..... passim

In re Adelphia Comm 'n Corp. Sec. and Derivative Litig.,
No. 03 MDL 1529 (LMM), 2008 WL4128702 (S.D.N.Y. Sept. 3, 2008) 19

In re Allstar Inns Sec. Litig.,
No. Civ. A. 88CIV 9282, 1991 WL 352491 (S.D.N.Y. Nov. 20, 1991) 10

In re Arakis Energy Corp. Sec. Litig.,
No.95cv3431 (ARR), 2001 WL 1590512 (E.D.N.Y. Oct. 31, 2001) 19

In re Bisys Sec. Litig.,
No. 04 Civ. 3840 (JSR), 2007 WL 2049726 (S.D.N.Y. July 16, 2007) 8

In re Currency Conversion Fee Antitrust Litig.,
263 F.R.D. 110 (S.D.N.Y. 2009) 15, 20

In re Dreyfus Aggressive Growth Mut. Fund Litig.,
No. 98 CV 4318 HB, 2001 WL 709262 (S.D.NY. June 22, 2001) 14

In re EVCI Career Colleges Holding Corp. Sec. Litig., Case No. 05 Civ. 10240 (CM), 2007 WL 2230177 (S.D.N.Y. July 27, 2007) 12

In re Global Crossing Sec. & ERISA Litig.,
225 F.R.D. 436 (S.D.N.Y.2004) 18

In re Initial Pub. Offering Sec. Litig.,
671 F. Supp. 2d 467 (S.D.N.Y. 2009) 9

In re Linerboard Antitrust Litig.,
No. MDL 1261, 2004 WL 1221350, (E.D. Pa. June 2, 2004) 21

In re Lloyd's Am. Trust Fund Litig.,
No. 96- cv-1262 (RWS), 2002 WL 31663577 (S.D.N.Y. Nov. 26, 2002) 8

In re Marsh ERISA Litig.,
265 F.R.D. 128 (S.D.N.Y. 2010) 9, 17

In re NASDAQ Market-Makers Antitrust Litigation,
187 F.R.D. 465 (S.D.N.Y. 1998) 14

In re Prudential Sec. Inc. Ltd. P'ships Litig.,
985 F. Supp. 410 (S.D.N.Y. 1997)..... 10, 15

In re Remeron End-Payor Antitrust Litig.,
No. Civ. 02-2007 FSH, Civ. 04-5126 FSH, 2005 WL 2230314 21

In re Visa Check/Mastermoney Antitrust Litig.,
297 F. Supp. 2d 503 (E.D.N.Y. 2003) 10, 14, 19

In re Vitamins Antitrust Litig.,
398 F. Supp. 2d 209 (D.D.C. 2005) 19

In re Vitamins Antitrust Litig.,
No. 99-197, MDL No. 1285, 2001 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 25067 19

In re WorldCom, Inc. Sec. Litig.,
388 F. Supp. 2d 319 (S.D.N.Y. 2005) 8, 10, 18

Johnson v. City of New York,
No. 08-cv-3673 (KAM)(LB), 2010 WL 5818290 (E.D.N.Y. Dec. 13, 2010) 9

LeBlanc-Sternberg v. Fletcher,
143 F. 3d 748 (2d Cir. 1998) 11

Lemmer v. Golden Books Family Entm't Inc.,
No. 98 Civ. 5748 (S.D.N.Y. Oct. 12, 1999) 9

Lindy Bros. Builders, Inc. v. Am. Radiator & Standard Sanitary Corp.,
487 F.2d 161 (3d Cir. 1973) 10

Maley v. Del Global Tech. Corp.,
186 F. Supp. 2d 358 (S.D.N.Y. 2002) 9, 12

Marsh & McLennan,
2009 WL 5178546 ..... 12, 14, 17

Maywalt v. Parker & Parsley Petroleum Co.,
963 F. Supp. 310 (S.D.N.Y. 1997) 10

McDaniel v. County of Schenectady,
595 F.3d 411 (2d Cir. 2010) 9

Morris v. Affinity Health Plan, Inc.,
859 F.Supp.2d 611 (S.D.N.Y. 2012) 11

Newman v. Caribiner Int'l Inc.,
No. 99 Civ. 2271 (S.D.N.Y. Oct. 19, 2001) 9

Olick v. Parker & Parsley Petroleum Co.,
145 F.3d 513 (2d Cir. 1998) 10

Priceline.com, Inc. v. Silberman,
405 F. App'x 532 (2d Cir. 2010) 15

Reichman v. Bonsignore, Brignati & Mazzotta, P.C.,
818 F.2d 278 (2d Cir. 1987) 19

Reiter v. MTA N.Y.C. Transit Auth.,
457 F.3d 224 (2d Cir. 2006) 11

Reiter v. Sonotone Corp.,
442 U.S. 330 (1979) 17

Savoie v. Merchs. Bank,
166 F.3d 456 (2d Cir. 1999) 8

Wal-Mart Stores, Inc. v. Visa U.S.A., Inc.,
396 F.3d 96 (2d Cir. 2005) 8, 10, 15, 18

Weseley v. Spear, Leeds & Kellogg,
711 F. Supp. 713 (E.D.N.Y 1989) 15

Yap v. Sumitomo Corp. of America,
No. 88 Civ. 700 (LBS), 1991 WL29112 (S.D.N.Y. Feb.22, 1991) 21

I. INTRODUCTION

Class Plaintiffs, by their counsel, submit this memorandum of law in support of their motion for an award of attorneys' fees and reimbursement of costs and expenses upon the successful conclusion of the class action litigation in which Class Counsel has now recovered an additional $100,514,500 (the "Settlement Amount"). The fund was created from six settlements with the Remaining Defendants,[1] who take no position on this fee application. Specifically, Co-Lead Class Counsel Boies, Schiller & Flexner LLP, Hausfeld, LLP, and Susman Godfrey, LLP (collectively, "Lead Counsel") seek an award of $33 million in attorneys' fees to be paid out of the settlement funds created by six separate settlement agreements (the "Settlements", see ECF Nos. 1994-1 – 1994-6):

Soc Gen	$25,412,500
Natixis	$28,452,000
Piper	$9,750,000
GK Baum	$1,400,000
Nat West	$3,500,000
UBS	$32,000,000

The settlements with the Remaining Defendants, which are in addition to the $122,813,398.74 recovered for the Class in settlements already approved by the Court, bring this lengthy litigation to an end, and increase the total recovery for the Class in this hard-fought litigation to $223,327,898.74. That recovery has been the product of over 120,000 hours of work by Class Counsel, which at historical rates has produced an attorneys' fee lodestar amount exceeding $47 million, resulting in a low lodestar multiplier of approximately 1.37. As one would expect given the long life of this litigation, adjusting the lodestar to current rates (as the Second Circuit has approved) would substantially increase that figure—likely in excess of $60 million—and result in almost no multiplier at all.

[1] These are: Société Générale, S.A. ("Soc Gen"), Natixis Funding Corp., f/k/a IXIS Funding Corp., and before that, f/k/a CDC Funding Corp. ("Natixis"), Piper Jaffray & Co. ("Piper"), George K. Baum & Company ("GK Baum"), National Westminster Bank plc ("Nat West"), and UBS AG, ("UBS").

The requested fee award of $33 million, which is less than 33% of the Settlement Amount, would bring the total fees awarded in this case to $64,228,236.17, or approximately 28.76% of the total amount recovered for the Class. The requested fee is well within the range of appropriate awards given the magnitude of relief obtained as a result of this litigation—over the life of this case, almost a quarter of a billion dollars has been obtained for the class of cities and municipalities by Class Counsel. Using lodestar as a cross-check, the requested fee is at the low-end of what courts approve as reasonable.

II. BACKGROUND

A. The Litigation and Prior Settlements

Lead Counsel began investigating the municipal derivatives industry in 2006. This litigation was commenced in March 2008, with the filing of a class action lawsuit by purchasers of municipal derivatives. This antitrust class action alleges that Defendants engaged in a scheme to rig the bids for and prices of municipal derivatives and seeks damages under Sections 4 and 16 of the Clayton Act, 15 U.S.C. §§ 15 and 26, and Section 1 of the Sherman Act, 15 U.S.C. § 1.

On August 27, 2010, Class Plaintiffs entered into a settlement agreement with Morgan Stanley (the "Morgan Stanley Settlement"). Under the terms of the Morgan Stanley Settlement, Morgan Stanley paid a total of $6,500,000—comprised of $4,950,000 in exchange for settlement of the Released Claims, as defined in the Morgan Stanley Settlement, and $1,550,000 to be used for fees and costs, including the costs of sending and administering notice of the settlement into an interest-bearing escrow account for benefit of the Settlement Class. See Morgan Stanley Settlement Agreement (ECF No. 1181-1) ¶ 7. Morgan Stanley also agreed to provide substantial assistance to Lead Counsel in connection with the ongoing prosecution of this exceptionally complex antitrust class action. Id. ¶ 18. On September 27, 2011, Lead Counsel filed a motion for an award of attorneys' fees and expenses in connection with the Morgan Stanley Settlement, requesting $65,505.83 in legal fees and $1,484,494.17 in expenses and costs. ECF No. 1591. In the accompanying memorandum of law, Lead Counsel reserved the right to ask the Court to consider the benefits to the class conferred by the Morgan Stanley settlement in any fee application made with respect to a subsequent settlement. ECF No. 1592. On October 7, 2011, this Court entered an order awarding Class Counsel $65,505.83 in fees and reimbursing $1,484,494.17 in expenses and costs. ECF No. 1597. The fee award equaled 1% of the common fund. On December 27, 2011, this Court entered an Order and Judgment approving the Morgan Stanley Settlement and settling the action against Morgan Stanley. ECF No. 1666.

On October 21, 2011, Class Plaintiffs entered into a settlement agreement with Wachovia Bank, N.A., (n/k/a Wells Fargo Bank, N.A.), and Wells Fargo & Company (collectively, "Wachovia"). Under the terms of the Wachovia Settlement, Wachovia paid $35,074,074.00, including the costs of sending and administering notice of the Settlement. See Wachovia Settlement Agreement (ECF No. 1640-1), at ¶ 1(ff); ECF No. 1759 (adjusting final settlement amount). Wachovia also agreed to provide substantial assistance to Lead Counsel in connection with the ongoing prosecution of this exceptionally complex antitrust class action. Wachovia Settlement Agreement ¶ 25. On November 10, 2011, Class Plaintiffs filed for preliminary approval of the Wachovia Settlement. ECF No. 1638. On February 19, 2013, the Wachovia Settlement was finally approved by this Court. ECF No. 1759.

On April 18, 2012, Class Plaintiffs entered into a settlement agreement with JPMorgan Chase & Co., J.P. Morgan Securities, Inc. (n/k/a J.P. Morgan Securities LLC), and Bear Stearns & Co., Inc. (n/k/a J.P. Morgan Securities LLC (collectively, "JPMorgan"). Under the terms of the JPMorgan Settlement, JPMorgan paid a total of $42,660,519.83, including the costs of sending and administering notice of the Settlement and accrued interest. See JPMorgan Settlement Agreement (ECF No. 1692), at ¶ 1(jj); ECF No. 1745 (adjusting final settlement amount). JPMorgan also agreed to provide substantial assistance to Lead Counsel in connection with the ongoing prosecution of this exceptionally complex antitrust class action. JPMorgan Settlement Agreement ¶ 23. On May 30, 2012, Class Plaintiffs filed for preliminary approval of the JPMorgan Settlement. See ECF No. 1690. On June 4, 2012, the JPMorgan Settlement was finally approved by the Court. ECF No. 1745.

On July 23, 2013, Class Plaintiffs entered into a settlement agreement with GE Funding Capital Market Services, Inc., Trinity Funding Co., LLC, and Trinity Plus Funding Co, LLC (collectively, "GE). Under the terms of the GE Settlement, GE paid a total of $18,050,000.00, including the costs of sending and administering notice of the Settlement. See GE Settlement Agreement (ECF No. 1825-1), at ¶ 1(gg); ECF No. 1902 (adjusting final settlement amount). GE also agreed to provide substantial assistance to Lead Counsel in connection with the ongoing prosecution of this exceptionally complex antitrust class action. GE Settlement Agreement ¶ 21. On December 6, 2013, Class Plaintiffs filed for preliminary approval of the GE Settlement. ECF No. 1823. On June 6, 2014, the GE Settlement was finally approved by the Court. ECF No. 1902.

On October 18, 2013, Class Plaintiffs entered into a settlement agreement with Bank of America, N.A. ("BoA"). Under the terms of the BoA Settlement, BoA paid a total of $20,528.804.81, including the costs of sending and administering notice of the Settlement. See BoA Settlement Agreement (ECF No. 1823-1), at ¶ 1(gg); ECF No. 1901 (adjusting final settlement amount). BoA also agreed to provide substantial assistance to Lead Counsel in connection with the ongoing prosecution of this exceptionally complex antitrust class action. Id. ¶ 21. On December 4, 2013, Class Plaintiffs filed for preliminary approval of the BoA Settlement. ECF No. 1819. On June 6, 2014, the BoA Settlement was finally approved by the Court. ECF No. 1901.

B. The Settlement Agreements with Remaining Defendants

The terms of the Settlement Agreements with the Remaining Defendants were negotiated through extensive meetings and discussions over the course of several months, both directly with defense counsel and also with the assistance of the Honorable Layn Phillips, an experienced mediator. See Declaration of Megan Jones in Support of Motion for Preliminary Approval of Settlements with Soc Gen, Natixis, Piper, GK Baum, Nat West, and UBS, (ECF No. 1994) ("Jones Decl."), ¶ 4. During this period of time, there were numerous in-person meetings, telephone calls and email exchanges regarding the settlement terms, including mediation sessions and written briefing with Judge Phillips for UBS, SocGen, Natixis and Piper. See id. Lead Counsel analyzed the contested legal and factual issues posed by this litigation, including detailed assessments of the Remaining Defendants' defenses, in order to make well-supported settlement demands. See id.; see also Declaration of William Isaacson.

Pursuant to the Settlement Agreements with the Remaining Defendants that were preliminarily approved by this Court (ECF No. 1996), UBS has agreed to pay $32 million; Natixis has agreed to pay $28,452,500; Soc Gen has agreed to pay $25,412,500; Piper has agreed to pay $9,750,000; NatWest has agreed to pay $3,500,000; and GK Baum has agreed to pay $1,400,000. Five of the Remaining Defendants have also agreed to provide reasonable cooperation, including discovery cooperation, to Lead Counsel—which would be needed if any of these Settlements are not approved or otherwise implemented. In total, the Settlements bring over $100 million in new money for the benefit of the Class.

The proposed settlements, following settlements with Morgan Stanley, JPMorgan, Wachovia, BoA, and GE, offer a path for the final resolution of this hard-fought litigation over a seven-year period. All told, if these Settlements are approved, the class settlements will have secured nearly $225 million for the benefit of the class.

C. Preliminary Approval, Notice, and Claims for Fees and Expenses

The Settlement Agreements provide that Lead Counsel will request the Court to approve any application for attorneys' fees and expenses. See ECF Nos. 1994-1 ¶ 24, 1994-2 ¶ 23, 1994-3 ¶ 23, 1994-4 ¶ 21, 1994-5 ¶ 20, and 1994-6 ¶ 23. On February 25, 2016, the Court entered an order conditionally certifying a settlement class and preliminarily approving the settlement with the Remaining Defendants. ECF No. 1996. The Court approved the proposed notice to class members with respect to Remaining Defendants and set a final approval hearing for the settlements on July 8, 2016. ECF No. 2004.

The Court-approved class notice form, distributed to the Class and available on the Municipal Derivatives website, has informed the Class that:

> You are not personally responsible for payment of attorneys' fees or expenses for Class Counsel. Instead, as compensation for their time and the risk in litigating the case on a contingent basis, Class Counsel will ask the Court to approve from the Settlement Amount an interim payment of attorneys' fees, as well as an interim reimbursement for their expenses actually incurred in the prosecution of the litigation. Class Counsel will make a request for fees (equaling up to 1/3 of the total Settlement Amounts) and expenses at or before the date for objections on June 20, 2016 (see Question 24), and this request will be made available at the > Municipal Derivatives Settlement website. Now or at some point in the future, Class Counsel may also ask the Court to approve compensation for the work of the Class Representatives as well, for up to $20,000 each for each settlement.[2]

Lead Counsel's request is in accord with the notice given the class, as it seeks an award of less than one-third of the settlement amounts from by the Remaining Defendants.

To date, no class member has objected to the proposed amount of the fees and costs for Class Counsel. If any such objection is received by the deadline for such objections, Lead Counsel will promptly notify the Court.

III. ARGUMENT

A. The Court May Award Attorneys' Fees and Expenses under the Common Fund Doctrine

In Boeing Co. v. Van Gemert, 444 U.S. 472, 478 (1980), the Supreme Court recognized that "a lawyer who recovers a common fund for the benefit of persons other than himself or his client is entitled to a reasonable attorney's fee from the fund as a whole." See also Goldberger v. Integrated Res., Inc., 209 F.3d 43, 47 (2d Cir. 2000). Having achieved excellent settlements with all solvent defendants in this case, Lead Counsel respectfully submit that the requested $33 million, which would produce a total fee award of approximately 28.76% of the total amount recovered for the Class, is reasonable and consistent with what is regularly approved in this District.

The courts traditionally have used two methods to evaluate the reasonableness of fee requests in common fund cases: (1) the percentage method, which awards attorneys' fees as a percentage of the benefit created for the class; and (2) the lodestar multiplier approach, which involves multiplying the number of hours expended by counsel by the hourly rate normally charged for similar work by attorneys of comparable skill and experience and then enhancing the resulting lodestar figure by an appropriate multiplier to reflect litigation risk, the complexity of the issues, the contingent nature of the engagement, the skill of the attorneys, and other well-recognized factors. Savoie v. Merchs. Bank, 166 F.3d 456, 460 (2d Cir. 1999). The Second Circuit has held that district courts may use either the percentage method or the lodestar method, although the trend is toward the percentage method. Wal-Mart Stores, Inc. v. Visa U.S.A., Inc., 396 F.3d 96, 121 (2d Cir. 2005); see also In re Bisys Sec. Litig., No. 04 Civ. 3840 (JSR), 2007 WL 2049726, at *2 (S.D.N.Y. July 16, 2007).[3] Even when not used as the primary means to determine an appropriate fee, "[t]he lodestar method remains highly useful… as a 'cross-check' to further ensure reasonableness." Id.; see also Goldberger v. Integrated Res., Inc., 209 F.3d 43, 50 (2d Cir. 2000).

[2] https://municipalderivativessettlement.com/Portals/0/Documents/5067_MUND-2_WEB_Cover%20Ltr-Distrib%20Plan-CFW_v1.pdf Notice Form, Question No. 21 (emphasis added).

Regardless of whether a court applies the percentage method or the lodestar method, its ultimate task is to ensure that the fees awarded are "reasonable" under the circumstances. Id. at 47. The determination of "reasonableness" is within the Court's discretion. Id.; In re WorldCom, Inc. Sec. Litig., 388 F. Supp. 2d 319, 355 (S.D.N.Y. 2005). The Second Circuit has instructed that, in the exercise of such discretion:

> [D]istrict courts should continue to be guided by the traditional criteria in determining a reasonable common fund fee, including: "(1) the time and labor expended by counsel; (2) the magnitude and complexities of the litigation; (3) the risk of the litigation . . . ; (4) the quality of representation; (5) the requested fee in relation to the settlement; and (6) public policy considerations."

Goldberger, 209 F.3d at 50 (citation omitted).

[3] "[T]he percentage approach most closely approximates the manner in which private litigants compensate their attorneys in the marketplace contingency fee model." In re Lloyd's Am. Trust Fund Litig., No. 96- cv- Civ. 1262 (RWS), 2002 WL 31663577, at *26 (S.D.N.Y. Nov. 26, 2002).

Moreover, the Second Circuit has recognized that "market rates, where available, are the ideal proxy for [Plaintiffs' Counsel's] compensation." Id. at 52. Thus, the Court should "approximate the reasonable fee that a competitive market would bear." Johnson v. City of New York, No. 08-cv-3673 (KAM)(LB), 2010 WL 5818290, at *4 (E.D.N.Y. Dec. 13, 2010) (citing McDaniel v. County of Schenectady, 595 F.3d 411, 420 (2d Cir. 2010)); see also id. at 422 (district court's focus should be "on mimicking a market").

Lead Counsel submit that the requested award of fees and expenses is reasonable under the percentage method, and when viewed in light of the Goldberger factors.

B. Under a Percentage of the Fund Approach, the Requested Fees are Fair and Reasonable

Class Plaintiffs' request for $33 million in attorneys' fees is less than 33% of the Settlement Amount and would produce a total fee award for the life of the case of approximately 28.76% of the total recovery for the Class in this case. Courts in this District routinely award attorneys' fees amounting to one-third of the common fund created. See, e.g., Anwar v. Fairfield Greenwich Ltd., Master File No. 09-cv-118 (VM), 2012 WL 1981505 *3 (S.D.N.Y. Jun 1, 2012) (Marrero, J.) (fee request representing 33% of the settlement fund "is well within the percentage range that courts within the Second Circuit have awarded in other complex litigations"); In re Marsh ERISA Litig., 265 F.R.D. 128, 135 (S.D.N.Y. 2010) (one-third of $35 million); In re Initial Pub. Offering Sec. Litig., 671 F. Supp. 2d 467, 516 (S.D.N.Y. 2009) (awarding 33.3% fee of $510 million net settlement recovery); Maley v. Del Global Tech. Corp., 186 F. Supp. 2d 358, 370 (S.D.N.Y. 2002) (awarding one-third of settlement fund); Newman v. Caribiner Int'l Inc., No. 99 Civ. 2271 (S.D.N.Y. Oct. 19, 2001) (same); Lemmer v. Golden Books Family Entm't Inc., No. 98 Civ. 5748 (S.D.N.Y. Oct. 12, 1999) (same); Maywalt v. Parker & Parsley Petroleum Co., 963 F. Supp. 310, 313 (S.D.N.Y. 1997), aff'd sub nom., Olick

v. Parker & Parsley Petroleum Co., 145 F.3d 513 (2d Cir. 1998); In re Allstar Inns Sec. Litig., No. Civ. A. 88CIV 9282, 1991 WL 352491 (S.D.N.Y. Nov. 20, 1991) (35%); Baron v. Commercial & Indus. Bank of Memphis, No. 75 Civ. 1274, 1979 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 9380, at *18 (S.D.N.Y. Oct. 3, 1979) (36%). This award is particularly warranted here given the excellent result obtained, and the risks incurred by Class Counsel over nearly a decade of work.

C. The Request Is Reasonable Under the Lodestar "Crosscheck"

A cross-check of the lodestar reported to Lead Counsel confirms the reasonableness of Lead Counsel's percentage request. The lodestar comprises the number of hours devoted by counsel multiplied by the current, non-contingent hourly billing rate of counsel. Arbor Hill Concerned Citizens Neighborhood Ass'n v. County of Albany, 522 F.3d 182, 190 (2d Cir. 2008); see also In re Prudential Sec. Inc. Ltd. P'ships Litig., 985 F. Supp. 410, 414 (S.D.N.Y. 1997). Courts then adjust that lodestar figure (typically by applying a multiplier) to reflect such factors as the risk and contingent nature of the litigation, the results obtained, and the quality of the attorneys' work. See, e.g., Lindy Bros. Builders, Inc. v. Am. Radiator & Standard Sanitary Corp., 487 F.2d 161, 167-69 (3d Cir. 1973). "Where the lodestar fee is used as 'a mere cross-check' to the percentage method of determining reasonable attorneys' fees, 'the hours documented by counsel need not be exhaustively scrutinized by the district court.'" WorldCom, 388 F. Supp. 2d at 355 (quoting Goldberger, 209 F.3d at 50).

However, since Goldberger, courts in this Circuit have recognized the preferability of the percentage of the fund approach. See, e.g., In re Visa Check/Mastermoney Antitrust Litig., 297 F. Supp. 2d 503, 520 (E.D.N.Y. 2003) aff'd sub nom. Wal-Mart Stores, Inc. v. Visa U.S.A., Inc., 396 F.3d 96 (2d Cir. 2005) (Gleeson, J.) (the percentage of the fund approach "spares the court and the parties the 'cumbersome, enervating, and often surrealistic process' of lodestar computation" (quoting Goldberger, 209 F.3d at 50)).

Over nearly a decade of work on this case, Class Counsel reported and recorded over 120,000 hours of work, representing a lodestar—calculated at historical rates—exceeding $47 million.[4] See Isaacson Decl. ¶¶ 11-12. Moreover, because Class Counsel's lodestar was calculated at historic rates, it represents a significant discount compared to lodestar calculated at present rates. If calculated at present rates, as controlling precedent favors,[5] that figure would be significantly higher, likely in excess of $60 million, resulting in little or no lodestar multiplier. Id. (noting that certain firms' lodestar would rise as much as 24 to 32% if measured at current rates).[6]

"Courts regularly award lodestar multipliers from 2 to 6 times lodestar" in this Circuit, and thus regularly award lodestar multipliers significantly greater than that sought here. See, e.g., Morris v. Affinity Health Plan, Inc. 859 F.Supp.2d 611, 623-24 (S.D.N.Y. 2012) (awarding

[4] The contemporaneous records of Class Counsel's time are voluminous, but can be made available to the Court upon request.

[5] "The rates used by the court should be current rather than historic hourly rates." Reiter v. MTA N.Y.C. Transit Auth., 457 F.3d 224, 232 (2d Cir. 2006) (internal quotation marks and citation omitted). See also, e.g., LeBlanc-Sternberg v. Fletcher, 143 F. 3d 748 764 (2d Cir. 1998) ("[C]urrent rates, rather than historical rates, should be applied in order to compensate for the delay in payment").

[6] The fact that many who have worked on this case over its long life have changed firms or that, in some cases, firms have closed or merged would complicate the task of accurately computing a lodestar at current rates. To provide a rough yardstick, Lead Counsel have done some limited sampling to estimate the effect of using current, rather than historical, rates for lawyers and firms involved throughout the life of the case. As a result of that analysis, we have determined that the lodestar attributable to the work of Bill Isaacson, of the Boies Schiller firm, would increase approximately 32% if calculated using current rates. The Susman Godfrey firm calculates that its collective lodestar would increase approximately 24% if calculated using current rates. Isaacson Decl. ¶ 11. By this yardstick, for example, a 28% increase would translate to a $60,160,000 lodestar.

lodestar that was "3.04 times their own lodestar, and 2.01 times the total of their lodestar and Plaintiff's Counsel's lodestar combined"); see also In re EVCI Career Colleges Holding Corp. Sec. Litig., Case No. 05 Civ. 10240 (CM), 2007 WL 2230177, at *17 n.7 (S.D.N.Y. July 27, 2007) ("Lodestar multipliers of nearly 5 have been deemed 'common' by courts in this District."); Maley, 186 F. Supp. 2d at 369 (awarding fee equal to a 4.65 multiplier as "well within the range awarded by courts in this Circuit and courts throughout the country").

D. The Request Is Reasonable under the Goldberger Criteria

As noted above, the Second Circuit has stated that whether the Court uses the percentage method or the lodestar approach, it should consider the following traditional criteria: (1) the time and labor expended by counsel; (2) the risks of the litigation; (3) the magnitude and complexity of the litigation; (4) the requested fee in relation to the settlement; (5) the quality of representation; and (6) public policy considerations. Goldberger, 209 F.3d at 50. "In applying these criteria, a Court essentially makes … a qualitative assessment of a fair legal fee under all the circumstances of the case." Marsh & McLennan, 2009 WL 5178546, at *15 (citation and internal quotation omitted). An analysis of these factors further demonstrates that Lead Counsel's fee request is reasonable.

1. The Time and Labor Expended by Class Counsel in this Case Support the Fee and Expense Award Requested

The 120,000 hours expended and reported to Lead Counsel, which resulted in substantial Settlements, are plainly reasonable in view of the work performed in this complex antitrust action. See Isaacson Decl. ¶ 12. Class Counsel's efforts included, among other things:

- Researching, compiling evidence for, and filing the Consolidated Class Action Complaint and SCAC, which survived Defendants' motion to dismiss.
- Contacting all 20 individuals indicted in connection with the DOJ's prosecution of the municipal derivative industry, as well as other confidential government witnesses.

- Negotiating and obtaining the production of discovery from multiple defendants, resulting in more than 85 separate productions of evidence to Class Plaintiffs.

- Reviewing millions of documents produced by Defendants and conducting 30(b)(6) depositions of several Defendants.

- Organizing and funding a review team to listen, code, summarize, and cross-reference hundreds of thousands of audio files produced by Defendants, including 53,540 audio files produced by Wachovia and more than 200,000 audio files produced by JPMorgan.

- Obtaining witness interviews from many indicted individuals, and taking several of their depositions, including working with star government witness, Douglas Goldberg, to provide a 45 paragraph sworn affidavit detailing Defendants' role in the conspiracy, which was filed with the Court (ECF No. 1960-3).

- Working with industry and economic consultants and experts, including in support of a motion for class certification (which was being prepared at the time the settlements were reached).

- Conducting numerous in-person meetings, telephone call and email exchanges with experienced counsel on both sides regarding the settlement terms over the course of several months.

- Undertaking many steps to ensure that they had all necessary information to advocate for a fair settlement that serves the best interests of the Settlement Class.

- Analyzing all of the contested legal and factual issues posed by the litigation in order to make accurate demands and evaluations of the settling Defendants' positions.

- Engaging in extended arm's-length negotiations, often with the participation of a well-respected former federal judge serving as mediator that led to these settlement agreements.

- Preparing multiple written mediation submissions for each defendant with whom the Class mediated.

- Responding to inquiries from class members and potential class members regarding class settlement and issues and the status of the litigation.

See Isaacson Decl. ¶¶ 5-6 (detailing the work completed by Class Counsel).

The significant time and effort devoted to this case by Lead Counsel, and their commitment to the efficient management of the litigation, support approval of the requested award.

2. The Risk of the Litigation Supports the Fee and Expense Award Requested

An evaluation of the risks undertaken by Lead Counsel in prosecuting this action also supports the reasonableness of their fee request. "Contingency risk is the principal, though not exclusive, factor courts should consider in their determination of attorneys' fees." In re Dreyfus Aggressive Growth Mut. Fund Litig., No. 98 CV 4318 HB, 2001 WL 709262, at *6 (S.D.NY. June 22, 2001). "It is well-established that litigation risk must be measured as of when the case is filed," not when the fee application is adjudicated. Goldberger, 209 F.3d at 55.

The Second Circuit has recognized that "despite the most vigorous and competent of efforts, success is never guaranteed." City of Detroit v. Grinnell Corp., 495 F.2d 448, 471 (2d Cir. 1974). Moreover, in antitrust class actions in particular, "[t]he risks of establishing liability and damages at trial, and of maintaining the Class throughout the trial . . . militate in favor of approval [of settlement]." In re Visa Check, 297 F. Supp. 2d at 511. "In numerous class actions . . . plaintiffs' counsel have expended thousands of hours and advanced significant out-of-pocket expenses and received no remuneration whatsoever." Marsh & McLennan, 2009 WL 5178546, at *18 (citing examples of cases dismissed); see also In re NASDAQ Market-Makers Antitrust Litigation, 187 F.R.D. 465, 476 (S.D.N.Y. 1998) ("[T]he history of antitrust litigation is replete with cases in which antitrust plaintiffs succeeded at trial on liability, but recovered no damages, or only negligible damages, at trial, or on appeal.").

This case presented risks and uncertainties beyond those typically encountered, which made it uncertain that any recovery, let alone the settlements eventually obtained, would be achieved. For example, Defendants twice moved to dismiss the complaint, achieving limited success the first time. In their second motion to dismiss, Defendants argued that Class Plaintiffs' claims were time-barred, were inadequately pleaded under Twombly standards, and were preempted by IRS regulations under the Credit Suisse preemption doctrine. ECF No. 485.

While Class Plaintiffs' case on the merits was strong by the time settlements were reached during 2015 and 2016—due in significant part to Class Counsels' diligent efforts—the relevant date for measuring risk is the date when Class Counsel began. Goldberger, 209 F.3d at 55. In 2008, there were no criminal indictments, no criminal convictions and no public trials revealing the results of the government's years of research into these matters.

It is also important that Class Counsel undertook this case on a wholly contingent fee basis, knowing the litigation could last for many years and would (and did) require the expenditure of hundreds of thousands of attorney hours and millions of dollars in expenses, with no guarantee of compensation. See Isaacson Decl. ¶ 3. While Class Counsel committed significant resources and funds to the vigorous prosecution of this litigation, Class Counsel has not received any compensation since 2014. "Numerous courts have recognized that the attorney's contingent fee risk is an important factor in determining the fee award." Prudential, 985 F. Supp. at 417. This request is inherently reasonable when considered in light of the risks undertaken.

3. The Magnitude and Complexity of the Litigation Supports the Fee and Expense Award Requested

The requested fee award is also reasonable in light of the magnitude and complexity of the litigation. Antitrust price-fixing conspiracy cases are notoriously complex and vigorously contested. See, e.g., Wal-Mart, 396 F.3d at 122 (acknowledging the district court's finding that "antitrust cases, by their nature, are highly complex."); In re Currency Conversion Fee Antitrust Litig., 263 F.R.D. 110, 129 (S.D.N.Y. 2009) aff'd sub nom. Priceline.com, Inc. v. Silberman, 405 F. App'x 532 (2d Cir. 2010) (noting that "antitrust cases are typically complex"); Weseley, 711 F. Supp. at 719 (antitrust class actions "are notoriously complex, protracted, and bitterly fought").

This case is no exception. The Third Amended Complaint alleges a bid rigging scheme against sixteen defendants within the municipal derivatives market. Defendants are alleged to have conspired to fix, maintain or stabilize the price of, and to rig bids and allocate customers and markets for, municipal derivatives. The scope of the litigation is illustrated not only by the scope of the pleaded conspiracy, but also by the magnitude of discovery. Defendants produced millions of documents and hundreds of thousands of taped conversations, which required Class Counsel to assemble a squadron of attorneys to review and code.

4. The Settlements Support the Requested Fee Award and Expense Reimbursement

In Dupler v. Costco, the court held that "the fact that the requested fee is comparable to fees that courts have found reasonable . . . weighs in favor of the fee's reasonableness." 705 F. Supp. 2d 244 (E.D.N.Y. 2010). As discussed above, the proposed award represents less than one-third of the value of the most recent Settlements, an amount well within the range of fees awarded by courts in this Circuit in similarly-sized class actions.

5. The Quality of the Representation Supports the Fee and Expense Award Requested

The quality of the representation and the standing of Lead Counsel also support the reasonableness of the requested fee. "[P]rosecution and management of a complex national class action requires unique legal skills and abilities." Edmonds v. United States, 658 F. Supp. 1126, 1137 (D.S.C. 1987). The Court previously found that Lead Counsel have the requisite qualifications and experience to lead this litigation on behalf the proposed Settlement Class. ECF No. 183.

The high quality of the opposition that Class Counsel faced is a further testament to the quality of Class Counsel's representation. The Remaining Defendants were represented by skilled and highly regarded counsel from prestigious firms with well-deserved reputations for vigorous advocacy in the defense of complex civil cases. Courts have repeatedly recognized that the caliber of the opposition faced by plaintiffs' counsel should be taken into consideration in assessing the quality of the plaintiffs' counsel's performance, and in this case it supports approval of the requested fee. See, e.g., Anwar, 2012 WL 1981505 at *2 (considering "the quality and vigor of opposing counsel"); Marsh & McLennan, 2009 WL 5178546 at *19 (reasonableness of fee was supported by fact that defendants "were represented by first-rate attorneys who vigorously contested Lead Plaintiffs' claims and allegations"); Marsh ERISA Litig., 265 F.R.D. at 148 ("The high quality of defense counsel opposing Plaintiffs' efforts further proves the caliber of representation that was necessary to achieve the Settlement.").

Lead Counsel also worked cooperatively with the negotiating group of 22 State Attorneys General and achieved two joint settlements on behalf of the Class. This coordinated 22-state and private class settlement was a direct result of Lead Counsel's ability to fashion a creative solution that best served the interests of the Class.

6. Public Policy Considerations Support the Fee and Expense Award Requested

The Supreme Court has long recognized that private actions are an essential supplement to governmental actions to enforce the antitrust law. Reiter v. Sonotone Corp., 442 U.S. 330, 344 (1979) ("private suits provide a significant supplement to the limited resources available to the Department of Justice for enforcing the antitrust laws and deterring violations"). In furtherance of this important public policy, courts should award fees sufficient to encourage plaintiffs' counsel to bring antitrust class actions that supplement the efforts of the government regulators. See, Anwar, 2012 WL 1981505 at *3 ("Attorneys who take on class action matters on a contingent fee basis, enabling litigants to pool their claims, provide a service to the judicial process."); Wal-Mart Stores, 396 F.3d at 122 ("[I]t is especially important to provide appropriate incentives to attorneys pursuing antitrust actions because public policy relies on private sector enforcement of the antitrust laws."); WorldCom, 388 F. Supp. 2d at 359 ("In order to attract well-qualified plaintiff's counsel who are able to take a case to trial, and who defendants understand are able and willing to do so, it is necessary to provide appropriate financial incentives."). Approval of the requested fees and expenses would advance and be fully consistent with these important public policy considerations.

Lead Counsel's requested fees are thus reasonable and should be awarded.

E. Class Counsel's Expenses Should Be Reimbursed

Class Plaintiffs' Counsel also request reimbursement of all unreimbursed litigation costs and expenses incurred during this litigation, which currently total $2,484,198.24. See Isaacson Decl. ¶ 4.

The expenses incurred in this litigation are described in the Declaration filed in support of this application. See Isaacson Decl. They are the type of expenses typically billed by attorneys to paying clients in the marketplace and include such costs as fees paid to experts, notice costs, computer research, document processing and travel in connection with this litigation. Anwar, 2012 WL1981505 at *3 (reimbursing expenses such as "mediation fees, expert witness fees, electronic legal research, photocopying, postage, and travel expenses, each of which is the type 'the paying, arms' length market' reimburses attorneys." (quoting In re Global Crossing Sec. & ERISA Litig.,225 F.R.D. 436, 468 (S.D.N.Y.2004)). The fact that Class Counsel were willing to expend their own money, where reimbursement was entirely contingent on the success of this litigation, evidences that the expenditures were reasonable and necessary. See Isaacson Decl. ¶ 3.

"Courts routinely note that counsel is entitled to reimbursement from the common fund for reasonable litigation expenses." Anwar, 2012 WL1981505 at *3 (citing Reichman v. Bonsignore, Brignati & Mazzotta, P.C., 818 F.2d 278, 283 (2d Cir. 1987)); see, e.g., In re Visa Check, 297 F. Supp. 2d at 525 (noting that it is common practice to grant expense request and awarding $18.7 million in expenses where the "lion's share of these expenses reflects the cost of experts and consultants, litigation and trial support services, document imaging and copying, deposition costs, on-line legal research, and travel expenses."); In re Arakis Energy Corp. Sec. Litig., No.95cv3431 (ARR), 2001 WL 1590512, at *17 n.12 (E.D.N.Y. Oct. 31, 2001) ("Courts in the Second Circuit normally grant expense requests in common fund cases as a matter of course."); In re Vitamins Antitrust Litig., No. 99-197, MDL No. 1285, 2001 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 25067, at *69 (D.D.C. July16, 2001) ("[A]n attorney who has created a common fund for the benefit of the class is entitled to reimbursement of reasonable litigation expenses from that fund. Courts have routinely awarded expenses for which counsel would normally directly bill their clients."). These expenses should be reimbursed here.

F. Lead Counsel Should Be Given Authority to Distribute Attorney's Fees

Lead Counsel also request that the Court authorize them to distribute and allocate any attorneys' fees and expenses awarded from the settlements in a manner which, in the opinion of Lead Counsel, fairly compensates the Class Plaintiffs' counsel's firms for their services, as described in the Isaacson Declaration. See, e.g., In re Adelphia Comm 'n Corp. Sec. and Derivative Litig., No. 03 MDL 1529 (LMM), 2008 WL4128702, at *1-3 (S.D.N.Y. Sept. 3, 2008) (lead counsel allocating fees in the first instance); In re Vitamins Antitrust Litig., 398 F.

Supp. 2d 209, 224 (D.D.C. 2005) (discussing co-lead counsel allocation in the first instance and citing cases). The Court previously granted Lead Counsel authority to distribute fees in connection with the previous settlements. ECF Nos. 1724, 1903. To the extent that there are any disputes that cannot be resolved, the Court has the authority to resolve them.

G. The Named Plaintiffs Should Be Granted Reasonable Incentive Awards

Request is also made for payment out of the settlement funds of incentive compensation awards for the two named plaintiffs in the amount of $18,000 for each of the two class plaintiffs, drawn equally from each fund. See Proposed Order. For years, these municipal plaintiffs have been hands-on class representatives and have contributed their time for the benefit of the Class. Unlike the other class members, the City of Baltimore and Central Bucks School District consulted regularly with Lead Counsel concerning the status of the case, the content of the pleadings, and the progress of settlement negotiations. See Isaacson Decl. ¶¶ 7-10. They have also collected and produced tens of thousands of documents in response to document requests from Defendants, at significant time and expense. Id. The Notice to the Class advised Class members that Class Counsel would apply for such incentive awards. See ECF No. 1697-2 Question 21; ECF No. 1705-2 Question 21 ("Now or in the future, Class Counsel may also ask the Court to approve compensation for the work of the Class Representatives as well, for $20,000 each."). To date, no class member has objected to an incentive award being awarded to the named plaintiffs.

"Courts consistently approve awards in class action lawsuits to compensate named plaintiffs for the services they provide and burdens they endure during litigation," and it should do so here. Anwar, 2012 WL 1981505 at *3 (awarding $25,000 to class representative); see also Currency Conversion, 263 F.R.D. at 131 (awarding $350,000 incentive awards to the named representatives in class action antitrust lawsuit, ranging from $3,000 to $45,000 per representative); In re Remeron End-Payor Antitrust Litig., No. Civ. 02-2007 FSH, Civ. 04-5126 FSH, 2005 WL 2230314, *15 (D. N.J. Sept. 13, 2005) (granting incentive awards of $30,000 each to two plaintiffs); In re Linerboard Antitrust Litig., No. MDL 1261, Civ. A. 98-5055, Civ A. 99-1000, Civ. A. 99-1341, 2004 WL 1221350, *18 (E.D. Pa. June 2, 2004) (approving $25,000 to each representative of the classes); Duchene v. Michael Cetta, Inc., No. 06 Civ. 4576 (PAC)(GWG), 2009 WL 5841175 *9 (S.D.N.Y. Sept. 10, 2009) (award of $25,000); (award of $25,000); Dornberger v. Metro. Life Ins. Co., 203 F.R.D. 118 (S.D.N.Y.2001) (noting case law supports payments of between $2,500 and $85,000 to representative plaintiffs in class actions); Yap v. Sumitomo Corp. of America, No. 88 Civ. 700 (LBS), 1991 WL29112, *9 (S.D.N.Y. Feb.22, 1991) ($30,000 incentive awards to the named plaintiffs).

IV. CONCLUSION

For the reasons set forth herein, Lead Counsel respectfully requests that this Court award its requested fees in the amount of $33,000,000, expenses in the amount of $2,484,198.24, and incentive awards in the amounts proposed.

Dated: May 6, 2016

Respectfully submitted,

/s/ Scott E. Gant

William C. Carmody
Seth D. Ard
SUSMAN GODFREY L.L.P.
560 Lexington Avenue, 15th Floor
New York, NY 10022
Telephone: (212) 336-8330
Facsimile: (212) 336-8340

Marc M. Seltzer
SUSMAN GODFREY, L.L.P.
1901 Avenue of the Stars, Suite 950
Los Angeles, CA 90067-6029
Telephone: (310) 789-3100
Facsimile: (310) 789-3150

Michael D. Hausfeld
Megan E. Jones
HAUSFELD LLP
1700 K Street
NW Washington, DC 20006
Telephone: (202) 540-7200
Facsimile: (202) 540-7201

William A. Isaacson
Jonathan M. Shaw
Scott E. Gant
BOIES, SCHILLER & FLEXNER LLP
5301 Wisconsin Ave, NW
Washington, DC 20015
Telephone: (202) 237-2727
Facsimile: (202) 237-6131

Plaintiffs' Co-Lead Interim Class Counsel

CERTIFICATE OF SERVICE

I hereby certify that on May 6, 2016, I caused a true and correct copy of the foregoing instrument to be served via the Electronic Case Filing (ECF) system in the United States District Court for the Southern District of New York, on all parties registered for CM/ECF in the above captioned matter.

/s/ Scott E. Gant
Scott E. Gant

TAB 42A

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT

NORTHERN DISTRICT OF CALIFORNIA

OAKLAND DIVISION

IN RE: NATIONAL COLLEGIATE ATHLETIC ASSOCIATION ATHLETIC GRANT-IN-AID CAP ANTITRUST LITIGATION

This Document Relates to:

ALL ACTIONS EXCEPT

Jenkins v. Nat'l Collegiate Athletic Ass'n
Case No. 4:14-cv-02758-CW

No. 4:14-md-2541-CW

ORDER GRANTING PLAINTIFFS' AND CLASS COUNSEL'S MOTION FOR ATTORNEYS' FEES, EXPENSES AND SERVICE AWARDS

DATE: November 17, 2017
TIME: 9:00 a.m.
DEPT: Courtroom 2, 4th Floor
JUDGE: Hon. Claudia Wilken

COMPLAINT FILED: March 5, 2014

I. BACKGROUND

Plaintiffs seek final approval of a settlement that provides for payment of approximately 50% of the classes' single damages claims after fees and expenses are deducted. The settlement agreement is the result of extensive litigation and arm's-length negotiations between the parties. Defendants agree to pay $208,664,445.00, which (after deduction of fees and expenses) will be disbursed to student-athletes who attended Division I schools that plaintiffs' evidence shows would have awarded the full cost of attendance at those schools ("COA"), but for the NCAA bylaw in effect until January 1, 2015, that capped the maximum grant-in-aid ("GIA") at less than COA. The average recovery for a class member who played his or her sport for four years would be approximately $6,000.[1] After final approval of the proposed settlement, each impacted class member with calculated damages will be mailed a check, with no claim form required and no right of any reversion of funds to defendants.

Plaintiffs' counsel, who have litigated numerous antitrust and other matters against the NCAA over the years, believe this is an exceptional result for the proposed class. As this Court knows, antitrust matters against the NCAA involve unique arguments and have had narrow historical success. And the NCAA has been willing to devote significant resources to vigorously defending them, including on appeal. Thus, not only is the monetary size of the settlement a major benefit to the class, the likelihood of near-term payout is also significant.

Finally, the settlement does not release or bar in any way the class claims for prospective injunctive relief from going forward—and plaintiffs will continue to vigorously pursue them.

Plaintiffs and Class Counsel request: (1) an award of attorneys' fees in the amount of $41,732,889, which is exactly 20% of the $208,664,445 million settlement fund; (2) reimbursement of $3,184,274.38 in expenses and costs plaintiffs' counsel have advanced to date on behalf of the class; and (3) service awards of $20,000 each for the four class representatives.

[1] Since the settlement was reached, many additional schools began paying or stated an intent to pay COA. Eligible class members from these additional COA-paying schools will also receive payment from the settlement fund. As such, the number of class members eligible to receive payment has grown significantly since the settlement was reached.

A. The requested fee of twenty percent of the settlement is fair and reasonable (and even below market) under the percentage-of-the-recovery method.

In the Ninth Circuit, the district court has discretion in a common fund case to choose either the "percentage-of-the-fund" or the "lodestar" method in calculating fees. In re Online DVD-Rental Antitrust Litig., 779 F.3d 934, 949 (9th Cir. 2015). Regardless of what method is chosen as the primary method to calculate attorneys' fees, the Ninth Circuit encourages district courts to conduct "a cross-check using the other method." Id. Plaintiffs' counsel request in the amount of $41,732,889, which is 20% of the $208,664,445 million settlement fund. Applying a lodestar cross-check, this would be a 3.66 multiplier from plaintiffs' counsel's lodestar of $11,398,158.30. The Court finds these fees to be fair and reasonable under either method.

When considering a request for attorneys' fees under the percentage-of-recovery method, the Ninth Circuit has "established a 25 percent 'benchmark' in percentage-of-the-fund cases that can be 'adjusted upward or downward to account for any unusual circumstances involved in [the] case.'"[2] The Ninth Circuit has instructed that although the benchmark of 25 percent "is not per se valid, it is a helpful 'starting point.'"[3] Courts consider the following factors to determine whether to apply either an upward or downward adjustment from that benchmark: (1) the results obtained by counsel; (2) the risks and complexity of issues in the case; (3) whether the attorneys' fees were entirely contingent upon success and whether counsel risked time and effort and advanced costs with no guarantee of compensation; (4) whether awards in similar cases justify the requested fee; and (5) whether the class was notified of the requested fees and had an opportunity to inform the Court of any concerns they have with the request.[4] Each of these factors supports the request for fees of 20 percent.

[2] Fischel v. Equitable Life Assur. Soc'y of the United States, 307 F.3d 997, 1006 (9th Cir. 2002) (citation omitted). See also In re Bluetooth Headset Prods. Liab. Litig., 654 F.3d 935, 942 (9th Cir. 2011) ("we have allowed courts to award attorneys a percentage of the common fund in lieu of the often more time-consuming task of calculating the lodestar").

[3] In re Online DVD-Rental Antitrust Litig., 779 F.3d 934, 955 (9th Cir. 2015) (citation omitted).

[4] See, e.g., Keller, 2015 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 114387, at *12-13.

1. The 25% benchmark award is presumptively reasonable, reflecting a market based fee.

Plaintiffs' counsel seek fees that are $10.4 million under the 25% benchmark. "While the benchmark is not per se valid," the Ninth Circuit has recognized that requesting "the 25% benchmark award only" shows the reasonableness of a fee request.[5] As a court in this District recognized, "in most common fund cases, the award exceeds the [25%] benchmark."[6] And this Court has referred to the "the many cases in this circuit that have granted fee awards of 30% or more."[7]

Empirical evidence supports the 20% fee request. A study of attorneys' fees, known as the EMG Study,[8] looked at awards in 458 class actions between 2009 and 2013, finding that 21% was the midpoint for fees where the recovery exceeded $100 million. The largest recoveries, over $100 million, had mean and median fee percentages ranging from 16.6% to 25.5%, depending on the year.[9] Twenty-one percent is the mid-point of that range and below the average award of 22.3% for the highest recoveries (above $67.5 million).[10] The report finds that "[o]n average, fees were 27% of gross recovery during the 2009-2013 period, which is higher than the average fee percentage of 23% that we reported in our analyses of the 1993-2008 period."[11] And of the 53 settlements in this District, the mean and median awards were 26% and 25%, respectively, matching the mean and median percentages found more broadly in the 144 settlements surveyed in the Ninth Circuit.[12] Further, of

---

[5] In re Online DVD-Rental Antitrust Litig., 779 F.3d at 955. See also Keller v. NCAA, 2015 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 166546, at *28-29 (N.D. Cal. Dec. 10, 2015) ("A fee award of 30 percent is within the usual range of fee awards that Ninth Circuit courts award in common fund cases.") (citations and internal quotation marks omitted).

[6] De Mira v. Heartland Empl. Serv., 2014 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 33685, at *2 (N.D. Cal. Mar. 13, 2014) (quoting In re Omnivision Techs., 559 F. Supp. 2d 1036, 1047 (N.D. Cal. 2008)).

[7] Vedachalam v. Tata Consultancy Servs., Ltd., 2013 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 100796, at *4 (N.D. Cal. July 18, 2013) (awarding 30% fee). This Court cited In re Heritage Bond Litig., 2005 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 13555, at *18 n.12 (C.D. Cal. June 10, 2005), in which the court noted that more than 200 federal cases awarded fees higher than 30% as of 2005.

[8] Berman Decl., Ex. C (Eisenberg, Miller & Germano, Attorneys' Fees in Class Actions: 2009-2013) ("EMG Study") at 8.

[9] Id.

[10] Id. at 9.

[11] Id. at 8.

[12] Id. at 11, 12.

the 19 antitrust settlements between 2009 and 2013, with a mean recovery of $501.09 million and a median recovery of $37.3 million, the mean and median fee percentages were 27% and 30%.

2. All relevant circumstances confirm a 20% fee award is reasonable.

a. A 20% fee is justified by the exceptional results achieved.

"The most important factor is the results achieved for the class."[13] Here, the results are exceptional because counsels' efforts created a $208,664,445 fund for the class (nearly 100% single damages at time of settlement and 66% of single damages currently). Far lesser results (with 20% recovery of damages or less) have justified upward departures from the 25% benchmark.[14] The results achieved are even more substantial when considering the actual recovery amounts. The average recovery for a class member who was eligible to receive payment for four years is approximately $6,000, after accounting for the fees and expenses class counsel requests. Importantly, class counsel also negotiated an allocation and payment method whereby, at the time of disbursement, each non-opt-out class member who is entitled to payment will receive payment directly in the mail, without needing to make any showing or do anything further. Plaintiffs' counsel achieved these exceptional raw-dollar, percentage, and per capita results despite facing off against some of the best, and most well-resourced, defense lawyers in the country.[15]

---

[13] In re Cathode Ray Tube (CRT) Antitrust Litig., 2016 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 102408, at *63 (N.D. Cal. Aug. 3, 2016).

[14] See, e.g., id. at *65 (holding that 20% antitrust recovery in a megafund case warranted "a modest increase over the Ninth Circuit benchmark"); In re Omnivision Techs., 559 F. Supp. 2d at 1046 ("a total award of approximately 9% of the possible damages . . . weighs in favor of granting the requested 28% fee"). In In re Heritage Bond Litig., 2005 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 13627, at *28-29 (C.D. Cal. June 10, 2005), the court cited numerous examples, stating that the "the Settlement Fund, as a percentage of recovery, is greater than recoveries obtained in other cases where courts have awarded attorneys' fees of one-third of a common fund. See, e.g., Medical X-Ray, 1998 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 14888, 1998 WL 661515, at *7-8 (court increased 25% benchmark to 33.3% where counsel recovered 17% of damages); Crazy Eddie, 824 F. Supp. at 326 (court increased 25% benchmark to 33.8% where counsel recovered 10% of damages); In re General Instr. Sec. Litig., 209 F. Supp. 2d 423, 431, 434 (E.D. Pa. 2001) (one-third fee awarded from $48 million settlement fund that was 11% of the plaintiffs' estimated damages); In re Corel Corp., Inc. Sec. Litig., 293 F. Supp. 2d 484, 489-90, 498 (E.D. Pa. 2003) (one-third fee awarded from settlement fund that comprised about 15% of damages); Cullen, 197 F.R.D. at 148 (one-third awarded in fees from settlement of class consisting of defrauded vocational students that was 17% of the tuition the class members paid)."

[15] See De Mira, 2014 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 33685, at *5-6 (justifying 28% fee award in part because "Defendant was represented by an experienced and well-resourced defense firm. Had Class Counsel failed to vigorously prosecute this case, it is unlikely that this settlement could have been achieved").

b. A 20% fee is justified by the significant risk borne by plaintiffs' counsel and the complexity of issues in this case.

Plaintiffs' counsel faced real risks in pursuing this case, not the least of which was being initially dismissed on the pleadings as a matter of law based on O'Bannon. "The risk that further litigation might result in [p]laintiffs not recovering at all, particularly a case involving complicated legal issues, is a significant factor in the award of fees."[16] And although numerous antitrust cases have been brought over the years against the NCAA, seldom if ever has there been a significant monetary award. An "antitrust class action is arguably the most complex action to prosecute. The legal and factual issues involved are always numerous and uncertain in outcome."[17] And it bears noting that the EMG Study looked at average fee awards based on risk, according to the type of litigation. The average fee award for low-medium risk antitrust cases between 2009 and 2013 was 24.91%. This data looking at the risk dimension in antitrust cases reinforces the reasonableness of counsel's 20% fee request.

Just one example of unique complexity in this case was the challenge in obtaining, digesting, and utilizing the data necessary to model impact and damages in this case. Plaintiffs needed to obtain tens of thousands of records from hundreds of different schools. Each school maintained its own data and frequently had different systems and formats for data. Plaintiffs' counsel not only had to identify and get the right data but also had to work with their experts to understand (for their model and class certification arguments) the various financial aid packages and sources of grants.

Along with the data endeavor, counsel had to analyze and understand eligibility rules and definitions, and apply all of this in the context of an NCAA manual the size of a telephone book. These were all very specific factors unique to college athletics that were necessary to develop a reliable working model to both identify class members and calculate damages, as well as present compelling certification arguments.

---

[16] In re Omnivision Techs., 559 F. Supp. 2d at 1046-47; accord In re Pac. Enters. Sec. Litig., 47 F.3d 373, 379 (9th Cir. 1995) (holding fees justified "because of the complexity of the issues and the risks").

[17] In re Optical Disk Drive Prods. Antitrust Litig., 2016 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 175515, at *45 (N.D. Cal. Dec. 19, 2016) (internal citation, quotation marks, and ellipses omitted).

c. A 20% fee is justified by the contingent nature of the representation and the efforts and costs expended by plaintiffs' counsel.

The 20% fee request is also reasonable in light of the contingent nature of class counsel's representation; they would only get paid if the classes recovered and only out of the class recovery at that. "Courts have long recognized that the public interest is served by rewarding attorneys who assume representation on a contingent basis with an enhanced fee to compensate them for the risk that they might be paid nothing at all for their work."[18] "This mirrors the established practice in the private legal market of rewarding attorneys for taking the risk of nonpayment by paying them a premium over their normal hourly rates for winning contingency cases."[19] And "[c]ontingent fees that may far exceed the market value of the services if rendered on a non-contingent basis are accepted in the legal profession as a legitimate way of assuring competent representation for plaintiffs who could not afford to pay on an hourly basis regardless whether they win or lose."[20]

In short, contingent fees are good for clients and the public alike. In exchange for increased predictability, decreased bean counting, and unlimited protection against downside risks—including the risk of a zero dollar recovery—a client agrees to pay its attorneys an enhanced fee if and only if the client recovers. And because contingent fees are almost always determined as a percentage of the client's recovery, such fees are necessarily aligned with and proportional to the results achieved for that client—in short, the client only pays for what it gets.[21] Lest contingent fees disappear altogether, the law must recognize both sides of the bargain—namely, a significant upside fee for successful contingent representations. If it instead becomes that lawyers must not only bear all of the downside risk but must also do so only for the prospect of being paid what they would have been paid by the hour, the law will discourage sophisticated counsel from pursuing risky representations on behalf of

[18] Ching v. Siemens Indus., 2014 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 89002, at *25 (N.D. Cal. June 27, 2014) (emphasis added).

[19] Vizcaino II, 290 F.3d at 1051 (emphasis added).

[20] In re Washington Pub. Power Supply Sys. Sec. Litig., 19 F.3d 1291, 1299 (9th Cir. 1994) (emphasis added).

[21] See John C. Coffee, Jr., The Regulation of Entrepreneurial Litigation: Balancing Fairness and Efficiency in the Large Class Action, 54 U. Chi. L. Rev. 877, 887 (1987) ("[E]ven uninformed clients can align their attorney's interests with their own by compensating them through a percentage-of-recovery fee formula.").

non-wealthy clients.[22]

Here, counsel for the classes have spent more than three years investigating and litigating this case, without receiving any compensation to do so. Such burdens are significant, even for law firms of the stature of plaintiffs' counsel. For instance, the fact that no money was coming in did not relieve class counsel from having to pay the salaries of the associates and staff working on this case, or from having to cover non-reimbursable overhead expenses like rent. Class counsel floated these expenses while assuming the risk that there might never be any repayment.[23] They also advanced over $3,184,274.38 in expenses, interest-free, prosecuting this action, including all expert fees and expenses, which are a substantial but necessary burden in any antitrust action. "This substantial outlay, when there is a risk that none of it will be recovered, further supports the award of the requested fees."[24] So a 20% award would reasonably compensate plaintiffs' counsel for carrying the financial burdens of this risky case.[25]

d. A 20% fee accords with fee awards in analogous cases.

An award of 20% of the common fund is consistent with, and within the range of, fee awards out of common funds of comparable size—which is not surprising since the benchmark is 25%. Of course, because "the percentage may be adjusted to account for any unusual circumstances,"[26] it is possible to cite many examples of percentage-of-the-fund awards falling on either side of that benchmark. But "[p]ercentage awards of between 20% and 30% are common"[27] and "in most common

[22] See Vizcaino II, 290 F.3d at 1051 ("In common fund cases, 'attorneys whose compensation depends on their winning the case must make up in compensation in the cases they win for the lack of compensation in the cases they lose.'" (citation omitted)).

[23] See Torrisi v. Tucson Elec. Power Co., 8 F.3d 1370, 1376-77 (9th Cir. 1993) ("Class counsel, however, have the case on a contingency. Moreover, it is a double contingency; first, they must prevail on the class claims, and then they must find some way to collect what they win.").

[24] In re Omnivision Techs., 559 F. Supp. 2d at 1047.

[25] See Torrisi, 8 F.3d at 1377 ("The 25% contingent fee rewarded class counsel not only for the hours they had in the case to the date of the settlement, but for carrying the financial burden of the case, effectively prosecuting it and, by reason of their expert handling of the case, achieving a just settlement for the class.").

[26] Williams v. MGM-Pathe Commc'ns Co., 129 F.3d 1026, 1027 (9th Cir. 1997).

[27] De Mira, 2014 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 33685, at *3.

fund cases, the award exceeds th[e] benchmark."[28]

In fact, of the three common funds of nearly equivalent size cited by the Ninth Circuit in Vizcaino II,[29] all three cases awarded fees at or above the 25 percent benchmark, and two of the three awards resulted in multipliers exceeding the 3.66 multiplier requested here:

Case	Fund	Fee (%)	Fee ($)	Multiplier
In re Rite Aid Corp. Secs. Litig., 146 F. Supp. 2d 706 (E.D. Pa. 2001)	$193M	25.0%	$48M	4.5-8.5
In re Lease Oil Antitrust Litig., 186 F.R.D. 403 (S.D. Tex. 1999)	$190M	25.0%	$47M	1.4
In re Merry-Go-Round Enters., 244 B.R. 327 (Bankr. D. Md. 2000)	$185M	40.0%	$71M	19.6

Indeed, "federal district courts across the country have, in the class action settlement context, routinely awarded class counsel fees in excess of the 25% 'benchmark,' even in so-called 'mega-fund' cases."[30]

While Vizcaino II alone demonstrates that both the requested fee and resultant multiplier is [28] Id. at *2 (alteration in original) (citation and internal quotation marks omitted).

[29] 290 F.3d at 1052 (upholding 28% fee on $97 million settlement fund).

[30] Allapattah Servs. v. Exxon Corp., 454 F. Supp. 2d 1185, 1210 (S.D. Fla. 2006) (31.33% fee on $1.075 billion settlement fund); accord In re Urethane Antitrust Litig., 2016 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 99839, at *82 (D. Kan. July 29, 2016) (awarding 33.33% fee on $835 million settlement, noting that "Counsel's expert has identified 34 megafund cases with settlements of at least $100 million in which the court awarded fees of 30 percent or higher"). See also, e.g., In re Optical Disk Drive Prods. Antitrust Litig., 2016 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 175515, at *6 (awarding 25% fee on $124.5 million settlement fund); In re Cathode Ray Tube (CRT) Antitrust Litig., 2016 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 102408, at *55-56 (27.5% fee on $576.75 million settlement fund); In re Polyurethane Foam Antitrust Litig., 2015 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 23482 (N.D. Ohio Feb. 26, 2015) (awarding 30% fee on $147.8 million settlement fund); In re Neurontin Mktg. & Sales Practices Litig., 58 F. Supp. 3d 167, 170 (D. Mass. 2014) (28% fee on $325 million settlement fund); In re TFT-LCD (Flat Panel) Antitrust Litig., 2013 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 49885, at *72 (N.D. Cal. Apr. 1, 2013) (28.6% fee on $571 million settlement fund); In re Checking Account Overdraft Litig., 830 F. Supp. 2d 1330, 1366 (S.D. Fla. 2011) (33.3% fee on $510 million settlement fund); In re Comverse Tech., Inc., 2010 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 63342 (E.D.N.Y. June 23, 2010) (25% fee on $225 million settlement fund); In re Rite Aid Corp. Secs. Litig., 362 F. Supp. 2d 587, 589 (E.D. Pa. 2005) (25% fee on $126 million settlement fund, resulting in multiplier of 6.96); In re Linerboard Antitrust Litig., 2004 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 10532 (E.D. Pa. June 2, 2004) (30% fee on $202.5 million settlement fund); In re Buspirone Antitrust Litig., 2003 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 26538 (S.D.N.Y. Apr. 11, 2003) (33.3% fee of a $220 million dollar fund); In re Vitamins Antitrust Litig., 2001 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 25067 (D.D.C. July 13, 2001) (34.6% fee on $365 million settlement fund); In re Ikon Office Sols., 194 F.R.D. 166, 170 (E.D. Pa. 2000) (30% fee on $111 million settlement fund); In re Brand Name Prescription Drugs Antitrust Litig., 2000 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 1734 (N.D. Ill. Feb. 9, 2000) (25% fee on $696 million settlement fund); In re Sumitomo Copper Litig., 74 F. Supp. 2d 393, 395 (S.D.N.Y. 1999) (27.5% fee on $116 million settlement fund).

well within the reasonable range, additional market information further shows that a 20% award is reasonable and within the range of fee awards from analogous cases. As discussed above, the EMG Study reports that the highest decile of recoveries in the study, above $67.5 million, averaged a 22.3% fee award.[31] The largest recoveries in the study, above $100 million, had mean and median fee percentages that ranged from 16.6% to 25.5%, depending on the year.[32] Across all settlements in the study, "[o]n average, fees were 27% of gross recovery during the 2009-2013 period, which is higher than the average fee percentage of 23% that we reported in our analyses of the 1993-2008 period."[33] And of the 53 settlements in the Northern District of California, the mean and median percentages awarded were 26% and 25% respectively, and of the 144 settlements in the Ninth Circuit, the mean and median percentages awarded were also 26% and 25% respectively.[34] The study further reports that 19 antitrust settlements between 2009-2013 had a mean recovery of $501.09 million and a median recovery of $37.3 million, with mean and median percentages awarded of 27% and 30% respectively.[35] In addition, the study reports that "the fee-to-recovery ratio tends to be lower in cases with very large recoveries."[36] Conversely, the study at the same time reports that "higher multipliers are associated with higher recoveries."[37] Here, again, the fact that the average award in mega-fund cases across all subject matters and all locales in 2011 was greater than the 20% fee requested here confirms, like Vizcaino II does, that a 20% fee on a recovery of this size is reasonable and well inside the range of fee awards in comparable common fund cases.

e. A 20% fee does not award windfall profits to counsel even if the settlement were deemed a megafund.

In reiterating that any fee award must be reasonable, the Ninth Circuit has remarked that "for example, where awarding 25% of a 'megafund' would yield windfall profits for class counsel in light

[31] See EMG Study at 9-10.
[32] See id. at 8.
[33] Id.
[34] Id. at 11, 12.
[35] Id. at 13; see also In re Auto. Refinishing Paint Antitrust Litig., 2008 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 569, at *16 (E.D. Pa. Jan. 3, 2008) ("We have previously noted that is not unusual in antitrust class actions for the attorneys to receive awards for fees in the 30% range.").
[36] EMG Study at 8.
[37] Id. at 27.

of the hours spent on the case, courts should adjust the bench-mark percentage or employ the lode-star method instead."[38] As an initial matter, counsel do not seek the benchmark 25% fee, notwithstanding the cases and studies cited in the previous section that would support such a request. And the 20% fee is reasonable. This is not a mass tort or fraud case in which mere disclosure of a government investigation all but guarantees the creation of a megafund, notwithstanding what counsel does or does not do; instead, this case went from zero recovery to megafund solely because of counsel's efforts and expenditures of expert fees and other expenses.[39] Relatedly, the size of the common fund obtained in this case is not "merely a factor of the size of the class."[40] A megafund was created in this case despite the size of the classes, not because of it. And above-benchmark fees frequently are awarded where megafunds must be shared by hundreds of thousands, if not millions, of class members.[41] Here, there are approximately 53,748 class members.

So while applying the so-called "increase-decrease" principle may be appropriate in certain cases,[42] it is tenuous here, where the size of the fund is not merely a factor of the size of the classes

---

[38] In re Bluetooth Headset Prods. Liab. Litig., 654 F.3d at 942 (citation omitted).

[39] Accord, e.g., In re Linerboard Antitrust Litig., 2004 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 10532, at *51 ("the highly favorable settlement was attributable to the petitioners' skill and it is inappropriate to penalize them for their success"); In re Vitamins Antitrust Litig., 2001 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 25067, at *68 ("This Court agrees that it is not fair to penalize counsel for obtaining fine results for their clients.").

[40] In re Bluetooth Headset Prods. Liab. Litig., 654 F.3d at 943.

[41] See In re Optical Disk Drive Prods. Antitrust Litig., 2016 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 175515, at *36 ($124.5 million settlement for "millions of class members"); In re Cathode Ray Tube (CRT) Antitrust Litig., 2016 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 102408, at *1 ($576.75 million settlement for millions of class members); In re Polyurethane Foam Antitrust Litig., 2015 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 23482, at *8 ($147.8 million settlement for "more than 48,000" class members); In re TFT-LCD (Flat Panel) Antitrust Litig., 2013 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 49885, at *58 ($571 million settlement fund for "235,808 claimants"); In re Checking Account Overdraft Litig., 830 F. Supp. 2d at 1366 ($510 million settlement for "approximately 13 million" class members); In re Comverse Tech., Inc., 2010 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 63342, at *5 ($225 million settlement fund for "more than 204,000 potential class members"); In re Linerboard Antitrust Litig., 2004 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 10532, at *18 ($202.5 million settlement for "approximately 80,000 companies"); In re Ikon Office Sols., 194 F.R.D. at 170 ($111 million settlement for more than 200,000 class members); but see In re Vitamins Antitrust Litig., 2001 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 25067 ($365 million settlement fund for 4,000 class members).

[42] Many courts are not so sure. As Judge Katz put it in oft-quoted language: "The court will not reduce the requested award simply for the sake of doing so when every other factor ordinarily considered weighs in favor of approving class counsel's request of thirty percent. . . . It is difficult to discern any consistent principle in reducing large awards other than an inchoate feeling that it is simply inappropriate to award attorneys' fees above some unspecified dollar amount, even if all of the other factors ordinarily considered relevant in determining the percentage would support a higher percentage. Such an approach also fails to appreciate the immense risks undertaken by attorneys in but is instead directly related to the efforts of plaintiffs' counsel, who achieved exceptional, mega-fund results for a relatively discrete set of class members. In so doing, they obtained incidental benefits for the public, expended huge amounts of time and money, and faced considerable risks of non-recovery (and thus non-payment) in pursuing this complex antitrust case against well-financed, top-notch counsel. The 20% fee request is below the market contingency rate, below the Ninth Circuit benchmark rate, and below rates awarded in other megafund cases, and results in a multiplier within the range of multipliers that the Ninth Circuit has deemed reasonable. The 20% fee request is eminently reasonable and justified based on all the circumstances of this case. To nonetheless apply the increase-decrease principle and reduce an otherwise reasonable fee simply because this is a "megafund" case would be unreasonable.

B. Using lodestar as a cross-check further supports the requested fees.

As the Ninth Circuit has explained, "a crosscheck using the lodestar method can confirm that a percentage of recovery amount does not award counsel an exorbitant hourly rate."[43] Here, counsel for plaintiffs have invested $11,398,158.30 in attorneys' and para-professionals' time in this case, and request a 3.66 multiplier, which is well within the range of multipliers awarded in similar cases.

A court may give an upwards adjustment to a lodestar (through a positive multiplier) to reflect "reasonableness" factors, including: (1) the amount involved and the results obtained, (2) the time and labor required, (3) the novelty and difficulty of the questions involved, (4) the skill requisite to perform the legal service properly, (5) the preclusion of other employment by the attorney due to acceptance of the case, (6) the customary fee, (7) the experience, reputation, and ability of the attorneys, and (8) awards in similar cases.[44] These are referred to as Kerr "reasonableness" factors after prosecuting complex cases in which there is a great risk of no recovery." In re Ikon Office Sols., 194 F.R.D. at 196-97 (citations omitted).

---

[43] In re Online DVD-Rental Antitrust Litig., 779 F.3d at 949 (internal quotation marks and citation omitted).

[44] Id. at 941-42. The Supreme Court has since called into question the relevance of two of the original Kerr factors: the contingent nature of the fee and the "desirability" of the case. See Resurrection Bay Conserv. All. v. City of Seward, 640 F.3d 1087, 1095 n.5 (9th Cir. 2011). Other factors such as "time limitations imposed by the client or the circumstances" and "the nature and length of the professional relationship with the client" do not readily apply here.

the Ninth Circuit's opinion in Kerr v. Screen Extras Guild, Inc.[45] "Foremost among these considerations, however, is the benefit obtained for the class."[46]

1. Plaintiffs' counsel achieved an exceptional result for the classes.

The first factor, the amount involved and the results for the classes, strongly supports the 20% fee request and the 3.66 multiplier. At the time of settlement, the parties agreed to a fund equaling nearly 100% of single damages according to Dr. Rascher's model.[47] And after settlement, as more class members became eligible to receive payment from the $208 million fund (because their schools agreed to start paying COA), the recovery for all of those eligible class members now stands at 66% of their single damages.[48] If the Court grants class counsel's fee and expense request, class members will receive approximately 50% of their damages, a result almost never achieved in large, complex antitrust cases.[49]

2. Plaintiffs' counsel expended significant resources on behalf of the classes.

Plaintiffs' counsel collectively devoted $11,398,158.30 in attorneys' and para-professionals' time in litigating this matter. They have also spent $3,184,274.38 in expenses in this litigation. This commitment of time, personnel, and money to the classes supports the requested award.

3. This case presented difficult questions, requiring extraordinary skill by plaintiffs' counsel.

The third and fourth Kerr factors—the difficulty of the questions presented by the litigation and the skill required to perform the legal services properly—both support the requested award. Plaintiffs' counsel first had to overcome defendants' argument that O'Bannon precluded their claim, and then had to present the motion for certification of damage classes so as to overcome this Court's

---

[45] 526 F.2d 67, 70 (9th Cir. 1975).

[46] In re Bluetooth Headset Prods. Liab. Litig., 654 F.3d at 942.

[47] See ECF No. 560-4.

[48] This smaller percentage recovery is a function of math—as the number of class members eligible to recover damages from the $209 million goes up, the average pro rata recovery goes down. There are few reported cases with sixty-six percent settlement recovery in large antitrust cases.

[49] See, e.g., In re Cathode Ray Tube (CRT) Antitrust Litig., 2016 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 102408, at *65 (holding that 20% antitrust recovery in a megafund case warranted "a modest increase over the Ninth Circuit benchmark"); In re Omnivision Techs., 559 F. Supp. 2d at 1046 ("a total award of approximately 9% of the possible damages . . . weighs in favor of granting the requested 28% fee").

order in O'Bannon declining to certify a damages class. And plaintiffs' counsel confronted the difficulties in establishing which schools would have provided COA (and which would not have) in the but-for world. In working with an economist to provide a workable, reliable economic model to support these arguments, counsel had to identify, acquire, and understand vast amounts of data, not only to ensure the workability of a reliable antitrust impact and damages model, but also to show the Court an administratively feasible method to identify class members and calculate damages specific to each school and student. And of course, plaintiffs faced the risk of proving liability before even getting a damages award. Counsel performed extensive work in discovery building the liability case to establish that defendants violated the antitrust laws by capping the GIA.

Defendants vigorously opposed plaintiffs at every turn, including on class certification and the merits (with such opposition continuing in the injunctive relief case). Settlement was not reached until class certification had been fully briefed. These issues have required advocacy and skill beyond routine litigation, especially in light of the strength of counsel hired by the multiple defendants in this action.

4. The market rate of antitrust lawyers with the experience of plaintiffs' counsel supports the request.

The hourly rates of plaintiffs' counsel are in line with market rates in this District. The most senior HB attorney on the case, Steve Berman, bills at an hourly rate of $950. Other partners at HB have hourly rates ranging between $578 and $760. Associates at HB billed at hourly rates ranging from $295 to $630.[50] The most senior PSW attorneys on the case—Clifford Pearson and Bruce Simon—billed at hourly rates between $835 and $1,035 over the course of this matter. Another PSW partner billed at between $715 and $870 per hour, while PSW "of counsel" lawyers billed at between $450 and $900 per hour. And PSW associates billed at hourly rates ranging from $350 to $635. Staff and law clerks at PSW billed at hourly rates ranging from between $175 to $225.[51] The two partners at Pritzker Levine who worked on this matter—Elizabeth Pritzker and Jonathan Levine—have an

[50] See Berman Decl., Ex. A (setting forth HB hourly rates).
[51] See Simon Decl., Ex. B (setting forth PSW hourly rates).

hourly rate of $695 each. The associates and "of counsel" attorney who worked on this matter for Pritzker Levine have hourly rates ranging from $495 to $625.[52]

All of these rates are well within the range of $200 to $1,080 charged by attorneys in California in 2015, as shown by a reputable survey of billing rates.[53]

5. Plaintiffs' counsel by-passed other cases due to their commitment to this case.

Plaintiffs' counsel have dedicated a core team of individuals to the litigation of this action. The consequence of dedicating a team of experienced antitrust attorneys has meant that many of these professionals could not work on other cases. The choice of plaintiffs' counsel to commit a significant number of attorneys almost exclusively to this litigation, forgoing other cases and other projects, further supports the request for fees.

6. The requested fee is reasonable when compared to fees in similar litigation.

The sixth and eighth Kerr factors—the customary fee and awards in similar cases—both support the fee request. A 3.66 multiplier for a fee award of 20% is reasonable in light of awards in other cases. In Vizcaino II, the Ninth Circuit affirmed a fee award based on a 3.65 multiplier.[54] This is nearly the exact multiplier counsel ask for here. And in another case, the Ninth Circuit affirmed a 6.85 multiplier, holding that it "falls well within the range of multipliers that courts have allowed."[55] Similarly here, a 3.66 multiplier is reasonable, particularly given the difficult nature of this litigation and the fact that the fund equals approximately 66% of class members' damages.

The requested 3.66 multiplier is well within the range of awards in other cases. In In re Linerboard Antitrust Litigation,[56] the district court explained that "during 2001-2003, the average multi-

---

[52] See Pritzker Decl., Ex. 2 (setting forth Pritzker Levine hourly rates).

[53] Berman Decl., Ex. D (2015 NLJ Billing Survey). See also Pritzker Decl. ¶ 23.

[54] 290 F.3d at 1050-51; id. at 1052-54 (noting district court cases in the Ninth Circuit approving multipliers as high as 6.2, and citing only 3 of 24 decisions with approved multipliers below 1.4).

[55] Steiner v. Am. Broad. Co., 248 F. App'x 780, 783 (9th Cir. 2007). See also Buccellato v. AT&T Operations, Inc., 2011 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 85699, at *4 (N.D. Cal. June 30, 2011) ("The resulting multiplier of 4.3 is reasonable in light of the time and labor required, the difficulty of the issues involved, the requisite legal skill and experience necessary, the excellent and quick results obtained for the Class, the contingent nature of the fee and risk of no payment, and the range of fees that are customary.").

[56] 2004 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 10532, at *50 (E.D. Pa. June 2, 2004) (citing Stuart J. Logan, et al., Attorney Fee Awards in Common Fund Class Actions, 24 Class Action Reports 167 (2003)).

plier approved in common fund class actions was 4.35 and during 30 year period from 1973-2003, [the] average multiplier approved in common fund class actions was 3.89." So the 3.66 multiplier requested by plaintiffs' counsel in this matter is below the midrange of multipliers awarded in other cases—and almost none of these other cases, if any, approach the success of the results here. Indeed, multipliers of 4.0 and above are frequently applied in granting fee awards from common funds.[57]

7. The reputation, ability, and efficiency of plaintiffs' counsel supports the requested fee.

The three firms requesting attorneys' fees in this matter are among the most well-respected class action litigation firms in the country, as this Court has witnessed in numerous cases.[58] And the efficiency with which plaintiffs' counsel achieved such exceptional results is laudable because it benefits the classes. For example, by working efficiently and keeping a tight hold on the lodestar rein, class counsel is less inclined to seek a benchmark award of 25 percent (or more), resulting in more money to class members. So class counsel's efficiency should be considered favorably in evaluating the reasonableness of the fee request.[59]

[57] See, e.g., In re Credit Default Swaps Antitrust Litig., 2016 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 54587, at *54 (S.D.N.Y. Apr. 25, 2016) (lodestar multiplier "of just over 6"); Gutierrez v. Wells Fargo Bank, N.A., 2015 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 67298, at *25 (N.D. Cal. May 21, 2015) (awarding $18.5 million in fees, noting that "this order allows a multiplier of 5.5 mainly on account of the fine results achieved on behalf of the class, the risk of non-payment they accepted, the superior quality of their efforts, and the delay in payment"); In re Payment Card Interchange Fee and Merch. Disc. Antitrust Litig., 991 F. Supp. 2d 437, 448 (E.D.N.Y. 2014) (multiplier of "about 3.41"); Athale v. Sinotech Energy Ltd., 2013 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 199696 (S.D.N.Y. Sept. 4, 2013) (20% fee award with 5.65 multiplier); Beckman v. KeyBank, N.A., 293 F.R.D. 467, 481 (S.D.N.Y. 2013) ("Courts regularly award lodestar multipliers of up to eight times the lodestar, and in some cases, even higher multipliers"); In re Enron Corp. Secs., Derivative & ERISA Litig., 586 F. Supp. 2d 732, 741 (S.D. Tex. 2008) (multiplier of 5.2); In re WorldCom, Inc. Sec. Litig., 388 F. Supp. 2d 319 (S.D.N.Y. 2005) (4.0 multiplier); In re Xcel Energy, Inc., 364 F. Supp. 2d 980, 998-99 (D. Minn. 2005) (25% fee with 4.7 multiplier); In re Rite Aid Corp. Secs. Litig., 362 F. Supp. 2d at 587 (25% fee with 6.96 multiplier); In re AremisSoft Corp. Sec. Litig., 210 F.R.D. 109, 134-35 (D.N.J. 2002) (28% fee with 4.3 multiplier); Maley v. Del Global Techs. Corp., 186 F. Supp. 2d 358, 371 (S.D.N.Y. 2002) (33.3% fee, resulting in "modest multiplier of 4.65"); In re NASDAQ Market-Makers Antitrust Litig., 187 F.R.D. 465, 489 (S.D.N.Y. 1998) ("The percentage fee award in this case represents a multiplier of approximately 3.97 times Class Counsel's lodestar of $36,191,751. A multiplier of 3.97 is not unreasonable in this type of case."); Roberts v. Texaco, Inc., 979 F. Supp. 185, 198 (S.D.N.Y. 1997) (5.5 multiplier); Weiss v. Mercedes-Benz of N. Am., 899 F. Supp. 1297 (D.N.J. 1995) (9.3 multiplier), aff'd, 66 F.3d 314 (3d Cir. 1995); Rabin v. Concord Assets Grp., Inc., 1991 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 18273, at *4 (S.D.N.Y. Dec. 19, 1991) (awarding 4.4 multiplier and explaining that "multipliers of between 3 and 4.5 have been common") (internal quotation marks and citation omitted).

[58] See firm resumes at Berman Decl., Ex. E; Simon Decl., Ex. A; Pritzker Decl., Ex. 1.

Plaintiffs' counsel have focused on the most efficient path to results, not devoting resources to "nice to have" belt-and-suspender litigation.[60] These actions reduced their lodestar, resulting in a higher multiplier when cross-checking counsel's percentage-of-the-fund award. But that's a good thing.[61] Strategic and efficient lawyering not only encourages "the just, speedy, and inexpensive determination of every action and proceeding"[62] but also directly correlates with obtaining superb results. Meet and confers with fewer lawyers tend to be more productive; oral arguments tend to go better when the person who wrote the motion also argues the motion; and depositions are more effective when the person taking the deposition drafted the questions for the deposition.

Although modification of a fee award based on a lodestar cross-check may serve some utility in cases at the fringes, routine recourse to it threatens to swallow the benefits that the percentage-of-the-fund method provides, for "if a court sometimes employs a lodestar cross-check, then self-interested entrepreneurial lawyers will conduct their affairs accordingly."[63] In sum, in order to maximize the class recovery, promote optimal deterrence, incentivize efficient, speedy, and inexpensive dispute resolution, and conserve judicial resources, this Court awards attorneys' fees in

---

[59] See Vizcaino II, 290 F.3d at 1050 n.5 ("The lodestar method is merely a cross-check on the reasonableness of a percentage figure, and it is widely recognized that the lodestar method creates incentives for counsel to expend more hours than may be necessary on litigating a case so as to recover a reasonable fee.").

[60] See Berman Decl. ¶ 10; Simon Decl. ¶ 17 n.2.

[61] See In re Xcel Energy, Inc., 364 F. Supp. 2d at 996 ("But for the cooperation and efficiency of counsel, the lodestar of plaintiffs' counsel would have been substantially more and would have required this court to devote significant judicial resources to its management of the case. Instead, counsel moved the case along expeditiously, and the court determines that the time and labor spent to be reasonable and fully supportive of the 25% attorney fee.").

[62] Fed. R. Civ. P. 1.

[63] Myriam Gilles & Gary B. Friedman, Exploding the Class Action Agency Costs Myth: The Social Utility of Entrepreneurial Lawyers, 155 U. Pa. L. Rev. 103, 145-46 (2006). See also Sandra R. McCandless et al., Tort Trial & Ins. Practice Section of the Am. Bar Ass'n, Report on Contingent Fees in Class Action Litigation, 25 Rev. Litig. 459, 471 (2006) ("The lodestar cross-check reintroduces the problems of the lodestar method. If the attorneys in the previous example know that their fee, when calculated as a percentage, will be 'crosschecked' by the lodestar, they have every financial incentive to put as many hours into the file as possible. They may do unnecessary work or delay settlement to make sure that the multiplier needed to get to their percentage fee does not appear to be out of line.").

an amount of 20% of the fund recovered for the classes.

C. Class counsel's expenses are reasonable and were necessarily incurred.

Class counsel seek reimbursement of $3,184,274.38 in expenses necessarily incurred in the prosecution of this action. All expenses that are typically billed by attorneys to paying clients in the marketplace are compensable.[64] With this motion, plaintiffs provide an accounting of the expenses incurred by class counsel.[65] The primary expense in this case is for experts. Several additional categories account for the remainder, including filing fees, travel expenses, costs of court and deposition transcripts, and computer research expenses. All of these costs were necessarily and reasonably incurred to achieve this $208 million dollar recovery, and they reflect market rates for the various categories of expenses incurred. And plaintiffs' counsel advanced these necessary expenses, interest-free, without assurance that they would even be recouped. The request of plaintiffs' counsel for reimbursement of expenses is reasonable.[66]

D. A service award of $20,000 is granted to each of the four class representatives.

Plaintiffs request that the Court approve service awards in the amount of $20,000 each for the four class representatives, to be deducted from the settlement funds. Service awards for class representatives are provided to encourage them to undertake the responsibilities and risks of representing the classes and to recognize the time and effort spent in the case. Incentive awards "compensate class representatives for work done on behalf of the class, to make up for financial or reputational risk undertaken in bringing the action, and, sometimes, to recognize their willingness to act as a private attorney general."[67] Here, the class representatives spent a significant amount of time assisting in the [64] Harris v. Marhoefer, 24 F.3d 16, 19 (9th Cir. 1994).

[65] See Berman Decl., Ex. B; Simon Decl., Ex. C; Pritzker Decl., Ex. 3.

[66] See Vedachalam, 2013 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 100796, at *9-10 ("Plaintiffs' Counsel have incurred unreimbursed costs prosecuting this case on behalf of the Class . . . . Plaintiffs' Counsel put forward these out-of-pocket costs without assurance that they would be repaid. These litigation expenses were necessary to secure the resolution of this litigation.").

[67] Rodriguez v. West Publ'g Corp., 563 F.3d 948, 958-59 (9th Cir. 2009); see also Just Film, Inc. v. Merch. Servs., Inc., 2013 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 186623, at *4-5 (N.D. Cal. Dec. 11, 2013) (explaining that incentive awards "may be made to class representatives based on '(1) the risk to the class representative in commencing suit, both financial and otherwise; (2) the notoriety and personal difficulty encountered by the class representative; (3) the amount of time and effort spent by the class

litigation of this case, in preparing for and having their depositions taken, in searching for and producing documents that spanned many years, and in conferring with counsel throughout the litigation.[68] Awards of $20,000 each are consistent with service awards in other cases.[69]

E. The sole objection is overruled.

The sole objection, filed by Darrin Duncan, is overruled. For the reasons set forth above, the attorneys' fees and service awards sought by plaintiffs and their counsel are reasonable. In addition, there is no merit to Mr. Duncan's request that the Court order that the claims administrator distribute class funds until each class member would receive less than $3.00. Mr. Duncan provides no legal or factual basis for that request.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

DATED: December 6, 2017

HONORABLE CLAUDIA WILKEN
UNITED STATES DISTRICT JUDGE

Submitted on November 20, 2017, by:

HAGENS BERMAN SOBOL SHAPIRO LLP

By /s/ Steve W. Berman
Steve W. Berman

representative; (4) the duration of the litigation and; (5) the personal benefit (of lack thereof) enjoyed by the class representative as a result of the litigation.'" (citation omitted)).

[68] See Berman Decl. ¶¶ 22-25; Simon Decl. ¶¶ 47-48; Pritzker Decl. ¶¶ 26-30.

[69] See Dandan Pan v. Qualcomm Inc., 2017 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 120150, at *42 (S.D. Cal. July 31, 2017) ("[A] $50,000.000-per-Class-Representative award is reasonable. In particular, there is no doubt that in the present case the Class Representatives have helped secure substantial relief for the class . . . ."); Syed v. M-I, L.L.C., 2017 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 118064, at *26-27 (E.D. Cal. July 27, 2017) (awarding $15,000 and $20,000 to two class representatives); In re High-Tech Empl. Antitrust Litig., 2015 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 118052, at *62 (N.D. Cal. Sept. 2, 2015) (authorizing $80,000 and $120,000 service awards in case with $415 million settlement fund, in addition to $20,000 award to each for prior settlement); Godshall v. Franklin Mint Co., 2004 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 23976, at *21 (E.D. Pa. Dec. 1, 2004) (granting incentive award of $20,000 to each plaintiff); In re Linerboard Antitrust Litig., 2004 U.S. Dist. LEXISIS 10532, at *56-58 (awarding $ 25,000 for each of five class representatives and collecting cases in which awards of $24,000 or more were authorized); Van Vranken v. Atl. Richfield Co., 901 F. Supp. 294, 299 (N.D. Cal. 1995) (authorizing $50,000 incentive award in case with settlement fund of $76,723,213.26).

Steven W. Berman (Pro Hac Vice)
Craig R. Spiegel (122000)
Ashley A. Bede (Pro Hac Vice)
1918 Eighth Avenue, Suite 3300
Seattle, WA 98101
Telephone: (206) 623-7292
Facsimile: (206) 623-0594
steve@hbsslaw.com
craigs@hbsslaw.com
ashleyb@hbsslaw.com

Jeff D. Friedman (173886)
HAGENS BERMAN SOBOL SHAPIRO LLP
715 Hearst Avenue, Suite 202
Berkeley, CA 94710
Telephone: (510) 725-3000
Facsimile: (510) 725-3001
jefff@hbsslaw.com

PEARSON, SIMON & WARSHAW, LLP

By /s/ Bruce L. Simon
Bruce L. Simon
Bruce L. Simon (96241)
Benjamin E. Shiftan (265767)
44 Montgomery Street, Suite 2450
San Francisco, CA 94104
Telephone: (415) 433-9000
Facsimile: (415) 433-9008
bsimon@pswlaw.com
bshiftan@pswlaw.com

Plaintiffs' Co-Lead Class Counsel

Elizabeth C. Pritzker (146267)
Jonathan K. Levine (220289)
Shiho Yamamoto (264741)
Anne C. Maness (303438)
PRITZKER LEVINE LLP
180 Grand Avenue, Suite 1390
Oakland, CA 94612
Telephone: (415) 692-0770
Facsimile: (415) 366-6110
ecp@pritzkerlevine.com
jkl@pritzkerlevine.com sy@pritzkerlevine.com
acm@pritzkerlevine.com
Additional Class Counsel

TAB 42B

Steve W. Berman (pro hac vice)
Craig R. Spiegel (122000)
Ashley A. Bede (pro hac vice)
HAGENS BERMAN SOBOL SHAPIRO LLP
1918 Eighth Avenue, Suite 3300
Seattle, WA 98101
Telephone: (206) 623-7292
Facsimile: (206) 623-0594
steve@hbsslaw.com
craigs@hbsslaw.com
ashleyb@hbsslaw.com

Bruce L. Simon (96241)
Benjamin E. Shiftan (265767)
PEARSON, SIMON & WARSHAW, LLP
44 Montgomery Street, Suite 2450
San Francisco, CA 94104
Telephone: (415) 433-9000
Facsimile: (415) 433-9008
bsimon@pswlaw.com
bshiftan@pswlaw.com

Plaintiffs' Class Counsel

[Additional Counsel on Signature Page]

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT

NORTHERN DISTRICT OF CALIFORNIA

OAKLAND DIVISION

IN RE: NATIONAL COLLEGIATE ATHLETIC ASSOCIATION ATHLETIC GRANT-IN-AID CAP ANTITRUST LITIGATION

This Document Relates to:

ALL ACTIONS EXCEPT

Jenkins v. Nat'l Collegiate Athletic Ass'n
Case No. 4:14-cv-02758-CW

Case No. 4:14-md-02541-CW

NOTICE OF MOTION AND MOTION FOR ATTORNEYS' FEES, EXPENSES, AND SERVICE AWARDS

DATE: Nov. 17, 2017
TIME: 9:00 a.m.
DEPT: Courtroom 2, 4th Floor
JUDGE: Hon. Claudia Wilken

COMPLAINT FILED: Mar. 5, 2014

NOTICE OF MOTION AND MOTION

PLEASE TAKE NOTICE that on November 17, 2017, at 9:00 a.m., in the courtroom of the Honorable Claudia Wilken of the United States District Court of the Northern District of California, located at 1301 Clay Street, Courtroom 2 – 4th Floor, Oakland, CA 94612, plaintiffs will and hereby do move the Court for an order:

1. Awarding plaintiffs' counsel $41,732,889 in attorneys' fees;

2. Approving reimbursement of $3,184,274.38 in expenses and costs incurred by plaintiffs' counsel; and

3. Approving an incentive award of $20,000 for each of the four class representatives.

This motion is based on this notice of motion and motion, the accompanying memorandum of points and authorities, the declarations in support of the motion, argument by counsel at the hearing before this Court, any papers filed in reply, such oral and documentary evidence as may be presented at the hearing of this motion, and all papers and records on file in this matter.

STATEMENT OF ISSUES

1) Plaintiffs' counsel have dedicated over $11.5 million in attorney and professional time to this matter over more than a three-year period. Counsel now seek an attorneys' fee award in the amount of $41,732,889, which represents 20% of the settlements and a multiplier of 3.62 on their lodestar. Should this Court exercise its discretion to approve the fee request as fair and reasonable when plaintiffs' counsel obtained an exceptional result that will provide injured class members with approximately 66% of their losses before fees and expenses are deducted?

2) Plaintiffs' counsel have advanced $3,184,274.38 in out-of-pocket expenses in this litigation, mainly attributable to the costs of experts. Should the Court approve reimbursement of this amount as fair and reasonable?

3) Should the court grant a $20,000 incentive award to each of the four class representatives for their work in helping attain an exceptional settlement for class members?

TABLE OF CONTENTS

Page

I. Introduction 1

II. The work undertaken by plaintiffs' counsel 2

A. Pre-filing investigation and work-up 2

B. Successful efforts before the JMPL to coordinate this case 3

C. Opposing defendants' motion to dismiss 3

D. Written discovery and document production 4

E. Depositions 6

F. Motion for class certification under Rule 23(b)(3) 7

G. Settlement 7

H. Providing notice to class members 8

III. Argument 9

A. The requested fee of twenty percent of the settlement is fair and reasonable (and even below market) under the percentage-of-the-recovery method. 10

1. The 25% benchmark award is presumptively reasonable, reflecting a market based fee. 10

2. All relevant circumstances confirm a 20% fee award is reasonable. 11

a. A 20% fee is justified by the exceptional results achieved. 11

b. A 20% fee is justified by the significant risk borne by plaintiffs' counsel and the complexity of issues in this case. 12

c. A 20% fee is justified by the contingent nature of the representation and the efforts and costs expended by plaintiffs' counsel. 13

d. A 20% fee accords with fee awards in analogous cases. 15

e. A 20% fee does not award windfall profits to counsel even if the settlement were deemed a megafund. 17

B. Using lodestar as a cross-check further supports the requested fees. 19

1. Plaintiffs' counsel achieved an exceptional result for the classes. 19

2. Plaintiffs' counsel expended significant resources on behalf of the classes. 20

3. This case presented difficult questions, requiring extraordinary skill by plaintiffs' counsel. 20

4. The market rate of antitrust lawyers with the experience of plaintiffs' counsel supports the request. 21

5. Plaintiffs' counsel by-passed other cases due to their commitment to this case. 21

6. The requested fee is reasonable when compared to fees in similar litigation. 22

7. The reputation, ability, and efficiency of plaintiffs' counsel supports the requested fee. 23

C. Class counsel's expenses are reasonable and were necessarily incurred. 24

D. Service awards should be granted to the class representatives. 25

IV. Conclusion 25

TABLE OF AUTHORITIES

Page(s)

CASES

Aichele v. City of L.A.,
2015 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 120225 (C.D. Cal. Sept. 9, 2015) 9

Allapattah Servs. v. Exxon Corp.,
454 F. Supp. 2d 1185 (S.D. Fla. 2006) 16

In re AremisSoft Corp. Sec. Litig.,
210 F.R.D. 109 (D.N.J. 2002) 23

Athale v. Sinotech Energy Ltd.,
2013 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 199696 (S.D.N.Y. Sept. 4, 2013) 22

In re Auto. Refinishing Paint Antitrust Litig.,
2008 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 569 (E.D. Pa. Jan. 3, 2008) 17

Beckman v. KeyBank, N.A.,
293 F.R.D. 467 (S.D.N.Y. 2013) 22

In re Bluetooth Headset Prods. Liab. Litig.,
654 F.3d 935 (9th Cir. 2011) 10, 17, 18, 19

In re Brand Name Prescription Drugs Antitrust Litig., 2000 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 1734 (N.D. Ill. Feb. 9, 2000) 16

Buccellato v. AT&T Operations, Inc.,
2011 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 85699 (N.D. Cal. June 30, 2011) 22

In re Buspirone Antitrust Litig.,
2003 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 26538 (S.D.N.Y. Apr. 11, 2003) 16

In re Cathode Ray Tube (CRT) Antitrust Litig.,
2016 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 102408 (N.D. Cal. Aug. 3, 2016) ..... passim

In re Checking Account Overdraft Litig.,
830 F. Supp. 2d 1330 (S.D. Fla. 2011) 16, 18

Ching v. Siemens Indus.,
2014 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 89002 (N.D. Cal. June 27, 2014) 13

In re Comverse Tech., Inc.,
2010 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 63342 (E.D.N.Y. June 23, 2010) 16, 18

In re Credit Default Swaps Antitrust Litig.,
2016 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 54587 (S.D.N.Y. Apr. 25, 2016) 22

Dandan Pan v. Qualcomm Inc.,
2017 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 120150 (S.D. Cal. July 31, 2017) 25

De Mira v. Heartland Empl. Serv.,
2014 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 33685 (N.D. Cal. Mar. 13, 2014) 11, 12, 15

In re Enron Corp. Secs., Derivative & ERISA Litig.,
586 F. Supp. 2d 732 (S.D. Tex. 2008) 22

Fischel v. Equitable Life Assur. Soc'y of the United States,
307 F.3d 997 (9th Cir. 2002) 10

Godshall v. Franklin Mint Co.,
2004 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 23976 (E.D. Pa. Dec. 1, 2004) 25

Gutierrez v. Wells Fargo Bank, N.A.,
2015 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 67298 (N.D. Cal. May 21, 2015) 22

Harris v. Marhoefer,
24 F.3d 16 (9th Cir. 1994) 24

In re Heritage Bond Litig.,
2005 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 13555 (C.D. Cal. June 10, 2005) 11

In re Heritage Bond Litig.,
2005 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 13627 (C.D. Cal. June 10, 2005) 12

In re High-Tech Empl. Antitrust Litig.,
2015 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 118052 (N.D. Cal. Sept. 2, 2015) 25

In re Ikon Office Sols.,
194 F.R.D. 166 (E.D. Pa. 2000) 16, 18

Just Film, Inc. v. Merch. Servs., Inc.,
2013 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 186623 (N.D. Cal. Dec. 11, 2013) 25

Keller v. Elec. Arts, Inc.,
2015 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 114387 (N.D. Cal. Aug. 18, 2015) 9, 10

Keller v. NCAA,
2015 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 166546 (N.D. Cal. Dec. 10, 2015) 10

Kerr v. Screen Extras Guild, Inc.,
526 F.2d 67 (9th Cir. 1975) 19

In re Lease Oil Antitrust Litig.,
186 F.R.D. 403 (S.D. Tex. 1999) 15

In re Linerboard Antitrust Litig.,
2004 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 10532 (E.D. Pa. June 2, 2004) ..... passim

Maley v. Del Global Techs. Corp.,
186 F. Supp. 2d 358 (S.D.N.Y. 2002) 23

In re Merry-Go-Round Enters.,
244 B.R. 327 (Bankr. D. Md. 2000) 15

In re NASDAQ Market-Makers Antitrust Litig.,
187 F.R.D. 465 (S.D.N.Y. 1998) 23

In re Neurontin Mktg. & Sales Practices Litig.,
58 F. Supp. 3d 167 (D. Mass. 2014) 16

In re Omnivision Techs.,
559 F. Supp. 2d 1036 (N.D. Cal. 2008) 12, 15, 20

In re Online DVD-Rental Antitrust Litig.,
779 F.3d 934 (9th Cir. 2015) 10, 19

In re Optical Disk Drive Prods. Antitrust Litig.,
2016 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 175515 (N.D. Cal. Dec. 19, 2016) 13, 16, 18

In re Pac. Enters. Sec. Litig.,
47 F.3d 373 (9th Cir. 1995) 12

In re Payment Card Interchange Fee and Merch. Disc. Antitrust Litig.,
991 F. Supp. 2d 437 (E.D.N.Y. 2014) 22

In re Polyurethane Foam Antitrust Litig.,
2015 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 23482 (N.D. Ohio Feb. 26, 2015) 16, 18

Rabin v. Concord Assets Grp., Inc.,
1991 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 18273 (S.D.N.Y. Dec. 19, 1991) 23

Resurrection Bay Conserv. All. v. City of Seward,
640 F.3d 1087 (9th Cir. 2011) 19

In re Rite Aid Corp. Secs. Litig.,
146 F. Supp. 2d 706 (E.D. Pa. 2001) 15

In re Rite Aid Corp. Secs. Litig.,
362 F. Supp. 2d 587 (E.D. Pa. 2005) 16, 22

Roberts v. Texaco, Inc.,
979 F. Supp. 185 (S.D.N.Y. 1997) 23

Rodriguez v. West Publ'g Corp.,
563 F.3d 948 (9th Cir. 2009) 25

Steiner v. Am. Broad. Co.,
248 F. App'x 780 (9th Cir. 2007) 22

In re Sumitomo Copper Litig.,
74 F. Supp. 2d 393 (S.D.N.Y. 1999) 16

Syed v. M-I, L.L.C.,
2017 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 118064 (E.D. Cal. July 27, 2017) 25

In re TFT-LCD (Flat Panel) Antitrust Litig.,
2013 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 49885 (N.D. Cal. Apr. 1, 2013) 16, 18

Torrisi v. Tucson Elec. Power Co.,
8 F.3d 1370 (9th Cir. 1993) 15

In re Urethane Antitrust Litig.,
2016 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 99839 (D. Kan. July 29, 2016) 16

Van Vranken v. Atl. Richfield Co.,
901 F. Supp. 294 (N.D. Cal. 1995) 25

Vedachalam v. Tata Consultancy Servs., Ltd.,
2013 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 100796 (N.D. Cal. July 18, 2013) 11, 24

In re Vitamins Antitrust Litig.,
2001 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 25067 (D.D.C. July 13, 2001) 16, 17, 18

Vizcaino v. Microsoft Corp.,
290 F.3d 1043 (9th Cir. 2002) ..... passim

In re Washington Pub. Power Supply Sys. Sec. Litig.,
19 F.3d 1291 (9th Cir. 1994) 14

Weiss v. Mercedes-Benz of N. Am.,
899 F. Supp. 1297 (D.N.J. 1995), aff'd, 66 F.3d 314 (3d Cir. 1995) 23

Williams v. MGM-Pathe Commc'ns Co.,
129 F.3d 1026 (9th Cir. 1997) 15

In re WorldCom, Inc. Sec. Litig.,
388 F. Supp. 2d 319 (S.D.N.Y. 2005) 22

In re Xcel Energy, Inc.,
364 F. Supp. 2d 980 (D. Minn. 2005) 22, 23

OTHER AUTHORITIES

Fed. R. Civ. P. 1 23

John C. Coffee, Jr., The Regulation of Entrepreneurial Litigation: Balancing Fairness and Efficiency in the Large Class Action, 54 U. Chi. L. Rev. 877, 887 (1987) 14

Myriam Gilles & Gary B. Friedman, Exploding the Class Action Agency Costs Myth: The Social Utility of Entrepreneurial Lawyers, 155 U. Pa. L. Rev. 103, 145-46 (2006) 24

Sandra R. McCandless et al., Tort Trial & Ins. Practice Section of the Am. Bar Ass'n, Report on Contingent Fees in Class Action Litigation, 25 Rev. Litig. 459, 471 (2006) 24

I. INTRODUCTION

Guided by Dr. Rascher's damages probit regression model, class counsel negotiated a settlement of $208,664,445. The probit model predicted which schools would have adopted full cost of attendance in 2009-2010 had the NCAA's rules prohibiting such payments not been adopted, and damages were estimated therefrom.[1] For eligible class members attending schools which the probit model predicted would have paid Cost of Attendance ("COA"), the estimated damages are approximately $210 million to $220 million.[2] Since the settlement was reached, many additional schools are now paying or have stated an intent to pay COA. Eligible class members from these additional COA-paying schools will also receive payment from the settlement fund.[3] The average recovery for class members who played their sports for four years and are entitled to an award under the settlement is approximately $6,000 (net of the fees and expenses requested here).

Class counsel committed to the Court at the preliminary approval hearing that we would not seek more than a 25% fee award—the Ninth Circuit's benchmark (attaching to it a presumption of reasonableness). Class counsel is honoring its commitment to the Court—and indeed is seeking even less, including costs and expenses. Class counsel respectfully requests that the Court award attorneys' fees of $41,732,889, which is 20% of the proposed settlement, well below the 25% benchmark.

Even though a higher fee award here (such as the Ninth Circuit's 25% benchmark) would be reasonable when compared to other large, complex antitrust cases in this district and elsewhere, class counsel request a more modest award of 20%. A 20% fee award is well within the range of [1] See ECF No. 560-4 (Expert Declaration of Daniel A. Rascher in Support of Motion for Preliminary Approval of Damages Classes).

[2] Id.

[3] The number of class members eligible to receive payment has grown significantly since the settlement was reached. The settlement agreement benefitted class members by including a clause allowing for even more class members to become eligible to receive settlement payments after the parties reached an agreement in principle in December 2016 and executed their settlement agreement on February 3, 2017, if their school adopted or stated an intent to adopt COA any time up to June 1, 2017. See ECF No. 560-1 at Exhibit A to the Settlement Agreement, para. B.2. As Dr. Rascher opined at class certification, the market was still unwinding from the longstanding GIA cap and had yet to reach "equilibrium." After the parties reached settlement, dozens of schools adopted or declared their intent to adopt COA. So, many more student-athlete class members have become eligible to get paid from the settlement fund after the parties agreed to settlement and the Court granted preliminary approval. Counting all of the many additional class members who will now receive payment, the settlement fund now represents approximately 66% of total single damages—a tremendous result in comparison to most large antitrust settlements.

reasonableness, and could even be considered a below-market request, given the excellent result achieved for the classes, the risks plaintiffs' counsel faced of not receiving any compensation in pursuing this matter, the millions of dollars in out-of-pocket expenses they incurred, and the efficiency with which they litigated the case.

The Court well knows how hard fought this case has been. Not only are these defendants sophisticated entities, represented by some of the most experienced antitrust defense counsel in the United States, policy and institutional considerations—both within and across dozens of schools and conferences—required counsel to overcome varied interests and substantive road blocks to successfully settle the damages part of the case. In the face of these formidable challenges, plaintiffs' counsel achieved an extraordinary settlement on behalf of the classes, with class members who are entitled to damages under the settlement receiving approximately 66% of their damages before fees and expenses are deducted.

Class counsel also request reimbursement of $3,184,274.38 in expenses, the vast majority of which are expert fees. The total percentage of the fund for fees and costs is approximately 21.5%. And plaintiffs request $20,000 for each class representative as incentive awards.

II. THE WORK UNDERTAKEN BY PLAINTIFFS' COUNSEL

Plaintiffs' counsel have devoted enormous resources to prosecuting this case against vigorous opposition provided by the NCAA and conference defendants (and the defense lawyers they hired from some of the largest and best law firms in the country). As shown below, the road to a $208 million settlement required an enormous commitment from plaintiffs' counsel.

A. Pre-filing investigation and work-up

Lead counsel Hagens Berman ("HB") and Pearson, Simon & Warshaw ("PSW") began investigating this case several years before filing a complaint.[4] In performing the investigation, the firms conducted extensive due diligence, including:

- Conducting informational interviews with current and former student athletes, and conferring with student-athletes' rights organizations;

[4] ECF No. 50-2 ¶ 7; ECF No. 50-4 ¶ 4.

- Retaining the services of experienced consultants to perform a substantial economic analysis of the relevant market;
- Researching the relationships between the NCAA and its conferences, and making the strategic decision to include the conferences as defendants (with the concomitant increase in resources necessary to prosecute against multiple defendants);
- Analyzing the diverse types of remedies to frame the requested relief in the case;
- Researching the positions of the NCAA and conferences on issues of competitive balance and amateurism;
- Reviewing public statements, interviews, and quotes from defendants and their executives dating as far back as 2003; and
- Researching the NCAA's IRS Form 990 filings and other sources that provided important information regarding the revenues and finances of the NCAA and the conferences.[5]

The hard work of HB and PSW culminated in the drafting and filing of the Alston complaint,[6] which was the first-filed complaint in this MDL.

B. Successful efforts before the JMPL to coordinate this case

After HB and PSW filed the Alston complaint, other law firms filed complaints across the country.[7] Class counsel filed a motion to transfer actions to the Northern District of California with the JPML.[8] PSW attended and argued the motion to transfer before the JPML.[9] On June 13, 2014, the JPML granted the motion to transfer the cases to this Court.[10]

C. Opposing defendants' motion to dismiss

Plaintiffs' Consolidated Amended Complaint was immediately met with a motion to dismiss. Defendants' primary arguments were that this Court's decision in O'Bannon was fatal to plaintiffs' case here and there was a debilitating intra-class conflict.[11] But class counsel forcefully opposed the [5] See generally ECF No. 50-2 ¶¶ 6-21; ECF No. 50-4 ¶¶ 4-14.

[6] Alston v. Nat'l Collegiate Athletic Ass'n et al., No. 4:14-cv-01011-CW (N.D. Cal.).

[7] ECF No. 50-2 ¶ 42; ECF No. 50-4 ¶ 15.

[8] ECF No. 50-2 ¶ 42; ECF No. 50-4 ¶ 15.

[9] ECF No. 50-4 ¶ 16.

[10] ECF No. 50-2 ¶ 43; ECF No. 50-4 ¶ 16.

[11] ECF No. 89 at 2 ("Plaintiffs cannot allege any plausible theory that can reconcile the relief they seek in this case with the decision and injunction in O'Bannon . . . .").

motion by emphasizing the major differences between this case and O'Bannon and showing the legally deficient argument concerning the purported conflict.[12] This Court denied the motion.[13]

D. Written discovery and document production

Class counsel then began the written discovery and document production process. For three years, the two firms took the lead in responding to defendants' interrogatories and requests for production of documents, both by working with plaintiffs to acquire information requested by defendants and by drafting the discovery responses.[14] Discovery responses included, for example, a 45-page set of responses to defendants' contention interrogatories directed at critical issues in the case (e.g., less restrictive alternatives).[15]

Plaintiffs' counsel have also propounded extensive document requests on defendants and third parties. These requests yielded significant document productions of more than 550,000 documents and more than 2.8 million pages of documents.[16] And plaintiffs received productions from various NCAA member institutions throughout the litigation.[17] Reviewing these massive document productions was a major effort.[18] Lead counsel coordinated a complex and thorough review process with eleven attorneys, spanning two-and-a-half years and amounting to about 5,000 attorney hours.[19]

And plaintiffs issued subpoenas to three hundred and thirty-seven NCAA member institutions in order to obtain critical NCAA member scholarship data. This effort cannot be understated, given the importance of detailed school and player-specific data required for plaintiffs' econometric damages model.[20] One of defendants' primary attacks against class certification was the varying nature of the data and that a school-by-school, or even a player-by-player, analysis was required.

---

[12] ECF No. 94 at 3 ("Moreover, Plaintiffs' but-for world (one without the challenged restraint) is different than the O'Bannon world.").

[13] ECF No. 131.

[14] Declaration of Steve W. Berman (filed concurrently herewith) ("Berman Decl.") ¶ 2; Declaration of Bruce L. Simon (filed concurrently herewith) ("Simon Decl.") ¶ 20.

[15] Simon Decl. ¶ 20.

[16] Berman Decl. ¶ 3; Simon Decl. ¶ 22.

[17] Simon Decl. ¶ 22.

[18] Berman Decl. ¶ 3; Simon Decl. ¶ 22.

[19] Berman Decl. ¶ 4.

[20] Berman Decl. ¶ 5; Simon Decl. ¶ 12; Declaration of Elizabeth C. Pritzker (filed concurrently herewith) ("Pritzker Decl.") ¶ 15.

Given this attack, it was critical for plaintiffs to acquire comprehensive data from hundreds of schools, organize and digest the information, and coordinate with plaintiffs' experts to help create workable economic models in the case. And given that these schools were third parties—and not defendants—getting timely responses to meet court deadlines (such as class certification) was a significant challenge and required a major investment of dedicated resources.

Elizabeth Pritzker and her firm assisted lead counsel with the ongoing and important efforts to collect comprehensive data from hundreds of schools.[21] This third-party subpoena project required a sustained effort by plaintiffs' counsel, which consisted in part of:

- Creating and managing a database to track third-party subpoenas issued to all 337 schools, including information regarding dates of service, deadlines for responding, timing and status of productions received, and plaintiffs' requests for missing, updated, or additional information;
- Meeting and conferring with counsel and staff from these NCAA member schools regarding information sought by the subpoenas, timing of responses, requested format for responsive document productions (electronic vs. hard copy), issues related to production costs and expenses, as well as the nature, form, and timing of any notifications to students under the Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act; and
- Drafting and collecting from NCAA members schools customized business records affidavits authenticating records and data produced in response to the subpoenas.[22]

When discovery disputes arose during this case, HB and PSW were intimately involved in resolving them.[23] For example, the two firms were actively involved in the lengthy meet-and-confer process with conference defendants to obtain their financials and media contracts.[24] Plaintiffs were successful, resulting in the production of financial statements, television contracts, and sponsorship contracts, all of which were asked about at depositions of conference defendant witnesses.[25] And when meet-and-confer talks broke down, HB and PSW litigated the discovery issues before Judge [21] Berman Decl. ¶ 5; Simon Decl. ¶ 12; Pritzker Decl. ¶ 15.

[22] Pritzker Decl. ¶ 15.
[23] Berman Decl. ¶ 6; Simon Decl. ¶ 23.
[24] Berman Decl. ¶ 7; Simon Decl. ¶ 23.
[25] Berman Decl. ¶ 7; Simon Decl. ¶ 23.

Cousins. For example, PSW argued motions to compel regarding (1) Notre Dame's commercial contracts (including its television contract with NBC) and (2) the Pac-12's eSports documents.[26]

E. Depositions

As in most complex antitrust cases, this case involved a large number of depositions. Plaintiffs took more than 50 depositions.[27] HB and PSW lawyers have deposed numerous high-profile figures in the world of college sports, including, but not limited to, Mark Emmert (President of the NCAA); Mary Willingham (the whistleblower who helped to reveal an academic fraud scandal at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill); Mike Slive (former Commissioner of the Southeastern Conference); John Swofford (Commissioner of the Atlantic Coast Conference); Michael Aresco (Commissioner of the American Athletic Conference); Harvey Perlman (former Chancellor of the University of Nebraska); Jim Delany (Big Ten Conference Commissioner); Karl Benson (Sun Belt Conference Commissioner); and Larry Scott (Pac-12 Conference Commissioner).[28]

To maximize class recovery and minimize costs, plaintiffs' counsel used a lean team to take depositions and execute all other projects.[29] One comparison is that defendants routinely staffed the defense of depositions with numerous lawyers (often, numerous senior lawyers).[30] For example, at the deposition of former NCAA executive Greg Shaheen, the deposing attorney was a PSW associate, appearing alone for plaintiffs. But on the defense side, five lawyers appeared in person.[31] The NCAA was represented in person by a partner and an associate from one of its law firms (Schiff Hardin LLP), an associate from one of its other law firms (Skadden, Arps, Slate, Meagher & Flom LLP), and an in-house counsel from the NCAA, while the Southeastern Conference was represented in person by a partner from one of its law firms.[32] This efficiency was typical for plaintiffs' counsel.

---

[26] Simon Decl. ¶ 24.

[27] Berman Decl. ¶ 8; Simon Decl. ¶ 14.

[28] Berman Decl. ¶ 9; Simon Decl. ¶ 15.

[29] Berman Decl. ¶ 10; Simon Decl. ¶ 17.

[30] Berman Decl. ¶ 10; Simon Decl. ¶ 17.

[31] Simon Decl. ¶ 18.

[32] Simon Decl. ¶ 18. NCAA counsel's approach to staffing is perhaps best evidenced by the fact that the NCAA is currently represented by four different law firms in this case.

F. Motion for class certification under Rule 23(b)(3)

HB and PSW spearheaded the filing of a motion for class certification under Rule 23(b)(3).[33] The two firms—along with the Pritzker Levine firm—put enormous time and energy into acquiring the NCAA member school scholarship data.[34] Armed with this critical data, the firms worked closely with Dr. Rascher to assist him in constructing his damages modeling of the but-for world.[35] In addition, HB and PSW performed significant legal research on class certification issues and wrote extensive briefs covering class-wide impact and damages as well as defendants' offset defense.[36]

Although plaintiffs were confident in the merits of their class certification arguments, defendants vigorously opposed their motion.[37] Relying in part on this Court having declined to certify a damages class in O'Bannon, defendants argued that plaintiffs could not establish either impact or damages on a class-wide basis.[38] But class counsel undermined defendants' arguments, in part during HB's deposition of defendants' expert economist on damages class certification. In response to more than a dozen school witness declarations submitted by defendants in opposition to class certification, HB took sample depositions of five different university officials, again proceeding along the most efficient track. These witnesses confirmed that schools track, audit, and maintain detailed financial records in the ordinary course of business and provided corroborative support for plaintiffs' class certification position.[39] Working together with Dr. Rascher, class counsel filed a strong reply brief[40] and a strong rebuttal report from Dr. Rascher.

G. Settlement

Settlement in this case was very challenging. Defendants forced plaintiffs to overcome numerous hurdles. For example, at virtually every step along the way, plaintiffs were forced to deal with defendants' argument that the O'Bannon decision somehow foreclosed plaintiffs' case. And

---

[33] ECF No. 362.
[34] Berman Decl. ¶ 5; Simon Decl. ¶ 12; Pritzker Decl. ¶ 15.
[35] Berman Decl. ¶ 5; Simon Decl. ¶ 12.
[36] Berman Decl. ¶ 11; Simon Decl. ¶ 12.
[37] See ECF No. 494.
[38] ECF No. 494 at 14-21.
[39] Berman Decl. ¶ 12; ECF No. 509-2 at 1.
[40] ECF No. 509-2.

even setting aside the O'Bannon case, defendants claimed the difficulty endemic in individual data issues could not be overcome.

Steve Berman and Bruce Simon were personally involved in the hard-fought settlement discussions that persisted intermittently over several years.[41] During these negotiations, the parties confronted many difficult and time-consuming issues.[42] The negotiations have been arm's-length at all times and broke down on several different occasions before the parties were finally able to reach a settlement.[43] Berman and Simon attended multiple in-person mediation sessions with Professor Eric Green and participated in telephone calls with him as well.[44] Eventually, the settlement established a fund of $208,664,445—nearly single damages according to Dr. Rascher's model at the time of settlement.[45]

Plaintiffs and their experts engaged in extensive modeling of damages and a deep dive into the arcane classification systems and nomenclature used in college athletics. As a result, counsel was able to value the case with confidence. This extraordinary result is the product of a thorough assessment and evaluation of the strengths and weaknesses of plaintiffs' case.[46]

H. Providing notice to class members

HB has led and continues to lead the settlement and claims administration process by selecting Gilardi & Co. LLC ("Gilardi"), a company associated with Kurtzman Carson Consultants, after a thorough and competitive bid process involving multiple bids from four different companies over a period of over two weeks.[47] HB has spent many lawyer hours and resources working with the class administrator Gilardi and communicating with class members regarding the settlement, including working with Gilardi, defendants, and plaintiffs' own experts to establish a website that allows class members to see expected payout amounts, specific to each class member. Through these communi-

[41] Berman Decl. ¶ 13; Simon Decl. ¶ 25.
[42] Berman Decl. ¶ 14; Simon Decl. ¶ 25.
[43] Berman Decl. ¶ 14; Simon Decl. ¶ 25.
[44] Berman Decl. ¶ 13; Simon Decl. ¶ 25.
[45] Berman Decl. ¶ 15; Simon Decl. ¶ 28.
[46] Berman Decl. ¶ 15; Simon Decl. ¶ 29.
[47] Berman Decl. ¶ 16.

cations, class members have been very active, connected and interested.[48] HB anticipates about twenty hours weekly working with Gilardi and class members until settlement distribution is completed, which is estimated to be in February 2018.[49]

III. ARGUMENT

Plaintiffs' counsel request 20% of the common fund ($41,732,889) in attorneys' fees. This Court "has discretion to award fees either as a percentage of the common fund established or pursuant to the lodestar method."[50] But the Ninth Circuit has explained that "the primary basis of the fee award remains the percentage method," although "the lodestar may provide a useful perspective on the reasonableness of a given percentage award."[51] So the "lodestar method is merely a cross-check on the reasonableness of a percentage figure, and it is widely recognized that the lodestar method creates incentives for counsel to expend more hours than may be necessary on litigating a case so as to recover a reasonable fee, since the lodestar method does not reward early settlement."[52] For that reason, "[m]any courts and commentators have recognized that the percentage of the available fund analysis is the preferred approach in common-fund fee requests because it more closely aligns the interests of plaintiffs' counsel and the class, i.e., class counsel directly benefit from increasing the size of the class fund and working in the most efficient manner."[53]

As shown below, a 20% fee is reasonable. It is well below the 25% benchmark and is fully justified by the exceptional settlement obtained by plaintiffs' counsel. Class members who are eligible for payments under the settlement will receive 66% of their losses (approximately 50% after fees and expenses are deducted), which is a much higher rate of recovery than in most antitrust cases, in which fees of 25% or more are common. And a lodestar cross-check confirms that a 20% fee is reasonable, because the 3.62 multiplier is well within the normal range of multipliers in complex cases.

---

[48] Berman Decl. ¶ 17.

[49] Berman Decl. ¶ 18.

[50] Keller v. Elec. Arts, Inc., 2015 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 114387, at *11 (N.D. Cal. Aug. 18, 2015).

[51] Vizcaino v. Microsoft Corp., 290 F.3d 1043, 1050 (9th Cir. 2002) ("Vizcaino II") (footnote omitted).

[52] Id. at 1050 n.5.

[53] Aichele v. City of L.A., 2015 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 120225, at *15 (C.D. Cal. Sept. 9, 2015).

Plaintiffs' counsel also request reimbursement of $3,184,274.38 in expenses incurred in this litigation from its inception through August 31, 2017, the vast majority of which are fees paid to experts. Finally, plaintiffs and class counsel request that the four class representatives be granted a service award of $20,000 each for their work in making the settlement possible.

A. The requested fee of twenty percent of the settlement is fair and reasonable (and even below market) under the percentage-of-the-recovery method.

When considering a request for attorneys' fees under the percentage-of-recovery method, the Ninth Circuit has "established a 25 percent 'benchmark' in percentage-of-the-fund cases that can be 'adjusted upward or downward to account for any unusual circumstances involved in [the] case.'"[54] The Ninth Circuit has instructed that although the benchmark of 25 percent "is not per se valid, it is a helpful 'starting point.'"[55] Courts consider the following factors to determine whether to apply either an upward or downward adjustment from that benchmark: (1) the results obtained by counsel; (2) the risks and complexity of issues in the case; (3) whether the attorneys' fees were entirely contingent upon success and whether counsel risked time and effort and advanced costs with no guarantee of compensation; (4) whether awards in similar cases justify the requested fee; and (5) whether the class was notified of the requested fees and had an opportunity to inform the Court of any concerns they have with the request.[56] Each of these factors supports the request for fees of 20 percent.

1. The 25% benchmark award is presumptively reasonable, reflecting a market based fee.

Plaintiffs' counsel seek fees that are $10.4 million under the 25% benchmark. "While the benchmark is not per se valid," the Ninth Circuit has recognized that requesting "the 25% benchmark award only" shows the reasonableness of a fee request.[57] As a court in this District recognized, "in

[54] Fischel v. Equitable Life Assur. Soc'y of the United States, 307 F.3d 997, 1006 (9th Cir. 2002) (citation omitted). See also In re Bluetooth Headset Prods. Liab. Litig., 654 F.3d 935, 942 (9th Cir. 2011) ("we have allowed courts to award attorneys a percentage of the common fund in lieu of the often more time-consuming task of calculating the lodestar").

[55] In re Online DVD-Rental Antitrust Litig., 779 F.3d 934, 955 (9th Cir. 2015) (citation omitted).

[56] See, e.g., Keller, 2015 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 114387, at *12-13.

[57] In re Online DVD-Rental Antitrust Litig., 779 F.3d at 955. See also Keller v. NCAA, 2015 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 166546, at *28-29 (N.D. Cal. Dec. 10, 2015) ("A fee award of 30 percent is within the usual range of fee awards that Ninth Circuit courts award in common fund cases.") (citations and internal quotation marks omitted).

most common fund cases, the award exceeds the [25%] benchmark."[58] And this Court has referred to the "the many cases in this circuit that have granted fee awards of 30% or more."[59]

Empirical evidence supports the 20% fee request. A study of attorneys' fees, known as the EMG Study,[60] looked at awards in 458 class actions between 2009 and 2013, finding that 21% was the midpoint for fees where the recovery exceeded $100 million. The largest recoveries, over $100 million, had mean and median fee percentages ranging from 16.6% to 25.5%, depending on the year.[61] Twenty-one percent is the mid-point of that range and below the average award of 22.3% for the highest recoveries (above $67.5 million).[62] The report finds that "[o]n average, fees were 27% of gross recovery during the 2009-2013 period, which is higher than the average fee percentage of 23% that we reported in our analyses of the 1993-2008 period."[63] And of the 53 settlements in this District, the mean and median awards were 26% and 25%, respectively, matching the mean and median percentages found more broadly in the 144 settlements surveyed in the Ninth Circuit.[64] Further, of the 19 antitrust settlements between 2009 and 2013, with a mean recovery of $501.09 million and a median recovery of $37.3 million, the mean and median fee percentages were 27% and 30%.

2. All relevant circumstances confirm a 20% fee award is reasonable.

a. A 20% fee is justified by the exceptional results achieved.

"The most important factor is the results achieved for the class." [65] Here, the results are exceptional because counsel's efforts created a $208,664,445 fund for the class (nearly 100% single damages at time of settlement and 66% of single damages currently). Far lesser results (with 20%

---

[58] De Mira v. Heartland Empl. Serv., 2014 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 33685, at *2 (N.D. Cal. Mar. 13, 2014) (quoting In re Omnivision Techs., 559 F. Supp. 2d 1036, 1047 (N.D. Cal. 2008)).

[59] Vedachalam v. Tata Consultancy Servs., Ltd., 2013 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 100796, at *4 (N.D. Cal. July 18, 2013) (awarding 30% fee). This Court cited In re Heritage Bond Litig., 2005 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 13555, at *18 n.12 (C.D. Cal. June 10, 2005), in which the court noted that more than 200 federal cases awarded fees higher than 30% as of 2005.

[60] Berman Decl., Ex. C (Eisenberg, Miller & Germano, Attorneys' Fees in Class Actions: 2009-2013) ("EMG Study") at 8.

[61] Id.

[62] Id. at 9.

[63] Id. at 8.

[64] Id. at 11, 12.

[65] In re Cathode Ray Tube (CRT) Antitrust Litig., 2016 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 102408, at *63 (N.D. Cal. Aug. 3, 2016).

recovery of damages or less) have justified upward departures from the 25% benchmark.[66] The results achieved are even more substantial when considering the actual recovery amounts. The average recovery for a class member who was eligible to receive payment for four years is approximately $6,000, after accounting for the fees and expenses class counsel requests. Importantly, class counsel also negotiated an allocation and payment method whereby, at the time of disbursement, each non-opt-out class member who is entitled to payment will receive payment directly in the mail, without needing to make any showing or do anything further. Plaintiffs' counsel achieved these exceptional raw-dollar, percentage, and per capita results despite facing off against some of the best, and most well-resourced, defense lawyers in the country.[67]

b. A 20% fee is justified by the significant risk borne by plaintiffs' counsel and the complexity of issues in this case.

Plaintiffs' counsel faced real risks in pursuing this case, not the least of which was being initially dismissed on the pleadings as a matter of law based on O'Bannon. "The risk that further litigation might result in [p]laintiffs not recovering at all, particularly a case involving complicated legal issues, is a significant factor in the award of fees."[68] And although numerous antitrust cases have been brought over the years against the NCAA, seldom if ever has there been a significant monetary award. An "antitrust class action is arguably the most complex action to prosecute. The legal and factual issues involved are always numerous and uncertain in outcome."[69] And it bears noting that the EMG Study looked at average fee awards based on risk, according to the type of litigation. The average fee award for low-medium risk antitrust cases between 2009 and 2013 was 24.91%. This data looking at the risk dimension in antitrust cases reinforces the reasonableness of counsel's 20% fee request.

[66] See, e.g., id. at *65 (holding that 20% antitrust recovery in a megafund case warranted "a modest increase over the Ninth Circuit benchmark"); In re Omnivision Techs., 559 F. Supp. 2d at 1046 ("a total award of approximately 9% of the possible damages . . . weighs in favor of granting the requested 28% fee"). In In re Heritage Bond Litig., 2005 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 13627, at *28-29 (C.D. Cal. June 10, 2005), the court cited numerous examples, stating that the "the Settlement Fund, as a percentage of recovery, is greater than recoveries obtained in other cases where courts have awarded attorneys' fees of one-third of a common fund. See, e.g., Medical X-Ray, 1998 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 14888, 1998 WL 661515, at *7-8 (court increased 25% benchmark to 33.3% where counsel recovered 17% of damages); Crazy Eddie, 824 F. Supp. at 326 (court increased 25% benchmark to 33.8% where counsel recovered 10% of damages); In re General Instr. Sec. Litig., 209 F. Supp. 2d 423, 431, 434 (E.D. Pa. 2001) (one-third fee awarded from $48 million settlement fund that was 11% of the plaintiffs' estimated damages); In re Corel Corp., Inc. Sec. Litig., 293 F. Supp. 2d 484, 489-90, 498 (E.D. Pa. 2003) (one-third fee awarded from settlement fund that comprised about 15% of damages); Cullen, 197 F.R.D. at 148 (one-third awarded in fees from settlement of class consisting of defrauded vocational students that was 17% of the tuition the class members paid)."

[67] See De Mira, 2014 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 33685, at *5-6 (justifying 28% fee award in part because "Defendant was represented by an experienced and well-resourced defense firm. Had Class Counsel failed to vigorously prosecute this case, it is unlikely that this settlement could have been achieved").

[68] In re Omnivision Techs., 559 F. Supp. 2d at 1046-47; accord In re Pac. Enters. Sec. Litig., 47 F.3d 373, 379 (9th Cir. 1995) (holding fees justified "because of the complexity of the issues and the risks").

Just one example of unique complexity in this case was the challenge in obtaining, digesting, and utilizing the data necessary to model impact and damages in this case. Plaintiffs needed to obtain tens of thousands of records from hundreds of different schools. Each school maintained its own data and frequently had different systems and formats for data. Plaintiffs' counsel not only had to identify and get the right data but also had to work with their experts to understand (for their model and class certification arguments) the various financial aid packages and sources of grants.

Along with the data endeavor, counsel had to analyze and understand eligibility rules and definitions, and apply all of this in the context of an NCAA manual the size of a telephone book. These were all very specific factors unique to college athletics that were necessary to develop a reliable working model to both identify class members and calculate damages, as well as present compelling certification arguments.

c. A 20% fee is justified by the contingent nature of the representation and the efforts and costs expended by plaintiffs' counsel.

The 20% fee request is also reasonable in light of the contingent nature of class counsel's representation; they would only get paid if the classes recovered and only out of the class recovery at that. "Courts have long recognized that the public interest is served by rewarding attorneys who assume representation on a contingent basis with an enhanced fee to compensate them for the risk that they might be paid nothing at all for their work."[70] "This mirrors the established practice in the private legal market of rewarding attorneys for taking the risk of nonpayment by paying them a premium over their normal hourly rates for winning contingency cases."[71] And "[c]ontingent fees that may far exceed the market value of the services if rendered on a non-contingent basis are accepted in the legal profession as a legitimate way of assuring competent representation for plaintiffs who could not afford to pay on an hourly basis regardless whether they win or lose."[72]

[69] In re Optical Disk Drive Prods. Antitrust Litig., 2016 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 175515, at *45 (N.D. Cal. Dec. 19, 2016) (internal citation, quotation marks, and ellipses omitted).

[70] Ching v. Siemens Indus., 2014 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 89002, at *25 (N.D. Cal. June 27, 2014) (emphasis added).

In short, contingent fees are good for clients and the public alike. In exchange for increased predictability, decreased bean counting, and unlimited protection against downside risks—including the risk of a zero dollar recovery—a client agrees to pay its attorneys an enhanced fee if and only if the client recovers. And because contingent fees are almost always determined as a percentage of the client's recovery, such fees are necessarily aligned with and proportional to the results achieved for that client—in short, the client only pays for what it gets.[73] Lest contingent fees disappear altogether, the law must recognize both sides of the bargain—namely, a significant upside fee for successful contingent representations. If it instead becomes that lawyers must not only bear all of the downside risk but must also do so only for the prospect of being paid what they would have been paid by the hour, the law will discourage sophisticated counsel from pursuing risky representations on behalf of non-wealthy clients.[74]

Here, counsel for the classes have spent more than three years investigating and litigating this case, without receiving any compensation to do so. Such burdens are significant, even for law firms of the stature of plaintiffs' counsel. For instance, the fact that no money was coming in did not relieve class counsel from having to pay the salaries of the associates and staff working on this case, or from having to cover non-reimbursable overhead expenses like rent. Class counsel floated these

[71] Vizcaino II, 290 F.3d at 1051 (emphasis added).

[72] In re Washington Pub. Power Supply Sys. Sec. Litig., 19 F.3d 1291, 1299 (9th Cir. 1994) (emphasis added).

[73] See John C. Coffee, Jr., The Regulation of Entrepreneurial Litigation: Balancing Fairness and Efficiency in the Large Class Action, 54 U. Chi. L. Rev. 877, 887 (1987) ("[E]ven uninformed clients can align their attorney's interests with their own by compensating them through a percentage-of-recovery fee formula.").

[74] See Vizcaino II, 290 F.3d at 1051 ("In common fund cases, 'attorneys whose compensation depends on their winning the case must make up in compensation in the cases they win for the lack of compensation in the cases they lose.'" (citation omitted)).

expenses while assuming the risk that there might never be any repayment.[75] They also advanced over $3,184,274.38 in expenses, interest-free, prosecuting this action, including all expert fees and expenses, which are a substantial but necessary burden in any antitrust action. "This substantial outlay, when there is a risk that none of it will be recovered, further supports the award of the requested fees."[76] So a 20% award would reasonably compensate plaintiffs' counsel for carrying the financial burdens of this risky case.[77]

d. A 20% fee accords with fee awards in analogous cases.

An award of 20% of the common fund is consistent with, and within the range of, fee awards out of common funds of comparable size—which is not surprising since the benchmark is 25%. Of course, because "the percentage may be adjusted to account for any unusual circumstances,"[78] it is possible to cite many examples of percentage-of-the-fund awards falling on either side of that benchmark. But "[p]ercentage awards of between 20% and 30% are common"[79] and "in most common fund cases, the award exceeds th[e] benchmark."[80]

In fact, of the three common funds of nearly equivalent size cited by the Ninth Circuit in Vizcaino II,[81] all three cases awarded fees at or above the 25 percent benchmark, and two of the three awards resulted in multipliers exceeding the 3.62 multiplier requested here:

Case	Fund	Fee (%)	Fee ($)	Multiplier
In re Rite Aid Corp. Secs. Litig., 146 F. Supp. 2d 706 (E.D. Pa. 2001)	$193M	25.0%	$48M	4.5-8.5
In re Lease Oil Antitrust Litig., 186 F.R.D. 403 (S.D. Tex. 1999)	$190M	25.0%	$47M	1.4
In re Merry-Go-Round Enters., 244 B.R. 327 (Bankr. D. Md. 2000)	$185M	40.0%	$71M	19.6

[75] See Torrisi v. Tucson Elec. Power Co., 8 F.3d 1370, 1376-77 (9th Cir. 1993) ("Class counsel, however, have the case on a contingency. Moreover, it is a double contingency; first, they must prevail on the class claims, and then they must find some way to collect what they win.").

[76] In re Omnivision Techs., 559 F. Supp. 2d at 1047.

[77] See Torrisi, 8 F.3d at 1377 ("The 25% contingent fee rewarded class counsel not only for the hours they had in the case to the date of the settlement, but for carrying the financial burden of the case, effectively prosecuting it and, by reason of their expert handling of the case, achieving a just settlement for the class.").

[78] Williams v. MGM-Pathe Commc'ns Co., 129 F.3d 1026, 1027 (9th Cir. 1997).

[79] De Mira, 2014 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 33685, at *3.

[80] Id. at *2 (alteration in original) (citation and internal quotation marks omitted).

[81] 290 F.3d at 1052 (upholding 28% fee on $97 million settlement fund).

Indeed, "federal district courts across the country have, in the class action settlement context, routinely awarded class counsel fees in excess of the 25% 'benchmark,' even in so-called 'mega-fund' cases."[82]

While Vizcaino II alone demonstrates that both the requested fee and resultant multiplier is well within the reasonable range, additional market information further shows that a 20% award is reasonable and within the range of fee awards from analogous cases. As discussed above, the EMG Study reports that the highest decile of recoveries in the study, above $67.5 million, averaged a 22.3% fee award.[83] The largest recoveries in the study, above $100 million, had mean and median fee percentages that ranged from 16.6% to 25.5%, depending on the year.[84] Across all settlements in the study, "[o]n average, fees were 27% of gross recovery during the 2009-2013 period, which is higher than the average fee percentage of 23% that we reported in our analyses of the 1993-2008 period."[85] And of the 53 settlements in the Northern District of California, the mean and median

[82] Allapattah Servs. v. Exxon Corp., 454 F. Supp. 2d 1185, 1210 (S.D. Fla. 2006) (31.33% fee on $1.075 billion settlement fund); accord In re Urethane Antitrust Litig., 2016 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 99839, at *82 (D. Kan. July 29, 2016) (awarding 33.33% fee on $835 million settlement, noting that "Counsel's expert has identified 34 megafund cases with settlements of at least $100 million in which the court awarded fees of 30 percent or higher"). See also, e.g., In re Optical Disk Drive Prods. Antitrust Litig., 2016 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 175515, at *6 (awarding 25% fee on $124.5 million settlement fund); In re Cathode Ray Tube (CRT) Antitrust Litig., 2016 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 102408, at *55-56 (27.5% fee on $576.75 million settlement fund); In re Polyurethane Foam Antitrust Litig., 2015 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 23482 (N.D. Ohio Feb. 26, 2015) (awarding 30% fee on $147.8 million settlement fund); In re Neurontin Mktg. & Sales Practices Litig., 58 F. Supp. 3d 167, 170 (D. Mass. 2014) (28% fee on $325 million settlement fund); In re TFT-LCD (Flat Panel) Antitrust Litig., 2013 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 49885, at *72 (N.D. Cal. Apr. 1, 2013) (28.6% fee on $571 million settlement fund); In re Checking Account Overdraft Litig., 830 F. Supp. 2d 1330, 1366 (S.D. Fla. 2011) (33.3% fee on $510 million settlement fund); In re Comverse Tech., Inc., 2010 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 63342 (E.D.N.Y. June 23, 2010) (25% fee on $225 million settlement fund); In re Rite Aid Corp. Secs. Litig., 362 F. Supp. 2d 587, 589 (E.D. Pa. 2005) (25% fee on $126 million settlement fund, resulting in multiplier of 6.96); In re Linerboard Antitrust Litig., 2004 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 10532 (E.D. Pa. June 2, 2004) (30% fee on $202.5 million settlement fund); In re Buspirone Antitrust Litig., 2003 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 26538 (S.D.N.Y. Apr. 11, 2003) (33.3% fee of a $220 million dollar fund); In re Vitamins Antitrust Litig., 2001 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 25067 (D.D.C. July 13, 2001) (34.6% fee on $365 million settlement fund); In re Ikon Office Sols., 194 F.R.D. 166, 170 (E.D. Pa. 2000) (30% fee on $111 million settlement fund); In re Brand Name Prescription Drugs Antitrust Litig., 2000 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 1734 (N.D. Ill. Feb. 9, 2000) (25% fee on $696 million settlement fund); In re Sumitomo Copper Litig., 74 F. Supp. 2d 393, 395 (S.D.N.Y. 1999) (27.5% fee on $116 million settlement fund).

[83] See EMG Study at 9-10.

[84] See id. at 8.

[85] Id.

percentages awarded were 26% and 25% respectively, and of the 144 settlements in the Ninth Circuit, the mean and median percentages awarded were also 26% and 25% respectively.[86] The study further reports that 19 antitrust settlements between 2009-2013 had a mean recovery of $501.09 million and a median recovery of $37.3 million, with mean and median percentages awarded of 27% and 30% respectively.[87] In addition, the study reports that "the fee-to-recovery ratio tends to be lower in cases with very large recoveries."[88] Conversely, the study at the same time reports that "higher multipliers are associated with higher recoveries."[89] Here, again, the fact that the average award in mega-fund cases across all subject matters and all locales in 2011 was greater than the 20% fee requested here confirms, like Vizcaino II does, that a 20% fee on a recovery of this size is reasonable and well inside the range of fee awards in comparable common fund cases.

e. A 20% fee does not award windfall profits to counsel even if the settlement were deemed a megafund.

In reiterating that any fee award must be reasonable, the Ninth Circuit has remarked that "for example, where awarding 25% of a 'megafund' would yield windfall profits for class counsel in light of the hours spent on the case, courts should adjust the bench-mark percentage or employ the lodestar method instead."[90] As an initial matter, counsel do not seek the benchmark 25% fee, notwithstanding the cases and studies cited in the previous section that would support such a request. And the 20% fee is reasonable. This is not a mass tort or fraud case in which mere disclosure of a government investigation all but guarantees the creation of a megafund, notwithstanding what counsel does or does not do; instead, this case went from zero recovery to megafund solely because of counsel's efforts and expenditures of expert fees and other expenses.[91] Relatedly, the size of the common fund

---

[86] Id. at 11, 12.

[87] Id. at 13; see also In re Auto. Refinishing Paint Antitrust Litig., 2008 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 569, at *16 (E.D. Pa. Jan. 3, 2008) ("We have previously noted that is not unusual in antitrust class actions for the attorneys to receive awards for fees in the 30% range.").

[88] EMG Study at 8.

[89] Id. at 27.

[90] In re Bluetooth Headset Prods. Liab. Litig., 654 F.3d at 942 (citation omitted).

[91] Accord, e.g., In re Linerboard Antitrust Litig., 2004 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 10532, at *51 ("the highly favorable settlement was attributable to the petitioners' skill and it is inappropriate to penalize them for their success"); In re Vitamins Antitrust Litig., 2001 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 25067, at *68 ("This Court agrees that it is not fair to penalize counsel for obtaining fine results for their clients.").

obtained in this case is not "merely a factor of the size of the class."[92] A megafund was created in this case despite the size of the classes, not because of it. And above-benchmark fees frequently are awarded where megafunds must be shared by hundreds of thousands, if not millions, of class members.[93] Here, there are approximately 45,000 class members.

So while applying the so-called "increase-decrease" principle may be appropriate in certain cases,[94] it is tenuous here, where the size of the fund is not merely a factor of the size of the classes but is instead directly related to the efforts of plaintiffs' counsel, who achieved exceptional, megafund results for a relatively discrete set of class members. In so doing, they obtained incidental benefits for the public, expended huge amounts of time and money, and faced considerable risks of non-recovery (and thus non-payment) in pursuing this complex antitrust case against well-financed, top-notch counsel. The 20% fee request is below the market contingency rate, below the Ninth Circuit benchmark rate, and below rates awarded in other megafund cases, and results in a multiplier within the range of multipliers that the Ninth Circuit has deemed reasonable. The 20% fee request is eminently reasonable and justified based on all the circumstances of this case. To nonetheless apply the increase-decrease principle and reduce an otherwise reasonable fee simply because this is a

---

[92] In re Bluetooth Headset Prods. Liab. Litig., 654 F.3d at 943.

[93] See In re Optical Disk Drive Prods. Antitrust Litig., 2016 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 175515, at *36 ($124.5 million settlement for "millions of class members"); In re Cathode Ray Tube (CRT) Antitrust Litig., 2016 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 102408, at *1 ($576.75 million settlement for millions of class members); In re Polyurethane Foam Antitrust Litig., 2015 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 23482, at *8 ($147.8 million settlement for "more than 48,000" class members); In re TFT-LCD (Flat Panel) Antitrust Litig., 2013 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 49885, at *58 ($571 million settlement fund for "235,808 claimants"); In re Checking Account Overdraft Litig., 830 F. Supp. 2d at 1366 ($510 million settlement for "approximately 13 million" class members); In re Comverse Tech., Inc., 2010 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 63342, at *5 ($225 million settlement fund for "more than 204,000 potential class members"); In re Linerboard Antitrust Litig., 2004 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 10532, at *18 ($202.5 million settlement for "approximately 80,000 companies"); In re Ikon Office Sols., 194 F.R.D. at 170 ($111 million settlement for more than 200,000 class members); but see In re Vitamins Antitrust Litig., 2001 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 25067 ($365 million settlement fund for 4,000 class members).

[94] Many courts are not so sure. As Judge Katz put it in oft-quoted language: "The court will not reduce the requested award simply for the sake of doing so when every other factor ordinarily considered weighs in favor of approving class counsel's request of thirty percent. . . . It is difficult to discern any consistent principle in reducing large awards other than an inchoate feeling that it is simply inappropriate to award attorneys' fees above some unspecified dollar amount, even if all of the other factors ordinarily considered relevant in determining the percentage would support a higher percentage. Such an approach also fails to appreciate the immense risks undertaken by attorneys in prosecuting complex cases in which there is a great risk of no recovery." In re Ikon Office Sols., 194 F.R.D. at 196-97 (citations omitted).

"megafund" case would be unreasonable.

B. Using lodestar as a cross-check further supports the requested fees.

As the Ninth Circuit has explained, "a crosscheck using the lodestar method can confirm that a percentage of recovery amount does not award counsel an exorbitant hourly rate."[95] Here, counsel for plaintiffs have invested $11,515,749.30 in attorneys' and para-professionals' time in this case, and request a 3.62 multiplier, which is well within the range of multipliers awarded in similar cases.

A court may give an upwards adjustment to a lodestar (through a positive multiplier) to reflect "reasonableness" factors, including: (1) the amount involved and the results obtained, (2) the time and labor required, (3) the novelty and difficulty of the questions involved, (4) the skill requisite to perform the legal service properly, (5) the preclusion of other employment by the attorney due to acceptance of the case, (6) the customary fee, (7) the experience, reputation, and ability of the attorneys, and (8) awards in similar cases.[96] These are referred to as Kerr "reasonableness" factors after the Ninth Circuit's opinion in Kerr v. Screen Extras Guild, Inc.[97] "Foremost among these considerations, however, is the benefit obtained for the class."[98]

1. Plaintiffs' counsel achieved an exceptional result for the classes.

The first factor, the amount involved and the results for the classes, strongly supports the 20% fee request and the 3.62 multiplier. At the time of settlement, the parties agreed to a fund equaling nearly 100% of single damages according to Dr. Rascher's model.[99] And after settlement, as more class members became eligible to receive payment from the $208 million fund (because their schools agreed to start paying COA), the recovery for all of those eligible class members now stands

---

[95] In re Online DVD-Rental Antitrust Litig., 779 F.3d at 949 (internal quotation marks and citation omitted).

[96] Id. at 941-42. The Supreme Court has since called into question the relevance of two of the original Kerr factors: the contingent nature of the fee and the "desirability" of the case. See Resurrection Bay Conserv. All. v. City of Seward, 640 F.3d 1087, 1095 n.5 (9th Cir. 2011). Other factors such as "time limitations imposed by the client or the circumstances" and "the nature and length of the professional relationship with the client" do not readily apply here.

[97] 526 F.2d 67, 70 (9th Cir. 1975).

[98] In re Bluetooth Headset Prods. Liab. Litig., 654 F.3d at 942.

[99] See ECF No. 560-4.

at 66% of their single damages.[100] If the Court grants class counsel's fee and expense request, class members will receive approximately 50% of their damages, a result almost never achieved in large, complex antitrust cases.[101]

2. Plaintiffs' counsel expended significant resources on behalf of the classes.

Plaintiffs' counsel collectively devoted $11,515,749.30 in attorneys' and para-professionals' time in litigating this matter. They have also spent $3,184,274.38 in expenses in this litigation. This commitment of time, personnel, and money to the classes supports the requested award.

3. This case presented difficult questions, requiring extraordinary skill by plaintiffs' counsel.

The third and fourth Kerr factors—the difficulty of the questions presented by the litigation and the skill required to perform the legal services properly—both support the requested award. Plaintiffs' counsel first had to overcome defendants' argument that O'Bannon precluded their claim, and then had to present the motion for certification of damage classes so as to overcome this Court's order in O'Bannon declining to certify a damages class. And plaintiffs' counsel confronted the difficulties in establishing which schools would have provided COA (and which would not have) in the but-for world. In working with an economist to provide a workable, reliable economic model to support these arguments, counsel had to identify, acquire, and understand vast amounts of data, not only to ensure the workability of a reliable antitrust impact and damages model, but also to show the Court an administratively feasible method to identify class members and calculate damages specific to each school and student. And of course, plaintiffs faced the risk of proving liability before even getting a damages award. Counsel performed extensive work in discovery building the liability case to establish that defendants violated the antitrust laws by capping the GIA.

Defendants vigorously opposed plaintiffs at every turn, including on class certification and the merits (with such opposition continuing in the injunctive relief case). Settlement was not reached [100] This smaller percentage recovery is a function of math—as the number of class members eligible to recover damages from the $209 million goes up, the average pro rata recovery goes down. There are few reported cases with sixty-six percent settlement recovery in large antitrust cases.

[101] See, e.g., In re Cathode Ray Tube (CRT) Antitrust Litig., 2016 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 102408, at *65 (holding that 20% antitrust recovery in a megafund case warranted "a modest increase over the Ninth Circuit benchmark"); In re Omnivision Techs., 559 F. Supp. 2d at 1046 ("a total award of approximately 9% of the possible damages . . . weighs in favor of granting the requested 28% fee").

until class certification had been fully briefed. These issues have required advocacy and skill beyond routine litigation, especially in light of the strength of counsel hired by the multiple defendants in this action.

4. The market rate of antitrust lawyers with the experience of plaintiffs' counsel supports the request.

The hourly rates of plaintiffs' counsel are in line with market rates in this District. The most senior HB attorney on the case, Steve Berman, bills at an hourly rate of $950. Other partners at HB have hourly rates ranging between $578 and $760. Associates at HB billed at hourly rates ranging from $295 to $630.[102] The most senior PSW attorneys on the case—Clifford Pearson and Bruce Simon—billed at hourly rates between $835 and $1,035 over the course of this matter. Another PSW partner billed at between $715 and $870 per hour, while PSW "of counsel" lawyers billed at between $450 and $900 per hour. And PSW associates billed at hourly rates ranging from $350 to $900. Staff and law clerks at PSW billed at hourly rates ranging from between $175 to $225.[103] The two partners at Pritzker Levine who worked on this matter—Elizabeth Pritzker and Jonathan Levine—have an hourly rate of $695 each. The associates and "of counsel" attorney who worked on this matter for Pritzker Levine have hourly rates ranging from $495 to $625.[104]

All of these rates are well within the range of $200 to $1,080 charged by attorneys in California in 2015, as shown by a reputable survey of billing rates.[105]

5. Plaintiffs' counsel by-passed other cases due to their commitment to this case.

Plaintiffs' counsel have dedicated a core team of individuals to the litigation of this action. The consequence of dedicating a team of experienced antitrust attorneys has meant that many of these professionals could not work on other cases. The choice of plaintiffs' counsel to commit a significant number of attorneys almost exclusively to this litigation, forgoing other cases and other projects, further supports the request for fees.

---

[102] See Berman Decl., Ex. A (setting forth HB hourly rates).
[103] See Simon Decl., Ex. B (setting forth PSW hourly rates).
[104] See Pritzker Decl., Ex. 2 (setting forth Pritzker Levine hourly rates).
[105] Berman Decl., Ex. D (2015 NLJ Billing Survey). See also Pritzker Decl. ¶ 23.

6. The requested fee is reasonable when compared to fees in similar litigation.

The sixth and eighth Kerr factors—the customary fee and awards in similar cases—both support the fee request. A 3.62 multiplier for a fee award of 20% is reasonable in light of awards in other cases. In Vizcaino II, the Ninth Circuit affirmed a fee award based on a 3.65 multiplier.[106] This is nearly the exact multiplier counsel ask for here. And in another case, the Ninth Circuit affirmed a 6.85 multiplier, holding that it "falls well within the range of multipliers that courts have allowed."[107] Similarly here, a 3.62 multiplier is reasonable, particularly given the difficult nature of this litigation and the fact that the fund equals approximately 66% of class members' damages.

The requested 3.62 multiplier is well within the range of awards in other cases. In In re Linerboard Antitrust Litigation,[108] the district court explained that "during 2001-2003, the average multiplier approved in common fund class actions was 4.35 and during 30 year period from 1973-2003, [the] average multiplier approved in common fund class actions was 3.89." So the 3.62 multiplier requested by plaintiffs' counsel in this matter is below the midrange of multipliers awarded in other cases—and almost none of these other cases, if any, approach the success of the results here. Indeed, multipliers of 4.0 and above are frequently applied in granting fee awards from common funds.[109]

---

[106] 290 F.3d at 1050-51; id. at 1052-54 (noting district court cases in the Ninth Circuit approving multipliers as high as 6.2, and citing only 3 of 24 decisions with approved multipliers below 1.4).

[107] Steiner v. Am. Broad. Co., 248 F. App'x 780, 783 (9th Cir. 2007). See also Buccellato v. AT&T Operations, Inc., 2011 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 85699, at *4 (N.D. Cal. June 30, 2011) ("The resulting multiplier of 4.3 is reasonable in light of the time and labor required, the difficulty of the issues involved, the requisite legal skill and experience necessary, the excellent and quick results obtained for the Class, the contingent nature of the fee and risk of no payment, and the range of fees that are customary.").

[108] 2004 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 10532, at *50 (E.D. Pa. June 2, 2004) (citing Stuart J. Logan, et al., Attorney Fee Awards in Common Fund Class Actions, 24 Class Action Reports 167 (2003)).

[109] See, e.g., In re Credit Default Swaps Antitrust Litig., 2016 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 54587, at *54 (S.D.N.Y. Apr. 25, 2016) (lodestar multiplier "of just over 6"); Gutierrez v. Wells Fargo Bank, N.A., 2015 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 67298, at *25 (N.D. Cal. May 21, 2015) (awarding $18.5 million in fees, noting that "this order allows a multiplier of 5.5 mainly on account of the fine results achieved on behalf of the class, the risk of non-payment they accepted, the superior quality of their efforts, and the delay in payment"); In re Payment Card Interchange Fee and Merch. Disc. Antitrust Litig., 991 F. Supp. 2d 437, 448 (E.D.N.Y. 2014) (multiplier of "about 3.41"); Athale v. Sinotech Energy Ltd., 2013 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 199696 (S.D.N.Y. Sept. 4, 2013) (20% fee award with 5.65 multiplier); Beckman v. KeyBank, N.A., 293 F.R.D. 467, 481 (S.D.N.Y. 2013) ("Courts regularly award lodestar multipliers of up to eight times the lodestar, and in some cases, even higher multipliers"); In re Enron Corp. Secs., Derivative & ERISA Litig., 586 F. Supp. 2d 732, 741 (S.D. Tex. 2008) (multiplier of 5.2); In re WorldCom, Inc. Sec. Litig., 388 F. Supp. 2d 319 (S.D.N.Y. 2005) (4.0 multiplier); In re Xcel Energy, Inc., 364 F. Supp. 2d 980, 998-99 (D. Minn. 2005) (25% fee with 4.7 multiplier); In re

7. The reputation, ability, and efficiency of plaintiffs' counsel supports the requested fee.

The three firms requesting attorneys' fees in this matter are among the most well-respected class action litigation firms in the country, as this Court has witnessed in numerous cases.[110] And the efficiency with which plaintiffs' counsel achieved such exceptional results is laudable because it benefits the classes. For example, by working efficiently and keeping a tight hold on the lodestar rein, class counsel is less inclined to seek a benchmark award of 25 percent (or more), resulting in more money to class members. So class counsel's efficiency should be considered favorably in evaluating the reasonableness of the fee request.[111]

Plaintiffs' counsel have focused on the most efficient path to results, not devoting resources to "nice to have" belt-and-suspender litigation.[112] These actions reduced their lodestar, resulting in a higher multiplier when cross-checking counsel's percentage-of-the-fund award. But that's a good thing.[113] Strategic and efficient lawyering not only encourages "the just, speedy, and inexpensive determination of every action and proceeding"[114] but also directly correlates with obtaining superb results. Meet and confers with fewer lawyers tend to be more productive; oral arguments tend to go

---

Rite Aid Corp. Secs. Litig., 362 F. Supp. 2d at 587 (25% fee with 6.96 multiplier); In re AremisSoft Corp. Sec. Litig., 210 F.R.D. 109, 134-35 (D.N.J. 2002) (28% fee with 4.3 multiplier); Maley v. Del Global Techs. Corp., 186 F. Supp. 2d 358, 371 (S.D.N.Y. 2002) (33.3% fee, resulting in "modest multiplier of 4.65"); In re NASDAQ Market-Makers Antitrust Litig., 187 F.R.D. 465, 489 (S.D.N.Y. 1998) ("The percentage fee award in this case represents a multiplier of approximately 3.97 times Class Counsel's lodestar of $36,191,751. A multiplier of 3.97 is not unreasonable in this type of case."); Roberts v. Texaco, Inc., 979 F. Supp. 185, 198 (S.D.N.Y. 1997) (5.5 multiplier); Weiss v. Mercedes-Benz of N. Am., 899 F. Supp. 1297 (D.N.J. 1995) (9.3 multiplier), aff'd, 66 F.3d 314 (3d Cir. 1995); Rabin v. Concord Assets Grp., Inc., 1991 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 18273, at *4 (S.D.N.Y. Dec. 19, 1991) (awarding 4.4 multiplier and explaining that "multipliers of between 3 and 4.5 have been common") (internal quotation marks and citation omitted).

[110] See firm resumes at Berman Decl., Ex. E; Simon Decl., Ex. A; Pritzker Decl., Ex. 1.

[111] See Vizcaino II, 290 F.3d at 1050 n.5 ("The lodestar method is merely a cross-check on the reasonableness of a percentage figure, and it is widely recognized that the lodestar method creates incentives for counsel to expend more hours than may be necessary on litigating a case so as to recover a reasonable fee.").

[112] See Berman Decl. ¶ 10; Simon Decl. ¶ 17 n.2.

[113] See In re Xcel Energy, Inc., 364 F. Supp. 2d at 996 ("But for the cooperation and efficiency of counsel, the lodestar of plaintiffs' counsel would have been substantially more and would have required this court to devote significant judicial resources to its management of the case. Instead, counsel moved the case along expeditiously, and the court determines that the time and labor spent to be reasonable and fully supportive of the 25% attorney fee.").

[114] Fed. R. Civ. P. 1.

better when the person who wrote the motion also argues the motion; and depositions are more effective when the person taking the deposition drafted the questions for the deposition.

Although modification of a fee award based on a lodestar cross-check may serve some utility in cases at the fringes, routine recourse to it threatens to swallow the benefits that the percentage-of-the-fund method provides, for "if a court sometimes employs a lodestar cross-check, then self-interested entrepreneurial lawyers will conduct their affairs accordingly."[115] In sum, in order to maximize the class recovery, promote optimal deterrence, incentivize efficient, speedy, and inexpensive dispute resolution, and conserve judicial resources, this Court should award attorneys' fees in an amount of 20% of the fund recovered for the classes.

C. Class counsel's expenses are reasonable and were necessarily incurred.

Class counsel seek reimbursement of $3,184,274.38 in expenses necessarily incurred in the prosecution of this action. All expenses that are typically billed by attorneys to paying clients in the marketplace are compensable.[116] With this motion, plaintiffs provide an accounting of the expenses incurred by class counsel.[117] The primary expense in this case is for experts. Several additional categories account for the remainder, including filing fees, travel expenses, costs of court and deposition transcripts, and computer research expenses. All of these costs were necessarily and reasonably incurred to achieve this $208 million dollar recovery, and they reflect market rates for the various categories of expenses incurred. And plaintiffs' counsel advanced these necessary expenses, interest-free, without assurance that they would even be recouped. The request of plaintiffs' counsel for reimbursement of expenses is reasonable.[118]

---

[115] Myriam Gilles & Gary B. Friedman, Exploding the Class Action Agency Costs Myth: The Social Utility of Entrepreneurial Lawyers, 155 U. Pa. L. Rev. 103, 145-46 (2006). See also Sandra R. McCandless et al., Tort Trial & Ins. Practice Section of the Am. Bar Ass'n, Report on Contingent Fees in Class Action Litigation, 25 Rev. Litig. 459, 471 (2006) ("The lodestar cross-check reintroduces the problems of the lodestar method. If the attorneys in the previous example know that their fee, when calculated as a percentage, will be 'crosschecked' by the lodestar, they have every financial incentive to put as many hours into the file as possible. They may do unnecessary work or delay settlement to make sure that the multiplier needed to get to their percentage fee does not appear to be out of line.").

[116] Harris v. Marhoefer, 24 F.3d 16, 19 (9th Cir. 1994).

[117] See Berman Decl., Ex. B; Simon Decl., Ex. C; Pritzker Decl., Ex. 3.

[118] See Vedachalam, 2013 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 100796, at *9-10 ("Plaintiffs' Counsel have incurred unreimbursed costs prosecuting this case on behalf of the Class . . . . Plaintiffs' Counsel put forward

D. Service awards should be granted to the class representatives.

Plaintiffs request that the Court approve service awards in the amount of $20,000 each for each class representative, to be deducted from the settlement funds. Service awards for class representatives are provided to encourage them to undertake the responsibilities and risks of representing the classes and to recognize the time and effort spent in the case. Incentive awards "compensate class representatives for work done on behalf of the class, to make up for financial or reputational risk undertaken in bringing the action, and, sometimes, to recognize their willingness to act as a private attorney general."[119] Here, the class representatives spent a significant amount of time assisting in the litigation of this case, in preparing for and having their depositions taken, in searching for and producing documents that spanned many years, and in conferring with counsel throughout the litigation.[120] Awards of $20,000 each are consistent with service awards in other cases.[121]

IV. CONCLUSION

Plaintiffs and class counsel respectfully submit that their requests for fees, expenses, and service awards are reasonable and should be granted.

---

these out-of-pocket costs without assurance that they would be repaid. These litigation expenses were necessary to secure the resolution of this litigation.").

[119] Rodriguez v. West Publ'g Corp., 563 F.3d 948, 958-59 (9th Cir. 2009); see also Just Film, Inc. v. Merch. Servs., Inc., 2013 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 186623, at *4-5 (N.D. Cal. Dec. 11, 2013) (explaining that incentive awards "may be made to class representatives based on '(1) the risk to the class representative in commencing suit, both financial and otherwise; (2) the notoriety and personal difficulty encountered by the class representative; (3) the amount of time and effort spent by the class representative; (4) the duration of the litigation and; (5) the personal benefit (of lack thereof) enjoyed by the class representative as a result of the litigation.'" (citation omitted)).

[120] See Berman Decl. ¶¶ 22-25; Simon Decl. ¶¶ 47-48; Pritzker Decl. ¶¶ 26-30.

[121] See Dandan Pan v. Qualcomm Inc., 2017 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 120150, at *42 (S.D. Cal. July 31, 2017) ("[A] $50,000.000-per-Class-Representative award is reasonable. In particular, there is no doubt that in the present case the Class Representatives have helped secure substantial relief for the class . . . ."); Syed v. M-I, L.L.C., 2017 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 118064, at *26-27 (E.D. Cal. July 27, 2017) (awarding $15,000 and $20,000 to two class representatives); In re High-Tech Empl. Antitrust Litig., 2015 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 118052, at *62 (N.D. Cal. Sept. 2, 2015) (authorizing $80,000 and $120,000 service awards in case with $415 million settlement fund, in addition to $20,000 award to each for prior settlement); Godshall v. Franklin Mint Co., 2004 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 23976, at *21 (E.D. Pa. Dec. 1, 2004) (granting incentive award of $20,000 to each plaintiff); In re Linerboard Antitrust Litig., 2004 U.S. Dist. LEXISIS 10532, at *56-58 (awarding $ 25,000 for each of five class representatives and collecting cases in which awards of $24,000 or more were authorized); Van Vranken v. Atl. Richfield Co., 901 F. Supp. 294, 299 (N.D. Cal. 1995) (authorizing $50,000 incentive award in case with settlement fund of $76,723,213.26).

DATED: September 6, 2017

Respectfully Submitted,

By /s/ Steve W. Berman
Steve W. Berman (pro hac vice)

Craig R. Spiegel (122000)
Ashley A. Bede (pro hac vice)
HAGENS BERMAN SOBOL SHAPIRO LLP
1918 Eighth Avenue, Suite 3300
Seattle, WA 98101
Telephone: (206) 623-7292
Facsimile: (206) 623-0594
steve@hbsslaw.com
craigs@hbsslaw.com
ashleyb@hbsslaw.com

Jeff D. Friedman (173886)
HAGENS BERMAN SOBOL SHAPIRO LLP
715 Hearst Avenue, Suite 202
Berkeley, CA 94710
Telephone: (510) 725-3000
Facsimile: (510) 725-3001
jefff@hbsslaw.com

Bruce L. Simon (96241)
Aaron M. Sheanin (214472)
Benjamin E. Shiftan (265767)
PEARSON, SIMON & WARSHAW, LLP
44 Montgomery Street, Suite 2450
San Francisco, CA 94104
Telephone: (415) 433-9000
Facsimile: (415) 433-9008
bsimon@pswlaw.com
asheanin@pswlaw.com
bshiftan@pswlaw.com

Plaintiffs' Class Counsel

TAB 43A

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT

NORTHERN DISTRICT OF CALIFORNIA

SAN FRANCISCO DIVISION

IN RE OPTICAL DISK DRIVE PRODUCTS ANTITRUST LITIGATION	No. 3:10-md-2143 RS
	[~~PROPOSED~~] ORDER GRANTING FINAL APPROVAL OF INDIRECT PURCHASER PLAINTIFFS' SETTLEMENTS WITH PANASONIC, NEC, SONY AND HLDS DEFENDANT FAMILIES, GRANTING MOTION FOR ATTORNEY FEES, EXPENSES AND SERVICE AWARDS, AND OVERRULING OBJECTIONS AS MODIFIED BY COURT
	DATE ACTION FILED: Oct. 27, 2009
This Document Relates to: ALL INDIRECT PURCHASER ACTIONS

This matter comes before the Court on indirect purchaser plaintiffs' motion for final approval of settlements (ECF No. 1994), motion for payment of attorney fees, reimbursement of expenses, and payment of service awards to the named representatives (ECF No. 1963). A hearing was held on December 8, 2016.

The Court has carefully reviewed and considered the record in this matter, including the memoranda and supporting declarations submitted in support of the motion for preliminary approval and the exhibits attached thereto, including the proposed settlement agreements and each of the class notices; indirect purchaser plaintiffs' (IPPs) motion for final approval of the Settlement Agreement; the memoranda in support of the motion for final approval submitted by IPPs; the memoranda and declarations submitted in support of the fee petition; all objections submitted to the Court and IPPs' responses to those objections.

Good cause appearing, the Court orders as follows:

I. BACKGROUND

Indirect purchaser plaintiffs (IPPs) move for final approval of their settlements with the Panasonic, NEC, Sony and HLDS defendant families.[1] On July 21, 2016, this Court granted preliminary approval of these settlements, provisionally certifying the settlement class, preliminarily approving the settlements, and ordering dissemination of notice to class members (ECF No. 1916).

Two notice administrators provided notice in accordance with this Court's order. Out of the millions of class members, only fifteen class members requested exclusion from the class, and a total of eight objections were filed. These four settlements will result in recovery of $124.5 million for the indirect purchaser class. Under the proposed schedule, the class is able to make claims until July 1, 2017, at which point IPPs propose a well-accepted distribution plan – a pro-rata calculation taking into account how many ODDs were purchased by each class member.

[1] "Panasonic" refers to Panasonic Corporation and Panasonic Corporation of North America. "NEC" refers to NEC Corporation. "Sony" refers to Sony Corporation; Sony Optiarc Inc. (formerly known as Sony NEC Optiarc Inc.); and Sony Optiarc America Inc. "HLDS" refers to Hitachi-LG Data Storage, Inc. and Hitachi-LG Data Storage Korea, Inc. (collectively "HLDS").

II. SUMMARY OF SETTLEMENTS

A. Settlement Terms

The proposed settlements resolve all claims against these four defendant families stemming from the alleged conspiracy to restrain competition for ODDs. The settlement classes are defined as follows (ECF No. 1898-3 at Ex. A, ¶ A(1); Ex. B, ¶ A(1); Ex. C, A(1); Ex. D, ¶ A(1)):

> All persons and entities who, as residents of Arizona, California, District of Columbia, Florida, Hawaii, Kansas, Maine, Massachusetts, Michigan, Minnesota, Missouri, Montana, Nebraska, Nevada, New Hampshire, New Mexico, New York, North Carolina, Oregon, Tennessee, Utah, Vermont, West Virginia and Wisconsin and during the period April 2003 to December 2008, purchased new for their own use and not for resale: (i) a computer with an internal ODD; (ii) a stand-alone ODD designed for internal use in computers; or (iii) an ODD designed to be attached externally to a computer. ODD refers to a DVD-RW, DVD-ROM, or COMBO drive manufactured by one or more Defendants or their coconspirators. Excluded from the class are any purchases of Panasonic-branded computers.

The proposed settlement classes mirror the class certified by this Court on February 8, 2016 (ECF No. 1783).

B. The Settlement Consideration

Under the proposed settlements, defendants will pay a total of $124.5 million in cash. The Panasonic defendants will contribute $16.5 million; NEC will contribute $6.5 million; the Sony defendants will contribute $28.5 million; the HLDS defendants will contribute $73 million. In addition, each of the settlement agreements provides for cooperation from these defendants to assist in the prosecution of claims against the remaining defendants and at trial.

C. Release of Claims

Plaintiffs and class members will release all federal and state-law claims against the Panasonic, NEC, Sony and HLDS defendants if the settlements become final, relating to the conduct alleged in plaintiffs' complaint, including "claims under foreign antitrust or competition laws . . . that relate to or arise out of the sale of any of the ODDs or any of the products containing ODDs" (ECF No. 1898-3 at Ex. A, ¶ 13; Ex. B, ¶ 13; Ex. C, ¶ 12; Ex. D, ¶ 13) that are the subject of the complaint. The release does not preclude plaintiffs from pursuing their claims against the other defendants (ECF No. 1898-3 at Ex. A, ¶ 13; Ex. B, ¶ 13; Ex. C, ¶ 12; Ex. D, ¶ 12). The settlements release only those claims of class members who will recover under the terms of the settlement. The HLDS settlement also releases claims against LG Electronics, Inc., LG Electronics USA, Inc., and Hitachi, Ltd. (related companies to HLDS).

III. THE SETTLEMENTS ARE FAIR, REASONABLE AND ADEQUATE

In order to approve a settlement in a class action, the court must conduct a three-step inquiry. First, it must assess whether defendants have met the notice requirements under the Class Action Fairness Act (CAFA). See 28 U.S.C. § 1715(d). Second, it must determine whether the notice requirements of Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 23(c)(2)(B) have been satisfied. Finally, it must conduct a hearing to determine whether the settlement agreement is "fair, reasonable, and adequate." See Fed. R. Civ. P. 23(e)(2); Staton v. Boeing Co., 327 F.3d 938, 959 (9th Cir. 2003) (discussing the Rule 23(e)(2) standard); Adoma v. Univ. of Phoenix. Inc., 913 F.Supp.2d. 964, 972 (E.D. Cal. 2012) (conducting three-step inquiry). Each of these requirements are met here.

A. The Parties Have Complied with the Class Action Fairness Act

CAFA requires that "[n]ot later than 10 days after a proposed settlement of a class action is filed in court, each defendant that is participating in the proposed settlement shall serve [notice of the proposed settlement] upon the appropriate State official of each State in which a class member resides and the appropriate Federal official[.]" See 28 U.S.C. § 1715(b).The court may not grant final approval of a class action settlement until the CAFA notice requirement is met. See 28 U.S.C. § 1715(d). Here, the NEC, Panasonic, Sony and HLDS defendants provided the required CAFA notice (ECF Nos. 1987, 1990, 1991, 1992). No Attorneys General have submitted statements of interest or objections in response to these notices.

B. The Settlement Class Meets All Requirements of Rule 23(e)

In its order granting preliminary approval, and its order certifying the class on February 8, 2016 (ECF No. 1783), the Court certified the class pursuant to Rule 23(b)(3) (ECF No. 1916). The same analyses apply here, and the Court affirms its order certifying the class for settlement purposes under Rule 23(e).

C. The Parties Have Complied with Rule 23(c) Notice Requirements

Class actions brought under Rule 23(b)(3) must satisfy the notice provisions of Rule 23(c)(2), and upon settlement of a class action, "[t]he court must direct notice in a reasonable manner to all class members who would be bound by the proposal." Fed. R. Civ. P. 23(e)(l). Rule 23(c)(2) prescribes the "best notice that is practicable under the circumstances, including individual notice" of particular information. Fed. R. Civ. P. 23(c)(2)(B).

The proposed notice plan was undertaken and carried out pursuant to this Court's preliminary approval order. The notice administrators provided direct notice via e-mail (obtained from retailers of the products at issue in this case) to approximately 14.7 million consumers. On August 20, 2016, The notice administrators made a case website publicly available which contained the full settlement agreements, the Court's order granting preliminary approval to these settlements, the long form notice, and the claims form (in both electronic and PDF version). On October 5, 2016, the website was updated to include IPPs' motion for attorney fees, expenses and service awards for class representatives, as well as the accompanying attorney declaration. A toll-free automated telephone support line was activated to provide answers to frequently asked questions by class members. The notice administrators engaged in an extensive public notice campaign, including:

a. Publishing summary notice in the national edition of USA Today;

b. Publishing summary notice in the national edition of People magazine;

c. Implementing a text link advertising campaign on Google.com which served 4,593,972 impressions with 8,092 clicks through to the case website;

d. Developing creative banner advertisements that utilizes behavioral audience targeting, contextual targeting, mobile inventory, and prospecting to reach likely class members – which resulted in 196,122,505 impressions with 158,556 clicks through to the case website;

e. Developing banner advertising and text link advertising on Facebook.com, resulting in 4,481,222 impressions with 89,327 clicks through to the case website;

f. Advertising through Twitter.com, resulting in 1,770,199 impressions with 16,209 clicks through to the case website;

g. Case write-up and inclusion in the Top Class Action website and monthly newsletter, and;

h. Releasing a national, party-neutral press release.

In total, the indirect notice efforts generated over 207,530,045 impressions, directing over 272,184 clicks through to the case website. The volume of impressions generated was nearly 11 million more than estimated in the Notice plan. The notice administrator confirms that at least 70 percent of the class has received notice of these settlements.

The Court previously found that the notice itself informed class members of the nature of the action, the terms of the proposed settlements, the effect of the action and the release of claims, as well as class members' right to exclude themselves from the action and their right to object to the proposed settlements (ECF No. 1783). The Court finds that plaintiffs have complied with all of the requirements of Rule 23.

D. The Proposed Panasonic, NEC, Sony and HLDS Settlements Are Fair, Adequate and Reasonable

This Court is entitled to exercise its "sound discretion" when deciding whether to grant final approval. See Ellis v. Naval Air Rework Facility, 87 F.R.D. 15, 18 (N.D. Cal. 1980), aff'd, 661 F.2d 939 (9th Cir. 1981) ("Dismissal or compromise of a class action is left to the sound discretion of the trial judge."). It is also well established in the Ninth Circuit that "voluntary conciliation and settlement are the preferred means of dispute resolution." Officers for Justice v. Civil Serv. Comm'n of City & Cnty. of San Francisco, 688 F.2d 615, 625 (9th Cir. 1982). "[T]here is an overriding public interest in settling and quieting litigation" and this is "particularly true in class action suits." Van Bronkhorst v. Safeco Corp., 529 F.2d 943, 950 (9th Cir. 1976). A "presumption in favor of voluntary settlement agreements" exists, and "'this presumption is especially strong in class actions and other complex cases . . . because they promote the amicable resolution of disputes and lighten the increasing load of litigation faced by the federal courts.'" Sullivan v. DB Invs., 667 F.3d 273, 311 (3d Cir. 2011) (internal citation omitted; ellipsis in original).

The four settlements reached between IPPs and four defendant families – NEC, Panasonic, Sony and HLDS – satisfy all criteria for a fair, adequate, and reasonable settlement. In determining whether a settlement agreement is fair, adequate, and reasonable, the Court must weigh some or all of the following factors: (1) the strength of the plaintiffs' case; (2) the risk, expense, complexity, and likely duration of further litigation; (3) the risk of maintaining class action status throughout the trial; (4) the amount offered in settlement; (5) the extent of discovery completed and the stage of the proceedings; (6) the experience and views of counsel; (7) the presence of a governmental participant; and (8) the reaction of the class members of the proposed settlement. In re Bluetooth Headset Prod. Liab. Litig., 654 F.3d 935, 946 (9th Cir. 2011).

1. Strength of Plaintiffs' Case

The Court finds that the "strength of the plaintiffs' case" weighs in favor of approving the settlement. Bluetooth, 654 F.3d at 946. Plaintiffs' claims implicate legal and factual issues that are vigorously disputed, including the scope of the conspiracy, the impact from the conspiracy, whether the overcharge due to the conspiracy was passed-through, and whether IPPs will prove a conspiracy that is larger than the one outlined in the criminal guilty pleas by HLDS. The novelty of these issues created uncertainty as to IPPs' likelihood of success on their claims, as well as to defendants' defenses to those claims.

2. Risk, Expense, Complexity, and Likely Duration of Further Litigation

The Court finds that the "risk, expense, complexity, and likely duration of further litigation" (Bluetooth, 654 F.3d at 946) supports final approval of these settlements. "'An antitrust class action is arguably the most complex action to prosecute. . . . The legal and factual issues involved are always numerous and uncertain in outcome.'" In re Linerboard Antitrust Litig., MDL No. 1261, 2004 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 10532, at *34 (E.D. Pa. June 2, 2004) (citations omitted). IPPs took on substantial risk in bringing this case. Antitrust class actions are one of the most complex types of litigation – this one involves eleven defendant families, multiple continents, four languages, and alleges a global conspiracy that purportedly started over a decade ago. The risk inherent in this litigation was evidenced by this Court's denial of the IPPs' first motion for class certification (ECF No. 1444).

The continued litigation against the remaining defendants underscores that allowing some recovery for the IPP class brings certain value to these claims. The remaining defendants intend on bringing multiple motions for summary judgment, decertification, and likely further motions to exclude expert testimony. In the face of both the historic risk faced by the IPPs, as well as the future risk to the class, this factor certainly supports final approval of these settlements.

3. The Risk of Maintaining Class Action Status Throughout the Trial

The Court finds that the "risk of maintaining class action status throughout the trial," (Bluetooth, 654 F.3d at 946) weighs in favor of approving the settlements. The defendants have already suggested that they intend to bring a motion for decertification (ECF No. 1972). Although this Court has already found that the class met the requirements of Rule 23, a court may decertify a class at any time. Rodriguez v. West Publ'g Corp., 563 F.3d 948, 966 (9th Cir. 2009) (citing General Tel. Co. of Sw. v. Falcon, 457 U.S. 147, 160, 102 S. Ct. 2364, 72 L. Ed. 2d 740 (1982)).

4. The Amount Offered in Settlement

"[T]he very essence of a settlement is compromise, a yielding of absolutes and an abandoning of highest hopes." Linney v. Cellular Alaska P'ship, 151 F.3d 1234, 1242 (9th Cir. 1998) (internal quotation marks omitted). Here, recovery from these four defendants represents 31 percent of the damages attributable to the market share of these defendants, and 15 percent of the total damages ($840 million) suffered by the indirect purchaser class, as calculated by their experts and which they would have claimed at trial. The litigation will continue against defendants responsible for approximately fifty percent of the commerce at issue. This factor strongly weighs in favor of granting final approval.

5. The Extent of Discovery Completed and Stage of Proceedings

The extent of the discovery conducted to date and the stage of the litigation are both indicators of counsel's familiarity with the case and of plaintiffs having enough information to make informed decisions. See, e.g., In re Mego Fin. Corp. Sec. Litig., 213 F.3d 454, 459 (9th Cir. 2000). "A settlement following sufficient discovery and genuine arms-length negotiation is presumed fair." See Knight v. Red Door Salons, Inc., No. 08-01520 SC, 2009 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 11149, at *10 (N.D. Cal. Feb. 2, 2009).

The parties here conducted extensive discovery, thoroughly testing the claims and defenses available in this case. Discovery included dozens of depositions, hundreds of written interrogatories, and the production and review of millions of pages of documents. IPPs and the Panasonic and Sony defendants also reached these settlements with the assistance of Magistrate Judge Corley, further supporting the presumption that they were genuine, arms-length settlements. Given that the parties entered into these settlements with a substantial understanding of the strengths and weaknesses of their case, this factor further supports final approval here.

6. The Experience and Views of Class Counsel Support Approval

"The recommendations of plaintiffs' counsel should be given a presumption of reasonableness." See In re Omnivision Techs., Inc., 559 F. Supp. 2d 1036, 1043 (N.D. Cal. 2007) (internal quotation marks and citation omitted). Here, counsel for IPPs – experienced antitrust lawyers with many years of experience – support the settlement. This factor weighs in support of final approval.

7. The Presence of a Government Participant

The Class Action Fairness Act requires notice of a settlement be given to the Department of Justice and affected states with time to comment prior to final approval of the settlement. See 28 U.S.C. § 1715(b). This allows the appropriate state or federal official the chance to voice concerns if they believe that the class action is not in the best interest of their citizens. See S. REP. 109-14, 5, 2005 U.S.C.C.A.N. 3, 6. The State of Florida is a participant in this litigation. Here, no government participant has raised an objection or concern regarding the settlements. This fact supports final approval of the settlement.

8. The Reaction of Class Members

IPPs' notice program reached millions of consumers who purchased the computers and ODDs involved in this case. Only eight objections and fifteen requests for exclusion were received out of the millions of class members. The reaction of the class thus strongly favors approval of the settlement. See, e.g., Churchill Village L.L.C. v. Gen. Elec., 361 F.3d 566, 577 (9th Cir. 2004) (affirming settlement with 45 objections out of 90,000 notices sent); In re Linkedin User Privacy Litig., 309 F.R.D. 573, 589 (N.D. Cal. 2015) (finding "an overall positive reaction" by the class where only 57 class members opted out and six objected out of a class of 798,000).

9. Whether the Settlement Was the Product of Collusion

The Ninth Circuit recently identified three factors that may indicate a disregard for the interests of the class: (1) when counsel receive a disproportionate distribution of the settlement, or when the class receives no monetary distribution but class counsel are amply rewarded; (2) when the parties negotiate a "clear sailing" arrangement providing for payment of attorney fees separate and apart from class funds, which carries the potential of enabling a defendant to pay class counsel excessive fees and costs in exchange for counsel accepting an unfair settlement on behalf of the class; and (3) when the parties arrange for sums not awarded to the Class to revert to defendants rather than be added to the class fund. Bluetooth, 654 F.3d at 947. None of these factors are present here.

* * *

In summary, the Court finds that the four proposed settlements are fair, reasonable and adequate and gives these settlements final approval.[2] The Court will enter the final proposed judgments provided by the settling parties.

IV. ATTORNEY FEES

IPPs request: (1) an award of attorney fees in the amount of 25 percent of the $124.5 million settlement fund; (2) reimbursement of expenses IPPs' counsel have advanced to date on behalf of the class; and (3) service awards for the twenty-three class representatives.

In the Ninth Circuit, the district court has discretion in a common fund case to choose either the "percentage-of-the-fund" or the "lodestar" method in calculating fees. In re Online DVD-Rental Antitrust Litig., 779 F.3d 934, 949 (9th Cir. 2015). Regardless of what method is chosen as the primary method to calculate attorney fees, the Ninth Circuit encourages district courts to conduct "a cross-check using the other method." Id.

[2] The majority of the objections relate to the attorney fee petition, rather than the fairness, adequacy, or other terms of the settlement itself. For convenience, the objections are all addressed in a separate section below. As discussed in that section, all of the objections to the settlement itself are overruled, for the reasons stated.

Hagens Berman requests 25 percent of the common fund – $31,125,000. Applying a lodestar cross-check, this would represent a 1.29 multiplier from Hagens Berman's lodestar of $24,199,800.20. The Court finds these fees to be fair and reasonable under either method.[3]

A. The Twenty-Five Percent Benchmark

When considering a request for attorney fees that is calculated using the percentage-of-recovery method, the Ninth Circuit instructs courts to consider the following factors: (1) whether counsel "achieved exceptional results for the class;" (2) whether the case was risky for class counsel; (3) whether counsel's performance "generated benefits beyond the cash settlement fund;" (4) the market rate for the particular field of law; (5) the burdens class counsel experienced while litigating the case (e.g., cost, duration, foregoing other work); and (6) whether the case was handled on a contingency basis. Online DVD, 779 F.3d at 954-55. The Ninth Circuit has instructed that although the benchmark of 25 percent "is not per se valid, it is a helpful 'starting point.'" *Id.*at 955.

1. Results for the Class

Recovery of $124.5 million for the indirect purchaser class – with only 50 percent of the ODD defendants – is an exceptional result. At class certification, plaintiffs' damages expert estimated that nationwide, indirect purchaser damages totaled $1.67 billion for the period of April 2003 through December 2008 (ECF No. 1808-4). This Court certified 24 jurisdictions under California law (which are the same jurisdictions covered by each of the four settlements), representing approximately 50 percent of the population; the best estimate of damages is approximately $840 million. Considering each of these defendants' market share, the percent of recovery is as follows:

[3] At the hearing, the Court suggested it might be appropriate to apply a "holdback" of some percentage, so that a final determination of the total fees to be awarded for this phase of the litigation could be made in light of the entire record at the conclusion of the case. Given counsel's assurances that any future fee requests will be made with care to avoid double recovery, and because whatever the value of future work may be, it will not diminish the value of what has been obtained to date, the Court concludes a "holdback" is unnecessary.

Defendant Family	Contribution to Settlement Fund	Percent Share of ODD Market	Damages Attributed to Defendant Family	Percent Recovery for IPPs
Panasonic	$16,500,000	12%	$100,784,612.82	16%
NEC/Sony (Joint Venture)	$35,000,000	10%	$83,987,177.35	42%
HLDS	$73,000,000	26%	$218,366,661.11	33%
Total	$124,500,000	48%	$403,138,451.28	31%

These settlements represent recovery of 31 percent of the estimated damages attributable to the market share of these defendants, and 15 percent of total estimated damages ($840 million) suffered by indirect purchasers. Compared more generally against other similar litigation, in LCD, after settlements with all defendants, the indirect purchasers recovered approximately 50 percent of potential damages. In re TFT-LCD (Flat Panel) Antitrust Litig., No. M 07-1827, 2013 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 49885, at *70 (N.D. Cal. Apr. 1, 2013). In CRT, the indirect purchasers recovered 20 percent of potential single damages after settlements with all defendants. In re Cathode Ray Tube (CRT) Antitrust Litig., No. C-07-5944 (JST), 2016 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 88665, at *185 (N.D. Cal. July 7, 2016). This Court finds the results here to be excellent on behalf of the IPP class.

2. Risk for Class Counsel

The risk associated with this case plays an important role in determining a fair fee award. Online DVD, 779 F.3d at 955. A number of risks made this case unique – and made the actions of class counsel unique. First, defendants have used the very factor which some might point to as a strength in plaintiffs' case – the criminal guilty pleas of HLDS and its executives – as an affirmative tactical weapon. IPPs have devoted many hours both to developing evidence outside of the guilty pleas, as well as economic evidence demonstrating that HP and Dell form the floor of the ODD market. IPPs' theory is that even if the conspiracy targeted only HP and Dell, it would still have the effect of moving the entire market. Second, the very real risk existed that no class would ever be certified. Not only did IPPs need to convince this Court that a measureable overcharge existed due to the actions of the cartel, but IPPs also needed to demonstrate that this overcharge was passed-through to class members. Third, collectively, these defendants have enormous resources to devote to this litigation. Fourth, risk still remains. Two defendants have declared bankruptcy – Quanta Storage

America, Inc. and TSST-Korea (ECF Nos. 1643, 1906). Even if the IPPs prevail at trial, they may not be able to collect the full amount of their damages. The enormous risk posed by this case, and Hagens Berman's committed perseverance even in the face of this risk, deserves recognition.

3. Benefits for the Class Beyond Cash

These four settlements offer the class benefits – and have realized benefits – beyond just cash. Each settlement agreement provides for certain cooperation provisions, including producing witnesses for deposition (ECF No. 1898-3 at Ex. A, ¶ 25, Ex. B, ¶¶ 24, 26, 27, Ex. C, ¶¶ 24-26, Ex. D, ¶ 28. Because the vast majority of witnesses are located overseas, the testimony of these witnesses at deposition is the testimony that will be used at trial. This factor provides significant benefit to the class.

4. Market Rates

Hagens Berman's hourly rates are in line with market rates in this district. The most senior attorney on the case, Steve Berman, bills at an hourly rate of $950. This is well within the range of $200 to $1,080 charged by partners in California (ECF No. 1963-2). Other partners at Hagens Berman have hourly rates ranging between $525 to $735. Associates at Hagens Berman have hourly rates ranging from $250 to $605. Staff and contract attorneys have hourly rates ranging from between $300 to $350. A number of these staff and contract attorneys were specifically hired because of their unique language skills (Korean, Japanese and Chinese). Finally, translators, paralegals, and paralegal assistants have rates ranging between $125 to $265. All of these ranges are within the ranges accepted by other Courts in this District and market surveys (ECF No. 1963-2).

5. Burdens on Class Counsel

The Ninth Circuit instructs district courts to consider the burdens class counsel experienced while litigating the case (e.g., cost, duration, foregoing other work). Here, this litigation has been pending for six years – and trial is not scheduled until February 2018. Hagens Berman has spent $3,704,323.97 in out-of-pocket expenses to date. Many team members have been almost exclusively assigned to this litigation, billing thousands of hours reviewing documents, translating documents, and preparing for depositions – even in the face of the denial of class certification and the prospect that recovery of attorneys' fees was unlikely. This factor also supports the requested fee award.

6. Litigation on a Contingency Basis

Hagens Berman accepted this case on a contingency basis. In negotiating the guilty pleas, the DOJ pointed to this civil litigation as the place where consumers would recover from their financial injury – emphasizing the importance of private litigation within the larger context of the enforcement of the antitrust laws. The contingent nature of this case means that Hagens Berman has a balanced set of interests – both to achieve excellent results for the class, and to achieve those results in as efficient manner as possible.

As former Judge Walker, the original judge assigned to this matter, recognized at the outset of this case, "potential recovery by indirect purchaser plaintiffs in this litigation is subject to a greater variety of imponderables" than other pieces of litigation such as securities litigation under the PSLRA (ECF No. 96). This has certainly turned out to be the case. IPPs brought two successive motions for class certification, increasing their lodestar beyond what it would have been. If IPPs settled on the same terms as the direct purchaser class with all defendants after the denial of the initial motion for class certification, without investing any additional resources and risk, the total recovery to the indirect purchaser class would have been a little more than half what they are receiving here. IPPs' willingness to seek recertification, if the requested fees are granted, nearly doubles the recovery to the IPP class while settling with only one half of the market in this case. Hagens Berman's prosecution of this case on a contingency basis warrants consideration.

B. Lodestar As a Cross-Check

Indirect purchaser counsel submit they have invested $24,199,800.20 in attorney fees in this litigation. IPPs request a 1.29 multiplier which is well within the range of multipliers awarded in other, similar litigation.

Lodestar is calculated "by multiplying the number of hours the prevailing party reasonably expended on the litigation (as supported by adequate documentation) by a reasonable hourly rate for the region and for the experience of the lawyer." Bluetooth, 654 F.3d at 941. A court may give an upwards adjustment to a lodestar (through a positive multiplier) to reflect a host of "reasonableness" factors, including: (1) the amount involved and the results obtained, (2) the time and labor required, (3) the novelty and difficulty of the questions involved, (4) the skill requisite to perform the legal service properly, (5) the preclusion of other employment by the attorney due to acceptance of the case, (6) the customary fee, (7) the experience, reputation, and ability of the attorneys, and (8) awards in similar cases. Id. at 941-42. These are referred to as the Kerr "reasonableness" factors after the Ninth Circuit's opinion in Kerr v. Screen Extras Guild, Inc., 526 F.2d 67, 70 (9th Cir. 1975). Each of the factors supports the positive multiplier requested by IPPs' counsel.

1. Awards in Similar Cases

The first factor, the results for the class, strongly supports an upwards adjustment from lodestar. As outlined above, the results achieved on behalf of the class are exceptional and are on par with other similar pieces of litigation.

2. Resources Expended

Hagens Berman was appointed as sole lead counsel on behalf of the IPP class. As a result, Hagens Berman has staffed this case entirely with its own resources during the pendency of the six years of litigation. Hagens Berman committed the time of experienced antitrust litigators to this case, in addition to countless hours from staff attorneys to review documents and assist in the prosecution of this litigation. Hagens Berman attests that it committed internal resources to the document review in this case – over 2.9 million documents, many of which were produced in foreign languages such as Chinese, Korean, and Japanese. As of the end of August 2016, the firm has spent 47,807 hours of attorney time and 18,492 hours of para-professional time. Hagens Berman has also spent $3,704,323.97 in expenses and $39,295.01 in costs to date in this litigation. This commitment of time, personnel, and money to the indirect purchaser class supports the requested award.

3. Novelty, Difficulty and Skill

The third and fourth Kerr factors – the novelty of the questions presented by the litigation and the skill required to perform the legal services properly – both support the requested award. This litigation has presented unique and challenging questions unaddressed by many other courts. Even the defendants, in their petition for permission to appeal the granting of class certification to the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals, acknowledged the uniqueness of many of the issues faced by plaintiffs and this Court. Defendants stated that to their knowledge, "no case has certified a class" on the same basis and record as this case.[4] Regarding this Court's choice-of-law analysis, defendants argued to the Ninth Circuit that "[n]either this Court nor the California Supreme Court has ever addressed whether the Cartwright Act can be applied across-the-board to all jurisdictions with 'Illinois Brick repealer' statutes."[5] Class certification has not been the only "novel" and difficult question presented here. In litigating against TSST-Korea and the TSST-Korea employee "John Doe," IPPs addressed the unique issue of whether the DOJ recordings were "grand jury" materials. IPPs have also spent a significant amount of time and resources on discovery regarding the structure and liability of parent companies involved in the many joint ventures at issue in this litigation. All of these issues have required advocacy and skill beyond routine litigation.

4. Preclusion of Other Employment

Hagens Berman has dedicated a core team of individuals to the litigation of this action. The consequence of dedicating a team of experienced antitrust attorneys has meant that many of these professionals worked nearly exclusively on this case for some number of years. Nine attorneys have dedicated over a thousand hours each to this litigation, and many of those attorneys have devoted many thousands of hours (ECF No. 1963-1). Hagens Berman's choice to commit a significant number of attorneys almost exclusively to this litigation, forgoing other cases and other projects, further supports the request for fees.

5. Comparable Fees in Similar Litigation

The sixth and eight Kerr factors – the customary fee and awards in similar cases – both support Hagens Berman's fee request. IPPs request a multiplier of 1.29, which is well within the range of other similar cases. See, e.g., Vizcaino v. Microsoft Corp., 290 F.3d 1043, 1050-51 (9th Cir. 2002) (upholding a 28% fee award that constituted a 3.65 multiple of lodestar); id. at 1052-54 (noting district court cases in the Ninth Circuit approving multipliers as high as 6.2, and citing only 3 of 24 decisions with approved multipliers below 1.4); Wal-Mart Stores, Inc. v. Visa U.S.A. Inc., 396 F.3d 96, 96 (2d Cir. 2005) (finding 3.5 multiplier reasonable); In re Cathode Ray Tube (CRT)

[4] Petition for Permission to Appeal the District Court's Order Granting Class Certification at 1, Wagner, et al. v. Hitachi Ltd., et al., No. 16-80026 (9th Cir. Feb. 22, 2016), ECF No. 1.

[5] Id. at 20.

Antitrust Litig., No. C-07-5944 JST, 2016 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 102408, at *71 (N.D. Cal. Aug 3, 2016) (finding that a multiplier of 1.96 was well within the range of acceptable multipliers); Noll v. eBay, Inc., 309 F.R.D. 593, 610 (N.D. Cal. 2015) (finding that the lodestar cross check, with a 1.6 multiplier, confirmed the reasonableness of the percentage-based calculation); Dyer v. Wells Fargo Bank, N.A., 303 F.R.D. 326, 334 (N.D. Cal. 2014) (finding a 2.83 multiplier appropriate*); In re Netflix Privacy Litig*., No. 5:11-CV-00379 EJD, 2013 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 37286, at *31 (N.D. Cal. Mar. 18, 2013) (finding that a lodestar multiplier of 1.66 confirms the reasonableness of the percentage-based attorney fees calculation, 25% of the settlement fund); Lane v. Facebook, Inc., No. C 08-3845 RS, 2010 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 57765, at *10 (N.D. Cal. May 24, 2010) (finding that a multiplier of 2 should be applied).

6. Experience, Reputation, and Ability

Hagens Berman is a highly-respected class action litigation firm and has litigated some of the largest class actions in history, including the tobacco litigation, In re Visa MasterCard Litigation,[6] and the In re Toyota Motor Corp. Unintended Acceleration Litigation.[7] It has demonstrated exceptional ability in this case.

* * *

In conclusion, the Court tentatively finds that under either measurement – lodestar or percentage-of-the-fund – the IPPs' request for attorney fees is fair and reasonable. Hagens Berman is therefore awarded $31,125,000 in attorney fees

V. EXPENSES

Attorneys who create a common fund for the benefit of a class are entitled to be reimbursed for their out-of-pocket expenses incurred in creating the fund so long as the submitted expenses are reasonable, necessary and directly related to the prosecution of the action. Vincent v. Hughes Air W., Inc., 557 F.2d 759, 769 (9th Cir. 1977). Reasonable reimbursable litigation expenses include: those for document production, experts and consultants, depositions, translation services, travel, mail and postage costs. See In re Media Vision Tech. Sec. Litig., 913 F. Supp. 1362, 1366 (N.D. Cal. 1995) (Court fees, experts/consultants, service of process, court reporters, transcripts, deposition costs, computer research, photocopies, postage, telephone/fax); Thornberry v. Delta Air Lines, 676 F.2d 1240, 1244 (9th Cir. 1982), remanded on other grounds, 461 U.S. 952 (1983) (travel, meals and lodging).

[6] In re Visa-MasterCard Litig., No. CV-96-5238 (E.D.N.Y.). Hagens Berman was co-lead counsel in a case alleging antitrust violations by Visa and MasterCard. The case settled for $3 billion in cash and changes in practices valued at $20 billion.

[7] In re Toyota Motor Corp. Unintended Acceleration Mktg., Sales Practices & Prods. Liab. Litig., No. 8:10ML2151 JVS (C.D. Cal.). Hagens Berman recovered $1.6 billion for the class.

Hagens Berman requests reimbursement of $3,704,323.97 in expenses. Hagens Berman does not request reimbursement of costs which may be recoverable as taxable costs after a successful jury verdict. Most of the expense for which Hagens Berman requests reimbursement is attributable to expert fees ($3,103,648.81), translation costs ($71,417.03) and hosting defendants' document productions in an online database ($241,160.00) ECF No. 1963-1). These expenses are reasonable and well within the limits of other cases.

VI. SERVICE AWARDS FOR CLASS REPRESENTATIVES

Plaintiffs also request that the Court approve the service awards in the amount of $4,500 each for the twenty-three class representatives, to be deducted from the settlement funds with HLDS, Panasonic and Sony. Service awards for class representatives are routinely provided to encourage individuals to undertake the responsibilities and risks of representing the class and to recognize the time and effort spent in the case. "Incentive awards are fairly typical in class action cases." Rodriguez v. W. Publ'g Corp., 563 F.3d 948, 958 (9th Cir. 2009) (emphasis in original). In the Ninth Circuit, service awards "compensate class representatives for work done on behalf of the class, to make up for financial or reputational risk undertaken in bringing the action, and, sometimes, to recognize their willingness to act as a private attorney general." Id. at 958-59. Courts have discretion to approve service awards based on, inter alia, the amount of time and effort spent, the duration of the litigation, and the personal benefit (or lack thereof) as a result of the litigation. See Van Vraken v. Atl. Richfield Co., 901 F. Supp. 294, 299 (N.D. Cal. 1995).

Here, the twenty-three representatives have spent a significant amount of time assisting in the litigation of this case. All but four plaintiffs has responded to written discovery and produced documents. Each plaintiff was deposed by defense counsel. Each plaintiff has consulted with and assisted counsel in this litigation. Each plaintiff submits a declaration detailing the time he or she spent involved in this litigation ECF Nos. 1963-4). The requested awards of $4,500 are consistent with service awards in other cases and the Court approves them here.

VII. THE OBJECTIONS ARE OVERRULED

Eight objections have been filed objecting to the fairness of the settlements, the request for attorneys' fees, the adequacy of notice, and the service awards requested on behalf of the class representatives.

The IPPs have presented evidence that four of the objectors – Conner Erwin (represented by Christopher Bandas) (ECF No. 1970), Christopher Andrews (ECF No. 1978), Steven Helfand (ECF No. 1983), and Patrick Sweeney (ECF No. 1983) – frequently file objections in class action settlement proceedings. Collectively, these four objectors have filed hundreds of pages of objections in this action– many which do not appear well-tailored to the facts of the case. To the extent that an objection is not directly addressed below, this Court has considered the objection and it is overruled.

A. Objections to Attorney Fees

1. Erwin's Objection Regarding Hagens Berman's Lead Counsel Submission

Objector Erwin objects that Hagens Berman made a fee proposal to Judge Walker at the beginning of the case and requests that the proposal now be made public. Judge Walker ordered that the lead counsel submissions should remain under seal "during the pendency of this litigation" (ECF No. 96 at 1). IPPs have settled with approximately half the defendants in this litigation. This Court finds that unsealing the record now would provide the remaining defendants with work product of counsel for IPPs and insight into how Hagens Berman sees the valuation of this case at certain stages. This Court rules that the requirements of the local rules have been met, and these materials shall continue to remain under seal.

The original order from Judge Walker, however, revealed that the potential fee structure contemplated a "fee percentage which increases with the stages of litigation and declines as the amount of the recovery rises" (ECF No. 96). Hagens Berman has further revealed that the proposed fee structure listed four stages: (1) From Pleading Through Decision on Motion to Dismiss; (2) After Motion to Dismiss Through Adjudication of Class Certification; (3) After Adjudication of Summary Judgment; and (4) Through Trial Verdict and Final Appellate Determination.

This Court has broad discretion to determine the reasonable and fair amount of attorney fees. Great weight is accorded to a district judge's views because "he is exposed to the litigants, and their strategies, positions and proofs. He is aware of the expense and possible legal bars to success. Simply stated, he is on the firing line and can evaluate the action accordingly." Class Plaintiffs v. Seattle, 955 F.2d 1268, 1291 (9th Cir. 1992) (internal quotation marks and citation omitted). This Court finds that under the circumstances, the original fee structure does not apply. As Judge Walker noted, there were many "imponderables" that might impact this litigation. The IPPs' litigation of both an original motion for class certification, as well as a renewed motion for class certification, and multiple appeals to the Ninth Circuit, certainly qualifies as such an "imponderable."

2. The 1.29 Multiplier

Erwin and Helfand suggest that awarding Class Counsel a 1.29 (or any) multiplier would be "an error of law." Erwin cites a concern over "billing inefficiencies" only, but make no other specific objection to the work of class counsel. Given the context of this litigation, however, class counsel's request of a 1.29 multiplier is within reason and well within the range contemplated by the Ninth Circuit.

3. The "Megafund" issue

Andrews and Erwin both object that this case is a "mega-fund" case, requiring an automatic reduction in attorney fees. But there is no automatic rule in the Ninth Circuit which requires an automatic percentage – instead, the Ninth Circuit requires a comprehensive analysis of the reasonableness of any award. See Vizcaino, 290 F.3d at 1047 (rejecting categorical "megafund" rule); Online DVD-Rental 779 F.3d at 949 (courts should avoid "mechanical or formulaic" rules in awarding fees in favor of totality of circumstances analysis); In re TFT-LCD (Flat Panel) Antitrust Litig., No. 07-md-1827, 2013 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 51271, at *67 (N.D. Cal. Mar. 29, 2013) (rejecting similar megafund objections). IPPs provided this Court with a detailed analysis of their lodestar, which would yield a reasonable 1.29 multiplier. As recognized by the court in CRT, "[r]ather than abandon the percentage-of-recovery method, the best way to guard against a windfall is first to examine whether a given percentage represents too high a multiplier of counsel's lodestar." In re Cathode Ray Tube (CRT) Antitrust Litig. ("CRT II"), No. C-07- 5944 JST, 2016 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 102408, at *70 (N.D. Cal. Aug 3, 2016). That analysis here establishes that applying the 25 percent benchmark here results in no undue windfall to counsel.

4. Other counsel

Under the original order approving Hagens Berman as interim lead counsel, Judge Walker gave class counsel leave to "coordinate its efforts with additional counsel" (ECF No. 96). Erwin objects that Hagens Berman does not disclose whether other plaintiffs' counsel will be provided with a portion of the fee award. Because Hagens Berman's lodestar more than adequately supported the requested award, it was not necessary to put in the limited lodestar from other firms. "[F]ederal courts routinely . . . have recognized that lead counsel are better suited than a trial court to decide the relative contributions of each firm and attorney." Hartless v. Clorox Co., 273 F.R.D. 630, 646 (S.D. Cal. 2011), aff d in part, 473 F. App'x 716 (9th Cir. 2012). Regardless, Hagens Berman has agreed two firms will be paid for their assistance in responding to discovery and defending the depositions of two class representatives. These two payments are appropriate at the discretion of lead counsel.

5. Hourly Rates

Andrews and Helfand both object that the hourly rates of class counsel are not reasonable. IPPs submitted the most recent survey of market rates – a survey accepted by many district courts (ECF No. 1963-2). Hagens Berman's rates are well within that market survey, and within the range approved by this Court for the direct purchasers.

Andrews suggests that the class lacked information regarding the experience of each Hagens Berman attorney. But IPPs submitted a detailed resume of their firm, which includes the year each attorney from Hagens Berman graduated from law school, as well as calculating the years of experience for each attorney (ECF No. 1963-3).

Andrews objects to the $265 hourly rate charged by Hagens Berman's two Bay-area based paralegals, relying on a 2013 survey of market rates. Hagens Berman has provided detail regarding the depth of experience and involvement of these paralegals. Give their expertise, the proposed rate of $265 is reasonable.

Sweeney objects that class counsel should submit detailed billing records. The Court finds that given the detailed description of the time dedicated to this case, the hourly rates of the Hagens Berman attorneys, and the number of hours per attorney provided by Hagens Berman, such a submission is not necessary.

6. Contract Attorneys

Andrews and Helfand object to the use of contract attorneys as well as the rates charged for these attorneys. Courts throughout the country have accepted the use of contract attorneys in this type of complex litigation. See, e.g., In re Cathode Ray Tube (CRT) Antitrust Litig. ("CRT III"), MDL No. 1917, 2016 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 24951, at *310 (N.D. Cal. Jan. 28, 2016) ("[T]he legal community now commonly uses contract attorneys. There is not the slightest justification to downgrade their billing rates or not apply a multiplier to them."). Hagens Berman has provided an explanation regarding the expertise, language skills, and involvement of these contract attorneys with other members of the trial team, making these attorneys more valuable than just a first-line document reviewer. Given this, the objection to the use and hourly rates of the contract attorneys are overruled.

7. Information Available to Class Members

Andrews objects that a number of documents were allegedly either missing or sealed from the public record. Andrews has not shown how access to these documents would change the outcome for any class members, where the notice to the class and the existence of detailed "frequently asked questions" on the website provided the class with sufficient information to make an adequate determination of whether to stay in the class or whether to opt-out. Regardless, IPPs have demonstrated that ample information was available to all class members upon which to make a decision whether to exclude themselves from the class. See, e.g., ECF No. 1049, 1161, 1808-4, 1808-8.

8. Quick Pay

Helfand objects to IPPs' settlements because they contain quick pay provisions. Quick pay provisions are common practice in the Ninth Circuit. In re TFT-LCD (Flat Panel) Antitrust Litig. ("LCD I"), No. 07-md-1827, 2011 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 154288, at *1 (N.D. Cal. Dec. 27, 2011); Miller v. Ghirardelli Chocolate Co., No. C-12-04936, 2014 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 141111, at*16 (N.D. Cal.

Oct. 2, 2014) ("Such 'quick pay' provisions are routinely approved by courts in this district."). This Court finds that the inclusion of quick-pay provisions here are appropriate, and do not violate the Rules of Professional Responsibility.

B. Objections to the Fairness of the Settlement, Plan of Allocation, and Adequacy of Notice

1. The Panasonic Settlement

Andrews objects to the recovery of 16 percent against Panasonic, compared to the recovery of 42 percent from Sony/NEC and 33 percent from HLDS. Effectively, this is just another version of the complaint that "the class should recover more," which has long been rejected. Regardless, the Panasonic settlement was reached at a time when the first motion for class certification had been denied, and when the revised motion for class certification was still pending – a time of extraordinary risk for the class receiving no recovery at all – as well as Panasonic's position as the first IPP settlement in the case. These two reasons are more than adequate to explain the lower rate of recovery for the class in the Panasonic settlement.

2. Cy Pres

Andrews objects to a cy pres beneficiary (Andrews Obj. ECF No. 1978-3 at 8), when none is contemplated at this time. IPPs intend on distributing as much money as possible to the class – whether it be through multiple rounds of distribution or otherwise. At the time that either a cy pres award or escheatment of the settlement becomes necessary, this Court will address the issue. See Rodriguez, 563 F.3d at 966 (declining to consider the propriety of cy pres where "no cy pres disbursement[was] imminent"); In re Cathode Ray Tube (CRT) Antitrust Litig., MDL No. 1917, 2016 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 88665, at *217 (N.D. Cal. July 7, 2016) (declining to consider objection to cy pres when "Perhaps the parties will designate a cy pres recipient; perhaps there will [be] a supplemental distribution; perhaps another approach will be most appropriate.").

C. Service Awards

Andrews objects to the $4,500 service awards requested on behalf of the named representatives. The declarations submitted by each class member detailing their efforts and involvement over the past six years are adequate. The incentive awards are appropriate and well within the range awarded by other courts in this district.

D. Expenses

Helfand objects to $72,420.09 for certain professional services by vendors retained by IPPs. Helfand Obj. at 7. The Court finds this request reasonable. Nearly $40,000 of this amount was for a graphics vendor who prepared IPPs' presentation at the first motion for class certification. The remaining amounts specifically relate to marketing for this case to reach plaintiffs to represent the proposed state classes.

Helfand objects to the $3,103,648.81 paid to IPPs' experts and consultants. This amount, however, was paid to IPPs' testifying expert Dr. Flamm and the economists supporting him for the preparation of his four expert reports. In a similar context, the court in CRT approved payment of approximately $5.7 million for the IPPs' experts and consultants.[8] Given the critical role the testimony of economists played at class certification, IPPs' requested reimbursement for this expense is reasonable.

Sweeney objects that IPPs have not submitted receipts for litigation expenses. Sweeney Obj. at 3. The Court finds that receipts are not necessary. IPPs have attested that they have prepared their request for reimbursement of litigation expenses from the books and records of the firm, which are prepared from expense vouchers, expenses records, and which are an accurate record of the expenses incurred (ECF No. 1963).

E. Other Objections

In addition to the four objectors mentioned above, four additional individual class members have objected to the settlement and attorney fees.

1. Kelly Campbell

Kelly Campbell objects to the amount of attorney fees, and to her estimated recovery of $10 per ODD (ECF No. 1982). Ms. Campbell raises no specific objection to attorney fees. Class members recover only for the overcharge and not the entire purchase price of the computer. Even then, $10 represents an estimate of the amount class members may recover, not the outside limit. Regardless, "[i]t is well-settled law that a cash settlement amounting to only a fraction of the potential recovery [does] not per se render the settlement inadequate or unfair." Officers for Justice, 688 F.2d at 628. As found above, this settlement falls well within the range approved by other courts in this district.

[8] Declaration of Mario N. Alioto in Support of Indirect Purchaser Plaintiffs' Motion for Attorneys' Fees, Reimbursement of Litigation Expenses, and Incentive Awards at 46, In re Cathode Ray Tube (CRT) Antitrust Litig., MDL No. 1917 (N.D. Cal. Sept. 23, 2015), ECF No. 4071-1 (requesting reimbursement of $5,767,600.46 for experts/consultants/investigators).

2. Barbara Cochran

Barbara Cochran objects that the notice does not explain the procedure for submitting claims (ECF No. 1986). Ms. Cochran voices her concern that the settlement may impose "unreasonable documentation requirements." Receipts, however, are not required to make a claim in this litigation (ECF No. 1898-2). Ms. Cochran also objects to the attorneys getting paid more than their lodestar, without raising any further specific objection to the request for attorney fees. An objector "bears the burden of providing specific evidence to challenge the accuracy and reasonableness of the hours charged." McGrath v. Cty. of Nevada, 67 F.3d 248, 255 (9th Cir. 1995); see also Satchell v. Wallace, 439 Fed. App'x. 644, 645 (9th Cir. 2011) (accord).

3. Yury Sacrificial

Yury Sacrificial objects to the settlement because ODDs have declined in price over the class period, "there is no 'injury to the consumer" (ECF No. 1977). Mr. Sacrificial's contends the class should recover nothing. If Mr. Sacrificial believes this case is without merit, he was free to opt-out. Courts consistently recognize the value of this option. See, e.g., Eisen v. Porsche Cars N. Am., Inc., No. 2:11-CV-09405-CAS, 2014 WL 43900, at *7 (C.D. Cal. Jan. 30, 2014), appeal dismissed (Sept. 22, 2014) ("In any event, class members could have opted out if they objected to the benefits offered by the settlement. . . . Federal courts routinely hold that the opt-out remedy is sufficient to protect class members who are unhappy with the negotiated class action settlement terms.")

4. James Nellen II

James Nellen II objects to the claims procedure which requires attesting under penalty of perjury that the information submitted on the claims form is true and correct (ECF No. 1967). Other courts in this district have required similar attestations that the information provided is accurate. CRT, 2016 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 24951, at *230 n.26 (requiring a claims form with "an attestation under penalty of perjury that the information provided is accurate"). Mr. Nellen suggests that class counsel should be required to identify class members and the number of purchases by each ODD member. Here there is no perfect set of information that identifies all class members, as well as the number of products each class member purchased. Mr. Nellen's objections are overruled.[9]

IT IS SO ORDERED.

DATED: December 19, 2016

HONORABLE RICHARD SEEBORG
UNITED STATES DISTRICT JUDGE

Submitted by:

HAGENS BERMAN SOBOL SHAPIRO LLP

By /s / Jeff D. Friedman
JEFF D. FRIEDMAN

Shana E. Scarlett (217895)
715 Hearst Avenue, Suite 202
Berkeley, CA 94710
Telephone: (510) 725-3000
Facsimile: (510) 725-3001
jefff@hbsslaw.com
shanas@hbsslaw.com

Steve W. Berman (Pro Hac Vice)
HAGENS BERMAN SOBOL SHAPIRO LLP
1918 Eighth Avenue, Suite 3300
Seattle, WA 98101
Telephone: (206) 623-7292
Facsimile: (206) 623-0594
steve@hbsslaw.com

Lead Counsel for Indirect Purchaser Class

[9] To the extent any of the objectors have joined in the objections of others and/or incorporated other objections by reference, the objections are all overruled.

TAB 43B

Jeff D. Friedman (173886)
Shana E. Scarlett (217895)
HAGENS BERMAN SOBOL SHAPIRO LLP
715 Hearst Avenue, Suite 202
Berkeley, CA 94710
Telephone: (510) 725-3000
Facsimile: (510) 725-3001
jefff@hbsslaw.com
shanas@hbsslaw.com

Steve W. Berman (Pro Hac Vice)
HAGENS BERMAN SOBOL SHAPIRO LLP
1918 Eighth Avenue, Suite 3300
Seattle, WA 98101
Telephone: (206) 623-7292
Facsimile: (206) 623-0594
steve@hbsslaw.com

Lead Counsel for Indirect Purchaser Class

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT

NORTHERN DISTRICT OF CALIFORNIA

SAN FRANCISCO DIVISION

IN RE OPTICAL DISK DRIVE PRODUCTS ANTITRUST LITIGATION	No. 3:10-md-2143 RS
This Document Relates to: ALL INDIRECT PURCHASER ACTIONS	INDIRECT PURCHASER PLAINTIFFS' MOTION FOR ATTORNEYS' FEES, EXPENSES, AND SERVICE AWARDS Date: December 8, 2016 Time: 1:30 p.m. Dept: Courtroom 3, 17th Floor Judge: Hon. Richard Seeborg DATE ACTION FILED: Oct. 27, 2009

TABLE OF CONTENTS

I. INTRODUCTION 1

II. THE WORK UNDERTAKEN BY INDIRECT PURCHASERS 2

A. Pleadings, Motions to Dismiss and the First Motion for Class Certification 2

1. Motions to Dismiss and Production of the Grand Jury Documents 2

2. Early Written Discovery and Depositions of Defense Witnesses 4

3. Third-Party Discovery Related to IPPs' Pass-Through Analysis 4

4. Discovery and Defendants' Depositions of Class Representatives 5

5. IPPs' First Motion for Class Certification and Rule 23(f) Petition 6

B. IPPs' Second Motion for Class Certification, Pursuit of Recordings of Cartel Members and Trial Depositions of Defense Witnesses 7

1. Renewed Motion for Class Certification and Second Rule 23(f) Petition 7

2. IPPs' Pursuit of DOJ Recordings 8

3. Hagens Berman's Depositions of Co-Conspirators 8

C. Discovery After the Granting of Class Certification 9

III. ARGUMENT 10

A. Application of the Twenty-Five Percent Benchmark Is Appropriate 10

1. Hagens Berman Has Achieved Exceptional Results for the Class 11

2. This Case Posed an Enormous Risk for Class Counsel 13

3. The Settlements Generate Benefits for the Class Beyond Cash 14

4. The Market Rate for Antitrust Lawyers with the Experience of IPP Counsel Supports the Request 15

5. The Burdens on Class Counsel Support the Request for Attorneys' Fees 15

6. Class Counsel's Litigation on a Contingency Basis 16

B. Using Lodestar As a Cross-Check Further Supports the Requested Fees 16

1. Class Counsel Has Achieved Exceptional Results for the IPP Class When Compared to Awards in Similar Cases 17

2. IPPs' Counsel Have Expended Significant Resources on Behalf of the Class 17

3. This Case Has Presented Novel and Difficult Questions, Requiring Extraordinary Skill by IPPs' Counsel....18

4. Hagens Berman Has Foregone Other Employment Due to Their Commitment to This Case....19

5. The Requested Fee Is Reasonable When Compared to Fees in Similar Litigation....19

6. The Reputation and Ability of Hagens Berman Supports the Requested Fee....20

C. Hagens Berman Requests Reimbursement of $3,704,323.97 in Expenses....20

D. Plaintiffs Request Service Awards on Behalf of the Class Representatives....21

IV. CONCLUSION....22

TABLE OF AUTHORITIES

Page(s)

CASES

Associated Gen. Contractors of Cal., Inc. v. Cal. State Council of Carpenters,
459 U.S. 519 (1983) 3

Bell Atl. Corp. v. Twombly,
550 U.S. 544 (2007) 2

Best Buy Co. v. AU Optronics Corp. (In re TFT-LCD Flat Panel Antitrust Litigation), 2014 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 32207 (N.D. Cal. Feb. 3, 2014) 21

Dyer v. Wells Fargo Bank, N.A.,
303 F.R.D. 326 (N.D. Cal. 2014) 19

In re Bluetooth Headset Prods. Liab. Litig.,
654 F.3d 935 (9th Cir. 2011) 17

In re Cathode Ray Tube (CRT) Antitrust Litig.,
2016 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 88665 (N.D. Cal. July 7, 2016) 13

In re Cathode Ray Tube (CRT) Antitrust Litig.,
2016 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 102408 (N.D. Cal. Aug 3, 2016) 19

In re Currency Conversion Fee Antitrust Litig.,
263 F.R.D. 110 (S.D.N.Y. 2009) 13

In re Ins. Brokerage Antitrust Litig.,
579 F.3d 241 (3d Cir. 2009) 22

In re Linerboard Antitrust Litig.,
321 F. Supp. 2d 619 (E.D. Pa. 2004) 13

In re Media Vision Tech. Sec. Litig.,
913 F. Supp. 1362 (N.D. Cal. 1995) 20

In re NASDAQ Market-Makers Antitrust Litig.,
187 F.R.D. 465 (S.D.N.Y. 1998) 13

In re Netflix Privacy Litig.,
2013 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 37286 (N.D. Cal. Mar. 18, 2013) 19

In re OmniVision Techs., Inc.,
559 F. Supp. 2d 1036 (N.D. Cal. 2008) 20

In re Online DVD-Rental Antitrust Litig.,
779 F.3d 934 (9th Cir. 2015) 10, 11, 13

In re TFT-LCD (Flat Panel) Antitrust Litig.,
2013 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 49885 (N.D. Cal. Apr. 1, 2013) 13

In re Warfarin Sodium Antitrust Litig.,
391 F.3d 516 (3d Cir. 2004) 13

Kerr v. Screen Extras Guild, Inc.,
526 F.2d 67 (9th Cir. 1975) 17, 18, 19

Lane v. Facebook, Inc.,
2010 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 57765 (N.D. Cal. May 24, 2010) 19

Noll v. eBay, Inc.,
309 F.R.D. 593 (N.D. Cal. 2015) 19

Phillips Petroleum Co. v. Shutts,
472 U.S. 797 (1985) 3

Resurrection Bay Conserv. All. v. City of Seward,
640 F.3d 1087 (9th Cir. 2011) 17

Rodriguez v. W. Publ'g Corp.,
563 F.3d 948 (9th Cir. 2009) 21

Thornberry v. Delta Air Lines,
676 F.2d 1240 (9th Cir. 1982) 20

Van Vraken v. Atl. Richfield Co.,
901 F. Supp. 294 (N.D. Cal. 1995) 21

Vincent v. Hughes Air W., Inc.,
557 F.2d 759 (9th Cir. 1977) 20

Vizcaino v. Microsoft Corp.,
142 F. Supp. 2d 1299 (W.D. Wash. 2001) 14

Vizcaino v. Microsoft Corp.,
290 F.3d 1043 (9th Cir. 2002) 19

Wal-Mart Stores, Inc. v. Visa U.S.A. Inc.,
396 F.3d 96 (2d Cir. 2005) 19

FEDERAL STATUTES

Foreign Trade Antitrust Improvement Act, 15 U.S.C. § 6a 3

28 U.S.C. §1920 (2012) 21

FEDERAL RULES

Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 11 4

Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 23(f) 6, 7, 8, 9

NOTICE OF MOTION AND MOTION

TO ALL PARTIES AND THEIR COUNSEL OF RECORD:

PLEASE TAKE NOTICE THAT on December 8, 2016 at 1:30 p.m., or as soon thereafter as this matter may be heard, before the Honorable Richard Seeborg, United States District Judge of the Northern District of California, located in Courtroom 3, 17th Floor, 450 Golden Gate Avenue, San Francisco, CA 94102, plaintiffs and class counsel will, and hereby do, move for an award of attorneys' fees, expenses, and service awards to the named plaintiffs. This motion is based on this notice of motion and motion, the accompanying memorandum of points and authorities, the declarations in support of the motion, argument by counsel at the hearing before this Court, any papers filed in reply, such oral and documentary evidence as may be presented at the hearing of this motion, and all papers and records on file in this matter.

STATEMENT OF ISSUES

1) Hagens Berman Sobol Shapiro LLP (HB) has dedicated more than $24 million in attorney time and advanced over $3 million in expenses and costs to this matter – over a six year period, without any compensation to date. HB is now proposing $124.5 million in settlements, while continuing to pursue other defendants. HB is seeking a 1.29 multiplier (the 25% benchmark), in asking for fees of $31,250,000. If the Court grants HB's request, the class would receive far more than the direct purchaser class received that the Court deemed fair and reasonable. Should the Court approve HB's fee request in its discretion as fair and reasonable?

2) HB advanced $3,704,323.97 in out-of-pocket expenses in this litigation. HB is not seeking to recover $39,295.01 in taxable costs which may be recovered after a successful trial against the remaining defendants. Should the Court approve reimbursement of this amount as fair and reasonable?

3) Whether the class representatives, each of whom supports the proposed settlements, and each of whom has actively participated in this litigation, should be recognized with a $4,500 service award.

I. INTRODUCTION

Hagens Berman Sobol Shapiro LLP (Hagens Berman or HB) has litigated this case as the sole lead counsel on behalf of the indirect purchaser class for six years. Over the past six years, Hagens Berman has dedicated significant resources fighting dozens of attorneys with tremendous resources, taken on extraordinary risk on behalf of the class and has refused to blink, even when odds of success seemed at their longest. Rather than spread work (and risk) across dozens of lawyers at different plaintiffs' firms, Hagens Berman has dedicated a single core team of lawyers specializing in antitrust class actions to maximize efficiencies and ensure the key litigating team operated on a single, cohesive page. This high risk structure has led to great results for the class.

The Court well knows how hard fought this case has been. The defendants in this case are some of the most sophisticated corporate entities in the world. These defendants are repeat cartelists, playing a major role in a litany of price-fixing MDLs in this district. And this group of defendants is represented by sophisticated antitrust defense counsel, many of whom have spent the last decade defending these very companies against similar antitrust claims. Beyond this vast trove of experience, these companies when considered as a joint defense group have near limitless assets which they have demonstrated they are willing to devote to this litigation. No motion has been too small for this group to oppose, including even at one point opposing indirect purchaser plaintiffs' (IPPs) request for an additional two pages in a brief.[1]

In the face of this formidable opposition, Hagens Berman has achieved an extraordinary set of settlements on behalf of the indirect purchaser class. With the current four settlements (with the NEC, Panasonic, Sony and HLDS defendant families), the indirect purchaser class will recover $124.5 million. And even then, this is only 50 percent of the ODD market. Many defendants still remain.

Respectfully, Hagens Berman requests an attorneys' fee aware of $31,125,000 which is 25 percent of the proposed $124.5 million settlements, equating to a modest 1.29 multiplier (even less if time-value of money is considered) from Hagens Berman's lodestar of $24,199,800.20. Hagens

[1] Order Granting Indirect Purchaser Plaintiffs' Administrative Motion for an Extension of Page Limits, Sept. 8, 2015, ECF No. 1672.

Berman requests reimbursement of $3,704,323.97 in out-of-pocket expenses incurred so far in this litigation – the vast majority of which is expert fees. And IPPs request $4,500 in service awards for each of the class representatives who has spent time and energy on behalf of consumers across the country.

II. THE WORK UNDERTAKEN BY INDIRECT PURCHASERS

Hagens Berman has spent six years vigorously advocating on behalf of the class and, even for a period of time, on behalf of individual consumers (when the first motion for class certification had been denied). The summary below reflects just a narrow window into the effort and attention paid by a dedicated team of HB attorneys and their professional staff.

A. Pleadings, Motions to Dismiss and the First Motion for Class Certification

1. Motions to Dismiss and Production of the Grand Jury Documents

Even before its appointment as lead counsel, Hagens Berman worked on behalf of the class, including opposing the U.S. Department of Justice's (DOJ) request for a limited stay of discovery.[2] On June 4, 2010, Judge Walker appointed Hagens Berman as sole lead counsel on behalf of the indirect purchaser class in a contested leadership fight.[3] Even before its appointment as lead counsel, however, Hagens Berman retained and worked with economists to research the ODD market, analyze ODD price trends, research market concentration, and determine the distribution channels for ODDs to consumers. Friedman Decl., ¶ 3.[4]

On August 26, 2010, IPPs filed their consolidated amended complaint. A first amended complaint was filed on October 1, 2010, to clarify two allegations. Defendants filed seven separate motions to dismiss the consolidated pleading, arguing that IPPs had failed to state any claim under Bell Atlantic Corp. v. Twombly, 550 U.S. 544 (2007), that class representatives lacked standing to pursue claims under the District of Columbia, Hawaii, Nebraska, New Hampshire, and North Dakota, that IPPs did not have standing to assert claims of antitrust standing given the "seminal"

[2] Plaintiff Wagner's Response to Motion by the United States for a Limited Stay of Discovery, June 3, 2010, ECF No. 88.

[3] Order, June 4, 2010, ECF No. 96.

[4] "Friedman Decl." refers to the Declaration of Jeff D. Friedman in Support of Indirect Purchaser Plaintiffs' Motion for Attorneys' Fees, Expenses and Service Awards, filed concurrently herewith.

case of Associated General Contractors of California, Inc. v. California State Council of Carpenters, 459 U.S. 519 (1983), that the Foreign Trade Antitrust Improvement Act, 15 U.S.C. § 6a ("FTAIA") precluded IPP claims, and that the Supreme Court's decision in Phillips Petroleum Co. v. Shutts, 472 U.S. 797 (1985) prevented the extra-territorial application of California's laws. Defendants also challenged a host of individual state law claims, whether the allegations of the complaint were sufficient to state a claim against many of the individual defendants, and whether IPPs had alleged vicarious liability for actions of certain joint ventures. On August 3, 2011, this Court granted the motions to dismiss with leave to amend, ruling that plaintiffs had not alleged a plausible factual basis for inferring the existence of a conspiracy of the scope and nature alleged in the complaints. Friedman Decl., ¶ 4.

During the pendency of the motions to dismiss, IPPs moved to compel production of the documents defendants had produced to the grand jury. On April 7, 2011, Chief Magistrate Judge Spero granted plaintiffs' motion to compel. Id., ¶ 5.

On September 23, 2011, IPPs filed their second amended complaint, adding the Panasonic defendants and Quanta Storage America as defendants. Defendants filed eight motions to dismiss, again challenging nearly every facet of the IPP complaint. In April 2012, the Court denied defendants' second set of motions to dismiss, ruling that the amended complaint alleged a plausible conspiracy. Id., ¶ 6.

IPPs took the lead on behalf of plaintiffs negotiating the bulk of the discovery protocols governing this case, including an ESI protocol, custodians, a search term protocol, the search terms themselves, multiple deposition protocols, protective orders, and case management statements filed before Magistrate Judge Spero. In addition, IPPs took the lead on the vast majority of discovery motions filed before Magistrate Judge Spero, including: motions to compel additional custodians, and a motion to compel defendants to produce witnesses in the United States for deposition. Defendants have fought nearly every request by the plaintiffs in this case, including a request to depose a particular witness while he was in the United States serving a prison sentence, have refused to produce witnesses according to the deposition protocols, and opposed nearly every scheduling request made by IPPs. TSST-Korea (unsuccessfully) moved to stay production of all foreign-located documents to keep these documents out of the hands of the U.S. Department of Justice. When the large direct action plaintiffs Dell and HP joined this MDL, defendants refused to allow these plaintiffs additional time at deposition, resulting in further motion practice. Id., ¶ 7.

Defendants threatened IPPs' counsel with Rule 11 sanctions, including (unsuccessfully) moving to compel all communications between IPPs' counsel and the ACPERA applicant who provided some cooperation to IPPs (whether it was timely and a full accounting, however, is to be determined after trial). Defendants also (unsuccessfully) moved to compel IPPs to "identify in detail every past or present relationship or acquaintance, including those of a business, personal, or familial nature, between potential class representatives and any person affiliated with a law firm representing plaintiffs in this matter" – suggesting some impropriety between class counsel and the named class representatives where none existed. And as this Court is also aware, these defendants rarely passed up the opportunity to object to the orders of the Magistrate Judge and request that this Court intervene in the ongoing discovery disputes. Id., ¶ 8.

2. Early Written Discovery and Depositions of Defense Witnesses

IPPs have served and enforced written discovery from defendants, including serving 29 interrogatories and 34 requests for production of documents during this early period in the case. Prior to the ruling on the first motion for class certification, IPPs also deposed a number of critical merits witnesses, including an HLDS Acer account representative (Bruce Jeong), an HLDS HP account manager (Eugene Yang), and a PLDS account manager (JC Lim). Five other depositions where the witnesses invoked their Fifth Amendment right not to testify also occurred during this period: the depositions of two TSST-Korea witnesses (Kenny Lee and Matthew Lee), and three Quanta Storage witnesses (Haw Chen, Shu-Ming Tzeng, and Sally Huang). Id., ¶ 9.

3. Third-Party Discovery Related to IPPs' Pass-Through Analysis

To demonstrate pass-through, IPPs subpoenaed 100 separate third parties pursuing purchase and cost data to use for their pass-through analysis. In connection with the first motion for class certification, IPPs performed pass-through estimates based on $58 billion in commerce involving the exchange of 194 million ODD products. Dr. Flamm estimated 95 pass-through rates for 49 company-product categories over 19 different companies. During this period, IPPs also deposed ten third parties regarding their pricing and procurement practices relating to pass-through, including: Best Buy, Newegg, TigerDirect, Microsoft, Amazon, Fry's, Shuttle Computer, ASI, Wal-Mart, and Sears. Id., ¶ 10.

4. Discovery and Defendants' Depositions of Class Representatives

The class representatives have been actively involved in the litigation of this case. With the exception of the four newly added representatives on whom defendants have not served discovery (Ms. Duryea, Ms. Tecce, Mr. Tufa and Mr. Tindall), each representative has responded to over 42 interrogatories and 45 document requests. Defendants have deposed each representative (including the newly added representatives) at length – sometimes by the most senior attorney representing the defendant. The depositions of the class representatives have been long and tedious – defendants have done everything possible to make the service of these class representatives very time consuming (and at times bordering on harassing), with some depositions lasting over four hours for the simple purchase of a computer. One deposition transcript – the deposition of Minnesota representative Anbessa Tufa – was only 16 pages less in length than the 2015 deposition transcript of plaintiffs' economist, Dr. Kenneth Flamm. The following chart details the amount of time of each deposition and the number (and graduation years) of the defense counsel attending these depositions:

Class Representative	Deposition Time	Name of Attending Defense Counsel and Level of Seniority
Bishop, Michael	3:58	Campbell, Christopher (JD 2007)
Bissen, Alex	3:07	Kaas, Lisa (JD 2004)
Booze, Cindy	3:20	Biagioli, Kimberley (Admitted 2009)
Cooper, Gregg	3:06	Aragona, Arin (JD 2007)
Duryea, Wanda	5:08	Curt Lambert (JD 2006)
Ence, Matthew	3:36	Pellegrini, John (JD 2008)
Faber, Benjamin	2:22	Pearl, James (JD 1998) Ghafary, Qais (JD 2011)
Gooman, Barney	3:34	Wong, Alvina (JD 2009)
Hatfield, Douglas	4:24	Ghafary, Qais (JD 2011) McCarthy, Michael (JD 2009) Wong, Christine (JD 2000)
Hosking, Matthew	6:14	Nardi, Marissa (JD 2012) Reblitz-Richardson, Beko (JD 2005)
Ito-Adler, James	2:00	Visser, Michelle (JD 2005) Graber, Lauren (JD 2010)
Jacobson, Evan	1:59	Cheolas, Nick (JD 2010)
Johnson, Christopher	4:04	Meenan, Sean (JD 2008)

Class Representative	Deposition Time	Name of Attending Defense Counsel and Level of Seniority
		Kaas, Lisa (JD 2004) Visser, Michelle (JD 2005)
Lim, Susie	3:08	Lanski, Kelley (JD 2009)
McKee, John	2:19	Wong, Christine (JD 2000) Wong, Alvina (JD 2009) Ghafary, Qais (JD 2011) Pearl, James (JD 1998) Van Panhuys, Vincent (JD 2006) Cate, Elizabeth (JD 2008)
Melegari, Lisa	2:27	Wilson, Hannah (Admitted 2011)
Murphy, Gail	2:29	Ambar, Daniel (Admitted 2011) Bogaciu, Corina (JD 2009) Wilson, Hannah (Admitted 2011)
Murray, Benjamin	2:09	Aragona, Arin (JD 2007)
Porter, Benjamin	3:32	Reblitz-Richardson, Beko (JD 2005) Loeb, Alexis (Admitted 2008) Wong, Christine (JD 2009) Pearl, James (JD 1998)
Pritchard, Angela	2:13	Kessler, Jeffrey (JD 1977) Foltz, Stacey (JD 2012)
Ravenelle, Evan	3:17	Ghafary, Qais (JD 2011)
Reilly, Michael	2:17	Kaas, Lisa (JD 2004)
Steffen, Sandra	3:50	McShane, Brendan (JD 2003)
Stenger, Thomas	4:04	Graber, Lauren (JD 2010) Biagioli, Anthony (JD 2009)
Tecce, Kristina	4:00	Nardi, Marissa (JD 2012) Parsigian, Jeanifer (JD 2012)
Tindall, Brian	1:24	LeVee, Jeffrey (JD 1984)
Tufa, Anbessa	5:12	Ribner, David (Admitted 2013)
Wagner, Aaron	4:22	Walter, Keith (JD 1998)
Wood, Kimberly	3:19	Reblitz-Richardson, Beko (JD 2005) Cate, Elizabeth (JD 2008)

Hagens Berman spent time with each class representative preparing them for these depositions and, with rare exception, defended each class representative's deposition. Id., ¶¶ 11-12.

5. IPPs' First Motion for Class Certification and Rule 23(f) Petition

On May 29, 2013, IPPs filed their first motion for class certification. The initial round of class certification took seventeen months from the first filing until the Court's denial of certification on October 3, 2014. The parties presented large amounts of argument and evidence to the Court, including 250 pages of legal briefs, 4,347 pages of exhibits, and 1,029 pages of expert declarations. Defendants filed a motion to exclude all testimony from IPPs' expert, Dr. Kenneth Flamm. After the denial of class certification, IPPs filed a petition for permission to appeal the denial to the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals – a request that was denied on January 14, 2015. Id., ¶ 13.

IPPs' lodestar through the denial of the petition for permission to appeal the denial of class certification pursuant to Rule 23(f) was $17,763,454.70 (48,601.36 hours). Id., ¶ 14.

B. IPPs' Second Motion for Class Certification, Pursuit of Recordings of Cartel Members and Trial Depositions of Defense Witnesses

For nearly two years, between the dates of October 3, 2014 (when this Court denied the first motion for class certification) and June 10, 2016 (when the Ninth Circuit denied defendants' petition to appeal the granting of class certification), the IPPs faced a period of extreme risk. As demonstrated by the outcome of the DPP action, nearly every participant in this MDL (with the exception of Hagens Berman), believed that the risk to the class action was extraordinarily high. To be blunt, many thought continuing to pursue the case as a class was a long shot at best. Id., ¶ 15.

Despite this, Hagens Berman filed a revised motion for class certification with extensive additional work regarding the overcharge multi-variate regression model, co-integration analysis, a Granger analysis, and also many additional pass-through studies. At the same time, IPPs doggedly pursued the production of recordings made of phone calls between co-conspirators to the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals (resulting in the production of these recordings). And even in the face of the very serious prospect that the case would not be certified even on the second attempt, Hagens Berman took the lead on every single deposition of defense witnesses during this period. Id., ¶ 16.

1. Renewed Motion for Class Certification and Second Rule 23(f) Petition

At a January 29, 2015 case management conference, IPPs requested leave to file a renewed motion for class certification, which this Court allowed. IPPs' revised motion for class certification involved, again, a large written record, including an additional 111 pages of briefing, 1,500 pages of exhibits and 683 pages of expert declarations. In support of the renewed motion, IPPs submitted additional expert reports, deposed defendants' experts for a second time, and defended the third deposition of Dr. Flamm. Id., ¶ 17.

During this period, IPPs sought the production of additional data, including moving to compel additional data from Toshiba for use in the revised class certification motion, and pursued additional data from HP and other third parties related to pass-through. In presenting their renewed motion for class certification, IPPs included a pass-through analysis on 273 million ODD products, including companies responsible for approximately 80 percent of personal computer retail sales, and 45 percent of top distributor sales. Id., ¶ 18.

On February 8, 2016, this Court granted the renewed motion for class certification. Defendants filed a petition for permission to appeal the granting of class certification with the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals – a request which was denied on June 10, 2016. Id., ¶ 19.

2. IPPs' Pursuit of DOJ Recordings

With their opposition to the first motion for class certification, defendants informed the Court that the U.S. DOJ's criminal investigation into the ODD cartel had ended. Upon learning of this, the DPPs and IPPs jointly subpoenaed the DOJ for production of certain recordings between a cooperating entity and several co-conspirators. TSST-Korea moved to quash the subpoena, as did one individual on the recordings who requested to be called "John Doe." TSST-Korea filed its original motion to quash the subpoena in September 2014. Despite this Court's denial of class certification, for over a year, IPPs fought for the production of these recordings, including multiple sets of motions before Magistrate Judge Spero, objections to this Court, disputes over the governing protective order, "emergency" motions by John Doe filed with the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals, a decision on the merits from the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals denying John Doe's motion to quash, a petition for rehearing before a panel of the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals, and disputes regarding the timing of the production. IPPs took the lead on the vast majority of the briefs, and took the lead in arguing this issue before the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals. All of this occurred at the same time IPPs were briefing the revised motion for class certification, and were unsure whether a class would ever be certified. Id., ¶ 20.

3. Hagens Berman's Depositions of Co-Conspirators

During this twenty-month period between the Court's denial of the first motion for class certification and the date when the Ninth Circuit denied defendants' Rule 23(f) petition, Hagens Berman took the first chair in questioning on all fourteen depositions of the conspiracy participants at the same time as briefing the renewed motion for class certification. Because many of these depositions lasted for multiple days as they were fully translated from a foreign language into English, these fourteen depositions lasted for a total of forty-six days. Beyond the mere time spent questioning these witnesses, however, nearly all of these witnesses spoke or wrote in a foreign language, meaning Hagens Berman attorneys with foreign language skills spent hundreds of hours reviewing and selecting documents for translation and use as exhibits. HB had to pay for the documents to be translated for review by the English-speaking trial team. Many of these witnesses were some of the most critical witnesses whose depositions will be used at trial, including the high-level executives of PBDS and TSST-Korea. IPPs also deposed the team leaders – those who reported to the chief-level officers and who also met with competitors. And IPPs deposed the account-level managers whose communications with competitors took place on an almost daily basis. All of this work took place at a time when Hagens Berman did not know if it was litigating on behalf of twenty-nine individual consumers, or on behalf of a certified class of indirect purchasers. Id., ¶ 21.

Despite this period of heightened risk, IPPs continued to pursue discovery against the remaining defendants. This included moving to compel additional testimony from critical TSST-Korea witness Kenny Lee – a participant in the conspiracy who spent days preparing for his deposition with counsel, and met again with his counsel during the break between plaintiffs' questioning and TSST's own direct examining of Mr. Lee. Magistrate Judge Spero ordered that Mr. Lee respond to a set of interrogatories regarding his preparation with counsel. Id., ¶ 22.

IPPs' lodestar from the denial of the first motion for class certification to the denial of defendants' petition for permission to appeal the denial of class certification pursuant to Rule 23(f) was $5,601,103.00 (15,205.40 hours). Id., ¶ 23.

C. Discovery After the Granting of Class Certification

After the granting of class certification and the Ninth Circuit's denial of defendants' Rule 23(f) appeal, Hagens Berman has continued to work tirelessly on behalf of the class. In July and August alone, IPPs have taken the lead chair in deposing an additional five defense witnesses.[5] IPPs have participated in, although not taken the lead chair, in three other depositions during this period. Id., ¶ 24.

[5] IPPs do not include any time or activities for September 2016.

On July 19, 2016, IPPs moved to amend their complaint to conform with the class certification ruling, among other things. Defendants opposed even this most mundane of motions – requesting that they not be required to provide answers to the IPP complaint. That motion is still pending before the Court. In the meantime, IPPs served interrogatories on most of the remaining defendants requesting that they provide some statement of facts regarding the affirmative defenses they intend to assert at trial. IPPs' lodestar for the period between June 11, 2016 (the denial of defendants' petition for appeal by the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals) and August 31, 2016, is $835,242.50 (2,493.40 hours). Id., ¶ 25.

III. ARGUMENT

IPPs request: (1) an award of attorneys' fees in the amount of 25 percent of the $124.5 million settlement fund; (2) reimbursement of expenses IPPs' counsel have advanced to date on behalf of the class; and (3) service awards for the twenty-three class representatives.

In the Ninth Circuit, the district court has discretion in a common fund case to choose either the "percentage-of-the-fund" or the "lodestar" method in calculating fees.[6] Regardless of what method is chosen as the primary method to calculate attorneys' fees, the Ninth Circuit encourages district courts to conduct "a cross-check using the other method."[7]

Hagens Berman requests 25 percent of the common fund – $31,125,000. Applying a lodestar cross-check, this would be a 1.29 multiplier from Hagens Berman's lodestar of $24,199,800.20. Under either method, these fees are reasonable and fair. In addition, Hagens Berman requests reimbursement of $3,704,323.97 in out-of-pocket expenses.

A. Application of the Twenty-Five Percent Benchmark Is Appropriate

When considering a request for attorneys' fees that is calculated using the percentage-of-recovery method, the Ninth Circuit instructs courts to consider the following factors: (1) whether counsel "achieved exceptional results for the class;" (2) whether the case was risky for class counsel;

[6] In re Online DVD-Rental Antitrust Litig., 779 F.3d 934, 949 (9th Cir. 2015).

[7] Id.

(3) whether counsel's performance "generated benefits beyond the cash settlement fund;" (4) the market rate for the particular field of law; (5) the burdens class counsel experienced while litigating the case (e.g., cost, duration, foregoing other work); and (6) whether the case was handled on a contingency basis.[8] Each of these factors supports IPPs' request for attorneys' fees of 25 percent. The Ninth Circuit has instructed that although the benchmark of 25 percent "is not per se valid, it is a helpful 'starting point.'"[9]

1. Hagens Berman Has Achieved Exceptional Results for the Class

Recovery of $124.5 million for the indirect purchaser class – with only 50 percent of the ODD defendants – is an exceptional result. At class certification, plaintiffs' damages expert estimated that nationwide, indirect purchaser damages totaled $1.67 billion for the period of April 2003 through December 2008.[10] This Court certified 24 jurisdictions under California law (which are the same jurisdictions covered by each of the four settlements), representing approximately 50 percent of the population, the best estimate of damages is approximately $840 million.[11] Considering each of these defendants' market share, the percent of recovery is as follows:

Defendant Family	Contribution to Settlement Fund	Percent Share of ODD Market	Damages Attributed to Defendant Family	Percent Recovery for IPPs
Panasonic	$16,500,000	12%	$100,784,612.82	16%
NEC/Sony (Joint Venture)	$35,000,000	10%	$83,987,177.35	42%
HLDS	$73,000,000	26%	$218,366,661.11	33%
Total	$124,500,000	48%	$403,138,451.28	31%

These settlements represent recovery of 31 percent of the estimated damages attributable to the market share of these defendants, and 15 percent of total estimated damages ($840 million)

[8] Online DVD, 779 F.3d at 954-55.

[9] Id. at 955.

[10] See Declaration of Dr. Kenneth Flamm in Support of Indirect Purchaser Plaintiffs' Revised Motion for Class Certification at 133, ECF No. 1808-4.

[11] These population estimates are based on the United State Census Bureau's Annual Estimates of the Resident Population for the United States, Regions, States and Puerto Rico, April 1, 2000 to July 1, 2006, available at: http://www.census.gov/popest/data/historical/2000s/vintage_2006/index.html (last visited Oct. 5, 2016).

suffered by indirect purchasers. Of course, when considering this recovery against total estimated damages, one must also consider that six defendant families remain in this case from which IPPs believe they will recover either further settlements or an award after trial.

Measured against the most direct benchmark, the direct purchaser settlements in the case, the IPP settlements stand in stark contrast. The IPP settlements exceed each individual DPP settlement with these defendants and equal just under three times what the DPPs recovered:[12]

Defendant Family	IPP Settlement	DPP Settlement	Percentage (Multiplier) of IPP Compared to DPP
Panasonic	$16,500,000	$5,750,000	287% (2.87x)
NEC	$6,500,000	$6,150,000	106% (1.06x)
Sony	$28,500,000	$6,000,000	475% (4.75x)
HLDS	$73,000,000	$26,000,000	281% (2.81x)
Total	$124,500,000	$43,900,000	284% (2.84x)

Not only the IPP settlements with these four defendants almost triple the DPP settlements with these four defendants, the IPP settlements to date exceed the total settlements ($74.9 million) recovered by DPPs in the case. Once fees paid to the DPP counsel are considered, the direct purchaser class recovered only $52.4 million.[13] In contrast, even if this Court awards IPPs' counsel the requested $31.1 million fee, the IPP class will recover $93.4 million from just these four settlements.

[12] See Direct Purchaser Plaintiffs' Motion for 1) Certification of Classes; 2) Preliminary Approval of Class Action Settlements with BenQ, Pioneer, PLDS, QSI, Sony, TEAC, and Toshiba/Samsung; 3) Directing Notice to Class; and 4) Memorandum in Support Thereof at 3, 4, Nov. 3, 2015, ECF No. 1724.

[13] See Order Granting Direct Purchaser Plaintiffs' Motion for an Award of Attorneys' Fees, Reimbursement of Expenses, and Class Representative Incentive Awards, ¶ 2, July 23, 2015, ECF No. 1658; Order Granting Direct Purchaser Plaintiffs' Second Motion for an Award of Attorneys' Fees, Reimbursement of Expenses, and Class Representative Awards, ¶ 2, April 14, 2016, ECF No. 1851.

Compared more generally against other similar litigation, in LCD, after settlements with all defendants, the indirect purchasers recovered approximately 50 percent of potential damages.[14] In CRT, the indirect purchasers recovered 20 percent of potential single damages after settlements with all defendants.[15] Indirect purchasers' settlements here certainly represent exceptional results.

2. This Case Posed an Enormous Risk for Class Counsel

The risk associated with this case plays an important role in determining a fair fee award.[16] A number of risks made this case unique – and made the actions of class counsel unique.

First, defendants have used the very factor which some might point to as a strength in plaintiffs' case – the criminal guilty pleas of HLDS and its executives – as an affirmative tactical weapon. From the very first hearing on the motion to dismiss, defendants have aggressively pursued the narrative that this case is limited to certain specific instances of bid-rigging of Dell and HP auction – that is, that this is a conspiracy whose outer-limits are formed by the guilty pleas themselves. This narrative fed into this Court's skepticism in its first order denying the motion for class certification of the direct purchaser class.[17] In addition to spending countless hours developing evidence of collusion outside of the guilty pleas, IPPs have also demonstrated that even if no evidence existed outside of Dell/HP collusion, fixing prices to Dell and HP would move the entire market because Dell and HP formed the price floor. Regardless, what many might have seen as a [14] In re TFT-LCD (Flat Panel) Antitrust Litig., No. M 07-1827, 2013 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 49885, at *70 (N.D. Cal. Apr. 1, 2013). See also In re Warfarin Sodium Antitrust Litig., 391 F.3d 516, 538 (3d Cir. 2004) (approving $44.5 million settlement, recovery of 33% of single damages); In re Currency Conversion Fee Antitrust Litig., 263 F.R.D. 110, 124 (S.D.N.Y. 2009), (approving $336 million settlement, recovery of 31% of single damages), aff'd, Priceline.com, Inc. v. Silberman, 405 Fed. Appx. 532 (2d Cir. 2010); In re Linerboard Antitrust Litig., 321 F. Supp. 2d 619, 633 (E.D. Pa. 2004) (approving $202.5 million in settlements, recovery of 55% of single damages); In re NASDAQ Market-Makers Antitrust Litig., 187 F.R.D. 465, 478 (S.D.N.Y. 1998) (approving settlements of $1.027 billion, recovery of 33%-41% of single damages).

[15] In re Cathode Ray Tube (CRT) Antitrust Litig., No. C-07-5944 (JST), 2016 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 88665, at *185 (N.D. Cal. July 7, 2016).

[16] Online DVD, 779 F.3d at 955.

[17] Order Denying Motions for Class Certification at 9, Oct. 3, 2014, ECF No. 1444 ("even though the named plaintiffs have strong evidence of bid-rigging involving some of the largest purchasers, they are struggling to find a way to prove that list prices paid by ordinary purchasers such as themselves were fixed").

discounted risk, in this case it forms one of the greatest risks – that a judge or jury might find plaintiffs' case to begin and end with the criminal guilty pleas.

Second, the very real risk existed that no class would ever be certified. Not only did IPPs need to convince this Court that a measureable overcharge existed due to the actions of the cartel, but IPPs also needed to demonstrate that this overcharge was passed-through to class members. IPPs failed once; but after three years of briefing and argument, IPPs' determination was rewarded.

Third, these defendants are serial cartel participants.[18] They have brought almost limitless resources to this litigation, including some of the most sophisticated defense counsel available for purchase. Defense counsel have outnumbered IPPs' counsel at every discovery conference, hearing, and deposition. The resources available to opposing parties are an important factor to be considered in the analysis of attorneys' fees.[19]

Fourth, risk still remains. Two defendants have declared bankruptcy – Quanta Storage America, Inc. and TSST-Korea.[20] Defendants have declared that they will be filing a minimum of two summary judgment motions against the indirect purchasers, in addition to a motion for decertification. Friedman Decl., ¶ 26. IPPs are confident that they will prevail at trial, but as in any litigation, and in particular in class action litigation, a high amount of risk regarding the final outcome of this case exists.

The enormous risk posed by this case, and Hagens Berman's committed perseverance even in the face of this risk, deserves recognition.

3. The Settlements Generate Benefits for the Class Beyond Cash

These four settlements offer the class benefits – and have realized benefits – beyond just cash. Each settlement agreement provides for certain cooperation provisions, including producing witnesses for deposition.[21] Because the vast majority of witnesses are located overseas, the testimony of these witnesses at deposition is the testimony that will be used at trial. Particularly as to the HLDS witnesses (of which IPPs have already deposed four of the five witnesses committed to in the settlement agreement), their testimony regarding the remaining co-conspirators has been of significant value to the class.

[18] Fifth Amended Class Action Complaint, Sept. 16, 2013, ECF No. 996.

[19] Vizcaino v. Microsoft Corp., 142 F. Supp. 2d 1299, 1303-04 (W.D. Wash. 2001).

[20] Defendant Quanta Storage America, Inc.'s Suggestion of Bankruptcy Filing, June 4, 2015, ECF No. 1643; Notice of Bankruptcy Proceedings of Toshiba Samsung Storage Technology Korea Corp., July 7, 2016, ECF No. 1906.

4. The Market Rate for Antitrust Lawyers with the Experience of IPP Counsel Supports the Request

Hagens Berman's hourly rates are in line with market rates in this district. The most senior attorney on the case, Steve Berman, bills at an hourly rate of $950. This is well within the range of $200 to $1,080 charged by partners in California. Friedman Decl., Ex. A (market survey of attorney rates). Other partners at Hagens Berman have hourly rates ranging between $525 to $735. Associates at Hagens Berman have hourly rates ranging from $250 to $605. Staff and contract attorneys have hourly rates ranging from between $300 to $350. A number of these staff and contract attorneys were specifically hired because of their unique language skills (Korean, Japanese and Chinese) which have proved invaluable on this case. Finally, translators, paralegals, and paralegal assistants have rates ranging between $125 to $265. All of these ranges are within the ranges accepted by other Courts in this District and market surveys. Friedman Decl., Ex. A.

5. The Burdens on Class Counsel Support the Request for Attorneys' Fees

The Ninth Circuit instructs district courts to consider the burdens class counsel experienced while litigating the case (e.g., cost, duration, foregoing other work). Here, this litigation has been pending for six years – and trial is not scheduled until February 2018. Hagens Berman has spent $3,704,323.97 in out-of-pocket expenses to date. Many team members have been almost exclusively assigned to this litigation, billing thousands of hours reviewing documents, translating documents, and preparing for depositions – even in the face of the denial of class certification and the prospect that recovery of attorneys' fees was unlikely. This factor also supports the requested fee award.

[21] Declaration of Jeff D. Friedman in Support of Motion for Preliminary Approval of Settlements with Panasonic, NEC, Sony, and HLDS Defendant Families and Dissemination of Class Notice, Ex. A, ¶ 25 (IPP-Panasonic Settlement Agreement), Ex. B, ¶¶ 24, 26, 27 (IPP-NEC Settlement Agreement), Ex. C, ¶¶ 24-26 (IPP-Sony Settlement Agreement), Ex. D, ¶ 28 (IPP-HLDS Settlement Agreement), June 28, 2016, ECF No.1898.

6. Class Counsel's Litigation on a Contingency Basis

As this Court is aware, Hagens Berman accepted this case on a contingency basis. In negotiating the guilty pleas, the DOJ pointed to this civil litigation as the place where consumers would recover from their financial injury[22] – emphasizing the importance of private litigation within the larger context of the enforcement of the antitrust laws. The contingent nature of this case means that Hagens Berman has a balanced set of interests – both to achieve excellent results for the class, and to achieve those results in as efficient manner as possible.

As Judge Walker recognized at the outset of this case, "potential recovery by indirect purchaser plaintiffs in this litigation is subject to a greater variety of imponderables" than other pieces of litigation such as securities litigation under the PSLRA.[23] This has certainly turned out to be the case. Had this case been successfully certified originally according to typical proceedings projected at the outset of the case, HB's lodestar and total attorneys' fees for resolution at that stage would have been less. If IPPs settled on the same terms as the direct purchaser class with all defendants, without investing any additional resources and risk, the total recovery to the indirect purchaser class would have been a little more than half what they are receiving here. IPPs' willingness to seek recertification, if the requested fees are granted, nearly doubles the recovery to the IPP class while settling with only one half of the market in this case. Hagens Berman continued to litigate this case on behalf of the class through fairly unchartered territory and heightened risk that was not anticipated at the outset and warrants the consideration of these factors.

B. Using Lodestar As a Cross-Check Further Supports the Requested Fees

Indirect purchaser counsel have invested $24,199,800.20 in attorneys' fees in this litigation. IPPs request a modest 1.29 multiplier which is well within the range of multipliers awarded in other, similar litigation.

Lodestar is calculated "by multiplying the number of hours the prevailing party reasonably expended on the litigation (as supported by adequate documentation) by a reasonable hourly rate for the region and for the experience of the lawyer."[24] A court may give an upwards adjustment to a lodestar (though a positive multiplier) to reflect a host of "reasonableness" factors, including: (1) the amount involved and the results obtained, (2) the time and labor required, (3) the novelty and difficulty of the questions involved, (4) the skill requisite to perform the legal service properly, (5) the preclusion of other employment by the attorney due to acceptance of the case, (6) the customary fee, (7) the experience, reputation, and ability of the attorneys, and (8) awards in similar cases.[25] These are referred to as the Kerr "reasonableness" factors after the Ninth Circuit's opinion in Kerr v. Screen Extras Guild, Inc., 526 F.2d 67, 70 (9th Cir. 1975). Foremost among these considerations, however, is the "benefit obtained for the class."[26] Here, there can be no dispute regarding the exceptional results achieved for the class to date. But each of the factors likewise supports the positive multiplier requested by IPPs' counsel which is well-within the range applied in other cases.

[22] United States' and Defendant HLDS's Joint Sentencing Memorandum and United States' Motion for Departure at 4, United States v. Hitachi-LG Data Storage, Inc., Case No. 3:11-cr-00724-RS, Oct. 28, 2011, ECF No. 5.

[23] Order at 8, ECF No. 96.

1. Class Counsel Has Achieved Exceptional Results for the IPP Class When Compared to Awards in Similar Cases

The first factor, the results for the class, strongly supports an upwards adjustment from lodestar. As outlined above (see section III.B.1), the results achieved on behalf of the class dwarf those of the direct purchasers and are on par with other similar pieces of litigation.

2. IPPs' Counsel Have Expended Significant Resources on Behalf of the Class

Hagens Berman was appointed as sole lead counsel on behalf of the IPP class. As a result, Hagens Berman has staffed this case entirely with its own resources during the pendency of the six years of litigation. Hagens Berman committed the time of experienced antitrust litigators to this case, in addition to countless hours from staff attorneys to review documents and assist in the prosecution of this litigation. All of Hagens Berman's document review – of over 2.9 million documents, many of which were produced in foreign languages such as Chinese, Korean, and Japanese – was performed by in-house staff and contract attorneys, many of whom have worked on this case since its inception. These specialized attorneys enabled Hagens Berman to identify and translate hot documents for English-speaking attorneys at a great cost savings to the class. Only documents identified as likely to be used in court filings, at deposition or at trial were sent to an outside vendor for translation. Friedman Decl., ¶ 27. As of the end of August 2016, the firm has spent 47,807 hours of attorney time and 18,492 hours of para-professional time. Hagens Berman has also spent $3,704,323.97 in expenses and $39,295.01 in costs to date in this litigation. Id, ¶ 29. This commitment of time, personnel, and money to the indirect purchaser class supports the requested award.

[24] In re Bluetooth Headset Prods. Liab. Litig., 654 F.3d 935, 941 (9th Cir. 2011).

[25] Id. at 941-42. The Supreme Court has since called into question the relevance of two of the original Kerr factors: the contingent nature of the fee, and the "desirability" of the case. See Resurrection Bay Conserv. All. v. City of Seward, 640 F.3d 1087, 1095 n.5 (9th Cir. 2011). Other factors such as "time limitations imposed by the client or the circumstances" and "the nature and length of the professional relationship with the client" do not readily apply here. IPPs, thus, do not address these questionable or irrelevant factors.

[26] Bluetooth, 654 F.3d at 942.

3. This Case Has Presented Novel and Difficult Questions, Requiring Extraordinary Skill by IPPs' Counsel

The third and fourth Kerr factors – the novelty of the questions presented by the litigation and the skill required to perform the legal services properly – both support the requested award. This litigation has presented unique and challenging questions unaddressed by many other courts. Even the defendants, in their petition for permission to appeal the granting of class certification to the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals, acknowledged the uniqueness of many of the issues faced by plaintiffs and this Court. Defendants stated that to their knowledge, "no case has certified a class" on the same basis and record as this case.[27] Regarding this Court's choice-of-law analysis, defendants argued to the Ninth Circuit that "[n]either this Court nor the California Supreme Court has ever addressed whether the Cartwright Act can be applied across-the-board to all jurisdictions with 'Illinois Brick repealer' statutes."[28] But class certification has not been the only "novel" and difficult question presented here. In litigating against TSST-Korea and the TSST-Korea employee "John Doe," IPPs addressed the unique issue of whether the DOJ recordings were "grand jury" materials. IPPs have also spent a significant amount of time and resources on discovery regarding the structure and liability of parent companies involved in the many joint ventures at issue in this litigation. All of these issues have required advocacy and skill beyond routine litigation.

[27] Petition for Permission to Appeal the District Court's Order Granting Class Certification at 1, Wagner, et al. v. Hitachi Ltd., et al., No. 16-80026 (9th Cir. Feb. 22, 2016), ECF No. 1.

[28] Id. at 20.

4. Hagens Berman Has Foregone Other Employment Due to Their Commitment to This Case

Hagens Berman has dedicated a core team of individuals to the litigation of this action. Rather than the sprawling involvement of many firms (for example, twenty-five firms submitted attorneys' fees declarations in the direct purchaser action), from the beginning of the case, Hagens Berman has dedicated an efficient and streamlined team to this litigation. The consequence of dedicating a team of experienced antitrust attorneys has meant that many of these professionals worked nearly exclusively on this case for some number of years. Nine attorneys have dedicated over a thousand hours each to this litigation, and many of those attorneys have devoted many thousands of hours. Friedman Decl., ¶ 29. Hagens Berman's choice to commit a significant number of attorneys almost exclusively to this litigation, forgoing other cases and other projects, further supports the request for fees.

5. The Requested Fee Is Reasonable When Compared to Fees in Similar Litigation

The sixth and eight Kerr factors – the customary fee and awards in similar cases – both support Hagens Berman's fee request. IPPs request a multiplier of 1.29, which is well within the range of other similar cases.[29]

[29] See, e.g., Vizcaino v. Microsoft Corp., 290 F.3d 1043, 1050-51 (9th Cir. 2002) (upholding a 28% fee award that constituted a 3.65 multiple of lodestar); id. at 1052-54 (noting district court cases in the Ninth Circuit approving multipliers as high as 6.2, and citing only 3 of 24 decisions with approved multipliers below 1.4); Wal-Mart Stores, Inc. v. Visa U.S.A. Inc., 396 F.3d 96, 96 (2d Cir. 2005) (finding 3.5 multiplier reasonable); In re Cathode Ray Tube (CRT) Antitrust Litig., No. C-07-5944 JST, 2016 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 102408, at *71 (N.D. Cal. Aug 3, 2016) (finding that a multiplier of 1.96 was well within the range of acceptable multipliers); Noll v. eBay, Inc., 309 F.R.D. 593, 610 (N.D. Cal. 2015) (finding that the lodestar cross check, with a 1.6 multiplier, confirmed the reasonableness of the percentage-based calculation); Dyer v. Wells Fargo Bank, N.A., 303 F.R.D. 326, 334 (N.D. Cal. 2014) (finding a 2.83 multiplier appropriate*); In re Netflix Privacy Litig.*, No. 5:11-CV-00379 EJD, 2013 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 37286, at *31 (N.D. Cal. Mar. 18, 2013) (finding that a lodestar multiplier of 1.66 confirms the reasonableness of the percentage-based attorneys' fees calculation, 25% of the settlement fund); Lane v. Facebook, Inc., No. C 08-3845 RS, 2010 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 57765, at *10 (N.D. Cal. May 24, 2010) (finding that a multiplier of 2 should be applied).

6. The Reputation and Ability of Hagens Berman Supports the Requested Fee

Hagens Berman is one of the most well-respected class action litigation firms in the country and has litigated some of the largest class actions in history, including the tobacco litigation,[30] In re Visa MasterCard Litigation,[31] and the In re Toyota Motor Corp. Unintended Acceleration Litigation.[32] Hagens Berman has over 65 lawyers in offices across the country. Since its founding in 1993, the firm has been recognized in courts throughout the United States for its ability and experience in handling major class litigation efficiently and obtaining outstanding results for its clients. Further details regarding critical Hagens Berman team members are included in the accompanying declaration of Jeff Friedman. Friedman Decl., ¶¶ 34-45; Ex. B.

C. Hagens Berman Requests Reimbursement of $3,704,323.97 in Expenses

Attorneys who create a common fund for the benefit of a class are entitled to be reimbursed for their out-of-pocket expenses incurred in creating the fund so long as the submitted expenses are reasonable, necessary and directly related to the prosecution of the action.[33] Reasonable reimbursable litigation expenses include: those for document production, experts and consultants, depositions, translation services, travel, mail and postage costs.[34]

Hagens Berman requests reimbursement of $3,704,323.97 in expenses. Hagens Berman does not request reimbursement of $39,295.01 in costs which would be recoverable as taxable costs after a successful jury verdict. In a diversity case such as this, federal law regarding recovery of costs

---

[30] In the historic litigation against Big Tobacco, Hagens Berman represented 13 states and advanced groundbreaking legal claims to secure a global settlement worth $260 billion, the largest recovery in history. Only two firms went to trial, and Hagens Berman served as co-lead trial counsel.

[31] In re Visa-MasterCard Litig., No. CV-96-5238 (E.D.N.Y.). Hagens Berman was co-lead counsel in a case alleging antitrust violations by Visa and MasterCard. The case settled for $3 billion in cash and changes in practices valued at $20 billion.

[32] In re Toyota Motor Corp. Unintended Acceleration Mktg., Sales Practices & Prods. Liab. Litig., No. 8:10ML2151 JVS (C.D. Cal.). Hagens Berman recovered $1.6 billion for the class.

[33] Vincent v. Hughes Air W., Inc., 557 F.2d 759, 769 (9th Cir. 1977); In re OmniVision Techs., Inc., 559 F. Supp. 2d 1036, 1048 (N.D. Cal. 2008) ("Attorneys may recover their reasonable expenses that would typically be billed to paying clients in non-contingency matters.").

[34] See In re Media Vision Tech. Sec. Litig., 913 F. Supp. 1362, 1366 (N.D. Cal. 1995) (Court fees, experts/consultants, service of process, court reporters, transcripts, deposition costs, computer research, photocopies, postage, telephone/fax); Thornberry v. Delta Air Lines, 676 F.2d 1240, 1244 (9th Cir. 1982), remanded on other grounds, 461 U.S. 952 (1983) (travel, meals and lodging).

governs.[35] If successful after trial, IPPs will be able to recover court reporter and docket fee costs from the remaining defendants.[36]

What remains is $3,704,323.97, most of this attributable to expert fees ($3,103,648.81), translation costs ($71,417.03) and hosting defendants' document productions in an online database ($241,160.00). Friedman Decl., ¶ 31. These expenses are reasonable and well within the limits of other cases.

D. Plaintiffs Request Service Awards on Behalf of the Class Representatives

Plaintiffs also request that the Court approve the service awards in the amount of $4,500 each for the twenty-three class representatives, to be deducted from the settlement funds with HLDS, Panasonic and Sony.[37] Service awards for class representatives are routinely provided to encourage individuals to undertake the responsibilities and risks of representing the class and to recognize the time and effort spent in the case. "Incentive awards are fairly typical in class action cases."[38] In the Ninth Circuit, service awards "compensate class representatives for work done on behalf of the class, to make up for financial or reputational risk undertaken in bringing the action, and, sometimes, to recognize their willingness to act as a private attorney general."[39] Courts have discretion to approve service awards based on, inter alia, the amount of time and effort spent, the duration of the litigation, and the personal benefit (or lack thereof) as a result of the litigation.[40]

Here, the twenty-three representatives have spent a significant amount of time assisting in the litigation of this case. All but four plaintiffs has responded to written discovery and produced documents. Each plaintiff was deposed by defense counsel. Each plaintiff has consulted with and assisted counsel in this litigation. Each plaintiff submits a declaration detailing the time he or she

[35] Best Buy Co. v. AU Optronics Corp. (In re TFT-LCD Flat Panel Antitrust Litigation), No. 10-CV-4572 SI, 2014 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 32207, at *53 (N.D. Cal. Feb. 3, 2014).

[36] See 28 U.S.C. §1920 (2012).

[37] Declaration of Jeff D. Friedman in Support of Motion for Preliminary Approval of Settlements with Panasonic, NEC, Sony, and HLDS Defendant Families and Dissemination of Class Notice, Ex. A, ¶ 24 (IPP-Panasonic Settlement Agreement), Ex. C, ¶ 23 (IPP-Sony Settlement Agreement), Ex. D, ¶27 (IPP-HLDS Settlement Agreement), June 28, 2016, ECF No. 1898.

[38] Rodriguez v. W. Publ'g Corp., 563 F.3d 948, 958 (9th Cir. 2009) (emphasis in original).

[39] Id. at 958-59.

[40] See Van Vraken v. Atl. Richfield Co., 901 F. Supp. 294, 299 (N.D. Cal. 1995).

spent involved in this litigation. Friedman Decl., Exs. C-Y. The requested awards of $4,500 are consistent with service awards in other cases.[41] Thus, respectfully, plaintiffs and class counsel respectfully request that the Court approve the modest service awards for each of the class representatives.

IV. CONCLUSION

For the foregoing reasons, plaintiffs respectfully request an award of $31,250,000 in attorneys' fees, $3,704,323.97 in expenses, and a $4,500 service award for each of the class representatives.

DATED: October 5, 2016

HAGENS BERMAN SOBOL SHAPIRO LLP

By s/ Jeff D. Friedman
JEFF D. FRIEDMAN

Shana E. Scarlett (217895)
715 Hearst Avenue, Suite 202
Berkeley, CA 94710
Telephone: (510) 725-3000
Facsimile: (510) 725-3001
jefff@hbsslaw.com
shanas@hbsslaw.com
colleen@hbsslaw.com

Steve W. Berman (Pro Hac Vice)
HAGENS BERMAN SOBOL SHAPIRO LLP
1918 Eighth Avenue, Suite 3300
Seattle, WA 98101
Telephone: (206) 623-7292
Facsimile: (206) 623-0594
steve@hbsslaw.com

Lead Counsel for Indirect Purchaser Class

[41] Order Granting Direct Purchaser Plaintiffs' Motion for an Award of Attorneys' Fees, Reimbursement of Expenses, and Class Representative Awards, July 23, 2015, ECF No. 1658 (awarding $10,000); Order Granting Direct Purchaser Plaintiffs' Second Motion for an Award of Attorneys' Fees, Reimbursement of Expenses, and Class Representative Incentive Awards, Apr. 14, 2016, ECF No. 1851 (awarding $5,000); In re Ins. Brokerage Antitrust Litig., 579 F.3d 241, 253 (3d Cir. 2009) (approving service award of $10,000).

TAB 44A

IN THE UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
FOR THE NORTHERN DISTRICT OF ILLINOIS
EASTERN DIVISION

IN RE BROILER CHICKEN ANTITRUST LITIGATION This Document Relates To: Commercial & Institutional Indirect Purchaser Plaintiff Actions	No. 1:16-cv-08637 Hon. Thomas M. Durkin Magistrate Judge Jeffrey T. Gilbert

ORDER GRANTING COMMERCIAL AND INSTITUTIONAL INDIRECT PURCHASER PLAINTIFFS' MOTION FOR PAYMENT OF ATTORNEYS' FEES, REIMBURSEMENT OF EXPENSES, AND CLASS REPRESENTATIVE SERVICE AWARDS

This Court, having fully considered Commercial and Institutional Indirect Purchaser Plaintiffs' ("CIIPPs") Motion for Payment of Attorneys' Fees, Reimbursement of Expenses, and Class Representative Service Awards (the "Motion"), the Memorandum in Support of the Motion, the Joint Declaration of CIIPPs' Co-Lead Counsel in Support of the Motion, and all exhibits attached thereto, and after a duly noticed hearing on the Motion, hereby finds that:

1. The Motion seeks an interim award of attorneys' fees of $31,000,833.46, together with a proportional share of interest earned on the Settlement Fund for the same time period until dispersed to Class Counsel. This amount represents one third of the $103,890,000.00 Settlement Fund (not including the $1 million payment from the Pilgrim's Pride Settlement designated for notice and claims administration services) after deduction of the expenses and service awards. In that regard, Class Counsel for the CIIPPs seek an order reimbursing $10,407,499.62 in litigation expenses incurred in the prosecution of this action and interim service awards of $15,000 for each of the 32 CIIPP Class Representative totaling $480,000.00.

2. The attorneys' fees amount requested is fair and reasonable under the percentage-of-the-fund method, which is further confirmed by a lodestar "cross-check."

3. The attorneys' fees requested were wholly contingent upon a successful outcome for the CIIPP Class. The risk undertaken by CIIPPs' Class Counsel was significant, especially considering the absence of any parallel criminal case at the time of filing, the complex legal theories advanced in the CIIPPs' Complaints, including the numerous state law claims, and the strong defense put forward by some of the leading defense firms in the country.

4. An interim award of one third of the Settlement Fund is amply supported for the reasons set forth in the Memorandum, including the outstanding monetary recovery obtained for the Class (payment by the Settling Defendants of $103,890,000.00 plus $1 million specifically for notice and administration services); the high quality and quantity of the work performed by CIIPPs' Class Counsel, including extensive and contested motion practice on issues unique to the indirect class, substantial discovery efforts of parties and non-parties, and multiple rounds of mediation, all involving complex issues of fact and law that have been vigorously pursued for over five years; and the substantial risks faced throughout the litigation, which existed from the start and will continue beyond these settlements given the number of remaining Defendants.

5. The Court finds that CIIPPs' Class Counsel's lodestar as of August 31, 2021 was $40,260,516.00, based on historical hourly rates. Accordingly, CIIPPs' Class Counsel's requested fee award of $31,000,833.46 represents a negative multiplier of .77 based on their historical hourly rates through August 31, 2021. CIIPPs' Class Counsel have continued to incur attorneys' fees since August 31, 2021, which are not included in this lodestar calculation, resulting in a further negative multiplier.

6. In addition to the numerous hours expended by CIIPPs' Class Counsel, they have advanced significant costs and expenses in connection with the prosecution of this action for the benefit of the CIIPP Class, with no guarantee of compensation. CIIPPs have incurred expenses in the total amount of $10,407,499.62, which have been reviewed and are approved by the Court as reasonable and necessarily incurred for this Action.

7. Each of the CIIPP Class Representatives has fulfilled their duties as a class representative by remaining apprised of the status of the action, consulting with counsel, searching for and producing documents, responding to written discovery requests, sitting for depositions, and filing a declaration in support of class certification. The CIIPP Class Representatives also undertook significant financial and personal risk in representing the CIIPP Class in this action.

8. Upon consideration of the Motion, Memorandum, and all other accompanying documents, and based upon the entire record in this action, the Court finds that (1) the requested interim attorneys' fees are fair and reasonable; (2) the expenses that CIIPPs' Class Counsel have incurred in this action were necessary, reasonable, and proper; and (3) the requested service awards for the CIIPP Class Representatives are fair and reasonable.

IT IS HEREBY ORDERED, ADJUDGED, AND DECREED:

1. CIIPPs' Class Counsel are awarded interim attorneys' fees in the amount of $31,000,833.46, together with a proportional share of interest earned on the Settlement Fund for the same time period until dispersed to Class Counsel. This amount represents one third of the $103,890,000.00 Settlement Fund (not including the $1 million payment from the Pilgrim's Pride Settlement designated for notice and claims administration services) after deduction of the expenses and service awards.

2. CIIPPs' Class Counsel are reimbursed $10,407,499.62 in reasonably incurred litigation expenses.

3. The following 32 CIIPP Class Representatives shall each receive $15,000 as interim service awards: Fargo Stopping Center, LLC; Sargent's Restaurant and Lounge; Wildwood Tavern, LLC; Bodega Brew Pub, Inc.; Sullott Corporation; Chicken Joe's, LLC; Eat This, Inc. dba Some Like It Hot; Alpine Special Treatment Center, Inc.; Tennis Bums, LLC dba Alabama Joes; Alabama Joe's 2, Inc. dba Alabama Joes[1]; Tani Sushi Bistro, LLC; France 44 Foods, Inc.; Midtown Bar and Grill LLC; Avanti's of Phoenix, Inc.; Floersch IGA, Inc. dba Ray's Apple Market; Da Big Blue Enterprises Corp. dba Blue Tropix Bar and Grill and Da Big Kahuna Waikiki; Little Figs, Inc. dba Figaretti's Restaurant; Alliance Healthcare System, Inc.; Mookie's Southern Cuisine LLC; Eowyn, LLC dba Cabana; Peppers Grill & Bar, Inc.; Daliano's, Inc. dba Daliono's; Sumner Country Restaurant & Creamery LLC dba Kelley's Row Restaurant & Pub; Bashara & Company, LC dba J. Morgan's Steakhouse; Tic-Tac-O; Brix Tavern, LLC; Pancho's Taqueria, Inc. dba Pancho's Taqueria; Legacy 5, LLC dba Mr. Jim's Pizza 149; Roost Fried Chicken LLC; Oregano Italian LLC dba Oregano Italian Kitchen; Bordenaro's Pizza, Inc. dba Bordenaro's Pizza; Telavi Hospitality, Inc. dba Levante; and FB Mall, LLC dba Fat Belly's.

4. The awarded interim attorneys' fees, reimbursed expenses, and service awards shall be paid from the Settlement Fund.

5. The awarded interim attorneys' fees and reimbursed expenses shall be distributed among CIIPPs' Class Counsel by the Court-appointed CIIPP Co-Lead Counsel (see ECF No.

[1] Both Alabama Joe's entities together shall receive one award of $15,000.

144) in a manner that reflects Co-Lead Counsel's judgment as to each individual Class Counsel's contribution to the institution, prosecution, and resolution of the action.

6. Finding no just reason for delay, this Court shall enter this Order as of this date pursuant to Rule 54(b) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

April 19, 2022

Thomas M Durkin

Honorable Thomas M. Durkin
United States District Judge

TAB 44B

IN THE UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
FOR THE NORTHERN DISTRICT OF ILLINOIS
EASTERN DIVISION

IN RE BROILER CHICKEN ANTITRUST LITIGATION This Document Relates To: Commercial & Institutional Indirect Purchaser Plaintiff Actions	No. 1:16-cv-08637 Hon. Thomas M. Durkin Magistrate Judge Jeffrey T. Gilbert

MEMORANDUM IN SUPPORT OF COMMERCIAL AND INSTITUTIONAL INDIRECT PURCHASER PLAINTIFFS' MOTION FOR ATTORNEYS' FEES, REIMBURSEMENT OF EXPENSES, AND CLASS REPRESENTATIVE SERVICE AWARDS

TABLE OF CONTENTS

I. INTRODUCTION 1
II. ARGUMENT 2
A. CLASS COUNSEL'S REQUEST FOR ONE-THIRD OF THE SETTLEMENT FUND SHOULD BE GRANTED 4
1. CIIPPs' Agreements and the Market Price Weigh in Favor of Granting the Request 5
2. The Substantial Risk of Non-Payment Also Weighs in Favor of Granting CIIPPs' Fee Request 7
3. The Caliber of Class Counsel and the Amount of Work Performed Weigh Heavily in Favor of Granting the Request 12
4. Comparable Cases Favor Granting CIIPPs' Request 13
5. A Lodestar Cross-Check Confirms the Reasonableness of the Request 14
III. CIIPPs' EXPENSES REQUEST SHOULD BE GRANTED 15
IV. THE CLASS REPRESENTATIVES SHOULD RECEIVE SERVICE AWARDS FOR THEIR CONSIDERABLE TIME AND EFFORT 16
V. CONCLUSION 17

TABLE OF AUTHORITIES

Cases Page(s)

Americana Art China Co. v. Foxfire Printing & Packaging, Inc.,
743 F.3d 243 (7th Cir. 2014) 2

Arenson, et al. v. Bd. of Trade of City of Chicago,
372 F. Supp. 1349 (N.D. Ill. 1974) 18

Beesley v. Int'l Paper Co.,
No. 3:06–cv– 703–DRH–CJP, 2014 WL 375432 (S.D. Ill. Jan. 31, 2014) 4

Broiler Chicken,
2021 WL 5709250 ..... passim

Camp Drug Store, Inc. v. Cochran Wholesale Pharm, Inc., 897 F.3d 825 (7th Cir. 2018) 21

Chambers v. Together Credit Union,
No. 19-CV-00842-SPM, 2021 WL 1948452 (S.D. Ill. May 14, 2021) 3

Chun-Hoon v. McKee Foods Corp.,
716 F. Supp. 2d 848 (N.D. Cal. 2010) 18

City of Greenville v. Syngenta Crop Prot., Inc.,
904 F. Supp. 2d 902 (S.D. Ill. 2012) 10

Columbus Drywall & Insulation, Inc. v. Masco Corp.,
258 F.R.D. 545 (N.D. Ga. 2007) 12

Cook v. Niedert,
142 F.3d 1004 (7th Cir. 1998) 21

Domann v. Summit Credit Union,
No. 18-cv-167-wmc, 2020 WL 1847868 (W.D. Wisc. April 13, 2020) 20

Florin v. Nationsbank of Georgia, N.A.,
34 F.3d 560 (7th Cir. 1994) 3, 5

Gaskill v. Gordon,
160 F.3d 361 (7th Cir. 1998) 18

Gong-Chun v. Aetna Inc.,
No. 1:09-cv-01995-SKO, 2012 WL 2872788 (E.D. Cal. July 12, 2012) 17

Hale v. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co.,
2018 WL 6606079 (S.D. Ill. Dec. 16, 2018) 8, 18

Heekin v. Anthem, Inc.,
No. 1:05-CV-01908-TWP, 2012 WL 5878032, at (S.D. Ind. Nov. 20, 2012) 9

In re Blech Securities Litigation,
No. 94-cv-9696 (RWS), 2000 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 6920 (S.D. N.Y. May 22, 2000) 17

In re Cap. One Tel. Consumer Prot. Act Litig., 80 F. Supp. 3d 781 (N.D. Ill. 2015) 8

In re Dairy Farmers of Am., Inc.,
80 F. Supp. 3d 838 (N.D. Ill. 2015) ..... passim

In re FedEx Ground Package System, Inc., Employment Practices Litig., 251 F.Supp.3d 1225 (N.D. Ind. 2017) 5

In re Flonase Antitrust Litig.,
291 F.R.D. 93 (E.D. Pa. 2013) 12

In re Linerboard Antitrust Litig.,
No. CIV.A. 98-5055, 2004 WL 1221350 (E.D. Pa. June 2, 2004) 16

In re Portal Software, Inc. Sec. Litig.,
No. C-03-5138 VRW, 2007 WL 4171201 (N.D. Cal. Nov. 26, 2007) 18

In re Ready-Mixed Concrete Antitrust Litig.,
No. 1:05-cv-00979, 2010 WL 3282591, at (S.D. Ind. Aug. 17, 2010) 7

In re Shopping Carts Antitrust Litig.,
No. 451-CLB, 1983 WL 1950 (S.D.N.Y. Nov. 18, 1983) 13

In re Synthroid Mktg. Litig.,
264 F.3d 712 (7th Cir. 2001) 8

In re TFT-LCD (Flat-Panel) Antitrust Litig.,
2013 WL 149692 (N.D. Cal. Apr. 3, 2013) 17

In re Trans Union Corp. Privacy Litig.,
629 F.3d 741 (7th Cir. 2011) 9

Kolinek v. Walgreen Co.,
311 F.R.D. 483 (N.D. Ill. 2015) 18

Leung v. XPO Logistics, Inc.,
326 F.R.D. 185 (N.D. Ill. 2018) 10, 19

Mills v. Elec. Auto-Lite Co.,
396 U.S. 375 (1970) 21

Pierce v. Visteon Corp,
No. 1:05-cv-01325-LJM, 2014 WL 941311 (S.D. Ind. Mar. 11, 2014) 5

Silverman v. Motorola Sols., Inc.,
739 F.3d 956 (7th Cir. 2013) 6, 11

Steele v. GE Money Bank,
No. 1:08-civ-1880, 2011 WL 13266350 (N.D. Ill. May 17, 2011) 4

Taubenfeld v. AON Corp.,
415 F.3d 597 (7th Cir. 2005) 18

Wal-Mart Stores, Inc. v. Visa U.S.A., Inc.,
396 F.3d 96 (2d Cir. 2005) 16

Williams v. Rohm & Haas Pension Plan,
658 F.3d 629 (7th Cir. 2011) 7, 19

Rules

Fed. R. Civ. P. 23(h) 2, 21

Fed. R. Civ. P. 30(b)(1) 22

Fed. R. Civ. P. 30(b)(6) 22

I. INTRODUCTION

Unlike many antitrust cases that begin with the benefit of a government investigation, this case began with extensive pre-complaint investigation and analysis by counsel for the Commercial and Institutional Indirect Purchaser Plaintiffs ("CIIPPs"). This extensive work resulted in Class Counsel for CIIPPs establishing a comprehensive and well-pled complaint that withstood the many challenges lodged by Defendants and their able counsel.

Now, after nearly five years of tireless advocacy, CIIPPs have secured settlements with several Defendants in this matter: Amick Farms, LLC, Fieldale Farms Corporation, Mar-Jac,[1] Peco Foods, Inc., Pilgrim's Pride Corporation, George's,[2] and Tyson[3] (collectively, the "Settling Defendants"). Under the agreements, the Settling Defendants paid $104,890,000.00 into an escrow account ("Settlement Fund"), of which $1 million from the Pilgrim's Pride settlement may be used for notice and claims administration, exclusively, and Co-Lead Counsel for the CIIPPs have commenced the claims process to disburse the net proceeds of the Settlement Fund to qualified class members. These significant settlements illustrate the talent, competence, and hard work of Co-Lead Counsel[4] and other law firms[5] (jointly "Class Counsel") that provided excellent representation in prosecuting this case on behalf of the CIIPPs. The requested award of one third

[1] The Mar Jac Defendants are Mar-Jac Poultry, Inc., Mar-Jac Poultry MS, LLC, Mar-Jac Poultry AL, LLC, Mar-Jac AL/MS, Inc., Mar-Jac Poultry, LLC, and Mar-Jac Holdings, Inc.

[2] The George's Defendants consist of George's Inc. and George's Farms. Inc.

[3] The Tyson Defendants are Tyson Foods, Inc., Tyson Chicken, Inc., Tyson Breeders, Inc., and Tyson Poultry, Inc.

[4] On October 14, 2016, this Court appointed Gustafson Gluek PLLC and Cotchett, Pitre & McCarthy, LLP as interim co-lead counsel. ECF No. 144.

[5] Co-Lead Counsel supervised the work of a number of supporting law firms that assisted with prosecuting the CIIPPs' case.

of the Settlement Fund is fair and reasonable and would appropriately compensate CIIPPs' Class Counsel for the enormous risk and investment undertaken in this complex case.

Class members have received notice of, and will have an opportunity to be heard on, this motion. Class Counsel informed all class members that they would seek an award of attorneys' fees not to exceed 35% of the Settlement Fund and reimbursement of litigation expenses not to exceed $10,658,854.99. In addition to filing this motion via ECF, Class Counsel also informed class members that it will be posted on the case website, www.chickencommercialsettlement.com. Finally, class members were informed through CIIPPs' Court-approved class notice program (ECF No. 5234) they may object to any portion of the settlements or this motion and that the deadline to do so is March 2, 2022. Before the fairness hearing on April 18, 2022, Class Counsel will report any objections lodged by members of the class and respond thereto. See id.

With qualified class members in the process of submitting claims to receive proceeds from the Settlement Fund, CIIPPs respectfully bring this motion seeking an order granting Class Counsel one-third of the settlement fund in an award of attorneys' fees (after deduction of expenses and service awards), reimbursement of litigation expenses in the amount of $10,407,499.62, and a $15,000 service award for each Class Representative in this matter.

II. ARGUMENT

Rule 23 permits the Court to award reasonable attorneys' fees and expenses in class actions. Fed. R. Civ. P. 23(h). In the Seventh Circuit, courts have discretion to use the percentage of the fund method or the lodestar approach. See, e.g., Americana Art China Co. v. Foxfire Printing & Packaging, Inc., 743 F.3d 243 (7th Cir. 2014) ("Both the lodestar approach and the percentage approach may be appropriate in determining attorney fee awards, depending on the circumstances."); Florin v. Nationsbank of Georgia, N.A., 34 F.3d 560, 566 (7th Cir. 1994)

(same). In cases such as this one, the preferred method in the Seventh Circuit is to use the percentage of the fund approach. See, e.g., Chambers v. Together Credit Union, No. 19-CV-00842-SPM, 2021 WL 1948452, at *1 (S.D. Ill. May 14, 2021) ("[T]he percentage method is employed by the vast majority of courts in the Seventh Circuit"); In re Dairy Farmers of Am., Inc., 80 F. Supp. 3d 838, 845 (N.D. Ill. 2015) (the percentage method has "emerged as the favored method for calculating fees in common–fund cases in this district"); Beesley v. Int'l Paper Co., No. 3:06–cv– 703–DRH–CJP, 2014 WL 375432, at *2 (S.D. Ill. Jan. 31, 2014) ("When determining a reasonable fee, the Court of Appeals for the Seventh Circuit uses the percentage basis rather than a lodestar or other basis.") (citation omitted).

This court has already recognized the percentage of the fund method as the "emerge[nt]" and "favored method for calculating fees in common-fund cases[.]" In re Dairy Farmers of America, Inc., Cheese Antitrust Litigation, 80 F.Supp.3d 838, 844 (N.D. Ill. 2015); see also Steele v. GE Money Bank, No. 1:08-civ-1880, 2011 WL 13266350, at *1, *5 (N.D. Ill. May 17, 2011), report and recommendation adopted, 2011 WL 13266498 (N.D. Ill. Jun. 1, 2011) ("The Seventh Circuit favors the use of the percentage of the fund method for calculating attorneys' fees in a common fund case."); Pierce v. Visteon Corp, No. 1:05-cv-01325-LJM, 2014 WL 941311, at *1, *11 (S.D. Ind. Mar. 11, 2014) (recognizing that "the Seventh Circuit has noted the advantages of the percentage of the fund method" over the lodestar method); In re FedEx Ground Package System, Inc., Employment Practices Litigation, 251 F.Supp.3d 1225, 1236 (N.D. Ind. 2017) ("Our court of appeals [the Seventh Circuit] favors the percentage-of-the-fund fee in common fund cases"). Unlike the lodestar calculation, a percentage fee is easily calculable and does not require the Court to scrutinize years of billing records. See Florin v. Nationsbank of Ga., N.A., 34 F.3d 560, 565–566 (7th Cir. 1994).

Moreover, Class Counsel retained Professor Robert Klonoff, an esteemed law professor who is considered by federal courts across the country as an expert on attorneys' fees, to opine on the reasonableness of CIIPPs' request in this case. See ECF Nos. 5050 and 5050-1. This Court concluded that Professor Klonoff's and Direct Purchaser Plaintiff ("DPP") Expert, Brian Fitzpatrick's opinions were helpful and relied on them to determine an award of one third of the settlement fund—the same sought here—was an appropriate award for DPPs. ECF No. 5229, at 4 n. 5.

A. CLASS COUNSEL'S REQUEST FOR ONE-THIRD OF THE SETTLEMENT FUND SHOULD BE GRANTED

To determine the reasonableness of attorney's fees in a common fund case, such as this, "courts must do their best to award counsel the 'market price' for the legal services" they provided. Sutton, 504 F.3d at 692; see also Silverman v. Motorola Sols., Inc., 739 F.3d 956, 957 (7th Cir. 2013) ("[A]ttorneys' fees in class actions should approximate the market rate that prevails between willing buyers and willing sellers of legal services."); see also, ECF No. 5050 (Commercial and Institutional Indirect Purchaser Plaintiffs' Response Regarding Application of a Sliding Attorneys' Fee Scale).

In the antitrust class action context, the "market price" is most commonly one third of the common fund recovered. In re Ready-Mixed Concrete Antitrust Litig., No. 1:05-cv-00979, 2010 WL 3282591, at *1, *3 (S.D. Ind. Aug. 17, 2010); see also Declaration of Professor Robert Klonoff in Support of Commercial and Institutional Indirect Purchaser Plaintiffs' Response to this Court's August 4, 2021 Minute Entry ECF No. 5050-1 ("Klonoff Decl.") paras. 60-67, also attached to Joint Declaration of CIIPPs' Co-Lead Counsel Daniel C. Hedlund and Adam J. Zapala in Support of Commercial and Institutional Indirect Purchaser Plaintiffs' Motion for Payment of Attorneys' Fees, Reimbursement of Expenses, and Class Representative Service Awards ("Joint Decl.").

"[T]he district court must try to assign fees that mimic a hypothetical ex ante bargain between the class and its attorneys." Williams v. Rohm & Haas Pension Plan, 658 F.3d 629, 636 (7th Cir. 2011); accord, e.g., Sutton, 504 F.3d at 693 (7th Cir. 2007).

The Seventh Circuit permits courts to consider four factors to determine the "market rate" in a case such as this: (1) the actual agreements between the parties, as well as fee agreements reached by entities in the market for legal services; (2) the risk of non-payment at the outset of the case; (3) the caliber of Class Counsel's performance; and (4) information from other cases, including fees awarded in comparable cases. Hale v. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co., 2018 WL 6606079, at *1, *8 (S.D. Ill. Dec. 16, 2018) (citing In re Synthroid Mktg. Litig., 264 F.3d 712, 719 (7th Cir. 2001)). Consideration of the foregoing factors weigh heavily in favor of the Court granting CIIPPs' attorneys' fee request.

1. CIIPPs' Agreements and the Market Price Weigh in Favor of Granting the Request

The Seventh Circuit has directed district courts "to estimate the contingent fee that the class would have negotiated with Class Counsel at the outset of the litigation . . . ." In re Cap. One Tel. Consumer Prot. Act Litig., 80 F. Supp. 3d 781, 794 (N.D. Ill. 2015) (quoting In re Trans Union Corp. Privacy Litig., 629 F.3d 741, 744 (7th Cir. 2011)). Here, because there are legal agreements that contain fee provisions between CIIPPs' Class Counsel and class representatives with a "real stake" in the outcome, these agreements favor granting the one-third fee request.

The agreements with the Class Representatives here fall into two groups: (1) agreements that expressly state Class Counsel may receive one-third of any common fund created, and (2) agreements that expressly state Class Counsel may receive an award of attorneys' fees from a common fund, but do not specify the precise percentage to be awarded.[6] Joint Decl. ¶ 30. Thus, the only agreements that exist in the CIIPP case that set forth a percentage specify a one-third fee award, which demonstrates that the requested fee in this Motion is reasonable on its face. See, e.g., In re Comverse Tech., Inc. Sec. Litig., No. 06-CV-1825 (NGG), 2010 WL 2653354, at *4 (E.D.N.Y. June 24, 2010) ("The court sees no need to impose its own ex post assessment of lead counsel's value when the retainer and fee agreements speak for themselves."); Heekin v. Anthem, Inc., No. 1:05-CV-01908-TWP, 2012 WL 5878032, at *5 (S.D. Ind. Nov. 20, 2012) (awarding the request fee award of 33.3 percent, reasoning that the "named plaintiffs . . . entered into contingent fee agreements with Class Counsel agreeing to pay a fee of 33.3% and up to 45% percent of the recovery depending on the stage of the litigation"); City of Greenville v. Syngenta Crop Prot., Inc., 904 F. Supp. 2d 902, 908 (S.D. Ill. 2012) ("[P]laintiffs in this matter concluded a one-third contingency fee with advanced costs was in their best financial interests in this litigation . . . . Accordingly, these contracts define the market.") (emphasis in original); accord Klonoff Decl. ¶ 65.

And, in any event, as subsequent sections demonstrate, a one-third fee is the market-based fee percentage. See Klonoff Decl. ¶¶ 66, 75, 76 ("typical contingent fee agreements in the Seventh Circuit (and elsewhere in the country) are 33 1/3 percent or greater" and including numerous examples of antitrust cases within the 7th Circuit with percentages of 33 percent or greater); Leung v. XPO Logistics, Inc., 326 F.R.D. 185, 201 (N.D. Ill. 2018) ("a typical contingency agreement in this Circuit might range from 33% to 40% of recovery"); In re Potash Antitrust Litig., No. 1:08-cv-06910 (N.D. Ill. June 12, 2013), Doc. No. 589 (awarding 33 1/3% fees) Joint Decl. Ex. 28; In re: Plasma-Derivative Protein Therapies Antitrust Litig., No. 09-07666 (N.D. Ill. April 4, 2014), Doc. Nos. 697, 701 (same) Joint Decl. Exs. 29, 30; In re Dairy Farmers of Am., Inc., 80 F. Supp. 3d 838 (N.D. Ill. 2015 (same).[7] Thus, the legal agreements that exist in this case with the Class Representatives for the CIIPPs support the fee requested.

[6] CIIPPs include 32 named plaintiffs: 14 plaintiffs entered legal agreements that expressly specified Class Counsel may receive 1/3 of any recovery; 18 plaintiffs entered legal agreements that stated Class Counsel may receive a fee award from any settlement or judgment fund created, but did not specify a percentage; and one plaintiff entered an agreement that expressly stated Class Counsel may receive "up to 35%." Joint Decl. ¶ 30.

2. The Substantial Risk of Non-Payment Also Weighs in Favor of Granting CIIPPs' Fee Request

"The greater the risk of walking away empty-handed, the higher the award must be to attract competent and energetic counsel." Silverman v. Motorola Sols., Inc., 739 F.3d 956, 958 (7th Cir. 2013); see also In re Flonase Antitrust Litig., 291 F.R.D. 93, 104 (E.D. Pa. 2013) ("[A]s a contingent fee case, counsel faced a risk of nonpayment in the event of an unsuccessful trial. Throughout this nearly 5 ½ year litigation, class counsel have not received any payment. This factor supports approval of the requested fee [of 33 1/3 percent]."). Thus, "[w]hen determining the reasonableness of a fee request, courts put a fair amount of emphasis on the severity of the risk (read: financial risk) that class counsel assumed in undertaking the lawsuit." In re Dairy Farmers of Am., Inc., 80 F. Supp. 3d 838, 847-48 (N.D. Ill. 2015).

The risk that CIIPPs' Class Counsel would not receive payment at the outset of this case was significant. See Klonoff Decl. ¶¶ 55-58, 68-71; accord Columbus Drywall & Insulation, Inc. v. Masco Corp., 258 F.R.D. 545, 559 (N.D. Ga. 2007) ("[C]ourts have found that antitrust actions generally present complex, novel issues, and that plaintiffs can rarely guarantee recovery at trial.");

[7] Moreover, this Court already determined, with respect to the DPPs' Motion, ECF No. 5229, that an unspecified fee in a retainer agreement would result in "an award of 33 percent" because "[t]here is simply little to no precedent recommending" otherwise. See Broiler Chicken, 2021 WL 5709250, at *3 (granting one-third attorneys fee award where fee agreements between DPPs and their counsel stated their attorneys would receive a "percentage of any award," but did not specify how much).

In re Shopping Carts Antitrust Litig., No. 451-CLB, 1983 WL 1950, at *7 (S.D.N.Y. Nov. 18, 1983) ("[A]ntitrust price fixing actions are generally complex, expensive and lengthy."). The breadth of the CIIPPs' case is vast: CIIPPs alleged Defendants engaged in an antitrust conspiracy to fix, raise, maintain, and stabilize the price of Broilers, and allege that the Class materially overpaid as a result of the conspiracy. See ECF No. 3929 (CIIPPs' Seventh Amended Consolidated Class Action Complaint). Despite the risk of no recovery and the opportunity cost of choosing this case over others, CIIPPs' Class Counsel deeply believed in the merits of the case. As mentioned, this risk was even greater than in many antitrust cases because this case was commenced without the benefit of any government investigation or enforcement action. CIIPPs' Class Counsel spent many hours researching the poultry industry and available public data and statements to craft the underlying allegations in this Action. Id. As the first indirect purchaser to file a complaint, many hours were similarly spent researching possible state-law antitrust, consumer protection, and unjust enrichment claims to bring in Illinois Brick repealer states on behalf of indirect purchasers. Id. Overcoming these initial challenges, Class Counsel have secured significant recoveries on behalf of the CIIPP Class. To date, CIIPPs' Class Counsel have generated a cumulative settlement amount of $104,890,000.00. Joint Decl. ¶ 11.

Since the intense preliminary work before filing the complaint, Class Counsel has spent nearly 85 thousand hours over five years diligently prosecuting this case for CIIPP class. After appointment as Co-Lead Counsel, CIIPPs' Class Counsel engaged, inter alia, in the following extensive work:

- Successfully opposed multiple motions to dismiss filed jointly and individually by each Defendant, in which Defendants contested every claim the CIIPP class set forth. After extensive briefing and oral argument, the Court denied Defendants' motions and allowed this case to proceed;

- Quickly began negotiating discovery requests, search terms, and custodians for each Defendant and engaging in extensive third-party discovery;

- Served over 50 document subpoenas on non-parties, some of which required contested motion practice including in far-flung jurisdictions, for purposes of demonstrating pass-through, antitrust impact, and damages. This work was extensive, laborious, and critical for purposes of class certification and damages. The work resulted in extensive granular transactional data from intermediaries in the chain of distribution;

- Once Defendants started producing documents, CIIPPs' Class Counsel undertook a review of over 9 million pages of documents in coordination with the other classes, putting the most attorneys on the document review of any other class;

- Without duplicating work, prepared for and participated in more than 120 depositions, with CIIPPs' Class Counsel being the lead deposition taker on a significant number;

- Spent hundreds of hours working with their 32 class representatives to respond to Defendants' requests for production, interrogatories, and requests for admission, and formulating subsequent supplemental responses;

- Relatedly, Class Counsel undertook a comprehensive review and collection of responsive documents and data from all 32 class representatives, which took considerable staffing, resources, time, and money. Defendants noticed the deposition of every class representative, requiring CIIPPs to spend many hours preparing for and defending the depositions of 32 named plaintiffs. Id. Many of these class-representative depositions lasted over four hours, with some taking almost seven hours;

- CIIPP Class Counsel prepared for, attended, and argued at many Court hearings, including on contested motions, case management conferences, hearings regarding case structure, and settlement approval.

Joint Decl. ¶ 8

For a full discussion of the extensive work performed by Class Counsel in this litigation, the Joint Declaration of Class Counsel recounts these tasks in more detail. See Joint Decl. ¶ 8.

Notably, the risk of nonpayment was ever-present, as CIIPPs faced some of the most powerful and well-financed multinational corporations, which were represented by the biggest and most prominent law firms in the United States. Indeed, the first settlement (Fieldale) in this litigation was not achieved until over two years of litigation, and the first large settlement (Tyson) was not achieved until five years into the litigation. No litigation outcome was ever certain. As this Court aptly noted, motion practice has included moments that could have defeated CIIPPs' claims, with some even being "close call[s]." Broiler Chicken, 2021 WL 5709250, at *1, *3.

Any final outcome to this Action has also been delayed, and thus the entire Action made more risky for CIIPPs' Class Counsel, by unprecedented and lengthy stays brought on by the COVID-19 pandemic, see, e.g., United States District Court for the Northern District of Illinois Amended General Order 20-0012 (March 16, 2020) ("In all civil cases, all deadlines, whether set by the court or by the Rules of Civil Procedure or Local Rules, are hereby extended by 21 days from the current deadline set."), and the continual discovery stays, either in full or in part, sought by the Department of Justice, see, e.g., ECF No. 2268 (June 21, 2019), Motion by Intervenor United States of America to Intervene and Stay Discovery. As stated above, this case was initiated without the benefit of a government investigation. Instead, the United States intervened over two years into this Action and sought a stay. As this Court noted, "[a]ppointed Counsel's work appears to have prompted the government investigations that led to [the] indictments, rather than the reverse." ECF No. 5229, at 8. Moreover, the Department of Justice requested and eventually received large and comprehensive document productions from the civil plaintiff classes by subpoena. Based on the foregoing, CIIPPs' fee request is particularly reasonable and appropriate. See, e.g., Wal-Mart Stores, Inc. v. Visa U.S.A., Inc., 396 F.3d 96, 122 (2d Cir. 2005) (affirming fee award of $220,290,160 and noting that "plaintiffs' counsel did not have the benefit of 'piggybacking' off of a previous case—instead, the Government piggybacked off of plaintiffs' counsel's work" and that "it is especially important to provide appropriate incentives to attorneys pursuing antitrust actions because public policy relies on private sector enforcement of the antitrust laws."); In re Linerboard Antitrust Litig., No. CIV.A. 98-5055, 2004 WL 1221350, at *17 (E.D. Pa. June 2, 2004), amended, No. CIV.A.98-5055, 2004 WL 1240775 (E.D. Pa. June 4, 2004) (noting that "providing sufficient . . . incentive for the private attorney general is particularly important in the area of antitrust enforcement because public policy relies so heavily on such private action for enforcement of the antitrust law"). As this Court concluded, "[a] substantial award is warranted here as a proper incentive for high quality counsel to take on complex cases, requiring a massive investment of time and money, with such a high risk of non-payment." ECF No. 5229, at 8.

The risk undertaken by CIIPP Class Counsel has been magnified by the extensive expert work (and their related, substantial costs) necessary for CIIPPs to meet their burden at class certification and summary judgment. CIIPPs' Class Counsel engaged Dr. Russell Mangum and his staff, who performed extensive transactional data analysis, constructed vast databases, and built robust regression models, amongst many other tasks, that permitted them to opine on the magnitude of the overcharges caused by Defendants' conduct, including the measure of such overcharges that were passed-through to CIIPPs. Joint Decl. ¶ 8. Class Counsel's work has thus far culminated with Dr. Mangum's 147-page opening report; a 195-page reply report in support of class certification; and a 90-page opening merits report. Id. Furthermore, CIIPPs retained Dr. Michael Williams, who prepared a 183-page liability report detailing, inter alia, the anticompetitive nature of Defendants' conduct. CIIPPs' Class Counsel drafted and filed their voluminous class certification motion with related expert reports, substantive exhibits, and declarations. Id; see ECF Nos. 3968, 4493, and 4512. Indeed, CIIPPs face a case that is even more complex and risky than the DPPs, as they must perform unique analyses of passthrough requiring extensive, additional expert work and data analysis. As set out further below, the cost of all this expert work required large amounts of funding. Joint Decl. ¶ 20, ¶ 22, Exs. 26-27 (detailing over $10 million in case costs). All of this costly, necessary, and complex work was undertaken without any promise of repayment, making the risks to Class Counsel truly extraordinary.

3. The Caliber of Class Counsel and the Amount of Work Performed Weigh Heavily in Favor of Granting the Request

The caliber of Class Counsel in this matter has been exemplary. CIIPPs' Class Counsel have invested over 85,000 hours to this Action. Class Counsel's collective lodestar, therefore, is $40,260,516.00. CIIPPs' requested fee if granted, therefore, will constitute a negative multiplier of .77. This is another factor supporting approval of the requested fee. See, e.g., In re Blech Securities Litigation, No. 94-cv-9696 (RWS), 2000 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 6920 (S.D. N.Y. May 22, 2000) (citing evidence that award would represent a negative multiplier of the lodestar as support for a 30% award) In re TFT-LCD (Flat-Panel) Antitrust Litig., 2013 WL 149692, at *1 (N.D. Cal. Apr. 3, 2013) (negative multiplier of 0.86 confirmed amount of attorneys' fees requested was fair and reasonable); Gong-Chun v. Aetna Inc., No. 1:09-cv-01995-SKO, 2012 WL 2872788, at *23 (E.D. Cal. July 12, 2012) (negative multiplier of .79 suggested that fee award was reasonable); Chun-Hoon v. McKee Foods Corp., 716 F. Supp. 2d 848, 853–54 (N.D. Cal. 2010) (negative multiplier of .59 indicated fee award was "reasonable and a fair valuation of the services rendered to the class by class counsel"); In re Portal Software, Inc. Sec. Litig., No. C-03-5138 VRW, 2007 WL 4171201, at *16 (N.D. Cal. Nov. 26, 2007) (negative lodestar multiplier of 0.83 or 0.74 "suggests that the requested percentage based fee is fair and reasonable").

The enormous amount of work undertaken by Class Counsel, as noted, is detailed in the Joint Declaration. CIIPPs' Class Counsel are some of the country's most experienced and successful antitrust and complex litigation attorneys. See ECF No. 116 at 8-13. And, Defendants' counsel are similarly skilled and experienced, and have mounted a formidable defense. See Arenson, et al. v. Bd. of Trade of City of Chicago, 372 F. Supp. 1349, 1354 (N.D. Ill. 1974) (noting that the quality, vigor, and prior success of opposing counsel is an important factor when assessing the quality of work performed by plaintiffs' counsel). This Court is familiar with the caliber of work performed by CIIPPs' Class Counsel, and they respectfully suggest that it merits the requested fee.

4. Comparable Cases Favor Granting CIIPPs' Request

"Another relevant data point for the market price for attorneys' fees is those awarded in 'analogous class action settlements.'" Hale, 2018 WL 6606079 at *10 ("Courts within the Seventh Circuit, and elsewhere, regularly award percentages of 33.33% or higher to counsel in class action litigation."); see also Taubenfeld v. AON Corp., 415 F.3d 597, 600 (7th Cir. 2005) (noting the relevance of "attorneys' fees from analogous class action settlements"); Kolinek v. Walgreen Co., 311 F.R.D. 483 (N.D. Ill. 2015) ("Attorney's fee awards in analogous class action settlements shed light on the market rate for legal services in similar cases."); Gaskill v. Gordon, 160 F.3d 361, 363 (7th Cir. 1998) (collecting cases). Additionally, Professor Klonoff's Declaration previously submitted and also submitted herewith compiles a number of cases within the Seventh Circuit awarding fees of 33% or great. Klonoff Decl. ¶ 76.

Here, this Court need look no further than its own finding in the DPP Action: "The fact that fee awards in antitrust cases in [the Seventh Circuit] are almost always one-third is a strong indication that this should be considered the 'market rate.'" Broiler Chicken, 2021 WL 5709250, at *4. This is precisely the approach CIIPPs are taking here, and their request is exactly in line with what this Court previously ordered in connection with the DPPs' fee request. The foregoing considerations strongly support CIIPPs' request.

5. A Lodestar Cross-Check Confirms the Reasonableness of the Request

Although the previously mentioned percentage-of-the-fund method is favored in the Seventh Circuit for determining fees in common fund cases, courts may also use a "lodestar cross-check" to ascertain class counsel's time investment, determine the reasonableness of a fee, and avoid windfall. In re Dairy Farmers of America, Inc., 80 F. Supp. 3d 838, 844 (N.D. Ill. 2015). This cross-check is not required, however. Rohm & Haas II, 658 F.3d at 636 ("[C]onsideration of a lodestar check is not an issue of required methodology"); Leung v. XPO Logistics, Inc., 326 F.R.D. 185, 204 (N.D. Ill. 2018) ("The Court is not required to check its percentage-of-fee determination against the lodestar.")

As noted, using counsel's historic hourly rates to calculate the lodestar results in a .77 multiplier, which constitutes a negative multiplier. CIIPPs' Class Counsel invested over 85,000 hours of attorney and other professional time from case inception through August 31, 2021. Joint Decl. Ex. 25. The average hourly rate by Class Counsel and their associated professional staff is approximately $470 per hour (with a cap of $350.00 for hour on document review, see Joint Decl Ex. 2), a reasonable and comparable rate for those charged by other firms with similar experience, expertise, reputation and for similar services.[8] Courts in the Seventh Circuit regularly grant fee awards that result in a negative multiplier. See, e.g., Domann v. Summit Credit Union, No. 18-cv-167-wmc, 2020 WL 1847868 (W.D. Wisc. April 13, 2020) ("The fact that the lodestar method produces a 'negative multiplier' is also a factor supporting the reasonableness of the fee request, given that courts have approved multipliers of five or more.").

[8] Since the inception of this Action, Interim Co-Lead Counsel have submitted Class Counsel's lodestar and expense information to the Court in camera on a quarterly basis. CIIPPs' Class Counsel have conducted an additional audit of this time in preparing this motion. Joint Decl. ¶ 15.

III. CIIPPs' EXPENSES REQUEST SHOULD BE GRANTED

CIIPPs request reimbursement of $10,407,499.62 for reasonable expenses incurred in bringing these claims. CIIPPs counsel is aware that this request exceeds the amount of costs of the DPP class when they sought payment of expenses from this Court. However, of the amount CIIPPs request, nearly $8.5 million stems from the extensive work undertaken by CIIPPs' economic experts and their analysis of massive amounts of data including non-party data to prove pass through of overcharges—something not required in the DPP case. This amount of costs further supports CIIPPs' Class Counsel's requested fee because it demonstrates that this has been an extraordinarily high-risk endeavor to pursue. This is all the more true given this Court's practice—consistent with CIIPPs' request— that litigation costs are deducted before a percentage is applied to the settlement fund to calculate the fee. Thus, Class Counsel is not seeking fees on this portion ($10,407,499.62) of the Settlement Fund.

Counsel are routinely entitled to reimbursement of reasonable expenses incurred in litigation, as DPPs were with respect to their expenses. Fed. R. Civ. P. 23(h); see also Mills v. Elec. Auto-Lite Co., 396 U.S. 375, 392 (1970) (recognizing counsel's right to reimbursement of expenses where a common fund has been established for the benefit of a class). Reimbursable expenses are those "that are consistent with market rates and practices." In re Ready-Mixed Concrete, 2010 WL 3281591, at *1, *3 (S.D. Ind. Aug. 17, 2010).[9] CIIPPs' expenses include $8,474,655.60 in expert costs, $1,123,780.46 in discovery database costs, $76,663.12 in special master and mediator costs, $134,121.86 in deposition costs, and $166,338.96 in consultant costs, along with a number of miscellaneous costs, including transcript orders, travel, photocopies, mail, telephone, etc. Joint Decl. ¶ 20, Exs. 26, 27. These expenses have been necessary to litigate this Action in the best interests of the CIIPP Class and to achieve the favorable settlements to date.

[9] Conforming to this Court's guidance in the DPP proceeding, CIIPPs' request for expenses can be deducted from the settlement fund before the one-third fee award percentage is applied. Broiler Chicken, 2021 WL 5709250, at *4.

IV. THE CLASS REPRESENTATIVES SHOULD RECEIVE SERVICE AWARDS FOR THEIR CONSIDERABLE TIME AND EFFORT

Each Class Representative representing the CIIPP class should receive $15,000 for their considerable time and effort in supporting the case. "Because a named plaintiff is an essential ingredient of any class action, an incentive [or service] award is appropriate if it is necessary to induce individuals to participate in the suit." Cook v. Niedert, 142 F.3d 1004, 1016 (7th Cir. 1998). To determine if an incentive award is warranted, a court evaluates (i) actions the plaintiff has taken to the protect the interests of the class, (ii) the degree to which the class has benefitted from those actions, and (iii) the amount of time and effort the plaintiff expended in pursuing the litigation. Camp Drug Store, Inc. v. Cochran Wholesale Pharm, Inc., 897 F.3d 825, 834 (7th Cir. 2018). This Court has recognized that "[e]mpirical evidence shows that incentive awards [][] paid in most class suits average between $10-$15,000 per class representative." Broiler Chicken, 2021 WL 5709250, at *5. CIIPPs request exactly that—$15,000, the same amount this Court awarded to the DPP class representatives.

The Class Representatives have thus far undertaken substantial and invasive work, at a risk to themselves and their business. See ECF Nos. 3968-8 and 3968-9 (Compendium of Class Representatives Declaration Part I and II). The Class Representatives are all small businesses, many are owner-operated, and many have only a handful of employees. Joint Decl. ¶ 32. Every Class Representative spent numerous hours searching their offices and homes to provide documents and information in response to discovery requests propounded by the Defendants. ECF Nos. 3968-8 and 3968-9. Every Class Representative had a Fed. R. Civ. P. 30(b)(6) or a Fed. R.

Civ. P. 30(b)(1) deposition taken, and one of them—Alpine Special Treatment Center, Inc.—had its deposition taken twice. Id. ¶ 31. Often, the corporate representative of the Class Representative was the owner and chef, meaning the restaurant had to be closed or operated with limited resources while the deposition took place. Id. ¶ 32. The Class Representatives also risked potential retaliatory actions taken up the distribution chain for their involvement in this litigation. In light of the work already performed, CIIPPs request a reasonable $15,000 service award for each of the businesses serving as a Class Representative.

V. CONCLUSION

For all the foregoing reasons, CIIPPs respectfully ask this Court to: (1) grant their request for attorneys' fees of one-third of the settlement fund, (2) grant their request for reimbursement of their reasonably incurred litigation expenses, and (3) grant their request for Class Representative service awards.

Dated: January 28, 2022

Respectfully Submitted:

/s/ Daniel C. Hedlund
Daniel E. Gustafson
Daniel C. Hedlund
Michelle J. Looby
Joshua J. Rissman
Brittany Resch
GUSTAFSON GLUEK PLLC
120 South Sixth Street, Suite 2600
Minneapolis, MN 55402
Tel: (612) 333-8844
dgustafson@gustafsongluek.com
dhedlund@gustafsongluek.com
mlooby@gustafsongluek.com
jrissman@gustafsongluek.com
bresch@gustafsongluek.com

Co-Lead Counsel for the Commercial and Institutional Indirect Purchaser Class

/s/ Adam J. Zapala
Adam J. Zapala
Tamarah P. Prevost
James G.B. Dallal
COTCHETT, PITRE & MCCARTHY, LLP
840 Malcolm Road, Suite 200
Burlingame, CA 94010
Tel: (650) 697-6000
azapala@cpmlegal.com
tprevost@cpmlegal.com
jdallal@cpmlegal.com

Alexander E. Barnett
COTCHETT, PITRE & MCCARTHY, LLP
40 Worth Street, Suite 602
New York, NY 10013
Tel: (212) 201-6820
abarnett@cpmlegal.com

Co-Lead Counsel for the Commercial and Institutional Indirect Purchaser Class

Kenneth A. Wexler
Melinda J. Morales
WEXLER BOLEY & ELGERSMA, LLP
55 W. Monroe Street, Suite 3300
Chicago, IL 60603
Tel: (312) 346-2222
kaw@wbe-llp.com
mjm@ wbe-llp.com

Liaison Counsel for the Commercial and Institutional Indirect Purchaser Class

TAB 45A

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
DISTRICT OF MASSACHUSETTS

IN RE: PHARMACEUTICAL INDUSTRY AVERAGE WHOLESALE PRICE LITIGATION	MDL NO. 1456 CIVIL ACTION: 01-CV-12257-PBS
THIS DOCUMENT RELATES TO: ALL NON-MASSACHUSETTS CLASS ACTIONS CONCERNING CLASSES 2 &3	Judge Patti B. Saris

~~[PROPOSED]~~ REVISED FINAL ORDER AND JUDGMENT GRANTING FINAL APPROVAL OF THE PROPOSED SETTLEMENT AGREEMENT AND RELEASE OF ASTRAZENECA RELATED TO NON-MASSACHUSETTS CLASSES TWO AND THREE, APPROVING THE PROPOSED ALLOCATION OF SETTLEMENT FUNDS, AND APPROVING CLASS COUNSEL'S APPLICATION FOR ATTORNEYS' FEES, REIMBURSEMENT OF LITIGATION EXPENSES AND COMPENSATION FOR CLASS REPRESENTATIVES

This Court having considered: (a) the Revised Settlement Agreement and Release of AstraZeneca Related to Non-Massachusetts Classes Two and Three, dated August 5, 2010, including all Exhibits thereto (collectively, the "Agreement"), between Class Plaintiffs (as defined in the Agreement) and Defendant AstraZeneca Pharmaceuticals LP ("AstraZeneca"); (b) the proposed allocation and distribution of funds among the Settlement Classes; and (c) Class Counsel's application for attorneys' fees, reimbursement of litigation expenses, and compensation for the Class Representatives; and having held a hearing on February 8, 2011, and having considered all of the submissions and arguments with respect thereto, and otherwise being fully informed, and good cause appearing therefore,

IT IS HEREBY ORDERED, ADJUDGED and DECREED that:

1. This Final Order and Judgment incorporates herein and makes a part hereof, the Agreement, and all Exhibits thereto. Unless otherwise provided herein, the terms as defined in the Agreement shall have the same meanings for purposes of this Final Order and Judgment.

2. The Court has personal jurisdiction over all Class Representatives, Class Members, and AstraZeneca for purposes of this settlement only, and has subject matter jurisdiction to approve the Agreement.

3. The Settlement Classes are defined as follows:

> Third-Party Payor MediGap Supplemental Insurance Class ("Class 2"). All TPPs in the United States who, from January 1, 1991 through January 1, 2005, made, or incurred an obligation to make, reimbursements for any portion of a Medicare Part B co-payment for Zoladex® purchased outside the Commonwealth of Massachusetts.
>
> Consumer and Third-Party Payor Class For Payments Made Outside the Medicare Context ("Class 3"). All natural persons in the United States who made, or incurred an obligation to make, a non-Medicare Part B payment for Zoladex® purchased outside of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, and all TPPs in the United States who made, or incurred an obligation to make, non-Medicare Part B reimbursements for Zoladex® purchased outside of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, during the period from January 1, 1991, through June 11, 2010.

Excluded from each of the Settlement Classes are the AstraZeneca Releasees, defined in the Agreement. (The exclusion of AstraZeneca "employees" from the Settlement Classes shall not affect the eligibility of any ERISA plans or other TPPs for settlement benefits regardless whether any plan participants might be excluded "employees.") Additionally excluded from each of the Settlement Classes are the following: (1) all natural persons who only paid flat co-payments, and not any percentage co-payments, for Zoladex®; (2) all federal, state, and local governmental entities in the United States, except any such governmental agencies or programs that made or incurred an obligation to make a reimbursement for Zoladex® as part of a health benefit plan for their employees, but only with respect to such payments; and (3) the ISHPs.

4. This Court previously certified Classes 2 and 3 as Massachusetts-only Classes for all AstraZeneca Covered Drugs. See In re Pharm. Indus. Average Wholesale Price Litig. ("In re AWP"), 233 F.R.D. 229, 231 (D. Mass. 2006) (order); In re AWP, 230 F.R.D. 61 (D. Mass. 2005) (Memorandum Opinion). In addition, after conducting a bellwether Massachusetts-only trial under Mass. G.L. c93A with respect to Zoladex®, this Court certified Classes 2 and 3 for Zoladex under numerous state consumer protection statutes. See In re AWP, 252 F.R.D. 83 (2008). In certifying the Settlement Classes referenced in Paragraph 3 above, the Court incorporates by reference all of these previous orders. See In re AWP, 588 F.3d 24, 40 (1st Cir. 2009) ("In this case the district court satisfied Rule 23(c)(1)(B)'s text and purpose. The court could incorporate its prior orders by reference when certifying the expanded class.")

5. The Court finds that the prerequisites of FED. R. CIV. P. 23(a) and (b)(3) have been satisfied for certification of the Settlement Classes for settlement purposes, and finds that the Settlement Classes are properly certified pursuant to those Rules: Class Members, numbering in the thousands, are so numerous that joinder of all members is impracticable; there are questions of law and fact common to each of the Settlement Classes; the claims and defenses of the Class Representatives are typical of the claims and defenses of the Settlement Class Members they represent; the Class Representatives have fairly and adequately protected the interests of the Settlement Classes with regard to the consolidated claims of the Settlement Classes they represent; the common questions of law and fact predominate over questions affecting only individual Class Members, rendering the Settlement Classes sufficiently cohesive to warrant a nationwide class settlement; and the certification of the Settlement Classes is superior to individual litigation and/or settlement as a method for the fair and efficient resolution of the MDL Class Actions.

In making all of the foregoing findings, the Court has exercised its discretion in certifying the Settlement Classes, based, inter alia, upon the Court's familiarity with the claims and parties in these and other cases, the factual record before this Court in connection with its prior class certification orders and the bellwether Massachusetts trial, the facts and proceedings of prior AWP class settlements, the interests of the various constituent groups, and the negotiation process.

6. The record shows that notice has been given to the Settlement Classes in the manner approved by the Court in its Preliminary Approval Order of August 12, 2010 [Docket No. 7225]. The Court finds that such notice: (i) constitutes reasonable and the best practicable notice; (ii) constitutes notice that was reasonably calculated, under the circumstances, to apprise Class Members of the terms of the Agreement and Class Settlements, and Class Members' right to object to or exclude themselves from the Settlement Classes and appear at the settlement fairness hearing held on February 8, 2001 (the "Fairness Hearing"), (iii) constitutes due, adequate, and sufficient notice to all persons or entities entitled to receive notice; and (iv) meets the requirements of due process and FED. R. CIV. P. 23.

7. No individuals or entities, other than those listed on Exhibit A hereto (filed under seal), have excluded themselves from the Settlement Classes. This Order shall have no force or effect on the persons or entities listed on Exhibit A hereto.

8. The Court finds that extensive arm's-length negotiations have taken place in good faith between Lead Class Counsel and AstraZeneca's Counsel resulting in the Agreement. Additionally the Court finds that extensive arm's-length negotiations have taken place on behalf of separate counsel appointed by Lead Class Counsel to represent the interests of Consumer Class Members and TPP Class Members in order to apportion the Settlement Fund between these constituencies and that these arm's length negotiations afforded the structural protection required to ensure adequate representation of these constituencies.

9. The Court finds that the designated class representatives are appropriate representatives for settlement purposes. The Court finds that each of these representatives, or an agent or member thereof, made a purchase or reimbursement for Zoladex®.

10. The Court confirms that Zoladex® was the only AstraZeneca drug as to which class claims were certified in the Court's September 26, 2008 Memorandum and Order certifying Non-Massachusetts Classes 2 and 3. The Court did not certify Non-Massachusetts class claims with respect to Pulmicort Respules® or any other AstraZeneca drug.

11. The Court has considered all of the factors enumerated in FED. R. CIV. P. 23(g) and finds that Class Counsel have fairly and adequately represented the interests of the Settlement Classes.

12. Pursuant to FED. R. CIV. P. 23(e), the Court hereby finally approves in all respects the Class Settlement set forth in the Agreement ("the Class Settlement") and finds that the Class Settlement, the Agreement, and the plan of distribution as set forth in Paragraphs III.C-F of the Agreement, are, in all respects, fair, reasonable and adequate, and in the best interest of the Settlement Classes.

13. The Court further approves the establishment of the Settlement Fund as set forth in the Agreement and the Escrow Agreement submitted by the Parties. The Parties are hereby directed to implement and consummate the Class Settlements according to the terms and provisions of the Agreement. In addition, the Parties are authorized to agree to and adopt such amendments and modifications to the Agreement that (i) are consistent in all material respects with this Final Order and Judgment, and (ii) do not limit the rights of the Settlement Classes.

14. Upon the Effective Date of the Agreement, the Class Releasors (as defined in Paragraph II.F of the Agreement) shall release and forever discharge the AstraZeneca Releasees (as defined in Paragraph II.B of the Agreement) from their respective Released Consumer Class Claims and Released TPP Class Claims (as defined in Paragraphs II.JJ and II.LL of the Agreement).

15. The Court finds that the Escrow Account is a "Qualified Settlement Fund" as defined in section 1.468B-1(a) of the Treasury Regulations in that it satisfies each of the following requirements:

(a) The Escrow Account is established pursuant to an order of this Court and is subject to the continuing jurisdiction of this Court;

(b) The Escrow Account is established to resolve or satisfy one or more contested or uncontested claims that have resulted or may result from an event that has occurred and that has given rise to at least one claim asserting liability arising out of an alleged violation of law; and

(c) The assets of the Escrow Account are segregated from other assets of AstraZeneca, the transferor of payments to the Settlement Fund, and from the assets of persons related to AstraZeneca.

16. Under the "relation-back" rule provided under section 1.468B-1(j)(2)(i) of the Treasury Regulations, the Court finds that:

(a) The Escrow Account met the requirements of paragraph 13 of this Order prior to the date of this Order approving the establishment of the Settlement Fund subject to the continued jurisdiction of this Court; and

(b) AstraZeneca and the "administrator" under section 1.468B-2(k)(3) of the Treasury Regulations may jointly elect to treat the Escrow Account as coming into existence as a "Qualified Settlement Fund" on the later of the date the Escrow Account met the requirements of paragraphs 13(b) and 13(c) of this Order or January 1 of the calendar year in which all of the requirements of Paragraph 13 of this Order are met. If such relation-back election is made, the assets held by the Escrow Account on such date shall be treated as having been transferred to the Escrow Account on that date.

17. Nothing in this Final Order and Judgment, the Class Settlements, the Agreement, or any documents or statements related thereto, is or shall be deemed or construed to be an admission or evidence of any violation of any statute or law or of any liability or wrongdoing by any of the Released Parties.

18. Class Counsel have moved pursuant to FED. R. CIV. P. 23(h), 54(d) and 52(a) for an award of attorneys' fees and reimbursement of expenses. Pursuant to Rules 23(h)(3) and 52(a) this Court awards $27,000,000, which represents 30% of the Settlement Amount, and makes the following findings of fact and conclusions of law:

(a) that the Class Settlement confers substantial benefits on the Members of each of the Settlement Classes;

(b) that the value conferred on the Settlement Classes is immediate and readily quantifiable (upon this Judgment becoming Final (as defined in the Agreement), Settlement Class Members who have submitted valid Claim Forms will receive cash payments that represent a significant portion of their alleged financial harms);

(c) that Class Counsel vigorously and effectively pursued the Settlement Class Members' claims before this Court in this highly complex case;

(d) that the Class Settlements were obtained as a direct result of Class Counsel's skillful advocacy;

(e) that the Class Settlements were reached following extensive negotiation between Lead Class Counsel and AstraZeneca's Counsel, and were negotiated in good-faith and in the absence of collusion;

(f) that during the prosecution of the AstraZeneca claims in the MDL Class Actions, Class Counsel incurred expenses at least in the amount of $9,401,741, which included costs for expert witnesses and other expenses which the Court finds to be reasonable and necessary to the representation of the Settlement Classes;

(g) that Settlement Class Members were advised in the Notice approved by the Court that Class Counsel intended to apply for an award of attorneys' fees in an amount of up to 33 1/3% of the Settlement Fund (plus interest thereon from the date of funding of the Settlement Fund) plus reimbursement of reasonable costs and expenses incurred in the prosecution of this action, to be paid from the Settlement Fund;

(h) that no Member(s) of the Settlement Classes have submitted written objection(s) to the award of attorneys' fees and expenses;

(i) that counsel who recover a common benefit for persons other than himself or his client is entitled to a reasonable attorneys' fee from the Settlement Fund as a whole. See,

e.g., Boeing Co. v. Van Gemert, 444 U.S. 472, 478 (1980); Blum v. Stenson, 465 U.S. 866, 900 n.16 (1984);

(j) that use of the percentage of the fund method in common fund cases is the prevailing practice in this Circuit for awarding attorneys' fees and permits the Court to focus on a showing that a fund conferring benefit on a class resulted from the lawyers' efforts. In re Thirteen Appeals Arising Out of the San Juan Dupont Plaza Hotel Fire Litig., 56 F.3d 295 (1st Cir. 1995); and

(k) the fee award is within the applicable range of percentage awards in this Circuit; In re Relafen Antitrust Litig., No. 01-12239 (D. Mass. April 9, 2004) [Doc. No. 297]; Mowbray v. Waste Management Holdings, No. 98-11534-WGY (D. Mass. Aug. 2, 2001); In re Copley Pharmaceutical, Inc. Sec. Litig., No. 94-11897-WGY (D. Mass. Feb. 8, 1996); Wilensky v. Digital Equipment Corp., No. 94-10752-JLT (D. Mass. July 11, 2001).

(l) Accordingly, Class Counsel are hereby awarded twenty-seven million dollars ($27,000,000.00) (or in other words 30% of the Settlement Amount) as their fee and expense award, which the Court finds to be fair and reasonable. This amount shall be paid to Class Counsel from the Settlement Fund in accordance with the terms of the Agreement, with interest from August 24, 2010 (the date of the funding of the Settlement Fund) to the date of payment, at the same net interest rate earned by the Settlement Fund. Consumer and TPP Class Members shall pay Class Counsel 30% of the Settlement Amount allocated to each respective group under Section III(E) of the Agreement, and ISHP Group Members shall likewise pay Class Counsel 30% of the Settlement Amount allocated to them under Section III(E) of the Agreement. As a result, Consumer Class Members, TPP Class Members and ISHP Group Members will pay the same 30% towards fees and litigation expenses. The attorneys' fees and expenses awarded by the Court shall be allocated among Class Counsel by Lead Class Counsel pursuant to the Agreement and shall, upon petition, be reviewed under an abuse of discretion standard.

19. The Class Representatives and other appropriate parties, as identified in the Order Granting Preliminary Approval of the Settlement Agreement and Release of AstraZeneca Related to Non-Massachusetts Classes Two and Three, Directing Notice to the Classes, and Scheduling Fairness Hearing, dated August 12, 2010, are hereby compensated in the following amounts for their time spent on this case. Because the non-Massachusetts Settlement is 87.4% of the total Settlement Amount, 87.4% of these amounts should be taken from the non-Massachusetts Settlement Fund.

Declarant	Representative Of	Class	Hours Claimed	Compensation [redacted]
Sara A. Walker	Blue Cross Blue Shield of Massachusetts	2 & 3	183	$7,320.00
Daniel W. Ryan	United Food and Commercial Workers Unions and Employers Midwest Health Benefits Fund	2 & 3	115.5	$4,620.00
Earl Seymour	Pirelli Armstrong Tire Corporation Retiree Medical Benefits Trust	3	50.5	$2,020.00
Glenn Randle	Sheet Metal Workers National Health Fund	2	73.5 (Fund) + 26.5 (TPA) = 100	$4,000.00
William Einhorn	Teamsters Health & Welfare Fund of Philadelphia and Vicinity	3	127 (from Einhorn GSK Decl., Dkt No. 4509-7)	$5,080.00
Arthur Steinberg	Philadelphia Federation of Teachers Health and Welfare Fund	3	63 + $980.00 in costs	$3,500.00
Charles Hannaford	Pipefitters Local 537 Trust Funds	3	41 (from Hannaford GSK Decl., Dkt No. 4509-10)	$1,640.00
William A. Rhodes, Jr.	Board of Trustees of Carpenters and Millwrights of Houston and Vicinity Welfare Trust Fund	3	65 (from Rhodes GSK Decl., Dkt No. 4509-8)	$2,600.00
Richard Wessels	Successor in interest to Susan Wessels	3	16	$1,600.00
TOTAL				$32,380.00

20. Without affecting the finality of this Final Order and Judgment, the Court retains continuing and exclusive jurisdiction over all matters relating to administration, consummation, enforcement, and interpretation of the Agreement and of this Final Order and Judgment, to protect and effectuate this Final Order and Judgment, and for any other necessary purpose. AstraZeneca, Class Representatives, and all Settlement Class Members are hereby deemed to have irrevocably submitted to the exclusive jurisdiction of this Court, for the purpose of any suit, action, proceeding or dispute arising out of or relating to the Agreement or the applicability of the Agreement, including the Exhibits thereto, and only for such purposes. Without limiting the generality of the foregoing, and without affecting the finality of this Final Order and Judgment, the Court retains exclusive jurisdiction over any such suit, action, or proceeding. Solely for purposes of such suit, action, or proceeding, to the fullest extent they may effectively do so under applicable law, the parties hereto are deemed to have irrevocably waived and agreed not to assert, by way of motion, as a defense or otherwise, any claim or objection that they are not subject to the jurisdiction of this Court, or that this Court is, in any way, an improper venue or an inconvenient forum.

21. In the event that the Class Settlements do not become effective according to the terms of the Agreement, this Final Order and Judgment shall be rendered null and void as provided by the Agreement, shall be vacated and, all orders entered and releases delivered in connection herewith shall be null and void to the extent provided by and in accordance with the Agreement.

22. No Class Member, either directly, representatively, or in any other capacity (other than a Class Member who validly and timely elected to be excluded from one or more of the Classes), shall commence, continue, or prosecute any action or proceeding against any or all

Re eased Party or Parties in any court or tribunal asserting any of the Released Claims defined in the Agreement, and Class Members (other than Class Members who validly and timely elected to be excluded from one or more of the Classes) are hereby permanently enjoined from so proceeding.

23. Pursuant to FED. R. CIV. P. 54(b) this Court expressly finds that there are no remaining claims between Class Plaintiffs and AstraZeneca in the MDL. There are no subsequent proceedings between the Class Plaintiffs and any remaining party in the MDL that will affect the Court's decision with respect to Class Plaintiffs' settlement with AstraZeneca. No party in the MDL will be prejudiced by the immediate entry of this Final Order and Judgment in accordance with the Settlement Agreement. Pursuant to FED. R. CIV. P. 54(b), this Court expressly determines that there is no just cause for delay and expressly directs that this Final Order and Judgment, upon filing in 01-CV-12257-PBS, be deemed as a final judgment with respect to each of the Settlement Classes, and specifically all such Settlement Class Members' Released Claims against all AstraZeneca Releasees.

24. The Released Claims (as defined in Section II.II of the Agreement) are hereby dismissed with prejudice and without costs to any party, except as otherwise provided herein.

25. All private class actions included within In re Pharmaceutical Industry Average Wholesale Price Litigation, MDL No. 1456, No. 01-CV-12257-PBS (D. Mass.) are hereby dismissed with prejudice as against AstraZeneca and without costs to any party; and all of the Master Consolidated Complaint (through and including the Fifth Amended Master Consolidated Class Action Complaint) filed in the above-referenced actions are hereby dismissed with prejudice as against AstraZeneca and without costs to any party.

26. Class Counsel shall investigate the feasibility of increasing the distribution of settlement funds to Consumer Class Members. In addition, Class Counsel are authorized to issue a second round of direct mail notice to the previously-identified Consumer Class Members (using the previously approved form amended to demonstrate clearly the simplicity of what is required to receive the $400.00 Easy Refund), and shall do so as soon as practicable but in no event no later than February 28, 2011. Class Counsel shall file a report (and, if appropriate, any recommendation) with the Court on or before February 28, 2011 providing a status on matters under this paragraph. Class Counsel's completion of these matters shall not otherwise affect the finality of this Order and Judgment.

DATED: 2/22/2011

Patti B. Saris

Hon. Patti B. Saris

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
DISTRICT OF MASSACHUSETTS

IN RE: PHARMACEUTICAL INDUSTRY AVERAGE WHOLESALE PRICE LITIGATION	MDL NO. 1456 CIVIL ACTION: 01-CV-12257-PBS
THIS DOCUMENT RELATES TO: ALL MASSACHUSETTS CLASS ACTIONS CONCERNING CLASSES 2 &3	Judge Patti B. Saris

~~[PROPOSED]~~ REVISED FINAL ORDER AND JUDGMENT GRANTING FINAL APPROVAL OF THE PROPOSED SETTLEMENT AGREEMENT AND RELEASE OF ASTRAZENECA RELATED TO MASSACHUSETTS CLASSES TWO AND THREE, APPROVING THE PROPOSED ALLOCATION OF SETTLEMENT FUNDS, AND APPROVING CLASS COUNSEL'S APPLICATION FOR ATTORNEYS' FEES, REIMBURSEMENT OF LITIGATION EXPENSES AND COMPENSATION FOR CLASS REPRESENTATIVES

This Court having considered: (a) the Revised Settlement Agreement and Release of AstraZeneca Related to Massachusetts Classes Two and Three, dated August 5, 2010, including all Exhibits thereto (collectively, the "Agreement"), between Class Plaintiffs (as defined in the Agreement) and Defendant AstraZeneca Pharmaceuticals LP ("AstraZeneca"); (b) the proposed allocation and distribution of funds among the Settlement Classes; and (c) Class Counsel's application for attorneys' fees, reimbursement of litigation expenses, and compensation for the Class Representatives; and having held a hearing on February 8, 2011, and having considered all of the submissions and arguments with respect thereto, and otherwise being fully informed, and good cause appearing therefore,

IT IS HEREBY ORDERED, ADJUDGED and DECREED that:

1. This Final Order and Judgment incorporates herein and makes a part hereof, the Agreement, and all Exhibits thereto. Unless otherwise provided herein, the terms as defined in the Agreement shall have the same meanings for purposes of this Final Order and Judgment.

2. The Court has personal jurisdiction over all Class Representatives, Class Members, and AstraZeneca for purposes of this settlement only, and has subject matter jurisdiction to approve the Agreement.

3. The Settlement Classes are defined as follows:

> Third-Party Payor MediGap Supplemental Insurance Class ("Class 2"). All TPPs that, from January 1, 1991 through January 1, 2005, made, or incurred an obligation to make, reimbursements for any portion of a Medicare Part B co-payment for Zoladex® purchased in the Commonwealth of Massachusetts.
>
> Consumer and Third-Party Payor Class For Payments Made Outside the Medicare Context ("Class 3"). All natural persons who made, or were liable for all or any portion of, a non-Medicare Part B payment for Zoladex® purchased in the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, and all TPPs that made, or incurred an obligation to make, non-Medicare Part B reimbursements for Zoladex® purchased in the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, during the period from January 1, 1991 through June 11, 2010.

Excluded from each of the Settlement Classes are the AstraZeneca Releasees, defined in the Agreement. (The exclusion of AstraZeneca "employees" from the Settlement Classes shall not affect the eligibility of any ERISA plans or other TPPs for settlement benefits regardless whether any plan participants might be excluded "employees.") Additionally excluded from each of the Settlement Classes are the following: (1) all natural persons who only paid flat co-payments, and not any percentage co-payments, for Zoladex®; (2) all federal, state, and local governmental entities in the United States, except any such governmental agencies or programs that made or incurred an obligation to make a reimbursement for Zoladex® as part of a health benefit plan for their employees, but only with respect to such payments; and (3) the ISHPs.

4. This Court previously certified Classes 2 and 3 as Massachusetts-only Classes for all AstraZeneca Covered Drugs. See In re Pharm. Indus. Average Wholesale Price Litig. ("In re AWP"), 233 F.R.D. 229, 231 (D. Mass. 2006) (order); In re AWP, 230 F.R.D. 61 (D. Mass. 2005) (Memorandum Opinion). Thereafter, pursuant to a discussion at the July 12, 2010 hearing on preliminary approval of this Settlement, AstraZeneca moved for entry of an order granting judgment and dismissing all claims asserted by Massachusetts Class 2 and 3 under Mass. G.L. c93A with respect to Pulmicort, a Subject Drug the Court had previously certified. On August 4, 2010 the Court entered such an order. [Docket No. 7210]. In certifying the Settlement Classes referenced in Paragraph 3 above, the Court incorporates by reference all of these previous orders. See In re AWP, 588 F.3d 24, 40 (1st Cir. 2009) ("In this case the district court satisfied Rule 23(c)(1)(B)'s text and purpose. The court could incorporate its prior orders by reference when certifying the expanded class.")

5. The Court finds that the prerequisites of FED. R. CIV. P. 23(a) and (b)(3) have been satisfied for certification of the Settlement Classes for settlement purposes, and finds that the Settlement Classes are properly certified pursuant to those Rules: Class Members, numbering in the thousands, are so numerous that joinder of all members is impracticable; there are questions of law and fact common to each of the Settlement Classes; the claims and defenses of the Class Representatives are typical of the claims and defenses of the Settlement Class Members they represent; the Class Representatives have fairly and adequately protected the interests of the Settlement Classes with regard to the consolidated claims of the Settlement Classes they represent; the common questions of law and fact predominate over questions affecting only individual Class Members, rendering the Settlement Classes sufficiently cohesive to warrant a nationwide class settlement; and the certification of the Settlement Classes is superior to individual litigation and/or settlement as a method for the fair and efficient resolution of the MDL Class Actions.

In making all of the foregoing findings, the Court has exercised its discretion in certifying the Settlement Classes, based, inter alia, upon the Court's familiarity with the claims and parties in these and other cases, including prior AWP class settlements, the interests of the various constituent groups, and the negotiation process.

6. The record shows that notice has been given to the Settlement Classes in the manner approved by the Court in its Preliminary Approval Order of August 12, 2010 [Docket No. 7226]. The Court finds that such notice: (i) constitutes reasonable and the best practicable notice; (ii) constitutes notice that was reasonably calculated, under the circumstances, to apprise Class Members of the terms of the Agreement and Class Settlements, and Class Members' right to object to or exclude themselves from the Settlement Classes and appear at the settlement fairness hearing held on February 8, 2011 (the "Fairness Hearing"), (iii) constitutes due, adequate, and sufficient notice to all persons or entities entitled to receive notice; and (iv) meets the requirements of due process and FED. R. CIV. P. 23.

7. No individuals or entities, other than those listed on Exhibit A hereto (filed under seal), have excluded themselves from the Settlement Classes. This Order shall have no force or effect on the persons or entities listed on Exhibit A hereto.

8. The Court finds that extensive arm's-length negotiations have taken place in good faith between Lead Class Counsel and AstraZeneca's Counsel resulting in the Agreement. Additionally the Court finds that extensive arm's-length negotiations have taken place on behalf of separate counsel appointed by Lead Class Counsel to represent the interests of Consumer Class Members and TPP Class Members in order to apportion the Settlement Fund between these constituencies and that these arm's length negotiations afforded the structural protection required to ensure adequate representation of these constituencies.

9. The Court finds that the designated class representatives are appropriate representatives for settlement purposes. The Court finds that each of these representatives, or an agent or member thereof, made a purchase or reimbursement for Zoladex®.

10. The Court has considered all of the factors enumerated in FED. R. CIV. P. 23(g) and finds that Class Counsel have fairly and adequately represented the interests of the Settlement Classes.

11. Pursuant to FED. R. CIV. P. 23(e), the Court hereby finally approves in all respects the Class Settlement set forth in the Agreement ("the Class Settlement") and finds that the Class Settlement, the Agreement, and the plan of distribution as set forth in Paragraphs III.C-F of the Agreement, are, in all respects, fair, reasonable and adequate, and in the best interest of the Settlement Classes.

12. The Court further approves the establishment of the Settlement Fund as set forth in the Agreement and the Escrow Agreement submitted by the Parties. The Parties are hereby directed to implement and consummate the Class Settlements according to the terms and provisions of the Agreement. In addition, the Parties are authorized to agree to and adopt such amendments and modifications to the Agreement that (i) are consistent in all material respects with this Final Order and Judgment, and (ii) do not limit the rights of the Settlement Classes.

13. Upon the Effective Date of the Agreement, the Class Releasors (as defined in Paragraph II.F of the Agreement) shall release and forever discharge the AstraZeneca Releasees (as defined in Paragraph II.B of the Agreement) from their respective Released Consumer Class

Claims and Released TPP Class Claims (as defined in Paragraphs II.BB and II.CC of the Agreement).

14. The Court finds that the Escrow Account is a "Qualified Settlement Fund" as defined in section 1.468B-1(a) of the Treasury Regulations in that it satisfies each of the following requirements:

(a) The Escrow Account is established pursuant to an order of this Court and is subject to the continuing jurisdiction of this Court;

(b) The Escrow Account is established to resolve or satisfy one or more contested or uncontested claims that have resulted or may result from an event that has occurred and that has given rise to at least one claim asserting liability arising out of an alleged violation of law; and

(c) The assets of the Escrow Account are segregated from other assets of AstraZeneca the transferor of payments to the Settlement Fund, and from the assets of persons related to AstraZeneca.

15. Under the "relation-back" rule provided under section 1.468B-1(j)(2)(i) of the Treasury Regulations, the Court finds that:

(a) The Escrow Account met the requirements of Paragraph 12 of this Order prior to the date of this Order approving the establishment of the Settlement Fund subject to the continued jurisdiction of this Court; and

(b) AstraZeneca and the "administrator" under section 1.468B-2(k)(3) of the Treasury Regulations may jointly elect to treat the Escrow Account as coming into existence as a "Qualified Settlement Fund" on the later of the date the Escrow Account met the requirements of paragraphs 13(b) and 13(c) of this Order or January 1 of the calendar year in which all of the requirements of Paragraph 12 of this Order are met. If such relation-back election is made, the assets held by the Escrow Account on such date shall be treated as having been transferred to the Escrow Account on that date.

16. Nothing in this Final Order and Judgment, the Class Settlements, the Agreement, or any documents or statements related thereto, is or shall be deemed or construed to be an admission or evidence of any violation of any statute or law or of any liability or wrongdoing by any of the Released Parties.

17. Class Counsel have moved pursuant to FED. R. CIV. P. 23(h), 54(d) and 52(a) for an award of attorneys' fees and reimbursement of expenses. Pursuant to Rules 23(h)(3) and 52(a) this Court awards Class Counsel $3,900,000, which represents 30% of the Settlement Amount, and makes the following findings of fact and conclusions of law:

(a) that the Class Settlement confers substantial benefits on the Members of each of the Settlement Classes;

(b) that the value conferred on the Settlement Classes is immediate and readily quantifiable (upon this Judgment becoming Final (as defined in the Agreement), Settlement Class Members who have submitted valid Claim Forms will receive cash payments that represent a significant portion of their alleged financial harms);

(c) that Class Counsel vigorously and effectively pursued the Settlement Class Members' claims before this Court in this highly complex case;

(d) that the Class Settlements were obtained as a direct result of Class Counsel's skillful advocacy;

(e) that the Class Settlements were reached following extensive negotiation between Lead Class Counsel and AstraZeneca's Counsel, and were negotiated in good-faith and in the absence of collusion;

(f) that during the prosecution of the AstraZeneca claims in the MDL Class Actions, Class Counsel incurred expenses at least in the amount of $9,401,741, which included costs for expert witnesses and other expenses which the Court finds to be reasonable and necessary to the representation of the Settlement Classes;

(g) that Settlement Class Members were advised in the Notice approved by the Court that Class Counsel intended to apply for an award of attorneys' fees in an amount of up to 33 1/3% of the Settlement Fund (plus interest thereon from the date of funding of the Settlement Fund) plus reimbursement of reasonable costs and expenses incurred in the prosecution of this action, to be paid from the Settlement Fund;

(h) that no Member(s) of the Settlement Classes have submitted written objection(s) to the award of attorneys' fees and expenses;

(i) that counsel who recover a common benefit for persons other than himself or his client is entitled to a reasonable attorneys' fee from the Settlement Fund as a whole. See, e.g., Boeing Co. v. Van Gemert, 444 U.S. 472, 478 (1980); Blum v. Stenson, 465 U.S. 866, 900 n.16 (1984);

(j) that use of the percentage of the fund method in common fund cases is the prevailing practice in this Circuit for awarding attorneys' fees and permits the Court to focus on a showing that a fund conferring benefit on a class resulted from the lawyers' efforts. In re Thirteen Appeals Arising Out of the San Juan Dupont Plaza Hotel Fire Litig., 56 F.3d 295 (1st Cir. 1995); and

(k) the fee award is within the applicable range of percentage awards in this Circuit; In re Relafen Antitrust Litig., No. 01-12239 (D. Mass. April 9, 2004) [Doc. No. 297]; Mowbray v. Waste Management Holdings, No. 98-11534-WGY (D. Mass. Aug. 2, 2001); In re Copley Pharmaceutical, Inc. Sec. Litig., No. 94-11897-WGY (D. Mass. Feb. 8, 1996); Wilensky v. Digital Equipment Corp., No. 94-10752-JLT (D. Mass. July 11, 2001). Accordingly, Class Counsel are hereby awarded $3,900,000 from the balance of the Settlement Fund, as their fee and expense award which the Court finds to be fair and reasonable, and which amount shall be paid to Class Counsel from the Settlement Fund in accordance with the terms of the Agreement, with interest from August 24, 2010 (the date of the funding of the Settlement Fund) to the date of payment, at the same net interest rate earned by the Settlement Fund. The attorneys' fees and expenses awarded by the Court shall be allocated among Class Counsel by Lead Class Counsel pursuant to the Agreement and shall, upon petition, be reviewed on an abuse of discretion standard.

18. The Class Representatives and other appropriate parties, as identified in the Order Granting Preliminary Approval of the Settlement Agreement and Release of AstraZeneca Related to Non-Massachusetts Classes Two and Three, Directing Notice to the Classes, and Scheduling Fairness Hearing, dated August 12, 2010, are hereby compensated in the following amounts for their time spent on this case. Because the Massachusetts Settlement is 12.6% of the total Settlement Amount, 12.6% of these amounts should be taken from the Massachusetts Settlement Fund.

Declarant	Representative Of	Class	Hours Claimed	Compensation
Sara A. Walker	Blue Cross Blue Shield of Massachusetts	2 & 3	183	$7,320.00

Declarant	Represented Party Of	Class	Hours Claimed	Compensation Requested
Daniel W. Ryan	United Food and Commercial Workers Unions and Employers Midwest Health Benefits Fund	2 & 3	115.5	$4,620.00
Earl Seymour	Pirelli Armstrong Tire Corporation Retiree Medical Benefits Trust	3	50.5	$2,020.00
Glenn Randle	Sheet Metal Workers National Health Fund	2	73.5 (Fund) + 26.5 (TPA) = 100	$4,000.00
William Einhorn	Teamsters Health & Welfare Fund of Philadelphia and Vicinity	3	127 (from Einhorn GSK Decl., Dkt No. 4509-7)	$5,080.00
Arthur Steinberg	Philadelphia Federation of Teachers Health and Welfare Fund	3	63 + $980.00 in costs	$3,500.00
Charles Hannaford	Pipefitters Local 537 Trust Funds	3	41 (from Hannaford GSK Decl., Dkt No. 4509-10)	$1,640.00
William A. Rhodes, Jr.	Board of Trustees of Carpenters and Millwrights of Houston and Vicinity Welfare Trust Fund	3	65 (from Rhodes GSK Decl., Dkt No. 4509-8)	$2,600.00
Richard Wessels	Successor in interest to Susan Wessels	3	16	$1,600.00
TOTAL				$32,380.00

19. Without affecting the finality of this Final Order and Judgment, the Court retains continuing and exclusive jurisdiction over all matters relating to administration, consummation, enforcement, and interpretation of the Agreement and of this Final Order and Judgment, to protect and effectuate this Final Order and Judgment, and for any other necessary purpose. AstraZeneca, Class Representatives, and all Settlement Class Members are hereby deemed to have irrevocably submitted to the exclusive jurisdiction of this Court, for the purpose of any suit, action, proceeding or dispute arising out of or relating to the Agreement or the applicability of the Agreement, including the Exhibits thereto, and only for such purposes. Without limiting the generality of the foregoing, and without affecting the finality of this Final Order and Judgment, the Court retains exclusive jurisdiction over any such suit, action, or proceeding. Solely for purposes of such suit, action, or proceeding, to the fullest extent they may effectively do so under applicable law, the parties hereto are deemed to have irrevocably waived and agreed not to assert, by way of motion, as a defense or otherwise, any claim or objection that they are not subject to the jurisdiction of this Court, or that this Court is, in any way, an improper venue or an inconvenient forum.

20. In the event that the Class Settlements do not become effective according to the terms of the Agreement, this Final Order and Judgment shall be rendered null and void as provided by the Agreement, shall be vacated and, all orders entered and releases delivered in connection herewith shall be null and void to the extent provided by and in accordance with the Agreement.

21. No Class Member, either directly, representatively, or in any other capacity (other than a Class Member who validly and timely elected to be excluded from one or more of the Classes), shall commence, continue, or prosecute any action or proceeding against any or all Released Party or Parties in any court or tribunal asserting any of the Released Claims defined in the Agreement, and Class Members (other than Class Members who validly and timely elected to be excluded from one or more of the Classes) are hereby permanently enjoined from so proceeding.

22. Pursuant to FED. R. CIV. P. 54(b) this Court expressly finds that there are no remaining claims between Class Plaintiffs and AstraZeneca in the MDL. There are no subsequent proceedings between the Class Plaintiffs and any remaining party in the MDL that will affect the Court's decision with respect to Class Plaintiffs' settlement with AstraZeneca. No party in the MDL will be prejudiced by the immediate entry of this Final Order and Judgment in accordance with the Settlement Agreement. Pursuant to FED. R. CIV. P. 54(b), this Court expressly determines that there is no just cause for delay and expressly directs that this Final Order and Judgment, upon filing in 01-CV-12257-PBS, be deemed as a final judgment with respect to each of the Settlement Classes, and specifically all such Settlement Class Members' Released Claims against all AstraZeneca Releasees.

23. The Released Claims (as defined in Section II.II of the Agreement) are hereby dismissed with prejudice and without costs to any party, except as otherwise provided herein.

24. All private class actions included within In re Pharmaceutical Industry Average Wholesale Price Litigation, MDL No. 1456, No. 01-CV-12257-PBS (D. Mass.) are hereby dismissed with prejudice as against AstraZeneca and without costs to any party; and all of the Master Consolidated Complaint (through and including the Fifth Amended Master Consolidated Class Action Complaint) filed in the above-referenced actions are hereby dismissed with prejudice as against AstraZeneca and without costs to any party.

25. Class Counsel shall investigate the feasibility of increasing the distribution of settlement funds to Consumer Class Members. In addition, Class Counsel are authorized to issue a second round of direct mail notice to the previously-identified Consumer Class Members (using the previously approved form amended to demonstrate clearly the simplicity of what is required to receive the $400.00 Easy Refund), and shall do so as soon as practicable but in no event no later than February 28, 2011. Class Counsel shall file a report (and, if appropriate, any recommendation) with the Court on or before February 28, 2011 providing a status on matters under this paragraph. Class Counsel's completion of these matters shall not otherwise affect the finality of this Order and Judgment.

DATED: 2/22/2011

Hon. Patti B. Saris

TAB 45B

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
DISTRICT OF MASSACHUSETTS

IN RE: PHARMACEUTICAL INDUSTRY AVERAGE WHOLESALE PRICE LITIGATION	MDL NO. 1456
THIS DOCUMENT RELATES TO: ASTRAZENECA MASSACHUSETTS AND NON-MASSACHUSETTS CLASS 2 AND CLASS 3 SETTLEMENTS	CIVIL ACTION: 01-CV-12257-PBS Judge Patti B. Saris

LEAD CLASS COUNSEL'S MEMORANDUM OF LAW IN SUPPORT OF MOTION FOR ATTORNEYS' FEES AND COSTS AND COMPENSATION TO THE CLASS REPRESENTATIVES IN ASSOCIATION WITH THE ASTRAZENECA MASSACHUSETTS AND NON-MASSACHUSETTS CLASS 2 AND CLASS 3 SETTLEMENTS

TABLE OF CONTENTS

PAGE

I. INTRODUCTION 1

II. HISTORY OF THE LITIGATION 4

III. THE COURT SHOULD APPROVE THE FEE PETITION AS FAIR AND REASONABLE 4

A. Class Counsel Are Entitled To Compensation Based Upon The Benefits Created By The Litigation 4

B. The Percentage-Of-The-Fund Method Is Appropriate For Calculating Attorneys' Fees In This Circuit 5

C. The Requested Fee And Expense Award Is Fair And Reasonable As A Percentage Of The Benefits Achieved For The Class 7

D. A Cross-Check With The Lodestar Confirms The Reasonableness Of The Requested Fee And Expense Award 9

1. Plaintiffs' counsel have still not recovered their total "investment" in the case, resulting in a "negative multiplier." 9

2. We cannot isolate time and expenses devoted specifically to the AstraZeneca portion of the litigation or even to efforts limited to the claims of AstraZeneca Class 2 and 3. 10

E. The Fee Percentages Sought Ensure That Each Settlement Class Pays An Equitable Portion Of Attorneys' Fees And That A Reasonable Overall Multiplier Results For All Fees Awarded At the End Of The Case 13

F. Various Other Factors Applied By This Circuit And Others Support Class Counsel's Request 15

1. The size of the fund created and the number of people who benefit 16

2. The time and labor expended by counsel 16

3. The complexity and duration of the litigation 18

4. The risk of nonpayment 18

5. The skill and efficiency of the attorneys involved 20

IV. Class Counsel's Expenses are Reasonable and Should be Factored in the Court's Consideration of the Award 20

V. THE COURT SHOULD APPROVE COMPENSATION TO THE NAMED CLASS REPRESENTATIVES 21

VI. CONCLUSION 24

TABLE OF AUTHORITIES

Page(s)

CASES

Bebchick v. Washington Metro. Area Transit Comm'n,
805 F.2d 396 (D.C. Cir. 1986) 5

Behrens v. Wometco Enters., Inc.,
118 F.R.D. 534 (S.D. Fla. 1988), aff'd, 899 F.2d 21 (11th Cir. 1990) 19

Blum v. Stenson,
465 U.S. 886 (1984).....5

Boeing Co. v. Van Gemert,
444 U.S. 472 (1980).....4

Branch v. FDIC,
No. 91-CV-13270, 1998 WL 151249 (D. Mass. Mar. 24, 1998).....6

Brotherton v. Cleveland,
141 F. Supp. 2d 907 (S.D. Ohio 2001) 24

Bussie v. Allmerica Fin. Corp.,
1999 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 7793 (D. Mass. May 19, 1999) 23

Camden I Condo. Ass'n, Inc. v. Dunkle,
946 F.2d 768 (11th Cir. 1991) 6

Central R. & Banking Co. v. Pettus,
113 U.S. 116 (1885).....5

Conley v. Sears, Roebuck & Co.,
222 B.R. 181 (D. Mass. 1998) 7

Court Awarded Attorneys Fees, Report of the Third Circuit Task Force, 108 F.R.D. 237 (1985) 6, 14, 15

Duhaime v. John Hancock Mut. Life Ins. Co., 989 F. Supp. 375 (D. Mass. 1997) 6, 7

Eisen v. Carlisle & Jacquelin,
479 F.2d 1005 (2d Cir. 1973), vacated on other grounds, 417 U.S. 156 (1974).....19

Gaskill v. Gordon,
160 F.3d 361 (7th Cir. 1998) 7

Goldberger v. Integrated Res., Inc.,
209 F.3d 43 (2d Cir. 2000).....16, 19, 20

Gottlieb v. Barry,
43 F.3d 474 (10th Cir. 1994) 6

Gunter v. Ridgewood Energy Corp.,
223 F.3d 190 (3d Cir. 2000).....15

Hensley v. Eckerhart,
461 U.S. 424 (1983).....11

In re Activision Sec. Litig.,
723 F. Supp 1373 (N.D. Cal. 1989) 7, 8

In re Aetna Inc. Sec. Litig.,
2001 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 68 (E.D. Pa. Jan. 4, 2001) 16

In re Buspirone Antitrust Litig.,
2003 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 26538 (S.D.N.Y. Apr. 11, 2003).....7

In re Compact Disc Minimum Advertised Price Antitrust Litig.,
216 F.R.D. 197 (D. Me. 2003).....6, 7, 9

In re Compact Disc Minimum Advertised Price Antitrust Litig., 292 F. Supp. 2d 184 (D. Me. 2003) 23

In re Continental Illinois Sec. Litig.,
962 F.2d 566 (7th Cir. 1992) 6

In re Copley Pharm., Inc.,
1 F. Supp. 2d 1407 (D. Wyo. 1998).....14

In re Dun & Bradstreet Credit Servs. Customer Litig., 130 F.R.D. 366 (S.D. Ohio 1990) 24

In re Fidelity/Micron Sec. Litig.,
167 F.3d 735 (1st Cir. 1999).....4, 6, 20, 21

In re Fidelity/Micron Secs. Litig.,
1998 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 21698 (D. Mass. June 5, 1998), vacated on other grounds, 167 F.3d 735 (1st Cir. 1999) 6

In re Fleet/Norstar Secs. Litig.,
935 F. Supp. 99 (D.R.I. 1996).....7, 11

In re GMC Pick-Up Truck Fuel Tank Prods. Liab. Litig.,
55 F.3d 768 (3d Cir. 1995).....6, 15

In re Lorazepam & Clorazepate Antitrust Litig.,
2003 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 12344 (D.D.C. June 16, 2003) 7

In re Lorazepam & Clorazepate Antitrust Litig.,
205 F.R.D. 369 (D.D.C. 2002).....23

In re Lupron Mktg. & Sales Practices Litig.,
2005 U.S. Dist LEXIS 17456 (D. Mass. Aug. 17, 2005) 6

In re Merry-Go Round Enters., Inc.,
244 B.R. 327 (Bankr. D. Md. 2000) 8

In re Newbridge Networks Sec. Litig.,
1998 U.S. Dist LEXIS 23238 (D.D.C. Oct. 23, 1998).....17

In re Nineteen Appeals Arising Out of the San Juan Dupont Plaza Hotel Fire Litig.,
982 F.2d 603 (1st Cir. 1992).....20

In re Pacific Enters. Sec. Litig.,
47 F.3d 373 (9th Cir. 1995) 7

In re Prudential Ins. Co. of Am. Sales Practices Litig.,
148 F.3d 283 (3d Cir. 1998).....11

In re Relafen Antitrust Litig.,
231 F.R.D. 52 (D. Mass. 2005).....6, 7

In re Revco Litig.,
1992 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 7852 (N.D. Ohio May 5, 1992).....24

In re Rite Aid Corp. Secs. Litig.,
146 F. Supp. 2d 706 (E.D. Pa. 2001) 14

In re Southern Ohio Correctional Facility,
175 F.R.D. 270 (S.D. Ohio 1997) 23

In re Thirteen Appeals Arising Out of the San Juan Dupont Plaza Hotel Fire Litig., 56 F.3d 295 (1st Cir. 1995)..... passim

In re Vitamins Antitrust Litig.,
2001 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 25067 (D.D.C. July 13, 2001).....7, 20

In re Warner Commc'ns Sec. Litig.,
618 F. Supp. 735 (S.D.N.Y. 1985), aff'd, 798 F.2d 35 (2d Cir. 1986).....20

Lipsett v. Blanco,
975 F.2d 934 (1st Cir. 1992).....10

Mashburn v. Nat'l Healthcare, Inc.,
684 F. Supp. 679 (M.D. Ala. 1988) 5

MCI Commc'ns Corp. v. American Tel. & Tel. Co.,
708 F.2d 1081 (7th Cir. 1983) 19

Rawlings v. Prudential-Bache Props., Inc.,
9 F.3d 513 (6th Cir. 1993) 6

Roberts v. Texaco, Inc.,
979 F. Supp. 185 (S.D.N.Y. 1997).....24

Rosenbaum v. MacAllister,
64 F.3d 1439 (10th Cir. 1995) 20

Six Mexican Workers v. Arizona Citrus Growers,
904 F.2d 1301 (9th Cir. 1990) 6

Sprague v. Ticonic Nat'l Bank,
307 U.S. 161 (1939).....5

Swedish Hosp. Corp. v. Shalala,
1 F.3d 1261 (D.C. Cir. 1993).....6

Trustees v. Greenough,
105 U.S. 527 (1882).....5

United States Football League v. National Football League,
644 F. Supp. 1040 (S.D.N.Y. 1986), aff'd, 842 F.2d 1335 (2d Cir. 1988).....19

Vizcaino v. Microsoft Corp.,
290 F.3d 1043 (9th Cir. 2002) 8

OTHER AUTHORITIES

Frederick C. Dunbar, Todd S. Foster, Vinita M. Juneja, Denise N. Martin, Recent Trends III: What Explains Settlements in Shareholder Class Actions?
(NERA, June 1995).....8

MANUAL FOR COMPLEX LITIGATION § 14.121.....6, 8

MANUAL FOR COMPLEX LITIGATION § 14.122 9

I. INTRODUCTION

As detailed in Class Plaintiffs' Combined Memorandum of Law in Support of Joint Motions for Final Approval of Massachusetts and Non-Massachusetts Class 2 and Class 3 AstraZeneca Settlements filed contemporaneously herewith, AstraZeneca has agreed to pay TPP and consumer Class Members who file valid claims up to an aggregate total of $103 million. The Settlement of this ground-breaking litigation provides real, immediate, and substantial cash benefits for each Class Member who submits a valid claim. Consumer Class Members are eligible to receive triple their damages for Zoladex payments made during an expanded Heartland Period.

Class Counsel now seek an award of attorneys' fees and expenses and compensation to the class representatives in association with the AstraZeneca Massachusetts and non-Massachusetts Class 2 and Class 3 settlements. Class Counsel respectfully request that the Court approve a combined fee and cost award of $34,329,900, to be paid from the settlement funds. This represents 331/3 percent of the total $103 million settlement amount for both settlements.

Class Counsel also request that the Court approve compensation for the Class Representatives in the total amount of $32,100.00 which, as set forth in the Declarations attached to this Memorandum, constitutes 40% of $100 per hour for the time that each Representative spent providing documents and testimony in connection with this case. Like the attorneys' fees and expenses, these amounts will be paid from the settlement funds.

The requested attorneys' fee and cost award is reasonable in light not only of the excellent results achieved for the Classes but also the risks involved in undertaking this unique and highly complex matter and the immense effort required in litigating the claims. From its inception, this case has been intensely fought, as AstraZeneca, like the other Defendants, challenged discovery, class certification and liability. The parties challenged each other virtually every step of the way. Indeed, the Class 2 and Class 3 Massachusetts claims were tried to a bench verdict; the verdict was sustained on appeal in the First Circuit; AstraZeneca filed a certiorari petition with the Supreme Court; and these Settlements then resulted after arduous negotiations. Litigating this case has required immense time, energy and resources from Class Counsel. Furthermore, as the Court is well aware, the claims involve extremely complex and challenging issues of fact and law.

Class Counsel faced considerable risk in proceeding on a wholly contingent-fee basis. They have foregone other opportunities, devoting their time to this matter instead of others. To date, Class Counsel have been awarded compensation for only two settlements in the nearly ten years this action has been pending: $21,615,000 out of the proceeds of the GSK settlement and $8,580,000 in connection with the AstraZeneca Class 1 Settlement, for a total of $30,195,000. In contrast, for the entire AWP litigation against all Defendants from the inception of this case in 2001 through October 31, 2010, Plaintiffs' counsel have accumulated a total lodestar of $70,092,220 and incurred expenses totaling $9,401,741,[1] for a total case "investment" of $79,493,961.[2] If the Court grants the present fee request of $34,439,900, which would bring the total fee and cost award for all AWP settlements here to $64,524,900, Plaintiffs' counsel will not yet recover their total investment in the actions, let alone their lodestar.

[1] The Declaration of Marc H. Edelson In Support Of Lead Class Counsel's Motion For Attorneys' Fees And Costs in Association with the AstraZeneca Massachusetts and non-Massachusetts Class 2/Class 3 Settlements ("Edelson Decl."), submitted herewith, sets forth the breakdown of total unaudited attorney hours, fees and expenses incurred from inception through October 31, 2010. Class Counsel will provide back-up for all attorneys' fees and expenses sought for reimbursement, if the Court wishes. We also note that it is possible that we have not received complete information from all counsel and that, consequently, the lodestar information attached to the Edelson Declaration may change. Nonetheless, we believe that it is a reasonable approximation of the hours and expenses incurred by counsel through October 31, 2010. Edelson Decl., ¶ 9.

[2] As the Court is aware, the MDL includes multiple Defendants in two separate tracks, and this Settlement resolves claims against only AstraZeneca. Due to the nature of the allegations, it is not possible to attribute each attorney hour or particular expenditure to litigation against a particular Defendant. Some items could be allocated to specific Defendants, but many more – for example discovery from third parties and research on particular legal or factual issues that apply to all Defendants – cannot be separately attributed to a particular Defendant.

However, global settlements with BMS and the Track 2 Defendants are pending. If those settlements are approved, and if the Court grants the anticipated fee requests, Plaintiffs' counsel will recover their collective lodestar plus a small multiplier. The table below sets forth each AWP class settlement (both actual and anticipated), the actual fees awarded to date in the AWP class actions, and projected fee awards if the Court grants the anticipated requests. As shown, estimated fees for all AWP class action settlements could total $108,357,800.

Settlement Award	Amount of Actual/Projected Fee and Cost Awards	Awards as a Percent of Settlement Value
GSK Global Settlement (approved)	$ 21,615,000	33⅓%
AstraZeneca Class 1 Settlement (approved)	8,580,000	30%
AstraZeneca Class 2/3 (requested here)	34,329,900	33⅓%
BMS Global Settlement (to be requested)	6,332,900	33⅓%
Track 2 Global Settlement (to be requested)	37,500,000	30%
Total	$ 108,357,800

A total projected fee and cost award of $108,357,800 modestly exceeds Plaintiffs' counsels' collective lodestar of $70,092,220 as of October 31, 2010, resulting in a small and very reasonable multiplier of 1.55, even though the overall results achieved in the AWP litigation should warrant a larger multiplier. If Plaintiffs' counsels' collective expenses of $9,401,741 are included in the analysis, the multiplier drops to 1.36. These multiplier cross-checks should assure the Court that counsel's overall compensation for all settlements is fair and reasonable.

The results in this complex litigation and the effort required well support the requested attorneys' fee and expense award here, which is justified by relevant factors considered by courts in this Circuit and others, is in line with the fees that Class Counsel could have obtained at arm's-length in the open market, and, when added to prior and anticipated fee awards, will result in reasonable overall compensation for Plaintiffs' counsels' substantial efforts in litigating and resolving all AWP class actions pending before this Court. Therefore, Class Counsel respectfully request that the Court grant this petition.

II. HISTORY OF THE LITIGATION

The Court is well acquainted with the history of this complex case and the unique challenges that Class Counsel have faced in representing their clients and the Classes against a array of sophisticated and well-represented Defendants, including AstraZeneca. Rather than repeat here the outlines of Plaintiffs' allegations, the history of Class Counsel's efforts, and the details of the Massachusetts and non-Massachusetts Class 2 and Class 3 Settlements, Class Counsel respectfully refer the Court to in Class Plaintiffs' Combined Memorandum of Law in Support of Joint Motions for Final Approval of Massachusetts and non-Massachusetts Class 2 and Class 3 AstraZeneca Settlements filed contemporaneously herewith and which is incorporated herein by this reference.

III. THE COURT SHOULD APPROVE THE FEE PETITION AS FAIR AND REASONABLE

A. Class Counsel Are Entitled To Compensation Based Upon The Benefits Created By The Litigation

Courts have long recognized that a lawyer who recovers a "common fund" is entitled to reasonable attorney fees from the fund as a whole. Boeing Co. v. Van Gemert, 444 U.S. 472, 478 (1980); In re Thirteen Appeals Arising Out of the San Juan Dupont Plaza Hotel Fire Litig., 56 F.3d 295, 305 n.6 (1st Cir. 1995) ("[t]he common fund doctrine is founded on the equitable principle that those who have profited from litigation should share its costs"); In re Fidelity/Micron Sec. Litig., 167 F.3d 735, 737 (1st Cir. 1999) ("lawyers whose efforts succeed in creating a common fund for the benefit of a class are entitled not only to reasonable fees, but also to recover from the fund, as a general matter, expenses, reasonable in amount, that were necessary to bring the action to a climax"). "The 'common fund' doctrine is designed to spread the costs of litigation among all the beneficiaries of an identifiable fund over which a court can exercise legitimate control, in effect guarding against the unjust enrichment of passive beneficiaries at the expense of the active beneficiary." Bebchick v. Washington Metro. Area Transit Comm'n, 805 F.2d 396, 402 (D.C. Cir. 1986).

Substantial fee awards in successful cases, such as the present action, encourage and support meritorious class actions, and promote private enforcement of, and compliance with, various RICO and consumer protection laws. Moreover, awards of attorney fees help to ensure adequate enforcement of class members' legal rights. "[A] financial incentive is necessary to entice capable attorneys, who otherwise could be paid regularly by hourly-rate clients, to devote their time to complex, time-consuming cases for which they may never be paid." Mashburn v. Nat'l Healthcare, Inc., 684 F. Supp. 679, 687 (M.D. Ala. 1988).

B. The Percentage-Of-The-Fund Method Is Appropriate For Calculating Attorneys' Fees In This Circuit

The Supreme Court has repeatedly held in cases involving the computation of a common fund fee award that it is appropriate for the fee to be determined as a percentage-of-the-fund. See Blum v. Stenson, 465 U.S. 886, 900 n.16 (1984) ("under the common fund doctrine … a reasonable fee is based on a percentage of the fund bestowed on the class"); see also Sprague v. Ticonic Nat'l Bank, 307 U.S. 161, 165-66 (1939); Central R. & Banking Co. v. Pettus, 113 U.S. 116, 124-25 (1885); Trustees v. Greenough, 105 U.S. 527, 532 (1882). In a percentage fee award, the fee is measured by the benefit conferred upon the class.

The First Circuit has left it to the trial court's discretion as to whether to apply the lodestar or percentage-of-the-fund ("POF") method or a combination of the two to award attorneys' fees. In re Thirteen Appeals, 56 F.3d at 308. In adopting what it termed this "malleable" approach, the court recognized that the POF is the prevailing method because it has distinct advantages in complex cases. For example, it is less burdensome to administer,[3] reduces the possibility of collateral disputes, enhances efficiency throughout the litigation, and better approximates the workings of the marketplace. See In re Thirteen Appeals, 56 F.3d at 307-08; see also In re Fidelity/Micron, 167 F.3d at 737.[4]

As a result, many district courts within the First Circuit have indicated their preference for the POF method over the lodestar method. See, e.g., In re Relafen Antitrust Litig., 231 F.R.D. 52, 79 (D. Mass. 2005); In re Lupron Mktg. & Sales Practices Litig., 2005 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 17456, at *9 (D. Mass. Aug. 17, 2005); In re Fidelity/Micron Secs. Litig., 1998 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 21698 (D. Mass. June 5, 1998), vacated on other grounds, 167 F.3d 735 (1st Cir. 1999); Branch v. FDIC, No. 91-CV-13270, 1998 WL 151249, at *2-4 (D. Mass. Mar. 24, 1998); In re Compact Disc Minimum Advertised Price Antitrust Litig., 216 F.R.D. 197, 215 (D. Me. 2003) (describing the method as determining whether the "total fee [is] reasonable when examined as a percentage of recovery"); Duhaime v. John Hancock Mut. Life Ins. Co., 989 F. Supp. 375, 377

[3] "Rather than forcing the judge to review the time records of a multitude of attorneys in order to determine the necessity and reasonableness of every hour expended, the POF method permits the judge to focus on 'a showing that the fund conferring a benefit on the class resulted from' the lawyers' efforts." Id. at 307 (quoting Camden I Condo. Ass'n, Inc. v. Dunkle, 946 F.2d 768, 774 (11th Cir. 1991)).

[4] The trend in this Circuit is consistent with the decisions nationwide awarding fees in common fund cases based on a percentage of the total recovery. See MANUAL FOR COMPLEX LITIGATION (FOURTH) § 14.121 (4th ed. 2009) ("[T]he vast majority of courts of appeals now permit or direct district courts to use the percentage-fee method in common-fund cases."). In addition to this Circuit, at least nine other circuits – the Second, Third, Sixth, Seventh, Eighth, Ninth, Tenth, Eleventh, and District of Columbia – have accepted the POF method as an appropriate method for awarding attorneys' fees. See In re GMC Pick-Up Truck Fuel Tank Prods. Liab. Litig., 55 F.3d 768, 822 (3d Cir. 1995) ("[i]n common fund cases, a district judge can award attorneys' fees as a percentage of the fund recovered," and in prior cases "fee awards have ranged from nineteen percent to forty-five percent of the settlement fund"); Gottlieb v. Barry, 43 F.3d 474, 487 (10th Cir. 1994) (fee award should be calculated using the percentage method; "use of the lodestar in common fund cases is 'out of fashion'"); Rawlings v. Prudential-Bache Props., Inc., 9 F.3d 513, 515-16 (6th Cir. 1993) (noting "the recent trend towards adoption of a percentage of the fund method," and permitting use of the "percentage of the fund method" in common fund cases); Swedish Hosp. Corp. v. Shalala, 1 F.3d 1261, 1271 (D.C. Cir. 1993) ("percentage-of-the-fund method is the appropriate mechanism for determining the attorney fees award in common fund cases"); In re Continental Illinois Sec. Litig., 962 F.2d 566, 572 (7th Cir. 1992) (fee award should not be based on "individual hours," but rather on the percentage that counsel "would have received had they handled a similar suit on a contingent fee basis, with a similar outcome, for a paying client"); Camden I Condo. Ass'n v. Dunkle, 946 F.2d 768, 744-45 (11th Cir. 1991) (percentage method mandatory in common fund cases); Six Mexican Workers v. Arizona Citrus Growers, 904 F.2d 1301, 1311 (9th Cir. 1990) ("a reasonable fee under the common fund doctrine is calculated as a percentage of the recovery"); Court Awarded Attorney Fees, Report of the Third Circuit Task Force, 108 F.R.D. 237, 254-59 (1985).

(D. Mass. 1997); Conley v. Sears, Roebuck & Co., 222 B.R. 181, 187 (D. Mass. 1998); In re Fleet/Norstar Secs. Litig., 935 F. Supp. 99, 108 (D.R.I. 1996).

In this case in particular, where there are multiple Defendants and the Court is considering only the fee related to settlement of a single Defendant, use of the POF method saves the Court and the parties from the near impossible task of allocating the particular hours of the many attorneys involved to a particular Defendant. This Court has already used the POF approach in awarding fees associated with the GSK and AstraZeneca Class 1 settlements.

C. The Requested Fee And Expense Award Is Fair And Reasonable As A Percentage Of The Benefits Achieved For The Class

Courts have approved fee awards in common fund cases in the range of 25-45%. See, e.g., In re Relafen Antitrust Litig., 231 F.R.D. 52 (D. Mass. 2005) (awarding class counsel $22,311,000 in fees or 33% of class fund of $67,000,000, plus a separate award of litigation expenses in the amount of $1,297,301); In re Fleet/Norstar, 935 F. Supp. at 109; Conley, 222 B.R. at 187; In re Compact Disc, 216 F.R.D. at 216 n.45; Gaskill v. Gordon, 160 F.3d 361, 363-64 (7th Cir. 1998) (affirming award of 38% of class action settlement fund); In re Pacific Enters. Sec. Litig., 47 F.3d 373, 379 (9th Cir. 1995) (awarding 33% of $12 million common settlement fund); In re Buspirone Antitrust Litig., 2003 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 26538, at *11 (S.D.N.Y. Apr. 11, 2003) (awarding fees of 33⅓% of $220 million common fund to Direct Purchaser Plaintiff's Class Counsel); In re Lorazepam & Clorazepate Antitrust Litig., 2003 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 12344 (D.D.C. June 16, 2003) (awarding class counsel 30% of the common fund); In re Vitamins Antitrust Litig., 2001 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 25067, at *57 (D.D.C. July 13, 2001) (determining that the one-third award was reasonable and granting class counsel fee petition in the amount of $123,188,032 plus interest, or approximately 34% of the total estimated settlement amount, in antitrust price fixing litigation); In re Activision Sec. Litig., 723 F. Supp 1373, 1375 (N.D. Cal.

1989) (awarding a 32.8% fee and adopting a "policy of awarding approximately 30% of the fund as attorneys' fees in the ordinary case," as "well-justified in light of the lengthy line of cases which find such an award appropriate and reasonable…").

In Vizcaino v. Microsoft Corp., 290 F.3d 1043, 1050 n.4 (9th Cir. 2002), the court included an exhaustive table of 34 cases generating revenues ranging from $54 million to $185 million, all of which generated fees of 30% or more, including the case at the high end of the scale (45%), the $185 million settlement in In re Merry-Go Round Enters., Inc., 244 B.R. 327 (Bankr. D. Md. 2000). See also Frederick C. Dunbar, Todd S. Foster, Vinita M. Juneja, Denise N. Martin, Recent Trends III: What Explains Settlements in Shareholder Class Actions? (NERA, June 1995) (finding that "[r]egardless of case size, fees average approximately 32 percent of the settlement"); see also MANUAL FOR COMPLEX LITIGATION § 14.121 ("Attorney fees awarded under the percentage method are often between 25% and 30% of the fund.").

The Court approved a 33⅓ percent fee and cost award in association with the GSK Settlement as well as a fee and cost award that amounted to 30 percent of the fund with respect to the AstraZeneca Class 1 Settlement. In hearings and in its orders related to these settlements, the Court has recognized that the risks incurred by Class Counsel and the results achieved for the Class have warranted the fee awards:

> Well, I do think one-third is appropriate. I might say that, for the record, I approved that in the other case [GSK]. I think this was an incredibly risky piece of litigation which was cutting-edge and no certainty of success. The pharmaceutical companies have done a fabulous job defending it, and it was fought tooth and nail the entire way along with the best firms in the country.

May 1, 2008 Hearing Tr. at 24 (AstraZeneca Class 1 Settlement Hearing).

The instant request falls within the foregoing ranges of reasonableness. The Settlement Amount is $103 million, and the combined $34,329,900 fee and expense request is 33.33% of the amount.

D. A Cross-Check With The Lodestar Confirms The Reasonableness Of The Requested Fee And Expense Award

1. Plaintiffs' counsel have still not recovered their total "investment" in the case, resulting in a "negative multiplier."

As noted, the First Circuit also provides the Court with the discretion to employ the lodestar approach (reasonable hours spent times reasonable hourly rated, subject to a multiplier or discount for special circumstances, plus reasonable disbursements) in combination with the POF approach. In re Thirteen Appeals, 56 F.3d at 307; In re Compact Disc, 216 F.R.D. at 215-16; see also MANUAL FOR COMPLEX LITIGATION § 14.122 ("the lodestar is … useful as a cross-check on the percentage method by estimating the number of hours spent on the litigation and the hourly rate, using affidavits and other information provided by the fee applicant. The total lodestar estimate is then divided into the proposed fee calculated under the percentage method. The resulting figure represents the lodestar multiplier to compare to multipliers in other cases.").

The total lodestar accumulated by Plaintiffs' counsel as of October 31, 2010, was $70,092,220. Edelson Decl., ¶ 5. Additionally, Class Counsel have expended $9,401,741 in litigation related expenses. Edelson Decl., ¶ 6. Both numbers represent all effort and expenses for all AWP class actions pending before this Court. The lodestar calculation is based on each law firm's historic rate (those in effect when the work was done, over the nearly ten years this case has been pending). Class Counsel are providing this historic rate calculation because it is more conservative, even though the First Circuit has noted the appropriateness of calculating the lodestar on current hourly rates (i.e., in this case, those in effect in 2010 at each firm) because of the delay in payment of the fees to the firms performing the work, as well as other factors. See Lipsett v. Blanco, 975 F.2d 934, 942-43 (1st Cir. 1992). Given this precedent, it would be appropriate to calculate the lodestar of all firms at current rates, which would yield a higher total lodestar.

To date, Class Counsel have been awarded compensation for only two settlements in the nearly ten years this action has been pending: $21,615,000 out of the proceeds of the GSK settlement and $8,580,000 in connection with the AstraZeneca Class 1 Settlement, for a total of $30,195,000. If the Court awards the $34,329,900 requested here, this total will increase to $64,524,900, resulting in a negative multiplier. In other words, if the Court were to grant the requested fee/cost award, Plaintiffs' counsel still will not have recovered their total investment in the AWP class actions, let alone a multiplier for their significant efforts in recovering almost $200 million for the GSK and AstraZeneca classes.

The "negative" multiplier here is a result of the fact that the Settlement at issue involves only one of multiple Defendants. However, it underscores the risks undertaken by Class Counsel in this matter and the fact that an enormous amount of time and money has been invested in this important and ground breaking litigation.

2. We cannot isolate time and expenses devoted specifically to the AstraZeneca portion of the litigation or even to efforts limited to the claims of AstraZeneca Class 2 and 3.

In previous hearings, the Court has asked Class Counsel how time can be divided to isolate efforts related to specific Defendants. This would be a daunting and monumental task. More than 250 attorneys have spent time working on this case for plaintiffs, a testament to the breathtaking scope and complexity of this litigation. Indeed, attorneys and paralegals had collectively billed 220,440 hours as of October 31, 2010. Edelson Decl., ¶ 5. The sheer number of work hours underpinning the lodestar highlights how time-consuming and burdensome a detailed lodestar inquiry would be and demonstrates why the POF approach works best for this litigation. See In re Prudential Ins. Co. of Am. Sales Practices Litig., 148 F.3d 283, 331 (3d Cir. 1998); In re Fleet/Norstar Sec. Litig., 935 F. Supp. at 108. It is extremely difficult to apportion those hours by Defendant or to attribute a specific lodestar to the group of Track 2 Defendants given the breadth of common issues and the number of tasks completed over the last nine-plus years. An attempt to do so would involve a very time-consuming and expensive audit and even then may not result in an accurate estimate.

In addressing multiple claims based on a core of common facts, the Supreme Court has recognized that the focus should be placed on the overall relief provided:

> In other cases the plaintiff's claims for relief will involve a "common core of facts" or will be based on related legal theories. Much of counsel's time will be devoted generally to the litigation as a whole, making it difficult to divide the hours expended on a claim-by-claim basis. Such a lawsuit cannot be viewed as a series of discrete claims. Instead the district court should focus on the significance of the overall relief obtained by the plaintiff in relation to the hours reasonably expended on the litigation.
>
> Where a plaintiff has obtained excellent results, his attorneys should recover a fully compensatory fee.

Hensley v. Eckerhart, 461 U.S. 424, 434-35 (1983).

The same concept applies here to claims against multiple defendants where common issues are inextricably intertwined. An immense amount of work was done on common issues, work that cannot be segregated from other aspects of the prosecution. This work includes researching and drafting complaints; working on issues related to the initial MDL motions; a panoply of issues related to the use of AWP as a benchmark in the Medicare program and in the private insurance market; legal research and drafting of briefs on the joint motions to dismiss, joint motions for summary judgment, and briefing associated with class certification; coordination with experts regarding class certification issues; motions and discovery related to many third parties, including governmental organizations, trade associations and the hundreds of insurers, pharmacies and other market participants subpoenaed by Defendants. Even the work of the Class 2/Class 3 trial was devoted to four separate defendants and, therefore, the work on that trial could not be reasonably segregated.

This Court has previously recognized the difficulty in apportioning lodestar to specific Defendants: "A percentage-of-fund approach makes more sense because this multi-district litigation has many moving parts with common issues and it would be too difficult to calculate a fair lodestar for this piece of the litigation." Memorandum and Order Re: Requested Final Approval of the AstraZeneca Class 1 Settlement (Dkt. No. 5624) at 4.

Because of the challenges outlined above, and because the fee amount requested is undoubtedly reasonable under the POF method, no effort was made to determine the precise amount of fees that would be specifically attributable to prosecuting the case on behalf of Class 2 and Class 3 against AstraZeneca, which Class Counsel believe cannot be done.[5] Given the "extremely broad" discretion that the Court has in evaluating an attorneys' fee and cost petition in class litigation, In re Thirteen Appeals, 56 F.3d at 309 (emphasis added), Class Counsel strongly believe that the foregoing lodestar and expense information suffices for purposes of a rough cross-check on the reasonableness of the POF fee and cost award.

[5] As with attempting to calculate a lodestar specific to the Class 2/Class 3 AstraZeneca cases, splitting expenses that way is also very difficult to do given the existence of so many common issues. Moreover, the very nature of the expenses themselves makes allocation by defendant extremely difficult. Counsel did not track expenses by Defendant and, with some limited exceptions, we are unable to go back and re-assign expenses by Defendant. These include expenses incurred for expert work, including the development of Dr. Rosenthal and Dr. Hartman's many reports; Court fees (including fees incurred for use of the Court's electronic filing system); subpoena costs; technology services, including maintaining and servicing computer stations for document review; mail and fax charges; computer research charges (e.g., Lexis/Nexis); photocopy expenses; and some travel expenses. All of the expenses incurred were reasonable and necessary for the prosecution of this litigation, even though they are not amenable to division by particular Defendant. It may be possible to construct an expense allocation model taking into consideration reasonable assumptions based on the number of defendants, but this would be very time consuming and not necessary where the lodestar and expense estimate is used as a cross-check to the POF approach.

E. The Fee Percentages Sought Ensure That Each Settlement Class Pays An Equitable Portion Of Attorneys' Fees And That A Reasonable Overall Multiplier Results For All Fees Awarded At the End Of The Case

As Class Counsel have previously explained, their goal is to request approximately one-third of the value of each settlement in order to ensure that (i) the aggregate attorneys' fee award is, at the end of all settlements, in the "ballpark" of the one-third benchmark, and (ii) each settlement Class pays an equitable share of attorneys' fees. We believe that this responds to the Court's frequently expressed concern that attorneys' fee awards remain reasonable across all settlements.

Comparing the actual and projected fee and cost recovery in this case against Plaintiffs' Counsel's collective lodestar accentuates the reasonableness of the percentage approach recommended by Class Counsel. Global settlements with BMS and the Track 2 Defendants are pending. If those settlements are approved, and if the Court grants the anticipated fee requests, Plaintiffs' counsel will recover their collective lodestar plus a small multiplier. The table below sets forth each AWP class settlement (both actual and anticipated), the actual fees awarded to date in the AWP class actions, and projected fee awards if the Court grants the anticipated requests. As shown, estimated fees for all AWP class action settlements could total $108,357,800.

Settlement Award	Amount of Actual/Projected Fee and Cost Awards	Awards as a Percent of Settlement Value
GSK Global Settlement (approved)	$ 21,615,000	$33^{1/3}$%
AstraZeneca Class 1 Settlement (approved)	8,580,000	30%
AstraZeneca Class 2/3 (requested here)	34,329,900	$33^{1/3}$%
BMS Global Settlement (to be requested)	6,332,900	$33^{1/3}$%
Track 2 Global Settlement (to be requested)	37,500,000	30%
Total	$ 108,357,800

If the foregoing settlements are all approved, there will be no further settlements in the AWP MDL class actions and, therefore, no further fee petitions. A total projected fee and cost award of $108,357,800 will modestly exceed Plaintiffs' counsels' collective lodestar of $70,092,220 as of October 31, 2010, resulting in a small and very reasonable multiplier of 1.55, even though the overall results achieved in the AWP litigation should warrant a larger multiplier. If Plaintiffs' counsels' collective expenses of $9,401,741 are included, total case "investment" rises to just under $80 million ($79,493,961), and the multiplier drops to 1.36. And Lead Class Counsel will continue to incur additional time and expenses if and until all settlements are finalized. Given the multipliers approved in many other cases, Class Counsel's request here is more than reasonable. See In re Copley Pharm., Inc., 1 F. Supp. 2d 1407, 1415 (D. Wyo. 1998) (finding a multiplier of two to be reasonable based on these factors); see also In re Rite Aid Corp. Secs. Litig., 146 F. Supp. 2d 706, 736 n.44 (E.D. Pa. 2001) (concluding that, under the cross-check approach, a lodestar multiple in the range of 4.5 to 8.5 is "unquestionably reasonable"); Third Circuit Task Force, 108 F.R.D. at 265 (suggesting that courts consider the "contingency factor" in all common fund cases).

An award of approximately one-third of the value of each settlement at each step along the way will lead to a reasonable, overall fee and cost award to Class Counsel. It will also further the First Circuit fee award guideposts of ease of administration, a reduction in the possibility of collateral disputes, enhanced efficiency throughout the litigation, and a better approximation of the workings of the marketplace. In re Thirteen Appeals, 56 F.3d at 307-08.

Moreover, the fees paid by each settlement class are proportional to the settlement amounts assignable to each settlement class, as the following table demonstrates:

Settlement	Settlement Amount	Percent of Total AWP Settlement Amounts	Actual/Projected Fee and Cost Awards	Percent of Total AWP Fees
GSK Global	$ 65,500,000	19.2	$ 21,615,000	20
Astra Class 1	28,600,000	8.4	8,580,000	7.9
BMS Class 1	19,000,000	5.6	6,332,900	5.8
Astra Class 2/3	103,000,000	30.2	34,329,900	31.7
Track 2 Global	125,000,000	36.6	37,500,000	34.6
Total	$ 341,100,000		$ 108,357,800

In other words, the AstraZeneca Class 2/3 fee award, if granted, will ultimately represent 34.6 percent of all fees awarded in the AWP litigation. This is roughly commensurate with the value of the AstraZeneca Class 2/3 settlements as a percentage of all AWP settlement values: 36.6%. And this analysis demonstrates that no settlement class will shoulder a disproportionate share of attorneys' fees.

F. Various Other Factors Applied By This Circuit And Others Support Class Counsel's Request

The First Circuit has not required that lower courts use a particular set of factors to determine the reasonableness of the fee request. However, the Third Circuit Task Force Report approved certain factors to assist courts in this analysis. Among other things, these factors include: (i) the size of the fund created and the number of persons benefited; (ii) the skill and efficiency of the attorneys involved; (iii) the complexity and duration of the litigation; (iv) the risk of nonpayment; (v) the amount of time devoted to the case by plaintiffs' counsel; and (vi) the awards in similar cases. See Third Circuit Task Force, 108 F.R.D. at 245; see also Gunter v. Ridgewood Energy Corp., 223 F.3d 190, 195 n.1 (3d Cir. 2000) (applying factors); In re GMC Pick-up Truck, 55 F.3d at 819-22 (same). The Second Circuit has adopted a similar list of factors: the time and labor expended by Class Counsel, the complexities of the litigation, the risks borne by Class Counsel in litigating this case on a contingency fee basis, the quality of the representation provided, the fee request in relation to the settlement, public policy considerations and the reaction of the Class to the settlement. See Goldberger v. Integrated Res., Inc., 209 F.3d 43, 50 (2d Cir. 2000).

Applying these factors, the award for both fees and litigation expenses in this case is fair and reasonable.

1. The size of the fund created and the number of people who benefit

The total fund eligible to be claimed is $103,000,000 and will benefit thousands of consumers. The Settlement is described at length in Class Plaintiffs' Combined Memorandum of Law in Support of Joint Motions for Final Approval of Massachusetts and non-Massachusetts Class 2 and Class 3 AstraZeneca Settlements, filed simultaneously herewith. To avoid duplication, Class Counsel hereby incorporate that description by reference.

2. The time and labor expended by counsel

Class Counsel have been investigating and litigating this case intensely and thoroughly for nearly a decade. Class Counsel have devoted considerable time, energy, and resources from the beginning of this case through discovery and motion practice, through a Class 2 and 3 Massachusetts trial, an appeal to the First Circuit Court of Appeals, and until settlement. From the very beginning, "Defendants mounted an aggressive and vigorous defense throughout the course of this litigation." In re Aetna Inc. Sec. Litig., 2001 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 68, at *46 (E.D. Pa. Jan. 4, 2001). Indeed, AstraZeneca still vigorously disputes that it engaged in any wrongful conduct or violation of law and, when these Settlements were reached, had filed a Petition for Certiorari with the United States Supreme Court.

This litigation required an all-out effort by Class Counsel. First, the motion practice in this case has in and of itself required enormous work, as the case raised many complex and difficult legal and factual issues. This required Class Counsel to oppose more than one round of substantial motions to dismiss as well as class certification motions. Second, discovery in this case was extensive. Class Counsel had to devote substantial energy and thousands of hours in obtaining, inventorying, and examining millions of documents produced by AstraZeneca. Even more time and effort was necessary to cull those documents and create a useful database – an invaluable tool for identifying key issues and evidence for depositions and possible trial. Additionally, Class Counsel conducted over 40 depositions of AstraZeneca's current and former employees, including senior managers, consultants, and contractors, as well as relevant third-parties, including reimbursement consultants and doctors targeted by AstraZeneca's Zoladex sales team. The depositions resulted in nearly 700 marked deposition exhibits. Declaration of Steve W. Berman In Support of Lead Class Counsel's Memorandum of Law in Support of Motion for Attorneys' Fees and Costs and Compensation to the Class Representatives in Association with the AstraZeneca Massachusetts and Non-Massachusetts Class 2 and Class 3 Settlements (the "Berman Decl."), ¶ 21.

Class Counsel also spent considerable time consulting with economic experts concerning the economic impact of Defendants' scheme on the Class and the measure and amount of damages to the Class. Id. at ¶¶ 24, 25, 32. And Class Counsel spent many hours researching and briefing complex legal issues for more than one round of motions to dismiss and class certification motions. Id. at ¶¶ 12-15, 23-29, 34-35. These "efforts in posturing this case for trial … played a role in spurring the settlement [and] produced a substantial payout to the class." In re Newbridge Networks Sec. Litig., 1998 U.S. Dist LEXIS 23238, at *11 (D.D.C. Oct. 23, 1998).

Throughout this entire process, Class Counsel have litigated this case with extreme efficiency. The bulk of the work was handled by a small number of experienced attorneys.

Assignments were allocated so that work was performed expeditiously, efficiently and in an organized manner. Review and repetition was avoided. Berman Decl., ¶ 18.

Moreover, the significant investment of time required by this action necessarily precluded Class Counsel from working on other matters. Class Counsel expended hours and incurred expenses in prosecuting this case, and were prepared to put at risk more time and money had the AstraZeneca Class 2 and Class 3 litigation not settled. Id. at ¶¶ 41, 42.

Based on all of the above factors, the fee and expense award requested by Class Counsel is reasonable in light of the risk, quantity, and quality of work expended by Class Counsel over nearly ten years.

3. The complexity and duration of the litigation

The complexity of the issues and the duration of the litigation support the award requested. Class actions alleging violations of RICO and fraud, particularly in the pharmaceutical reimbursement context, are arguably the most complex class actions to prosecute because the legal and factual issues are inherently complicated and uncertain. In fact, in addition to the legal issues involved in overcoming the Defendants' motions to dismiss, this case involved some highly technical and complex issues with regard to pharmaceutical reimbursement systems, pharmacy benefit manager contracting, health insurance, federal regulation, and preemption. These legal issues required exhaustive research and briefing.

4. The risk of nonpayment

A determination of a fair fee must include consideration of the uncertain nature of the fee, the wholly contingent outlay of large out-of-pocket sums by Plaintiffs' counsel, and the fact that the risks of failure and nonpayment are extremely high. Many cases recognize that attorneys' risk is "perhaps the foremost factor" in determining an appropriate fee award. Goldberger, 209

F.3d at 54 (citation omitted). In Behrens v. Wometco Enters., Inc., 118 F.R.D. 534, 548 (S.D. Fla. 1988), aff'd, 899 F.2d 21 (11th Cir. 1990), the court noted that:

> Generally, the contingency arrangement must be promoted to assure representation when a person could not otherwise afford the services of a lawyer… A contingency fee arrangement often justifies an increase in the award of attorneys' fees. This rule helps assure that the contingency fee arrangement endures. If this 'bonus' methodology did not exist, very few lawyers could take on the representation of a class client given the investment of substantial time, effort, and money, especially in light of the risks of recovering nothing. [Id. (citations omitted).]

The history of complex litigation is replete with cases in which plaintiffs succeeded at trial on liability, but recovered no damages or very small damages at trial or after appeal. See, e.g., United States Football League v. National Football League, 644 F. Supp. 1040, 1042 (S.D.N.Y. 1986) ("the jury chose to award plaintiffs only nominal damages, concluding that the USFL had suffered only $1.00 in damages"), aff'd, 842 F.2d 1335 (2d Cir. 1988); MCI Commc'ns Corp. v. American Tel. & Tel. Co., 708 F.2d 1081, 1166-67 (7th Cir. 1983) (remanding antitrust judgment for new trial and damages); Eisen v. Carlisle & Jacquelin, 479 F.2d 1005 (2d Cir. 1973) (following two trips to the Court of Appeals and one to the U.S. Supreme Court, plaintiffs, the putative class, and their counsel recovered nothing), vacated on other grounds, 417 U.S. 156 (1974).

Indeed, when Class Counsel undertook representation of the Class, there were no assurances that any fees would ever be received. Class Counsel were aware that they would likely have to overcome the daunting difficulties, and would have to expend thousands of hours and millions of dollars to prosecute this case over an extended period of time before having even a possibility of recovering fees and expenses. Class Counsel alone bore the risk of the case being dismissed at the pretrial stage, of not prevailing at trial, or even losing on appeal. Berman Decl., ¶¶ 41-44.

To date, Class Counsel have only been compensated for two settlements (GSK global and AstraZeneca Class 1). Because of the risk undertaken by Class Counsel, the requested fee award is reasonable.

5. The skill and efficiency of the attorneys involved

The experience, reputation, and ability of plaintiff's counsel has often been noted as a key factor in a court's consideration of counsel's fee request. See, e.g., In re Warner Commc'ns Sec. Litig., 618 F. Supp. 735, 748 (S.D.N.Y. 1985), aff'd, 798 F.2d 35 (2d Cir. 1986); Rosenbaum v. MacAllister, 64 F.3d 1439, 1445 n.3 (10th Cir. 1995). The Settlement here was not easily achieved. Negotiations were hard-fought and protracted and did not produce a settlement until after the Class 2/3 trial had been affirmed by the First Circuit Court of Appeals. AstraZeneca is represented by experienced and highly-regarded counsel, and they contested this litigation at every stage. Therefore, settlement negotiations required persistence, negotiating skill, and a willingness to take this case to trial. Class Counsel employed all of these, and obtained a settlement agreement.

IV. CLASS COUNSEL'S EXPENSES ARE REASONABLE AND SHOULD BE FACTORED IN THE COURT'S CONSIDERATION OF THE AWARD

In addition to being entitled to reasonable attorneys' fees, it is well-settled that "lawyers whose efforts succeed in creating a common fund for the benefit of a class are entitled not only to reasonable fees, but also to recover from the fund, as a general matter, expenses, reasonable in amount, that were necessary to bring the action to a climax." In re Fidelity/Micron Secs. Litig., 167 F.3d at 737; In re Nineteen Appeals Arising out of San Juan Dupont Plaza Hotel Fire Litig., 982 F.2d 603, 606 (1st Cir. 1992); In re Vitamins Antitrust Litig., 2001 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 25067, at *67 (holding that "an attorney who has created a common fund for the benefit of the class is entitled to reimbursement of … reasonable litigation expenses from that fund") (citations omitted). "[B]ecause each common fund case presents its own unique set of circumstances, trial courts must assess each request for fees and expenses on its own terms." In re Fidelity/Micron Secs. Litig., 167 F.3d at 737.

The expenses incurred in this litigation in the amount of $9,401,741 are described in the accompanying Edelson Declaration. They are the type of expenses typically billed by attorneys to paying clients in the marketplace and include such costs as fees paid to experts, computerized research and other services, deposition and transcript expenses, and travel expenses in connection with this litigation through October 31, 2010. These expenses were reasonable and necessary for the prosecution of this litigation. Class Counsel do not request a separate award for expenses and will subsume the expenses within the requested 33⅓% award.

V. THE COURT SHOULD APPROVE COMPENSATION TO THE NAMED CLASS REPRESENTATIVES

Class Counsel request that the Court approve compensation to the named class representatives. As with the approval of compensation to named representatives in both the GSK and AstraZeneca Class 1 Settlements, and consistent with the Court's previous instructions, the amount of compensation sought on behalf of named representatives is based upon the hours expended in furtherance of the litigation. Like the combined attorneys' fees and expense award, these amounts would be paid from the common fund.

In July 2007, in connection with the GSK Settlement, the named class representatives in the GSK Settlement each submitted affidavits attesting to the time expended in furtherance of the litigation. See Co-Lead Counsel's Motion for Order Authorizing Compensation to Consumers and Third-Party Payor Class Representatives (Dkt. No. 4509). Each class representative in that settlement included a tally of the time spent responding to document requests, conferring with Class Counsel and preparing for depositions related to class certification and/or the merits of Plaintiffs' claims, among other tasks necessary to fulfill their obligations as class representatives. Rather than request that the full amount of time be compensated at the Court-suggested rate of $100 per hour out of the GSK Settlement, for the TPP representatives, the Court made an award of only 20% of the overall time expended on behalf of the litigation. This was meant to allow for the possibility that the remaining compensation would come from future settlement and/or verdicts against the remaining Defendants.

Class Counsel now seek a full payment to the consumer class representative for the non-Massachusetts Settlement, Richard Wessels, and a payment to the TPP named representatives of an additional 40% of their total expended time as set forth in the table below. (Class representatives that did not have time since the submission of a GSK Declaration have incorporated their Declarations submitted with that settlement by reference.) An award of 40% is justified because of the enormous efforts expended by many of the class representatives during the Class 2/Class 3 trial, some of whom traveled to Boston to testify at trial.

Declarant	Representative Of	Class	Hours Claimed	Compensation Requested
Sara A. Walker	Blue Cross Blue Shield of Massachusetts	2&3	183	$7,320.00
Daniel W. Ryan	United Food and Commercial Workers Unions and Employers Midwest Health Benefits Fund	2 & 3	115.5	$4,620.00
Earl Seymour	Pirelli Armstrong Tire Corporation Retiree Medical Benefits Trust	3	43.5	$1,740.00
Glenn Randle	Sheet Metal Workers National Health Fund	2	73.5 (Fund) + 26.5 (TPA) = 100	$4,000.00
William Einhorn	Teamsters Health & Welfare Fund of Philadelphia and Vicinity	3	127 (from Einhorn GSK Decl., Dkt No. 4509-7)	$5,080.00
Arthur Steinberg	Philadelphia Federation of Teachers Health and Welfare Fund	3	63 + $980.00 in costs	$3,500.00
Charles Hannaford	Pipefitters Local 537 Trust Funds	3	41 (from Hannaford GSK Decl., Dkt No. 4509-10)	$1,640.00

Declarant	Representative Of	Class	Hours Claimed	Compensation Requested
William A. Rhodes, Jr.	Board of Trustees of Carpenters and Millwrights of Houston and Vicinity Welfare Trust Fund	3	65 (from Rhodes GSK Decl., Dkt No. 4509-8)	$2,600.00
Richard Wessels	Successor in interest to Susan Wessels	3	16	$1,600.00
TOTAL				$32,100.00

Compensation to named plaintiffs is "not uncommon in class action litigation … particularly where a common fund has been created for the benefit of the entire class.… [C]ourts routinely approve incentive awards to compensate named plaintiffs for the services they provided and the risks they incurred during the course of the class action litigation." In re Lorazepam & Clorazepate Antitrust Litig., 205 F.R.D. 369, 400 (D.D.C. 2002); see also In re Southern Ohio Correctional Facility, 175 F.R.D. 270, 272-73 (S.D. Ohio 1997) (collecting cases in which awards to named representatives approved). A district court in the First Circuit has stated that "[b]ecause a named plaintiff is an essential ingredient of any class action, an incentive award can be appropriate to encourage or induce an individual to participate in the suit." In re Compact Disc Minimum Advertised Price Antitrust Litig., 292 F. Supp. 2d 184, 189 (D. Me. 2003). Further, in determining whether such compensation is warranted, courts consider not only the efforts of the plaintiffs in pursuing the claims, but also the important public policy of fostering enforcement of laws and rewarding representative plaintiffs for being instrumental in obtaining recoveries for persons other than themselves. Bussie v. Allmerica Fin. Corp., 1999 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 7793, at *11-12 (D. Mass. May 19, 1999).

The class representatives here actively and effectively fulfilled their obligations as representatives for the Class. The Plaintiffs went above and beyond the call of duty in complying with demands placed upon them during this litigation. Of crucial importance is the willingness of the Plaintiffs to bring this action in the first place. Each of the named Plaintiffs also monitored the case and discussed its progress with counsel and consulted with counsel concerning the Settlement. Indeed, lead TPP plaintiff BCBSMA had representations present at the negotiations that led to these Settlements.

The requested compensation is more than justified, because of the named plaintiffs' active and prominent role in this litigation. In such situations, courts have awarded compensation of the requested amount and larger. See, e.g., In re Revco Litig., 1992 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 7852, at *22 (N.D. Ohio May 5, 1992) (awarding $200,000 to a named plaintiff); Roberts v. Texaco, Inc., 979 F. Supp. 185, at 203-04 (S.D.N.Y. 1997) (awarding $85,000 to a named plaintiff); In re Dun & Bradstreet Credit Servs. Customer Litig., 130 F.R.D. 366, 374 (S.D. Ohio 1990) (awarding $55,000 each to two named plaintiffs); Brotherton v. Cleveland, 141 F. Supp. 2d 907, 914 (S.D. Ohio 2001) (awarding $50,000 to the class representative).

Finally, the Notice to the Class advised Class members that Class Counsel would apply for such compensation on behalf of Class Representatives, and no Class member has to date objected to such an award.

VI. CONCLUSION

For the reasons set forth above, Class Counsel respectfully request that the Court approve the fee and expense petition and enter an order awarding Class Counsel the attorneys' fees and expenses requested and the compensation for the Class Representatives.

DATED: December 15, 2010

By /s/ Steve W. Berman
Thomas M. Sobol (BBO#471770)
Edward Notargiacomo (BBO#567636)
Hagens Berman Sobol Shapiro LLP
One Main Street, 4th Floor
Cambridge, MA 02142
Telephone: (617) 482-3700
Facsimile: (617) 482-3003

LIAISON COUNSEL

Steve W. Berman
Sean R. Matt
Hagens Berman Sobol Shapiro LLP
1918 Eighth Avenue, Suite 3300
Seattle, WA 98101
Telephone: (206) 623-7292
Facsimile: (206) 623-0594

Jennifer Fountain Connolly
Hagens Berman Sobol Shapiro LLP
1629 K St., NW, Suite 300
Washington, D.C. 20006
Telephone: (202) 355-6435
Facsimile: (202) 355-6455

Jeffrey Kodroff
John Macoretta
Spector, Roseman, Kodroff & Willis, P.C.
1818 Market Street, Suite 2500
Philadelphia, PA 19103
Telephone: (215) 496-0300
Facsimile: (215) 496-6611

Kenneth A. Wexler
Wexler Wallace LLP
55 W. Monroe, Suite 3300
Chicago, IL 60603
Telephone: (312) 346-2222
Facsimile: (312) 346-0022

Marc H. Edelson
Edelson & Associates LLC
45 West Court Street
Doylestown, PA 18901
Telephone: (215) 230-8043
Facsimile: (215) 230-8735

CLASS COUNSEL

CERTIFICATE OF SERVICE BY LEXISNEXIS FILE & SERVE

Docket No. MDL 1456

I, Steve W. Berman, hereby certify that I am one of plaintiffs' attorneys and that, on December 15, 2010, I caused copies of LEAD CLASS COUNSEL'S MEMORANDUM OF LAW IN SUPPORT OF MOTION FOR ATTORNEYS' FEES AND COSTS AND COMPENSATION TO THE CLASS REPRESENTATIVES IN ASSOCIATION WITH THE ASTRAZENECA MASSACHUSETTS AND NON-MASSACHUSETTS CLASS 2 AND CLASS 3 SETTLEMENTS, to be served on all counsel of record by causing same to be posted electronically via Lexis-Nexis File & Serve.

/s/ Steve W. Berman
Steve W. Berman

TAB 46A

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
DISTRICT OF CONNECTICUT

IN RE AGGRENOX ANTITRUST LITIGATION	No. 3:14-md-02516 (SRU)
THIS DOCUMENT RELATES TO: ALL DIRECT PURCHASER ACTIONS

AMENDED FINAL JUDGMENT AND ORDER OF DISMISSAL

Pursuant to Rule 23(e) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, and in accordance with the terms of the Settlement Agreement dated August 15, 2017 between Defendants Boehringer Ingelheim Pharma GmbH & Co. KG, Boehringer Ingelheim International GmbH and Boehringer Ingelheim Pharmaceuticals (collectively, "Boehringer"); Teva Pharmaceuticals USA, Teva Pharmaceutical Industries, Barr Pharmaceuticals, Barr Laboratories, Duramed Pharmaceuticals, and Duramed Pharmaceutical Sales Corp. (collectively, "Teva") and Direct Purchaser Plaintiffs' Lead Counsel acting pursuant to the Court's Order, dated June 16, 2014, Doc. No. 94, on behalf of Plaintiffs Miami Luken Inc. ("Miami Luken"), Rochester Drug Co-Operative ("RDC"), American Sales Co. ("American Sales") and Cesar Castillo, Inc. ("Castillo") (collectively "Direct Purchaser Class Plaintiffs," "named Plaintiffs," or "Plaintiffs"), and on behalf of the Direct Purchaser Class, it is hereby ORDERED, ADJUDGED AND DECREED as follows:

1. This Amended Final Judgment and Order of Dismissal hereby incorporates by reference the definitions in the Settlement Agreement among Defendants, Plaintiffs, and the Direct Purchaser Class, and all capitalized terms used and not otherwise defined herein shall have the meanings set forth in the Settlement Agreement.

2. On September 19, 2017 this Court certified a class for purposes of settlement ("the Class"):

> All persons or entities in the United States and its territories and possessions including the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico who directly purchased branded Aggrenox in any form from any of the Defendants from December 1, 2009 through June 30, 2015 (the "Class Period"), or their assignees (the "Class"). Excluded from the Class are Defendants and their officers, directors, management and employees, predecessors, subsidiaries and affiliates, and all federal governmental entities. Also excluded from the Class are CVS Pharmacy, Inc., Rite Aid Corporation, Rite Aid Hdqtrs. Corp., Walgreen Co., The Kroger Co., Safeway Inc., HEB Grocery Company L.P. and Albertson's LLC and their officers, directors, management and employees, predecessors, subsidiaries and affiliates who have brought individual claims as direct purchasers or assignees of direct purchasers to the extent they have valid assignments as more fully described in paragraph 10 of the Settlement Agreement ("Retailer Plaintiffs").

3. The Court has appointed Miami Luken, RDC, American Sales and Castillo as representatives of the Direct Purchaser Class (the "Class Representatives"). The Court has found that Lead Counsel, Liaison Counsel and the Executive Committee ("Class Counsel") have fairly and adequately represented the interests of the Direct Purchaser Class and satisfied the requirements of Fed. R. Civ. P. 23(g).

4. The Court has jurisdiction over these actions, each of the parties, and all members of the Direct Purchaser Class for all manifestations of this case, including this Settlement.

5. The notice of settlement (substantially in the form presented to this Court as Exhibit B to the Settlement Agreement) (the "Notice") directed to the members of the Class, constituted the best notice practicable under the circumstances. In making this determination, the Court finds that the Notice provided for individual notice to all members of the Direct Purchaser Class who were identified through reasonable efforts. Pursuant to, and in accordance with, Rule 23 of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, the Court hereby finds that the Notice provided Direct Purchaser Class members due and adequate notice of the Settlement, the Settlement Agreement, these proceedings, and the rights of Class members to opt out of the Direct Purchaser Class and/or object to the Settlement.

6. Due and adequate notice of the proceedings having been given to the Direct Purchaser Class and a full opportunity having been offered to the Direct Purchaser Class to participate in the December 18, 2017 Fairness Hearing, it is hereby determined that all Direct Purchaser Class members are bound by this Order and Amended Final Judgment.

7. The Settlement of this Direct Purchaser Class Action was not the product of collusion between the Direct Purchaser Class Plaintiffs and Defendants or their respective counsel, but rather was the result of bona fide and arm's-length negotiations conducted in good faith between Direct Purchaser Class Counsel and counsel for Defendants, with the assistance of a mediator.

8. Pursuant to Rule 23 of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, this Court hereby approves the Settlement, and finds that the Settlement is, in all respects, fair, reasonable and adequate to Direct Purchaser Class members. Accordingly, the Settlement shall be consummated in accordance with the terms and provisions of the Settlement Agreement.

9. The Court hereby approves the Plan of Allocation of the Settlement Fund as proposed by Class Counsel (the "Plan of Allocation"), which was summarized in the Notice of Proposed Settlement and was attached to Direct Purchaser Class Plaintiffs' Motion for Final Approval of Settlement, and directs Berdon Claims Administration LLC, the firm retained by Direct Purchaser Class Counsel as the Claims Administrator, to distribute the net Settlement Fund as provided in the Plan of Allocation.

10. All claims against Defendants in In re Aggrenox Antitrust Litigation, Civil Action No. 3:14-md-02516 (SRU) (D. Conn.) (the "Direct Purchaser Class Action"), including by those members of the Direct Purchaser Class who have not timely excluded themselves from the Direct Purchaser Class, are hereby dismissed with prejudice, and without costs.

11. Upon the Settlement Agreement becoming final in accordance with paragraph 7 of the Settlement Agreement, Plaintiffs and the Direct Purchaser Class unconditionally, fully and finally release and forever discharge Defendants, any past, present and future parents, subsidiaries, divisions, affiliates, joint ventures, stockholders, officers, directors, management, supervisory boards, insurers, general or limited partners, employees, agents, trustees, associates, attorneys and any of their legal representatives, or any other representatives thereof (and the predecessors, heirs, executors, administrators, successors and assigns of each of the foregoing) (the "Released Parties") from any and all manner of claims, rights, debts, obligations, demands, actions, suits, causes of action, damages whenever incurred, liabilities of any nature whatsoever, known or unknown, suspected or unsuspected, fixed or contingent, including costs, expenses, penalties and attorneys' fees, accrued in whole or in part, in law or equity, that Plaintiffs or any member or members of the Direct Purchaser Class (including any of their past, present, or future officers, directors, insurers, general or limited partners, divisions, stockholders, agents, attorneys, employees, legal representatives, trustees, parents, associates, affiliates, joint ventures, subsidiaries, heirs, executors, administrators, predecessors, successors and assigns, acting in their capacity as such) (the "Releasors"), whether or not they object to the Settlement, ever had, now has, or hereafter can, shall or may have, directly, representatively, derivatively or in any other capacity, arising out of or relating in any way to any claim under federal or state law that was alleged or could have been alleged in the Direct Purchaser Class Action, prior to the date of the Settlement, including but not limited to:

(1) the alleged delayed entry of generic Aggrenox;

(2) conduct with respect to the procurement, maintenance and enforcement of United States Patent Number 6,015,577; and

(3) the sale, marketing or distribution of Aggrenox or generic Aggrenox except as provided for in paragraph 13 herein (the "Released Claims").

Releasors hereby covenant and agree that each shall not sue or otherwise seek to establish or impose liability against any Released Party based, in whole or in part, on any of the Released Claims. For the avoidance of doubt, the release provided herein applies, without limitation, to any conduct relating to the procurement, maintenance or enforcement of United States Patent Number 6,015,577, including any commencement, maintenance, defense or other participation in litigation concerning any such patents, that was alleged in, could be fairly characterized as being alleged in, is related to an allegation made in, or could have been alleged in the Direct Purchaser Class Action.

12. In addition, Plaintiffs on behalf of themselves and all other Releasors, hereby expressly waive, release and forever discharge, upon the Settlement becoming final, any and all provisions, rights and benefits conferred by §1542 of the California Civil Code, which reads:

> Section 1542. General Release; extent. A general release does not extend to claims which the creditor does not know or suspect to exist in his or her favor at the time of executing the release, which if known by him or her must have materially affected his or her settlement with the debtor; or by any law of any state or territory of the United States or other jurisdiction, or principle of common law, which is similar, comparable or equivalent to § 1542 of the California Civil Code. Plaintiffs and members of the Direct Purchaser Class may hereafter discover facts other than or different from those which he, she or it knows or believes to be true with respect to the claims which are the subject matter of this paragraph 12, but each Plaintiff and member of the Direct Purchaser Class hereby expressly waives and fully, finally and forever settles, releases and discharges, upon this Settlement becoming final, any known or unknown, suspected or unsuspected, asserted or unasserted, contingent or non-contingent claim that would otherwise fall within the definition of Released Claims, whether or not concealed or hidden, without regard to the subsequent discovery or existence of such different or additional facts. Each Plaintiff and member of the Direct Purchaser Class also hereby expressly waives and fully, finally and forever settles, releases and discharges any and all claims it may have against any Released Party under § 17200, et seq., of the California Business and Professions Code or any similar comparable or equivalent provision of the law of any other state or territory of the United States or other jurisdiction, which claims are expressly incorporated into the definition of Released Claims.

13. The releases set forth in paragraphs 11 and 12 of this Order shall not release claims between Plaintiffs, members of the Direct Purchaser Class, and the Released Parties unrelated to the allegations in In re Aggrenox Antitrust Litigation, Civil Action No. 3:14-md-02516 (SRU) (D. Conn.), including claims under Article 2 of the Uniform Commercial Code (pertaining to Sales), the laws of negligence or product liability or implied warranty, breach of contract, breach of express warranty, or personal injury, or other claims unrelated to the allegations in In re Aggrenox Antitrust Litigation, Civil Action No. 3:14-md-02516 (SRU) (D. Conn.).

14. Class Counsel for the Direct Purchaser Class have moved for an award of attorneys' fees, reimbursement of expenses and incentive awards for the class representatives. Class Counsel request an award of attorneys' fees totaling $48,666,666.67 (representing 33⅓% of the Settlement) and reimbursement of the reasonable costs and expenses incurred in the prosecution of this action in the amount of $969,375.91, together with a proportionate share of the interest thereon, and incentive awards of $75,000.00 for each of the named plaintiffs, and such motion has been on the docket and otherwise publicly available since October 13, 2017, with a supplemental motion as to costs and expenses being on the docket and otherwise publicly available since November 21, 2017.

15. Upon consideration of Class Counsel's petition for fees, costs and expenses, Class Counsel are hereby awarded attorneys' fees totaling $29,200,000.00 (representing 20% of the Settlement Fund), and costs and expenses totaling $988,678.53, together with a proportionate share of the interest thereon, from the date the funds are deposited in the Settlement Escrow Account until payment of such attorneys' fees, costs and expenses, at the rate earned by the Settlement Fund, to be paid solely from the Settlement Fund and only if and after the Settlement becomes final in accordance with paragraph 7 of the Settlement Agreement. Upon consideration of Class counsel's petition for incentive payments for Direct Purchaser Class Representatives, each of Miami Luken, RDC, American Sales, and Castillo are hereby each awarded $75,000.00, to be paid solely from the Settlement Fund and only if and after the Settlement becomes final in accordance with paragraph 7 of the Settlement Agreement. Garwin Gerstein & Fisher LLP shall allocate and distribute such attorneys' fees, costs and expenses among the various Class Counsel which have participated in this litigation. Garwin Gerstein & Fisher LLP shall allocate and distribute such incentive awards among the various Direct Purchaser Class Representatives which have participated in this litigation. The Released Parties (as defined in paragraph 14 of the Settlement Agreement) shall have no responsibility for, and no liability whatsoever with respect to, any payment or disbursement of attorneys' fees, expenses, costs or incentive awards among Class Counsel and/or Class Representatives, nor with respect to any allocation of attorneys' fees, expenses, costs or incentive awards to any other person or entity who may assert any claim thereto. The attorneys' fees, costs and expenses, and incentive awards authorized and approved by this Amended Final Judgment and Order of Dismissal shall be paid to Garwin Gerstein &

Fisher LLP within five (5) business days after this Settlement becomes final pursuant to paragraph 7 of the Settlement Agreement or as soon thereafter as is practical and in accordance with the terms of the Settlement Agreement and the Escrow Agreement. The attorneys' fees, costs and expenses, and incentive award authorized and approved by this Amended Final Judgment and Order of Dismissal shall constitute full and final satisfaction of any and all claims that Plaintiffs and any Direct Purchaser Class member, and their respective counsel, may have or assert for reimbursement of fees, costs, and expenses, and incentive awards, and Plaintiffs and members of the Direct Purchaser Class, and their respective counsel, shall not seek or demand payment of any fees, costs, expenses, or incentive awards from Defendants other than the Settlement Fund.

16. The Court retains exclusive jurisdiction over the Settlement and the Settlement Agreement as described therein, including the administration and consummation of the Settlement, and over this Amended Final Judgment and Order of Dismissal.

17. The Court finds that this Amended Final Judgment and Order of Dismissal adjudicates all of the claims, rights and liabilities of the parties to the Settlement Agreement (including the members of the Direct Purchaser Class), and is final and shall be immediately appealable. Neither this Order nor the Settlement Agreement nor any other Settlement-related document shall constitute any evidence or admission by Defendants or any other Released Party on liability, any merits issue, or any class certification issue (including but not limited to whether a class can be certified for purposes of litigation or trial) in this or any other matter or proceeding, nor shall this Order, the Settlement Agreement, or any other Settlement-related document be offered in evidence or used for any other purpose in this or any other matter or proceeding except as may be necessary to consummate or enforce the Settlement Agreement or the terms of this Amended Final Judgment and Order of Dismissal, or if offered by any released Party in responding to any action purporting to assert Released Claims.

So ordered.

Dated at Bridgeport, Connecticut, this 21st day of December 2017.

/s/ STEFAN R. UNDERHILL
Stefan R. Underhill
United States District Judge

TAB 46B

IN THE UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
FOR THE DISTRICT OF CONNECTICUT

IN RE AGGRENOX ANTITRUST LITIGATION	Master Docket No. 3:14-md-02516 (SRU) Judge Stefan R. Underhill

MEMORANDUM OF LAW IN SUPPORT OF CLASS COUNSEL'S MOTION FOR AN AWARD OF ATTORNEYS' FEES, REIMBURSEMENT OF EXPENSES AND INCENTIVES AWARD TO THE CLASS REPRESENTATIVES

TABLE OF CONTENTS

I. INTRODUCTION 1

II. HISTORY OF THE LITIGATION 3

III. CLASS COUNSEL'S LITIGATION EFFORTS 3

IV. ARGUMENT 4

A. Class Counsel's Fee Request Is Reasonable 4

i. The Percentage-of-Recovery Method is Appropriate for Calculating an Award of Attorneys' Fees in This Case 4

ii. Application of the Second Circuit's Reasonableness Factors Supports the Requested Fee 5

a. The Time and Labor Expended by Counsel 6

b. The Magnitude and Complexities of the Litigation 7

c. The Risk of the Litigation 8

d. The Quality of Representation 10

e. The Requested Fee in Relation to the Settlement 12

f. Public Policy Considerations 15

g. A Lodestar Cross-Check Confirms the Reasonableness of the Requested Fee 16

B. Class Counsel's Costs And Expenses Are Reasonable And Were Necessarily Incurred To Achieve The Benefit Obtained 17

C. Incentive Awards for the Class Representatives are Appropriate and Reasonable 17

V. CONCLUSION 19

TABLE OF AUTHORITIES

CASES

Am. Soc'y of Mech. Eng'rs v. Hydrolevel Corp.,
456 U.S. 556 (1982) 15

Ark. Carpenters Health & Welfare Fund v. Bayer AG ,
604 F.3d 98 (2d Cir. 2010) 10

Aros v. United Rentals, Inc.,
2012 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 104429 (D. Conn. July 26, 2012) 7, 8-9, 9

Boeing Co. v. Van Gemert,
444 U.S. 472 (1980) 4

Bradburn Parent Teacher Store, Inc. v. 3M,
513 F. Supp. 2d 322 (E.D. Pa. 2007) 18

Caitflo, L.L.C. v. Sprint Commc'ns Co. L.P., 2013 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 90858 (D. Conn. June 24, 2013) 5, 12

Collins v. Olin Corp.,
2010 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 39862 (D. Conn. Apr. 21, 2010) 14

Dial Corp. v. News Corp.,
317 F.R.D. 426 (S.D.N.Y. 2016) 8

FTC v. Actavis,
133 S. Ct. 2223 (2013) ..... passim

Garcia v. Pancho Villa's of Huntington Vill., Inc.,
2012 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 144446 (E.D.N.Y. Oct. 4, 2012) 6-7, 14

Goldberger v. Integrated Res.,
209 F.3d 43 (2d Cir. 2000) 3, 8

Goldberger v. Integrated Res., Inc.,
209 F.3d 43 (2d Cir. 2000) 5

Hall v. Prosource Techs., L.L.C.,
2016 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 53791 (E.D.N.Y. Apr. 11, 2016) 14-15

In re Air Cargo Shipping Servs. Antitrust Litig.,
2015 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 138479 (E.D.N.Y. Oct. 9, 2015) 7

In re BioScrip, Inc. Sec. Litig.,
2017 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 118881 (S.D.N.Y. July 26, 2017) 4-5, 6, 11

In re Cardizem CD Antitrust Litig.,
218 F.R.D. 508 (E.D. Mich. 2003) 19

In re Credit Default Swaps Antitrust Litig.,
2016 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 54587 (S.D.N.Y. Apr. 25, 2016) 15

In re Flonase Antitrust Litig.,
951 F. Supp. 2d 739 (E.D. Pa. 2013) 7

In re Lupron Mktg. & Sales Practices Litig. ,
2005 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 17456 (D. Mass. Aug. 17, 2005) 18

In re Marsh ERISA Litig.,
265 F.R.D. 128 (S.D.N.Y. 2010) ..... passim

In re Motorsports Merch. Antitrust Litig.,
112 F. Supp. 2d 1329 (N.D. Ga. 2000) 7

In re Relafen Antitrust Litig.,
2004 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 28801 (D. Mass. Apr. 9, 2004) 14

In re Remeron Direct Purchaser Antitrust Litig.,
2005 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 27013 (D.N.J. Nov. 9, 2005) 13

In re Telik, Inc. Sec. Litig.,
576 F. Supp. 2d 570 (S.D.N.Y. 2008) 16

In re Terazosin Hydrochloride Antitrust Litig.,
2005 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 43082 (S.D. Fla. Apr. 19, 2005) 14

Kemp-Delisser v. St. Francis Hosp. & Med. Ctr. , 2016 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 152496 (D. Conn. Nov. 3, 2016) ..... passim

Kiefer v. Moran Foods, L.L.C.,
2014 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 106924 (D. Conn. July 31, 2014) 14

La. Wholesale Drug Co. v. Bristol-Meyers Squibb Co. (In re Buspirone Antitrust Litig.),
2003 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 26538 (S.D.N.Y. Apr. 11, 2003) 14

Stinson v. City of N.Y.,
2017 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 89844 (S.D.N.Y. June 7, 2017) 14

Velez v. Novartis Pharms. Corp.,
2010 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 125945 (S.D.N.Y. Nov. 30, 2010) 6, 12, 14

Woburn Ret. Sys. v. Salix Pharms., Ltd.,
2017 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 132515 (S.D.N.Y. Aug. 18, 2017) 8

DOCKETED CASES

In re Cardizem CD Antitrust Litig.,
MDL No. 1278 (E.D. Mich. Nov. 26, 2002) 14

In re DDAVP Antitrust Litig.,
No. 05-2237 (S.D.N.Y. Nov. 28, 2011).....13

In re Doryx Antitrust Litig.,
No. 12-3824 (E.D. Pa. Sept. 15, 2014) 13

In re Flonase Antitrust Litig.,
No. 08-cv-3149 (E.D. Pa. June 14, 2013).....13

In re K-Dur Antitrust Litig.,
No. 01-1652 (D.N.J. Oct. 5, 2017).....13

Meijer, Inc. v. Abbott Labs.,
No. 07-5985 CW (N.D. Cal. Aug. 11, 2011) 13

In re Neurontin Antitrust Litig.,
No. 02-1830 (D.N.J. Aug. 6, 2014) 13

In re Nifedipine Antitrust Litig.,
No. 03-mc-223-RJL (D.D.C. Jan. 31, 2011).....13

In re Oxycontin Antitrust Litig.,
No. 04-md-1603-SHS (S.D.N.Y. Jan. 25, 2011) 13

In re Prograf Antitrust Litig.,
No. 11-md-2242 (D. Mass. May 20, 2015).....13

In re Provigil Antitrust Litig.,
No. 07-1979 (E.D. Pa. Oct. 16, 2015).....13

Rochester Drug Co-Operative, Inc. v. Braintree Labs., Inc.,
No. 07-142 (D. Del. May 31, 2012).....13

In re Skelaxin (Metaxalone) Antitrust Litig.,
No. 12-cv-83 (E.D. Tenn. June 30, 2014).....13

In re Tricor Direct Purchaser Antitrust Litig.,
No. 05-cv-340 (D. Del. April 23, 2009) 13

In re Wellbutrin SR Antitrust Litig.,
No. 04-5525 (E.D. Pa. Nov. 21, 2011) 13

In re Wellbutrin XL Antitrust Litig.,
No. 08-cv-2431 (E.D. Pa. Nov. 7, 2012) 13

FEDERAL STATUTES

28 U.S.C. § 1292 (2012) 3

I. INTRODUCTION

Class Counsel, who have represented class representatives Miami Luken Inc. ("Miami Luken"), Rochester Drug Co-Operative, Inc. ("RDC"), American Sales Company, LLC ("American Sales") and Cesar Castillo, Inc. ("Castillo") and direct purchaser class plaintiffs (collectively "DPCPs") in this litigation, respectfully submit this memorandum in support of their Motion for an Award of Attorneys' Fees, Reimbursement of Expenses and Incentive Awards for the Class Representatives.[1]

For nearly four years, Class Counsel have aggressively prosecuted this highly-complex, hotly-contested antitrust case against two pharmaceutical companies represented by some of the most prominent defense law firms in the country. In May 2017, with the assistance of a private mediator, the Honorable Layn R. Phillips (formerly of the Western District of Oklahoma), Class Counsel and counsel for Defendants agreed to the terms of a settlement in principle of DPCPs' claims against Defendants[2] ("the Settlement"). Pursuant to the Settlement, Defendants agreed to pay $146 million in cash into an escrow fund for the benefit of DPCPs, in exchange for dismissal of the litigation between DPCPs and Defendants.[3] Class Counsel believes that the Settlement,

[1] Class Counsel are the firms listed in n. 2 of the accompanying Declaration of Lead Counsel Bruce E. Gerstein (the "Gerstein Dec.") annexed as Exhibit A hereto.

[2] Defendants are Boehringer Ingelheim Pharma GmbH & Co. KG, Boehringer Ingelheim International GmbH and Boehringer Ingelheim Pharmaceuticals, Inc. ("Boehringer") and Teva Pharmaceuticals USA, Inc., Teva Pharmaceutical Industries, Ltd., Barr Pharmaceuticals, Inc. (n/k/a Barr Pharmaceuticals, LLC), Barr Laboratories Inc., Duramed Pharmaceuticals Inc. (n/k/a Teva Women's Health Inc.) and Duramed Pharmaceutical Sales Corp. (n/k/a Teva Sales and Marketing, Inc. ("Teva") (collectively, "Defendants").

[3] On September 19, 2017, the Court granted preliminary approval to the Settlement and approved the form and manner of notice of the Settlement to the class. See Dkt No. 685. Thereafter, the Defendants deposited $146 million into an escrow account held in trust that is earning interest for the benefit of the class, and members of the class were mailed a notice of settlement. See Exs. 1-2 to the Gerstein Dec. Pursuant to the Court's order, Class Counsel's briefing in support of final approval of the Settlement and the entry of final judgment will be submitted to the Court on November 24, 2017, and the Fairness Hearing will take place on December 18, 2017. See Dkt which unquestionably confers a significant financial benefit on class members and brings this long-pending, contentious litigation to a close, represents a highly successful outcome for DPCPs.

From the inception of the litigation through the time that the Court granted preliminary approval to the Settlement, Class Counsel expended more than 33,000 hours of uncompensated professional time and incurred almost one million dollars in unreimbursed out-of-pocket expenses. As compensation for its efforts, Class Counsel seek an award of attorneys' fees in the amount of 33⅓% of the Settlement (including a pro rata share of the accrued interest), and reimbursement of litigation expenses.[4] Class Counsel also seek incentive awards of $75,000 for each of the four class representatives in recognition of their vital participation in this litigation.

As described more fully below and in the Gerstein Declaration, the following factors, among others, strongly support Class Counsel's application:

First, the size of the Settlement will unquestionably confer substantial financial benefit on class members. The class will share in a recovery of $146 million (less any attorneys' fees, expenses, and incentive awards granted by the Court), and in order to receive their respective pro rata shares, a class member need only submit a claim form that will be directly mailed to them after final approval of the Settlement, if granted.

Second, Class Counsel undertook significant risk by expending substantial time and resources in aggressively prosecuting this complex and lengthy case. Although all antitrust cases are inherently complex and involve substantial legal risk, Defendants sought to dismiss DPCPs' claims just as district courts around the country began issuing opinions interpreting the Supreme

---

No. 685.

[4] Class Counsel submits, as Exhibits 3-16 to the Gerstein Dec., the declarations of the individual firms that worked on this litigation. These declarations detail the services rendered, the hours expended, and the expenses incurred by each firm.

Court's landmark decision concerning reverse payment agreements, Federal Trade Commission v. Actavis, Inc., 133 S. Ct. 2223 (2012). Consequently, Class Counsel had to develop and reformulate DPCPs' liability theories in step with rapidly evolving case law, in addition to developing DPCPs' causation theories and damage models. Class Counsel also spent significant time successfully responding to Defendants' two petitions for interlocutory appeal pursuant to 28 U.S.C. 1292(b), which dealt with statute of limitations and market power/relevant market issues, respectively. Both petitions were denied. See Gerstein Dec. at ¶¶ 29, 54. Class Counsel also faced significant financial risk since they prosecuted DPCPs' claims against Defendants on a wholly contingent basis, without any guarantee of success or compensation for time spent, or for reimbursement of out-of-pocket costs and expenses.

Third, Class Counsel's percentage-of-recovery fee request is consistent with fee awards in similar cases that Class Counsel has litigated, and is otherwise strongly supported by analysis of the "Goldberger factors" derived from Goldberger v. Integrated Resources, Inc., 209 F. 3d 43 (2d Cir. 2000) that are used by the Second Circuit in determining attorneys' fees.

II. HISTORY OF THE LITIGATION

DPCPs are direct purchasers of Boehringer's brand-name prescription pharmaceutical product, Aggrenox. In November 2013, Class Counsel, on behalf of DPCPs, filed the first antitrust lawsuit brought by a putative class of direct purchasers challenging certain of Defendants' conduct concerning Aggrenox as violative of the antitrust laws, causing members of the Class to pay artificially inflated prices for Aggrenox and/or its generic equivalents. See Gerstein Dec. at ¶ 2. Defendants have consistently denied wrongdoing and have asserted numerous defenses. A more detailed history of the litigation is fully set forth in detail in the Gerstein Declaration.

III. CLASS COUNSEL'S LITIGATION EFFORTS

The team assembled by Lead Counsel, Liaison Counsel and the Executive Committee includes lawyers from some of the preeminent antitrust law firms in the country. These firms have almost two decades of extensive experience prosecuting and trying Hatch-Waxman antitrust cases on behalf of the same core class of direct purchasers, and have been involved in many of the critical decisions made by various courts in this evolving area of antitrust law. See Gerstein Dec. at ¶ 68; infra at pp. 1-12. Class Counsel took advantage of each firm's particular area of expertise to litigate this case in the most effective and efficient manner possible, without duplication of effort. A detailed description of Class Counsel's efforts is fully set forth in the Gerstein Declaration.

IV. ARGUMENT

A. Class Counsel's Fee Request Is Reasonable

i. The Percentage-of-Recovery Method is Appropriate for Calculating an Award of Attorneys' Fees in This Case

Federal Rules of Civil Procedure 23(h) and 54(d) permit courts overseeing class actions to award reasonable attorneys' fees and costs. The Supreme Court has long recognized that, as here, a lawyer who recovers a "common fund" on behalf of a class is entitled to reasonable attorneys' fees and expenses from the fund. See Boeing Co. v. Van Gemert, 444 U.S. 472, 478 (1980). This Court has discretion in determining what attorneys' fees are reasonable. See Kemp-Delisser v. St. Francis Hosp. & Med. Ctr., 2016 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 152496, at *43 (D. Conn. Nov. 3, 2016).

In the Second Circuit, there are two methods that courts may use in order to award attorneys' fees: (1) the "percentage-of-fund" method, which bases the fee on a percentage of the total amount of a common settlement fund; or (2) the "lodestar" method, which multiplies the amount of attorney hours reasonably expended by reasonably hourly rates. Id. at *45. Courts in the Second Circuit have largely stated a preference for the use of the percentage-of-fund method in awarding attorneys' fees. See In re BioScrip, Inc. Sec. Litig., 2017 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 118881, at *56 (S.D.N.Y. July 26, 2017) (though both methods are available, "the trend in [the Second] Circuit has been toward the use of a percentage of recovery as the preferred method of calculating the award for class counsel in common fund cases…")(internal quotation omitted); In re Marsh ERISA Litig., 265 F.R.D. 128, 146 (S.D.N.Y. 2010)(trend in Second Circuit is toward the percentage method). Among other reasons, courts generally favor this method because:

> The percentage method directly aligns the interests of the class and its counsel and provides a powerful incentive for the efficient prosecution and early resolution of litigation, which clearly benefits both litigants and the judicial system. The percentage approach is also the most efficient means of rewarding the work of class action attorneys, and avoids the wasteful and burdensome process – to both counsel and the courts – of preparing and evaluating fee petitions, which the Third Circuit Task Force described as "cumbersome, enervating, and often surrealistic."

In re Lloyd's Am. Trust Fund Litig., 2002 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 22663, at *74 (S.D.N.Y. Nov. 26, 2002)(quoting Court Awarded Attorney Fees, Report of the Third Cir. Task Force, 108 F.R.D. 237, 258 (3d Cir. 1985)).

ii. Application of the Second Circuit's Reasonableness Factors Supports the Requested Fee

Class Counsel's fee request is consistent with applicable Second Circuit law. Regardless of whether the percentage method or the lodestar method is used, the Second Circuit has identified six factors for district courts to consider in analyzing the reasonableness of a request for attorneys' fees. These six factors – known as the Goldberger factors – are:

> (1) the time and labor expended by counsel; (2) the magnitude and complexities of the litigation; (3) the risk of the litigation; (4) the quality of representation; (5) the requested fee in relation to the settlement; and (6) public policy considerations.

Kemp-Delisser, 2016 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 152496 at *43 (quoting Goldberger v. Integrated Res., Inc., 209 F. 3d 43, 50 (2d Cir. 2000). See also Caitflo, L.L.C. v. Sprint Communs. Co. L.P., 2013 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 90858, at *5-6 (D. Conn. June 24, 2013) (listing factors).

As detailed below, analysis of each of the Goldberger factors strongly supports approval of Class Counsel's requested fee.

a. The Time and Labor Expended by Counsel

Class Counsel expended more than 33,000 hours in prosecuting this case from its inception in 2013 up through September 6, 2017, the date upon which Class Counsel submitted its request for preliminary approval of the Settlement. As detailed more fully in the Gerstein Declaration, Class Counsel, inter alia: (a) successfully defeated Defendants' motion to dismiss; (b) reviewed and analyzed almost 11 million of pages of documents; (c) analyzed the many defenses raised by Defendants in light of the millions of pages of documents they produced and documents which were obtained from numerous third-parties; (d) took 6 fact depositions; (e) consulted with and retained four expert witnesses; (f) engaged in substantial motion practice on various issues, including but not limited to complex legal and economic issues pertaining to monopoly power and relevant market; (g) successfully defeated Defendants' two petitions for interlocutory appeal; and (h) prepared for and participated in mediation, during which Class Counsel engaged in hard-fought settlement negotiations and agreed to the terms of a settlement in principle. See generally Kemp-Delisser, 2016 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 152496 at *46-47; In re BioScrip, Inc. Sec. Litig., 2017 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 118881 at *62 (litigation was "a hard-fought, complicated case, requiring extensive work on the part of Lead Counsel"); Velez v. Novartis Pharms. Corp., 2010 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 125945, at *54 (S.D.N.Y. Nov. 30, 2010)("Class Counsel devoted 36,996.77 hours from 68 attorneys and staff members to the successful prosecution of this matter"). Moreover, Class Counsel will be expending a significant number of hours in connection with administering the Settlement without any compensation. See Garcia v. Pancho Villa's of Huntington Vill., Inc., 2012 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 144446, at *22-23 (E.D.N.Y. Oct. 4, 2012)(acknowledging that class counsel would perform more work on behalf of the class after final approval, including "assisting with the administration of the settlement, and answering Class Member questions, which further supports their fee request"); Aros v. United Rentals, Inc., 2012 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 104429, at *17 (D. Conn. July 26, 2012)(acknowledging that class counsel would continue to perform work on behalf of the class during the settlement approval process and the disbursement phase).

Accordingly, the significant time and labor that has been (and will be) expended by Class Counsel supports Class Counsel's fee request.

b. The Magnitude and Complexities of the Litigation

"An antitrust class action is arguably the most complex action to prosecute." In re Motorsports Merchandise Antitrust Litig., 112 F. Supp. 2d 1329, 1337 (N.D. Ga. 2000). See also In re Flonase Antitrust Litig., 951 F. Supp. 2d 739, 743 (E.D. Pa. 2013)("Antitrust class actions are particularly complex to litigate and therefore quite expensive."); In re Air Cargo Shipping Servs. Antitrust Litig., 2015 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 138479, at *148-49 (E.D.N.Y. Oct. 9, 2015)(price-fixing conspiracy required "complex expert analysis and review of mountains of documents").

This antitrust case was no exception. As an initial matter, Class Counsel had to brief and argue the question of what jurisdiction the litigation should proceed in before the Judicial Panel for Multidistrict Litigation. Once transferred to this Court, Class Counsel was then almost immediately faced with two motions to dismiss grounded upon multiple bases, which resulted in protracted briefing, and upon disposition, a petition for interlocutory appeal to the United States Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit on statute of limitations grounds. The Second Circuit denied the petition in September 2015. Thereafter, Class Counsel then had to undertake fact discovery to support their liability, causation and damages theories and to rebut Defendants' defenses, and received and reviewed almost eleven million pages of documents. Apart from developing DPCPs' liability theories, which Class Counsel had to constantly evaluate in view of the rapidly developing case law concerning the legality of reverse payment agreements, Class Counsel also had to address causation and damages, and establish that Boehringer had market power with respect to Aggrenox, which, were all issues that were hotly contested by Defendants. In particular, Class Counsel faced repeated discovery motions filed by Defendants as part of their attempt to prove that Boehringer did not have monopoly power in a relevant market. The parties' continuing disputes relating to this issue ultimately resulted in the Court ordering the parties to brief the issue so that it could make a predicate ruling on market power. That decision, which held that the relevant market was Aggrenox and its generic equivalents, resulted in Defendants' second petition for interlocutory appeal, which was denied by the Second Circuit in January 2017. See generally Dial Corp. v. News Corp., 317 F.R.D. 426, 435 (S.D.N.Y. 2016)(monopolization case involved complex and contested theories of liability and a serious challenge pertaining to establishing damages); Kemp-Delisser, 2016 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 152496 at *48 (facts and law "at the heart" of ERISA class action were complicated and litigation was "highly contentious").

Accordingly, the magnitude and complexity of the litigation supports the requested fee.

c. The Risk of the Litigation

"The Second Circuit recognizes that the risk of success is 'perhaps the foremost factor' to be considered in determining a fee award in class actions." Kemp-Delisser, 2016 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 152496 at *48 (quoting Goldberger, 209 F. 3d at 54). See also Woburn Ret. Sys. v. Salix Pharms., Ltd., 2017 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 132515, at *17 (S.D.N.Y. Aug. 18, 2017)("risk of the litigation is one of the most important factors, if not the foremost factor, to consider when determining the reasonableness of fee.").

It is well-established that when lawyers undertake litigation on a contingency basis, they face the "significant risk of non-payment." See In re Marsh ERISA Litig., 265 F.R.D. 128, 148 (S.D.N.Y. 2010). See also Woburn Ret. Sys., 2017 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 132515 at *17 (lawyers who undertake litigation on contingency basis "assume a great deal of risk"); Aros, 2012 U.S. Dist.

LEXIS 104429 at *18 (efforts of class counsel were "without compensation, and their entitlement to be paid has been wholly contingent upon achieving a good result"). Here, Class Counsel represented the named plaintiffs and the class purely on a contingency fee basis – with no up-front retainer fees or allowance for expenses, nor any compensation from any other source – and prosecuted this case for nearly four years. Consequently, Class Counsel faced the very real risk that they would ultimately receive nothing for the hard work and long hours, as well as the millions of dollars in cash outlays expended litigating.

And indeed, the litigation itself presented substantive risks. At the time when Defendants' motions to dismiss were filed, district courts were beginning to issue conflicting decisions interpreting the Supreme Court's Actavis decision, and there was no guarantee that this Court would find DPCPs' allegations sufficient in view of such decisions. See Gerstein Dec. at ¶¶ 69, 72. Moreover, proving causation (i.e., that Barr could and would have entered the market earlier with a less-expensive version of generic Aggrenox) also presented significant risks because Barr contended that it could not and would have launched in view of equipment, supply and FDA approval problems. Additionally, as this Court itself observed, the parties' protracted disputes concerning monopoly power and relevant market presented a potentially dispositive issue. Id. at ¶¶ 44, 69, 72.[5] Further, absent the Settlement, Class Counsel would have had to, inter alia, complete costly and time-consuming expert discovery, litigate class certification and then take the case through summary judgment and trial, as well as the (inevitable) appeals. Although Class Counsel have always been confident in DPCPs' claims, and remain so, Class Counsel had no guarantee that class certification would be obtained, that DPCPs' claims would survive summary judgment and/or that a jury would ultimately find in DPCPs' favor (and that a favorable jury verdict would withstand appellate scrutiny). These risk considerations have particular application to complex Hatch-Waxman antitrust cases, where several cases litigated by the same Class Counsel as here have been unsuccessful and have yielded no recovery, even after Class Counsel expended thousands of hours in time and millions of dollars in out-of-pocket expenditures.[6]

[5] See also Dkt No. 423 (Nov. 30, 2015 Hearing Tr. at 35-36)("[A]s I see it, if [defendants] win the product market definition, [plaintiffs] lose. If [plaintiffs] win the product market definition, many – much of [defendants'] discovery and their defenses go away, and we have a very narrow case…").

Accordingly, the significant risks faced by Class Counsel support the requested fee.

d. The Quality of Representation

Class Counsel's skill and efficiency supports the fee request here. Class Counsel include some of the most preeminent antitrust firms in the United States, with decades of experience prosecuting and trying complex antitrust actions. See Gerstein Dec. at ¶ 68; Exs. 3-16 to the Gerstein Dec. These firms have a particular expertise in litigating Hatch-Waxman pharmaceutical antitrust cases on behalf of direct purchasers, having litigated such cases for almost two decades on behalf of the same core class of direct purchasers; no other collection of firms in the U.S. has litigated more Hatch-Waxman antitrust cases on behalf of the direct purchaser class. This experience has enabled each law firm involved to specialize in particular areas of expertise (e.g., antitrust violations, causation, quantifying damages, economics, class certification, the Hatch-Waxman regulatory regime, pharmaceutical patents, pharmaceutical company business operations, and direct purchaser business operations), thus providing Class Counsel with the ability to efficiently coordinate, organize, and implement litigation strategies, and to react to defenses of all makes and models. Class Counsel's experience and skill is evidenced by their effective prosecution of this case for nearly four years, including the highly favorable settlement achieved.[7] See, e.g., In re BioScrip, Inc. Sec. Litig., 2017 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 118881 at *73 ("[L]ead Counsel's work was consistently of a high quality – in its motion practice, in its appearances before the Court, and in attaining a fair and reasonable settlement"); Kemp-Delisser, 2016 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 152496 at *49-50 (class counsel was comprised of national leaders in ERISA class action litigation that had been appointed lead or co-lead counsel in numerous other cases). Relatedly, "the quality of opposing counsel is also important in evaluating the quality of plaintiffs' counsels' work." Id. at *50 (internal quotation omitted); In re BioScrip, Inc. Sec. Litig., 2017 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 118881 at *73 ("[O]pposing counsel in this case was itself highly skilled, a factor courts have considered in approving fees."). Here, Defendants here have been vigorously represented by some of the country's leading defense firms both of which also have extensive Hatch-Waxman antitrust litigation experience: White & Case LLP and Goodwin Procter LLP. Achieving such a successful result for the class when faced by such skillful defense counsel further demonstrates Class Counsel's skill. See also Kemp-Delisser, 2016 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 152496 at *50 (defense counsel was a "highly capable" leading international firm).

[6] For instance, after years of litigation, jury trials were lost in the cases of Louisiana Wholesale Drug Co., Inc. v. Sanofi-Aventis, Case No. 07-cv-07343 (S.D.N.Y.) and In re Nexium (Esomeprazole) Antitrust Litig., Case No. 12-cv-2409 (D. Mass.). And Class Counsel litigated reverse payment agreements involving the brand drug Cipro for a decade, including conducting numerous depositions in London (with translators for German speaking witnesses of defendant Bayer). The Second Circuit affirmed dismissal of the case under the now-defunct "scope of the patent" standard that pre-dated the Supreme Court's decisions in Federal Trade Commission v. Actavis, 133 S. Ct. 2223 (2013). See Arkansas Carpenters, 604 F.3d 98 (2d Cir. 2010), cert. denied, 562 U.S. 1280 (2011).

Separately, the quality of representation provided by Class Counsel is further demonstrated by the recovery that Class Counsel achieved for the benefit of class members. See Dial Corp., 317

[7] In a very recent Hatch-Waxman case involving many of the same lawyers comprising Class Counsel here, a district court acknowledged Class Counsel's skill and experience. See In re K-Dur Antitrust Litig., Case No. 01-1652 (D.N.J.) (Dkt No. 1057) (Oct. 5, 2017 Order) ("The settlement here is directly attributable to the skill and efforts of Class Counsel, who are highly experienced in prosecuting these types of cases").

F.R.D. at 435 ("The results achieved through the efforts of [c]ounsel are a 'critical element in determining the appropriate fee to be awarded.'")(internal quotation omitted). As noted above, the recovery for class members here is unquestionably financially substantial. Id. ($244 million settlement "undoubtedly" benefitted class); Velez, 2010 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 125945 at *55 ($175 million settlement deemed "substantial"). Not only is the recovery substantial in terms of dollar value, but also when assessed in light of the risks of going forward against Defendants, discussed supra. Through the Settlement, class members are assured of an immediate and substantial financial recovery free of the attendant risks of continuing to litigate through trial and any subsequent appeals.

Accordingly, the quality of representation provided by Class Counsel supports Class Counsel's fee request.

e. The Requested Fee in Relation to the Settlement

This factor ensures that the requested fee is "fair and reasonable in relation to the recovery and compares favorably to fee awards" in other common fund cases. See In re Marsh ERISA Litig., 265 F.R.D. at 149. See also Velez, 2010 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 125945 at *58-60 (examining whether fee requested was "consistent with awards made in other class actions"); Caitflo, L.L.C., 2013 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 90858 at *8 (requested percentage was "well within the range of reasonable percentage-fee awards in this Circuit").

Here, Class Counsel's requested fee is consistent with the fee awards granted in the most analogous cases previously settled – other complex Hatch-Waxman antitrust class action cases brought by classes of direct purchasers alleging impeded generic entry – as the following chart indicates:

Case	Fee Award
In re K-Dur Antitrust Litig., No. 01-1652 (D.N.J. Oct. 5, 2017)	33⅓% of $60 million settlement
In re Provigil Antitrust Litig., No. 07-1979 (E.D. Pa. Oct. 16, 2015)	27.5% of $512 million settlement (partial settlement)
In re Prograf Antitrust Litig., No. 11-md-2242 (D. Mass. May 20, 2015)	33⅓% of $98 million settlement
In re Doryx Antitrust Litig., No. 12-3824 (E.D. Pa. Sept. 15, 2014)	33⅓% of $15 million settlement
In re Neurontin Antitrust Litig., No. 02-1830 (D.N.J. Aug. 6, 2014)	33⅓% of $191 million settlement
In re Skelaxin (Metaxalone) Antitrust Litig., No. 12-cv-83 (E.D. Tenn. June 30, 2014)	33⅓% of $73 million settlement
In re Flonase Antitrust Litig., No. 08-cv-3149 (E.D. Pa. June 14, 2013)	33⅓% of $150 million settlement
In re Wellbutrin XL Antitrust Litig., No. 08-cv-2431 (E.D. Pa. Nov. 7, 2012)	33⅓% of $37.5 million settlement
Rochester Drug Co-Operative, Inc. v. Braintree Labs., Inc., No. 07-142 (D. Del. May 31, 2012)	33⅓% of $17.25 million settlement
In re DDAVP Antitrust Litig., No. 05-2237 (S.D.N.Y. Nov. 28, 2011)	33⅓% of $20.25 million settlement
In re Wellbutrin SR Antitrust Litig., No. 04-5525 (E.D. Pa. Nov. 21, 2011)	33⅓% of $49 million settlement
Meijer, Inc. v. Abbott Labs., No. 07-5985 CW (N.D. Cal. Aug. 11, 2011)	33⅓% of $52 million settlement
In re Nifedipine Antitrust Litig., No. 03-mc-223-RJL (D.D.C. Jan. 31, 2011)	33⅓% of $35 million settlement
In re Oxycontin Antitrust Litig., No. 04-md-1603-SHS (S.D.N.Y. Jan. 25, 2011)	33⅓% of $16 million settlement
In re Tricor Direct Purchaser Antitrust Litig., No. 05-cv-340 (D. Del. April 23, 2009)	33⅓% of $250 million settlement
In re Remeron Direct Purchaser Antitrust Litig., 2005 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 27013 (D.N.J. Nov. 9, 2005)	33⅓% of $75 million settlement

In re Terazosin Hydrochloride Antitrust Litig., No. 99-MDL-1317, 2005 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 43082 (S.D. Fla. Apr. 19, 2005)	33⅓% of $74 million settlement
In re Relafen Antitrust Litig., No. 01-12239, 2004 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 28801 (D. Mass. April 9, 2004)	33⅓% of $175 million settlement
In re Buspirone Antitrust Litig., No. 01-CV-7951, 2003 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 26538 (S.D.N.Y. April 11, 2003)	33⅓% of $220 million settlement
In re Cardizem CD Antitrust Litig., MDL No. 1278 (E.D. Mich. Nov. 26, 2002)	30% of $110 million settlement

Further, Class Counsel's requested fee falls squarely within the range of fee awards granted within this Circuit. See, e.g., Collins v. Olin Corp., 2010 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 39862, at *24 (D. Conn. Apr. 21, 2010)("[O]ne third of the total fund is in line with the percentage fees awarded in similar class action suits"); In re Marsh ERISA Litig., 265 F.R.D. at 149 (approving one-third of the total fund and observing that many cases within the Second Circuit have awarded percentage fees equal to or greater than one third); Velez, 2010 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 125945 at *59-61 (observing that "[d]istrict courts in the Second Circuit routinely award attorneys' fees that are 30 percent or greater" and collecting cases ranging from 28 percent to 38.26 percent); Garcia, 2012 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 144446 at *20-21 ("Class Counsel's request for one-third of the Fund is reasonable and 'consistent with the norms of class litigation in this circuit'")(internal quotation omitted).

Finally, to date, no class member has objected to the request, a factor that numerous courts in this Circuit have determined as being a supportive factor. See Kiefer v. Moran Foods, LLC, 2014 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 106924 at *53 (D. Conn. July 31, 2014)(in approving attorneys' fees of one-third of common fund in wage-and-hour class action, noting there were no objections to requested fee); Stinson v. City of New York, 2017 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 89844 at *26-27 (S.D.N.Y. June 7, 2017)(noting absence of any objections to requested fee); Hall v. Prosource Techs., 2016 U.S.

Dist. LEXIS 53791 at *50-51 (E.D.N.Y. Apr. 11, 2016) (absence of any objection to requested fee "while [] not dispositive of the reasonableness of the fee request, 'does lend support for approval of the award.'")(internal quotation omitted).[8]

Accordingly, analysis of this factor supports Class Counsel's fee request.

f. Public Policy Considerations

As the Supreme Court has held, "private suits are an important element of the Nation's antitrust enforcement effort." Am. Soc'y of Mech. Engineers v. Hydrolevel Corp., 456 U.S. 556, 572 n. 10 (1982). In keeping with that rationale, a fee award "should reflect the important public policy goal of providing lawyers with sufficient incentive to bring common fund cases that serve the public interest." Kemp-Delisser, 2016 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 152496 at *52-53 (internal quotation omitted).

As one court has noted, "it is important to encourage top-tier litigators to pursue challenging antitrust cases…[because] [o]ur antitrust laws address issues that go to the heart of our economy." In re Credit Default Swaps Antitrust Litig., 2016 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 54587, at *55 (S.D.N.Y. Apr. 25, 2016). Thus, public policy considerations warrant incentivizing Class Counsel – who have pursued litigating Hatch-Waxman pharmaceutical antitrust cases for almost two decades on purely a contingency basis – to persist in enforcing this nation's antitrust laws.

Accordingly, public policy considerations support Class Counsel's fee request.

[8] The deadline for class members to object to Class Counsel's fee application is November 3, 2017. If Class Counsel receives any objection(s) to its fee application between the date of this filing and November 3, 2017, Class Counsel will promptly inform the Court and address such objection(s) in its motion for final approval of the Settlement.

g. A Lodestar Cross-Check Confirms the Reasonableness of the Requested Fee

In assessing the reasonableness of a fee award, courts routinely compare the lodestar to the fees that would be awarded under the percentage-of-recovery method as a "cross-check." See Kemp-Delisser, 2016 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 152496 at *53 (lodestar cross-check may be helpful in assessing reasonableness). Additionally, "counsel may be entitled to a 'multiplier' of their lodestar rate to compensate them for the risk they assumed, the quality of their work and the result achieved for the class." In re Telik, Inc. Sec. Litig., 576 F. Supp. 2d 570, 590 (S.D.N.Y. 2008).

Class Counsel's requested percentage-of-recovery fee award is also reasonable when analyzed in light of a lodestar crosscheck. As detailed in the Gerstein Declaration, Class Counsel worked 33,215.88 hours on this case, which is collectively $19,633,232.27 million in time based on current billing rates.[9] See Gerstein Dec. at ¶ 75. A 33⅓% fee award would equate to a lodestar multiplier of 2.48. Such a multiplier falls well within the range of lodestar multipliers routinely awarded by courts in this Circuit. See, e.g., Kemp-Delisser, 2016 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 152496 at *54 (multiplier of 2.77 "well within the range of lodestar multipliers that are regularly approved by district courts in the Second Circuit"); In re Telik, Inc. Sec. Litig., 576 F. Supp. 2d 579, 590 (S.D.N.Y. 2008) ("In contingent litigation, lodestar multipliers of over 4 are routinely awarded by courts…"); Maley v. Del Global Techs. Corp., 189 F. Supp. 2d 358, 371 (S.D.N.Y. 2002) (approving multiplier of 4.65).

Accordingly, the lodestar cross check in this case supports the requested fee.

[9] Where personnel are no longer with a particular firm, Class Counsel used the person's last applicable hourly billing rate.

B. Class Counsel's Costs And Expenses Are Reasonable And Were Necessarily Incurred To Achieve The Benefit Obtained

It is well-settled that counsel who have created a common fund for the benefit of a class are entitled to be reimbursed for out-of-pocket expenses reasonably incurred in creating the fund. See In re Marsh ERISA Litig., 265 F.R.D. at 150; Kemp-Delisser, 2016 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 152496 at *54-55.

Class Counsel's unreimbursed expenses were reasonably incurred and necessary to the representation of the Class. These expenses have been itemized by category for the Court's convenience. See Exs. 3-16 to the Gerstein Dec. These expenses include costs for computerized legal research, the creation and maintenance of an electronic document database, experts, travel and lodging expenses, copying, court reporters, deposition transcripts and mediation. Id.[10] Accordingly, Class Counsel respectfully request that the Court approve reimbursement of Class Counsel's expenses in full.

C. Incentive Awards for the Class Representatives are Appropriate and Reasonable

The purpose of incentive awards is to reimburse named plaintiffs, who "take on a variety of risks and tasks when they commence representative actions…" Kemp-Delisser, 2016 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 152496 at *55 (internal quotation omitted). Courts take into consideration the personal risk (if any) incurred by becoming and continuing as a litigant, the time and effort expended in assisting in the prosecution of the litigation, any other burdens sustained, and the ultimate recovery achieved. See Dial Corp., 317 F.R.D. at 439.

[10]Such expenses are of the type routinely deemed reasonable and necessary. See, e.g., In re Marsh ERISA Litig., 265 F.R.D. at 150 (deeming costs such as court reporters, expert fees, computer-assisted document organization, travel and copying are "ordinary and necessary").

Here, Class Counsel requests that the Court approve incentive awards in the amount of $75,000 for each of the class representatives – Miami Luken, RDC, American Sales and Castillo - in recognition of their commitment to, and participation in, this litigation. As class representatives, each actively pursued the class's interests by filing suit as a named plaintiff on behalf of all direct purchasers and undertaking the responsibilities attendant upon them as representative plaintiff. In particular, the class representatives undertook significant burden in this case in responding to Defendants' extensive discovery requests, which required the class representatives to perform repeated search and production. See Gerstein Dec. at ¶ 79. Moreover, courts have recognized the risks inherent in filing suit as a named plaintiff on behalf of a class against an entity with which all class members transact business. See Dial Corp., 317 F.R.D. at 439 ("[T]he decision to fire the first shot on behalf of the Class was fraught with risks. Notably, the named Plaintiffs in this case assumed a substantial risk in antagonizing a longstanding, power business partner…"). Here, that risk is inherent inasmuch as the class members are direct purchasers who transact business with Defendants on a regular basis.

Finally, the amount requested here is in line with awards made to named representatives in other Hatch-Waxman cases that Class Counsel has litigated.[11] Class Counsel therefore respectfully request that the Court approve these appropriate and reasonable incentive awards to the named plaintiffs.

[11] See, e.g., In re K-Dur Antitrust Litig., Civil Action No. 01-1652, Dkt No. 1057 at ¶ 12 (D.N.J. Oct. 5, 2017) (awarding $100,000 to class representative); In re Provigil Antitrust Litig., Civil Action No. 2:06-cv-01797 (MSG), Dkt No. 870 at ¶ 30 (E.D. Pa. Oct. 15, 2015) (awarding $100,000 to each of four class representatives and $50,000 to each of two other class representatives); In re Neurontin Antitrust Litig., Civil Action No. 02-1830 (FSH), Dkt No. 114 at ¶ 31 (D.N.J. Aug. 6, 2014) (awarding $100,000 to two class representatives); In re Nifedipene Antitrust Litig., MDL No. 1515, Civil Action No. 1:03-MC-223 (RJL), Dkt No. 333 at ¶ 3 (D.D.C. Jan. 31, 2011) (awarding $60,000 to each of four class representatives, for a total of $240,000 in incentive awards); Meijer, Inc. et al. v. Barr Pharmaceuticals, Inc., Civ. Action No. 05-2195 (CKK), Dkt. No. 210 at ¶ 17 (D.D.C. Apr. 20, 2009) (approving $50,000 to each of five class representatives for a total of $250,000 in incentive awards); Bradburn Parent Teacher Store, Inc. v. 3M, 513 F. Supp. 2d 322, 347 (E.D. Pa. 2007) ($75,000 incentive award); In re Lupron Mktg. & Sales Practices Litig., MDL No. 1430, 2005 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 17456, at *24-25 (D. Mass. Aug.

V. CONCLUSION

For the reasons set forth above and in the Gerstein Declaration, Class Counsel respectfully request that this Court enter an Order awarding Class Counsel fees in the amount of $48,666,666.70, i.e., 33⅓% of the Settlement (including a pro rata share of the accrued interest), and reimbursement of expenses in the amount of $976,338.23. Class Counsel also respectfully request that this Court approve incentive awards of $75,000 for each of the class representatives for their efforts on behalf of the Class in the prosecution of this action.

Dated: October 13, 2017

Respectfully submitted:

/s/ Bruce E. Gerstein
Joseph Opper
Bruce E. Gerstein
Noah Silverman
Ephraim R. Gerstein
GARWIN GERSTEIN & FISHER LLP
88 Pine Street Fl. 10
New York, NY 10005
212-398-0055
bgerstein@garwingerstein.com
jopper@garwingerstein.com nsilverman@garwingerstein.com egerstein@garwingerstein.com

Lead Counsel for Direct Purchaser Class Plaintiffs

17, 2005) (awarding a total of $100,000 to named plaintiffs and noting that "the named plaintiffs participated actively in the litigation…"); In re Cardizem CD Antitrust Litig., 218 F.R.D. 508, 535-36 (E.D. Mich. 2003) (awarding $75,000 to each of two corporate class representatives).

TAB 47A

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
DISTRICT OF MASSACHUSETTS

In re: Ranbaxy Generic Drug Application Antitrust Litigation	MDL No. 19-md-02878-NMG

MEMORANDUM & ORDER

GORTON, J.

This multi-district litigation involves five actions that were centralized in this Court and divided into two plaintiff classes against Ranbaxy Inc. and Sun Pharmaceutical Industries Limited (collectively, "Ranbaxy" or "defendants") for allegedly causing the delayed market entry of three generic drugs. After years of protracted litigation, the parties reached proposed settlement agreements in March, 2022.

Pending before the Court are motions by each of the two plaintiff classes for final approval of those settlements, as well as motions for attorneys' fees, litigation expenses and service awards for class representatives.

I. Background

The two plaintiff classes are composed of direct purchaser plaintiffs ("DPPs") and end-payor plaintiffs ("EPPs"). DPPs, such as wholesalers and distributors, purchase generic drugs directly from drug manufacturers. EPPs are third-party payors, such as health plans and insurance companies, that indirectly purchase and/or provide reimbursement for generic drugs at the end of the distribution chain from retailers and other intermediaries. Plaintiffs brought claims against Ranbaxy for violations of federal and state antitrust law, the federal Racketeer Influenced and Corrupt Organizations Act ("RICO") and state consumer protection statutes.

Two weeks before trial was set to commence, the parties notified the Court that they had reached global settlement agreements and preliminary approval of those settlements was subsequently allowed. Under the terms of the settlements, Ranbaxy will deposit $145,000,000 into a settlement fund for EPPs and $340,000,000 into a settlement fund for DPPs. The settlement funds, together with any interest accrued, will be used to pay: (1) taxes payable on the settlement funds, (2) any and all costs and expenses associated with issuing notice of the settlement to the classes and administering the settlement, (3) costs and expenses incurred by lead class counsel in connection with the litigation, and (4) any Court-approved attorneys' fees, as well as Court-approved service awards to the named plaintiffs. If the Court grants final approval, the remainder of the settlement funds will be distributed to qualifying members of the respective classes in accordance with the allocation plans.

In exchange, plaintiffs have agreed, inter alia, to release defendants from liability for the claims arising from the conduct alleged. Class members have been notified as to the terms of the settlement, including the attorneys' fees requested, and there have been no objections from members of either class to date.

Counsel have also submitted motions seeking attorneys' fees, litigation expenses and service awards for class representatives. More specifically, counsel for DPPs seek: (1) attorneys' fees of $92,523,554 (which represents 27.5 percent of the net fund or a lodestar multiplier of 2.11), (2) reimbursement of $3,550,713 in expenses and (3) $40,000 service awards for each of the two class representatives. Correspondingly, counsel for EPPs seek: (1) attorneys' fees of $40,600,000 (which represents 28 percent of the net fund or a lodestar multiplier of 2.94), (2) reimbursement of $2,268,846 in expenses and (3) $50,000 service awards for each of the two class representatives.

II. Motions for Final Settlement Approval

Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 23(e) provides the broad requirements for approval of a proposed settlement in class action litigation:

> [T]he court may approve [a settlement] only after a hearing and only on finding that it is fair, reasonable, and adequate after considering whether:
> (A) the class representatives and class counsel have adequately represented the class;
> (B) the proposal was negotiated at arm's length;
> (C) the relief provided for the class is adequate, taking into account:
> (i) the costs, risks, and delay of trial and appeal;
> (ii) the effectiveness of any proposed method of distributing relief to the class, including the method of processing class-member claims;
> (iii) the terms of any proposed award of attorney's fees, including timing of payment; and > (iv) any agreement required to be identified under Rule 23(e)(3); and > (D) the proposal treats class members equitably relative to each other.

Fed. R. Civ. P. 23(e)(2). Although the First Circuit Court of Appeals has not provided supplemental guidance concerning the factors to be considered in assessing the fairness of a settlement, many courts in this Circuit have looked to those set forth by the Second Circuit Court of Appeals in City of Detroit v. Grinnell Corp., 495 F.2d 448 (2d Cir. 1974). See, e.g., New England Carpenters Health Benefits Fund v. First DataBank, Inc., 602 F. Supp. 2d 277, 281 (D. Mass. 2009). Those factors are:

> (1) the complexity, expense, and likely duration of the litigation; (2) the reaction of the class to the settlement; (3) the stage of the proceedings and the amount of discovery completed; (4) the risks of establishing liability; (5) the risks of establishing damages; (6) the risks of maintaining the class action through the trial; (7) the ability of the defendants to withstand a greater judgment; (8) the range of reasonableness of the settlement fund in light of the best possible recovery; (9) the range of reasonableness of the settlement fund to a possible recovery in light of all the attendant risks of litigation.

City of Detroit, 495 F.2d at 463.

The necessary assessment is, thus, holistic and incorporates "a wide variety of factors bearing on the central question of whether the settlement is reasonable in light of the uncertainty of litigation." Bussie v. Allmerica Fin. Corp., 50 F. Supp. 2d 59, 72 (D. Mass. 1999). Notwithstanding the responsibility of the district court to carefully assess the settlement, there is a presumption in its favor so long as parties engaged in arms-length negotiations after meaningful discovery. In re Tyco Int'l, Ltd. Multidistrict Litig., 535 F. Supp. 2d 249, 259 (D.N.H. 2007).

After taking all of this and the submissions of counsel into consideration, the Court finds that the proposed settlement satisfies those requirements and represents a "fair, reasonable, and adequate" outcome to this litigation. That determination is supported by the complexities of class action litigation in the field of antitrust, the lack of objections to the settlement, the late stage at which the settlement was adopted and the risks associated with extending the litigation through trial. The settlement is also within the range of reasonableness when compared to other settlements in other generic delay antitrust cases. That the settlement is the result of arms-length negotiations weighs heavily in its favor, as does the quality of class counsel.

The Court therefore will allow plaintiffs' motions for final approval of the settlement insofar as they do not impact attorneys' fees.

III. Motions for Attorneys' Fees

A. Legal Standard

Counsel who recovers common funds for a class is entitled to reasonable attorneys' fees and reimbursement of expenses prior to the distribution of the balance to the class. Boeing Co. v. Van Gemert, 444 U.S. 472, 478 (1980). Courts have wide discretion in awarding attorneys' fees. In re Thirteen Appeals Arising Out of San Juan, 56 F.3d 295, 307 (1st Cir. 1995). In addition to ensuring that class counsel is fairly compensated, the district court is obliged to function as "a quasi-fiduciary to safeguard the corpus of the fund for the benefit of the plaintiff class." In re Fidelity/Micron Sec. Litig., 167 F.3d 735, 736 (1st Cir. 1990).

The district court may calculate attorneys' fees by either the percentage of the fund ("POF") method or the lodestar method. In re Thirteen Appeals, 56 F.3d at 307. The First Circuit has acknowledged the "distinct advantages" of the POF method, explaining that it is less burdensome, enhances efficiency and better approximates the marketplace dynamics. Id. Regardless of the method utilized, the goal of such a calculation is to compensate plaintiffs' counsel fairly for the labor provided, taking into account the risks they faced during the representation.

As a percentage of the relevant common fund, standard awards in the First Circuit range from 20% at the low end to 33% at the high end. Commonly, courts in this Circuit award fees between 25% (the benchmark) and 30%. See Conley v. Sears, Roebuck & Co., 222 B.R. 181, 187 (D. Mass. 1998); see also Roberts v. TJX Companies, Inc., 2016 WL 8677312 (D. Mass. Sept. 30, 2016) (33%); In re Puerto Rican Cabotage Antitrust Litig., No. 08-MD-1960(DRD), 2011 WL 4537726, at *9-10 (D.P.R. Sept. 13, 2011) (23%); In re Am. Dental Partners, Inc. Sec. Litig., No. 08-CV-10119-RGS, 2010 WL 1427404, at *1 (D. Mass. Apr. 9, 2010)

(22.5%); New Eng. Carpenters Health Benefits Fund v. 1st Databank, Inc., No. 05-CV-11148-PBS, 2009 WL 2408560, at *1-2 (D. Mass. Aug. 3, 2009) (20%); Sylvester v. Cigna Corp., 401 F. Supp. 2d 147 (D. Me. 2005) (33%). See generally Theodore Eisenberg & Geoffrey P. Miller, Attorneys' Fees & Expenses in Class Action Settlements: 1993-2008, J. Empirical Legal Stud. 248, 260 (2010) (Table 4) (finding that 20% was both the median and mean attorneys' fees awarded in the First Circuit between 1993 and 2008); Theodore Eisenberg, Geoffrey P. Miller & Roy Germano, Attorneys' Fees in Class Actions: 2009-2013, 92 N.Y.U. L. Rev. 937, 951 (2017) (Table 3) (finding the median attorneys' fees awarded in the First Circuit between 2009 and 2013 was 23% and the mean 26%).

This Session typically approves attorneys' fees of 25% or, sometimes, more but often reduces requested fees when they are deemed excessive. See Latorraca v. Centennial Techs. Inc., 834 F. Supp. 2d 25, 27 (D. Mass. 2011) (a securities fraud class action in which this Session reduced the fees awarded to 25% of the amount to be paid to class members rather than the initially requested 30%); Boyd v. Pepsi Beverages Company et al., 14-cv-12289 (D. Mass Feb. 18, 2016)(a FLSA class action in which this Session allowed attorneys' fees of 25% of the total gross value of the settlement); Kingsborough v. Sprint et al., 14-cv-12049 (D. Mass. June 3, 2015)(a property rights dispute in which this Session approved attorneys' fees of 25% of the total gross value of the settlement); Tracey v. MIT, 16-cv-11620-NMG (D. Mass. May 29, 2020) (an ERISA class action in which this Session allowed attorneys' fees of 29% of the settlement fund where the lodestar calculation exceeded the 25% benchmark). Most recently, in Bettencourt v. Jeanne D'Arc Credit Union et al., 17-cv-12548-NMG (D. Mass. June 17, 2020), this Session decreased the requested attorneys' fees from 30% of the settlement fund to 27%, "splitting the difference" between the request and its usual benchmark of 25%.

The lodestar method, under which a lodestar multiplier is calculated based upon the total hours worked, is often used in this Circuit to cross-check the attorneys' fees calculated pursuant to the POF method. The typical range of the lodestar multiplier allowed by this Court is between one and 2.7. Most multipliers fall between one and four, although there is significant variation. See In re Relafen Antitrust Litigation, 231 F.R.D. 52, 82 (D. Mass 2005) (citing Vizcaino v. Microsoft Corp., 290 F.3d 1043, 1050 (9th Cir. 2002)). See also Theodore Eisenberg et al., Attorneys' Fees in Class Actions: 2009-2013, (finding, between 2009 and 2013, the mean multiplier in common fund cases in the First Circuit was 2.4 and the mean multiplier in national antitrust cases was 1.61).

> A properly calculated lodestar allows the court to assess whether the multiplier being requested by counsel is justified by the complexity of the case, the risks of the litigation, and the benefit they conferred on the class.

Arkansas Tchr. Ret. Sys. v. State St. Bank & Tr. Co., 512 F. Supp. 3d 196, 239 (D. Mass. 2020), appeal dismissed sub nom. Arkansas Tchr. Ret. Sys. v. State St. Corp., No. 20-1365, 2020 WL 5793216 (1st Cir. Sept. 3, 2020), and aff'd in part, appeal dismissed in part sub nom. Arkansas Tchr. Ret. Sys. v. State St. Corp., 25 F.4th 55 (1st Cir. 2022) (citations omitted). See Stanger v. China Elec. Motor, Inc., 812 F.3d 734, 741 (9th Cir. 2016) ("Risk multipliers incentivize attorneys to represent class clients, who might otherwise be denied access to counsel, on a contingency basis.").

B. Application

Regardless of the precise formula by which the Court calculates attorneys' fees in this case, they will be immense due to the scope of this litigation, which has culminated in two proposed settlement funds totaling approximately $475 million. While plaintiffs effectively cite case law concerning the alleged delayed market entry of other generic pharmaceuticals, that precedent is of limited value in light of the relative magnitude of the amounts involved here. The Court must holistically determine what constitutes fair compensation under these particular circumstances, given the enormity of the settlement and the relatively routine (albeit extensive) nature of the legal services rendered. In assessing attorneys' fees either as a percentage of the settlement fund or a multiple of the lodestar, it is necessary and appropriate to consider the funds at issue which, in this case, are colossal.

A brief survey of attorneys' fees awarded in similar cases arising from the alleged delayed market entry of generic pharmaceuticals in this District highlights the magnitude of both the settlement funds at issue here and, relatedly, the attorneys' fees requested. Among those cases, the modal fraction of the settlement fund awarded as attorneys' fees has been one-third, significantly higher than the fraction sought by counsel here. The total dollar amount of the funds in those prior cases was, however, significantly lower. See In re Solodyn Antitrust Litig., No. 14-md-2503, 2018 WL 7075881, at *2 (D. Mass. July 18, 2018) (Casper, J.) (awarding fees of $24,176,667 to direct purchaser counsel and $7,666,667 to end-payor purchasers, representing one-third of each respective settlement fund); In re Asacol Antitrust Litig., No. 1:15-CV-12730-DJC, 2017 WL 11475275, at *4 (D. Mass. Dec. 7, 2017) (Casper, J.) (awarding fees of $5,000,000, equaling one-third of settlement fund, for direct purchaser counsel); In re Prograf Antitrust Litig., No. 1:11-MD-02242-RWZ, 2015 WL 13908415, at *1 (D. Mass.

May 20, 2015) (Zobel, J.) (awarding fees of $4,416,667, equaling one-third of settlement fund, for indirect purchaser counsel); In re Relafen Antitrust Litig., 231 F.R.D. at 82 (Young, J.) (awarding fees of $22,311,000, equaling one-third of settlement fund, for indirect purchaser counsel).

The First Circuit Court of Appeals does not require courts to cross check the percentage of the fund against the lodestar calculation to determine the reasonableness of the requested attorneys' fees. See In re Thirteen Appeals Arising Out of San Juan Dupont Plaza Hotel Fire Litig., 56 F.3d 295, 307 (1st Cir. 1995).

> Nevertheless, the Court will perform the lodestar calculation as the Court finds that it is a pragmatic cross-check to ensure that the Court is not creating a windfall for Lead Counsel.

In re Puerto Rican Cabotage Antitrust Litig., 815 F. Supp. 2d 448, 464 (D.P.R. 2011). See Vizcaino, 290 F.3d at 1050 ("While the primary basis of the fee award remains the percentage method, the lodestar may provide a useful perspective on the reasonableness of a given percentage award."); Manual for Complex Litigation (Fourth) § 14.122 (2004) ("The lodestar is . . . useful as a cross-check on the percentage method."). That reference is particularly helpful here due to the magnitude of attorneys' fees under consideration.

Compared to the other generic delay cases cited supra, the conclusion is clear: the requested lodestar multipliers are on the high end of those awarded and, in fact, the lodestar multiplier requested from counsel for EPPs is substantially higher than any of those figures. See In re Solodyn Antitrust Litig., at *2 (lodestar multiplier of 0.82); In re Asacol Antitrust Litig., at *4 (D. Mass. Dec. 7, 2017) (lodestar multiplier of less than 0.60); In re Prograf Antitrust Litig., at *1 (D. Mass. May 20, 2015) (lodestar multiplier of 2.35); In re Relafen Antitrust Litig., 231 F.R.D. at 82 (lodestar multiplier of 2.02).

The Court is undoubtedly influenced by the immensity of the requested fees at issue. The Court declines, however, to apply strictly the logic of the declining-percentage rule that some jurists have applied to cases involving so-called "megafunds," i.e. settlements exceeding $100 million. The First Circuit has not addressed the advisability of applying such a rule and courts in this District have declined to do so. See Arkansas Tchr. Ret. Sys., 512 F. Supp. 3d at 239; In re Lupron Mktg. & Sales Pracs. Litig., No. 01-CV-10861-RGS, 2005 WL 2006833, at *6 (D. Mass. Aug. 17, 2005). See generally Newberg and Rubenstein on Class Actions § 15:81 (6th ed.).

Nevertheless, empirical research has revealed that "fee percentage is strongly and inversely associated with settlement size among all cases" and, at least for awards for settlements between $250 million and $500 million in 2006 and 2007, the mean and median awards were 17.8% and 19.5%, respectively. See Brian T. Fitzpatrick, An Empirical Study of Class Action Settlements and Their Fee Awards, 7 J. Empirical Legal Stud. 811, 839 (2010).

The Court acknowledges the particularities of this litigation, the substantial benefit conferred on plaintiff classes by counsel, the legal uncertainties involved in prosecuting the case, the financial risks to which counsel were exposed and the extensive timeline of the litigation. Nevertheless, the Court concludes that it is appropriate here to adjust significantly downward the attorneys' fees due, in part, to the extent to which this litigation was the successor of a civil settlement and criminal plea agreement into which Ranbaxy entered with the federal government in 2013. Thus, while some of the specific legal theories at issue in this case were novel, the allegations of wrongdoing at the core of the case were based upon findings known at the outset of the litigation and the financial risks inherent to litigation of this scope were certainly mitigated.

For that reason, and others, the Court finds that the attorneys' fees requested are excessive and that attorneys' fees totaling 20 percent of the settlement funds—$68,000,000 for the DPPs and $29,000,000 for the EPPs—are reasonable. Those attorneys' fees, which represent lodestar multipliers of 1.55 for the DPPs and 2.10 for the EPPs, represent awards sufficient to compensate counsel and to incentivize future litigation on behalf of plaintiffs similarly situated.

ORDER

For the forgoing reasons, the motions for final approval of the settlement agreements (Docket Nos. 595 and 600) are ALLOWED. Furthermore, the motions for attorneys' fees (Docket Nos. 597 and 603) are ALLOWED, in part, and DENIED, in part. Class counsel are awarded attorneys' fees in the amount of 20% of each respective common fund, plus interest accrued thereon, if any. Furthermore, class counsel will be reimbursed for the reasonable litigation expenses set forth in their motions and class representatives will be paid the service awards requested.

Counsel for DPPs are awarded: (1) attorneys' fees of $68,000,000, (2) reimbursement of $3,550,713.47 in expenses and (3) $40,000 service awards for each of the two class representatives. Counsel for EPPs are awarded: (1) attorneys' fees of $29,000,000, (2) reimbursement of $2,268,845.61 in expenses and (3) $50,000 service awards for each of the two class representatives.

So ordered.

/s/ Nathaniel M. Gorton
Nathaniel M. Gorton
United States District Judge

Dated September 19, 2022

TAB 47B

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
FOR THE DISTRICT OF MASSACHUSETTS

IN RE: RANBAXY GENERIC DRUG APPLICATION ANTITRUST LITIGATION	MDL No. 2878
THIS DOCUMENT RELATES TO: All End-Payor Actions	Master File No. 19-md-02878-NMG

MEMORANDUM OF LAW IN SUPPORT OF END-PAYOR LEAD CLASS COUNSEL'S MOTION FOR ATTORNEYS' FEES AND PAYMENT OF LITIGATION EXPENSES, AND APPLICATION FOR SERVICE AWARDS

TABLE OF CONTENTS

TABLE OF AUTHORITIES iii

I. INTRODUCTION 1

II. BACKGROUND 2

A. Case Investigation and Pleadings 2

B. Class Counsel Engages in Significant Fact and Expert Discovery 3

C. The EPP Classes Are Certified 3

D. Summary Judgment and Daubert Motions are Filed 5

E. Trial Preparations 5

F. Settlement Negotiations 6

III. ARGUMENT 7

A. THE REQUESTED ATTORNEYS' FEE AWARD IS FAIR AND REASONABLE 7

1. The Percentage-of-the-Fund Method Supports the Lead Class Counsel's Fee Request 8

a) This Case Presented Substantial Risks from Inception through Trial 9

b) The Fee Award Is Reasonable in Light of Fee Awards in Other Generic Suppression Lawsuits 11

c) Class Counsel Are Highly Skilled and Possess Extensive Expertise Litigating Pharmaceutical Class Actions 12

d) This Case Was Extremely Complex 13

e) Class Counsel Litigated with Diligence and Efficiency 14

f) The Classes Substantially Benefit from the Settlement 15

g) Class Counsel's Requested Fee Furthers the Public Interest in Incentivizing End-Payor Suits Challenging Anticompetitive Practices by Pharmaceutical Companies 15

2. The Lodestar Cross-Check Further Supports the Reasonableness of Class Counsel's Fee 17

B. THE REQUESTED EXPENSES ARE REASONABLE 18

C. THE REQUESTED SERVICE AWARDS ARE REASONABLE. 19

IV. CONCLUSION 21

TABLE OF AUTHORITIES

Cases

Alpine Pharmacy, Inc. v. Chas. Pfizer & Co., Inc.,
481 F.2d 1045 (2d Cir. 1973) 16

Arkansas Tchr. Ret. Sys. v. State St. Bank & Tr. Co.,
512 F. Supp. 3d 196 (D. Mass. 2020) 12

Bezdek v. Vibram USA Inc.,
79 F. Supp. 3d 324 (D. Mass. 2015) 7, 19

Boeing Co. v. Van Gemert,
444 U.S. 472 (1980) 7

Buckman Co. v. Plaintiffs' Legal Comm.,
531 U.S. 341 (2001) 10

Bussie v. Allmerica Fin. Corp.,
No. 97-40204-NMG, 1999 WL 342042 (D. Mass. May 19, 1999) 8, 18, 20

Carlson v. Target Enter., Inc.,
No. 18-40139, 2020 WL 1332839 (D. Mass. Mar. 23, 2020) 19

Giorgio v. Duxbury,
No. 12-11171-LTS, 2016 WL 3983232 (D. Mass. July 25, 2016) 17

Goldberger v. Integrated Resources, Inc.,
209 F.3d 43 (2d Cir. 2000) 16

Gordan v. Mass. Mut. Life Ins. Co.,
No. 13-cv-30184, 2016 WL 11272044 (D. Mass. Nov. 3, 2016) 18

Grendel's Den, Inc. v. Larkin,
749 F.2d 945 (1st Cir. 1984) 8, 9

Illinois Brick Co. v. Illinois,
431 U.S. 720 (1977) 9

In re "Agent Orange" Prod. Liab. Litig.,
818 F.2d 216 (2d Cir. 1987) 6

In re Asacol Antitrust Litig.,
907 F.3d 42 (1st Cir. 2018) 4, 10

In re Cabletron Sys., Inc. Sec. Litig.,

239 F.R.D. 30 (D.N.H. 2006) 8

In re Fidelity/Micron Sec. Litig.,
167 F.3d 735 (1st Cir. 1999) 19

In re Flonase Antitrust Litig.,
951 F. Supp. 2d 739 (E.D. Pa. 2013) 13

In re Intuniv Antitrust Litig.,
2019 WL 3947262 (D. Mass. Aug. 21, 2019) 10

In re Lupron Mktg. & Sales Practices Litig.,
No. MDL 1430, 2005 WL 2006833 (D. Mass. Aug. 17 2005) 9, 16, 20

In re Neurontin Mktg. & Sales Practices Litig.,
58 F. Supp. 3d 167 (D. Mass. 2014) 8, 11, 18

In re Nexium Antitrust Litig.,
842 F.3d 34 (1st Cir. 2016) 10

In re Niaspan Antitrust Litig.,
No. 13-MD-2460, 2020 WL 2933824 (E.D. Pa. June 2, 2020) 10

In re Puerto Rican Cabotage Antitrust Litig., 815 F. Supp. 2d 448 (D.P.R. 2011) 8, 13, 14, 16

In re Relafen Antitrust Litig.,
231 F.R.D. 52 (D. Mass. 2005) 8, 14, 18, 20

In re Superior Beverage/Glass Container Consol. Pretrial,
133 F.R.D. 119 (N.D. Ill. 1990) 13

In re Thirteen Appeals Arising Out of San Juan Dupont Plaza Hotel Fire Litig., 56 F.3d 295 (1st Cir. 1995) 7, 8

In re TJX Companies Retail Sec. Breach Litig.,
584 F. Supp. 2d (noting typical factors) 8, 9, 15

In re Urethane Antitrust Litig.,
No. 04-1616-JWL, 2016 WL 4060156 (D. Kan. July 29, 2016) 12

In re Volkswagen & Audi Warranty Extension Litig.,
89 F. Supp. 3d 155 (D. Mass. 2015) 7, 8

In re Wholesale Grocery Prods. Antitrust Litig.,
957 F.3d 879 (8th Cir. 2020) 10

In re WorldCom, Inc. Sec. Litig.,

388 F. Supp. 2d 319 (S.D.N.Y. 2005) 7

Latorraca v. Centennial Techs. Inc.,
834 F. Supp. 2d 25 (D. Mass. 2011) 19

Lauture v. A.C. Moore Arts & Crafts, Inc.,
No. 17-CV-10219, 2017 WL 5900058 (D. Mass. Nov. 28, 2017) 20

Lucas v. Kmart Corp.,
No. 99-cv-01923-JLK-CBS, 2006 WL 2729260 (D. Colo July 27, 2006) 17

Mazola v. May Dep't Stores Co.,
No. 97-cv-10872-NG, 1999 WL 1261312 (D. Mass. Jan. 27, 1999) 16

Medoff v. CVS Caremark Corp.,
No. 09-cv-554-JNL, 2016 WL 632238 (D.R.I. Feb. 17, 2016) 9

Mooney v. Domino's Pizza, Inc.,
No. 1:14-cv-13723, 2018 WL 10232918 (D. Mass. Jan. 23, 2018) 18

New England Carpenters Health Benefits Fund v. First Databank, Inc.,
No. 05-11148, 2009 WL 2408560 (D. Mass. Aug. 3, 2009) 18

Prudential Ins. Co. of Am. SGLI/VGLI Contract Litig.,
No. 3:10-CV-30163, 2014 WL 6968424 (D. Mass. Dec. 9, 2014) 20

Spicer v. Chi. Bd. Options Exchange, Inc.,
844 F. Supp. 1226 (N.D. Ill. 1993) 20

Spruill v. Alexander,
No. 09-292S, 2011 WL 2413837 (D.R.I. Mar. 31, 2011) 17

Tyco Intern., Ltd. Multidistrict Litig.,
535 F. Supp. 2d 17

Williams v. Poulous,
Nos. 94-2057, 94-2058, 1995 WL 281451 (1st Cir. May 12, 1995) 17

Rules

FED. R. CIV. P. 23(f) 5

FED. R. CIV. P. 23(h) 7

Pursuant to Rule 23(h) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, Lead Class Counsel[1] for the End-Payor Class Plaintiffs ("EPPs") respectfully submit this memorandum of law in support of their motion (hereinafter, the "Fee and Expense Application") seeking an award of 28% of the $145,000,000 common fund ($40,600,000.00 plus interest) as attorneys' fees and $2,268,845.61 (1.6% of the common fund) as payment for Class Counsel's[2] litigation expenses. End-Payor Class Plaintiffs[3] also seek Service Awards totaling $50,000 for the two Class Representatives, United Food and Commercial Works Health and Welfare Fund of Northeastern Pennsylvania ("UFCW NEPA") and Louisiana Health Service & Indemnity Company d/b/a Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Louisiana and HMO Louisiana, Inc. ("BCBS LA") (collectively, the "Plaintiffs" or "Class Representatives") as compensation for the service that Plaintiffs provided to the Classes and the risks they undertook as Class Representatives.

I. INTRODUCTION

EPPs are third-party payors, entities such as health insurers and union-sponsored health and welfare funds, that pay for prescription drugs their members and insureds purchase. This Action[4] was brought on behalf of all EPPs in the United States who paid more than they otherwise would have for brand or generic Diovan, Nexium, and Valcyte, as a result of the alleged misconduct of Defendants Sun Pharmaceutical Industries Ltd. and Ranbaxy, Inc. ("Ranbaxy" or "Defendants"). Class Counsel marshalled its resources and effectively prosecuted the case nearly to trial, leading to a Settlement that provides real, tangible benefits to the Classes of thousands of [1] "Lead Class Counsel" are: (1) Lowey Dannenberg, P.C. and (2) The Dugan Law Firm, APLC.

[2] "Class Counsel" are: (1) Lowey Dannenberg, P.C., (2) The Dugan Law Firm, APLC, (3) Young Law Group, P.C. and (4) Aylstock, Witkin, Kreis & Overholtz, PLLC. Young Law Group and Aylstock, Witkin, Kreis & Overholtz, PLLC are hereinafter referred to as "Additional Counsel."
[3] Unless otherwise defined herein, capitalized terms have the same meaning as in the Settlement Agreement dated April 8, 2022 ("Settlement Agreement"). ECF No. 587-1. Unless otherwise indicated, internal citations and quotation marks are omitted and ECF citations are to the docket for this MDL.
[4] In re Ranbaxy Generic Drug Application Antitrust Litig., 19-md-02878-NMG (D. Mass.).

EPPs. The Net Settlement Fund will be distributed to eligible Class Members upon filing of valid proofs of claim.

Class Counsel's recovery is significant in light of the risks involved in litigating this Action. Defendants fiercely contested EPPs at every turn. The most immediate risk of a potential adverse ruling involved the impending jury trial, which was two weeks away when Lead Class Counsel and Defendants reached this Settlement and would have almost certainly resulted in an appeal regardless of the verdict. Despite these risks, Class Counsel—who proceeded on a contingent fee basis, advanced millions of dollars in costs for experts and other expenses to ready the case for trial, and, collectively, brought their decades of experience to bear to litigate this case—secured substantial benefits on behalf of the Classes.

II. BACKGROUND[5]

A. Case Investigation and Pleadings[6]

On November 6, 2018, Lowey Dannenberg filed the first action, on behalf of Plaintiff UFCW NEPA and EPPs in the Eastern District of Pennsylvania. The complaint asserted novel legal theories related to antitrust monopolization and racketeering, requiring Lowey Dannenberg to devote significant time prior to filing the complaint to ensure that there was a sound legal basis for the claims brought under every one of the twenty-one state antitrust laws, fifteen state consumer protection laws, and federal racketeering law. On February 11, 2019, the UFCW Action was transferred to this Court for coordinated proceedings with three actions of the Direct Purchaser Plaintiffs ("DPPs"). Following similar internal investigation and analyses from the perspective of [5] The Court is aware of the background and procedural history of this case and so it will only be briefly summarized here. A more complete description is available in the Joint Declaration of Gerald Lawrence, Esq. and James R. Dugan II, Esq. in support of (A) End-Payor Plaintiffs' Unopposed Motion for Final Approval of Action Settlement and (B) End-Payor Lead Class Counsel's Motion for an Award of Attorneys' Fees, Litigation Expenses, and Service Awards (the "Joint Decl.") at ¶¶12-86.

[6] See Joint Decl., at ¶¶12-23.

a large health insurer, on February 13, 2019, The Dugan Law Firm filed an action on behalf of Plaintiff BCBS LA in this Court. Lead Class Counsel filed the Consolidated End-Payor Complaint with Jury Demand on April 19, 2019. After two rounds of fiercely contested motion to dismiss briefing, Lead Class Counsel sought leave to file the Second Amended Consolidated End-Payor Class Action Complaint and Jury Demand. Defendants opposed leave to amend, which the Court granted on March 1, 2021. On March 16, 2021, Defendants filed their Answer.

B. Class Counsel Engages in Significant Fact and Expert Discovery[7]

Beginning in April 2019, the parties engaged in substantial fact and expert discovery. Lead Class Counsel worked in conjunction with counsel for the DPPs (collectively with the EPPs, the "purchasers") to gather and synthesize facts, including documents, data and witness testimony from, among others: Defendants, alleged co-conspirators in the RICO enterprise, the FDA, and third-party drug manufacturers. In all, Lead Class Counsel, with assistance of Additional Counsel, reviewed millions of pages of documents produced by Defendants and third parties. Despite the challenges imposed by the COVID-19 pandemic, Lead Class Counsel overcame those challenges and twenty (20) fact witnesses and (20) expert witnesses were deposed.

C. The EPP Classes Are Certified[8]

Lead Class Counsel engaged in substantial work with their experts in order to prepare their class certification filing. First, Lead Class Counsel worked with their damages expert, Dr. Rena Conti, to show that there was injury to substantially all of the class members using common proof. Lead Class Counsel and Dr. Conti analyzed documents and data from the Class Representatives, Defendants, and third parties to demonstrate historic trends in the generic pharmaceutical marketplace and in third-party payor purchasing habits. Lead Class Counsel also worked with Dr.

[7] See Joint Decl. at ¶¶24-45.
[8] See Joint Decl. at ¶¶46-58.

Conti to utilize nationwide market claims data for the three drugs at issue to show impact and the scope of damages for nationwide and state-specific classes.

Lead Class Counsel recognized that recent class certification decisions in the First Circuit presented significant hurdles to proving class certification. To that end, Lead Class Counsel hired an additional expert, Ms. Laura Craft, to opine on matters related to ascertainability of the Class Members. This required Lead Class Counsel to invest hundreds of additional hours to analyze documents and data collected in discovery with their expert to show the richness of pharmaceutical data and the ease at which such data could be used to identify class members.

On November 2, 2020, Lead Class Counsel filed their motion for class certification. Lead Class Counsel also filed opening reports for both Dr. Conti and Ms. Craft on November 2, 2020. On February 10, 2021, Defendants filed their opposition. Defendants challenged EPPs' ability to show class-wide injury on several fronts, claiming that their expert's methodology of using average pricing masked significant variation in pricing, and that various subgroups, such as Medicare Part D plans and so-called "brand loyalists," within the EPPs' classes were not injured. Defendants also lodged multiple arguments rooted in EPPs' state law claims. Finally, relying on the First Circuit's recent decision in In re Asacol Antitrust Litig.,[9] Defendants claimed that EPPs' classes were not ascertainable because they had no administratively feasible methodology for applying class exclusions and eliminating uninjured class members.

Lead Class Counsel worked with both Ms. Craft and Dr. Conti to thoroughly rebut the assertions in Defendants' opposition and in the report from defense expert Dr. Bruce Strombom in their rebuttal reports. After oral argument from Lead Class Counsel, assisted with a slide presentation, the Court certified the EPP Classes.

[9] 907 F.3d 42, 53–54 (1st Cir. 2018).

On May 28, 2021, Defendants filed a petition pursuant to Fed. R. Civ. P. 23(f) seeking permission to appeal the class certification Order. While the Court's May 14, 2021 Order granted both the DPP and EPP class certification motions, Defendants only sought to appeal the certification of the End-Payor Classes under Rule 23(f), claiming the Court's decision conflicted with First Circuit precedent because the EPPs could not prove classwide injury through common proof, rebates were relevant to antitrust injury, and the EPPs could be "brand-loyal." Lead Class Counsel vigorously opposed Defendants' arguments and pointed to the substantial law developed within the First Circuit and others that agreed with this Court's decision, and the evidence adduced through discovery and in expert analysis that supported the EPPs' position. The First Circuit denied the petition on December 21, 2021.

While Defendants' Rule 23(f) petition was pending, this Court approved EPPs' plan for providing class notice of the certified class action and appointed A.B. Data, Ltd. as Notice Administrator on October 26, 2021. On or about November 5, 2021, notice was disseminated. Only three opt-out requests were filed before the deadline of December 20, 2021.

D. Summary Judgment and Daubert Motions are Filed[10]

The parties filed their respective motions for summary judgment on May 17, 2021. On the same day the parties also filed their Daubert motions to exclude the opposing parties' experts. After full briefing and oral argument held on October 22, 2021, the Court denied all summary judgment motions on November 22, 2021. At the Status Conference held on December 21, 2021, the Court denied all Daubert motions.

E. Trial Preparations[11]

Lead Class Counsel was actively engaged in every facet of trial preparations. This included

[10] See Joint Decl.at ¶¶59-65.
[11] See Joint Decl. at ¶¶66-80.

designating certain witness depositions, crafting portions of the exhibit list, drafting jury instructions, voir dire questions, and verdict slip questions. Lead Class Counsel was preparing to be primary examiner for six live witnesses at trial, and to deliver opening and closing arguments to the jury.

F. Settlement Negotiations[12]

Beginning in October 2021, Lead Class Counsel and Defendants began engaging in settlement discussions. On November 15-16, 2021, Lead Class Counsel engaged in a two-day in-person mediation with Kenneth Feinberg. After the parties failed to reach resolution at the mediation, periodic informal conversations between Lead Class Counsel and Mr. Feinberg continued.

Beginning on February 11, 2022, Lead Class Counsel and Defendants resumed active settlement negotiations through Mr. Feinberg until Defendants made an offer on March 21, 2022 that was within the range Lead Class Counsel had analyzed to be acceptable. After several additional days of negotiations, and with additional assistance from Mr. Feinberg to finalize certain terms, Lead Class Counsel executed their Settlement Agreement with Defendants on April 8, 2022. The Settlement was preliminarily approved on April 28, 2022.

Throughout the litigation, Lead Class Counsel conducted a thorough, efficient prosecution, and in the process avoided duplication of work among themselves or in their collaboration with DPPs' counsel. In light of their efforts throughout the litigation from inception through to the settlement, the Fee and Expense Application is reasonable. The attorneys' fee request is justified under the percentage-of-the-fund approach and reflects a reasonable multiplier on Class Counsel's lodestar. If awarded, Lead Class Counsel will allocate the fees among Class Counsel in proportion to their contributions to this case.[13] The expenses for which Class Counsel seeks payment were reasonably incurred to achieve this excellent result for the Classes and should be paid. Finally, the Class Representatives devoted significant time and effort to this litigation, at substantial personal risk, and Service Awards of $25,000 to each Class Representative are also appropriate.

[12] See Joint Decl. at ¶¶81-86.

III. ARGUMENT[14]

A. THE REQUESTED ATTORNEYS' FEE AWARD IS FAIR AND REASONABLE

In class action litigation, attorneys whose work results in a common benefit for class members are entitled to fair and reasonable fees for their work, subject to the court's discretion.[15] The First Circuit generally favors the "percentage-of-the-fund" method, in which the parties' settlement establishes a "common fund" of money for the benefit of class members and the court may "shape[] the counsel fee based on what it determines is a reasonable percentage of the fund recovered for those benefitted by the litigation."[16] The percentage-of-the-fund method has distinct structural advantages for common fund cases due to its ease in administration and efficiency, as well as providing "appropriate financial incentives" necessary to "attract well-qualified plaintiffs' counsel who are able to take a case to trial, and who defendants understand are able and willing to do so."[17] From a policy standpoint, "the [percentage] method of calculating fees more [13] See In re "Agent Orange" Prod. Liab. Litig., 818 F.2d 216, 223 (2d Cir. 1987) (recognizing class counsel may distribute general fee award in "some relationship to the services rendered").

[14] Class Counsel's efforts on behalf of the Classes are described in the Joint Decl. and in the supporting Class Counsel declarations attached thereto as Exhibits 1 through 4.
[15] See, e.g., FED. R. CIV. P. 23(h) ("[i]n a certified class action, the court may award reasonable attorney's fees and nontaxable costs that are authorized by law or by the parties' agreement."); see also In re Thirteen Appeals Arising Out of the San Juan Dupont Plaza Hotel Fire Litig., 56 F.3d 295, 305 (1st Cir. 1995) (attorneys in common fund cases entitled to reasonable attorney fees from fund); Bezdek v. Vibram USA Inc., 79 F. Supp. 3d 324, 349 (D. Mass. 2015) ("Attorneys in a certified class action may be awarded reasonable fees and costs."); In re Volkswagen & Audi Warranty Extension Litig., 89 F. Supp. 3d 155, 164 (D. Mass. 2015) (reasonable fee is question in sound discretion of trial judge).
[16] In re Thirteen Appeals, 56 F.3d at 305; see also Boeing Co. v. Van Gemert, 444 U.S. 472, 478 (1980).
[17] In re WorldCom, Inc. Sec. Litig., 388 F. Supp. 2d 319, 359 (S.D.N.Y. 2005); see also In re Thirteen Appeals, 56 F.3d at 308.

appropriately aligns the interests of the class with the interests of class counsel—the larger the value of the settlement, the larger the value of the fee award."[18] Courts have discretion to cross-check the reasonableness of this award with the "lodestar" method, in which the court calculates the fee award by "determining the number of hours productively spent on the litigation and multiplying those hours by reasonable hourly rates."[19] The resulting lodestar may be increased by a multiplier based on factors including the risks related to pursuing contingent fees in the case, delay in payment, quality of representation, novelty of the law and public interest.[20] As discussed below, the requested fee award of $40,600,000 is objectively fair and reasonable under both the percentage-of-the-fund method and lodestar method.

1. The Percentage-of-the-Fund Method Supports the Lead Class Counsel's Fee Request

Although the First Circuit has not endorsed a specified set of factors to be used in evaluating a fee request's reasonableness, district courts in this Circuit generally consider the following factors: (1) the risk of the litigation and nonpayment; (2) the fee awards in similar cases; (3) the complexity and duration of the litigation; (4) the skill, experience, and efficiency of the attorneys involved; (5) the amount of time devoted to the case by counsel; (6) public policy considerations; and (7) the benefit to the class.[21] When many of these factors are present, courts will often award a larger percentage of the fund (under the percentage-of-the-fund method) and/or [18] Bussie v. Allmerica Fin. Corp., No. 97-40204-NMG, 1999 WL 342042, at *2 (D. Mass. May 19, 1999).

[19] In re Thirteen Appeals, 56 F.3d at 305, 307 (noting percentage-of fund method "better approximates the workings of the marketplace" because it "is result-oriented rather than process-oriented, while lodestar method "encourages lawyers to expend excessive hours" on the case).
[20] See Grendel's Den, Inc. v. Larkin, 749 F.2d 945, 951 (1st Cir. 1984); In re Volkswagen, 89 F. Supp. 3d at 165 ("A case that does not involve any novel issues of law or implicate the public interest, for example, may be a poor candidate for an attorneys' fees multiplier.").
[21] See In re Cabletron Sys., Inc. Sec. Litig., 239 F.R.D. 30, 38 (D.N.H. 2006) (multi-factor test common approach to determine reasonableness of fee award); accord In re Neurontin Mktg. & Sales Practices Litig., 58 F. Supp. 3d 167, 170 (D. Mass. 2014) (same); In re TJX Companies Retail Sec. Breach Litig., 584 F. Supp. 2d at 401 (noting typical factors); In re Puerto Rican Cabotage Antitrust Litig., 815 F. Supp. 2d 448, 457-58 (D.P.R. 2011) (same); In re Relafen Antitrust Litig., 231 F.R.D. 52, 79 (D. Mass. 2005) (same).

a higher multiplier (under the lodestar method).[22] Here, all of these factors favor Lead Class Counsel's fee request.

a) This Case Presented Substantial Risks from Inception through Trial

"[M]any cases recognize that the risk [of non-payment] assumed by an attorney is perhaps the foremost factor in determining an appropriate fee award."[23] "A contingency fee arrangement often justifies an increase in the award of attorneys' fees…[otherwise] very few lawyers could take on the representation of a class client given the investment of substantial time, effort, and money especially in light of the risks of recovering nothing."[24] "Where[] lead counsel undertook this action on a contingency basis and faced a significant risk of non-payment, this factor weighs more heavily in favor of rewarding litigation counsel."[25]

This case was litigated on a fully contingent basis and presented a substantial risk of non-payment. For almost four years, Lead Class Counsel, assisted by Additional Counsel, devoted thousands of hours of attorney time and millions of dollars in expenses investigating the facts underlying the EPPs' claims, defending against Defendants' various motions, certifying a litigation class and preparing for trial, work for which there was no guarantee counsel would ever be compensated. The complexity of generic delay suits as well as Ranbaxy's vigorous defense necessitated Lead Class Counsel's considerable investment of time and resources, to advance EPPs' claims and achieve the substantial settlement reached in this case.

Lead Class Counsel also bore challenges that were unique to litigating on behalf of classes of indirect purchasers. For instance, because Illinois Brick Co. v. Illinois[26] bars indirect [22] See Grendel's Den, 749 F.2d at 951.

[23] In re Lupron Mktg. & Sales Practices Litig., No. MDL 1430, 2005 WL 2006833, at *4 (D. Mass. Aug. 17, 2005).
[24] Id.; see also In re TJX, 584 F. Supp. 2d at 398 (acknowledging that fee may be enhanced to account for the contingency risk).
[25] Medoff v. CVS Caremark Corp., No. 09-cv-554-JNL, 2016 WL 632238, at *9 (D.R.I. Feb. 17, 2016).
[26] 431 U.S. 720 (1977).

purchaser claims under federal antitrust law, Lead Class Counsel brought EPPs' antitrust claims under numerous individual state antitrust and consumer protection laws. This strategy required Lead Class Counsel to navigate several challenges. As just one example, it was unclear at the outset of the litigation whether the ruling on preemption in Buckman Co. v. Plaintiffs' Legal Comm.[27] and its progeny would apply to EPPs' state law claims.[28] Additionally, recent class certification decisions in the First Circuit, including the decisions in In re Intuniv Antitrust Litig.[29] and In re Asacol Antitrust Litig.,[30] presented significant hurdles to EPPs' prosecution of the case on a class-wide basis, as demonstrated by other decisions in currently pending matters.[31] Defendants' attempt to appeal only the EPPs' class certification ruling further highlights these risks.[32] Despite these additional uncertainties, Lead Class Counsel took the considerable risks of retaining a new expert to combat class certification, at their own expense, and invested hundreds of hours of additional attorney time, for which they might never have been compensated.

Trying this case would have presented considerable additional risks, as reflected in the mixed results of other recent antitrust trials.[33] Though contested by EPPs, in their proposed verdict slip Defendants asserted questions about the statute of limitations, Noerr-Pennington Immunity, and mail and wire fraud, concluding with byzantine damages questions that had disjunctive phrasing even counsel could not follow.[34] If even a single lay juror declined to find for EPPs on

[27] 531 U.S. 341, 347 (2001).
[28] See Joint Decl., at ¶19.
[29] No. 1:16-CV-12396-ADB, 2019 WL 3947262, at *1 (D. Mass. Aug. 21, 2019) (denying IPP class certification).
[30] 907 F.3d 42 (1st Cir. 2018) (denying EPP class certification).
[31] See In re Niaspan Antitrust Litig., No. 13-MD-2460, 2020 WL 2933824 (E.D. Pa. June 2, 2020) (denying EPP class certification over predominance concerns).
[32] See Joint Decl., at ¶55.
[33] See, e.g., In re Nexium Antitrust Litig., 842 F.3d 34 (1st Cir. 2016) (affirming verdict and entry of judgment for defendants following a six-week jury trial in another generic suppression suit); In re Wholesale Grocery Prods. Antitrust Litig., 957 F.3d 879 (8th Cir. 2020) (affirming verdict and entry of judgment for defendants).
[34] At the point the Settlement was reached, the Court had not yet issued a final verdict slip.

any one of these issues, EPPs would have recovered nothing. In addition, even if EPPs were to succeed in establishing liability, the End-Payor Classes would have been required to prove damages. Defendants' expert asserted in his report, and likely would have at trial, that EPPs were entitled as little as no damages for all three drugs.[35]

Nor would a favorable verdict have resolved the litigation. Defendants appealed, or attempted to appeal, nearly every major ruling that went against them. When the DPP and EPP Classes were certified in the Court's May 14, 2021 class certification Order, Defendants only attempted to appeal EPPs' class certification. Defendants almost certainly would have appealed any verdict in favor of EPPs, and vice versa, further jeopardizing and delaying any class recovery.

b) The Fee Award Is Reasonable in Light of Fee Awards in Other Generic Suppression Lawsuits

Lead Class Counsel's twenty-eight percent attorneys' fee request is firmly supported by fee awards in similar cases.[36] In this Circuit, percentage fee awards range from 20% to 35% of the fund.[37] End-payor generic suppression cases share certain characteristics, such as subject matter complexity, voluminous discovery and experts, class certification difficulties, and sophisticated and aggressive defense counsel, so the most appropriate comparators are attorneys' fees awarded in such suits. Among comparable end-payor generic suppression class actions, fees of 28% or greater are by far the most common.[38] Lead Class Counsel are aware of attorneys' fee awards in eighteen end-payor generic suppression class actions over the past decade-and-a-half. In fifteen of these cases, fees of 33% or greater were awarded, including in all of the twelve most recent, four from this Circuit; in two cases, fees between 30% and 33% were awarded; and in three cases, fees [35] See Strombom Report, ECF No. 331-13 at ¶8.

[36] See Exhibit 6 to the Joint Decl., Chart of Attorneys' Fee Awards in End-Payor Generic Suppression Class Action Cases.
[37] In re Neurontin Mktg. & Sales Pracs. Litig., 58 F. Supp. 3d 167 (D. Mass. 2014).
[38] See Ex. 6 to Joint Decl.

between 25% and 30% were awarded.[39] Moreover, reflecting the quality of the results Lead Class Counsel obtained, the $145 million recovery is among the largest settlements in recent end-payor cases.[40]

Here, Class Counsel's unreimbursed efforts over the course of nearly four years culminated in one of the largest settlements for end payors in recent history and required considerable expenditure of skill, risk, time, and resources. Whether those efforts would result in any recovery was unknown up until two weeks before trial in this matter was set to begin. Under the circumstances, Class Counsel's fee request is not only in-line with fee awards in similar cases, but also extremely reasonable.

c) Class Counsel Are Highly Skilled and Possess Extensive Expertise Litigating Pharmaceutical Class Actions

Lead Class Counsel are among the most experienced class action and antitrust firms in the country. In this case, Lead Class Counsel brought to bear their decades of antitrust and complex litigation experience, including their extensive experience representing third party payors in similar suits against pharmaceutical manufacturers and serving as lead and executive committee counsel in many of the nation's largest and most significant pharmaceutical antitrust cases.[41]

---

[39] See Ex. 6 to Joint Decl.; see also In re Loestrin 24 Fe Antitrust Litig., No. 1:13-MD-2472-WES-PAS (D.R.I. Feb 6, 2020), ECF No. 1401-4 (awarding 33% attorney fees); In re Solodyn (Minocycline Hydrochloride) Antitrust Litig., No. 1:14-md-02503-DJC (D. Mass. July 18, 2018), ECF No.1176.

[40] See Ex. 6 to Joint Decl. This Court has recognized that "no special standards or presumptions categorically to reduce fee awards" apply in so-called "mega-fund" cases, where the settlement is generally $100 million or more, and federal district courts across the country have routinely awarded class counsel fees in excess of 30% in these cases. Arkansas Tchr. Ret. Sys. v. State St. Bank & Tr. Co., 512 F. Supp. 3d 196, 239 (D. Mass. 2020); see also In re Urethane Antitrust Litig., No. 04-1616-JWL, 2016 WL 4060156, at *6 (D. Kan. July 29, 2016) (awarding 33.33% fee on $835 million settlement and a 3.2 multiplier, noting "Counsel's expert has identified 34 megafund cases with settlements of at least $100 million in which the court awarded fees of 30 percent or higher"); Dahl v. Bain Capital Partners, LLC, No. 07-cv-12388 (D. Mass. Feb 2, 2015), ECF No. 1095 (awarding 33% fee of $590 million settlement).

[41] See e.g. In re Generic Pharmaceuticals Pricing Antitrust Litigation, No. 16-md-2724 (E.D. Pa.) (Lowey Dannenberg representing three direct-action plaintiffs and Dugan Law Firm on plaintiffs' steering committee); Blue Cross Blue Shield Ass'n, et al. v. GlaxoSmithKline LLC, No. 13-4663-JS (E.D. Pa.) (Lowey Dannenberg representing forty health insurance plans alleging RICO violations as a result of misrepresentations about safety of drugs manufactured at unsafe plant); In re: National Prescription Opiate Litigation, No. 17-md-02804 (N.D. Ohio) (Dugan Law Firm member of plaintiffs' executive committee).

Despite facing considerable obstacles, Class Counsel were able to employ their skill and experience here to obtain an excellent recovery for the End-Payor Classes. This suit was particularly complex, as it involved multiple liability theories (i.e., antitrust, consumer protection and RICO) and required a deep understanding of patent, antitrust, and pharmaceutical regulatory law, as well as the facts particular to this case. Ranbaxy, a multi-national pharmaceutical company, retained counsel who employed an aggressive litigation strategy. Accordingly, the quality of representation provided by Class Counsel supports the fee request.

d) This Case Was Extremely Complex

"The complexity of [] antitrust law is well known."[42] "[A]ntitrust class actions are notoriously complex, protracted, and bitterly fought."[43] In antitrust cases, "[t]he 'best' case can be lost and the 'worst' case can be won, and juries may find liability but no damages. None of these risks should be underestimated."[44] This case was no exception. Lead Class Counsel, on behalf of the EPPs, asserted an attempted monopolization theory. As to two of the three drugs, Lead Class Counsel would have had to persuade the jury that Defendants exerted monopoly power for drugs they had not yet sold. On top of antitrust law and damages economic damages theories that are present in antitrust cases, the case required mastery in patent and drug law, and competency in the science and manufacturing processes behind pharmaceutical products. For example, Lead Class Counsel was preparing an expert to testify at trial on bioequivalence testing of Nexium for administration through nasogastric tubes. The RICO claim further required an understanding of racketeering law. Defendants' aggressive litigation strategy added to this complexity.

[42] Puerto Rican Cabotage, 815 F. Supp. 2d at 459.
[43] Id.
[44] In re Superior Beverage/Glass Container Consol. Pretrial, 133 F.R.D. 119, 127 (N.D. Ill. 1990); see also In re Flonase Antitrust Litig., 951 F. Supp. 2d 739, 743 (E.D. Pa. 2013) ("Antitrust class actions are particularly complex to litigate").

e) Class Counsel Litigated with Diligence and Efficiency

The extensive time and effort Class Counsel expended in prosecuting this action favors Counsel's requested fee award.[45] In total, Class Counsel devoted 18,733 hours to pursuing, and ultimately obtaining, a recovery on behalf of the End-Payor Classes. The amount of time Class Counsel invested was necessary and appropriate in light of the length of the litigation, the complexity of the claims and defenses, and the prowess of the Defendants' attorneys. The extensive efforts taken to achieve and maintain certification of the Classes, described in detail in section II.C above, is just one piece of the substantial work Class Counsel expended in all aspects of the case. Class Counsel actively litigated this case for almost four years. During that period, as described above and in the accompanying declaration, Lead Class Counsel, as assisted by Additional Counsel, briefed and largely defeated, two rounds of motions to dismiss; engaged in extensive discovery; successfully obtained certification of the End-Payor Classes and defeated an attempted appeal to the First Circuit; briefed summary judgment motions; filed and defended against Daubert challenges and motions in limine; prepared the case for trial, and successfully negotiated a substantial settlement for the End-Payor Classes.[46]

In performing these tasks for the benefit of the End-Payor Classes, Lead Class Counsel made every effort to be efficient, in terms of both time spent and ensuring counsel and staff handled these tasks with appropriate skill and experience. Lead Class Counsel reviewed the time to ensure that all work performed was for the common benefit, nonduplicative, or excessive. To that end, each firm was notified that billing spent in connection with the leadership negotiations, certain administrative tasks, and this attorneys' fee and expense request would be disallowed. In order to avoid duplication of effort, Lead Class Counsel worked together with counsel for the DPPs to divide tasks and focus on the pertinent legal questions and factual record. When appropriate, counsel for the EPPs and DPPs groups jointly retained experts, ensuring that the purchasers spoke with a single voice on common issues and reducing each group's costs.

[45] Puerto Rican Cabotage, 815 F. Supp. 2d at 461 (where counsel "spent significant, but not excessive, time prosecuting the instant action…this factor points in favor of Lead Counsel's fee request").
[46] In re Relafen, 231 F.R.D. at 80.

f) The Classes Substantially Benefit from the Settlement

The benefits "actually accruing to the class is an important consideration in assessing the reasonableness of the fee award."[47] This is to ensure that the class action mechanism "delivers relief into the hands of those in whose name it was established-the class."[48]

The Settlement here represents an excellent recovery for End-Payor Class Members. Lead Class Counsel obtained a substantial recovery of $145,000,000 for the benefit of the thousands of EPPs constituting the Classes. The Settlement is all cash, is not based on the claims received, and does not permit any reversion of funds to Defendants. As a result, to the extent any Class Members do not submit claims, that portion of the Net Settlement Fund will be redistributed to those Class Members that do submit claims. The EPPs' $145 million Settlement is among the largest in recent generic suppression end-payor cases, and more than three times as large as the typical end-payor settlement.[49] Class Members will greatly benefit.

g) Class Counsel's Requested Fee Furthers the Public Interest in Incentivizing End-Payor Suits Challenging Anticompetitive Practices by Pharmaceutical Companies

Class Counsel's attorneys' fees request is consistent with public policy objectives. Courts have recognized that attorneys' fee awards should reflect the important goal of "providing lawyers with sufficient incentive to bring common fund cases that serve the public interest."[50] Antitrust class actions advance the public interest both by deterring predatory behavior and compensating those who have been wronged.[51] "In the absence of adequate attorneys' fee awards, many antitrust actions would not be commenced, since the claims of individual litigants, when taken separately, often hardly justify the expense of litigation."[52]

[47] In re TJX, 584 F. Supp. 2d at 402.
[48] Id. at 406.
[49] See Joint Decl. at Ex. 6.

The rising cost of pharmaceuticals is among the most pressing issues facing our country.[53] The public interest in attracting experienced and sophisticated litigators is particularly salient in suits challenging anticompetitive practices in the health care industry, as drug companies think of new ways to game the system, at the expense of EPPs. Once they're found out, defendant pharmaceutical companies have vast resources and retain top-tier defense firms that typically pursue aggressive litigation strategies. Reasonable attorneys' fees are necessary to ensure that such suits attract equally adept class counsel who are incentivized to invest the time and resources necessary to obtain recoveries for the class. The End-Payor Classes contain not only health insurers, but also small employer and union-sponsored health and welfare funds, like Class Representative UFCW NEPA. Absent the class action vehicle, these small plans most likely would have no recourse against rampant industry abuse.[54] The benefits of these actions are felt not only by class members, but ripple out to the public and future plaintiffs, as favorable rulings push the law forward for future cases.[55]

---

[50] Goldberger v. Integrated Resources, Inc., 209 F.3d 43, 51 (2d Cir. 2000).
[51] Lupron, 2005 WL 2006833, at *6 ("The public interest is also served by the defendants' disgorgement of the proceeds of predatory marketplace behavior.").
[52] Alpine Pharmacy, Inc. v. Chas. Pfizer & Co., Inc., 481 F.2d 1045, 1050 (2d Cir. 1973).
[53] Ashley Kirzinger et al., KFF Health Tracking Poll – May 2021: Prescription Drugs, KAISER FAMILY FOUNDATION (June 3, 2021), https://www.kff.org/health-costs/poll-finding/kff-health-tracking-poll-may-2021/prescription.
[54] See Puerto Rican Cabotage, 815 F. Supp. 2d at 463 ("Class action plaintiffs' attorneys provide an invaluable service by aggregating the seemingly insignificant harms endured by a large multitude into a distinct sum where the collective injury can then become apparent."); Mazola v. May Dep't Stores Co., No. 97-cv-10872-NG, 1999 WL 1261312, at *4 (D. Mass. Jan. 27, 1999) (class actions "give[] voice to relatively small claimants who may not be aware of statutory violations or have an avenue to relief. . . . the only way in which to make such actions economically feasible is to award [attorneys' fees.]").
[55] Lead Class Counsel's efforts here benefitted class members in other pending litigation. See, e.g., Notice of

2. The Lodestar Cross-Check Further Supports the Reasonableness of Class Counsel's Fee

Class Counsel's lodestar confirms the reasonableness of their fee request. When lodestar is used as a cross-check, "the focus is not on the 'necessity and reasonableness of every hour' of the lodestar, but on the broader question of whether the fee award appropriately reflects the degree of time and effort expended by the attorneys."[56] Class Counsel expended over 18,733 hours resulting in a total lodestar of more than $13,804,000.[57] These hours were reasonable and necessary to litigate this case effectively and to achieve the best possible recovery on behalf of the Classes. The Settlement was only reached after Class Counsel conducted an extensive factual investigation and legal analysis. As described above and in the Joint Declaration, Lead Class Counsel devoted significant time and efforts to litigating this action. Given the (relatively) short but intense duration of the case over the past four years, the hours Class Counsel accrued for all of this work are reasonable.

Additionally, the billing rates Class Counsel charged for this work are reasonable. Reasonable hourly rates are those rates "prevailing in the community for similar services by lawyers of reasonably comparable skill, experience, and reputation."[58] When a case is national in scope, the relevant community may be a location other than the forum, or even the national legal community, and the relevant rates are the out-of-town or "nationally prevailing rates" for similar attorneys' services.[59] Here, the litigation required the expertise of counsel experienced in class

---

Supplemental Authority in Support of Motion for Class Certification by End-Payor Plaintiffs, In re: Opana ER Antitrust Litig., 1:14-cv-10150 (N.D. Ill. May 18, 2021), ECF No. 722.

[56] Tyco Intern., Ltd. Multidistrict Litig., 535 F. Supp. 2d at 270.

[57] Joint Decl., at ¶¶91-93.

[58] Giorgio v. Duxbury, No. 12-11171-LTS, 2016 WL 3983232, at *2 (D. Mass. July 25, 2016).

[59] See, e.g., Williams v. Poulous, Nos. 94-2057, 94-2058, 1995 WL 281451, at *4 (1st Cir. May 12, 1995) ("out-of-town rates may be applied if the complexities of a particular case require that particular expertise of non-local counsel . . . or 'when the case is an undesirable one which capable attorneys within the forum community are not willing to prosecute or defend[.]'"); Spruill v. Alexander, No. 09-292S, 2011 WL 2413837, at *4-5 (D.R.I. Mar. 31, 2011); (applying out-of-town rates because of attorneys' expertise); Lucas v. Kmart Corp., No. 99-cv-01923-JLKactions and the highly specialized area of generic drug suppression cases on behalf of EPPs. Class Counsel brought claims on behalf of nationwide classes, as well as state subclasses under the laws of several states. Class Counsel are based out-of-state, i.e., New York, Pennsylvania, and Louisiana. Class Counsel's rates are comparable to those charged in national, complex class actions, and have been previously accepted by this Court.[60]

Class Counsel worked to ensure that the reported lodestar is based only on the time spent for the common benefit of the End-Payor Classes. As described above, each Class Counsel firm's time reports were reviewed by Lead Class Counsel and certain time was excluded. Class Counsel have also submitted declarations from each firm providing additional detail on the work performed, as well as support for their hourly rates.[61] The twenty-eight percent fee request represents only a moderate enhancement, a 2.94 multiplier, over Class Counsel's reported lodestar. This enhancement appropriately reflects the fact that counsel performed all work on a contingent basis, forgoing payment for several years. Indeed, courts, including this one, have recognized that multipliers greater than that requested here are reasonable in comparable suits, and so should it be deemed here.[62]

B. THE REQUESTED EXPENSES ARE REASONABLE

Class Counsel seeks reimbursement of $2,268,845.61 in litigation expenses that were

---

CBS, 2006 WL 2729260, at *4 (D. Colo. July 27, 2006) ("[T]he relevant community for purposes of determining a reasonable billing rate for Class Counsel likely consists of attorneys who litigate nationwide, complex class actions.").

[60] See Barr v. Drizly, LLC, No. 1:20-CV-11492 (D. Mass. Nov. 4, 2021) (ECF. No. 72) (awarding attorney fees).

[61] See Exs. 1 through 4 to Joint Decl..

[62] See, e.g., Mooney v. Domino's Pizza, Inc., No. 1:14-cv-13723, 2018 WL 10232918, at *1 (D. Mass. Jan. 23, 2018) (applying a lodestar multiplier of 4.77); Gordan v. Mass. Mut. Life Ins. Co., No. 13-cv-30184, 2016 WL 11272044, at 3 (D. Mass. Nov. 3, 2016) (applying a lodestar multiplier of 3.66); In re Neurontin Mktg. and Sales Practices Litig.,* 58 F. Supp. 3d 167 (D. Mass. 2014) (applying a lodestar multiplier of 3.32;) New England Carpenters Health Benefits Fund v. First Databank, Inc., No. 05-11148, 2009 WL 2408560, at *2 (D. Mass. Aug. 3, 2009) (applying a lodestar multiplier of 8.3); Bussie, 1999 WL 342042 (awarding fee 3.32 times attorney lodestar). See also In re Relafen, 231 F.R.D. at 81-82 (noting vast majority of fee awards in cases with $50-200 million common funds had multipliers between 1.0 and 4.0).

reasonably incurred in prosecuting this action. The First Circuit has recognized that "lawyers whose efforts succeed in creating a common fund for the benefit of a class are entitled not only to reasonable fees, but also to recover from the fund, as a general matter, expenses, reasonable in amount, that were necessary to bring the action to a climax."[63]

The substantial majority of expenses (75%) were paid out of common litigation funds, to which Class Counsel firms contributed. These funds were used to pay a variety of expenses that benefited the class, including the costs of testifying and consulting experts, the document review platform, remote deposition expenses, trial support, jury research and mediation services. Litigation fund expenses amounted to $1,698,955.64. In addition to those expenses, individual firms separately incurred a total of $569,889.97 in expenses. A more detailed breakdown of expenses is reflected in the attached Joint Declaration of Lead Class Counsel.[64] Lastly, the court-appointed claims administrator, A.B. Data, has advised Class Counsel that it estimates it will cost no more than $225,000 to complete the claims distribution process.[65]

C. THE REQUESTED SERVICE AWARDS ARE REASONABLE.

EPPs request Service Awards of $25,000 to each of the two Class Representatives in connection with the Settlement. Courts routinely approve service awards "to compensate named plaintiffs for the services they provided and the risks they incurred during the course of the class action litigation."[66] "In granting [service] awards to named plaintiffs in class actions, courts

---

[63] In re Fidelity/Micron Sec. Litig., 167 F.3d 735, 737 (1st Cir. 1999); see also Latorraca v. Centennial Techs. Inc., 834 F. Supp. 2d 25, 28 (D. Mass. 2011) ("In addition to attorneys' fees, lawyers who recover a common fund for a class are entitled to reimbursement of out-of- pocket expenses incurred during litigation.").

[64] See Joint Decl., at ¶¶100-101; see also Bezdek, 79 F. Supp. 3d at 351-52 (finding "costs associated with mediation, legal research, filing fees, consultation with experts, photocopying, and travel to hearings, depositions, and meeting…reasonable.").

[65] See Joint Decl., at ¶103; see also Exhibit 5 to Joint Decl., Declaration of Eric J. Miller Regarding (A) Mailing of the Postcard Notice; (B) Publication of Summary Notice; and (C) Report on Objections and Requests to Speak at Fairness Hearing Received To Date ("Miller Decl."), at ¶14.

[66] Carlson v. Target Enter., Inc., No. 18-40139, 2020 WL 1332839, at *3 (D. Mass. Mar. 23, 2020).

consider not only the efforts of the plaintiffs in pursuing the claims, but also the important public policy of fostering enforcement of laws and rewarding representative plaintiffs for being instrumental in obtaining recoveries for persons other than themselves."[67]

The requested awards are consistent with those approved for class representatives in other end-payor generic delay suits,[68] as well as those approved in other class suits in this circuit.[69] Moreover, because they represent only 0.034% of the total value of the Settlement, the proposed Service Awards would have a negligible impact on other Class Members' recoveries. The substance of the Class Representatives' work on this litigation further supports the End-Payors' requested awards.[70] The Class Representatives actively participated in the litigation, stayed abreast of the progress of the case, collected and produced documents and responded to interrogatories, and prepared for and gave depositions. Because this case settled two weeks before trial, both Class Representatives expended considerable time and effort preparing to testify. The Class Representatives performed these services over many years despite the risk that there would be no recovery for the End-Payor Classes. Further, granting the Service Awards promotes a public policy of encouraging individuals to undertake the responsibility of representative lawsuits.[71]

---

[67] Bussie, 1999 WL 342042, at *3.
[68] Order at 4, In re Solodyn, No. 1:14-md-02503-DJC (D. Mass. July 18, 2018), ECF No. 1176 ($20,000 service award to TPP class representative and $145,000 total in service awards); Order at 10, In re Aggrenox Antitrust Litig., No. 3:14-md-02516-SRU (D. Conn. July 19, 2018), ECF No. 821 (awarding $100,000 total in service awards); In re Neurontin, 58. F. Supp. 3d 167 (awarding $25,000 to each TPP class representative).
[69] See Spicer v. Chi. Bd. Options Exchange, Inc., 844 F. Supp. 1226, 1267-68 (N.D. Ill. 1993) (collecting cases approving service awards ranging from $5,000 to $100,000); Lauture v. A.C. Moore Arts & Crafts, Inc., No. 17-CV-10219, 2017 WL 5900058, at *1 (D. Mass. Nov. 28, 2017) (reflecting service awards of $15,000 to each class representative; In re Prudential Ins. Co. of Am. SGLI/VGLI Contract Litig., No. 3:10-CV-30163, 2014 WL 6968424, at *7 (D. Mass. Dec. 9, 2014) (reflecting service awards of $10,000 to each of 10 class representatives).
[70] See In re Lupron, 2005 WL 2006833, at *7 ("[W]here, as here, the named plaintiffs participated actively in the litigation," such awards "serve an important function in promoting class action settlements.").
[71] See In re Relafen, 231 F.R.D. at 82 ("Because a named plaintiff is an essential ingredient of any class action, an incentive award can be appropriate to encourage or induce an individual to participate in the suit.").

IV. CONCLUSION

For the foregoing reasons, Lead Class Counsel respectfully requests: (i) attorneys' fees in the amount of $40,600,000 plus interest; (ii) expenses reimbursed in the amount of $2,268,845.61 and approval to expend up to $225,000 to complete the settlement distribution process; and (iii) Service Awards of $25,000 for each of the two Class Representatives.

Dated: June 27, 2022

Respectfully submitted,

LOWEY DANNENBERG, P.C.

By: /s/Renee A. Nolan
Gerald Lawrence
Renee A. Nolan
William Olson
One Tower Bridge
100 Front Street, Suite 520
West Conshohocken, PA 19428
Tel. (215) 399-4770
glawrence@lowey.com
rnolan@lowey.com
wolson@lowey.com

Peter D. St. Phillip
44 South Broadway
Suite 1100
White Plains, New York 10601
Tel. 914-997-0500
PStPhillip@lowey.com

Counsel for Plaintiff United Food and Commercial Workers Health and Welfare Fund of Northeastern Pennsylvania and the End-Payor Classes

THE DUGAN LAW FIRM, APLC

James R. Dugan, II
David S. Scalia
TerriAnne Benedetto
One Canal Place – Suite 1000

365 Canal Street
New Orleans, LA 70130
Tel: 504-648-0180
Fax: 866-328-7670
jdugan@dugan-lawfirm.com
dscalia@dugan-lawfirm.com tbenedetto@dugan-lawfirm.com

Counsel for Louisiana Health Service & Indemnity Company d/b/a Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Louisiana, and HMO La., Inc. and the End-Payor Classes

CERTIFICATE OF SERVICE

I hereby certify that on June 27, 2022, a true copy of the foregoing document was served on all counsel of record by electronic transmission and/or electronically filing the document with the Court's CM/ECF system.

/s/Renee A. Nolan

TAB 48A

USDC SDNY
DOCUMENT
ELECTRONICALLY FILED
DOC #:
DATE FILED: 01/13/2022

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
SOUTHERN DISTRICT OF NEW YORK

IN RE:

COMMODITY EXCHANGE, INC., GOLD FUTURES AND OPTIONS TRADING LITIGATION

This Document Relates To All Actions

Case No. 14-MD-2548 (VEC)
14-MC-2548 (VEC)

Hon. Valerie E. Caproni

ORDER AWARDING ATTORNEYS' FEES

Co-Lead Counsel's motion for attorneys' fees and litigation expenses (the "Fee and Expense Motion") came before the Court. The Court has considered all papers filed and proceedings held in connection with the above-captioned action, and is fully informed on these matters. Adequate notice having been giving to the Settlement Class, and having considered all papers and proceedings in these matters, the Court finds, concludes, and orders as follows:

IT IS HEREBY ORDERED, ADJUDGED, AND DECREED that:

1. This Order incorporates by reference the definitions in each Stipulation and Agreement of Settlement, which were previously filed with the Court ("Stipulations" or "Settlements") (ECF Nos. 174-1, 487-1), and all capitalized terms used, but not defined herein, shall have the same meanings as set forth in the Stipulations.

2. The Court has jurisdiction over the subject matter of the Action, and, for purposes of enforcing and administering the Settlements, this Court has jurisdiction over the parties to the Action, including members of the Settlement Class.

3. Notice of Co-Lead Counsel's Fee and Expense Motion was given to potential members of the Settlement Class in a reasonable manner, and such Notice complies with Rule 23 of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, due process requirements, and any other applicable law, as it constituted the best notice practicable under the circumstances, and constituted due and sufficient notice to persons and entities entitled thereto.

4. Members of the Settlement Class were given the opportunity to object to Fee and Expense Motion in compliance with Rule 23 of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure.

5. The Fee and Expense Motion is granted with respect to attorneys' fees as described below.

6. The Court hereby awards attorneys' fees equal to $28,200,000 and interest on such attorneys' fees at the same rate as the earnings in the Settlement Funds, accruing from the inception of each such Fund. Co-Lead Counsel is authorized to allocate these awards with other firms that assisted them in a manner in which, in Co-Lead Counsel's judgment, reflects the contributions of such counsel to the prosecution and settlement of the Action.

7. In making this award of fees and expenses to Lead Counsel, the Court has considered and found that:

(a) the Settlements have created a fund of $102,000,000 in cash, and numerous members of the Settlement Class who submit, or have submitted, valid Proof of Claim and Release forms will benefit from the Settlements created by Co-Lead Counsel;

(b) The fee sought by Co-Lead Counsel is fair and reasonable;

(c) Over 18,000 copies of the Notice were disseminated to potential members of the Settlement Class as reasonably identified in Defendants' data, as well as many more sent in an abundance of caution in response to requests by intermediaries;

(d) The Notice indicates that Co-Lead Counsel would move for attorneys' fees in an amount not to exceed $28.2 million and for costs, charges and expenses in an amount not to exceed $11 million, plus interest on both amounts, and no objections to the fees or expenses were filed by members of the Settlement Class;

(e) Co-Lead Counsel has pursued the litigation and achieved the Settlements with skill, perseverance, and diligent advocacy, as reflected by the positive reception of the Settlement Agreements by the Settlement Class;

(f) Co-Lead Counsel has expended substantial time and effort pursuing the litigation on behalf of the Settlement Class;

(g) the litigation involves complex factual and legal issues and, in the absence of the settlements, would involve lengthy proceedings whose resolution would be uncertain;

(h) had Co-Lead Counsel not achieved the Settlements, there would remain a significant risk that the Settlement Class may have recovered less or nothing from Settling Defendants;

(i) public policy concerns favor the award of reasonable attorneys' fees and expenses in class action litigation;

(j) the amount of attorneys' fees is appropriate to the specific circumstances of this Action, and consistent with awards in similar cases.

8. This fee award is independent of the Court's consideration of the fairness, reasonability, and adequacy of the Settlements and is also independent of the Court's consideration of the Plan of Allocation. Any appeal or any challenge affecting this Court's approval regarding the fee award shall in no way disturb or affect the finality of the final judgments entered with respect to the Settlements, or any expense award.

9. The fee award and interest awarded herein shall constitute a final order and shall be payable to co-lead counsel from the Settlement Funds upon entry of final judgments related to the Deutsche Bank and HSBC Settlements.

10. In the event that any of the Settlements is terminated or does not become Final or the Effective Date does not occur in accordance with the terms of that particular Stipulation, this Order shall be rendered null and void to the extent provided in that Stipulation and shall be vacated in accordance with that Stipulation.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

DATED: January 13, 2022

HON. VALERIE E. CAPRONI
UNITED STATES DISTRICT JUDGE

USDC SDNY
DOCUMENT
ELECTRONICALLY FILED
DOC #:
DATE FILED: 01/13/2022

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
SOUTHERN DISTRICT OF NEW YORK

IN RE:

COMMODITY EXCHANGE, INC., GOLD FUTURES AND OPTIONS TRADING LITIGATION

This Document Relates To All Actions

Case No. 14-MD-2548 (VEC)
14-MC-2548 (VEC)

Hon. Valerie E. Caproni

ORDER AWARDING LITIGATION EXPENSES

Co-Lead Counsel's motion for attorneys' fees and litigation expenses (the "Fee and Expense Motion") came before the Court. The Court has considered all papers filed and proceedings held in connection with the above-captioned action, and is fully informed on these matters. Adequate notice having been giving to the Settlement Class, and having considered all papers and proceedings in these matters, the Court finds, concludes, and orders as follows:

IT IS HEREBY ORDERED, ADJUDGED, AND DECREED that:

1. This Order incorporates by reference the definitions in each Stipulation and Agreement of Settlement, which were previously filed with the Court ("Stipulations" or "Settlements") (ECF Nos. 174-1, 487-1), and all capitalized terms used, but not defined herein, shall have the same meanings as set forth in the Stipulations.

2. The Court has jurisdiction over the subject matter of the Action, and, for purposes of enforcing and administering the Settlements, this Court has jurisdiction over the parties to the Action, including members of the Settlement Class.

3. Notice of Co-Lead Counsel's Fee and Expense Motion was given to potential members of the Settlement Class in a reasonable manner, and such Notice complies with Rule 23 of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, due process requirements, and any other applicable law, as it constituted the best notice practicable under the circumstances, and constituted due and sufficient notice to persons and entities entitled thereto.

4. Members of the Settlement Class were given the opportunity to object to Fee and Expense Motion in compliance with Rule 23 of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure.

5. The Fee and Expense Motion is granted with respect to litigation expenses as described below.

6. The Court hereby awards $8,027,282.81 in payment of litigation expenses and interest on such expenses at the same rate as the earnings in the Settlement Funds, accruing from the inception of each such Fund. Co-Lead Counsel is authorized to allocate this award with other firms that assisted them in a manner in which, in Co-Lead Counsel's judgment, reflects the contributions of such counsel to the prosecution and settlement of the Action.

7. In making this award of expenses to Co-Lead Counsel, the Court has considered and found that:

(a) the Settlements have created a fund of $102,000,000 in cash, and numerous members of the Settlement Class who submit, or have submitted, valid Proof of Claim and Release forms will benefit from the Settlements created by Co-Lead Counsel;

(b) The expenses sought by Co-Lead Counsel are reasonable and were necessarily incurred;

(c) Over 18,000 copies of the Notice were disseminated to potential members of the Settlement Class as reasonably identified in Defendants' data, as well as many more sent in an abundance of caution in response to requests by intermediaries;

(d) The Notice indicates that Co-Lead Counsel would move for attorneys' fees in an amount not to exceed $28.2 million and for costs, charges and expenses in an amount not to exceed $11 million, plus interest on both amounts, and no objections to the fees or expenses were filed by members of the Settlement Class;

(e) public policy concerns favor the award of reasonable expenses in class action litigation;

(f) the amount of expenses paid is appropriate to the specific circumstances of this Action, and consistent with awards in similar cases.

8. This expense award is independent of the Court's consideration of the fairness, reasonability, and adequacy of the Settlements, and is independent of the Court's consideration of the Plan of Allocation. Any appeal or any challenge affecting this Court's approval regarding the expense award shall in no way disturb or affect the finality of the final judgments entered with respect to the Settlements, or any fee award.

9. This expense award and interest awarded herein shall constitute a final order and shall be payable to co-lead counsel from the Settlement Funds upon entry of final judgments related to the Deutsche Bank and HSBC Settlements.

10. In the event that any of the Settlements is terminated or does not become Final or the Effective Date does not occur in accordance with the terms of that particular Stipulation, this Order shall be rendered null and void to the extent provided in that Stipulation and shall be vacated in accordance with that Stipulation.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

DATED: January 13, 2022

Valerie Caproni

HON. VALERIE E. CAPRONI
UNITED STATES DISTRICT JUDGE

TAB 48B

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
SOUTHERN DISTRICT OF NEW YORK

IN RE:

COMMODITY EXCHANGE, INC., GOLD FUTURES AND OPTIONS TRADING LITIGATION

This Document Relates To All Actions

Case No. 14-MD-2548 (VEC)
14-MC-2548 (VEC)

Hon. Valerie E. Caproni

MEMORANDUM OF LAW IN SUPPORT OF PLAINTIFFS' MOTION FOR ATTORNEYS' FEES AND LITIGATION EXPENSES

TABLE OF CONTENTS

Page

PRELIMINARY STATEMENT 1
STATEMENT OF FACTS 2
ARGUMENT 6
I. CO-LEAD COUNSEL'S FEE REQUEST IS FAIR AND REASONABLE 6
A. The Fee Request is Reasonable Under the Goldberger Factors 7
1. Co-lead Counsel invested substantial time and resources 7
2. The case is incredibly complex 8
3. The case involved—and still involves—substantial risk 9
4. Co-Lead Counsel provided high-quality representation 11
5. The effective percentage being requested is below the applicable norms 12
6. Public policy supports approval of the fee request 14
B. The Fee Request is Reasonable Under the Lodestar Cross-Check 15
C. The Fee Request is Below That Negotiated for by the Named Plaintiffs 18
D. The Fee Request is Reasonable Even Considering the Time Gap Between the Deutsche Bank and HSBC Settlements 18
E. The Reaction of the Class 18
II. CO-LEAD COUNSEL'S REQUEST FOR AN AWARD OF THEIR LITIGATION EXPENSES IS REASONABLE 19
III. THE REQUEST IS CONSISTENT WITH CO-LEAD COUNSEL'S 2014 ESTIMATES AND REPRESENTATIONS, WITH ANY DEPARTURES PERFORMED IN THE BEST INTEREST OF THE CLASS 21
CONCLUSION 23

TABLE OF AUTHORITIES

Page

CASES

In re Air Cargo Shipping Servs. Antitrust Litig., 2011 WL 2909162 (E.D.N.Y. July 15, 2011) 6

Allapattah Servs., Inc. v. Exxon Corp.,
454 F. Supp. 2d 1185 (S.D. Fla. 2006) 14

Alpine Pharmacy, Inc. v. Chas. Pfizer & Co., Inc.,
481 F.2d 1045 (2d Cir. 1973) 2

In re Am. Bank Note Holographics, Inc. Sec. Litig.,
127 F. Supp. 2d 418 (S.D.N.Y. 2001) 16

In re Checking Acct. Overdraft Litig.,
830 F. Supp. 2d 1330 (S.D. Fla. 2011) 14

In re Citigroup Inc. Bond Litig.,
988 F. Supp. 2d 371 (S.D.N.Y. 2013) 8

City of Detroit v. Grinnell Corp.,
495 F.2d 448 (2d Cir. 1974) 16

In re Colgate-Palmolive Co. ERISA Litig.,
36 F. Supp. 3d 344 (S.D.N.Y. 2014) 15

In re Comverse Tech., Inc. Sec. Litig.,
2010 WL 2653354 (E.D.N.Y. June 24, 2010) 18

In re Credit Default Swaps Antitrust Litig.,
2016 WL 2731524 (S.D.N.Y. Apr. 26, 2016) 6, 14, 18, 19

In re CRT Antitrust Litig.,
2016 WL 183285 (N.D. Cal. Jan. 14, 2016) 14

F.T.C. v. Phoebe Putney Health Sys., Inc.,
568 U.S. 216 (2013) 15

Fleisher v. Phoenix Life Ins. Co.,
2015 WL 10847814 (S.D.N.Y. Sept. 9, 2015) 12

In re Glob. Crossing Sec. & ERISA Litig.,
225 F.R.D. 436 (S.D.N.Y. 2004) 19

Goldberger v. Integrated Res., Inc.,
209 F.3d 43 (2d Cir. 2000)..... 6, 7, 9, 12, 16, 18

In re Holocaust Victim Assets Litig.,
2007 WL 805768 (E.D.N.Y. Mar. 15, 2007)..... 9

In re Initial Pub. Offering Sec. Litig.,
671 F. Supp. 2d 467 (S.D.N.Y. 2009)..... 14

Jermyn v. Best Buy Stores, L.P.,
2012 WL 2505644 (S.D.N.Y. June 27, 2012) 11

Klein v. Bain Capital Partners, LLC,
No.1:07-cv-12388, slip op. (D. Mass. Feb. 2, 2015) 14

Melito v. Am. Eagle Outfitters,
2017 WL 3995619 (S.D.N.Y. 2017)..... 7

Meredith Corp. v. SESAC, LLC,
87 F. Supp. 3d 650 (S.D.N.Y. 2015)..... 8, 19

In re Municipal Derivatives Antitrust Litig.,
No. 1:08-cv-02516 (S.D.N.Y. July 8, 2016)..... 14

In re NASDAQ Mkt.-Makers Antitrust Litig.,
187 F.R.D. 465 (S.D.N.Y. 1998) 8, 9, 10, 11, 12

In re Oxford Health Plans, Inc. Sec. Litig.,
2003 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 26795 (S.D.N.Y. June 12, 2003)..... 14

In re Payment Card Interchange Fee & Merchant Discount Antitrust Litig.,
991 F. Supp. 2d 437 (E.D.N.Y. 2014) 10, 11, 13, 21

Pillsbury Co. v. Conboy,
459 U.S. 248 (1983)..... 15

In re Polyurethane Foam Antitrust Litig.,
2015 WL 1639269 (N.D. Ohio Feb. 26, 2015)..... 14

Sanz v. Johny Utah 51 LLC,
2015 WL 1808935 (S.D.N.Y. Apr. 20, 2015)..... 13

Standard Iron Works v. Arcelormittal, et al.,
No. 1:08-cv-05214 (N.D. Ill. Oct. 22, 2014) 14

In re TFT-LCD (Flat Panel) Antitrust Litig.,
2013 WL 1365900 (N.D. Cal. Apr. 3, 2013) 14

Thornhill v. CVS Pharmacy, Inc.,
2014 WL 1100135 (S.D.N.Y. Mar. 20, 2014) 13

U.S. Football League v. Nat. Football League,
644 F. Supp. 1040 (S.D.N.Y. 1986), aff'd, 842 F.2d 1335, 1377 (2d Cir. 1988) 11

In re Urethane Antitrust Litig.,
2016 WL 4060156 (D. Kan. July 29, 2016) 14

In re Visa Check/Mastermoney Antitrust Litig.,
297 F. Supp. 2d 503 (E.D.N.Y. 2003) 21

In re Vitamin C Antitrust Litig.,
2012 WL 5289514 (E.D.N.Y. Oct. 23, 2012) 6, 19

In re Vitamins Antitrust Litig.,
2001 WL 34312839 (D.D.C. July 16, 2001) 14

Wal-Mart Stores, Inc. v. Visa U.S.A., Inc.,
396 F.3d 96 (2d Cir. 2005) 7, 21

In re Warner Commc'ns Sec. Litig.,
618 F. Supp. 735 (S.D.N.Y. 1985), aff'd, 798 F.2d 35 (2d Cir. 1986) 10

In re WorldCom, Inc. Sec. Litig.,
388 F. Supp. 2d 319, 359 (S.D.N.Y. 2005) 7, 15

RULES

Fed. R. Civ. P. 23(e) 1

OTHER AUTHORITIES

John M. Connor & Robert H. Lande, Not Treble Damages: Cartel Recoveries are Mostly Less Than Single Damages, 100 Iowa L. Rev. 1997, 2010 (2015) 11

PRELIMINARY STATEMENT

Pursuant to Rule 23(e) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, Co-Lead Counsel respectfully move for an award of attorneys' fees and payment of litigation expenses from the common fund.[1] This case has its roots in Co-Lead Counsel's investigative efforts, working with industry and economic consultants, over seven years ago. The case likely would not exist without the investments and hard work both of counsel and their consultants.

Co-Lead Counsel did not just get the case off the ground, we vigorously litigated the case for almost two-and-half years before securing the first major settlement, and then litigated another four years before securing another settlement. The $102 million fund represents a tremendous result in light of the challenges facing this case. Indeed, the complexity of this case cannot be understated, as aptly demonstrated both by the case's length and the amount we have had to invest in out-of-pocket expenses. Those expenses were driven largely by the need for multiple non-testifying expert consultants to assist in investigating and evaluating the Plaintiffs' legal and economic theories. Such assistance was required at the investigation phase, in opposing the Daubert-like motions to dismiss, in amending the pleadings, in rebutting to Defendants' challenges to the statistical analyses, in responding to Defendants' press for discovery into our consultant work, and in prosecuting our requests for data from Defendants and numerous third parties.

As a result of the hard work and skill of Co-Lead Counsel, and our strategic choice to settle at key points in the case—one to lock in a recovery at the dismissal stage, and another prior to summary judgment and class certification—the Settlement Class is in line for substantial monetary recoveries. As the Second Circuit has explained:

[1] All capitalized terms not otherwise defined herein have the meanings set forth in the Stipulations and the Joint Declaration of Daniel L. Brockett and Merrill G. Davidoff ("Joint Declaration"), submitted herewith.

> [O]ne whose labors produce a favorable result deserves adequate recompense. Such a notion is particularly applicable in the area of antitrust class action, which depends heavily on the notion of the private attorney general as the vindicator of the public policy. In the absence of adequate attorneys' fee awards, many antitrust actions would not be commenced, since the claims of individual litigants, when taken separately, often hardly justify the expense of litigation.

Alpine Pharmacy, Inc. v. Chas. Pfizer & Co., Inc., 481 F.2d 1045, 1050 (2d Cir. 1973).

We respectfully submit that our $28,200,000 request, plus interest, is fair and reasonable to the Settlement Class. This request is supported by this Circuit's standards for evaluating fee applications and by fee schedules adopted by a range of courts in other complex antitrust litigation with comparable recoveries. Professor Charles Silver, whose extensive analyses of attorney-client fee agreements and class-action fee awards has been relied upon by courts and commentators alike, confirms this fee is reasonable and, if anything, below the applicable norms.

We also respectfully request that $8,242,755.81 in litigation expenses—all, incurred prior to the execution of the HSBC Settlement—be reimbursed, plus interest. Almost all of these expenses arise out of the work of our non-testifying expert consultants; as this Court is aware, this is a very complex case involving large amounts of data and specialized knowledge. Particularly in light of the risk of non-recovery, Co-Lead Counsel only made such investments because they believed, and still believe, they would benefit Plaintiffs and class members. Courts routinely recognize that class counsel should be reimbursed for their investments.

STATEMENT OF FACTS

Co-Lead Counsel's work at the pleading stage is described more fully in the accompanying Joint Declaration, Section I.A. Our investigation began in 2013, even before the government investigations or reports had been made public. Purchasing a large amount of data and working with multiple non-testifying expert consultants, a complaint was filed in March 2014. Case No. 14-cv-2213, ECF No. 2. After consolidation and leadership processes were complete, a consolidated pleading—with a body of 108 pages and 86 pages of supporting appendices, nearly double the size of the initial complaint—was filed in December 2014. ECF No. 27. Another 40 pages were added, many of which again were filled with consultant analyses, in the Second Consolidated Class Action Complaint. ECF No. 44.

Throughout 2015 and into 2016, the parties briefed, held oral argument, and filed supplemental authority papers on Defendants' motions to dismiss. See, e.g., ECF Nos. 72, 74, 76, 77 (motion papers); 82, 83, 84 (opposition papers); 88, 91, 92 (reply papers); 135, 136, 149, 150, 156, 157 (letters regarding supplemental authority and arguments). At the Court's request, Co-Lead Counsel worked with Defendants here, and the parties in the Silver action, to provide a "tutorial" to the Court in September 2015. See, e.g., ECF No. 81.

The Court denied in large part the motions to dismiss in October 2016, but did dismiss certain claims. ECF No. 158. Co-Lead Counsel and our non-testifying expert consultants worked to successfully amend the pleading to bring the early-year claims back into the case, and to try unsuccessfully to amend to bring UBS back into the case. E.g., ECF No. 183. In August 2017—almost four years after Co-Lead Counsel's investigations began—Defendants filed their first Answers. ECF Nos. 286-90.

Co-Lead Counsel's work during the discovery stage is described more fully in the accompanying Joint Declaration, Section I.B. Co-Lead Counsel made numerous attempts to move discovery along early, but various stays were put in place. See, e.g., ECF Nos. 17-18, 270. As a result of the Court's directive at the conference in December 2016, Plaintiffs received certain limited documents, and by conferring throughout much of 2017 we learned background information concerning the identities of key witnesses and the existence of documents and audio files. However, throughout the discovery process, there have been delays and multiple battles with Defendants over even the simplest of tasks.

For instance, negotiations with Defendants over search terms and protocols required multiple extensions and even then resulted in motion practice. See, e.g., ECF Nos. 341, 343, 345, 375, 377, 399. Disputes over foreign privacy and bank secrecy laws required consultation with foreign-law advisors, and briefing. See, e.g., ECF No. 366. Negotiations over discovery issues has required over 400 formal discovery communications between the parties, as well as countless informal conversations and e-mail communications. See Joint Decl. Section I.B.2. By exhaustively conferring, Co-Lead Counsel were able to reach agreements on many issues, saving the Court from having to get directly involved in even more disputes—though often even our extensive efforts failed to secure an agreement, requiring more investment by way of motion practice. See id. Section I.B.3.

Defendants alone produced 15 million pages of documents and 8,000 audio files. Even deploying numerous techniques to focus and streamline the review of such materials, understanding such a large effort required massive investments in time and resources. See id. Section I.B.4.

Co-Lead Counsel's work with our non-testifying expert consultants is described more fully in the accompanying Joint Declaration, Sections I.C and III.B. The operative Third Amended Complaint includes 180 paragraphs regarding statistical analyses of such things as pricing and volume behavior around the PM Fix, comparisons to how volume and prices acted at other times of day or in other markets, the degree to which the PM Fix prices were outliers on trading days, comparisons of price behaviors during the PM Fix and AM Fix, specific days on which manipulation potentially occurred, refutations of alternative explanations for the abnormalities in the pricing data, analyses showing that Defendants were heavily invested in gold and had economic motives to manipulate the PM Fix based on their futures positions, and analyses showing that the conspiracy was ongoing in 2004 and 2005.

Both through correspondence and then motion practice, Defendants have waged a series of "discovery" battles over their disagreement with the pleading-stage analysis. Over 200 gigabytes of data, and even dozens of non-testifying expert consultant-prepared private memoranda, have been turned over to Defendants in connection with those requests, which also resulted in multiple briefs, letter-briefs, and oral arguments. See Joint Decl. Section I.C.2.

Beyond the pleading-stage work, Co-Lead Counsel also worked with non-testifying expert consultants during the discovery process—most particularly, regarding the data produced by Defendants and the CME. See id. Section I.C.3. Over 110 million data records, many with over 100 fields of information about each record, have been gathered in this case from Defendants alone—another 491 million records were negotiated for during the relevant period here from third parties, and produced in 2021. Complicating matters is, of course, the fact that the 110 million records were not all produced at once, by one party, in one format. To the contrary, each producing party only produced their own data from its own system—or, often, multiple systems—in whatever format that system happened to produce. Each potentially relevant datasets had to be loaded and analyzed, and then became the subject of extensive conferrals between the relevant parties as to what the produced data was (and was not) and what other data was (or was not) available. Those conferrals often included detailed letters or email exchanges, as well as conferences. Certain answers just led to more questions, or other datasets, forcing the process to start over.

Even once the productions were received, it was a massive project just to get ready to use so many records. See id. Following standard practices, once the data was understood the "raw" files were combined into a common database format, where, for instance, fields that held identical information would appear together in a single format even if two banks used a different naming convention or numbering conventions. Knowing whether the relevant data is being received and understood also requires at least some understanding of how the data is likely to be used at class certification, summary judgment, and/or trial. That is, it would be hard to know whether the needed data was received, without knowing what the case needs even are—further work requiring coordination between counsel and our consultants.

ARGUMENT

I. CO-LEAD COUNSEL'S FEE REQUEST IS FAIR AND REASONABLE

"Attorneys whose work created a common fund for the benefit of a group of plaintiffs' may receive reasonable attorneys' fees from the fund." See In re Credit Default Swaps Antitrust Litig., 2016 WL 2731524, at *16 (S.D.N.Y. Apr. 26, 2016) ("CDS"). Fees can be awarded based on an interim settlement fund. In re Vitamin C Antitrust Litig., 2012 WL 5289514, at *9 (E.D.N.Y. Oct. 23, 2012). Awarding reasonable attorneys' fees from the common fund recognizes and compensates Co-Lead Counsel's efforts in bringing and prosecuting this case, and advances the purpose of the antitrust laws, which rely on private actions like this one to further important public-policy goals. Without "adequate attorneys' fee awards, many antitrust actions would not be commenced, since the claims of individual litigants, when taken separately, often hardly justify the expense of litigation." In re Air Cargo Shipping Servs. Antitrust Litig., 2011 WL 2909162, at *6 (E.D.N.Y. July 15, 2011).

Ultimately, "market rates" are the "ideal proxy" for an attorney's compensation. Goldberger v. Integrated Res., Inc., 209 F.3d 43, 50 (2d Cir. 2000). As explained by Prof. Silver in his declaration filed concurrently herewith (the "Silver Decl."), a "mimic the market" approach recognizes that sophisticated parties bargaining at arm's length yield the best indicia of how to properly align the incentives between counsel and client. Silver Decl. ¶ 17 ("The contingent fee's logic is simple and powerful: The client and lawyer prosper together."); see also id. ¶¶ 41-43 (discussing widespread adoption of percentage approach). By contrast, "sophisticated clients never use" a lodestar method. Id. ¶ 17.

Consistent with these observations, this Court has recognized that "[a]lthough courts award attorneys' fees under either the lodestar method or the percentage-of-the-fund method, the 'trend in this Circuit is toward the percentage method.'" Melito v. Am. Eagle Outfitters, 2017 WL 3995619, at * (S.D.N.Y. 2017) (quoting Wal-Mart Stores, Inc. v. Visa U.S.A., Inc., 396 F.3d 96, 121 (2d Cir. 2005)). The percentage method provides "appropriate financial incentives" necessary "to attract well-qualified plaintiffs' counsel who are able to take a case to trial," while also "directly align[ing] interests of the class and its counsel" by providing "a powerful incentive for the efficient prosecution and early resolution of litigation." In re WorldCom, Inc. Sec. Litig., 388 F. Supp. 2d 319, 355, 359 (S.D.N.Y. 2005).

A. The Fee Request is Reasonable Under the Goldberger Factors

Courts evaluating whether a fee is reasonable consider "(1) the time and labor expended by counsel; (2) the magnitude and complexities of the litigation; (3) the risk of the litigation . . . ; (4) the quality of representation; (5) the requested fee in relation to the settlement; and (6) public policy considerations." Goldberger, 209 F.3d at 50.

1. Co-lead Counsel invested substantial time and resources

As discussed in Section II below almost 105,000 hours by Co-Lead Counsel's attorneys and professional support staff, and $8.2 million in expenses, have been invested in connection with the case. Such investments were required because of the complexity of the case, and its length—it was almost four years from the start of our investigation to when Defendants filed their first answers, and the full end of fact discovery will be almost eight years after the start of our investigation. By contrast, most antitrust cases have reached full resolution within seven years. Silver Decl. ¶ 64. As in the Statement of Facts above and in the Joint Declaration, every step in that abnormally long history required constant interaction between attorneys and industry and other non-testifying expert consultants. Beyond the value created for the Settlement Class by way of the ongoing litigation, and in helping secure both the initial and second settlements on behalf of an overlapping group of investors, all this work both gave counsel sufficient knowledge to assess what the case was worth, and confirm the requested fee comes nowhere close to creating a "windfall" situation.

2. The case is incredibly complex

"[C]lass actions have a well-deserved reputation as being most complex," In re NASDAQ Mkt.-Makers Antitrust Litig., 187 F.R.D. 465, 477 (S.D.N.Y. 1998), with antitrust cases being among the most "complex, protracted, and bitterly fought," Meredith Corp. v. SESAC, LLC, 87 F. Supp. 3d 650, 669 (S.D.N.Y. 2015). In cases that require more expertise, a larger percentage of the fund should be awarded to the lawyers who can competently prosecute the case. See In re Citigroup Inc. Bond Litig., 988 F. Supp. 2d 371, 379 (S.D.N.Y. 2013) ("The upshot is that the magnitude and complexity of the litigation also weigh in favor of a significant award.").

All the same facts discussed above also demonstrate that this case was a prime example of a complex and risky case. Not only has the case been ongoing for many years, but the conspiracy at issue now goes back seventeen years into the past, and the market for gold-related investments span not just billions of dollars, but many different instrument types. Defendants have and will argue that complicates—in their view, defeats—the alleged motive, means, and effectiveness of the conspiracy. And as more fully detailed in the Joint Declaration, many issues here devolved into dragged-out battles.

The amount of out-of-pocket expenses incurred to gather, process, understand, and analyze the massive amounts of data in this case also speaks to the case's complexity. See Silver Decl. ¶¶ 66, 71.

For all these reasons, a fee award that accounts for the prosecution of litigation that was "extraordinary in both complexity and scope" is appropriate. In re Holocaust Victim Assets Litig., 2007 WL 805768, at *46 (E.D.N.Y. Mar. 15, 2007). See also NASDAQ, 187 F.R.D. at 477 ("There can be no doubt that this class action would be enormously expensive to continue, extraordinarily complex to try, and ultimately uncertain of result.").

3. The case involved—and still involves—substantial risk

The Second Circuit has "historically labeled the risk of success as 'perhaps the foremost' factor to be considered in determining whether to award an enhancement." Goldberger, 209 F.3d at 54. Risk is also recognized by sophisticated clients as bearing on the rates they negotiate in private attorney-client agreements. Silver Decl. ¶ 61.

Many of the same factors demonstrating the complexity of this case also demonstrate its risk, including this case's length and the amount of investment needed to get the case to this point.

It should also be noted that, at the outset of our investigation, Co-Lead Counsel had little to go on but the review of the publicly available data—and by the dismissal stage Defendants were touting letters received about the closing of investigations against them. See Apr. 20, 2016 Tr. at 15:13-16:2. Co-Lead Counsel thus was investing resources into this case both before the government was known to be acting, as well as investing even more heavily for years after the government's own resources were (purportedly) directed elsewhere. This not only demonstrates the increased risk of this case, but also the importance of the role of private attorneys general to the nation's antitrust laws. See Section I.A.6 below; Silver Decl. ¶¶ 72-76 ("Private law firms . . . can supplement and even take the place of public enforcers because they use the dollars they take in to maintain their capacities."); In re Payment Card Interchange Fee & Merchant Discount Antitrust Litig., 991 F. Supp. 2d 437, 441 (E.D.N.Y. 2014) (fact plaintiffs "did not piggyback on previous government action" to be in favor of fee award).

More generally, Defendants have throughout made clear their intent to challenge, among other things, whether any conspiracy existed at all; whether the data show prices were suppressed to an artificial degree at all; whether any manipulation would have a measurable impact on instruments not expressly tied to the PM FIX price; whether any manipulation would have a measurable impact on instruments traded at other times of day; and whether class members must "net" any gains (from buying) against losses (from selling). Many of these defense arguments will be raised both as they relate to the merits of the case, as well as the certifiability of the case. See generally Silver Decl. ¶¶ 77-80 (discussing risk at certification stage).

It is often said that antitrust cases involve a trial boiling down to a "battle of the experts" on proof of damages. NASDAQ, 187 F.R.D. at 476. Defendants' multi-year discovery on the pleading-stage non-testifying consultants further confirms this will be even more true here than in most antitrust cases. "In this 'battle of experts,' it is virtually impossible to predict with any certainty which testimony would be credited, and ultimately, which damages would be found to have been caused by actionable, rather than the myriad nonactionable factors . . . ." In re Warner Commc'ns Sec. Litig., 618 F. Supp. 735, 744-45 (S.D.N.Y. 1985) aff'd, 798 F.2d 35 (2d Cir. 1986). A successful Daubert challenge or effective cross-examination at trial could result in a significantly reduced verdict even if liability is proved. "Indeed, the history of antitrust litigation is replete with cases in which antitrust plaintiffs succeeded at trial on liability, but recovered no damages, or only negligible damages, at trial, or on appeal." NASDAQ, 187 F.R.D. at 476; see U.S. Football League v. Nat. Football League, 644 F. Supp. 1040, 1042 (S.D.N.Y. 1986) (jury award of $1.00 in damages), aff'd, 842 F.2d 1335, 1377 (2d Cir. 1988).

Co-Lead Counsel took this case on a fully contingent basis. See Joint Decl. Section III.A. "Counsel should be rewarded for undertaking [those risks] and for achieving substantial value for the class." Payment Card, 991 F. Supp. 2d at 441; see also Jermyn v. Best Buy Stores, L.P., 2012 WL 2505644, at *10 (S.D.N.Y. June 27, 2012) ("[T]he risk of non-payment in cases prosecuted on a contingency basis where claims are not successful . . . can justify higher fees.").

4. Co-Lead Counsel provided high-quality representation

"[T]he quality of representation . . . may be measured in large part by the results that counsel achieved for the classes." Payment Card, 991 F. Supp. 2d at 441. As a general matter, Co-Lead Counsel are among the most experienced and skilled antitrust and class action litigators in the country. Each firm has led several prior mega-fund cases involving the financial markets and have tried class action cases, and the attorneys running the case are highly qualified litigators. See generally Brockett Decl. Ex. C & Davidoff Decl. Ex. D (sample summaries of firm and attorney biographies).

Beyond our general qualifications, this factor is again met because of the fact that Co-Lead Counsel obtained $102 million for the benefit of the Settlement Class. A study has found that the median full-case antitrust recovery is 19% of single damages. See John M. Connor & Robert H. Lande, Not Treble Damages: Cartel Recoveries are Mostly Less Than Single Damages, 100 Iowa L. Rev. 1997, 2010 (2015). Thus, Co-Lead Counsel would have had to establish at trial a recoverable single-damages figure of $537 million before the current settlements fall behind the pace of a median full-case antitrust recovery rate. And of course, the Settlement Fund is not a full-case recovery—Plaintiffs may still recovery from the remaining Defendants. Thus, the above comparison understates the success of the Settlements. That the Settlement Class remains free to pursue all damages on a joint and several basis also speaks to the success of the current Settlements.

Co-Lead Counsel's ability to put the case on such a pace even while facing aggressive, well-funded Defendants represented by top-flight counsel is not just a testament to the merits of the Settlements, but also the skill with which Co-Lead Counsel have prosecuted this case. See Fleisher v. Phoenix Life Ins. Co., 2015 WL 10847814, at *22 (S.D.N.Y. Sept. 9, 2015) ("The quality of opposing counsel is also important in evaluating the quality of [Co] Lead Counsel's work."); NASDAQ, 187 F.R.D. at 489 (approving fee award where defense counsel included "the nation's biggest and best defense firms operating on a seemingly unlimited budget over a period of four years").

5. The effective percentage being requested is below the applicable norms

Again, "market rates" are the "ideal proxy" for an attorney's compensation. Goldberger, 209 F.3d at 50. Rational and sophisticated parties are best positioned to determine what terms beast align the interests between client and attorney. See Silver Decl. ¶¶ 31-36. Notably, sophisticated clients do not merely seek out the lowest percent; rather, the proper question is which percent is likely to sufficiently align incentives as to result in the largest total net recovery. Id. ¶¶ 27-30. Prof. Silver's declaration provides numerous datapoints as to what sophisticated clients have agreed to pay their attorneys on large contingency-fee cases. Years of study "shows that claimants typically agree to pay contingent fees in the range extending from 33 percent to 40 percent, even when sophisticated clients hire lawyers to handle complex commercial lawsuits with the potential to generate enormous recoveries." Id. ¶ 35.[2]

Co-Lead Counsel's $28,200,000 fee request was arrived at using the sliding-scale approach put forth by Judge Gleeson in In re Payment Card, 991 F. Supp. 2d at 445. That scale adjusts the percent fee downward as the size of the gross common fund increases. This Court has called this a "creative approach" that "effectively aligns counsel's incentives with those of the putative class." Case No. 14-cv-2213, ECF 23. Co-Lead Counsel's request—for what amounts to 27.6% of the total Settlement Fund Amount—is far below the "proxy" of what a privately negotiated contingency fee would have likely provided for in a case of this size, complexity, and risk.

Though it risks deviating from the "ideal proxy" of privately negotiated agreements, courts of course do often also want to often know what other courts are doing. See Silver Decl. ¶ 82. A 2017 study found that the mean and median awards in the Second Circuit are 28 percent and 30 percent, respectfully. Id. ¶ 83. This is true even though the mean recovery of the studied cases was $113 million, a similar amount at issue here. Id.

Surveys by courts themselves have reached similar results. See Thornhill v. CVS Pharmacy, Inc., 2014 WL 1100135, at *3 (S.D.N.Y. Mar. 20, 2014) (collecting cases, noting: "In this Circuit, courts typically approve attorneys' fees that range between 30 and 33⅓%."); Sanz v. Johny Utah 51 LLC, 2015 WL 1808935, at *1 (S.D.N.Y. Apr. 20, 2015) (same). Courts

[2] See also Silver Decl. ¶¶ 20-24 (33% in large pharmaceutical cases), 47 ("broad agreement that in most types of plaintiff representations contingent fees range from 30 percent to 40 percent of the recovery," with higher percentages in cases where "costs and risks" are great), 50-52 (survey of patent cases), 53-58 (survey of other large complex actions), 59 (named plaintiffs).

recognize that large, complex antitrust cases present considerable risk and require extensive work. As a result, courts often award fees at or even above the percentage requested here.[3]

In sum, when viewed as against the "ideal proxy" of privately negotiated contracts, Co-Lead Counsel's request is far below the norm. Even when viewed against what other courts have awarded, Prof. Silver "can confidently report that [Co-Lead Counsel's] request . . . falls within the range that courts typically award." Silver Decl. ¶ 83.

6. Public policy supports approval of the fee request

Public policy also strongly supports the requested fee award. Although the PM Fix's existence was known, without private counsel taking on the risk of this lawsuit, and having the skill and resources to use consultants and other sources to uncover and then pursue the claims vigorously, the Settlement Class would have recovered nothing, and important public interests would not have been vindicated. See CDS, 2016 WL 2731524, at *18 ("It is important to encourage top-tier litigators to pursue challenging antitrust cases . . . . Our antitrust laws address issues that go to the heart of our economy.").

---

[3] See In re Urethane Antitrust Litig., 2016 WL 4060156, at *8 (D. Kan. July 29, 2016) (awarding 33.33% of $835 million settlement); Klein v. Bain Capital Partners, LLC, No.1:07-cv-12388, slip op. (D. Mass. Feb. 2, 2015) (ECF No. 1095) (awarding 33% of $590.5 million antitrust settlement); In re TFT-LCD (Flat Panel) Antitrust Litig., 2013 WL 1365900, at *20 (N.D. Cal. Apr. 3, 2013) (awarding 28.6% of $1.08 billion settlement); In re Checking Acct. Overdraft Litig., 830 F. Supp. 2d 1330, 1358 (S.D. Fla. 2011) (awarding 30% of $410 million settlement); In re Initial Pub. Offering Sec. Litig., 671 F. Supp. 2d 467, 516 (S.D.N.Y. 2009) (awarding 33.3% of $510 million settlement); Allapattah Servs., Inc. v. Exxon Corp., 454 F. Supp. 2d 1185, 1241 (S.D. Fla. 2006) (awarding 31.33% of $1.06 billion settlement); In re Vitamins Antitrust Litig., 2001 WL 34312839, at *10 (D.D.C. July 16, 2001) (awarding 34.06% of $365 million settlement); see also In re Oxford Health Plans, Inc. Sec. Litig., 2003 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 26795, at *13-*14 (S.D.N.Y. June 12, 2003) (awarding 28% of $300 million settlement); Standard Iron Works v. Arcelormittal, et al., No. 1:08-cv-05214, slip op. at 5 (N.D. Ill. Oct. 22, 2014) (ECF No. 539) (awarding 33% of $164 million settlement); In re Polyurethane Foam Antitrust Litig., 2015 WL 1639269, at *7 (N.D. Ohio Feb. 26, 2015) (awarding 30% of $147.8 million settlement); In re CRT Antitrust Litig., 2016 WL 183285, at *2-*3 (N.D. Cal. Jan. 14, 2016) (awarding 30% of $127.5 million settlement); In re Municipal Derivatives Antitrust Litig., No. 1:08-cv-02516, slip op. at 1 (S.D.N.Y. July 8, 2016) (ECF No. 2029) (awarding 33.33%).

Again, at the outset of our investigation, Co-Lead Counsel had little to go on but the review of the publicly available data—and by the dismissal stage Defendants were touting letters received about the closing of investigations against them. See Apr. 20, 2016 Tr. at 15:13-16:2. Co-Lead Counsel's efforts—which including probing the Fixing rules, the way the Fixing was actually carried out, and even analyzing many hours of audio files—are the only way allegedly injured investors will receive any compensation. This case is thus a prime example of why public policy favors enforcement of the antitrust laws through suits by private attorneys general.[4] See Silver Decl. ¶¶ 72-76 (discussing importance of private enforcement and Co-Lead Counsel's investments here). Awarding a reasonable percentage of the common fund properly motivates zealous enforcement of the antitrust laws and incentivizes skilled counsel to bring meritorious cases even where, at the outset, the prospect of any recovery is uncertain. Cf. WorldCom, 388 F. Supp. 2d at 359 ("In order to attract well-qualified plaintiffs' counsel who are able to take a case to trial, and who defendants understand are able and willing to do so, it is necessary to provide appropriate financial incentives."). Accordingly, public policy supports Co-Lead Counsel's requested fee.

B. The Fee Request is Reasonable Under the Lodestar Cross-Check

The lodestar fee calculation method has "fallen out of favor particularly because it encourages bill-padding and discourages early settlements." In re Colgate-Palmolive Co. ERISA Litig., 36 F. Supp. 3d 344, 353 (S.D.N.Y. 2014). Accordingly, the lodestar method is used in this Circuit only "as a sanity check to ensure that an otherwise reasonable percentage fee would not lead to a windfall." Id. See also Silver Decl. ¶¶ 85-88 (arguing against use of lodestar method, and noting it is not used in privately negotiated engagements). "[W]here used as a mere cross-check, the hours documented by counsel need not be exhaustively scrutinized by the district court." Goldberger, 209 F.3d at 50.

[4] See F.T.C. v. Phoebe Putney Health Sys., Inc., 568 U.S. 216, 225 (2013) (noting the "fundamental national values of free enterprise and economic competition that are embodied in the federal antitrust laws"); Pillsbury Co. v. Conboy, 459 U.S. 248, 262-63 (1983) (emphasizing "the importance of the private action as a means of furthering the policy goals of certain federal regulatory statutes, including the federal antitrust laws").

The cross-check in this case makes clear there is no windfall. To the contrary, the figures strongly support Co-Lead Counsel's fee request, as they confirm, as discussed above, the complexity and risk factors present here. A large survey has found that the mean multiplier for awards in the Second Circuit was 1.93, while the mean multiplier for awards for antitrust cases was 1.61. Silver Decl. ¶ 93. These awards over the attorneys' normal hourly rates are necessary to encourage attorneys to take cases on contingency, despite the risks—and to avoid incentivizing attorneys to settle cheaply early-on in the case. E.g., id. ¶ 94. That is, courts recognize providing fee awards beyond standard hourly rates is necessary to incentivize attorneys to take cases despite the risks inherent in contingency-fee arrangements. City of Detroit v. Grinnell Corp., 495 F.2d 448, 470 (2d Cir. 1974) ("No one expects a lawyer whose compensation is contingent upon his success to charge, when successful, as little as he would charge a client who in advance had agreed to pay for his services, regardless of success."), abrogated on other grounds by Goldberger, 209 F.3d 43. See also In re Am. Bank Note Holographics, Inc. Sec. Litig., 127 F. Supp. 2d 418, 433 (S.D.N.Y. 2001) (appropriate to take this contingent fee risk "into account in determining the appropriate fee to award").

Here, however, as demonstrated in the supporting declarations, Co-Lead Counsel's attorneys and professional support staff collectively spent over 105,000 hours on this matter before the HSBC Settlement was executed. Co-Lead Counsel turned this into a fees-equivalent using a very conservative methodology that included, for instance, a three-year rate freeze for both firms, and a 20% discount on Quinn Emanuel's standard rates,[5] as described in Co-Lead Counsel's individual declarations. This all means the "rates" being used are below market, if anything. See generally Silver Decl. ¶¶ 90-92 (discussing datapoints as to hourly rates, finding rates used here to be "clearly reasonable"). We also calculate the lodestar based entirely on Co-Lead Counsel's work.[6] Using this conservative methodology, Co-Lead Counsel had invested the equivalent of approximately $39,722,235 by the time the HSBC Settlement was executed in attorney and staff hours. See Joint Decl. Section III.A.

This translates to a lodestar "multiplier" of only .71. In other words, Co-Lead Counsel are asking for less than their lodestar, even when calculated using very conservative methodologies.[7] This is, clearly, not a windfall situation. Given the request equates to a below-1 multiplier, it should be unsurprising that Prof. Silver confirms that the multiplier is "easily justified" on the facts here, and that "judges presiding over antitrust cases with mega-fund settlements . . . have often awarded multipliers far larger than the one sought here." Silver Decl. ¶¶ 95. Indeed, Prof. Silver says the multiplier "by ordinary standards is minuscule," id. ¶ 88, and "[m]ultipliers this small are nearly unheard of in settlements of this magnitude," id. ¶ 93.

---

[5] The potential for a "discount" and other aspects of these calculations were first raised in our initial leadership application. See Case No. 14-cv-2213, ECF 17. Berger Montague did not represent in the leadership application it would discount its fees, in large part because the default Berger Montague rate schedule was similar to Quinn Emanuel's discounted schedule. As set forth in the supporting declarations, we are including hours from vendor-provided attorneys in our lodestar calculations using modest hourly rates.

[6] No commitments have been made, but we may provide a portion of any fee award to certain firms who provided assistance at the request of Co-Lead Counsel. As we are not relying on the work of any other firm for the lodestar analysis at this time, only Co-Lead Counsel have filed supporting declarations.

[7] Co-Lead Counsel are providing the conservative methodology discussed herein to remove all doubt as to the absence of a "windfall" situation here. However, Co-Lead Counsel reserve the right to present alternative calculations in support of this or future applications.

C. The Fee Request is Below That Negotiated for by the Named Plaintiffs

As discussed in Section I.A above, the "ideal proxy" for a reasonable fee, Goldberger, 209 F.3d at 50, are market rates. As discussed in Section I.A.5 above, the request here is far below prevailing rates. Another fact supporting Co-Lead Counsel's request is that the effective 27.6% request is also below the terms negotiated for by our own sophisticated clients. None bargained to limit our fees to a lower percent of the recoveries, with many instead allowing a 33 1/3% request. See Joint Decl. ¶ 149. Fees negotiated specific to a case can be seen as "the best indication of the actual market value of counsel's services." In re Comverse Tech., Inc. Sec. Litig., 2010 WL 2653354, at *4 (E.D.N.Y. June 24, 2010) (negotiated fee "is the best indication of the actual market value of counsel's services"); see also CDS, 2016 WL 2731524, at *17 (citing approvingly pre-negotiated fee schedule even where court would otherwise have found it to be "generous" given it resulted in a lodestar multiplier of over 6).

D. The Fee Request is Reasonable Even Considering the Time Gap Between the Deutsche Bank and HSBC Settlements

The HSBC and Deutsche Bank agreements benefit the same people. Compare ECF 174-1 ¶ 3(a) with 514-1 ¶ 3(a). There is thus no need to divide the fee being requested or the work performed into separate buckets, because all work was done for the benefit of the single Settlement Class. Indeed, assessing each fee application as a function of all fees requested and all lodestar ensures that the final end-result is fair and reasonable, rather than fluctuating based on attempts to strategically time, group, or disaggregate the calculations.

E. The Reaction of the Class

The Notice stated that Co-Lead Counsel may seek a fee of up to $28,200,000. Co-Lead Counsel will update the Court on the reaction of the class in our reply papers.

II. CO-LEAD COUNSEL'S REQUEST FOR AN AWARD OF THEIR LITIGATION EXPENSES IS REASONABLE

"Counsel are entitled to be reimbursed for the reasonable expenses advanced in class litigation." In re Glob. Crossing Sec. & ERISA Litig., 225 F.R.D. 436, 469 (S.D.N.Y. 2004); see also Vitamin C, 2012 WL 5289514, at *11 ("Courts in the Second Circuit normally grant expense requests in common fund cases as a matter of course."). The Notice informed members of the Settlement Class that Co-Lead Counsel would move for an award of litigation costs of up to $11 million. We respectfully request an expense award of $8,242,755.81, plus interest thereon. As detailed in the individual declarations of Mr. Brockett and Mr. Davidoff, almost all of these expenses were incurred by Co-Lead Counsel, with only a small amount incurred by other firms working with us. All expenses were incurred prior to November 10, 2020, when the HSBC Settlement was executed. See Joint Decl. Section III.B (summarizing individual declarations and summing figures).

For the reasons discussed above, "substantial expenses were necessary in this complex antitrust case." Meredith, 87 F. Supp. 3d at 671. Most of these expenses are for Plaintiffs' non-testifying expert consultants who were instrumental in getting this case off the ground, through the dismissal stage, and into a massive discovery effort. See CDS, 2016 WL 2731524, at *18 (reimbursing over $10 million in expenses incurred even pre-certification of the class, and noting that "[m]ost of these expenses were incurred in connection with retention of experts" and that this "expert work was essential to the litigation and invaluable to the Class"). A more-detailed breakdown of the tasks the consultants worked on appears in Section III.B of the Joint Declaration.

Analysis of economic and other data formed a large part of the pleadings, and critiques and defenses of the statistical analyses was the main focus of Defendants' dismissal papers, Plaintiffs' opposition, and the Court's orders. See Joint Decl. Sections I.C.1, I.C.2, and III.B. Non-testifying expert consultants were also needed at this stage to assist with oral argument and the Court "tutorial," and later to respond to Defendants' "discovery" battles over the accuracy and completeness of their work and productions. See id. Section I.C.2.

As discussed in the Joint Declaration, Sections I.C.3 and III.B, Co-Lead Counsel also had to work with our non-testifying expert consultants with respect to discovery in this case. For instance, much work was required in requesting, receiving, loading, scrubbing, consolidating and analyzing the 110 million Defendant transactional records, many of which are associated with over 100 different "fields." This includes, among many other tasks: converting the raw data into a common format; reviewing the data to ensure completeness as to time, products, and fields; reconciling and matching data when the same transaction was included in productions coming out of different systems-such as information on Defendants' trades in Defendants' systems and in data produced by the CME; analyzing and driving conferrals regarding whether Defendants' data was sufficiently distinguishing between their own trades versus those done on behalf of their customers; scrubbing the data for outliers and errors, such as where prices were far outside the expected range; analyzing ways to identify links to the Fix; and analyzing publicly available data, and potential third-party subpoena targets, to fill data needs not left open by Defendants' productions. See id. ¶ 157.

Aside from the consulting and similar fees, the balance of the requested expenses are composed of industry-standard charges such as online legal research, document imaging and copying, travel expenses, and other litigation support services. These expenses are being submitted on a "at cost" basis, without any markup or profit component to our firms. These expenses have been reviewed by Co-Lead Counsel and were found to be reasonable.

In sum, there is thus "no reason to depart from the common practice in this circuit of granting expense requests." In re Visa Check/Mastermoney Antitrust Litig., 297 F. Supp. 2d 503, 525 (E.D.N.Y. 2003) (granting $18.7 million expense request where bulk of expenses were "experts and consultants, litigation and trial support services, document imaging and copying, deposition costs, online legal research, and travel expenses"), aff'd sub nom., Wal-Mart, 396 F.3d at 96.

III. THE REQUEST IS CONSISTENT WITH CO-LEAD COUNSEL'S 2014 ESTIMATES AND REPRESENTATIONS, WITH ANY DEPARTURES PERFORMED IN THE BEST INTEREST OF THE CLASS

In our 2014 application to be appointed Co-Lead Counsel, we provided certain representations and estimations. See Case No. 14-cv-2213, ECF 17. We have reviewed this application to ensure it is consistent with our prior papers, and to be forthright with the Court where there have been necessary departures.

We represented in 2014 we would limit our fee request to that based on the Payment Card sliding scale. See Case No. 14-cv-2213, ECF 17 at 21. That is exactly the scale used to calculate the current fee request, even though it has resulted in a lodestar multiplier well below 1.0 given our substantial investments into the case.

We represented in 2014 that our firms would calculate lodestar in certain ways, such as by using a rate "freeze," and that Quinn Emanuel would provide a "discount" off our standard rates. Id. at 18-19. Not only did we use those discounts and rate-freezes in calculating our lodestar, but we did so in the most conservative way possible. For instance, for purposes of this application, we treated the freeze as even barring increases by way of a person becoming more senior—we did not in this period allow for "class promotion" increases, nor did we even change rates if someone elevated from associate to of-counsel or partner during that period. Such details were not fleshed out in our application, but where we saw ambiguity we tried to resolve it in the most conservative way possible in this application to demonstrate the lack of a "windfall" here.

We anticipated in 2014 we would provide hosting services in-house. But, in the interest of full disclosure, we highlight that some of our expenses are for third-party document vendors. This is because our analyses of what would be in the best interest of the class shifted over the long course of this case. For instance, third-party vendors could offer services that our in-house systems could not offer at the time discovery was ramping up. These features, including the ability to automatically transcribe audio files as well as perform continuous learning to speed the document review, meant that we determined the overall case would operate more efficiently, on the facts specific to this case and at the time we had to make the decision for this case, through the use of third-party vendors. See Joint Decl. Section III.B.

We estimated in 2014 what it would cost to get this case through trial. As an initial matter, the 2014 estimate is outdated for a myriad of reasons. It is unlikely anyone would have predicted the case would require multiple amendments and briefs, a full-day tutorial process, and four years to get Defendants to file Answers. Nor could anyone have anticipated the case would still be in discovery seven years after our investigation began. Nor could not have been known the exact scale of discovery in this case, or the exhaustive conferring that would be required over issues small and large. But our 2014 estimates are irrelevant for additional reasons.

For instance, as for expenses, Co-Lead Counsel have gone significantly out of pocket for the seven-year history of the case, with no guarantee we would ever have our incurred expenses recouped. We thus naturally were already incentivized to keep them under control, and to incur the costs only if we believed they were a wise investment to further the case. See Silver Decl. ¶ 71 ("Rationally, [the attorneys'] incentive is to incur only expenses that increase class members' expected recoveries by several multiples of the cost. It makes more sense to worry that contingent fee lawyers may devote too few resources to litigation than to fear that they will spend too much."). As expounded in Section II above and in Sections I.C and III.B of the Joint Declaration, litigating this type of case in a way that forces Defendants to take it seriously requires significant investments. There is no cheap way of demanding, assembling, scrubbing, understanding, and analyzing 110 million transactional records, for example.

As for fees, our prior estimates are, we respectfully submit, even less relevant. We are not getting paid on an hourly basis. As discussed above, a percentage-based approach aligns the incentives of counsel and class. It is again worth noting here that even after, for example, Co-Lead Counsel's rate "freeze" and Quinn Emanuel's 20% discount and the other conservative adjustments, Co-Lead Counsel's lodestar is only .71, and would be even lower if a more traditional approach to calculating lodestar was used. Reducing our recoveries even further below our investments, merely because we did not accurately predict the multi-year history of this case, would only disincentivize attorneys from investing in complex cases requiring going toe-to-toe against multiple defendants and their nearly limitless legal defense budgets.

CONCLUSION

For the foregoing reasons, Co-Lead Counsel respectfully requests that the Court approve Co-Lead Counsel's application for the payment of attorneys' fees and expenses in the amounts set forth above, plus interest thereon. Co-Lead Counsel will submit a proposed order in connection with our reply papers.[8]

[8] Though the Notice referred to the potential request for incentive awards and expense reimbursements for named Plaintiffs, they are not at that this time making such a request, but reserve the right to do so in the event of a future recovery.

DATED: July 9, 2021

Respectfully submitted,

/s/ Merrill G. Davidoff

Merrill G. Davidoff
Martin I. Twersky
Michael C. Dell'Angelo
Candice J. Enders
Zachary D. Caplan
BERGER MONTAGUE PC
1818 Market Street
Philadelphia, Pennsylvania 19103
Telephone: (215) 875-3000
Fax: (215) 875-4604
mdavidoff@bm.net
mtwersky@bm.net
mdellangelo@bm.net
cenders@bm.net
zcaplan@bm.net

/s/ Daniel L. Brockett

Daniel L. Brockett
Sami H. Rashid
Alexee Deep Conroy
Christopher M. Seck
QUINN EMANUEL URQUHART & SULLIVAN, LLP
51 Madison Avenue, 22nd Floor
New York, New York 10010
Telephone: (212) 849-7000
Fax: (212) 849-7100
danbrockett@quinnemanuel.com samirashid@quinnemanuel.com alexeeconroy@quinnemanuel.com christopherseck@quinnemanuel.com

Jeremy D. Andersen
QUINN EMANUEL URQUHART & SULLIVAN, LLP
865 South Figueroa Street, 10th Floor
Los Angeles, California 90017
Telephone: (213) 443-3000
Fax: (213) 443-3100
jeremyandersen@quinnemanuel.com

Counsel for Gold Plaintiffs and Interim Co-Lead Counsel for the Proposed Gold Class

TAB 49A

IN THE UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
FOR THE EASTERN DISTRICT OF MICHIGAN
SOUTHERN DIVISION

IN RE: AUTOMOTIVE PARTS ANTITRUST LITIGATION	:	Master File No. 12-md-02311
PRODUCT(S):	:
In Re: Instrument Panel Clusters	:	2:12-cv-00202
In Re: Heater Control Panels	:	2:12-cv-00402
In Re: Bearings	:	2:12-cv-00502
In Re: Occupant Safety Restraint Systems	:	2:12-cv-00602
In Re: Radiators	:	2:13-cv-01002
In Re: Automotive Lamps	:	2:13-cv-01202
In Re: Switches	:	2:13-cv-01302
In Re: Ignition Coils	:	2:13-cv-01402
In Re: Steering Angle Sensors	:	2:13-cv-01602
In Re: Hid Ballasts	:	2:13-cv-01702
In Re: Electric Powered Steering Assemblies	:	2:13-cv-01902
In Re: Fuel Injection Systems	:	2:13-cv-02202
In Re: Automatic Transmission Fluid Warmers	:	2:13-cv-02402
In Re: Valve Timing Control Devices	:	2:13-cv-02502
In Re: Air Conditioning Systems	:	2:13-cv-02702
In Re: Constant Velocity Joint Boot Products	:	2:14-cv-02902
In Re: Spark Plugs	:	2:15-cv-03002
In Re: Automotive Hoses	:	2:15-cv-03202
In Re: Shock Absorbers	:	2:16-cv-03302
In Re: Body Sealing Products	:	2:16-cv-03402
In Re: Interior Trim Products	:	2:16-cv-03502
In Re: Brake Hoses	:	2:16-cv-03602
In Re: Exhaust Systems	:	2:16-cv-03702
In Re: Ceramic Substrates	:	2:16-cv-03802
In Re: Power Window Switches	:	2:16-cv-03902
In Re: Automotive Steel Tubes	:	2:16-cv-04002
In Re: Access Mechanisms	:	2:16-cv-04102
In Re: Side Door Latches	:	2:17-cv-04302
This Document Relates to: ALL DEALERSHIP ACTIONS	:	Hon. Marianne O. Battani

ORDER REGARDING AUTO DEALERS' MOTION FOR AN AWARD OF ATTORNEYS' FEES AND REIMBURSEMENT OF LITIGATION EXPENSES FROM ROUND FOUR SETTLEMENTS

The above matter came before the Court on the Auto Dealers' motion for an award of attorneys' fees and reimbursement of litigation expenses relating to a fourth round of Auto Dealer settlements ("Round Four settlements").

The Court has reviewed the memorandum submitted by the Auto Dealers in support of their motion and has also reviewed the various declarations and submissions relating to that motion.

Based on the record before the Court, it is hereby ORDERED:

1. The Court has considered the relevant case law and authority and finds that awards of attorneys' fees and reimbursement of expenses to the Auto Dealers and their counsel are appropriate under Fed. R. Civ. P. 23(h) and Fed.R.Civ.P. 54(d)(2). Notice of the request for fees and reimbursement of expenses was provided to the potential class members via direct and published notice and a settlement web site that identified and provided copies of relevant documents and pleadings.

2. The Court has considered the reaction of the class members to this fee request and request for reimbursement of expenses.

3. The Court engages in a two-part analysis when assessing the reasonableness of a petition seeking an award of attorneys' fees. In re Cardinal Health Ins. Sec. Litig., 528 F.Supp.2d 752, 760 (S.D. Ohio 2007). The Court first determines the method of calculating the attorneys' fees: it applies either the percentage of the fund approach or the lodestar method. Id.; Van Horn v. Nationwide Prop. & Cas. Inc. Co., 436 F. App'x 496, 498 (6th Cir. 2011).

4. The Court has the discretion to select the appropriate method for calculating attorneys' fees "in light of the unique characteristics of class actions in general, and of the unique circumstances of the actual cases before them." Rawlings v. Prudential-Bache Properties, Inc., 9 F.3d 513, 516 (6th Cir. 1993). In common fund cases, the award of attorneys' fees need only "be reasonable under the circumstances." Id., 9 F.3d at 516. The Court has also analyzed and weighed the six factors described in Ramey v. Cincinnati Enquirer, Inc., 508 F.2d 1188 (6th Cir. 1974).

5. The Court will award fees to the Auto Dealers using the percentage-of-the-fund approach. This method of awarding attorneys' fees is preferred in this district because it eliminates disputes about the reasonableness of rates and hours, conserves judicial resources, and aligns the interests of class counsel and the class members. Rawlings, 9 F.3d at 515; In re Packaged Ice Antitrust Litig., 08-MDL-01952, 2011 WL 6209188, at *16 (E.D. Mich. Dec. 13, 2011); Delphi, 248 F.R.D. at 502; Cardinal, 528 F.Supp.2d at 762 (the Sixth Circuit has "explicitly approved the percentage approach in common fund cases."); In re Skelaxin (Metaxalone) Antitrust Litig., 2014 WL 2946459, *1 (E.D. Tenn. Jun. 30, 2014).

6. The Court GRANTS the Auto Dealers' request for reimbursement of past litigation expenses in the amount of $153,720.12, as set forth in the declarations submitted by counsel for the Auto Dealers. The past litigation expenses incurred in the general prosecution of the cases with settlements currently before the Court shall be reimbursed on a pro rata basis from each of the Round Four settlements.

7. The Court authorizes class counsel for the Auto Dealers to pay the costs of the Round Four settlement notice and claims administration (being handled by KCC, LLC) from the Round Four settlement funds on a pro rata basis.

8. Counsel for the Auto Dealers request a fee award of 30 percent of the Round Four settlements, after the cost of class notice and claim administration have been deducted. The award requested is within the range of fee awards made by courts in this Circuit. In re Prandin Direct Purchaser Antitrust Litig., 2015 WL 1396473 (E.D. Mich. Jan. 20, 2015) (awarding one-third of the fund); In re Packaged Ice Antitrust Litig., 2011 WL 6209188, at *19; Skelaxin, 2014 WL 2946459, at *1; In re Se. Milk Antitrust Litig., 2013 WL 2155387, at *8 (E.D. Tenn. May 17, 2013); Thacker v.

Chesapeake Appalachia, L.L.C., 695 F. Supp. 2d, 521, 528 (E.D. Ky. 2010); Bessey v. Packerland Plainwell, Inc., No. 4:06-CV-95, 2007 WL 3173972, at *4 (W.D. Mich. 2007); Delphi, 248 F.R.D. at 502-03; In re National Century Financial Enterprises, Inc. Investment Litig., 2009 WL 1473975 (S.D. Ohio, May 27, 2009); Kogan v. AIMCO Fox Chase, L.P., 193 F.R.D. 496, 503 (E.D. Mich. 2000). Other federal courts have approved fees in this range in complex antitrust class action litigation and this Court has used that percentage, or more, for other fee awards in this MDL. See 2:12-cv-00101-MOB-MKM (ECF Doc. No. 495, para. 22) (30 percent); 2:12-cv-00102-MOB-MKM (ECF Doc. No. 401, para. 11) (33 percent).

9. The Court has considered the six Ramey factors in weighing a fee award to counsel for the Auto Dealers: (1) the value of the benefits rendered to the class; (2) society's stake in rewarding attorneys who produce such benefits in order to maintain an incentive to others; (3) whether the services were undertaken on a contingent fee basis; (4) the value of the services on an hourly basis [the lodestar cross-check]; (5) the complexity of the litigation; and (6) the professional skill and standing of counsel on both sides. Ramey, 508 F.2d at 1194–97.

10. The Court has carefully analyzed the Round Four settlements and the Ramey factors and concludes that the factors are met and justify a fee award to counsel for the Auto Dealers. The settlements total more than $86 million and provide substantial cash and non-monetary benefits including cooperation from the settling defendants and injunctive relief from some settling defendants to prohibit certain future conduct. Counsel has worked on a contingent basis and the results of this litigation have never been certain. The legal and factual issues are complicated, and the parties have zealously asserted their claims and defenses. Given the length and tenacity of this litigation, the Court is satisfied that the Round Four settlements were the result of arms' length and good faith negotiations between informed and experienced counsel.

Some of the settlements were only reached with the assistance of mediators and multiple mediation sessions.

11. Courts in the Sixth Circuit weigh "society's stake in rewarding attorneys [who obtain favorable outcomes for a class] in order to maintain an incentive to others," and counsel's success in complex antitrust litigation "counsels in favor of a generous fee." Cardizem, 218 F.R.D. at 534 (internal quotation marks omitted). The substantial Auto Dealer recoveries to-date serve a strong public policy of holding accountable those who violate United States antitrust laws, thereby promoting fair competition and pricing. See 2:12-cv-00103-MOB-MKM (ECF Doc. No. 578, para. 13).

12. This is an extremely complex litigation with more than 160 defendants and over 40 different Auto Dealer class actions involving different parts, different groups of alleged conspirators, and different time periods. Some of the defendants were indicted and pleaded guilty to antitrust violations while others were not indicted, did not plead guilty, or did not pay fines to a governmental entity. All defendants have vigorously disputed the applicability of Federal Rule 23 to litigated classes and have denied that the Auto Dealers sustained an antitrust injury.

13. Working on a contingent basis, counsel for the Auto Dealers have skillfully guided the cases before the Court in this motion to substantial settlements. When the Round Four settlements are added to the first three rounds of Auto Dealer settlements previously approved by the Court, nearly $385 million has been recovered for the benefit of eligible Auto Dealer settlement class members.

14. The Ramey factors and a cross-check of the lodestar incurred by counsel for the Auto Dealers indicate that the fee requested constitutes fair and reasonable compensation for the risks assumed, the work done, and the benefits achieved for the members of the settlement classes. The total lodestar of counsel for the Auto Dealers presently exceeds $86,502,565.17 when using counsel's current customary rates.

15. When performing the lodestar cross-check, the Court reviewed the hourly rates of Auto Dealer counsel and find that they are reasonable for attorneys with specialized experience in bringing antitrust cases. "A reasonable hourly rate is determined according to the prevailing market rates in the relevant community. To ascertain that community, district courts 'are free to look to a national market, an area of specialization market, or any other market they believe appropriate to fairly compensate particular attorneys in individual cases." Ford v. Fed.-Mogul Corp., No. 2:09-cv-14448, 2015 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 3399, at *2-3 (E.D. Mich. Jan. 7, 2015) (quoting McHugh v. Olympia Entm't, Inc., 37 F. App'x 730, 740 (6th Cir. 2002)). Even if counsel's "requested rates are high for this district. . . Class Counsel should be compensated at rates that reflect their skill and their success." Schumacher v. AK Steel Corp. Ret. Accumulation Pension Plan, 995 F. Supp. 2d 835, 847 (S.D. Ohio 2014).

16. The rates used by Auto Dealer counsel in this MDL are well within the parameters of reasonableness. In national markets, "partners routinely charge between $1,200 and $1,300 an hour, with top rates at several large law firms exceeding $1,400.[1] In specialties such as "antitrust and high-stakes litigation and appeals . . . [f]or lawyers at the very top of those fields, hourly rates can hit $1,800 or even $1,950." Id. Some "difference makers" in the most complex fields, including antitrust litigation, even charge $2,000 an hour.[2] This Court has recognized that rates in this matter

[1] See Sara Randazzo & Jacqueline Palank, Legal Fees Cross New Mark: $1,500 an Hour, The Wall Street Journal (Feb. 16, 2016), https://www.wsj.com/articles/legal-fees-reach-new-pinnacle¬1-500-an-hour-1454960708; see also Martha Neil, Top partner billing rates at BigLaw firms approach $1,500 per hour, ABA Journal (Feb. 8, 2016), http://www.abajournal.comnews/article/toppartner billing rates at biglaw firms nudge 1500 per hour.

[2] See Natalie Rodriguez, Meet the $2,000 An Hour Attorney: What it Takes to Earn Top Dollar in the Rate-Crunch Era, Law360, June 11, 2016, https://www.1aw360.com/in-depth/articles/804421 ("[E]arlier this year, BTI Consulting Group found that a handful of in-house counsel had paid as much as

"are well in line with the market, with recent reports explaining that senior lawyers at top law firms routinely charge well over $1,000." See, e.g., 2:12-cv-00103-MOB-MKM (Doc. No. 578) at 7.

17. Interim Co-Lead Counsel for the Auto Dealers performed a thorough analysis of the Auto Dealers' attorneys' time submissions and have, in this motion and in prior motions, provided the Court with detailed information supporting their lodestar. The rates are justified by the many years of experience, expertise, and results in prosecuting antitrust class actions. Counsel for the Auto Dealers achieved excellent results while litigating claims against Defendants that are represented by some of the most skilled and prominent antitrust defense lawyers in the world.

18. The Court GRANTS an award of attorneys' fees to counsel for the Auto Dealers in the amount of $26,170,859.00. These attorneys' fees shall be paid on a pro rata basis from the net settlement funds available for each Round Four settlement currently before the Court.

19. Using the lodestar cross-check methodology and reviewing the total fees awarded with the lodestar incurred from the inception of the litigation to September 30, 2019, the 30 percent fee awarded results in a lodestar multiplier of approximately 1.19 when using counsel's customary rates. This modest multiplier is well within, if not below, the range of reasonable multipliers awarded in similar contingent fee cases. See, e.g., In re Cardinal Health Ins. Sec. Litig., 528 F. Supp. 2d at 767-68 (approving multiplier of 6, and observing that "[m]ost courts agree that the typical lodestar multiplier" on a large class action "ranges from 1.3 to 4.5"); In re Prandin Direct Purchase Antitrust Litig., 2015 WL 1396473, at *4 (3.01 multiplier). This fee award is reasonable considering the complexity of this litigation, the results achieved for the class members, the risks assumed by counsel for the Auto Dealers, and the work remaining to be done in this litigation.

20. If the Auto Dealers receive money from the $16,800,000.00 general, unsecured, non-priority claim in the TKH bankruptcy proceeding, counsel for the Auto Dealers are awarded, without further order of the Court, attorneys' fees of 30 percent of any money paid pursuant to that claim.

$2,000 per hour, after discounts, to attorneys in the past year. Several other in-house counsel, meanwhile, had paid highs of $1,900 per hour or $1,800 per hour.")

21. Interim Co-Lead Counsel for the Auto Dealers are authorized to allocate the attorneys' fees and expenses awarded herein among counsel who performed work on behalf of the Auto Dealers in accordance with Interim Co-Lead Counsel's assessment of each firm's contribution to the prosecution of the cases involved in the settlements.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

Date: December 29, 2019

s/Marianne O. Battani
MARIANNE O. BATTANI
United States District Judge

TAB 49B

IN THE UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
FOR THE EASTERN DISTRICT OF MICHIGAN
SOUTHERN DIVISION

IN RE: AUTOMOTIVE PARTS ANTITTRUST LITIGATION	:	Master File No. 12-md-02311
PRODUCT(S):	:
In Re: Instrument Panel Clusters	:	2:12-cv-00202
In Re: Heater Control Panels	:	2:12-cv-00402
In Re: Bearings	:	2:12-cv-00502
In Re: Occupant Safety Restraint Systems	:	2:12-cv-00602
In Re: Radiators	:	2:13-cv-01002
In Re: Automotive Lamps	:	2:13-cv-01202
In Re: Switches	:	2:13-cv-01302
In Re: Ignition Coils	:	2:13-cv-01402
In Re: Steering Angle Sensors	:	2:13-cv-01602
In Re: Hid Ballasts	:	2:13-cv-01702
In Re: Electric Powered Steering Assemblies	:	2:13-cv-01902
In Re: Fuel Injection Systems	:	2:13-cv-02202
In Re: Automatic Transmission Fluid Warmers	:	2:13-cv-02402
In Re: Valve Timing Control Devices	:	2:13-cv-02502
In Re: Air Conditioning Systems	:	2:13-cv-02702
In Re: Constant Velocity Joint Boot Products	:	2:14-cv-02902
In Re: Spark Plugs	:	2:15-cv-03002
In Re: Automotive Hoses	:	2:15-cv-03202
In Re: Shock Absorbers	:	2:16-cv-03302
In Re: Body Sealing Products	:	2:16-cv-03402
In Re: Interior Trim Products	:	2:16-cv-03502
In Re: Brake Hoses	:	2:16-cv-03602
In Re: Exhaust Systems	:	2:16-cv-03702
In Re: Ceramic Substrates	:	2:16-cv-03802
In Re: Power Window Switches	:	2:16-cv-03902
In Re: Automotive Steel Tubes	:	2:16-cv-04002
In Re: Access Mechanisms	:	2:16-cv-04102
In Re: Side Door Latches	:	2:17-cv-04302
This Document Relates to: ALL DEALERSHIP ACTIONS	:	Hon. Marianne O. Battani

AUTO DEALERS' MOTION FOR FINAL APPROVAL OF SETTLEMENTS (ROUND FOUR) WITH CERTAIN DEFENDANTS AND FOR CERTIFICATION OF SETTLEMENT CLASSES

Pursuant to Rules 23 and 54 of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, the Interim Co-Lead Counsel for the Auto Dealers will move the Court for an Order granting final approval to settlements reached with certain of the Defendants, certifying settlement classes in the settlements, and the appoint settlement class counsel and settlement class representatives. The Auto Dealers will also seek entry of final judgment, pursuant to Rule 65 of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, in the cases for which final approval is sought against certain Defendants.

Dated: December 6, 2019.

By: /s/ Gerard V. Mantese
Gerard V. Mantese (P34424)
MANTESE HONIGMAN, P.C.
1361 E. Big Beaver Road
Troy, MI 48083
Telephone: (248) 457-9200 Ext. 203
Facsimile: (248) 457-9201
gmantese@manteselaw.com

Interim Liaison Counsel for the Automobile Dealer Plaintiffs

Jonathan W. Cuneo
CUNEO GILBERT & LADUCA, LLP
4725 Wisconsin Ave., NW
Suite 200
Washington, DC 20016
Telephone: (202) 789-3960
Facsimile: (202) 789-1813
jonc@cuneolaw.com

Don Barrett
BARRETT LAW GROUP, P.A.
P.O. Box 927
404 Court Square
Lexington, MS 39095
Telephone: (662) 834-2488
Facsimile: (662)834.2628
dbarrett@barrettlawgroup.com

Shawn M. Raiter
LARSON KING, LLP
2800 Wells Fargo Place
30 East Seventh Street
St. Paul, MN 55101
Telephone: (651) 312-6500
Facsimile: (651) 312-6618
sraiter@larsonking.com

Interim Co-Lead Counsel for the Automobile Dealer Plaintiffs

CERTIFICATE OF SERVICE

I, Gerard V. Mantese, hereby certify that I caused a true and correct copy of Auto Dealers' Motion for Final Approval of Settlements (Round Four) With Certain Defendants and for Certification of Settlement Classes to be served via e-mail upon all registered counsel of record via the court's cm/ECF system on December 6, 2019.

/s/Gerard V. Mantese
Gerard V. Mantese

IN THE UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
FOR THE EASTERN DISTRICT OF MICHIGAN
SOUTHERN DIVISION

IN RE: AUTOMOTIVE PARTS ANTITRUST LITIGATION	:	Master File No. 12-md-02311
PRODUCT(S):	:
In Re: Instrument Panel Clusters	:	2:12-cv-00202
In Re: Heater Control Panels	:	2:12-cv-00402
In Re: Bearings	:	2:12-cv-00502
In Re: Occupant Safety Restraint Systems	:	2:12-cv-00602
In Re: Radiators	:	2:13-cv-01002
In Re: Automotive Lamps	:	2:13-cv-01202
In Re: Switches	:	2:13-cv-01302
In Re: Ignition Coils	:	2:13-cv-01402
In Re: Steering Angle Sensors	:	2:13-cv-01602
In Re: Hid Ballasts	:	2:13-cv-01702
In Re: Electric Powered Steering Assemblies	:	2:13-cv-01902
In Re: Fuel Injection Systems	:	2:13-cv-02202
In Re: Automatic Transmission Fluid Warmers	:	2:13-cv-02402
In Re: Valve Timing Control Devices	:	2:13-cv-02502
In Re: Air Conditioning Systems	:	2:13-cv-02702
In Re: Constant Velocity Joint Boot Products	:	2:14-cv-02902
In Re: Spark Plugs	:	2:15-cv-03002
In Re: Automotive Hoses	:	2:15-cv-03202
In Re: Shock Absorbers	:	2:16-cv-03302
In Re: Body Sealing Products	:	2:16-cv-03402
In Re: Interior Trim Products	:	2:16-cv-03502
In Re: Brake Hoses	:	2:16-cv-03602
In Re: Exhaust Systems	:	2:16-cv-03702
In Re: Ceramic Substrates	:	2:16-cv-03802
In Re: Power Window Switches	:	2:16-cv-03902
In Re: Automotive Steel Tubes	:	2:16-cv-04002
In Re: Access Mechanisms	:	2:16-cv-04102
In Re: Side Door Latches	:	2:17-cv-04302
This Document Relates to: ALL DEALERSHIP ACTIONS	:	Hon. Marianne O. Battani

AUTO DEALERS' MEMORANDUM IN SUPPORT OF MOTION FOR FINAL APPROVAL OF SETTLEMENTS (ROUND FOUR) WITH CERTAIN DEFENDANTS AND FOR CERTIFICATION OF SETTLEMENT CLASSES

Gerard V. Mantese (P34424)
Mantese Honigman, P.C.
1361 E. Big Beaver Road
Troy, MI 48083
Telephone: (248) 457-9200 Ext. 203
gmantese@manteselaw.com

Interim Liaison Counsel For The Automobile Dealer Plaintiffs

Jonathan W. Cuneo
Cuneo Gilbert & Laduca, LLP
4725 Wisconsin Ave., NW
Suite 200
Washington, DC 20016
Telephone: (202) 789-3960
jonc@cuneolaw.com

Don Barrett
Barrett Law Group, P.A.
P.O. Box 927
404 Court Square
Lexington, MS 39095
Telephone: (662) 834-2488
dbarrett@barrettlawgroup.com

Shawn M. Raiter
Larson King, LLP
2800 Wells Fargo Place
30 East Seventh Street
St. Paul, MN 55101
Telephone: (651) 312-6500
Facsimile: (651) 312-6618
sraiter@larsonking.com

Interim Co-Lead Counsel for the Automobile Dealer Plaintiffs

Statement of the Issues Presented

1. Whether the Round Four settlements between the Auto Dealer Plaintiffs and certain Defendants are fair, reasonable, and adequate and should be granted final approval under Fed. R. Civ. P. 23?

   Answer: Yes

2. Whether the Court should grant final certification to the Auto Dealer settlement classes it previously conditionally certified?

   Answer: Yes

Controlling or Most Appropriate Authorities

Griffin v. Flagstar Bancorp, Inc., No. 2:10-cv-10610, 2013 WL 6511860 (E.D. Mich. Dec. 12, 2013)

In re Cardizem CD Antitrust Litig., 218 F.R.D. 508 (E.D. Mich. 2003)

In re Cardizem CD Antitrust Litig., No. 08-MD-01952, 2011 WL 717519 (E.D. Mich. Feb. 22, 2011)

In re Scrap Metal Antitrust Litig., 527 F.3d 517 (6th Cir. 2008)

In re Whirlpool Corp. Front-Loading Washer Prods. Liab. Litig., 722 F.3d 838 (6th Cir. 2013)

Sheick v. Auto. Component Carrier LLC, No. 09—CV-14429, 2010 WL 4136958 (E.D. Mich. Oct. 18, 2010)

Sprague v. Gen. Motors Corp., 133 F.3d 388 (6th Cir. 1998)

UAW v. General Motors Corp., 497 F.3d 615 (6th Cir. 2007)

Table of Contents

Page

Introduction 1

Background 2

I. The Administration of Prior Settlement Rounds 2

II. The Round Four Settlements Provide Substantial Benefits to Auto Dealers 3

A. Cash Benefits 3

B. Cooperation and Other Terms 7

II. The Notice Plan was Carried Out and Provided Adequate Notice of the Settlements 7

III. The Reaction of Settlement Class Members was Positive 8

Legal Standard 9

Argument 11

I. The Settlements are Fair, Reasonable, and Adequate and Should be Given Final Approval 11

A. The Likelihood of the Auto Dealers' Success on the Merits Weighed Against the Relief Offered in the Settlements Supports Approval 12

B. The Complexity, Expense, and Likely Duration of Continued Litigation Favor Final Approval 15

C. The Judgment of Experienced Counsel Who Have Evaluated the Strength of the Claims, Defenses, and Risks Supports Approval 15

D. Class Member Reaction 17

E. The Public Interest Supports Granting Final Approval to the Settlements 18

F. The Settlements are not the Product of Collusion 18

II. Notice of the Settlements was Proper Under Rule 23 and Met Due Process Requirements 19

A. There Were No Objections to the Notice Content or Plan 20

B. Timing of CAFA Notices and Final Approval Orders 21

III. Certification of Settlement Classes is Appropriate 21

A. The Auto Dealer Settlement Classes Satisfy Rule 23(a) 21

1. The Settlement Classes are Numerous 22

2. Common Questions of Law and Fact Exist 22

3. Auto Dealer Plaintiffs' Claims are Typical of Those of the Settlement Class 23

4. Auto Dealer Class Representatives and Their Counsel Have Fairly and Adequately Protected the Interests of the Settlement Class Members 24

B. Automobile Dealer Plaintiffs' Claims Satisfy the Prerequisites of Rule 23(b)(3) for Settlement Purposes 25

1. Common Legal and Factual Questions Predominate 25

2. Class Action Settlements Are Superior to the Other Methods of Adjudication 26

IV. The Court Should Appoint Settlement Class Counsel and Auto Dealer Class Representatives 27

Conclusion 28

Table of Authorities

Page(s)

Cases

Amchem Prod., Inc. v. Windsor,
521 U.S. 591, 117 S. Ct. 2231, 138 L. Ed. 2d 689 (1997) 20, 21, 25

Beattie v. CenturyTel, Inc.,
511 F.3d 554 (6th Cir. 2007) 25

Carlough v. Amchem Prod., Inc.,
158 F.R.D. 314 (E.D. Pa. 1993) 20

Carson v. Am. Brands, Inc.,
450 U.S. 79, 101 S. Ct. 993, 67 L. Ed. 2d 59 (1981) 11

Date v. Sony Elecs., Inc.,
No. 07-15474, 2013 WL 3945981 (E.D. Mich. July 31, 2013) 16, 22, 23

Dick v. Sprint Commc'ns Co. L.P.,
297 F.R.D. 283 (W.D. Ky. 2014) 10, 15

Eisen v. Carlisle & Jacquelin,
417 U.S. 156, 94 S. Ct. 2140, 40 L. Ed. 2d 732 (1974) 19, 20

Exclusively Cats Veterinary Hosp. v. Anesthetic Vaporizer Servs., Inc.,
No. CIV.A. 10-10620, 2010 WL 5439737 (E.D. Mich. Dec. 27, 2010) 22

Fidel v. Farley,
534 F.3d 508 (6th Cir. 2008) 20

Girsh v. Jepson,
521 F.2d 153 (3d Cir. 1975) 10

Granada Investments, Inc. v. DWG Corp.,
962 F.2d 1203 (6th Cir. 1992) 18

Griffin v. Flagstar Bancorp, Inc.,
No. 2:10-CV-10610, 2013 WL 6511860 (E.D. Mich. Dec. 12, 2013) ..... passim

Grunin v. Int'l House of Pancakes,
513 F.2d 114 (8th Cir. 1975) 20

Hoving v. Lawyers Title Ins. Co.,
256 F.R.D. 555 (E.D. Mich. 2009) 25

In re Am. Med. Sys., Inc.,
75 F.3d 1069 (6th Cir. 1996) 23

In re Auto. Refinishing Paint Antitrust Litig.,
617 F. Supp. 2d 336 (E.D. Pa. 2007) 15

In re Auto. Refinishing Paint Antitrust Litig.,
No. MDL 1426, 2003 WL 23316645 (E.D. Pa. Sept. 5, 2003) 10

In re Cardizem CD Antitrust Litig.,
200 F.R.D. 297 (E.D. Mich. 2001).....27

In re Cardizem CD Antitrust Litig.,
218 F.R.D. 508 (E.D. Mich. 2003).....10, 12, 15, 17, 18, 27

In re Countrywide Fin. Corp. Customer Data Sec. Breach Litig.,
No. 3:08-MD-01998, 2010 WL 3341200 (W.D. Ky. Aug. 23, 2010) 15

In re Delphi Corp. Sec., Derivative & "ERISA" Litig.,
248 F.R.D. 483 (E.D. Mich. 2008).....16

In re Domestic Air Transp. Antitrust Litig.,
141 F.R.D. 534 (N.D. Ga. 1992).....20

In re Flat Glass Antitrust Litig.,
191 F.R.D. 472 (W.D. Pa. 1999) 23

In re Flonase Antitrust Litig.,
284 F.R.D. 207 (E.D. Pa. 2012) 27

In re Global Crossing Sec. & ERISA Litig.,
225 F.R.D. 436 (S.D.N.Y. 2004)).....17

In re Linerboard Antitrust Litig.,
292 F. Supp. 2d 631 (E.D. Pa. 2003).....13

In re NASDAQ Mkt.-Makers Antitrust Litig.,
169 F.R.D. 493 (S.D.N.Y. 1996) 27

In re Packaged Ice Antitrust Litig.,
No. 08-MD-01952, 2010 WL 3070161 (E.D. Mich. Aug. 2, 2010)..... 9, 17

In re Packaged Ice Antitrust Litig.,
No. 08-MD-01952, 2011 WL 717519 (E.D. Mich. Feb. 22, 2011) .....passim

In re Pressure Sensitive Labelstock Antitrust Litig.,
584 F. Supp. 2d 697 (M.D. Pa. 2008) 14

In re Prudential Sec. Inc. Ltd. Partnerships Litig.,
164 F.R.D. 362 (S.D.N.Y. 1996) 20

In re Scrap Metal Antitrust Litig.,
527 F.3d 517 (6th Cir. 2008).....25

In re Se. Milk Antitrust Litig.
No. 2:07-CV-208, 2010 WL 3521747 (E.D. Tenn. Sept. 7, 2010).....26

In re Telectronics Pacing Sys., Inc.,
137 F. Supp. 2d 985 (S.D. Ohio 2001) 9

In re Whirlpool Corp. Front-Loading Washer Products Liability Litigation,
722 F.3d 838 (6th Cir. 2013) 21, 22, 24

Int'l Union v. Ford Motor Co.,
No. 05-74730, 2006 WL 1984363 (E.D. Mich. July 13, 2006) 11, 12, 19, 21, 23

IUE-CWA v. Gen. Motors Corp.,
238 F.R.D. 583 (E.D. Mich. 2006) 11, 12

Lessard v. City of Allen Park,
372 F. Supp. 2d 1007 (E.D. Mich. 2005) 10

Levine v. United States,
137 F. Supp. 955 (Ct. Cl. 1956) 15

Marsden v. Select Med. Corp.,
246 F.R.D. 480 (E.D. Pa. 2007) 22

Mullane v. Cent. Hanover Bank & Trust Co.,
339 U.S. 306, 70 S. Ct. 652, 94 L. Ed. 865 (1950) 19, 20

New England Health Care Employees Pension Fund v. Fruit of the Loom, Inc., 234 F.R.D. 627 (W.D. Ky. 2006) 10

Paper Sys. Inc. v. Mitsubishi Corp.,
193 F.R.D. 601 (E.D. Wis. 2000) 27

Peters v. Nat'l R.R. Passenger Corp.,
966 F.2d 1483 (D.C. Cir. 1992) 19

Phillips Petroleum Co. v. Shutts,
472 U.S. 797, 105 S. Ct. 2965, 86 L. Ed. 2d 628 (1985) 19

Senter v. Gen. Motors Corp.,
532 F.2d 511 (6th Cir. 1976) 24

Shane Group, Inc. v. Blue Cross Blue Shield of Michigan,
825 F.3d 299, 309 (6th Cir. 2016) 10, 25

Sheick v. Auto. Component Carrier LLC,
No. 2:09-CV-14429, 2010 WL 4136958 (E.D. Mich. Oct. 18, 2010) ..... passim

Sheick v. Auto. Component Carrier, LLC,
No. 09-14429, 2010 WL 3070130 (E.D. Mich. Aug. 2, 2010) 24

Sprague v. Gen Motors Corp.,
133 F.3d 388 (6th Cir. 1998) 21, 22, 24

Stoetzner v. U.S. Steel Corp.,
897 F.2d 115 (3d Cir. 1990) 17

Sullivan v. DB Investments, Inc.,
667 F.3d 273 (3d Cir. 2011) 11

Taifa v. Bayh,
846 F. Supp. 723 (N.D. Ind. 1994) 18

TBK Partners, Ltd. v. W. Union Corp.,
675 F.2d 456 (2d Cir. 1982) 17

Thacker v. Chesapeake Appalachia, L.L.C.,
259 F.R.D. 262 (E.D. Ky. 2009) 21

UAW v. General Motors Corp.,
497 F.3d 615 (6th Cir. 2007) 9, 10, 12, 19

Williams v. Vukovich,
720 F.2d 909 (6th Cir. 1983) 9, 10, 15, 16

Statutes

28 U.S.C. § 1715 21

Rules

Fed. R. Civ. P. 23 ..... passim
Fed. R. Civ. P. 23(a) 21
Fed. R. Civ. P. 23(a)(1) 22
Fed. R. Civ. P. 23(a)(2) 22, 23
Fed. R. Civ. P. 23(a)(3) 23, 24
Fed. R. Civ. P. 23(a)(4) 24
Fed. R. Civ. P. 23(b) ..... passim
Fed. R. Civ. P. 23(b)(2) ..... passim
Fed. R. Civ. P. 23(b)(3) 19, 21, 25, 26, 27
Fed. R. Civ. P. 23(c)(2)(B) 19
Fed. R. Civ. P. 23(e)(1) 19
Fed. R. Civ. P. 23(g) 28

Other Authorities

4 NEWBERG ON CLASS ACTIONS (3D ED. 1992) 23
MANUAL FOR COMPLEX LITIGATION (4th) 20

Introduction

In this fourth group of settlements ("Round Four"), the Automobile Dealer Plaintiffs respectfully seek final approval of provisionally-approved settlements with 23 groups of Defendants. These settlements provide more than $86 million in cash benefits to eligible automobile dealerships. They also provide meaningful cooperation, which affords the Auto Dealers detailed information about the anti-competitive conduct of the Defendants. Each of the proposed settlements is fair, reasonable, adequate, and should be granted final approval.

The settlements provide excellent benefits in light of the conduct, damage, and litigation risks related to each of the settling Defendants. The cash components of the settlements are reasonable compromises of the liability claims in light of the volume of commerce believed to be affected by each settling Defendant's conduct. The settlements also reflect the value of the cooperation and the value of receiving money and cooperation now, which benefit the Auto Dealers' claims against any new or non-settling Defendants.

Notice of these settlements, as required by Rule 23, was provided through the notice plan previously approved by the Court. The response from the members of the settlement classes was positive. There were no objections to the settlements, attorneys' fees, litigation expenses, or the request to set aside funds for future class representative service awards. This is remarkable considering that the members of the Auto Dealer settlement classes are sophisticated businesses with their own counsel who can analyze the merits of these settlements. A small number of dealerships that opted out of the Round Two and Round Three settlements elected to opt out of Round Four. The favorable reception of these settlements provides good evidence that final approval should be granted.

The Court should certify, for settlement purposes, the settlement classes that it previously conditionally certified in the preliminary approval orders. The settlements meet the Rule 23 requirements for settlement classes and class-wide resolutions are the superior method for resolving the claims against these Defendants. In doing so, the Court should confirm the appointment of settlement class counsel and the class representatives for the Auto Dealers.

Background

I. The Administration of Prior Settlement Rounds.

The initial payments for Round One settlements were made in April 2018. (Raiter Decl.) More than 3,400 eligible dealerships submitted valid claims in Round One. (Declaration of Alan Vasquez, para. 19.) Recognizing the substantial benefits available, an additional 1,260 eligible dealerships submitted valid claims in the Round Two settlements. Id. Claim payments have now been made for the Round Three settlements approved by the Court and more than 5,000 eligible dealerships have received payments in this litigation. (Raiter Decl.)

The monetary payments in the first three rounds of settlements were substantial. Some large dealership groups have already received millions of dollars in claim payments. (Raiter Decl.) Even modest sized dealerships have received tens of thousands of dollars in prior settlement rounds. Id.

II. The Round Four Settlements Provide Substantial Benefits to Auto Dealers.

A. Cash Benefits.

In a prior series of orders, the Court preliminarily approved settlements (the "Settlements") between the Auto Dealers and a number of the Defendants and their affiliates (the "settling Defendants"). Those Settlements are now before the Court for final approval. The Settlements involve 28 of the component parts that the Auto Dealers contend were the subject of coordination, bid-rigging, and price-fixing.

For the Round Four Settlements currently before the Court, the settling Defendants and settlement amounts by part are:

Auto Parts Settlements and Settlement Funds
Automotive Parts Case	Settling Defendant	Amount Settled	Settlement Fund
Access Mechanisms	Alpha	$852,000.00	$1,092,000.00
	Valeo	$240,000.00
Air Conditioning Systems	Calsonic	$1,627,534.94	$6,895,534.94
	MAHLE Behr	$468,000.00
	Mitsubishi	$2,160,000.00
	Panasonic	$240,000.00
	Sanden	$2,400,000.00
ATF Warmers	Calsonic	$120,115.87	$120,115.87
Automotive Hoses	Toyoda Gosei	$1,714,157.85	$1,714,157.85
Automotive Lamps	Stanley	$3,889,541.05	$3,889,541.05
Automotive Steel Tubes	Maruyasu	$1,645,728.00	$5,965,728.00
	Sanoh	$2,640,000.00
	Usui	$1,680,000.00
Bearings	Nachi	$1,020,000.00	$3,420,000.00
	SKF	$2,400,000.00
Body Sealing Products	Green Tokai	$300,000.00	$8,873,258.96
	Toyoda Gosei	$8,573,258.96
Brake Hoses	Toyoda Gosei	$208,249.33	$208,249.33
Ceramic Substrates	Corning	$8,400,000.00	$8,400,000.00
Constant Velocity Joint Boots	Toyoda Gosei	$226,264.76	$226,264.76

Electronic Power Steering Assemblies	Showa	$1,305,390.12	$1,305,390.12
Exhaust Systems	Bosal	$48,000.00	$6,276,000.00
	Faurecia	$468,000.00
	Meritor	$240,000.00
	Tenneco	$5,520,000.00
Fuel Injection Systems	Keihin	$264,000.00	$1,143,072.00
	Maruyasu	$34,272.00
	Mikuni	$844,800.00
Heater Control Panels	Tokai Rika	$431,550.97	$431,550.97
HID Ballasts	Stanley	$910,458.95	$910,458.95
Ignition Coils	Delphi	$240,000.00	$480,000.00
	Toyo Denso	$240,000.00
Instrument Panel Clusters	Continental	$1,200,000.00	$1,200,000.00
Interior Trim Products	Toyoda Gosei	$1,607,208.53	$1,607,208.53
Occupant Safety Restraint Systems	TKH[1]	$16,800,000.00	$27,708,370.24
	Tokai Rika	$9,077,509.67
	Toyoda Gosei	$1,830,860.57
Power Window Switches	Toyo Denso	$1,392,000.00	$1,392,000.00
Radiators	Calsonic	$1,764,509.19	$1,764,509.19
Shock Absorbers	KYB	$9,120,000.00	$12,254,609.88
	Showa	$3,134,609.88
Side Door Latches	Brose	$720,000.00	$720,000.00
Spark Plugs	NGK	$4,020,000.00	$4,020,000.00
Steering Angles Sensors	Tokai Rika	$214,014.95	$214,014.95
Switches	Tokai Rika	$1,076,924.41	$1,076,924.41
Valve Timing Control Devices	Mikuni	$211,200.00	$211,200.00
		Total	$103, 520,160.00, including TKH bankruptcy claim

The Court granted preliminary approval to these settlements with the date of preliminary approval and case number shown below:

[1] The potential payment by TKH is a general, unsecured, non-priority claim under the TKH bankruptcy plan and the expected bankruptcy payout is expected to be considerably less than the settlement amount.

Defendant	Date Preliminary Approval Motion Granted	Case Number	Case Name / Parts
Alpha	September 24, 2019	2:16-cv-04102	Access Mechanisms
Bosal	September 24, 2019	2:16-cv-03702	Exhaust Systems
Brose	September 18, 2018	2:17-cv-04302	Door Latches
Calsonic	June 22, 2018	2:13-cv-01002 2:13-cv-02402 2:13-cv-02702	Radiators ATF Warmers Air Conditioning
Continental	March 28, 2018	2:12-cv-00202	Instrument Panel Clusters
Corning	July 18, 2019	2:16-cv-03802	Ceramic Substrates
Delphi	August 15, 2019	2:13-cv-01402	Ignition Coils
Faurecia	June 22, 2018	2:16-cv-03702	Exhaust Systems
Green Tokai	October 18, 2018	2:16-cv-03402	Body Sealings
Keihin	August 15, 2019	2:13-cv-02202	Fuel Injection Systems
KYB	April 1, 2019	2:15-cv-03302	Shock Absorbers
MAHLE Behr	October 18, 2018	2:13-cv-02702	Air Conditioning Systems
Maruyasu	February 21, 2019	2:13-cv-02202 2:16-cv-04002	Fuel Injection Systems Automotive Steel Tubes
Meritor	September 18, 2018	2:16-cv-03702	Exhaust Systems
Mikuni	August 15, 2019	2:13-cv-02202 2:13-cv-02502	Fuel Injection Systems Valve Timing Control Devices
Mitsubishi Heavy	July 18, 2019	2:13-cv-02702	Air Conditioning Systems
Nachi	September 24, 2019	2:12-cv-00502	Bearings
NGK	June 22, 2018	2:15-cv-03002	Spark Plugs
Panasonic	July 18, 2019	2:13-cv-02702	Air Conditioning Systems
Sanden	March 15, 2018	2:13-cv-02702	Air Conditioning Systems
Sanoh	May 16, 2019	2:16-cv-04002	Automotive Steel Tubes
Showa	September 24, 2019	2:13-cv-01902 2:16-cv-03302	Electronic Powered Steering Assemblies Shock Absorbers
SKF	September 24, 2019	2:12-cv-00502	Bearings
Stanley	May 6, 2019	2:13-cv-01202 2:13-cv-01702	Automotive Lamps HID Ballasts
TKH	September 24, 2019	2:12-cv-00602	Occupational Safety Restraint Systems
Tenneco	September 17, 2018	2:16-cv-03702	Exhaust Systems

Tokai Rika	March 7, 2019	2:12-cv-00402 2:12-cv-00602 2:13-cv-01302 2:13-cv-01602	Heather Control Panels Occupational Restraint Safety Systems Switches Steering Angle Sensors
Toyo Denso	June 22, 2018	2:13-cv-01402 2:16-cv-03902	Ignition Coils Power Window Switches
Toyoda Gosei	October 18, 2018	2:12-cv-00602 2:14-cv-02902 2:15-cv-03202 2:16-cv-03402 2:16-cv-03502 2:16-cv-03602	Occupational Restraint Safety Systems CVJ Boots Automotive Hoses Body Sealing Products Interior Trim Products Brake Hoses
Usui	February 27, 2018	2:16-cv-04002	Automotive Steel Tubes
Valeo	September 24, 2019	2:16-cv-04102	Access Mechanisms

The different parts and settling Defendants result in 48 different settlement classes in the Settlements (the "Settlement Classes"). The Auto Dealers negotiated the Settlements in tandem with the End Payors to allow the settling Defendants to resolve the indirect purchaser claims in the litigation. (See Raiter Decl.) As part of these negotiations, the Auto Dealers considered the particular Defendants' conduct, the amount of commerce affected by that conduct, and the value of other settlement terms, like cooperation, being offered by the settling Defendant. (Id.)

The Settlements provide more than $86 million in gross settlement funds for eligible dealerships in the Settlement Classes. The total guaranteed money recovered in Auto Dealer settlements in Round One ($58,947,900.00), Round Two ($124,730,927.00), Round Three ($115,180,799.90), and Round Four ($86,720,160.00) of this litigation is $385,579,786.00. When the $16,800,000.00 general, unsecured, non-priority claim in the TKH bankruptcy from the Round Four settlements is included, the amount recovered for Auto Dealers could total as much as $402,389,786.00. (Raiter Decl.) In the opinion of counsel for the Auto Dealers, the Settlements provide an excellent result for the Settlement Classes and are fair, reasonable, and adequate. Id.

B. Cooperation and Other Terms.

In addition to the cash payments, the settling Defendants are required to provide the Auto Dealers with various forms of cooperation that include: (1) the production of certain documents and data relevant to the ongoing claims against the non-settling Defendants; (2) interviews with representatives of the settling Defendants; (3) the assistance in understanding certain data and other information produced to Auto Dealers; and (4) facilitating the use of such data and information at trial. Those terms were set out in detail in the preliminary approval motions and the settlement agreements between the parties (the "Settlement Agreements").

II. The Notice Plan was Carried Out and Provided Adequate Notice of the Settlements.

The Settlements provide cash benefits to automobile dealerships that purchased certain parts and/or new vehicles containing those parts in jurisdictions that the Auto Dealers contend allow antitrust indirect purchasers to seek money damages: Arizona, Arkansas, California, District of Columbia, Florida, Hawaii, Illinois, Iowa, Kansas, Maine, Massachusetts, Michigan, Minnesota, Mississippi, Missouri, Nebraska, Nevada, New Hampshire, New Mexico, New York, North Carolina, North Dakota, Oregon, South Carolina, South Dakota, Tennessee, Utah, Vermont, West Virginia, and Wisconsin (the "Included States").

Through class action notice consultant Gilardi & Co., potential automobile dealer class members in the Included States were identified and were mailed a long form notice that provided information about the Round Four Settlements. (See Vasquez Decl.) The notice consultant also sent long form notices to email addresses associated with automobile dealerships that may have purchased new vehicles and parts in the Included States. (Id.) A multi-faceted notice program intended to provide the best notice practicable under the circumstances was therefore carried out and included:

- Direct mail notice to approximately 14,000 postal addresses of automobile dealerships potentially eligible for money benefits under the Settlements;
- Email notice to approximately 44,600 email addresses associated with automobile dealerships potentially eligible for money benefits under the Settlements;
- Published notice in trade magazines like Ward's AutoWorld, Automotive News, and Auto Dealer Monthly and digital media designed to target new car automobile dealerships nationwide;
- Online media efforts through outlets like Facebook and Twitter; and
- Earned media efforts through a national press release and the settlement web site, www.AutoDealerSettlement.com

(See Vasquez Decl.) The notice plan "reached" between 90 and 95 per cent of the potentially eligible automobile dealers in the Included States. (Id., para. 23)

III. The Reaction of Settlement Class Members was Positive.

The reaction to the Round Four Settlements was positive. There were no objections to any of the 48 different Settlement Classes. (See Vasquez Decl., para. 21). No class member objected to the terms of the Settlements, the notice plan, or the requested attorneys' fees. (Id.) No class member requested an opportunity to be heard at the final fairness hearing. (Id.)

Despite efforts by attorneys who solicit class members to opt-out of antitrust settlements, only a small percentage of the potential Settlement Class members from the Included States requested exclusion. Three dealership groups—represented by the same law firms—elected to opt out. (Vasquez Decl., para. 20 & Ex. 7). Those groups are believed to operate at most 168 new vehicle dealerships at locations in the Included States. (Raiter Decl.)[2] Even with these requests for exclusion, nearly 99 per cent of the dealerships in the Included States elected to remain in the Settlement Classes. (Id.)

Legal Standard

The Sixth Circuit and courts in the Eastern District of Michigan "have recognized that the law favors the settlement of class action lawsuits." Griffin v. Flagstar Bankcorp, Inc., No. 2:10-cv-10610, 2013 WL 6511860, at *2 (E.D. Mich. Dec. 12, 2013); see also In re Packaged Ice Antitrust Litig., No. 08-MD-01952, 2011 WL 717519, at *7 (E.D. Mich. Feb. 22, 2011); UAW v. General Motors Corp., 497 F.3d 615, 632 (6th Cir. 2007) (federal policy favors settlement of class actions).

To be given final approval, a class action settlement must be "fair, reasonable, and adequate." Sheick v. Auto. Component Carrier LLC, No. 2:09-CV-14429, 2010 WL 4136958, at *14 (E.D. Mich. Oct. 18, 2010); see also In re Packaged Ice, 2011 WL 717519, at *8. "There are three steps which must be taken by the court in order to approve a settlement: (1) the court must preliminarily approve the proposed settlement, (2) members of the class must be given notice of the proposed settlement, and (3) after holding a hearing, the court must give its final approval of the settlement." In re Telectronics Pacing Sys., Inc., 137 F. Supp. 2d 985, 1026 (S.D. Ohio 2001) (citing Williams v. Vukovich, 720 F.2d 909, 921 (6th Cir. 1983)); In re Packaged Ice Antitrust Litig., No. 08-MD-01952, 2010 WL 3070161, at *4 (E.D. Mich. Aug. 2, 2010).

[2] Many of the dealerships requesting exclusion have the same address. It is therefore not clear exactly how many dealership locations have requested exclusion but the number totals 168 or less in the Included States. See Vasquez Decl., Exhibit 7.

The court considers whether the proposed settlement is "fair, adequate, and reasonable to those it affects and whether it is in the public interest." Lessard v. City of Allen Park, 372 F. Supp. 2d 1007, 1009 (E.D. Mich. 2005) (citing Williams, 720 F.2d at 921–23). This determination requires consideration of "whether the interests of the class as a whole are better served if the litigation is resolved by the settlement rather than pursued." In re Cardizem CD Antitrust Litig., 218 F.R.D. 508, 522 (E.D. Mich. 2003) (citation omitted); Sheick, 2010 WL 4136958, at *14–15.

The court has broad discretion when approving a class action settlement. UAW, 497 F.3d at 636; Girsh v. Jepson, 521 F.2d 153, 156 (3d Cir. 1975). In exercising this discretion, courts give considerable weight and deference to the view of experienced counsel as to the merits of an arm's-length settlement. Dick v. Sprint Commc'ns Co. L.P., 297 F.R.D. 283, 297 (W.D. Ky. 2014) ("The Court defers to the judgment of the experienced counsel associated with the case, who have assessed the relative risks and benefits of litigation"). Indeed, a "presumption of fairness, adequacy, and reasonableness may attach to a class settlement reached in arm's length negotiations between experienced, capable counsel after meaningful discovery." New England Health Care Employees Pension Fund v. Fruit of the Loom, Inc., 234 F.R.D. 627, 632 (W.D. Ky. 2006) (citations omitted); see also In re Auto. Refinishing Paint Antitrust Litig., No. MDL 1426, 2003 WL 23316645, at *6 (E.D. Pa. Sept. 5, 2003).

The court must "carefully scrutinize" whether the settlement is fair, reasonable, and adequate and whether the named plaintiffs and their counsel have met their fiduciary obligations to the class. Shane Group, Inc. v. Blue Cross Blue Shield of Michigan, 825 F.3d 299, 309 (6th Cir. 2016). Because a settlement represents an exercise of judgment by the negotiating parties, a judge reviewing a settlement will not "substitute his or her judgment for that of the litigants and their counsel," IUE-CWA v. General Motors Corp., 238 F.R.D. 583, 593 (E.D. Mich. 2006), or "decide the merits of the case or resolve unsettled legal questions." Carson v. Am. Brands, Inc., 450 U.S. 79, 88 n. 14 (1981). Because of the uncertainties and risks inherent in any litigation, courts take a common sense approach and approve class action settlements if they fall within a "range of reasonableness." Sheick, 2010 WL 4136958, at *15 (citation omitted). The court should guard against demanding too large a settlement, because a settlement "represents a compromise in which the highest hopes for recovery are yielded in exchange for certainty and resolution." Int'l Union, United Auto., Aerospace & Agric. Implement Workers of Am. v. Ford Motor Co., No. 05-74730, 2006 WL 1984363, at *23 (E.D. Mich. July 13, 2006) (citation omitted); accord Sullivan v. DB Investments, Inc., 667 F.3d 273, 324 (3d Cir. 2011).

Argument

I. The Settlements are Fair, Reasonable, and Adequate and Should be Given Final Approval.

The Round Four Auto Dealer settlements before the Court meet the criteria required for final approval under Rule 23 of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure. They provide meaningful benefits and were reached after negotiations between experienced counsel who were armed with sufficient background about the merits and defenses to the claims asserted. The settlements reflect a reasonable compromise in light of the liability, damages, and procedural uncertainties facing both the Auto Dealers and the settling Defendants.

Courts in the Sixth Circuit consider a number of factors when determining whether a settlement should be granted final approval: (1) the likelihood of success on the merits weighed against the amount and form of the relief offered in the settlement; (2) the complexity, expense, and likely duration of further litigation; (3) the opinions of class counsel and class representatives; (4) the amount of discovery engaged in by the parties; (5) the reaction of absent class members; (6) the risk of fraud or collusion; and (7) the public interest. Packaged Ice, 2011 WL 717519, at *8; see also UAW, 497 F.3d at 631; Griffin, 2013 WL 6511860, at *3; Cardizem, 218 F.R.D. at 522. No single factor is determinative and the court may weigh each factor based on the circumstances of the case. Int'l Union, 2006 WL 1984363, at *21. The court may "choose to consider only those factors that are relevant to the settlement at hand." Id. at *22; see also Grenada Invs., Inc. v. DWG Corp., 962 F.2d 1203, 1205–06 (6th Cir. 1992) (holding that a district court enjoys wide discretion in assessing the weight and applicability of factors).

A. The Likelihood of the Auto Dealers' Success on the Merits Weighed Against the Relief Offered in the Settlements Supports Approval.

The court assesses class action settlements "with regard to a 'range of reasonableness,' which 'recognizes the uncertainties of law and fact in any particular case and the concomitant risks and costs inherent in taking any litigation to completion.'" Sheick, 2010 WL 4136958, at *15 (quoting IUE-CWA, 238 F.R.D. at 594; Int'l Union, 2006 WL 1984363, at *21). The fairness of such a settlement "turns in large part on the bona fides of the parties' legal dispute." UAW, 497 F.3d at 6331. When considering the likelihood of plaintiffs' success on the merits of the litigation, the ultimate question is whether the interests of the class as a whole are better served if the litigation is resolved by settlement rather than pursued. Sheick, 2010 WL 4136958, at *16 (citing IUE-CWA, 238 F.R.D. at 595).

The Auto Dealers believed they would prevail in these cases. But they also recognized that success is not guaranteed in any complex litigation. Although there were illegal conspiracies to coordinate bidding and other activities on component parts, the Defendants have vigorously defended these cases. Some Defendants have claimed that the Auto Dealers could prove that the bid rigging caused them an antitrust injury. Others previewed arguments about class certification, which they contended should not be granted in the Auto Dealer cases. The Settlements reflect both the strengths of the Auto Dealers' claims and the risk that the settling Defendants may prevail on some of their arguments.

The settling Defendants are represented by experienced and competent counsel and were prepared to defend these cases through trial. While there is risk in any litigation, antitrust class actions are inherently high-stakes and high-risk. Auto Dealers have been optimistic about the outcome of these cases, but must acknowledge that the settling Defendants could prevail on certain legal or factual arguments and by doing so, could reduce or eliminate potential recoveries for the Auto Dealers. The certainty and substantial benefits provided by the Settlements support a finding that they were reasonable and adequate.

For some of these parts, there have been only a few settlements, making the Round Four settlements important. Packaged Ice, 2011 WL 717519, at *10; In re Linerboard Antitrust Litig., 292 F. Supp. 2d 631, 643 (E.D. Pa. 2003). The cooperation that the settling Defendants have agreed to provide is a "substantial benefit" to the class and "strongly militates toward approval" of the Settlements. Linerboard, 292 F. Supp. 2d at 643. This cooperation will enhance and strengthen the Auto Dealers' prosecution of claims against any Defendants who continue to litigate these cases. Linerboard, 292 F. Supp. 2d at 643; Packaged Ice, 2011 WL 717519, at *10 (noting that cooperation by the settlement defendant "has already been beneficial to the Plaintiffs in their continued prosecution of their claims against the non-settling Defendants"); In re Pressure Sensitive Labelstock Antitrust Litig., 584 F. Supp. 2d 697, 702 (M.D. Pa. 2008) ("the benefit of obtaining the cooperation of the Settling Defendants tend to offset the fact that they would be able to withstand a larger judgment.").

The more than $86 million being made available to eligible dealership in the Round Four settlements is a reasonable compromise of the disputed claims against the settling Defendants. As previously noted, the Defendants contend that although there may have been coordination of bids, that coordination did not result in artificially inflated prices for the parts at issue. The Defendants have also argued that the Auto Dealers passed any price increases on to consumers. Finally, some of the Defendants focus on the relatively limited scope of bid coordination on some parts and the corresponding amount of affected commerce, which they contend was not significant.

For each of these Settlements, counsel for the Auto Dealers analyzed, among other things, the strength of the liability claims against the particular Defendant, the volume of affected commerce, the value of the particular cooperation being provided, and the range of damage that could be proven at trial against the Defendant. The money being paid and the cooperation for future claims provide substantial value in light of the risks of continuing the litigation. Interim Co-Lead Class Counsel for the Auto Dealers believe that the Settlements represent an excellent recovery for Auto Dealers. Weighing the benefits of the Settlements against the risks of continued litigation tilts the scale heavily toward final approval. See Griffin, 2013 WL 6511860, at *4; Packaged Ice, 2011 WL 717519, at *9.

B. The Complexity, Expense, and Likely Duration of Continued Litigation Favor Final Approval.

"Settlement should represent 'a compromise which has been reached after the risks, expense and delay of further litigation have been assessed.'" Cardizem, 218 F.R.D. at 523 (quoting Williams, 720 F.2d at 922); Levine v. United States, 137 F. Supp. 955, 1013 (Ct. Cl. 1956) (settlement avoid the costs, delays, and multitude of other problems associated with class actions, which are "inherently complex."); Cardizem, 218 F.R.D. at 533 ("Moreover, the complexity of this case cannot be overstated. Antitrust class actions are inherently complex . . . .").

The Court has had substantial opportunity to consider the claims and defenses in this litigation and knows that complex antitrust litigation of this scope has many inherent risks that settlements extinguish. These cases would likely continue for even more years, at great additional expense, if they were litigated through an adversarial judgement and any appeals. The fact that the Auto Dealers achieved substantial recoveries, which eliminate risk while ensuring substantial payments, supports final approval of the Settlements.

C. The Judgment of Experienced Counsel Who Have Evaluated the Strength of the Claims, Defenses, and Risks Supports Approval.

The Settlements were reached by experienced counsel after arm's-length negotiations and are therefore provided deference. Dick, 297 F.R.D. at 296 ("Giving substantial weight to the recommendations experienced attorneys, who have engaged in arms-length settlement negotiations, is appropriate . . . .") (quoting In re Countrywide Fin. Corp. Customer Data Sec. Breach Litig., No. 3:08-MD01998, 2010 WL 3341200, at *4 (W.D. Ky. Aug. 23, 2010)); see also In re Auto. Refinishing Paint Antitrust Litig., 617 F. Supp. 2d 336, 341 (E.D. Pa. 2007).

In deciding whether a proposed settlement warrants approval, "[t]he Court should also consider the judgment counsel and the presence of good faith bargaining between the contending parties." In re Delphi Corp. Sec., Deriv. & "ERISA" Litig., 248 F.R.D. 483, 498 (E.D. Mich. 2008). Counsel's judgment "that settlement is in the best interest of the class 'is entitled to significant weight, and supports the fairness of the class settlement.'" Packaged Ice, 2011 WL 717519, at *11 (quoting Sheick, 2010 WL 4136958, at *18). "In the absence of evidence of collusion (there is none here) this Court 'should defer to the judgment of experienced counsel who has competently evaluated the strength of his proofs.'" Date v. Sony Electronics, Inc., No. 07-15474, 2013 WL 3945981, at *9 (E.D. Mich. July 31, 2013) (quoting Williams, 720 F.2d at 922–23).

Interim Co-Lead Counsel for the Auto Dealers are experienced in handling class action antitrust and other complex litigation. They have represented the interests of Auto Dealers from the inception of this litigation and negotiated the Settlements at arms' length with well-respected and experienced counsel for the settling Defendants. Interim Co-Lead Counsel believe that the Settlements each provide an excellent result in light of the circumstances of each settling Defendant's conduct and potential liability. (Raiter Decl.)

The amount of discovery in the cases involved in the Settlements varied, but in each case counsel for the Auto Dealers was armed with important information about the conspiracies through review of documents produced to the Department of Justice, proffers of information by cooperating Defendants, and/or discovery from this litigation. The amount of discovery completed is a factor to be considered in the settlement approval process, but there is no baseline required to satisfy this factor. In re Packaged Ice Antitrust Litig., 2010 WL 3070161, at *5-6. The "question is whether the parties had adequate information about their claims." Griffin, 2013 WL 6511860, at *4 (quoting In re Global Crossing Sec. & ERISA Litig., 225 F.R.D. 436, 458 (S.D.N.Y. 2004)).

This litigation has been pending for more than seven years. Much has been done and the parties are well-acquainted with the facts, claims, and defenses. The discovery and available information allowed Interim Co-Lead Counsel for the Auto Dealers to evaluate the strengths and weaknesses of the claims and defenses and to evaluate the benefits of the Settlements. These are not settlements reached without substantial discovery and investigation. Interim Co-Lead Counsel for the Auto Dealers believe that the Settlements are fair, reasonable, and in the best interests of Auto Dealers who purchased new vehicles containing the parts at issue in the Settlements. (Raiter Decl.) The opinion of counsel supports final approval of the Settlements.

D. Class Member Reaction.

There were no objections to any of the settlements. This is remarkable because there are often at least a few objections to class settlements. "A certain number of opt-outs and objections are to be expected in a class action. If only a small number are received, that fact can be viewed as indicative of the adequacy of the settlement." Cardizem, 218 F.R.D. at 527. This reaction from the members of the settlement classes strongly supports the adequacy of the settlements. Stoetzner v. U.S. Steel Corp., 897 F.2d 115, 118–19 (3d Cir. 1990) (holding that objections by about 10% of class "strongly favors settlement"); see also TBK Partners, Ltd. v. W. Union Corp., 675 F.2d 456, 458, 462 (2d Cir. 1982) (approving settlement despite objections of large number of class); Taifa v. Bayh, 846 F. Supp. 723, 728 (N.D. Ind. 1994) (approving class settlement despite objections from more than 10% of class).

Notice of these settlements was sent by direct mail to approximately 14,000 addresses and 44,600 email addresses connected to new car dealerships in the Included States. (Vasquez Decl., para. 11) These dealerships are sophisticated businesses with their own attorneys (inside or outside counsel) who were well-equipped to evaluate the reasonableness of the Round Four settlements. The lack of objections speaks loudly about the benefits of the Settlements. The same dealership groups that opted out of the Round Two and Round Three settlements elected to opt out again. (Id., para. 20 & Ex. 7). The absence of any objections and the small number of opt-outs supports the adequacy of the Settlements.

E. The Public Interest Supports Granting Final Approval to the Settlements.

"[T]here is a strong public interest in encouraging settlement of complex litigation and class action suits because they are 'notoriously difficult and unpredictable' and settlement conserves judicial resources." Cardizem, 218 F.R.D. at 530 (quoting Granada, 962 F.2d at 1205); see aslo Griffin, 2013 WL 6511860, at *5; Packaged Ice, 2011 WL 717519, at *12. In light of the conduct at issue and guilty pleas related to the claims here, there is no countervailing public interest that provides a reason to disapprove the Settlements. Griffin, 2013 WL 6511860, at *5. This factor also supports final approval.

F. The Settlements are not the Product of Collusion.

There is a presumption that settlement negotiations were conducted in good faith and that the resulting agreement was reached without collusion unless there is contrary evidence. Griffin, 2013 WL 6511860, at *3; Packaged Ice, 2011 WL 717519, at *12; Int'l Union,, 2006 WL 1984363, at *26; Sheick, 2010 WL 4136958, at *19–20. The Settlements here were reached after adversarial litigation and often contentious discovery. The negotiations leading to the Settlements were entirely arms' length and often took many months of settlement proposal exchanges and, in some cases, the involvement of mediators. The Settlements were negotiated in good faith with counsel on each side zealously representing the interests of their clients.

II. Notice of the Settlements was Proper Under Rule 23 and Met Due Process Requirements.

Fed. R. Civ. P. 23(e)(1) provides that "[t]he court must direct notice in a reasonable manner to all class members who would be bound by the [proposed settlement]." For Rule 23(b)(3) actions, "the court must direct to class members the best notice that is practicable under the circumstances, including individual notice to all members who can be identified through reasonable effort." Fed. R. Civ. P. 23(c)(2)(B).

The purpose of notice in a class action is to "afford members of the class due-process which, in the context of the Rule 23(b)(3) class action, guarantees them the opportunity to be excluded from the class action and not be bound by any subsequent judgment." Peters v. Nat'l R.R. Passenger Corp., 966 F.2d 1483, 1486 (D.C. Cir. 1992) (citing Eisen v. Carlisle & Jacquelin, 417 U.S. 156, 173–74, 94 S. Ct. 2140, 40 L. Ed. 2d 732 (1974)). Due process requires that absent class members be provided the best notice practicable, reasonably calculated to apprise them of the pendency of the action, and affording them the opportunity to opt out or object. Phillips Petroleum Co. v. Shutts, 472 U.S. 797, 812, 105 S. Ct. 2965, 86 L. Ed. 2d 628 (1985); see also UAW, 497 F.3d at 629 (quoting Mullane v. Cent. Hanover Bank & Trust Co., 339 U.S. 306, 314, 70 S. Ct. 652, 94 L. Ed. 865 (1950)).

The "best notice practicable" does not mean actual notice, nor does it require individual mailed notice where there are no readily available records of class members' individual addresses or where it is otherwise impracticable. Fidel v. Farley, 534 F.3d 508, 514 (6th Cir. 2008); In re Domestic Air Transp. Antitrust Litig., 141 F.R.D. 534, 548–53 (N.D. Ga. 1992); Manual for Complex Litigation (4th) § 21.311 ("Manual"). The mechanics of the notice process "are left to the discretion of the court subject only to the broad 'reasonableness' standard imposed by due-process." Grunin v. Int'l House of Pancakes, 513 F.2d 114, 121 (8th Cir. 1975). Each class member need not receive actual notice for the due-process standard to be met, "so long as class counsel acted reasonably in selecting means likely to inform persons affected." In re Prudential Sec. Inc. Ltd. P'ships Litig., 164 F.R.D. 362, 368 (S.D.N.Y. 1996).

Where names and addresses of known or potential class members are reasonably available, direct-mail notice should be provided. See, e.g., Eisen, 417 U.S. at 175–76; Manual, § 21.311. If the names and addresses of class members cannot be determined by reasonable efforts, notice by publication is sufficient to satisfy the requirements of the due-process clause and Rule 23. Mullane, 339 U.S. at 317–18; Carlough v. Amchem Prod., Inc., 158 F.R.D. 314, 325 (E.D. Pa. 1993).

A. There Were No Objections to the Notice Content or Plan.

As with the prior rounds of Auto Dealer settlements, no member of the Settlement Class objected to or criticized the notice program. (See Vasquez Decl., para. 21). The program was primarily a direct mail program that targeted class members and was supplemented by published notice in industry-specific publications. The notice program easily satisfied the requirements of Rule 23 and due process. Packaged Ice, 2011 WL 717519, at *5; Sheick, 2010 WL 4136958, at *15.

B. Timing of CAFA Notices and Final Approval Orders.

Each of the Defendant groups involved in the Settlements have provided the notices to public officials required by 28 U.S.C. § 1715. (Raiter Decl.) None of the state attorney generals have responded or requested an opportunity to be heard about the terms of the settlements. Id.

III. Certification of Settlement Classes is Appropriate.

In its preliminary approval orders, the Court found that Rule 23's requirements were met and provisionally certified, for purposes of settlement only, Settlement Classes relating to the parties and parts covered by the Settlements. It is well-established that a class may be certified for purposes of settlement. See, e.g., Amchem Prod., Inc. v. Windsor, 521 U.S. 591, 117 S. Ct. 2231, 138 L. Ed. 2d 689 (1997); Int'l Union,, 2006 WL 1984363, at *3, *18; Cardizem, 218 F.R.D. at 516–19; Thacker v. Chesapeake Appalachia, L.L.C., 259 F.R.D. 262, 266–70 (E.D. Ky. 2009). The Settlements meet the requirements of Rule 23(a) as well as the requirements of Rule 23(b)(2) and 23(b)(3) for settlement purposes.

A. The Auto Dealer Settlement Classes Satisfy Rule 23(a).

Certification of a class requires meeting the requirements of Fed. R. Civ. P. 23(a) and one subsection of Rule 23(b). In re Whirlpool Corp. Front-Loading Washer Products Liability Litigation, 722 F.3d 838, 850-51 (6th Cir. 2013); Griffin, 2013 WL 6511860, at *5; Int'l Union, 2006 WL 1984363, at *19 (citing Sprague v. Gen Motors Corp., 133 F.3d 388, 397 (6th Cir. 1998)). Certification is appropriate under Rule 23(a) if: (1) the class is so numerous that joinder of all members is impracticable; (2) there are questions of law and fact common to the class; (3) the claims or defenses of the representative parties are typical of the claims or defenses of the class; and (4) the representative parties will fairly and adequately protect the interest of the class. Griffin, 2013 WL 6511860, at *5; Date, 2013 WL 3945981, at *3.

1. The Settlement Classes are Numerous.

Class certification under Rule 23(a)(1) is appropriate where a class contains so many members that joinder of all would be "impracticable." Fed. R. Civ. P. 23(a)(1). There is no strict numerical test to satisfy the numerosity requirement, and the most important factor is whether joinder of all the parties would be impracticable. Whirlpool, 722 F.3d at 852 (noting that "substantial" number of class members satisfies numerosity). Numerosity is determined by the number and geographic location of class members. Marsden v. Select Med. Corp., 246 F.R.D. 480, 484 (E.D. Pa. 2007). The notice for these Settlements was mailed to approximately 14,000 automobile dealership entities and emailed to 44,600 addresses, geographically dispersed throughout the United States. (See Vasquez Decl.) There are thousands of Settlement Class members and joinder of all of them would be impracticable, satisfying Rule 23(a)(1).

2. Common Questions of Law and Fact Exist.

Fed. R. Civ. P. 23(a)(2) requires that a proposed class action involve "questions of law or fact common to the class." "We start from the premise that there need be only one common question to certify a class," Whirlpool, 722 F.3d at 853, and "the resolution of [that common issue] will advance the litigation." Sprague, 133 F.3d at 397; accord Exclusively Cats Veterinary Hosp. v. Anesthetic Vaporizer Servs., Inc., 2010 WL 5439737, at *3 (E.D. Mich. Dec. 27, 2010) ("[T]here need be only a single issue common to all members of the class") (citing In re Am. Med. Sys., Inc., 75 F.3d 1069, 1080 (6th Cir. 1996).

"[A]llegations concerning the existence, scope and efficacy of an alleged conspiracy present questions adequately common to class members to satisfy the commonality requirement." In re Flat Glass Antitrust Litig., 191 F.R.D. 472, 478 (W.D. Pa. 1999) (citing 4 NEWBERG ON CLASS ACTIONS §§ 18.05-15 (3d ed. 1992)). Whether the settling Defendants entered into illegal agreements to rig bids and artificially fix prices of automobile component parts presents questions common to all members of the Settlement Classes. Packaged Ice, 2011 WL 717519, at *6 (holding that the commonality was satisfied by questions concerning "whether Defendants conspired to allocate territories and customers and whether their unlawful conduct caused Packaged Ice prices to be higher than they would have been absent such illegal behavior and whether the conduct caused injury to the Class Members"). "Indeed, consideration of the conspiracy issue would, of necessity focus on defendants' conduct, not the individual conduct of the putative class members." Flat Glass, 191 F.R.D. at 484.

Because there are common legal and factual questions related to potential liability, the commonality requirement of Rule 23(a)(2) is met for the Settlement Classes.

3. Auto Dealer Plaintiffs' Claims are Typical of Those of the Settlement Class.

Rule 23(a)(3) requires that "the claims or defenses of the representative parties are typical of the claims or defenses of the class." Fed. R. Civ. P. 23(a)(3). "If there is a strong similarity of legal theories, the requirement [of typicality] is met, even if there are factual distinctions among named and absent class members." Griffin, 2013 WL 6511860, at *6 (quoting Int'l Union, 2006 WL 1984363, at * 19); Date, 2013 WL 3945981, at *3. "Typicality is met if the class members' claims are "'fairly encompassed by the named plaintiffs' claims.'" Whirlpool, 722 F.3d at 852 (quoting Sprague, 133 F.3d at 399).

The claims of the named plaintiff Auto Dealers arise from the same course of conduct as the claims of the members of the Settlement Classes. Rule 23(a)(3)'s typicality requirement is satisfied for the Settlement Classes.

4. Auto Dealer Class Representatives and Their Counsel Have Fairly and Adequately Represented the Interests of the Class Members.

Rule 23(a)(4) requires that the class representative fairly and adequately protect the interests of the class. "There are two criteria for determining adequacy of representation: (1) the proposed class representative must have common interests with the other class members; and (2) it must appear that the class representative will vigorously prosecute the interests of the class through qualified counsel." Sheick v. Auto. Component Carrier, LLC, 2010 WL 3070130, at *3 (E.D. Mich. Oct. 18, 2010) (quoting Senter v. Gen. Motors Copr., 532 F.2d 511, 524-25 (6th Cir. 1976)). These requirements are met.

The interests of the Auto Dealer representatives are the same as those of other Settlement Class members. These Plaintiffs are indirect purchasers of the parts and new vehicles at issue in this litigation and they, like the other Settlement Class members, claim that they were injured as a result of the alleged conspiracies and seek to prove that the settling Defendants violated antitrust and consumer laws. The named Auto Dealer Plaintiffs have the same interests as those of the members of the Settlement Classes. The Auto Dealer Plaintiffs have retained qualified and experienced counsel to pursue these cases. Counsel for the Auto Dealers have vigorously pursued this litigation and will continue to represent the interests of Auto Dealers. Adequate representation under Rule 23(a)(4) is therefore satisfied.

The Settlements do not provide preferential treatment to the named representatives. Under the Plans of Allocation, all similarly situated dealerships in the Included States will receive the same amount of money—calculated based on the number of type of vehicles and parts they purchased—regardless of whether they are named plaintiffs or absent class members. The named plaintiffs' interests were and are aligned with those of the absent class members. See, e.g., Shane, 825 F.3d at 309.

B. Automobile Dealer Plaintiffs' Claims Satisfy the Prerequisites of Rule 23(b)(3) for Settlement Purposes.

In addition to satisfying Rule 23(a), plaintiffs must show that the class falls under at least one of the three subsections of Rule 23(b). The Settlement Classes qualify under Rule 23(b)(3), which authorizes class certification if "questions of law or fact common to the members of the class predominate over any questions affecting only individual members, and . . . a class action is superior to other available methods for the fair and efficient adjudication of the controversy." In re Scrap Metal Antitrust Litig., 527 F.3d 517, 535 (6th Cir. 2008); Hoving v. Lawyers Title Ins. Co., 256 F.R.D. 555, 566 (E.D. Mich. 2009).

1. Common Legal and Factual Questions Predominate.

The Rule 23(b)(3) requirement that common issues predominate insures that a proposed class is "sufficiently cohesive to warrant certification." Amchem Products, Inc., 521 U.S. at 623. The predominance requirement is met where "the issues in the class action that are subject to generalized proof, and thus applicable to the class as a whole, . . . predominate over those issues that are subject only to individualized proof." Beattie v. CenturyTel, Inc., 511 F.3d 554, 564 (6th Cir. 2007) (citation omitted).

Horizontal price-fixing cases are particularly well-suited for class certification because proof of the conspiracy presents a common, predominating question. Scrap Metal, 527 F.3d 517, 535 (6th Cir. 2008); Packaged Ice, 2011 WL 717519, at *6; In re Se. Milk Antitrust Litig., No. 2:07-CV-208, 2010 WL 3521747, at *5, 9–11 (E.D. Tenn. Sept. 7, 2010). Affirming class certification in Scrap Metal, the Sixth Circuit observed that the "district court found that the 'allegations of price-fixing and market allocation . . . will not vary among class members' . . . Accordingly, the court found that the 'fact of damages' was a question common to the class even if the amount of damages sustained by each individual class member varied." 527 F.3d at 535 (emphasis in original).

Here, the same set of core operative facts and theory of liability apply in each of the Settlements. Whether the settling Defendants entered into illegal agreements presents questions common to all Settlement Class members. See, e.g., Packaged Ice, 2011 WL 717519, at *6. If Automobile Dealer Plaintiffs and the other Settlement Class members brought individual actions, they would each be required to prove the same claims in order to establish liability. For settlement purposes, common issues predominate.

2. Class Action Settlements Are Superior to Other Methods of Adjudication.

Rule 23(b)(3) lists factors to be considered in determining the superiority of proceeding as a class action compared to individual methods of adjudication: (1) the interests of the members of the class in individually controlling the prosecution of separate actions; (2) the extent and nature of other pending litigation about the controversy by members of the class; (3) the desirability of concentrating the litigation in a particular forum; and (4) the difficulties likely to be encountered in management of the class action. Fed. R. Civ. P. 23(b)(3).

The Auto Parts litigation has been centralized in this Court and the only other known individual cases asserted against the Settling Defendants are those claims brought by the dealerships who elected to opt out of the prior settlements. Thus, consideration of factors (1) - (3) demonstrates the superiority of these Settlement Classes. The fourth Rule 23(b)(3) factor is not relevant in a settlement-only class because the potential difficulties in managing a trial of the case is extinguished by the settlement. Cardizem, 218 F.R.D. at 517.

In addition, "[g]iven the complexities of antitrust litigation, it is not obvious that all members of the class could economically bring suits on their own." In re Cardizem CD Antitrust Litig., 200 F.R.D. 297, 325 (E.D. Mich. 2001) (quoting Paper Sys. Inc. v. Mitsubishi Corp., 193 F.R.D. 601, 605 (E.D. Wis. 2000)). Certifying the Settlement Classes will conserve judicial and private resources and will provide a single outcome that is binding on all Settlement Class members. Cardizem, 200 F.R.D. at 351. The alternatives to these Settlements are a multiplicity of separate lawsuits or no recourse for many class members for whom the cost of pursuing individual litigation would be prohibitive. See In re Flonase Antitrust Litig., 284 F.R.D. 207, 234 (E.D. Pa. 2012); In re NASDAQ Mkt.-Makers Antitrust Litig., 169 F.R.D. 493, 527 (S.D.N.Y. 1996). The certification of Settlement Classes is superior to the alternatives in this litigation.

IV. The Court Should Appoint Settlement Class Counsel and Auto Dealer Class Representatives.

At preliminary approval, the Court provisionally appointed Interim Co-Lead Counsel for the Auto Dealers as class settlement counsel and appointed the named Auto Dealer representatives in those cases as the representatives of the provisionally certified class settlements. As part of the final approval process, the Court should appoint Cuneo Gilbert & LaDuca, LLP, Barrett Law Group, P.A., and Larson · King, LLP as Settlement Class Counsel.

These firms have represented the Auto Dealers throughout the litigation and satisfy the requirements of Rule 23(g). The Court should also appoint the Automobile Dealer Plaintiffs named in the operative complaints in the Settlements as class representatives of their respective Settlement Classes.

Conclusion

For the foregoing reasons, Automobile Dealer Plaintiffs respectfully request that the Court: (1) grant final approval of the Round Four Settlements, (2) certify the Settlement Classes for purposes of settlement, and (3) enter judgment in each of the relevant parts cases.

Dated: December 6, 2019

By: /s/ Gerard V. Mantese
Gerard V. Mantese (P34424)
MANTESE HONIGMAN, P.C.
1361 E. Big Beaver Road
Troy, MI 48083
Telephone: (248) 457-9200 Ext. 203 Facsimile: (248) 457-9201
gmantese@manteselaw.com

Interim Liaison Counsel for the Automobile Dealer Plaintiffs

Jonathan W. Cuneo
CUNEO GILBERT & LADUCA, LLP
4725 Wisconsin Ave., NW
Suite 200
Washington, DC 20016
Telephone: (202) 789-3960
Facsimile: (202) 789-1813
jonc@cuneolaw.com

Don Barrett
BARRETT LAW GROUP, P.A.
P.O. Box 927
404 Court Square
Lexington, MS 39095
Telephone: (662) 834-2488
Facsimile: (662)834.2628
dbarrett@barrettlawgroup.com

Shawn M. Raiter
LARSON KING, LLP
2800 Wells Fargo Place
30 East Seventh Street
St. Paul, MN 55101
Telephone: (651) 312-6500
Facsimile: (651) 312-6618
sraiter@larsonking.com

Interim Co-Lead Counsel for the Automobile Dealer Plaintiffs

CERTIFICATE OF SERVICE

I, Gerard V. Mantese, hereby certify that I caused a true and correct copy of Auto Dealers' Memorandum in Support of Motion for Final Approval of Settlements (Round Four) With Certain Defendants and for Certification of Settlement Classes to be served via e-mail upon all registered counsel of record via the Court's CM/ECF system on December 6, 2019

/s/Gerard V. Mantese
Gerard V. Mantese

TAB 50A

United States District Court
Northern District of California

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT

NORTHERN DISTRICT OF CALIFORNIA

DONALD R. CAMERON, ET. AL.,

Plaintiffs,

v.

APPLE INC.,

Defendant.

CASE NO. 19-cv-3074-YGR

ORDER:
GRANTING MOTION FOR FINAL APPROVAL OF CLASS ACTION SETTLEMENT; GRANTING IN PART AND DENYING IN PART MOTION FOR ATTORNEY'S FEES, COSTS, AND SERVICE AWARD; AND

JUDGMENT

Re: Dkt. Nos. 465 and 471

The Court previously granted plaintiffs' Motion for Preliminary Approval of the Class Action Settlement in this matter on November 16, 2021. (Order Granting Preliminary Approval of Class Action Settlement ("Preliminary Approval Order"), Dkt. No 453.) As directed by the Preliminary Approval Order, on February 14, 2022, plaintiffs filed their Motion for Attorney's Fees, Costs, and Service Award. (Dkt. No. 465.) Two weeks later, on February 28, 2022, Apple filed a response to plaintiffs' motion, objecting to the amount of attorney fee's as high. (Dkt. No. 467.)

On March 25, 2022, Steven Wytyshyn, a U.S. Developer, Founder, & CEO of Cosmosent Labs, Inc., filed an objection to the settlement. (DKt. No. 469.) On April 29, 2022, plaintiffs filed their Motion for Final Settlement Approval and a response to Mr. Wytyshyn's objection. (Dkt. No. 471.) The Court held a hearing on June 7, 2022 on the pending motions.

Having considered the motion briefing, the terms of the Settlement Agreement, the arguments of counsel, and the other matters on file in this action, the Court GRANTS the Motion for Final Approval. In general, the Court finds the settlement fair, adequate, and reasonable. The provisional appointments of the class representatives and class counsel are confirmed. The Motion for Attorney's fees, Costs, and Service Award is GRANTED IN PART AND DENIED IN PART. The Court ORDERS that class counsel shall be paid $26,000,000 in attorney's fees and $3,500,000 in litigation costs and that named plaintiffs Donald Cameron and Pure Sweat Basketball, Inc., shall each be paid a $5,000 incentive award.

I. BACKGROUND

Plaintiffs filed their initial class action complaint on June 4, 2019, and their consolidated amended complaint on September 30, 2019, against defendant Apple, Inc. alleging that Apple willfully acquired and maintained monopoly power, or attempted to gain monopoly power, by refusing to allow iOS device users to purchase iOS apps and in-app products other than through its own App Store. Plaintiffs' amended complaint alleges the following claims against Apple: (1) violation of the Sherman Act –Monopolization/ Monopsonization (15 U.S.C. § 2); (2) violation of the Sherman Act-Attempted Monopolization/ Monopsonization (15 U.S.C. § 2); (3) unlawful business practices and violations under California Business and Professions Code, § 17200, et seq. ("UCL"); and (4) unfair competition under California Business and Professions Code, § 17200, et seq. ("UCL").

Following class and merits-based discovery, plaintiffs moved for class certification on June 1, 2021. On August 11, 2021, Apple filed its opposition to class certification. After extensive negotiations, the parties reached a settlement, and plaintiffs moved for preliminary approval of the class settlement on August 26, 2021. On November 16, 2021, the Court granted plaintiffs' Motion for Preliminary Approval of the Class Settlement.

II. TERMS OF THE SETTLEMENT AGREEMENT

A. Monetary and Structural Relief

The settlement provides $100,000,000 in monetary relief and structural relief in six areas of particular concern to the iOS developer community. (See Ex. A, Settlement Agreement). The Settlement Agreement appears to have been the product of arm's length and informed negotiations with the assistance of an experienced mediator. The relief provided for the Class appears to be adequate, taking into account:

(i) the costs and risks associated with trial and appeal;

(ii) the effectiveness of any proposed method of distributing relief to the class, including the method of processing class-member claims;

(iii) the terms of any proposed award of attorney's fees, including timing of payment; and

(iv) any agreements required to be identified under Rule 23(e)(3) (in this case, none).

Moreover, the Settlement Agreement appears to treat class members equitably relative to each other. The Court notes that it is particularly aware of the risks of trial in this case having tried and written a 185-page decision in Epic Games v. Apple, Case No. 4:20-cv-5640-YGR.

In terms of structural relief, under the Settlement, Apple has agreed to maintain the 15-percent commission tier for U.S. developers enrolled in the Small Business Program for at least three years after Final Approval. (See Ex. A § 5.1.1.) Next, Apple has agreed to revise its App Store Guidelines to permit developers of all app categories to communicate with consenting customers outside their app, including via email and other communication services, about purchasing methods other than in-app purchase. (See id. § 5.1.3.) Third, for at least three years after Final Approval, Apple will continue to "conduct robust experimentation to drive continuous improvement" in App discoverability, including in ways that will "give new and high-quality apps a chance to be found." (See id. § 5.1.2.) Fourth, Apple will expand its pricing tiers from 100 to 500 (by March 31, 2023),[1] and maintain those tiers for at least three years from Final Approval. (See id. § 5.1.4.) This enhanced pricing freedom will allow iOS developers to more carefully calibrate their prices to compete and enhance revenues. Fifth, Apple will create an appeal process, which will be available to any developer who "believes that there has been unfair treatment by Apple in the review of any of the U.S. developer's apps, or in-app products, or updates." (See id. 5.1.5.) Apple will be required under the Settlement to maintain this appeal process, and the website callout, for at least three years. (See id.) Finally, in terms of transparency, for at least three years from Final Approval, Apple will publish an annual "transparency report" that (at a minimum) will provide (a) meaningful statistics on the number of apps rejected and reasons why, (b) the number of customer and developer accounts deactivated, and (c) objective data regarding search queries and results, and the number of apps removed from the App Store. (See id. § 5.1.6.) The Court finds these structural benefits are valuable to the settlement class.

[1] See Dkt. No. 478, Order Granting Joint Stipulation for Extension of Time Relating to Settlement Agreement Provision 5.1.4.

B. Attorney's Fees and Costs

Under the Settlement Agreement, class counsel agreed to seek attorney's fees plus reimbursement of class counsel's costs and expenses. The parties also agreed that Apple shall pay named plaintiffs up to $5,000 each as an incentive award in exchange for a general release of all claims against Apple.

C. Class Member Release

Settlement Class Members and their respective heirs, executors, administrators, representatives, agents, partners, successors, and assigns shall have fully, finally, and forever released, relinquished, and discharged any and all past, present, and future claims, actions, demands, causes of action, suits, debts, obligations, damages, rights and liabilities, that were brought, could have been brought, or arise from the same facts underlying the claims asserted in the action, known or unknown, recognized now or hereafter, existing or preexisting, expected or unexpected, pursuant to any theory of recovery (including, but not limited to, those based in contract or tort, common law or equity, federal, state, territorial, or local law, statute, ordinance, or regulation), against Apple, Inc. for any type of relief that can be released as a matter of law, including. without limitation, claims for monetary relief, damages (whether compensatory, consequential, punitive, exemplary, liquidated, and/or statutory), costs, penalties, interest, attorneys' fees, litigation costs, restitution, or equitable relief.

D. Class Notice and Claims Administration

Pursuant to the Settlement Agreement, the Court appointed Angeion Group to administer the settlement and to contact the class members in the manner set forth therein and including the attachments contained within the Preliminary Approval Order. Class members were given until March 21, 2022, to object to or exclude themselves from the Settlement Agreement. Only thirteen of the total class members opted out and only one member objected to the class settlement.

III. FINAL APPROVAL OF SETTLEMENT

A. Legal Standard

A court may approve a proposed class action settlement of a class proposed to be certified only "after a hearing and on finding that it is fair, reasonable, and adequate," and that it meets the requirements for class certification. Fed. R. Civ. P. 23(e)(2). In reviewing the proposed settlement, a court need not address whether the settlement is ideal or the best outcome, but only whether the settlement is fair, free of collusion, and consistent with plaintiff's fiduciary obligations to the class. See Hanlon v. Chrysler Corp., 150 F.3d 1011, 1027 (9th Cir. 1998), o*verruled on other grounds by Dukes*, 564 U.S. at 131. The Hanlon court identified the following factors as relevant to assessing a settlement proposal: (1) the strength of the plaintiff's case; (2) the risk, expense, complexity, and likely duration of further litigation; (3) the risk of maintaining class action status throughout the trial; (4) the amount offered in settlement; (5) the extent of discovery completed and the stage of the proceeding; (6) the experience and views of counsel; (7) the presence of a government participant; and (8) the reaction of class members to the proposed settlement. Id. at 1026 (citation omitted); see also Churchill Vill., L.L.C. v. Gen. Elec., 361 F.3d 566, 575 (9th Cir. 2004). In reviewing such settlements, in addition to considering the above factors, a court also must ensure that "the settlement is not the product of collusion among the negotiating parties." In re Bluetooth Headset Prods. Liab. Litig., 654 F.3d 935, 946–47 (9th Cir. 2011).

Settlements that occur before formal class certification also "require a higher standard of fairness." In re Mego Fin. Corp. Sec. Litig., 213 F.3d 454, 458 (9th Cir. 2000). In reviewing such settlements, in addition to considering the above factors, a court also must ensure that "the settlement is not the product of collusion among the negotiating parties." In re Bluetooth Headset Prods. Liab. Litig., 654 F.3d at 946–47.

B. Class Definition and Basis for Certification

The Settlement Agreement, attached hereto as Exhibit A, defines the class as:

> All former or current U.S. developers of any Apple IOS application or in-app product (including subscriptions) sold for a non-zero price via Apple's IOS App Store that earned, through all Associated Developer Accounts, proceeds equal to or less than $1,000,000 through the App Store U.S. storefront in every calendar year in which the U.S. developer had a developer account between June 4, 2015 to the date of the Agreement (August 24, 2021). For class definition purposes, the 2015 calendar year consist of June 4, 2015 through December 31, 2015. The 2021 calendar year shall consist of January 1, 2021 through April 26, 2021. Additionally, excluded from the Settlement Class are (a) directors, officers, and employees > of Apple or its subsidiaries and affiliated companies, as well as Apple's legal representatives, heirs, successors, or assigns, (b) the Court, the Court staff, as well as any appellate court to which this matter is ever assigned and its staff, (c) Defense Counsel, as well as their immediate family members, legal representatives, heirs, successors, or assigns, (d) any Developers who validly request exclusion ("opt out") from the Settlement Class, and (e) any other individuals whose claims already have been adjudicated to a final judgment.

The Court finds that, for purposes of settlement, plaintiffs have satisfied the requirements of Rule 23(a) as well as the requirements for certification under one or more subsections of Rule 23(b). With respect to numerosity under Rule 23(a)(1), the settlement class includes approximately 67,000 members, making it so numerous that joinder of all members is impracticable.

Rule 23(a)(2) commonality requires "questions of fact or law common to the class," though all questions of fact and law need not be in common. See Hanlon, 150 F.3d at 1026. Plaintiffs brought the following causes of action: (i) Violation of the Sherman Act – Monopolization/ Monopsonization (15 U.S.C. § 2); (ii) Violation of the Sherman Act-Attempted Monopolization/ Monopsonization (15 U.S.C. § 2); (iii) Unlawful business practices and violations under California Business and Professions Code, § 17200, et seq. ("UCL"); and (iv) Unfair competition under California Business and Professions Code, § 17200, et seq. ("UCL"). (See Dkt. No. 53) ("Consolidated Class Complaint"). The focus of this action—whether Apple willfully acquired and maintained monopoly power, or attempted to gain monopoly power, by refusing to allow iOS device users to purchase iOS apps and in-app products other than through its own App Store—is common to all class members. Antitrust actions are particularly appropriate for class treatment as the allegations regarding the defendant's conduct, and the evidence of the same, which typically is expert heavy, impacts the class generally.

Rule 23(a)(3) requires that the plaintiffs show that the claims or defenses of the representative parties are typical of the claims or defenses of the class. Plaintiffs' and members of the settlement class claims all stem from the same alleged conduct, i.e. antitrust injury, making plaintiffs' claims typical of class members. Here, while the settlement class is narrower than that alleged in the consolidated complaint, the class representatives themselves are typical of those members represented herein, namely the subgroup of 99% of the developers.

With respect to Rule 23(a)(4), the Court finds the representative parties and class counsel have fairly and adequately represented the interests of the class. No conflicts of interest appear as between plaintiffs and the members of the settlement class. Class counsel are deeply versed in this area of the law and have routinely demonstrated that they are qualified and have experience with prosecuting class actions of this kind and therefore adequate to represent the settlement class as well. The parties engaged in extensive discovery during the almost 2.5-year course of this litigation. More than 5 million documents and 20 million pages have been produced in this litigation. Dkt. No. 465-1, Declaration of Steve Berman, ¶ 17. Apple has produced 13 terabytes of transactional data that plaintiffs and their experts have analyzed. Id.

The settlement class further satisfies Rule 23(b)(3) in that common issues predominate and "a class action is superior to other available methods for fairly and efficiently adjudicating" the claims here.

Based on the foregoing, the proposed settlement class is certified pursuant to Rule 23(c).

C. Adequacy of Notice

A court must "direct notice [of a proposed class settlement] in a reasonable manner to all class members who would be bound by the proposal." Fed. R. Civ. P. 23(e)(1). "The class must be notified of a proposed settlement in a manner that does not systematically leave any group without notice." Officers for Justice v. Civil Serv. Comm'n, 688 F.2d 615, 624 (9th Cir. 1982). Adequate notice requires: (i) the best notice practicable; (ii) reasonably calculated, under the circumstances, to apprise the Class members of the proposed settlement and of their right to object or to exclude themselves as provided in the settlement agreement; (iii) reasonable and constitute due, adequate, and sufficient notice to all persons entitled to receive notice; and (iv) meet all applicable requirements of due process and any other applicable requirements under federal law. Phillips Petroleum Co. v. Shutts, 472 U.S. 797, 812 (1985). Due process requires "notice reasonably calculated, under all the circumstances, to apprise interested parties of the pendency of the action and afford them an opportunity to present their objections." Mullane v. Cent. Hanover Bank & Tr. Co., 339 U.S. 306, 314 (1950).

The Court approved the parties' proposed notice procedures when it granted preliminary approval. Pursuant to those procedures, the class administrator provided class members with individual direct notice via both email and mail. The class administrator also utilized a targeted social media campaign, using Facebook, Instagram, and LinkedIn, and an online class settlement website to provide notice to the class and engaged in numerous actions to follow-up and find missing class members, where able. Apple also posted a message to its developer news website on April 25, 2022, directing developers to the settlement website.

Based upon the foregoing, the Court finds that the settlement class has been provided adequate notice.

D. Settlement Agreement Appears Fair and Reasonable

As to the Hanlon factors, the Court finds that they indicate the settlement here is fair and reasonable. Absent the settlement, plaintiffs would have been required to show that Apple willfully acquired and maintained monopoly power, or attempted to gain monopoly power, by refusing to allow iOS device users to purchase iOS apps and in-app products other than through its own App Store. Antitrust cases such as this one are "particularly risky, challenging, and widely acknowledge[d] to be among the most complex actions to prosecute." In re Lithium Ion Batteries Antitrust Litig., 2020 WL 7264559, at *15 (N.D. Cal. Dec. 10, 2020). Further, proceeding to trial would have been costly; recovery was not guaranteed; and there was the possibility of protracted appeals.

The Settlement Agreement appears to have been the product of arm's length and informed negotiations. The settlement occurred only after extensive litigation including: the exchange of more than 5 million documents and 20 million page, more than fifty depositions, including depositions of Apple's senior management. Following protracted negotiations, and motion practice, Apple produced a 13-terabyte transactional dataset that plaintiffs and their experts have extensively analyzed. Thus, the parties have vetted their claims and know the strengths and weaknesses of their case. Further, they settled after monitoring the trial in Epic Games v. Apple but before the Court issued its final decision.

In addition, the parties engaged in four mediation sessions conducted by the Honorable Layn Phillips which demonstrates that the settlement reached by the parties was a result of serious, informed, non-collusive, and arms-length negotiation. Counsel for both parties are highly experienced. Accordingly, the Court finds that the record does not indicate collusion or self-dealing. See In re Bluetooth, 654 F.3d at 946-47.

The relief provided for the Class appears to be adequate, taking into account: (i) the costs, risks, and delay of trial and appeal; (ii) the effectiveness of any proposed method of distributing relief to the class; (iii) the terms of any proposed award of attorney's fees, including timing of payment; and (iv) any agreements required to be identified under Rule 23(e)(3). Moreover, the Settlement Agreement appears to treat Class members equitably relative to each other.

The reaction of the class was entirely positive. As noted, the Court received thirteen opt-outs and one objection after a vigorous notice plan. Given the press regarding the settlement, the Court is confident that the class had adequate notice and would have advised the Court had significant objections existed. "[T]he absence of a large number of objections to a proposed class action settlement raises a strong presumption that the terms of a proposed class settlement action are favorable to the class members." In re Omnivision Techs., Inc., 559 F.Supp.2d 1036, 1043 (N.D. Cal. 2008) (citation omitted); see also Churchill Vill., 361 F.3d at 577 (holding that approval of a settlement that received 45 objections (0.05%) and 500 opt-outs (0.56%) out of 90,000 class members was proper).

E. Objection to Settlement

With respect to the one objection from Steven Wytyshyn, a U.S. Developer, Founder, & CEO of Cosmosent Labs, Inc. (Dkt. 469), the Court notes that the objection does not argue that the settlement is necessarily unfair, unreasonable, or inadequate. Rather, Mr. Wytyshyn criticizes certain aspects of the App Store and suggests improvements that he would have liked to see addressed as part of the settlement. Specifically, the objection criticizes Apple's suppression of certain apps on the App Store, Apple's control of app ratings, and the desire to have Apple disclose per-category revenue numbers on a weekly basis.

The Ninth Circuit has made clear that the fairness of a proposed settlement "is not to be judged against a hypothetical or speculative measure of what might have been achieved by the negotiators" explaining that "the very essence of a settlement is compromise, 'a yielding of absolutes and an abandoning of highest hopes.' " Linney v. Cellular Alaska P'ship, 151 F.3d 1234, 1242 (9th Cir. 1998). Thus, while the Court understands Mr. Wytyshyn's concerns and desire for additional relief, the objection itself does not provide a basis to deny final approval.

F. Other Findings

Notice to Government Agencies: The settlement administrator provided the required notice to federal and state attorneys general under the Class Action Fairness Act ("CAFA"). 28 U.S.C. § 1715(b). (Dkt. No. 471-2 ¶ 6.) Notice occurred more than 90 days before the date of this order, as required by 28 U.S.C. § 1715(d).

G. Certification is Granted and the Settlement is Approved

After reviewing all of the required factors, the Court finds the Settlement Agreement to be fair, reasonable, and adequate, and certification of the settlement class as defined therein to be proper. Accordingly, the Court grants class certification to the following settlement class:

> All former or current U.S. developers of any Apple IOS application or in-app product (including subscriptions) sold for a non-zero price via Apple's IOS App Store that earned, through all Associated Developer Accounts, proceeds equal to or less than $1,000,000 through the App Store U.S. storefront in every calendar year in which the U.S. developer had a developer account between June 4, 2015 to the date of the Agreement (August 24, 2021). For class definition purposes, the 2015 calendar year consist of June 4, 2015 through December 31, 2015. The 2021 calendar year shall consist of January 1, 2021 through April 26, 2021. Additionally, excluded from the Settlement Class are (a) directors, officers, and employees of Apple or its subsidiaries and affiliated companies, as well as Apple's legal representatives, heirs, successors, or assigns, (b) the Court, the Court staff, as well as any appellate court to which this matter is ever assigned and its staff, (c) Defense Counsel, as well as their immediate family members, legal representatives, heirs, successors, or assigns, (d) any Developers who validly request exclusion ("opt out") from the Settlement Class, and (e) any other individuals whose claims already have been adjudicated to a final judgment.

IV. MOTION FOR ATTORNEY'S FEES, COSTS, AND CLASS REPRESENTATIVE AWARDS

A. Attorney's Fees

Attorney's fees and costs may be awarded in a certified class action under Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 23(h). Such fees must be found "fair, reasonable, and adequate" in order to be approved. Fed. R. Civ. P. 23(e); Staton v. Boeing Co., 327 F.3d 938, 963 (9th Cir. 2003). To "avoid abdicating its responsibility to review the agreement for the protection of the class, a district court must carefully assess the reasonableness of a fee amount spelled out in a class action settlement agreement." Id. "[T]he members of the class retain an interest in assuring that the fees to be paid class counsel are not unreasonably high," since unreasonably high fees are a likely indicator that the class has obtained less monetary or injunctive relief than they might otherwise. Id. at 964.

The Court analyzes an attorney's fee request based on either the "lodestar" method or a percentage of the total settlement fund made available to the class, including costs, fees, and injunctive relief. Vizcaino v. Microsoft Corp., 290 F.3d 1043, 1047 (9th Cir. 2002). The Ninth Circuit encourages courts to use another method as a cross-check in order to avoid a "mechanical or formulaic approach that results in an unreasonable reward." In re Bluetooth, 654 F.3d at 944–45 (citing Vizcaino, 290 F.3d at 1050–51.)

Under the lodestar approach, a court multiplies the number of hours reasonably expended by the reasonable hourly rate. Kelly v. Wengler, 822 F.3d 1085, 1099 (9th Cir. 2016) ("[A] court calculates the lodestar figure by multiplying the number of hours reasonably expended on a case by a reasonable hourly rate. A reasonable hourly rate is ordinarily the 'prevailing market rate [] in the relevant community.'"). Under the percentage-of-the-fund method, courts in the Ninth Circuit "typically calculate 25% of the fund as the 'benchmark' for a reasonable fee award, providing adequate explanation in the record of any 'special circumstances' justifying a departure." In re Bluetooth, 654 F.3d at 942 (citing Six (6) Mexican Workers v. Ariz. Citrus Growers, 904 F.2d 1301, 1311 (9th Cir. 1990)). The benchmark should be adjusted when the percentage recovery would be "either too small or too large in light of the hours devoted to the case or other relevant factors." Six (6) Mexican Workers, 904 F.2d at 1311. When using the percentage-of-recovery method, courts consider a number of factors, including whether class counsel "'achieved exceptional results for the class,' whether the case was risky for class counsel, whether counsel's performance 'generated benefits beyond the cash settlement fund,' the market rate for the particular field of law (in some circumstances), the burdens class counsel experienced while litigating the case (e.g., cost, duration, foregoing other work), and whether the case was handled on a contingency basis." In re Online DVD-Rental Antitrust Litig., 779 F.3d 934, 954-55 (9th Cir. 2015) (quoting Vizcaino, 290 F.3d at 1047-50. "[T]he most critical factor [in determining appropriate attorney's fee awards] is the degree of success obtained." Hensley v. Eckerhart, 461 U.S. 424, 436 (1983). The Ninth Circuit has made clear that in "megafund" cases, courts may "employ the lodestar method instead" of the percentage-of-recovery method if rote application of the 25% benchmark "would yield windfall profits for class counsel in light of the hours spent on the case." In re Bluetooth, 654 F.3d at 942.

Here, class counsel advocates applying the percentage-of-the-fund method. Class counsel requests $27 million which is 27 percent of the $100 million class cash fund. The attorney's fees sought reflect a multiplier of 2.47 of the actual lodestar totaling $10,923,265. Class counsel argues that the Court should award the requested fees because the requested amount is only 19.9 percent of the $135.44 million in quantifiable relief when you factor in the $35.44 million in savings to the class by way of the structural relief that is part of the settlement.

Here, the Court applies the percentage-of-the-fund method. As a starting point, the Court finds that 25% of the cash fund method is inherently reasonable. See, e.g., In re Bluetooth Headset Prod. Liab. Litig., 654 F.3d at 941–42 ("[C]ourts typically calculate 25% of the fund as the 'benchmark' for a reasonable fee award, providing adequate explanation in the record of any 'special circumstances' justifying a departure."). However, the Court maintains its discretion to adjust upward or downward. Haralson v. U.S. Aviation Servs. Corp., 2021 WL 5033832, at *7 (N.D. Cal. Feb. 3, 2021).

In applying the percentage-of-the-fund method, the Court finds that an award of $26 million is appropriate. This amount constitutes 26% of the common fund or roughly 19.2 percent of the settlement if you include the $35.44 million in value of the structural relief. A 1% increase over the presumptively reasonable 25% benchmark is warranted in light of the significant value of the non-monetary relief conferred to the class by way of the structural relief. Some of the key benefits of the structural relief include: Apple's maintenance of the small business program; transparency in the form of annual transparency reports containing data on Apple's app review, search, security, and more; an appeal process that allows developers to appeal rejections of apps; Apple's expansion of price points; Apple's change in policy that will now permit U.S. developers to communicate with their customers via email and other means outside their apps about alternatives to in-app purchasing methods; and relief relating to app discoverability that will make it easier for newer and smaller apps to be found.

While the exact value of this information is difficult to quantify, plaintiffs' expert, Nicholas Economides, opined that the settlement class will save approximately $177.2 million in commissions by way of Apple maintaining its Small Business Program for three years post settlement. (Dkt. No. 459-7, Declaration of Nicholas Economides, at 8.) He also opined that other aspects of the structural relief such as allowing developers to communicate with customers outside the app store will also lead to developers paying less in commission fees. (Id. at 9.) While Apple disputes whether Mr. Economides' figures are accurate, Apple does not dispute the structural relief also confers substantial benefits to the settlement class. Thus, the Court finds that a slight increase is the standard benchmark is warranted here. As such, the Court awards class counsel $26 million in attorney's fees.

The Court also applies the lodestar method as a cross-check. In re Bluetooth, 654 F.3d at 944–45. Class counsel has submitted several declarations describing its billing rates and hours worked for this case. Having reviewed the billing rates, the Court finds them reasonable in light of the prevailing market rates in this district and that class counsel has submitted adequate documentation justifying those rates. The Court also finds that the billing records adequately reflect the amount of time reasonably spent on this litigation. Accordingly, the Court finds that class counsel's reported total lodestar of $10,923,265, which covers 20,531 hours of time worked, reasonable.

The Court's award of $26 million represents a positive multiplier of 2.38. As indicated above, the Court may "adjust" the lodestar figures "upward or downward by an appropriate positive or negative multiplier reflecting a host of 'reasonableness' factors, 'including the quality of representation, the benefit obtained for the class, the complexity and novelty of the issues presented, and the risk of nonpayment.'" In re Bluetooth, 654 F.3d at 941-42. The Ninth Circuit in Vizcaino conducted a survey of attorney's fees awards in "megafund cases." See 290 F.3d at 1052-54. This survey involved common fund cases ranging from $50–200 million between 1996 and 2001. See id. In 83% of the settlements (20 of 24), the court found that the multiplier ranged from 1.0–4.0, and in 54% of the settlements (13 of 24), the multiplier ranged from 1.5–3.0 range. Id. at 1051 n.6.

The Court concludes that a positive multiplier of 2.38 is appropriate for class counsel and is consistent with the vast majority large settlements such as this one and would adequately reward class counsel for the work performed in this litigation. The Court recognizes that class counsel has achieved significant benefits for the class and that class counsel assumed a risk of nonpayment while litigating this case for nearly three years. In the end, class counsel achieved a significant result for the class. According to plaintiffs, the $100 million cash fund represents approximately 30 to 34 percent of the maximum potential damages for the class.

Based on the foregoing, the Court awards class counsel $26 million in attorney's fees which represents 26% of the class cash fund (approximately 19.2 percent if you include the value of the structural relief) and a 2.38 multiplier to class counsel's lodestar of $10,923,265.

B. Costs Award

Class counsel is entitled to reimbursement of reasonable out-of-pocket expenses. Fed. R. Civ. P. 23(h); see Harris v. Marhoefer, 24 F.3d 16, 19 (9th Cir. 1994) (holding that attorneys may recover reasonable expenses that would typically be billed to paying clients in non-contingency matters). Costs compensable under Rule 23(h) include "nontaxable costs that are authorized by law or by the parties' agreement." Fed. R. Civ. P. 23(h). Here, class counsel seeks reimbursement for litigation expenses, and provides records documenting those expenses in the amount of $3,713,173.84. However, class counsel only seeks reimbursement for $3,500,000 The Court finds an award of $3,500,000 in costs reasonable, fair, and adequate.

C. Service Awards

The district court must evaluate named plaintiffs' requested award using relevant factors including "the actions the plaintiff has taken to protect the interests of the class, the degree to which the class has benefitted from those actions . . . [and] the amount of time and effort the plaintiff expended in pursuing the litigation." Staton, 327 F.3d at 977. "Such awards are discretionary . . . and are intended to compensate class representatives for work done on behalf of the class, to make up for financial or reputational risk undertaken in bringing the action, and, sometimes, to recognize their willingness to act as a private attorney general." Rodriguez v. West Publishing Corp., 563 F.3d 948, 958-959 (9th Cir. 2009). The Ninth Circuit has emphasized that district courts must "scrutiniz[e] all incentive awards to determine whether they destroy the adequacy of the class representatives." Radcliffe v. Experian Info. Solutions, 715 F.3d 1157, 1163 (9th Cir. 2013).

Here, both class representatives are current App Store developers who took significant risks in bringing this action in their own names. Further, both class representatives devoted substantial time to litigating the action. They both sat for deposition, attended numerous meetings to prepare for the depositions, compiled documents, regularly corresponded with counsel, and neither derived a personal benefit beyond any recovery to the class. Because the laws are not self-enforcing, it is appropriate to give incentives to those who come forward with little to gain and who work to achieve a settlement that confers substantial benefits on others. Thus, the Court approves the requested incentive award payment for plaintiffs Donald Cameron and Pure Sweat Basketball, Inc.

V. CONCLUSION

Based upon the foregoing, the motion for final approval of class settlement is GRANTED. The motion for attorney's fees, costs, and service awards is GRANTED IN PART AND DENIED IN PART as follows: Class Counsel is awarded $26,000,000 in attorney's fees and $3,500,000 in litigation costs. Plaintiffs Donald Cameron and Pure Sweat Basketball, Inc. are each granted an incentive award of $5,000.

Without affecting the finality of this order in any way, the Court retains jurisdiction of all matters relating to the interpretation, administration, implementation, effectuation and enforcement of this order and the Settlement.

IT IS HEREBY ORDERED, ADJUDGED AND DECREED that final judgment is ENTERED in accordance with the terms of the Settlement, the Order Granting Preliminary Approval of Class Action Settlement issued on November 16, 2021, and this Order. This document will constitute a final judgment (and a separate document constituting the judgment) for purposes of Rule 58, Federal Rules of Civil Procedure.

The parties shall file a post-distribution accounting in accordance with this District's Procedural Guidance for Class Action Settlements no later than OCTOBER 28, 2022. The Court SETS a compliance deadline on OCTOBER 21, 2022 on the Court's 9:01 a.m. calendar to verify timely filing of the post-distribution accounting.

This terminates Docket Nos. 465 and 471.

IS SO ORDERED.

Dated: June 10, 2022

YVONNE GONZALEZ ROGERS
UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT JUDGE

United States District Court
Northern District of California

EXHIBIT A

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT

NORTHERN DISTRICT OF CALIFORNIA

OAKLAND DIVISION

Donald R. Cameron, et al., Plaintiffs, v. Apple Inc., Defendant.	Case No. 4:19-cv-03074-YGR The Honorable Yvonne Gonzalez Rogers STIPULATION OF SETTLEMENT

SETTLEMENT AGREEMENT AND RELEASE

The Parties, by and through their respective counsel, in consideration for and subject to the promises, terms, and conditions contained in this Settlement Agreement, hereby warrant, represent, acknowledge, covenant, stipulate and agree, subject to Court approval pursuant to Rule 23 of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, as follows:

1. DEFINITIONS

As used herein the following terms have the meanings set for below:

1.1 "Action" shall mean the litigation styled Donald R. Cameron, Pure Sweat Basketball, Inc., and Barry Sermons, on behalf of themselves and all others similarly situated v. Apple Inc., Case No. 4:19-cv-03074-YGR, filed in the United States District Court for the Northern District of California (the "Court").

1.2 "Apple" means Apple Inc.

1.3 "Approved Claims" means those Claims which are approved by the Settlement Administrator for payment.

1.4 "Associated Developer Accounts" means any U.S. Apple Developer Program account that an individual or legal entity owns or controls, or any U.S. Apple Developer Program account that owns or controls a given individual's or legal entity's account.

1.5 "Attorneys' Fees" means any award of attorneys' fees, costs, and expenses of any kind or description incurred by Class Counsel or other attorneys, experts, consultants, or agents of the Named Plaintiffs or the Settlement Class.

1.6 "Claim Form" means the proof of claim and release form(s) in a form mutually agreeable to the parties, to be attached as an exhibit to the Motion for Preliminary Approval.

1.7 "Claim" means any claim submitted by a Settlement Class Member.

1.8 "Claims Period" means the period between the Notice Date until the deadline set forth in paragraph 7.4.

1.9 "Class Counsel" means the law firm of Hagens Berman Sobol Shapiro LLP, who has any and all authority and capacity necessary to execute this Settlement Agreement and bind all of the Named Plaintiffs who have not personally signed this Settlement Agreement, as if each of those individuals had personally executed this Settlement Agreement.

1.10 "Class Notice" means the Notice of Pendency and Proposed Settlement of Class Action in a form mutually agreeable to the parties, to be attached as an exhibit to the Motion for Preliminary Approval.

1.11 "Court" means the United States District Court for the Northern District of California.

1.12 "Defense Counsel" means the law firm of Gibson, Dunn & Crutcher LLP.

1.13 "Developer" means a person or entity who has registered for a Developer Program Account with Apple, and shall include all Associated Developer Accounts. A "U.S. Developer" means a Developer who self-identified as U.S.-based when registering for the Developer Program.

1.14 "Effective Date" shall mean the first day after which all of the following events and conditions of this Settlement Agreement have been met or occurred:

(a) Apple, Class Counsel, and Defense Counsel have executed this Settlement Agreement;

(b) The Court has conditionally certified the Settlement Class, preliminarily approved the Settlement, and approved notice to the Settlement Class;

(c) The time period for members of the Settlement Class to exclude themselves has expired;

(d) The Settlement Administrator has delivered the spreadsheet(s) and information to Defense Counsel and Class Counsel as specified in Section 7.9 and 7.10;

(e) All disputed Claims have been resolved;

(f) The Court has entered the Final Approval Order and Final Judgment;

(g) The time for appeal or writ of the Final Approval Order and Final Judgment has expired or, if an appeal and/or petition for review is taken and the Settlement is affirmed, the time period during which further petition for hearing, appeal, or writ of certiorari can be taken has expired;

(h) The time for appeal or writ of any order regarding Attorneys' Fees and Expenses and/or Named Plaintiff Service Awards has expired or, if an appeal and/or petition for review is taken and the order is affirmed, the time period during which further petition for hearing, appeal, or writ of certiorari can be taken has expired;

(i) The Action is dismissed with prejudice and a final judgment is entered; and

(j) The time for appeal or writ of the final judgment in the Action has expired or, if an appeal and/or petition for review is taken and the dismissal is affirmed, the time period during which further petition for hearing, appeal, or writ of certiorari can be taken has expired.

1.15 "Final Approval Order and Final Judgment" means the final approval order and judgment dismissing and closing the Action.

1.16 "Final Hearing" means the hearing(s) held by the Court to consider and determine whether the requirements for certification of the Settlement Class have been met and whether the Settlement should be approved as fair, reasonable, and adequate; whether Class Counsel's Attorneys' Fees should be approved; and whether the Final Approval Order and Final Judgment should be entered. The Final Hearing may, from time to time and without further notice to the Settlement Class (except those who have filed timely and valid objections and requested to speak at the Final Hearing), be continued or adjourned by order of the Court.

1.17 "Named Plaintiffs" means Donald R. Cameron and Pure Sweat Basketball, Inc.

1.18 "Net Small Developer Assistance Fund" means the Small Developer Assistance Fund, reduced by the sum of the following amounts: (1) the costs of notice and the costs of administering the Settlement, as set forth in Sections 7.1 and 7.2 below; (2) any Attorneys' Fees (which may include separate awards for fees and expenses) to Class Counsel, as set forth in Sections 9.1 and 9.2 below; and (3) any Service Awards provided to Named Plaintiffs with the authorization of the Court.

1.19 "Notice Date" means the date set forth in the Preliminary Approval Order for commencing the transmission of the Email Notice.

1.20 "Parties" means Apple and the Named Plaintiffs.

1.21 "Proceeds" means a Developer's net revenues on the U.S. App Store storefront, after subtracting out any commission paid to Apple.

1.22 "Preliminary Approval Order" means an order preliminarily approving the Settlement, providing for notice to the Settlement Class, and preliminarily approving a proposed disposition of the Small Developer Assistance Fund.

1.23 "Released Parties" means (a) Apple and its past, present, and future parents, subsidiaries, affiliates, divisions, joint ventures, licensees, franchisees, and any other legal entities, whether foreign or domestic, that are owned or controlled by Apple; and (b) the past, present, and future shareholders, officers, directors, members, agents, employees, independent contractors, consultants, administrators, representatives, fiduciaries, insurers, predecessors, successors, and assigns of the entities in part (a) of this paragraph.

1.24 "Service Award" means a payment from the Small Developer Assistance Fund to either or both of the two Named Plaintiffs, in an amount not to exceed $5,000.00, in recognition of their service in prosecuting this action as developer businesses, exclusive of any other payments to which they might be entitled under this Agreement, if approved by the Court.

1.25 "Settlement" and "Settlement Agreement" mean the settlement described in this Stipulation of Settlement.

1.26 "Settlement Administrator" means Angeion Group, which shall provide settlement notice and administration services pursuant to the terms of this Settlement Agreement.

1.27 "Settlement Class" means all former or current U.S. Developers of any Apple iOS application or in-app product (including subscriptions) sold for a non-zero price via Apple's iOS App Store that earned, through all Associated Developer Accounts, Proceeds equal to or less than $1,000,000.00 through the App Store U.S. storefront in every calendar year in which the U.S. Developer had a Developer Account between June 4, 2015 to the date of this Agreement. For class definition purposes, the 2015 calendar year shall consist of June 4, 2015 through December 31, 2015. The 2021 calendar year shall consist of January 1, 2021 through April 26, 2021, the last date in 2021 for which there are available developer transactional data as produced in this Action. Additionally, excluded from the Settlement Class are (a) directors, officers, and employees of Apple or its subsidiaries and affiliated companies, as well as Apple's legal representatives, heirs, successors, or assigns, (b) the Court, the Court staff, as well as any appellate court to which this matter is ever assigned and its staff, (c) Defense Counsel, as well as their immediate family members, legal representatives, heirs, successors, or assigns, (d) any Developers who validly request exclusion ("opt out") from the Settlement Class, and (e) any other individuals whose claims already have been adjudicated to a final judgment.

1.28 "Settlement Class Member" means and includes every member of the Settlement Class who does not validly and timely request exclusion ("opt out") from the Settlement Class.

1.29 "Small Developer Assistance Fund" means a non-reversionary cash fund total of $100,000,000.00 to be paid by Apple and administered by the Settlement Administrator in accordance with the terms of this Settlement Agreement.

1.30 "Settlement Website" means an Internet website that the Settlement Administrator shall establish to inform the Settlement Class of the terms of this Settlement, their rights, dates, deadlines, and related information.

1.31 "Summary Notice" means the Summary Notice of Settlement in a form mutually agreeable to the parties, to be attached as an exhibit to the Motion for Preliminary Approval.

2. RECITALS

This Agreement is made for the following purposes and with reference to the following facts:

2.1 On June 4, 2019, plaintiffs Donald Cameron and Pure Sweat Basketball, Inc. filed the first complaint in the Action in the United State District Court for the Northern District of California. On September 30, 2019, Named Plaintiffs filed a Consolidated Amended Complaint. The Consolidated Amended Complaint alleged that Apple had monopolized an alleged iOS app and in-app-product distribution services market in violation of Section 2 of the Sherman Act; that Apple had attempted to monopolize an alleged iOS app and in-app-product distribution services market in violation of Section 2 of the Sherman Act; and that Apple's conduct violated Section 17200 of the California Business and Professions Code.

2.2 The Parties engaged in extensive discovery in the Action, which was consolidated with Epic v. Apple Inc., Case No. 4:20-CV-05640-YGR, and In re Apple iPhone Antitrust Litigation, Case No. 4:11-cv-06714-YGR, for purposes of discovery. Apple produced more than 20 million pages of documents and the Parties deposed almost 50 individuals.

2.3 On January 1, 2021, Apple introduced the App Store Small Business Program ("SBP"). The structure and timing of the SBP was driven by Apple's desire to accelerate innovation and help propel small businesses forward with the next generation of groundbreaking apps on the App Store, in light of the Coronavirus pandemic. Apple also acknowledges that the pendency of this lawsuit was a factor in its decision to adopt the SBP. Under the Small Business Program:

- Existing developers who made up to $1,000,000.00 in proceeds in 2020 for all their apps, as well as developers new to the App Store, can qualify for the program and a reduced commission rate of fifteen percent (15%) on paid apps and in-app purchases.
- If a participating developer surpasses the $1,000,000.00 threshold, Apple's standard commission rate will apply to future sales.
- If a developer's proceeds fall below the $1,000,000.00 threshold in a future calendar year, they can requalify for the fifteen percent (15%) commission the year after.
- Developers must identify any Associated Developer Accounts to determine proceeds eligibility.

2.4 On June 1, 2021, Named Plaintiffs filed a motion for class certification in the Action, seeking certification of a class of all U.S. developers of any Apple iOS application or in-app product (including subscriptions) sold for a non-zero price via Apple's iOS App Store at any time on or after June 4, 2015. On August 10, 2021, Apple filed its opposition to Plaintiffs' motion for class certification, along with a motion to exclude Plaintiffs' experts and a motion to compel a trial plan.

2.5 The Parties engaged in extensive, arm's-length negotiations over the course of the Action, with the assistance of the Hon. Layn R. Phillips (Ret.) of Phillips ADR, a former United States District Court Judge and one of the most experienced mediators in the United States. As a result of these arm's-length negotiations, the Parties reached the Settlement set forth in this Settlement Agreement, which memorializes the Parties' agreement. The Parties intend that this Settlement completely resolve any and all claims that were, or could have been, asserted in the Action on behalf of the Settlement Class.

2.6 Apple vigorously disputes the claims alleged in the Action and is entering into this Settlement to avoid burdensome and costly litigation. The Settlement is not an admission of wrongdoing, fault, liability, or damage of any kind. Among other things, Apple disputes that Named Plaintiffs' claims have merit, that Named Plaintiffs will be able to certify any class in this Action for litigation purposes, and that Named Plaintiffs and the putative class would be entitled to any relief. Without admitting any of the allegations made in the Action or any liability whatsoever, Apple is willing to enter into this Settlement solely in order to eliminate the burdens, distractions, expense and uncertainty of protracted litigation and in order to obtain the releases and final judgment contemplated by this Settlement, and to provide additional assistance to the small developer community that is an integral part of the iOS ecosystem.

2.7 Class Counsel and the Named Plaintiffs believe that the claims asserted in the Action have merit and have examined and considered the benefits to be obtained under this Settlement, the risks associated with the continued prosecution of this complex and potentially time-consuming litigation, and the likelihood of ultimate success on the merits, and have concluded that the Settlement is fair, adequate, reasonable and in the best interests of the Settlement Class.

2.8 The Parties desire to settle the Action in its entirety with respect to all potential claims arising out of the same facts alleged in the complaints filed in the Action. The Parties intend this Settlement Agreement to bind Apple, the Named Plaintiffs, and all other Settlement Class Members.

3. CONFIDENTIALITY

3.1 The Parties must comply with all portions of the Stipulated Protective Order (Dkt. 252) (as well as all Supplemental Protective Orders entered in the Action), including but not limited to Section 14 of the Stipulated Protective Order, which requires the return, destruction, or deletion of Protected Material (as defined in the Protective Order) within sixty (60) days of the final disposition of the Action.

3.2 This Settlement Agreement and its terms, including the fact of the proposed Settlement, shall remain completely confidential until all documents are executed and the Motion for Preliminary Approval is filed with the Court. Pending the filing of that Motion, Class Counsel may disclose this Settlement Agreement and its terms to their respective clients and experts as necessary for the implementation of this Settlement Agreement, who will also maintain the complete confidentiality of this Settlement Agreement and its terms, including the fact of the proposed Settlement.

4. CERTIFICATION OF THE SETTLEMENT CLASS

4.1 The Parties stipulate and agree that, subject to Court approval, the Settlement Class should be conditionally certified pursuant to Rule 23(b)(3) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure solely for purposes of the Settlement embodied in this Settlement Agreement. If, for any reason, this Settlement Agreement is not approved by the Court, the stipulation for certification and all of the agreements contained herein shall be considered null and void as provided in Section 8.5.

4.2 Apple does not consent to certification of the Settlement Class (or to the propriety of class treatment) for any purpose other than to effectuate this Settlement. For the avoidance of doubt, Apple does not agree that this (or any) class of Developers could be certified for litigation purposes or that a trial of these claims would be manageable. Apple's agreement to provisional certification for purposes of settlement does not constitute an admission of wrongdoing, fault, liability, or damage of any kind, or that any class certification would be appropriate for litigation or any other purpose other than to effectuate this Settlement.

4.3 If for any reason the Effective Date does not occur or this Settlement Agreement is terminated, disapproved by any court (including any appellate court), or not consummated for any reason, the order certifying the Settlement Class for purposes of effectuating the Settlement (and all preliminary and final findings regarding that class certification order) shall be automatically vacated upon notice of the same to the Court. The Action shall then proceed as though the Settlement Class had never been certified pursuant to this Settlement Agreement and such findings had never been made, and the Action shall return to their procedural postures on the date this Settlement Agreement was signed. Additionally, the Parties and their counsel shall not contend that certification (or agreement to certification) of the Settlement Class supports certification of any litigation class if this Settlement Agreement is not consummated and the Action is later litigated and certification is contested by Apple under Rule 23 or any equivalent statute or rule.

5. SETTLEMENT CONSIDERATION

5.1 Structural Relief. In consideration of the releases and dismissals set forth in this Settlement Agreement, subject to Court approval, and subject to the other terms and conditions of this Settlement Agreement, Apple agrees that for a period of at least three (3) years following the Final Approval Order, Apple shall:

5.1.1 Maintain a commission rate of no greater than fifteen percent (15%) for U.S. Developers who are enrolled participants in the Small Business Program, pursuant to the terms and conditions of the Small Business Program and subject to program participation requirements.

5.1.2 Continue to drive App Store search results primarily by objective characteristics, including but not limited to downloads, star ratings, text relevance, and user behavior signals. Apple may also continue to include apps based on other characteristics, such as similar goals or developer association, as well as to give new and high-quality apps a chance to be found. Apple will also continue to conduct robust experimentation to drive continuous improvement.

5.1.3 Permit all U.S. Developers to communicate with their customers via email and other communication services outside their app about purchasing methods other than in-app purchase, provided that the customer consents to the communication and has the right to opt out. In-app communications, including via Apple Push Notification service, are outside the scope of this provision. Apple will revise its App Store Guidelines to permit the foregoing for all app categories, including by deleting from Guideline 3.1.3 the following language: "Developers cannot use information obtained within the app to target individual users outside of the app to use purchasing methods other than in-app purchase (such as sending an individual user an email about other purchasing methods after that individual signs up for an account within the app)."

5.1.4 Expand the choice of price points for subscriptions, in-app purchases, and paid apps from fewer than 100 to more than 500 (by December 31, 2022).

5.1.5 Maintain the option for U.S. Developers to appeal the rejection of an app based on unfair treatment and add online content to the app review portion of Apple's developer website (https://developer.apple.com/app-store/review/) to explicitly note that a developer can appeal the rejection of an app when the developer believes that there has been unfair treatment by Apple in the review of any of the U.S. Developer's apps, in-app products, or updates.

5.1.6 Publish an annual transparency report that, at a minimum, will convey meaningful statistics such as the number of apps rejected for different reasons, the number of customer and developer accounts deactivated, objective data regarding search queries and results, and the number of apps removed from the App Store.

5.2 Covenant Not to Sue. The members of the Settlement Class expressly agree to the appropriateness of Apple's commission structure, including but not limited to the Small Business Program, as it applies to the Settlement Class. In light of the structural and monetary relief afforded by Apple pursuant to this Settlement Agreement, the members of the Settlement Class covenant not to sue Apple on any claim that was or could have been asserted in the Action.

5.3 Small Developer Assistance Fund. In light of the contributions made by Settlement Class Members to the app economy, particularly as the economy continues to suffer the effects of the Coronavirus pandemic, and in further consideration of the releases and dismissals set forth in this Settlement Agreement, subject to Court approval, and subject to the other terms and conditions of this Settlement Agreement, Apple shall establish a Small Developer Assistance Fund ("Small Developer Assistance Fund").

5.3.1 Within thirty (30) days after an Order granting Preliminary Approval, Apple shall transfer $2,000,000.00 into an account established by the Settlement Administrator for payment of the costs of settlement administration. Within thirty (30) days after the Effective Date, Apple shall transfer $98,000,000.00 into an account established by the Settlement Administrator for the Small Developer Assistance Fund. Apple's total financial commitment under this Settlement Agreement shall be $100,000,000.00.

5.3.2 The Settlement Administrator shall agree to hold the Small Developer Assistance Fund in an interest-bearing account and administer the Small Developer Assistance Fund, subject to the continuing jurisdiction of the Court and from the earliest possible date, as a qualified settlement fund as defined in Treasury Regulation § 1.468B-1 et seq. Any taxes owed by the Small Developer Assistance Fund shall be paid by the Settlement Administrator out of the Small Developer Assistance Fund. The interest earned in the aforementioned account shall be added to the Small Developer Assistance Fund.

6. DISPOSITION OF THE SMALL DEVELOPER ASSISTANCE FUND

6.1 The Small Developer Assistance Fund shall be applied as follows:

6.1.1 to pay the costs of notice and the costs of administering the Settlement, as set forth in Section 7 below;

6.1.2 to pay any approved Attorneys' Fees to Class Counsel as set forth in Section 9 below;

6.1.3 to pay any Court-approved Service Awards to Named Plaintiffs; and 6.1.4 to distribute the Net Small Developer Assistance Fund to Settlement Class Members as set forth in Section 6.2 and 6.3 below.

6.2 The Small Developer Assistance Fund will be distributed to all Settlement Class Members who have Approved Claims, with each such U.S. Developer entitled to a minimum payment of $250.00 from the Net Small Developer Assistance Fund. U.S. Developers may qualify for a higher payment based on their historic participation in the App Store ecosystem. For all Approved Claims, the following amounts will be calculated based on Settlement Class Members' Proceeds from June 4, 2015 to December 31, 2020:

6.2.1 A Settlement Class Member who earned Proceeds of no more than $100.00 from all of their Associated Developer Accounts will receive a minimum payment of $250.00.

6.2.2 A Settlement Class Member who earned Proceeds of between $100.01 and $1,000.00 from all of their Associated Developer Accounts will receive a minimum payment of $500.00.

6.2.3 A Settlement Class Member who earned Proceeds of between $1,000.01 and $5,000.00 from all of their Associated Developer Accounts will receive a minimum payment of $1,000.00.

6.2.4 A Settlement Class Member who earned Proceeds of between $5,000.01 and $10,000.00 from all of their Associated Developer Accounts will receive a minimum payment of $1,500.00.

6.2.5 A Settlement Class Member who earned Proceeds of between $10,000.01 and $50,000.00 from all of their Associated Developer Accounts will receive a minimum payment of $2,000.00.

6.2.6 A Settlement Class Member who earned Proceeds of between $50,000.01 and $100,000 from all of their Associated Developer Accounts will receive a minimum payment of $3,500.00.

6.2.7 A Settlement Class Member who earned Proceeds of between $100,000.01 and $250,000.00 from all of their Associated Developer Accounts will receive a minimum payment of $5,000.00.

6.2.8 A Settlement Class Member who earned Proceeds of between $250,000.01 and $500,000.00 from all of their Associated Developer Accounts will receive a minimum payment of $10,000.00.

6.2.9 A Settlement Class Member who earned Proceeds of between $500,000.01 and $1,000,000.00 from all of their Associated Developer Accounts will receive a minimum payment of $20,000.00.

6.2.10 A Settlement Class Member who earned Proceeds of over $1,000,000.01 from all of their Associated Developer Accounts will receive a minimum payment of $30,000.00.

6.3 The minimum payment amounts set forth in Section 6.2 above assume that one hundred percent (100%) of Settlement Class Members have an Approved Claim. If not all Settlement Class Members have an Approved Claim, then the minimum payment amounts to Settlement Class Members with Approved Claims shall increase proportionally in correspondence with the same categories of Developer Proceeds as contained in Section 6.2.

6.4 The minimum payment amounts set forth in Section 6.2 above assume that the Net Small Developer Assistance Fund is approximately $68 million. The actual amount could be greater or less depending on the costs of administration, any Service Awards, and the amounts awarded by the Court for attorneys' fees and expenses pursuant to Section 9.1.

6.5 Within sixty (60) days after receiving the Small Developer Assistance Funds pursuant to Section 5.3, the Settlement Administrator shall have substantially completed the issuance of the initial payments to the Settlement Class Members with Approved Claims, which shall be sent to Settlement Class Members through electronic distribution, or in the form of physical checks mailed to the Settlement Class Member's mailing address as contained in Apple's company records or set forth on the Claim Form for those Settlement Class Members for whom electronic distribution is not available. To the extent economically and practically feasible, the Settlement Administrator shall follow up and communicate with Settlement Class Members who have not cashed their checks within sixty (60) days of distribution. Unused checks shall expire not later than the first anniversary of the initial date of distribution.

6.6 Following distribution of the Small Developer Assistance Fund as set forth in Sections 6.1-6.3, if approved by the Court, any remaining funds (including any funds from uncashed checks) will be used as a cy pres distribution to Girls Who Code, a nonprofit organization working to close the gender gap in technology and to change the image of what a programmer looks like and does, or another similar charitable organization as approved by the Court. Under no circumstances will Small Developer Assistance Funds revert to Apple.

7. NOTICE AND SETTLEMENT ADMINISTRATION.

7.1 Neutral Settlement Administrator. Subject to Court approval, the Settlement Administrator shall provide settlement notice and administration services, in accordance with the terms of this Settlement Agreement and as ordered by the Court in the Preliminary Approval Order. As provided in Section 6.1.1, the reasonable costs of notice and the costs of administering the Settlement shall be paid out of the Small Developer Assistance Fund.

7.2 Notice Procedures. The Parties agree to the following forms and methods of notice to the Settlement Class:

7.2.1 A copy of the Class Notice, together with the Claim Form, the Settlement, the motions for Final Approval Order and Final Judgment, and Attorneys' Fees, and Court orders pertaining to the Settlement, shall be posted and available for download on the Settlement Website maintained by the Settlement Administrator.

7.2.2 The Settlement Administrator shall send a copy of the Summary Notice to the email and physical addresses for Associated Developer Accounts of developers who are or reasonably may be members of the Settlement Class. The electronic version of the Summary Notice shall contain a direct link to the Settlement Website and the instructions for the Claim Form. To facilitate the distribution of the Summary Notice, within thirty (30) days of the date of execution of the Settlement Agreement, Apple shall provide the Settlement Administrator with the email and physical addresses for Associated Developer Accounts of developers who are or reasonably may be members of the Settlement Class, along with transactional data produced in this Action sufficient to calculate Proceeds for purposes of implementing this Agreement.

7.2.3 The names, email addresses, physical mailing addresses, and Proceeds of Associated Developer Accounts are personal information about the potential members of the Settlement Class and shall be provided to the Settlement Administrator solely for the purposes of providing notice, processing requests for exclusion, and administering payment. The Settlement Administrator shall execute the Stipulated Protective Order (Dkt. 252), treat all such information as "Highly Confidential – Attorneys' Eyes Only," and take all reasonable steps to ensure that all such information is used solely for the purpose of administering this Settlement.

7.2.4 The Settlement Administrator shall commence the notice by the Notice Date. If, despite using best efforts, the Settlement Administrator is unable to commence the notice by the Notice Date, the Settlement Administrator shall inform the Parties of the status of the notice, and notify the Parties when the notice has been commenced.

7.2.5 In addition to the notice required by the Court, the Parties may jointly agree to provide additional notice to the members of the Settlement Class, although Class Counsel and Apple must both approve any additional notice.

7.2.6 If this notice plan is not approved, or is modified in a material way by the Court, the Parties shall have the right to terminate the Settlement.

7.3 Claim Form. Settlement Class Members who wish to receive a cash payment will be required to submit a Claim Form. The Claim Form shall, among other things, require the Settlement Class Member to certify, under penalty of perjury, that (a) they have only one Associated Developer Account, or (b) if they have more than one Associated Developer Account, that they have identified all Associated Developer Accounts in a manner to be specified in the Claim Form. The Claim Forms shall be submitted to the Settlement Administrator via U.S. mail or electronically through the Settlement Website.

7.4 Claims Period. To be valid, Claim Forms, requests to opt out, and objections must be received by the Settlement Administrator within one hundred and twenty (120) days from the Notice Date.

7.5 Process for Opting Out of Settlement. The Class Notice shall provide a procedure whereby members of the Settlement Class may exclude themselves from the Settlement. The members of the Settlement Class shall have no less than sixty (60) days following the Notice Date to exclude themselves. Any member of the Settlement Class who does not timely and validly request exclusion shall be a Settlement Class Member and shall be bound by the terms of this Settlement. As soon as practicable after the opt-out deadline, the Settlement Administrator shall provide the Court and the Parties with a list of Settlement Class Members who timely and validly requested exclusion from the Settlement.

7.6 Process for Objections. The Class Notice shall provide a procedure whereby Settlement Class Members may object to the Settlement. All objections shall be filed with the Court ~~and served on Class Counsel and Defense Counsel~~ within ~~sixty (60)~~ sixty-six (66) days from the Notice Date. Any objection shall, at a minimum, require the individual to provide: (a) a detailed statement of such Settlement Class Member's specific objections to any matters before the Court;

HG 11-5-21
SB 11-5-21

(b) the grounds for such objections and the reason such Settlement Class Member desires to appear and to be heard; and (c) proof of membership in the Settlement Class, as well as all other materials the Settlement Class Member wants the Court to consider.

7.7 Review of Claims Submitted. The Settlement Administrator shall determine whether a submitted Claim Form meets the requirements set forth in this Settlement Agreement. Each Claim Form shall be submitted to and reviewed by the Settlement Administrator, who shall determine whether each Claim shall be allowed. The Settlement Administrator shall use best practices and all reasonable efforts and means to identify and reject duplicate and/or fraudulent claims.

7.8 Rejection of Claims Forms. Claim Forms that do not meet the requirements set forth in this Settlement and/or in the Claim Form instructions shall be rejected by the Settlement Administrator. The Settlement Administrator shall have thirty (30) days from the end of the Claims Period to exercise the right of rejection. The Settlement Administrator shall notify the claimant using the contact information provided in the Claim Form of the rejection. Class Counsel and Defense Counsel shall be provided with copies of all such notifications of rejection, provided that the copies do not contain the name, email address, mailing address, or other personal identifying information of the claimant. If any claimant whose Claim Form has been rejected, in whole or in part, desires to contest such rejection, the claimant must, within ten (10) days from receipt of the rejection, transmit to the Settlement Administrator by email or U.S. mail a notice and statement of reasons indicating the claimant's grounds for contesting the rejection, along with any supporting documentation, and requesting further review by the Settlement Administrator, in consultation with Class Counsel and Defense Counsel, of the denial of the Claim. If Class Counsel and Defense Counsel cannot agree on a resolution of the claimant's notice contesting the rejection, the disputed Claim shall be presented to the Court or a referee appointed by the Court for summary and non-appealable resolution. No person shall have any claim against Apple, Defense Counsel, the Named Plaintiffs, Class Counsel, and/or the Settlement Administrator based on any eligibility determinations, distributions, or awards made in accordance with this Settlement. This provision does not affect or limit in any way the right of review by the Court or referee of any disputed Claim Forms as provided in this Settlement.

7.9 Information Regarding Claims Submitted, Approved, and Rejected. Within forty-five (45) days from the end of the Claims Period, the Settlement Administrator shall provide a spreadsheet to Class Counsel and Defense Counsel that contains information sufficient to determine: (a) the number of Settlement Class Members that submitted a claim; (b) the number of submitted Claim Forms that are valid and timely and the number that were not valid and/or timely; (c) the number of submitted Claim Forms the Settlement Administrator intends to treat as Approved Claims; and (d) the number of submitted Claim Forms the Settlement Administrator has denied and the reason(s) for the denials. The Settlement Administrator shall provide supplemental spreadsheets with respect to the resolution of any rejected claims or any Claim Forms submitted after the expiration of the deadline, within a reasonable time after such resolution or receiving such Claim Forms. The materials that the Settlement Administrator provides to Class Counsel pursuant to this paragraph shall not contain the names, email addresses, mailing addresses, or other personal identifying information of the Settlement Class Members. The Settlement Administrator shall retain the originals of all Claim Forms (including envelopes with postmarks, as applicable), and shall make copies available to Class Counsel or Defense Counsel (with redactions to remove the names, email addresses, mailing addresses, or other personal identifying information of the Settlement Class Members) upon request. All such spreadsheets and related materials (including Claim Forms) shall be designated as "Highly Confidential – Attorneys' Eyes Only" as provided in Section 7.2.3. Should Class Counsel believe they require the name, email address, mailing address, or other personal identifying information of any particular Settlement Class Member, the Parties shall meet-and-confer, on a case-by-case basis, to determine whether the release of such personal identifying information is necessary. Any disputes regarding whether such information may be released to Class Counsel shall be presented to the Court or a referee appointed by the Court for summary and non-appealable resolution. The Settlement Administrator shall only release personal identifying information upon authorization of Apple and/or the authorization of the Court or referee.

7.10 Opportunity for Review. Defense Counsel and Class Counsel shall have fourteen (14) days after receiving the spreadsheet(s) and information specified in Section 7.9 to contest the Settlement Administrator's determination with respect to any of the submitted Claims. Defense Counsel and Class Counsel shall meet and confer in good faith within ten (10) days to reach resolution of any such disputed Claim(s). If Class Counsel and Defense Counsel cannot agree on a resolution of any such disputed Claim(s), the disputed Claim(s) shall be presented to the Court or a referee appointed by the Court for summary and non-appealable resolution.

8. COURT APPROVAL

8.1 The Parties agree to recommend approval of the Settlement to the Court as fair and reasonable and to undertake their best efforts to obtain such approval. "Best efforts" includes that the Parties may not oppose any application for appellate review by one of the Parties in the event the Court denies preliminary or final approval. The Parties therefore agree that, at 5:00 PM Pacific time on August 26, 2021, the Named Plaintiffs shall submit this Settlement Agreement to the Court and shall apply for entry of the Preliminary Approval Order.

8.2 Class Counsel shall draft the Motion for Preliminary Approval requesting issuance of the Preliminary Approval Order as soon as practicable after execution of this Settlement Agreement, and shall provide that draft to Defense Counsel on or before August 24, 2021. The Motion for Preliminary Approval shall be written in a neutral manner that does not contain inflammatory language about the Parties or their perceived conduct in the Action. The Parties shall agree on the form of all exhibits attached to the Motion for Preliminary Approval, including but not limited to the Notice, the Summary Notice, and the Claims Form.

8.3 Upon filing of the Motion for Preliminary Approval, Apple shall provide timely notice of the Settlement as required by the Class Action Fairness Act, 28 U.S.C. § 1711, et seq.

8.4 In accordance with the schedule set in the Preliminary Approval Order, Class Counsel shall draft the motion for Final Approval Order and Final Judgment and shall provide that draft to Defense Counsel at least seven (7) days before filing such motion with the Court.

8.5 In the event that the Settlement is not approved (following the exhaustion of any appellate review), then (a) this Settlement Agreement shall be null and void and of no force or effect, (b) any payments made to the Settlement Administrator, including any and all interest earned thereon less monies expended toward settlement administration and/or Small Developer Assistance Fund, shall be returned to Apple within ten (10) days from the date the Settlement Agreement becomes null and void, (c) any release shall be of no force or effect, and (d) neither the Settlement Agreement nor any facts concerning its negotiation, discussion, terms or documentation shall be referred to or used as evidence or for any other purpose whatsoever in the Action or in any other action or proceeding. In such event, the Action will proceed as if no settlement has been attempted, and the Parties shall be returned to their respective procedural postures existing on the date the Settlement is executed, so that the Parties may take such litigation steps that they otherwise would have been able to take absent the pendency of this Settlement. However, any reversal, vacatur, or modification on appeal of (a) any amount of the Attorneys' Fees and Expenses awarded by the Court to Class Counsel, or (b) any determination by the Court to award less than the amounts requested in Attorneys' Fees and Expenses or Named Plaintiff Service Awards shall not give rise to any right of termination or otherwise serve as a basis for termination of this Settlement.

9. ATTORNEYS' FEES

9.1 Class Counsel may submit an application or applications to the Court for distribution to them from the Small Developer Assistance Fund of an award of attorneys' fees and expenses incurred in connection with prosecuting the Action and as may be awarded by the Court (the "Fee and Expense Award"). Apple reserves the right to object to or oppose a request for attorneys' fees and expenses.

9.2 The Fee and Expense Award, as approved by the Court, shall be paid solely from the Small Developer Assistance Fund to an account designated by Class Counsel within forty-five (45) days after the Effective Date.

9.3 Class Counsel has the authority and responsibility to allocate and distribute the awarded funds to other counsel based, in its sole discretion, on counsel's efforts and contributions in the Action, provided that the allocation and distribution is consistent with the Court's order(s) regarding the Fee and Expense Award. Apple and Defense Counsel shall have no liability or other responsibility for allocation of any such awarded funds, and, in the event that any dispute arises relating to the allocation of fees or costs, Class Counsel and the Settlement Administrator agree to hold Apple and Defense Counsel harmless from any and all such liabilities, costs, and expenses of such dispute.

9.4 Apple shall not be liable for any additional fees or expenses of the Named Plaintiffs or any Settlement Class Member in connection with the Action. Class Counsel agree that they will not seek any additional fees, expenses, or costs from Apple in connection with the Action or the settlement of the Action beyond the approved Fee and Expense Award. Apple expressly agrees that it will not seek to recover its attorneys' fees, expenses, or costs from the Named Plaintiffs or Class Counsel once this Settlement Agreement becomes effective pursuant to the Effective Date.

9.5 The Court's Fee and Expense Award shall be separate from its determination of whether to approve the Settlement. In the event the Court approves the Settlement, but declines to award Class Counsel's attorneys' fees or expenses in the amounts requested by Class Counsel, the Settlement will nevertheless be binding on the Parties.

10. RELEASES AND DISMISSAL OF ACTION

10.1 As of the Effective Date, the Settlement Class Members and their respective heirs, executors, administrators, representatives, agents, partners, successors, and assigns shall have fully, finally, and forever released, relinquished, and discharged any and all past, present, and future claims, actions, demands, causes of action, suits, debts, obligations, damages, rights and liabilities, that were brought, could have been brought, or ~~are related to~~ arise from the same facts underlying the claims asserted in the Action, known or unknown, recognized now or hereafter, existing or preexisting, expected or unexpected, pursuant to any theory of recovery (including, but not limited to, those based in contract or tort, common law or equity, federal, state, territorial, or local law, statute, ordinance, or regulation), against the Released Parties, for any type of relief that can be released as a matter of law, including, without limitation, claims for monetary relief, damages (whether compensatory, consequential, punitive, exemplary, liquidated, and/or statutory), costs, penalties, interest, attorneys' fees, litigation costs, restitution, or equitable relief. By example only, and without limitation, the Settlement Class Members expressly release any claim, contention, argument, or theory that the commissions charged by Apple on paid downloads or in-app purchases of digital content (including subscriptions) through the App Store are supracompetitive, inflated, or otherwise set at unlawful amounts. Accordingly, the Settlement shall terminate the Action. Notwithstanding the foregoing, the release shall not include any claims relating to the continued enforcement of the Settlement or the Protective Orders.

HG 11-5-21
SB 11-5-21

10.2 As of the Effective Date, the Named Plaintiffs and their respective heirs, executors, administrators, representatives, agents, partners, successors, and assigns shall have fully, finally, and forever released, relinquished, and discharged any and all past, present, and future claims, actions, demands, causes of action, suits, debts, obligations, damages, rights and liabilities, that were brought, could have been brought, or ~~are related to~~ arise from the same facts underlying the claims asserted in the Action regarding the App Store, known or unknown, recognized now or hereafter, existing or preexisting, expected or unexpected, pursuant to any theory of recovery (including, but not limited to, those based in contract or tort, common law or equity, federal, state, territorial, or local law, statute, ordinance, or regulation), against the Released Parties, for any type of relief that can be released as a matter of law, including, without limitation, claims for monetary relief, damages (whether compensatory, consequential, punitive, exemplary, liquidated, and/or statutory), costs, penalties, interest, attorneys' fees, litigation costs, restitution, or equitable relief. Notwithstanding the foregoing, the release shall not include any claims relating to the continued enforcement of the Settlement or the Protective Orders.

HG 11-5-21
SBL-5-24

10.3 After entering into this Settlement, the Settlement Class Members and/or Named Plaintiffs may discover facts other than, different from, or in addition to, those that they know or believe to be true with respect to the claims released by this Settlement, but they intend to release fully, finally and forever any and all such claims. The Settlement Class Members and Named Plaintiffs expressly agree that, upon the Effective Date, they waive and forever release any and all provisions, rights, and benefits conferred by:

(a) Section 1542 of the California Civil Code, which reads:

> A GENERAL RELEASE DOES NOT EXTEND TO CLAIMS THAT THE CREDITOR OR RELEASING PARTY DOES NOT KNOW OR SUSPECT TO EXIST IN HIS OR HER FAVOR AT THE TIME OF EXECUTING THE RELEASE AND THAT, IF KNOWN BY HIM OR HER, WOULD HAVE MATERIALLY AFFECTED HIS OR HER SETTLEMENT WITH THE DEBTOR OR RELEASED PARTY.

and

(b) any law of any state, territory, or possession of the United States (or for the non-U.S. Named Plaintiffs, their respective country, province, or state), or principle of common law, which is similar, comparable, or equivalent to Section 1542 of the California Civil Code.

10.4 Upon the Effective Date, the Action shall be dismissed with prejudice. Class Counsel shall have the responsibility for ensuring that the Action is dismissed with prejudice in accordance with the terms of this Settlement.

10.5 The Court shall retain jurisdiction over this Action to enforce the terms of this Settlement. In the event that any applications for relief are made, such applications shall be made to the Court. To avoid doubt, the Final Judgment applies to and is binding upon the Parties, the Settlement Class Members, and their respective heirs, successors, and assigns.

11. DEFENDANT'S DENIAL OF LIABILITY; AGREEMENT AS DEFENSE IN FUTURE PROCEEDINGS

11.1 Apple has indicated its intent to vigorously contest each and every claim in the Action, and denies all of the material allegations in the Action. Apple enters into this Settlement Agreement without in any way acknowledging any fault, liability, or wrongdoing of any kind. Apple nonetheless has concluded that it is in its best interests that the Action be settled on the terms and conditions set forth herein in light of the expense that would be necessary to defend the Action, the benefits of disposing of protracted and complex litigation, and the desire of Apple to conduct its business and provide additional assistance to the small developer community unhampered by the distractions of continued litigation.

11.2 Neither this Settlement Agreement, nor any of its terms or provisions, nor any of the negotiation or proceedings connected with it, shall be construed as an admission or concession by Apple of the truth of any of the allegations in the Action, or of any liability, fault, or wrongdoing of any kind.

11.3 To the extent permitted by law, this Settlement Agreement may be pleaded as a full and complete defense to, and may be used as the basis for an injunction against, any action, suit, or other proceeding which may be instituted, prosecuted, or attempted for claims, causes of action, and/or theories of relief covered by the covenant not to sue and/or the releases in this Settlement Agreement.

12. MODIFICATION OR TERMINATION OF THE SETTLEMENT

12.1 Apple may, at its sole discretion, terminate this Settlement Agreement if the number of Developers who seek exclusion from the Settlement Class exceeds 10% of the total number of Developers in the Settlement Class.

12.2 The terms and provisions of this Settlement Agreement may be amended, modified, or expanded by written agreement of the Parties and approval of the Court; provided, however, that after entry of the Final Approval Order and Final Judgment, the Parties may by written agreement effect such amendments, modifications, or expansions of this Settlement Agreement and its implementing documents (including all exhibits) without further notice to the Settlement Class or approval by the Court if such changes are consistent with the Court's Final Approval Order and Final Judgment and do not materially alter, reduce, or limit the rights of Settlement Class Members.

12.3 If any of the non-monetary terms of this Agreement are affected by a change in legislation, regulation, law, court or agency order, or any material change in circumstances, the Parties agree to meet and confer in good faith regarding an appropriate modification of the Agreement.

12.4 In the event the terms or conditions of this Settlement Agreement, other than terms pertaining to the Attorneys' Fees, are materially modified by any court, the Parties may within thirty (30) days of such material modification, declare this Settlement null and void as provided in Section 8.5. For purposes of this paragraph, material modifications include any modifications to the definitions of the Settlement Class, Settlement Class Members, Released Parties, or the scope of the releases (as provided in Sections 10.1 and 10.2), any modifications to the terms of the Settlement consideration (as provided in Sections 5.1 - 5.3). In the event of any modification by any court, and in the event Apple does not exercise its unilateral option to withdraw from this Settlement, the Parties shall meet and confer within fourteen (14) days of such modification to attempt to reach an agreement as to how best to effectuate the court-ordered modification.

12.5 If the Effective Date is not reached, this Settlement Agreement is without prejudice to the rights of any party hereto, and all terms, negotiations, and proceedings connected therewith shall not be deemed or construed to be an admission by any Party or evidence of any kind in this Action or any other action or proceeding.

13. NOTICES

13.1 All notices to Named Plaintiffs shall be delivered to:

Steve W. Berman
Robert F. Lopez
Hagens Berman Sobol Shapiro LLP
1301 Second Ave., Suite 2000
Seattle, WA 98101

13.2 All notices to Apple shall be delivered to:

Heather Grenier
Senior Director, Commercial Litigation
Apple Inc.
One Apple Park Way, MS 60-1AL
Cupertino, CA 95014

With a copy to:

Mark A. Perry
Gibson, Dunn & Crutcher LLP
1050 Connecticut Ave., NW
Washington, D.C. 20036

13.3 The notice recipients and addresses designated in paragraphs 13.1 and 13.2 may be changed upon written notice provided to all individuals identified in those paragraphs.

14. MISCELLANEOUS

14.1 This Settlement Agreement may not be modified in any respect except upon the written consent of the Parties.

14.2 The undersigned each represent and warrant that each has authority to enter into this Settlement Agreement on behalf of the Party indicated below his or her name.

14.3 If, prior to the Effective Date, Class Counsel knows, or has reason to know, of any Named Plaintiff who intends to exclude himself or herself from the Settlement or who intends to submit an objection to the Settlement, Class Counsel shall promptly notify Defense Counsel within three (3) days. The Parties shall thereafter meet and confer within seven (7) days of such notification to determine whether any modifications to the Settlement, or any other actions or filings, are required.

14.4 Class Counsel and the Named Plaintiffs represent and warrant that they have not assigned or transferred, or purported to assign or transfer, to any person or entity, any claim or any portion thereof or interest therein, including, but not limited to, any interest in the Action or any related action, and they further represent and warrant that they know of no such assignments or transfers on the part of any member of the Settlement Class.

14.5 The Parties, together with Class Counsel and Defense Counsel, have jointly participated in the drafting of this Settlement Agreement. No Party hereto shall be considered the drafter of this Settlement Agreement or any provision hereof for the purpose of any statute, case law or rule of interpretation or construction that would or might cause any provision to be construed against the drafter hereof.

14.6 As used in this Settlement Agreement, the masculine, feminine, or neutral gender, and the singular or plural wording, shall each be deemed to include the others whenever the context so indicates.

14.7 Unless otherwise noted, all references to "days" in this Settlement Agreement shall be to calendar days. In the event any date or deadline set forth in this Settlement Agreement falls on a weekend or federal legal holiday, such date or deadline shall be on the first business day thereafter.

14.8 Any and all disputes arising from or related to this Settlement Agreement must be brought by the Parties, Class Counsel, Defense Counsel, and/or members of the Settlement Class exclusively to the Court. The Parties, Class Counsel, Defense Counsel and members of the Settlement Class irrevocably submit to the exclusive and continuing jurisdiction of the Court for any suit, action, proceeding, or dispute arising out of or relating to this Settlement Agreement. All terms of this Settlement Agreement and any suit, action, proceeding, or dispute arising out of or relating to this Settlement Agreement shall be governed by and interpreted according to the substantive laws of the State of California without regard to choice of law or conflicts of laws principles; however, nothing in this Settlement Agreement shall operate as a waiver of any Party's position regarding the applicable law governing the underlying claims at issue in the Action.

14.9 Unless otherwise ordered by the Court, the Parties may jointly agree to reasonable extensions of time to carry out any of the provisions of this Settlement Agreement.

14.10 Unless otherwise ordered by the Court, all motions, discovery, and other proceedings in the Action shall be stayed until the Court enters the Final Approval Order and Final Judgment, or this Settlement Agreement is otherwise terminated.

14.11 Nothing in this Settlement Agreement shall alter or abrogate any prior Court orders entered in the Action.

14.12 This Settlement Agreement may be executed in counterparts. Facsimile or PDF signatures shall be considered valid as of the date they bear.

14.13 The Parties, together with Class Counsel and Defense Counsel, agree to prepare and execute all documents, to seek Court approvals, to defend Court approvals, and to do all things reasonably necessary to complete the Settlement.

14.14 This Settlement Agreement is executed voluntarily by each of the Parties without any duress or undue influence on the part, or on behalf, of any of them. The Parties represent and warrant to each other that they have read and fully understand the provisions of this Settlement Agreement and have relied on the advice and representation of legal counsel of their own choosing.

14.15 This Settlement Agreement may be amended or modified only by a written instrument signed by Defense Counsel and Class Counsel and approved by the Court.

///

///

///

///

///

///

///

The Parties have agreed to the terms of this Settlement Agreement and have signed below.

For the Named Plaintiffs:

Steve W. Berman
Hagens Berman Sobol Shapiro LLP
1301 Second Ave., Suite 2000
Seattle, WA 98101

Dated: August 24, 2021

For Apple:

Heather Grenier
Senior Director, Commercial Litigation
Apple Inc.
One Apple Park Way, MS 60-1AL
Cupertino, CA 95014

Dated: August 24, 2021

TAB 50B

Steve W. Berman (pro hac vice)
Robert F. Lopez (pro hac vice)
Ted Wojcik (pro hac vice)
HAGENS BERMAN SOBOL SHAPIRO LLP
1301 Second Avenue, Suite 2000
Seattle, WA 98101
Telephone: (206) 623-7292
Facsimile: (206) 623-0594
steve@hbsslaw.com
robl@hbsslaw.com
tedw@hbsslaw.com

Shana E. Scarlett (SBN 217895)
Benjamin J. Siegel (SBN 256260)
Ben M. Harrington (SBN 313877)
HAGENS BERMAN SOBOL SHAPIRO LLP
715 Hearst Avenue, Suite 202
Berkeley, CA 94710
Telephone: (510) 725-3000
Facsimile: (510) 725-3001
shanas@hbsslaw.com
bens@hbsslaw.com
benh@hbsslaw.com

Interim Lead Class Counsel

[Additional Counsel Listed on Signature Page]

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT

NORTHERN DISTRICT OF CALIFORNIA

OAKLAND DIVISION

DONALD R. CAMERON, et al.,

Plaintiffs,

v.

APPLE INC.,

Defendant.

Case No. 4:19-cv-03074-YGR

DEVELOPER PLAINTIFFS' NOTICE OF MOTION AND MOTION FOR ATTORNEYS' FEES, REIMBURSEMENT OF EXPENSES, AND SERVICE AWARDS

Date: June 7, 2022
Time: 2:00 p.m.
Judge: Hon. Yvonne Gonzalez Rogers
Location: Courtroom 1- 4th Floor

NOTICE OF MOTION AND MOTION

PLEASE TAKE NOTICE that on June 7, 2022, at 2:00 p.m. or as soon thereafter as the matter may be heard by the Honorable Yvonne Gonzalez Rogers of the United States District Court for the Northern District of California, located in Courtroom 1, at 1301 Clay Street, Oakland, CA 94612, Developer Plaintiffs will and hereby do move the Court for an award of attorneys' fees, reimbursement of expenses, and service awards. This motion is based on this notice of motion and motion, the accompanying memorandum of points and authorities, the declarations in support of the motion, argument by counsel at the hearing before this Court, any papers filed in reply, such oral and documentary evidence as may be presented at the hearing of this motion, and all papers and records on file in this matter.

TABLE OF CONTENTS

Page

I. PRELIMINARY STATEMENT 1

II. PROCEDURAL HISTORY 2

III. THE WORK UNDERTAKEN BY THE DEVELOPER PLAINTIFFS 3

A. Class Counsel completed a substantial pre-litigation investigation that led to a comprehensive, well-pleaded complaint. 3

B. Class Counsel engaged in substantial discovery efforts on behalf of the Settlement Class. 3

1. Class Counsel coordinated with counsel for Consumer Plaintiffs and Epic to obtain critical discovery. 3

2. Class Counsel completed substantial written and document discovery. 4

3. Class Counsel took and defended more than twenty fact and 30(b)(6) depositions. 6

C. Class Counsel and their experts undertook a large amount of expert discovery and analysis critical to class certification. 6

D. Class Counsel conducted extensive work on an amicus brief and a comprehensive motion for class certification and settled strategically with Apple to maximize recovery for the Settlement Class. 7

IV. THE SETTLEMENT OBTAINED VALUABLE MONETARY AND STRUCTURAL RELIEF. 8

V. ARGUMENT 9

A. Class Counsel's fee request is reasonable. 10

1. The requested fee award is reasonable under a percentage-of-the-fund analysis. 11

a. Class Counsel achieved exceptional results for the Settlement Class, including generating benefits beyond the cash settlement fund. 12

b. This case posed enormous risks and challenges. 15

c. The market rate for antitrust class action lawyers supports the fee request. 17

d. Counsel's litigation on a contingency basis supports the fee request. 18

e. The burdens faced by Class Counsel support the fee request. 19

2. A lodestar cross-check confirms the reasonableness of the requested fees. 19

B. Lead Class Counsel requests authorization to distribute fees among Class Counsel. 23

C. The litigation expenses advanced were reasonable and necessary to secure the benefits obtained for the Class. 23

D. Plaintiffs request that the two class representatives be awarded reasonable service awards to compensate them for their dedication to this case. 24

E. The Class received appropriate notice of Class Counsel's fee application. 25

VI. CONCLUSION 25

TABLE OF AUTHORITIES

Pages(s)

CASES

In re Animation Workers Antitrust Litig.,
2016 WL 6663005 (N.D. Cal. Nov. 11, 2016) 20

In re Anthem, Inc. Data Breach Litig.,
2018 WL 3960068 (N.D. Cal. Aug. 17, 2018) 10

In re Apple Inc. Device Performance Litig.,
2021 WL 1022866 (N.D. Cal. Mar. 17, 2021) 10, 11

In re Aremissoft Corp. Secs. Litig.,
210 F.R.D. 109 (D.N.J. 2002) 22

In re Auto. Refinishing Paint Antitrust Litig.,
617 F. Supp. 2d 336 (E.D. Pa. 2007) 15

Beckman v. KeyBank, N.A.,
293 F.R.D. 467 (S.D.N.Y. 2013) 22

In re Bluetooth Headset Prods. Liab. Litig.,
654 F.3d 935 (9th Cir. 2011) 10, 19, 20, 21

Boeing Co. v. Van Gemert,
444 U.S. 472 (1980) 10

In re Cathode Ray Tube (CRT) Antitrust Litig.,
2016 WL 3648478 (N.D. Cal. July 7, 2016). 13

In re Cathode Ray Tube (CRT) Antitrust Litig.,
2016 WL 4126533 (N.D. Cal. Aug. 3, 2016) 17

Ching v. Siemens Indus., Inc.,
2014 WL 2926210 (N.D. Cal. June 27, 2014) 18

In re Corel Corp., Inc. Secs. Litig.,
293 F. Supp. 2d 484 (E.D. Pa. 2003) 13

de Mira v. Heartland Emp't Serv., LLC,
2014 WL 1026282 (N.D. Cal. Mar. 13, 2014) 11

Dyer v. Wells Fargo Bank, N.A.,
303 F.R.D. 326 (N.D. Cal. 2014) 21

Hartless v. Clorox Co.,
273 F.R.D. 630 (S.D. Cal. 2011) 23

Hensley v. Eckerhart,
461 U.S. 424 (1983) 11

Hopkins v. Stryker Sales Corp.,
2013 WL 496358 (N.D. Cal. Feb. 6, 2013) 19

In re Hyundai & Kia Fuel Economy Litigation,
926 F.3d 539 (9th Cir. 2019) 17

Kerr v. Screen Extras Guild, Inc.,
526 F.2d 67 (9th Cir. 1975) 20, 21

King Drug Co. of Florence v. Cephalon, Inc. (Provigil), 2015 WL 12843830 (E.D. Pa. Oct. 15, 2015) 22

Larsen v. Trader Joe's Co.,
2014 WL 3404531 (N.D. Cal. July 11, 2014) 14

In re Lidoderm Antitrust Litig.,
2018 WL 11375216 (N.D. Cal. Sept. 20, 2018) 17

In re Linerboard Antitrust Litig.,
2004 WL 1221350 (E.D. Pa. June 2, 2004) 15

In re Lithium Ion Batteries Antitrust Litig.,
2020 WL 7264559 (N.D. Cal. Dec. 10, 2020) 13, 15, 23

Meijer, Inc. v. Abbott Labs. (Norvir),
2011 WL 13392313 (N.D. Cal. Aug. 11, 2011) 18

In re Mercury Interactive Corp. Sec. Litig.,
618 F.3d 988 (9th Cir. 2010) 25

In re NCAA Grant-in-Aid Cap Antitrust Litig., 2017 WL 6040065 (N.D. Cal. Dec. 6, 2017) 13, 18, 20

In re Omnivision Techs., Inc.,
559 F. Supp. 2d 1036 (N.D. Cal. 2008) 23

In re Online DVD-Rental Antitrust Litig.,
779 F.3d 934 (9th Cir. 2015) ..... passim

In re Pac. Enters. Sec. Litig.,
47 F.3d 373 (9th Cir. 1995) 17

Perez v. Rash Curtis & Assocs,
2020 WL 1904533 (N.D. Cal. Apr. 17, 2020) 10, 21

Resurrection Bay Conserv. Alliance v. City of Seward,
640 F.3d 1087 (9th Cir. 2011) 20

Rodriguez v. W. Publ'g Corp.,
563 F.3d 948 (9th Cir. 2009) 24

Stanger v. China Elec. Motor, Inc.,
812 F.3d 734 (9th Cir. 2016) 20

Staton v. Boeing Co.,
327 F.3d 938 (9th Cir. 2003) 12, 14

Steiner v. Am. Broad. Co., Inc.,
248 F. App'x 780 (9th Cir. 2007) 21

Steinfeld v. Discover Fin. Servs.,
2014 WL 1309692 (N.D. Cal. Mar. 31, 2014) 21

Stetson v. Grissom,
821 F.3d 1157 (9th Cir. 2016) 20

Stop & Shop Supermarket Co. v. Smithkline Beecham Corp., 2005 WL 1213926 (E.D. Pa. May 19, 2005) 13

In re TFT-LCD (Flat Panel) Antitrust Litig.,
2013 WL 1365900 (N.D. Cal. Apr. 3, 2013) 18

In re Toyota Motor Corp. Unintended Acceleration Mktg., Sales Pracs., & Prod. Liab. Litig., 2013 WL 12327929 (C.D. Cal. July 24, 2013) 11, 12

Vincent v. Hughes Air W.,
557 F.2d 759 (9th Cir. 1977) 23

Vizcaino v. Microsoft Corp.,
290 F.3d 1043 (9th Cir. 2002) ..... passim

Wal-Mart Stores, Inc. v. Visa U.S.A., Inc.,
396 F.3d 96 (2d Cir. 2005) 10, 11, 15, 22

In re Wash. Pub. Power Supply Sys. Sec. Litig., 19 F.3d 1291 (9th Cir. 1994) 18

STATUTES

15 U.S.C. § 1 ..... 2, 7

FEDERAL RULES

Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 23(h) 10

Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 52 ..... 3, 16

Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 54(d) 10

OTHER AUTHORITIES

California, Procedural Guidance for Class Action Settlements, http://www.cand.uscourts.gov/ClassActionSettlementGuidance 25

F. Patrick Hubbard, Substantive Due Process Limits on Punitive Damages Awards: "Morals Without Technique"?, 60 Fla. L. Rev. 349 (2008) 19

Herbert M. Kritzer, The Wages of Risk: The Returns of Contingency Fee Legal Practice, 47 DePaul L. Rev. 267 (1998) 19

Theodore Eisenberg et al., Attorneys' Fees in Class Actions: 2009-2013 17

GLOSSARY OF TERMS

Term	Description
Berman Decl.	Declaration of Steve W. Berman in Support of Developer Plaintiffs' Motion for Attorneys' Fees, Reimbursement of Expenses, and Service Awards, concurrently filed herewith.
Cameron Decl.	Declaration of Donald R. Cameron in Support of Developer Plaintiffs' Motion for Attorneys' Fees, Expenses and Service Awards, concurrently filed herewith.
Carroll Decl.	Declaration of Katrina C. Carroll in Support of Developer Plaintiffs' Motion for Attorneys' Fees, Reimbursement of Expenses, and Service Awards on Behalf of Lynch Carpenter LLP, concurrently filed herewith.
Class Counsel	Hagens Berman Sobol Shapiro LLP, Sperling & Slater, P.C., Saveri & Saveri, Inc., Freed Kanner London & Millen LLC, Lynch Carpenter LLP.
Consumer Action	In re Apple iPhone Antitrust Litigation, No. 4:11-cv-6714-YGR (N.D. Cal.).
Czeslawski Decl.	Declaration of Richard Czeslawski in Support of Developer Plaintiffs' Motion for Attorneys' Fees, Expenses and Service Awards, concurrently filed herewith.
ECF No.	Unless otherwise noted, all "ECF No." citations refer to this case: Cameron et al. v. Apple Inc., No. 4:19-cv-0374-YGR (N.D. Cal.).
Epic Action	Epic Games, Inc. v. Apple, Inc., No. 4:20-cv-5640-YGR (N.D. Cal.).
Jagher Decl.	Declaration of Jonathan M. Jagher in Support of Developer Plaintiffs' Motion for Attorneys' Fees, Reimbursement of Expenses, and Service Awards on Behalf of Freed Kanner London & Millen LLC, concurrently filed herewith.
Kelly Decl.	Declaration of Eamon P. Kelly in Support of Developer Plaintiffs' Motion for Attorneys' Fees, Reimbursement of Expenses, and Service Awards on Behalf of Sperling & Slater, P.C., concurrently filed herewith.
Lead Class Counsel	Hagens Berman Sobol Shapiro LLP.
Saveri Decl.	Declaration of R. Alexander Saveri in Support of Developer Plaintiffs' Motion for Attorneys' Fees, Reimbursement of Expenses, and Service Awards on Behalf of Saveri & Saveri, Inc., concurrently filed herewith.

I. PRELIMINARY STATEMENT

After more than two years of hard-fought litigation, Class Counsel for the Developer Plaintiffs reached a settlement with Apple that secures a $100 million non-reversionary cash fund for the Settlement Class and valuable structural relief that commits Apple to a range of reforms that will enable developers to better create, distribute, and monetize their apps. As part of the structural relief, Apple agreed to relax its anti-steering rules, acknowledged that this litigation was a driver behind its Small Business Program (SBP), and agreed to maintain the SBP's 15 percent commission rate for at least another three years, among other reforms. Although not all of the structural relief in the settlement can be valued with precision, the SBP elements can be valued and, most conservatively, they deliver at least an additional $35.44 million to the Settlement Class. In light of the substantial risks and challenges faced down to obtain these strong results, Plaintiffs respectfully request: (1) an award of $27,000,000 in attorneys' fees—equivalent to 19.9 percent of the $135.44 million in quantifiable relief for the Class and 27 percent of the non-reversionary cash fund; (2) reimbursement of $3,500,000 to cover most (but not all) of the out-of-pocket litigation expenses incurred in this case; and (3) service awards of $5,000 for the two class representatives.

Class Counsel's $27 million fee request is reasonable. An award of 19.9 percent of the $135.44 million in quantifiable relief (which includes the $35.44 million in SBP savings counted as part of the common fund under Ninth Circuit law) is below this Circuit's benchmark of 25 percent. But even if one were to disregard the SBP savings, the results obtained for the Settlement Class justify a modest increase from the benchmark to 27 percent. The $100 million non-reversionary cash fund alone constitutes between 30.4 and 34.6 percent of the maximum potential single damages for the Settlement Class. That is a superb recovery, exceeding recoveries deemed sufficient to justify awards of 30 or 33 percent of the common fund in other antitrust class actions. Moreover, the Settlement's structural relief elements (individually, and collectively) confer additional economic and practical benefits on the Settlement Class.

Counsel achieved these results despite facing significant risks and challenges. Developer Plaintiffs presented novel monopolization claims challenging the fundamental business model of one of the most well-resourced companies in the world, all on a contingency basis. This Court explained in the preliminary approval order that "it is particularly aware of the risks of trial in this case having tried and written a 185-page decision in the Epic Games v. Apple dispute."[1] Class Counsel confronted these challenges with dogged and efficient work, culminating in a comprehensive class certification motion supported by three detailed expert reports. Recognizing the strength of their motion, but also the risks of a negative outcome in the Epic v. Apple trial, Class Counsel settled strategically just weeks before this Court's post-trial rulings. This strategy worked to the Class's benefit because the Court's rulings, adverse to Epic on many key issues, would have substantially diminished Plaintiffs' settlement leverage in any future negotiations.

The reasonableness of the requested award is further confirmed by a "lodestar cross-check." The requested award would lead to a modest multiplier of 2.47, which is well within the range of multipliers approved in this district and affirmed by the Ninth Circuit. It is reasonable here given the excellent results obtained for the Settlement Class in the face of serious risks and challenges.

Beyond fees, the requested expenses—the majority of which were for the experts whose reports provided the foundation for Plaintiffs' class certification motion—were all necessary to the representation of the Class. Additionally, the requested $5,000 service award to the two class representative is also reasonable given the significant commitment to the Class and investment of time provided to this case. Plaintiffs respectfully request that their motion be granted.

II. PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Developer Plaintiffs filed their initial complaint on June 4, 2019, and their Consolidated Amended Complaint on September 30, 2019. See ECF No. 53. Asserting claims under the Sherman Act and California's Unfair Competition Law, Developer Plaintiffs contended that Apple monopolizes a relevant market for iOS app and in-app-product distribution services, charging iOS app developers supracompetitive commissions.

Apple filed its answer on November 11, 2019. ECF No. 74. The Court subsequently coordinated this action with In re Apple iPhone Antitrust Litigation, No. 4:11-cv-6714 and Epic Games, Inc. v. Apple, Inc., No. 4:20-cv-5640, for discovery purposes.

[1] ECF No. 453 at 4.

Following class and merits-based discovery, Developer Plaintiffs moved for class certification on June 1, 2021, one week after closing arguments in the Epic trial. See ECF No. 331. On August 11, 2021, Apple filed its opposition to class certification. See ECF No. 376.

After extensive negotiations culminated in a final settlement agreement with Apple, Developer Plaintiffs moved for preliminary approval of the settlement on August 26, 2021. ECF No. 396. Approximately two weeks later, on September 10, this Court issued its Rule 52 Order regarding the Epic v. Apple trial. See Epic Action, ECF No. 812. On November 16, 2021, this Court granted Developer Plaintiffs' motion for preliminary approval of the settlement and set deadlines for notice, objections, exclusions, and the final fairness hearing. ECF No. 453.

III. THE WORK UNDERTAKEN BY THE DEVELOPER PLAINTIFFS

A. Class Counsel completed a substantial pre-litigation investigation that led to a comprehensive, well-pleaded complaint.

The initial complaint brought by Lead Class Counsel Hagens Berman followed a detailed, independent investigation into the facts and law underlying Plaintiffs' claims and the conduct at issue. Berman Decl. ¶ 14. That investigation resulted in the comprehensive complaint filed on June 4, 2019. ECF No. 1. When Apple raised its intention to move to dismiss, this Court described the complaint as setting forth an "articulated theory" of antitrust liability, see Oct. 7, 2019 Hrg. Tr. at 15:7, and indicated that the complaint would likely endure a 12(b)(6) motion. See Oct. 7, 2019 Hrg. Tr. at 19:9-22 ("You know, a motion to dismiss, I don't -- that's not how this case is going to get resolved."). Ultimately, Apple decided to answer the complaint, rather than file a motion to dismiss. ECF No. 74. More than a year later, Epic brought individual claims against Apple under similar theories. See Epic Action, ECF No. 1 (Aug. 13, 2020).

B. Class Counsel engaged in substantial discovery efforts on behalf of the Settlement Class.

1. Class Counsel coordinated with counsel for Consumer Plaintiffs and Epic to obtain critical discovery.

From the beginning of the case, Class Counsel sought to maximize efficiency and avoid duplication by coordinating discovery efforts with the Consumer Plaintiffs. For example, Developer and Consumer Plaintiffs jointly drafted proposed orders and protocols for coordinated discovery, protection of confidential materials, expert discovery, and a discovery schedule. After the Epic case was related and the Court ordered discovery coordinated, Class Counsel continued to work collaboratively, now with two plaintiff groups, to aggressively pursue discovery. Berman Decl. ¶ 15. Apple often resisted these efforts, and Plaintiffs brought a series of discovery motions that were instrumental in developing a strong record in support of Plaintiffs' claims. Id.

2. Class Counsel completed substantial written and document discovery.

Developer Plaintiffs propounded detailed written discovery, including 89 document requests and thirteen interrogatories. Class Counsel also issued subpoenas to third parties for data and documents, including subpoenas to Google, Amazon, App Annie, and Epic. Id. ¶ 16.

Class Counsel spent thousands of hours analyzing Apple's written discovery responses and the documents produced by Apple and third parties. In total, Plaintiffs obtained documents from at least 19 Apple custodians and several third parties. Five million documents constituting 20 million pages were ultimately produced in this litigation. Apple also produced a 13-terabyte transactional dataset that Developer Plaintiffs and their experts have extensively analyzed. Id. ¶ 17.

To obtain this discovery, Developer Plaintiffs brought and prevailed, at least in part, on seven contested motions to compel, with some of the results summarized below.

Discovery letter brief	Date filed	Outcome
Joint Statement Regarding Apple's Production of Documents Responsive to Consumer Plaintiffs' 2nd Set of Requests for Production of Documents, ECF No. 145	Nov. 13, 2020	Granted in part, ECF No. 192
Joint Letter Brief Regarding Apple's Production of Cost and Expense Documents and Data, ECF No. 146	Nov. 13, 2020	Granted in part, ECF No. 192
Joint Statement Regarding Apple's Production of Transactional Data, ECF No. 147	Nov. 13, 2020	Granted, ECF No. 192
Joint Discovery Letter Brief Regarding Additional Apple Custodians, ECF No. 177	Dec. 7, 2020	Granted, ECF No. 192
Joint Discovery Letter Brief Re: Number of Apple Depositions, ECF No. 199	Dec. 17, 2020	Granted, ECF No. 200
Joint Discovery Letter Brief Regarding Cue and Federighi Depositions, ECF No. 241	Jan. 20, 2021	Granted, ECF No. 268
Joint Discovery Letter Brief Regarding Cook Deposition, ECF No. 242	Jan. 20, 2021	Granted, ECF No. 268

These motions necessitated large amounts of time for meet-and-confers, briefing, and hearing preparation. Often, Plaintiffs coordinated briefing and argument with the Consumer Plaintiffs and/or Epic. Berman Decl. ¶ 19. In part due to the accelerated Epic discovery schedule, disputes had to brought to the court over a very short period of time, requiring intensive work by Class Counsel. The seven joint discovery letter briefs identified in the chart, for example, were filed in a two-month period that included the winter holidays. Moreover, as explained in Section III.B.3 infra, as these disputes were being briefed and argued, Counsel was also taking depositions of high-ranking Apple executives, intensifying the workload for Plaintiffs' core team of lawyers and staff.

For these and other reasons, Plaintiffs prioritized their discovery disputes based on issues critical to the case. For instance, following protracted negotiations with Apple over several months, on November 13, 2020, Plaintiffs filed two joint letter briefs in pursuit of materials germane to class certification and the merits: (1) ECF No. 146: Joint Letter Brief Regarding Apple's Production of Cost and Expense Documents and Data, and (2) ECF No. 147: Joint Statement Regarding Apple's Production of Transactional Data. The former joint letter brief involved a dispute over the data fields that Apple would produce in its transactional database, and the latter cost and expense information for the App Store that Apple claimed not to maintain.[2] The court largely granted Plaintiffs' motions,[3] and the data and information Apple was compelled to produce proved essential to Developer Plaintiffs' expert reports supporting class certification and, in particular, their showing of classwide impact and damages. Berman Decl. ¶ 20.

Other motion practice by Plaintiffs led to favorable discovery orders, including orders compelling Apple to produce documents from additional custodians (ECF No. 192); compelling Apple to produce additional deponents (ECF No. 200); and an order, after hotly contested briefing, compelling the full-length depositions of high-ranking Apple executives, including CEO Tim Cook, Senior Vice President of Services Eddy Cue, and Senior Vice President of Engineering

[2] See ECF No. 192 at 7.

[3] See id. at 6-7.

Craig Federighi (ECF No. 268). These depositions elicited testimony that featured prominently in Plaintiffs' motion for class certification. Berman Decl. ¶ 21.

3. Class Counsel took and defended more than twenty fact and 30(b)(6) depositions.

Developer Plaintiffs took 15 fact depositions (many of which lasted ten hours), with 484 exhibits introduced by the plaintiff groups at these depositions. To increase efficiency, Developer Plaintiffs, Epic, and the Consumer Plaintiffs coordinated on the topics for examination and split the allocated hours. In all, there were 44 fact and expert depositions in the coordinated cases up to date of settlement. Berman Decl. ¶ 22.

Because of the requirement to coordinate depositions with Epic and Epic's abbreviated discovery schedule, Developer Plaintiff took these depositions in rapid succession, with ten of them—including the depositions of the highest-level Apple executives—compressed within a two-week period from the January 28 to February 12, 2021. Berman Decl. ¶ 23. As a result, prior to moving for class certification, Developer Plaintiffs had already taken most, if not all, of the depositions needed for the merits. Moreover, Developer Plaintiffs' questioning at these depositions was important because Epic only asserted individual injunctive-relief claims; by contrast, Developer Plaintiffs had to show that class certification, and classwide damages, were appropriate. Plaintiffs elicited testimony critical for their theory of common impact and damages from several of Apple's most senior executives, including Eddy Cue and Phil Schiller, among others. Id.

In part to establish the facts needed for class certification, Developer Plaintiffs also served a 30(b)(6) deposition notice with 40 topics. Apple chose to spread these topics over several witnesses, so Class Counsel questioned these witnesses as individuals as well as corporate representatives of Apple. Plaintiffs also prepared extensively for, and defended, three expert and two class representative depositions. Id. ¶ 24.

C. Class Counsel and their experts undertook a large amount of expert discovery and analysis critical to class certification.

Over the course of this litigation, Plaintiffs' experts provided critical support. These experts included Einer Elhauge, Professor of Law at Harvard University, and Nicholas Economides, Professor of Economics at NYU's Stern School of Business, and their team at Legal Economics, as well as accounting expert Christian Tregillis and his team at Hemming Morse, LLP. The experts provided insights into the cutting-edge technology markets at issue, informing Plaintiffs' legal analyses and the discovery taken. For example, the experts assisted counsel with multiple rounds of questions and answers with Apple about transactional and cost data, including meet and confers that ultimately led to the successful motion to compel discussed supra (see Section III.B.2). Plaintiffs' experts also assisted Class Counsel in preparing for the Rule 30(b)(6) depositions of Apple's corporate designees, particularly with regard to issues affecting class certification, impact, and damages. Plaintiffs and their economic and accounting experts also conducted extensive analyses of the 13-terabyte transactional dataset produced by Apple, Apple's accounting documents, and other documents and data produced in the course of discovery. Berman Decl. ¶ 25.

The experts' work culminated in the reports filed in support of Developer Plaintiffs' motion for class certification, which totaled 472 pages. Professor Elhauge submitted a report that assessed the core issues of defining the relevant market and assessing market power, common impact, and other liability related topics. ECF No. 459-3. Professor Economides, in turn, assessed whether damages to class members could be accurately determined using common evidence, and developed a methodology for doing so. ECF No. 459-2. Finally, Mr. Tregillis analyzed financial information available in this matter to calculate the operating profit and operating margin of both the App Store and other internet marketplace platforms. ECF No. 459-4. These calculations were essential inputs for one of Professor Economides's damages models.

D. Class Counsel conducted extensive work on an amicus brief and a comprehensive motion for class certification and settled strategically with Apple to maximize recovery for the Settlement Class.

Understanding the impact the Epic v. Apple trial could have on their case, on February 5, 2021, Class Counsel submitted an amicus brief regarding trial elements. Epic Action, ECF No. 326. Responding to Epic and Apple's Joint Submission, Class Counsel provided legal authority on the relevant market analysis, the law governing Sherman Act claims, the Foreign Trade Antitrust Improvements Act, California's Unfair Competition Law, and developer-focused issues. Id.

Then, on June 1, 2021, Developer Plaintiffs submitted a comprehensive motion for class certification, just one week after closing arguments in the Epic trial. See ECF No. 331. As explained above, Developer Plaintiffs' motion was supported by three detailed expert reports. The motions and the supporting reports provided strong support for the propositions that, inter alia, Apple's unlawful conduct caused injury to all or nearly all developers and that there was common evidence and a common methodology to prove damages.

Following the motion, Class Counsel prepared for and defended depositions of their three experts, each of which was taken by seasoned antitrust counsel. Berman Decl. ¶ 29. On August 10, 2021, Apple filed its opposition to class certification along with seven supporting expert reports. ECF No. 376. Apple simultaneously moved to compel Plaintiffs to produce a "trial plan" and to exclude certain of Developer Plaintiffs' experts' opinions under Daubert. ECF Nos. 371 & 380. Developer Plaintiffs filed administrative motions to strike these motions on August 13. ECF Nos. 382 & 384. Consumer Plaintiffs refiled these motions to strike in their own action, and the Court granted the former by Order dated November 8, 2021. See Consumer Action, ECF No. 573.

At that point, Plaintiffs had presented a strong motion for class certification, and had seen not only Apple's opposition to class certification, but also the bench trial of one developer's (Epic's) claims. Counsel understood the strengths and vulnerabilities of the developer case and settled strategically at that point—with the Settlement signed on August 24, 2021— to maximize recovery for the Settlement Class. ECF No. 451-1 at 36. This was an opportune time to settle. Just two weeks later, the Court issued its post-trial order in Epic v. Apple. The Court's rulings, adverse to Epic on many key issues, would have substantially diminished Plaintiffs' settlement leverage.

IV. THE SETTLEMENT OBTAINED VALUABLE MONETARY AND STRUCTURAL RELIEF.

The proposed Settlement establishes a $100 million monetary fund—the Small Developer Assistance Fund (SDAF)—from which Settlement Class members will receive direct distributions. The fund is non-reversionary; under no circumstances will any portion of the fund return to Apple. ECF No. 451-1 at § 1.29.

The Settlement also contains valuable structural relief. It acknowledges that this lawsuit was one driver behind Apple's 2021 launch of its Small Business Program, under which small developers (those earning up to $1 million per year) qualify for a lower 15% commission rate.

Under the Settlement, Apple has committed to maintain the Small Business Program's 15% rate for at least another three years. Apple has also committed to revise its "anti-steering" Guidelines to permit app developers to communicate directly with their customers regarding alternative payment options. Apple has further agreed to institute and maintain a range of structural reforms that will enable developers to better create, distribute, and monetize their apps. Id. at § 5.1.[4]

Professor Economides estimates that the SBP, coupled with Apple's three-year commitment under the Settlement to maintain its 15% tier, will save the Settlement Class $177.2 million in commissions. ECF No. 459-7 at ¶ 21. Developer Plaintiffs recognize that this case may not be solely responsible for the SBP. Apple has cited two other contributing factors—the Coronavirus and a desire to propel innovation by small developers. ECF No. 451-1 at § 2.3. Weighing this litigation equal to these factors would be reasonable, but even assuming the case played a lesser role, it still conferred millions of additional dollars on the Class. For example, even if the litigation was 20% responsible for the SBP, that would mean that the litigation delivered an additional $35.44 million to the Settlement Class ($177.2m x 0.20). Combining that amount with the $100 million SDAF yields at least $135.44 million in quantifiable relief for the Class.

V. ARGUMENT

Developer Plaintiffs respectfully request an award of $27 million in attorneys' fees—equal to 19.9 percent of the $134.55 million in quantifiable relief obtained by the settlement.[5] Applying a lodestar crosscheck, the requested fee award would result in a 2.47 multiplier of Class Counsel's total lodestar of $10,923,265, not including fees spent on this motion, or fees Developer Plaintiffs will incur through final approval, settlement distribution, and appeals. Plaintiffs also request reimbursement of expenses incurred in this litigation of $3.5 million, which is approximately $213,000 less than the expenses actually incurred by Class Counsel ($3,713,173.84). Finally, Plaintiffs request that this Court grant service awards of $5,000 to the two class representatives.

[4] See also ECF No. 396 at 5-8 (discussing structural reforms in detail).

[5] Plaintiffs explain below that under Ninth Circuit case law, the total value of the settlement should include both the $100 million value of the SDAF and at least $35.44 million of the quantifiable value of SBP. See infra at Section V.A.1.

A. Class Counsel's fee request is reasonable.

Federal Rules of Civil Procedure 23(h) and 54(d) permit courts overseeing class actions to award reasonable attorneys' fees and costs. The Supreme Court has explained that "a litigant or a lawyer who recovers a common fund for the benefit of persons other than himself or his client is entitled to a reasonable attorney's fee from the fund as a whole."[6]

In the Ninth Circuit, district courts may employ two different methods to calculate reasonable attorneys' fees: (1) the "lodestar" method, which multiplies the number of hours reasonably expended on the litigation by reasonable hourly rates, or (2) the "percentage-of-recovery" method.[7] "[C]ourts have discretion to choose which calculation method they use," but "their discretion must be exercised so as to achieve a reasonable result."[8] However, "the primary basis of the fee award remains the percentage method," with the lodestar used "merely [as] a cross-check on the reasonableness of a percentage figure."[9]

The benefits of applying the percentage-of-recovery method in this case are threefold. First, the method "directly aligns the interests of the class and its counsel and provides a powerful incentive for the efficient prosecution and early resolution of litigation."[10] Second, employing the percentage-of-recovery method incentivizes counsel to take cases on behalf of classes because it is consistent "with contingency fee calculations in the private market."[11] Third, it "reduc[es] the burden on the courts that a complex lodestar calculation requires," permitting courts to instead

---

[6] Boeing Co. v. Van Gemert, 444 U.S. 472, 478 (1980).

[7] In re Bluetooth Headset Prods. Liab. Litig., 654 F.3d 935, 941-42 (9th Cir. 2011); Vizcaino v. Microsoft Corp., 290 F.3d 1043, 1047 (9th Cir. 2002); In re Online DVD-Rental Antitrust Litig., 779 F.3d 934, 949 (9th Cir. 2015).

[8] Bluetooth, 654 F.3d at 942.

[9] Vizcaino, 290 F.3d at 1050 & n.5; accord Perez v. Rash Curtis & Assocs, 2020 WL 1904533, at *15 (N.D. Cal. Apr. 17, 2020) (Gonzalez Rogers, J.) (quoting Vizcaino, 290 F.3d at 1050).

[10] Wal-Mart Stores, Inc. v. Visa U.S.A., Inc., 396 F.3d 96, 121 (2d Cir. 2005) (citation omitted); In re Anthem, Inc. Data Breach Litig., 2018 WL 3960068, at *5 (N.D. Cal. Aug. 17, 2018) (percentage-of-recovery method ensures that "Class Counsel's interests are aligned with the Class, and Class Counsel are incentivized to achieve the best possible result").

[11] In re Apple Inc. Device Performance Litig., 2021 WL 1022866, at *2 (N.D. Cal. Mar. 17, 2021); Anthem, 2018 WL 3960068, at *5 ("[M]any courts utilize a percentage approach, which approximates the manner in which plaintiff contingent fee lawyers undertake work outside the class action context." (quoting 5 NEWBERG ON CLASS ACTIONS § 15:62 (5th ed. 2018))).

"focus on showing that a fund conferring benefits on a class was created through the efforts of plaintiffs' counsel."[12] "In contrast, the lodestar [method] create[s] an unanticipated disincentive to early settlements, tempt[s] lawyers to run up their hours, and compel[s] district courts to engage in a gimlet-eyed review of line-item fee audits."[13]

In this case, while Plaintiffs believe that the percentage-of-the-fund method should be the primary one used, both methods support Class Counsel's fee request.

1. The requested fee award is reasonable under a percentage-of-the-fund analysis.

The fees requested by Plaintiffs are reasonable under a percentage-of-the-fund analysis. The Ninth Circuit has established a benchmark of 25 percent to be used as a "helpful 'starting point'" for analysis.[14] "That percentage amount can then be adjusted upward or downward depending on the circumstances of the case."[15] Courts in this district have recognized that "in most common fund cases, the award exceeds the benchmark."[16] At bottom, the Ninth Circuit asks district courts to "reach[] a reasonable percentage" after "consider[ing] all the circumstances of the case."[17]

As a starting point, to determine the value of the common fund for the purpose of the percentage-of-the-fund analysis, courts in the Ninth Circuit have included nonmonetary relief, in addition to monetary compensation where, as here, it can be reasonably ascertained and valued.[18] The Ninth Circuit held in Staton that the precise question is whether the value of the relief for class [12] Apple, 2021 WL 1022866, at *2 (internal quotation marks omitted). As the Supreme Court has cautioned, requests for attorneys' fees "should not result in a second major litigation." Hensley v. Eckerhart, 461 U.S. 424, 437 (1983).

---

[13] Wal-Mart, 396 F.3d at 121 (internal quotation marks omitted).

[14] Online DVD, 779 F.3d at 949, 955.

[15] de Mira v. Heartland Emp't Serv., LLC, 2014 WL 1026282, at *1 (N.D. Cal. Mar. 13, 2014).

[16] Id. (quoting In re Omnivision Techs., Inc., 559 F. Supp. 2d 1036, 1047 (N.D. Cal. 2008)).

[17] Vizcaino, 290 F.3d at 1048.

[18] See, e.g., In re Toyota Motor Corp. Unintended Acceleration Mktg., Sales Pracs., & Prod. Liab. Litig., 2013 WL 12327929, at *29 & n.7 (C.D. Cal. July 24, 2013) (citing Staton v. Boeing Co., 327 F.3d 938, 973-74 (9th Cir. 2003), and Hanlon v. Chrysler Corp., 150 F.3d 1011, 1029 (9th Cir. 1998), overruled in part on other grounds by Wal-Mart Stores, Inc. v. Dukes, 564 U.S. 338 (2011)) (holding that plaintiffs' experts appropriately included non-monetary benefits in calculating total value of common fund).

members can be "accurately ascertained."[19] In Toyota Motor, for example, the court held that the Staton test was satisfied where plaintiffs submitted expert reports that calculated the value of two types of nonmonetary relief at $877 million.[20] Analogously here, Professor Economides used Apple's transactional data and reasonable projections based on that data to calculate the savings on commissions due to the SBP at $177.2 million for Settlement Class Members (from inception through the three future years of existence guaranteed by the Settlement). Apple has identified this litigation as one of three factors prompting the SBP (ECF 451-1 at § 2.3), but Counsel has conservatively attributed 20% of the savings to the litigation and Settlement, equivalent to $35.44 million.[21] Combining that amount with the $100 million SDAF yields a total common fund of $135.44 million against which the reasonableness of Class Counsel's fee request may be assessed.

Class Counsel's $27 million fee request is 19.9% of the $135.44 million common fund, which is well below the Ninth Circuit's 25% benchmark. But even if one were not to count any of the SBP savings for the Class as part of the common fund, Counsel's 27% fee request ($27 million of the $100 SDAF) would be reasonable under each of the factors district courts may consider in the Ninth Circuit: (1) whether counsel achieved exceptional results for the class; (2) whether the settlement generated benefits beyond the cash settlement fund; (3) whether the case was risky for class counsel; (4) the market rate for the particular field of law; (5) whether the case was handled on a contingency basis; and (6) the burdens class counsel experienced while litigating the case.[22]

a. Class Counsel achieved exceptional results for the Settlement Class, including generating benefits beyond the cash settlement fund.

Class Counsel achieved an excellent outcome for the Settlement Class. Indeed, the $100 million SDAF established under the proposed Settlement is by itself an excellent result. According to Professor Economides's calculations, even if the Settlement Class were to obtain class certification, survive summary judgment, and prevail at trial, its members would stand to recover

[19] Staton, 327 F.3d at 974.

[20] See Toyota Motor, 2013 WL 12327929, at 29 & n.7. That $877 million was a large portion of a common fund valued at over $1.6 billion. See id.

[21] See supra at Section IV (explaining basis for that attribution).

[22] Online DVD, 779 F.3d at 954-55.

between approximately $289 million and $329 million in single damages.[23] Thus, the $100 million SDAF is equivalent to between 30.4 and 34.6 percent of potential single damages, and that is a superb monetary recovery in an antitrust class action. In In re Cathode Ray Tube (CRT) Antitrust Litigation, the court approved a settlement representing 20% of single damages and cited a survey of 71 settled antitrust cases which showed a weighted mean recovery of 19% of single damages.[24] This Court recently described a recovery of 11.7% of single damages as an "excellent" result and awarded Class Counsel just under 30% of the settlement fund.[25] Other courts have explained that in this district, even in megafund cases,[26] "[f]ar lesser results (with 20% recovery of damages or less) have justified upward departures from the 25% benchmark."[27] In fact, courts, including in antitrust action in this district, have awarded 33 percent or more in fees where class plaintiffs recovered less than 20 percent of potential single damages for the class.[28]

Moreover, as set forth above, the relief afforded by this Settlement is not limited to the SDAF. The Settlement's structural relief elements (individually, and collectively) confer additional economic and practical benefits on the Settlement Class. To begin with, when the $35.44 million of the SBP savings is counted as part of the common fund, the total $135.44 million fund represents 41.2 to 46.9 percent of the Settlement Class's potential single damages.

But even if the Court concludes that this relief should not be counted as part of the common [23] See ECF No. 459-7 at ¶ 10. These calculations are based on the transactional data Apple has produced in this action, which extends through April 26, 2021. See id. ¶ 8.

[24] See 2016 WL 3648478, at *7 & n.19 (N.D. Cal. July 7, 2016).

[25] In re Lithium Ion Batteries Antitrust Litig., 2020 WL 7264559, at *19-*20, *23 (N.D. Cal. Dec. 10, 2020).

[26] A megafund is generally defined as a "common fund[] of $100 million or more." See Stop & Shop Supermarket Co. v. Smithkline Beecham Corp., 2005 WL 1213926, at *9 (E.D. Pa. May 19, 2005).

[27] See In re NCAA Grant-in-Aid Cap Antitrust Litig., 2017 WL 6040065, at *3 (N.D. Cal. Dec. 6, 2017), aff'd, 768 F. App'x 651 (9th Cir. 2019) (citing cases).

[28] See Order Granting Award of Attys.' Fees, Reimb. of Expenses & Incentive Payments, In re Static Random Access Memory (SRAM) Antitrust Litig., No. 07-md-1819-CW (N.D. Cal. Oct. 14, 2011), ECF No. 1407 (33 percent awarded to IPP counsel); Id. at ECF No. 1375 (showing that 33 percent awarded, $41.322 million, was 15% of possible damages estimated by IPPs' expert in SRAM); In re Corel Corp., Inc. Secs. Litig., 293 F. Supp. 2d 484, 489-90, 498 (E.D. Pa. 2003) (1/3 fee awarded from settlement fund that comprised about 15% of damages).

fund, the Ninth Circuit has held that the value of nonmonetary relief should be considered as a "'relevant circumstance' in determining what percentage of the common fund class counsel should receive as attorneys' fees, rather than as part of the fund itself."[29] Indeed, the Ninth Circuit has held that "whether counsel's performance 'generated benefits beyond the cash settlement fund'" is an independent factor "courts may consider in assessing a request for attorneys' fees that was calculated using the percentage-of-recovery method."[30] Courts have cited non-monetary relief obtained in settlements as a factor supporting an upward departure from the 25 percent benchmark.[31] As attested to by the Named Plaintiffs, the broad benefits of the SBP, including the Settlement locking in the program for an additional three years, is of substantial value to the Settlement Class and other developers as well.[32]

This is not the only valuable structural relief obtained by the Settlement. As set forth in more detail in the preliminary approval motion, and in the declarations of the Named Plaintiffs accompanying that motion, commitments in the Settlement to improve app discoverability, pricing freedom, app review, and transparency will all assist the Settlement Class in monetizing and distributing their apps.[33] To provide one example, as Class Counsel and Counsel for Apple discussed with the Court at the preliminary approval hearing, Apple's commitment to publishing an annual transparency report will provide developers with objective data on, inter alia, search queries and results, so that developers can determine whether Apple is making meaningful improvements

[29] Staton, 327 F.3d at 974.

[30] Online DVD, 779 F.3d at 954-55 (quoting Vizcaino, 290 F.3d at 1049).

[31] See, e.g., Vizcaino, 290 F.3d at 1049 (awarding counsel 28% of the cash settlement fund and explaining: "During the litigation, Microsoft agreed to hire roughly 3000 class members as regular employees and to change its personnel classification practices . . . ."); Larsen v. Trader Joe's Co., 2014 WL 3404531, at *9 (N.D. Cal. July 11, 2014) (awarding counsel 28% and discussing that "[t]he settlement agreement also provides the equitable relief that Trader Joe's will stop using the disputed labels.")).

[32] See ECF No. 396 at 5-6, 12-13 (citing Declaration of Named Plaintiff Pure Sweat Basketball's CEO, Richard Czeslawski).

[33] See id. at 5-8.

to the search and discoverability of apps, common issues raised by developers.[34]

The Settlement also secured Apple's commitment to permit outside-app communications—specifically authorizing developers of all apps to alert customers to alternative payment mechanisms—which will confer additional economic benefits on the Settlement Class.[35] By informing customers of alternative payment options, developers can avoid paying Apple's commissions and, moreover, exert competitive pressure on Apple to discipline its pricing. Mr. Czeslawski—Named Plaintiffs Pure Sweat Basketball's CEO—considers this a "game changer" because the "ability to effectively communicate with [his] customers is the lifeblood of [his] business."[36] In its preliminary approval order, this Court "f[ound] [that] these structural benefits are valuable to the settlement class."[37]

b. This case posed enormous risks and challenges.

That this recovery was obtained despite the case's risks, challenges, and complexities also supports the reasonableness of the fee request.[38] As this Court knows, "[a]ntitrust cases are particularly risky, challenging, and widely acknowledge[d] to be among the most complex actions to prosecute."[39] "The 'best' case can be lost and the 'worst' case can be won, and juries may find liability but no damages. None of these risks should be underestimated."[40] And this case was [34] See ECF No. 451-1 at § 5.1.6; Nov. 2, 2021 Hr'g Tr. ("Prelim. Approval Hr'g Tr.") at 6-7. At the hearing, counsel for Apple and the Class committed to showing at final approval what the transparency report will look like, which Plaintiffs will do. See Prelim. Approval Hr'g Tr. at 6-7.

---

[35] See ECF No. 45-1 at § 5.1.3; ECF No. 459-7 at ¶¶ 23-24.

[36] See ECF No. 396-4 at ¶¶ 9, 12; see also ECF No. 459-7 at ¶ 24 (describing this structural relief as "a major change from Apple's previous policies [that] could bring substantial benefits to developers").

[37] ECF No. 453 at 5.

[38] See Online DVD, 779 F.3d at 955 (identifying this factor).

[39] Batteries, 2020 WL 7264559, at *15; see also In re Linerboard Antitrust Litig., 2004 WL 1221350, at *10 (E.D. Pa. June 2, 2004) (the "antitrust class action is arguably the most complex action to prosecute" (quoting In re Motorsports Merch. Antitrust Litig., 112 F. Supp. 2d 1329, 1337 (N.D. Ga. 2000)); In re Auto. Refinishing Paint Antitrust Litig., 617 F. Supp. 2d 336, 341 (E.D. Pa. 2007) ("[A]ntitrust class action is arguably the most complex action to prosecute. The legal and factual issues involved are always numerous and uncertain in outcome." (citation omitted)).

[40] Batteries, 2020 WL 7264559, at *15 (quoting In re Super. Beverage/Glass Container Consol. Pretrial, 133 F.R.D. 119, 127 (N.D. Ill. 1990)); see also Wal-Mart Stores, 396 F.3d at 118 ("Indeed, the history of antitrust litigation is replete with cases in which antitrust plaintiffs succeeded at trial on liability, but recovered no damages, or only negligible damages, at trial, or on particularly challenging and risky.

First, Plaintiffs' liability theories challenged core principles of Apple's business model in the iOS ecosystem, presenting novel and complex issues of antitrust law. Thus, Apple had every incentive to expend the enormous resources of one of the largest companies in the world defending this case, which it did. And if the Court disagreed with Plaintiffs' positions on these legal issues, that alone could lead to zero recovery for the Settlement Class.

Second, and relatedly, the bench trial of one developer's claims versus Apple (Epic's) presented many of the same legal issues as in the Developer Plaintiffs' case, and a trial outcome adverse to Epic could pose an obstacle to Developer Plaintiffs' ability to establish liability or substantial damages for any class of developers. At the time of settlement, Developer Plaintiffs had seen the full trial and understood the strengths of their case, but also recognized potential deficiencies in Epic's showing. The Court issued its Rule 52 post-trial order approximately two weeks after Plaintiffs reached the settlement with Apple, and that decision, which rejected Epic's Sherman Act claims, confirmed the hurdles that Plaintiffs would have faced in prevailing on the merits in this Court.

Third, at the time of settlement, Developer Plaintiffs had not passed the class certification threshold. Developer Plaintiffs presented a class certification motion supported by three outstanding experts, who had all been deposed by the time of settlement, and Plaintiffs had reviewed Apple's opposition to Plaintiffs' class certification motion. Plaintiffs believe that the strength of their class certification papers is one factor that led to the excellent monetary and nonmonetary relief obtained by the Settlement. However, Class Counsel also understood experience, including in the Batteries case, that class certification is never certain and that if the Court denied certification, counsel's likelihood of obtaining significant monetary or structural relief for developers would vastly decrease.

Class Counsel's ability to secure a large settlement fund and structural relief in the face of appeal." (quoting In re NASDAQ Market-Makers Antitrust Litig., 187 F.R.D. 465, 475 (S.D.N.Y. 1998)).

---

these risks supports the fee award requested.[41]

c. The market rate for antitrust class action lawyers supports the fee request.

Whether the Court holds that the percentage of fees sought from the common fund is 19.9 or 27 percent, both fall well within the market rate for class counsel in the "particular field of law," which often includes comparisons to the fee percentages awarded in analogous cases.[42] In a 2021 analysis for the 2020 Antitrust Annual Report, Professor Joshua Davis found that among antitrust class action settlements surveyed between 2009 and 2020, the median fee awarded for settlements between $100 million and $249 million was 30 percent—and only in the range from $250 million to $499 million (and higher) did that median fee percentages drop to 25% (here, the fee request is 19.9% if the common fund is considered $135.44 million and 27% if considered $100 million). See Berman Decl., Ex. 14 at 29. Professors Theodore Eisenberg, Geoffrey Miller, and Roy Germano found in an earlier 2017 study discussed in an NYU Law Review article (EMG Study), that of the 19 antitrust settlements surveyed between 2009 and 2013 with a mean recovery of $501.09 million and a median recovery of $37.3 million, the mean and median percentages awarded were 27 percent and 30 percent, respectively.[43]

In large antitrust class actions, courts within this district, including by this Court, have awarded fees exceeding what is requested here. Data from analogous cases show that Counsel's percentage fee request—whether identified as 27 or 19.9 percent of the common fund—is [41] The en banc court in In re Hyundai & Kia Fuel Economy Litigation, 926 F.3d 539, 571 (9th Cir. 2019) (alteration in original), noted that upward departures are not unusual in high-risk cases:

---

> We have affirmed fee awards totaling a far greater percentage of the class recovery than the fees here. See, e.g., Vizcaino v. Microsoft Corp., 290 F.3d 1043, 1047-48 (9th Cir. 2002) (no abuse of discretion to award fees constituting 28% of the class's recovery given "risk" assumed in litigating); In re Pac. Enters. Sec. Litig., 47 F.3d 373, 379 (9th Cir. 1995) (no abuse of discretion where the "$ 4 million award (thirty-three percent [of the class's recovery]) for attorneys' fees is justified because of the complexity of the issues and the risks").

[42] See Online DVD, 779 F.3d at 955; Vizcaino, 290 F.3d at 1049-50.

[43] Theodore Eisenberg et al., Attorneys' Fees in Class Actions: 2009-2013, 92 N.Y.U. L. Rev. 937, 952 (2017).

reasonable.[44] And counsel here obtained structural relief for the Class as well.

d. Counsel's litigation on a contingency basis supports the fee request.

The Ninth Circuit has held that a fair fee award should consider the contingent nature of the fee.[45] It is also well established that attorneys who take on the risk of a contingency case should be compensated for the risk they assume.[46] As the NCAA court recently explained,

> In short, contingent fees are good for clients and the public alike. In exchange for increased predictability, decreased bean counting, and unlimited protection against downside risks—including the risk of a zero[-]dollar recovery—a client agrees to pay its attorneys an enhanced fee if and only if the client recovers. And because contingent fees are almost always determined as a percentage of the client's recovery, such fees are necessarily aligned with and proportional to the results achieved for that client—in short, the client only pays for what it gets. Lest contingent fees disappear altogether, the law must recognize both sides of the bargain—namely, a significant upside fee for successful contingent representations.[47]

Class Counsel litigated this case purely on a contingency fee basis—with no upfront retainer fees or allowance for expenses. Berman Decl. ¶ 6. The contingent nature of Class Counsel's engagement incentivized counsel to both achieve excellent results for the Class and to do so as efficiently as possible. It also presented a very real risk that Counsel would receive nothing at all, including no reimbursement for the substantial cash outlays this case required for experts and other litigation expenses.[48] The market rate for contingency representation is generally 33 percent, [44] See, e.g., In re Lidoderm Antitrust Litig., 2018 WL 11375216, at *3 (N.D. Cal. Sept. 20, 2018) (27.5 percent for direct purchaser settlement); In re Cathode Ray Tube (CRT) Antitrust Litig., 2016 WL 4126533, at *1 (N.D. Cal. Aug. 3, 2016) (27.5 percent for IPP settlement); In re TFT-LCD (Flat Panel) Antitrust Litig., 2013 WL 1365900, at *8 (N.D. Cal. Apr. 3, 2013) (28.6 percent for IPP settlement); Order Granting Award of Attys.' Fees, Reimb. of Expenses & Incentive Payments, supra note 28 (33 percent for IPP settlement); Meijer, Inc. v. Abbott Labs. (Norvir), 2011 WL 13392313, at *2 (N.D. Cal. Aug. 11, 2011) (33 percent for direct purchaser settlement).

---

[45] See, e.g., Online DVD, 779 F.3d at 954-55 & n.14; Vizcaino, 290 F.3d at 1050.

[46] See In re Wash. Pub. Power Supply Sys. Sec. Litig., 19 F.3d 1291, 1299 (9th Cir. 1994); see also, e.g., Ching v. Siemens Indus., Inc., 2014 WL 2926210, at *8 (N.D. Cal. June 27, 2014) ("Courts have long recognized that the public interest is served by rewarding attorneys who assume representation on a contingent basis with an enhanced fee to compensate them for the risk that they might be paid nothing at all for their work.").

[47] NCAA, 2017 WL 6040065, at *4 (citation omitted).

[48] Id. at *5 ("[C]ounsel for the classes have spent more than three years investigating and litigating this case, without receiving any compensation to do so. Such burdens are significant, even for law firms of the stature of plaintiffs' counsel").

which further confirms the reasonableness of the fee request here.[49]

e. The burdens faced by Class Counsel support the fee request.

The Ninth Circuit instructs district courts to consider the burdens class counsel experienced while litigating the case (e.g., cost, duration, and foregoing other work). This litigation has been pending for two-and-a-half years. As explained in Section V.A.2, infra, Class Counsel has advanced substantial sums out-of-pocket (more than $3.71 million) and devoted substantial time to this litigation—20,531 hours, for a lodestar of more than $10.92 million—and foregone other work while litigating this case. Berman Decl., ¶ 6.

2. A lodestar cross-check confirms the reasonableness of the requested fees.

The Ninth Circuit has held that "a crosscheck using the lodestar method can confirm that a percentage of recovery amount does not award counsel an exorbitant hourly rate."[50] Here, Class Counsel invested 20,531 hours, representing $10,923,265 in attorneys' fees, in this litigation. This does not include time on this fee motion, and the lodestar will increase through final approval, distribution of the settlement funds, and any appeals. Plaintiffs' fee request equates to a 2.47 multiplier of the current lodestar, which is within the range of multipliers awarded in similar cases.

Lodestar is calculated "by multiplying the number of hours the prevailing party reasonably expended on the litigation (as supported by adequate documentation) by a reasonable hourly rate for the region and for the experience of the lawyer."[51] The lodestar calculation here is reasonable. First, Class Counsel's current billing rates, summarized in each firm's declaration, are within the [49] Vizcaino, 290 F.3d at 1049 (explaining that fees requested were at or below "the standard contingency fee for similar cases," supporting the reasonableness of the request); F. Patrick Hubbard, Substantive Due Process Limits on Punitive Damages Awards: "Morals Without Technique"?, 60 Fla. L. Rev. 349, 383 (2008) (discussing "'the usual 33-40 percent contingent fee'" (quoting Mathias v. Accor Econ. Lodging, Inc., 347 F.3d 672, 677 (7th Cir. 2003))); Herbert M. Kritzer, The Wages of Risk: The Returns of Contingency Fee Legal Practice, 47 DePaul L. Rev. 267, 286 (1998) (reporting the results of a survey of Wisconsin lawyers, which found that "[o]f the cases with a [fee calculated as a] fixed percentage [of the recovery], a contingency fee of 33% was by far the most common, accounting for 92% of those cases"); Hopkins v. Stryker Sales Corp., 2013 WL 496358, at *3 (N.D. Cal. Feb. 6, 2013) (awarding 30% fee because the "case was conducted on an entirely contingent fee basis against a well-represented Defendant").

[50] Online DVD, 779 F.3d at 949 (internal quotation marks and citation omitted).

[51] Bluetooth, 654 F.3d at 941.

range that have been approved as reasonable by courts in this judicial district.[52] Second, the lodestar in this case reflects the meaningful steps that Lead Class Counsel took to ensure that Class Counsel's work was efficient, and the hours expended for only reasonable and necessary work. Lead Class Counsel, Hagens Berman, limited work on this case to only five firms, with 60.5 percent of the hours billed by Lead Class Counsel. Berman Decl. Ex. 6. Class Counsel also audited the hours included in the lodestar, deleting potentially duplicative, less efficient, or non-compensable time. Id. ¶ 46. Lastly, this lodestar is supported by detailed time records. Id. ¶ 44.

A court may give an upwards adjustment to a lodestar (through a positive multiplier) to reflect a host of "reasonableness" factors, including: (1) the amount involved and the results obtained, (2) the time and labor required, (3) the novelty and difficulty of the questions involved, (4) the skill requisite to perform the legal service properly, (5) the preclusion of other employment by the attorney due to acceptance of the case, (6) the customary fee, (7) the experience, reputation, and ability of the attorneys, and (8) awards in similar cases.[53] These are referred to as the Kerr "reasonableness" factors after the Ninth Circuit's opinion in Kerr v. Screen Extras Guild, Inc., 526 F.2d 67, 70 (9th Cir. 1975).[54] Each of these factors supports the requested multiplier of 2.47.

Results for the Class. The first factor—"benefit obtained for the class"—is the most [52] Berman Decl., Ex. 1; Saveri Decl., Ex. 2; Jagher Decl., Ex. B; Kelly Decl., Ex. A; Carroll Decl., Ex. B; see, e.g., In re Animation Workers Antitrust Litig., 2016 WL 6663005, at *6 (N.D. Cal. Nov. 11, 2016) (hourly rates ranging from $275 to $1,200 were "fair, reasonable, and market-based, particularly for the 'relevant community' in which counsel work" more than five years ago); NCAA, 2017 WL 6040065, at *9 (reputable survey of 2015 rates for California attorneys showed range of $200 to $1,080). Class Counsel's lodestar is based on the 20,531 hours they have invested in prosecuting this action, multiplied by the current hourly rates for the timekeepers that worked on this case, consistent with Ninth Circuit law. Berman Decl. ¶ 42; Stetson v. Grissom, 821 F.3d 1157, 1166 (9th Cir. 2016) ("The lodestar should be computed either using an hourly rate that reflects the prevailing rate as of the date of the fee request, to compensate class counsel for delays in payment inherent in contingency-fee cases, or using historical rates and compensating for delays with a prime-rate enhancement."); Stanger v. China Elec. Motor, Inc., 812 F.3d 734, 740 (9th Cir. 2016) (same, holding that it is an abuse of discretion for a district court to calculate lodestar otherwise).

[53] Bluetooth, 654 F.3d at 941-42.

[54] The Supreme Court has since called into question the relevance of two of the original Kerr factors: the contingent nature of the fee, and the "desirability" of the case. See Resurrection Bay Conserv. Alliance v. City of Seward, 640 F.3d 1087, 1095 n.5 (9th Cir. 2011). Other factors such as "time limitations imposed by the client or the circumstances" and "the nature and length of the professional relationship with the client" do not readily apply here.

important consideration in assessing fees.[55] As outlined above (see supra, Section V.A.1.a), Class Counsel obtained exceptional results, including a substantial monetary recovery, as well as several important structural reforms. These results alone support an upwards lodestar adjustment.

Counsel's Expenditure of Resources. Class Counsel has devoted substantial resources to this case during the pendency of more than two years of litigation. Class Counsel prevailed on seven fiercely contested motions to compel, leading to the discovery of documents and data critical to Developer Plaintiffs' case. Class Counsel also took the depositions of fifteen Apple employees, including some of highest-ranking Apple executives, and elicited testimony that was relied on in Plaintiffs' class certification motion. Class Counsel and their dedicated team also reviewed millions of pages of documents produced by Apple and subpoenaed third parties. This same team gathered an enormous amount of evidence that was used in support of Developer Plaintiffs' comprehensive motion for class certification and the supporting expert reports.

Attorneys and professionals at Class Counsel's firms have spent 20,531 hours working on this case toward the lodestar of $10,923,265 (no hours in connection with this fee motion are being counted toward the lodestar). See Berman Decl. ¶ 42, Ex. 6. Class Counsel also has $3,713,173.84 in unreimbursed expenses. See id. ¶ 52, Exs. 4 & 7.

Comparison to other cases. The sixth and eighth Kerr factors—the customary fee and awards in similar cases—both support Class Counsel's fee request. Class Counsel's requested lodestar multiplier of 2.47 is within the range of multipliers approved in this district and affirmed by the Ninth Circuit.[56] For example, in Vizcaino, the Ninth Circuit upheld a 28% fee award that constituted a 3.65 multiplier. The court also surveyed the multipliers applied in common fund settlements between $50 and $200 million, and found that 20 of the 24 cases it surveyed had a [56] See, e.g., Steiner v. Am. Broad. Co., Inc., 248 F. App'x 780, 783 (9th Cir. 2007) (affirming fee award with multiplier of 6.85 as "fall[ing] well within the range of multipliers that courts have allowed"); Perez, 2021 WL 4503314, at *5 (approving fees of 37% of $75 million settlement fund, a lodestar multiplier of 4.8); Steinfeld v. Discover Fin. Servs., 2014 WL 1309692, at *2 (N.D. Cal. Mar. 31, 2014) (approving fee that resulted in a 3.5 multiplier); Dyer v. Wells Fargo Bank, N.A., 303 F.R.D. 326, 334 (N.D. Cal. 2014) (finding a 2.83 multiplier appropriate).

[55] Bluetooth, 654 F.3d at 942.

multiplier between 1.0 and 4.0.[57] Similarly, a decision in the Southern District of New York explained that "Courts regularly award lodestar multipliers of up to eight times the lodestar, and in some cases, even higher multipliers."[58] A recent empirical study of attorneys' fees in class action settlements found that the mean multiplier for recoveries greater than $67.6 million was 2.72.[59]

High Level of Skill Required. Class Counsel explained in detail in Section V.A.1.b, supra, that this case was risky and presented novel and difficult challenges that had to be met head on to achieve this Settlement. These risks include those that attend antitrust cases in general, widely acknowledged as some of the most complex cases. In addition, here Plaintiffs challenged the business model of one of the largest and most well-lawyered companies in the world, presenting novel and complex issues of procedural and antitrust law. Developer Plaintiffs also faced the added risk of being undercut by an adverse outcome in the Epic v. Apple trial, which would pose an enormous obstacle to establishing liability and proving damages. In the preliminary approval order, the Court explained that "it is particularly aware of the risks of trial in this case having tried and written a 185-page decision in the Epic Games v. Apple dispute." ECF No. 453 at 4.

Class Counsel has foregone other employment for this case. Hagens Berman dedicated a core team of experienced antitrust attorneys to this action, supported by attorneys and staff from only four other firms. The consequence of this is that several of these professionals worked nearly exclusively on this case and forwent other employment while doing so. Class Counsel have dedicated a total of 20,531 hours to this case, and many attorneys and other professionals have devoted many thousands of hours each. See, e.g., Berman Decl. ¶ 47, Exs. 1, 6. Counsel's choice to commit resources to the Settlement Class in lieu of other work supports the request for fees.

Class Counsel's Reputation. Class Counsel Hagens Berman, Sperling & Slater, Saveri &

---

[57] Vizcaino, 290 F.3d at 1050-51 & n.6.

[58] Beckman v. KeyBank, N.A., 293 F.R.D. 467, 481 (S.D.N.Y. 2013) (collecting cases); see also, e.g., Wal-Mart Stores, 396 F.3d at 123 (finding 3.5 multiplier reasonable); King Drug Co. of Florence v. Cephalon, Inc. (Provigil), 2015 WL 12843830, at *6 (E.D. Pa. Oct. 15, 2015) (awarding a $140.8 million fee equating to 27.5% of the settlement fund and a 4.12 multiplier); In re Aremissoft Corp. Secs. Litig., 210 F.R.D. 109, 134-35 (D.N.J. 2002) (awarding 28% of a settlement, resulting in a lodestar multiplier of 4.3).

[59] EMG Study, 92 N.Y.U. L. Rev. at 967.

Saveri, Freed Kanner, and Lynch Carpenter are among the most well-respected class action litigation firms in the country. The firms have been recognized in courts throughout the U.S. for their ability and experience in handling major class litigation efficiently and obtaining outstanding results for their clients. See Berman Decl., Ex. 13; Saveri Decl., Ex. 1; Jagher Decl., Ex. A; Kelly Decl., ¶ 2; Carroll Decl., Ex. A.

B. Lead Class Counsel requests authorization to distribute fees among Class Counsel.

Consistent with customary practice, including by this Court, Lead Class Counsel requests the Court's authorization to distribute any awarded attorneys' fees in a manner that, in the judgment of Lead Class Counsel, fairly compensates each law firm for its contribution to the prosecution of Plaintiffs' claims. "[F]ederal courts routinely affirm the appropriateness of a single fee award to be allocated among counsel and have recognized that lead counsel are better suited than a trial court to decide the relative contributions of each firm and attorney."[60]

C. The litigation expenses advanced were reasonable and necessary to secure the benefits obtained for the Class.

Counsel who have created a common fund for the benefit of a class are entitled to be reimbursed for out-of-pocket expenses reasonably incurred in obtaining the settlement.[61] As the Ninth Circuit has recognized, in class actions litigated on a wholly contingent basis, "litigation expenses make the entire action possible."[62] Here, Class Counsel's unreimbursed expenses were reasonably incurred and necessary for the litigation of the case. Berman Decl. ¶ 52. Class Counsel advanced these expenses, described in detail in the declarations of Class Counsel, interest free, and with no assurance that they would ever be reimbursed. Id.

---

[60] Hartless v. Clorox Co., 273 F.R.D. 630, 646 (S.D. Cal. 2011), aff'd in part, 473 F. App'x 716 (9th Cir. 2012); see, e.g., Batteries, 2020 WL 7264559, at *23 (Gonzalez Rogers, J.) (authorizing Co-Lead Counsel to allocate awarded fees and expenses among themselves and supporting counsel).

[61] See Vincent v. Hughes Air W., 557 F.2d 759, 769 (9th Cir. 1977); Omnivision, 559 F. Supp. 2d at 1048 ("Attorneys may recover their reasonable expenses that would typically be billed to paying clients in non-contingency matters." (citing Harris v. Marhoefer, 24 F.3d 16, 19 (9th Cir. 1994))).

[62] Online DVD, 779 F.3d at 953.

Expert witnesses constitute the largest expenditures, $3.37 million, or 89 percent of the expenses incurred. Id. ¶ 59. The work of these experts supported Plaintiffs' strong class certification motion, which is likely responsible in part for the excellent Settlement obtained. Other notable expenses include the creation and maintenance of an electronic document database, which hosted the voluminous discovery produced in this litigation, and deposition costs. Id. ¶ 57.

Reasonable litigation expenses in this case total $3,713,173.84. See Berman Decl. ¶ 52, Exs. 4 & 7. However, Plaintiffs only seek reimbursement of $3.5 million, the amount identified in the class notice. Class Counsel respectfully request that the Court approve reimbursement of these reasonable litigation expenses, to be deducted from the gross settlement fund.

D. Plaintiffs request that the two class representatives be awarded reasonable service awards to compensate them for their dedication to this case.

Plaintiffs request modest service awards for each of the two class representatives in the amount of $5,000 each. "[Service] awards are fairly typical in class action cases."[63] In the Ninth Circuit, service awards "compensate class representatives for work done on behalf of the class, to make up for financial or reputational risk undertaken in bringing the action, and, sometimes, to recognize their willingness to act as a private attorney general."[64]

In this case, the $5,000 service awards are well-deserved. Both class representatives are current App Store developers and took a significant risk by bringing an action in their names against one of the world's largest corporations. In addition, each class representative took his responsibilities seriously and devoted substantial time to the case. Apple deposed both class representatives, and each spent several sessions preparing for these depositions with counsel. Defendants also propounded 165 document requests and three interrogatories to each class representative. The class representatives provided valuable input throughout the case, reviewed pleadings, and, in consultation with counsel, reviewed and approved of the Settlement. In light of the value of the settlement proceeds and the class representatives' extraordinary service to the

[63] Rodriguez v. W. Publ'g Corp., 563 F.3d 948, 958 (9th Cir. 2009) (emphasis in original).

[64] Id. at 958-59.

Settlement Class and developers writ large, the requested awards are reasonable. Berman Decl. ¶¶ 61-65; Cameron Decl. ¶ 4-10; Czeskawski Decl. ¶¶ 4-10.

E. The Class received appropriate notice of Class Counsel's fee application.

Class Counsel's notice to the Settlement Class through the class notice and this motion for fees, expenses, and service awards has been sufficient to provide Class Members with an opportunity to review and evaluate this fee request prior to the deadline for objections.[65] The class notice advised Settlement Class Members that Class Counsel would seek attorneys' fees of "no more than 30% of the Small Developer Assistance Fund," costs and expenses of "no more than $3.5 million," and service awards "up to $5,000.00 from the Settlement Fund."[66] As required by the Court and described in the notice, this motion is being filed thirty-five days before the deadline for requests for exclusion or objections to the settlement.[67]

VI. CONCLUSION

For the foregoing reasons, Plaintiffs respectfully request an award of $27,000,000 in attorneys' fees, reimbursement of expenses incurred in the amount of $3,500,000, and $5,000 in service awards to each of the two class representatives.

DATED: February 14, 2022

HAGENS BERMAN SOBOL SHAPIRO LLP

By /s/ Steve W. Berman
STEVE W. BERMAN (pro hac vice)
Robert F. Lopez (pro hac vice)
Theodore Wojcik (pro hac vice)
1301 Second Avenue, Suite 2000
Seattle, WA 98101
Telephone: (206) 623-7292
Facsimile: (206) 623-0594
steve@hbsslaw.com
robl@hbsslaw.com
tedw@hbsslaw.com

[65] See In re Mercury Interactive Corp. Sec. Litig., 618 F.3d 988, 995 (9th Cir. 2010); U.S. District Court for the Northern District of California, Procedural Guidance for Class Action Settlements ¶¶ 6, 9 (updated Dec. 5, 2018), http://www.cand.uscourts.gov/ClassActionSettlementGuidance.

[66] ECF No. 453, Ex. B at ¶ 15.

[67] See ECF No. 453 at 7; see also Procedural Guidance, supra note 66, at ¶ 9.

Shana E. Scarlett (SBN 217895)
Benjamin J. Siegel (SBN 260260)
Ben M. Harrington (SBN 313877)
HAGENS BERMAN SOBOL SHAPIRO LLP
715 Hearst Avenue, Suite 202
Berkeley, CA 94710
Telephone: (510) 725-3000
Facsimile: (510) 725-3001
shanas@hbsslaw.com
bens@hbsslaw.com
benh@hbsslaw.com

Interim Lead Class Counsel

Joseph M. Vanek (pro hac vice) Eamon P. Kelly (pro hac vice)
Alberto Rodriguez (pro hac vice)
SPERLING & SLATER, P.C.
55 W. Monroe Street, 32nd Floor
Chicago, IL 60603
Telephone: (312) 676-5845
Facsimile: (312) 641-6492
jvanek@sperling-law.com
ekelly@sperling-law.com
arodriguez@sperling-law.com

R. Alexander Saveri (SBN 173102)
Cadio Zirpoli (SBN 179108)
Travis L. Manfredi (SBN 281779)
SAVERI & SAVERI, INC.
706 Sansome Street
San Francisco, CA 94111
Telephone: (415) 217-6810
Facsimile: (415) 217-6813)
rick@saveri.com
cadio@saveri.com
travis@saveri.com

Kimberly A. Justice
Jonathan M. Jagher (pro hac vice)
FREED KANNER LONDON & MILLEN LLC
923 Fayette Street
Conshohocken, PA 19428
Telephone: (610) 234-6487
Facsimile: (224) 632-4521
kjustice@fklmlaw.com
jjagher@fklmlaw.com

Douglas A. Millen (pro hac vice)
Brian M. Hogan (pro hac vice)
FREED KANNER LONDON & MILLEN LLC
2201 Waukegan Road, #130
Bannockburn, IL 60015
Telephone: (224) 632-4500
Facsimile: (224) 632-4521
dmillen@fklmlaw.com
bhogan@fklmlaw.com

Plaintiffs' Executive Committee

TAB 51A

IN THE UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
FOR THE EASTERN DISTRICT OF MICHIGAN
SOUTHERN DIVISION

IN RE AUTOMOTIVE PARTS ANTITRUST LITIGATION	:	Master File No. 12-md-02311
	:	Honorable Marianne O. Battani
	:
In Re: Wire Harness	:	Case No. 2:12-cv-00102
In Re: Instrument Panel Clusters	:	Case No. 2:12-cv-00202
In Re: Fuel Senders	:	Case No. 2:12-cv-00302
In Re: Heater Control Panels	:	Case No. 2:12-cv-00402
In Re: Bearings	:	Case No. 2:12-cv-00502
In Re: Alternators	:	Case No. 2:13-cv-00702
In Re: Anti Vibrational Rubber Parts	:	Case No. 2:13-cv-00803
In Re: Windshield Wiper Systems	:	Case No. 2:13-cv-00902
In Re: Radiators	:	Case No. 2:13-cv-01002
In Re: Starters	:	Case No. 2:13-cv-01102
In Re: Ignition Coils	:	Case No. 2:13-cv-01402
In Re: Motor Generators	:	Case No. 2:13-cv-01502
In Re: HID Ballasts	:	Case No. 2:13-cv-01702
In Re: Inverters	:	Case No. 2:13-cv-01802
In Re: Electronic Powered Steering Assemblies	:	Case No. 2:13-cv-01902
In Re: Air Flow Meters	:	Case No. 2:13-cv-02002
In Re: Fan Motors	:	Case No. 2:13-cv-02102
In Re: Fuel Injection Systems	:	Case No. 2:13-cv-02202
In Re: Power Window Motors	:	Case No. 2:13-cv-02302
In Re: Automatic Transmission Fluid Warmers	:	Case No. 2:13-cv-02402
In Re: Valve Timing Control Devices	:	Case No. 2:13-cv-02502
In Re: Electronic Throttle Bodies	:	Case No. 2:13-cv-02602
In Re: Air Conditioning Systems	:	Case No. 2:13-cv-02702
In Re: Windshield Washer Systems	:	Case No. 2:13-cv-02802
In Re: Spark Plugs	:	Case No. 2:15-cv-03002
In Re: Automotive Hoses	:	Case No. 2:15-cv-12893
In Re: Power Window Switches	:	Case No. 2:16-cv-03902
In Re: Ceramic Substrates	:	Case No. 2:16-cv-12194

THIS DOCUMENT RELATES TO
AUTOMOBILE DEALERSHIP ACTIONS

ORDER REGARDING AUTO DEALERS' MOTION FOR AN AWARD OF ATTORNEYS' FEES, REIMBURSEMENT OF LITIGATION EXPENSES, AND A SET ASIDE FOR FUTURE LITIGATION EXPENSES

The above matter came before the Court on the Auto Dealers' motion for an award of attorneys' fees, reimbursement of litigation expenses, and a set aside for future litigation expenses.

The Court has reviewed the memorandum submitted by the Auto Dealers in support of their motion and has also reviewed the various declarations and submissions relating to that motion. The Court held a hearing on November 16, 2016.

Based on the record and proceedings before the Court, it is hereby ORDERED:

1. The Court has considered the relevant case law and authority and finds that awards of attorneys' fees and reimbursement of expenses to the Auto Dealers and their counsel are appropriate under Fed. R. Civ. P. 23(h) and Fed.R.Civ.P. 54(d)(2). Notice of the request for fees and reimbursement of expenses was provided to the potential class members via direct and published notice and a settlement web site that identified relevant documents and pleadings.

2. The Court has considered the reaction of the class members to this fee request.

3. The Court engages in a two-part analysis when assessing the reasonableness of a petition seeking an award of attorneys' fees. In re Cardinal Health Inc. Sec. Litig., 528 F.Supp.2d 752, 760 (S.D. Ohio 2007). The Court first determines the method of calculating the attorneys' fees: it applies either the percentage of the fund approach or the lodestar method. Id.; Van Horn v. Nationwide Prop. & Cas. Inc. Co., 436 F. App'x 496, 498 (6th Cir. 2011).

4. The Court has the discretion to select the appropriate method for calculating attorneys' fees "in light of the unique characteristics of class actions in general, and of the unique circumstances of the actual cases before them." Rawlings v. Prudential-Bache Properties, Inc., 9 F.3d 513, 516 (6th Cir. 1993). In common fund cases, the award of attorneys' fees need only "be reasonable under the circumstances." Id., 9 F.3d at 516. The Court has also analyzed and weighed the six factors described in Ramey v. Cincinnati Enquirer, Inc., 508 F.2d 1188 (6th Cir. 1974).

5. The Court will award fees to the Auto Dealers using the percentage-of-the-fund approach. This method of awarding attorneys' fees is preferred in this district because it eliminates disputes about the reasonableness of rates and hours, conserves judicial resources, and aligns the interests of class counsel and the class members. Rawlings, 9 F.3d at 515; Shane Group, Inc. v. Blue Cross Blue Shield of Michigan, No. 10-cv-14360, 2015 WL 1498888 at * 15 (E.D. Mich. March 31, 2015); In re Packaged Ice Antitrust Litig., 08-MDL-01952, 2011 WL 6209188, at *16 (E.D. Mich. Dec. 13, 2011); Delphi, 248 F.R.D. at 502; Cardinal, 528 F.Supp.2d at 762 (the Sixth Circuit has "explicitly approved the percentage approach in common fund cases."); In re Skelaxin (Metaxalone) Antitrust Litig., 2014 WL 2946459, *1 (E.D. Tenn. Jun. 30, 2014).

6. The Court GRANTS the Auto Dealers' request for reimbursement of past litigation expenses in the amount of $450,046.88. The past litigation expenses incurred in specific parts cases involved in these settlements, as set forth in the declarations submitted by counsel for the Auto Dealers, shall be deducted from the settlement funds available in those cases. The past litigation expenses incurred in the general prosecution of the cases with settlements currently before the Court shall be reimbursed on a pro rata basis from each of the settlements.

7. The Court GRANTS the Auto Dealers' request to establish a fund for future litigation expenses in the amount of $9,978,474.16. The money used to create the future litigation fund shall also be deducted from the settlements on a pro rata basis. As indicated in the memorandum submitted in support of this motion, the future litigation expenses will only be used in the cases at issue in the settlements currently before the Court. If the future litigation fund is not fully used, the money shall be returned to the members of those settlement classes that contributed to the future litigation fund.

8. The Court authorizes class counsel for the Auto Dealers to pay the costs of the settlement notice and claims administration (being handled by Gilardi & Co.) from the settlement funds on a pro rata basis.

9. Counsel for the Auto Dealers request a fee award of one-third of the settlement funds remaining after the future litigation fund and the cost of class notice and claim administration have been deducted. The award requested is within the range of fee awards made by courts in this Circuit. In re Prandin Direct Purchaser Antitrust Litig., 2015 WL 1396473 (E.D. Mich. Jan. 20, 2015) (awarding one-third of the fund); In re Packaged Ice Antitrust Litig., 2011 WL 6209188, at *19; Skelaxin, 2014 WL 2946459, at *1; In re Southeastern Milk Antitrust Litig., 2013 WL 2155387, at *8 (E.D. Tenn. May 17, 2013); Thacker v. Chesapeake Appalachia, L.L.C., 695 F. Supp. 2d, 521, 528 (E.D. Ky. 2010); Bessey v. Packerland Plainwell, Inc., No. 4:06-CV-95, 2007 WL 3173972, at *4 (W.D. Mich. 2007); Delphi, 248 F.R.D. at 502-03; In re National Century Financial Enterprises, Inc. Investment Litig., 2009 WL 1473975 (S.D. Ohio, May 27, 2009); Kogan v. AIMCO Fox Chase, L.P., 193 F.R.D. 496, 503 (E.D. Mich. 2000). Other federal courts have approved fees in this range in complex antitrust class action litigation.

10. The Court has considered the six Ramey factors in weighing a fee award to counsel for the Auto Dealers: (1) the value of the benefits rendered to the class; (2) society's stake in rewarding attorneys who produce such benefits in order to maintain an incentive to others; (3) whether the services were undertaken on a contingent fee basis; (4) the value of the services on an hourly basis [the lodestar cross-check]; (5) the complexity of the litigation; and (6) the professional skill and standing of counsel on both sides. Ramey, 508 F.2d at 1194–97.

11. The Court has carefully analyzed the settlements and the Ramey factors and concludes that the factors are met and justify a fee award to counsel for the Auto Dealers. The settlements total nearly $125 million and provide substantial cash and non-monetary benefits including cooperation from the settling defendants and injunctive relief prohibiting certain conduct. Counsel has worked on a contingent basis and the results of this litigation have never been certain. The legal and factual issues are complicated and the parties have zealously asserted their claims and defenses. Given the length and tenacity of this litigation, the Court is satisfied that these settlements were the result of arms' length negotiations between informed and experienced counsel.

12. The Ramey factors and a cross-check of the lodestar incurred by counsel for the Auto Dealers indicate that the fee requested constitutes fair and reasonable compensation for the risks assumed, the work done, and the benefits achieved for the members of the settlement classes. The lodestar currently totals $48,406,942 when using counsel's customary rates. Using normalized and blended hourly rates presented in the brief submitted by the Auto Dealers with this motion results in a current lodestar of $41,136,875.

13. The Court GRANTS an award of attorneys' fees to counsel for the Auto Dealers in the amount of 20 per cent of the settlement funds. These attorneys' fees, totaling $24,946,196 shall be paid on a pro rata basis from the net settlement funds available for each settlement currently before the Court.

14. As the Court indicated during the hearing on this motion and at the November 16, 2016 status conference, the Court reserves ruling on the Auto Dealers' request for additional fees from these settlements. The Court may, or may not, grant additional fees from these settlements. Interim Co-Lead Counsel for the Auto Dealers are authorized to hold in reserve the difference between the fees requested in this motion and the fees currently awarded by the Court.

15. Using the lodestar cross-check methodology and reviewing the total fees awarded with the lodestar generated on these cases from the inception of the litigation to September 1, 2016, the 20 per cent fee awarded results in a negative lodestar multiplier when using counsel's customary rates and when using the normalized and blended rates. Such a multiplier is well within the range of reasonable multipliers awarded in similar contingent fee cases. This interim fee award is reasonable in light of the complexity of this litigation, the results achieved for the class members, the risks assumed by counsel for the Auto Dealers, and the work remaining to be done on these cases and for which fees may or may not be available.

16. Interim Co-Lead Counsel for the Auto Dealers are authorized to allocate the attorneys' fees awarded herein among counsel who performed work on behalf of the Auto Dealers in accordance with Interim Co-Lead Counsel's assessment of each firm's contribution to the prosecution of the cases involved in these settlements.

Date: November 29, 2016

s/Marianne O. Battani
MARIANNE O. BATTANI
United States District Judge

CERTIFICATE OF SERVICE

The undersigned certifies that the foregoing Order was served upon counsel of record via the Court's ECF System to their respective email addresses or First Class U.S. mail to the non-ECF participants on November 29, 2016.

s/ Kay Doaks
Case Manager

IN THE UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
FOR THE EASTERN DISTRICT OF MICHIGAN
SOUTHERN DIVISION

IN RE AUTOMOTIVE PARTS ANTITRUST LITIGATION	:	Master File No. 12-md-02311
	:	Honorable Sean F. Cox
	:
In Re: Wire Harness	:	Case No. 2:12-cv-00102
In Re: Instrument Panel Clusters	:	Case No. 2:12-cv-00202
In Re: Fuel Senders	:	Case No. 2:12-cv-00302
In Re: Heater Control Panels	:	Case No. 2:12-cv-00402
In Re: Bearings	:	Case No. 2:12-cv-00502
In Re: Alternators	:	Case No. 2:13-cv-00702
In Re: Anti Vibrational Rubber Parts	:	Case No. 2:13-cv-00802
In Re: Windshield Wiper Systems	:	Case No. 2:13-cv-00902
In Re: Radiators	:	Case No. 2:13-cv-01002
In Re: Starters	:	Case No. 2:13-cv-01102
In Re: Ignition Coils	:	Case No. 2:13-cv-01402
In Re: Motor Generators	:	Case No. 2:13-cv-01502
In Re: HID Ballasts	:	Case No. 2:13-cv-01702
In Re: Inverters	:	Case No. 2:13-cv-01802
In Re: Electronic Powered Steering Assemblies	:	Case No. 2:13-cv-01902
In Re: Air Flow Meters	:	Case No. 2:13-cv-02002
In Re: Fan Motors	:	Case No. 2:13-cv-02102
In Re: Fuel Injection Systems	:	Case No. 2:13-cv-02202
In Re: Power Window Motors	:	Case No. 2:13-cv-02302
In Re: Automatic Transmission Fluid Warmers	:	Case No. 2:13-cv-02402
In Re: Valve Timing Control Devices	:	Case No. 2:13-cv-02502
In Re: Electronic Throttle Bodies	:	Case No. 2:13-cv-02602
In Re: Air Conditioning Systems	:	Case No. 2:13-cv-02702
In Re: Windshield Washer Systems	:	Case No. 2:13-cv-02802
In Re: Spark Plugs	:	Case No. 2:15-cv-03002
In Re: Automotive Hoses	:	Case No. 2:15-cv-12893
In Re: Power Window Switches	:	Case No. 2:16-cv-03902
In Re: Ceramic Substrates	:	Case No. 2:16-cv-12194

THIS DOCUMENT RELATES TO AUTOMOBILE DEALERSHIP ACTIONS

ORDER REGARDING AUTO DEALERS' MOTION TO AWARD FEES PLACED IN RESERVE IN 2016 FOR ROUND TWO SETTLEMENTS

This matter came before the Court on the Auto Dealers' Motion to Award Fees Placed in Reserves in 2016 for Round Two Settlements in the above matters. The Court has reviewed the memorandum submitted by the Auto Dealers in support of their motion. The Court has considered the motion on the papers.

Based on the entire record of these proceedings and in consideration of all submissions and filings made with respect to Auto Dealers' current motion and their Round Two final approval filings and argument, and good cause appearing therefor,

IT IS HEREBY ORDERED:

1. The Court has considered the present motion and considered the filings and proceedings associated with the final approval of the Round Two settlements submitted by the Auto Dealers in 2016. See 2:12-cv-00102-SFC-RSW (ECF Doc. No. 514); 2:12-cv-00102-SFC-RSW (ECF Doc. No. 514-2); 2:12-cv-00102-SFC-RSW (ECF Doc. No. 514-3).

2. The Court adopts and reiterates its analysis of the Auto Dealers' request for an award of attorneys' fees for the Round Two settlements as set out in the Court's Order dated November 29, 2016. See 2:12-cv-00102-SFC-RSW (ECF Doc. No. 523).

3. After being provided adequate notice of the Round Two settlements reached in the Auto Dealer cases, no class member objected to or commented about the requested attorneys' fees equal to 1/3 of the Round Two settlement funds, after the costs of notice and claim administration had been deducted.

4. The Court GRANTS the motion currently before the Court and authorizes the award and distribution of the Round Two fees held in reserve by the Auto Dealers since 2016.

5. The Court finds that awarding counsel for the Auto Dealers a total fee of 30 percent of the Round Two settlement funds is reasonable and complies with the Ramey factors. The Court again references and adopts the findings it made in November 2016. See 2:12-cv-00102-SFC-RSW (ECF Doc. No. 523).

6. Interim Co-Lead Counsel for the Auto Dealers are authorized to allocate the attorneys' fees awarded herein among counsel who performed work on behalf of the Auto Dealers in accordance with Interim Co-Lead Counsel's assessment of each firm's contribution to the prosecution of the cases involved in the Round Two settlements.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

Dated: August 7, 2020

s/Sean F. Cox
Sean F. Cox
U. S. District Judge

TAB 51B

IN THE UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
FOR THE EASTERN DISTRICT OF MICHIGAN
SOUTHERN DIVISION

IN RE AUTOMOTIVE PARTS ANTITRUST LITIGATION	:	Master File No. 12-md-02311
	:	Honorable Marianne O. Battani
	:
In Re: Wire Harness	:	Case No. 2:12-cv-00102
In Re: Instrument Panel Clusters	:	Case No. 2:12-cv-00202
In Re: Fuel Senders	:	Case No. 2:12-cv-00302
In Re: Heater Control Panels	:	Case No. 2:12-cv-00402
In Re: Bearings	:	Case No. 2:12-cv-00502
In Re: Alternators	:	Case No. 2:13-cv-00702
In Re: Anti Vibrational Rubber Parts	:	Case No. 2:13-cv-00803
In Re: Windshield Wiper Systems	:	Case No. 2:13-cv-00902
In Re: Radiators	:	Case No. 2:13-cv-01002
In Re: Starters	:	Case No. 2:13-cv-01102
In Re: Ignition Coils	:	Case No. 2:13-cv-01402
In Re: Motor Generators	:	Case No. 2:13-cv-01502
In Re: HID Ballasts	:	Case No. 2:13-cv-01702
In Re: Inverters	:	Case No. 2:13-cv-01802
In Re: Electronic Powered Steering Assemblies	:	Case No. 2:13-cv-01902
In Re: Air Flow Meters	:	Case No. 2:13-cv-02002
In Re: Fan Motors	:	Case No. 2:13-cv-02102
In Re: Fuel Injection Systems	:	Case No. 2:13-cv-02202
In Re: Power Window Motors	:	Case No. 2:13-cv-02302
In Re: Automatic Transmission Fluid Warmers	:	Case No. 2:13-cv-02402
In Re: Valve Timing Control Devices	:	Case No. 2:13-cv-02502
In Re: Electronic Throttle Bodies	:	Case No. 2:13-cv-02602
In Re: Air Conditioning Systems	:	Case No. 2:13-cv-02702
In Re: Windshield Washer Systems	:	Case No. 2:13-cv-02802
In Re: Spark Plugs	:	Case No. 2:15-cv-03002
In Re: Automotive Hoses	:	Case No. 2:15-cv-12893
In Re: Power Window Switches	:	Case No. 2:16-cv-03902
In Re: Ceramic Substrates	:	Case No. 2:16-cv-12194

THIS DOCUMENT RELATES TO
AUTOMOBILE DEALERSHIP ACTIONS

AUTO DEALERS' MEMORANDUM IN SUPPORT OF MOTION FOR AN AWARD OF ATTORNEYS' FEES, REIMBURSEMENT OF LITIGATION EXPENSES, AND SET ASIDE FOR FUTURE LITIGATION EXPENSES

Gerard V. Mantese (P34424)
Mantese Honigman, P.C.
1361 E. Big Beaver Road
Troy, MI 48083
Telephone: (248) 457-9200 Ext. 203
gmantese@manteselaw.com

Interim Liaison Counsel For The Automobile Dealer Plaintiffs

Jonathan W. Cuneo
Cuneo Gilbert & LaDuca, LLP
4725 Wisconsin Ave., NW
Suite 200
Washington, DC 20016
Telephone: (202) 789-3960
jonc@cuneolaw.com

Don Barrett
Barrett Law Group, P.A.
P.O. Box 927
404 Court Square
Lexington, MS 39095
Telephone: (662) 834-2488
dbarrett@barrettlawgroup.com

Shawn M. Raiter
Larson King, LLP
2800 Wells Fargo Place
30 East Seventh Street
St. Paul, MN 55101
Telephone: (651) 312-6500
Facsimile: (651) 312-6618
sraiter@larsonking.com

Interim Co-Lead Counsel For The Automobile Dealer Plaintiffs

Statement of the Issues Presented

1. Should counsel for the Auto Dealers, who obtained nearly $125 million in this group of Auto Dealer class settlements, be awarded a portion of those settlements for attorneys' fees?

2. Should counsel for the Auto Dealers be awarded the unreimbursed out-of-pocket expenses they have paid in pursuing the cases in which settlements have been presented?

3. Should a portion of the settlement funds be used for future expenses incurred on behalf of the Auto Dealers in the cases involved in these settlements?

Controlling or Most Apposite Authorities

Blum v. Stenson, 465 U.S. 886, 104 S. Ct. 1541, 79 L. Ed. 2d 891 (1984)

Boeing Co. v. Van Gemert, 444 U.S. 472, 100 S. Ct. 745, 62 L. Ed. 2d 676 (1980)

In re Delphi Corp. Sec., Derivative & "ERISA" Litig., 248 F.R.D. 483 (E.D. Mich. 2008)

Rawlings v. Prudential-Bache Properties, Inc., 9 F.3d 513 (6th Cir. 1993)

Table of Contents

Page

Statement of Issues Presented i

Controlling or Most Apposite Authorities ii

Table of Authorities v

Background 1

A. Counsel for Auto Dealers Have Advanced Significant Resources to Obtain the Auto Dealer Settlements in this Litigation 2

B. The Settlements Were Reached After Arms-Length Negotiation and Adversarial Proceedings 7

Argument 7

I. Attorneys' Fees and Expenses Standard of Review 7

II. The Court Should Reimburse Class Counsel for Unreimbursed Past Expenses and Should Approve a Set Aside for Future Litigation Expenses 8

A. Reimbursement of Costs Already Incurred 9

B. Future Litigation Expenses 10

III. The Court Should Award Attorneys' Fees to Counsel for the Auto Dealers 11

A. The Court Should Again Use the Percentage-of-the-Fund Approach 12

B. The Fee Requested by Counsel for the Auto Dealers is Appropriate 13

C. Consideration of The Factors Used by the Sixth Circuit Supports The Requested Fee Award 18

1. Counsel Secured Valuable Benefits for Auto Dealers 18

2. Society Has An Important Stake In Rewarding Attorneys With Reasonable Fees in this Litigation 19

3. Counsel For The Auto Dealers Have Worked On A Contingent Basis 20

4. The Complexity of the Litigation Supports the Requested Fee 21

5. Skill and Experience of Counsel 21

6. A Lodestar Crosscheck Confirms that the Requested Fee Is Reasonable.....22

Conclusion 25

Table of Authorities

Page

Cases

B & H Med., L.L.C. v. ABP Admin., Inc.,
No. 02–73615, 2006 WL 123785 (E.D. Mich. Jan.13, 2006) 9

Bessey v. Packerland Plainwell, Inc.,
No. 4:06-CV-95, 2007 WL 3173972 (W.D. Mich. 2007) 14

Blum v. Stenson,
465 U.S. 886, 104 S. Ct. 1541, 79 L. Ed. 2d 891 (1984) ..... ii, 12

Boeing Co. v. Van Gemert,
444 U.S. 472, 100 S. Ct. 745, 62 L. Ed. 2d 676 (1980) ..... ii, 12

Heekin v. Anthem, Inc.,
No. 1:05-CV-01908-TWP, 2012 WL 5878032 (S.D. Ind. Nov. 20, 2012) 15

In re Air Cargo Shipping Servs. Antitrust Litig.,
No. 06-MD-1775 JG VVP, 2011 WL 2909162 (E.D.N.Y. July 15, 2011) 12

In re Air Cargo Shipping Serv. Litig. , No. 06-md-1775, 2015 WL 5918273
(E.D.N.Y. Oct. 9, 2015) 12

In re Ampicillin Antitrust Litig.,
526 F. Supp. 494 (D.D.C. 1981) 15

In re AremisSoft Corp., Sec., Litig.,
210 F.R.D. 109 (D.N.J. 2002) 15

In re California Micro Devices Sec. Litig., 965 F.Supp. 1327 (N.D. Cal. 1997)) 5, 10

In re Cardinal Health Inc. Sec. Litig.,
528 F. Supp. 2d 752 (S.D. Ohio 2007) ..... passim

In re Cardizem CD Antitrust Litig.,
218 F.R.D. 508 (E.D. Mich. 2003) 9, 14, 17, 18

In re Cincinnati Gas & Elec. Co. Sec. Litig.,
643 F. Supp. 148 (S.D. Ohio 1986) 14

In re Combustion, Inc.,
968 F. Supp. 1116 (W.D. La. 1997) 15

In re Delphi Corp. Sec., Derivative & "ERISA" Litig.,
248 F.R.D. 483 (E.D. Mich. 2008) ..... passim

In re Diet Drugs Prod. Liab. Litig.,
No. 1203, 2002 WL 32154197 (E.D. Pa., Oct. 3, 2002) 12

In re Processed Eggs Prods. Antitrust Litig., No. 08-md-2002, 2012 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 160764 (E.D. Pa. Nov. 9, 2012) 20

In re Fasteners Antitrust Litig.,
No. CIV.A. 08-MD-1912, 2014 WL 296954 (E.D. Pa. Jan. 27, 2014) 15

In re Flonase Antitrust Litig.,
951 F. Supp. 2d 739 (E.D. Pa. 2013) 15

In re Folding Carton Antitrust Litig.,
84 F.R.D. 245 (N.D. Ill. 1979) 17

In re Linerboard Antitrust Litig.,
292 F. Supp. 2d 631 (E.D. Pa. 2003) 10, 18

In re National Century Financial Enterprises, Inc. Investment Litig.,
2009 WL 1473975 (S.D. Ohio, May 27, 2009) 14

In re Packaged Ice Antitrust Litig., 08-MDL-01952, 2011 WL 6209188 (E.D. Mich. Dec. 13, 2011) ..... passim

In Re Polyurethane Foam Antitrust Litig.,
No. 1:10 MD 2196, 2015 WL 1639269 19

In re Prandin Direct Purchaser Antitrust Litig., No. 2:10-CV-12141-AC-DAS,
2015 WL 1396473 (E.D. Mich. Jan. 20, 2015) 2, 14, 21

In re Pressure Sensitive Labelstock Antitrust Litig.,
584 F. Supp. 2d 697 (M.D. Pa. 2008) 10

In re Prudential Ins. Co. of America Sales Prac. Litig., 148 F.3d 283 (3d Cir. 1998) 15

In re Ready-Mixed Concrete Antitrust Litig.,
No. 1:05-CV-00979-SEB, 2010 WL 3282591 (S.D. Ind. Aug. 17, 2010) 15

In re Se. Milk Antitrust Litig., No. 2:07-CV 208,
2013 WL 2155387 (E.D. Tenn. May 17, 2013) 14

In re Skelaxin (Metaxalone) Antitrust Litig.,
No. 2:12-CV-83, 2014 WL 2946459 (E.D. Tenn. June 30, 2014) 12, 14

In re Sulzer Orthopedics, Inc.,
398 F.3d 778 (6th Cir. 2005) 14

In re Titanium Dioxide Antitrust Litig.,
No. 10-CV-00318 RDB, 2013 WL 6577029 (D. Md. Dec. 13, 2013) 15

In re Telectronics Pacing Sys., Inc., Accufix Atrial "J" Leads Prods. Liab. Litig.,
137 F.Supp.2d 1029, 1046 (S.D. Ohio 2001) 14

In re Trans Union Corp. Privacy Litig.,
629 F. 3d 741 (7th Cir. 2011) 18

In re U.S. Bancorp Litig.,
291 F.3d 1035 (8th Cir. 2002) 15

In re Vitamins Antitrust Litig.,
2001 WL 34312839 (D.D.C. 2001) 15

In re WorldCom, Inc. Sec. Litig., No. 02 CIV 3288 (DLC), 2004 WL 2591402
(S.D.N.Y. Nov. 12, 2004) 10

Isabel v. City of Memphis,
404 F.3d 404 (6th Cir. 2005) 19

Kogan v. AIMCO Fox Chase, L.P.,
193 F.R.D. 496 (E.D. Mich. 2000) 14

Kritzer v. Safelite Solutions, LLC,
2012 WL 1945144 (S.D. Ohio May 30, 2012) 18

Lewis v. Wal-Mart Stores, Inc.,
No. 02-CV-0944 CVE FHM, 2006 WL 3505851 (N.D. Okla. Dec. 4, 2006) 15

Missouri v. Jenkins,
491 U.S. 274 (1989) 20

New England Health Care Employees Pension Fund v. Fruit of the Loom, Inc., 234 F.R.D. 627 (W.D. Ky. 2006) 15

Newby v. Enron Corp.,
394 F.3d 296 (5th Cir. 2004) 10

Pennsylvania v. Delaware Valley Citizens' Council for Clean Air,
483 U.S. 711 (1987) 20

Ramey v. Cincinnati Enquirer, Inc.,
508 F.2d 1188 (6th Cir. 1974) 7, 8, 15, 16, 19

Rawlings v. Prudential-Bache Properties, Inc.,
9 F.3d 513 (6th Cir. 1993) ..... ii, 2, 8, 12, 13

Shane Grp., Inc. v. Blue Cross Blue Shield of Michigan,
825 F.3d 299 (6th Cir. 2016) 22

Standard Iron Works v. Arcelormittal,
No. 08 C 5214, 2014 WL 7781572 (N.D. Ill. Oct. 22, 2014) 14

Thacker v. Chesapeake Appalachia, L.L.C.,
695 F. Supp. 2d, 521 (E.D. Ky. 2010) 14

Van Horn v. Nationwide Prop. and Cas. Inc. Co.,
436 F. App'x 496 (6th Cir. 2011) 7

Vendo v. Lektro-Vend Corp.,
433 U.S. 623 (1977) 17

Wal-Mart Stores, Inc. v. Visa U.S.A., Inc., 396 F.3d 96 (2d Cir. 2005) 17

Waters v. Intern. Precious Metals Corp.,
190 F.3d 1291 (11th Cir. 1999) 15

Williams v. Sprint/United Mgmt. Co.,
No. CIV. 03-2200-JWL, 2007 WL 2694029 (D. Kan. Sept. 11, 2007) 15

Rules

Fed. R. Civ. P. 23(h) 1, 7, 8

Fed. R. Civ. P. 54(d)(2) 1, 7

Secondary Sources

Alba Conte & Herbert Newberg, Newberg on Class Actions (4th ed. 2002) 14

MANUAL FOR COMPLEX LITIGATION (Fourth) (2004).....10

MANUAL FOR COMPLEX LITIGATION (Third) (1995) 13

Background

Persevering in this hard-fought litigation, counsel for the Auto Dealers have negotiated and presented a second group of settlements totaling nearly $125 million. While these settlements do not fully resolve the Auto Dealers' claims, they represent a substantial step forward: the settlements cover ten Defendant groups and 28 different parts. Like the first group of dealership settlements approved by the Court, these settlements also provide significant non-cash benefits, such as fulsome cooperation from the settling Defendants and injunctive relief prohibiting anti-competitive behavior. All of the net proceeds from the settlements will be paid to eligible new car automobile dealerships—unlike many class action settlements, there is no cy pres reversion to Defendants or third-party charities.

Auto Dealer counsel have zealously pursued this complex antitrust litigation and the Defendants have mounted aggressive defenses. Although Defendants' antitrust violations are indisputable, the Defendants have resolutely maintained that the Plaintiffs did not suffer an antitrust injury and that, even if they did, litigation classes cannot be certified. The settlements now before the Court provide substantial benefits to auto dealer class members and are remarkable in light of the Defendants' unflagging opposition.

Defendants have focused their discovery efforts on the Auto Dealer Plaintiffs and therefore the Court is familiar with much of the work done by counsel for the Auto Dealers. Responding to Defendants' nearly constant fusillade of discovery has required the Auto Dealers and their attorneys to devote an enormous amount of time and resources. Defendants have already taken well over 100 depositions of non-party Auto Dealers and continue to conduct the depositions of the class representatives.

Pursuant to Rules 23(h) and 54(d)(2) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, Interim Co-Lead Counsel for the Auto Dealers submit this motion in support of their request for: (1) reimbursement of litigation expenses already incurred in the cases involved in these settlements; (2) leave to set aside eight percent of the settlement funds for future litigation expenses; and (3) an award of attorneys' fees of $38,299,350 from the settlements (30.6% of the gross settlement proceeds). As discussed herein, the case law from the Sixth Circuit and other federal courts supports counsel's requests.

The Court has previously applied the "percentage-of-the-fund" approach for fees granted to the Plaintiff groups in this litigation. Counsel for the Auto Dealers again seek a fee award based on a percentage of the settlement funds that remain after the deduction of: (1) notice and administration costs, and (2) future litigation expenses. This approach is supported by Sixth Circuit precedent, see Rawlings v. Prudential-Bache Properties, Inc., 9 F.3d 513, 516 (6th Cir. 1993), and the requested award is well within the range of fee awards made by courts in this and other Circuits. See, e.g., In re Prandin Direct Purchaser Antitrust Litig., No. 2:10-CV-12141-AC-DAS, 2015 WL 1396473 (E.D. Mich. Jan. 20, 2015) (awarding one-third of the fund). Finally, a lodestar cross-check confirms that the amount sought is reasonable in light of the work performed and the results achieved for the class members.

In this group of settlements, counsel for the Auto Dealers have recovered more than twice the amount approved by the Court in the first group of dealership settlements. Since the first group of settlements, counsel have continued to pursue the litigation vigorously; succeeded in motion practice; reviewed, analyzed, and coded hundreds of thousands of documents provided by the Defendants; obtained cooperation from certain Defendants; attended and defended numerous depositions; and negotiated beneficial settlements. Counsel for the Auto Dealers have substantially prosecuted dealership claims, all on a contingent fee basis.

A. Counsel for Auto Dealers Have Advanced Significant Resources to Obtain the Auto Dealer Settlements in this Litigation.

The Department of Justice has described its investigation of the bid-rigging and price-fixing conspiracies at issue here as the largest criminal investigation it has ever undertaken. The DOJ has collected billions of dollars in fines from the Defendants. The conduct involves a large number of parts, affected models, and conspiring participants. Most of the Defendant groups have had one or more of their employees or corporate affiliates convicted of a serious crime in the United States, Europe, and/or Asia. The list of settling and non-settling Defendants' includes well-known companies that are dominant players in their industries.

Although the DOJ has prosecuted the criminal aspects of the price-fixing and bid rigging, it did not seek restitution for those injured by the conduct. The guilty pleas specifically note that "[i]n light of the availability of civil causes of action, which potentially provide for a recovery of multiple actual damages, the recommended sentence does not include a restitution order . . ." See, e.g., Plea Agreement, Yazaki Corp., United States v. Yazaki Corp., No. 2:12-cr-20064 (E.D. Mich. 2012), ECF No. 6. Thus, without these franchised actions, automobile dealerships affected by the Defendants' conduct would have been left without a remedy unless they any of them decided to sue these more than 100 Defendants in an individual case.

Antitrust litigation is inherently risky, with high stakes, and the outcome of this litigation has been far from certain. From the outset, counsel for the Auto Dealers worked on a contingent basis to advance the claims of automobile dealerships authorized by OEMs to sell new vehicles. While working efficiently, they could not have effectively represented these class members without the commitment of a substantial amount of time, effort, and money.

The Auto Dealers asserted damage claims under the laws of 30 states and the District of Columbia, as well as a federal claim for injunctive relief. Some states permit indirect purchaser actions under state antitrust laws; others permit them under state consumer protection laws; and others permit them under general laws of restitution. Nearly every Defendant moved to dismiss the Auto Dealers' claims, while others challenged personal jurisdiction. For the most part, the Auto Dealers prevailed on those motions.

Since 2011, some of the attorneys for the Auto Dealers have worked nearly full-time on this litigation. It has been and will continue to be a huge undertaking as the cases progress through discovery, to class certification, and then to trial if necessary. Counsel for the Auto Dealers have performed the following work to advance these cases:

- Research and investigation of the automotive parts supply industry and the sale of new vehicles through franchised automotive dealerships;
- Collecting information from a variety of sources, including the Department of Justice indictments, guilty pleas, and evidence that Defendants produced;
- Extensive research on the various aspects of the antitrust and other laws of more than 30 states and the District of Columbia, and drafting and editing the initial and amended complaints;
- Analyzed and prepared liability and damages claims against more than 100 Defendants;
- Collecting and analyzing information and discovery including voluminous discovery produced by the Defendants and third parties, such as the OEMs;
- Consultation with economic and other liability and damages experts;
- Drafting and negotiating key case-management documents, protocols, and stipulations;
- Review, in conjunction with the other plaintiff groups, of millions of pages of foreign-language and translated documents produced by the Defendants;
- Receipt of cooperation materials from amnesty applicants, and attending in-person proffers from amnesty applicants who disclose the details of the conspiracies;
- Drafting, preparing for, and arguing numerous oppositions to motions to dismiss;
- Drafting and opposing numerous discovery motions, motions to quash, and other discovery sought by the Defendants from the Auto Dealers;
- Negotiating dealership and discovery issues with defense counsel including innumerable meet-and-confer sessions, each of which required substantial preparation;

- Preparing correspondence with respect to timing, stipulations, and case planning issues;
- Corresponding and attending calls with dealership co-counsel regarding client discovery and trial preparation issues;
- Obtaining and analyzing documents and data from over 40 class representative dealerships, including many in-person trips to the dealerships;
- Locating, review, redaction, and production of nearly 1 million pages of documents from class representative dealerships;
- Exchanging information and coordinating with end-payor, direct purchaser, truck and equipment dealers, City of Richmond, California, Florida, and Ford counsel regarding various issues;
- Attending calls and meetings to help formulate OEM subpoenas and discovery from third-parties;
- Responding to hundreds of discovery emails from Defendants demanding Auto Dealer discovery;
- Innumerable telephone calls with Defendants regarding Auto Dealer discovery and motion practice before the Special Master and appeals to Judge Battani;
- Attending MDL status conferences with Judge Battani;
- Preparing for, traveling to, and attending more than 100 depositions of third-party automobile dealerships and class representative dealerships;
- Preparing for, traveling to, and attending depositions of Defendants and their representatives;
- Performing all the tasks necessary to reach these settlements, including formulating demands, negotiating, in some cases mediation, dozens of in-person meetings, exchange of drafts, preparing escrow agreements;
- Drafting settlement agreements, preliminary approval motions, and in some cases attend and argue preliminary approval motions;
- Receiving cooperation materials from settling Defendants, attend in-person proffers from settling Defendants who disclose the details of the conspiracies, and review and analyze cooperation materials from settling Defendants and incorporate that information into the ongoing case strategy; and

- Drafting notices, claim forms, and other settlement-related documents and consult with the special allocation consultant and claims administrator

(See generally, Raiter Decl.)

The Auto Dealers have been the primary target of Defendants' discovery efforts and have responded to countless discovery requests relating to nearly every aspect of an automobile dealers' business. Counsel for the Auto Dealers have weathered ongoing motions to compel, meet and confers, and innumerable communications from defense counsel about the Auto Dealers and their data, documents, and information. Defendants sought documents and data located on any computer, database, or back-up tape anywhere in the dealerships, as well as hard copy documents located all over the dealerships. Defendants also sought documents and other electronic data from the automobile dealership class representatives, including: (1) invoices documenting new car purchases; (2) hundreds of fields of dealership management system (DMS) data; (3) data from back-up media going back to 1999; (4) monthly OEM financial statements submitted by dealers to the OEMs for 15 years; and (5) documents located in OEM portals showing monetary and non-monetary incentives, promotions and rebates offered to customers purchasing new cars and showing incentives, promotions and rebates offered to the dealers and advertisements showing special offers, promotions and incentives on new car purchases advertised to customers. (Raiter Decl.)

Over the Auto Dealers' objection, the Defendants insisted on taking an unlimited number of depositions of non-party automobile dealerships. The Court granted the Defendants' request and Defendants have already taken more than 100 such depositions. Counsel for the Auto Dealers prepared for and attended these depositions, while at the same time defending the depositions of the Auto Dealer class representatives. (Raiter Decl.)

Counsel for the Auto Dealers have also invested considerable time, effort, and money in the prosecution of discovery and liability claims against the Defendants. This work has included the review, translation, and analysis of millions of pages of documents produced by the Defendants to the DOJ and to the Plaintiffs in this litigation. Counsel for the Auto Dealers have prepared the questioning and attended the depositions of Defendant representatives and have received numerous informal witness statements from cooperating and settling Defendants. Counsel for the Auto Dealers have received, analyzed, and put to use in the litigation the documents and other information received from the settling and cooperating Defendants. Finally, counsel for the Auto Dealers have worked with their experts in the preparation of the opinions and models that will be used to support class certification, damages, and at trial. (Raiter Decl.)

B. The Settlements Were Reached After Arms-Length Negotiation and Adversarial Proceedings.

In this second round of settlements, the Auto Dealers seek final approval of settlements with 10 different Defendants and their affiliates. These settlements involve Auto Dealer claims covering 28 different parts and total $124,730,980. The Auto Dealer Settlements at issue in this motion are listed by Defendant and by part in Appendix A to this brief.

These settlements were reached after substantial litigation and were negotiated by experienced counsel. Some of the Defendants involved in these settlements had been at the forefront of the defense of the Auto Dealer claims and had mounted vigorous defenses. The settlements were reached through lengthy negotiations and in each case, counsel was armed with transactional data, documents produced in discovery, cooperation materials, and a strong understanding of the claims and defenses. (Raiter Decl.)

Argument

I. Attorneys' Fees and Expenses Standard of Review.

Rule 23(h) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure provides that "[i]n a certified class action, the court may award reasonable attorney's fees and non-taxable costs that are authorized . . . by law." District courts may award reasonable attorneys' fees and expenses from the settlement of a class action upon motion under Fed. R. Civ. P. 54(d)(2) and 23(h). The court engages in a two-part analysis when assessing the reasonableness of a petition seeking an award of attorneys' fees. In re Cardinal Health Inc. Sec. Litig., 528 F. Supp. 2d 752, 760 (S.D. Ohio 2007). The court first determines the method of calculating the attorneys' fees: it applies either the percentage of the fund approach or the lodestar method. Id.; Van Horn v. Nationwide Prop. and Cas. Inc. Co., 436 F. App'x 496, 498 (6th Cir. 2011).

The court has the discretion to select the appropriate method for calculating attorneys' fees "in light of the unique characteristics of class actions in general, and of the unique circumstances of the actual cases before them." Rawlings, 9 F.3d at 513, 516. In common fund cases, the award of attorneys' fees need only "be reasonable under the circumstances." Rawlings, 9 F.3d at 516. The court will then analyze and weigh the six factors described in Ramey v. Cincinnati Enquirer, Inc., 508 F.2d 1188 (6th Cir. 1974); see also Rawlings, 9 F.3d at 516.

II. The Court Should Reimburse Class Counsel for Unreimbursed Past Expenses and Should Approve a Set Aside for Future Litigation Expenses.

The Court allowed a portion of the proceeds from the first group of settlements to be used to fund some of the ongoing litigation expenses for the cases involved in those settlements. Nearly that entire fund has been depleted to fund ongoing litigation expenses for the cases involved in those settlements. (See Declaration of Marie Thomas). However, because some of the settlements in this second group relate to different parts / cases not involved in the first group of settlements, counsel for the Auto Dealers have funded the expenses required to advance the litigation for those cases. Having achieved the settlements currently before the Court, counsel for the Auto Dealers should be awarded the amount of the unreimbursed litigation expenses incurred in the settled cases for which a set aside expense fund was not previously established.

Auto Dealers also request that the Court authorize counsel to set aside eight percent of the current settlement proceeds to be used for future litigation expenses in the claims remaining against the non-settling Defendants, to be used only in those cases / parts included in the current settlements. The requested amount to be set aside is $9,978,474.16, which would be deducted on a pro rata basis from the settlements. A table showing these deductions is set forth at Appendix B to this brief.

A. Reimbursement of Costs Already Incurred.

Unreimbursed litigation expenses incurred in the cases involved in the settlements should be awarded to counsel for the Auto Dealers. See, e.g., Fed. R. Civ. P. 23(h); In re Delphi Corp. Sec. Derivative & ERISA Litig, 248 F.R.D. 483, 504 (E.D. Mich. 2008) ("Under the common fund doctrine, class counsel are entitled to reimbursement of all reasonable out-of-pocket litigation expenses and costs in the prosecution of claims and in obtaining settlement, including expenses incurred in connection with document production, consulting with experts and consultants, travel and other litigation-related expenses." (Citation and internal quotation marks omitted.)); In re Cardizem CD Antitrust Litig., 218 F.R.D. 508, 535 (E.D. Mich. 2003); B & H Med., L.L.C. v. ABP Admin., Inc., No. 02–73615, 2006 WL 123785, at *3 (E.D. Mich. Jan.13, 2006).

The future litigation fund previously allowed by the Court totaled $2,947,395 and has been used to fund ongoing litigation expenses for the cases in the first group of settlements. That fund is nearly depleted following the payment of litigation expenses in those cases. (See Thomas Decl.). Counsel for the Auto Dealers have funded the expenses required to advance the litigation for the different parts / cases not involved in the first group of settlements and not reimbursed from the expense fund set aside from the first settlements. (Thomas Decl.; Raiter Decl.)

Counsel for the Auto Dealers should be returned the unreimbursed litigation expenses incurred to-date in the settled cases for which a set aside expense fund was not established. Counsel for the Auto Dealers have paid $450,046.88 in unreimbursed litigation expenses for the benefit of the settlement class members in those cases. (See Thomas Decl.; Raiter Decl.;

Declarations of Don Barrett, Jon Cuneo, Gerard Mantese, Dewitt Lovelace, Tom Thrash, John Kakinuki, Charles Barrett, Brian Herrington, and Pierce Gore). These costs included expenses related to experts, document gathering and production, domestic and international travel, and other reasonable litigation expenses. (Id.) These new unreimbursed expenses are properly awarded from this group of settlements and, in particular, from those settlements in the cases in which the costs were incurred.

B. Future Litigation Expenses.

Counsel for the Auto Dealers request that eight percent ($9,978,474) be set aside from these settlements and be used to pay future expenses only in cases in which the settlements before the Court have been reached. This Court has granted similar requests by the Auto Dealer, End Payors, and Direct Purchasers. Allowing a portion of the settlement funds to be used for future expenses is a well-accepted practice. See, e.g., In re Packaged Ice Antitrust Litig., 08-MD-01952, 2011 WL 717519, at *13-14 (E.D. Mich. Feb. 22, 2011) (approving class counsel's request to use proceeds from early settlement to pay litigation expenses); see also MANUAL (Fourth) at § 13.21 ("[p]artial settlements may provide funds needed to pursue the litigation . . . . "); In re Linerboard Antitrust Litig., 292 F. Supp. 2d 631, 643 (E.D. Pa. 2003) (concluding that a partial "settlement provides class plaintiffs with an immediate financial recovery that ensures funding to pursue the litigation against the non-settling defendants"); Newby v. Enron Corp., 394 F.3d 296, 302-03 (5th Cir. 2004) (affirming 37.5% set aside for establishment of a $15 million litigation expense fund from the proceeds of a partial settlement); In re Pressure Sensitive Labelstock Antitrust Litig., 584 F. Supp. 2d 697, 702 (M.D. Pa. 2008) (approving request to set aside to pay outstanding and future litigation costs); In re WorldCom, Inc. Sec. Litig., No. 02 CIV 3288 (DLC), 2004 WL 2591402, at *22 (S.D.N.Y. Nov. 12, 2004) (creating a $5 million fund for the continuation of litigation against non-settling defendants); In re California Micro Devices Sec. Litig., 965 F.Supp. 1327, 1337 (N.D. Cal. 1997) (approving 7.9% of approximately $19 million settlement fund for future litigation expenses).

The Auto Dealers have spent approximately $4.5 million in reasonable litigation expenses to-date.[1] The size and complexity of this litigation has already necessitated very significant expenses, as set forth above, and, as the cases progress to class certification, the expenses—particularly those associated with experts—will increase exponentially. In antitrust cases, experts typically create economic and damages models that describe the mechanisms and impact of the anti-competitive behavior. Given the scope and complexity of the issues in these cases, counsel for the Auto Dealers expect that the future cost of this work by their experts will be in the millions of dollars. (Raiter Decl.)

In addition, the Auto Dealers expect to incur significant costs related to ongoing discovery from dealerships, OEMs, and the Defendants and their representatives. These costs include the significant expense of hosting and reviewing documents and data, as well as travel expenses for the many depositions that have yet to be taken. (Raiter Decl.) Counsel for the Auto Dealers therefore believe that the amount they are requesting be set aside for future expenses is reasonable.[2]

III. The Court Should Award Attorneys' Fees to Counsel for the Auto Dealers.

The Court has settlements before it totaling approximately $125 million for the benefit of the Auto Dealers. Counsel for the Auto Dealers litigated these cases on a contingent basis, some for more than five years, and have spent thousands of hours in the cases in which settlements have been reached. Although the Court awarded fees from the first group of settlements, the work done by counsel for the Auto Dealers still exceeds the fees awarded. Counsel for the Auto Dealers request

[1] The Court previously awarded reimbursement of approximately $1.6 million in expenses that counsel for the Auto Dealers had advanced and allowed a fund of approximately $2.9 million for future expenses.

[2] Like their prior request for a future expense set aside, the Auto Dealers will use these funds for only the cases involved in this second group of settlements. Unspent money would be returned to the funds used to pay class member claims.

an interim award of attorneys' fees based on the work done to achieve these settlements, which includes work performed prior to the Auto Dealers' first group of settlements.

Fee awards for settlements like these are appropriate in large-scale litigation in which settlements are reached periodically. See In re Air Cargo Shipping Servs. Antitrust Litig., No. 06-MD-1775 JG VVP, 2011 WL 2909162, at *5–7 (E.D.N.Y. July 15, 2011) (interim fee award granted); In re Sterling Foster & Company, Inc. Sec. Litig., 238 F. Supp. 2d 480, 484-85, 489-90 (E.D.N.Y. 2002) (interim attorneys' fees awarded). Counsel for the Auto Dealers have litigated these cases for five years and will continue to vigorously represent the interests of the dealership class members. An award of fees on these settlements is appropriate. See In re Air Cargo Shipping Serv. Litig. , No. 06-md-1775, 2015 WL 5918273 (E.D.N.Y. Oct. 9, 2015) (awarding fourth round of interim fees); In re Diet Drugs Prod. Liab. Litig., No. 1203, 2002 WL 32154197, at *12 (E.D. Pa., Oct. 3, 2002) (awarding an interim fee after four years of litigation, noting that "to make them wait any longer for at least some award would be grossly unfair").

A. The Court Should Again Use the Percentage-of-the-Fund Approach.

The Supreme Court recognizes that "a litigant or a lawyer who recovers a common fund for the benefit of persons other than himself or his client is entitled to a reasonable attorney's fee from the fund as a whole." Boeing Co. v. Van Gemert, 444 U.S. 472, 478, 100 S. Ct. 745, 62 L. Ed. 2d 676 (1980); see also Delphi, 248 F.R.D. at 502. When calculating attorneys' fees under the common fund doctrine, "a reasonable fee is based on a percentage of the fund bestowed on the class." Blum v. Stenson, 465 U.S. 886, 900 n.16, 104 S. Ct. 1541, 79 L. Ed. 2d 891 (1984).

The Court has previously awarded fees in this litigation using the percentage-of-the-fund approach and counsel for the Auto Dealers believe that the same method should be applied to this second group of settlements. The courts in this Circuit have expressed a preference for this method of awarding attorneys' fees because it eliminates disputes about the reasonableness of rates and hours, conserves judicial resources, and aligns the interests of class counsel and the class members. See, e.g., Rawlings, 9 F.3d at 515; In re Packaged Ice Antitrust Litig., 08-MDL-01952, 2011 WL 6209188, at *16 (E.D. Mich. Dec. 13, 2011); Delphi, 248 F.R.D. at 502; Cardinal, 528 F. Supp. 2d at 762 (the Sixth Circuit has "explicitly approved the percentage approach in common fund cases"); In re Skelaxin (Metaxalone) Antitrust Litig., No. 2:12-CV-83, 2014 WL 2946459, at *1 (E.D. Tenn. June 30, 2014) ("the lodestar method is cumbersome; the percentage-of-the-fund approach more accurately reflects the result achieved; and the percentage-of-the-fund approach has the virtue of reducing the incentive for plaintiffs' attorneys to over-litigate or 'churn' cases.") (citations omitted).

The lodestar method, on the other hand, "has been criticized for being too time-consuming of scarce judicial resources," as it requires that courts "pore over time sheets, arrive at a reasonable hourly rate, and consider numerous factors in deciding whether to award a multiplier." Rawlings, 9 F.3d at 516-17. In re Cardizem CD Antitrust Ltig., 218 F.R.D. 508, 532 (E.D. Mich. 2003) ("the lodestar method is too cumbersome and time-consuming of the resources of the Court" and "more importantly, the `percentage of the fund' approach more accurately reflects the result achieved."); see also Fournier v. PFS Invs., Inc., 997 F.Supp. 828, 831-32 (E.D. Mich. 1998) (the percentage of recovery method "allows for a more accurate approximation of a reasonable award of fees.").

Moreover, "[w]ith the emphasis it places on the number of hours expended by counsel rather than the results obtained, it also provides incentives for overbilling and the avoidance of early settlement." Id. at 517; see also Manual for Complex Litigation (Third) § 24.12 at 189 (West 1995). There is a "'trend towards adoption of a percentage-of-the-fund method in [common fund] cases.'" Delphi, 248 F.R.D. at 502 (quoting Rawlings, 9 F.3d at 516-517).

B. The Fee Requested by Counsel for the Auto Dealers is Appropriate.

The Court is well-versed with the complexity of this litigation; on just the cases at issue in these settlements, counsel for the Auto Dealers have worked for more than five years and have dedicated more than 77,000 attorney hours and 11,000 hours for paralegals and law clerks.[3] Among other things, Interim Co–Lead Counsel coordinated the efforts of counsel representing the Auto Dealers to maximize efficiency and to avoid duplicative efforts and unnecessary billing. (Raiter Decl.) They have also monitored counsel to avoid unauthorized work and have been mindful of the Auto Dealers' role in this litigation and the potential recoveries for their clients. (Id.)

Counsel for the Auto Dealers request that the Court award fees totaling one-third of the settlement funds remaining after the deduction of: (1) notice and administration costs, and (2) costs set aside for future litigation expenses.[4] Reasonable fee awards range from 20 to 50 per cent of the common fund. In re Telectronics Pacing Sys., Inc., Accufix Atrial "J" Leads Prods. Liab. Litig., 137 F.Supp.2d 1029, 1046 (S.D. Ohio 2001); In re Cincinnati Gas & Elec. Co. Sec. Litig., 643 F. Supp. 148, 150 (S.D. Ohio 1986); Alba Conte & Herbert Newberg, Newberg on Class Actions (4th ed. 2002), §14:6 at 551 ("Empirical studies show that, regardless whether the percentage method or the lodestar method is used, fee awards in class actions average around one-third of the recovery.").

Courts in the Sixth Circuit routinely approve attorneys' fees in antitrust class actions of one-third of the common fund created for the settlement class. In re Packaged Ice Antitrust Litig., 2011 WL 6209188, at *19; Thacker v. Chesapeake Appalachia, L.L.C., 695 F. Supp. 2d, 521, 528 (E.D. Ky. 2010); Bessey v. Packerland Plainwell, Inc., No. 4:06-CV-95, 2007 WL 3173972, at *4 (W.D. Mich. 2007); Delphi, 248 F.R.D. at 502-03; In re National Century Financial Enterprises, Inc. Investment Litig.,

[3] See Declarations of Jon Cuneo, Don Barrett, Shawn Raiter, Gerard Mantese, Dewitt Lovelace, Tom Thrash, John Kakinuki, Charles Barrett, Brian Herrington, and Pierce Gore.

[4] Although not sought here, precedent supports applying the selected percentage to the settlement fund before deducting the litigation costs and expenses from the funds. See, e.g., In re Sulzer Orthopedics, Inc., 398 F.3d 778, 780-82 (6th Cir. 2005) (affirming fee awards from a common benefit fund based on the gross settlement amount); In re Packaged Ice Antitrust Litig., 2011 WL 6209188, at *17 ("The fee percentage is applied to the settlement fund before the separate award of litigation costs and expenses are deducted from the fund."); Delphi, 248 F.R.D. at 505 (attorneys' fees awarded on gross settlement fund); In re Cardizem CD Antitrust Litigation, 218 F.R.D. at 531–535 (awarding costs in addition to percentage of the fund fee).

2009 WL 1473975 (S.D. Ohio, May 27, 2009); New England Health Care Employees Pension Fund v. Fruit of the Loom, Inc., 234 F.R.D. 627, 635 (W.D. Ky. 2006) ("[A] one-third fee from a common fund case has been found to be typical by several courts.') (citations omitted), aff'd, 534 F.3d 508 (6th Cir. 2008); Kogan v. AIMCO Fox Chase, L.P., 193 F.R.D. 496, 503 (E.D. Mich. 2000). For example, in Prandin, the court awarded one-third of a $19 million settlement fund and in Skelaxin, 2014 WL 2946459, at *1, the court awarded one-third of a $73 million settlement fund, finding that a "counsel fee of one-third is fair and reasonable and fully justified" and "within the range of fees ordinarily awarded." See also In re Se. Milk Antitrust Litig., No. 2:07-CV 208, 2013 WL 2155387, at *8 (E.D. Tenn. May 17, 2013) (one-third fee from settlements totaling $158.6 million and finding that 33 percent "is certainly within the range of fees often awarded in common fund cases both nationwide and in the Sixth Circuit").[5]

Fee awards of more than one-third are also common. See, e.g., In re Combustion, Inc., 968 F. Supp. 1116, 1133, 1142 (W.D. La. 1997) (awarding fee of 36 per cent and noting that "50 percent of the fund is the upper limit on a reasonable fee award from a common fund . . . . [D]istrict courts in the Fifth Circuit have awarded percentages of approximately one-third contingency fee"); In re U.S. Bancorp Litig., 291 F.3d 1035, 1038 (8th Cir. 2002) (fee of 36 percent); Waters v. Intern. Precious Metals Corp., 190 F.3d 1291, 1292-94 (11th Cir. 1999); In re Vitamins Antitrust Litig., 2001 WL 34312839, at *10 (D.D.C. 2001) (awarding one third of $359 million antitrust recovery, which is "within the fifteen to forty-five percent range established in other cases."); In re Ampicillin Antitrust Litig., 526 F. Supp. 494, 498 (D.D.C. 1981) (awarding fee of 45 per cent).

[5] The same is true in other districts. See Standard Iron Works v. Arcelormittal, 2014 WL 77815572, at *1 (N.D. Ill. Oct. 22, 2014) (attorneys' fee award of one-third of $163.9 million settlement); In re Fasteners Antitrust Litig., No. CIV.A. 08-MD-1912, 2014 WL 296954, at *7 (E.D. Pa. Jan. 27, 2014) ("Co-Lead Counsel's request for one third of the settlement fund is consistent with other direct purchaser antitrust actions."); In re Titanium Dioxide Antitrust Litig., No. 10-CV-00318 RDB, 2013 WL 6577029, at *1 (D. Md. Dec. 13, 2013) (one-third fee from $163.5 million fund); In re Flonase Antitrust Litig., 951 F. Supp. 2d 739, 748-52 (E.D. Pa. 2013) (noting that "in the last two-and-a-half years, courts in eight direct purchaser antitrust actions approved one-third fees" and awarding one-third fee from $150 million fund); Heekin v. Anthem, Inc., No. 1:05-CV-01908-TWP, 2012 WL 5878032 (S.D. Ind. Nov. 20, 2012) (awarding one-third fee from $90 million settlement fund); In re Ready-Mixed Concrete Antitrust Litig., No. 1:05-CV-00979-SEB, 2010 WL 3282591, at *3 (S.D. Ind. Aug. 17, 2010) (approving one-third fee); Williams v. Sprint/United Mgmt. Co., No. CIV. 03-2200-JWL, 2007 WL 2694029, at *6 (D. Kan. Sept. 11, 2007)(awarding fees equal to 35 per cent of $57 million common fund); Lewis v. Wal-Mart Stores, Inc., No. 02-CV-0944 CVE FHM, 2006 WL 3505851, at *1 (N.D. Okla. Dec. 4, 2006) (awarding one-third of the settlement fund and noting that a "one-third [fee] is relatively standard in lawsuits that settle before trial."); In re AremisSoft Corp., Sec., Litig., 210 F.R.D. 109, 134 (D.N.J. 2002) ("Scores of cases exist where fees were awarded in the one-third to one-half of the settlement fund.") (citations omitted); Moore v. United States, 63 Fed. CI. 781, 787 (2005) ("one-third is a typical recovery").

The one-third attorney fee (of the net proceeds) is also fair in reasonable in light of the work performed by counsel for the Auto Dealers, the results achieved, and the work undertaken. Since 2011, some of the attorneys for the Auto Dealers have worked nearly full-time on this litigation. As described earlier in this brief, counsel for the Auto Dealers have performed, and continue to perform, an enormous amount of work to achieve the settlements and to move these cases to conclusion. (Raiter Decl.)

C. Consideration of The Factors Used by the Sixth Circuit Supports The Requested Fee Award.

When using the percentage-of-the-fund approach, the Court will consider the six Ramey factors: (1) the value of the benefits rendered to the class; (2) society's stake in rewarding attorneys who produce such benefits in order to maintain an incentive to others; (3) whether the services were undertaken on a contingent fee basis; (4) the value of the services on an hourly basis [the lodestar cross-check]; (5) the complexity of the litigation; and (6) the professional skill and standing of counsel on both sides. Ramey, 508 F.2d at 1194-97. When applied here, these factors indicate that the fee requested is fair.

1. Counsel Secured Valuable Benefits for Auto Dealers.

The result achieved for the class members is the principal consideration. Delphi, 248 F.R.D. at 503. As discussed in the memoranda filed in support of the preliminary approval of the settlements, counsel for the Auto Dealers have achieved excellent recoveries. These are cash settlements coupled with meaningful cooperation and injunctive relief. The settlement funds totaling nearly $125 million represent a significant recovery for automobile dealerships that sell new vehicles in the indirect purchaser states.

After the deduction of fees, notice and claims administration costs, and expenses, all of the net settlement funds will be paid to eligible dealerships that file a valid claim. None of the money will revert to the settling Defendants or to a cy pres designee. Minimum payments of $350 will be made to eligible dealerships that file a claim for new vehicles and parts purchased in the indirect purchaser states. In addition to the money benefits, the cooperation terms of these settlements provide significant value to Auto Dealers in their prosecution of the claims against non-settling Defendants.

With this second group of settlements, nearly $184 million has been recovered for the benefit of members of the Auto Dealer settlement classes who are eligible to receive money benefits. The monetary recovery alone is substantial but, when coupled with the cooperation and injunctive relief, the value of these settlements is considerable.

2. Society Has An Important Stake in Rewarding Attorneys With Reasonable Fees In This Litigation.

There is a "need in making fee awards to encourage attorneys to bring class actions to vindicate public policy (e.g., the antitrust laws) as well as the specific rights of private individuals." In re Folding Carton Antitrust Litig., 84 F.R.D. 245, 260 (N.D. Ill. 1979). Courts in the Sixth Circuit weigh "society's stake in rewarding attorneys who [win favorable outcomes in antitrust class actions] in order to maintain an incentive to others . . . . Society's stake in rewarding attorneys who can produce such benefits in complex litigation such as in the case at bar counsels in favor of a generous fee . . . . Society also benefits from the prosecution and settlement of private antitrust litigation." In re Cardizem, 218 F.R.D. at 534 (internal quotation marks omitted); see Ramey, 508 F.2d at 1196; Delphi, 248 F.R.D. at 504; see also Declaration of Arthur J. Miller, 2:12-md-02311-MOB-MKM,

Doc. # 1398-1; Declaration of Frank J. Kelley, 2:12-md-02311-MOB-MKM, Doc. # 1398-2. Without the willingness of counsel to assume the risks inherent to these cases (or in other cases of similar magnitude and complexity) the settlement class members would not have recovered anything, let alone the substantial recoveries secured here.

The Department of Justice did not seek restitution from the settling Defendants. Any recovery for Auto Dealers needed to come through the work of lawyers working on a contingent basis. The significant expenses, combined with the high degree of uncertainty of ultimate success, make contingent fees a virtual necessity for cases like these. Compensation in an amount appropriate to encourage skilled attorneys to assume the risks of this litigation is in the public interest. The substantial recoveries counsel for the Auto Dealers have achieved have helped serve the public policy of holding those who violate antitrust laws in the United States accountable. Society benefits when those who have violated laws fostering fair competition and honest pricing are required to reimburse affected consumers in civil proceedings. Vendo v. Lektro-Vend Corp., 433 U.S. 623, 635 (1977) ("Section 16 undoubtedly embodies congressional policy favoring private enforcement of the antitrust laws, and undoubtedly there exists a strong national interest in antitrust enforcement."); Wal-Mart Stores, Inc. v. Visa U.S.A., Inc., 396 F.3d 96, 122 (2d Cir. 2005) (concluding that it is "especially important to provide appropriate incentives to attorneys pursuing antitrust actions because public policy relies on private sector enforcement of the antitrust laws.")

3. Counsel For The Auto Dealers Have Worked On A Contingent Basis.

Counsel for the Auto Dealers have and will continue to pursue this litigation on a contingent basis. The risk inherent therein supports a reasonable fee award from a common fund. See In re Packaged Ice Antitrust Litig., 2011 WL 6209188, at *19 (risk of non-payment a factor supporting the requested fee). The contingency factor "stands as a proxy for the risk that attorneys will not recover compensation for the work they put into a case." Cardinal, 528 F. Supp. 2d at 766. Indeed, "'some courts consider the risk of non-recovery as the most important factor in fee determination.'" Kritzer v. Safelite Solutions, LLC, 2012 WL 1945144, at *9 (S.D. Ohio May 30, 2012) (quoting Cardinal, 528 F. Supp. 2d at 766). "[W]ithin the set of colorable legal claims, a higher risk of loss does argue for a higher fee." In re Trans Union Corp. Privacy Litig., 629 F. 3d 741, 746 (7th Cir. 2011). "This antitrust litigation, like all litigation of its species, promises to be extremely complex and time intensive and there is no question that if settlement fails, the Defendants will mount a strong defense." In re Packaged Ice, 2011 WL 6209188, at *19. The Sixth Circuit has held that the specific characteristics of a class action case can govern the appropriateness of a fee award. Rawlings, 9 F.3d at 516 (finding that the district court can determine the appropriate method for calculating attorneys' fees in light of the "unique characteristics of class actions").

The legal and factual issues surrounding these cases are extremely complex. Being rewarded only for success in litigation this complex creates a high degree of risk. The substantial risk undertaken by counsel for the Auto Dealers strongly favors the fees requested. Delphi, 248 F.R.D. at 503-54.

4. The Complexity of the Litigation Supports the Requested Fee.

The Court is well-familiar that "[a]ntitrust class actions are inherently complex . . . ." In re Cardizem, 218 F.R.D. at 533; In re Packaged Ice Antitrust Litig., 2011 WL 6209188, at *19; In re Linerboard Antitrust Litig., 292 F. Supp. 2d 631, 639 (E.D. Pa. 2003) ("An antitrust class action is arguably the most complex action to prosecute. The legal and factual issues involved are always numerous and uncertain in outcome.") (citations and internal quotation marks omitted).

Although any antitrust action is complex, the scale of this MDL litigation magnifies that complexity. The DOJ has described the anti-competitive conduct at issue here as the largest criminal cartel it has ever prosecuted. This litigation is decidedly complex given the numerous conspiracies and parts involved, the international Defendants, and the sheer magnitude of the conduct and regulatory investigations. This factor also supports the fee requested.

5. Skill and Experience of Counsel.

The skill and experience of counsel on both sides of the litigation is a factor courts consider in determining a reasonable fee award. In Re Polyurethane Foam Antitrust Litig., No. 1:10 MD 2196, 2015 WL 1639269 at * 7; In re Packaged Ice Antitrust Litig., 2011 WL 6209188, at *19. The Court has found Interim Co-Lead Counsel for the Auto Dealers to have the requisite skill and experience in class action and antitrust litigation to serve effectively as class counsel for the Auto Dealers. In assessing this Ramey factor, courts also look to the qualifications of the defense counsel opposing the class. Defense counsel here are also well-qualified and experienced antitrust and class action firms. The Court has seen first-hand the skill of the attorneys and the quality of the work done to represent their respective clients. This factor supports the fee being requested by counsel for the Auto Dealers.

6. A Lodestar Crosscheck Confirms that the Requested Fee Is Reasonable.

Some courts apply a lodestar "cross-check" on the reasonableness of the fee calculated as a percentage of the fund. Cardinal, 528 F. Supp. 2d at 764; In re Packaged Ice Antitrust Litig., 2011 WL 6209188, at *18. A lodestar cross-check is optional, however, and the Court is not required to engage in a detailed scrutiny of time records. Cardinal, 528 F. Supp. 2d at 767. The cross-check does not require mathematical precision and it allows the Court to rely on summaries submitted by the attorneys and not review actual billing records. In re Prudential Ins. Co. of America Sales Prac. Litig., 148 F.3d 283, 342 (3d Cir. 1998). Here, however, the time counsel for the Auto Dealers had to expend confirms that the fee requested is well "aligned with the amount of work the attorneys contributed" to the recovery, and does not constitute a "windfall." Id.

To calculate a reasonable fee under the lodestar method, the court determines the base amount of the fee by multiplying the number of hours counsel reasonably expended by their hourly rate. Isabel v. City of Memphis, 404 F.3d 404, 415 (6th Cir. 2005). In multi-district cases involving multiple cases and defendants, the courts consider requests for attorneys' fees from partial settlements by looking at all of the work done on those cases to-date. See, e.g., Air Cargo, 2015 WL 5918273 (granting fees from settlements with multiple defendants based on an analysis of all of the work done on the cases); In re Processed Eggs Prods. Antitrust Litig., No. 08-md-2002, 2012 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 160764, at *18 (E.D. Pa. Nov. 9, 2012) (granting motion for attorneys' fees from settlement with single defendant based upon all work on case to-date).

The law firms that have worked to advance the claims of the Auto Dealers have done so under the direction of Interim Co-Lead Counsel for the Auto Dealers. There has been an enormous amount of work done. Discovery has been extensive and Defendants have been relentless in their pursuit of discovery and motion practice directed at the Auto Dealers. Counsel for the Auto Dealers have received substantial cooperation provided by amnesty applicants and the settling Defendants and are using that information to prosecute the claims against non-settling Defendants. All the while, counsel for the Auto Dealers have been preparing to certify classes and bring these cases to trial.

Counsel for the Auto Dealers have vigorously prosecuted these case but have done so while being efficient and avoiding duplication. As shown in the declarations submitted with this motion, counsel representing the Auto Dealers and their professional staff have worked more than 89,000 hours in the cases involved in these settlements (up to September 15, 2016). (See Raiter Decl.;

Declarations of Don Barrett, Jon Cuneo, Gerard Mantese, Dewitt Lovelace, Tom Thrash, John Kakinuki, Charles Barrett, Brian Herrington, and Pierce Gore).[6]

To calculate a lodestar for this optional cross-check, Auto Dealer attorneys and their firms provided declarations that set forth the timekeepers, customary rates, and hours worked to advance the litigation for the Auto Dealers. The following table provides an aggregated summary of that lodestar:

Lodestar Using Customary Auto Dealer Rates
Category of Timekeeper	Number of Hours	Lodestar
Partner	31,685.44	$23,830,159.58
Associate	43,272.75	$21,315,006.67
Paralegal	11,604.70	$1,956,883.50
Of Counsel	2,668.85	$1,304,892.50
Total	89,231.74	$48,406,942.25

As an alternative way for the Court to calculate a lodestar for this optional cross-check, counsel for the Auto Dealers also provide the Court with the option to consider capped, normalized rates for the categories of time keepers performing the work. Although the Auto Dealer attorneys and their firms customarily charge higher rates, for purposes of the Court's lodestar cross-check, the Auto Dealers applied the following blended rates to each category of legal professional below:

Normalized Auto Dealer Rates
Category of Timekeeper	Rate	Number of Hours	Lodestar
Partner	$675	$31,685.44	$21,387,672.00
Associate	$375	$43,272.75	$16,227,281.25
Paralegal	$200	$11,604.70	$2,320,940.00
Of Counsel	$450	$2,668.85	$1,200,982.50
	Total	$89,231.74	$41,136,875.75

[6] Counsel have provided declarations and summaries of the time spent on this litigation. Unlike the lodestar-based fee request in Shane Grp., Inc. v. Blue Cross Blue Shield of Michigan, 825 F.3d 299 (6th Cir. 2016), the cross-check used in a percentage-of-the-fund request may be based on summaries of time spent by counsel. Cardinal, 528 F. Supp. 2d at 767; In re Prudential, 148 F.3d at 342.

Applying these normalized rates to the hours reasonably expended on the cases involved in these settlements yields a "lodestar" of approximately $41.1 million for the work done on these cases from their inception.[7]

The requested fee is $38,299,350, which represents one-third of the funds remaining after deducting the fund for future litigation expenses and the costs of notice and claims administration. (See Raiter Decl.) If applied to the gross amount of the settlements, the requested fee is 30.6% of the settlements currently before the Court. A chart that illustrates the pro rata reduction of those fees from the settlements at issue is provided with this brief as Appendix C.[8]

The Court previously awarded counsel for the Auto Dealers attorneys' fees of $18,500,168 for the initial group of Auto Dealer settlements. Adding that award to the fees sought here results in a total award of $56,799,518. Using that fee award total, and comparing it to the total normalized lodestar for the work done on the cases in which Auto Dealer settlements have been approved or for which final approval is currently being sought, results in a lodestar multiplier of time spent to-date on these cases of 1.38. Using the same fee award total, and comparing it to the total lodestar using counsel's customary rates for the work done on the cases in which Auto Dealer settlements have been approved or for which final approval is currently being sought, results in a lodestar multiplier of time spent to-date on these cases of 1.17.

Whether analyzed as a "cross-check" on the percentage-of-the-fund method—or under the lodestar method—the requested fee is reasonable. The requested fee represents a modest "multiplier" of either 1.17 or 1.38 of the lodestar. This multiplier is reasonable and much lower than [7] The use of current rates is appropriate to compensate counsel for inflation and the delay in receipt of the funds. Missouri v. Jenkins, 491 U.S. 274, 282-84 (1989); see also Pennsylvania v. Delaware Valley Citizens' Council for Clean Air, 483 U.S. 711, 716 (1987).

.

[8] The terms of the settlement with DENSO require, as a condition of finality, that the parallel End Payor settlement be approved by the Court. The Auto Dealers will, therefore, only disburse the attorneys' fees, expenses, and future litigation set asides on a pro rata basis from the other settlements until the End Payor settlement with DENSO receives an order of final approval.

the positive multipliers approved in other cases. See, e.g., Cardinal, 528 F. Supp. 2d at 767-68 (approving multiplier of 6, and observing that "[m]ost courts agree that the typical lodestar multiplier" on a large class action "ranges from 1.3 to 4.5"); Prandin, 2015 WL 1396473, at *4 (3.01 multiplier); see also Order Granting Interim Lead Counsel's Motion for an Award of Attorneys' Fees and Reimbursement of Litigation Costs and Expenses, 2:12-cv-00601-MOB-MKM, Doc. No. 128 (awarding direct purchaser fees of 2.09 times the lodestar).

The lodestar here is conservative because it does not include the time spent prosecuting these cases since September 1, 2016 or the time that will continue to be needed to bring the cases to a conclusion. While the hours already worked are substantial, they are reasonable and reflect the challenging nature of the litigation. Defendants are represented by able counsel who have asserted vigorous defenses. Defendants' efforts have required the Auto Dealers to expend considerable effort and skill in prosecuting these cases.

Given the excellent results achieved, the complexity of the claims and defenses, the real risk of non-recovery, the formidable defense teams, the delay in receipt of payment, and the substantial experience and skill of counsel, the requested multiplier on the lodestar and the resulting fee is reasonable compensation for the work done by counsel for the Auto Dealers. With no guarantee about the extent of work required to conclude these cases or the fees that will be generated from that work, it is possible that any positive multiplier on the current lodestar will be eroded.

Conclusion

For the foregoing reasons, Interim Co-Lead Counsel for the Auto Dealers respectfully request that the Court grant their motion and award attorneys' fees, reimburse litigation expenses, and allow the creation of a future litigation fund.

IN THE UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
FOR THE EASTERN DISTRICT OF MICHIGAN
SOUTHERN DIVISION

IN RE AUTOMOTIVE PARTS ANTITRUST LITIGATION	:	Master File No. 12-md-02311
	:	Honorable Marianne O. Battani
	:
In Re: Wire Harness	:	Case No. 2:12-cv-00102
In Re: Instrument Panel Clusters	:	Case No. 2:12-cv-00202
In Re: Fuel Senders	:	Case No. 2:12-cv-00302
In Re: Heater Control Panels	:	Case No. 2:12-cv-00402
In Re: Bearings	:	Case No. 2:12-cv-00502
In Re: Alternators	:	Case No. 2:13-cv-00702
In Re: Anti Vibrational Rubber Parts	:	Case No. 2:13-cv-00803
In Re: Windshield Wiper Systems	:	Case No. 2:13-cv-00902
In Re: Radiators	:	Case No. 2:13-cv-01002
In Re: Starters	:	Case No. 2:13-cv-01102
In Re: Ignition Coils	:	Case No. 2:13-cv-01402
In Re: Motor Generators	:	Case No. 2:13-cv-01502
In Re: HID Ballasts	:	Case No. 2:13-cv-01702
In Re: Inverters	:	Case No. 2:13-cv-01802
In Re: Electronic Powered Steering Assemblies	:	Case No. 2:13-cv-01902
In Re: Air Flow Meters	:	Case No. 2:13-cv-02002
In Re: Fan Motors	:	Case No. 2:13-cv-02102
In Re: Fuel Injection Systems	:	Case No. 2:13-cv-02202
In Re: Power Window Motors	:	Case No. 2:13-cv-02302
In Re: Automatic Transmission Fluid Warmers	:	Case No. 2:13-cv-02402
In Re: Valve Timing Control Devices	:	Case No. 2:13-cv-02502
In Re: Electronic Throttle Bodies	:	Case No. 2:13-cv-02602
In Re: Air Conditioning Systems	:	Case No. 2:13-cv-02702
In Re: Windshield Washer Systems	:	Case No. 2:13-cv-02802
In Re: Spark Plugs	:	Case No. 2:15-cv-03002
In Re: Automotive Hoses	:	Case No. 2:15-cv-12893
In Re: Power Window Switches	:	Case No. 2:16-cv-03902
In Re: Ceramic Substrates	:	Case No. 2:16-cv-12194

THIS DOCUMENT RELATES TO
AUTOMOBILE DEALERSHIP ACTIONS

AUTO DEALERS' MEMORANDUM IN SUPPORT OF MOTION TO AWARD FEES PLACED IN RESERVE IN 2016 FOR ROUND TWO SETTLEMENTS

Gerard V. Mantese (P34424)
Mantese Honigman, P.C.
1361 E. Big Beaver Road
Troy, MI 48083
Telephone: (248) 457-9200 Ext. 203
gmantese@manteselaw.com

Interim Liaison Counsel for The Automobile Dealer Plaintiffs

Jonathan W. Cuneo
Cuneo Gilbert & LaDuca, LLP
4725 Wisconsin Avenue NW, Suite 200
Washington, DC 20016
Telephone: (202) 789-3960
jonc@cuneolaw.com

Don Barrett
Barrett Law Group, P.A.
P.O. Box 927
404 Court Square
Lexington, MS 39095
Telephone: (662) 834-2488
dbarrett@barrettlawgroup.com

Shawn M. Raiter
Larson King, LLP
2800 Wells Fargo Place
30 East Seventh Street
St. Paul, MN 55101
Telephone: (651) 312-6500
Facsimile: (651) 312-6618
sraiter@larsonking.com

Interim Co-Lead Counsel for The Automobile Dealer Plaintiffs

Statement of the Issues Presented

1. Should the Court award to counsel for the Auto Dealers the attorneys' fees held in reserve for the Round Two settlements since 2016?

   Answer: Yes.

Controlling or Most Appropriate Authorities

Ramey v. Cincinnati Enquirer, Inc., 508 F.2d 1188 (6th Cir. 1974)

In re Delphi Corp. Sec., Derivative & ERISA Litig., 248 F.R.D. 483 (E.D. Mich. 2008)

Table of Contents

Page

Statement of Issues Presented i

Controlling or Most Appropriate Authorities ii

Table of Authorities iv

Introduction 1

Background 1

A. The Court's Consideration of Attorneys' Fees in 2016 1

B. Round Two Auto Dealer Settlements 2

C. Fee Awards Subsequent to November 2016 3

Argument 3

I. The Court Should Authorize the Award of the Fees Held in Reserve Since 2016 For the Round Two Auto Dealer Settlements 3

Conclusion 5

Table of Authorities

Page(s)

Cases

Bessey v. Packerland Plainwell, Inc., No. 4:06-CV-95, 2007 WL 3173972 (W.D. Mich. 2007) 4

In re Delphi Corp. Sec., Derivative & ERISA Litig., 248 F.R.D> 483 (E.D. Mich. 2008) ..... ii, 4

In re National Century Financial Enterprises, Inc. Investment Litig., 2009 WL 1473975 (S.D. Ohio, May 27, 2009) 4

In re Packaged Ice Antitrust Litig., 08-MDL-01952, 2011 WL 6209188 (E.D. Mich. Dec. 13, 2011) 4

In re Prandin Direct Purchaser Antitrust Litig., 2015 WL 1396473 (E.D. Mich. Jan. 20, 2015) 4

In re Skelaxin (Metaxalone) Antitrust Litig., 2014 WL 2946459 (E.D. Tenn. June 30, 2014) 4

In re Southeastern Milk Antitrust Litig., 2013 WL 2155387 (E.D. Tenn. May 17, 2013) 4

Kogan v. AIMCO Fox Chase, L.P., 193 F.R.D. 496 (E.D. Mich. 2000) 4

Ramey v. Cincinnati Enquirer, Inc., 508 F.2d 1188 (6th Cir. 1974) ..... ii, 4

Rawlings v. Prudential-Bache Properties, Inc., 9 F.3d 513 (6th Cir. 1993) 4

Thacker v. Chesapeake Appalachia, L.L.C. 695 F. Supp. 2d 521 (E.D. Ky. 2010) 4

Introduction

The Auto Dealers have disbursed the initial settlement funds from the first three rounds of the settlements approved by the Court. They are also preparing to disburse the funds held in reserve for those settlements. Some dealership groups have already received millions of dollars from these settlements and numerous others have received hundreds of thousands of dollars. The Round Four settlement funds will be disbursed to eligible automobile dealerships in the next few months. As a result, the Auto Dealers have nearly completed their portion of this litigation.

Counsel for the Auto Dealers move the Court to award money held in reserve since 2016 for a potential attorneys' fees award. In 2016, the Court had not decided how it would consider and award attorneys' fees to class counsel when settlements were achieved. The Court requested briefing from the plaintiffs' groups about how fees should be awarded as this litigation progressed and additional settlements were reached.

At the November 2016 final approval hearing for the Auto Dealers' Round Two settlements, the Court granted an interim fee award of 20 percent of the settlement funds, while it considered how it would handle future fee awards. The Court directed counsel for the Auto Dealers to hold in reserve the difference between the 20 percent award and the fees they had sought. The subsequent fee awards granted by the Court all equaled or exceeded 30 percent. Interim Class Counsel for the Auto Dealers hereby seeks an award of the reserved 10 percent of the Round Two settlements.

Background

A. The Court's Consideration of Attorneys' Fees in 2016.

Following the final approval of the first groups of settlements reached by the various plaintiff groups, the Court requested supplemental briefing about how attorneys' fee awards should be made and analyzed in this litigation. Each of the three main groups of plaintiffs (Direct Purchasers, Auto Dealers, and End Payors) submitted briefs, declarations, and other materials for the Court's consideration. (See 2:12-md-02311-MOB-MKM (ECF Doc. No. 1398); 2:12-md-02311-MOB-MKM (ECF Doc. No. 1399); 2:12-cv-00103-MOB-MKM (ECF Doc. No. 491)).

At the November 2016 status conference, the Court heard motions for final approval of numerous settlements presented by the End Payors and Auto Dealers. When considering the requests for an award of attorneys' fees and expenses from the settlements of the plaintiff's groups, the Court indicated that it had not yet concluded what percentage it would award as fees and would instead award a minimum amount: "But in further consideration of this I have decided to do this until I make the final percentage and that is to give you 20 percent." (Transcript of Status Conference, Motion Hearing, Final Approval Hearing - November 16, 2016, p. 25) ("November 2016 transcript").

B. Round Two Auto Dealer Settlements.

In the second round of Auto Dealer settlements ("Round Two settlements") the Court granted final approval to settlements totaling nearly $125 million. The notices approved by the Court for those settlements advised that counsel for the Auto Dealers would seek up to one-third (33.33 percent) of the settlement funds as attorneys' fees. (See 2:12-cv-00102-MOB-MKM (ECF Doc. No. 519-2, pp. 22-23). No class member objected to a 33.33 percent fee or to the terms of the settlements. (See 2:12-cv-00102-MOB-MKM (ECF Doc. No. 519-2, para. 8); 2:12-cv-00102-MOB-MKM (ECF Doc. No. 521, para. 3).

During the November 16, 2016 hearing on the Auto Dealers' motion for final approval of the Round Two settlements, the Court granted counsel for the Auto Dealers an interim award of 20 percent of the settlement funds (after the deduction of notice and claim processing costs) and allowed the other requested fees to be placed in reserve. (See November 2016 transcript, p. 134). The Court's November 29, 2016 order stated:

> As the Court indicated during the hearing on this motion and at the November 16, 2016 status conference, the Court reserves ruling on the Auto Dealers' request for additional fees from these settlements. The Court may, or may not, grant additional fees from these settlements. Interim Co-Lead Counsel for the Auto Dealers are authorized to hold in reserve the difference between the fees requested in this motion and the fees currently awarded by the Court.

(See 2:12-cv-00102-MOB-MKM (ECF Doc. No. 523, p. 6). That fee award resulted in a negative multiplier of counsel for the Auto Dealer's lodestar. Id., para. 15.[1]

C. Fee Awards Subsequent to November 2016.

When considering motions seeking awards of attorneys' fees since November 2016, the Court has consistently awarded 30 percent or more of the settlement funds after the deduction of notice and administration expenses. (See, e.g., 2:12-cv-00102-MOB-MKM (ECF Doc. No. 568, para. 9) (30 percent); 2:12-cv-00101-MOB-MKM (ECF Doc. No. 495, para. 22) (30 percent); 2:12-cv00102-MOB-MKM (ECF Doc. No. 401, para. 11) (33 percent)).

[1] When the 20 percent fee award was added to the fees awarded in Round One settlements, the Auto Dealers were awarded $43,446,364.00 when their lodestar totaled $48,406,000.00. (November 2016 transcript, p.132). This results in a negative, or .89, multiplier of the lodestar.

Argument

I. The Court Should Authorize the Award of the Fees Held in Reserve Since 2016 For the Round Two Auto Dealer Settlements.

In 2016, the Court had not determined the amount it would award in fees for settlements reached by the various plaintiff groups. It subsequently awarded 30 percent or more in all settlements presented by the Direct Purchasers, End Payors, and Auto Dealer groups for final approval. Interim Co-Lead Counsel for the Auto Dealers respectfully suggest that the same percentage should apply to the Round Two settlements and, as a result, request an award allowing the reserved 10 percent of the Round Two settlements.

During the November 2016 final approval process, the Court analyzed and weighed the six factors described in Ramey v. Cincinnati Enquirer, Inc., 508 F.2d 1188 (6th Cir. 1974) and Rawlings v. Prudential-Bache Properties, Inc., 9 F.3d 513, 516 (6th Cir. 1993). It also considered the briefing, billing records, and other information provided by counsel for the Auto Dealers. (See 2:12-cv-00102-MOB-MKM (ECF Doc. No. 523). The Court heard argument and recognized that fee awards of 33.33 percent were within the range of fee awards made by courts in this Circuit. Id. (citing In re Prandin Direct Purchaser Antitrust Litig., 2015 WL 1396473 (E.D. Mich. Jan. 20, 2015) (awarding one-third of the fund); In re Packaged Ice Antitrust Litig., 08-MDL-01952, 2011 WL 6209188, at *19 (E.D. Mich. Dec. 13, 2011); In re Skelaxin (Metaxalone) Antitrust Litig., 2014 WL 2946459, *1 (E.D. Tenn. Jun. 30, 2014); In re Southeastern Milk Antitrust Litig., 2013 WL 2155387, at *8 (E.D. Tenn. May 17, 2013); Thacker v. Chesapeake Appalachia, L.L.C., 695 F. Supp. 2d, 521, 528 (E.D. Ky. 2010); Bessey v. Packerland Plainwell, Inc., No. 4:06-CV-95, 2007 WL 3173972, at *4 (W.D. Mich. 2007); In re Delphi Corp. Sec., Derivative & ERISA Litig., 248 F.R.D. 483, 502-503 (E.D. Mich. 2008); In re National Century Financial Enterprises, Inc. Investment Litig., 2009 WL 1473975 (S.D. Ohio, May 27, 2009); Kogan v. AIMCO Fox Chase, L.P., 193 F.R.D. 496, 503 (E.D. Mich. 2000)).

Awarding to counsel for the Auto Dealers the reserved 10 percent is proper for numerous reasons. First, no class member objected to a request for a 33.33 percent fee: awarding a total of 30 percent conforms to the notice provided to the classes. Second, a 30 percent fee for Round Two settlements would equal the awards allowed in the Round Three and Round Four settlements the Auto Dealers attained. Third, allowing the additional 10 percent is consistent with the awards issued to the other plaintiff groups after November 2016. Finally, allowing the reserved 10 percent would move the Auto Dealers' lodestar multiplier for Round Two settlements from a negative .89 to a slightly positive multiplier of approximately 1.15. See 2:12-cv-00102-MOB-MKM (ECF Doc. No. 514); 2:12-cv-00102-MOB-MKM (ECF Doc. No. 514-2); 2:12-cv-00102-MOB-MKM (ECF Doc. No. 514-3).

The Auto Dealers, with the assistance of the claim administrator, have made the initial payments to dealerships who submitted eligible claims in the Round Two settlements. The Auto Dealers have also paid the Round One and Round Three claims and are nearly ready to distribute the settlement funds held in reserve (pursuant to the allocation plans approved by the Court) for each of those three rounds. As reported during prior hearings, there has been a high rate of claim participation from eligible auto dealerships in each round. In fact, claim participation has increased in each round, which counsel for the Auto Dealers attribute to the excellent results achieved in this litigation.

Conclusion

For the foregoing reasons, Interim Co-Lead Counsel for the Auto Dealers respectfully requests that the Court grant their motion to award the Round Two fees held in reserve since 2016.

Dated: June 8, 2020

By: /s/ Gerard V. Mantese
Gerard V. Mantese (P34424)
MANTESE HONIGMAN, P.C.
1361 E. Big Beaver Road
Troy, MI 48083
Telephone: (248) 457-9200 Ext. 203
Facsimile: (248) 457-9201
gmantese@manteselaw.com

Interim Liaison Counsel for the Automobile Dealer Plaintiffs

Jonathan W. Cuneo
CUNEO GILBERT & LADUCA, LLP
4725 Wisconsin Avenue NW, Suite 200
Washington, Dc 20016
Telephone: (202) 789-3960
Facsimile: (202) 789-1813
jonc@cuneolaw.com

Don Barrett
BARRETT LAW GROUP, P.A.
P.O. Box 927
404 Court Square
Lexington, MS 39095
Telephone: (662) 834-2488
Facsimile: (662)834.2628
dbarrett@barrettlawgroup.com

Shawn M. Raiter
LARSON KING, LLP
2800 Wells Fargo Place
30 East Seventh Street
St. Paul, MN 55101
Telephone: (651) 312-6500
Facsimile: (651) 312-6618
sraiter@larsonking.com

Interim Co-Lead Counsel for the Automobile Dealer Plaintiffs

CERTIFICATE OF SERVICE

I, Gerard V. Mantese, hereby certify that I caused a true and correct copy of AUTO DEALERS' MEMORANDUM IN SUPPORT OF MOTION TO AWARD FEES PLACED IN RESERVE IN 2016 FOR ROUND TWO SETTLEMENTS to be served via e-mail upon all registered counsel of record via the Court's CM/ECF system on June 8, 2020.

/s/ Gerard V. Mantese
Gerard V. Mantese

TAB 52A

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
SOUTHERN DISTRICT OF NEW YORK

STEPHEN SULLIVAN, WHITE OAK FUND LP, CALIFORNIA STATE TEACHERS' RETIREMENT SYSTEM, SONTERRA CAPITAL MASTER FUND, LTD., FRONTPOINT PARTNERS TRADING FUND, L.P., AND FRONTPOINT AUSTRALIAN OPPORTUNITIES TRUST on behalf of themselves and all others similarly situated, Plaintiffs, – against – BARCLAYS PLC, BARCLAYS BANK PLC, BARCLAYS CAPITAL INC., BNP PARIBAS S.A., CITIGROUP, INC., CITIBANK, N.A., COÖPERATIEVE CENTRALE RAIFFEISEN-BOERENLEENBANK B.A., CRÉDIT AGRICOLE S.A., CRÉDIT AGRICOLE CIB, DEUTSCHE BANK AG, DB GROUP SERVICES UK LIMITED, HSBC HOLDINGS PLC, HSBC BANK PLC, ICAP PLC, ICAP EUROPE LIMITED, J.P. MORGAN CHASE & CO., JPMORGAN CHASE BANK, N.A., THE ROYAL BANK OF SCOTLAND PLC, SOCIÉTÉ GÉNÉRALE SA, UBS AG AND JOHN DOE NOS. 1-50, Defendants	Docket No.: 13-cv-02811 (PKC)

~~[PROPOSED]~~
ORDER GRANTING CLASS COUNSEL'S MOTION FOR AWARD OF ATTORNEYS' FEES AND REIMBURSEMENT OF EXPENSES

This matter came for a duly-noticed hearing on October 31, 2023 (the "Settlement Hearing"), upon Class Counsel's Motion for Award of Attorneys' Fees and Reimbursement of Expenses ("Fee and Expense Application") in the above-captioned action (the "Action"). The Court has considered the Fee and Expense Application and all supporting and other related materials, including the matters presented at the Settlement Hearing. Due and adequate notice of the Settlement Agreement between Plaintiffs and Defendant Société Générale entered into on March 31, 2023 (the "Settlement Agreement")[1] (ECF No. 562-1) having been given to the Settlement Class Members, the Settlement Hearing having been held, and the Court having considered all papers filed and proceedings held herein, having found the Settlement of the Action to be fair, reasonable and adequate, and otherwise being fully informed in the premises and good cause appearing therefor,

IT IS HEREBY ORDERED, ADJUDGED AND DECREED THAT:

1. This Court has personal jurisdiction over Plaintiffs and Société Générale and all Settlement Class Members who have not timely and validly requested exclusion, and subject matter jurisdiction over the Action to approve the Settlement Agreement and all exhibits attached thereto.

2. Notice of the Fee and Expense Application was provided to potential Settlement Class Members in a reasonable manner, and such notice complies with Rule 23(h)(1) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure and due process requirements.

3. The Court hereby awards Class Counsel attorneys' fees of $16,800,000 (16 % of the total Settlement Fund), and litigation expenses of $98,568.15, together with interest for the same time period and at the same rate as earned by the Settlement Fund until paid, which shall be paid out of the Settlement Fund.

4. Class Counsel is hereby authorized to allocate the attorneys' fees among Plaintiffs' Counsel in a manner in which, in Class Counsel's judgment, reflects the contributions of such counsel to the institution, prosecution and settlement of the Action.

5. In making this award of attorneys' fees and payment of litigation expenses, the Court has considered and found that:

[1] Unless otherwise defined herein, all capitalized terms used have the meanings set forth and defined in the Settlement Agreement.

a. the Settlement Agreement with Société Générale has created a fund of $105,000,000 in cash that Société Générale has paid into escrow pursuant to the terms of the Settlement Agreement;

b. Class Members who or which submit valid Proofs of Claim and Release will benefit from settlement reached because of the efforts of Plaintiffs' Counsel;

c. Class Counsel have prosecuted the Action and achieved the Settlement with skill, perseverance, and diligent advocacy;

d. The Action involves numerous complex factual and legal issues and was actively litigated and, in the absence of a settlement, would have involved lengthy proceedings with uncertain resolution of the numerous complex factual and legal issues;

e. Had Class Counsel not achieved the Settlement with Société Générale, there would remain a significant risk that Plaintiffs and the Settlement Class may have recovered less or nothing from Société Générale;

f. The contingent nature, risks and complexity of the Action favor the fee percentage awarded above;

g. Public policy considerations support the requested fee, as only a small number of firms have the requisite expertise and resources to successfully prosecute cases such as the Action;

h. Notice was disseminated stating that Class Counsel would be moving for attorneys' fees of not more than 16.0% of the Settlement Fund and payment of litigation expenses and costs not to exceed $500,000, plus interest; and

i. The amount of attorneys' fees awarded and expenses to be paid from the Settlement Fund are fair and reasonable in view of the applicable legal principles and the particular facts and circumstances of the Action.

6. Without affecting the finality of this Order in any way, this Court hereby retains continuing jurisdiction over the Parties and the Class Members for all matters relating to this Action, including the administration, interpretation, effectuation, or enforcement of this Order.

7. In the event that the Settlement is terminated, or the Effective Date does not occur in accordance with the terms of the Settlement, this Order shall be null and void, of no further force or effect, and without prejudice to any of the Parties, and may not be introduced as evidence or used in any actions or proceedings by any Person against the Parties.

8. Pursuant to the Settlement Agreement, the attorneys' fees and expense awards are independent of the Court's consideration of the fairness, reasonableness, and adequacy of the Settlement and are also independent of the Court's consideration of the Distribution Plan.

9. The attorneys' fees and payment of expenses awarded herein may be paid to Class Counsel from the Settlement Fund immediately upon entry of this Order, subject to the terms, conditions, and obligations of the Settlement Agreement which terms, conditions, and obligations are incorporated herein.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

Signed this 31st day of October, 2023.

Honorable P. Kevin Castel
United States District Judge

TAB 52B

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
SOUTHERN DISTRICT OF NEW YORK

STEPHEN SULLIVAN, WHITE OAK FUND LP, CALIFORNIA STATE TEACHERS' RETIREMENT SYSTEM, SONTERRA CAPITAL MASTER FUND, LTD., FRONTPOINT PARTNERS TRADING FUND, L.P., AND FRONTPOINT AUSTRALIAN OPPORTUNITIES TRUST on behalf of themselves and all others similarly situated,

Plaintiffs,

– against –

BARCLAYS PLC, BARCLAYS BANK PLC, BARCLAYS CAPITAL INC., BNP PARIBAS S.A., CITIGROUP, INC., CITIBANK, N.A., COÖPERATIEVE CENTRALE RAIFFEISEN-BOERENLEENBANK B.A., CRÉDIT AGRICOLE S.A., CRÉDIT AGRICOLE CIB, DEUTSCHE BANK AG, DB GROUP SERVICES UK LIMITED, HSBC HOLDINGS PLC, HSBC BANK PLC, ICAP PLC, ICAP EUROPE LIMITED, J.P. MORGAN CHASE & CO., JPMORGAN CHASE BANK, N.A., THE ROYAL BANK OF SCOTLAND PLC, SOCIÉTÉ GÉNÉRALE SA, UBS AG AND JOHN DOE NOS. 1-50,

Defendants

Docket No.: 13-cv-02811 (PKC)

MEMORANDUM OF LAW IN SUPPORT OF CLASS COUNSEL'S MOTION FOR AWARD OF ATTORNEYS' FEES AND REIMBURSEMENT OF EXPENSES AND PLAINTIFF'S REQUEST FOR SERVICE AWARD

TABLE OF CONTENTS

TABLE OF AUTHORITIES iii

INTRODUCTION 1

ARGUMENT 2

I. CLASS COUNSEL'S FEE REQUEST IS FAIR AND REASONABLE 2

A. The Risks Faced by Class Counsel in this Complex Action Support the Requested Fee 3

B. The Time and Labor Expended by Class Counsel Support the Requested Fee 9

1. Settlement Negotiations with Société Générale 10

2. Plaintiffs' Counsel's Substantial Earlier Efforts in the Action 10

i. Drafting and Amending the Class Action Complaint. 10

ii. Substantial Discovery Efforts. 11

iii. Development of the Class Wide Models of Alleged Violative Conduct and Price Impact and Preparation of Class Certification Reports 12

3. Appellate Work and Settlement Administration 13

4. Negotiating Settlements with the Prior Settling Defendants 14

C. Quality of Representation 15

D. The Fee Request is Supported by the Remaining Goldberger Factors 17

1. Class Counsel's Request is Within the Range Used Under the Second Circuit's Preferred Percentage-Based Methodology 17

2. Public Policy Supports Approval 20

E. The Lodestar Value of Class Counsel's Time and Labor Confirms the Reasonableness of the Fee Request 20

F. The Negotiated Sliding Fee Scale on which Class Counsel's Request is Based Provides Further Evidence of the Proposed Award's Reasonableness 21

II. CLASS COUNSEL'S EXPENSES ARE REASONABLE 22

III. THE COURT SHOULD GRANT CALSTRS' SERVICE AWARD REQUEST 23

CONCLUSION 25

TABLE OF AUTHORITIES

Cases Page(s)

Alaska Elec. Pension Fund v. Bank of Am. Corp.,
No. 14-cv-7126 (JMF), 2018 WL 6250657 (S.D.N.Y. Nov. 29, 2018) 18, 19

Anwar v. Fairfield Greenwich Ltd., No. 09-cv-118 (VM),
2012 WL 1981505 (S.D.N.Y. June 1, 2012) 23

Arbor Hill Concerned Citizens Neighborhood Ass'n v. Cty. of Albany & Albany Cty. Bd. of Elections,
522 F.3d 182 (2d Cir. 2008) 21

Bd. of Trustees of AFTRA Ret. Fund v. JPMorgan Chase Bank, N.A.,
No. 09 CIV. 686 (SAS), 2012 WL 2064907 (S.D.N.Y. June 7, 2012) 18

Beckman v. KeyBank N.A.,
293 F.R.D. 467 (S.D.N.Y. 2013) 21, 23

Boeing Co. v. Van Gemert,
444 U.S. 472 (1980) 2

Carlson v. Xerox Corp.,
596 F. Supp. 2d 400 (D. Conn. 2009) 18, 19

Chatelain v. Prudential-Bache Sec., Inc.,
805 F. Supp. 209 (S.D.N.Y. 1992) 7

City of Providence v. Aeropostale, Inc.,
No. 11 Civ. 7132 (CM)(GWG), 2014 WL 1883494 (S.D.N.Y. May 9, 2014) 8

Dial Corp. v. News Corp.,
317 F.R.D. 426 (S.D.N.Y. 2016) 23, 25

Gelboim v. Bank of Am. Corp.,
823 F.3d 759 (2d Cir. 2016) 5

Goldberger v. Integrated Res., Inc.,
209 F.3d 43 (2d Cir. 2000) ..... passim

Hall v. Children's Place Retail Stores Inc.,
669 F. Supp. 2d 399 (S.D.N.Y. 2009) 17

In re Adelphia Commc'ns Corp. Sec. and Derivative Litig.,
No. 03 Civ. 5755, 2006 WL 3378705 (S.D.N.Y. Nov. 16, 2006) 18

In re Air Cargo Shipping Services Antitrust Litig.,
No. 06-MD-1775 (JG)(VVP), 2015 WL 5918273 (E.D.N.Y. Oct. 9, 2015) 25

In re American International Group, Inc. Securities Litig.,
No. 04 Civ. 8141 (DAB), 2012 WL 345509 (S.D.N.Y. Feb. 2, 2012) 25

In re Arakis Energy Corp. Sec. Litig.,
No. 95 CV 3431(ARR), 2001 WL 1590512 n.12 (E.D.N.Y. Oct. 31, 2001) 22

In re Beacon Assocs. Litig.,
No. 09 CIV. 3907 (CM), 2013 WL 2450960 (S.D.N.Y. May 9, 2013) 17

In re Brand Name Prescription Drugs Antitrust Litig.,
No. 94 C 897, 2000 WL 204112 (N.D. Ill. Feb. 10, 2000) 19

In re Bristol-Myers Squibb Sec. Litig.,
361 F. Supp. 2d 229 (S.D.N.Y. 2005) 4

In re Citigroup Inc. Bond Litig.,
988 F. Supp. 2d 371 (S.D.N.Y. 2013) 4, 7, 18, 19

In re Colgate-Palmolive Co. ERISA Litig.,
36 F. Supp. 3d 344 (S.D.N.Y. 2014) 20

In re Credit Default Swaps Antitrust Litig.,
No. 13-MD-2476 (DLC), 2016 WL 2731524 (S.D.N.Y. Apr. 26, 2016) 2-3, 21, 22

In re Gen. Motors LLC Ignition Switch Litig.,
No. 14-MC-2543 (JMF), 2020 WL 7481292 (S.D.N.Y. Dec. 18, 2020) 16

In re Gilat Satellite Networks, Ltd.,
2007 WL 2743675 (E.D.N.Y. Sept. 18, 2007) 24

In re Global Crossing Sec. & ERISA Litig.,
225 F.R.D. 436 (S.D.N.Y. 2004) 18

In re GSE Bonds Antitrust Litig.,
No. 19 Civ. 1704 (JSR), 2020 WL 3250593 (S.D.N.Y. June 16, 2020) 8

In re Holocaust Victim Assets Litig.,
No. CV 06-0983 (FB)(JO), 2007 WL 805768 (E.D.N.Y. Mar. 15, 2007) 9

In re Initial Pub. Offering Sec. Litig.,
671 F. Supp. 2d 467 (S.D.N.Y. 2009) 18

In re J.P. Morgan Stable Value Fund ERISA Litig.,
No. 12-CV-2548 (VSB), 2019 WL 4734396 (S.D.N.Y. Sept. 23, 2019) 18

In re LIBOR-Based Fin. Instruments Antitrust Litig.,
935 F. Supp. 2d 666 (S.D.N.Y. 2013) 5

In re Marsh & McLennan Cos., Inc. Sec. Litig.,
No. 04 Civ. 8144 (CM), 2009 WL 5178546 (S.D.N.Y. Dec. 23, 2009) 24

In re Merrill Lynch Tyco Research Sec. Litig.,
249 F.R.D. 124 (S.D.N.Y. 2008) 15

In re NASDAQ Mkt.-Makers Antitrust Litig.,
187 F.R.D. 465 (S.D.N.Y. 1998) 7, 16, 17

In re Nortel Networks Corp. Sec. Litig.,
539 F.3d 129 (2d Cir. 2008) 21

In re Payment Card Interchange Fee & Merch. Disc. Antitrust Litig.,
991 F. Supp. 2d 437 (E.D.N.Y. 2014) 4, 18

In re Petrobras Sec. Litig.,
317 F. Supp. 3d 858 (S.D.N.Y. 2018) 24

In re Platinum & Palladium Commodities Litig.,
No. 10-cv-3617, 2014 WL 3500655 (S.D.N.Y. July 15, 2014) 4, 7, 8

In re Remeron Direct Purchaser Antitrust Litig.,
No. CIV.03-0085 FSH, 2005 WL 3008808 (D.N.J. Nov. 9, 2005) 6

In re Urethane Antitrust Litig.,
No. 04 Civ. 1616, 2016 WL 4060156 (D. Kan. July 29, 2016) 18

In re Vitamin C Antitrust Litig.,
No. 06-MD-1738 (BMC)(JO), 2012 WL 5289514 (E.D.N.Y. Oct. 23, 2012) 7-8

Maley v. Del Glob. Techs. Corp.,
186 F. Supp. 2d 358 (S.D.N.Y. 2002) 7, 16, 21

Meredith Corp. v. SESAC, LLC,
87 F. Supp. 3d 650 (S.D.N.Y. 2015) 4, 8, 16, 22

Ohio Pub. Employees Ret. Sys. v. Freddie Mac.,
No. 03-CV-4261, 2006 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 98380 (S.D.N.Y. Oct. 26, 2006) 18

Pillsbury Co. v. Conboy,
459 U.S. 248 (1983) 20

Roberts v. Texaco,
979 F. Supp. 185 (S.D.N.Y. 1997) 23

Strougo ex rel. Brazilian Equity Fund, Inc. v. Bassini,
258 F. Supp. 2d 254 (S.D.N.Y. 2003) 17

Sullivan v. Barclays plc,
No. 13-cv-2811 (PKC), 2017 WL 685570 (S.D.N.Y. Feb. 21, 2017) 5

Vizcaino v. Microsoft Corp.,
290 F.3d 1043 (9th Cir. 2002) 21

Wal-Mart Stores, Inc. v. Visa U.S.A., Inc.,
396 F.3d 96 (2d Cir. 2005) 3, 17

Warren v. Xerox Corp.,
No. 01-CV-2909(JG), 2008 WL 4371367 (E.D.N.Y. Sept. 19, 2008) 23-24

Statutes

Antitrust Criminal Penalty Enhancement and Reform Act, Pub. L. No. 108-237, 118 Stat. 661 (June 22, 2004) extended by Pub. L. No. 111-190, 124 Stat. 1275 (June 9, 2010) 6

Other Authorities

William B. Rubenstein, 5 NEWBERG AND RUBENSTEIN ON CLASS ACTIONS

§ 17:1 (6th ed. 2023) 23

§ 15:78 (6th ed. 2023) 19

Attorneys' Fees in Class Actions: 2009-2013,
92 N.Y.U. L. Rev. 937 (2017) 19

Center for Litigation and Courts and The Huntington National Bank, 2021 Antitrust Annual Report: Class Actions in Federal Court (April 2022), https://papers.ssrn.com/sol3/papers.cfm?abstract_id=4117930 19

Pursuant to this Court's April 18, 2023 Order,[1] Class Counsel respectfully move pursuant to Rule 23(h) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure for an attorneys' fees award of $16.8 million, 16% of the $105,000,000 common fund created by Plaintiffs'[2] settlement with Société Générale ("Settlement"), and reimbursement of $98,568.15 in litigation expenses. In addition, CalSTRS seeks a service award totaling $4,406.11 for reimbursement of its additional out-of-pocket expenses incurred in representing the Class and achieving this substantial additional Settlement.

INTRODUCTION

With the added Société Générale settlement, Class Counsel's relentless efforts on behalf of Plaintiffs and the Settlement Class have increased the total recovery in this Action by $105 million to $651,500,000. Using their substantial knowledge of the facts and law, Class Counsel implemented an effective litigation strategy that continues to provide substantial benefits for the Class, even from claims dismissed with prejudice. Class Counsel, assisted by additional Plaintiffs' Counsel,[3] have presented strong legal arguments, demonstrated their ability to engage in efficient and effective discovery, and developed a persuasive and credible class wide damages model that, Plaintiffs contend, reflects the significant potential liability involved in this case. It is because of the work Class Counsel invested throughout the litigation and their ability to prosecute the Class's claims on appeal and through trial that the Class will reap a substantial recovery from the settling defendants for their alleged manipulation of Euribor and Euribor Products.

[1] Order Preliminarily Approving Proposed Settlement with Defendant Société Générale, Scheduling Hearing for Final Approval Thereof, and Approving the Proposed Form and Program of Notice to the Class (S.D.N.Y. April 18, 2023), ECF No. 564.

[2] "Plaintiffs" are California State Teachers' Retirement System ("CalSTRS"), Stephen Sullivan, White Oak Fund LP, any subsequently named plaintiff(s), and any of their assignees that may exist now or in the future, including but not limited to Fund Liquidation Holdings, LLC ("FLH"). Unless otherwise defined, capitalized terms herein have the same meaning as in the Settlement Agreement. ECF No. 562-1.

[3] "Plaintiffs' Counsel" means Class Counsel and Berman Tabacco, Kirby McInerney LLP, Glancy Prongay & Murray LLP, Cafferty Clobes Meriwether & Sprengel LLP, and Nussbaum Law Group, P.C.

As described below, the risks involved in litigating an action of this complexity and magnitude, combined with the time and labor invested in the prosecution of the case and the quality of that prosecution, amply support awarding the requested 16% fee. See Part I.A-C, infra. Equally important given the length of this prosecution and the diligence Class Counsel have displayed, the remaining Goldberger factors and the lodestar cross-check support awarding the fee request. See Part I.D-E, infra. In addition, the agreed-upon sliding scale fee percentage CalSTRS negotiated in retaining Class Counsel also fully supports a 16% fee, which is reasonable and commensurate with awards in similarly (and less) complex actions with similar recoveries. See Part I.D.1, I.F, infra. Plaintiffs' Counsel spent 144,833.34 hours over ten years prosecuting the Action. This work has inured to the benefit of the Class and provides a sufficient foundation to support the fee request.

Plaintiffs' Counsel seek $98,568.15 for out-of-pocket litigation costs incurred from August 2022 through present. See Part II, infra. These expenses, described in the accompanying declarations of Vincent Briganti ("Briganti Decl."), Benjamin M. Jaccarino ("Jaccarino Decl."), and Todd A. Seaver ("Seaver Decl."), were incurred for the Class's benefit and predominantly related to prosecuting the Appeals and ongoing document production/hosting costs. Such costs are reasonable and should be reimbursed. CalSTRS also seeks a service award for out-of-pocket costs related to the representation of the Class in connection with this Settlement and the final approval of the Crédit Agricole settlement. See Part III, infra. CalSTRS continued its extensive involvement in this case on behalf of the Class, and its additional expenses and efforts should be compensated.

ARGUMENT

I. CLASS COUNSEL'S FEE REQUEST IS FAIR AND REASONABLE

"[A] litigant or a lawyer who recovers a common fund for the benefit of persons other than himself or his client is entitled to a reasonable attorney's fee from the fund as a whole." Boeing Co. v. Van Gemert, 444 U.S. 472, 478 (1980); see also In re Credit Default Swaps Antitrust Litig.

("CDS Litig."), No. 13-md-2476 (DLC), 2016 WL 2731524, at *16 (S.D.N.Y. Apr. 26, 2016). Courts "may award attorneys' fees in common fund cases under either the 'lodestar' method or the 'percentage of the fund' method;" the "trend in this Circuit is toward the percentage method." Wal-Mart Stores, Inc. v. Visa U.S.A., Inc., 396 F.3d 96, 121 (2d Cir. 2005)). Courts assess the reasonableness of the fee request based on six factors: "(1) the time and labor expended by counsel; (2) the magnitude and complexities of the litigation; (3) the risk of the litigation [ ]; (4) the quality of representation; (5) the requested fee in relation to the settlement; and (6) public policy considerations." Goldberger v. Integrated Res., Inc., 209 F.3d 43, 50 (2d Cir. 2000).

Class Counsel request an award of $16.8 million, which is 16% of the $105,000,000 common fund and consistent with the fee schedule CalSTRS negotiated with Plaintiffs' Counsel prior to CalSTRS' involvement in the Action. The fee request is reasonable because: (1) the risks Class Counsel undertook to prosecute this Action were substantial, and Class Counsel's success in obtaining this Settlement (and the previous settlements), in spite of those risks and the complexity and magnitude of the Action, warrants granting a significant fee; (2) Class Counsel have invested considerable time and labor to prosecute the Action; (3) Class Counsel provided excellent representation as evidenced by another massive recovery for the Class, the lack of objections to the Settlement, and Class Counsel's expertise in benchmark litigation and class actions; (4) the remaining Goldberger factors—the size of the fee request as compared to fee awards in other similar cases, and the public policy interest in encouraging attorneys to pursue such actions—all support granting the fee request; and (5) the lodestar cross-check confirms that the requested fee is reasonable in relation to Class Counsel's investment in the case.

A. The Risks Faced by Class Counsel in this Complex Action Support the Requested Fee

The risks involved in pursuing a class action are substantial factors in calculating a fair and reasonable fee award. Goldberger, 209 F.3d at 54 ("We have historically labeled the risk of success as 'perhaps the foremost' factor to be considered in determining whether to award an enhancement."); In re Payment Card Interchange Fee & Merch. Disc. Antitrust Litig., 991 F. Supp. 2d 437, 440 (E.D.N.Y. 2014) ("Payment Card") ("The most important Goldberger factor is often the case's risk"); In re Bristol-Myers Squibb Sec. Litig., 361 F. Supp. 2d 229, 233 (S.D.N.Y. 2005) (the risk of the litigation is the "first, and most important, Goldberger factor").

When a large, complex action is coupled with significant litigation risks, a greater fee award is warranted. See In re Citigroup Inc. Bond Litig., 988 F. Supp. 2d 371, 379 (S.D.N.Y. 2013) ("the magnitude and complexity of the litigation also weigh in favor of a significant award"). Such cases require a greater level of investment by counsel, in terms of effort, expertise, and resources, to competently litigate the claims and issues at stake on behalf of the class. Class actions involving antitrust and commodities claims stand out as some of the most "complex, protracted, and bitterly fought." Meredith Corp. v. SESAC, LLC, 87 F. Supp. 3d 650, 670 (S.D.N.Y. 2015); In re Platinum & Palladium Commodities Litig., No. 10-cv-3617, 2014 WL 3500655, at *12 (S.D.N.Y. July 15, 2014) (commodities cases are "complex and expensive" to litigate).

As this Court previously observed, the claims involved in this Action were particularly high risk. See May 17, 2019 Settlement Hearing Tr. at 22-23 (ECF No. 504) ("there was substantial risk at the class certification stage, at the liability stage, damage stage, summary judgment stage, so this all weighs in favor of approving the settlement.").

Risk of Personal Jurisdiction Defenses: From the outset of litigation, the assertion of a personal jurisdiction defense by Société Générale and most other defendants posed an immediate existential risk to the prosecution of the claims against them. This risk materialized after Société Générale and the other Foreign Defendants[4] made several arguments that the Fourth Amended [4] Coöperatieve Centrale Raiffeisen-Boerenleenbank B.A. ("Rabobank"), Crédit Agricole S.A., Crédit Agricole CIB (together with Crédit Agricole S.A., "Crédit Agricole"), Deutsche Bank AG, DB Group Services (UK) Ltd.

Complaint should be dismissed for a lack of personal jurisdiction, including that: (i) Foreign Defendants are not subject to general jurisdiction because Foreign Defendants are not at home in the relevant forum and have not consented to jurisdiction; (ii) Foreign Defendants are not subject to specific jurisdiction because the alleged conduct occurred outside the United States and Plaintiffs' specific jurisdiction allegations, including foreseeability of harm, U.S. derivatives transactions, conspiracy with U.S.-based entities, and use of U.S. wires, are insufficient; and (iii) no Federal statute provides for personal jurisdiction. See ECF No. 200. Here, the risk Plaintiffs faced from these personal jurisdiction defenses materialized while the state of the law on jurisdiction remained muddy, leading to the dismissal of claims against a number of the defendants, including Société Générale, and the subsequent appeal/cross-appeal of that decision.

Risk of Pleading and Merits Defenses: At the outset of this Action, it was unclear whether a private right of action was available under antitrust laws for the alleged misconduct. The risks of dismissal of private antitrust claims were realized in other cases shortly after filing this Action. See, e.g., In re LIBOR-Based Fin. Instruments Antitrust Litig., 935 F. Supp. 2d 666, 688 (S.D.N.Y. 2013) ("LIBOR I"). Plaintiffs' antitrust claims survived here because the Second Circuit's decision in Gelboim v. Bank of Am. Corp., 823 F.3d 759, 771-75 (2d Cir. 2016), vacated the prior consensus that private plaintiffs did not have antitrust claims for benchmark rate manipulation. See Sullivan v. Barclays plc, No. 13-cv-2811 (PKC), 2017 WL 685570, at *13 (S.D.N.Y. Feb. 21, 2017). When Gelboim was decided, Class Counsel had already been prosecuting these claims in high-risk conditions for over three years. Gelboim did not, however, mitigate other risks such as merits defenses, personal jurisdiction, and the inherent difficulty of litigating against some of the world's largest financial institutions with the financial resources and ability to prolong this case for years.

(together with Deutsche Bank, AG, "Deutsche Bank"), HSBC Holdings plc, HSBC Bank plc (together with HSBC Holdings plc, "HSBC"), ICAP plc, ICAP Europe Ltd. (together with ICAP plc, "ICAP"), The Royal Bank of Scotland plc ("RBS"), and UBS AG ("UBS").

Due to these high risks and despite the presence of an ACPERA[5] applicant, no companion or tag along class actions were filed. Accordingly, Class Counsel assumed all of the foregoing risks alone, bearing the costs and potential loss on a contingent basis. See In re Remeron Direct Purchaser Antitrust Litig., No. CIV.03-0085 FSH, 2005 WL 3008808, at *14 (D.N.J. Nov. 9, 2005), judgment entered, No. 03-cv-0085 (FSH), 2005 WL 8181042 (D.N.J. Nov. 9, 2005) (identifying "the uncertain nature of the fee, the wholly contingent outlay of large out-of-pocket sums by plaintiffs, and the fact that the risk of failure and nonpayment in an antitrust case are extremely high" as risks in an antitrust class action.).

Risk of Certifying a Class and Establishing Liability: Assuming Plaintiffs prevail on appeal, Plaintiffs would still face enormous challenges in certifying a litigation class and establishing liability. These antitrust claims involving both domestic and foreign misconduct are inherently complex. At class certification, Class Counsel would have to demonstrate, supported by expert testimony, that Defendants' alleged manipulation of the Euribor Products market caused class wide impact, an argument Defendants would vigorously oppose with expert testimony of their own. Class Counsel would need to establish Defendants' liability using evidence that in part uses technical financial language and industry jargon with which a factfinder is likely unfamiliar. Such information would also need to be used to establish common impact and show that class wide damages could be calculated based on common proof. The risks associated with certifying a class and establishing liability independently satisfy this Goldberger factor.

Risk of Establishing Damages: Société Générale would have argued that it was not liable for any of the damages that Plaintiffs allege. In addition, there are risks associated with establishing a class wide damages model. See In re Platinum & Palladium Commodities Litig., 2014 WL 3500655, at *12 ("[I]n any market manipulation or antitrust case, [p]laintiffs face significant challenges in establishing liability and damages."). For example, Plaintiffs' case depended on showing what Euribor would have been absent manipulation. Euribor is intended to reflect the cost of borrowing Euros in the interbank money market. Class Counsel, with the assistance of its experts, had to show that the Euribor was not reflective of such borrowing costs. Plaintiffs' experts opined on whether there were violations of the customs and standards in the relevant markets, and on how common impact and common proof of damages could be used to calculate class wide damages. See July 2023 Joint Decl. ¶ 55. These opinions were thoroughly scrutinized when Citi and JPMorgan deposed Plaintiffs' experts. Id. ¶ 60. While Class Counsel is confident in its position that class wide damages could be determined, there is always uncertainty where a battle of experts is involved. Chatelain v. Prudential-Bache Sec., Inc., 805 F. Supp. 209, 214 (S.D.N.Y. 1992) (noting the complexities of calculating damages in class actions); Maley v. Del Glob. Techs. Corp., 186 F. Supp. 2d 358, 372 (S.D.N.Y. 2002) (citing Chatelain and stating the complex issue of calculating damages incurred by the Class requires a battle of the experts). Given the risks involved with establishing damages, the requested attorneys' fee is appropriate.

[5] "ACPERA" means the Antitrust Criminal Penalty Enhancement and Reform Act (Pub. L. No. 108-237, tit. II, June 22, 2004, 118 Stat. 661, 665, extended by Pub. L. No. 111-190, June 9, 2010, 124 Stat. 1275).

Risks Due to the Size and Complexity of the Claims: A greater fee award is warranted for counsel prosecuting complex class action cases. See In re Citigroup Inc. Bond Litig., 988 F. Supp. 2d at 379; see also In re NASDAQ Mkt.-Makers Antitrust Litig., 187 F.R.D. 465, 477 (S.D.N.Y. 1998) ("NASDAQ III") ("[C]lass actions have a well-deserved reputation as being most complex"). This case was tremendously complex both in subject matter and scope, requiring a greater level of investment, in terms of effort, expertise, and resources, by counsel to competently litigate the claims and issues at stake on behalf of plaintiffs and the class. See In re Vitamin C

Antitrust Litig., No. 06-MD-1738 (BMC)(JO), 2012 WL 5289514, at *4 (E.D.N.Y. Oct. 23, 2012) (holding the first Grinnell factor favored finding the settlements were fair where litigation was ongoing for seven years, involved the production of thousands of documents, expert discovery and extensive motion practice); accord Meredith Corp., 87 F. Supp. 3d at 670; In re Platinum & Palladium Commodities Litig., 2014 WL 3500655 at *12. Class Counsel took this case on a fully contingent basis and invested considerable time, money, and resources to advance the Action. See City of Providence v. Aeropostale, Inc., No. 11 Civ. 7132 (CM)(GWG), 2014 WL 1883494, at *14 (S.D.N.Y. May 9, 2014), aff'd sub nom. Arbuthnot v. Pierson, 607 F. App'x 73 (2d Cir. 2015) ("The Second Circuit has recognized that the risk associated with a case undertaken on a contingent basis is an important factor in determining an appropriate fee award."). The likelihood of success would have been low absent Class Counsel's willingness and ability to commit sufficient time and resources to address the complexity and magnitude of the Action.

Complexity: This case involves a conspiracy among multiple banks and interdealer brokers to fix Euribor and Euribor Products prices over a Class Period of almost six years through multiple means, including, inter alia: (1) making false Euribor submissions; (2) "pushing cash" with manipulative transactions; (3) "spoofing" the market with false bids and offers; and (4) sharing proprietary information. ECF No. 174 (Fourth Amended Class Action Complaint) ¶ 18. The amount of work required to understand the inner workings of a cartel with this level of sophistication and number of participants was "extraordinary" in both its "complexity and scope" and required Class Counsel to master the properties of complex financial instruments and markets. See In re GSE Bonds Antitrust Litig., No. 19 Civ. 1704 (JSR), 2020 WL 3250593, at *4 (S.D.N.Y. June 16, 2020) (finding "complexity [is] present [where] plaintiffs claimed that the defendants colluded in the GSE Bond market over more than seven years, involving thousands of bond issuances, and implicating sixteen defendants"); In re Holocaust Victim Assets Litig., No. CV 06-0983 (FB)(JO), 2007 WL 805768, at *46 (E.D.N.Y. Mar. 15, 2007), report and recommendation adopted, 528 F. Supp. 2d 109 (E.D.N.Y. 2007), as amended (Dec. 14, 2007).

Magnitude: Over the course of ten years of litigation involving up to 20 Defendants, the parties produced over 560 docket entries associated with four amended complaints and motions to dismiss, transfer venue, reconsider orders, and issue a request to obtain documents via The Hague Convention. The motion to dismiss briefing involved six memoranda of law, 19 declarations, numerous exhibits, and 14 letter briefs discussing opinions issued after the motion had been fully briefed. There have been hundreds of thousands of documents, spreadsheets and audio files produced, and thousands of hours of work spent on understanding all this information. The appeal and cross-appeal of the Court's decisions further expanded the cost and duration of the Action. The nature, duration, size of the case, complexity of the financial instruments, and sophistication and the depth of the conspiracy weigh heavily in favor of approving the requested fee.

B. The Time and Labor Expended by Class Counsel Support the Requested Fee

This Settlement is the product of the continued investigation, diligence and skill of Class Counsel, who are among the most experienced attorneys litigating interest rate benchmark manipulation cases. They shouldered the risk of the litigating this Action and, through their work, continue to produce outstanding results for Plaintiffs and the Class.

Class Counsel's efforts throughout the Action laid the foundation for this Settlement. In total, Class Counsel spent 133,467.24 hours litigating this Action for over a decade to achieve this massive benefit for the Class. A description of the efforts of Plaintiffs' Counsel can be found in the Joint Declaration accompanying this brief, as well the declarations filed in support of the prior settlements. See ECF Nos. 403-04, 411, 472-473, 483, 525. A summary of Class Counsel's and additional Plaintiffs' Counsel's work is described below.

1. Settlement Negotiations with Société Générale

Negotiations between Plaintiffs and Société Générale to resolve their dispute initially began in February 2017. July 2023 Joint Decl. ¶ 17. In advance of these discussions, Class Counsel conducted targeted searches through the discovery and cooperation materials it received and reviewed regulatory settlements and findings to compile information on Société Générale's culpability. Id. ¶ 18. The information generally informed Class Counsel's negotiation strategy, and certain key findings were integrated into robust settlement presentations. Id. ¶ 54. Using this information, Class Counsel engaged in preliminary settlement discussions with Société Générale's counsel that continued over several months. Ultimately, these initial discussions did not progress.

In May 2022, settlement negotiations resumed, with the Parties sharing their updated views on the case, Société Générale's potential exposure, and the measure of damages in the event of liability. Id. ¶ 20. After months of preliminary negotiations, on November 8, 2022, the Parties reached an agreement in principle and signed a settlement term sheet ("Term Sheet"). Id. ¶ 20. Extensive negotiations continued between the Parties over the next approximately four-and-a-half months to reduce the Term Sheet to a formal settlement agreement, culminating in the execution of the Settlement Agreement on March 31, 2023. Id. ¶ 23.

2. Plaintiffs' Counsel's Substantial Earlier Efforts in the Action

i. Drafting and Amending the Class Action Complaint.

Class Counsel drafted and filed the initial Class Action Complaint and four amended complaints over a two-and-a-half year period, amending the allegations each time they received or uncovered newly disclosed relevant facts. Id. ¶ 27. Using, among other sources, information contained in regulatory agency settlements and findings involving Defendants, as well as settlement cooperation received from Barclays, Deutsche Bank, and HSBC, Class Counsel augmented the complaints in a strategic effort to address potential pleading defenses and improve the likelihood of defeating Defendants' forthcoming motion to dismiss. Id. ¶ 27.

ii. Substantial Discovery Efforts.

Class Counsel devoted substantial resources to obtain and analyze discovery materials while working under significant time pressure due to the discovery schedule. Class Counsel:

- analyzed more than one million pages of documents, tens of thousands of audio files and other data received from Prior Settling Defendants.[6] Id. ¶ 28.
- participated in dozens of meet-and-confers concerning documents and data production, including negotiating access to transaction data essential for class certification. Id. ¶ 30.
- leveraged in-house technological expertise to locally deploy Relativity, a sophisticated document review platform, to greatly reduce the hours required for review and to prioritize the most relevant files. Id. ¶ 32.
- used sophisticated document review software to exploit potential key terms through smart searches, "relational searching" and other analytic tools. These tools identified relevant documents, followed themes and dates of conversations, and cross-referenced and matched them to significant individuals. Id. ¶ 33.
- identified over 1,400 potential instances of agreement or manipulation, over 400 instances of potential admissions of manipulation, and over 100,000 relevant documents. Id.
- prepared witness lists and correlated witnesses to significant documents. Id. ¶ 42.
- prepared and defended Plaintiffs' expert witnesses during two separate all-day depositions (Id. ¶¶ 59-60), and prepared to depose Citi and JPMorgan's experts prior to reaching a settlement. Id. ¶ 61.

Class Counsel also responded to Citi and JPMorgan's discovery requests, working closely with CalSTRS and FrontPoint/FLH to identify responsive documents. Id. ¶ 47. Specifically, Class Counsel:

[6] The "Prior Settling Defendants" are Barclays plc, Barclays Bank plc and Barclays Capital Inc. ("Barclays"), Crédit Agricole S.A. and Crédit Agricole CIB ("Crédit Agricole"), Deutsche Bank AG and DB Group Services (UK) Ltd. ("Deutsche Bank"), HSBC Holdings plc, and HSBC Bank plc. ("HSBC"), Citigroup Inc. and Citibank, N.A. ("Citi"), and JPMorgan Chase & Co. and JPMorgan Chase Bank, N.A. ("JPMorgan").

- worked with former FrontPoint personnel to identify and collect relevant documents (id. ¶ 48);
- reviewed boxes of documents held in storage for information responsive to document requests and interrogatories (id. ¶ 49);
- collected and reviewed over 457,000 documents of potentially relevant documents to Relativity (id. ¶ 50);
- produced over 49,000 pages of FrontPoint's and CalSTRS' documents (id. ¶¶ 51-52).

iii. Development of the Class Wide Models of Alleged Violative Conduct and Price Impact and Preparation of Class Certification Reports

Even before all the necessary data and documents were available, Class Counsel engaged in comprehensive discussions with industry and economic experts to outline a strategy for class certification. Class Counsel decided to use two experts to develop expert reports relating to (1) JPMorgan's and Citi's alleged violations of customs and standards in the euro-denominated interbank loan market and the Euribor Products market, and (2) common impact and common proof of damages. Id. ¶ 55.

To assist the expert preparing the report on the alleged violations of market customs and standards, Class Counsel provided the expert with relevant policy and procedure guides produced by Citi and JPMorgan, as well as related communications. Id. ¶ 54. The expert used these documents to support his ultimate opinion. Id.

Plaintiffs' second expert employed a benchmark comparison approach to demonstrate how Plaintiffs could show common impact and common proof of damages. Id. ¶ 56. Class Counsel obtained nearly a decade's worth of historical Euribor submissions data and benchmark data that could be used to demonstrate the artificiality caused by Euribor manipulation. Id. ¶ 57. Plaintiffs' expert recommended applying a regression analysis of the relationship between Euribor and the benchmark data during the alleged manipulated and unmanipulated periods to assess where artificiality could be objectively observed. Id. To ensure that this model was defensible, additional research was performed to understand the use of regression analysis in expert reports and the commonly accepted characteristics of such analysis, as well as the use of control periods in expert analysis and the standards applied to such data. Id. This research helped Class Counsel to ensure the expert report properly framed the inquiry and would ultimately be deemed reliable. Id.

3. Appellate Work and Settlement Administration

Class Counsel also continued to advance Plaintiffs' appeal from certain orders, including the February 21, 2017 Order denying in part and granting in part Defendants' motion to dismiss. In May 2022, Class Counsel worked with appellate counsel to file a 60-page opening brief, arguing that: (i) intervening precedent establishes U.S. Courts' personal jurisdiction over the remaining defendants; (ii) defendants intended to manipulate Euribor; (iii) Plaintiffs are the most efficient enforcers possible for futures-based antitrust claims; and (iv) the Complaint adequately alleges a domestic RICO claim. July 2023 Joint Decl. ¶ 64. Coöperatieve Rabobank U.A., The Royal Bank of Scotland Group plc (n/k/a NatWest Group plc), Société Générale, and UBS AG (collectively, the "Principal Appellees-Cross-Appellants") filed their principal appeal brief, and ICAP plc and ICAP Europe Limited ("ICAP") joined the principal appeal brief and filed an additional brief in August 2022. Id. ¶ 65. Class Counsel filed a brief that included its reply in support of Appellants-Cross-Appellees' appeal and its response to the briefs filed by Principal Appellees-Cross-Appellants and ICAP in October 2022, and worked with appellate counsel to finalize a joint appendix in November 2022. Id. ¶ 67. On November 4, 2022, the Principal Appellees-Cross-Appellants and ICAP each filed a reply brief. Id. ¶ 68.

In addition, Class Counsel continue to supervise the settlement administration process to ensure an accurate and efficient processing of the over 46,000 claims received. Id. ¶ 71.

4. Negotiating Settlements with the Prior Settling Defendants

Negotiations with the Prior Settling Defendants occurred over a nine-year period, beginning in 2013 and Barclays' production of cooperation materials pursuant to ACPERA through to the completion of the Crédit Agricole settlement agreement in March 2022.

Throughout the process of negotiating the settlements with the Prior Settling Defendants, Class Counsel presented Plaintiffs' views on the factual and legal issues in the case and critically analyzed each Prior Settling Defendant's opposing views in services of identifying opportunities for settlement. While settlement negotiations with each Prior Settling Defendant were ongoing, Class Counsel continued their analysis of the documents and information obtained throughout the course of Class Counsel's extensive investigation, including: (i) ACPERA provided by Barclays, and settlement cooperation gained through earlier settlements; (ii) government settlements, including plea, non-prosecution and deferred prosecution agreements; (iii) publicly available information relating to the conduct alleged in Plaintiffs' complaints; and (iv) expert and industry research regarding Euribor and Euribor Products in futures and over-the-counter markets; and (v) prior decisions of this Court and others deciding similar issues.

The settlements negotiated with the Prior Settling Defendants involved nearly a decade's worth of relentless litigation and advocacy on behalf of Plaintiffs by Class Counsel. As a direct result of Class Counsel's past and present efforts, $651,500,000 has been recovered on behalf of the Class, who without Class Counsel's diligence, would have been left without recompense.

*****

Plaintiffs' Counsel have spent more than 144,000 hours over ten years prosecuting this Action, with Class Counsel contributing over 133,000 hours and significant resources to the case. The fruits of this labor are evident in the extraordinary recovery thus far for the Settlement Class. Accordingly, this Goldberger factor weighs heavily in favor of granting the fee request.

C. Quality of Representation

"[T]he quality of representation is best measured by results," Goldberger, 209 F.3d at 55, which are evaluated by "the recovery obtained and the backgrounds of the lawyers" involved in the suit. In re Merrill Lynch Tyco Research Sec. Litig., 249 F.R.D. 124, 141 (S.D.N.Y. 2008).

Results Obtained: The settlements reached so far provide significant value to the Class. $546,500,000 has already been obtained from the Prior Settling Defendants, in and of itself an extraordinary result by Class Counsel. The Settlement with Société Générale will add $105,000,000, bringing the total funds available to the Class to $651,500,000. These funds will provide Class members with an immediate recovery.

Moreover, the size of the Settlement Fund may continue to grow as Class Counsel continue to appeal Plaintiffs' claims against the non-settling Defendants. In negotiating the Settlement, Class Counsel secured significant cooperation from Société Générale intended to assist with the prosecution of any claims against any non-settling Defendants remanded to this Court. See Settlement Agreement ¶¶ 23-29. This cooperation was an essential component of the Settlement Agreement, requested to enhance Class Counsel's ability to further prosecute the Action. Class Counsel acted in the best interests of the Class and protected Plaintiffs' ability to pursue claims against the non-settling Defendants.

The Settlement Class consists of numerous institutional investors, including Plaintiffs, with the sophistication and resources to object to the Settlement or opt out to pursue claims on their own. While the deadlines to object or opt out have not passed, it is noteworthy that no objections have been lodged and only two potential Class Members have opted out of the Settlement. See Declaration of Steven Straub on behalf of A.B. Data, Ltd. Regarding Notice Administration ¶¶ 30, 32. The Class's reaction thus far provides another indication of the incredible results achieved.

Background of Lawyers Involved: Class Counsel have decades of experience prosecuting class action cases, including some of the largest class action recoveries under the commodities and antitrust laws.[7] This includes specific expertise in benchmark manipulation as demonstrated by Class Counsel's current tenure as lead counsel in cases alleging anticompetitive and manipulative conduct for several "IBOR" rates.[8] Additional examples of Class Counsel's more than 70 years of combined experience with complex litigation are detailed in Class Counsel's resumes.

Another consideration for assessing the quality of the representation is "[t]he quality of the opposing counsel" in the case. See Maley, 186 F. Supp. 2d at 373. The valuable settlement that Class Counsel secured cannot be understated given the caliber of Société Générale's counsel in this Action. See Meredith Corp., 87 F. Supp. 3d at 670 (noting that counsel's achievement in "obtaining valuable recompense . . . for its clients is particularly noteworthy given the caliber and vigor of its adversaries").[9] The fact that Class Counsel successfully prosecuted this Action for over a decade against other formidable opponents leading to the recovery of more than $650 million dollars further reflects the quality of representation provided. The caliber of work that Class Counsel and defense counsel performed in this Action led this Court to conclude when reviewing prior settlements in this case that the "lawyering was a judge's dream." See May 17, 2019 Settlement Hearing Tr. at 31 (ECF No. 504).

---

[7] See ECF Nos. 562-6 (attaching Lowey's firm resume), 562-7 (attaching Lovell's firm resume).

[8] See, e.g., Sonterra Capital Master Fund Ltd. et al. v. Credit Suisse Group AG et al., No. 15-cv-871 (SHS) (S.D.N.Y.); Sonterra Capital Master Fund Ltd. et al. v. Barclays Bank plc, 15-cv-3538 (VSB) (S.D.N.Y) (Sterling Libor); Fund Liquidation Holdings LLC v. Citibank, N.A., 16-cv-5263 (AKH) (S.D.N.Y.) (SIBOR); Laydon v. Mizuho Bank Ltd., et al., No. 12-cv-3419 (GBD) (S.D.N.Y.) and Fund Liquidation Holdings LLC as assignee and successor-in-interest to Sonterra Capital Master Fund, Ltd., et al. v. UBS AG, et al., No. 15-cv-5844 (GBD) (S.D.N.Y.); and Richard Dennis, et al. v. JPMorgan Chase & Co., et al., No. 16-cv-06496 (LAK) (S.D.N.Y.).

[9] See also NASDAQ III, 187 F.R.D. at 488 (approving attorneys' fee award where defendants were represented by "several dozen of the nation's biggest and most highly regarded defense law firms."); In re Gen. Motors LLC Ignition Switch Litig., No. 14-MC-2543 (JMF), 2020 WL 7481292, at *2 (S.D.N.Y. Dec. 18, 2020) (litigating against sophisticated opposing counsel with a well-funded defendant are "the hallmarks of a challenging case.").

D. The Fee Request is Supported by the Remaining Goldberger Factors

Goldberger factors one through four, discussed supra in Part I.A-B, support granting a substantial fee to Class Counsel. The remaining Goldberger factors discussed below further augment the basis for awarding the requested fee.

1. Class Counsel's Request is Within the Range Used Under the Second Circuit's Preferred Percentage-Based Methodology

The reasonableness of the requested fee is confirmed by the cases applying the "percentage method" of fee calculation favored in this Circuit. See Wal-Mart Stores, 396 F.3d at 121 ("The trend in this Circuit is toward the percentage method"); see also In re Beacon Assocs. Litig., No. 09 CIV. 3907 (CM), 2013 WL 2450960, at *5 (S.D.N.Y. May 9, 2013) (explaining that "percentage of recovery" is "the preferred method of calculating the award for class counsel in common fund cases"). Courts prefer the "percentage method" because it is easy to administer and avoids the "dubious merits of the lodestar approach." Strougo ex rel. Brazilian Equity Fund, Inc. v. Bassini, 258 F. Supp. 2d 254, 261 (S.D.N.Y. 2003); see also NASDAQ III, 187 F.R.D. at 485 (noting that the percentage method is easy to administer). It also "aligns the interests of the class and its counsel" while incentivizing "the efficient prosecution and early resolution of litigation." Hall v. Children's Place Retail Stores Inc., 669 F. Supp. 2d 399, 401 (S.D.N.Y. 2009) (citation omitted). Use of the percentage method is particularly appropriate in this instance, as the Settlement simplified the Appeal by eliminating the need for the Second Circuit to review the question of personal jurisdiction over Société Générale.

If the Court considers the total fees awarded in the Action, granting the $16.8 million request will result in Plaintiffs' Counsel receiving, in the aggregate, attorneys' fees of $129.24 million, or 19.84% of the $651.5 million recovered.[10] This percentage is comparable to the total fee awards granted in other similarly sized settlements. See Alaska Elec. Pension Fund v. Bank of Am. Corp., No. 14-cv-7126 (JMF), 2018 WL 6250657, at *3 (S.D.N.Y. Nov. 29, 2018) (awarding 26% of the net settlement fund from a $504.5 million settlement); Payment Card, 991 F. Supp. 2d at 445 (adopting sliding scale that awarded a 20% attorneys' fee on the first $650 million recovered; total fee award of 9.56% on the $5.7 billion settlement); In re Initial Pub. Offering Sec. Litig., 671 F. Supp. 2d 467, 516 (S.D.N.Y. 2009) (awarding one-third of the net settlement fund arising from a $586 million settlement); In re Adelphia Commc'ns Corp. Sec. and Derivative Litig., No. 03 Civ. 5755, 2006 WL 3378705, at *3 (S.D.N.Y. Nov. 16, 2006), aff'd, 272 F. App'x 9 (2d Cir. 2008) (awarding attorneys' fees of 21.4% of $455 million fund in complex securities class action settlement); Ohio Pub. Employees Ret. Sys. v. Freddie Mac., No. 03-CV-4261, 2006 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 98380, at *4 (S.D.N.Y. Oct. 26, 2006) (Sprizzo, J.) (awarding 20% of $410 million settlement, representing a 2.33 multiplier); In re Citigroup Inc. Bond Litig., 988 F. Supp. 2d at 381 (awarding attorneys' fees of 16.0% of the settlement fund of $730 million); Carlson v. Xerox Corp., 596 F. Supp. 2d 400, 403 (D. Conn. 2009), aff'd, 355 F. App'x 523 (2d Cir. 2009) (awarding attorneys' fees equal to 16.0% of a $750 million settlement fund); see also In re Urethane Antitrust Litig., No. 04 Civ. 1616, 2016 WL 4060156, at *6 (D. Kan. July 29, 2016) (awarding 33.33% fee on $835 million settlement); Dahl v. Bain Capital Partners, LLC, No. 07-cv-12388, Dkt. No. 1095 (D. Mass. Feb. 2, 2015) (awarding 33% in attorneys' fees from a $590.5 million antitrust settlement); In re Brand Name Prescription Drugs Antitrust Litig., No. 94 C 897, 2000 WL 204112, at *3 (N.D. Ill. Feb. 10, 2000) ($175,000,000 (25.12%) of $696,667,000 settlement awarded as attorneys' fees). The fee request is also less than Class Counsel requested in from earlier settlements in this Action.

[10] Class Counsel's 16.0% fee request for this Settlement is within, if not below, the range of reasonable attorneys' fees approved in complex class actions in this Circuit, including other "IBOR" cases, and is an equal or smaller percentage than the fees approved in similarly sized settlements. See, e.g., In re Global Crossing Sec. & ERISA Litig., 225 F.R.D. 436, 467 (S.D.N.Y. 2004) (finding 16% of a $205 million settlement fund to be a fair and reasonable fee award); Bd. of Trustees of AFTRA Ret. Fund v. JPMorgan Chase Bank, N.A., No. 09 Civ. 686 (SAS), 2012 WL 2064907, at *1 (S.D.N.Y. June 7, 2012) (approving attorneys' fees of 25% of a $150 million settlement fund); In re J.P. Morgan Stable Value Fund ERISA Litig., No. 12-cv-2548 (VSB), 2019 WL 4734396, at *2 (S.D.N.Y. Sept. 23, 2019) (awarding one-third fee from $75 million settlement fund).

Further, while these similarly sized settlements all involved complex litigation, the majority of these cases did not involve the risks, magnitude, and complexity faced by Class Counsel in litigating this Action for over a decade. See In re Citigroup Inc. Bond Litig., 988 F. Supp. 2d at 379 (securities litigation lasting 4.5 years, a type of case which the court noted the risk of achieving no recovery has become quite small); Carlson, 596 F. Supp. 2d at 403, aff'd, 355 F. App'x 523 (2d Cir. 2009) (noting that the litigation risks were at most those presented by a typical case); Alaska Elec. Pension Fund, 2018 WL 6250657, at *1 (antitrust litigation spanning four years and involving settlements with 15 defendants totaling $504.5 million).

Empirical studies underscore the reasonableness of the requested fee. A survey of antitrust class settlements found that, between 2009 and 2021, the median attorneys' fees award was 26% for settlements ranging from $500 million to $999 million. See Center for Litigation and Courts and The Huntington National Bank, 2021 Antitrust Annual Report: Class Actions in Federal Court (April 2022) at 27-28;[11] see also Theodore Eisenberg et. al., Attorneys' Fees in Class Actions: 2009-2013, 92 N.Y.U. L. Rev. 937, 952 (2017) (the median and average percentages awarded for attorneys' fees in antitrust recoveries between 2009-2013 were 30% and 27%, respectively); WILLIAM B. RUBENSTEIN, 5 NEWBERG AND RUBENSTEIN ON CLASS ACTIONS § 15:78 (6th ed. 2023) (mean percentage for attorneys' fees in Second Circuit class actions from 2009 to 2013 was 28%).

[11] Available at https://papers.ssrn.com/sol3/papers.cfm?abstract_id=4117930.

When all of the metrics above are considered, Class Counsel's fee request is demonstrably within the range of reasonable fee awards regularly granted by courts in this District.

2. Public Policy Supports Approval

Had Class Counsel not prosecuted this Action, the class of investors in Euribor Products would have been left without recompense for their losses. Despite the government investigations and certain Defendants' admissions of wrongdoing, many investors harmed by the conspiracy would not have received any money at all but for this Action. See, e.g., In re Colgate-Palmolive Co. ERISA Litig., 36 F. Supp. 3d 344, 352 (S.D.N.Y. 2014) ("providing lawyers with sufficient incentive to bring common fund cases . . . serve[s] the public interest") (citations omitted).

Public policy encourages enforcement of the antitrust laws through private civil suits to deter infringing conduct in the future. See Pillsbury Co. v. Conboy, 459 U.S. 248, 262-63 (1983) ("This Court has emphasized the importance of the private action as a means of furthering the policy goals of certain federal regulatory statutes, including the federal antitrust laws."). Awarding a reasonable percentage of the common fund further ensures that Class Counsel retains the ability and incentive to pursue antitrust violations at their own expense even when recovery is uncertain. See Goldberger, 209 F.3d at 51 ("There is . . . commendable sentiment in favor of providing lawyers with sufficient incentive to bring common fund cases that serve the public interest.").

E. The Lodestar Value of Class Counsel's Time and Labor Confirms the Reasonableness of the Fee Request

The amount of work that Plaintiffs' Counsel have undertaken is further evident in the total lodestar in this Action. Courts in this Circuit use the lodestar calculation "as a sanity check to ensure that an otherwise reasonable percentage fee would not lead to a windfall." In re Colgate-Palmolive Co. ERISA Litig., 36 F. Supp. 3d at 353. There is no windfall here.

Plaintiffs' Counsel have worked 144,833.34 hours in this Action as of June 30, 2023, for an aggregate lodestar of $72,015,852.45. See July 2023 Joint Decl. ¶ 83; Briganti Decl.; Jaccarino Decl.; Seaver Decl. Class Counsel applied rate caps and audited the time for reasonableness and necessity. Current rates have not been applied to the work performed through June 30, 2022 that was included in previous fee applications. The $16.8 million fee requested, when combined with the previously awarded fees totaling $112.44 million, constitutes a 1.8 multiplier. This is less than the negotiated 3.5 risk multiplier cap in the CalSTRS's retainer. See Part I.F, infra. As a result, the full fee will not result in an "unwarranted windfall." Goldberger, 209 F.3d at 49. It is also comparable or less than the range of multipliers approved in this and other circuits.[12]

F. The Negotiated Sliding Fee Scale on which Class Counsel's Request is Based Provides Further Evidence of the Proposed Award's Reasonableness

Court-awarded attorneys' fees should reflect "what a reasonable, paying client would be willing to pay" for counsel's services. Arbor Hill Concerned Citizens Neighborhood Ass'n v. Cty. of Albany & Albany Cty. Bd. of Elections, 522 F.3d 182, 184 (2d Cir. 2008). Courts give great weight to negotiated fee agreements because they typically reflect actual market rates. In re Nortel Networks Corp. Sec. Litig., 539 F.3d 129, 133 (2d Cir. 2008) ("In many cases, the agreed-upon fee will offer the best indication of a market rate."). If a "sophisticated benefits fund with fiduciary obligations to its members and [ ] a sizeable stake in the litigation" negotiates an ex ante fee agreement, courts recognize that there is a "rebuttable 'presumption of correctness'" that should apply to those terms. CDS Litig., 2016 WL 2731524, at *16.

[12] See, e.g., CDS Litig., 2016 WL 2731524, at *17 (approving a lodestar multiplier of "just over 6" in a complex antitrust class action); Beckman v. KeyBank N.A., 293 F.R.D. 467, 481 (S.D.N.Y. 2013) (approving a multiplier of 6.3 in class action, explaining that "[c]ourts regularly award lodestar multipliers of up to eight times the lodestar, and in some cases, even higher multipliers."); Maley, 186 F. Supp. 2d at 371 (holding that a 4.65 lodestar multiplier is modest, fair, and reasonable); see also Vizcaino v. Microsoft Corp., 290 F.3d 1043, 1052 (9th Cir. 2002) (listing nationwide class action settlements where the lodestar multiplier ranged up to 8.5). Under the CalSTRS fee agreement, the risk multiplier is based on the total lodestar since inception.

The attorneys' fee request of 16.0% ($16.8 million) of the $105,000,000 common fund complies with the sliding fee scale included in the retainer that CalSTRS negotiated with Class Counsel and Berman Tabacco. Further, in the aggregate, the fee request is well within the 3.5 multiplier cap for aggregate lodestar for all Plaintiffs' Counsel that is imposed in the retainer agreement. See Declaration of Brian Bartow dated July 13, 2023 ("Bartow Decl.") ¶ 7. CalSTRS is the second largest pension fund in the United States, with more than 980,000 members and beneficiaries, and an investment portfolio currently valued at $309.3 billion. See Bartow Decl. ¶ 4. Since 2014, CalSTRS has been an active and engaged plaintiff. Id. ¶¶ 10-22. CalSTRS' General Counsel has scrutinized every aspect of Class Counsel's work and independently concluded that he supports both the motion for final approval and the requested award of attorneys' fees. See Id. ¶¶ 23-26. This Court has approved fee awards based on CalSTRS' retainer with Class Counsel three times previously. See ECF Nos. 425, 500, 550. Notably, no Class Member has objected to any of the prior three fee requests that have been based on CalSTRS' retainer. July 2023 Joint Decl. ¶ 80.

CalSTRS' ex ante judgment about the attorneys' fees in this case, as well as CalSTRS' post hoc support of the fee request in light of its involvement in the Action amply exceed the factors identified in CDS Litig. to create a presumption of reasonableness here.

II. CLASS COUNSEL'S EXPENSES ARE REASONABLE

The attorneys whose work leads to the creation of "a common settlement fund for a class are entitled to reimbursement of [reasonable] expenses that they advance to a class." Meredith Corp. v. SESAC, LLC, 87 F. Supp. 3d 650, 671 (S.D.N.Y. 2015); see also In re Arakis Energy Corp. Sec. Litig., No. 95 CV 3431(ARR), 2001 WL 1590512, at *17 n.12 (E.D.N.Y. Oct. 31, 2001) ("Courts in the Second Circuit normally grant expense requests in common fund cases as a matter of course."). Plaintiffs' Counsel incurred $98,568.15 in expenses from August 2022 to the present.

See July 2023 Joint Decl. ¶¶ 85-86. This amount is well below the $500,000 Class Counsel advised in the Court-approved notice sent to Settlement Class Members. See ECF No. 562-3 at 8.

These costs and expenses were "incidental and necessary to the representation of the [C]lass," and should be reimbursed. See Beckman, 293 F.R.D. at 482. Since August 2022, $50,000 (or 50.73%) of Plaintiffs' Counsel's reimbursable expenses went towards engaging appellate counsel to assist Plaintiffs in the Appeals, and $34,972.08 (or 35.48%) of Plaintiffs' Counsel's reimbursable expenses were related to ongoing document production and hosting costs.

III. THE COURT SHOULD GRANT CALSTRS' SERVICE AWARD REQUEST

"Service" or "incentive" awards to class representatives are granted at the discretion of the Court to "compensate class representatives for their services to the class and simultaneously serve to incentivize them to perform this function." WILLIAM B. RUBENSTEIN, 5 NEWBERG AND RUBENSTEIN ON CLASS ACTIONS § 17:1 (6th ed. 2023). In deciding whether to grant such awards, a court considers "'the personal risk (if any) incurred by the plaintiff-applicant in becoming and continuing as a litigant, the time and effort expended by that plaintiff in assisting in the prosecution of the litigation or in bringing to bear added value (e.g., factual expertise), any other burdens sustained by that plaintiff . . . and, of course, the ultimate recovery.'" Dial Corp. v. News Corp., 317 F.R.D. 426, 439 (S.D.N.Y. 2016) (quoting Roberts v. Texaco, 979 F. Supp. 185, 200 (S.D.N.Y. 1997)); see also Anwar v. Fairfield Greenwich Ltd., No. 09-cv-118 (VM), 2012 WL 1981505, at *3 (S.D.N.Y. June 1, 2012) ("Courts consistently approve awards in class action lawsuits to compensate named plaintiffs for the services they provide and burdens they endure during litigation."); Beckman, 293 F.R.D. at 483 ("It is important to compensate plaintiffs for the time they spend and the risks they take."). Courts recognize that out-of-pocket costs incurred by class representatives are reimbursable as part of a service award. See Warren v.

Xerox Corp., No. 01-CV-2909(JG), 2008 WL 4371367, at *6 n.3 (E.D.N.Y. Sept. 19, 2008). Based on these factors, a service award for CalSTRS is warranted.

As set forth in its declaration, Plaintiff CalSTRS was vigilant in its representation of the Class. CalSTRS' request for a service award is based upon the substantial amount of time it devoted to and costs it incurred in the Action in connection with this Settlement and the Crédit Agricole settlement. See generally Bartow Decl. CalSTRS played an active role in the last year by attending the fairness hearing for the Crédit Agricole settlement and closely supervising and participating in the settlement negotiations with Société Générale.

The efforts by CalSTRS are precisely the types of activities courts have found to support reimbursement to class representatives. See, e.g., In re Petrobras Sec. Litig., 317 F. Supp. 3d 858, 873 (S.D.N.Y. 2018) (Rakoff, J.) (awarding three class representatives a total of $400,000 as compensation for, among other things, responding to discovery, "providing oversight of the mediation and settlement process," and reviewing and authorizing settlement).; In re Marsh & McLennan Cos., Inc. Sec. Litig., No. 04 Civ. 8144 (CM), 2009 WL 5178546, at *21 (S.D.N.Y. Dec. 23, 2009) (awarding $144,657 to the New Jersey Attorney General's Office and $70,000 to certain Ohio pension funds, to compensate them "for their reasonable costs and expenses incurred in managing this litigation and representing the Class" and noting that these efforts were "precisely the types of activities that support awarding reimbursement of expenses to class representatives"); *In re Satyam Computer Servs. Ltd. Sec. Lit*ig., No. 09-MD-2027-BSJ, slip. op. at 3-4 (S.D.N.Y. Sept. 13, 2011), ECF No. 365 (awarding an aggregate amount of $195,111 as reimbursement for the costs and expenses of class representatives directly relating to their services in representing the class). As Judge Sweet observed in In re Gilat Satellite Networks, Ltd., "[s]ince the tasks undertaken by employees of Lead Plaintiffs reduced the amount of time those employees would have spent on other work and these tasks and rates appear reasonable to the furtherance of the litigation, the motion for . . . expenses for Lead Plaintiffs is granted." No. CV-02-1510 (CPS)(SMG), 2007 WL 2743675, at *19 (E.D.N.Y. Sept. 18, 2007). Similarly, in In re American International Group, Inc. Securities Litigation, Judge Batts found that "the request of [lead plaintiffs] OPERS and STRS Ohio for reimbursement of $71,910.00 in lost wages related to their active participation in this action is reasonable," No. 04 Civ. 8141 (DAB), 2012 WL 345509, at *6 (S.D.N.Y. Feb. 2, 2012). Here, the award sought by CalSTRS is reasonable and justified based on its extensive involvement in the Action and should be granted.

The notice to Class Members stated that in the event Plaintiffs sought a service award, such amount would not exceed $150,000. To date, there have been no objections to this request. Class Counsel respectfully request that the Court award $4,406.11 to CalSTRS as compensation for its reasonable costs and expenses incurred in representing the Class. The service award of $4,406.11 represents 0.0042% of the Société Générale Settlement. This percentage is comparable to incentive or service awards granted in other cases. See In re GSE Bonds Antitrust Litig., 19-cv-1704 (JSR) (S.D.N.Y.); Laydon v. Mizuho Bank, Ltd., No. 12-cv-3419 (GBD), ECF No. 724 (S.D.N.Y. Nov. 10, 2016) (awarding $580,000 in incentive awards to plaintiffs, representing 1% of the settlement fund); Dial Corp., 317 F.R.D. at 438-39 (awarding 0.12% of the $244 million settlement fund ($300,000) to six class representatives); In re Air Cargo Shipping Services Antitrust Litig., No. 06-MD-1775 (JG)(VVP), 2015 WL 5918273, at *6 (E.D.N.Y. Oct. 9, 2015) (granting $540,000 in incentive awards, representing 0.06% of the total $900 million in settlements, to six class representatives).

CONCLUSION

For the foregoing reasons, Class Counsel respectfully requests that the court approve their application for attorneys' fees and costs and service award in the amounts set forth above.

Dated: July 13, 2023

Respectfully submitted,

LOWEY DANNENBERG, P.C.

/s/ Vincent Briganti
Vincent Briganti
Geoffrey Horn
44 South Broadway, Suite 1100
White Plains, NY 10601
Tel.: (914) 997-0500
Fax: (914) 997-0035
E-mail: vbriganti@lowey.com
E-mail: ghorn@lowey.com

LOVELL STEWART HALEBIAN JACOBSON LLP

/s/ Christopher Lovell
Christopher Lovell
Benjamin M. Jaccarino
500 Fifth Avenue, Suite 2440
New York, NY 10110
Tel.: (212) 608-1900
Fax: (646) 398-8392
E-mail: clovell@lshllp.com
E-mail: bjaccarino@lshllp.com

Class Counsel

BERMAN TABACCO
Joseph J. Tabacco, Jr.
Todd A. Seaver
425 California Street, Suite 2300
San Francisco, CA 94104
Tel.: 415-433-3200
Fax: 415-433-6282

GLANCY PRONGAY & MURRAY LLP
Brian P. Murray
Lee Albert
230 Park Avenue, Suite 358
New York, NY 10169
Tel.: 212-682-5340
Fax: 212-884-0988

BERMAN TABACCO
Patrick T. Egan
One Liberty Square
Boston, MA 02109
Tel.: 617-542-8300
Fax: 617-542-1194

KIRBY MCINERNEY LLP
David E. Kovel
250 Park Avenue, Suite 820
New York, NY 10177
Tel.: 212-371-6600
Fax: 212-751-2540

Additional Plaintiffs' Counsel

TAB 53A

United States District Court
Northern District of California

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT

NORTHERN DISTRICT OF CALIFORNIA

SAN JOSE DIVISION

ROBERT A. NITSCH, et al.,

Plaintiffs,

v.

DREAMWORKS ANIMATION SKG INC., et al.,

Defendants.

Case No. 14-CV-04062-LHK

ORDER GRANTING IN PART AND DENYING IN PART MOTION FOR ATTORNEY'S FEES

Re: Dkt. No. 385

Before the Court is Plaintiffs' Motion for Attorneys' Fees, Expenses, and Service Awards arising out of a settlement between individual and representative plaintiffs Robert Nitsch, David Wentworth, and Georgia Cano, and the Class they represent (collectively, "Plaintiffs"), and DreamWorks Animation SKG, Inc. ("DreamWorks"), and The Walt Disney Company, Pixar, Lucasfilm, Ltd., LLC, and Two Pic MC LLC (collectively, "Disney").

Having considered the submissions of the parties, the arguments made at the May 18, 2017 hearing, the relevant law, and the record in this case, the Court hereby GRANTS IN PART AND DENIES IN PART Plaintiffs' motion.

I. BACKGROUND

This is a consolidated class action brought by former employees alleging antitrust claims against their former employers, who are various animation and visual effects studios with principal places of business in California. Second Amended Complaint ("SAC"), ECF No. 121.[1] Plaintiffs contend that Defendants engaged in a conspiracy to fix and suppress employee compensation and to restrict employee mobility.

A. Factual Background

1. The Parties

Defendants include the following animation and visual effects studios: Blue Sky Studios, Inc. ("Blue Sky"), a Delaware corporation with its principal place of business in Greenwich, Connecticut; DreamWorks Animation SKG, Inc. ("DreamWorks"), a Delaware corporation with its principal place of business in Glendale, California; Two Pic MC LLC, formerly known as ImageMovers Digital LLC ("ImageMovers Digital"), a Delaware corporation with its principal place of business in Burbank, California; Lucasfilm Ltd., LLC ("Lucasfilm"), a California corporation with its principal place of business in San Francisco, California;[2] Pixar, a California corporation with its principal place of business in Emeryville, California;[3] Sony Pictures Animation, Inc. and Sony Pictures Imageworks, Inc. (collectively, "the Sony Defendants"), California corporations with their principal places of business in Culver City, California; and The Walt Disney Company ("Disney"), a Delaware corporation with its principal place of business in Burbank, California.[4] SAC ¶¶ 22–29.

Plaintiffs are artists and engineers who were previously employed by four of the named Defendants. Id. ¶¶ 19–21. Nitsch worked for Sony Picture Imageworks in 2004 and DreamWorks from 2007 to 2011. Id. ¶ 19. Cano worked for Walt Disney Feature Animation from 2004 to 2005,

[1] Defendant Blue Sky Studios, Inc. has its principal place of business in Greenwich, Connecticut, but Plaintiffs allege that it is owned by Twentieth Century Fox Film Corporation, which has its principal place of business in Los Angeles, California. SAC ¶ 22.

[2] The parties' papers also refer at points to Industrial Light & Magic ("ILM"). Plaintiffs aver that ILM is a division of Lucasfilm.

[3] According to Plaintiffs, Defendant The Walt Disney Company acquired Pixar in 2006 and acquired ILM and Lucasfilm in 2012. SAC ¶¶ 25–26.

[4] Disney also "oversees the operations of" Walt Disney Animation Studios, formerly known as Walt Disney Feature Animation. SAC ¶ 29.

ImageMovers Digital in 2010, and at various other visual effects and animation studios. Id. ¶ 20. Wentworth worked at ImageMovers Digital from 2007 to 2010. Id. ¶ 21. Nitsch is a resident of Massachusetts, and Cano and Wentworth are residents of California. Id. ¶¶ 19–21.

2. In re High-Tech Employee Litigation and the Department of Justice investigation

There is significant overlap between the instant case and the related action In re High-Tech Employee Litigation, No. 11-CV-02509-LHK ("High-Tech"), as well as the civil complaints filed by the Department of Justice ("DOJ") against Pixar, Lucasfilm, and several Silicon Valley technology companies. As the background of the related High-Tech action and the DOJ actions is relevant to Plaintiffs' Motion, the Court briefly summarizes the background of those prior proceedings below.

From 2009 to 2010, the Antitrust Division of the DOJ investigated the employment and recruitment practices of various Silicon Valley technology companies, including Adobe Systems, Inc., Apple, Inc., Google, Inc., Intel Corp., and Intuit, Inc. See In re High-Tech Empl. Litig., 856 F. Supp. 2d 1103, 1109 (N.D. Cal. 2012). The DOJ filed its complaint against Adobe, Apple, Google, Intel, Intuit, and Pixar in D.C. District Court on September 24, 2010. Id. On December 21, 2010, the DOJ filed a separate complaint against Lucasfilm. Id. & n.1. The defendants, including Pixar and Lucasfilm, stipulated to proposed final judgments in which the defendants agreed that the DOJ's complaints had stated claims under federal antitrust law and agreed to be "enjoined from attempting to enter into, maintaining or enforcing any agreement with any other person or in any way refrain from . . . soliciting, cold calling, recruiting, or otherwise competing for employees of the other person." Id. at 1109–10 (quoting Adobe Proposed Final Judgment at 5). The D.C. District Court entered the stipulated proposed final judgments in March and June 2011. Id. at 1110.

The High-Tech plaintiffs filed five separate state court actions between May and July 2011. Following removal, transfer to San Jose to the undersigned judge, and consolidation, the High-Tech plaintiffs filed a consolidated amended complaint on September 13, 2011. High-Tech, 856 F. Supp. 2d at 1112–13. In their complaint, the High-Tech plaintiffs alleged antitrust claims against their employers and alleged that the defendants had conspired "to fix and suppress employee compensation and to restrict employee mobility." Id. at 1108. More specifically, the High-Tech plaintiffs alleged a conspiracy comprised of "an interconnected web of express bilateral agreements." Id. at 1110. One agreement, the "Do Not Cold Call" agreement, involved one company placing the names of the other company's employees on a "Do Not Cold Call" list and instructing its recruiters not to cold call the employees of the other company. Id. In addition to the "Do Not Cold Call" agreements, the High-Tech plaintiffs also alleged that Pixar and Lucasfilm, defendants in both High-Tech and the instant action, entered into express, written agreements (1) to not cold call each other's employees, (2) to notify the other company whenever making an offer to an employee of the other company, and (3) not to engage in "bidding wars." Id. at 1111. Second, Defendants allegedly "shared confidential compensation information with each other despite the fact that they considered each other competitors for talent," which would artificially limit compensation offered to Defendants' current and prospective employees. In re High-Tech Employee Antitrust Litig., 2014 WL 1283086, at *3 (N.D. Cal. Mar. 28, 2014).

3. Alleged Conspiracy in the Instant Action

In the instant case, Plaintiffs allege that Defendants conspired to suppress compensation in two ways. First, Defendants allegedly entered into a scheme not to actively solicit each other's employees. SAC ¶ 42. Second, Defendants allegedly engaged in "collusive discussions in which they exchanged competitively sensitive compensation information and agreed upon compensation ranges," which would artificially limit compensation offered to Defendants' current and prospective employees. Id.

a. Anti-Solicitation Scheme

According to Plaintiffs, as in High-Tech, "Defendants agreed not to contact their coconspirators' employees to inform them of available positions unless that individual employee had applied for a job opening on his or her own initiative." Id. ¶ 43. This solicitation, also known as "cold calling," is "a key competitive tool in a properly functioning labor market, especially for skilled labor." Id. ¶ 44. Plaintiffs aver that employees of competitor studios represent "one of the main pools of potential hires," and that employees of competitor studios that are not actively searching for new employment are "more likely to be among the most sought after employees." Id. Hiring an employee from a competitor studio "can save costs and avoid risks." Id. Absent active solicitation, these employees are also difficult to reach. Id. Defendants' anti-solicitation scheme also allegedly included "notifying each other when an employee of one Defendant applied for a position with another Defendant, and agreeing to limit counteroffers in such situations." Id. ¶ 45. Moreover, Defendants allegedly "often refrained from hiring other Defendants' employees at all without the permission of the current employer," and would sometimes decline to make offers of employment to an unemployed prospective hire if that individual had an outstanding offer from another Defendant. Id. ¶ 46.

Plaintiffs allege that while the conspiracy originated with Pixar and Lucasfilm in the mid-1980s, Pixar President Ed Catmull later brought additional studios into the fold. Id. ¶ 52. According to Plaintiffs, Blue Sky, DreamWorks, ImageMovers Digital,[5] the Sony Defendants, and Walt Disney Animation Studios all became part of the anti-solicitation conspiracy during the mid-2000s and agreed not to directly recruit each other's employees. Id. ¶¶ 53–79.

b. Compensation Ranges

In addition to the anti-solicitation scheme, Plaintiffs further allege that Defendants "directly communicated and met regularly to discuss and agree upon compensation ranges." Id. ¶ 86 (citing March 28, 2007 email from Pixar's Vice President of Human Resources, Lori McAdams). According to Plaintiffs, Defendants met at least once a year in California at meetings organized by the Croner Company, a third party that apparently collects industry-specific salary information.

Plaintiffs allege that at these meetings, Defendants "discussed, agreed upon and set wage and salary ranges during meals, drinks and other social gatherings that they held outside of the official Croner meetings." Id. ¶ 89. Plaintiffs further allege that Defendants regularly emailed each other with specific salary ranges. Plaintiffs contend that Defendants' "collusive compensation setting was not limited to wages and salaries, but extended to other benefits and terms of employment." Id. ¶ 97.

[5] Plaintiffs dismissed a separate Defendant, ImageMovers LLC, without prejudice pursuant to a tolling agreement on January 14, 2015. ECF No. 83. The dismissal of ImageMovers LLC did not affect ImageMovers Digital.

Defendants' human resources and recruiting personnel also allegedly regularly communicated via telephone. Id. ¶ 113. As Plaintiffs describe it, the Croner survey meetings, side meetings, emails, and telephone calls "provided the means and opportunities for Defendants to collude and to implement and enforce the conspiracy to suppress workers' compensation." Id. ¶ 114. According to Plaintiffs, executives such as Pixar's Lori McAdams, "knew that such conversations were inappropriate." Id. ¶ 5, 110–11.

Plaintiffs further allege that while press reports in 2009 noted that the DOJ was investigating anti-solicitation agreements among high-tech companies, including Google and Apple, there was no indication that the DOJ was also investigating Pixar, Lucasfilm, or any other animation company. Id. ¶ 119. Plaintiffs aver that September 17, 2010 marked the first news story naming Pixar as a company under investigation, but that there was no public disclosure that any other Defendant in the instant action was part of the conspiracy. Id. ¶¶ 119, 184. According to Plaintiffs, Lucasfilm was implicated in the Pixar investigation in December 2010, but "until certain filings in the High-Tech docket were unsealed in 2013," there was no public information that the other Defendants in this action had engaged in similar conduct. Id. Plaintiffs also cite the absence of news coverage as proof that Plaintiffs had no way of discovering the conspiracy, as even industry journalists were "unable to discover and explore the conspiracy." Id. ¶ 186.

c. Fraudulent Concealment

In their SAC, Plaintiffs allege that Defendants fraudulently concealed the conspiracy and therefore prevented the Plaintiffs from filing their claims on time. Plaintiffs allege that Defendants (1) took affirmative steps to keep their conspiracy a secret; (2) affirmatively misled class members by claiming that compensation and recruiting was determined by factors other than the alleged conspiracy; and (3) took affirmative steps to mislead class members about the conspiracy during the High-Tech litigation. The details of these alleged steps to fraudulently conceal the anti-competitive scheme are discussed in prior orders in this case, and therefore the Court does not repeat those details here.

4. Claims

Plaintiffs' SAC asserts three claims for relief under the following statutes: (1) Section 1 of the Sherman Act, 15 U.S.C. § 1; (2) California's Cartwright Act, Cal. Bus. & Prof. Code § 16720; and (3) California's Unfair Competition Law ("UCL"), Cal. Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 17200 et seq. SAC ¶¶ 205–18. Plaintiffs seek treble damages, pre- and post-judgment interest, attorney's fees and expenses, and a permanent injunction. Id. ¶ 219.

B. Procedural Background

In light of the relationship between the instant case and the High-Tech case, the Court summarizes the relevant procedural history of the High-Tech case in addition to the procedural history of the instant case.

1. High-Tech Procedural Background

The High-Tech defendants removed the first state court action on May 23, 2011. No. 11-2509, ECF No. 1. The last state-court action in the High-Tech litigation was removed on July 19, 2011. No. 11-2509, ECF No. 41. After reassignment of the cases to the undersigned judge, a First Consolidated Amended Complaint was filed on September 13, 2011. No. 11-2509, ECF No. 65. On April 18, 2012, the Court granted in part and denied in part the High-Tech defendants' motions to dismiss. No. 11-2509, ECF No. 119. On April 5, 2013, the Court granted in part and denied in part the High-Tech plaintiffs' motion for class certification with leave to amend and denied two motions to exclude expert testimony under Daubert v. Merrell Dow Pharmaceuticals, 509 U.S. 579 (1993). No. 11-2509, ECF No. 382. The High-Tech plaintiffs filed a supplemental motion for class certification on May 10, 2013, which the Court granted on October 24, 2013. No. 11-2509, ECF No. 531. On November 7, 2013, the High-Tech defendants filed a Rule 23(f) petition before the Ninth Circuit, requesting permission to appeal this Court's October 24, 2013 class certification order. In re High-Tech Empl. Antitrust Litig., No. 13-80223, ECF No. 1 (9th Cir. Nov. 7, 2013).

The Ninth Circuit denied the defendants' petition on January 14, 2014. Id., ECF No. 18.

In the interim, three of the High-Tech defendants—Intuit, Lucasfilm, and Pixar—reached a settlement with the High-Tech plaintiffs. On October 30, 2013, the Court granted preliminary approval of that settlement. No. 11-2509, ECF No. 540. The Court granted final approval on May 16, 2014. No. 11-2509, ECF No. 915. The Court entered a final judgment with regard to Lucasfilm, Pixar, and Intuit on June 9, 2014 and an amended final judgment on June 20, 2014. No. 11-2509, ECF Nos. 936, 947.

The remaining High-Tech defendants—Adobe, Apple, Google, and Intel—filed individual motions for summary judgment, a joint motion for summary judgment, and a joint motion to strike certain expert testimony on January 9, 2014. No. 11-2509, ECF Nos. 554 (Intel), 556 and 557 (joint motions), 560 (Adobe), 561 (Apple), 564 (Google). The Court denied the High-Tech defendants' four individual motions for summary judgment on March 28, 2014. No. 11-2509, ECF No. 771. On April 4, 2014, the Court granted in part and denied in part the High-Tech defendants' joint motion to strike, and denied the defendants' joint motion for summary judgment. No. 11-2509, ECF No. 788.

On May 22, 2014, the High-Tech plaintiffs filed a motion for preliminary approval of class action settlement as to the remaining defendants. No. 11-2509, ECF No. 920. On August 8, 2014, the Court denied the High-Tech plaintiffs' motion for preliminary approval and concluded that the proposed settlement, which included a settlement fund of $324.5 million, did not fall "within the range of reasonableness." No. 11-2509, ECF No. 974 at 30. On September 4, 2014, the High-Tech defendants filed a petition for a writ of mandamus with the Ninth Circuit. In re Adobe Sys., Inc., et al., No. 14-72745, ECF No. 1 (9th Cir. Sept. 4, 2014). On September 22, 2014, the Ninth Circuit found that the petition "raises issues that warrant a response," and ordered briefing. Id., ECF No. 2. On January 13, 2015, the High-Tech defendants filed correspondence with the Ninth Circuit referring to a new proposed settlement agreement. Id., ECF No. 21. On January 30, 2015, the defendants filed an unopposed motion to dismiss the petition, which the Ninth Circuit granted on February 2, 2015. Id., ECF Nos. 23, 24.

On January 15, 2015, the High-Tech plaintiffs filed a motion for preliminary approval of class action settlement as to the remaining defendants. No. 11-2509, ECF No. 1032. In this second proposed class action settlement, the parties had reached a settlement amount exceeding the previously rejected settlement by approximately $90.5 million. Id. at 1. Following a fairness hearing on March 2, 2015, the Court granted preliminary approval to the January 2015 settlement agreement on March 3, 2015. No. 11-2509, ECF Nos. 1051, 1054. The Court held a final approval hearing on July 9, 2015. No. 11-2509, ECF No. 1096. On September 2, 2015, the Court granted final approval of the class action settlement and entered final judgment with regard to Adobe, Apple, Google, and Intuit. No. 11-2509, ECF Nos. 1111, 1113.

2. Procedural Background in the Instant Action

Plaintiff Nitsch filed the first complaint against all Defendants except Blue Sky on September 8, 2014. ECF No. 1. The Court related Nitsch's action to In re High-Tech Employee Antitrust Litigation, No. 11-2509, on September 23, 2014. ECF No. 12. Plaintiff Cano filed the second complaint against all Defendants on September 17, 2014, which the Court related to High-Tech on October 7, 2014. See Case No. 14-4203, ECF Nos. 1, 9. Plaintiff Wentworth filed the third complaint against all Defendants except Blue Sky on October 2, 2014, which the Court related to High-Tech on October 28, 2014. See Case No. 14-4422, ECF Nos. 1, 26. On November 5, 2014, the Court granted Plaintiffs' motion to consolidate the above-mentioned three cases into a single action, In re Animation Workers Antitrust Litigation. See Case No. 14-4062, ECF No. 38.

Pursuant to the Court's November 6, 2014 case management order, ECF No. 39, Plaintiffs filed their first consolidated amended complaint on December 2, 2014. ECF No. 63. On January 9, 2015, Defendants filed a joint motion to dismiss. ECF Nos. 75. Plaintiffs filed a timely opposition, ECF No. 97, and Defendants replied, ECF No. 100. On April 3, 2015, the Court granted Defendants' motion to dismiss. In re Animation Workers Antitrust Litig., 87 F. Supp. 3d 1195 (N.D. Cal. Apr. 3, 2015). The Court found that Plaintiffs' claims were time barred under the statute of limitations, and that Plaintiffs had failed to adequately plead a "continuing violations" theory or a "fraudulent concealment" theory to toll the statute of limitations. See id. at 1212, 1217–18. The dismissal was without prejudice, as the Court determined that Plaintiffs might be able to allege sufficient facts to support their continuing violations or fraudulent concealment theories. *Id.*at 1218.

On May 15, 2015, Plaintiffs filed their Second Amended Complaint. ECF No. 121. Six days later, Defendants filed a joint motion to dismiss the SAC. ECF No. 126. Plaintiffs filed a timely opposition, ECF No. 132, and Defendants replied, ECF No. 137. On August 20, 2015, the Court denied Defendants' motion to dismiss the SAC. In re Animation Workers Antitrust Litig., 123 F. Supp. 3d 1175, 1207 (N.D. Cal. 2015). In its order denying Defendants' motion to dismiss, the Court found that the SAC was not barred by the statute of limitations because the SAC sufficiently alleged that Defendants had fraudulently concealed the alleged conspiracy. Id.

Plaintiffs filed a motion for class certification on February 1, 2016. ECF No. 203. Defendant Blue Sky did not join Defendants' opposition to class certification. Instead, Plaintiffs filed a joint motion for preliminary approval of class action settlement with Blue Sky on March 31, 2016, ECF No. 249, and an amended motion for preliminary approval of class action settlement on May 11, 2016, ECF No. 282. The Blue Sky settlement provided for a payment of $5,950,000 to the class. ECF No. 336, at 1.

Defendants DreamWorks, Disney, Lucasfilm, Pixar, Two Pic (ImageMovers Digital), Sony Pictures Animation, and Sony Pictures Imageworks filed an opposition to the motion for class certification on March 24, 2016. ECF No. 239-1. After Defendants' opposition to class certification was filed, Plaintiffs filed a motion for preliminary approval of class action settlement with the Sony Defendants on May 3, 2016. ECF No. 273 at 4. The Sony settlement provided for a payment of $13,000,000 to the class. ECF No. 336, at 1. As part of the settlement agreement, the Sony Defendants agreed not to cooperate with the remaining Defendants in opposing Plaintiffs' motion for class certification. See id.

On May 6, 2016, the Court held a hearing on Plaintiffs' class certification motion. ECF No. 276. On May 25, 2016, the Court granted in part and denied in part the motion. See Nitsch v.

DreamWorks Animation SKG Inc., 315 F.R.D. 270 (N.D. Cal. 2016). The Court certified the following class (id. at 317):

> All animation and visual effects employees employed by defendants in the United States who held any of the jobs listed in Ashenfelter Reply Report Amended Appendix C during the following time periods: Pixar (2004-2010), Lucasfilm Ltd., LLC (2004-2010), DreamWorks Animation SKG, Inc. (2004-2010), The Walt Disney Company (2004-2010), Sony Pictures Animation, Inc. and Sony Pictures Imageworks, Inc. (2004-2010), Blue Sky Studios, Inc. (2005-2010) and Two Pic MC LLC f/k/a ImageMovers Digital LLC (2007-2010). Excluded from the Class are senior executives, members of the board of directors, and persons employed to perform office operations or administrative tasks.

The Court denied the motion without prejudice as to class members who worked at Pixar and Lucasfilm from 2001-2003, and who worked at DreamWorks in 2003. See id. The Court ruled that the SAC did not sufficiently allege acts of fraudulent concealment during those years. See id.

On June 8, 2016, defendants filed a Rule 23(f) petition with the Ninth Circuit. See Petition for Permission to Appeal from the United States District Court for the Northern District of California, Nitsch v. DreamWorks Animation SKG, Inc., No. 16-80077 (9th Cir. June 8, 2016) ("Nitsch I" or "Appeal"). On August 29, 2016, the Ninth Circuit granted defendants' motion for leave to file a reply, but denied their Rule 23(f) Petition in a summary order. ECF No. 7 at 1.

On July 6, 2016, the Court granted Plaintiffs' motion for preliminary approval of the class action settlements with Sony and Blue Sky. ECF No. 305. On November 11, 2016, the Court granted Plaintiffs' motion for final approval of the class action settlements with Sony and Blue Sky. EF No. 346. On November 11, 2016, the Court also awarded class counsel $4,737,500 in attorney's fees in connection with the Sony and Blue Sky settlements.

Plaintiffs and DreamWorks signed a settlement agreement on October 4, 2016 in which DreamWorks agreed to pay $50,000,000 to a common fund to resolve the litigation. On January 19, 2017, the Court granted preliminary approval of the Dreamworks Settlement. ECF No. 353.

Plaintiffs and Disney signed a settlement agreement on January 30, 2017 in which Disney agreed to pay $100,000,000 to a common fund to resolve the litigation. On March 2, 2017, the Court granted preliminary approval of the Disney Settlement. ECF No. 382. In the preliminary approval order, the Court set a single final approval hearing for the Dreamworks and Disney Settlements for May 18, 2017. The Court held the final approval hearing for the Dreamworks and Disney Settlements on May 18, 2017.

II. DISCUSSION

The instant motions contain specific requests for attorney's fees, reimbursement of expenses, and service awards. The Court addresses each in turn.

A. Attorney's Fees

1. The Appropriate Method: Lodestar v. Percentage-of-Recovery

Under Ninth Circuit law, "the choice between lodestar and percentage calculation depends on the circumstances, but . . . 'either method may . . . have its place in determining what would be reasonable compensation for creating a common fund.'" Six Mexican Workers v. Ariz. Citrus Growers, 904 F.2d 1301, 1311 (9th Cir. 1990) (second ellipsis in original) (quoting Paul, Johnson, Alston & Hunt v. Graulty, 886 F.2d 268, 272 (9th Cir. 1989)). "Where," as here, "a settlement produces a common fund for the benefit of the entire class, courts have discretion to employ either the lodestar method or the percentage-of-recovery method." In re Bluetooth Headset Prods. Liab. Litig., 654 F.3d 935, 942 (9th Cir. 2011). To guard against an unreasonable result, the Ninth Circuit encourages district courts to "cross-check[] their calculations against a second method." Id. at 944; see also Vizcaino v. Microsoft Corp., 290 F.3d 1043, 1050-51 (9th Cir. 2002) (applying a lodestar cross-check to ensure the percentage-of-recovery method yielded a reasonable result).

Where the percentage-of-recovery method is employed, it is well established that 25% of a common fund is a presumptively reasonable amount of attorney's fees. See, e.g., In re Bluetooth, 654 F.3d at 942 ("[C]ourts typically calculate 25% of the fund as the 'benchmark' for a reasonable fee award, providing adequate explanation in the record of any 'special circumstances' justifying a departure."); Six Mexican Workers, 904 F.2d at 1311 ("[W]e established 25 percent of the fund as the 'benchmark' award that should be given in common fund cases."). Nevertheless, "[t]he 25% benchmark rate, although a starting point for analysis, may be inappropriate in some cases."

Vizcaino, 290 F.3d at 1048. For instance, "where awarding 25% of a 'megafund' would yield windfall profits for class counsel in light of the hours spent on the case, courts should adjust the benchmark percentage or employ the lodestar method instead." In re Bluetooth, 654 F.3d at 942. Whatever decision a court reaches, that decision "must be supported by findings that take into account all of the circumstances of the case." Vizcaino, 290 F.3d at 1048.

Here, class counsel advocate applying the percentage-of-recovery method. Class counsel request 21 percent of the $150,000,000 total Dreamworks and Disney Settlements, or $31,500,000. Class counsel argue that the Court should apply the percentage-of-the-recovery method of calculating attorney's fees. Class counsel point out that the requested 21% recovery is "well under the 25 percent benchmark" that the Ninth Circuit has established for common fund cases. ECF No. 385, at 4; see also Hanlon v. Chrysler Corp., 150 F.3d 1011, 1029 (9th Cir. 1998) ("This circuit has established 25% of the common fund as a benchmark award for attorney fees."). However, as will be discussed further below, in making such a request, class counsel ignores the $4,737,500 in attorney's fees that the Court has already awarded for the same work.

The Ninth Circuit has made clear that in "megafund" cases, such as this one, courts may "employ the lodestar method instead" of the percentage-of-recovery method if rote application of the 25% benchmark "would yield windfall profits for class counsel in light of the hours spent on the case." In re Bluetooth, 654 F.3d at 942. For example, in In re Washington Public Power Supply System Securities Litigation ("WPPSS"), 19 F.3d 1291, 1297-98 (9th Cir. 1994), the Ninth Circuit held that the district court "acted well within the bounds of its discretion" in applying the lodestar method, rather than the percentage-of-recovery method, to an attorney's fees request arising out of a $687 million settlement fund. Class counsel in WPPSS had asked the district court for 13.6% of the fund, well below the "circuit's 25 percent benchmark figure," but the district court found that request to be "arbitrary" because class counsel "could just as easily have requested 3.6 percent or 36.1 percent." Id. (internal quotation marks omitted). In upholding the district court's decision, the Ninth Circuit explained: "With a fund this large, picking a percentage without reference to all the circumstances of the case, including the size of the fund, would be like picking a number out of the air." Id. "Because a court must consider the fund's size in light of the circumstances of the particular case," the Ninth Circuit continued, "we agree with the district court that the 25 percent 'benchmark' is of little assistance in a case such as this." Id.

Just as there was "nothing inherently reasonable about an award of 13.6 percent of a [$687 million] fund" in WPPSS, id. at 1298, the Court finds nothing inherently reasonable in Plaintiffs' counsel's total request here for 21% of the $150,000,000 settlement (or 21.4% of $168,950,000 if the settlements with Sony and Blue Sky are included). See also Gutierrez v. Wells Fargo Bank, N.A., No. C 07-05923 WHA, 2015 WL 2438274, at *4 (N.D. Cal. May 21, 2015) (rejecting class counsel's request to apply the percentage-of-recovery method to a $203 million restitution award and opting for the lodestar method instead because "blindly adopting the 25-percent benchmark . . . would result in a windfall to class counsel").

Having overseen the litigation in the instant case and the related case of In re High-Tech Employee Antitrust Litigation, No. 11-2509, the Court finds that justice would be best served by applying the lodestar method—i.e., tying the fee awards for class counsel to the actual hours they reasonably expended on this litigation and then selecting a multiplier. The Court concludes that the lodestar method is superior to the percentage-of-the-recovery method for two reasons.

First, class counsel's proposed percentage would result in a multiplier that is unreasonably high. The multiplier for class counsel's proposed percentage is 3.40 for the Disney and Dreamworks settlements and 3.91 if the prior attorney's fees awards for the Sony and Blue Sky settlements are included. Although class counsel argues extensively about the reasonableness of "[a]n overall multiplier of 3.40," ECF No. 385, at 6, ignoring previous awards of attorney's fees for the same work renders class counsel's multiplier inaccurate. In calculating its lodestar in the instant motion for attorney's fees, class counsel includes billed hours for which class counsel already received compensation in connection with the Sony and Blue Sky settlements. Thus, if the Court did not take into account the fee awards for the Sony and Blue Sky settlements, class counsel would receive a double recovery for these hours. Thus, the Court determines that the 3.91 multiplier is the relevant multiplier for class counsel's requested award.

Class counsel argues that courts often approve multipliers as high or higher than 3.91. However, such awards are far from the norm. In Vizcaino, 290 F.3d at 1051 n.6, the Ninth Circuit surveyed class actions settlements nationwide and found that 54 percent of lodestar multipliers fell within the 1.5 to 3.0 range, and that 83 percent of multipliers fell within the 1.0 to 4.0 range. Thus, the requested 3.91 multiplier would be higher than the significant majority of cases. Additionally, although class counsel have cited several cases awarding multipliers higher than 3.91, most of these cases involved settlement funds that were much smaller than the $168,950,000 settlement fund in the instant case. See, e.g., Buccellato v. AT & T Operations, Inc., 2011 WL 3348055, at *2 (N.D. Cal. June 30, 2011) (approving multiplier of 4.3 in case involving $12,500,000 settlement fund); Rabin v. Concord Assets Grp., Inc., 1991 WL 275757, at *1 (S.D.N.Y. Dec. 19, 1991) ("The requested attorneys' fees of $2,544,122.78 represents a multiplier of 4.4 . . . . Plaintiffs' counsel asserts that 'when one considers the potential additional time plaintiffs' counsel will be required to work in this matter, the multiplier is reduced to a range of 3.7 to 3.2.'"); Maley v. Del Glob. Techs. Corp., 186 F. Supp. 2d 358, 360 (S.D.N.Y. 2002) (approving multiplier of 4.65 in case involving $28,000,000 settlement fund).

In the instant case, in the Court's judgment, a multiplier of 3.91 would result in "windfall profits for class counsel in light of the hours spent on the case." In re Bluetooth, 654 F.3d at 942; see also Allen v. Bedolla, 787 F.3d 1218, 1224 n.4 (9th Cir. 2015) (cautioning that district courts "should not calculate fees using a mechanical or formulaic approach that results in an unreasonable reward" (internal quotation marks omitted)). The potential for a significant windfall counsels against rigid application of the percentage-of-the-recovery method for calculating an attorney's fees award.

The second reason that the lodestar method is superior to the percentage-of-the-recovery method in the instant case is that using the lodestar method would allow the Court to examine class counsel's "presumptively reasonable" lodestar figures, and if suitable, adjust them "by an appropriate . . . multiplier reflecting a host of reasonableness factors, including the quality of representation, the benefit obtained for the class, the complexity and novelty of the issues presented, and the risk of nonpayment." In re Bluetooth, 654 F.3d at 941-42 (citations and internal quotation marks omitted). This case has a very large settlement fund, and the size of the settlement fund can be attributed in large part to the success of High-Tech. High-Tech provided much of the evidence, legal theories, arguments, and prior rulings necessary to litigate this case. Moreover, by litigating two motions to dismiss, multiple Daubert motions, two class certification motions, and five summary judgment motions, the plaintiffs in High-Tech eliminated much of the risk in litigating the instant case and established the benchmarks for the sizes of the settlement funds. Therefore, considering the posture of this case and the large settlement fund, the Court finds that the lodestar method is superior to accepting somewhat arbitrary percentages. See WPPSS, 19 F.3d at 1297–98.

2. Lodestar Method

Under the lodestar method, a "lodestar figure is calculated by multiplying the number of hours the prevailing party reasonably expended on the litigation (as supported by adequate documentation) by a reasonable hourly rate for the region and for the experience of the lawyer." In re Bluetooth, 654 F.3d at 941 (citing Staton v. Boeing Co., 327 F.3d 938, 965 (9th Cir. 2003)). Although "the lodestar figure is 'presumptively reasonable,' the court may adjust it upward or downward by an appropriate positive or negative multiplier reflecting a host of reasonableness factors." Id. at 941-42 (citations and internal quotation marks omitted).

a. Billing Rates

Having reviewed the billing rates for the attorneys, paralegals, and litigation support staff at each of the firms representing Plaintiffs in this case, the Court finds that these rates are reasonable in light of prevailing market rates in this district and that counsel for Plaintiffs have submitted adequate documentation justifying those rates.

Class counsel have filed several declarations describing the billing rates and hours worked on the instant case. See Declaration of Jeff D. Friedman in Support of Plaintiffs' Motion for Attorneys' Fees, Expenses, and Service Awards ("Friedman Decl."), ECF No. 385-2; Declaration of Daniel A. Small in Support of Plaintiffs' Motion for Attorneys' Fees, Expenses, and Service Awards ("Small Decl."), ECF No. 385-7; Declaration of Steven G. Sklaver in Support of Plaintiffs' Motion for Attorneys' Fees, Expenses, and Service Awards ("Sklaver Decl."), ECF No. 385-5; see also Supplemental Brief Regarding Motion for Attorney's Fees, ECF No. 345. These declarations establish that the hourly rates are fair, reasonable, and market-based, particularly for the "relevant community" in which counsel work. See Friedman Decl. ¶ 12; Small Decl., ¶ 29; Sklaver Decl., ¶ 11. Class counsel are highly-respected members of the bar with extensive experience in prosecuting high-stakes complex litigation, including consumer class actions. See Friedman Decl., ¶¶ 6-11; Small Decl., ¶¶ 2-13; Sklaver Decl., ¶¶ 3-10. With three exceptions, counsel's hourly rates in this action range from $275 to $750, with rates varying based on experience. See Friedman Decl., ¶ 13; Small Decl., ¶ 30; Sklaver Decl., ¶ 12. The three most senior attorneys on the case, who serve as the lead attorney for each respective law firm, charge between $870 and $1,200 per hour. See Friedman Decl., ¶ 13; Small Decl., ¶ 30; Sklaver Decl., ¶ 12. Mr. Seltzer's $1,200 hourly rate is the same rate that he charges clients, including corporations that are billed hourly, which provides a market-based cross-check. See Sklaver Decl., ¶ 11. Hourly rates for paralegals are $290 or lower. See Friedman Decl., ¶ 13; Small Decl., ¶ 30; Sklaver Decl., ¶ 12. Overall, the rates charged by counsel here are comparable to the fees approved by the Court, over a year ago, in the High-Tech case and more recently in conjunction with the Sony and Blue Sky settlements.[6] See ECF No. 347 (approving almost identical rates in connection with the Sony and Blue Sky settlements). Thus, the Court finds that the reported hourly rates are fair and reasonable.

a. Hours

Having reviewed the billing records for the attorneys, paralegals, and litigation support staff at each of the firms representing Plaintiffs in this case, the Court finds that these records adequately reflect the amount of time reasonably spent on this litigation.

[6] In High-Tech, this Court found class counsel's rates "reasonable in light of prevailing market rates in this district," including partner rates that ranged from $490 to $975 per hour; non-partner rates that ranged from $310 to $800 per hour; and paralegals, law clerks, and support staff rates that ranged from $190 to $430, "with most in the $300 range." High-Tech Fees Order, 2015 WL 5158730, at *9; In re Animators, Order Granting Request for Attorney's Fees, Dkt. # 347.

As set forth in the supporting declarations, class counsel have collectively spent more than 18,448 hours of attorney and litigation support time on this action. See Friedman Decl. ¶ 13 (4,704.30 hours); Small Decl. ¶ 30 (7,446.75 hours); Sklaver Decl., ¶ 12 (6,297.90 hours). The number of hours that class counsel has devoted to pursuing this litigation is appropriate and reasonable, given class counsel's work in the following areas: (1) pre-complaint investigation; (2) production and review of documents in discovery; (3) filing an amended complaint, an opposition to a motion to dismiss, a second amended complaint, and a second opposition to a motion to dismiss, as well as an opposition to a motion to compel arbitration; (4) briefing at the class certification stage; (5) expert reports; (6) taking the depositions of twenty-five witnesses and defending an additional five depositions; and (7) opposing defendants' Rule 23(f) petition. Class counsel's reported hours include hours billed through February 2017. ECF No. 385, at 5 n.6. Thus, these hours do not include hours billed in preparing the motion for final approval, responding to objections, arguing at the final approval hearing, working with the settlement administrator to distribute the settlement fund, and litigating any appeals.

Class counsel reports a lodestar of $2,165,448.50 for Hagens Berman, $2,859,177 for Susman Godfrey, and $4,244,453.75 for Cohen Milstein. Thus, in total, class counsel reports a lodestar of $9,269,079.25.

a. Multipliers

As indicated above, the Court may "adjust" the lodestar figures "upward or downward by an appropriate positive or negative multiplier reflecting a host of 'reasonableness' factors, 'including the quality of representation, the benefit obtained for the class, the complexity and novelty of the issues presented, and the risk of nonpayment.'" In re Bluetooth, 654 F.3d at 941-42 (quoting Hanlon v. Chrysler Corp., 150 F.3d 1011, 1029 (9th Cir. 1998)). "Foremost among these considerations, however, is the benefit obtained for the class." Id. at 942. For the reasons stated below, the Court concludes that a positive multiplier of 2.0 is appropriate for class counsel.

The Court recognizes that class counsel has achieved significant benefits for the class and that class counsel assumed a risk of nonpayment while litigating this case for over two years. In the end, class counsel achieved a significant result for the class. The Disney and Dreamworks settlements total $150,000,000, which represents 33.5% of the damages attributable to Disney and 39% of the damages attributable to Dreamworks. Together, all the settlements in the instant case total $168,950,000, which represents 30.5% of Plaintiffs' valuation.

Considering all the facts and circumstances of this case, the Court finds that a multiplier of 2.0 is appropriate for class counsel. As stated above, the Ninth Circuit in Vizcaino conducted a survey of attorney's fees awards in megafund cases. See 290 F.3d at 1052-54. This survey involved common fund cases ranging from $50–200 million between 1996 and 2001. See id. In 83% of the settlements (20 of 24), the multiplier ranged from 1.0–4.0, and in 54% of the settlements (13 of 24), the multiplier was in the 1.5–3.0 range. Id. at 1051 n.6. A multiplier of 2.0 would therefore be in line with the vast majority of megafund settlements such as this one and would adequately reward class counsel for the work performed in this litigation. A multiplier of 2.0 is also reasonable in light of the 2.2 multiplier that the Court granted in High-Tech, a case that involved significantly more risk than the instant case. As a result, the Court multiplies class counsel's lodestar of $9,269,079.25, which includes all work in the instant case related to claims against all Defendants, by 2.0 and finds that a total attorney's fee award of $18,538,158.50 is appropriate. Because class counsel has already received $4,737,500 in attorney's fees as part of the Sony and Blue Sky settlements, the Court grants an attorney's fee award of $13,800,658.50 in the instant Dreamworks and Disney settlements.

1. Percentage-of-Recovery Cross-Check

The reasonableness of the Court's fee awards under the lodestar method is supported by cross-checking the award with the percentage-of-recovery method. See In re Bluetooth, 654 F.3d at 944 (encouraging courts to "cross-check[] their calculations against a second method"). The $13,800,658.50 attorney's fee award is about 9.2% of the $150 million Disney and Dreamworks settlements.[7] Adding the $4,737,500 million in attorney's fees the Court already awarded for the settlements with Sony and Blue Sky, the percentage increases to roughly 11%.[8] Although the benchmark in the Ninth Circuit for common fund cases is 25%, a percentage recovery of 9.2% or 11% is not unreasonable for a settlement of this size.

The most accurate comparison for the attorney's fees in the instant case is the attorney's fees award that the Court granted in High-Tech, which is related to and gave rise to the instant case. See ECF No. 385 at 2 (In the instant case, "[c]lass counsel were not even aware of the possibility of bringing this case until one of its lawyers read an article in July 2014 discussing some of the documents unsealed in High-Tech."). In High-Tech, after evaluating several empirical studies, the Court granted a $40,000,000 attorney's fee award based on a lodestar multiplier of 2.2. The Court performed a percentage-of-the-recovery crosscheck and determined that a total percentage of 10.5% was reasonable. Thus, the total percentage of the recovery in the instant case, 11%, is higher than the percentage of the recovery in High-Tech, despite the greater risk, greater overall recovery, and longer litigation in High-Tech.

A comparison of the work done in this case and the work done in High-Tech confirms that class counsel should not receive a significantly higher percentage-of-the-recovery fee than the percentage awarded in High Tech. The instant case lasted less than three years, from the filing of the complaint on September 8, 2014, to the date of this order, June 5, 2017. As discussed above, in the instant case class counsel (1) conducted pre-complaint investigation; (2) produced and reviewed documents in discovery; (3) filed an amended complaint, an opposition to a motion to dismiss, a second amended complaint, and a second opposition to a motion to dismiss, as well as an opposition to a motion to compel arbitration; (4) filed briefing at the class certification stage; (5) served expert reports; (6) took the depositions of twenty-five witnesses and defended an additional five depositions; and (7) opposed defendants' Rule 23(f) petition.

[7] (13,800,658.50 ÷ 150,000,000) × 100 = 9.2%

[8] ((13,800,658.50 + 4,737,500) ÷ 168,950,000) × 100 = 10.97%

High-Tech, in contrast, lasted over four years, from the filing of the initial complaint on May 4, 2011 to the date the case closed on September 2, 2015. In High-Tech, class counsel had taken the following actions up to the time of settlement: (1) identified the alleged conspiracy to fix and suppress employee compensation in the tech industry; (2) prepared and filed multiple complaints against Defendants; (3) survived two motions to dismiss; (4) undertook considerable discovery, including taking 93 depositions and defending 14 others, serving 75 document requests, reviewing the resulting 325,000 documents (over 3.2 million pages), serving 28 subpoenas on third parties, reviewing 8,809 pages of documents from those third parties, producing over 31,000 pages of documents in response to Defendants' document requests, and responding to and reviewing 34 subpoenas served by Defendants on third parties; (6) retained four experts to assist in analyzing over 15 gigabytes of employment-related compensation and recruiting data; (7) worked with the experts to produce multiple expert reports; (8) litigated multiple Daubert motions; (9) filed a consolidated class action complaint; (10) litigated two rounds of class certification; (11) opposed a Rule 23(f) appeal to the Ninth Circuit; (12) survived five summary judgment motions; (13) prepared for trial; (14) negotiated three settlements; and (15) opposed mandamus in the Ninth Circuit.

Thus, a comparison of work between the instant case and High Tech makes clear that class counsel should not receive a significantly higher percentage of the recovery than class counsel received in High Tech. Indeed, if the Court granted the overall 21.4% percentage of the recovery that class counsel requests in the instant case, the total attorney's fee award would be $36,237,500. This is over 90% of the $40,000,000 award granted in High-Tech, despite the fact that the lodestar in High-Tech was almost double the reported lodestar in the instant case. See In re High-Tech Employee Antitrust Litig., 2015 WL 5158730, at *5 (N.D. Cal. Sept. 2, 2015) ("Class Counsel's final revised lodestar, which is the sum of the lodestars for each of the four firms, is $18,201,787.50."). This would also be unreasonable in light of the fact that the settlements in High-Tech totaled $415,000,000, which far exceeds the $168,950,000 total settlement amount in the instant case.

An 11% percentage of the recovery is also consistent with the principle that "fees as a percentage of the recovery tend to decrease as the size of the recovery increases," which is discussed in the empirical study cited in class counsel's motion for attorney's fees, Theodore Eisenberg, Geoffrey P. Miller & Roy Germano, Attorneys' Fees in Class Actions: 2009-2013, NYU Law and Economics Research Paper No. 17-02 (December 1, 2016) ("EMG Study"). As the EMG Study points out, this effect is "due to the economies of scale that can sometimes be achieved in very large cases." Id. This "economies of scale" effect is especially relevant in the instant case, in which not only has class counsel achieved economies of scale from their work in this case, but class counsel was also able to rely on documents, legal theories, rulings, and settlements in High Tech to successfully litigate and resolve this case. Thus, although the recovery in the instant case is a significant benefit for the class, a substantial portion of the size of the recovery in the instant case can be attributed to the success of the plaintiffs in High-Tech. In this context, it would be unfair and unreasonable to grant class counsel in the instant case a greater percentage of the recovery than the percentage awarded to class counsel in High Tech.

In short, in the instant case, even more than in High Tech, rote application of the 25% benchmark "would yield windfall profits for class counsel in light of the hours spent on the case." In re Bluetooth, 654 F.3d at 942. Therefore, the Court finds that the percentage-of-the-recovery crosscheck confirms that a total award from all settlements of $18,538,158.50, and a $13,800,658.50 from the Dreamworks and Disney settlements, are reasonable.

This reduced attorney's fees award will provide a significant benefit to the class because the attorney's fees are deducted from the fund for class members. Specifically, as discussed below, the Court's decision to reduce the attorney's fees award to class counsel increases the average class member recovery from all the settlements from roughly $11,984 per person to roughly $13,612 per person. See infra Part III.C.

2. Objections

The Court received three objections to class counsel's requested attorney's fees. The first two objections were from Charles Williams and Alice Goldstone, who filed a joint objection form.

ECF No. 386. Mr. Williams and Ms. Goldstone are not members of the class and thus lack standing to object. Additionally, on June 2, 2017, Mr. Williams and Ms. Goldstone withdrew their objections. Nevertheless, the Court considers the objections for the sake of completeness. Mr. Williams and Ms. Goldstone objected to the attorney's fee award on two grounds. First, Mr. Williams and Mr. Goldstone objected that "none of the specifics for the requested fee are not [sic] included in the notice" and that "the costs of notice and administration of the class fund were not disclosed." Id. at 8. However, the notice sent to class members disclosed that class counsel would seek a fee of up to 25%, and there is no requirement that details regarding the plaintiffs' fee request be separately disseminated to the Class. Indeed, Plaintiff's requested fees of 21% of the settlement fund are below the 25% disclosed in the notice, and the Court's final award of $13,800,658.50 in attorney's fees in connection with the DreamWorks and Disney settlements is substantially below the 25% disclosed in the notice. In addition, the notice disclosed that "court-approved costs, and attorney's fees and expenses" would be deducted from the settlement. ECF No. 359-2, at 9. Furthermore, the instant motion for attorney's fees in connection with the DreamWorks and Disney settlements does not seek any additional funds for the settlement administrator because the Court granted the settlement administrator $95,495.09 in costs in connection with the Sony and Blue Sky settlements for all of the settlement administrator's actual and projected costs. ECF No. 347, at 14. There were no objections to the Sony and Blue Sky settlements.

Second, Mr. Williams and Ms. Goldstone objected to the size of the multiplier that class counsel requests. ECF No. 386, at 9 ("3.91 is a very large multiplier"). For the reasons discussed above, the Court agrees. As discussed above, the Court exercises its discretion to award attorney's fees in the instant case based on the lodestar method and grants class counsel a lodestar multiplier of 2.0. The Court finds that a multiplier of 2.0 is fair and reasonable in light of all the facts and circumstances of the case and is in line with multipliers granted in similar cases. See, e.g., High-Tech, 2015 WL 5158730, at *10 (granting a multiplier of 2.2).

The third objection to the attorney's fee award is from Christian Haley. ECF No. 387. Mr. Haley objects to the requested attorney's fees on the grounds that "it is established that in mega fund' settlements, such as the case at bar, the preferable method [for calculating attorney's fees] is the lodestar method." Id. at 3–4. Mr. Haley also states that class counsel's requested percentage "of about 20%" would "lead to a windfall" for class counsel in the instant case. Id. at 4.

Although the Court does not decide whether the lodestar method is in general preferable in mega-fund settlements, the Court agrees with Mr. Haley that under the facts and circumstances of the instant case, the percentage-of-the-recovery method "is arbitrary and may provide a windfall to counsel." Id. at 4. Thus, as discussed above, the Court applies the lodestar method to calculate class counsel's attorney's fees.

In short, none of the above objections requires the Court to modify its attorney's fees awards to class counsel.

3. Conclusion: Attorney's Fees Award

In sum, the Court awards $13,800,658.50 in attorney's fees to class counsel for the Dreamworks and Disney settlements. Taking into account the $4,737,500 million in attorney's fees already awarded to class counsel in the settlements with Sony and Blue Sky, class counsel will receive a total of $18,538,158.50 out of the $168,950,000 combined settlements.

B. Expenses

In common fund cases, the Ninth Circuit has stated that the reasonable expenses of acquiring the fund can be reimbursed to counsel who has incurred the expense. See Vincent v. Hughes Air W., Inc., 557 F.2d 759, 769 (9th Cir. 1977); accord Wininger v. SI Mgmt. L.P., 301 F.3d 1115, 1121 (9th Cir. 2002). All expenses that are typically billed by attorneys to paying clients in the marketplace are compensable. Harris v. Marhoefer, 24 F.3d 16, 19 (9th Cir. 1994).

The Court previously awarded $1,561,700.47 in expenses in connection with the Sony and Blue Sky settlements. ECF No. 347, at 13–14. In the instant motion, Plaintiffs seek a total award of $490,040.13 in expenses that were not reimbursed in the Sony and Blue Sky settlement and that were necessarily incurred in connection with the prosecution of this action. With their motion, plaintiffs provide an accounting of the expenses incurred by Plaintiffs' counsel. See Friedman Decl. ¶ 15; Small Decl. ¶ 33; Sklaver Decl. ¶ 14. Several categories account for the bulk of these expenses: fees paid to experts, filing fees, travel expenses, costs of court and deposition transcripts, and computer research expenses. All of these costs were necessarily and reasonably incurred to bring this case to a successful conclusion, and they reflect market rates for the various categories of expenses incurred. Further, Plaintiffs' counsel advanced these necessary expenses without assurance that they would be recouped. For these reasons, Plaintiffs' request for fees is reasonable. The Court therefore GRANTS an award of $490,040.13 in expenses.

C. Service Awards

In evaluating whether class representatives are entitled to reasonable service awards, district courts "must evaluate their awards individually, using 'relevant factors including the actions the plaintiff has taken to protect the interests of the class, the degree to which the class has benefitted from those actions, . . . the amount of time and effort the plaintiff expended in pursuing the litigation . . . and reasonabl[e] fear[s of] workplace retaliation.'" Staton, 327 F.3d at 977.

In the instant case, Plaintiffs request $80,000 for each named Plaintiff for service awards in connection with the Disney settlement and $10,000 for each named Plaintiff for service awards in connection with the Dreamworks settlement. Combined with service awards from the Sony and Blue Sky settlements, this will result in a total of $100,000 in service awards for each of the three named Plaintiffs.

"Service awards for class representatives are routinely provided to encourage individuals to undertake the responsibilities and risks of representing the class and recognize the time and effort spent in the case." ECF No. 347 at 14. In the Ninth Circuit, service awards "compensate class representatives for work done on behalf of the class, to make up for financial or reputational risk undertaken in bringing the action, and, sometimes, to recognize their willingness to act as a private attorney general." Rodriguez v. West Publ'g Corp., 563 F.3d 948, 958-59 (9th Cir. 2009). "Courts have discretion to approve service awards based on, inter alia, the amount of time and effort spent, the duration of the litigation, and the personal benefit (or lack thereof) as a result of the litigation." ECF No. 347 at 14.

Here, the three named plaintiffs, Robert Nitsch, David Wentworth, and Georgia Cano have spent a significant amount of time assisting the litigation of this case.[9] Each plaintiff responded to written discovery and produced documents relating to their claims; they were each deposed by defense counsel for a full day regarding their claims; they reviewed the SAC and other substantive pleadings; and they reviewed and approved the settlements.[10] Perhaps most importantly, despite the tight-knit and fluid nature of the animation and visual effects industry, each of the named plaintiffs was willing to put his or her name on this employment lawsuit for the benefit of all absent class members despite a very real fear of workplace retaliation, Cook v. Niedert, 142 F.3d 1004, 1016 (7th Cir. 1998), or being viewed as "troublemakers" within the industry, In re High-Tech Emp. Antitrust Litig., 2015 WL 5158730, at *17 (N.D. Cal. Sept. 2, 2015); see also Nitsch Decl. ¶ 12; Wentworth Decl. ¶ 10; Cano Decl. ¶ 12. In fact, defendants subpoenaed their employment records from current and former employers. Additionally, the named plaintiffs each state in their declarations that the animation industry is particularly sensitive to the reputation of employees because it is a small industry and employees tend to switch projects and employers often. S*ee* Nitsch Decl. ¶ 12; Wentworth Decl. ¶ 12; Cano Decl. ¶ 12. Thus, the risk of workplace retaliation in the instant case is particularly acute.

Furthermore, the service awards of $90,000 ($100,000 total for the litigation) are in line with awards in other megafund cases. See, e.g., Marchbanks Truck Serv. v. Comdata Network,

---

[9] Mr. Williams and Ms. Goldstone also object to the incentive awards for named Plaintiffs on the ground that the proposed incentive awards are disproportionate to the average recovery for class members and because"[t]he proposed incentive award has not been supported by any substantial evidence that the class representatives have exerted any labor . . . , suffered any risk of retaliation, or otherwise put the sweat of their collective brow to work on behalf of the class." ECF No. 386, at 10. However, as discussed above, Mr. Williams and Ms. Goldstone are not members of the class in this case, have no standing to object, and have withdrawn their objections. Additionally, as described below, the named Plaintiffs performed significant work on behalf of the class and the requested incentive awards are not disproportionate to the average recovery for class members.

[10] See Declaration of Robert Nitsch in Support of Plaintiffs' Motion for Attorneys' Fees, Expenses, and Service Awards ("Nitsch Decl."), ¶¶ 6-11; Declaration of David Wentworth in Support of Plaintiffs' Motion for Attorneys' Fees, Expenses, and Service Awards ("Wentworth Decl."), ¶¶ 6-9; Declaration of Georgia Cano in Support of Plaintiffs' Motion for Attorneys' Fees, Expenses, and Service Awards ("Cano Decl."), ¶¶ 6-11.

Inc., Case No. 07-CV-1078, Dkt. 713 at 2, 8 (E.D. Pa. July 14, 2014) (approving $130 million class action settlement, including service award of $150,000 to one class representative and service awards of $75,000 to two other class representatives); In re Titanium Dioxide, 2013 WL 6577029, at *1 (awarding $125,000 to lead class representative out of $163.5 million settlement); Velez v. Novartis Pharm. Corp., No. 04 CIV 09194 CM, 2010 WL 4877852, at *4, *8, *28 (S.D.N.Y. Nov. 30, 2010) (awarding $125,000 to named plaintiffs from $175 million settlement). The service awards of $90,000 are also consistent with service awards granted in High-Tech. See High-Tech Fees Order, 2015 WL 5158730, at *17 (granting each of four named plaintiffs a total of $100,000 in service awards, and awarding a fifth plaintiff, who successfully objected to the final settlement, a total of $140,000).

Finally, the ratio between the service awards and the average class member recovery is not unreasonable. The Ninth Circuit has cautioned that where there is a "very large differential in the amount of damage awards between the named and unnamed class members," that differential must be justified by the record. Staton, 327 F.3d at 978. Taking into account the Court's reductions of the amounts requested for attorney's fees, the average class member recovery from all the settlements in the instant case should increase from roughly $11,984 per person to roughly $13,612 per person.[11] The resulting ratio between service awards and class member recovery is about 7.3. This ratio is justified by the record detailed above, including the numerous hours each class representative spent on this high-profile litigation and their reasonable fears of workplace retaliation. Compare Staton, 327 F.3d at 948, 975-78 (rejecting settlement where 29 class representatives could receive up to $50,000 compared to $1,000 for unnamed class members); Wallace v. Countrywide Home Loans, Inc., No. 8:08-1463-JLS MLGX, 2014 WL 5819870, at *4 (C.D. Cal. Apr. 14, 2014) (rejecting settlement where service awards were "33 times greater than the maximum possible recovery of other individual class members" (emphasis added)); Kaufman v. Am. Exp. Travel Related Servs. Co., 264 F.R.D. 438, 448 (N.D. Ill. 2009) (disapproving $2,500 service awards because they were "125 times greater than the $20 maximum that any similar Class member could recover"), with In re Capital One Tel. Consumer Prot. Act Litig., 2015 WL 605203, at *19 (N.D. Ill. Feb. 12, 2015) (approving $5,000 service awards where class members who made timely claims were entitled to "at least $39.66"); Lemus v. H&R Block Enters. LLC, No. C 09-3179 SI, 2012 WL 3638550, at *5-6 (N.D. Cal. Aug. 22, 2012) (approving $15,000 service awards where the average class recovery was about $1,200).

[11] The Court calculated this figure by comparing the net settlement fund (from all settlements) with the requested fees, costs, and incentive awards divided by the approximate number of class members (($168,950,000 – $36,237,500 – 2,051,740.60 – 95,495.09 – 300,000) ÷ 10,870 = $11,983.9) with the net settlement fund with the final fees, costs, and incentive awards divided by the approximate number of class members ((($168,950,000 – $18,538,158.50 – 2,051,740.60 – 95,495.09 – 300,000) ÷ 10,870 = $13,612.20).

This ratio is also significantly lower than the ratios approved in High Tech, High-Tech Fees Order, 2015 WL 5158730, at *17. In High-Tech, the Court approved an award of $140,000 for a successfully objecting plaintiff and $100,000 each for four other named plaintiffs. Id. In High-Tech, the average recovery per class member was "roughly $5,770 per person," and thus the ratio between recovery and service awards was 21 for the plaintiff receiving $140,000 and 14 for the plaintiffs receiving $100,000. These ratios are significantly higher than the 7.3 ratio in the instant case.

Even though the litigation in the instant case was shorter than the litigation in High-Tech, the service awards are the same as the service awards in High-Tech because the individual recovery is significantly higher, because the plaintiffs in the instant case are often employed for a single project and thus need to switch jobs often, and because the plaintiffs in the instant case are employed in a much smaller industry with a smaller number of employers (most of whom are Defendants in this case). Compare Nitsch v. Dreamworks Animation SKG Inc., 315 F.R.D. 270, 317 (N.D. Cal. 2016) (certifying class of "animation and visual effects employees") with In re High-Tech Employee Antitrust Litig., 985 F. Supp. 2d 1167, 1177 (N.D. Cal. 2013) (certifying class of "[a]ll natural persons who work in the technical, creative, and/or research and development fields").

Based on the foregoing, the Court accordingly concludes that the request for a $90,000 service award for each named plaintiff is reasonable. The Court therefore GRANTS the requested $90,000 service award for each of the three named Plaintiffs.

III. CONCLUSION

For the foregoing reasons, the Court hereby GRANTS in part and DENIES in part the motions for attorney's fees, reimbursement of expenses, and service awards. The Court awards as follows:

- $13,800,658.50 in attorney's fees to class counsel in connection with the Dreamworks and Disney settlements, for a total attorney's fee award of $18,538,158.50 in the entire case;
- $490,040.13 in unreimbursed expenses to class counsel in connection with the Dreamworks and Disney settlements;
- $90,000 service awards each to Plaintiff Nitsch, Plaintiff Wentworth, and Plaintiff Cano in connection with the Dreamworks and Disney settlements.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

Dated: June 5, 2017

Lucy H. Koh

LUCY H. KOH
United States District Judge

TAB 53B

Daniel A. Small (pro hac vice)
COHEN MILSTEIN SELLERS & TOLL PLLC
1100 New York Ave. NW, Suite 500
Washington, DC 20005
Telephone: (202) 408-4600
Facsimile: (202) 408-4699
dsmall@cohenmilstein.com

Steve W. Berman (pro hac vice)
HAGENS BERMAN SOBOL SHAPIRO LLP
1918 Eighth Avenue, Suite 3300
Seattle, WA 98101
Telephone: (206) 623-7292
Facsimile: (206) 623-0594
steve@hbsslaw.com

Marc M. Seltzer (54534)
SUSMAN GODFREY L.L.P.
1901 Avenue of the Stars, Suite 950
Los Angeles, CA 90067-6029
Telephone: (310) 789-3100
Facsimile: (310) 789-3150
mseltzer@susmangodfrey.com

[Additional Counsel on Sig. Page]

Co-Lead Class Counsel

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT

NORTHERN DISTRICT OF CALIFORNIA

SAN JOSE DIVISION

IN RE ANIMATION WORKERS ANTITRUST LITIGATION	Master Docket No. 14-CV-4062-LHK
	NOTICE OF MOTION AND MOTION FOR ATTORNEYS' FEES, EXPENSES, AND SERVICE AWARDS
	Date: May 18, 2017 Time: 1:30 p.m. Courtroom: 8, 4th Floor Judge: The Honorable Lucy H. Koh
THIS DOCUMENT RELATES TO: ALL ACTIONS

NOTICE OF MOTION AND MOTION

PLEASE TAKE NOTICE that on May 18, 2017 at 1:30 pm or as soon thereafter as the matter may be heard by the Honorable Lucy H. Koh of the United States District Court of the Northern District of California, San Jose Division, located at 280 South 1st Street, San Jose, CA 95113, plaintiffs and class counsel will, and hereby do, move for an award of attorneys' fees, expenses, and service awards to the named plaintiffs. This motion is based on this Notice of Motion and Motion, the following memorandum of points and authorities, the pleadings and papers on file in this action, and such other matters as the Court may consider.

TABLE OF CONTENTS

Page

I. INTRODUCTION 1

II. ARGUMENT 3

A. Plaintiffs Request a Reasonable Amount of Attorneys' Fees 3

1. The 25 Percent Benchmark Award Is Presumptively Reasonable – Reflecting a Market Based Fee Amount 4

2. All Relevant Circumstances Confirm a 21 Percent Award Is Reasonable 7

a. A 21 percent fee is justified by the exceptional results achieved 7

b. A 21 percent fee is justified by the significant risk borne by counsel 9

c. A 21 percent fee is justified by the incidental benefits flowing to the public 12

d. A 21 percent fee is justified by the contingent nature of the representation 12

e. A 21 percent fee accords with fee awards in analogous cases 15

f. A 21 percent fee does not award windfall profits to counsel 17

3. Class Counsel's Efficiencies Should Be Rewarded and Incentivized 20

B. Plaintiffs' Expenses Are Reasonable and Were Necessarily Incurred 23

C. Plaintiffs Request Service Awards in the Amount of $90,000 23

III. CONCLUSION 24

TABLE OF AUTHORITIES

Page(s)

Cases

Allapattah Servs., Inc. v. Exxon Corp.,
454 F. Supp. 2d 1185 (S.D. Fla. 2006) 15

Bebchick v. Washington Metro. Area Transit Comm'n,
805 F.2d 396 (D.C. Cir. 1986) 12

Beckman v. KeyBank, N.A.,
293 F.R.D. 467 (S.D.N.Y. 2013) 6

Blum v. Stenson,
465 U.S. 886 (1984) 3

Boeing Co. v. Van Gemert,
444 U.S. 472 (1980) 3

Buccellato v. AT & T Operations, Inc.,
2011 WL 3348055 (N.D. Cal. June 30, 2011) 4, 5, 6

Camden I Condo. Ass'n, Inc. v. Dunkle,
946 F.2d 768 (11th Cir. 1991) 4

Ching v. Siemens Indus., Inc.,
2014 WL 2926210 (N.D. Cal. June 27, 2014) 13

Cook v. Niedert,
142 F.3d 1004 (7th Cir. 1998) 24

de Mira v. Heartland Emp't Serv., LLC,
2014 WL 1026282 (N.D. Cal. Mar. 13, 2014) 4, 9, 15

Garrison v. Oracle Corp.,
159 F. Supp. 3d 1044 (N.D. Cal. 2016) 9

Hanlon v. Chrysler Corp.,
150 F.3d 1011 (9th Cir. 1998) 4

Harris v. Marhoefer,
24 F.3d 16 (9th Cir. 1994) 23

Hopkins v. Stryker Sales Corp.,
2013 WL 496358 (N.D. Cal. Feb. 6, 2013) 5, 14

In re Aremissoft Corp. Sec. Litig.,
210 F.R.D. 109 (D.N.J. 2002) 6

In re Auto. Refinishing Paint Antitrust Litig.,
2008 WL 63269 (E.D. Pa. Jan. 3, 2008) 17

In re Bluetooth Headset Prod. Liab. Litig.,
654 F.3d 935 (9th Cir. 2011) 3, 6, 17, 18

In re Brand Name Prescription Drugs Antitrust Litig.,
2000 WL 204112 (N.D. Ill. Feb. 10, 2000) 16, 18

In re Checking Account Overdraft Litig.,
830 F. Supp. 2d 1330 (S.D. Fla. 2011) 16, 18

In re Comverse Tech., Inc. Sec. Litig.,
2010 WL 2653354 (E.D.N.Y. June 24, 2010) 16, 18

In re Heritage Bond Litig.,
2005 WL 1594403 (C.D. Cal. June 10, 2005) 7

In re High-Tech Emp. Antitrust Litig.,
2015 WL 5158730 (N.D. Cal. Sept. 2, 2015) 5, 21, 24

In re Ikon Office Sols., Inc., Sec. Litig.,
194 F.R.D. 166 (E.D. Pa. 2000) 16, 18, 19

In re Lease Oil Antitrust Litig.,
186 F.R.D. 403 (S.D. Tex. 1999) 15

In re Linerboard Antitrust Litig.,
2004 WL 1221350 (E.D. Pa. June 2, 2004) 12, 16, 17, 18

In re Merry–Go–Round Enter., Inc.,
244 B.R. 327 (Bankr. D. Md. 2000) 15

In re Neurontin Mktg. & Sales Practices Litig.,
58 F. Supp. 3d 167, 170 (D. Mass. 2014) 16, 18

In re Omnivision Techs., Inc.,
559 F. Supp. 2d 1036 (N.D. Cal. 2008) 7, 9, 11, 14

In re Online DVD-Rental Antitrust Litig.,
779 F.3d 934 (9th Cir. 2015) 4, 7, 14

In re Optical Disk Drive Prod. Antitrust Litig.,
2016 WL 7364803 (N.D. Cal. Dec. 19, 2016) 10, 16, 18

In re Pac. Enter. Secs. Litig.,
47 F.3d 373 (9th Cir. 1995) 9

In re Polyurethane Foam Antitrust Litig.,
2015 WL 1639269 (N.D. Ohio Feb. 26, 2015) 16, 18

In re Rite Aid Corp. Sec. Litig.,
146 F. Supp. 2d 706 (E.D. Pa. 2001) 15

In re Rite Aid Corp. Sec. Litig.,
362 F. Supp. 2d 587 (E.D. Pa. 2005) 16

In re Sumitomo Copper Litig.,
74 F. Supp. 2d 393 (S.D.N.Y. 1999) 16

In re Synthroid Mktg. Litig.,
264 F.3d 712 (7th Cir. 2001) 19

In re TFT-LCD (Flat Panel) Antitrust Litig.,
2013 WL 1365900 (N.D. Cal. Apr. 3, 2013) 7, 16, 18

In re Vitamins Antitrust Litig.,
2001 WL 34312839 (D.D.C. July 16, 2001) 16, 18

In re Washington Pub. Power Supply Sys. Sec. Litig.,
19 F.3d 1291 (9th Cir. 1994) 13

In re Xcel Energy, Inc., Secs., Derivative & " 'ERISA" Litig.,
364 F.Supp.2d 980 (D. Minn. 2005) 21, 22

In re: Cathode Ray Tube (CRT) Antitrust Litig.,
2016 WL 4126533 (N.D. Cal. Aug. 3, 2016) 7, 16, 18

Perkins v. Linkedin Corp.,
2016 WL 613255 (N.D. Cal. Feb. 16, 2016) 5

Rodriguez v. West Publ'g Corp.,
563 F.3d 948 (9th Cir. 2009) 24

Ryan v. Microsoft Corp.,
147 F. Supp. 3d 868 (N.D. Cal. 2015) 9

Staton v. Boeing Co.,
327 F.3d 938 (9th Cir. 2003) 3

Steiner v. Am. Broad. Co.,
248 F. App'x 780 (9th Cir. 2007) 6

Torrisi v. Tucson Elec. Power Co.,
8 F.3d 1370 (9th Cir. 1993) 14

Vizcaino v. Microsoft Corp.,
142 F. Supp. 2d 1299 (W.D. Wash. 2001) 12

Vizcaino v. Microsoft Corp.,
290 F.3d 1043 (9th Cir. 2002) ..... passim

Williams v. MGM-Pathe Commc'ns Co.,
129 F.3d 1026 (9th Cir. 1997) 15

FEDERAL RULES

Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 1 21

Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 23 ..... 2, 3, 17

SECONDARY AUTHORITIES

Am. Bar Ass'n, Report on Contingent Fees in Class Action Litigation, 25 Rev. Litig. 459, 468 (2006) 21

F. Patrick Hubbard, Substantive Due Process Limits on Punitive Damages Awards: "Morals Without Technique"?, 60 Fla. L. Rev. 349, 383 (2008) 14

Herbert M. Kritzer, The Wages of Risk: The Returns of Contingency Fee Legal Practice, 47 DePaul L. Rev. 267, 286 (1998) 14

John C. Coffee, Jr., The Regulation of Entrepreneurial Litigation: Balancing Fairness and Efficiency in the Large Class Action, 54 U. Chi. L. Rev. 877, 887 (1987) 13

Lester Brickman, ABA Regulation of Contingency Fees: Money Talks, Ethics Walks, 65 Fordham L. Rev. 247, 248 (1996) 14

Myriam Gilles & Gary B. Friedman, Exploding the Class Action Agency Costs Myth: The Social Utility of Entrepreneurial Lawyers, 155 U. Pa. L. Rev. 103, 139-46 (2006) 22

Sandra R. McCandless et al., Tort Trial & Ins. Practice Section of the Am. Bar Ass'n, Report on Contingent Fees in Class Action Litigation, 25 Rev. Litig. 459, 468 (2006) 21

Court Awarded Attorney Fees, 108 F.R.D. 237, 248 (1986) 22

I. INTRODUCTION

The $168,950,000 recovery achieved through class counsel's efforts and risk-taking translates into an average gross recovery for each of the approximately 10,043 class members of $16,823. Net of the attorneys' fees requested herein, class members would each receive on average $13,214, more than double the per-class-member net result in High-Tech. Class counsel's fee request, for 21% of the $150,000,000 in settlements before the Court, is not only well below the Ninth Circuit's benchmark of 25% (approximately 20% below the benchmark), it would leave class members far better off than their counterparts in High-Tech.

The requested fees, combined with the fees previously awarded in this case, would provide class counsel with a multiplier of their lodestar of 3.91. (The requested fees alone would be a 3.40 multiplier.) As this Court has stated, the "foremost" consideration in determining a reasonable multiplier is the benefit obtained for the class,[1] and here the benefit was excellent. The requested multiplier also falls within the range of the majority of multipliers surveyed by the Ninth Circuit in Vizcaino v. Microsoft Corp., 290 F.3d 1043, 1052-54 (9th Cir. 2002) (Vizcaino II). While it is at the high end of the range, that is warranted not only by the results obtained, but also by class counsel's efficiency and risk-taking. At the outset of the case, this Court requested that class counsel be efficient,[2] and we were, aggressively litigating this case for nearly three years for about $9 million in lodestar.

And there can be no doubt that many in the legal market assessing risk in deciding whether to even bring this case judged it to be too risky to try to pursue. Both the United States Department of Justice and the plaintiffs' attorneys in High-Tech did not pursue claims against most of the defendants here. And as to Pixar and Lucasfilm, there was little value placed in those claims (based on the settlement amounts there).

In addition to the legal market participants viewing these claims as being too risky or small in value to pursue, the claims presented other challenges at the outset, and in fact the original

[1] Order Granting in Part and Denying in Part Motions for Attorney's Fees, Reimbursement of Expenses, and Service Awards ("High-Tech. Order") at 19, In re High-Tech Employee Antitrust Litig., No. 11-cv-2509, N.D. Cal. Sept. 2, 2015), ECF No. 1112.

[2] See Case Management Conference Hearing Tr. ("CMC Tr."), at 10, Nov. 5, 2014.

Complaint was dismissed as time barred. Class counsel were not even aware of the possibility of bringing this case until one of its lawyers read an article in July 2014 discussing some of the documents unsealed in High-Tech. They filed this case less than two months later, after interviewing dozens of witnesses, being retained, and drafting a complaint.[3] While plaintiffs were able to amend the complaint to survive a second motion to dismiss (while other plaintiffs in cases against Microsoft and Oracle were dismissed), the statute of limitations remained an over-hanging threat throughout and would have been a central issue at trial and on appeal, delaying payment to class members (at the least) and potentially jeopardizing meaningful payment completely.

To be sure, High-Tech provided a roadmap for class certification, mitigating some of the risk on that issue. But of course, certification was far from the only issue in the case. Plaintiffs faced a panoply of hurdles, including proving the amount of damages (compared to some far lower amount presented to the jury at trial by defendants), proving that Sony and Blue Sky were co-conspirators, and convincing a jury that restraining cold calls to a limited number of class members would suppress the pay of all (or nearly all) 10,000+ class members. And even as to class certification, High Tech did not help plaintiffs obtain the necessary data, analyze it, and respond to defendants' numerous and unique attacks on Prof. Ashenfelter's work, mounted by talented and aggressive defense counsel and their expert witness. Nor did High Tech help plaintiffs establish Rule 23(b)(3) predominance despite alleged individual issues raised by the statute of limitations defense.

Given the excellent result achieved for the class, the real risks class counsel faced, and the efficiency with which they litigated the case, there is a reasonable argument to be made for the Ninth

[3] To be clear, no plaintiffs' counsel in this case had any involvement in the High-Tech litigation, and no plaintiffs' counsel was aware at the time that the Court unsealed various documents in that case in 2013. See Declaration of Jeff D. Friedman in Support of Plaintiffs' Motion for Attorneys' Fees, Expenses, and Service Awards (Apr. 7, 2017) ("Friedman Decl."), ¶ 2; Declaration of Steven G. Sklaver in Support of Plaintiffs' Motion for Attorneys' Fees, Expenses, and Service Awards (Apr. 7, 2017) ("Sklaver Decl."), ¶ 16; Declaration of Daniel A. Small in Support of Plaintiffs' Motion for Attorneys' Fees, Expenses, and Service Awards (Apr. 7, 2017) ("Small Decl.'), ¶ 36, In July 2014, an online publication, Pando Daily, published an article discussing evidence of conspiratorial activity among animation studios revealed by the unsealed documents. An attorney at class counsel, Cohen Milstein Sellers & Toll, read the article that month, and the firm promptly began an investigation that involved interviewing dozens of witnesses. Plaintiff Robert Nitsch, represented by Cohen Milstein, filed the first complaint in this case on September 8, 2014, less than two months after Cohen Milstein read the Pando Daily article. See Small Decl., ¶¶ 36-37.

Circuit's 25% benchmark. Notwithstanding, class counsel surveyed the vast and variable terrain of fee awards, including the updated fee study this Court relied on in High-Tech, and respectfully submit that a 21% attorney fee award is reasonable and supported by the lodestar cross-check.

II. ARGUMENT

A. Plaintiffs Request a Reasonable Amount of Attorneys' Fees

When awarding attorneys' fees under Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 23(h), "courts have an independent obligation to ensure that the award, like the settlement itself, is reasonable." In re Bluetooth Headset Prod. Liab. Litig., 654 F.3d 935, 941 (9th Cir. 2011). Considering all of the circumstances of this case, a fee of 21 percent of the settlement funds before the Court, or $31.5 million, is reasonable.[4]

Under the "common fund" doctrine, "a litigant or a lawyer who recovers a common fund for the benefit of persons other than himself or his client is entitled to a reasonable attorney's fee from the fund as a whole." Boeing Co. v. Van Gemert, 444 U.S. 472, 478 (1980). "The doctrine rests on the perception that persons who obtain the benefit of a lawsuit without contributing to its cost are unjustly enriched at the successful litigant's expense. Jurisdiction over the fund involved in the litigation allows a court to prevent this inequity by assessing attorney's fees against the entire fund, thus spreading fees proportionately among those benefited by the suit." Id. (internal citations omitted).

"The procedures used to determine the amount of reasonable attorneys' fees differ concomitantly in cases involving a common fund from those in which attorneys' fees are sought under a fee-shifting statute." Staton v. Boeing Co., 327 F.3d 938, 967 (9th Cir. 2003). Unlike the calculation of fees under a fee-shifting statute, where "a reasonable fee . . . reflects the amount of attorney time reasonably expended on the litigation," "under the 'common fund doctrine,'" "a reasonable fee is based on a percentage of the fund bestowed on the class." Blum v. Stenson, 465 U.S. 886, 900 n.16 (1984). "Indeed, every Supreme Court case addressing the computation of a common fund fee award has determined such fees on a percentage of the fund basis." Camden I Condo. Ass'n, Inc. v. Dunkle, 946 F.2d 768, 773 (11th Cir. 1991).

[4] This Court previously awarded class counsel 25 percent of the $18.95 million settlement fund created by the Blue Sky and Sony settlements. See Order Granting Plaintiffs' Motion for Attorneys' Fees, Expenses and Service Awards for Settlements with Sony Pictures Imageworks Inc., Sony Pictures animation Inc., and Blue Sky Studios Inc. ("Order"), Nov. 11, 2016, ECF No. 347.

"This circuit has established 25% of the common fund as a benchmark award for attorney fees." Hanlon v. Chrysler Corp., 150 F.3d 1011, 1029 (9th Cir. 1998). "That percentage amount can then be adjusted upward or downward depending on the circumstances of the case." de Mira v. Heartland Emp't Serv., LLC, No. 12-CV-04092 LHK, 2014 WL 1026282, at *1 (N.D. Cal. Mar. 13, 2014). As this Court and others have recognized, "'in most common fund cases, the award exceeds the benchmark.'" Id. (alteration omitted) (quoting In re Omnivision Techs., Inc., 559 F. Supp. 2d 1036, 1047 (N.D. Cal. 2008)).

But the hallmark remains the reasonableness of the fee: "[w]hether the Court awards the benchmark amount or some other rate, the award must be supported by findings that take into account all of the circumstances of the case," (id.) – which may include "[c]alculation of the lodestar, which measures the lawyer's investment of time in the litigation." Vizcaino II, 290 F.3d at 1050. "[W]hile the primary basis of the fee award remains the percentage method, the lodestar may provide a useful perspective on the reasonableness of a given percentage award." Id. Here, consideration of all circumstances demonstrates that a 21 percent fee is reasonable.

1. The 25 Percent Benchmark Award Is Presumptively Reasonable – Reflecting a Market Based Fee Amount

Notably, class counsel are asking for fees well under the 25 percent benchmark – $6 million under, to be precise. And "[w]hile the benchmark is not per se valid," the Ninth Circuit has recognized that requesting "the 25% benchmark award only" demonstrates the reasonableness of a fee request. In re Online DVD-Rental Antitrust Litig., 779 F.3d 934, 955 (9th Cir. 2015). This Court has held similarly. See Buccellato v. AT & T Operations, Inc., No. C10-00463-LHK, 2011 WL 3348055, at *1 (N.D. Cal. June 30, 2011) (holding that fee request was "reasonable under the percentage of the common fund method, as it is equal to this Circuit's benchmark of 25 percent.").

To help arrive at class counsel's fee request, we canvassed fee awards, particularly focusing on large dollar settlements. In doing so, our 21 percent fee request is supported by an updated attorneys' fees study relied upon by this Court in High-Tech, conducted by three law professors, analyzing awards in 458 class actions during 2009-2013.[5] The study looked at fee award percentages and found that they decreased as the recovery increased. See EMG Study at 1. For the highest decile of recoveries in the study, above $67.5 million, the average percentage awarded was 22.3%. See id. at 9-10. The largest recoveries in the study, above $100 million, had mean and median fee percentages that ranged from 16.6% to 25.5%, depending on the year. See id. at 8. The midpoint of the study period for recoveries exceeding $100 million is 21% - our request here.

Moreover, a lodestar cross-check confirms the reasonableness of class counsel's request: "[i]f the multiplier is within an acceptable range, this adds further support to the conclusion that the fees sought are reasonable." Hopkins v. Stryker Sales Corp., No. 11-CV-02786-LHK, 2013 WL 496358, at *4 (N.D. Cal. Feb. 6, 2013). Multiplying class counsel's reasonable hours by their prevailing market rates yields a lodestar of $9.27 million.[6] The resulting multiplier of 3.40 (3.91 including the prior fee award) is in line with multipliers that this Court and others have deemed "reasonable":

> The resulting multiplier of 4.3 is reasonable in light of the time and labor required, the difficulty of the issues involved, the requisite legal skill and experience necessary, the excellent and quick results obtained for the Class, the contingent nature of the fee and risk of no payment, and the range of fees that are customary. Vizcaino, 290 F.3d at 1052-54; Steiner v. Am. Broad. Co., 248 Fed. Appx. 780, 783 (9th Cir. 2007) (affirming award with multiplier of 6.85); see also Newberg, Attorney Fee Awards, § 14.03 at 14–5 (1987) ("multiples ranging from one to four are frequently awarded in common fund cases when the lodestar method is applied."); Rabin v. Concord Assets Group, Inc., No. No. 89 Civ. 6130(LBS), 1991 WL 275757 (S.D.N.Y. 1991) (4.4 multiplier) ("In recent years multipliers of between 3 and 4.5 have become

[5] See Friedman Decl., Ex. B (Theodore Eisenberg, Geoffrey P. Miller & Roy Germano, Attorneys' Fees in Class Actions: 2009-2013, NYU Law and Economics Research Paper no. 17-02; Cornell Legal Studies Research paper No. 17-05 at 8 (December 1, 2016) ("EMG Study")). This as-yet unpublished working paper is available at https://ssrn.com/abstract=2904194. In High-Tech, the Court relied on an earlier study by Eisenberg and Miller covering 68 class action settlements during 1993-2008. See In re High-Tech Emp. Antitrust Litig., No. 11-CV-02509-LHK, 2015 WL 5158730, at *13 (N.D. Cal. Sept. 2, 2015).

[6] See Friedman Decl., ¶ 13; Sklaver Decl., ¶ 12; Small Decl., ¶ 30. While class counsel have provided their detailed billing,"[i]t is well established that the lodestar cross-check calculation need entail neither mathematical precision nor bean counting . . . courts may rely on summaries submitted by the attorneys and need not review actual billing records." Perkins v. LinkedIn Corp., No. 13-CV-04303-LHK, 2016 WL 613255, at *17 (N.D. Cal. Feb. 16, 2016) (alterations, quotation marks, and internal citations omitted). Class counsel are reporting their lodestar through February 2017. The reported lodestar thus omits work class counsel have done and will do since, including drafting a motion for final approval of the pending settlements, arguing at the fairness hearing, and if the settlements are approved, administering distribution of the settlement fund. At the end of the day, the requested fee award would generate a multiplier well under 4.

> common.") (internal quotations and citations omitted); In re Xcel Energy, Inc., Securities, Derivative & " 'ERISA" Litig., 364 F.Supp.2d 980, 998-99 (D. Minn. 2005) (approving 25% fee, resulting in 4.7 multiplier); In re Aremissoft Corp. Sec. Litig., 210 F.R.D. 109, 134-35 (D.N.J. 2002) (approving 28% fee, resulting in 4.3 multiplier); Maley v. Del Global Techs. Corp., 186 F. Supp. 2d 358, 371 (S.D.N.Y. 2002) (approving 33.3% fee, resulting in "modest multiplier of 4.65"); Di Giacomo v. Plains All Am. Pipeline, Nos. 99-4137 & 99-4212, 2001 WL 34633373, at *10-11 (S.D. Fla. Dec. 19, 2001) (approving 30% fee, resulting in 5.3 multiplier); Roberts v. Texaco, Inc., 979 F. Supp. 185, 198 (S.D.N.Y. 1997) (5.5 multiplier); Roberts v. Texaco, 979 F.Supp. 185 (S.D.N.Y. 1997) (approving multiplier of 5.5); Weiss v. Mercedez-Benz, 899 F.Supp. 1297 (D.N.J. 1995) (approving multiplier of 9.3); Weiss v. Mercedes-Benz of N. Am., Inc., 899 F. Supp. 1297, 1304 (D.N.J. 1995) (9.3 multiplier), aff'd, 66 F.3d 314 (3d Cir. 1995).

Buccellato, 2011 WL 3348055 at *2. Indeed, "Courts regularly award lodestar multipliers of up to eight times the lodestar, and in some cases, even higher multipliers." Beckman v. KeyBank, N.A., 293 F.R.D. 467, 481 (S.D.N.Y. 2013) (collecting cases); accord, e.g., In re Aremissoft Corp. Secs. Litig., 210 F.R.D. 109, 134–35 (D.N.J. 2002) (awarding 28% of a $194 million settlement, resulting in a lodestar multiplier of 4.3). The Ninth Circuit, for example, has explicitly affirmed a multiplier of 6.85, holding that it "falls well within the range of multipliers that courts have allowed." Steiner v. Am. Broad. Co., 248 F. App'x 780, 783 (9th Cir. 2007).

An overall multiplier of 3.40 is within the range of multipliers surveyed by the Ninth Circuit in Vizcaino. See High-Tech. Order (relying on Vizcano survey). Vizcano found that in 20 of the 24 cases it surveyed, the multiplier was between 1.0 and 4.0. See Vizcano II, 290 F.3d at 1051 n.6. Significantly, the cases Vizcano surveyed involved common funds of $50-200 million. Id. at 1052-54. The settlements in this case total in the high end of this range. Given that the EMG Study shows that multipliers increase as the size of the recovery increases (see EMG Study at 1), a multiplier in this case at the high end of the Vizcano range is appropriate for this reason alone, even putting aside the excellent results achieved and significant risks borne by class counsel.

Having been shown to be presumptively reasonable under a percentage-of-the-fund calculation, a lodestar cross-check, and a large study of class action fee awards, the question becomes whether there are "any 'special circumstances' justifying a departure" (Bluetooth, 654 F.3d at 942) from the requested 21 percent. For the reasons that follow, the answer is "no."

2. All Relevant Circumstances Confirm a 21 Percent Award Is Reasonable

Though no exhaustive list of relevant factors exists, the Ninth Circuit has endorsed a number of factors which may be relevant to determining the reasonableness of a fee, including the results achieved, the risks faced, the non-monetary benefits conferred, the contingent nature of the representation, the market rates for similar cases, and the risk of any windfall profits. See, e.g., In re Online DVD-Rental, 779 F.3d at 954 (listing factors).

a. A 21 percent fee is justified by the exceptional results achieved

"The most important factor is the results achieved for the class." In re: Cathode Ray Tube (CRT) Antitrust Litig., No. 1917, 2016 WL 4126533, at *4 (N.D. Cal. Aug. 3, 2016). Here, those results are exceptional. Taking all approved and preliminarily-approved settlements into account, counsel's efforts created a $168.95 million fund for the class. Notably, the class will recover 30.5 percent of an antitrust injury estimated to be $553 million before trebling.[7] Lesser results have justified upward departures from the 25% benchmark. See, e.g., CRT, 2016 WL 4126533, at *4-*5 (holding that 20 percent antitrust recovery in a megafund case warranted "a modest increase over the Ninth Circuit benchmark"); Omnivision, 559 F. Supp. 2d at 1046 (holding that "a total award of approximately 9% of the possible damages" "weighs in favor of granting the requested 28% fee").[8]

The results achieved are even more substantial when considered as a function of the average cash recovery to each class member, which is $16,823 before accounting for fees and expenses. Cf. In re TFT-LCD (Flat Panel) Antitrust Litig., No. M 07-1827 SI, 2013 WL 1365900, at *7 (N.D. Cal. Apr. 3, 2013) (awarding 28.5% fee because "the amount that individual claimants will receive is

[7] See Friedman Decl., ¶ 17.

[8] See also In re Heritage Bond Litig., No. 02-ML-1475 DT, 2005 WL 1594403, at *19 (C.D. Cal. June 10, 2005) ("When the requested fee and expense award is deducted, the net amount of the settlement represented approximately 23% of the class' claimed loss. As Lead Counsel maintains, such a recovery percentage is considerable, and is greater than those obtained in cases where class counsel was awarded one-third of a common fund. See Med. X–Ray 1998 WL 661515, at *7-*8 (increasing 25% benchmark to 33.3% where counsel recovered 17% of damages); Crazy Eddie, 824 F. Supp. at 326 (increasing 25% benchmark to 33.8% where counsel recovered 10% of damages); In re Gen. Instruments Sec. Litig., 209 F. Supp. 2d 423, 431, 434 (E.D. Pa. 2001) (awarding one-third fee from $48 million settlement fund that was approximately 11% of the plaintiffs' estimated damages); Corel, 293 F. Supp. 2d at 489-90, 498 (permitting one-third fee award from $48 million settlement fund which represented approximately 15% of class' total net damages); Cullen, 197 F.R.D. at 148 (awarding one-third in fees from settlement of class consisting of defrauded vocational students that was 17% of the tuition that class members paid)).") excellent" and "in the range of $64 per monitor or laptop, or $128 per TV."). Importantly, class counsel also negotiated an allocation and payment method whereby, at the time of disbursement, each non-opt out class member will receive his or her substantial cash payment directly in the mail, without needing to make any showing, or do anything further.

And if one were to use the High-Tech recovery per class member to help assess counsel's achievement for the class, the results appear even more impressive.Whereas the settlements in High-Tech totaled only 14% of the proposed single damages estimate, the settlements here totaled 30.5%. More importantly, whereas the settlements in High-Tech amounted to approximately $6,753 per class member, the settlements here amounted to approximately $16,823. In fact, were this Court to award all fees, expenses, and service awards requested herein, the average class member recovery after accounting for all fees and expenses will still be $13,637.36 – which is 2.4 times more than the equivalent High-Tech recovery of approximately $5,770 per person. Indeed, the assumed average recovery in this case after accounting for all requested fees and expenses, would be two times greater than the average recovery in High-Tech had High-Tech counsel worked for free and paid their own expenses, $6,753.61.[9]

As noted at the outset, moreover, these exceptional results were achieved "in absence of supporting precedents" (Vizcaino II, 290 F.3d at 1048) – really, in the face of superficially contrary precedents –"and against [defendants'] vigorous opposition throughout the litigation." Id. At the first hearing in this matter, DreamWorks told this Court that plaintiffs had asserted "slim to not existent" allegations against defendants "that, frankly, they do not appear to have any basis to have filed lawsuits against."[10] Of course, DreamWorks ended up settling for $50,000,000 and cooperation. And the Disney defendants agreed to pay $100,000,000 even though "the House of Mouse is [9] The favorable comparisons to the results achieved in High-Tech hold on a more granular level too: whereas Pixar and Lucasfilm settled for just $9 million in High-Tech, they and the other Disney defendants settled for $100 million here, despite being represented by the same counsel, and despite the fact that the High-Tech settlement likely released many of the claims at issue in this case. See Vizcaino II, 290 F.3d at 1048 (noting exceptional results achieved "in the face of agreements signed by the class members forsaking benefits").

[10] See CMC Tr. at 19.

infamous for almost never settling lawsuits."[11] Finally, class counsel achieved these exceptional raw-dollar, percentage, and per capita results despite facing off against some of the best, and most well-resourced, defense lawyers, from Covington & Burling; Gibson, Dunn & Crutcher; Jones Day; Keker & Van Nest; Orrick Herrington & Sutcliffe; and Williams & Connolly. See de Mira, 2014 WL 1026282 at *2 (justifying 28% fee award in part because "Defendant was represented by an experienced and well-resourced defense firm. Had Class Counsel failed to vigorously prosecute this case, it is unlikely that this settlement could have been achieved").

b. A 21 percent fee is justified by the significant risk borne by counsel

"The risk that further litigation might result in Plaintiffs not recovering at all, particularly a case involving complicated legal issues, is a significant factor in the award of fees." In re Omnivision, 559 F. Supp. 2d at 1046-47; accord In re Pac. Enter. Secs. Litig., 47 F.3d 373, 379 (9th Cir. 1995) (holding fees justified "because of the complexity of the issues and the risks").

Here, class counsel faced real risks in pursuing this case, not the least of which was being initially dismissed on the pleadings as a matter of law. See Vizcaino II, 290 F.3d at 1048 (finding case "extremely risky" where "[t]wice plaintiffs lost in the district court"). Indeed, defendants' statute of limitations defense reared its head over this case every step of the way. Although class counsel were able to survive a second motion to dismiss, two related cases were not so fortunate – and ended in zero recovery. See Garrison v. Oracle Corp., 159 F. Supp. 3d 1044 (N.D. Cal. 2016) (distinguishing this case, and granting motion to dismiss plaintiffs' time-barred claims with prejudice); Ryan v. Microsoft Corp., 147 F. Supp. 3d 868 (N.D. Cal. 2015) (same).

Stating a timely claim was only the first step on the road to recovery, as failing to obtain class certification would have all but eliminated the chances of any recovery, much less the meaningful recovery obtained here. While class counsel was able to obtain class certification, it did so without the support of "any case in which the Ninth Circuit ha[d] considered . . . whether certification is permissible when the plaintiff class must prove fraudulent concealment to overcome the statute of limitations," and notwithstanding a Fourth Circuit decision reversing a $390 million class-action judgment on the theory that tolling analyses implicated individual questions. See ECF No. 289 at 64-65.

[11] Dominic Patten, It's Over! Disney Ends Animation Anti-Poaching Suit with $100M Deal, Deadline Hollywood, Feb. 1, 2017, http://deadline. com/2017/02/disney-pixar-dreamworks-animation-settlement-lawsuit-class-action-dreamworks-1201899625.

Although class counsel and this Court got those decisions right, surviving a motion to dismiss and certifying the class by no means eliminated the risks posed by defendants' statute of limitations defense. Because fraudulent concealment presents classic jury questions, there remained a significant chance of the class not recovering at trial, if counsel failed to convince the jury that defendants had fraudulently concealed their conduct, or if defendants were able to convince the jury that some or all of the class members had actual or constructive knowledge of their claims. And even if plaintiffs' fraudulent concealment allegations, and all others, carried the day at trial, defendants would have undoubtedly appealed any jury verdict to the Ninth Circuit, and possibly even the Supreme Court. And here again, because the statute of limitations question was one of law, a Ninth Circuit reversal as to the pleadings or class certification could have resulted in zero recovery.

The significant risks borne by counsel extended beyond the statute of limitations issue too. As other courts have recognized, "[a]n antitrust class action is arguably the most complex action to prosecute. The legal and factual issues involved are always numerous and uncertain in outcome." In re Optical Disk Drive Prod. Antitrust Litig., No. 3:10-MD-2143 RS, 2016 WL 7364803, at *4 (N.D. Cal. Dec. 19, 2016) (quotation marks and ellipses omitted).

Although the DOJ investigation certainly paved some ground here – as to the alleged illegality of the restraint for example – the scope of the DOJ investigation and consent decree also cut against pursuing this suit. Here's how Blue Sky's counsel framed those risks at the first hearing in this case, a sentiment which was echoed by DreamWorks and Sony alike:

> DOJ filed no action against us. We were not part of the consent decree. We were never added to the High-Tech Employees Litigation and the like. Given that, there is really the, frankly, flimsiest bases to have included Blue Sky in this lawsuit.[12]

High-Tech more directly piggy-backed onto the DOJ investigation. While similar, in the end, most of the overlap between the two cases boils down to both involving no-poach agreements and Steve Jobs being at the epicenter of both conspiracies, as CEO of Apple and President of Pixar. Indeed, were the legal and factual issues – and attendant risks – one and the same, High-Tech counsel never would have carved out and left behind the Animation Workers conspiracy.

[12] See CMC Tr. at 28.

To be sure, this class has benefitted from the Court's unsealing of the facts in High-Tech, and class counsel was guided by this Court's class certification analyses in High-Tech. But those realities did not eliminate the risks or complexities class counsel faced in achieving this recovery in a case that neither the DOJ nor High-Tech counsel decided to pursue. One significant difference was the statute of limitations defense (which engendered different risks and required different analyses and strategies at the pleadings and class certification stages, and at trial), but others existed as well. Indeed, a second important legal issue in this case was also still open from High-Tech: namely, whether a "no poach" restraint is per se illegal, or whether it requires a rule of reason analysis. Furthermore, the conspiracy here included a compensation coordination component that was not present in High-Tech.

And putting aside the legal classification of the restraint, High-Tech never tested any theory of that restraint to a jury, or any theory of impact or damages resulting from that restraint to a jury. Cf. Omnivision, 559 F. Supp. 2d at 1047 (risks faced by plaintiffs supported 28 percent fee, where "[t]he parties' estimates of possible damages varied dramatically, such that if Plaintiffs prevailed on liability but Defendants prevailed on damages, the reward could have been even smaller"). In particular, the basic theory of causation in both cases – that suppression of cold calls to a fraction of the class would suppress the pay of every one of thousands of class members – was untested in High-Tech. Factual differences between the two cases affecting complexity and risk were also abound, including that: many of the defendants here were not pursued by the DOJ; the conspiracy evidence against Sony and Blue Sky was weaker than it was for the other defendants; and a High-Tech settlement released a large number of claims in this case.

Finally, it is also worth noting that the EMG Study looked at average fee awards based on risk, according to the type of litigation. The average fee award for low-medium risk antitrust cases between 2009-2013 was 24.91%. This data looking at the risk dimension in antitrust cases reinforces the reasonableness of counsel's 21% fee request.

c. A 21 percent fee is justified by the incidental benefits flowing to the public

"Incidental or non-monetary benefits conferred by the litigation are a relevant circumstance." Vizcaino II, 290 F.3d at 1049; accord Bebchick v. Washington Metro. Area Transit Comm'n, 805 F.2d 396, 408 (D.C. Cir. 1986) ("we think that an upward adjustment to the lodestar is appropriate to reflect the benefits to the public flowing from this litigation."). Here, class counsel's efforts as private attorneys general conferred at least two types of non-monetary benefits on the public.

First, their high-profile and successful pursuit of this powerful cartel put other employers on notice of the illegality of "no poach" agreements, benefiting workers nationwide. Accord Vizcaino v. Microsoft Corp., 142 F. Supp. 2d 1299, 1304 (W.D. Wash. 2001) ("As a result of this case and the large amount of publicity surrounding it, many employers have been advised to carefully ensure their workers are properly classified so that they will not get into the same trouble as Microsoft."); In re Linerboard Antitrust Litig., MDL No. 1261, 2004 WL 1221350, at *17 (E.D. Pa. June 2, 2004) ("As the Second Circuit has explained, the incentive for 'the private attorney general' is particularly important in the area of antitrust enforcement because public policy relies so heavily on such private action for enforcement of the antitrust laws." (Internal citation omitted.)

Second, class counsel's efforts further benefited the public, and future classes, by clarifying the law in the Ninth Circuit in many important respects, including by clarifying what is required to adequately plead fraudulent concealment (ECF No. 147); that pleading fraudulent concealment is not a per se bar to class certification (ECF No. 289); and in a case of first impression in the Ninth Circuit, that a civil antitrust violation can fall within the "crime-fraud" exception to the attorney-client privilege (ECF No. 236 at 3). See Vizcaino II, 290 F.3d at 1049 (upholding 28 percent fee where "the litigation also benefitted employers and workers nationwide by clarifying the law of temporary worker classification"). These incidental benefits provide further support for a 21 percent fee.

d. A 21 percent fee is justified by the contingent nature of the representation

Class counsel's 21 percent fee request is also reasonable in light of the contingent nature of class counsel's representation—that is, that they would only get paid if the class recovered, and only out of the class's recovery at that. "Courts have long recognized that the public interest is served by rewarding attorneys who assume representation on a contingent basis with an enhanced fee to compensate them for the risk that they might be paid nothing at all for their work." Ching v. Siemens Indus., Inc., No. 11-CV-04838-MEJ, 2014 WL 2926210, at *8 (N.D. Cal. June 27, 2014) (emphasis added). "This mirrors the established practice in the private legal market of rewarding attorneys for taking the risk of nonpayment by paying them a premium over their normal hourly rates for winning contingency cases." Vizcaino II, 290 F.3d at 1051 (emphasis added). "Contingent fees that may far exceed the market value of the services if rendered on a non-contingent basis are accepted in the legal profession as a legitimate way of assuring competent representation for plaintiffs who could not afford to pay on an hourly basis regardless whether they win or lose." In re Washington Pub. Power Supply Sys. Sec. Litig., 19 F.3d 1291, 1299 (9th Cir. 1994) (emphasis added).

Contingent fees, in short, are good for clients and the public alike. In exchange for increased predictability, decreased bean counting, and unlimited protection against downside risks—including the risk of a zero dollar recovery—a client agrees to pay its attorneys an enhanced fee if and only if the client recovers. And because contingent fees are almost always determined as a percentage of the client's recovery, such fees are necessarily aligned with and proportional to the results achieved for that client—in short, you only pay for what you get. See John C. Coffee, Jr., The Regulation of Entrepreneurial Litigation: Balancing Fairness and Efficiency in the Large Class Action, 54 U. Chi. L. Rev. 877, 887 (1987) ("[E]ven uninformed clients can align their attorney's interests with their own by compensating them through a percentage-of-recovery fee formula."). Lest contingent fees disappear altogether, however, the law must continue to recognize both sides of the bargain – namely, a significant upside fee for successful contingent representations. If it instead becomes that lawyers must not only bear all of the downside risk, but must also do so only for the prospect of being paid what they would have been paid by the hour, win or lose, had they not taken the case on a contingency, the law will at the very least discourage sophisticated counsel from pursuing risky representations on behalf of non-wealthy clients. See Vizcaino II, 290 F.3d at 1051 ("In common fund cases, 'attorneys whose compensation depends on their winning the case must make up in compensation in the cases they win for the lack of compensation in the cases they lose.'").

Here, class counsel have spent nearly three years and nearly 18,500 hours investigating and litigating this case, while foregoing other paid work, without receiving any compensation to do so. Such burdens are significant, even for law firms of class counsel's stature. For instance, the fact that no money was coming in did not relieve class counsel from having to pay the salaries of the associates and staff working on this case, or from having to cover non-reimbursable overhead expenses like rent. Class counsel not only floated these financial burdens, but they did so while assuming the class's risk that there might never be any repayment. See Torrisi v. Tucson Elec. Power Co., 8 F.3d 1370, 1376–77 (9th Cir. 1993) ("Class counsel, however, have the case on a contingency. Moreover, it is a double contingency; first, they must prevail on the class claims, and then they must find some way to collect what they win."). They also advanced over $2,067,288.06 in expenses, interest-free, prosecuting this action, including all expert fees and expenses, which are a substantial but necessary burden in any antitrust action. "This substantial outlay, when there is a risk that none of it will be recovered, further supports the award of the requested fees." In re Omnivision, 559 F. Supp. 2d at 1047.

A 21 percent benchmark award reasonably compensates class counsel for carrying the financial burdens of this risky case. See Torrisi, 8 F.3d at 1377 ("The 25% contingent fee rewarded class counsel not only for the hours they had in the case to the date of the settlement, but for carrying the financial burden of the case, effectively prosecuting it and, by reason of their expert handling of the case, achieving a just settlement for the class."); accord, e.g., Hopkins, 2013 WL 496358, at *3 (awarding 30 percent fee in part because "case was conducted on an entirely contingent fee basis against a well-represented Defendant."). The 21 percent rate is actually below the standard market contingency rate of 33 percent,[13] which further demonstrates the reasonableness of class counsel's request. See In re Online DVD, 779 F.3d at 955 (reasonableness factors include "the market rate for the particular field of law in some circumstances"); Vizcaino II, 290 F.3d at 1049-50 (evidence of market rate may be probative of the fee award's reasonableness).

[13] See, e.g., Lester Brickman, ABA Regulation of Contingency Fees: Money Talks, Ethics Walks, 65 Fordham L. Rev. 247, 248 (1996) (noting that "standard contingency fees" are "usually thirty-three percent to forty percent of gross recoveries" (emphasis omitted)); F. Patrick Hubbard, Substantive Due Process Limits on Punitive Damages Awards: "Morals Without Technique"?, 60 Fla. L. Rev. 349, 383 (2008) (mentioning "the usual 33-40 percent contingent fee" (quoting Mathias v. Accor Econ. Lodging, Inc., 347 F.3d 672, 677 (7th Cir. 2003))); Herbert M. Kritzer, The Wages of Risk: The Returns of Contingency Fee Legal Practice, 47 DePaul L. Rev. 267, 286 (1998) (reporting the results of a survey of Wisconsin lawyers, which found that "[o]f the cases with a [fee calculated as a] fixed percentage [of the recovery], a contingency fee of 33% was by far the most common, accounting for 92% of those cases").

e. A 21 percent fee accords with fee awards in analogous cases

An award of 21 percent of the common fund is consistent with, and within the range of, fee awards out of common funds of comparable size – which is not surprising since the "benchmark for an attorneys' fee award in a successful class action is twenty-five percent of the entire common fund." Williams v. MGM-Pathe Commc'ns Co., 129 F.3d 1026, 1027 (9th Cir. 1997). Of course, because "the percentage may be adjusted to account for any unusual circumstances" (id.), it is possible to cite many examples of percentage-of-the-fund awards falling on either side of that benchmark. But this Court has correctly recognized that "[p]ercentage awards of between 20% and 30% are common," and that, "'in most common fund cases, the award exceeds the benchmark'" de Mira, 2014 WL 1026282, at *1.

In fact, of the three common funds of equivalent or greater size cited by the Ninth Circuit in Vizcaino II, all three cases awarded fees at or above the 25 percent benchmark, and two of the three awards resulted in multipliers exceeding the 3.91 multiplier requested here:

Case	Fund	Fee (%)	Fee ($)	Multiplier
In re Rite Aid Corp. Sec. Litig., 146 F. Supp. 2d 706 (E.D. Pa. 2001)	$193M	25.0%	$48M	4.5-8.5
In re Lease Oil Antitrust Litig., 186 F.R.D. 403 (S.D. Tex. 1999)	$190M	25.0%	$47M	1.4
In re Merry–Go–Round Enter., Inc., 244 B.R. 327 (Bankr. D. Md. 2000)	$185M	40.0%	$71M	19.6

Vizcaino II, 290 F.3d at 1052 (upholding 28% fee on $97 million settlement fund, resulting in a 3.65 multiplier). Indeed, "federal district courts across the country have, in the class action settlement context, routinely awarded class counsel fees in excess of the 25% 'benchmark,' even in so-called 'mega-fund' cases." Allapattah Servs., Inc. v. Exxon Corp., 454 F. Supp. 2d 1185, 1210 (S.D. Fla. 2006) (emphasis added) (awarding 31.33% fee on $1.075 billion settlement fund); accord In re Urethane Antitrust Litig., No. 04-1616-JWL (D. Kan. July 29, 2016), ECF No. 2373 (awarding 33.33% fee on $835 million settlement; "Counsel's expert has identified 34 megafund cases with settlements of at least $100 million in which the court awarded fees of 30 percent or higher").[14]

While Vizcaino II alone demonstrates that both the requested fee and resultant multiplier is well within the reasonable range, additional market information further bolsters that a 21 percent award is reasonable and within the range of fee awards from analogous cases. For example, as discussed above, the EMG Study reports that the highest decile of recoveries in the study, above $67.5 million, averaged a 22.3 percent fee award. See EMG Study at 9-10. The largest recoveries in the study, above $100 million, had mean and median fee percentages that ranged from 16.6% to 25.5%, depending on the year. See id. at 8. Across all settlements in the study, the report finds that "[o]n average, fees were 27% of gross recovery during the 2009-2013 period, which is higher than the average fee percentage of 23% that we reported in our analyses of the 1993-2008 period." Id. The study further reports that, of the 53 settlements in the Northern District of California, the mean and median percentages awarded were 26% and 25% respectively (id. at 11), and that, of the 144 settlements in the Ninth Circuit, the mean and median percentages awarded were also 26% and 25% respectively (id. at 12). Looking at case subject matter, the study further reports that of the 19 antitrust settlements between 2009-2013, with a mean recovery of $501.09 million and a median recovery of $37.3 million, the mean and median percentages awarded were 27% and 30%

[14] See also, e.g., In re Optical Disk Drive, 2016 WL 7364803 at *6 (awarding 25% fee on $124.5 million settlement fund); CRT., 2016 WL 4126533 at *1 (awarding 27.5% fee on $576.75 million settlement fund); In re Polyurethane Foam Antitrust Litig., No. 1:10 MD 2196, 2015 WL 1639269, at *7 (N.D. Ohio Feb. 26, 2015) (awarding 30% fee on $147.8 million settlement fund); In re Neurontin Mktg. & Sales Practices Litig., 58 F. Supp. 3d 167, 170 (D. Mass. 2014) (awarding 28% fee on $325 million settlement fund); TFT-LCD, 2013 WL 1365900, at *3 (awarding 28.6% fee on $571 million settlement fund); In re Checking Account Overdraft Litig., 830 F. Supp. 2d 1330, 1366 (S.D. Fla. 2011) (awarding 33.3% fee on $510 million settlement fund); In re Comverse Tech., Inc. Sec. Litig., No. 06-CV-1825 (NGG), 2010 WL 2653354, at *6 (E.D.N.Y. June 24, 2010) (awarding 25% fee on $225 million settlement fund); In re Rite Aid Corp. Sec. Litig., 362 F. Supp. 2d 587, 589 (E.D. Pa. 2005) (awarding 25% fee on $126 million settlement fund, resulting in multiplier of 6.96); Linerboard, 2004 WL 1221350, at *1(awarding 30% fee on $202.5 million settlement fund); In re Buspirone Antitrust Litig., No. 01-MD-1410 (S.D.N.Y. Apr. 11, 2003), at 4, 42-45 (awarding 33.3% of a $220 million dollar fund, which produced a multiplier of 8.46); In re Cardizem CD Antitrust Litig., No. 99-MD-1278 (E.D.Mich. Nov. 26, 2002), at 18-20 (awarding 30% of a $110 million dollar fund, which produced a multiplier of 3.7); In re Vitamins Antitrust Litig., No. MDL 1285, 2001 WL 34312839, at *9 (D.D.C. July 16, 2001) (awarding 34.6% fee on $365 million settlement fund); In re Ikon Office Sols., Inc., Sec. Litig., 194 F.R.D. 166, 170 (E.D. Pa. 2000) (awarding 30% fee on $111 million settlement fund); In re Brand Name Prescription Drugs Antitrust Litig., No. 94 C 897, 2000 WL 204112, at *2 (N.D. Ill. Feb. 10, 2000) (awarding 25.4% fee on $696 million settlement fund); In re Sumitomo Copper Litig., 74 F. Supp. 2d 393, 395 (S.D.N.Y. 1999) (awarding 27.5% fee on $116 million settlement fund).

respectively. Id. at 13; s*ee also, e.g.*, In re Auto. Refinishing Paint Antitrust Litig., MDL No.1426, 2008 WL 63269, at *5 (E.D. Pa. Jan. 3, 2008) ("We have previously noted that is not unusual in antitrust class actions for the attorneys to receive awards for fees in the 30% range."). In addition, the study reports that "the fee-to-recovery ratio tends to be lower in cases with very large recoveries." EMG Study at 8. Conversely, the study at the same time reports that "higher multipliers are associated with higher recoveries." Id. at 27.

Here again, that the average award in megafund cases across all subject matters and all locales in 2011 was greater than the 21 percent fee requested here confirms, like Vizcaino II does, that a 21 percent fee on a recovery of this size is reasonable and well inside the range of fee awards in comparable common fund cases.

f. A 21 percent fee does not award windfall profits to counsel

In reiterating in In re Bluetooth Headset Prod. Liab. Litig. that any fee award must be reasonable, the Ninth Circuit remarked, in dicta, "for example, where awarding 25% of a 'megafund' would yield windfall profits for class counsel in light of the hours spent on the case, courts should adjust the benchmark percentage or employ the lodestar method instead." 654 F.3d at 942; but see, e.g., Linerboard, 2004 WL 1221350, at *17 ("the sliding scale approach is economically unsound.") As an initial matter, counsel are not seeking the benchmark 25% fee here, notwithstanding the representative cases and studies cited in the previous section that could support such a request. Again, courts in this district and across the country have routinely awarded above the 25% benchmark in megafund cases.

As the successive, increasing settlements obtained in this action underscore, the size of the common fund is directly related to the efforts of counsel. After class counsel defeated defendants' motion to dismiss and filed a motion for class certification, Blue Sky settled for $5.95 million; after class counsel replied to defendants' opposition to class certification, Sony settled for $13 million; after the Court certified the class and class counsel defeated defendants' Rule 23(f) petition, DreamWorks settled for $50 million; after class counsel staved off absent class member discovery, served their merits expert reports, and presented their case to an impartial mediator, the Disney defendants settled for $100 million.

Simply put, this is not a mass tort or fraud case where the mere disclosure of a government investigation all but guarantees the creation of a megafund, notwithstanding what counsel does or does not do; instead, this case went from zero recovery to megafund precisely because of counsel's efforts. Accord, e.g., Linerboard, 2004 WL 1221350, at *17 (rejecting application of the increase-decrease principle "because the highly favorable settlement was attributable to the petitioners' skill and it is inappropriate to penalize them for their success."); Vitamins, 2001 WL 34312839, at *12 ("This Court agrees that it is not fair to penalize counsel for obtaining fine results for their clients.").

Relatedly, the size of the common fund obtained in this case is not "merely a factor of the size of the class." Bluetooth, 654 F.3d at 943. In truth, a megafund was created in this case despite the size of the class, not because of it. An analysis of the megafund cases cited at supra note 8 reveals that, with one exception, the number of class members sharing in the megafund in this case (approximately 10,043 class members) is one-fourth the number of class members sharing in the next smallest by-member megafund case; in fact, above-benchmark fees are often awarded where megafunds must be shared by hundreds of thousands, if not millions, of class members.[15] Here again, a comparison to High-Tech is also instructive. There, counsel's efforts were on behalf of approximately 64,410 non-opt-out class members, or nearly 6.5 times as many class members as have claims here. And yet, despite representing class members who number less than 16 percent of the High-Tech class, class counsel created a common fund that is nearly 39 percent of the High-Tech common fund. Class counsel were able to do so, moreover, even though average class member salaries were lower than in High-Tech, and even though High-Tech released many overlapping [15] See, e.g., Optical Disk Drive, 2016 WL 7364803, at *6 ($124.5 million settlement fund for "millions of class members"); CRT, 2016 WL 4126533, at *1 ($576.75 million settlement fund for "millions" of class members, Polyurethane Foam, 2015 WL 1639269, at *7 ($147.8 million settlement fund for more than "48,000" class members); Neurontin, 58 F. Supp. 3d at 170 ($325 million settlement fund for "more than 40,000 class members"); TFT-LCD, 2013 WL 1365900, at *3 ($571 million settlement fund for more than "235,808" class members); In re Checking, 830 F. Supp. 2d 1330 at 1366 ($510 million settlement fund for "approximately 13 million" class members); Comverse Tech, 2010 WL 2653354, at *6 ($225 million settlement fund for "more than 204,000 potential class members"); Linerboard, 2004 WL 1221350, at *1 ($202.5 million settlement fund for "approximately 80,000 companies"); Ikon, 194 F.R.D. at 170 ($111 million settlement fund for more than 200,000 class members); Brand Name Prescription Drugs, 2000 WL 204112, at *2 ($696 million settlement fund for "approximately 40,000 retail pharmacies"); but see Vitamins, 2001 WL 34312839, at *9 ($365 million settlement fund for 4,000 class members).

claims.

Thus, while application of the so-called increase-decrease principle may be appropriate in certain cases,[16] it is tenuous here, where the size of the fund is not merely a factor of the size of the class but is instead directly related to the efforts of class counsel. In the end, the facts are these: class counsel achieved exceptional, megafund results for a relatively small class of plaintiffs who had been left behind by the government and High-Tech alike. In doing so, they overcame adverse decisions, obtained incidental benefits for the public, expended huge amounts of their own time and money, and faced considerable risks of non-recovery (and thus non-payment) in pursuing this complex antitrust class action against well-financed corporate defendants, with top-notch counsel. Their 21 percent fee request is below the market contingency rate, below the Ninth Circuit benchmark rate, below the rates awarded in other megafund cases, and results in a lodestar cross-check multiplier within the range of multipliers that both this Court and the Ninth Circuit have previously deemed "reasonable." Class counsel's fee request, in short, is eminently reasonable, fair, and justified based on all the circumstances of this case. To nonetheless apply the increase-decrease principle and reduce [16] Many courts are not so sure. As Judge Katz put it in oft-quoted language:

> The court will not reduce the requested award simply for the sake of doing so when every other factor ordinarily considered weighs in favor of approving class counsel's request of thirty percent. In so ruling, the court is well aware that most decisions addressing similar settlement amounts have adopted some variant of a sliding fee scale, by which counsel is awarded ever diminishing percentages of ever increasing common funds. This court respectfully concludes that such an approach tends to penalize attorneys who recover large settlements. More importantly, it casts doubt on the whole process by which courts award fees by creating a separate, largely unarticulated set of rules for cases in which the recovery is particularly sizable. It is difficult to discern any consistent principle in reducing large awards other than an inchoate feeling that it is simply inappropriate to award attorneys' fees above some unspecified dollar amount, even if all of the other factors ordinarily considered relevant in determining the percentage would support a higher percentage. Such an approach also fails to appreciate the immense risks undertaken by attorneys in prosecuting complex cases in which there is a great risk of no recovery. Nor does it give sufficient weight to the fact that large attorneys' fees serve to motivate capable counsel to undertake these actions.

Ikon, 194 F.R.D. at 196-97 (quotations marks and citations omitted). Others, like Judge Easterbrook, have criticized the principle as economically unsound, highlighting its perverse outcomes and incentives. See In re Synthroid Mktg. Litig., 264 F.3d 712, 718 (7th Cir. 2001) (where megafunds were defined as greater than $75 million: "This means that counsel for the consumer class could have received $22 million in fees had they settled for $74 million but were limited to $8.2 million in fees because they obtained an extra $14 million for their clients.").

an otherwise reasonable fee simply because this is a "megafund" case, would be to ignore the foregoing Vizcaino II factors and sanction an arbitrary, formulaic, and unreasonable result.

3. Class Counsel's Efficiencies Should Be Rewarded and Incentivized

Although class counsel's fee request is reasonable, and checks out as so under a lodestar cross-check (see supra § II.A.1), the efficiency with which class counsel achieved such exceptional results is laudable because it benefits the class. Had class counsel's lodestar been significantly higher, a stronger case would exist for a benchmark award of 25 percent (or more). Thus, class counsel's efficiency should be considered favorably in evaluating the reasonableness of our fee request. See Vizcaino II, 290 F.3d at 1043 & n.5 ("The lodestar method is merely a cross-check on the reasonableness of a percentage figure, and it is widely recognized that the lodestar method creates incentives for counsel to expend more hours than may be necessary on litigating a case so as to recover a reasonable fee").

Class counsel spent many hours investigating and litigating this case over the last three years, but keeping good on a promise they made at the outset,[17] they litigated strategically and efficiently throughout – placing their utmost focus on the most efficient path to results, not devoting resources to "nice to have" belt and suspender litigation. Rather than boiling the ocean, class counsel took a number of actions to circumscribe their lodestar:

- Class counsel divided categories of tasks (e.g., briefing, expert work) among the three firms, eliminating overlap and catch-up work as much as possible;
- Class counsel also worked to divide discovery tasks among the firms by defendant: for example, rather than having one lawyer from each firm on a meet and confer call, one firm would handle the call for their respective defendant and report back to all others; for maximum efficiency, the same lawyer would generally handle any follow up;
- In a time when this Court and others have been forced to issue orders encouraging law firms to give their junior lawyers standup time in court, class counsel did so willingly (with accompanying lower hourly rates). Associate-level attorneys were often the sole or primary representatives at hearings in this case. For example, at the Case Management Conference held on December 9, 2015, plaintiffs sent a mid-level Associate as the sole representative; defendants sent seven partners, with two attorneys representing each defendant (except for Williams & Connolly, an East Coast firm);[18]

[17] See Plaintiffs' Statement in Further Support of Plaintiffs' Unopposed Motion for Appointment of Plaintiffs' Interim Co-Lead Class Counsel at 1-2, Nov. 12, 2014, ECF No. 44.

[18] See ECF No. 172.

- While courts often place a two-attorney limit on depositions, with one exception, class counsel, in sharp contrast to defendants, sent only one attorney to each deposition they took in this case. As a practice, deposition preparation was also so limited: the attorney who prepared for the deposition generally took the deposition;
- Speaking of depositions: class counsel only took 25 of them, strategically focusing solely on depositions that were necessary with which to go to trial. Counsel also noticed some depositions – including of at least one top executive – but cancelled them based on the evidence developed during discovery. By way of comparison, High-Tech counsel took 93 depositions.[19] This saved the class significant expenses, in addition to fees; and
- Class counsel submitted monthly billings records and exchanged those records with one of the other co-lead firms, allowing the three firms to cross-check each other's time records and write off any duplicative or inefficient time.[20]

Again, each one of these actions reduced class counsel's lodestar, resulting in a higher multiplier when cross-checking counsel's percentage-of-the-fund award. But that's a good thing. See In re Xcel Energy, Inc., Secs., Derivative & "ERISA" Litig., 364 F. Supp. 2d 980, 996 (D. Minn. 2005) ("But for the cooperation and efficiency of counsel, the lodestar of plaintiffs' counsel would have been substantially more and would have required this court to devote significant judicial resources to its management of the case. Instead, counsel moved the case along expeditiously, and the court determines that the time and labor spent to be reasonable and fully supportive of the 25% attorney fee."). Strategic and efficient lawyering not only encourages "the just, speedy, and inexpensive determination of every action and proceeding" (Fed. R. Civ. P. 1), it is also directly correlated with obtaining superb results. One-on-one meet and confers tend to be more productive; oral arguments tend to go better when the person who wrote the motion also argues the motion; and depositions are more effective when the person taking the deposition drafted the questions for the deposition.

Thus, as a matter of policy, the law should reward results achieved through efficiency and incentivize similar future litigation conduct:

---

[19] See High-Tech, 2015 WL 5158730, at *10.

[20] Friedman Decl., ¶ 5; accord Sandra R. McCandless et al., Tort Trial & Ins. Practice Section of the Am. Bar Ass'n, Report on Contingent Fees in Class Action Litigation, 25 Rev. Litig. 459, 468 (2006) ("the lodestar method encourages lawyers to ensure that the number of hours in the case is high": "They might do duplicative or otherwise unnecessary work. They might send two lawyers rather than one to a deposition, or three rather than two to a discovery hearing. Work that could be done by an associate or a paralegal might be done by a partner and billed at the partner's higher rate.").

> There are strong policy reasons behind the judicial and legislative preference for the percentage of recovery method of determining attorney fees in these cases. Under the percentage method, the more the attorney succeeds in recovering money for the client, and the fewer legal hours expended to reach that result, the higher dollar amount of fees the lawyer earns. Thus, one of the primary advantages of the percentage of recovery method is that it is thought to equate the interests of class counsel with those of the class members and encourage class counsel to prosecute the case in an efficient manner.

In re Xcel Energy, 364 F. Supp. 2d at 991 (footnotes, alterations, quotations, and citations omitted).

In recommending that courts employ a percentage-of-the-fund method, a Third Circuit Task Force added that lodestar methods "increase[] the workload of an already overtaxed judicial system;" are "insufficiently objective and produce results that are far from homogenous;" "create[] a sense of mathematical precision that is unwarranted in terms of the realities of the practice of law;" are "subject to manipulation;" "encourage[] lawyers to expend excessive hours, and, in the case of attorneys presenting fee petitions, engage in duplicative and unjustified work, inflate their 'normal' billing rate, and include fictitious hours or hours already billed on other matters;" "create[] a disincentive for the early settlement of cases;" "do[] not provide the district court with enough flexibility to reward or deter lawyers;" "work[] to the particular disadvantage of the public interest bar;" and "despite the apparent simplicity . . . considerable confusion and lack of predictability remain in its administration." Court Awarded Attorney Fees, 108 F.R.D. 237, 248 (1986); accord, e.g., Myriam Gilles & Gary B. Friedman, Exploding the Class Action Agency Costs Myth: The Social Utility of Entrepreneurial Lawyers, 155 U. Pa. L. Rev. 103, 139-46 (2006) ("[T]he major villain here is the lodestar cross-check, which undermines deterrence by driving attorneys to settle cases at settlement-incentive breakpoints that fall short of true settlement values.").

Although modification of fee award based on a lodestar cross-check may serve some utility in cases at the fringes (such as cases far outside the main), routine recourse to it threatens to swallow the benefits that the percentage-of-the-fund method provides, for "if a court sometimes employs a lodestar cross-check, then self-interested entrepreneurial lawyers will conduct their affairs accordingly." Gilles & Friedman at 145-146; see also McCandless, et al. at 471 ("The lodestar cross-check re-introduces the problems of the lodestar method. If the attorneys in the previous example know that their fee, when calculated as a percentage, will be 'crosschecked' by the lodestar, they have every financial incentive to put as many hours into the file as possible. They may do unnecessary work or delay settlement to make sure that the multiplier needed to get to their percentage fee does not appear to be out of line."). In sum, in order to maximize recoveries, promote optimal deterrence, incentivize efficient, speedy, and inexpensive dispute resolution, and conserve judicial resources, this Court should exercise its discretion here and award attorneys' fees at 21 percent of the fund recovered for the class.

B. Plaintiffs' Expenses Are Reasonable and Were Necessarily Incurred

In addition to the $31,500,000 in fees sought, plaintiffs seek reimbursement of $490,040.13 in expenses necessarily incurred in connection with the prosecution of this action.[21] All expenses that are typically billed by attorneys to paying clients in the marketplace are compensable. Harris v. Marhoefer, 24 F.3d 16, 19 (9th Cir. 1994). With this motion, plaintiffs provide an accounting of the expenses incurred by class counsel.[22] The primary expense in this case is for experts, which accounts for nearly $1.6 million, or about 77 percent, of the total. Several additional categories account for the remainder, including filing fees, travel expenses, costs of court and deposition transcripts, and computer research expenses. All of these costs were necessarily and reasonably incurred to achieve the megafund recovery, and they reflect market rates for the various categories of expenses incurred. Further, class counsel advanced these necessary expenses, interest-free, without assurance that they would even be recouped. Plaintiffs' request for expenses is reasonable.

C. Plaintiffs Request Service Awards in the Amount of $90,000

Finally, plaintiffs also request that the Court approve service awards in the amount of $90,000 for each of the three named plaintiffs, to be deducted from the settlement fund.[23] "Service awards for class representatives are routinely provided to encourage individuals to undertake the [21] This Court previously reimbursed counsel $1,561,700.47 in expenses necessarily incurred, in connection with the Blue Sky and Sony settlements. See Order at 13-14.

[22] See Friedman Decl., ¶ 15; Sklaver Decl., ¶ 14; Small Decl., ¶ 33. As reflected in the Sklaver Declaration, there is a positive balance of $15,547.55 in the joint expense account. That amount was subtracted from the total expenses paid ($505,587.68) to calculate the net unreimbursed expenses. See Sklaver Decl., ¶ 15.

[23] This Court previously awarded each of the named plaintiffs $10,000, in connection with the Blue Sky and Sony settlements. See Order at 14-15.

responsibilities and risks of representing the class and recognize the time and effort spent in the case." Order at 14. In the Ninth Circuit, service awards "compensate class representatives for work done on behalf of the class, to make up for financial or reputational risk undertaken in bringing the action, and, sometimes, to recognize their willingness to act as a private attorney general." Rodriguez v. West Publ'g Corp., 563 F.3d 948, 958-59 (9th Cir. 2009). "Courts have discretion to approve service awards based on, inter alia, the amount of time and effort spent, the duration of the litigation, and the personal benefit (or lack thereof) as a result of the litigation." Order at 14.

Here, the three named plaintiffs, Robert Nitsch, David Wentworth, and Georgia Cano have spent a significant amount of time assisting the litigation of this case. Each plaintiff responded to written discovery and produced documents relating to their claims; they were each deposed by defense counsel for a full day regarding their claims; they reviewed the SAC and other substantive pleadings; and they reviewed and approved the settlements.[24] Maybe most importantly, despite the tight-knit and fluid nature of the animation and visual effects industry, each of the named plaintiffs was willing to put his or her name on this employment lawsuit for the benefit of all absent class members despite a very real fear of "workplace retaliation" (Cook v. Niedert, 142 F.3d 1004, 1016 (7th Cir. 1998)), or being viewed as "troublemakers" within the industry (High-Tech, 2015 WL 5158730, at *17).[25] In fact, defendants subpoenaed their employment records from current and former employers. Finally, the service awards of a total of $100,000 for the case are in line with awards in other megafund cases, and the ratio between the services awards and the average class member recovery is not unreasonable. High-Tech, 2015 WL 5158730, at *18.

III. CONCLUSION

For the foregoing reasons, plaintiffs respectfully submit that plaintiffs' requests for fees, expenses, and service awards are reasonable and should be granted.

[24] See Declaration of Robert Nitsch in Support of Plaintiffs' Motion for Attorneys' Fees, Expenses, and Service Awards ("Nitsch Decl."), ¶¶ 6-11; Declaration of David Wentworth in Support of Plaintiffs' Motion for Attorneys' Fees, Expenses, and Service Awards ("Wentworth Decl."), ¶¶ 6-9; Declaration of Georgia Cano in Support of Plaintiffs' Motion for Attorneys' Fees, Expenses, and Service Awards ("Cano Decl."), ¶¶ 6-11.

[25] See Nitsch Decl., ¶ 12; Wentworth Decl., ¶ 10; Cano Decl., ¶ 12.

DATED: April 10, 2017

SUSMAN GODFREY L.L.P.

By s/ Steven G. Sklaver
STEVEN G. SKLAVER

Marc M. Seltzer (54534)
Steven G. Sklaver (237612)
1901 Avenue of the Stars, Suite 950
Los Angeles, CA 90067-6029
Telephone: (310) 789-3100
Facsimile: (310) 789-3150
mseltzer@susmangodfrey.com
ssklaver@susmangodfrey.com

Matthew R. Berry (pro hac vice)
John E. Schiltz (pro hac vice)
SUSMAN GODFREY LLP
1201 Third Avenue, Suite 3800
Seattle, WA, 98101-3000
Telephone: (206) 516-3880
Facsimile: (206) 516-3883
mberry@susmangodfrey.com
jschiltz@susmangodfrey.com

Elisha Barron (pro hac vice)
SUSMAN GODFREY L.L.P.
1301 Avenue of the Americas, 32nd Floor
New York, NY 10019-6023
Telephone: (212) 336-8330
Facsimile: (212) 336-8340
ebarron@susmangodfrey.com

DATED: April 10, 2017

HAGENS BERMAN SOBOL SHAPIRO LLP

By s/ Jeff D. Friedman
JEFF D. FRIEDMAN

Shana E. Scarlett (217895)
715 Hearst Avenue, Suite 202
Berkeley, CA 94710
Telephone: (510) 725-3000
Facsimile: (510) 725-3001
jefff@hbsslaw.com
shanas@hbsslaw.com

Steve W. Berman (Pro Hac Vice)
Jerrod C. Patterson (Pro Hac Vice)
HAGENS BERMAN SOBOL SHAPIRO LLP
1918 Eighth Avenue, Suite 3300
Seattle, WA 98101
Telephone: (206) 623-7292
Facsimile: (206) 623-0594
steve@hbsslaw.com
jerrodp@hbsslaw.com

DATED: April 10, 2017

COHEN MILSTEIN SELLERS & TOLL PLLC

By s/ Daniel A. Small
DANIEL A. SMALL

Brent W. Johnson
Jeffrey B. Dubner
Daniel H. Silverman
1100 New York Ave. NW, Suite 500
Washington, DC 20005
Telephone: (202) 408-4600
Facsimile: (202) 408-4699
dsmall@cohenmilstein.com
bjohnson@cohenmilstein.com
dsilverman@cohenmilstein.com

Co-Lead Class Counsel

E-FILING ATTESTATION

I, Jeff D. Friedman, am the ECF User whose ID and password are being used to file this document. In compliance with Civil Local Rule 5-1(i)(3), I hereby attest that each of the signatories identified above has concurred in this filing.

s/ Jeff D. Friedman
JEFF D. FRIEDMAN

TAB 54A

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
EASTERN DISTRICT OF NEW YORK

PRECISION ASSOCIATES, INC.; ANYTHING GOES LLC d/b/a MAIL BOXES ETC., and JCK INDUSTRIES, INC., on behalf of themselves and all others similarly situated,

Plaintiffs,

vs.

PANALPINA WORLD TRANSPORT (HOLDING) LTD., et al.,

Defendants.

Case No.: 08-CV-00042 (JG) (VVP)

ORDER

UPON Plaintiffs' Motion For Interim Payment Of Attorneys' Fees And Reimbursement Of Expenses (ECF No. 835) in respect of the $112,356,911.58 in settlement proceeds recovered by Class Counsel for the Class herein;

UPON the absence of any objections by any Class member to Class Counsel's fee application;

UPON this Court's August 27, 2013 Memorandum and Order (ECF No. 866) directing Class Counsel to resubmit and limit their fee application;

UPON Class Counsel's Supplemental Fee Application And Expense Request (ECF No.874);

UPON this Court's order awarding fees and costs dated October 3, 2013 ("Order");

UPON Class Counsel's Memorandum Of Law In Support Of Their Motion For Reconsideration Of The Court's October 3, 2013 Order ("Motion for Reconsideration"), dated October 17, 2013 (ECF No. 898), which sought reconsideration of and only of the amount of attorneys' fees awarded by the Order;

UPON this Court's ruling dated October 18, 2013 which stated that such Motion For Reconsideration "appears to have merit", and directed that Class Counsel post specified papers on the class action settlement website affording Class members a further opportunity through November 8, 2013 to object;

UPON Class Counsel's posting of such papers on such website, and the resulting absence of any objections to Class Counsel's Motion For Reconsideration (see ECF No. 939, reporting the timely posting and the absence of objections); and

UPON all prior proceedings herein;

It is hereby ORDERED that Class Counsel's Motion For Reconsideration is granted and, upon reconsideration, Class Counsel are awarded attorney fees of fifteen percent of the $112,356,911.58 in settlement proceeds that were the subject of Class Counsel's fee application.

So ordered.

John Gleeson, U.S.D.J.

Dated: December 27, 2013
Brooklyn, New York

TAB 54B

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT

EASTERN DISTRICT OF NEW YORK

PRECISION ASSOCIATES, INC., et al., Plaintiffs, v. PANALPINA WORLD TRANSPORT (HOLDING) LTD., et al. Defendants.	CASE NO. 08-CV-00042 (JG)(VVP)

MEMORANDUM IN SUPPORT OF CO-LEAD COUNSEL'S PETITION FOR INTERIM PAYMENT OF ATTORNEYS' FEES` AND REIMBURSEMENT OF EXPENSES

TABLE OF CONTENTS

I. INTRODUCTION 1

II. FACTUAL BACKGROUND 3

A. Plaintiffs Have Litigated For Five And One-Half Years To Achieve The Settlements In This Case. 3

B. Plaintiffs' Case Preceded Government Complaints. 7

C. Plaintiffs' Co-Lead Counsel Have Recovered Very Substantial Settlements Compared To The Government Fines. 8

III. ARGUMENT 11

A. Courts In This Circuit Award A Percentage Of The Common Fund As Attorneys' Fees, And May Also Utilize A Lodestar Crosscheck. 11

B. Co-Lead Counsel Seeks A Reasonable Percentage Of The Common Fund. 12

C. Class Counsel's Request Is Consistent With The Goldberger Factors 15

1. The Time And Labor Expended By Counsel Supports The Requested Fee. 16

2. The Magnitude And Complexities Of The Litigation Support The Requested Fee. 17

3. The Risk Of Litigation Supports The Requested Fee. 18

4. The Quality Of Counsel's Representation Supports The Requested Fee Award. 20

5. The Requested Fee Is Supported By The Size And The Scope Of The Settlement. 20

6. Public Policy Considerations Support the Award of the Requested Fee. 21

D. Reported Statistical Data Support A Market Rate In Antitrust Class Actions Of 30% to 40%. 22

E. Co-Lead Counsel's Request For Attorneys' Fees Is Reasonable Under A Lodestar Crosscheck. 22

F. Class Counsels' Request For An Award Of Expenses Incurred Is Reasonable. 23

G. Co-Lead Counsel Will Make Subsequent Applications For Claims Settlement And Administration And Processing. 24

IV. CONCLUSION 25

TABLE OF AUTHORITIES

Page(s)

CASES

In re Air Cargo Shipping Serv. Antitrust Litig.,
06-MD-1775 (JG) (VVP), 2009 WL 3077396 (E.D.N.Y. Sept. 25, 2009)..... 14

In re Air Cargo Shipping Services Antitrust Litig.,
06-MD-1775 (JG) (VVP) (E.D.N.Y.)..... 1

In re Air Cargo Shipping Services Antitrust Litig.,
No. 06-MD-1775 (JG)(VVP), 2011 WL 2909162 (E.D.N.Y. July 15, 2011)..... 22

In re Air Cargo Shipping Servs. Antitrust Litig.,
No. 06-MD-1775 (JG) 2012 WL 3138596 (E.D.N.Y. Aug. 2, 2012)..... 14, 24

Alpine Pharmacy, Inc. v. Chas. Pfizer & Co., Inc.,
481 F.2d 1045 (2d Cir. 1973)..... 21

In re Arakis Energy Corp. Sec. Litig.,
No. 95CV3421, 2001 WL 1590512 (E.D.N.Y. Oct. 31, 2001) 23

Bell Atl. Corp. v. Twombly,
550 U.S. 544 (2007)..... 1, 17

Blue Shield of Va. v. McCready,
457 U.S. 465 (1982).....21

Boeing Co. v. Van Gemert,
444 U.S. 472 (1980)..... 11

In re Cabletron Systems, Inc. Securities Litigation,
239 F.R.D. 30 (D.N.H. 2006) 22

In re Cendant Corp. PRIDES Litig.,
243 F.3d. 722 (3d Cir. 2001)..... 23

In re Currency Conversion Fee Antitrust Litig.,
263 F.R.D. 110 (S.D.N.Y. 2009) 11, 17, 18

Farinella v. Paypal, Inc.,
611 F. Supp. 2d 250 (E.D.N.Y. 2009) 22

Goldberger v. Integrated Resources, Inc.,
209 F.3d 43 (2d Cir. 2000)..... passim

In re Initial Pub. Offering Sec. Litig.,
671 F. Supp. 2d 467 (S.D.N.Y. 2009)..... 13, 21

Masters v. Wilhelmina Model Agency, Inc.,
473 F.3d 423 (2d Cir. 2007)..... 12

McDaniel v. Cnty. of Schenectady,
595 F.3d 411 (2d Cir. 2010)..... 13

In re Merrill Lynch & Co., Inc. Research Reports Sec. Litig.,
246 F.R.D. 156 (S.D.N.Y. 2007) 20

Miltland Raleigh-Durham v. Myers,
840 F. Supp. 235 (S.D.N.Y. 1993)..... 23

Monserrate v. Tequipment, Inc.,
No. 11 CV 6090, 2012 WL 5830557 (E.D.N.Y. Nov. 16, 2012) 23

In re NASDAQ Mkt. Makers Antitrust Litig.,
187 F.R.D. 465 (S.D.N.Y. 1998) 18, 20, 23

In re Nortel Networks Corp. Secs. Litig.,
539 F.3d 129 (2d Cir. 2008)..... 16, 22

In re Priceline.com, Inc. Sec. Litig.,
No. 3:00-CV-1884 (AVC), 2007 WL 2115592 (D. Conn. July 20, 2007) 19, 21

In re Prudential Sec., Inc. Ltd. P'ships Litig.,
912 F. Supp. 97 (S.D.N.Y. 1996)..... 21

In re Synthroid Mktg. Litig.,
264 F.3d 712 (7th Cir. 2001) 14

Velez v. Novartis Pharm. Corp.,
04 CIV 09194 CM, 2010 WL 4877852 (S.D.N.Y. Nov. 30, 2010)..... 23

In re Visa Check/Mastermoney Antitrust Litig.,
297 F. Supp. 2d. 503, 521-25 (E.D.N.Y. 2003)..... 15

In re Vitamin C Antitrust Litigation,
2012 WL 5289514 (E.D.N.Y. Oct. 23, 2012)..... 23

Wal-Mart Stores, Inc. v. Visa U.S.A., Inc.,
396 F.3d 96 (2d Cir. 2005)..... 11

Wesely v. Spear, Leeds & Kellogg,
711 F. Supp. 713 (E.D.N.Y. 1989) 17

Zenith Radio Corp. v. Hazeltine Research, Inc.,
395 U.S. 100 (1969)..... 21

RULES

Fed. R. Civ. P. 23(h) 12

STATUTES

Antitrust Criminal Penalty Enhancement and Reform Act of 2004, P. .L. 108-237 4

Foreign Trade Antitrust Improvements Act, 15 U.S.C. § 6a 18

Sherman Antitrust Act, 15 U.S.C. § 1..... 3, 7

OTHER AUTHORITIES

Robert H. Lande & Joshua P. Davis, Benefits From Private Antitrust Enforcement: An Analysis of Forty Cases, 42 U.S.F.L. Rev. 879 (July 2008)..... 22

I. INTRODUCTION

After five and a half years of hard work in this litigation, Plaintiffs have secured settlements from ten of the twenty-eight Defendant groups[1] in this antitrust class action alleging complex international conspiracies. The resulting combined Settlement Fund provides a guaranteed fund of $112,356,911.58 in settlements for the benefit of the Class and additional future settlement payments from Settling Defendants based upon a percentage of most Settling Defendants' future recovery in In re Air Cargo Shipping Services Antitrust Litig., 06-MD-1775 (JG) (VVP) (E.D.N.Y.) ("Air Cargo").[2] Co-Lead Counsel separately will seek final approval of these settlements and implementation of a plan of distribution to provide the benefits of the settlements to Class Members.

Co-Lead Counsel and other Class Counsel (collectively "Class Counsel") zealously litigated these complex international claims on an entirely contingent basis for years before any government indictments or guilty pleas or any assistance from the Amnesty Applicant.

When Class Counsel filed this case, there were no government complaints and all the risks of dismissal pursuant to Bell Atl. Corp. v. Twombly, 550 U.S. 5 44 (2007), complex foreign discovery, summary judgment, class certification, trial and collecting on judgments against foreign defendants were fully present. Most of those risks continue today to be fully present even after the subsequent government complaints. While they are favorable to the merits of the liability portion of Plaintiffs' Claims, the government actions still leave substantial risks

---

[1] Plaintiffs have reached settlements with Deutsche Bahn AG, Schenker AG, Schenker, Inc., Bax Global Inc. and DB Schenker (collectively, "Schenker"); EGL, Inc. and EGL Eagle Global Logistics, LP, Inc. (collectively, "EGL"); Vantec Corporation and Vantec World Transport (USA), Inc. (collectively, "Vantec"); Expeditors; Nishi-Nippon; United Aircargo Consolidators, Inc.; Kuehne + Nagel; Morrison Express; UTi Worldwide, Inc.; and ABX Logistics Worldwide NV/SA (collectively, "Settling Defendants"). The Court has preliminarily approved each of those settlements. ECF Nos. 530, 587, 604, 643, 649, 673, 692, 715.

[2] In the Air Cargo Litigation, which is also before this Court, plaintiffs claim that various airlines conspired to fix prices for air cargo services. Many if not all of the Defendants in this case are class members in Air Cargo. Most of the Settling Defendants have agreed to turn over some or all of the proceeds they receive from the Air Cargo case.

(including class certification, proof of damages and collection against foreign Defendants) even when those risks are considered long after the required measuring point i.e., the start of the case. In these conditions of substantial risk and without any of the comforts of hindsight bias, Class Counsel invested significant time and incurred out-of-pocket expenses on behalf of the class. In doing so, they have faced constant opposition for five and a half years from Defendants who have been represented by highly skilled and experienced antitrust counsel who have made every argument in their clients' interests.

Notwithstanding the absence of any formal factual discovery (because of the Court's stay) and Defendants' significant and ongoing opposition, Class Counsel have obtained significant settlements that, unlike in most cases, far exceed the amounts of the fines the United States Department of Justice ("DOJ") obtained based on its information and plea agreements, all of which followed long after Plaintiffs filed this action.[3] The exceptional value provided by these settlements reflects the skill, expertise and hard work of Class Counsel in the face of the significant litigation risks associated with the case.[4]

Based on the greater risks, the greater percentage recovery, the greater recovery compared to criminal fines (see footnote 3), and the much longer delays in any prospective payment of fees and reimbursement of litigation expenses in this case as compared to Air Cargo, Co-Lead Counsel now respectfully request that this Court:

---

[3] For example, in Air Cargo, the settlements in the civil action represented 26.94% of the corresponding DOJ fines. In contrast, in this civil case the settlements of the Defendants who have paid DOJ fines constitute more than 200% of the amount of the government fines. In Air Cargo, unlike in this case, the plaintiffs were aided from the outset by cooperation from the amnesty applicant. This significantly reduced the risks faced by counsel in Air Cargo. By contrast, in this case Plaintiffs proceeded for approximately 26 months without any such cooperation from the Amnesty Applicant which necessarily increased the litigation risks.

[4] As described in the Declaration of W. Joseph Bruckner in Support of Co-Lead Counsel's Petition for Interim Payment of Attorneys' Fees and Reimbursement of Expenses, in addition to the four firms this Court appointed as Co-Lead Counsel, four other firms have contributed their time and resources to the successful prosecution of this case, and their time and expenses are included in this motion. In this memorandum, the term "Class Counsel" refers not only to Co-Lead Counsel but to those other firms as well.

(1) Award 33% of the Settlement Fund as interim attorneys' fees in the amount of $32,596,320.32 from settlement proceeds ($98,776,728.25) currently paid into the Settlement Fund;[5]

(2) Award 33% of the Settlement Fund as interim attorneys' fees in the amount of $4,459,980.25 from the settlement proceeds ($13,515,091.67) scheduled to be paid by EGL, Schenker and United Aircargo upon Final Approval of their respective Settlements;[6]

(3) Award 33% of the Settlement Fund as interim attorneys' fees in the amount of $21,480.25 from the settlement proceeds ($65,091.66) scheduled to be paid by United Aircargo one year after the Fairness Hearing or Final Approval of the United Aircargo settlement; and

(4) Reimburse Class Counsel for reasonable interim litigation expenses totaling $811,095.84.

II. FACTUAL BACKGROUND

A. Plaintiffs Have Litigated For Five And One-Half Years To Achieve The Settlements In This Case.

On January 3, 2008, after many months of counsels' investigation, research and preparation, Plaintiffs filed their initial complaint alleging that Defendants and others conspired to fix prices and surcharges relating to U.S. Freight Forwarding Services, in violation of Section 1 of the Sherman Antitrust Act, 15 U.S.C. § 1. ECF No. 1. Bruckner Decl. ¶¶ 4 and 5.[7] On [5] This amount includes all Settlement Fund payments and interest accrued through April 30, 2013.

[6] United Aircargo will make a payment of $65,091.67 ten Japanese business days after the Fairness Hearing, or if no Fairness Hearing is held, after the Final Approval of the Settlements.

[7] References to the Bruckner Decl. are to the Declaration of W. Joseph Bruckner in Support of Co-Lead Counsel's Petition for Interim Payment of Attorneys' Fees and Reimbursement of Expenses, dated June 12, 2013 and filed herewith.

June 3, 2009, the Court appointed the undersigned as Interim Co-Lead Counsel, and ordered them to file an amended complaint within 42 days. ECF No. 115. The Court also stayed discovery pending resolution of any motions filed by Defendants in response to the Amended Complaint. ECF No. 115. Although Co-Lead Counsel's motion to partially lift the stay of discovery is sub judice, the stay remains in place.

Co-Lead Counsel also sought to learn whether the DOJ had granted conditional amnesty under its Corporate Leniency Program to one of the Defendants. To that end, Co-Lead Counsel wrote to all Defendants shortly after their appointment as Co-Lead Counsel and exhorted any such Amnesty Applicant to come forward immediately and begin cooperating with Plaintiffs prior to Plaintiffs' July 2009 deadline to file the FACAC. If the Amnesty Applicant did not do so, Co-Lead Counsel stated, it would prejudice – not benefit – the Class, and as a result Plaintiffs would ultimately oppose any petition to the Court by the Amnesty Applicant for the damages limitations available upon satisfactory cooperation under the Antitrust Criminal Penalty Enhancement and Reform Act of 2004, P.L. 108-237 ("ACPERA"). But the Amnesty Applicant refused to come forward (and did not do so until after the FACAC was filed).

Faced with the refusal of the Amnesty Applicant to cooperate with the Plaintiffs at that time, Co-Lead Counsel sought an early settlement and cooperation from another Defendant, which resulted in the initial "ice-breaker" settlement with the Schenker Defendants. Meanwhile, the Amnesty Applicant joined other Defendants in moving to dismiss Plaintiffs' FACAC (and continues to bring motions to dismiss today), all the while possessing information that it should have to help bolster Plaintiffs' allegations.

Although the Schenker Settlement is a good result for the Class in and of itself, the fact that the Amnesty Applicant refused to come forward and cooperate at that material stage in the litigation changed the tenor of settlement talks with Schenker, forced Co-Lead Counsel to enter into an "ice-breaker" settlement and then to expend additional time and resources investigating and compiling facts that they would not have been required to do, had the Amnesty Applicant come forward in a timely fashion. Bruckner Decl. ¶ 6.

On July 21, 2009, Plaintiffs filed their First Amended Class Action Complaint ("FACAC") using information obtained from Settling Defendant Schenker (and its counsel) to add new claims, new Defendants, and more detailed allegations. ECF No. 117. The FACAC alleged dozens of dates, times, places of, and participants in conspiratorial meetings, phone calls, and e-mails, and described the unlawful agreements the conspirators reached at those meetings.[8] In response, most Defendants moved to dismiss Plaintiffs' Complaint. ECF Nos. 120, 220, 233-35, 239, 240, 242, 247, 297, 383, 386, 387, 390, 391, 392, 396, 397. Plaintiffs' Co-Lead Counsel filed seventeen briefs in opposition to those motions (ECF Nos. 322, 323, 324, 325, 326, 327, 328, 329, 330, 405, 406, 407, 408, 409, 410, 413, 414), and on September 15, 2010, Magistrate Judge Pohorelsky heard argument for a full afternoon. On January 4, 2011, Magistrate Judge Pohorelsky issued a Report and Recommendation (ECF No. 468) granting in part and denying in part Defendants' motions to dismiss Plaintiffs' Complaint, and recommended that Plaintiffs be allowed to replead any dismissed claims. Both sides objected to aspects of the Report and Recommendation (ECF Nos. 471, 472, 473, 474, 476, 477, 478, 479, 480, 481, 482, 483), and Co-Lead Counsel filed twelve separate responses to Defendants' objections (ECF Nos. 488, 489, 490, 492, 493, 494, 495, 496, 497, 498, 499, 500). On August 13, 2012, this Court adopted Magistrate Judge Pohorelsky's Report and Recommendation in its entirety. As a result, the joint motion to dismiss the Complaint was granted in part and denied in part, and Plaintiffs were granted leave to replead. ECF No. 628.

[8] On October 7, 2010, Plaintiffs filed the Second Amended Class Action Complaint ("SACAC") (ECF No. 460), which made only ministerial changes to the First Amended Class Action Complaint necessary to allow Co-Lead Counsel to serve certain foreign Defendants, in conformity with requirements of certain foreign government authorities.

But Co-Lead Counsel did not stop their work while the motions to dismiss were pending. Instead, Co-Lead Counsel continued investigating and further developed their case. As part of their investigation, Co-Lead Counsel obtained over 1.3 million documents from the Settling Defendants and the Amnesty Applicant (who finally provided documents in March 2010), long after the FACAC was drafted and filed. Of the over 1.3 million total documents produced thus far a significant percentage have been reviewed and further review is ongoing.[9]

In addition to reviewing the documents, Co-Lead Counsel also conducted many extensive fact interviews to bolster the case. To date, they have interviewed 32 current and former employees of the Settling Defendants and the Amnesty Applicant here and abroad, and have obtained evidence proffers from counsel for many of the Settling Defendants. Co-Lead Counsel thoroughly investigated and researched the freight forwarding industry, including examining company practices, the Defendants' corporate structures, their roles in the industry, and their market shares. These investigations were further informed by consultations with an economist and industry experts regarding industry practices and surcharges, and by careful review and analysis of relevant documents in the possession of Class Counsel and Settling Defendants.

With this ongoing investigation, limited to their own efforts and no formal discovery, Co-Lead Counsel were able to initiate settlement discussion with multiple Defendants, seeking the best deals, rejecting others, and seeking to navigate the best course in this litigation for the Class.

Also based on their investigation, Plaintiffs filed their Motion to Add Proposed Plaintiffs [9] Given the large number of documents produced in this case, Co-Lead Counsel have continually worked to ensure that the document review is efficiently and effectively run by using technology to reduce duplicative work. Further, document review has been capped at $400 per hour. Bruckner Decl. ¶ 16.

to Third Amended Class Action Complaint ("TACAC") (ECF No. 676) and TACAC under seal (ECF No. 677) on November 15, 2012.[10] The TACAC alleges eleven separate violations of Section 1 of the Sherman Act against named groups of Defendants and adds significant details regarding the dates, times, places, and participants of conspiratorial meetings, phone calls, and e-mails, and the unlawful agreements reached at those meetings. Defendants served fourteen separate motions to dismiss on February 27, 2013. These motions have been briefed, are currently pending before this Court, and are scheduled for argument before Magistrate Judge Pohorelsky on June 13, 2013.[11]

Co-Lead Counsel also have sought to lift the continuing stay of discovery to obtain production of documents Defendants have produced to government entities. Defendants opposed this request, and the motion is pending before the Court.[12] Before completion of the interviews of Settling Defendants' witnesses (another benefit to the Class produced by these settlements), Co-Lead Counsel are waiting to see if they may obtain the documents produced to the government by non-settling Defendants in order to assist in such interviews.

All of Class Counsel's work to date has been beneficial to Co-Lead Counsel's opposition to non-settling Defendants' subsequent motions to dismiss each successive iteration of Plaintiffs' Complaint, as well as reaching settlements with other Defendants, developing the TACAC, and otherwise assuring the continued successful litigation of the case for the benefit of the Class.

B. Plaintiffs' Case Preceded Government Complaints.

---

[10] Plaintiffs filed a Corrected TACAC on March 27, 2013. ECF No. 746. The Corrected TACAC corrected references to certain Defendant entities and added certain Hellman entities to the complaint. ECF No. 717. A Corrected Redacted TACAC was publicly filed on May 9, 2013. ECF No. 772.

[11] These motions were subsequently filed with the Court on May 24, 28, and 29, 2013. See ECF Nos. 779, 781, 782, 783, 786, 787, 789, 792, 793, 799, 804, 806, 809, 810, 816, 817, 818, 819, 821, 822, 823, 824, 825, 826, 827, 828.

[12] ECF Nos. 733, 739, 740, 741, 742, 769.

Co-Lead Counsel developed the case long before filing of any government complaints. Plaintiffs' first complaint was filed in January 2008, and Co-Lead Counsel spent many months prior to that date investigating, researching and preparing the case. Bruckner Decl. ¶ 4.

In 2009 the Japan Fair Trade Commission ("JFTC") imposed $94.7 million in fines on ten freight forwarding companies for their anticompetitive conduct. Since September 2010, fifteen Defendant groups have agreed to plead guilty to the DOJ's charges against them under 15 U.S.C. § 1 and to pay a total of $101 million in criminal fines for some of the same conduct underlying this civil case: (1) Schenker AG; (2) BAX Global, Inc. (a Schenker affiliate); (3) Kuehne + Nagel International AG; (4) EGL, Inc.; (5) Geo-Logistics (acquired by Agility Logistics); (6) Nippon Express; (7) Kintetsu World Express, Inc.; (8) Nishi-Nippon Railroad Co., Ltd.; (9) Hankyu-Hanshin Express; (10) Vantec Corporation; (11) Nissin Corporation; (12) Yamato; (13) MOL Logistics (Japan) Co. Ltd.; (14) Yamato Global Logistics; and (15) Panalpina Worldwide Transport (Holding) Ltd.

In March 2012, the European Commission ("EC") also found that fourteen groups of companies engaged in anticompetitive conduct and issued substantial fines totaling €169 million for their participation in four different price-fixing cartels.[13]

C. Plaintiffs' Co-Lead Counsel Have Recovered Very Substantial Settlements Compared To The Government Fines.[14]

To date, Co-Lead Counsel have obtained a minimum of $112,356,911.58 in settlements from ten different Defendant groups. See Bruckner Decl. Exhibit O. Co-Lead Counsel settled with Schenker in July 2009. ECF No. 527 at 2. Using information from Schenker and through [13] See March 28, 2012 European Commission Press Release, attached to the Bruckner Decl. as Exhibit N.

[14] Following in this Subsection II.C is simply a summary of the settlements achieved to date. Those settlements have been described in detail in each motion for preliminary approval filed so far with the Court, see ECF Nos. 526, 527, 574, 576, 588, 590, 637-640, 644-47, 667-70, 686-89, 711-14, and will be analyzed in more detail in Plaintiffs' motionsfor final approval of each settlement.

the continuing investigation of Co-Lead Counsel, Co-Lead Counsel settled with several more Defendants, starting with Vantec in April 2011 and ending most recently with ABX in January 2013. See ECF Nos. 516, 526, 574, 588, 637-640, 644-47, 667-70, 686-89, 711-14. Co-Lead Counsel used the information obtained in each settlement to inform their negotiations with other Defendants, including those with whom Co-Lead Counsel decided to enter subsequent settlements. Bruckner Decl. ¶¶ 7-8. Each settlement has been preliminarily approved by the Court. ECF Nos. 530, 587, 604, 643, 649, 673, 692, 715.

The Schenker and ABX Settlements provide an immediate cash payment into the Settlement Fund and cooperation in the continuing lawsuit. The Expeditor Settlement provides for a payment into the Settlement Fund of a specified percentage of all of its cash benefits from Air Cargo, $10,872,222.08 of which has already been paid. The remaining settlements provide an immediate cash payment into the Settlement Fund followed by payment of all or in some instances a portion of the Settling Defendants' recovery from Air Cargo and their cooperation in the continuing lawsuit.[15] See Bruckner Decl. Exhibit O.

These settlements were obtained after extensive arm's length negotiations with Defendants, including multiple mediation sessions. As part of Co-Lead Counsel's assessment of the strength of the settlements, Co-Lead Counsel researched and verified Defendants' sales data, consulted with experts to determine the extent of financial harm, and otherwise reviewed evidence and other sources to ensure the best possible settlement for the Class. Notably, in [15] In addition to the immediate cash payments received as part of the settlement agreements with the following Settling Defendants, each has an Air Cargo component. EGL has agreed to pay up to $10 million in proceeds from any cash benefits it receives from Air Cargo. Nishi-Nippon has agreed to pay up to $500,000 in cash benefits it receives from Air Cargo. Vantec has agreed to pay all of the cash benefits it receives from Air Cargo to the Class with a guaranteed minimum of $300,000 (which has been surpassed). United Aircargo Consolidators has agreed to pay 75% of all cash benefits it receives from Air Cargo subject to an adjustment specified in the Settlement Agreement. Kuehne + Nagel has agreed to pay 99.7% of cash benefits it receives from Air Cargo. Morrison Express has agreed to pay 72.5% of cash benefits it receives from Air Cargo after October 5, 2012 and UTi Worldwide, Inc. has agreed to pay 80.5% cash benefits it receives from Air Cargo after December 5, 2012.

virtually every applicable instance (except Schenker), the settlements negotiated by Co-Lead Counsel are significantly larger (in some instances triple or quadruple) the fines paid to the DOJ by those Defendants who were criminally charged.[16]

Once the settlements were preliminarily approved by the Court, Co-Lead Counsel established escrow accounts for the settlement funds; obtained customer data from Settling Defendants, and successfully moved the Court to obtain customer data from non-settling Defendants. Based on the foregoing, Counsel proposed a program to provide class notice directly to class members where possible (ECF Nos. 536, 546, 561); coordinated with the Claims Administrator and experts to design a Class Notice Program that ensured that Class Members received appropriate information regarding their rights under the Settlements (ECF No. 596, 666); and drafted settlement notices and a claim form for the Court's approval (ECF Nos. 654, 656).

In addition to providing notice to the Class, Co-Lead Counsel researched and responded to motions filed by intervening Class Members who challenged the opt out provisions of the Schenker Settlement. ECF Nos. 566, 580, 605, 618.

The Court overruled the intervenors' objections to preliminary approval and also, with limited modifications, approved the notice plan. Pursuant to such approval, notice has been sent [16] The Settling Defendants who paid DOJ fines have agreed to make, in aggregate, fixed cash payments totaling $76,732,896 [Nishi Nippon ($20,082,896); Vantec ($9,900,000); EGL ($10,000,000); KN ($28,000,000); Schenker ($8,750,000)] and all but Schenker have agreed to make further cash payments based upon proceeds from Air Cargo. Air Cargo proceeds received from these Settling Defendants to date already exceed $16,000,000 [Nishi Nippon ($500,000); Vantec ($714,263.21); EGL ($8,574,850.25); KN ($6,244,829.80)]. The $92,766,839.26 in payments from Settling Defendants who also paid fines to the DOJ is more than twice the amount that such Settling Defendants paid to the DOJ in aggregate: $45,645,367. [Nishi Nippon ($4,673,114) + Vantec ($3,339,648) + EGL ($4,486,120) + KN ($9,865,044) + Schenker ($3,535,514) + Bax ($19,745,927)]. In contrast, according to the DOJ, the fines paid in the Air Cargo case have reached $1.8 billion. U.S. Department of Justice, Division Update Spring 2011, http://www.justice.gov/atr/public/division-update/2011/criminal-program.html (last visited June 11, 2013). In the civil Air Cargo litigation, the total settlements to date are significantly less: $485 million. In re Air Cargo Shipping Services Antitrust Litigation, http://aircargosettlement3.com/main (last visited June 11, 2013).

---

and Co-Lead Counsel has continued to work with the Claims Administrator to address Class Member questions about the litigation, the claims filing process and the settlements. Bruckner Decl. ¶ 12.

III. ARGUMENT

A. Courts In This Circuit Award A Percentage Of The Common Fund As Attorneys' Fees, And May Also Utilize A Lodestar Crosscheck.

The equitable fund doctrine provides that plaintiffs' attorneys in a class action lawsuit may petition the court for compensation from any benefits to the class that resulted from counsel's efforts. Boeing Co. v. Van Gemert, 444 U.S. 472, 478 (1980). The Second Circuit applies both the "percentage of the fund" and lodestar approach when calculating fees in a common fund case. See, e.g., McDaniel v. Cnty. of Schenectady, 595 F.3d 411, 419 (2d Cir. 2010) (holding that a district court may in its discretion chose either approach). But the "trend in this Circuit is toward the percentage method, which directly aligns the interests of the class and its counsel and provides a powerful incentive for the efficient prosecution and early resolution of litigation." Wal-Mart Stores, Inc. v. Visa U.S.A., Inc., 396 F.3d 96, 121 (2d Cir. 2005) (citation omitted); accord In re Currency Conversion Fee Antitrust Litig., 263 F.R.D. 110, 128 (S.D.N.Y. 2009).

The use of the percentage method dispenses with the "cumbersome, enervating, and often surrealistic process of lodestar computation." Goldberger v. Integrated Resources, Inc., 209 F.3d 43, 50 (2d Cir. 2000) (quotation marks and citations omitted). However, the Court of Appeals recommends considering the hours submitted by counsel as a "cross-check" on the reasonableness of the requested percentage. Id. Accordingly, Class Counsel's lodestar in this case and the cross-check it provides are discussed in Section III.E below.

Regardless of which method of calculation a court uses, the key consideration in awarding fees is what is reasonable under the circumstances. Id. at 47; see also Fed. R. Civ. P. 23(h) ("In a certified class action, the court may award reasonable attorney's fees . . . ."). In addition, the fee award should be based on the entire settlement fund, not a portion of the fund. See Masters v. Wilhelmina Model Agency, Inc., 473 F.3d 423, 437 (2d Cir. 2007) ("The entire Fund, and not some portion thereof, is created through the efforts of counsel at the instigation of the entire class. An allocation of fees by percentage should therefore be awarded on the basis of the total funds made available, whether claimed or not.").

B. Co-Lead Counsel Seeks A Reasonable Percentage Of The Common Fund.

Co-Lead Counsel's request for payment of 33% of the Settlement Fund is reasonable. Co-Lead Counsel has secured a guaranteed fund of $112,356,911.58 for the benefit of the Class. Of this amount, $98,776,728.25 has already been paid by Settling Defendants. Another $13,580,183.33 in amounts certain will be paid pursuant to the terms of the various settlement agreements. Beyond these payments, all Settling Defendants, with the exception of Schenker and ABX,[17] will make additional future payments of all or a substantial portion of the cash benefits they receive from Air Cargo. Co-Lead Counsel requests an initial disbursement of $32,596,320.32 — which represents 33% of the cash settlement already obtained. Co-Lead Counsel also requests a future award of $4,481,460.50 — which represents 33% of remaining cash payments that will be made by Settling Defendants EGL, Schenker and United Aircargo upon final approval of their respective settlements.[18] Because settlement payments in this case from future Air Cargo proceeds necessarily are indeterminate at this time, they are not included [17] Nishi-Nippon Railroad Co., Ltd., has paid its Air Cargo proceeds up to the $500,000 cap in its settlement agreement.

[18] Pursuant to the terms of its settlement agreement, United Aircargo will make two separate payments of $65,091.76 within 10 Japanese business days after the Court's Fairness Hearing, or if no such hearing, after Final Approval of the settlement, and an additional payment of $65,091.66 within one year after the Fairness Hearing, or if no such hearing, Final Approval of the settlement.

in the calculation of the guaranteed fund referred to above of $112,356,911.58, and Co-Lead Counsel are not currently seeking a fee award from such future Air Cargo proceeds.[19]

"Generally, the factor given the greatest emphasis [when awarding a percentage of a fund] is the size of the fund created, because 'a common fund is itself the measure of success. . . [and] represents the benchmark from which a reasonable fee will be awarded.'" Manual for Complex Litigation (Fourth) § 14.121 (2004) (quoting Alba Conte & Herbert B. Newberg, 4 Newberg on Class Actions § 14.6, at 547, 550 (4th ed. 2002)). Courts in this Circuit have repeatedly held that "a fee award should be assessed based on scrutiny of the unique circumstances of each case . . . [with] a jealous regard to the rights of those who are interested in the fund." Goldberger, 209 F.3d at 53; see McDaniel, 595 F.3d at 426. Here, after five and a half years of diligent work in developing this case without the benefit of formal discovery, Co-Lead Counsel have obtained very substantial relief for the Class. Moreover, in the Class's ongoing claims the non-settling Defendants remain jointly and severally liable. Unlike many cases, the amounts of the settlements paid by Defendants who have agreed to plead guilty to criminal charges is much more than the DOJ fines. See footnote 16. But the risks involved and the delays in payment have been greater than, for example, in Air Cargo. For these reasons, an award of 33% of the common fund is reasonable. See, e.g., In re Initial Pub. Offering Sec. Litig., 671 F. Supp. 2d 467, 516 (S.D.N.Y. 2009) (awarding lead counsel 33.3% of $586 million settlement) ("IPO").

While courts, including this Court, have found in other circumstances that fee percentages in "megafund" cases should be smaller than percentages awarded in other cases, the [19] After proceeds are paid into the Settlement Fund, Class Counsel will seek an award of 33% of those proceeds, likely in conjunction with future settlements with or judgments against the remaining Defendants.

megafund analysis is not appropriate here.

First, the settlements here are one-fourth of the $485 million in settlements obtained in Air Cargo, but this Court has not applied a megafund reduction to fee requests involving multiple settlements with defendants in that case. In re Air Cargo Shipping Servs. Antitrust Litig., No. 06-MD-1775 (JG) 2012 WL 3138596, at *5 (E.D.N.Y. Aug. 2, 2012) (granting class counsel's requested interim fee of 25% of the gross amount of the settlement fund when such a request represented a modest 1.11 multiplier).[20] Here, the five and a half year labor involved to bring in the first round of settlements is much greater than the settlements in Air Cargo, and, as noted, the settlements here are much larger relative to the government fines than those in Air Cargo. These factors militate strongly against a megafund discount and strongly in favor of a fee of 33% of the common fund, which would constitute a reasonable fee for Class Counsel.

Second, as this Court well knows, the Second Circuit has never required the application of the megafund doctrine. The Seventh Circuit has explicitly rejected the megafund doctrine as being contrary to market economics. See In re Synthroid Mktg. Litig., 264 F.3d 712, 718 (7th Cir. 2001) ("We have held repeatedly that, when deciding on appropriate fee levels in common-fund cases, courts must do their best to award counsel the market price for legal services, in light of the risk of nonpayment and the normal rate of compensation in the market at the time. . . . We have never suggested that a 'megafund rule' trumps these market rates, or that as a matter of law no recovery can exceed 10% of a 'megafund' even if counsel considering the representation in a hypothetical arms' length bargain at the outset of the case would decline the representation if offered only that prospective return. . . . Markets would not tolerate that effect. . . .").

[20] While this Court did rely on the megafund theory in awarding attorneys' fees following the Lufthansa Settlement in In re Air Cargo Shipping Serv. Antitrust Litig., 06-MD-1775 (JG) (VVP), 2009 WL 3077396, at *13-14 (E.D.N.Y. Sept. 25, 2009), those circumstances are plainly distinguishable. The fee request in this case is based upon many settlements and five years of hard work by Class Counsel, during which time they have received no payment for their considerable investment of time, and no reimbursement of their out-of-pocket expenditures. By contrast, the Lufthansa fee request was based on a single large settlement obtained in a brief period of time at a very early point in the case, before Lead Counsel had been appointed, before a consolidated complaint was filed, before any documents or other formal discovery had been produced, and before any other settlements had been reached (in a case with several defendants). Co-Lead Counsel here also recognize that while this Court has not yet applied the megafund doctrine to subsequent fee requests in Air Cargo, it indicated that it may do so should the circumstances suggest such an analysis is proper. As discussed above, given the modest multiplier in this case, Co-Lead Counsel submit that the megafund doctrine should not apply here.

Third, the nature of this litigation — a case with relatively small government fines for many Defendants and no fines for others, and sixty-eight individual defendants, twenty-eight Defendant families, and eleven conspiracies — make it the opposite of and distinguishable from a typical monolithic two-defendant mega conspiracy. Unlike In re Visa Check/Mastermoney Antitrust Litig., a megafund case, where class counsel obtained a $3,383,400,000 settlement (a large fund by any measure) against two defendants for domestic conduct, in this case there are sixty-eight defendants which engaged in widespread international conduct and ten settlements so far. The large number of Settling Defendants magnifies the total amount of the settlements, even though each of the ten individual settlements is well below megafund amounts. Moreover, counsel's requested fee award in Visa Check/Mastermoney would have resulted in a 9.68 multiplier of counsel's lodestar (again large by any measure, and especially compared to the 1.33 multiplier requested here). 297 F. Supp. 2d. 503, 521-25 (E.D.N.Y. 2003) (Gleeson, J.). Because of the large multiplier, this Court reduced the attorneys' fee request to an award of 6.511% of the common fund (a 3.5 lodestar multiplier). Id. In this case, as discussed in more detail in Subsection III.E below, the lodestar crosscheck shows that Co-Lead Counsel's request for 33% of the common fund — which results in a modest lodestar multiplier of 1.33 — is very reasonable given the risks, complexities and work involved to prosecute these international conspiracies.

C. Class Counsel's Request Is Consistent With The Goldberger Factors.

In any common fund case, reasonableness of a fee request is determined by applying the six factors outlined in Goldberger, 209 F.3d at 50. See In re Nortel Networks Corp. Secs. Litig., 539 F.3d 129, 134 (2d Cir. 2008). The Goldberger factors include:

(1) the time and labor expended by counsel;

(2) the magnitude and complexities of the litigation;

(3) the risk of the litigation;

(4) the quality of representation;

(5) the requested fee in relation to the settlement; and

(6) public policy considerations.

Goldberger, 209 F.3d at 50 (citation omitted).

1. The Time And Labor Expended By Counsel Supports The Requested Fee.

The extensive efforts undertaken by Co-Lead Counsel in prosecuting this case are detailed in the Bruckner Declaration. The total lodestar of $27,898,925.45 from inception of the case through March 31, 2013, reflects the dedication Class Counsel has shown in litigating this case. As discussed above, the fee request reflects over five and a half years of careful case development — all of which has been done without formal discovery and much of which was conducted without the benefit of a completed government investigation. Class Counsel reviewed hundreds of thousands of documents, interviewed over thirty witnesses, and have opposed numerous and serial motions to dismiss. Co-Lead Counsel also negotiated many settlements, including mediations, held evidence proffers, prepared notice for the Class and counseled Class Members, including intervenors, regarding the settlements and claims administration.

Co-Lead Counsel requested that all Class Counsel provide all of their time[21] from inception of the case through March 31, 2013, including complete and accurate categorizations of work performed, the name and title of the person who performed the work, and that individual's hourly rate. Bruckner Decl. ¶ 15. In an effort to eliminate unnecessary time, Class Counsel were instructed that time for work not performed at the request or direction of Co-Lead Counsel, duplicative work, read and review time, time spent in the preparation of time and expense reports, routine clerical tasks, and time associated with work related to any client not retained should not be included in any submitted time. Bruckner Decl. ¶ 16.

[21] And expenses, which are addressed in Subsection F below.

2. The Magnitude And Complexities Of The Litigation Support The Requested Fee.

Antitrust class actions "are notoriously complex, protracted, and bitterly fought." Wesely v. Spear, Leeds & Kellogg, 711 F. Supp. 713, 719 (E.D.N.Y. 1989); see In re Currency Conversion Fee Antitrust Litig., 263 F.R.D. at 129 ("antitrust cases are typically complex"). Indeed, this litigation is tremendously complicated. It involves international conspiratorial conduct across the globe with sixty-eight different Defendants, twenty-eight Defendant families, and eleven conspiracies. Even without the benefit of formal discovery, Plaintiffs nonetheless successfully navigated a number of complex issues that justify the current fee request. First, Co-Lead Counsel effectuated service on multiple foreign defendants involved in this suit. Second, even though there was an Amnesty Applicant who could have — and under ACPERA should have — provided substantial cooperation to the Class, the Amnesty Applicant did not identify itself and begin cooperating until the litigation had progressed substantially. As a result, Co-Lead Counsel spent significant time developing the litigation and negotiating settlements with other Defendants. Further, because of the Amnesty Applicant's refusal to identify itself until later in the case, Co-Lead Counsel spent time researching ACPERA's requirements and negotiating cooperation with other Defendants. Third, in addition to opposing Defendants' serial and myriad motions to dismiss Plaintiffs' allegations as implausible under. Twombly, 550 U.S.

544 (2007), and other grounds, Co-Lead Counsel researched and opposed Defendants' claims that because much of the conduct at issue took place overseas, dismissal was warranted under the Foreign Trade Antitrust Improvements Act ("FTAIA"), 15 U.S.C. § 6a. Fourth, because of the nature of the freight forwarding industry, the conspiracies alleged often required the involvement of both the Defendant parent company and its subsidiaries. Co-Lead Counsel also spent time researching and investigating each Defendant's corporate structure in order to establish the integration and involvement of corporate parents and subsidiaries in conduct alleged in the complaints. Finally, because Defendants' unlawful actions occurred across the globe and have been the subject of governmental investigations on several continents, Co-Lead Counsel have researched their ability to obtain discovery from foreign subsidiaries and foreign enforcement agencies, and to verify the Court's personal jurisdiction of these foreign subsidiaries.

3. The Risk Of Litigation Supports The Requested Fee.

The risk of litigation is "perhaps the foremost factor to be considered in determining whether to award an enhancement." Goldberger, 209 F.3d at 54 (quotation omitted); accord In re Currency Conversion Fee Antitrust Litig., 263 F.R.D. at 129. The litigation risk "must be measured as of when the case is filed." Goldberger, 209 F.3d at 55 (citing DiFilippo v. Morizio, 759 F.2d 231, 234 (2d Cir. 1985)). Most of these risks continue to be fully present even after the subsequent government complaints which, while favorable to the merits of the Class' claims, still leave substantial risks. Courts in this Circuit have repeatedly recognized that the risk associated with a case undertaken on a contingent basis is an important factor in determining an appropriate fee award. In re NASDAQ Mkt. Makers Antitrust Litig., 187 F.R.D. 465, 489 (S.D.N.Y. 1998).

In this instance, the risks Class Counsel undertook in advancing this litigation justify the requested fee. In the five and a half years Class Counsel has spent litigating this case, they have committed 65,720.84 hours of their time — amounting to over $27,898,925.45 in lodestar — and incurred $811,095.84 in expenses, all of which were and are at risk of never being recovered. Class Counsel faced considerable risk from the outset of this case; it was filed prior to the commencement of any government complaints, it implicates vast international discovery and (if it is not otherwise dismissed) culminates in the further risks of collecting on judgments against foreign Defendants. The first fines related to government investigations did not occur until the JFTC issued fines in March 2009, over a year after the inception of the case. And the DOJ did not announce any guilty pleas until 2010 — more than two years after Plaintiffs' case began. The EC did not impose fines until 2012. As such, the case has had significant risks from inception. Class Counsel did not have the benefit of any government criminal charges, investigations, or theories of liability on which to rely when making allegations or calculating damages. Instead, Class Counsel invested significant amounts of their own time and resources investigating the freight forwarding industry and Defendants, researching the allegations alleged in the Complaint, consulting with experts, and developing theories of liability and damages. Throughout these efforts, Co-Lead Counsel have had no guarantee of recovery. See also In re Priceline.com, Inc. Sec. Litig., No. 3:00-CV-1884 (AVC), 2007 WL 2115592, at *5 (D. Conn. July 20, 2007) (acknowledging that risk is high when plaintiffs developed their own theory of liability and damages absent a government prosecution).

Indeed, despite over five and a half years of litigation, non-settling Defendants, including the Amnesty Applicant and numerous guilty pleaders, continue to vigorously deny liability to Plaintiffs and the Class, and still aggressively seek to have Plaintiffs' claims dismissed. While Co-Lead Counsel believe they will defeat Defendants' motions to dismiss their TACAC, success is far from certain.[22]

4. The Quality Of Counsel's Representation Supports The Requested Fee Award.

Notwithstanding Defendants' ongoing efforts to defeat this case and a five and a half year delay in the commencement of discovery, Co-Lead Counsel has managed to obtain ten substantial settlements for the Class, which in nearly every applicable instance exceeded the fines paid by Settling Defendants in the related criminal investigations. Such a recovery is consistent with Co-Lead Counsel's extensive experience successfully litigating antitrust class actions, and supports the fee request. See ECF No. 101 (outlining Co-Lead Counsel's extensive experience and success in the class action field).

Similarly, in addition to the collective wealth represented by Defendants themselves, they are represented by top antitrust legal practitioners; the law firms representing Defendants are some of the largest and most skilled law firms in the world. Throughout this litigation, Defendants' counsel have worked tirelessly to protect their client's interests, and Co-Lead Counsel's ability to obtain these significant settlements at this stage of the litigation further underscores the adequacy of the requested fee award. See In re Merrill Lynch & Co., Inc. Research Reports Sec. Litig., 246 F.R.D. 156, 174 (S.D.N.Y. 2007) ("The quality of opposing counsel is also important in evaluating the quality of Class Counsels' work."); In re NASDAQ Market Makers Antitrust Litig., 187 F.R.D. 465, 488 (S.D.N.Y. 1998).

5. The Requested Fee Is Supported By The Size And The Scope Of The Settlement.

While Co-Lead Counsel believe that at the end of the day this case will be even more [22] With respect to the SACAC, this Court sustained the plausibility of almost all of Plaintiffs' claims, but dismissed all of the claims in the SACAC on various grounds, except those asserted in Claim 1 as against ABX Logistics Group, Exel Global Logistics Inc., DHL Danzas, and Geo-Logistics. The Court granted Plaintiffs leave to replead the remaining claims, which Plaintiffs have done.

successful for the Class, the settlements obtained so far ensure that the Class will receive a significant recovery regardless of what the future holds. Counsel respectfully submit that they are not overreaching in their fee request, but rather request a fee that fully compensates them for their work on this case and provides a modest multiplier for handling this case on a contingent basis.

The fee requested is consistent with fee requests in other class action litigations with settlements of this size. See, e.g., IPO, 671 F. Supp. 2d at 516 (Scheindlin, J.) (awarding one-third fee in a securities fraud case); In re Priceline.com, Inc. Sec. Litig., 2007 WL 2115592, at *4 (awarding 30% of $80 million settlement); see also In re Prudential Sec., Inc. Ltd. P'ships Litig., 912 F. Supp. 97, 103 (S.D.N.Y. 1996) ("Many courts have approved and awarded fees in class actions of one-third of the settlement fund in recognition of the substantial services performed by counsel and the risks undertaken.").

6. Public Policy Considerations Support the Award of the Requested Fee.

The award of the percentage of fee requested by Co-Lead Counsel will encourage the private enforcement of antitrust laws and support attorneys who decide to take such cases on a contingent fee basis. The Supreme Court has held repeatedly that private enforcement of U.S. antitrust laws is essential to effective antitrust enforcement, e.g., Blue Shield of Va. v. McCready, 457 U.S. 465, 472 (1982); Zenith Radio Corp. v. Hazeltine Research, Inc., 395 U.S. 100, 130-31 (1969), and a market-rate fee award such as is requested here incentivizes competent, experienced counsel to undertake such high-risk, complex class action litigation. This Circuit has noted that "[i]n the absence of adequate attorneys' fee awards, many antitrust actions would not be commenced, since the claims of individual litigants, when taken separately, often hardly justify the expense of litigation." Alpine Pharmacy, Inc. v. Chas. Pfizer & Co., Inc., 481 F.2d 1045, 1050 (2d Cir. 1973). In determining whether public policy supports the requested fee request, the court should balance providing lawyers with a "sufficient incentive to bring common fund cases" against preventing an "unwarranted windfall" to counsel. In re Air Cargo Shipping Services Antitrust Litig., No. 06-MD-1775 (JG)(VVP), 2011 WL 2909162, at *6 (E.D.N.Y. July 15, 2011). In light of the time and effort Co-Lead Counsel have dedicated to this litigation, the requested fee of 33% fairly compensates Co-Lead Counsel, helps to perpetuate the availability of skilled counsel in future antitrust class actions, and does not result in a windfall to counsel.

D. Reported Statistical Data Support A Market Rate In Antitrust Class Actions Of 30% to 40%.

Academic and government reports are often relied upon by courts as a factor in determining the "market price" for class action contingent fees. In re Cabletron Systems, Inc. Securities Litigation, 239 F.R.D. 30, 42-44 (D.N.H. 2006), (relying on "comprehensive studies evaluating fee awards in class action cases" and collecting those studies).

Relevant here is a study of forty antitrust class actions. See Robert H. Lande & Joshua P. Davis, Benefits From Private Antitrust Enforcement: An Analysis of Forty Cases, 42 U.S.F.L. Rev. 879 (July 2008).[23] Courts in the majority of antitrust class actions resulting in recoveries of more than $100 million awarded a contingent fee of 30% or more. Lande & Davis, supra, at 911, Table 7B.

E. Co-Lead Counsel's Request For Attorneys' Fees Is Reasonable Under A Lodestar Crosscheck.

The use of the lodestar crosscheck on the reasonableness of a percentage of fee award is encouraged. Farinella v. Paypal, Inc., 611 F. Supp. 2d 250, 269 (E.D.N.Y. 2009). Courts may award fees higher than the lodestar by applying a multiplier based on factors such as the riskiness of litigation. See In re Nortel Networks Corp. Secs. Litig., 539 F.3d at 132 n.4. Courts commonly award multipliers from two to six times the lodestar. See Monserrate v. Tequipment, Inc., No. 11 CV 6090, 2012 WL 5830557, at *3 (E.D.N.Y. Nov. 16, 2012) (collecting cases).

[23] Attached as Exhibit M to the Bruckner Decl.

The lodestar in this case is $27,898,925.45. Bruckner Decl. ¶ 19. A lodestar cross-check against the award Class Counsel seeks in this petition yields a multiplier of 1.33, which has been deemed reasonable under analogous circumstances. See In re Cendant Corp. PRIDES Litig., 243 F.3d. 722, 742 (3d Cir. 2001) (finding lodestar multipliers of 1.35 to 2.99 common in megafunds over $100 million); NASDAQ Market Makers, 187 F.R.D. at 489 ("'In recent years multipliers of between 3 to 4.5 have become common.'") (citation omitted); see also In re Air Cargo Shipping Servs. Antitrust Litig., 2012 WL 3138596, at *5 (granting an interim attorneys' fee request where class counsel had "a reasonably modest 1.11 multiplier of the lodestar").

The lodestar in this case is based on rates currently charged by counsel, Bruckner Decl. ¶¶ 19 and 23, which courts have considered reasonable. Velez v. Novartis Pharm. Corp., 04 CIV 09194 CM, 2010 WL 4877852, at *23 (S.D.N.Y. Nov. 30, 2010) ("The use of current rates to calculate the lodestar figure has been repeatedly endorsed by courts as a means of accounting for the delay in payment inherent in class actions and for inflation. . . .") (citation omitted). These rates are well within the normal range for counsel litigating similar antitrust class actions.

F. Class Counsels' Request For An Award Of Expenses Incurred Is Reasonable.

Co-Lead Counsel's request for an award of $811,095.84 for payment of expenses is reasonable. "Attorneys may be compensated for reasonable out-of-pocket expenses incurred and customarily charged to their clients." Miltland Raleigh-Durham v. Myers, 840 F. Supp. 235, 239 (S.D.N.Y. 1993). Within the Second Circuit, courts "normally grant expense requests in common fund cases as a matter of course." In re Vitamin C Antitrust Litigation, 2012 WL 5289514, at *11 (E.D.N.Y. Oct. 23, 2012); In re Arakis Energy Corp. Sec. Litig., No. 95CV3421, 2001 WL 1590512, at *17 n.12 (E.D.N.Y. Oct. 31, 2001). Co-Lead Counsel seek reimbursement for the costs of economic and industry experts, class notice and claims administration, online legal research, travel expenses, document imaging and copying, and an online document repository. See Bruckner Decl. ¶ 26. The expenses incurred by Class Counsel were reasonably necessary to advance the interests of the Class and to obtain an excellent result on their behalf. Due to the risk that they might never be recovered, Class Counsel endeavored to keep expenses to a minimum. Accordingly, Class Counsel respectfully request reimbursement of expenses in the amount of $811,095.84.[24]

G. Co-Lead Counsel Will Make Subsequent Applications For Claims Settlement And Administration And Processing.

The processing and administration of Class Members' claims will begin in earnest following the November 22, 2013 deadline to submit claims. The Claims Administrator has mailed direct notice to 2,323,671 potential Class Members. Class Members have been submitting claims and will continue to do so through the November 22, 2013 deadline. Before payment of such claims can be recommended to the Court for its approval, each claim will have to be verified and in some cases audited, to ensure that the Class Member is qualified and that its claimed purchases are allowable.

Accordingly, as appropriate Co-Lead Counsel will apply to the Court for approval to pay expenses related to claims and administration and processing before any such expense payments [24] In addition to the expenses described here and in greater detail in the Declaration of W. Joseph Bruckner, payments totaling $2,806,172.89 have been made from the settlement escrow accounts for class notice as directed by the Court, related expenses regarding preliminary or final approval, and related bank fees. In addition, invoices related to notice totaling $597,741.07 are outstanding and in the process of review. To the extent appropriate, they will be paid from the settlement escrow accounts within 30 days. These payments were made and will be made pursuant to language in each of the Settling Defendant's Settlement Agreements reserving a specific amount of such Settling Defendant's payment that may be used for payment of notice and related costs (and which would be non-refundable to the Settling Defendant in the event the settlement was not finally approved). While these payments are not included in the requested reimbursement in this petition, and have already been paid or may be paid from those escrow accounts, we describe those expenditures here to fully describe all litigation-related expenses incurred in this case.

are made.

IV. CONCLUSION

For all of the reasons set forth above, Co-Lead Counsel respectfully requests that the Court:

(1) Award 33% of the Settlement Fund as interim attorneys' fees in the amount of $32,596,320.32 from settlement proceeds ($98,776,728.25) currently paid into in the Settlement Fund;

(2) Award 33% of the Settlement Fund as interim attorneys' fees in the amount of $4,459,980.25 to be paid fifteen business days after the Final Approval of the EGL, Schenker and United Aircargo settlements from the settlement proceeds ($13,515,091.67) scheduled to be paid into the Settlement Fund upon Final Approval of the Settlements;

(3) Award 33% of the Settlement Fund as interim attorneys' fees in the amount of $21,480.25 to be paid from the United Aircargo settlement proceeds ($65,091.66) one year after the Fairness Hearing of the United Aircargo settlement, or if no hearing is held, one year after Final Approval of the United Aircargo settlement; and

(4) Reimburse Class Counsel for interim litigation expenses totaling $811,095.04.

Dated: June 12, 2013

Respectfully submitted,

s/ W. Joseph Bruckner

W. Joseph Bruckner
Heidi M. Silton
Craig S. Davis
LOCKRIDGE GRINDAL NAUEN P.L.L.P.
100 Washington Avenue South, Suite 2200
Minneapolis, MN 55401
T: (612) 339-6900
F: (612) 339-0981
E-mail: wjbruckner@locklaw.com
hsilton@locklaw.com
csdavis@locklaw.com

Christopher Lovell
Benjamin M. Jaccarino
LOVELL STEWART HALEBIAN JACOBSON LLP
61 Broadway, Suite 501
New York, NY 10006
T: (212) 608-1900
F: (212) 719-4775
E-mail: clovell@lshllp.com
bjaccarino@lshllp.com

Daniel E. Gustafson
Daniel C. Hedlund
Michelle J. Looby
Joshua J. Rissman
GUSTAFSON GLUEK PLLC
Canadian Pacific Plaza
120 South 6th Street, Suite 2600
Minneapolis, MN 55402
T: (612) 333-8844
F: (612) 339-6622
E-mail: dgustafson@gustafsongluek.com
dhedlund@gustafsongluek.com
mlooby@gustafsongluek.com
jrissman@gustafsongluek.com

Steven N. Williams
Adam J. Zapala
COTCHETT, PITRE & MCCARTHY, LLP
San Francisco Airport Office Center
840 Malcolm Road, Suite 200
Burlingame, CA 94010
T: (650) 697-6000
F: (650) 697-0577
E-mail: swilliams@cpmlegal.com
azapala@cpmlegal.com

Imtiaz A. Siddiqui
COTCHETT, PITRE & MCCARTHY, LLP
One Liberty Plaza, 23rd Floor
New York, NY 10006
T: (212) 682-3198
F: (646) 219-6678
E-mail: isiddiqui@cpmlegal.com

Interim Co-Lead Counsel for Plaintiffs

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
EASTERN DISTRICT OF NEW YORK

PRECISION ASSOCIATES, INC., et al., Plaintiffs, v. PANALPINA WORLD TRANSPORT (HOLDING) LTD., et al. Defendants.	CASE NO. 08-CV-00042 (JG)(VVP)

PLAINTIFFS' SUPPLEMENTAL FEE APPLICATION AND EXPENSE REQUEST

Pursuant to the Court's order of August 27, 2013, Plaintiffs submit this supplemental fee application and expense request "limited to work performed with respect to the ten settlements." August 27, 2013 Memorandum and Order [ECF No. 866]. As set forth below, the lodestar for all Class Counsel through August 27, 2013 for work related to the ten settlements is $13,796,633.27, and the expenses spent or incurred with respect to the ten settlements is $613,385.84.

1. The August 27, 2013 Order

On August 27, 2013 this Court entered an Order (the "August 27, 2013 Order") granting final approval of ten settlements secured by Plaintiffs in their litigation of this action over the last five years. These settlements provide for a guaranteed settlement fund of $112 million, which will increase by virtue of assignments of proceeds to be received by settling defendants from the In re Air Cargo Shipping Services Antitrust Litigation, No. 06-MD-1775 (JG) (VVP) ("Air Cargo MDL") and paid to the Class in this case. In its Order the Court overruled all objections, granted final approval of these ten settlements and approved the proposed plan of allocation. In approving the ten settlements, the Court found:

1. Each settlement was the product of hard fought negotiations;

2. Complex factual and legal issues "abound" in the action.

3. The reaction of the class to the settlements was favorable.

4. The nine settlements which followed the first settlement with Schenker were the product of "robust information" and work by counsel including:

> (a) the . . . cooperation that had been received from Schenker; (b) the . . . documents that had been obtained during the litigation from other Defendants; (c) assertions by each Settling Defendant of their defenses as well as previews of their cooperation; (d) Class Counsel's continuing investigation until the time of each respective settlement; (e) estimates of the amount of charges by each Settling Defendant; (f) as to the KN and Expeditors settlements, full-day mediation sessions with an experienced mediator; and (g) such other information that became available (including regarding risks of foreign collection).[1]

5. There are significant risks in the action, damage issues will be hotly contested, and the settlements both eliminate these risks as to settling defendants and may assist plaintiffs in resolving the action against non-settling defendants.[2]

The August 27 Order recognized that the trend in the Second Circuit is to use the "percentage of the fund" method of computing attorneys' fees, and to use lodestar as a "cross check" on the reasonableness of the requested percentage.[3] The Court then directed Class

[1] August 27 Order at 17.

[2] Id. at 18.

[3] Id. at 26-27.

Counsel to "submit a supplemental fee application and expenses request limited to work performed with respect to the ten settlements."[4] The Court specifically stated that certain categories of time "preparing the Complaint (and subsequently amending the Complaint), effectuating service, investigating and researching the freight forwarding industry, and briefing opposition to defendants' motions to dismiss . . . should not be considered as part of the present fee application. . . . "[5]

The Court noted that the litigation is "irrefutably complex," and that Class Counsel spent "significant resources gaining an understanding of the freight forwarding industry as it operates globally [and] [w]ith respect to the cases against the settling defendants, counsel invested resources researching, analyzing, and evaluating contested legal and factual issues, in order to negotiate favorable settlements."[6] These efforts were comprised in large part of review and analysis of information and documents provided by settling defendants and by DHL, the amnesty applicant. As set forth in the motion for final approval of the ten settlements, and in particular in regard to the Schenker settlement, Class Counsel does not believe that DHL's cooperation has been timely or sufficient for purposes of any future limitations on the Class' ability to seek damages against DHL. See, e.g., In re Aftermarket Automotive Lighting Products Antitrust Litigation, Order that TCY Forfeited Any Claim to the Benefits of Limited Civil Liability under the Antitrust Criminal Penalty Enhancement and Reform Act, Case No. 09-MDL 2007-GW/(PJW)-PJW, Doc. 702 (C.D. Cal. August 27, 2013). While that determination will be made at a later time, the belated and inadequate cooperation of DHL required greater work by Class

[4] Id. at 33.

[5] Id. at 30.

[6] Id.

Counsel in securing the ten settlements (as distinguished from the early cooperation by Lufthansa, the ACPERA applicant, in the Air Cargo MDL).

2. Counsel's Response to the August 27, 2013 Order

Following the August 27, 2013 Order, Co-Lead Counsel established guidelines for all Class Counsel to prepare their supplemental fee application and expense request, specifically to include work related to the ten settlements, and to exclude unrelated work. This task was different from that performed in the Air Cargo MDL supplemental fee application and expense request related to the Lufthansa settlement (No. 1:06-MD-(1775)(JG)(VVP) ECF No. 895) because in this case substantial work in reviewing and analyzing documents, proffers, and other information flowing from initial settlements and limited cooperation from the amnesty applicant led to the ten settlements. By contrast, the Lufthansa settlement in the Air Cargo MDL was reached prior to the production of documents by Lufthansa or any other party, and thus there was no work analogous to the work done by Class Counsel here which led to the ten settlements.

Pursuant to the Court's directive, Class Counsel followed these guidelines in making this supplemental fee application and expense request:

I. Categories Which May Be Included:

- Meetings and communications regarding the ten settlements.
- Pre-settlement attorney proffers and meetings relating to the ten settlements.
- Drafting settlement agreements.
- Claims Administration.
- Class Notice work.
- Plan of Allocation work.
- Discovery of Class Member information for purposes of class notice.
- Work pertaining to preliminary and final approval of settlements, including meetings and discussions with Class Members about the settlements and responding to objections to the settlements.

- Meetings and negotiations with intervenors and objectors pertaining to any settlement.
- Review and culling of documents related to pending settlement discussions.
- Drafting Complaint only if the work identifies and pertains to a settled defendant.
- Responding to motions to dismiss only if the work identifies and pertains to a settled defendant.
- Investigating Freight Forwarding industry only if the work identifies and pertains to a settled defendant.
- Review of documents and other information provided by a settling defendant prior to January 28, 2013 and relating to the ten settlements.
- Attorney proffers prior to January 28, 2013 and relating to the ten settlements.
- Witness interviews provided by a settling defendant prior to January 28, 2013 and relating to the ten settlements.
- Review of documents and other information provided by DHL prior to January 28, 2013 and relating to the ten settlements.
- Attorney proffers by DHL prior to January 28, 2013 and relating to the ten settlements.
- Witness interviews provided by DHL prior to January 28, 2013 and relating to the ten settlements.

II. Categories Which May Not Be Included:

- Drafting/Amending Complaint, except for work relating to a settled defendant.
- Responding to motions to dismiss, except for work relating to a settled defendant.
- Investigating Freight Forwarding industry, except for work relating to a settled defendant.
- Retaining Clients.
- Any information collection and preservation from Plaintiffs, including reviewing their documents and ESI to prepare them for production.
- Service of complaint.
- General strategizing.
- Work related to any fee petition.
- Time and expense reporting.

Co-lead Counsel then reviewed all submissions prior to filing them with the Court to insure their compliance with the categories described above.

3. Plaintiffs' Counsel's Time and Expenses Related to the Ten Settlements

Other than time related to (1) responding to objections to the ten settlements, (2) briefing and appearing at the hearing on final approval of the ten settlements and the plan of allocation, (3) working with Class Members to respond to inquiries about the settlements and claims filing process, and (4) working with the Claims Administrator in relation to Class Member questions and other matters relating to administration of the settlement funds and claims process, no time was submitted for work performed after January 28, 2013 (the date of the last of the ten settlements). A similar adjustment was made and approved by the Court in the supplemental fee and expense application relating to the Lufthansa settlement in the Air Cargo MDL. Thus, the total lodestar for all Class Counsel for work relating to the ten settlements is $13,796,633.27 and the total expenses are $517,110.54.

Time unrelated to the ten settlements has been excluded. After careful review, some time that was originally categorized under categories other than settlement has been included because it was performed in furtherance of pursuing and securing settlements. Examples include review and analysis of documents, information, and proffers made by settling defendants and/or the amnesty applicant that helped achieve the settlements. A similar adjustment was made by counsel, and approved by the Court, in the supplemental fee and expense application relating to the Lufthansa settlement in the Air Cargo MDL.

Concerning expenses, the firms attempted to identify those expenses that could be specifically related to the ten settlements. This included expenses related to the work described in Section 2(I) above. Where items in certain categories – such as computer research, internal reproduction/copies, telephone/fax and postage/express delivery/messenger – could not be specifically identified as relating to the ten settlements, or otherwise disaggregated, the firms discounted the amount of such expenses by the percentage of their settlement-related time to their total time in the case.

The firms also included in their contributions to the common litigation fund that Co-Lead Counsel established to prosecute this action. Those assessment payments to the litigation fund have been similarly discounted. The supplemental declaration of W. Joseph Bruckner describes the amounts that have been contributed to, and the expenditures related to the ten settlements, from the litigation fund.

In addition to Class Counsel's settlement-related out-of-pocket expenses of $517,110.54, Class Counsel also incurred $96,275.30 in outstanding expenses to the Claims Administrator, Epiq Systems. These expenses were incurred in providing notice to the class of the ten settlements, and answering Class Member questions about the settlements and about the submission of Class Members' claims against the settlement fund.

Thus, the total expenses of all counsel spent or incurred in relation to the ten settlements is $613,385.84.

4. Conclusion

Co-Lead Counsel will provide any additional information upon the Court's request.

Dated: September 10, 2013

Respectfully submitted,

s/ W. Joseph Bruckner

W. Joseph Bruckner
Heidi M. Silton
Craig S. Davis
LOCKRIDGE GRINDAL NAUEN P.L.L.P.
100 Washington Avenue South, Suite 2200
Minneapolis, MN 55401
T: (612) 339-6900
F: (612) 339-0981
E-mail: wjbruckner@locklaw.com
hsilton@locklaw.com
csdavis@locklaw.com

Christopher Lovell
Benjamin M. Jaccarino
LOVELL STEWART HALEBIAN JACOBSON LLP
61 Broadway, Suite 501
New York, NY 10006
T: (212) 608-1900
F: (212) 719-4775
E-mail: clovell@lshllp.com
bjaccarino@lshllp.com

Daniel E. Gustafson
Daniel C. Hedlund
Michelle J. Looby
Joshua J. Rissman
GUSTAFSON GLUEK PLLC
Canadian Pacific Plaza
120 South 6th Street, Suite 2600
Minneapolis, MN 55402
T: (612) 333-8844
F: (612) 339-6622
E-mail: dgustafson@gustafsongluek.com
dhedlund@gustafsongluek.com
mlooby@gustafsongluek.com
jrissman@gustafsongluek.com

Steven N. Williams
Adam J. Zapala
COTCHETT, PITRE & MCCARTHY, LLP
San Francisco Airport Office Center
840 Malcolm Road, Suite 200
Burlingame, CA 94010
T: (650) 697-6000
F: (650) 697-0577
E-mail: swilliams@cpmlegal.com
azapala@cpmlegal.com

Interim Co-Lead Counsel for Plaintiffs

TAB 55A

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
MIDDLE DISTRICT OF FLORIDA
JACKSONVILLE DIVISION

In Re: DISPOSABLE CONTACT LENS ANTITRUST LITIGATION	Case No. 3:15-md-2626-HES-JRK Judge Harvey E. Schlesinger Magistrate Judge James R. Klindt
THIS DOCUMENT RELATES TO: All Class Actions

ORDER GRANTING LEAD COUNSEL'S APPLICATION FOR AN AWARD OF ATTORNEYS' FEES AND REIMBURSEMENT OF EXPENSES FROM THE ABB SETTLEMENT FUND

THIS CAUSE is before the Court upon Lead Counsel's Application for an Award of Attorneys' Fees and Reimbursement of Expenses (Doc. 1242). Upon consideration, the motion is granted. Thus, it is ORDERED:

WHEREAS, the Action[1] is pending before this Court;

WHEREAS, Plaintiffs[2] have entered into and executed a Stipulation and Agreement of Settlement ("Settlement Agreement") with ABB Optical Group,

---

[1] As defined in the Settlement Agreement, the "Action" means the above-captioned litigation pending in the United States District Court for the Middle District of Florida, Jacksonville Division, and any other actions that may be transferred or consolidated into this litigation.

[2] As defined in the Settlement Agreement, "Plaintiffs" are Rachel Berg, Miriam Pardoll, Jennifer Sineni, Elyse Ulino, Susan Gordon, Cora Beth Smith,

LLC ("ABB" together with Plaintiffs, the "Settling Parties"), which, if finally approved by the Court, will result in the settlement of all claims against ABB;

WHEREAS, the Court previously certified litigation classes pursuant to Fed. R. Civ. P. 23 (Doc. 940);

WHEREAS, the Court previously granted final approval of settlements releasing all claims against Bausch & Lomb, Inc. and CooperVision, Inc. (Doc. 1164);

WHEREAS, the Court has appointed Scott+Scott Attorneys at Law LLP, Hausfeld LLP, and Robins Kaplan, LLP ("Lead Counsel") as class counsel (Doc. 940);

WHEREAS, the Court has appointed Rachel Berg, Miriam Pardoll, Jennifer Sineni, Elyse Ulino, Susan Gordon, Cora Beth Smith, Brett Watson, Tamara O'Brien, Sheryl Marean, Catherine Dingle, Amanda Cunha, Alexis Ito, Kathleen Schirf, John Machikawa, and Joseph Felson as class representatives (Doc. 940), and each of these Class Representatives searched for and produced documents, and sat for a full deposition;

Brett Watson, Tamara O'Brien, Sheryl Marean, Catherine Dingle, Amanda Cunha, Alexis Ito, Kathleen Schirf, John Machikawa, and Joseph Felson. Pamela Mazzarella was a plaintiff in the CVI settlement, but not the B&L or ABB settlements because she withdrew as a named class representative; however, she continues to be a member of the Settlement Classes.

WHEREAS, by Order dated November 13, 2020 (the "Preliminary Approval Order") this Court: (a) preliminarily approved the Settlement Agreement; (b) preliminarily certified the Settlement Class; (c) ordered that notice of the Settlement Agreement be provided to potential members of the Settlement Class; (d) provided members of the Settlement Class with the opportunity either to exclude themselves from the Settlement Class or to object to the proposed Settlement Agreement; (e) provided members of the Settlement Class with the opportunity to object to the Application for Attorneys' Fees and Reimbursement of Costs, and (f) designated Scott+Scott Attorneys at Law LLP, Hausfeld LLP, and Robins Kaplan, LLP as settlement class counsel for the Settlement Classes ("Class Counsel") and Plaintiffs as class representatives of the Settlement Classes;

WHEREAS, consistent with the Court's order, notice has been disseminated to potential members of the Settlement Class;

WHEREAS, in full and final settlement of the claims asserted against ABB in this Action, ABB agreed to pay the amount of $30,200,000 and to provide limited cooperation as set forth in the Settlement Agreement;

WHEREAS, pursuant to the Preliminary Approval Order, an Escrow Account was established;

WHEREAS, pursuant to the Settlement Agreement and the Preliminary Approval Order, ABB timely deposited $500,000 of the Settlement Amount into the settlement Escrow Account on December 16, 2020 and timely deposited 50% of the remainder of the Settlement Amount ($14,850,000) on April 15, 2021;

WHEREAS, pursuant to the Settlement Agreement, ABB will deposit the remainder of the Settlement Amount ($14,850,000) into the Escrow Account by January 14, 2022;

WHEREAS, in the Preliminary Approval Order, the Court ordered that all settlement funds held in the escrow account shall remain subject to the jurisdiction of the Court, until such time as such funds shall be distributed pursuant to the Settlement Agreement and further order(s) of the Court;

WHEREAS, in the Preliminary Approval Order, the Court ordered that all reasonable expenses incurred in identifying and notifying potential Class Members as well as in administering the ABB Settlement ("Settlement Administration Expenses") should be paid as set forth in the Settlement Agreement up to $500,000;

WHEREAS, the Court appointed Epiq Class Action & Claims Solutions, Inc. ("Epiq") as the notice provider and approved the proposed plan of notice, which provided for notice to members of the ABB Settlement Class using funds from the ABB Settlement;

WHEREAS, on February 26, 2021, Class Counsel filed an Application for an Award of Attorneys' Fees and Reimbursement of Expenses (Doc. 1242);

WHEREAS, the March 10, 2021 deadline to object to the Application for Attorneys' Fees and Reimbursement of Expenses has now passed;

WHEREAS, by Notice dated April 15, 2021 this Court scheduled a hearing regarding final approval of the ABB Settlement and Application for Attorneys' Fees and Costs on May 19, 2021;

WHEREAS, due and adequate notice has been given to potential members of the Settlement Class;

WHEREAS, the 90-day period provided by the Class Action Fairness Act, 28 U.S.C. §1715(d), has expired;

WHEREAS, the Court conducted a hearing on May 19, 2021 (the "Fairness Hearing") to consider, among other things, (a) whether the terms and conditions of the Settlement Agreement are fair, reasonable, and adequate to the Settlement Class, and should therefore be approved; (b) whether a judgment should be entered dismissing the Action with prejudice as against ABB; and (c) whether Plaintiffs' Attorneys' Fees and Costs should be granted;

WHEREAS, Class Counsel have requested as attorneys' fees one-third (33.3%) of the $30,200,000 ABB Settlement Fund ($9,315,960.97), after payment of the Court-approved notice costs ($500,000), anticipated claims administration costs ($1,000,000), and expenses ($752,117.10);

WHEREAS, Class Counsel notified the Settlement Class that they would seek up to one-third (33.3%) of the ABB Settlement Fund as reimbursement for attorneys' fees, and notified members of the Settlement Class of the specific requested fee amount in advance of the deadline for objections and exclusion requests;

WHEREAS, as described in the Plaintiffs' Application for Attorneys' Fees and Costs filed February 26, 2021, the Court has read and considered the reasonableness and necessity of the fees and costs;

WHEREAS, the Court has considered the applicable case law and finds that awarding common costs as well as funds for anticipated common costs necessary for Class Counsel to continue litigating Plaintiffs' claims against the non-settling defendants benefits Class Members; and

WHEREAS, the Court has considered the applicable case law and finds that awarding the requested attorneys' fees is fair and reasonable and just compensation for the work done and risks taken in this litigation and is well within the range of reasonableness under the factors established by the Eleventh Circuit in Camden I Condo Ass'n v. Dunkle, 946 F.2d 768 (11th Cir. 1991);

Thus, it is ORDERED:

1. The Court authorizes Class Counsel to withdraw the following from the ABB Settlement Fund Escrow Account:

   a. $9,315,960.97 in attorneys' fees;

   b. up to $1,000,000 in anticipated claims administration costs without further order of the Court; and

c. $752,117.10 in general incurred and anticipated litigation costs.

DONE AND ENTERED at Jacksonville, Florida, this 31st day of May, 2021.

HARVEY E. SCHLESINGER
United States District Judge

Copies to:
Counsel of Record

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
MIDDLE DISTRICT OF FLORIDA
JACKSONVILLE DIVISION

In Re: DISPOSABLE CONTACT LENS ANTITRUST LITIGATION	Case No. 3:15-md-2626-HES-LLL Judge Harvey E. Schlesinger Magistrate Judge Laura Lothman Lambert
THIS DOCUMENT RELATES TO: All Class Actions

ORDER GRANTING LEAD COUNSEL'S APPLICATION FOR AN AWARD OF ATTORNEYS' FEES AND REIMBURSEMENT OF EXPENSES FROM THE COOPERVISION, INC., BAUSCH & LOMB, INC., ALCON VISION, LLC, AND JOHNSON & JOHNSON VISION CARE, INC. SETTLEMENT FUNDS

This Action[1] is pending before this Court:

Plaintiffs[2] have entered into and executed Stipulations and Agreements of Settlement ("Settlement Agreements") with Alcon Vision, LLC ("Alcon"), and Johnson & Johnson Vision Care, Inc. ("JJVCI") ("Defendants" together with Plaintiffs, the "Settling Parties"), which, if finally approved by the Court, will result in the settlement of all claims against Defendants and bring the Action to an end;[3]

---

[1] As defined in the Settlement Agreements, the "Action" means the above-captioned litigation pending in the United States District Court for the Middle District of Florida, Jacksonville Division, and any other actions that may be transferred or consolidated into this litigation.

[2] As defined in the Settlement Agreements, "Plaintiffs" are Rachel Berg, Miriam Pardoll, Jennifer Sineni, Elyse Ulino, Susan Gordon, Cora Beth Smith, Brett Watson, Tamara O'Brien, Sheryl Marean, Catherine Dingle, Amanda Cunha, Alexis Ito, Kathleen Schirf, John Machikawa, and Joseph Felson. Pamela Mazzarella was a plaintiff in the CooperVision, Inc. ("CVI") settlement, but not the Bausch & Lomb Inc. ("B&L") or ABB Optical Group, LLC ("ABB") settlements because she withdrew as a named class representative; however, she continues to be a member of the Settlement Classes.

[3] Alcon Vision, LLC vs. Lens.com, C.A. No. 1:18-407, was filed in the Eastern District of New York. The case is a trademark infringement action against discount retailer Lens.com, a "gray market" purchaser, which allegedly bought certain Alcon products overseas and sold them in the United States. Defendant Lens.com brought several counterclaims that generally (1) refute Alcon's accusation of trademark infringement and suggest instead that changes Alcon made to products exclusively sold in the U.S. were pretextual changes aimed at eliminating gray market competitors, (2) challenge Alcon's proposed exclusive-dealing arrangements and its alleged attempts to tie the sale of products it exclusively sells in the U.S. to an agreement that Lens.com purchase all Alcon products at its U.S. prices, and (3) connect Alcon's filing of the trademark action against Lens.com to its alleged prior efforts to prevent resellers from distributing Alcon products to the detriment of eye care professionals. Two of Lens.com's claims relate to the universal pricing policies (UPPs) at issue in MDL No. 2626. These two UPP-related counterclaims were transferred to this Court. The two counterclaims, Alcon Vision, LLC v. Lens.com,

The Court previously certified litigation classes pursuant to Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 23 (Doc. 940);

The Court has appointed Scott+Scott Attorneys at Law LLP, Hausfeld LLP, and Robins Kaplan, LLP ("Lead Counsel") as class counsel (id.);

The Court has appointed Rachel Berg, Miriam Pardoll, Jennifer Sineni, Elyse Ulino, Susan Gordon, Cora Beth Smith, Brett Watson, Tamara O'Brien, Sheryl Marean, Catherine Dingle, Amanda Cunha, Alexis Ito, Kathleen Schirf, John Machikawa, and Joseph Felson as class representatives (id.);

By Order dated May 9, 2022 (Doc. 1343) (the "Preliminary Approval Order") this Court: (a) preliminarily approved the Settlement Agreements with Alcon and JJVCI; (b) preliminarily certified those Settlement Classes; (c) ordered that notice of the Settlement Agreements be provided to potential members of the Settlement Classes; (d) provided members of the Settlement Classes with the opportunity either to exclude themselves from the Settlement Classes or to object to the proposed Settlement Agreements; (e) provided members of the Settlement Classes with the opportunity to object to the Application for Attorneys' Fees and Reimbursement of Costs, and (f) designated Scott+Scott Attorneys at Law LLP, Hausfeld LLP, and case number 19-cv-706, remain pending before this Court and the claims are not dismissed by this Order. Final briefing on dispositive motions is due September 13, 2023 (Doc. 1345). The Parties have stipulated that ten days after this Court's ruling on all dispositive motions, this matter shall be remanded to the United States District Court for the Eastern District of New York for any trial (Doc. 1344).

---

Robins Kaplan, LLP as settlement class counsel for the Settlement Classes ("Class Counsel") and Plaintiffs as class representatives of the Settlement Classes;

Consistent with the Court's Order, notice has been disseminated to potential members of the Alcon and JJVCI Settlement Classes;

In full and final settlement of the claims asserted against Alcon in this Action, Alcon agreed to pay the amount of $20,000,000 (twenty million dollars) as set forth in the Alcon Settlement Agreement;

In full and final settlement of the claims asserted against JJVCI in this Action, JJVCI agreed to pay the amount of $55,000,000 (fifty-five million dollars) as set forth in the JJVCI Settlement Agreement;

Pursuant to the Preliminary Approval Order, Escrow Accounts were established for the Settlement Agreements;

Pursuant to the Alcon Settlement Agreement, Alcon deposited $20,000,000 (twenty million dollars) into an Escrow Account;

Pursuant to the JJVCI Settlement Agreement, JJVCI deposited $55,000,000 (fifty-five million dollars) into an Escrow Account;

In the Preliminary Approval Order, the Court ordered that all settlement funds held in the escrow account shall remain subject to the jurisdiction of the Court, until such time as such funds shall be distributed pursuant to the Settlement Agreements and further order(s) of the Court;

In the Preliminary Approval Order, the Court ordered that all reasonable expenses incurred in identifying and notifying potential Class Members as well as in administering the Alcon and JJVCI Settlements ("Settlement Administration Expenses") should be paid as set forth in the Settlement Agreements up to $1,500,000;

The Court appointed Epiq Class Action & Claims Solutions, Inc. ("Epiq") as the notice provider and approved the proposed plan of notice, which provided for notice to members of the Settlement Classes using funds from the Settlements;

On July 22, 2022, Class Counsel filed an Application for an Award of Attorneys' Fees and Reimbursement of Expenses (Doc. 1349);

The August 22, 2022 deadline to object to the Application for Attorneys' Fees and Reimbursement of Expenses has now passed and no objections were filed and neither Class Counsel nor Epiq is otherwise aware of any objections;

By Notice dated July 26, 2022, this Court scheduled a hearing regarding final approval of the Alcon and JJVCI Settlements and Application for Attorneys' Fees and Costs on October 12, 2022 at 9:30 AM at Bryan Simpson United States Courthouse, 300 North Hogan Street, Jacksonville, Florida, Courtroom 10C (Doc. 1353);

Due and adequate notice has been given to potential members of the Settlement Classes;

The 90-day period provided by the Class Action Fairness Act, 28 U.S.C. §1715(d), has expired;

The Court conducted the hearing on October 12, 2022 (the "Fairness Hearing") to consider, among other things, (a) whether the terms and conditions of the Settlement Agreements are fair, reasonable, and adequate to the Settlement Classes, and should therefore be approved; (b) whether a judgment should be entered dismissing the Action with prejudice against Alcon and JJVCI; and (c) whether Plaintiffs' Attorneys' Fees and Costs should be granted;

The Court previously granted final approval of settlements releasing all claims against B&L ($10,000,000) and CVI ($3,000,000) (Doc. 1164) and both Funds were fully funded by CVI and B&L;

Notice for the CVI and B&L Settlements informed the Settlement Class Members that Lead Counsel may request up to one-third of the Settlement Funds as attorneys' fees;

Lead Counsel never requested compensation for their time spent litigating this Action from the CVI and B&L Settlement Funds;

No CVI or B&L Settlement Class Member objected to Lead Counsel's ability to request up to one-third of the Settlement Funds as attorneys' fees;

Class Counsel have requested as attorneys' fees one-third of the combined $88,000,000 CVI, B&L, Alcon, and JJVCI Settlement Funds ($29,333,333.33), as well as payment of costs and expenses reasonably incurred in litigating this Action ($1,649,702.38);

Class Counsel also notified the Alcon and JJVCI Settlement Classes that they would seek up to one-third of the those Settlement Funds as reimbursement for attorneys' fees, and notified members of the Settlement Classes of the specific percentage of the Settlement Funds to be requested in advance of the respective deadlines for each settlement for objections and exclusion requests;

As described in the Plaintiffs' Application for Attorneys' Fees and Costs filed February 26, 2021, the Court has read and considered the reasonableness and necessity of the fees and costs; and

The Court has considered the applicable case law and finds that awarding the requested attorneys' fees is fair and reasonable and just compensation for the work done and risks taken in this litigation and is well within the range of reasonableness under the factors established by the Eleventh Circuit in Camden I Condo. Ass'n, Inc. v. Dunkle, 946 F.2d 768 (11th Cir. 1991).

NOW, THEREFORE, IT IS HEREBY ORDERED:

The Court authorizes Class Counsel to withdraw the following from the Settlement Fund Escrow Accounts:

a. $29,333,333.33 in attorneys' fees, with one-third to be withdrawn from each of the CVI ($1,000,000), B&L ($3,333,333.33), Alcon ($6,666,666.67), and JJVCI ($18,333,333.33) Settlement Funds; and

b. $1,649,702.38 in general incurred and litigation costs to be withdrawn from Alcon ($439,920.63) and JJVCI ($1,209,781.75) Settlement Funds.

DONE AND ENTERED in Jacksonville, Florida this 12th day of October 2022.

HARVEY E. SCHLESINGER
UNITED STATES DISTRICT JUDGE

Copies to:
Counsel of Record

TAB 55B

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
MIDDLE DISTRICT OF FLORIDA
JACKSONVILLE DIVISION

In Re: DISPOSABLE CONTACT LENS ANTITRUST LITIGATION	Case No. 3:15-md-2626-HES-JRK Judge Harvey E. Schlesinger Magistrate Judge James R. Klindt
THIS DOCUMENT RELATES TO: All Class Actions

LEAD COUNSEL'S APPLICATION FOR AN AWARD OF ATTORNEYS' FEES AND REIMBURSEMENT OF EXPENSES

TABLE OF CONTENTS

I. PRELIMINARY STATEMENT 1
II. STATEMENT OF FACTS 2
A. Lead Counsel's Initial Investigation 2
B. Procedural History 3
C. The Settlements 7
III. ARGUMENT 10
A. Lead Counsel's Request for 33.3% of the ABB Net Settlement Funds Is Fair and Reasonable 10
1. The Law Awards Lead Counsel Fees from the Common Fund 10
2. Application of the Camden I Factors Supports the Requested Fee 13
a) Litigating This Complex and Novel Case Required Substantial Time and Labor 14
b) Lead Counsel Achieved a Successful Result Considering the Litigation Risks 16
c) Lead Counsel Assumed Considerable Risk to Pursue This Action on a Pure Contingency Basis 16
d) The Requested Fee Comports with Fees Awarded in Similar Cases 17
e) The Remaining Camden I Factors Also Favor Approving the Requested Fee 19
3. The Expense Request Is Appropriate 19
IV. FAIRNESS HEARING 20
V. CONCLUSION 21

TABLE OF AUTHORITIES

Page(s)

Cases

Allapattah Servs., Inc. v. Exxon Corp.,
454 F. Supp. 2d 1185 (S.D. Fla. 2006) 18

Behrens v. Wometco Enters., Inc.,
118 F.R.D. 534 (S.D. Fla. 1988), aff'd, 899 F.2d 21 (11th Cir. 1990) 16, 17, 20

Boeing Co. v. Van Gemert,
444 U.S. 472 (1980).....10, 11

Camden I Condo. Ass'n v. Dunkle,
946 F.2d 768 (11th Cir. 1991) ..... passim

Columbus Drywall & Insulation, Inc. v. Masco Corp.,
No. 1:04-cv-3066, 2008 WL 11234103 (N.D. Ga. Mar. 4, 2008) 20

Deposit Guar. Nat'l Bank v. Rope,
445 U.S. 326 (1980).....11

Francisco v. Numismatic Guar. Corp. of Am., 2008 WL 649124 (S.D. Fla. 2008) 18

George v. Acad. Mortg. Corp. (UT),
369 F. Supp. 3d 1356 (N.D. Ga. 2019).....18

In re Checking Account Overdraft Litig.,
2020 WL 4586398 (S.D. Fla. Aug. 10, 2020).....18

In re Checking Account Overdraft Litig.,
830 F. Supp. 2d 1330 (S.D. Fla. 2011) 12, 15, 19

In re Continental Ill. Sec. Litig.,
962 F.2d 566 (7th Cir. 1992) 17, 18

In Re: Disposable Contact Lens Antitrust Litigation,
No. 3:15-md-02626-J-HES-JRK.....3

In re Friedman's, Inc. Sec. Litig.,
2009 WL 1456698 (N.D. Ga. May 22, 2009).....18

In re Gould Secs. Litig.,
727 F. Supp. 1201 (N.D. Ill. 1989).....11

In re Ikon Office Sols., Inc. Secs. Litig.,
194 F.R.D. 166 (E.D. Pa. 2000).....20

In re Public Serv. Co. of N.M.,
1992 WL 278452 (S.D. Cal. July 28, 1992) 18

In re Sunbeam Secs. Litig.,
176 F. Supp. 2d 1323 .....11, 12, 14, 16

Johnson v. Georgia Highway Express, Inc.,
488 F.2d 714 (5th Cir. 1974) 14

Mashburn v. Nat'l Healthcare, Inc.,
684 F. Supp. 660 (M.D. Ala. 1988) 11, 12

Mills v. Electric Auto-Lite Co.,
396 U.S. 375 (1970).....19, 20

Morgan v. Pub. Storage,
301 F. Supp. 3d 1237 (S.D. Fla. 2016) 17

Muehler v. Land O'Lakes, Inc.,
617 F. Supp. 1370 (D. Minn. 1985).....11

Ontiveros v. Zamora,
303 F.R.D. 356 (E.D. Cal. 2014) 20

Pierre-Val v. Buccaneers Ltd. P'ship,
2015 WL 12843849 (M.D. Fla. Dec. 7, 2015) (32%).....18

Pinto v. Princess Cruise Lines, Ltd.,
513 F. Supp. 2d 1334 (S.D. Fla. 2007) (30%) 18

Ressler v. Jacobson,
149 F.R.D. 561 (M.D. Fla. 1992).....15

Ressler v. Jacobson,
149 F.R.D. 651 (M.D. Fla. 1992) (30%).....17, 18, 20

Sands Point Partners, LP v. Pediatrix Med. Group, Inc., 2002 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 25721 (S.D. Fla. 2002) (30%) 18

Swift v. BancorpSouth Bank,
No. 1:10-cv-00090, 2016 WL 11529613 (N.D. Fla. July 15, 2016).....20

Walco Investments, Inc. v. Thenen,
975 F. Supp. 1468 (S.D. Fla.1997) 14, 15

Waters v. Int'l Precious Metals Corp.,
190 F.3d 1291 (11th Cir. 1999) 12, 17

Wolff v. Cash 4 Titles,
No. 03-2278-CIV, 2012 WL 5290155 (S.D. Fla. Sept. 26, 2012).....12

Statutes, Rules, and Regulations

15 U.S.C.
§1.....3, 4
§3.....4

Federal Rules of Civil Procedure
Rule 23(f).....5

Other Authorities

4 NEWBERG ON CLASS ACTIONS, §14:6 (4th ed. 2002).....18

Theodore Eisenberg, et al., Attorneys' Fees in Class Actions: 2009-2013, 92
N.Y.U. L. REV. 937 (2017).....12

For the reasons set forth below, Lead Counsel request that the Court enter an order: (1) promptly setting a date and time for the Fairness Hearing regarding this Motion and the concurrently filed Motion for Final Approval of Settlement Agreement with Defendant ABB Optical Group LLC ("Motion for Final Approval"); and (2) awarding Lead Counsel the requested $9,315,960.97 in attorneys' fees and $752,117.10 in newly incurred expenses.[1]

I. PRELIMINARY STATEMENT

Over the course of nearly six years of hard-fought litigation that has progressed through motions to dismiss, sharply contested discovery, class certification, several motions for interlocutory appeal, and multiple motions for summary judgment, Lead Counsel have reached settlements with three of the original five defendants totaling $43,200,000.[2] They have not until now, however, requested any award of attorneys' fees for the work they performed litigating the case. Lead Counsel therefore respectfully request that the Court award attorneys' fees equal to one-third (33.3%) of the $30,200,000 ABB Settlement Fund ($9,315,960.97), after payment of the Court-approved notice costs ($500,000), anticipated claims administration costs ($1,000,000),[3]

---

[1] Lead Counsel will submit a Proposed Order with their reply brief on April 9, 2021, once the opt-out and objection deadline has passed and Lead Counsel have had an opportunity to consider and respond to any objections, should they arise.

[2] On March 4, 2020, the Court granted final approval to settlements of $10,000,000 and $3,000,000 with Bausch & Lomb Incorporated ("B&L" and "B&L Settlement Fund") and CooperVision, Inc. ("CVI" and "CVI Settlement Fund"), respectively. ECF No. 1164. A motion for Final Approval of the ABB Optical Group LLC ("ABB") Settlement of $30,200,000 ("ABB Settlement Fund") was submitted concurrently with this motion. Each settlement is held in a separate fund. Together, they will be referred to herein as the "Settlement Funds."

[3] As noted in the motions to approve the B&L and CVI Settlements (ECF Nos. 1011, 1037, 1145), payment of additional notice and claims administration costs will be necessary. Lead Counsel calculated the $1,000,000 figure based on estimates provided by the Court-approved claims administrator and their decades of experience with class action settlements. All claims administration costs will be subject to court approval and any amount under the estimate will remain in the Settlement Fund for distribution to Class Members. Lead Counsel presently and expenses ($752,117.10) also requested in this Motion.[4] The requested award of attorneys' fees and expense is well within the range approved by courts in this District and Circuit. Counsel for ABB take no position on Lead Counsel's application for fees and costs. Declaration of Joseph P. Guglielmo, Christopher Lebsock, and Eamon O'Kelly, filed herewith ("Jt. Decl."), ¶70.

In addition, because the Court has not yet set a date for the Fairness Hearing, Lead Counsel respectfully requests that the Court do so.[5]

II. STATEMENT OF FACTS

A. Lead Counsel's Initial Investigation

Lead Counsel devoted substantial time to investigating the potential claims against Defendants before filing Plaintiffs' complaints. Lead Counsel interviewed customers and potential plaintiffs to gather information about Defendants' conduct and the impact on customers. Id., ¶¶6-8. This information was essential to Lead Counsel's ability to understand the nature of Defendants' conduct, the nature of the UPPs, and potential remedies. Lead Counsel consulted with experts to develop and refine their legal and damages theories and amassed evidence from various state and federal government hearings related to disposable contact lenses.

---

anticipates that they will file a motion for payment of additional notice and claims costs when they file their motion to distribute the settlement funds. Application for additional notice and claims administration costs after payment of fees and expenses is routine in cases such as this. See, e.g., In re Foreign Exchange Benchmark Rates Antitrust Litig., Case No. 1:13-cv-07789-LGS (S.D.N.Y.) (ECF Nos. 1178, 1181).

[4] Lead counsel's fee request of $9,315,960.97 is equal to one-third of the ABB Settlement Amount ($30,200,000), less the expenses requested in this motion of $752,117.10 and the anticipated notice and administration costs of $1,500,000 ($500,000 previously approved by the Court, and $1,000,000 for anticipated future notice and claims administration expenses). The fees and expenses requested in this motion equal 33.34% to the ABB Settlement Amount. Inclusive of the anticipated notice and claims costs, the total is 36.65% of the ABB Settlement Amount.

[5] Lead Counsel will submit a Proposed Order with their reply brief on April 9, 2021, once the opt-out and objection deadline has passed and Lead Counsel have had an opportunity to consider and respond to any objections, should they arise.

B. Procedural History

This case has presented a complex set of legal questions and novel defenses throughout. For nearly six years, Lead Counsel have successfully advanced Plaintiffs' antirust claims against five sophisticated multinational defendants, represented by counsel from some of the largest law firms in the world. After thousands of pages of motion practice, millions of pages of documents exchanged and reviewed in discovery, and hours of depositions and hearings, Lead Counsel have negotiated and obtained class settlements totaling $43,200,000 and prepared the case for trial. Below, Lead Counsel detail their efforts to achieve these results.

This litigation began on March 3, 2015, when Plaintiff John Machikawa, among others, filed the first complaint against the four dominant manufacturers of disposable contact lenses, B&L, Johnson & Johnson Vision Care, Inc. ("JJVC"), Alcon Laboratories, Inc. ("Alcon"), CVI, and their primary distributor, ABB (collectively, "Defendants"), in the U.S. District Court for the Northern District of California ("Machikawa"). The complaints alleged that the Defendants' so-called "Unilateral Pricing Policies" ("UPPs") were illegal restraints on competition under Section One of the Sherman Act, 15 U.S.C. §1, and various state unfair competition laws and sought, inter alia, monetary damages, interest, attorneys' fees, restitution, and equitable relief. Jt. Decl., ¶9.

On June 10, 2015, the Judicial Panel on Multidistrict Litigation consolidated and centralized Machikawa, along with other lawsuits alleging similar wrongdoing, in this Court. Id. The cases were re-captioned In Re: Disposable Contact Lens Antitrust Litigation, No. 3:15-md-02626-J-HES-JRK.

On October 7, 2015, the Court granted Lead Counsel's motion appointing Hausfeld LLP ("Hausfeld"), Scott+Scott Attorneys at Law LLP ("Scott+Scott"), and Robins Kaplan LLP ("Robins Kaplan") as interim co-lead counsel. ECF No. 116. On November 23, 2015, Lead Counsel, on behalf of Plaintiffs, filed the Consolidated Class Action Complaint ("Consolidated Complaint"), asserting six causes of action: (1) Violation of 15 U.S.C. §§1 and 3 (Per Se Violation of the Sherman Act); (2) Violation of 15 U.S.C. §§1 and 3 (Rule of Reason Violations of the Sherman Act); (3) Violation of the California Cartwright Act; (4) Violation of the Maryland Antitrust Act; (5) Violation of the California Unfair Competition Law; and (6) Violation of the Maryland Consumer Protection Act. ECF No. 133.

On December 23, 2015, Defendants filed their Motion to Dismiss the Consolidated Complaint. ECF No. 146. Following briefing and oral argument, the Court denied Defendants' motion. ECF Nos. 185, 190. Discovery commenced on April 1, 2016. ECF No. 204. On July 27, 2016, Defendants filed their Answers and Affirmative Defenses. ECF Nos. 266-70.

The Parties engaged in significant motion practice and extensive formal discovery, including approximately 79 depositions of Plaintiffs, Defendants' employees, experts, and third parties, and the production of more than 4.3 million pages of documents and voluminous electronically stored information by Defendants and third parties. Jt. Decl., ¶¶20-22.

On March 1, 2017, Plaintiffs filed the operative complaint in this matter. ECF No. 395. On March 3, 2017, Plaintiffs filed a Motion for Class Certification with accompanying expert reports. ECF Nos. 396-98. On June 15, 2017, Defendants filed their Motion to Strike certain portions of Plaintiffs' Expert Reports and their Memorandum of Law in Opposition to Plaintiffs' Motion for Class Certification, accompanying expert reports, and other declarations. ECF Nos. 500-10, 693. Plaintiffs filed their Reply in support of their Motion for Class Certification on September 8, 2017, as well as their oppositions to Defendants' Motion to Strike portions of Plaintiffs' Expert Reports. ECF Nos. 611-18, 715. On October 20, 2017, Defendants filed their Sur-Reply Memorandum of Law in Further Opposition to Plaintiffs' Motion for Class Certification. ECF Nos. 674-78. On August 1 and 2, 2018, the Court held a hearing on Plaintiffs'

Class Certification motion, which involved examination and cross-examination of Plaintiffs' and Defendants' experts, presentation of more than 50 exhibits; the hearing spanned more than ten hours. ECF Nos. 865-1, 865-2, 866.

On December 4, 2018, the Court granted Plaintiffs' Motion for Class Certification ("Class Certification Order") and certified four litigation Classes, including the following Horizontal Class:

> All persons and entities residing in the United States who made retail purchases of disposable contact lenses manufactured by Alcon, JJVC, or B&L for their own use and not for resale, where the prices for such contact lenses were subject to a "Unilateral Pricing Policy" and the purchase occurred during the period when the Unilateral Pricing Policy was in effect. Excluded from the Class are any purchases from 1-800[-]Contacts of disposable contact lenses subject to B&L's Unilateral Pricing Policy, where the purchase occurred on or after July 1, 2015. Also excluded from the Class are Defendants, their parent companies, subsidiaries and affiliates, any coconspirators, all governmental entities, and any judges or justices assigned to hear any aspect of this action.

ECF No. 940 at 162. The Court appointed Hausfeld, Scott+Scott, and Robins Kaplan as counsel for the certified Classes and appointed the Plaintiffs as class representatives.

On December 18, 2018, Defendants filed petitions to appeal the Class Certification Order, pursuant to Rule 23(f) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure. The Parties briefed Defendants' petitions. On April 5, 2019, the Eleventh Circuit denied Defendants ABB's and JJVC's petition to appeal the Class Certification Order, and on June 20, 2019, denied Alcon and B&L's virtually identical petition. Jt. Decl., ¶¶31-32.

On August 20, 2018, Defendants filed four motions for summary judgment regarding all of Plaintiffs' claims. ECF Nos. 872-74, 877. Briefing on the motions was completed on December 17, 2018 (ECF No. 942), and a two-day hearing was held on August 21 and 22, 2019. ECF Nos. 1015, 1017. On November 27, 2019, the Court denied Defendants' Motions for Summary Judgement, concluding as follows:

> The Court finds Plaintiffs have produced satisfactory evidence supporting their position that Defendants had a conscious commitment to a common scheme designed to achieve an unlawful objective. There is evidence that the UPPs were instituted pursuant to coordinated pressure exerted by certain ECPs and ABB, the manufacturers sought agreement regarding the UPPs and the Defendants jointly policed the pricing policies. Plaintiffs have also proffered ample evidence of potential or actual anticompetitive market effects, demonstrated the alleged conspiracy was economically reasonable and substantiated their allegation that the UPPs imposed an unreasonable restraint on competition with no pro-competitive benefit.
>
> ***
>
> Finally, the Court finds that Plaintiffs have done more than show conduct that is as consistent with lawful competition as it is with an illicit conspiracy; weighing the competing inferences, it is reasonable for a jury to find Defendants were engaged in an illicit price fixing.

ECF No. 1091 at 23.

For the next few months, the Parties worked to prepare their respective cases for trial, which was then schedule for February of 2020. Jt. Decl., ¶41. This included drafting, exchanging, and meeting and conferring regarding proposed jury instructions, witnesses, deposition designations, and exhibit lists. Id. The Parties also filed competing motions in limine (ECF Nos. 1055, 1056, 1058-61, 1064, 1092, 1103, 1160), which this Court ultimately ruled on, granting some in favor of Defendants and some in favor of Plaintiffs. ECF Nos. 1142, 1150, 1174.

At a January 8, 2020 hearing, the Court set a trial date of June 22, 2020 and a final pre-trial hearing for May 13, 2020. ECF No. 1131. On March 30, 2020, Plaintiffs and Defendants filed a Joint Notice in which they requested the Court's guidance on pre-trial and trial scheduling issues regarding the impact of the COVID-19 pandemic. ECF No. 1178. On April 3, 2020, the Court issued its Order in response, delaying the start of trial indefinitely on account of the many difficulties and dangers of attempting to hold a trial during the pandemic. ECF No. 1180. The Court also urged the parties to use this time to discuss and seriously consider a potential resolution of the litigation. Id.

Defendants have repeatedly denied all of Plaintiffs' allegations of wrongdoing. They have consistently defended their conduct by arguing, inter alia, that the UPPs were lawful and that they never entered into an agreement with anyone to adopt, implement, or enforce the UPPs. Defendants have advanced additional defenses.

C. The Settlements

On August 30, 2017, Plaintiffs reached an "ice-breaker" settlement with Defendant CVI. Joint Decl., ¶48. The settlement included a monetary payment of $3,000,000 and was reached on behalf of the following settlement class:

> All persons and entities residing in the United States who made retail purchases of disposable contact lenses manufactured by Alcon Laboratories, Inc., Johnson & Johnson Vision Care, Inc., Bausch & Lomb, Inc., or CVI (or distributed by ABB Concise Optical Group) during the Settlement Class Period for their own use and not for resale, which were sold at any time subject to a Unilateral Pricing Policy. Excluded from the Settlement Class are Defendants, their parent companies, subsidiaries and affiliates, any coconspirators, all governmental entities, and any judges or justices assigned to hear any aspect of this action.

ECF No. 781-1, ¶1.37 (the "CVI Settlement Class"). On July 10, 2018, the Court preliminarily approved the settlement with CVI, but delayed dissemination of notice. ECF No. 841.

On August 19, 2019, Plaintiffs reached a settlement agreement with Defendant B&L. Jt. Decl., ¶50. The settlement included a monetary payment of $10,000,000 and was reached on behalf of the following settlement class:

> [A]ll persons and entities residing in the United States who made retail purchases of disposable contact lenses manufactured by Alcon Laboratories, Inc., Johnson & Johnson Vision Care, Inc., or B&L during the Settlement Class Period for their own use and not for resale, where the prices for such contact lenses were subject to a Unilateral Pricing Policy and the purchase occurred during the period when the Unilateral Pricing Policy was in effect. Excluded from the Settlement Class are any purchases from 1-800-Contacts of disposable contact lenses subject to B&L's Unilateral Pricing Policy, where the purchase occurred on or after July 1, 2015. Also excluded from the Settlement Class are Defendants, their parent companies, subsidiaries and affiliates, any coconspirators, all governmental entities, and any judges or justices assigned to hear any aspect of this action.

ECF No. 781-1, ¶1.37 (the "B&L Settlement Class"). On October 8, 2019, the Court granted preliminary approval of the B&L settlement and approved a plan to disseminate notice to members of the litigation classes, the CVI Settlement Class, and the B&L Settlement Class. ECF No. 1046.

On January 16, 2020, Plaintiffs filed their Motion for Final Approval of Settlement Agreements with Defendants B&L and CV, as well as a Motion for Payment of Common Expenses and Class Representatives' Service Awards. ECF Nos. 1136, 1137. On February 25, 2020, the Court held a Fairness Hearing regarding the settlements with B&L and CVI. See ECF No. 1154 and February 25, 2020 Hearing Transcript. On March 4, 2020, the Court granted Plaintiffs' Motion for Final Approval and issued its Final Approval Order and Final Judgment and Order of Dismissal with Prejudice as to B&L and CVI. ECF No. 1164. The Court also granted Plaintiffs' Motion for Payment of Common Expenses and Class Representatives' Service Awards. ECF No. 1165.

As permitted by the Court, Lead Counsel withdrew 33.3% ($4,329,000) from the collective $13,000,000 in the B&L and CVI Settlement Funds to cover incurred and anticipated common litigation expenses. Jt. Decl., ¶56.[6] These costs included $664,206.86 for some, but not all, of the future costs Lead Counsel anticipated they would incur to litigate the case through trial. ECF No. 1165. Lead Counsel did not seek any award of attorneys' fees from the settlements with B&L or CVI.

On April 3, 2020, the Court issued an Order regarding the impact of COVID-19 on the case schedule. ECF No. 1180. In the Order's final paragraph, the Court stated that it "sincerely urges the Parties to earnestly confer with each other in a deliberate attempt to reach an agreement that completely resolves this litigation. Specifically, the Court implore[d] the remaining Defendants to have their corporate executives seriously consider this request and the basis for it." Id. at 5.

[6] $3,330,800 was paid from the B&L Settlement Fund and $999,000 was paid from the CVI Settlement Fund. Id.

Plaintiffs and ABB took the Court's words to heart. On Sunday, August 30, 2020, they engaged in a day-long mediation session with former U.S. District Judge, Layn Phillips, via video conference. Jt. Decl., ¶64. Prior to the August 30, 2020 mediation session, the Parties engaged in a series of pre-mediation discussions with Judge Phillips regarding a potential settlement. Id. With Judge Phillips' guidance and assistance, the Parties were able to reach an agreement to resolve the case against ABB. Id. ABB will pay $30,200,000 into a settlement fund in exchange for dismissal and release of all claims against it.[7] Id. The Parties fully executed the Settlement Agreement on September 22, 2020. Id.

On October 22, 2020, Plaintiffs filed their Motion for Preliminary Approval and Notice Plan regarding the ABB Settlement. ECF No. 1215. Because ABB was a distributor of contact lenses made by all of the manufacturer Defendants including Alcon, JJVC, CVI, and B&L, the ABB Settlement Class define the ABB Settlement Class as follows:

> [A]ll persons and entities residing in the United States who made retail purchases of disposable contact lenses manufactured by Alcon, JJVC, CVI, or B&L during the Settlement Class Period for their own use and not for resale, where the prices for such contact lenses were subject to a "Unilateral Pricing Policy" and the purchase occurred during the period when the Unilateral Pricing Policy was in effect. Excluded from the Settlement Class are any purchases from l-800 Contacts of disposable contact lenses subject to B&L's Unilateral Pricing Policy, where the purchase occurred on or after July 1, 2015. Also excluded from the Settlement Class are Defendants, their parent companies, subsidiaries and affiliates, any alleged co-conspirators, all governmental entities, and any judges or justices assigned to hear any aspect of this action.

[7] ABB already paid $500,000 of the Settlement Amount in cash into the Escrow Account controlled by the Escrow Agent for purposes of disseminating notice. ABB will pay the remainder of the Settlement Amount ($29,700,000) into the Escrow Account as follows: 50% of the remainder ($14,850,000) by April 15, 2021, and the remaining balance ($14,850,000) by January 14, 2022. Agreement, ¶3.1.

Agreement, ¶1.35. The ABB Settlement Class tracks the CVI Settlement Class for which the Court has already granted final approval. ECF No. 1164.

On November 4, 2020, the Court held a hearing on the Motion for Preliminary Approval of the ABB Settlement. ECF No. 1219. On November 12, 2020, the Court preliminarily approved the ABB Settlement and approved the Notice Plan. ECF No. 1224.

The Court-approved Notice Plan for the ABB Settlement informed potential Class Members that Lead Counsel would ask the Court for attorneys' fees "up to one-third (33.3%)" of the Settlement Fund, "after payment of Court-approved costs and expenses." ECF No. 1216.

III. ARGUMENT

A. Lead Counsel's Request for 33.3% of the ABB Net Settlement Funds Is Fair and Reasonable

As stated in the ABB Settlement Agreement and Notice Plan, and consistent with standard class action practice and procedure, Lead Counsel respectfully request $9,315,960.97 in attorneys' fees, which equals one-third of the $30,200,000 Settlement Fund, after payment of the already-approved $500,000 in notice costs, $1,000,000 in anticipated claims administration costs, and $752,117.10 in expenses also requested in this Motion. Agreement, ¶9.1; ECF No. 1216; Jt. Decl., ¶84. Lead Counsel's 33.3% fee request is appropriate, fair, and well within the range of reasonableness under the factors established by the Eleventh Circuit in Camden I Condo. Ass'n v. Dunkle, 946 F.2d 768 (11th Cir. 1991). For the reasons detailed herein, Lead Counsel's application for attorneys' fees should be approved.

1. The Law Awards Lead Counsel Fees from the Common Fund

It is well established that when a representative party has conferred a substantial benefit upon a class, counsel is entitled to attorneys' fees based upon the benefit obtained. Camden I, 946 F.2d at 771; Boeing Co. v. Van Gemert, 444 U.S. 472, 478 (1980). The common benefit doctrine serves the "twin goals of removing a potential financial obstacle to a plaintiff's pursuit of a claim on behalf of a class and of equitably distributing the fees and costs of successful litigation among all who gained from the named plaintiff's efforts." In re Gould Secs. Litig., 727 F. Supp. 1201, 1203 (N.D. Ill. 1989).[8] The common benefit doctrine stems from the premise that those who receive the benefit of a lawsuit without contributing to its costs are "unjustly enriched" at the expense of the successful litigant. Boeing, 444 U.S. at 478. As a result, the Supreme Court, the Eleventh Circuit, and courts in this District have all recognized that "'[a] litigant or a lawyer who recovers a common fund for the benefit of persons other than himself or his client is entitled to a reasonable attorney's fee from the fund as whole.'" In re Sunbeam Secs. Litig., 176 F. Supp. 2d 1323, 1333 (quoting Boeing, 444 U.S. at 478); see also Camden I, 946 F.2d at 771 ("Attorneys in a class action in which a common fund is created are entitled to compensation for their services from the common fund, but the amount is subject to court approval."). Courts have also recognized that appropriate fee awards in cases such as this encourage redress for wrongs caused to entire classes of persons and deter future misconduct of a similar nature. See, e.g., Mashburn v. Nat'l Healthcare, Inc., 684 F. Supp. 660, 687 (M.D. Ala. 1988); see also Deposit Guar. Nat'l Bank v. Rope, 445 U.S. 326, 338-39 (1980). Adequate compensation promotes the availability of counsel for aggrieved persons:

> If the plaintiffs' bar is not adequately compensated for its risk, responsibility, and effort when it is successful, then effective representation for plaintiffs in these cases will disappear. . . . We as members of the judiciary must be ever watchful to avoid being isolated from the experience of those who are actively engaged in the practice of law. It is difficult to evaluate the effort it takes to successfully and ethically prosecute a large plaintiffs' class action suit. It is an experience in which few of us have participated. The dimensions of the undertaking are awesome.

Muehler v. Land O'Lakes, Inc., 617 F. Supp. 1370, 1376 (D. Minn. 1985).

[8] Unless otherwise noted, citations are omitted.

In the Eleventh Circuit, class counsel receives a percentage of the funds obtained through a settlement. In Camden I, the Eleventh Circuit held that "the percentage of the fund approach [as opposed to the lodestar approach] is the better reasoned in a common fund case. Henceforth in this [C]ircuit, attorneys' fees awarded from a common fund shall be based upon a reasonable percentage of the fund established for the benefit of the class." 946 F.2d at 774. Courts in this Circuit have applied the percentage of the fund approach since, holding as follows:

> The Eleventh Circuit made clear in Camden I that percentage of the fund is the exclusive method for awarding fees in common fund class actions. Camden I, 946 F.2d at 774. Even before Camden I, courts in this Circuit recognized that "a percentage of the gross recovery is the only sensible method of awarding fees in common fund cases." [Mashburn, 684 F. Supp. at 670.] More importantly, the Court observed first hand the monumental effort exerted by Class Counsel in this case, and does not need to see timesheets to know how much work Class Counsel have put in to reach this point.

In re Checking Account Overdraft Litig., 830 F. Supp. 2d 1330, 1362 (S.D. Fla. 2011).

The Court has discretion in determining an appropriate fee. "'There is no hard and fast rule mandating a certain percentage of a common fund which may be awarded as a fee because the amount of any fee must be determined upon the facts of each case.'" Sunbeam, 176 F. Supp. 2d at 1333 (quoting Camden I, 946 F.2d at 774). Nonetheless, "'[t]he majority of common fund fee awards fall between 20% to 30% of the fund'" – though "'an upper limit of 50% of the fund may be stated as a general rule.'" Id. (quoting Camden I, 946 F.2d at 774-75); see also Waters v. Int'l Precious Metals Corp., 190 F.3d 1291 (11th Cir. 1999) (approving fee award where the district court determined that the benchmark should be 30% and then adjusted the fee award higher in view of the circumstances of the case); Wolff v. Cash 4 Titles, No. 03-2278-CIV, 2012 WL 5290155, at *5-6 (S.D. Fla. Sept. 26, 2012) ("The average percentage award in the Eleventh Circuit mirrors that of awards nationwide – roughly one-third"); Theodore Eisenberg, et al., Attorneys' Fees in Class Actions: 2009-2013, 92 N.Y.U. L. REV. 937, 951 (2017) (showing, through an empirical study, that the median fee award in Eleventh Circuit is 33% and the mean is 30%). Lead Counsel's fee request falls within this accepted range. See, e.g., In re CNL Hotels & Resorts, Inc. Secs. Litig., No. 04-cv-01231 (M.D. Fla. Aug. 1, 2006) (granting 34% in fees, over $12 million, of a $35 million class settlement); Johns Manville v. Tennessee Valley Auth., No. 99-2294 (N.D. Ala. Aug. 20, 2007) (awarding 35% as fees for a $18 million class settlement); Neal v. Chase Manhattan Bank, U.S.A., N.A., No. 06-00049 (S.D. Ala. May 30, 2006) (awarding 37% in fees of $2.7 million class settlement).

2. Application of the Camden I Factors Supports the Requested Fee

In the Eleventh Circuit, courts use the below factors to determine a reasonable percentage to award as an attorneys' fee to class counsel in class actions:

(1) the time and labor required;

(2) the novelty and difficulty of the relevant questions;

(3) the skill required to properly carry out the legal services;

(4) the preclusion of other employment by the attorney as a result of his acceptance of the case;

(5) the customary fee;

(6) whether the fee is fixed or contingent;

(7) time limitations imposed by the clients or the circumstances;

(8) the results obtained, including the amount recovered for the clients;

(9) the experience, reputation, and ability of the attorneys;

(10) the "undesirability" of the case;

(11) the nature and the length of the professional relationship with the clients; and

(12) fee awards in similar cases.

Camden I, 946 F.2d at 772 n.3 (citing factors originally set forth in Johnson v. Georgia Highway Express, Inc., 488 F.2d 714, 717-19 (5th Cir. 1974)).

These factors are guidelines; they are neither exhaustive nor mandatory in every case. See Sunbeam, 176 F. Supp. 2d at 1333 (quoting Camden I, 946 F.2d at 775) ("'Other pertinent factors are the time required to reach a settlement, whether there are any substantial objections by class members or other parties to the settlement terms or the fees requested by counsel, any non-monetary benefits conferred upon the class by the settlement, and the economics involved in prosecuting a class action.'"); id. at 1333-34 (encouraging "'the lower courts to consider additional factors unique to the particular case'") (quoting Walco Investments, Inc. v. Thenen, 975 F. Supp. 1468, 1472 (S.D. Fla.1997)). As applied here, the Camden I factors demonstrate that the Court should approve the requested fee.

a) Litigating This Complex and Novel Case Required Substantial Time and Labor

Litigating and settling these claims demanded considerable time and labor, making this fee request reasonable. Jt. Decl., ¶¶71-75. Since the inception of this case, Lead Counsel ensured their efforts were efficient and coordinated to minimize duplication of effort. Id., ¶72. Lead Counsel's efforts have been considerable; it is a massive undertaking to advance such a complex multi-defendant antitrust class action such as this to the precipice of trial. Id., ¶¶71-75.

Consideration of the novelty and difficulty of the questions involved in the case further support the fee request here. Lead Counsel acquired and analyzed, along with experts, a substantial amount of factual and legal information. Id., ¶73. Litigation of this action required counsel who were highly trained in class action law and procedure, as well as the specialized antitrust issues, presented here. Lead Counsel possess these attributes, and their participation added value to the representation of the Classes. Id., ¶74. The record demonstrates that the action involved a broad range of complex challenges by Defendants, which Lead Counsel met at every juncture. Id., ¶¶74-75. For example, Defendants have repeatedly argued to this Court, and the Eleventh Circuit, that Plaintiffs lack standing to bring this lawsuit because they are not direct purchasers under the antitrust laws (ECF Nos. 505, 674, 906-908, 912, 930, 931, 934, 935, 967, 1015, 1016, 1023), an issue on which Lead Counsel prevailed at every turn. ECF Nos. 940, 993, 1091. The ability and knowledge to successfully navigate the nuanced issues regarding purchaser standing in antitrust matters is rare, even among class action attorneys. Thankfully, Lead Counsel were able to draw on their decades of combined experience representing plaintiffs in large antitrust class actions to successfully counter Defendants' arguments. Jt. Decl., ¶76.

In evaluating the quality of representation by Lead Counsel, the Court should also consider the quality of opposing counsel. See Camden I, 946 F.2d at 772 n.3; Ressler v. Jacobson, 149 F.R.D. 561, 654 (M.D. Fla. 1992). Litigating against capable opposing attorneys regarding an array of complex legal issues, Lead Counsel maintained a superlative quality of novel legal work, which conferred a substantial benefit on the Settlement Class. Jt. Decl., ¶¶71-77. Throughout the litigation, Plaintiffs, represented by Lead Counsel, have repeatedly prevailed against Defendants represented by experienced counsel from some of the world's largest law firms. Id., ¶77; see also Checking Account Overdraft, 830 F. Supp. 2d at 1348 ("Class Counsel confronted not merely a single large bank, but 'the combined forces of a substantial portion of the entire American banking industry, and with them a large contingent of some of the largest and most sophisticated law firms in the country.'"); Walco Invs., Inc. v. Thenen, 975 F. Supp. 1468, 1472 (S.D. Fla. 1997) ("Given the quality of defense counsel from prominent national law firms, the Court is not confident that attorneys of lesser aptitude could have achieved similar results.").

b) Lead Counsel Achieved a Successful Result Considering the Litigation Risks

Rather than face uncertainty at trial, the Settlement Class Members who file valid and timely claims will receive a meaningful cash benefit. Jt. Decl., ¶64. The ABB Settlement is particularly noteworthy given the combined litigation risks over the more than five years of litigation. Id., ¶¶60, 63. Defendants raised numerous defenses. Success under these circumstances was far from certain, and this Settlement represents a fantastic result.

Prosecuting this action was risky from the outset. Id. If Defendants had been successful in even one of their potentially dispositive motions, members of the Classes would have obtained limited to no recovery for their losses. Given these risks, as well as the complexity of the litigation and the significant risks and barriers that loomed in the absence of Settlement, the $30,200,000 cash recovery obtained through the ABB Settlement is outstanding.

The recovery achieved by this Settlement must be measured against the fact that any recovery by Plaintiffs and Settlement Class Members, through continued litigation, could only have been achieved if Plaintiffs and the certified litigation Classes established liability and recovered damages at trial; and the final judgment was affirmed on appeal. The Settlement is, therefore, an extraordinary recovery for the Settlement Class in light of all of the risks that Lead Counsel faced and continue to face. Id.

c) Lead Counsel Assumed Considerable Risk to Pursue This Action on a Pure Contingency Basis

In undertaking to litigate this complex case on a contingent-fee basis, Lead Counsel assumed a significant risk of nonpayment or underpayment. Id., ¶78. That risk warrants approval of the requested fee. Indeed, "'[a] contingency fee arrangement often justifies an increase in the award of attorney's fees.'" Sunbeam, 176 F. Supp. 2d at 1335 (quoting Behrens v. Wometco Enters., Inc., 118 F.R.D. 534, 548 (S.D. Fla. 1988), aff'd, 899 F.2d 21 (11th Cir. 1990); see also

In re Continental Ill. Sec. Litig., 962 F.2d 566 (7th Cir. 1992) (holding that when a common fund case has been prosecuted on a contingent-fee basis, plaintiffs' counsel must be adequately compensated for the risk of non-payment); Ressler, 149 F.R.D. at 656 ("Numerous cases recognize that the attorney's contingent fee risk is an important factor in determining the fee award.").

Public policy concerns – in particular, ensuring the continued availability of experienced and capable counsel to represent classes of injured plaintiffs holding small individual claims – support the requested fee. As courts in this Circuit have held:

> Generally, the contingency retainment must be promoted to assure representation when a person could not otherwise afford the services of a lawyer. . . . A contingency fee arrangement often justifies an increase in the award of attorney's fees. This rule helps assure that the contingency fee arrangement endures. If this "bonus" methodology did not exist, very few lawyers could take on the representation of a class client given the investment of substantial time, effort, and money, especially in light of the risks of recovering nothing.

Behrens, 118 F.R.D. at 548.

The progress of the action shows the inherent risk faced by Lead Counsel in accepting and prosecuting the action on a contingency-fee basis. Despite Lead Counsel's tireless work in litigating this action for almost six years, Lead Counsel have, until now, neither requested nor received compensation for the considerable time they have invested in this case. Jt. Decl., ¶79. Under Eleventh Circuit precedent, this fact supports an award of the requested fee.

d) The Requested Fee Comports with Fees Awarded in Similar Cases

The fee sought here is within the range of fees typically awarded in similar cases. Numerous decisions within and outside of the Eleventh Circuit have found that a 33.3% fee is within the range of reasonableness under the factors listed by Camden I. See, e.g., Waters, 190 F.3d 1291 (11th Cir. 1999) (affirming fee award of $33^{1}/_{3}$% on settlement of $40 million); Morgan

v. Pub. Storage, 301 F. Supp. 3d 1237, 1257-58 (S.D. Fla. 2016) ("[A] fee award of 33% . . . is consistent with attorneys' fees awards in federal class actions in this Circuit . . . .").[9]

Lead Counsel's fee request also falls within the range of what is customary in the private legal marketplace, where contingency fee arrangements often approach or equal 40% of any recovery. See Acad. Mortg. Corp., 369 F. Supp. 3d at 1382 ("Plaintiffs request for approval of Class Counsel's 33% fee falls within the range of the private marketplace, where contingency-fee arrangements are often between 30 and 40 percent of any recovery."); Continental, 962 F.2d at 572 ("The object in awarding a reasonable attorneys' fee . . . is to simulate the market.").[10] This, too, supports an award of the requested fee.

---

[9] See also In re Checking Account Overdraft Litig., 2020 WL 4586398, at *22 (S.D. Fla. Aug. 10, 2020) (35%); George v. Acad. Mortg. Corp. (UT), 369 F. Supp. 3d 1356, 1375 (N.D. Ga. 2019) (33.3%); Pierre-Val v. Buccaneers Ltd. P'ship, 2015 WL 12843849, at *2 (M.D. Fla. Dec. 7, 2015) (32%). Allapattah Servs., Inc. v. Exxon Corp., 454 F. Supp. 2d 1185, 1210 (S.D. Fla. 2006) (31.3%); Gutter v. E.I. Dupont De Nemours & Co., 95-2152-CIV-Gold (S.D. Fla. May 30, 2003) (33.3%); Sands Point Partners, LP v. Pediatrix Med. Group, Inc., 2002 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 25721 (S.D. Fla. 2002) (30%); In re CHS Elecs., Inc. Sec. Litig., 99-8186-CIV-Gold (S.D. Fla. 2002) (30%); Ehrenreich v. Sensormatic Elecs. Corp., 95-6637-CIV-Zloch (S.D. Fla. 1998) (30%); Tapken v. Brown, 90-0691-CIV-Marcus (S.D. Fla. 1995) (33%); In re Friedman's, Inc. Sec. Litig., 2009 WL 1456698 (N.D. Ga. May 22, 2009) (30%); Francisco v. Numismatic Guar. Corp. of Am., 2008 WL 649124 (S.D. Fla. 2008) (30%); Pinto v. Princess Cruise Lines, Ltd., 513 F. Supp. 2d 1334 (S.D. Fla. 2007) (30%); In re BellSouth Corp. Sec. Litig., Civil Action No. 1:02-cv-2142-WSD (N.D. Ga. Apr. 9, 2007) (30%); In re Cryolife, Inc. Sec. Litig., Civil Action No. 1:02-cv-1868-BBM (N.D. Ga. Nov. 9, 2005) (30%); In re Profit Recovery Group Int'l, Inc. Sec. Litig., Civil Action No. 1:00-cv-1416-CC (N.D. Ga. May 26, 2005) (33.25%); In re Clarus Corp. Sec. Litig., Civil Action No. 1:00-CV-2841-CAP (N.D. Ga. Jan. 6, 2005) (33.25%); In re Pediatric Servs. of Am., Inc. Sec. Litig., Civil Action No. 1:99-CV-0670-RLV (N.D. Ga. Mar. 15, 2002) (33.25%); Ressler v. Jacobson, 149 F.R.D. 651 (M.D. Fla. 1992) (30%).

[10] See also RJR Nabisco, Inc. Sec. Litig., [1992 Transfer Binder] Fed. Sec. L. Rep. (CCH) ¶94, 268 (S.D.N.Y. 1992) ("[W]hat should govern [fee] awards is . . . what the market pays in similar cases."); In re Public Serv. Co. of N.M., 1992 WL 278452, at *7 (S.D. Cal. July 28, 1992) ("If this were a non-representative litigation, the customary fee arrangement would be contingent, on a percentage basis, and in the range of 30% to 40% of the recovery."); 1 COURT AWARDED ATTORNEY FEES, ¶2.06[3], at 2-88 (Matthew Bender 2010) (noting that, "when appropriate circumstances have been identified, a court may award a percentage significantly higher" than 25%); 4 NEWBERG ON CLASS ACTIONS, §14:6, at 551 (4th ed. 2002) ("Empirical studies show that,

e) The Remaining Camden I Factors Also Favor Approving the Requested Fee

The remaining Camden I factors further support granting the fee request. As demonstrated by the experience and acumen of Lead Counsel throughout this litigation, Lead Counsel are among the most highly regarded attorneys in their field. Jt. Decl., ¶74. Indeed, Lead Counsel have been recognized by their peers for their superlative work in litigating this case specifically. Id., ¶80. Had Lead Counsel not been so skilled in these matters, the Classes might not have received a similar result. Without adequate compensation and financial reward, cases such as this simply would not be pursued despite the widespread aggregate harm to consumers. As courts have held, "given the positive societal benefits to be gained from lawyers' willingness to undertake difficult and risky, yet important, work like this, such decisions must be properly incentivized." Checking Account Overdraft, 830 F. Supp. 2d at 1364.

In sum, the record here justifies Lead Counsel's fee request.

3. The Expense Request Is Appropriate

Lead Counsel also request reimbursement $752,117.10 in expenses. Jt. Decl., ¶83; see Mills v. Electric Auto-Lite Co., 396 U.S. 375, 391-92 (1970). This sum reflects the common litigation expenses that have been invoiced or paid from the litigation since final approval of the B&L and CVI Settlements. These expenses are comprised of: (1) $500,208.37 in fees and expenses incurred for experts and their support staff; (2) $172,316.30 in data hosting fees; (3) $45,790.00 in mediator's fees and expenses incurred for the services rendered by Hon. Layn Phillips and the staff at Phillips ADR; (4) $31,711.50 in trial consultant fees; (5) $553.20 in process regardless whether the percentage method or the lodestar method is used, fee awards in class actions average around one-third of the recovery.").

---

server fees; and (6) $1,537.73 in printing fees.[11] Id. These out-of-pocket expenses were reasonably and necessarily incurred and paid in furtherance of the prosecution of this Action and are outside of those contemplated in Lead Counsel's previous request for costs. Id.; ECF No. 1137. "There is no doubt that an attorney who has created a common fund for the benefit of the class is entitled to reimbursement of . . . reasonable litigation expenses from that fund." Ontiveros v. Zamora, 303 F.R.D. 356, 375 (E.D. Cal. 2014); see also Behrens, 118 F.R.D. at 549 ("[P]laintiff's counsel is entitled to be reimbursed from the class fund for the reasonable expenses incurred in this action."). Courts in this Circuit have thus routinely approved payment of expenses from the common fund where they were reasonable and necessary for the litigation. See Columbus Drywall & Insulation, Inc. v. Masco Corp., No. 1:04-cv-3066, 2008 WL 11234103, at *6 (N.D. Ga. Mar. 4, 2008) (approving $2.4 million for reimbursement of litigation expenses); Swift v. BancorpSouth Bank, No. 1:10-cv-00090, 2016 WL 11529613, at *20 (N.D. Fla. July 15, 2016) (approving application for reimbursement of costs that "were necessarily incurred in furtherance of the litigation of the Action and the Settlement"); Ressler, 149 F.R.D. at 657 (approving requested expenses as reasonable and necessary); see also Mills v. Elec. Auto-Lite Co., 396 U.S. 375, 391-92 (1970); In re Ikon Office Sols., Inc. Secs. Litig., 194 F.R.D. 166, 192 (E.D. Pa. 2000).

IV. FAIRNESS HEARING

Lead Counsel request that the Court set a date and time for a Fairness Hearing regarding this Motion and the concurrently filed Motion for Final Approval. Lead Counsel and ABB's counsel have conferred and are happy to make themselves available for a hearing, remote or in person, should state and federal COVID protocols allow, at the Court's convenience any time during the week of May 10, 2021, consistent with the Court's Preliminary Approval Order. ECF No. 1224. This will give any interested parties and/or objectors thirty (30) days to review Plaintiffs' and Lead Counsel's reply briefs in further support of this Motion and the Motion for Final Approval, to be filed on April 9, 2021.

[11] Lead Counsel are prepared to submit detailed invoices for in camera review should the Court believe it prudent.

V. CONCLUSION

The Settlement with ABB, which secures $30,200,000 in cash compensation for the benefit of the Settlement Class, represents an excellent result, particularly given the obstacles confronted in this case. Lead Counsel's application for attorneys' fees and expenses is reasonable and consistent with governing law. The request more than satisfies the guidelines of Camden I in light of the results achieved, the significant litigation risks, the complexity of the factual and legal issues, and the time, effort, and skill required to litigate claims of this nature to a satisfactory conclusion.

Accordingly, Plaintiffs and Lead Counsel respectfully request that the Court: (1) promptly set a date and time for the Fairness Hearing during the week of May 10, 2021 regarding this Motion and the concurrently filed Motion for Final Approval; and (2) award Lead Counsel the requested $9,315,960.97 in attorneys' fees and $752,117.10 in incurred and anticipated expenses.

Dated: February 26, 2021

Respectfully submitted,

s/ Joseph P. Guglielmo
Joseph P. Guglielmo
Thomas K. Boardman
SCOTT+SCOTT
ATTORNEYS AT LAW LLP
The Helmsley Building
230 Park Avenue, 17th Floor
New York, NY 10169
Telephone: (212) 223-6444
Facsimile: (212) 223-6334
jguglielmo@scott-scott.com
tboardman@scott-scott.com

John A. DeVault, III
Florida Bar No. 103979
BEDELL, DITTMAR, DEVAULT,
PILLANS & COXE, P.A.
101 East Adams Street
Jacksonville, FL 32202
Telephone: (904) 353-0211
Facsimile: (904) 353-9307
jad@bedellfirm.com

Plaintiffs' Local Counsel

Christopher M. Burke
SCOTT+SCOTT
ATTORNEYS AT LAW LLP
600 W. Broadway, Suite 3300
San Diego, CA 92101
Telephone: (619) 233-4565
Facsimile: (619) 233-0508
cburke@scott-scott.com

Co-Lead Class Counsel

Michael E. Lockamy
Florida Bar No. 69626
BEDELL, DITTMAR, DEVAULT,
PILLANS & COXE, P.A.
101 East Adams Street
Jacksonville, FL 32202
Telephone: (904) 353-0211
Facsimile: (904) 353-9307
mel@bedellfirm.com

Robert C. Gilbert
Florida Bar No. 561861
KOPELOWITZ OSTROW FERGUSON
WEISELBERG GILBERT
2800 Ponce de Leon Boulevard, Suite 1100
Coral Gables, FL 33134
Telephone: (305) 384-7270
gilbert@kolawyers.com

Plaintiffs' Liaison Counsel

Eamon O'Kelly
Benjamin Steinberg
ROBINS KAPLAN LLP
399 Park Avenue, Suite 3600
New York, NY 10022
Telephone: (212) 980-7400
Facsimile: (212) 980-7499
hsalzman@robinskaplan.com
eokelly@robinskaplan.com
bsteinberg@robinskaplan.com

Co-Lead Class Counsel

Michael D. Hausfeld
James J. Pizzirusso
Nathaniel C. Giddings
HAUSFELD LLP
888 16th Street NW, Suite 300
Washington, DC 20006
Telephone: (202) 540-7200
Facsimile: (202) 540-7201
mhausfeld@hausfeld.com
jpizzirusso@hausfeld.com
ngiddings@hausfeld.com

Michael P. Lehmann
Bonny E. Sweeney
Christopher L. Lebsock
HAUSFELD LLP
600 Montgomery Street, Suite 3200
San Francisco, CA 94111
Telephone: (415) 633-1908
Facsimile: (415) 217-6813
mlehmann@hausfeld.com
bsweeney@hausfeld.com
clebsock@hausfeld.com

Co-Lead Class Counsel

George W. Sampson
SAMPSON DUNLAP LLP
1001 4th Ave., Suite 3200
Seattle, WA 98154
Telephone: (206) 414-8340
george@sampsondunlap.com

Plaintiffs' Trial Counsel

Dennis Stewart
HULETT HARPER STEWART LLP
225 Broadway, Suite 1350
San Diego, CA 92101
Telephone: (619) 338-1133
Facsimile: (619) 338-1139
dennis@hulettharper.com

Plaintiffs' Trial Counsel

Steven C. Marks
PODHURST ORSECK, P.A.
One S.E. 3rd Avenue
Miami, FL 33131
Telephone: (305) 358-2800
Facsimile: (305) 358-2382
smarks@podhurst.com

Plaintiffs' Trial Counsel

CERTIFICATE OF SERVICE

I hereby certify that on February 26, 2021, I caused the foregoing to be electronically filed with the Clerk of the Court using the CM/ECF system, which will send notification of such filing to the email addresses denoted on the Electronic Mail Notice List.

Dated: February 26, 2021

s/ Joseph P. Guglielmo
Joseph P. Guglielmo

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
MIDDLE DISTRICT OF FLORIDA
JACKSONVILLE DIVISION

In Re: DISPOSABLE CONTACT LENS ANTITRUST LITIGATION	Case No. 3:15-md-2626-HES-JRK Judge Harvey E. Schlesinger Magistrate Judge James R. Klindt
THIS DOCUMENT RELATES TO: All Class Actions

LEAD COUNSEL'S APPLICATION FOR AN AWARD OF ATTORNEYS' FEES AND REIMBURSEMENT OF EXPENSES

TABLE OF CONTENTS

I. PRELIMINARY STATEMENT 1

II. STATEMENT OF FACTS 2

A. Recent Procedural History 3

B. The Settlements 4

III. ARGUMENT 10

A. Lead Counsel's Request for a Third of the Gross Settlement Fund Is Fair, Reasonable, and Commonly Granted in this Circuit 10

B. Lead Counsel Is Entitled to Fees from the Common Fund 10

C. The Camden I Factors Support the Requested Fee 13

1. Litigating This Complex and Novel Case Required Substantial Time, Labor, and Expertise 14

2. Lead Counsel Achieved a Successful Result Considering the Litigation Risks 16

3. Lead Counsel Assumed Considerable Risk Litigating This Case on a Pure Contingency Basis 17

4. The Requested Fee Comports with Fees Awarded in Similar Cases 18

5. The Remaining Camden I Factors Also Favor Approving the Requested Fee 21

D. The Expense Request Is Appropriate 21

IV. FAIRNESS HEARING 23

V. CONCLUSION 23

TABLE OF AUTHORITIES

Page(s)

Cases

Behrens v. Wometco Enters., Inc.,
118 F.R.D. 534 (S.D. Fla. 1988), aff'd, 899 F.2d 21 (11th Cir. 1990) 18, 22

Boeing Co. v. Van Gemert,
444 U.S. 472 (1980) 10, 11

Camden I Condo. Ass'n v. Dunkle,
946 F.2d 768 (11th Cir. 1991) 10, 11, 12, 14, 16

In re Checking Account Overdraft Litig.,
No. 1:09-MD-02036, 2020 WL 4586398 (S.D. Fla. Aug. 10, 2020)..... 19

In re Checking Account Overdraft Litig.,
830 F. Supp. 2d 1330 (S.D. Fla. 2011)..... 12, 16, 21

Columbus Drywall & Insulation, Inc. v. Masco Corp.,
No. 1:04-cv-3066, 2008 WL 11234103 (N.D. Ga. Mar. 4, 2008)..... 23

In re Continental Ill. Sec. Litig.,
962 F.2d 566 (7th Cir. 1992) 17, 20

Deposit Guar. Nat'l Bank v. Rope,
445 U.S. 326 (1980) 11

George v. Acad. Mortg. Corp. (UT),
369 F. Supp. 3d 1356 (N.D. Ga. 2019) 19, 20

In re Ikon Office Sols., Inc. Secs. Litig.,
194 F.R.D. 166 (E.D. Pa. 2000) 23

Mashburn v. Nat'l Healthcare, Inc.,
684 F. Supp. 660 (M.D. Ala. 1988) 11, 12

Mills v. Electric Auto-Lite Co.,
396 U.S. 375 (1970) 21, 22, 23

Morgan v. Pub. Storage,
301 F. Supp. 3d 1237 (S.D. Fla. 2016)..... 19

Muehler v. Land O'Lakes, Inc.,
617 F. Supp. 1370 (D. Minn. 1985) 12

Ontiveros v. Zamora,
303 F.R.D. 356 (E.D. Cal. 2014) 22

Pierre-Val v. Buccaneers Ltd. P'ship,
No.: 8:14–cv–01182, 2015 WL 12843849 (M.D. Fla. Dec. 7, 2015) 19

In re Public Serv. Co. of N.M.,
No. 91–0536M, 1992 WL 278452 (S.D. Cal. July 28, 1992) 20

Ressler v. Jacobson,
149 F.R.D. 561 (M.D. Fla. 1992) 16

Ressler v. Jacobson,
149 F.R.D. 651 (M.D. Fla. 1992) (30%) 17, 23

RJR Nabisco, Inc. Sec. Litig.,
MDL No. 818, No. 88 Civ. 7905, 1992 WL 210138 (S.D.N.Y. Aug. 24, 1992) 20

In re Sunbeam Secs. Litig.,
176 F. Supp. 2d 1323 ..... 11, 13, 14, 17

Swift v. BancorpSouth Bank,
No. 1:10-cv-00090, 2016 WL 11529613 (N.D. Fla. July 15, 2016) 23

Walco Investments, Inc. v. Thenen,
975 F. Supp. 1468 (S.D. Fla.1997) 16, 17

Waters v. Int'l Precious Metals Corp.,
190 F.3d 1291 (11th Cir. 1999) 13, 19

Wolff v. Cash 4 Titles,
No. 03-2278-CIV, 2012 WL 5290155 (S.D. Fla. Sept. 26, 2012) 13

Other Authorities

1 COURT AWARDED ATTORNEY FEES, ¶ 2.06[3] (Matthew Bender 2010) 20

4 NEWBERG ON CLASS ACTIONS, §14:6 (4th ed. 2002) 20

Theodore Eisenberg, et al., Attorneys' Fees in Class Actions: 2009-2013, 92 N.Y.U. L. REV. 937, 951 (2017).....13

For the reasons set forth below, Lead Counsel request that the Court enter an order: (1) setting a date and time for the Fairness Hearing regarding this Motion and the concurrently filed Motion for Final Approval of Settlement Agreements with Defendants Alcon Vision, LLC ("Alcon") and Johnson & Johnson Vision Care, Inc. ("JJVCI") ("Motion for Final Approval"); and (2) awarding Lead Counsel the requested $29,333,333 in attorneys' fees from the CooperVision ("CVI"), Bausch & Lomb ("B&L"), Alcon, and JJVCI Settlements and $1,640,110.77 in unreimbursed costs and expenses, plus interest.[1]

I. PRELIMINARY STATEMENT

After over seven years of hard-fought litigation spanning motions to dismiss, sharply contested discovery, class certification, petitions for interlocutory appeal, multiple motions for summary judgment, and months of extensive trial preparations, Lead Counsel reached settlements with the two last remaining Defendants, Alcon and JJVCI, just days before trial was scheduled to begin in March of 2022. The Settlements provide tremendous relief to Class Members, and, along with the previous Settlements with Defendants CVI, B&L, and ABB, will fully resolve this litigation upon the Court's Approval. In light of their work securing this excellent result, Lead Counsel respectfully request that the Court award attorneys' fees of $29,333,333, equal to one-third of the combined $75,000,000 Alcon and JJVCI Settlement Funds ($25,000,000),

[1] Lead Counsel will submit a Proposed Order with their reply brief after they have the final information regarding settlement participation and the Class's reaction to the Settlements following the opt-out and objection deadline and with sufficient time for review by Class Members in advance of the Fairness Hearing.

plus one-third of the combined $13,000,000 B&L and CVI Settlement Funds ($4,333,333) from which Lead Counsel has not yet requested attorney's fees.[2] Lead Counsel also request reimbursement of $1,640,110.77 in unreimbursed litigation expenses. The requested award of attorneys' fees and expenses is well within the range approved by courts in this District and this Circuit, as well as in antitrust class actions nationwide. As per the Settlement Agreements, Counsel for Defendants take no position on Lead Counsel's application for fees and costs. See CVI, B&L, Alcon, and JJVCI Agreements, Section 9.

In addition, because the Court has not yet set a date for the Fairness Hearing, Lead Counsel respectfully requests that the Court do so.

II. STATEMENT OF FACTS

This case has presented a complex and novel set of legal questions, requiring a sustained investment of time and resources from Lead Counsel. Throughout this seven-year litigation, Defendants vigorously denied Plaintiffs' allegations at each stage, challenged Plaintiffs' standing, and defended their conduct by arguing, inter alia, that the UPPs were lawful and did not give rise to any agreement or damages. Nonetheless, Lead Counsel successfully advanced Plaintiffs' antirust claims against five sophisticated multinational defendants represented by some of the largest law firms in the world. After thousands of pages of motion practice, millions of pages of documents exchanged and reviewed in discovery, and months of depositions, hearings, and trial preparations, Lead Counsel negotiated and obtained class settlements totaling $75,000,000 for the final two remaining Defendants, approval of which would bring this long-running litigation to a close. The additional $75,000,000 brings the total value of all settlements reached in this litigation to $118,500,000. Below, Lead Counsel detail their efforts to achieve these results.

[2] As noted herein, Lead Counsel have not yet received any award of attorneys' fee from any of these four settlements, including the previously approved CVI and B&L Settlements. Lead Counsel requested and received $4,369,000 in spent and forward-looking litigation costs and incentive awards for the Class Representatives from the CVI and B&L Settlements, but merely reserved the right to later ask for attorney fees from those Settlements. ECF No. 1134, p.6 n7. The notice for the CVI and B&L Settlements informed potential class members that "Lead Counsel will ask the Court for attorneys' fees up to one-third (33.3%) of the [CVI/B&L] Settlement[s] and/or reimbursement for costs and expenses for their work in the Litigation." ECF No. 1037-4, p.83. No Class Members objected to the CVI or B&L Settlements or Lead Counsel's request for costs on any grounds. Jt. Decl. ¶ 61. If any Class Members wish to object to Lead Counsel's request for fees from the CVI and B&L Settlements, they should be allowed to be heard at the to be scheduled Fairness Hearing regarding the Alcon and JJVCI Settlements.

A. Recent Procedural History

Lead Counsel incorporates by reference all procedural history predating the Court's order granting of Plaintiffs' Motion for Final Approval of the ABB Settlement (ECF No. 1257) and order granting of Lead Counsel's Application for an Award of Attorneys' Fees and Reimbursement of Expenses from the ABB Settlement Fund (ECF No. 1258), as detailed in the previously filed motions and supporting documents regarding approval of settlements and requests for attorneys' fees and reimbursement of costs. ECF Nos. 781, 1037, 1136, 1137, 1138, 1215, 1241, 1243, 1337.

On July 27, 2021, the Court rescheduled the trial for March 28, 2022. ECF No. 1266. On December 20, 2021, the United States Judicial Panel on Multidistrict Litigation issued an order assigning Judge Virginia M. Hernandez Covington as an additional judge to oversee the trial, which was later moved to Tampa, Florida. ECF No. 1290. Judge Covington held virtual pretrial conferences with the remaining parties on January 21, 2022 (ECF No. 1297) and March 9, 2022 (ECF No. 1316).

Lead Counsel dedicated substantial resources to preparing the case for trial in advance of the new March 28, 2022 trial date. Most of Lead Counsels' trial team, including key support staff and witnesses, relocated to Tampa, Florida in mid-March to oversee final trial preparations. Jt. Decl. ¶ 47. This work included finalizing the presentation and cross-examination of fact and expert witnesses, deposition designations, trial exhibits and graphics, and opening statements. Id.

On March 15, 2022, Alcon and JJVCI filed a motion requesting that the Court give certain jury instructions regarding antitrust injury and proximate causation (ECF No. 1317), which Plaintiffs opposed on March 24, 2022 (ECF No. 1332). On Friday, March 25, 2022, after multiple rounds of meet and confers, JJVCI and Plaintiffs submitted their final proposed jury instructions. ECF No. 1333. Had the case not fully settled, as detailed below, trial proceeding would have commenced on Monday, March 28, 2022.

B. The Settlements

On August 30, 2017, Plaintiffs reached an "ice-breaker" settlement with Defendant CVI. Jt. Decl. ¶ 52. The settlement included a monetary payment of $3,000,000 and was reached on behalf of the following settlement class:

> All persons and entities residing in the United States who made retail purchases of disposable contact lenses manufactured by Alcon Laboratories, Inc., Johnson & Johnson Vision Care, Inc., Bausch &

> Lomb, Inc., or CVI (or distributed by ABB Concise Optical Group) during the Settlement Class Period for their own use and not for resale, which were sold at any time subject to a Unilateral Pricing Policy. Excluded from the Settlement Class are Defendants, their parent companies, subsidiaries and affiliates, any coconspirators, all governmental entities, and any judges or justices assigned to hear any aspect of this action.

ECF No. 781-1, ¶ 1.37 (the "CVI Settlement Class").

On July 10, 2018, the Court preliminarily approved the settlement with CVI, but delayed dissemination of notice. ECF No. 841.

On August 19, 2019, Plaintiffs reached a settlement agreement with Defendant B&L. Jt. Decl. ¶ 54. The settlement included a monetary payment of $10,000,000 and was reached on behalf of the following settlement class:

> [A]ll persons and entities residing in the United States who made retail purchases of disposable contact lenses manufactured by Alcon Laboratories, Inc., Johnson & Johnson Vision Care, Inc., or B&L during the Settlement Class Period for their own use and not for resale, where the prices for such contact lenses were subject to a Unilateral Pricing Policy and the purchase occurred during the period when the Unilateral Pricing Policy was in effect. Excluded from the Settlement Class are any purchases from 1-800-Contacts of disposable contact lenses subject to B&L's Unilateral Pricing Policy, where the purchase occurred on or after July 1, 2015. Also excluded from the Settlement Class are Defendants, their parent companies, subsidiaries and affiliates, any coconspirators, all governmental entities, and any judges or justices assigned to hear any aspect of this action.

ECF No. 1037-1, ¶ 1.35 (the "B&L Settlement Class").

On October 8, 2019, the Court granted preliminary approval of the B&L settlement and approved a plan to disseminate notice to members of the litigation classes, the CVI Settlement Class, and the B&L Settlement Class. ECF No. 1046. The notice for the CVI and B&L Settlements informed potential class members that "Lead Counsel will ask the Court for attorneys' fees up to one-third (33.3%) of the [CVI/B&L] Settlement[s] and/or reimbursement for costs and expenses for their work in the Litigation." ECF No. 1037-4, p.83.

On January 16, 2020, Plaintiffs filed their Motion for Final Approval of Settlement Agreements with Defendants B&L and CVI, as well as a Motion for Payment of Common Expenses and Class Representatives' Service Awards. ECF Nos. 1136, 1137. The Motion for Payment of Common Expenses informed the potential Class Members that while Lead Counsel were not seeking attorneys' fees at the time, "Lead Counsel reserve their right to seek an award of attorneys' fees and unreimbursed costs at an appropriate point in the future." ECF No. 1137, p. 6 n.7. On February 25, 2020, the Court held a Fairness Hearing regarding the settlements with B&L and CVI. See ECF No. 1154 and February 25, 2020 Hearing Transcript. On March 4, 2020, the Court granted Plaintiffs' Motion for Final Approval and issued its Final Approval Order and Final Judgment and Order of Dismissal with Prejudice as to B&L and CVI. ECF No. 1164. The Court also granted Plaintiffs' Motion for Payment of Common Expenses and Class Representatives' Service Awards. ECF No. 1165.

As permitted by the Court, Lead Counsel withdrew $4,329,000 from the collective $13,000,000 in the B&L and CVI Settlement Funds to cover incurred and anticipated common litigation expenses. Jt. Decl. ¶ 60.[3] These costs included

[3] $3,330,800 was paid from the B&L Settlement Fund and $999,000 was paid from the CVI Settlement Fund. Id.

$664,206.86 for some, but not all, of the future costs Lead Counsel anticipated they would incur to litigate the case through trial. ECF No. 1165. Until now, Lead Counsel have not sought any award of attorneys' fees from the settlements with B&L or CVI.

On April 3, 2020, the Court issued an Order regarding the impact of COVID-19 on the case schedule. ECF No. 1180. In the Order's final paragraph, the Court "sincerely urge[d] the Parties to earnestly confer with each other in a deliberate attempt to reach an agreement that completely resolves this litigation. Specifically, the Court implores the remaining Defendants to have their corporate executives seriously consider this request and the basis for it." Id. at 5.

On Sunday, August 30, 2020, the Plaintiffs and ABB engaged in a day-long mediation session with former U.S. District Judge, Layn Phillips, via video conference. Jt. Decl. ¶ 62. The parties then reached and executed the ABB Settlement Agreement on September 22, 2020, under which ABB agreed to pay $30,200,000 into a settlement fund in exchange for dismissal and release of all claims against it. Id.

On October 22, 2020, Plaintiffs filed their Motion for Preliminary Approval and Notice Plan regarding the ABB Settlement. ECF No. 1215. On November 4, 2020, the Court held a hearing on the Motion for Preliminary Approval of the ABB Settlement. ECF No. 1219. On November 12, 2020, the Court preliminarily approved the ABB Settlement and approved the Notice Plan. ECF No. 1224. On February 26, 2021, Plaintiffs filed motions for Final Approval of the ABB Settlement and for an Award of Attorneys' Fees and Costs. ECF Nos. 1241, 1242. On May 19, 2021, the Court held a Fairness Hearing regarding the Motion for Final Approval and Award of Attorneys'

Fees and Costs. ECF No. 1254. On June 1, 2021, the Court granted Final Approval and Final Judgment as to the ABB Settlement and granted Lead Counsel's request for attorneys' fees ($9,315,960.97), notice costs ($1,000,000) and incurred and anticipated litigation costs ($752,117.10). ECF Nos. 1257, 1258. In doing so, the Court certified the following ABB Settlement Class:

> All persons and entities residing in the United States who made retail purchases of disposable contact lenses manufactured by Alcon, JJVC, CVI, or B&L during the Settlement Class Period for their own use and not for resale, where the prices for such contact lenses were subject to a "Unilateral Pricing Policy" and the purchase occurred during the period when the Unilateral Pricing Policy was in effect. Excluded from the Settlement Class are any purchases from 1-800 Contacts of disposable contact lenses subject to B&L's Unilateral Pricing Policy, where the purchase occurred on or after July 1, 2015. Also excluded from the Settlement Class are Defendants, their parent companies, subsidiaries and affiliates, any alleged co-conspirators, all governmental entities, and any judges or justices assigned to hear any aspect of this action.

ECF No. 1257, p.6.

The ABB Settlement Class is identical to the proposed Alcon and JJVCI Settlement Classes. Jt. Decl. ¶ 97.

JJVCI and Plaintiffs participated in an all-day mediation on September 1, 2020 overseen by Hon. Layn Phillips (Ret.). Id. ¶ 74. The initial mediation did not result in an agreement, and JJVCI and Plaintiffs continued preparing their respective cases for trial. Id. Plaintiffs engaged in further settlement negotiations with both Alcon and JJVCI in the weeks preceding trial.

On Friday, February 25, 2022, Plaintiffs and Alcon engaged in a day-long mediation with Robert Meyer of JAMS in Los Angeles, California. Id. ¶ 73. Although the initial mediation did not result in a settlement, Plaintiffs and Alcon continued their settlement negotiations through Mr. Meyer as they prepared for trial. Id. On March 23, 2022, just five days before trial, Plaintiffs and Alcon agreed to settle the action for $20,000,000 and executed the Alcon Settlement. Id.

Plaintiffs also continued their negotiations with JJVC with the assistance of Judge Phillips and his staff. Id. ¶ 74. These negotiations culminated on March 26, 2022 in an agreement in principle to settle the action as to JJVCI for $55,000,000. Id. JJVCI and Plaintiffs executed the JJVCI Settlement the next day on March 27, 2022, just one day before the start of trial proceedings. ECF No. 1334. On March 28, 2022, the day trial was to begin, the Court entered an order canceling the trial. ECF No. 1335. On April 20, 2022, Lead Counsel filed a Motion for Preliminary Approval of Settlements with Defendants Alcon and JJVCI. ECF No. 1337. The Court granted the Preliminary Approval Motion on May 9, 2022. ECF No. 1343. The Notice Plan proposed in the Preliminary Approval Motion was thereafter implemented. The Court-approved Notice Plan informed potential Settlement Class Members that "Lead Counsel will ask the Court for attorneys' fees of up to one-third (33.3%) of the Alcon and JJVCI Settlement Funds, as well as reimbursement of costs and expenses incurred by Lead Counsel during the litigation." Id.; ECF No. 1337-4. Lead Counsel now bring this Motion and the concurrently-filed Motion for Final Approval.

III. ARGUMENT

A. Lead Counsel's Request for a Third of the Gross Settlement Fund Is Fair, Reasonable, and Commonly Granted in this Circuit

As set forth in the Settlement Agreements and Notice Plan, and consistent with standard class action practice and procedure, Lead Counsel respectfully request $29,333,333 in attorneys' fees, which equals one-third of the total $75,000,000 from the JJVCI and Alcon Settlement Funds ($25 million), plus one-third of the total $13,000,000 from the CVI and B&L Settlement Funds ($4.333 million). Agreements, ¶ 9.1; ECF No. 1337. Lead Counsel's fee request of a third is appropriate, fair, and well within the range of reasonableness under the factors established by the Eleventh Circuit in Camden I Condo. Ass'n, Inc. v. Dunkle, 946 F.2d 768 (11th Cir. 1991). For the reasons detailed herein, Lead Counsel's application for attorneys' fees should be approved.

B. Lead Counsel Is Entitled to Fees from the Common Fund

It is well established that when a representative party has conferred a substantial benefit upon a class, counsel is entitled to attorneys' fees based upon the benefit obtained. Camden I, 946 F.2d at 771; Boeing Co. v. Van Gemert, 444 U.S. 472, 478 (1980). The common benefit doctrine permits "the creation of a common fund in order to pay reasonable attorneys' fees for legal services beneficial to persons other than a particular client, thus spreading the cost of the litigation to all beneficiaries." In re Abilify (Aripiprazole) Prods. Liab. Litig., No. 3:16-md-2734, 2019 WL 7859557, at *5 (N.D. Fla. Dec. 6, 2019), report and recommendation adopted, 2019 WL 7019219 (N.D.

Fla. Dec. 21, 2019).[4] The common benefit doctrine stems from the premise that those who receive the benefit of a lawsuit without contributing to its costs are "unjustly enriched" at the expense of the successful litigant. Boeing, 444 U.S. at 478.

As a result, the Supreme Court, the Eleventh Circuit, and courts in this District have all recognized that "'[a] litigant or a lawyer who recovers a common fund for the benefit of persons other than himself or his client is entitled to a reasonable attorney's fee from the fund as a whole.'" In re Sunbeam Secs. Litig., 176 F. Supp. 2d 1323, 1333 (quoting Boeing, 444 U.S. at 478); see also Camden I, 946 F.2d at 771 ("Attorneys in a class action in which a common fund is created are entitled to compensation for their services from the common fund, but the amount is subject to court approval."). Courts have also recognized that appropriate fee awards in cases such as this encourage redress for wrongs caused to entire classes of persons and deter future misconduct of a similar nature. See, e.g., Mashburn v. Nat'l Healthcare, Inc., 684 F. Supp. 660, 687 (M.D. Ala. 1988); see also Deposit Guar. Nat'l Bank v. Roper, 445 U.S. 326, 338-39 (1980). This is because adequate attorney compensation promotes the availability of counsel for aggrieved persons:

> If the plaintiffs' bar is not adequately compensated for its risk, responsibility, and effort when it is successful, then effective representation for plaintiffs in these cases will disappear. . . . We as members of the judiciary must be ever watchful to avoid being isolated from the experience of those who are actively engaged in the practice of law. It is difficult to evaluate the effort it takes to successfully and ethically prosecute a large plaintiffs' class action suit. It is an experience > in which few of us have participated. The dimensions of the undertaking are awesome.

[4] Unless otherwise noted, citations, and quotations are omitted.

Muehler v. Land O'Lakes, Inc., 617 F. Supp. 1370, 1376 (D. Minn. 1985).

In the Eleventh Circuit, class counsel receive a percentage of the funds obtained through a settlement. In Camden I, the Eleventh Circuit held that "the percentage of the fund approach [as opposed to the lodestar approach] is the better reasoned in a common fund case. Henceforth in this [C]ircuit, attorneys' fees awarded from a common fund shall be based upon a reasonable percentage of the fund established for the benefit of the class." 946 F.2d at 774. Courts in this Circuit have applied the percentage of the fund approach since, holding as follows:

> The Eleventh Circuit made clear in Camden I that percentage of the fund is the exclusive method for awarding fees in common fund class actions. Camden I, 946 F.2d at 774. Even before Camden I, courts in this Circuit recognized that "a percentage of the gross recovery is the only sensible method of awarding fees in common fund cases." [Mashburn, 684 F. Supp. at 670.] More importantly, the Court observed first hand the monumental effort exerted by Class Counsel in this case, and does not need to see timesheets to know how much work Class Counsel have put in to reach this point.

In re Checking Account Overdraft Litig., 830 F. Supp. 2d 1330, 1362 (S.D. Fla. 2011).

The Court has discretion in determining an appropriate fee. "'There is no hard and fast rule mandating a certain percentage of a common fund which may be awarded as a fee because the amount of any fee must be determined upon the facts of each case.'" Sunbeam, 176 F. Supp. 2d at 1333 (quoting Camden I, 946 F.2d at 774). Nonetheless, "'[t]he majority of common fund fee awards fall between 20% to 30% of the fund'" – though "'an upper limit of 50% of the fund may be stated as a general rule.'" Id. (quoting Camden I, 946 F.2d at 774-75); see also Waters v. Int'l Precious Metals Corp., 190 F.3d 1291 (11th Cir. 1999) (approving fee award where the district court determined that the benchmark should be 30% and then adjusted the fee award higher in view of the circumstances of the case); Wolff v. Cash 4 Titles, No. 03-22778-CIV, 2012 WL 5290155, at *5-6 (S.D. Fla. Sept. 26, 2012) ("The average percentage award in the Eleventh Circuit mirrors that of awards nationwide – roughly one-third"); Theodore Eisenberg, et al., Attorneys' Fees in Class Actions: 2009-2013, 92 N.Y.U. L. REV. 937, 951 (2017) (showing, through an empirical study, that the median fee award in Eleventh Circuit is 33% and the mean is 30%). Lead Counsel's fee request falls within this accepted range and the practice within the Eleventh Circuit.

C. The Camden I Factors Support the Requested Fee

In the Eleventh Circuit, courts use the below factors to determine a reasonable percentage to award as an attorneys' fee to class counsel in class actions:

(1) the time and labor required;

(2) the novelty and difficulty of the questions involved;

(3) the skill requisite to perform the legal service properly;

(4) the preclusion of other employment by the attorney due to acceptance of the case;

(5) the customary fee;

(6) whether the fee is fixed or contingent;

(7) time limitations imposed by the client or the circumstances;

(8) the amount involved and the results obtained;

(9) the experience, reputation, and ability of the attorneys;

(10) the "undesirability" of the case;

(11) the nature and the length of the professional relationship with the clients; and

(12) [fee] awards in similar cases.

Camden I, 946 F.2d at 772 n.3 (citing factors originally set forth in Johnson v. Georgia Highway Express, Inc., 488 F.2d 714, 717-19 (5th Cir. 1974)).

These factors are guidelines; they are neither exhaustive nor mandatory in every case. See Sunbeam, 176 F. Supp. 2d at 1333 (quoting Camden I, 946 F.2d at 775) ("'Other pertinent factors are the time required to reach a settlement, whether there are any substantial objections by class members or other parties to the settlement terms or the fees requested by counsel, any non-monetary benefits conferred upon the class by the settlement, and the economics involved in prosecuting a class action.'"); id. at 1333-34 (encouraging "'the lower courts to consider additional factors unique to the particular case'") (quoting Walco Investments, Inc. v. Thenen, 975 F. Supp. 1468, 1472 (S.D. Fla.1997)). Here, the Camden I factors demonstrate that the Court should approve the requested fee.

1. Litigating This Complex and Novel Case Required Substantial Time, Labor, and Expertise

The enormous amount of time, labor, and expertise that Lead Counsel invested over the course of this seven-year litigation demonstrates that their fee request is reasonable. Lead Counsel and supporting attorneys and staff invested well over $50 million worth of their time prosecuting Plaintiffs' claims all the way until the literal eve of trial. Jt. Decl. ¶ 81. The value of that time exceeds, by a significant margin, the $29,333,333 in fees that Lead Counsel now seek, plus the $9,315,960.97 in attorney's fees the Court approved as part of the ABB Settlement. There is thus no possibility that Lead Counsel will receive anything close to a windfall if their fee request is granted.[5]

The novelty and difficulty of this case also supports Lead Counsels' fee request. Lead Counsel navigated, along with their experts, millions of pages of documents, novel questions of antitrust standing and damages, complex econometric analyses, and intersecting issues of horizontal, vertical, and hub-and-spoke conspiracy law. Id. ¶ 84. Litigation of this type required counsel who were highly trained in class action law and procedure, as well as the specialized antitrust issues presented here. Lead Counsel possess these attributes and met these challenges at every juncture. Id.

For example, Defendants repeatedly argued to this Court and the Eleventh Circuit that Plaintiffs lacked standing because they were not direct purchasers of contact lenses under the antitrust laws. See ECF Nos. 505, 674, 906-908, 912, 930, 931, 934, 935, 967, 1015, 1016, 1023. Yet Lead Counsel prevailed on this question at every turn, drawing on decades of combined antitrust class action experience to successfully counter Defendants' standing arguments. Jt. Decl. ¶ 85; ECF Nos. 940, 993, 1091.

---

[5] Should the Court grant this motion in full, it would bring the total of attorneys' fees awarded to Lead Counsel to $38,649,294 when added to the $9,315,960.97 in fees granted from the ABB Settlement. ECF No. 1258. That total award of attorneys' fees would represent 32.6% of the total $118,500,000 in settlement funds in all of the litigation. As discussed at length herein, such a percentage is well within the range of attorneys' fees granted from settlement funds in the Eleventh Circuit and slightly less than the full third that each settlement notice set as a cap.

The Court should also consider the quality of opposing counsel when evaluating Lead Counsel's contributions. See Camden I, 946 F.2d at 772 n.3; Ressler v. Jacobson, 149 F.R.D. 561, 654 (M.D. Fla. 1992). Here, Lead Counsel repeatedly prevailed against Defendants represented by experienced counsel from some of the world's largest law firms. Jt. Decl. ¶ 87; see also Checking Account Overdraft, 830 F. Supp. 2d at 1348 ("Class Counsel confronted not merely a single large bank, but 'the combined forces of a substantial portion of the entire American banking industry, and with them a large contingent of some of the largest and most sophisticated law firms in the country.'"); Walco Invs., Inc. v. Thenen, 975 F. Supp. 1468, 1472 (S.D. Fla. 1997) ("Given the quality of defense counsel from prominent national law firms, the Court is not confident that attorneys of lesser aptitude could have achieved similar results."). The fact that Lead Counsel secured such successful settlements despite facing top notch opposition weighs in favor of their fee request.

2. Lead Counsel Achieved a Successful Result Considering the Litigation Risks

Rather than face uncertainty at trial, Lead Counsel secured settlements that will provide excellent cash compensation to the Settlement Class. The total $88,000,000 cash recovery obtained through the CVI, B&L, Alcon, and JJVCI Settlements is an outstanding result, particularly when compared to the risks that Plaintiffs faced over the course of the case, including the many trial risks that remained at the time of settlement. Jt. Decl. ¶¶ 70, 72.

Prosecuting this action was risky from the outset. Id. If Defendants had been successful in even one of their dispositive motions, or on any of their standing or class certification arguments, members of the Classes might have recovered little-to-nothing at all. Indeed, even after overcoming those challenges, Plaintiffs still faced meaningful risks in establishing liability and damages at trial, and then litigating those issues on appeal. These risks underscore the successful nature of the Settlements secured by Lead Counsel. Id.

3. Lead Counsel Assumed Considerable Risk Litigating This Case on a Pure Contingency Basis

In undertaking this complex case on a contingent-fee basis, Lead Counsel assumed a significant risk of nonpayment or underpayment. Id. ¶ 88. That risk warrants approval of the requested fee. Indeed, "'[a] contingency fee arrangement often justifies an increase in the award of attorneys' fees.'" Sunbeam, 176 F. Supp. 2d at 1335 (quoting Behrens v. Wometco Enters., Inc., 118 F.R.D. 534, 548 (S.D. Fla. 1988), aff'd, 899 F.2d 21 (11th Cir. 1990); see also In re Continental Ill. Sec. Litig., 962 F.2d 566 (7th Cir. 1992) (holding that when a common fund case has been prosecuted on a contingent-fee basis, plaintiffs' counsel must be adequately compensated for the risk of non-payment); Ressler, 149 F.R.D. at 656 ("Numerous cases recognize that the attorney's contingent fee risk is an important factor in determining the fee award.").

Public policy concerns – namely, ensuring that experienced and capable counsel are available to represent classes of plaintiffs holding small individual claims – support the requested fee. As courts in this Circuit have held:

> Generally, the contingency retainment must be promoted to assure representation when a person could not otherwise afford the services of a lawyer. . . . A contingency fee arrangement often justifies an increase in the award of attorneys' fees. This rule helps assure that the contingency fee arrangement endures. If this "bonus" methodology did not exist, very few lawyers could take on the representation of a class client given the investment of substantial time, effort, and money, especially in light of the risks of recovering nothing.

Behrens, 118 F.R.D. at 548.

The progress of the case shows the inherent risk faced by Lead Counsel in prosecuting this case on a contingency-fee basis. Despite Lead Counsel's work in litigating this action for more than seven years, Lead Counsel have only once been compensated with attorneys' fees (as part of the ABB Settlement) for the considerable time they have invested in this case . Jt. Decl. ¶ 65. Eleventh Circuit precedent dictates that Lead Counsel should also be entitled to fees from the CVI, B&L, Alcon, and JJVCI Settlement given the work they performed on a contingent-fee basis to secure those settlements.

4. The Requested Fee Comports with Fees Awarded in Similar Cases

The fee sought here is consistent with the fees typically awarded in similar cases and with Eleventh Circuit guidelines. "The average percentage award in the Eleventh Circuit mirrors that of awards nationwide – roughly one-third." Wolff, 2012 WL 5290155, at *5-6; see also Theodore Eisenberg, et al., Attorneys' Fees in Class Actions: 2009-2013, 92 N.Y.U. L. REV. 937, 951 (2017) (showing, through an empirical study, that the median fee award in Eleventh Circuit is 33% and the mean is 30%).

Fees of one-third of the gross settlement fund are thus commonplace and reasonable under the Camden I factors. See, e.g., Waters, 190 F.3d 1291 (affirming fee award of a third of $40 million settlement); Morgan v. Pub. Storage, 301 F. Supp. 3d 1237, 1257-58 (S.D. Fla. 2016) ("[A] fee award of 33% . . . is consistent with attorneys' fees awards in federal class actions in this Circuit . . . ."). "Courts within this Circuit have routinely awarded attorneys' fees of 33 percent or more of the gross settlement fund." Fernandez v. Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Smith Inc., No. 15-22782, 2017 WL 7798110, at *4 (S.D. Fla. Dec. 18, 2017); see also, e.g., In re Checking Account Overdraft Litig., No. 1:09-MD-02036, 2020 WL 4586398, at *22 (S.D. Fla. Aug. 10, 2020) (35% of gross common fund); George v. Acad. Mortg. Corp. (UT), 369 F. Supp. 3d 1356, 1382 (N.D. Ga. 2019) ("one-third of a common fund"); Pierre-Val v. Buccaneers Ltd. P'ship, No.: 8:14–cv–01182, 2015 WL 12843849, at *2 (M.D. Fla. Dec. 7, 2015) (32% of gross common fund); Barba v. Shire U.S., Inc., No. 13-cv-21158, ECF No. 441 at 11 (S.D. Fla. Dec. 2, 2016) (awarding attorneys' fees of 35% of the settlement fund where the litigation was "very hard fought," complex, and required a considerable amount of effort); Reyes, et al. v. AT&T Mobility Servs., LLC, Case No. 10-20837, ECF No. 196 at 6 (S.D. Fla. Jun. 21, 2013) (Cooke, J.) (awarding a third of the total maximum settlement fund, noting that the award was consistent with the trend in this Circuit); Waters v. Cook's Pest Control, Inc., No. 2:07–cv–00394, 2012 WL 2923542, at *16-19 (N.D. Ala. July 17, 2012) (awarding fees of 35% based on the complexities of the case, including complex discovery issues, where "defense counsel presented a vigorous defense at every stage of the case, requiring multiple hearings on motions to quash and motions for protective orders"); In re: Terazosin Hydrochloride Antitrust Litigation, No. 99-1317 (S.D. Fla. Apr. 19, 2005) (awarding fees of one-third of settlement of over $30 million); Gutter v. E.I. Dupont De Nemours & Co., No. 95-2152 (S.D. Fla. May 30, 2003) (awarding fees of one-third of the gross settlement fund of $77.5 million).

Lead Counsel's fee request of a third also falls within the range of what is customary in the private legal marketplace, where contingency fee arrangements often approach or equal 40% of any recovery. See Acad. Mortg. Corp., 369 F. Supp. 3d at 1382 ("Plaintiffs request for approval of Class Counsel's 33% fee falls within the range of the private marketplace, where contingency-fee arrangements are often between 30 and 40 percent of any recovery."); Continental, 962 F.2d at 572 ("The object in awarding a reasonable attorney's fee . . . is to simulate the market.").[6] This, too, supports granting Lead Counsel's fee request.

[6] See also RJR Nabisco, Inc. Sec. Litig., MDL No. 818, No. 88 Civ. 7905, 1992 WL 210138, at *7 (S.D.N.Y. Aug. 24, 1992) ("[W]hat should govern [fee] awards is . . . what the market pays in similar cases."); In re Public Serv. Co. of N.M., No. 91–0536M, 1992 WL 278452, at *7 (S.D. Cal. July 28, 1992) ("If this were a non-representative litigation, the customary fee arrangement would be contingent, on a percentage basis, and in the range of 30% to 40% of the recovery."); 1 COURT AWARDED ATTORNEY FEES, ¶ 2.06[3], at 2-88 (Matthew Bender 2010) (noting that, "when appropriate circumstances have been identified, a court may award a percentage significantly higher" than 25%); 4 NEWBERG ON CLASS ACTIONS, §14:6, at 551 (4th ed. 2002) ("Empirical studies show that, regardless whether the percentage method or the lodestar method is used, fee awards in class actions average around one-third of the recovery.").

5. The Remaining Camden I Factors Also Favor Approving the Requested Fee

The remaining Camden I factors further support Lead Counsel's fee request. As demonstrated by the experience and acumen of Lead Counsel throughout this litigation, Lead Counsel are among the most highly regarded attorneys in their field. Jt. Decl. ¶¶ 4, 5, 70, 72. Indeed, Lead Counsel have been recognized by their peers for their achievements in this case specifically. Id. ¶ 70. Without reasonable attorney compensation, important cases like this might not be pursued private counsel despite the widespread harm to consumers. "[G]iven the positive societal benefits to be gained from lawyers' willingness to undertake difficult and risky, yet important, work like this, such decisions must be properly incentivized." Checking Account Overdraft, 830 F. Supp. 2d at 1364. Fees should be granted to Lead Counsel on this basis, as well.

D. The Expense Request Is Appropriate

Lead Counsel also request reimbursement of $1,640,110.77 in unreimbursed expenses incurred by Plaintiffs' Counsel in this action, plus interest. Jt. Decl. ¶¶ 92, 93; see Mills v. Elec. Auto-Lite Co., 396 U.S. 375, 391-92 (1970). This sum reflects the litigation expenses incurred by Lead Counsel and supporting firms throughout the litigation that have yet to be reimbursed. These expenses are comprised of: (1) $12,192.88 in expenses incurred for experts, trial consultants, and their support staff; (2) $156,069.16 in electronic legal research fees; (3) $34,147.00 in court fees and expenses; (4) $23,644.05 in telephone fees; (5) $582.15 in process server fees; (6) $72,908.53 in printing fees; (7) $644,307.72 in travel, housing, and office fees, including those paid by Lead and Trial Counsel during final preparation for trial in Tampa, FL; (8) $4,095.70 in fees regarding depositions and court reporters; (9) $28,490.44 in postage and courier fees; (10) $5,331.25 for investigator costs; (11) $1,022.71 in staff overtime costs; (12) $36,990.67 for other miscellaneous costs, including supplies; (13) $790,000.00 in unreimbursed litigation fund assessments; and less the $169,671.49 currently remaining in the litigation fund.[7] Jt. Decl. ¶ 93. These out-of-pocket expenses were reasonably and necessarily incurred and paid in furtherance of the prosecution of this Action and exclude the expenses that were previously reimbursed. Id.; ECF No. 1137. All costs submitted by supporting firms have been attested to as reasonable and necessary expenses incurred in prosecuting this action in sworn declarations by knowledgeable attorneys from those firms. Jt. Decl. ¶ 93. "There is no doubt that an attorney who has created a common fund for the benefit of the class is entitled to reimbursement of reasonable litigation expenses from that fund." Ontiveros v. Zamora, 303 F.R.D. 356, 375 (E.D. Cal. 2014); see also Behrens, 118 F.R.D. at 549 ("[P]laintiff's counsel is entitled to be reimbursed from the class fund for the reasonable expenses incurred in this action."). Courts in this Circuit thus routinely approve payment of expenses from the common fund where they were reasonable and necessary for the litigation. See Columbus Drywall & Insulation, Inc. v. Masco Corp., No. 1:04-cv-3066, 2008 WL 11234103, at *6 (N.D. Ga. Mar. 4, 2008)

[7] Lead Counsel are prepared to submit detailed records and sworn declarations from supporting counsel for review should the Court believe it prudent.

(approving $2.4 million for reimbursement of litigation expenses); Swift v. BancorpSouth Bank, No. 1:10-cv-00090, 2016 WL 11529613, at *20 (N.D. Fla. July 15, 2016) (approving application for reimbursement of costs that "were necessarily incurred in furtherance of the litigation of the Action and the Settlement"); see also Ressler, 149 F.R.D. at 657; Mills, 396 U.S. at 391-92; In re Ikon Office Sols., Inc. Secs. Litig., 194 F.R.D. 166, 192 (E.D. Pa. 2000).

IV. FAIRNESS HEARING

Lead Counsel request that the Court set a date and time for a Fairness Hearing regarding this Motion and the concurrently filed Motion for Final Approval. Lead Counsel and counsel for Alcon and JJVCI have conferred and are happy to make themselves available for a hearing at the Court's convenience any time on Wednesday, September 21, 2022, or any date thereafter, consistent with the Court's Preliminary Approval Order. ECF No. 1343. This will give any interested parties and/or objectors fifteen (15) days to review Plaintiffs' and Lead Counsel's reply brief in further support of this Motion and the Motion for Final Approval, to be filed on September 6, 2022.

V. CONCLUSION

Lead Counsel have achieved settlements totaling $118,500,000 throughout the seven years it took to resolve this litigation, including $88,000,000 from which they have not been paid for their efforts. Lead Counsel's application for attorneys' fees and expenses is reasonable and consistent with governing law and common practice. It should be granted given the excellent results Lead Counsel achieved; the significant risks and complex legal issues Lead Counsel faced; and the time, effort, and skill Lead Counsel invested to prosecute this case up to the eve of trial.

Accordingly, Plaintiffs and Lead Counsel respectfully request that the Court: (1) promptly set a date and time for the Fairness Hearing regarding this Motion and the concurrently filed Motion for Final Approval, as described above; and (2) award Lead Counsel the requested $29,333,333 in attorneys' fees and $1,640,110.77 in incurred and anticipated expenses, plus interest.

Dated: July 22, 2022

Respectfully submitted,

s/ Thomas K. Boardman
Thomas K. Boardman
Joseph P. Guglielmo
SCOTT+SCOTT
ATTORNEYS AT LAW LLP
The Helmsley Building
230 Park Avenue, 17th Floor
New York, NY 10169
Telephone: (212) 223-6444
Facsimile: (212) 223-6334
tboardman@scott-scott.com
jguglielmo@scott-scott.com

Christopher M. Burke
SCOTT+SCOTT
ATTORNEYS AT LAW LLP
600 W. Broadway, Suite 3300
San Diego, CA 92101
Telephone: (619) 233-4565
Facsimile: (619) 233-0508
cburke@scott-scott.com

Benjamin Steinberg
ROBINS KAPLAN LLP

John A. DeVault, III
Florida Bar No. 103979
Michael E. Lockamy
Florida Bar No. 69626
BEDELL, DITTMAR, DEVAULT, PILLANS & COXE, P.A.
101 East Adams Street
Jacksonville, FL 32202
Telephone: (904) 353-0211
Facsimile: (904) 353-9307
jad@bedellfirm.com
mel@bedellfirm.com

Plaintiffs' Local Counsel

George W. Sampson
SAMPSON DUNLAP LLP
1001 4th Ave., Suite 3200
Seattle, WA 98154
Telephone: (206) 414-8340
george@sampsondunlap.com

1325 Avenue of the Americas
Suite 2601
New York, NY 10019
Telephone: (212) 980-7400
Facsimile: (212) 980-7499
bsteinberg@robinskaplan.com

Michael D. Hausfeld
Nathaniel C. Giddings
HAUSFELD LLP
888 16th Street NW, Suite 300
Washington, DC 20006
Telephone: (202) 540-7200
Facsimile: (202) 540-7201
mhausfeld@hausfeld.com
ngiddings@hausfeld.com

Michael P. Lehmann
Christopher L. Lebsock
HAUSFELD LLP
600 Montgomery Street, Suite 3200
San Francisco, CA 94111
Telephone: (415) 633-1908
Facsimile: (415) 217-6813
mlehmann@hausfeld.com
clebsock@hausfeld.com

Co-Lead Class Counsel

Dennis Stewart
GUSTAFSON GLUEK PLLC
600 W. Broadway, Suite 3300
San Diego, CA, 92101
Telephone: (612) 333-8844
Facsimile: (612) 339-6622
dstewart@gustafsongluek.com

Plaintiffs' Trial Counsel

Robert C. Gilbert
Florida Bar No. 561861
KOPELOWITZ OSTROW
FERGUSON WEISELBERG
GILBERT
2800 Ponce de Leon Boulevard
Suite 1100
Coral Gables, FL 33134
Telephone: (305) 384-7270
gilbert@kolawyers.com

Plaintiffs' Liaison Counsel

CERTIFICATE OF SERVICE

I hereby certify that on July 22, 2022, I caused the foregoing to be electronically filed with the Clerk of the Court using the CM/ECF system, which will send notification of such filing to the email addresses denoted on the Electronic Mail Notice List.

s/ Thomas K. Boardman
Thomas K. Boardman

TAB 56A

IN THE UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT FOR THE NORTHERN DISTRICT OF ILLINOIS EASTERN DIVISION

IN RE: DEALER MANAGEMENT SYSTEMS ANTITRUST LITIGATION This Document Relates To: THE DEALERSHIP CLASS ACTION	MDL No. 2817 Case No. 18-cv-00864 Honorable Rebecca R. Pallmeyer

FINAL ORDER AND JUDGMENT FOR SETTLEMENT BETWEEN THE CDK SETTLEMENT CLASS AND CDK GLOBAL, LLC AND APPLICATION FOR ATTORNEYS' FEES, COSTS AND CLASS REPRESENTATIVE SERVICE AWARDS

WHEREAS, the Dealership Class Plaintiffs and CDK Global, LLC ("CDK") have entered into a Settlement Agreement Between the Dealership Class and CDK (the "Settlement" or "Agreement"), dated August 15, 2024, to settle the Dealership Class Action as against CDK; and

WHEREAS, on August 23, 2024, by Preliminary Approval Order for Settlement Between the CDK Settlement Class and CDK ("Preliminary Approval Order") (ECF No. 1531), this Court (a) preliminarily approved the Settlement; (b) ordered that notice of the proposed Settlement be provided to the CDK Settlement Class; (c) provided CDK Settlement Class Members with the opportunity either to exclude themselves from or to object to the proposed Settlement; and (d) scheduled a hearing regarding final approval of the Settlement (the "Settlement Hearing"); and

WHEREAS, due and adequate notice has been provided to the CDK Settlement Class in accordance with the Preliminary Approval Order; and

WHEREAS, this Court previously granted final approval of a class action settlement on behalf of a Class of Dealerships with The Reynolds and Reynolds Company ("Reynolds Settlement Class") (ECF No. 502); and

WHEREAS due and adequate notice has been provided to members of the CDK Settlement

Class and Reynolds Settlement Class regarding (i) the proposed allocation of funds from the Reynolds Settlement and CDK Settlement in accordance with the Allocation Plan, and (ii) Dealership Class Counsel's application for attorneys' fees, expenses, and Class Representative Service Awards ("Fee and Expense Application"); and

WHEREAS, the Court conducted the Settlement Hearing on February 25, 2025 to consider, among other things, (i) whether the terms and conditions of the Settlement are fair, reasonable and adequate and the Settlement should therefore be approved; and (ii) whether a judgment should be entered dismissing the Dealership Class Action with prejudice as against CDK; and (iii) whether the Fee and Expense Application should be granted;

WHEREAS, there have been no objections to the Settlement, and no persons and entities timely and validly excluded themselves from the CDK Settlement Class ("Opt-Outs");

WHEREAS, there have been no objections to the Fee and Expense Application and the Allocation Plan; and

WHEREAS, the Court having reviewed and considered the Agreement, the Fee and Expense Application and the Allocation Plan, all papers filed and proceedings held herein in connection with the Agreement, the Fee and Expense Application and the Allocation Plan, and the record in the Dealership Class Action, and good cause appearing therefor;

IT IS HEREBY ORDERED, ADJUDGED AND DECREED, as follows:

1. This Final Approval Order and Judgment incorporates by reference the definitions set forth in the Agreement, and all terms used herein shall have the same meanings as set forth in the Agreement unless otherwise specified herein. The terms of the Agreement are incorporated in this Final Approval Order and Judgment as if fully set forth herein.

2. Jurisdiction. The Court has jurisdiction over the subject matter of the MDL Action (including this Dealership Class Action), and all matters relating to the Settlement, as well as personal jurisdiction over the Dealership Class Plaintiffs, all CDK Settlement Class Members, and the Defendant.

3. Class Certification. Pursuant to Rule 23(c) and (e) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, the Court finally certifies for purposes of the Settlement only, a class ("CDK Settlement Class") as follows:

> All persons and entities located in the United States engaged in the business of the retail sale of automobiles who purchased DMS from CDK and/or Reynolds ("Defendants"), or any predecessor, successor, subsidiary, joint venture or affiliate, during the period from September 1, 2013 through the date of the executed Agreement ("CDK Settlement Class Period"). Excluded from the CDK Settlement Class are Defendants, including any entity or division in which any Defendant has a controlling interest, as well as Defendants' joint ventures, subsidiaries, affiliates, assigns, and successors

4. The Court finds and concludes, for purposes of the Settlement only, that the prerequisites to a class action under Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 23(a) have been satisfied, in that, with respect to the Dealership Class:

a. numerosity is satisfied;

b. the claims of the Dealership Class Plaintiffs are typical of those of the other Dealership Class Members;

c. there are questions of fact and law that are common to all members of the Dealership Class; and

d. the Dealership Class Plaintiffs will fairly and adequately protect the interests of the CDK Settlement Class and have retained counsel experienced in antitrust and class action litigation who have and will continue to adequately represent the CDK Settlement Class.

5. The Court further finds and concludes, for purposes of the Settlement only, that the Dealership Class Action may be maintained as a class action under Rule 23(b)(3) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure because (i) a class action is superior to other available methods for the fair and efficient adjudication of this controversy, and (ii) questions of fact and law common to the members of the CDK Settlement Class predominate over any questions affecting only individual members.

6. Pursuant to Rule 23 of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, for purposes of the Settlement, this Court finally certifies as Dealership Class Representatives the twenty-three (23) dealerships listed in the Appendix to the Unopposed Motion for Preliminary Approval of Settlement with Defendant CDK Global, LLC and for Conditional Certification of the Proposed Settlement Class ("Motion") (ECF No. 1528 at 15-16).

7. The Court finds, for settlement purposes only, that these Dealership Class Representatives' claims are typical of the claims of the Dealership Class. The claims of the Dealership Class Representatives and absent class members rely on the same legal theories and arise from the same alleged conspiratorial conduct by Defendants.

8. The Court approves and appoints Peggy J. Wedgworth and Milberg Coleman Bryson Phillips Grossman, PLLC as Dealership Class Lead Counsel pursuant to Rule 23(g) and finds Dealership Class Lead Counsel has and will fairly and adequately protect the interests of the CDK Settlement Class.

9. The Court approves and appoints Leonard A. Bellavia and Bellavia Blatt, PC; Daniel Hedlund and Michelle Looby and Gustafson Gluek PLLC; James Barz and Frank Richter and Robbins Geller Rudman & Dowd LLP; and Robert A. Clifford and Clifford Law Offices, P.C. as Settlement Class Counsel.

10. Class Members Bound by this Final Approval Order and Judgment. Pursuant to Rule 23(c)(3) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, all persons and entities who fall within the foregoing description of the CDK Settlement Class who have not timely and validly requested exclusion from the CDK Settlement Class are CDK Settlement Class Members and are fully bound by this Final Approval Order and Judgment and the terms of the Agreement.

11. Notice. As established by the Settlement Administrator's Declarations, filed on November 27, 2024 (ECF No. 1539-2) and January 23, 2025 (ECF No. 1540), the Settlement Administrator caused the Notice Plan to be implemented. The Court finds that the Settlement Administrator fully complied with the Preliminary Approval Order and that the form and manner of providing notice to the CDK Settlement Class of the proposed Settlement with CDK, the proposed allocation of funds from the CDK Settlement, and the Fee and Expense Application was the best notice practicable under the circumstances, including individual notice to all members of the CDK Settlement Class who could be identified through the exercise of reasonable effort. The Court further finds that the form and manner of providing notice to the Reynolds Settlement Class of the proposed allocation of funds from the Reynolds Settlement, and the Fee and Expense Application was the best notice practicable under the circumstances, including individual notice to all members of the Reynolds Settlement Class who could be identified through the exercise of reasonable effort. The Court further finds that the notice program provided due and adequate notice of these proceedings and of the matters set forth therein, including the terms of the Agreement, to all parties entitled to such notice and fully satisfied the requirements of Rule 23 of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, 28 U.S.C. § 1715(b), and constitutional due process.

12. Objections and Exclusions. The Court finds there were no objections to the Settlement, no Opt-Outs from the CDK Settlement Class, and no objections to the Fee and Expense Application and the Allocation Plan.

13. Final Approval of the Settlement. Pursuant to Rule 23(e) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, the Court fully and finally approves the Settlement with CDK set forth in the Agreement and finds that the Settlement is, in all respects, fair, reasonable and adequate to the CDK Dealership Class. The Court orders the Settling Parties to consummate the Settlement set forth in the Agreement in accordance with its terms. The Court further finds that the Allocation Plan provides a fair, reasonable and adequate method to allocate settlement funds to members of the CDK Settlement Class and the Reynolds Settlement Class.

14. Release of Claims Against CDK Releasees. As set forth in the Agreement, upon the Effective Date, and in consideration of payment of the Settlement Amount, CDK Releasees shall be completely released, acquitted, and forever discharged from any and all Dealership Released Claims by the Dealership Class Releasors as set forth in the Agreement.

15. Release of Claims Against Dealership Class Releasees. Upon the Effective Date, the Dealership Class Releasees shall be completely released, acquitted, and forever discharged from any and all CDK Released Claims by the CDK Releasors as set forth in the Agreement.

16. No Future Actions Following Releases. CDK Settlement Class Releasors and CDK Releasors covenant and agree that they will not, after the Effective Date, seek to recover from any releasee on account of the claims released by such releasors.

17. Covenant Not to Sue. Dealership Class Releasors and CDK Releasors hereby covenant not to sue CDK Releasees and Dealership Class Releasees, respectively, with respect to any Released Claims. Dealership Class Releasors and CDK Releasors shall be permanently barred and enjoined from instituting, commencing, or prosecuting against the CDK Releasees and Dealership Class Releasees, respectively, any claims based in whole or in part on the Released Claims.

18. Waiver of California Civil Code § 1542 and Similar Laws. Dealership Class Releasers and CDK Releasers acknowledge that, by virtue of this Agreement, and for the consideration received hereunder, it is their intention to release, and they are releasing, all Released Claims, including any Released Claim that any Dealership Class Releaser or CDK Releaser does not know or suspect to exist in his, her or its favor at the time of the release that if known by him, her or it, might have affected his, her or its settlement with and release, or might have affected his, her or its decision not to object to this Settlement ("Unknown Claims"). Such Unknown Claims include claims that are the subject of California Civil Code § 1542 and equivalent, similar, or comparable laws or principles of law. California Civil Code § 1542 provides:

> CERTAIN CLAIMS NOT AFFECTED BY GENERAL RELEASE. A GENERAL RELEASE DOES NOT EXTEND TO CLAIMS WHICH THE CREDITOR DOES NOT KNOW OR SUSPECT TO EXIST IN HIS OR HER FAVOR AT THE TIME OF EXECUTING THE RELEASE, WHICH IF KNOWN BY HIM OR HER MUST HAVE MATERIALLY AFFECTED HIS OR HER SETTLEMENT WITH THE

DEBTOR;

Each Dealership Class Releasor and CDK Releasor may hereafter discover facts other than or different from those which he, she, or it knows or believes to be true with respect to the Released Claims, but each such Dealership Class Releasor and CDK Releasor hereby expressly waives and fully, finally, and forever settles and releases, upon this Agreement becoming final, any known or unknown, suspected or unsuspected, contingent or non-contingent claim with respect to the Released Claims, whether or not concealed or hidden, without regard to the subsequent discovery or existence of such different or additional facts. The Dealership Class Plaintiffs and CDK acknowledge, and all Dealership Class Releasors, Dealership Class Releasees, CDK Releasors, and CDK Releasees by operation of law shall be deemed to have acknowledged, that the inclusion of "Unknown Claims" in the Released Claims was separately bargained for and was a key element of the Settlement.

19. Dismissal. The Court hereby dismisses with prejudice the Dealership Class Action as to CDK, without costs to any of the parties as against the others, except as otherwise provided in the Agreement.

20. Use of Order. This Final Approval Order and Judgment, the Agreement, and any negotiations, documents, and discussions associated with them, shall not be deemed or construed to be an admission by CDK or the Dealership Class Plaintiffs (or the other CDK Releasees or Dealership Class Releasees) or evidence of any violation of any statute or law or of any liability or wrongdoing by CDK or the Dealership Class Plaintiffs (or the other CDK Releasees or Dealership Class Releasees), or of the truth of the claims or allegations in any complaint or any other pleading filed in the Dealership Class Action, and evidence thereof shall not be discoverable or used directly or indirectly in the Dealership Class Action or in any other action or proceeding.

21. Neither this Final Approval Order and Judgment, nor the Agreement, nor any of its terms and provisions, nor the negotiations or proceedings connected with it, nor any other action taken to carry out the Agreement by either of the Settling Parties shall be referred to, offered as evidence or received in evidence in any pending or future civil, criminal, or administrative action or proceedings, except in a proceeding to enforce the Agreement, or to defend against the assertion of Released Claims, or as otherwise required by law.

22. Effect of Termination, Rescission, or Failure to Become Final. If the Settlement is terminated, rescinded, or otherwise does not become Final, then the Agreement, including any amendment(s) thereof, then this Final Approval Order and Judgment (and any other orders of the Court relating to the Settlement) shall be null and void, of no further force or effect, and without prejudice to any party, and may not be introduced as evidence or referred to in any actions or proceedings by any person or entity, and each party shall be restored to his, her or its respective position as of July 21, 2024.

23. Retention of Jurisdiction. Without affecting the finality of this Order, the Court reserves and retains exclusive and continuing jurisdiction over all parties to the MDL Action, all Dealership Class Members, and the Settlement Fund to consider all further matters arising out of or connected with the Agreement. CDK retains any contractual rights it may have to arbitrate any dispute relating to any Released Claim with any Dealership Class Member who timely and validly elects to be excluded from the Dealership Class in accordance with the procedure established by the Court.

24. Fee and Expense Application. The Court hereby grants the Fee and Expense Application and awards attorneys' fees equal to 33 % of the combined $100 million CDK Settlement Fund and $29.5 million Reynolds Settlement Fund, together with a proportional share of interest earned on such funds for the same time period until dispersed to Dealership Class Lead Counsel. This award is reasonable under Rule 23 for the award of attorneys' fees based, inter alia, on the amount of work performed in this case, the recoveries obtained and the risks involved. Dealership Class Lead Counsel shall allocate the awarded attorneys' fees amongst plaintiffs' counsel that worked on this case in a manner in which Dealership Class Lead Counsel in good faith believe reflects the contributions of such counsel to the prosecution and settlement of the Action. The Court also grants Dealership Class Counsel's request for reimbursement of $7,192,133.86 for expenses incurred in prosecuting this action. The Court further grants Class Representative service awards of $10,000.00 for each of the twenty-three (23) dealerships listed in the Appendix to the Motion for Preliminary Approval. Of the foregoing total awarded attorneys' fees, expenses, and class representative service awards, 95% shall be paid from the CDK Settlement Fund, and 5% shall be paid from the Reynolds Settlement Fund. Such attorneys' fees, expenses, and Class Representative service awards shall be paid forthwith.

25. Attorneys' Fees and Expenses Not a Delay. The award of any attorneys' fees, expenses, and Class Representative service awards, including any appeals therefrom, shall not affect the finality of this Final Approval Order and Judgment with respect to the Settlement.

26. Entry of this Final Order and Judgment. The Court finds there is no just reason for delay and directs the Clerk to enter this Final Approval Order and Judgment forthwith pursuant to Rule 54(b) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure.

Dated February 25, 2025

Hon. Rebecca R. Pallmeyer
United States District Court Judge

TAB 56B

IN THE UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
FOR THE NORTHERN DISTRICT OF ILLINOIS
EASTERN DIVISION

IN RE: DEALER MANAGEMENT SYSTEMS ANTITTRUST LITIGATION	MDL No. 2817 Case No. 18-cv-00864
This Document Relates to: THE DEALERSHIP CLASS ACTION	Hon. Rebecca R. Pallmeyer

DEALERSHIP CLASS COUNSEL'S MOTION FOR ATTORNEYS' FEES, REIMBURSEMENT OF EXPENSES, AND CLASS REPRESENTATIVE SERVICE AWARDS

TABLE OF CONTENTS

I. INTRODUCTION 1

II. PRINCIPLES OF FEE AWARDS 2

III. THE COURT SHOULD AWARD DEALERSHIP COUNSEL A 33% FEE 3

A. Prevailing Rates Support the Request 4

B. A Lodestar Cross-Check Confirms the Reasonableness of the Requested Fee 5

C. The Substantial Litigation Risks Support the Requested Fee 6

1. The Alleged Conspiracy 7

2. Pass-on Damages 9

3. Class Certification 10

4. Defendants' Highly Qualified Counsel 12

IV. THE COURT SHOULD REIMBURSE DEALERSHIP COUNSEL'S EXPENSES 12

V. THE COURT SHOULD GRANT CLASS REPRESENTATIVE AWARDS 13

VI. CONCLUSION 15

TABLE OF AUTHORITIES

Page(s)

Cases

Allen v. JP Morgan Chase Bank, N.A.,
2015 WL 14074780 (N.D. Ill. Nov. 3, 2015) 3, 5, 14

Apex Oil Co. v. DiMauro,
713 F. Supp. 587 (S.D.N.Y. 1989) 7

Ass'n of Am. Physicians & Surgeons, Inc. v. Am. Bd. of Med. Specialties, 15 F.4th 831 (7th Cir. 2021) 13

Beckman v. KeyBank, N.A.,
293 F.R.D. 467 (S.D.N.Y. 2013) 11

Biddle v. Walt Disney Co.,
2024 WL 3171860 (N.D. Cal. June 25, 2024) 11

Boeing Co. v. Van Gemert,
444 U.S. 472 (1980) 2

Bohack Corp. v. Borden, Inc.,
599 F.2d 1160 (2d Cir. 1979) 6

Briggs v. PNC Fin'l Servs. Group, Inc.,
2016 WL 7018566 (N.D. Ill. Nov. 29, 2016) 5

Burnett v. Nat'l Ass'n of Realtors,
2024 WL 2842222 (W.D. Mo. May 9, 2024) 7

Chambers v. Together Credit Union,
2021 WL 1948452 (S.D. Ill. May 21, 2021) 3, 5, 13, 14

City of Greenville v. Syngenta Corp Protection, Inc.,
904 F. Supp. 2d 902 (S.D. Ill. 2012) 13

Cmty. Bank of Trenton v. Schnuck Markets, Inc.,
887 F.3d 803 (7th Cir. 2018) 8

Corzo v. Brown University,
2024 WL 3506498 (N.D. Ill. July 20, 2024) ..... passim

George v. Kraft Foods Glob., Inc.,
2012 WL 13089487 (N.D. Ill. June 26, 2012) 5

Glaberson v. Comcast Corp.,
2015 WL 5582251 (E.D. Pa. Sept. 22, 2015) 13

Hale v. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co.,
2018 WL 6606079 (S.D. Ill. Dec. 16, 2018) 3, 5

Haney v. Charter Foods N., LLC,
2024 WL 4054361 (E.D. Tenn. Aug. 28, 2024) 8

Harman v. Lyphomed, Inc.,
945 F.2d 969 (7th Cir. 1991) 3, 6

Hash v. First Fin. Bancorp,
2021 WL 12269064 (S.D. Ind. Nov. 22, 2021) 3

Illinois Brick Co. v. Illinois,
431 U.S. 720 (1977) 9

In re Brand Name Prescription Drugs Antitrust Litig.,
186 F.3d 781 (7th Cir. 1999) 7

In re Broiler Chicken Antitrust Litig.,
80 F.4th 797 (7th Cir. 2023) 2, 5

In re Broiler Chicken Antitrust Litig.,
2024 WL 3292794 (N.D. Ill. July 3, 2024) appeal filed, No. 24-2387 (7th Cir. Aug. 9, 2024) 5

In re Dairy Farmers of Am., Inc.,
80 F. Supp. 3d 838 (N.D. Ill. 2015) 5

In re E. Palestine Train Derailment,
2024 WL 4370003 (N.D. Ohio Sept. 27, 2024) 12

In re Elec. Carbon Prods. Antitrust Litig.,
447 F. Supp. 2d 389 (D.N.J. 2006) 7, 9

In re Flonase Antitrust Litig.,
951 F. Supp. 2d 739 (E.D. Pa. 2013) 14

In re Lithium Ion Batteries Antitrust Litig.,
2018 WL 1156797 (N.D. Cal. Mar. 5, 2018) 11

In re Lithotripsy Antitrust Litig.,
2000 WL 765086 (N.D. Ill. June 12, 2000) 5

In re NASDAQ Market-Makers Antitrust Litig.,
187 F.R.D. 465 (S.D.N.Y. 1998) 9

*In re NFL "Sunday Ticket" Antit*rust Litig., 2024 WL 3628118 (C.D. Cal. Aug. 1, 2024) appeal filed, No. 24-5493 (9th Cir. Sept. 9, 2024) 7, 9

In re Packaged Ice Antitrust Litig.,
322 F.R.D. 276 (E.D. Mich. 2017) 6, 7, 9

In re Pork Antitrust Litig.,
2022 WL 4238416 (D. Minn. Sept. 14, 2022) 4

In re Potash Antitrust Litig.,
2013 WL 12470850 (N.D. Ill. June 12, 2013) 5, 14

In re Prandin Direct Purchaser Antitrust Litig.,
2015 WL 1396473 (E.D. Mich. Jan. 20, 2015) 5

In re Se. Milk Antitrust Litig.,
2013 WL 2155387 (E.D. Tenn. May 17, 2013) 5

In re Synthroid Mktg. Litig.,
264 F.3d 712 (7th Cir. 2001) 2, 3

In re Synthroid Mktg. Litig.,
325 F.3d 974 (7th Cir. 2003) 2, 5

In re TikTok, Inc., Consumer Priv. Litig.,
617 F. Supp. 3d 904 (N.D. Ill. 2022) 3, 6, 11, 12

Kaufman v. Am. Express Travel Related Servs. Co.,
877 F.3d 276 (7th Cir. 2017) 11

Linnear v. Illinicare Health Plan, Inc.,
2019 WL 13072750 (N.D. Ill. Dec. 17, 2019) 4, 6, 9, 10

Macovski v. Groupon, Inc.,
2022 WL 17256417 (N.D. Ill. Oct. 28, 2022) 4, 12

Matter of Cont'l Ill. Sec. Litig.,
96 2 F.2d 566 (7th Cir. 1992) 6

McDaniel v. Qwest Commc'ns Corp., 2011 WL 13257336 (N.D. Ill. Aug. 29, 2011) ..... passim

McMorris v. Carlos Lopez & Assocs., LLC,
995 F.3d 295 (2d Cir. 2021) 8

Pierrelouis v. Gogo Inc.,
2022 WL 7950362 (N.D. Ill. Oct. 13, 2022) 4, 12

Retsky Family Ltd. P'ship v. Price Waterhouse LLP,
2001 WL 1568856 (N.D. Ill. Dec. 10, 2001) 5

Roberson v. Maestro Consulting Services, LLC,
2024 WL 4785359 (S.D. Ill. Nov. 14, 2024) 4, 14

Scott v. Dart,
99 F.4th 1076 (7th Cir. 2024) 14

Shady Grove Orthopedic Assoc. v. Allstate Ins. Co.,
559 U.S. 393 (2010) 11

Skelton v. Gen. Motors Corp.,
860 F.2d 250 (7th Cir. 1988) 2

Standard Iron Works v. ArcelorMittal,
2014 WL 7781572 (N.D. Ill. Oct. 22, 2014) 5, 6

Wal-Mart Stores, Inc. v. Visa U.S.A., Inc.,
396 F.3d 96 (2d Cir. 2005) 9

White v. Kroger Ltd. P'ship I,
2024 WL 3343021 (S.D. Ill. July 9, 2024) 4

Wilk v. Am. Med. Ass'n,
895 F.2d 352 (7th Cir. 1990) 6

Wolfe v. TCC Wireless, LLC,
2018 WL 11215318 (N.D. Ill. Mar. 12, 2018) 5

Zilhaver v. UnitedHealth Group, Inc.,
646 F. Supp. 2d 1075 (D. Minn. 2009) 15

Rules

Fed. R. Civ. P. 23 1

I. INTRODUCTION

Dealership Counsel[1] respectfully submit this memorandum in support of their motion, pursuant to Fed. R. Civ. P. 23(h)(1) and 54(d)(2), for (i) an award of $42.735 million in attorneys' fees; (ii) expenses approved in the amount of $7,192,133.86;[2] and (iii) service awards of $10,000 for each of the 23 class representatives.

After more than seven years of hard-fought litigation, and virtually on the eve of trial, Dealership Counsel obtained a $100 million cash settlement with Defendant CDK Global, LLC ("CDK"). That settlement, when added to the previously-approved $29.5 million settlement with Defendant The Reynolds and Reynolds Company ("Reynolds") in 2019 (see ECF No. 427-2 at 10, 15; ECF No. 502), has resulted in a $129.5 million recovery for a nationwide class of automobile dealers.[3] Dealership Counsel have litigated this case on a contingency basis and, to date, have been paid nothing for their efforts. Dealership Counsel have also incurred more than $7.192 million in total expenses, which includes the previously awarded $3 million amount authorized for litigation expenses under the Reynolds settlement. See ECF No. 501.

---

[1] "Dealership Counsel" refers to Lead Counsel Peggy J. Wedgworth and Milberg Coleman Bryson Phillips Grossman, PLLC and Plaintiffs' Steering Committee members Leonard A. Bellavia and Bellavia Blatt, PC; Daniel Hedlund and Michelle Looby and Gustafson Gluek PLLC; James Barz and Frank Richter and Robbins Geller Rudman & Dowd LLP; and Liaison Counsel Robert A. Clifford and Clifford Law Offices. See ECF No. 123; see also ECF No. 1531 ¶¶ 9-10.

[2] See accompanying Declaration of Peggy J. Wedgworth in Support of Dealership Class Counsel's Motion for Attorneys' Fees, Reimbursement of Expenses, and Class Representative Service Awards ("Wedgworth Fee Decl."), Appendices C & D. In connection with the Reynolds settlement, the Court approved Dealership Counsel's withdrawal of up to $3 million from that settlement fund for litigation expenses. See ECF No. 501 at 2-3. By this motion, Dealership Counsel seek reimbursement of $4,192,133.86 in expenses. This amount, when added to the previously awarded $3 million amount, totals $7,192,133.86; which is less than the $7.5 million maximum expense amount referenced in the CDK Settlement Class notice.

[3] CDK also agreed to fund up to $250,000 in notice and claims administration costs. See ECF No. 1528-2 ¶ A.1(y). Reynolds agreed to fund up to $250,000 for notice costs related to the Reynolds settlement. See ECF No. 427-2 ¶ E.13.

In accordance with the Court's August 23, 2024 order (ECF No. 1531), notice of the requests for attorneys' fees, expense reimbursement, and class representative service awards has been distributed.[4]

II. PRINCIPLES OF FEE AWARDS

"The United States Supreme Court long ago recognized that 'a litigant or a lawyer who recovers a common fund for the benefit of persons other than himself or his client is entitled to a reasonable attorney's fee from the fund as a whole.'" McDaniel v. Qwest Commc'ns Corp., 2011 WL 13257336, at *3 (N.D. Ill. Aug. 29, 2011) (Pallmeyer, J.) (quoting Boeing Co. v. Van Gemert, 444 U.S. 472, 478 (1980)). "The common-fund doctrine is based on the notion that all 'those who have benefited from litigation should share its costs.'" McDaniel, 2011 WL 13257336, at *3 (quoting Skelton v. Gen. Motors Corp., 860 F.2d 250, 252 (7th Cir. 1988)); see also In re Synthroid Mktg. Litig., 325 F.3d 974, 977 (7th Cir. 2003) ("Synthroid II"). Having secured settlements totaling $129.5 million, Dealership Counsel now seek a fee award of 33% of the funds.[5]

In the Seventh Circuit, class action fee awards are based on a "market" rate for legal services, i.e., the rate agreed to (or that hypothetically would have been agreed to) by the parties. See In re Broiler Chicken Antitrust Litig., 80 F.4th 797, 801 (7th Cir. 2023) (citing In re Synthroid Mktg. Litig., 264 F.3d

[4] The Notice Plan reached approximately 98.4% of the identified potential settlement class members via email and/or mail. Notice reach was further enhanced by publication notice, digital media, an informational release, as well as additional efforts undertaken by Dealership Lead Class Counsel. See the accompanying Declaration of Cameon R. Azari, Esq. Regarding Implementation and Adequacy of Settlement Notice Plan and Notices ("Azari Decl."), ¶¶ 8, 10-32; see also Declaration of Peggy J. Wedgworth in Support of Dealership Class Plaintiffs' Motion for Final Approval of Settlement with Defendant CDK Global, LLC ("Wedgworth Final Approval Decl."), ¶ 10, filed contemporaneously herewith.

[5] See Azari Decl. Att. 4 (long form class notice) at 1; see also id. at 9: "Dealership Class Counsel will seek (1) an award of attorneys' fees not to exceed 33.3% of the Settlement Funds plus (2) payment of unreimbursed litigation expenses (including expert fees and deposition costs) ('Litigation Expenses') not to exceed $7.5 million; and (3) service awards of up to $10,000 for each of the twenty-three (23) Class Representatives in this case ('Fee and Expense Application')." In accordance with the Court's scheduling order, the deadline for Reynolds and CDK Settlement Class members to object to this motion is December 12, 2024 and Dealership Counsel will respond to any objections by February 18, 2025. See ECF No. 1531 at 10.

712, 718 (7th Cir. 2001) ("Synthroid I")); Allen v. JP Morgan Chase Bank, N.A., 2015 WL 14074780, at *3 (N.D. Ill. Nov. 3, 2015) (Pallmeyer, J.). Fee awards should reflect market rates even in large, "megafund" settlements. See Synthroid I, 264 F.3d at 718; In re TikTok, Inc., Consumer Priv. Litig., 617 F. Supp. 3d 904, 942 (N.D. Ill. 2022).

Two different methodologies are used to determine fee awards. One method is the "percentage-of-the-recovery" method, under which fees are based on a percentage of the recovery obtained. That method "directly aligns the interests of the class and its counsel in achieving the maximum recovery possible in the most efficient manner." Hash v. First Fin. Bancorp, 2021 WL 12269064, at *2 (S.D. Ind. Nov. 22, 2021). It also "makes sense because 'it is essentially unheard of for sophisticated lawyers to take on a case of this magnitude and type on any basis other than a contingency fee, expressed as a percentage of the relief obtained.'" Hale v. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co., 2018 WL 6606079, at *7 (S.D. Ill. Dec. 16, 2018) (citation omitted). The second method – the "lodestar-multiplier" method – calculates fees based on counsel's hours expended and hourly rates, as enhanced by a risk multiplier. See McDaniel, 2011 WL 13257336, at *3.

While the choice of method is in the court's discretion (see Harman v. Lyphomed, Inc., 945 F.2d 969, 975 (7th Cir. 1991)), "the percentage method is employed by the vast majority of courts in the Seventh Circuit (like other Circuits)." Chambers v. Together Credit Union, 2021 WL 1948452, at *1 (S.D. Ill. May 21, 2021) (quoting Hale, 2018 WL 6606079, at *2); see also Allen, 2015 WL 14074780, at *3.

III. THE COURT SHOULD AWARD DEALERSHIP COUNSEL A 33% FEE

The Court should award Dealership Counsel 33% of the total $129.5 million settlement funds, for a fee of $42.735 million. As shown below, that percentage is the market rate for legal services in this case, and the requested fee is reasonable.

A. Prevailing Rates Support the Request

The requested 33% award is fully supported by fee awards routinely granted by the courts. Judge Kennelly's recent decision in Corzo v. Brown University is instructive. There, the court awarded attorneys' fees of 33.33% of a $284 million antitrust settlement, plus expenses, explaining:

> The requested attorneys' fees are at a reasonable market rate for Settlement Class Counsel's services had they been negotiated ex ante. The sought fee of one-third of the Settlement Fund is within the ordinary range of contingency fee arrangements actually negotiated ex ante between parties and awarded, in complex antitrust actions.

2024 WL 3506498, at *7 (N.D. Ill. July 20, 2024). See also Linnear v. Illinicare Health Plan, Inc., 2019 WL 13072750, at *3 (N.D. Ill. Dec. 17, 2019) (Pallmeyer, J.) (awarding fees of "thirty-five of the Gross Settlement Fund": the request "is consistent with the market in the Northern District of Illinois"); CS Wang & Associate v. Wells Fargo Bank, N.A., Case No. 1:16-cv-11223, ECF No. 654 at 7 (N.D. Ill. Dec. 2, 2021) (Pallmeyer, C.J.) (Exh. 1) ("[A] typical contingency agreement in this circuit might range from 33% to 40% of the recovery.") (citation omitted);[6] McDaniel, 2011 WL 13257336, at *4 (Pallmeyer, J.) ("the real-world market range for contingent fee cases is 33% to 40%) (citing cases); Roberson v. Maestro Consulting Services, LLC, 2024 WL 4785359 (S.D. Ill. Nov. 14, 2024) (awarding fees of "40% of the Gross Settlement Amount" plus expenses); In re Pork Antitrust Litig., 2022 WL 4238416, at *9 (D. Minn. Sept. 14, 2022) (awarding 33%, plus expenses); White v. Kroger Ltd. P'ship I, 2024 WL 3343021, at *3 (S.D. Ill. July 9, 2024) (awarding 35% of settlement fund plus costs); Macovski v. Groupon, Inc., 2022 WL 17256417, at *1 (N.D. Ill. Oct. 28, 2022) (33 1/3%); Pierrelouis v. Gogo Inc., 2022 WL 7950362,

[6] In CS Wang, the Court awarded requested attorney fees of "one-third of the Settlement Fund after deducting incentive awards and settlement administration costs." Case No. 1:16-cv-11223, ECF No. 654 at 7. Under the CDK settlement, CDK is paying, in addition to $100 million, up to $250,000 in notice and administration costs. See ECF No. 1528-2 ¶¶ A.1(y), 1(ff), F. In the Reynolds settlement, Reynolds paid $29.5 million and agreed to pay up to $250,000 in notice costs. See ECF No. 427-2 ¶¶ A.1(cc) E.13. Dealership Counsel do not request any fees based on those notice and administration amounts. Moreover, the requested $42.735 million fee represents just under 33.06% of the combined CDK and Reynolds settlement funds ($129.5 million, not counting Defendants' additional payments for notice and administration), net of the $10,000 service awards requested for each of the 23 class representatives.

at *1 (N.D. Ill. Oct. 13, 2022) (33 1/3%); Chambers, 2021 WL 1948452, at *2 ("a one-third fee is common throughout district courts in the Seventh Circuit") (citing authorities); Wolfe v. TCC Wireless, LLC, 2018 WL 11215318, at *3-4 (N.D. Ill. Mar. 12, 2018) (awarding "one-third of the Gross Settlement Fund" plus expenses); Briggs v. PNC Fin'l Servs. Group, Inc., 2016 WL 7018566, at *4 (N.D. Ill. Nov. 29, 2016) (St. Eve., J.) ("Courts routinely hold that one-third of a common fund is an appropriate attorneys' fee award in class action settlement …."); In re Dairy Farmers of Am., Inc., 80 F. Supp. 3d 838, 842 (N.D. Ill. 2015) (awarding one-third of $46 million fund, plus expenses).[7]

B. A Lodestar Cross-Check Confirms the Reasonableness of the Requested Fee

Although not required, a court may use the lodestar method to "cross-check" the fee calculated by the percentage-of-the-recovery method. Corzo, 2024 WL 3506498, at *7. Such a cross-check, however, "has fallen into disfavor in this Circuit." Allen, 2015 WL 14074780, at *3 (citation omitted); see Synthroid II, 325 F.3d at 979-80.

---

[7] See also Hale, 2018 WL 6606079, at *10, 16 (awarding 33.33% of $250 million fund, plus expenses: "Courts within the Seventh Circuit, and elsewhere, regularly award percentages of 33.33% or higher to counsel in class action litigation."); In re Prandin Direct Purchaser Antitrust Litig., 2015 WL 1396473, at *4 (E.D. Mich. Jan. 20, 2015) (awarding one-third fee, which is "within the range of fees ordinarily awarded"); Standard Iron Works v. ArcelorMittal, 2014 WL 7781572, at *1 (N.D. Ill. Oct. 22, 2014) (awarding 33% of $163.9 million settlement, noting "fee awards in similar complex litigation, including many recent antitrust class actions in which 33% fees were awarded for similar work"); In re Potash Antitrust Litig., 2013 WL 12470850, at *1 (N.D. Ill. June 12, 2013) (awarding one-third of $90 million); In re Se. Milk Antitrust Litig., 2013 WL 2155387, at *1, 3, 8 (E.D. Tenn. May 17, 2013) (awarding 33 1/3% of $158.6 million; 33 1/3% "is certainly within the range of fees often awarded in common fund cases, both nationwide and in the Sixth Circuit"); George v. Kraft Foods Glob., Inc., 2012 WL 13089487, at *2 (N.D. Ill. June 26, 2012) ("'[T]he normal rate of compensation in the market [is] 33.33% of the common fund recovered' because the class action market commands contingency fee agreements and the class counsel accepts a substantial risk of nonpayment.") (citation omitted); Retsky Family Ltd. P'ship v. Price Waterhouse LLP, 2001 WL 1568856, at *4 (N.D. Ill. Dec. 10, 2001) ("A customary contingency fee would range from 33 1/3% to 40% of the amount recovered.") (citations omitted); In re Lithotripsy Antitrust Litig., 2000 WL 765086, at *2 (N.D. Ill. June 12, 2000) ("33.3% of the fund plus expenses is well within the generally accepted range of attorneys fees in class-action antitrust lawsuits.").

In In re Broiler Chicken, the Circuit stated that the district court should award fees "in accord with a hypothetical ex ante bargain." 80 F.4th at 800. (On remand, the fee was set at $51.66 million -- 30% of the recovery after expenses and service awards. See In re Broiler Chicken Antitrust Litig., 2024 WL 3292794, at *6 (N.D. Ill. July 3, 2024), appeal filed, No. 24-2387 (7th Cir. Aug. 9, 2024)).

Here, Dealership Counsel expended over 69,000 hours, for a total lodestar of $41,581,821.25 on the case. See Wedgworth Fee Decl., ¶ 13, Appendices. A & B.[8] The requested fee ($42.735 million) represents a multiplier of just under 1.03 of their historical lodestar. Id. ¶ 13. The multiplier is modest, further confirming the reasonableness of the requested fee. See Corzo, 2024 WL 3506498, at *7 (awarding $94.67 million fee; 1.35 multiplier of historical lodestar "confirms the propriety of the sought fee."); Standard Iron Works v. ArcelorMittal, 2014 WL 7781572, at *2-3 (N.D. Ill. Oct. 22, 2014) (approving $54 million fee award, representing one-third of the settlement fund and 1.97 multiplier); see generally In re TikTok, 617 F. Supp.3d at 943 ("In practice, most multipliers fall between one and four.") (citing Harmon v. Lyphomed, Inc., 945 F.2d 969, 976 (7th Cir. 1991)).

C. The Substantial Litigation Risks Support the Requested Fee

Dealership Counsel's requested fee also is "reasonable in light of the significant risks of nonpayment that they faced." Linnear, 2019 WL 13072750, at *3. Counsel "took this case on a contingent basis, meaning that there was a strong risk that they would not be paid." Id. "As the Seventh Circuit has noted, Plaintiff's Counsel 'could have lost everything' they invested." Id. (quoting Matter of Cont'l Ill. Sec. Litig., 96 2 F.2d 566, 570 (7th Cir. 1992) (Posner, J.)). "Risk cannot be overlooked for it is considerable even in a relatively simple class case." McDaniel, 2011 WL 13257336, at *3.

Although all cases present risk, the risks faced by counsel are significantly heightened in antitrust cases. See Wilk v. Am. Med. Ass'n, 895 F.2d 352, 355 (7th Cir. 1990) ("We have observed before that 'antitrust cases are notoriously extended.'") (citation omitted); Bohack Corp. v. Borden, Inc., 599 F.2d 1160, 1169 n.9 (2d Cir. 1979) ("antitrust cases are notoriously lengthy and tortuously complex."); In re Packaged Ice Antitrust Litig., 322 F.R.D. 276, 292 (E.D. Mich. 2017).

[8] Besides the usual work required in multi-year, antitrust litigation (i.e., preparation of multiple pleadings, and briefing of Rule 12(b)(6), discovery, summary judgment, Daubert, and class certification motions), Dealership Counsel's work included taking/defending and participating in more than 115 depositions. Wedgworth Fee Decl. ¶18.

"As in any antitrust case, this one presents substantial risks of non-recovery, even after preliminary victories were achieved." In re Elec. Carbon Prods. Antitrust Litig., 447 F. Supp. 2d 389, 400 (D.N.J. 2006). This Court's earlier rulings, including its order largely denying CDK's summary judgment motion (see ECF No. 1381), did not eliminate the risks – including those facing Dealership Counsel in the trial scheduled against CDK back in September. See, e.g., In re Brand Name Prescription Drugs Antitrust Litig., 186 F.3d 781 (7th Cir. 1999) (affirming in part district court's grant of judgment for defendants at trial, following earlier order denying summary judgment); In re NFL "Sunday Ticket" Antitrust Litig., 2024 WL 3628118, at *3 (C.D. Cal. Aug. 1, 2024) (granting defendants' motion for judgment as a matter of law following jury's verdict for class plaintiffs). These risks support the requested fee. See Burnett v. Nat'l Ass'n of Realtors, 2024 WL 2842222, at *16 (W.D. Mo. May 9, 2024), appeal filed, No. 24-2143 (8th Cir. June 4, 2024) ("Because antitrust claims are especially complex, expensive, and difficult to prosecute, courts have recognized that antitrust settlements should result in attorneys' fees equal to one-third of the fund.") (citations omitted).

Some of the specific risks confronting Dealership Counsel are described below.

1. The Alleged Conspiracy

A key risk was whether Dealership Counsel could prove the alleged antitrust conspiracy. See In re Packaged Ice Antitrust Litig., 322 F.R.D. at 292 ("an antitrust litigation of this scope has great complexity and undeniable inherent risks, such as … whether the conspiracy as alleged in the Complaint can be established"); Apex Oil Co. v. DiMauro, 713 F. Supp. 587, 599 (S.D.N.Y. 1989) ("The frequent difficulty of proving a conspiracy needs no extended comment."). Although Defendants vehemently denied that they conspired – and CDK submitted voluminous evidence to dispute Dealers' allegations – Dealership Counsel prevailed at summary judgment, and the Court found sufficient evidence from which a jury could find a conspiracy. See ECF No. 1381 at 50-60.

Nonetheless, whether a jury would find Dealers' evidence persuasive remained uncertain. The uncertainty reflected, among other things, the possibility that the jury would find that Defendants' conduct was undertaken unilaterally to promote data security, not to restrain competition. See ECF No. 378 at 18 (CDK's argument that its "decision to restrict access to its DMS" is "the same kind of access restriction imposed by firms throughout the economy as a sound security measure."). As the Court stated in its summary judgment ruling, "[t]here is no dispute that data security is important to the automotive industry, including dealers and data integrators." ECF No. 1381 at 21. The importance of data security in this case, moreover, cannot be overstated, given the critical role played by DMSs in the Dealers' business. See id. at 2 (summary judgment ruling, explaining that DMSs are "complex enterprise computer systems employed by car dealerships to collect, manage, and deploy data they generate.").

Defendants' data security defense presented substantial risk, as data breaches have become "increasingly common in our digitized world." McMorris v. Carlos Lopez & Assocs., LLC, 995 F.3d 295, 297 (2d Cir. 2021); see Cmty. Bank of Trenton v. Schnuck Markets, Inc., 887 F.3d 803, 817 (7th Cir. 2018) ("Data breaches are a foreseeable (and foreseen) risk of participating in the card networks …."); Haney v. Charter Foods N., LLC, 2024 WL 4054361, at *9 (E.D. Tenn. Aug. 28, 2024) ("Given the high level of foreseeability and known risks of data breaches, Defendants had a duty to take reasonable care to protect Plaintiffs from the data breach."). Indeed, in June 2024 – just a few months before the scheduled trial – CDK reported that it was targeted in a major data cyberattack, leading to the shutdown of its DMS.[9] Whether and how the cyberattack would be addressed at trial, and its potential impact on a jury's assessment of the data security defense, underscore the risk faced by Dealership Counsel.[10]

[9] See M. Cerullo, CDK Global calls cyberattack that crippled its software platform a "ransom event", Moneywatch (June 25, 2024), available at https://www.cbsnews.com/news/cdk-attack-cyber-ransom-event.

2. Pass-on Damages

Dealership Counsel also faced the risk that a jury would award no damages. "'[T]he history of antitrust litigation is replete with cases in which antitrust plaintiffs succeeded at trial on liability, but recovered no damages, or only negligible damages, at trial, or on appeal.'" Wal-Mart Stores, Inc. v. Visa U.S.A., Inc., 396 F.3d 96, 118 (2d Cir. 2005) (quoting In re NASDAQ Market-Makers Antitrust Litig., 187 F.R.D. 465, 476 (S.D.N.Y. 1998)).

The risk of proving the existence and amount of any antitrust damages is well recognized. See In re NFL "Sunday Ticket" Antitrust Litig., 2024 WL 3628118, at *3 (granting defendants' motion for judgment as a matter of law following jury verdict, where plaintiffs' economists employed "flawed methodologies" and "there was no other support for the class-wide injury and damages elements of Plaintiffs' § 1 and § 2 claims"); In re Elec. Carbon Prods. Antitrust Litig., 447 F. Supp. 2d 389, 401 (D.N.J. 2006) ("a battle of experts addressing the measurement of ... overcharges … can become an esoteric exercise with unpredictable results"). But the risk was enhanced here because the Court ruled that Dealers' damages are limited to indirect damages – i.e., alleged overcharges to vendors that were passed onto Dealers. See ECF No. 1381 at 67. Proving such damages is difficult. See Illinois Brick Co. v. Illinois, 431 U.S. 720, 751 (1977)(citing "the difficulty of proving and quantifying a pass-on"); In re Packaged Ice Antitrust Litig., 322 F.R.D. at 292 ("[I]n an indirect purchaser case, 'the problem of proof [ ] is intrinsically more complex, because the damage model must account for the action of innocent intermediaries who allegedly passed on the overcharge.'") (citation omitted).

[10] Notably, the release in the CDK settlement agreement does not restrict Dealers' right to assert claims against CDK relating to the cyberattack. See ECF No. 1528-2 ¶¶ A.1(l), N.33. That fact further supports approval of the requested fee. See Linnear, 2019 WL 13072750, at *4 (N.D. Ill. Dec. 17, 2019) (Pallmeyer, J.) ("The absence of a general release exemplifies the results achieved for the Settlement Class.").

Furthermore, CDK urged that, under various state laws – including the Illinois Antitrust Act, 740 ILCS 10/1, et seq. ("IAA"), under which Dealers sought certification of a nationwide class – Dealers' damages may be offset to avoid duplicate recoveries, see ECF No. 1457 at App'x G, p. 4, thus creating the risk that recoveries by others (including the certified vendor class and the previously-settling Cox Automotive vendors, see ECF No. 723) would reduce any recovery by the Dealers. CDK also argued that, in various states (including Illinois), Dealers' damages must be reduced to the extent that they passed on the alleged overcharges to their customers. See ECF No. 1457 at 34 ("In some states, an indirect purchaser (i.e., dealers) forfeits damages by passing its overcharge downstream (i.e., to automobile purchasers)."); id. at App'x. E, p. 4 (arguing that Illinois and various other states allow pass-on defense).

3. Class Certification

Although Dealership Counsel secured nationwide settlements for the Class, whether they would obtain any class certification absent settlement presented additional risk that persisted throughout the litigation. That risk also supports the requested fee. See Linnear, 2019 WL 13072750, at *3 (Pallmeyer, J.) (awarding fees: "Plaintiff's Counsel also faced significant legal hurdles in establishing certification ….").

For example, in its motion to dismiss, Reynolds argued that pursuant to its DMS agreement, Reynolds' dealers' claims must be arbitrated – and then on an individual (i.e., non-class) basis. See ECF No. 256 at 6-19. In its motion to dismiss, CDK argued that, because of the Reynolds agreement with dealers, their claims against CDK must be arbitrated as well; additionally, the CDK dealers' claims should be stayed. See ECF No. 265 at 8-10. Dealership Counsel opposed the motions, see ECF No. 357, and the Court, in its January 2019 decision (issued after the Reynolds settlement was reached), rejected CDK's arguments (and otherwise largely denied its motion to dismiss). See ECF No. 507-1. Thereafter, in opposing Dealers' class certification motion, CDK urged that "many dealers" signed class action waivers (see ECF No. 1457 at 23); thus, "individualized questions regarding putative class members would predominate …." Id. at 24. Each of Defendants' arguments presented substantial risks. See Kaufman v. Am. Express Travel Related Servs. Co., 877 F.3d 276, 286 (7th Cir. 2017) (district court did not abuse discretion "in concluding that the pending appeal concerning the arbitration provision is a significant potential bar to the class's success"); In re TikTok, 617 F. Supp. 3d at 935 ("significant litigation risks" included arbitration clauses and class action waivers); Beckman v. KeyBank, N.A., 293 F.R.D. 467, 480 (S.D.N.Y. 2013) (awarding 33.3% fee, citing, inter alia, risk of class action waivers).

Moreover, because the Court ruled that Dealers' damages were limited to "indirect" damages that are not recoverable under federal law (see ECF No. 1381 at 67), any damages could be recovered only under the laws of those states that permit indirect purchaser claims. Dealership Counsel developed the novel argument that, based on the factual record in this case, certification of a nationwide indirect purchaser class of dealers was warranted under the IAA. See ECF No. 1425 at 12-15; ECF No. 1478 at 17-19. CDK vigorously opposed the argument (see ECF No. 1457 at 34), and whether Dealership Counsel's argument would prevail was far from certain.[11]

CDK also filed a Daubert motion to exclude the classwide damages model proffered by Dealers' economist, Dr. Michael Williams. ECF No. 1458; see ECF No. 1459-1. The motion was sub judice when the CDK settlement was reached.[12] If granted, the motion could have resulted in the denial of class certification, leaving Dealers with no recovery from CDK. See In re Lithium Ion Batteries Antitrust [11] CDK also argued that the IAA (and other state statutes) bar class certification. Although Dealership Counsel successfully opposed the argument at summary judgment, see ECF No. 1381 at 90-92 (applying Shady Grove Orthopedic Assoc. v. Allstate Ins. Co., 559 U.S. 393 (2010)), the issue remains disputed. See Biddle v. Walt Disney Co., 2024 WL 3171860, at *16 (N.D. Cal. June 25, 2024) (applying Shady Grove, and ruling that IAA's class action bar trumps Rule 23).

[12] Dr. Williams was also challenged in an earlier Daubert motion by CDK. See ECF No. 1321 at 1, 29-48.

Litig., 2018 WL 1156797, at *5 (N.D. Cal. Mar. 5, 2018) (expert's flawed pass-on model precluded class certification).

Finally, CDK argued that, in July 2019 – i.e., after the litigation began – it "started offering fee waivers to its Dealers." ECF No. 1520, July 2, 2024 Hearing Tr. at 24; see also ECF No. 1457 at 7-8. This development underscored the increasing risk that confronted Dealership Counsel during the case.

4. Defendants' Highly Qualified Counsel

The requested fee is also supported by the fact that, for seven years, Dealership Counsel stood toe-to-toe against Defendants represented by nationally acclaimed law firms.[13] See In re TikTok, 617 F. Supp. 3d at 942 ("[T]he quality of representation Defendants had for their defense supports the fee request as well …. That Class Counsel were able to secure a favorable settlement in the face of this opposition weighs in favor of a one-third fee."); In re E. Palestine Train Derailment, 2024 WL 4370003, at *12 (N.D. Ohio Sept. 27, 2024).

* * *

As shown above, Dealership Counsel's tenacity and perseverance, and the remarkable results they achieved in the face of substantial litigation risks, confirm the reasonableness of the requested fee.[14]

IV. THE COURT SHOULD REIMBURSE DEALERSHIP COUNSEL'S EXPENSES

In addition to awarding attorneys' fees, the Court should reimburse Dealership Counsel $4,192,133.86 for their expenses. As described above, that amount, plus the amount previously awarded in connection with the Reynolds Settlement, totals $7,192,133.86.

---

[13] Kirkland & Ellis and Mayer Brown represented CDK, and Gibbs & Bruns and Sheppard Mullin represented Reynolds.

[14] The fee award should include 33% of the interest earned on the settlement funds. See Corzo, 2024 WL 3506498, at *7; Macovski, 2022 WL 17256417, at *1; Pierrelouis, 2022 WL 7950362, at *1.

"In addition to fees, '[i]t is well established that counsel who create a common fund like this one are entitled to the reimbursement of litigation costs and expenses.'" Chambers, 2021 WL 1948452, at *2 (citation omitted); see also McDaniel, 2011 WL 13257336, at *4 (Pallmeyer, J.) (expense reimbursement "in most cases are the subject of an additional award.") (citation omitted), Corzo, 2024 WL 3506498, at *7 (N.D. Ill. July 20, 2024) (granting one-third fee, plus expenses of over $3.5 million, "including costs for computerized legal research, creation and maintenance of an electronic database, substantial expert and consultant costs, travel and lodging expenses, copying, court reporters, transcripts, filing fees, and mediation expenses. These expenses are typical considering the complexity of the action and the length of the litigation."); CS Wang, Case No. 1:16-cv-11223, ECF No. 654 at 8 (Pallmeyer, C.J.) (Exh. 1); City of Greenville v. Syngenta Corp Protection, Inc., 904 F. Supp. 2d 902, 910-11 (S.D. Ill. 2012) (awarding $8.57 million for, inter alia, expert and consulting fees, depositions, travel, and photocopying).

"[M]odern antitrust litigation is expensive," Ass'n of Am. Physicians & Surgeons, Inc. v. Am. Bd. of Med. Specialties, 15 F.4th 831, 835 (7th Cir. 2021), and the expenses here were reasonable and necessarily incurred. Wedgworth Fee Decl. ¶¶ 12, 15, 25, 26. Most of the total expenses (approximately 74%) were for experts in economics, cybersecurity, and the automotive industry. Id. ¶ 26. See Glaberson v. Comcast Corp., 2015 WL 5582251, at *16 (E.D. Pa. Sept. 22, 2015) (awarding $8.57 million in expenses, "[t]he largest component" of which was $6.7 million for economic expert fees). Moreover, Dealership Counsel incurred over $4 million in expenses "at the risk of not recovering them if the lawsuit was unsuccessful and therefore had incentive to ensure money was spent wisely and not frivolously." Chambers, 2021 WL 1948452, at *2.

V. THE COURT SHOULD GRANT CLASS REPRESENTATIVE AWARDS

Finally, the Court should grant $10,000 service awards to each of the 23 class representatives. See ECF No. 1528 at 15-16 (identifying the representatives). "The Seventh Circuit has endorsed incentive awards as a means of inducing an individual to participate in expanded litigation." McDaniel, 2011 WL 13257336, at *5 (citing cases). In this Circuit, "class representative service awards of $10,000 to $25,000 or more are not uncommon." Chambers, 2021 WL 1948452, at *3 (citing cases). See, e.g., Roberson, 2024 WL 4785359 (awarding $10,000 service awards); Corzo, 2024 WL 3506498, at *8 (awarding $20,000 to each of eight class representatives); Allen, 2015 WL 14074780, at *3 ($25,000 award); In re Potash Antitrust Litig., 2013 WL 12470850, at *2 (awarding $15,000 to each of six representatives).

The class representatives substantially contributed to the litigation's successful outcome. In addition to consulting with Dealership Counsel, each of them produced documents and answered interrogatories. Wedgworth Fee Decl. ¶¶ 28, 30. Sixteen of them also prepared for and sat for depositions. Id. The services of multiple representatives were important, as the Complaint asserts claims under the laws of twenty-six states, and CDK argued that representatives for each state are necessary. See ECF No. 1457 at 36.

The class representatives also undertook substantial risks. Most of them opposed their current DMS provider, see Wedgworth Fee Decl. ¶ 29, thus risking retaliation by a supplier on whom they relied for critical business operations. See In re Flonase Antitrust Litig., 951 F. Supp. 2d 739, 751 (E.D. Pa. 2013) (granting service awards: "These class representatives launched this litigation despite the risk of retaliation inherent in suing a supplier."); Scott v. Dart, 99 F.4th 1076, 1083 (7th Cir. 2024) ("[I]n certain contexts, such as employment discrimination actions, incentive awards may also recognize the added risks of retaliation or stigmatization that named plaintiffs assume in participating in a lawsuit against their current or former employers."), petition for cert. filed sub nom. Dart v. Scott, No. 24-464 (U.S. Oct. 24, 2024); McDaniel, 2011 WL 13257336, at *5 (Pallmeyer, J.) (granting service awards, noting "substantial risks" to class representatives).

Moreover, CDK filed counterclaims against various Dealers, including claims for breach of contract, and violations of the Computer Fraud and Abuse Act, 18 U.S.C. § 1030, and the Digital Millennium Copyright Act, 17 U.S.C. § 1201 ("DMCA"). See ECF No. 523 at 240-82. Although Dealership Counsel obtained dismissal of the counterclaims (see ECF No. 749 at 24 (motion to dismiss ruling), ECF No. 1832 (summary judgment ruling)), the DMCA damages sought by CDK – including over $24.4 million against a group of eight dealers (see ECF No. 1382 at 17) – highlight the enormous risks undertaken by the class representatives. These risks further support the requested awards. See Zilhaver v. UnitedHealth Group, Inc., 646 F. Supp. 2d 1075, 1085 (D. Minn. 2009) (awarding $15,000 to plaintiffs who "bore the risks of counterclaim or collateral attack").

VI. CONCLUSION

For the foregoing reasons, the Court should grant Dealership Counsel's motion for attorneys' fees, reimbursement of expenses, and class representative service awards.

Dated: November 27, 2024

Respectfully submitted,

/s/ Peggy J. Wedgworth

Peggy J. Wedgworth (pro hac vice)
Elizabeth McKenna (pro hac vice)
Robert A. Wallner (pro hac vice)
John Hughes (pro hac vice)*
Michael Acciavatti (pro hac vice)
MILBERG COLEMAN BRYSON PHILLIPS GROSSMAN, PLLC
405 East 50th Street
New York, NY 10022
(212) 594-5300
pwedgworth@milberg.com
emckenna@milberg.com
rwallner@milberg.com jhughes@milberg.com
macciavatti@milberg.com
* Admitted in Michigan only
 Admitted in Pennsylvania only

Dealership Class Lead Counsel

Leonard A. Bellavia (pro hac vice)
BELLAVIA BLATT, PC
200 Old Country Road, Suite 400
Mineola, New York 11501
(516) 873-3000
lbellavia@dealerlaw.com

Dealership Class Plaintiffs' Steering Committee

Daniel C. Hedlund (pro hac vice) Michelle J. Looby (pro hac vice)
GUSTAFSON GLUEK PLLC
Canadian Pacific Plaza
120 South Sixth Street, Suite 2600
Minneapolis, Minnesota 55402
(612) 333-8844
dhedlund@gustafsongluek.com
mlooby@gustafsongluek.com

Dealership Class Plaintiffs' Steering Committee

James E. Barz
Frank Richter
ROBBINS GELLER RUDMAN & DOWD LLP
200 South Wacker Drive, 31st Floor
Chicago, Illinois 60606
(312) 674-4674
jbarz@rgrdlaw.com
frichter@rgrdlaw.com

Dealership Class Plaintiffs' Steering Committee

Robert A. Clifford
CLIFFORD LAW OFFICES, P.C.
120 N. LaSalle Street, 31st Floor
Chicago, Illinois 60602
(312) 899-9090
RAC@cliffordlaw.com

MDL Liaison Counsel

CERTIFICATE OF SERVICE

I, Peggy J. Wedgworth, an attorney, hereby certify that on November 27, 2024, I caused a true and correct copy of the DEALERSHIP CLASS COUNSEL'S MOTION FOR ATTORNEYS' FEES, REIMBURSEMENT OF EXPENSES, AND CLASS REPRESENTATIVE SERVICE AWARDS to be filed and served electronically via the Court's CM/ECF system. Notice of this filing will be sent by email to all parties by operation of the Court's electronic filing system or by mail to anyone unable to accept electronic filing as indicated on the Notice of Electronic Filing. Parties may access this filing through the Court's CM/ECF system.

/s/ Peggy J. Wedgworth
Peggy J. Wedgworth

Exhibit 1

IN THE UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
FOR THE NORTHERN DISTRICT OF ILLINOIS
EASTERN DISTRICT

CS WANG & ASSOCIATE, et al.,	)
	)
Plaintiffs,	)	Case No. 1:16-cv-11223
	)
v.	)	Chief Judge Rebecca R. Pallmeyer
	)
WELLS FARGO BANK, N.A., et al.,	)
	)
Defendants.	)
	)

ORDER GRANTING FINAL APPROVAL OF CLASS ACTION SETTLEMENT

Plaintiffs CS Wang & Associate and Jay Schmidt Insurance Agency, Inc. (collectively, "Plaintiffs") and Defendants Wells Fargo Bank, N.A. and First Data Merchant Services, LLC (collectively, the "Wells Fargo Defendants"), having appeared before the Court for a hearing on final approval of the class action settlement in the above-captioned matter with respect to the claims asserted against the Wells Fargo Defendants, the Court having reviewed the Motion for Final Approval of Class Action Settlement (the "Final Approval Motion") and Plaintiffs' Petition for Award of Attorneys' Fees, Costs, and Incentive Awards, as well as the parties' presentation at the hearing on final approval and otherwise being fully informed in the premises:

IT IS HEREBY ORDERED AND ADJUDGED as follows:

1. The Motion for Final Approval of Class Action Settlement (Dkt. 648) is GRANTED. The settlement of this matter as it pertains to claims asserted against the Wells Fargo Defendants is granted final approval.

2. The Final Approval Motion attaches and incorporates the Settlement Agreement that, together with the exhibits thereto, sets forth the terms and conditions for a settlement of claims, on a class-wide basis, against the Wells Fargo Defendants. Capitalized terms and phrases that are not defined in this Order shall have the same meanings ascribed to them in the Settlement Agreement.

3. On August 16, 2021, this Court preliminarily approved the Settlement Agreement, and certified, for settlement purposes, the Settlement Class consisting of:

> All business that received a telephone call from a call center operated by International Payment Services, LLC or one of its affiliates between March 7, 2011 through May 7, 2014, while the call recipient was physically present in California, and who did not sign a contract for merchant processing services with First Data Merchant Services, LLC.[1]

(Dkt. No. 604)

4. This Court has jurisdiction over Plaintiffs, the Wells Fargo Defendants, and all members of the Settlement Class. The Court has jurisdiction over the claims and the subject matter of this Lawsuit pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 1332(d).

5. The Court finds that Plaintiffs and the Wells Fargo Defendants and their counsel are familiar with the claims being settled and the defenses asserted and have had the opportunity to conduct, and have conducted, extensive investigation and discovery relating to the claims alleged in the Lawsuit, including propounding and responding to written discovery, inspection and review of documents, and conducting and defending depositions.

6. The Court finds that Plaintiffs and the Wells Fargo Defendants and their counsel have investigated the facts and have analyzed the relevant legal issues with regard to the claims and defenses asserted in the Lawsuit. The Court further finds that Plaintiffs and the Wells Fargo Defendants have each looked at the uncertainties of trial and the benefits to be obtained under the proposed settlement, and have considered the costs, risks, and delays associated with the continued prosecution of this complex litigation, and the likely appeals of any rulings in favor of either party.

[1] Excluded from the Settlement Class are (i) the Judge and the Magistrate Judge presiding over this Lawsuit and members of their immediate families, and (ii) the Wells Fargo Defendants and their employees, subsidiaries, parent companies, successors, and predecessors. Also excluded from the Settlement Class are those businesses that would otherwise be members of the Settlement Class but who validly and timely requested exclusion in accordance with the Settlement Agreement and the requirements set by the Court.

7. The Court finds that the settlement was the product of extensive arm's length negotiations conducted in good faith, including a mediation on February 26, 2021, before the Honorable Layn R. Phillips (ret.). The Court finds no evidence of collusion amongst the Plaintiffs and the Wells Fargo Defendants in reaching the settlement. The settlement is supported by the Plaintiffs and Settlement Class Counsel. The Plaintiffs and Settlement Class Counsel adequately represented the Settlement Class for purposes of entering into and implementing the Settlement Agreement.

8. The notice sent to the Settlement Class via direct first class mail at each Settlement Class Member's last known address, publication of the Settlement Website, and internet Publication Notice as set forth in the Settlement Agreement adequately informed Settlement Class Members of the nature of the action, the terms of the Settlement Agreement, their right to request exclusion from the settlement, and their opportunity to file written objections and to appear and be heard at the final approval hearing regarding approval of the Settlement Agreement. The Court finds that the method and form of notice to the class was the best notice practicable under the circumstances and satisfied the requirements of Rule 23(c)(2)(B) and Rule 23(e)(1) and due process.

9. The Court finds that the appropriate government officials were properly and timely notified of the Settlement Agreement, pursuant to the Class Action Fairness Act of 2005

("CAFA"), 28 U.S.C. § 1715. The Court has reviewed the substance of this notice and finds that it complied with all applicable requirements of CAFA. As required by CAFA, more than ninety (90) days have elapsed between the date notice was provided pursuant to CAFA and the final approval hearing.

10. The Court hereby approves the proposed Settlement Agreement and finds that the settlement is fair, reasonable, and adequate. "To evaluate the fairness of a settlement, a court must consider 'the strength of plaintiffs' case compared to the amount of defendants' settlement offer, an assessment of the likely complexity, length and expense of the litigation, an evaluation of the amount of opposition to settlement among affected parties, the opinion of competent counsel, and the stage of the proceedings and the amount of discovery completed at the time of settlement.'" In re AT&T Mobility Wireless Data Servs. Sales Tax Litig., 789 F.Supp.2d 935, 958 (N.D. Ill. 2011) (quoting Synfuel Techs., Inc. v. DHL Express (USA), Inc., 463 F.3d 646, 653 (7th Cir. 2006)). Each of these five factors favors approval of the settlement reached here and supports the Court's finding that the settlement is fair, reasonable, and adequate, and is in the best interests of the Settlement Class Members:

a. The strength of Plaintiffs' case compared to the terms of the proposed settlement: The Wells Fargo Defendants vigorously disputed the merits of Plaintiffs' claims on a number of grounds. Among other things, the Wells Fargo Defendants have maintained that they had no principal-agent relationship with International Payment Services, LLC ("IPS") and, even if there were such a relationship, that IPS acted outside the scope of its authority when it recorded appointment-setting phone calls. Whether these complex issues would have been decided at summary judgment or at trial, they were far from certain for either side. The Wells Fargo Defendants have also raised a number of other defenses to the claims asserted against them, the resolution of which also remain uncertain. The amount of the settlement, on the other hand, provides a substantial recovery and is larger than any prior settlement of a class action lawsuit brought under the California Invasion of Privacy Act ("CIPA"). For these reasons, the consideration provided under the Settlement Agreement constitutes fair value given in exchange for the Released Claims. The first factor, therefore, clearly weighs in favor of final approval of the settlement.

b. The likely complexity, length, and expense of continued litigation: Trying this class action lawsuit to conclusion would have been a complex, lengthy, and expensive endeavor. Moreover, appeals almost certainly would have followed any judgment. The second factor, therefore, clearly favors final approval of the settlement.

c. The amount of opposition to settlement among effected parties: There was no opposition to the settlement amongst Settlement Class Members. Of the approximately 193,000 potential class members, none objected to the settlement. Nearly 24,000 class members, on the other hand, submitted a claim to participate in the settlement. The class members' reaction to the settlement, and the lack of opposition thereto, favors final approval.

d. The settlement is supported by the opinion of competent counsel: In connection with the fourth factor the Court has reviewed the declaration of Myron M. Cherry, a lawyer with over 50 years of experience in complex and class action litigation. See Schulte v. Fifth Third Bank, 805 F. Supp. 2d 560, 586-87 (N.D. Ill. 2011) (concluding that class counsel's opinion that settlement was fair supported approval of the proposed settlement where counsel had extensive experience in class actions and complex litigation); Vought v. Bank of Am., N.A., 901 F. Supp. 2d 1071, 1096 (C.D. Ill. 2012) (considering declarations of class counsel expressing their opinions that the proposed settlement was fair, reasonable and adequate). The Court finds that Mr. Cherry's declaration supports the Court's conclusion that the proposed settlement is fair, reasonable, and adequate, and provides substantial and meaningful relief to the Settlement Class.

e. The stage of the proceedings and the amount of discovery completed at the time of settlement: The stage of the proceedings and amount of discovery completed at the time of the settlement clearly weigh in favor of final approval. The case settled only after the parties engaged in substantial discovery and litigated and obtained rulings from the Court on several substantive and potentially dispositive issues in the case. The docket alone has over 600 entries thus far. The Court ruled on the Wells Fargo Defendants' motion to dismiss and motion for judgment on the pleadings. The parties also fully and extensively briefed Plaintiffs' motion for class certification. Due to the extensive investigation and discovery that occurred, as well as receiving a number of substantive rulings from the Court, the parties were in position to fully assess the strengths and weaknesses of the claims and defenses in negotiating this settlement. Accordingly, this factor favors approval of the settlement as well.

11. Plaintiffs and Settlement Class Counsel have acknowledged and agreed that, based upon the claims asserted and discovery conducted in this matter, the Wells Fargo Defendants could not have any liability for any call at issue in the Lawsuit placed after May 7, 2014. The Court finds that the Lawsuit does not assert any claims against the Wells Fargo Defendants for any call placed on or after May 8, 2014.

12. The Court directs Plaintiffs and the Wells Fargo Defendants to perform their duties set forth in the Settlement Agreement, including, but not limited to, causing the Settlement Administrator to issue settlement checks to Settlement Class Members who submitted valid and timely claims. The Settlement Class Members and the Wells Fargo Defendants are bound by the terms and conditions of the Settlement Agreement and this Order.

13. Plaintiffs' Petition for Award of Attorneys' Fees, Costs, and Incentive Awards and their motion to supplement that Petition (Dkt. 622 and Dkt. 649) are GRANTED as follows. The Court finds the requested attorneys' fees are fair and reasonable considering the value of the settlement, the benefits conferred on the class, the risks undertaken by class counsel, class counsel's knowledge and experience, and the normal rate of compensation class counsel likely would have received had they handled a similar suit on a contingent fee basis for a paying client. In common fund cases, "courts must do their best to award counsel the market price for legal services, in light of the risk of nonpayment and the normal rate of compensation in the market at the time." In re Synthroid Mktg. Litig., 264 F.3d 712, 718 (7th Cir. 2001). "[A] typical contingency agreement in this circuit might range from 33% to 40% of recovery." Leung v. XPO Logistics, Inc., 326 F.R.D. 185, 201–02 (N.D. Ill. 2018) (citing cases). Here, class counsel seeks an award of attorneys' fees in an amount of one-third of the Settlement Fund after deducting incentive awards and settlement administration costs. This request is consistent with the market rate for awarding attorneys' fees in class cases in this Circuit. Id.; see also Young v. Cty. of Cook, No. 06 C 552, 2017 WL 4164238, at *6 (N.D. Ill. Sept. 20, 2017) ("[A] 33% contingent fee of the total recovery is on the low end of what is typically negotiated ex ante by plaintiffs' firms taking on large, complex cases….") (awarding attorneys' fees in the amount of one-third of the $32.5 million fund); Standard Iron Works v. ArcelorMittal, No. 08 C 5214, 2014 WL 7781572, at *1 (N.D. Ill. Oct. 22, 2014) ("The Court finds that a 33% fee comports with the prevailing market rate for legal services of similar quality in similar cases.") (awarding attorneys' fees in the amount of 33% of $163.9 million settlement fund); Retsky Family Ltd. P'ship v. Price Waterhouse LLP, 97-cv-7694, 2001 WL 1568856, at *4 (N.D. Ill. Dec. 10, 2001) ("A customary contingency fee would range from 33 1/3% to 40% of the amount recovered."); Hale v. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co., No. 12-0660-DRH, 2018 WL 6606079 (S.D. Ill. Dec. 16, 2018) (awarding attorneys' fees in the amount of one-third of the $250 million common fund); Will v. Gen. Dynamics Corp., 06-cv-698, 2010 WL 4818174, at *2 (S.D. Ill. Nov. 22, 2010) ("Where the market for legal services in a class action is only for contingency fee agreements … 'the normal rate of compensation in the market' is '33.33% of the common fund recovered.'"). The Court, therefore, approves attorneys' fees to class counsel in the amount of $9,195,636, which shall be paid from the Settlement Fund pursuant to the terms of the Settlement Agreement.

14. Class counsel also seeks reimbursement of costs in the amount of $83,191.45, the most significant amount of which was for the electronic hosting of the Wells Fargo Defendants' document production, deposition transcripts, legal research costs, and copying costs. All these costs were necessary to properly prosecute this action, manage and review the voluminous document production, and to respond to numerous dispositive motions. The Court finds that the costs incurred by class counsel were reasonable and necessary. The Court, therefore, approves costs to class counsel in the amount of $83,191.45, which shall be paid from the Settlement Fund pursuant to the terms of the Settlement Agreement.

15. The Court finds that the requested incentive awards of $5,000 each to Plaintiffs CS Wang & Associate and Jay Schmidt Insurance Agency, Inc. are fair and reasonable and are approved, which amounts shall be paid from the Settlement Fund pursuant to the terms of the Settlement Agreement.

16. The Court finds that the businesses identified in Exhibit 1 attached hereto validly and timely requested exclusion from the Settlement Class in accordance with the Settlement Agreement and the requirements set by the Court and, therefore, are not part of the Settlement Class and are not bound by the Settlement Agreement or this Order.

17. The Court hereby dismisses all claims against the Wells Fargo Defendants released in the Settlement Agreement with prejudice and without awarding costs to any of the Plaintiffs, the Wells Fargo Defendants, or the Settlement Class Members (each a "Settling Party," and collectively, the "Settling Parties") as against any other Settling Party, except as provided above and in the Settlement Agreement. Other than as provided in the Settlement Agreement and this Order, the Settling Parties shall bear their own costs and attorneys' fees.

18. The Court orders that, upon entry of this Order, all Plaintiffs and Settlement Class Members shall have released and discharged the Released Parties from the Released Claims, as provided in Paragraph 21 of the Settlement Agreement.

19. All Settlement Class Members are hereby permanently barred and enjoined from filing, commencing, prosecuting, intervening in, or participating in any capacity (as class members or otherwise) in any lawsuit or other action in any jurisdiction asserting claims based on the Released Claims, or seeking an award of fees or costs of any kind or nature whatsoever and pursuant to any authority or theory whatsoever, relating to or arising from the Lawsuit as it relates to the Released Claims and/or as a result of or in addition to those provided by the Settlement Agreement as it relates to the Released Claims.

20. The terms of the Settlement Agreement and this Order shall have maximum res judicata, collateral estoppel and all other preclusive effect in any and all claims for relief, causes of action, suits, petitions, demands in law or equity, or any allegations of liability, damages, debts, contracts, agreements, obligations, promises, attorneys' fees, costs, interest or expenses that were or could have been asserted in the Lawsuit as it relates to the Released Claims or that are covered by the releases contained in the Settlement Agreement.

21. For the avoidance of doubt, this Order does not bar or enjoin claims, nor does it operate as res judicata, collateral estoppel, or as having any other preclusive effect on claims, based on telephone calls other than Eligible Calls, by any Settlement Class Members against Fifth Third Bank, N.A., Vantiv, Inc., National Processing Company, Fidelity National Information Services, Inc., Worldpay, Inc., Ironwood Financial, LLC, John Lewis, Dewitt Lovelace, International Payment Services, LLC, Brian Bentley, Adam Bentley, or Andrew Bentley.

22. The Plaintiffs and the Wells Fargo Defendants may, without further approval from the Court, agree to and adopt such amendments or modifications of the Settlement Agreement and its implementing documents (including all exhibits) that (i) shall be consistent in all material respects with this Final Judgment, and (ii) do not limit the rights of Settlement Class Members.

23. The Court grants final approval of the settlement in all respects. The claims in this action asserted against the Wells Fargo Defendants are dismissed on the merits and with prejudice.

24. This Order is a final and appealable judgment as to the Wells Fargo Defendants and the claims asserted against them, and the Court expressly determines pursuant to Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 54(b) that there is no just reason for delay of a final and appealable judgment with respect to all claims asserted against these defendants.

25. All persons or entities who have not made their objections to the Settlement Agreement in the manner provided in the Settlement Agreement are deemed to have waived any objections by appeal, collateral attack, or otherwise.

26. Without affecting the finality of this Final Judgment for purposes of appeal, the Court retains jurisdiction as to all matter related to the administration, consummation, enforcement, and interpretation of the Settlement Agreement and this Final Judgment, and for any other necessary purpose including the distribution of any remaining funds as a cy pres award as provided in the Settlement Agreement.

27. This Order, the Settlement Agreement, the settlement that it reflects, and all acts, statements, documents, or proceedings relating to the settlement are not, and shall not be construed as or used as an admission by or against the Wells Fargo Defendants of any fault, wrongdoing, or liability on the part of the Wells Fargo Defendants, or of the validity or certifiability for litigation of any claim or the existence of any amount of damages.

28. In the event that the Settlement Agreement does not become effective in accordance with its terms, or the Final Settlement Date does not occur, then this Order shall be rendered null and void to the extent provided by and in accordance with the Settlement Agreement and shall be vacated.

29. The Clerk is directed to enter final judgment consistent with this Order.

Dated: December 2, 2021

Hon. Rebecca R. Pallmeyer
United States District Court Judge

Exhibit 1

(Businesses that validly and timely opted out of the Settlement Class)

1) AAA Mobile Blind and Window Washing
2) Advantage Products, Inc.
3) American Postal Workers Union
4) Art on the Rock
5) Blair Aquatics Swim School
6) Campus Auto Care
7) Close Construction
8) Contractor Coatings, Inc.
9) Cruise One
10) Daryl Fogg Tax & Accounting, Inc.
11) DATAdvantage Group, Inc.
12) Evalueserve, Inc.
13) Evelyn's Nursery
14) Gantry
15) Gill Reprographics, Inc.
16) Ginny Powell
17) G.I. Trucking Company
18) Hearing & Speech Services
19) Mike Perry Photography
20) Petro-Lock, Inc.
21) Poetry & Prose
22) Poway-Bernardo Mortuary
23) Rae Neumen Private Gallery
24) Rodger L. Smith Construction Company
25) SAS Shoes
26) Teamsters Local No. 87
27) Walnut Creek Ctr

TAB 57A

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
EASTERN DISTRICT OF NEW YORK

PRECISION ASSOCIATES, INC., et al., Plaintiffs, v. PANALPINA WORLD TRANSPORT (HOLDING) LTD., et al. Defendants.	CASE NO. 08-CV-00042 (BMC)(PK)

AMENDED [PROPOSED] ORDER GRANTING CO-LEAD COUNSEL'S PETITION FOR A THIRD AWARD OF ATTORNEYS' FEES AND REIMBURSEMENT OF EXPENSES

This Court, having considered Co-Lead Counsel's Petition for a Third Interim Award of Attorneys' Fees and Reimbursement of Expenses (the "Motion") and memorandum in support thereof, after a duly noticed hearing, hereby finds that:

1. The Motion seeks (1) a total award of attorneys' fees of $29,443,654.19, or 25% of the Current Available Settlement Fund, to be paid now from existing cash in the Settlement Fund; (2) an order awarding $1,757,081.72 in unreimbursed costs and expenses incurred to date during the pendency of this action; and (3) a maximum future-looking award of $22,500,000.00, or 25% of the Future Available Settlement Fund up to a cap of $90,000,000.00 in future deposits, to be paid upon each such contribution to the Settlement Fund.

2. The amount of attorneys' fees requested is fair and reasonable under the percentage-of-the-fund method, which is confirmed by a lodestar "cross-check." Goldberger v. Integrated Res., Inc., 209 F.3d 43, 50 (2d Cir. 2000). In this petition and prior petitions Class Counsel have filed with the Court — and published on the website established for this case, www.freightforwardcase.com, for review by class members — detailed lodestar information and a detailed description of work performed by Class Counsel during each relevant time period.

3. The attorneys' fees requested were entirely contingent upon a successful outcome for the Class. The risk undertaken by Class Counsel was significant, especially considering that Co-Lead Counsel developed the case on their own before any government complaints, with all the risks of dismissal of Plaintiffs' complaint under Twombly,[1] complex foreign discovery, summary judgment, class certification, trial and collecting on judgments against foreign defendants, with complex legal theories advanced in the case, and vigorous efforts by experienced defense counsel to defeat this litigation throughout in motions to dismiss Plaintiffs' complaints, in discovery, and otherwise.

4. In addition to risking time and effort, Class Counsel have paid out-of-pocket substantial costs in connection with the prosecution of the litigation for the benefit of the Class with no guarantee of reimbursement.

5. An award of 25% of the Current Available Settlement Fund and 25% of the Future Available Settlement Fund is reasonable and warranted for the reasons set forth in the Memorandum In Support Of Co-Lead Counsel's Petition For A Third Award Of Attorneys' Fees And Reimbursement Of Expenses (the "Memorandum"), including, but not limited to, the following: the outstanding result obtained for the Class; the diligent investigation and prosecution of the case by Class Counsel, including voluminous briefing, discovery, extensive fact interviews, and substantial research into the freight forwarding industry; and the substantial risks faced throughout the litigation, which existed from the outset.

[1] Bell Atl. Corp. v. Twombly, 550 U.S. 544, 570 (2007).

6. Therefore, upon consideration of the Motion and accompanying Memorandum, and based upon all matters of record in this action, the Court hereby finds that: (1) the requested attorneys' fees are warranted and just; and (2) the requested expenses were necessary, reasonable, and proper.

Having considered Co-Lead Counsel's Petition for a Third Interim Payment of Attorneys' Fees and Reimbursement of Expenses,

IT IS HEREBY ORDERED, ADJUDGED, AND DECREED:

1. Class Counsel are awarded attorneys' fees as follows:

   a. Class Counsel are awarded $29,443,654.19, to be paid now from funds currently paid into the Settlement Fund; and

   b. Class Counsel are awarded 25% of all future contributions made to the Settlement Fund made by Settling Defendants and not subject to a previous fee award, up to a maximum of $90,000,000.00 in future contributions, for a maximum future-looking award of attorneys' fees of $22,500,000.00, to be paid upon each such contribution to the Settlement Fund from each such contribution;

2. Except as indicated otherwise in Paragraph 1.b. above, the awarded attorneys' fees shall be paid pro rata from the Settlement Funds.

3. Class Counsel are awarded $1,757,081.72 as remuneration for their unreimbursed costs and expenses incurred during the course of the litigation. The award of reimbursement of expenses shall be paid pro rata from the Settlement Funds.

4. The awarded attorneys' fees and reimbursed expenses shall be equitably distributed by Co-Lead Counsel in a good-faith manner that in Co-Lead Counsel's judgment reflects Class Counsel's contribution to the institution, prosecution, and resolution of the litigation.

5. The Court finding no just reason for delay, this Order shall be entered as of this date pursuant to Rule 54(b) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

This 4th day of November, 2016.

Digitally signed by Brian M. Cogan

HONORABLE BRIAN M. COGAN
UNITED STATES DISTRICT JUDGE

TAB 57B

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
EASTERN DISTRICT OF NEW YORK

PRECISION ASSOCIATES, INC., et al., on behalf of themselves and all others similarly situated, Plaintiffs, vs. PANALPINA WORLD TRANSPORT (HOLDING) LTD., et al., Defendants.	Case No.: 08-CV-00042 (BMC) (PK)

MEMORANDUM IN SUPPORT OF
CO-LEAD COUNSEL'S PETITION FOR A THIRD
AWARD OF ATTORNEYS' FEES AND REIMBURSEMENT OF EXPENSES

TABLE OF CONTENTS

I. INTRODUCTION 1
II. FEES AND EXPENSES REQUESTED 3
A. Prior Fee Awards 3
B. Fee Request As To Current Available Settlement Fund 5
1. Third Round Settlements With DHL and Hellmann 5
2. Additional Payments Made Under The Prior Rounds of Settlements 5
3. Additional Adjustment Following Second Interim Fee Award 6
4. Calculation Of Current Available Settlement Fund And Requested Fees And Expenses 7
C. Fee Request as to Future Available Settlement Fund. 8
III. ARGUMENT 8
A. The Court Should Award Attorneys' Fees Based On A Percentage Of The Common Fund. 8
B. A Future-Looking Order Awarding 25% Of The Future Available Settlement Fund Is Reasonable. 9
C. Co-Lead Counsel Seek A Reasonable Percentage Of The Current Available Settlement Fund And The Future Available Settlement Fund. 11
D. Class Counsel's Request Is Consistent With The Goldberger Factors 13
1. The Time And Labor Expended By Counsel Supports The Requested Fee. 14
2. The Magnitude And Complexities Of The Litigation Support The Requested Fee. 16
3. The Risk Of Litigation Supports The Requested Fee. 16
4. The Quality Of Counsel's Representation Supports The Requested Fee. 19
5. The Size And The Scope Of The Settlements Supports The Requested Fee. 20

6. Public Policy Considerations Support the Award of the Requested Fee. 20

E. The Requested Fee Is Reasonable Under A Lodestar Cross-check. 21

F. The Requested Expense Reimbursement Is Reasonable. 23

G. In The Future, Co-Lead Counsel Will Make Subsequent Applications For The Court's Consideration For Expenses Related To Claims Settlement, Administration, And Processing. 24

H. Class Members Have Received Notice and Have an Opportunity to Object. 24

IV. CONCLUSION 25

TABLE OF AUTHORITIES

Page(s)

Cases

In re Air Cargo Shipping Services Antitrust Litigation,
No. 06-MD-1775, 2011 WL 2909162 (E.D.N.Y. July 15, 2011).....20, 21, 22

In re Air Cargo Shipping Services Antitrust Litigation,
No. 06-MD-1775, 2012 WL 3138596 (E.D.N.Y. Aug. 2, 2012).....12, 13

Alpine Pharmacy, Inc. v. Chas. Pfizer & Co., Inc.,
481 F.2d 1045 (2d Cir. 1973).....21

Anixter v. Home-Stake Prod. Co.,
77 F.3d 1215 (10th Cir. 1996) 17

In re Arakis Energy Corp. Sec. Litig.,
No. 95CV3421, 2001 WL 1590512 (E.D.N.Y. Oct. 31, 2001) 23

Backman v. Polaroid Corp.,
910 F.2d 10 (1st Cir. 1990) (en banc).....17

Beckman v. KeyBank, N.A.,
293 F.R.D. 467 (S.D.N.Y. 2013) 22

Blue Shield of Va. v. McCready,
457 U.S. 465 (1982).....21

Boeing Co. v. Van Gemert,
444 U.S. 472 (1980).....8

In re Bristol-Myers Squibb Sec. Litig.,
362 F. Supp. 2d 299 (S.D.N.Y. 2005).....22

In re Cedant Corp. PRIDES Litig.,
243 F.3d 722 (3d Cir. 2001).....22

In re Checking Account Overdraft Litig.,
Case No. 09-MD-02036-JLK, 2011 WL 5873389 (S.D. Fla. Nov. 22, 2011).....13

In re Credit Default Swaps Antitrust Litig.,
No. 13-MD-2476 (DLC), 2016 WL 2731524 (S.D.N.Y. Apr. 26, 2016).....22

In re Currency Conversion Fee Antitrust Litig.,
263 F.R.D. 110 (S.D.N.Y. 2009) 9, 16, 17

In re Elan Sec. Litig.,
385 F. Supp. 2d 363 (S.D.N.Y. 2005).....23

In re Ethylene Propylene Diene Monomer (EPDM) Antitrust Litig., 681 F. Supp. 2d 141 (D. Conn. 2009).....11

Farinella v. Paypal, Inc.,
611 F. Supp. 2d 250 (E.D.N.Y. 2009).....21

Goldberger v. Integrated Res., Inc.,
209 F.3d 43 (2d Cir. 2000).....9, 13, 14, 17

In re High Fructose Corn Syrup Antitrust Litig.,
295 F.3d 651 (7th Cir. 2002).....11

In re Initial Public Offering Sec. Litig.,
671 F. Supp. 2d 467 (S.D.N.Y. 2009).....20

In re Linerboard Antitrust Litig.,
No. MDL 1261, Civ. A. 98-5055, Civ. A. 99-1000, Civ. A. 99-1341, 2004 WL 1221350 (E.D. Pa. June 2, 2004).....13

In re Marsh ERISA Litig.,
265 F.R.D. 128 (S.D.N.Y. 2010).....17

Masters v. Wilhelmina Model Agency, Inc.,
473 F.3d 423 (2d Cir. 2007).....9

McDaniel v. Cnty. of Schenectady,
595 F.3d 411 (2d Cir. 2010).....8, 14

In re Merrill Lynch & Co., Inc. Research Reports Sec. Litig.,
246 F.R.D. 156 (S.D.N.Y. 2007).....20

Miltland Raleigh-Durham v. Myers,
840 F. Supp. 235 (S.D.N.Y. 1993).....23

Monserrate v. Tequipment, Inc.,
No. 11 CV 6090, 2012 WL 5830557 (E.D.N.Y. Nov. 16, 2012).....21

In re NASDAQ Mkt. Makers Antitrust Litig.,
187 F.R.D. 465 (S.D.N.Y. 1998).....17, 20

In re Nortel Networks Corp. Secs. Litig.,
539 F.3d at 132 n.4.....21

Precision Assocs., Inc. v. Panalpina World Transport (Holding) Ltd.,
No. 08-cv-42 (JG)(VVP), 2013 WL 4525323 (E.D.N.Y. Aug. 27, 2013)..... passim

Precision Assocs., Inc. v. Panalpina World Transport (Holding) Ltd.,
No. 08-cv-42 (JG)(VVP), 2015 WL 6964973 (E.D.N.Y. Nov. 10, 2015)..... passim

In re Priceline.com, Inc. Sec. Litig.,
Master File No. 3:00-cv-1884, 2007 WL 2115592 (D. Conn. July 20, 2007).....20

In re Prudential Sec., Inc. Ltd. P'ships Litig.,
912 F. Supp. 97 (S.D.N.Y. 1996).....20

In re Urethane Antitrust Litig.,
MDL No. 1616, 2016 WL 4060156 (D. Kan. July 29, 2016).....22

In Re: Urethane Antitrust Litig. (Polyether Polyol)
MDL No. 1616, Order Awarding Attorneys' Fees and Reimbursement of Litigation Expenses to Plaintiffs' Co-Lead Counsel (D. Kan. Dec. 12, 2011) 10

Velez v. Novartis Pharm. Corp.,
04 CIV 09194 CM, 2010 WL 4877852 (S.D.N.Y. Nov. 30, 2010).....23

In re Visa Check/Mastermoney Antitrust Litigation, 297 F. Supp. 2d 503 (E.D.N.Y. 2003), aff'd sub nom.
Wal-Mart Stores, Inc. v. Visa U.S.A., Inc., 396 F.3d 96 (2d Cir. 2005) 12, 13

In re Vitamin C Antitrust Litig.,
2012 WL 5289514 (E.D.N.Y. Oct. 23, 2012).....23

In re Vitamins Antitrust Litig.,
No. Misc. 99-197 (TFH), MDL No. 1285, 2001 WL 34312839 (D.D.C. July 16, 2001) 13

Wal-Mart Stores, Inc. v. Visa U.S.A., Inc.,
396 F.3d 96 (2d Cir. 2005).....9, 22

Wesely v. Spear, Leeds & Kellogg,
711 F. Supp. 713 (E.D.N.Y. 1989) 16

Zenith Radio Corp. v. Hazeltine Research, Inc.,
395 U.S. 100 (1969).....21

Statutes

Antitrust Criminal Penalty Enhancement and Reform Act of 2004, Pub. L. No. 108-237, §
213(a)-(b), 118 Stat. 661, 666-668 (June 22, 2004).....18

Other Authorities

Fed. R. Civ. P. 12.....18

Fed. R. Civ. P. 23(h) 9

Other Authorities (cont.)

Fed. R. Civ. P. 26(f) 15

Manual for Complex Litigation (Fourth) § 14.121 (2004) 13

Alba Conte & Herbert B. Newberg, 4 Newberg on Class Actions § 14.6 (4th ed. 2002) 13

I. INTRODUCTION

Plaintiffs' Co-Lead Counsel and other Plaintiffs' Counsel (collectively "Class Counsel") respectfully move the Court for a third award of attorneys' fees and reimbursement of litigation expenses. Since the last time the Court granted an interim fee, see ECF No. 1330 (filed November 10, 2015), Settling Defendants have paid or soon will pay an additional $117,774,616.77 to the Class, from which no attorneys' fees or litigation expenses have been awarded. These latest payments bring the settlement totals in this case to over $406 million. Class Counsel now respectfully request the Court to award from that additional amount, referred to as the Current Available Settlement Fund: (1) fees of 25%, for a fee award of $29,443,654.19; and (2) reimbursement of litigation expenses totaling $1,762,803.75.

Many Settling Defendants also have agreed to make future settlement payments from proceeds they will recover in In re: Air Cargo Shipping Services Antitrust Litigation, MDL No. 1775 (E.D.N.Y.) ("Air Cargo"), into a "Future Available Settlement Fund." Like all settlement payments to date, these future payments are the direct result of Class Counsel's years-long efforts for the Class. Accordingly, Class Counsel respectfully request a forward-looking fee award of 25% of up to $90 million of that Future Available Settlement Fund, for a maximum future-looking fee award of $22,500,000. If the Future Available Settlement Fund exceeds the $90 million cap, Class Counsel would move the Court for any additional fees.

In the nearly nine years this case has been pending, Class Counsel have worked tirelessly for the Class to litigate these complex international claims. As summarized below and described in detail in the Bruckner Declaration and the Joint Declaration,[1] Class Counsel have settled with

[1] References to the "Bruckner Decl." or "Bruckner Declaration" are to the Declaration Of W. Joseph Bruckner In Support Of Co-Lead Counsel's Petition For A Third Award Of Attorneys' Fees And Reimbursement Of Expenses, dated September 1, 2016 and filed herewith, which summarizes Class Counsel's work on behalf of the Class from August 16, 2015 through July 31, all 29 Defendant groups named in the Fourth Amended Class Action Complaint, fully resolving all of Plaintiffs' 11 claims. The total settlements of roughly $406.1 million will grow as settling Defendants make additional payments due under their settlement agreements.[2]

Judge Gleeson noted that "[f]rom the outset, the potential for this complex litigation to consume considerable time and resources has been great. Complex legal and factual issues abound." Precision Assocs., Inc. v. Panalpina World Transport (Holding) Ltd., No. 08-cv-42 (JG)(VVP), 2013 WL 4525323, at *7 (E.D.N.Y. Aug. 27, 2013) ("Precision I"); see also Precision Assocs., Inc. v. Panalpina World Transport (Holding) Ltd., No. 08-cv-42 (JG)(VVP), 2015 WL 6964973, at *6 (E.D.N.Y. Nov. 10, 2015) ("Precision II") (quoting Precision I). The Court's observation three years ago remains undoubtedly correct. The Joint Declaration in support of Class Counsel's 2015 fee petition (ECF No. 1282), supplemented here by the Bruckner Declaration, describes in detail the motion practice, discovery, depositions, interviews, appearances, conferences, negotiations, settlements, stipulations, and other work Class Counsel performed for the Class's benefit. Class Counsel's zealous litigation over nearly nine years has resulted in the additional settlement funds from which Class Counsel now seek this award.

It is important to note that this case is not derivative of Air Cargo. The two cases are somewhat factually related, since freight forwarders almost always buy air cargo services. As a result, most of the Defendants in this case are class members and claimants in Air Cargo.[3] But the defendants in each case operate in different markets and at different levels in the cargo shipping industry, and the two cases alleged different conspiracies, with different plaintiffs, different class members, different defendants, different surcharges, and different meetings and communications among different key players. Compare ECF No. 1310 (operative Precision Complaint) with Complaint, In re: Air Cargo Shipping Services Antitrust Litigation, MDL No. 1775 (E.D.N.Y.) [ECF No. 271]. Like Air Cargo and many other cases, this case involved complicated antitrust issues, well-funded defendants, and a plethora of foreign defendants and evidence. But unlike Air Cargo, in this case there were no government criminal complaints at the time this civil litigation was filed; there were no guilty pleas to criminal charges until more than two and one-half years after Plaintiffs' case began (whereas the Air Cargo plaintiffs were assisted by the amnesty applicant almost from the inception of the case); and there were 11 distinct claims and conspiracies (compare Air Cargo alleging a single global conspiracy).

---

2016. References to the "Joint Decl." or "Joint Declaration" are to the Joint Declaration Of Co-Lead Counsel In Support Of Co-Lead Counsel's Petition For A Second Interim Award of Attorneys' Fees And Reimbursement of Expenses, ECF No. 1282, which summarized Class Counsel's work on behalf of the Class from the inception of the case through August 15, 2015, and which was the subject of Class Counsel's second fee petition, filed approximately one year ago.

[2] The exact timing and amount of any future Air Cargo payments to Plaintiffs in this case cannot be determined at this time, and no fees have previously been sought or awarded from them.

II. FEES AND EXPENSES REQUESTED

A. Prior Fee Awards

On December 27, 2013, the Court ordered a first interim award of attorneys' fees, and awarded Class Counsel 15% of the recoveries they had obtained in the First Round Settlements.[4]

[3] Plaintiffs consistently took the position that the Class in this case was entitled to Defendants' Air Cargo proceeds because, they alleged, Defendants agreed to pass on (sometimes after marking up) many external surcharges, including Air Cargo surcharges, to Plaintiffs and Class members in this case. Though Defendants denied Plaintiffs' allegations, many Defendants in this case agreed to use Air Cargo proceeds to fund settlements with Plaintiffs.

[4] First Round Settlements were reached with Deutsche Bahn AG, Schenker AG, Schenker, Inc., Bax Global Inc., and DB Schenker (collectively "Schenker"); EGL, Inc. and EGL Eagle Global Logistics, LP, Inc. (collectively "EGL"); Vantec Corporation and Vantec World Transport (USA), Inc. (collectively "Vantec"); Expeditors International of Washington, Inc. ("Expeditors"); Nishi-Nippon Railroad Co., Ltd. ("Nishi-Nippon"); United Aircargo Consolidators, Inc. ("UAC"); Kuehne + Nagel International and Kuehne + Nagel, Inc. (collectively "Kuehne + Nagel"); Morrison Express Logistics Pte. Ltd (Singapore) and Morrison

See Electronic Order dated Oct. 3, 2013 (awarding fees and expenses); ECF No. 984 (granting motion for reconsideration and increasing first interim fee award to 15%). At the Court's instruction, the first interim award used as a lodestar cross-check only Class Counsel's time incurred directly in obtaining the First Round Settlements, not time incurred in litigating the case overall against all Defendants.

On November 10, 2015, the Court ordered a second interim award of attorneys' fees, and awarded Class Counsel 25% of the total settlement fund available as of August 15, 2015. ECF No. 1330. The then-available funds included: (1) all then-received payments and guaranteed future payments from the Second Round Settlements,[5] plus (2) all Air Cargo proceeds actually

---

Express Corporation (U.S.A.) (collectively "Morrison Express"); UTi Worldwide, Inc. ("UTi"); and ABX Logistics Worldwide NV/SA ("ABX"). The Court entered final approval as to each. ECF Nos. 879-88.

[5] Second Round Settlements were reached with SDV Logistique Internationale ("SDV"); Panalpina World Transport (Holding) Ltd. and Panalpina, Inc. (collectively "Panalpina"); Geodis S.A. and Geodis Wilson USA, Inc. (collectively "Geodis"); Jet Speed Logistics, Ltd. also known as Jet Speed Air Cargo Forwarders (HK), Ltd, Jet Speed Logistics (USA), LLC, and Jet-Speed Air Cargo Forwarders, Inc. (USA) (collectively "Jet Speed"); DSV A/S, DSV Solutions Holding A/S, and DSV Air & Sea Ltd. formerly known as DFDS Transport (HK) Ltd. (collectively "DSV"); Toll Global Forwarding (USA), Inc., Baltrans Logistics, Inc., and Toll Holdings, Ltd. (collectively "Toll"); Agility Holdings, Inc., Agility Logistics Corp., Geologistics Corp., and Geologistics International Management (Bermuda) Limited (collectively "Agility"); United Parcel Service, Inc. and UPS Supply Chain Solutions, Inc. (collectively "UPS"); Dachser GmbH & Co., KG, doing business as Dachser Intelligent Logistics and Dachser Transport of America, Inc. (collectively "Dachser"); Hankyu Hanshin Express Holding Corporation, formerly known as Hankyu Express International Co., Ltd., Hankyu Hanshin Express Co., Ltd.; and Hanshin Air Cargo USA, Inc. (collectively "Hankyu Hanshin"); Japan Aircargo Forwarders Association ("JAFA"); Kintetsu World Express, Inc. and Kintetsu World Express (U.S.A.), Inc. (collectively "Kintetsu"); "K" Line Logistics, Ltd. and "K" Line Logistics (U.S.A.), Inc. (collectively "'K Line'"); MOL Logistics (Japan) Co., Ltd. and MOL Logistics (USA) Inc. (collectively "MOL Logistics"); Nippon Express Co., Ltd. and Nippon Express USA, Inc. (collectively "Nippon Express"); Nissin Corporation and Nissin International Transport U.S.A., Inc. (collectively "Nissin"); Yamato Global Logistics Japan Co., Ltd. and Yamato Transport U.S.A. Inc. (collectively "Yamato"); Yusen Air & Sea Service Co., Ltd. and Yusen Air & Sea Service (U.S.A.) Inc. (collectively "Yusen"), and with Hankyu Hanshin, JAFA, Kintetsu, "K" Line, MOL Logistics, Nippon Express, Nissin, and Yamato, the "Japanese Defendants"); and, for the severed Japanese Claims only, Deutsche Post AG, Danzas Corporation (doing business as received from the First and Second Round Settlements, minus (3) certain offsets. See, e.g., ECF No. 1281 at 6. Unlike the Court's narrower lodestar approach in the first interim award, in the second interim award the Court considered as a lodestar cross-check all attorneys' fees accrued from the inception of the case through August 15, 2015. The second interim award yielded a deflator. Precision II, 2015 WL 6964973, at *7.

B. Fee Request As To Current Available Settlement Fund

1. Third Round Settlements With DHL and Hellmann

The Court has preliminarily approved settlements with DHL and Hellmann, the remaining two Defendants (the "Third Round Settlements").[6] ECF Nos. 1343, 1358. Those Third Round Settlements provide for cash payments of $53,550,000, all of which has been received and deposited in interest-bearing escrow accounts. Bruckner Decl. ¶ 5. Each of the Third Round Settlements includes funds reserved to pay for notice to the Class of these proposed settlements and other related expenses, and requires the settling Defendant to cooperate with Plaintiffs in prosecuting their claims if the Court does not finally approve both settlements. Id. The Court has scheduled a fairness hearing on these two settlements for November 4, 2016, the same day that the Court will hear this petition. ECF No. 1367.

2. Additional Payments Made Under The Prior Rounds of Settlements

Most of the First and Second Round Settlements (collectively "Prior Round Settlements") require those settling Defendants to pay to the Class some or all proceeds they recover in Air

DHL Global Forwarding), DHL Express (USA) Inc., DHL Forwarding Japan K.K., DHL Japan Inc., Exel Global Logistics, Inc., and Air Express International USA, Inc. (collectively "DHL"). The Court granted final approval to the Second Round Settlements on November 10, 2016. ECF No. 1330.

[6] Plaintiffs reached Third Round Settlements with Hellmann Worldwide Logistics GmbH & Co. KG, Hellmann Worldwide Logistics Ltd. Hong Kong, and Hellmann Worldwide Logistics, Inc. for all claims against them; and with DHL for the non-severed claims.

Cargo. Thus, in addition to the Prior Round Settlement recoveries on which the Court calculated the first and second interim fee awards, some of those Defendants now also have received a fourth round of Air Cargo distributions and have now deposited, or soon will deposit,[7] those funds, totaling $54,224,616.77, into their respective settlement escrow accounts.[8]

3. Additional Adjustment Following Second Interim Fee Award[9]

In calculating the second requested fee award, Class Counsel explicitly did not seek fees on a $10 million portion of settlement payments by the Japanese Defendants which was potentially subject to refund under a ratchet-down provision in their settlement agreement. Instead, Class Counsel specifically reserved the right to seek fees on that amount at a future time, [7] As described more fully in the Bruckner Declaration, DSV has deposited nearly all of its Air Cargo Round 4 proceeds into the Settlement Fund, as required under its settlement agreement, and is waiting to receive one re-issued Air Cargo Round 4 claim check in the amount of $6,264.43. Bruckner Decl. ¶ 15. When DSV receives that check, it will deposit the proceeds into the Settlement Fund. Id. Because the reissuance and deposit of that check is purely an administrative matter, Class Counsel now seek fees on all DSV's Round 4 proceeds. If the Court grants Class Counsel's fee petition, Class Counsel will not deduct any fees from DSV's forthcoming Round 4 payment until that money is actually paid in the account and available for distribution to qualified class member claimants.

[8] As this Court is aware, the Air Cargo litigation apparently has now settled in its entirety, and several defendants in that case will make payments over time, into 2018. Thus, class members in that case — including Settling Defendants in this case —likely will receive additional distributions in the future.

[9] Although it does not affect either the Current or Future Available Settlement Funds or the fees sought in this petition, one additional aspect of the Court's second interim award of fees may have an extremely small effect on the lodestar cross-check calculation described below. As described more fully in the Bruckner Declaration, Jet Speed did not timely make its final scheduled payment of $250,000, and it has entered into a payment plan with Plaintiffs to complete its payment obligations by the end of June 2017. The Court's second interim fee award already awarded as attorneys' fees 25% of that final scheduled payment. Class Counsel did not deduct any part of that Court-ordered fee award from that delinquent payment. Furthermore, Class Counsel will not deduct any portion of those previously awarded fees until Jet Speed deposits at least $187,500 — 75% of its final scheduled payment — into the settlement fund and that money is available to qualified claimants. See generally Bruckner Decl. ¶¶ 6-7. Class Counsel anticipate that Jet Speed will pay all amounts still due under its settlement agreement. Nevertheless, if Jet Speed does not do so, Class Counsel bear the primary risk of any eventual underpayment, which would reduce the fees paid to Class Counsel and similarly reduce the multiplier resulting from the lodestar cross-check.

after the size of any refund was known. ECF No. 1281 at 5 (reservation), 6 (calculation). Because so few Class members ultimately opted out, the ratchet-down provision was not triggered, ECF No. 1328, and the Current Available Settlement Fund now includes the $10 million previously held back on the basis of that provision.

4. Calculation Of Current Available Settlement Fund And Requested Fees And Expenses

At this time, Class Counsel request that the Court order a third fee award of 25% of the Current Available Settlement Fund to be paid now, and calculated as follows:

$54,224,616.77	New Air Cargo proceeds from Prior Round Settlements
+ $53,550,000.00	Third Round Settlement proceeds (DHL and Hellmann)
+$10,000,000.00	Previously reserved ratchet-down for Japanese Defendants
= $117,774,616.77	Current Available Settlement Fund
x 25%	Fee award percentage requested by Class Counsel
= $29,443,654.19	Total fee requested from Current Available Settlement Fund

The Court previously ordered two fee awards of 15% and 25%, respectively, for a total of $59,100,217.82. ECF No. 984; ECF No. 1330. If the Court now awards the third fee request of $29,443,654.19 from the Current Available Settlement Fund, then the aggregate fees awarded thus far in this case of $88,543,872.01 will represent a multiplier of 1.23 on Class Counsel's time spent from the inception of the case through July 31, 2016.

Class Counsel also request unreimbursed expenses incurred from August 15, 2015 through July 31, 2016. The unreimbursed expenses for this period total $1,762,803.75 and are set forth in the summaries of deferred billings and unreimbursed expenses (Bruckner Decl. Exs. J and K) and each of the law firm declarations filed therewith.[10]

[10] Class Counsel do not include in this request reimbursement of certain contributions made in late August 2015 by Co-Lead Counsel to the litigation fund established in this case. The Court's

C. Fee Request as to Future Available Settlement Fund.

In addition to the requested fee award from the Current Available Settlement Fund described above, Class Counsel respectfully request a forward-looking fee award of 25% of the Future Available Settlement Fund comprising any future Air Cargo payments Settling Defendants make under their settlement agreements, up to a cap of $90 million. The requested future-looking award, plus the fee award sought here from the Current Available Settlement Fund and the two prior fee awards, would result in an aggregate fee award of no more than $111,043,872.01. Even assuming Class Counsel's lodestar was frozen as of July 31, 2016,[11] this would represent a multiplier of no more than 1.54 with respect to the value of Class Counsel's work in this case from its inception, for an overall blended fee award not exceeding 23%.

III. ARGUMENT

A. The Court Should Award Attorneys' Fees Based On A Percentage Of The Common Fund.

The common fund doctrine provides that plaintiffs' attorneys in a class action may petition the court for compensation from any benefits to the class that resulted from counsel's efforts. Boeing Co. v. Van Gemert, 444 U.S. 472, 478 (1980). While the Second Circuit permits either the "percentage of the fund" approach or the lodestar approach when calculating fees in a common fund case, see, e.g., McDaniel v. Cnty. of Schenectady, 595 F.3d 411, 419 (2d Cir. 2010) (holding that a district court may in its discretion chose either approach), the "trend in this Circuit is toward the percentage method, which directly aligns the interests of the class and its counsel and provides a powerful incentive for the efficient prosecution and early resolution of second interim award of litigation expenses already reimbursed Co-Lead Counsel for those late August 2015 contributions. See Joint Decl. ¶¶ 332-33 and n.42.

---

[11] This assumption is extremely conservative and unlikely, given that considerable class administration work will be required of Class Counsel through final distribution, which will not conclude until 2018 at the earliest.

litigation." Wal-Mart Stores, Inc. v. Visa U.S.A., Inc., 396 F.3d 96, 121 (2d Cir. 2005) (citation omitted); accord In re Currency Conversion Fee Antitrust Litig., 263 F.R.D. 110, 128 (S.D.N.Y. 2009).

The percentage method dispenses with the "cumbersome, enervating, and often surrealistic process of lodestar computation." Goldberger v. Integrated Res., Inc., 209 F.3d 43, 50 (2d Cir. 2000) (quotation marks and citations omitted). However, the Court of Appeals recommends considering the hours submitted by counsel as a cross-check on the reasonableness of the requested percentage. Id. Accordingly, Class Counsel's lodestar in this case and the cross-check it provides are discussed in Section III.E. below. Regardless of which method of calculation a court uses, the key consideration in awarding fees is what is reasonable under the circumstances. Goldberger, 209 F.3d at 47; see also Fed. R. Civ. P. 23(h) ("In a certified class action, the court may award reasonable attorney's fees . . . .").

B. A Future-Looking Order Awarding 25% Of The Future Available Settlement Fund Is Reasonable.

In addition to the fee award requested based on the Current Available Settlement Fund, an order making a future-looking award from the Future Available Settlement Fund is also reasonable and appropriate at this time.

A fee award should be based on the entire settlement fund, not a portion of the fund. See Masters v. Wilhelmina Model Agency, Inc., 473 F.3d 423, 437 (2d Cir. 2007) ("The entire Fund, and not some portion thereof, is created through the efforts of counsel at the instigation of the entire class. An allocation of fees by percentage should therefore be awarded on the basis of the total funds made available, whether claimed or not."). Many Settling Defendants' settlement agreements require them to pay some or all of any future Air Cargo proceeds they receive, and those future payments constitute part of the entire settlement fund. Although the precise amount and timing of future Air Cargo proceeds cannot be pinpointed with certainty now, such funds will provide real and tangible value to the Class.[12] The Court's second interim fee award, based in part on future payments from Settling Defendants, implicitly recognized the reasonableness of prospectively awarding fees as to future payments. Precision II, 2015 WL 6964973, at 5, 8. Other courts likewise have entered forward-looking fee orders in cases involving future settlement payments. E.g., In Re: Urethane Antitrust Litigation (Polyether Polyol), MDL No. 1616, Order at ¶¶ 2, 3 (D. Kan. December 12, 2011) (Bruckner Decl. Ex. M).

Prospectively awarding attorneys' fees now as to future Air Cargo proceeds promotes judicial economy and also makes more money available to pay qualified claimants because it avoids unnecessary motion practice and preserves the Settlement Fund. The Court-approved notice program in this case has cost nearly $10.4 million to date, Bruckner Decl. ¶ 26 n.4, and the notice program as to the Third Round Settlements alone were estimated to cost nearly $2.4 million, ECF No. 1362 at 15. Notifying the Class of a fourth fee petition after all future Air Cargo proceeds have been received would incur additional notice costs and would diminish the funds available to qualified claimants.

Furthermore, Class members have received adequate notice of the future-looking award Class Counsel now seek.[13] The Class Notice approved by this Court for the Third Round Settlements informed potential Class members that Class Counsel would seek an award of up to 33% of the Third Round Settlements and "additional proceeds received in connection with prior settlements" and reimbursement of expenses. ECF No. 1364-1 at 18. Class Counsel now seek an award of a smaller percentage — 25% — of up to $90 million in future settlement payments.

[12] Indeed, more than $91 million has been deposited in the Settlement Fund to date as a result of the provisions requiring payment of Air Cargo proceeds. See ECF No. 836 at 10 n.16 (Air Cargo proceeds exceeding $16 million in the first interim fee petition); ECF No. 1281 at 6 (new Air Cargo proceeds exceeding $21 million in the second interim fee petition); Bruckner Decl. ¶ 14 (new Air Cargo proceeds exceeding $54 million in the third fee petition).

[13] As with Class Counsel's prior fee petitions, this petition is being posted on the case website, www.freightforwardcase.com/en, simultaneously with being filed with the Court.

C. Co-Lead Counsel Seek A Reasonable Percentage Of The Current Available Settlement Fund And The Future Available Settlement Fund.

In assessing the reasonableness of Class Counsel's current fee request under a lodestar cross-check, the Court should compare the total of all fees previously awarded and fees requested in this petition, to the lodestar reflecting all work done in this case from inception until July 31, 2016. The Joint Declaration and the Bruckner Declaration describe the work Class Counsel have performed since the inception of this case through July 31, 2016. The reasonableness of Class Counsel's fee request is appropriately measured over the life of the case thus far. All of this work is directly related to Class Counsel's efforts to prosecute Plaintiffs' claims against all Defendants and to recover overcharges for purchasers from any Defendant.

For instance, discovery from one Defendant directly bears on the participation of other Defendants in the same conspiracy. Thus, Class Counsel's review of documents, interviews of witnesses, and depositions of each Defendant resulted in incrementally more favorable settlements with each succeeding Defendant and proving the liability of all non-settling Defendants. See, e.g., In re Ethylene Propylene Diene Monomer (EPDM) Antitrust Litig., 681 F. Supp. 2d 141, 160-61 (D. Conn. 2009) (evidence found in competitor's files was considered important evidence against another defendant); In re High Fructose Corn Syrup Antitrust Litig., 295 F.3d 651, 662-63 (7th Cir. 2002) (evidence of statements from competitor employees' documents used to defeat ADM's motion for summary judgment). Indeed, it is for this reason that nearly every settlement agreement in this case to date has required the settling Defendant to provide substantial cooperation to Plaintiffs through discovery and trial. The substantial early cooperation provided by Schenker, the first settling Defendant, well illustrates the benefits the Class has received from Class Counsel's strategy of leveraging each settlement against remaining Defendants. Similarly, each succeeding settlement enabled Class Counsel to favorably resolve all claims against all Defendants. For these reasons, the Court should consider the lodestar amount for all work performed in the case from inception through July 31, 2016 in assessing the reasonableness of the requested fee. See, e.g., In re Air Cargo Shipping Services Antitrust Litigation, No. 06-MD-1775, 2012 WL 3138596, at *5 (E.D.N.Y. Aug. 2, 2012) ("Air Cargo 3") (awarding 25% and applying a lodestar cross-check based on work performed since appointment of lead counsel).

Class Counsel are mindful of Judge Gleeson's fee decisions in In re Visa Check/Mastermoney Antitrust Litigation, 297 F. Supp. 2d 503, 520 (E.D.N.Y. 2003), aff'd sub nom. Wal-Mart Stores, Inc. v. Visa U.S.A., Inc., 396 F.3d 96 (2d Cir. 2005), in which the Court considered not only the appropriate percentage that should be applied in a "mega-case" such as Visa Check, but also the multiplier that would result if plaintiffs' counsel's request was granted. See Visa Check, 297 F. Supp. 2d at 424-25 & n.33. The Court concluded that a multiplier of almost 10 was not warranted, but a multiplier of 3.5 was reasonable. See id. at 522, 524.

The nature of this litigation makes it easily distinguishable from a typical monolithic two-defendant mega-conspiracy such as in Visa Check. Unlike Visa Check, where class counsel obtained a $3,383,400,000 settlement (a large fund by any measure) against two defendants for domestic conduct, in this case Class Counsel have achieved full settlements as to 68 Defendants from 29 Defendant families alleged to have engaged in widespread international conduct constituting 11 distinct conspiracies, despite the fact that many Defendants paid relatively small government fines and others paid none. Although the large number of settling Defendants magnifies the total amount of the settlements here, each of the individual settlement agreements is well below megafund amounts. As discussed in more detail below, the lodestar cross-check from inception shows that Class Counsel's request for 25% of the Current Available Settlement Fund (which results in a multiplier of 1.23) and for 25% of the Future Available Settlement Fund up to $90 million in future contributions (resulting in a maximum possible multiplier of 1.54) is reasonable given the risks, complexities and work involved to prosecute these multiple international conspiracies against many Defendants.

It is well within the Court's discretion to award the request of 25% of the Current Available Settlement Fund and to award 25% of the Future Available Settlement Fund. See, e. g., Air Cargo 3, 2012 WL 3138596, at *5 (E.D.N.Y. Aug. 2, 2012) ("Air Cargo 3") (granting class counsel's requested interim fee of 25% of the gross amount of the settlement fund when such a request represented a modest 1.11 multiplier); In re Checking Account Overdraft Litig., Case No. 09-MD-02036-JLK, 2011 WL 5873389 at *28 (S.D. Fla. Nov. 22, 2011) (approving fee award of 30% of $410 million settlement fund); In re Linerboard Antitrust Litig., No. MDL 1261, Civ. A. 98-5055, Civ. A. 99-1000, Civ. A. 99-1341, 2004 WL 1221350, at *17 (E.D. Pa. June 2, 2004) (approving fee award of 30% of $202,572,489 fund); In re Vitamins Antitrust Litig., No. Misc. 99-197 (TFH), MDL No. 1285, 2001 WL 34312839, at *10 (D.D.C. July 16, 2001) (approving fee award of 34.6% of $365 million fund); see also Visa Check, 297 F. Supp. 2d at 525 & n.33 (distinguishing large size of $3 billion fund in that case and the size of the multiplier, and stating that if the fund was not as large, "a larger percentage might be appropriate").

D. Class Counsel's Request Is Consistent With The Goldberger Factors.

"Generally, the factor given the greatest emphasis [when awarding a percentage of a fund] is the size of the fund created, because 'a common fund is itself the measure of success. . . [and] represents the benchmark from which a reasonable fee will be awarded.'" Manual for Complex Litigation (Fourth) § 14.121 (2004) (quoting Alba Conte & Herbert B. Newberg, 4 Newberg on Class Actions § 14.6, at 547, 550 (4th ed. 2002)). Courts in this Circuit have repeatedly held that "a fee award should be assessed based on scrutiny of the unique circumstances of each case . . . [with] a jealous regard to the rights of those who are interested in the fund." Goldberger, 209 F.3d at 53; see McDaniel, 595 F.3d at 426. In determining the reasonableness of a fee request, the Court should consider: (1) the time and labor expended by counsel; (2) the magnitude and complexities of the litigation; (3) the risk of the litigation; (4) the quality of representation; (5) the requested fee in relation to the settlement; and (6) public policy considerations. Goldberger, 209 F.3d at 50 (citation omitted); Precision II, 2015 WL 6964973, at *7 (applying Goldberger). An award of 25% of the Current Available Settlement Fund and a future-looking award of 25% of the Future Available Settlement Fund up to the requested cap are reasonable under the Goldberger factors.

1. The Time And Labor Expended By Counsel Supports The Requested Fee.

The large international scale of this litigation, the sheer number of Defendants, the enormous amount of discovery, and the contentious motion practice have required an intensive effort by Class Counsel. Since the inception of this case, Class Counsel have spent 158,233.55 hours prosecuting the litigation, and to date have received no compensation for 4,451.37 hours of that time because it occurred after August 15, 2015. See Bruckner Decl. Exs. H, I.

The Joint Declaration and the Bruckner Declaration taken together describe Class Counsel's work since the case's inception, which is briefly summarized as follows:

- Prepared a First Amended Class Action Complaint consisting of 326 numbered paragraphs containing specific and detailed allegations against Defendants, including names, dates, places and subject matters of conspiratorial meetings and other communications;
- Responded to 18 motions to dismiss the First Amended Complaint and 11 objections to Magistrate Judge Pohorelsky's resulting Report & Recommendation;

- Prepared a Corrected Third Amended Class Action Complaint, comprising 593 numbered paragraphs and additional detailed and specific allegations;

- Responded to 15 motions to dismiss the Corrected Third Amended Complaint (including the 13 initial motions and two later-filed motions by Hellmann and JAFA, respectively), one motion to sever certain claims, and 11 objections on Magistrate Judge Pohorelsky's resulting Report & Recommendation;

- Prepared and filed a Fourth Amended Class Action Complaint;

- Filed 27 non-ministerial motions (including 12 motions to compel and 1 motion to quash) and 2 objections;

- Made 16 appearances before Magistrate Judge Pohorelsky, 5 appearances before Judge Gleeson, and 1 appearance before Judge Cogan;

- Attempted to negotiate a confidentiality order with Defendants concerning confidential material to be produced in discovery and, when Defendants refused to agree, successfully moved the Court for a confidentiality order;

- Engaged in lengthy briefing and motion practice to obtain customer lists from non-settling Defendants to assist in providing Class notice;

- Participated in Rule 26(f) conferences, negotiating multiple disputed provisions;

- In addition to the motions described above, responded to a total of 3 pre-motions and submitted briefing in response to 8 motions;

- Reviewed 84,842 Plaintiff documents, ultimately producing 46,064 documents to Defendants;

- Utilized advanced analytical search tools, as well as keyword searches, to identify the most relevant documents of the more than 5.1 million documents produced by Defendants;

- Ultimately reviewed 1,062,552 million Defendant documents electronically (including translating and reviewing several documents in Japanese, German, and Italian) and reviewed additional documents on-site in Seattle, Washington;

- Held innumerable meetings and conferences with Defendants to obtain and understand Defendants' transactional data;

- Prepared witness and Defendant factual summaries to assist in depositions, discovery responses, work by experts engaged by Plaintiffs, and trial;

- Prepared for and conducted 50 depositions in 4 countries spread across three continents;

- Prepared and served 20 sets of discovery requests;
- Responded to 27 sets of discovery requests from Defendants, and prepared and served multiple amended and supplemental discovery responses as appropriate;
- Interviewed 43 witnesses and received approximately 18 attorney proffers;
- Engaged in lengthy settlement negotiations and mediations that led to the 10 First Round Settlements, the 11 Second Round Settlements, and the 2 Third Round Settlements;
- Carried out three extensive programs to notify potential claimants of the Prior Round Settlements and the Third Round Settlements and communicated extensively with Class Members relating to the claims-administration process;
- Extensively researched the facts and law regarding pertinent issues; and
- Worked with industry and economic consultants and experts to develop pleadings, evaluate transactional data, guide discovery, formulate settlement strategies, assess damages, and prepare for Plaintiffs' class certification motion.

See Joint Decl. generally and ¶ 15 specifically; Bruckner Decl. ¶ 3.

2. The Magnitude And Complexities Of The Litigation Support The Requested Fee.

Antitrust class actions "are notoriously complex, protracted, and bitterly fought." Wesely v. Spear, Leeds & Kellogg, 711 F. Supp. 713, 719 (E.D.N.Y. 1989); see In re Currency Conversion Fee Antitrust Litig., 263 F.R.D. at 129 ("antitrust cases are typically complex"). Indeed, as this Court has recognized, this litigation is "irrefutably complex." Precision I, 2013 WL 4525323, at *15; see also Precision II, 2015 WL 6964973, at 7 ("this litigation was obviously risky and complex"). It involves international conspiratorial conduct across the globe with 68 different Defendants, 29 Defendant families, and 11 conspiracies. Because of the large number of Defendants, the complexity of the legal issues, and the extensive motion practice, this litigation is nearly nine years old.

3. The Risk Of Litigation Supports The Requested Fee.

The risk of litigation is "perhaps the foremost factor to be considered in determining whether to award an enhancement." Goldberger, 209 F.3d at 54 (quotation omitted); accord In re Currency Conversion Fee Antitrust Litig., 263 F.R.D. at 129. Courts in this Circuit have repeatedly recognized that the risk associated with a case undertaken on a contingent basis is an important factor in determining an appropriate fee award. In re Marsh ERISA Litig., 265 F.R.D. 128, 148 (S.D.N.Y. 2010); In re NASDAQ Mkt. Makers Antitrust Litig., 187 F.R.D. 465, 489 (S.D.N.Y. 1998). As this Court has acknowledged, this action "is obviously risky." Precision I, 2013 WL 4525323, at *15; accord Precision II, 2015 WL 6964973, at *7.

To establish a price-fixing violation, a plaintiff must demonstrate not only that a conspiracy existed, but also that the conspiracy caused antitrust impact and damages, measurable by reference to prices that would have existed but for the conspiracy. Here, even if Plaintiffs prevailed through class certification and other pre-trial proceedings and obtained a judgment of liability, such a judgment could be overturned on appeal. See, e.g., Anixter v. Home-Stake Prod. Co., 77 F.3d 1215, 1218-19 (10th Cir. 1996) (overturning plaintiffs' verdict obtained after two decades of litigation); Backman v. Polaroid Corp., 910 F.2d 10, 12 (1st Cir. 1990) (en banc) (reversing plaintiffs' verdict and ordering entry of judgment for defendants).

Moreover, the litigation risk "must be measured as of when the case is filed." Goldberger, 209 F.3d at 55. When Plaintiffs filed their original complaint in January 2008, no government criminal complaints had been filed, and no guilty pleas had been entered. The first fines related to government investigations did not occur until the Japan Fair Trade Commission issued fines in March 2009, over a year after the inception of the case. And the United States Department Of Justice ("DOJ") did not announce any guilty pleas until 2010 — more than two and one-half years after Plaintiffs' case began. The European Commission did not impose fines until 2012. As such, the case faced significant initial risks with respect to showing liability.

Plaintiffs also vigorously pursued claims and alleged conspirators where no DOJ guilty pleas or EC fines exist, all of which have been sustained under Fed. R. Civ. P. 12 (i.e., Count 1: Security Surcharge; Count 9: Ocean AMS; Count 10: Global Agreement). Against this backdrop, all Defendants sought dismissal under one or more provision of Fed. R. Civ. P. 12, each making multiple of arguments, and often in multiple motions. Plaintiffs defeated a total of 33 motions to dismiss under Rules 12(b)(1) and (6).[14]

Even if Plaintiffs had succeed at trial and through appeal, settling Defendant DHL made clear prior to settlement that, as the amnesty applicant to the DOJ, it would seek an order that it was not subject to treble damages or joint and several liability pursuant to the Antitrust Criminal Penalty Enhancement and Reform Act of 2004 ("ACPERA"), Pub. L. No. 108-237, § 213(a)-(b), 118 Stat. 661, 666-668 (June 22, 2004). Plaintiffs would have vigorously contested any such motion and argued that DHL's limited cooperation did not earn it ACPERA's benefit, but a ruling in DHL's favor would have significantly reduced Plaintiffs' potential recovery at trial.

Plaintiffs faced other risks. The significant international dimension of the case made discovery difficult, and would have made collecting judgments against foreign Defendants difficult as well. Defendants also would have vigorously challenged Plaintiffs' standing and class certification and argued that no damages existed because the surcharges would have been passed through to Plaintiffs in any event. Plaintiffs believe they would have prevailed, but those challenges posed very real risks to the Class.

Plaintiffs' recovery in the face of these risks is remarkable and justifies the requested fee. In the nearly nine years Class Counsel have litigated this case, they have committed 158,233.55 hours of their time — amounting to over $72 million in lodestar — and incurred $6,420,333.74 in expenses, all of which were and are at risk of never being recovered. Bruckner Decl. ¶¶ 25, 26, 28; Joint Decl. Exs. P, Q; Electronic Order dated Oct. 3, 2013.

[14] The fact that the Defendants DHL and Hellmann prevailed on much narrower motions, see ECF Nos. 1236, 1269, does not detract from Plaintiffs' nearly total success in sustaining their complaint against an onslaught of challenges by these and the other Defendants.

4. The Quality Of Counsel's Representation Supports The Requested Fee.

As the Court recognized, Class Counsel in this case "are highly experienced practitioners in complex litigation generally and antitrust litigation specifically." Precision I, 2013 WL 4525323, at *16; Precision II, 2015 WL 6964973, at *8 ("The settlement amounts proposed here attest to Class Counsel's abilities."). Notwithstanding Defendants' extensive efforts to defeat this case, Co-Lead Counsel settled all 11 claims against all 29 Defendant families, which in nearly every applicable instance exceeded the fines paid by settling Defendants in the United States,[15] and in many other instances involved settlements with Defendants who were never criminally charged in the United States.[16] Such a recovery is consistent with Co-Lead Counsel's extensive experience successfully litigating antitrust class actions, and supports the fee request. See ECF No. 101 (outlining Co-Lead Counsel's extensive experience and success in the class action field).

Similarly, in addition to the collective wealth of Defendants themselves, their counsel include top antitrust legal practitioners at some of the world's largest and most skilled law firms. See Joint Decl. ¶ 18. Throughout this litigation, Defendants' counsel have worked tirelessly to protect their clients' interests, and Co-Lead Counsel's ability to obtain these significant [15] The only settlement that did not exceed the fines paid to the Department of Justice was the ice-breaker settlement with Schenker, which in addition to cash provided extensive and early cooperation. That cooperation enabled Plaintiffs and the Class to survive Defendants' first barrage of motions to dismiss and facilitated future settlements that in many instances far exceeded the settling Defendants' fines paid to the DOJ.

[16] The following Defendant groups were never charged in the United States: Hellmann, Expeditors, UAC, Morrison Express, UTi, ABX, SDV, DSV, Geodis, Jet Speed, Toll, Dachser, and UPS.

settlements further underscores the adequacy of the requested fee award. See In re Merrill Lynch & Co., Inc. Research Reports Sec. Litig., 246 F.R.D. 156, 174 (S.D.N.Y. 2007) ("The quality of opposing counsel is also important in evaluating the quality of Class Counsels' work."); In re NASDAQ Market Makers Antitrust Litig., 187 F.R.D. 465, 488 (S.D.N.Y. 1998).

5. The Size And The Scope Of The Settlements Supports The Requested Fee.

The requested fee represents 25% of the Current Available Settlement Fund, which represents a multiplier of 1.23 since inception, and 25% of the Future Available Settlement Fund (up to the requested cap), representing a maximum possible multiplier of 1.54 over the same period. Class Counsel respectfully suggest the requested award is fair given the extensive effort that was required to achieve these excellent results.

The fee requested is consistent with fee awards in other class action litigations with settlements of this size. See, e.g., In re Air Cargo Shipping Services Antitrust Litigation, No. 06-MD-1775, 2011 WL 2909162, at *6-7 (E.D.N.Y. July 15, 2011) ("Air Cargo 2") (awarding 25% fee recovery in related antitrust case); In re Initial Public Offering Sec. Litig., 671 F. Supp. 2d 467, 516 (S.D.N.Y. 2009) (awarding one-third fee in a securities fraud case); In re Priceline.com, Inc. Sec. Litig., Master File No. 3:00-cv-1884, 2007 WL 2115592, at *4 (D. Conn. July 20, 2007) (awarding 30% of $80 million settlement); see also In re Prudential Sec., Inc. Ltd. P'ships Litig., 912 F. Supp. 97, 103 (S.D.N.Y. 1996) ("Many courts have approved and awarded fees in class actions of one-third of the settlement fund in recognition of the substantial services performed by counsel and the risks undertaken.").

6. Public Policy Considerations Support the Award of the Requested Fee.

The award requested by Class Counsel will encourage the continued private enforcement of antitrust laws and support attorneys who take such cases on a contingent fee basis. The Supreme Court has held repeatedly that private enforcement of U.S. antitrust laws is essential to effective antitrust enforcement, e.g., Blue Shield of Va. v. McCready, 457 U.S. 465, 472 (1982); Zenith Radio Corp. v. Hazeltine Research, Inc., 395 U.S. 100, 130-31 (1969), and a market-rate fee award such as is requested here incentivizes competent, experienced counsel to undertake such high-risk, complex class action litigation. This Circuit has noted that "[i]n the absence of adequate attorneys' fee awards, many antitrust actions would not be commenced, since the claims of individual litigants, when taken separately, often hardly justify the expense of litigation." Alpine Pharmacy, Inc. v. Chas. Pfizer & Co., Inc., 481 F.2d 1045, 1050 (2d Cir. 1973). In determining whether public policy supports the requested fee request, the court should balance providing lawyers with a "sufficient incentive to bring common fund cases" against preventing an "unwarranted windfall" to counsel. Air Cargo 2, 2011 WL 2909162, at *6 (E.D.N.Y. July 15, 2011). Given the time and effort Co-Lead Counsel have dedicated to this case, the requested fee of 25% fairly compensates Co-Lead Counsel, helps to ensure the availability of skilled counsel in future antitrust class actions, and is not a windfall.

E. The Requested Fee Is Reasonable Under A Lodestar Cross-check.

The use of the lodestar cross-check on the reasonableness of a percentage fee award is encouraged. Farinella v. Paypal, Inc., 611 F. Supp. 2d 250, 269 (E.D.N.Y. 2009). Courts may award fees higher than the lodestar by applying a multiplier based on factors such as the riskiness of litigation. See In re Nortel Networks Corp. Secs. Litig., 539 F.3d at 132 n.4. Courts commonly award multipliers from two to six times the lodestar. See Monserrate v. Tequipment, Inc., No. 11 CV 6090, 2012 WL 5830557, at *3 (E.D.N.Y. Nov. 16, 2012) (collecting cases).

The total lodestar in this case, from inception, is $72,264,953.34. Bruckner Decl. ¶ 25 and Ex. I. This Court has implicitly recognized that in long-lasting, hard-fought litigation such as this, it is appropriate to calculate the lodestar cross-check over the duration of the entire case, rather than piecemeal from interim fee award to interim fee award. See Precision II, 2015

WL 6964973, at *7 (making interim award of 25% of settlement proceeds and applying a lodestar cross-check period from inception through the conclusion of counsel's requested cross-check period); Air Cargo 2, 2011 WL 2909162, at *6-7 (making a second interim award of 25% of settlement proceeds and applying a lodestar cross-check period from the appointment of co-lead counsel through the conclusion of counsel's requested cross-check period).

A fee award of 25% of the Current Available Settlement Fund would yield a multiplier of 1.23.[17] A forward-looking award of 25% of the Future Available Settlement Fund (to an upper limit of $90 million in future contributions) would yield a multiplier of 1.54, even conservatively assuming that Class Counsel perform no additional work on this case.[18] Both cross-check figures are reasonable. See, e.g., Wal-MartStores, Inc. v. Visa U.S.A., Inc., 396 F.3d 96, 123 (2d Cir. 2006) (multiplier of 3.46 for attorneys' fees totaling $220 million); In re Cedant Corp. PRIDES Litig., 243 F.3d 722, 742 (3d Cir. 2001) (surveying cases and concluding that multipliers ranging from 1.35 to 2.99 were common where the common fund exceeded $100 million); In re Urethane Antitrust Litig., MDL No. 1616, 2016 WL 4060156, at *7-8 (D. Kan. July 29, 2016) (multiplier of 3.2); In re Credit Default Swaps Antitrust Litig., No. 13-MD-2476 (DLC), 2016 WL 2731524, at *17 (S.D.N.Y. Apr. 26, 2016) (multiplier of approximately 6.0 on attorneys' fees totaling $253.8 million); Beckman v. KeyBank, N.A., 293 F.R.D. 467, 481-82 (S.D.N.Y. 2013) (listing cases and noting that "[c]ourts regularly award lodestar multipliers of up to eight times the lodestar, and in some cases, even higher multipliers"); In re Bristol-Myers Squibb Sec. Litig., 362 F. Supp. 2d 299, 236-37 (S.D.N.Y. 2005) (finding 2.29 multiplier "quite [17] This lodestar calculation reflects Class Counsel's expectation that Jet Speed will pay the entire amount it owes, under the terms of the agreed-upon payment plan. If Jet Speed does not make pay the full amount it owes, Class Counsel will not take the full amount of fees previously awarded by the Court, and the lodestar cross-check will yield a slightly lower multiplier.

[18] This assumption ignores the considerable claims administration work which lies ahead.

reasonable" where litigation risk was typical, facts and legal theories were not complicated, and counsel did not expend extraordinary effort); In re Elan Sec. Litig., 385 F. Supp. 2d 363, 376 (S.D.N.Y. 2005) (awarding 12% on revised lodestar, amounting to 3.47 multiplier).

Counsel's lodestar is based on rates they currently charge, Joint Decl. ¶ 325, Bruckner Decl. ¶ 25, an approach courts consider reasonable. Velez v. Novartis Pharm. Corp., 04 CIV 09194 CM, 2010 WL 4877852, at *23 (S.D.N.Y. Nov. 30, 2010) ("The use of current rates to calculate the lodestar figure has been repeatedly endorsed by courts as a means of accounting for the delay in payment inherent in class actions and for inflation. . . .") (citation omitted)). These rates are well within the normal range for counsel litigating similar antitrust class actions. From inception, Class Counsel conducted the litigation as efficiently as possible, and the Bruckner Declaration describes the manner in which the time reported by Class Counsel was scrutinized to eliminate time entries that did not comply with Co-Lead Counsel's criteria. Bruckner Decl. ¶ 10.

F. The Requested Expense Reimbursement Is Reasonable.

Class Counsel's request for reimbursement of expenses of $1,762,803.75 is reasonable. "Attorneys may be compensated for reasonable out-of-pocket expenses incurred and customarily charged to their clients." Miltland Raleigh-Durham v. Myers, 840 F. Supp. 235, 239 (S.D.N.Y. 1993). In the Second Circuit, courts "normally grant expense requests in common fund cases as a matter of course." In re Vitamin C Antitrust Litig., 2012 WL 5289514, at *11 (E.D.N.Y. Oct. 23, 2012); In re Arakis Energy Corp. Sec. Litig., No. 95CV3421, 2001 WL 1590512, at *17 n.12 (E.D.N.Y. Oct. 31, 2001). Co-Lead Counsel now seek reimbursement of reasonable litigation expenses including economic and industry experts, deposition transcription, court reporter services, claims administration, data hosting, online legal research, travel expenses, and document imaging and copying. See Bruckner Decl. ¶¶ 26-27 (expenses borne by Class Counsel), ¶ 29 (same), ¶¶ 36-38 (expenses paid from litigation fund and thus from Co-Lead Counsel's assessments). These expenses were reasonably necessary to advance the interests of the Class and to obtain the excellent result on their behalf. Due to the risk that they might never be recovered, Class Counsel endeavored to keep expenses to a minimum.

G. In The Future, Co-Lead Counsel Will Make Subsequent Applications For The Court's Consideration For Expenses Related To Claims Settlement, Administration, And Processing.

Processing and administration of Class Members' claims for the Prior Round Settlements is well underway and Co-Lead Counsel anticipate presenting a motion to approve a plan of distribution of settlement funds in the coming months. Processing and administration of Class Members' claims for the Third Round Settlements will begin in earnest following the April 3, 2017 deadline to submit claims. The Claims Administrator has mailed direct notice to potential Class members in accordance with the Court-approved notice plan. Class Members have been submitting claims for the Third Round Settlements and will continue to do so until the April 3, 2017 deadline. Before payment of such claims can be recommended to the Court for its approval, each claim will be verified and in some cases audited, to ensure that the Class Member is qualified and that its claimed purchases are allowable.

Expenditures for escrow fees, taxes on the escrowed funds, and preparation of those tax forms, also will be necessary in the foreseeable future. Accordingly, in the future and as appropriate Co-Lead Counsel will apply to the Court for approval to pay expenses related to the escrow accounts and for claims administration and processing. These items may be considered by the Court in due course before any such expense payments are made.

H. Class Members Have Received Notice and Have an Opportunity to Object.

The Class Notice approved by this Court informed potential Class members that Class Counsel would seek a fee award of up to 33% of the settlement fund, and would also seek reimbursement for expenses. ECF No. 1364-1 at 18. That Notice has been distributed to potential

Class members in accordance with the Court's order approving notice. Bruckner Decl. ¶ 16. This fee petition and all supporting papers will be posted to the settlement website within 24 hours of filing, as directed by the Court. ECF No. 1367. Objections from Class Members, if any, are to be filed by September 20, 2016. If there are any such objections, Class Counsel will respond before the November 4, 2016 final approval hearing.

IV. CONCLUSION

For all of these reasons, Co-Lead Counsel respectfully requests that the Court enter an Order awarding attorneys' fees and expenses as follows:

(1) Class Counsel are awarded 25% of the Current Available Settlement Fund of $117,774,616.77 as attorneys' fees, for a total fee award of $29,443,654.19, to be paid from funds currently paid into the settlement fund.

(2) Class Counsel are awarded 25% of the Future Available Settlement Fund, up to a maximum of $90 million received from Settling Defendants and deposited into the settlement fund, for a maximum future-looking award of attorneys' fees of $22,500,000.00; and

(3) Class Counsel are awarded $1,762,803.75 as reimbursement for litigation expenses.

Dated: September 1, 2016

Respectfully submitted,

s/ W. Joseph Bruckner

W. Joseph Bruckner
Heidi M. Silton
Anna M. Horning Nygren
Craig S. Davis
Kristen G. Marttila
LOCKRIDGE GRINDAL NAUEN P.L.L.P.
100 Washington Avenue South, Suite 2200
Minneapolis, MN 55401
T: (612) 339-6900
F: (612) 339-0981
E-mail: wjbruckner@locklaw.com
hsilton@locklaw.com
amhorningnygren@locklaw.com
csdavis@locklaw.com
kgmarttila@locklaw.com

Christopher Lovell
Gary S. Jacobson
Ian T. Stoll
Merrick S. Rayle
Benjamin M. Jaccarino
LOVELL STEWART HALEBIAN JACOBSON LLP
61 Broadway, Suite 501
New York, NY 10006
T: (212) 608-1900
F: (212) 719-4775
E-mail: clovell@lshllp.com
GSJacobson@lshllp.com
istoll@lshllp.com
msrayle@sbcglobal.net
bjaccarino@lshllp.com

Daniel E. Gustafson
Daniel C. Hedlund
Michelle J. Looby
Joshua J. Rissman
GUSTAFSON GLUEK PLLC
Canadian Pacific Plaza
120 South 6th Street, Suite 2600
Minneapolis, MN 55402
T: (612) 333-8844
F: (612) 339-6622
E-mail: dgustafson@gustafsongluek.com
dhedlund@gustafsongluek.com
mlooby@gustafsongluek.com
jrissman@gustafsongluek.com

Steven N. Williams
Adam J. Zapala
COTCHETT, PITRE & MCCARTHY, LLP
San Francisco Airport Office Center
840 Malcolm Road, Suite 200
Burlingame, CA 94010
T: (650) 697-6000
F: (650) 697-0577
E-mail: swilliams@cpmlegal.com
azapala@cpmlegal.com

Interim Co-Lead Counsel for Plaintiffs

TAB 57C

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
EASTERN DISTRICT OF NEW YORK

PRECISION ASSOCIATES, INC., et al., Plaintiffs, v. PANALPINA WORLD TRANSPORT (HOLDING) LTD., et al. Defendants.	CASE NO. 08-CV-00042 (JG)(VVP)

DECLARATION OF W. JOSEPH BRUCKNER
IN SUPPORT OF CO-LEAD COUNSEL'S PETITION FOR A THIRD AWARD OF ATTORNEYS' FEES AND REIMBURSEMENT OF EXPENSES

I, W. Joseph Bruckner, declare and state:

1. I am a partner of the law firm of Lockridge Grindal Nauen P.L.L.P. I submit this Declaration in support of Plaintiffs' petition for a third award of attorneys' fees and reimbursement of costs and expenses in connection with services rendered and expenses incurred by my firm in connection with this litigation.

2. My firm is one of four co-lead counsel appointed by the Court to represent Plaintiffs and the Plaintiff class in this action ("Co-Lead Counsel"). The Court previously granted two fee petitions following Co-Lead Counsel's obtaining significant settlements with Defendants up to that time. In each fee petition Co-Lead Counsel filed with this Court — and published on the website established for this case, www.freightforwardcase.com, for review by class members — detailed lodestar information[1] and a description of work by Co-Lead and other

[1] I.e., the number of hours expended and an hourly rate for each professional so engaged. For Class Counsel's prior lodestar information and descriptions of work performed, see ECF Nos. 875, 875-8, 1281, 1282-15.

Plaintiffs' Counsel (collectively "Class Counsel") up to that time for the Court to use as a lodestar cross-check in considering the appropriate percentage fee award. Neither of those two prior fee awards considered Class Counsel's work on behalf of the Class after August 15, 2015, and one of the purposes of this Declaration is to provide that supplemental information to the Court.

I. Summary Description Of Work Performed Since Second Interim Fee Petition

3. From August 16, 2015 through July 31, 2016, Class Counsel continued to work on behalf of the Class; none of that work has been the subject of any request for attorneys' fees. Each Class Counsel who performed work during this time period is submitting its own declaration describing such work, simultaneous with this declaration. During that time period, my own firm, Lockridge Grindal Nauen P.L.L.P., performed the following:

- Researched case evidence, documents, and depositions for Plaintiffs' supplemental discovery responses and responses to contention interrogatories;
- Drafted and served Plaintiffs' supplemental discovery responses;
- Reviewed and prepared Plaintiffs' documents for supplemental productions;
- Coordinated and served Plaintiffs' verifications for interrogatory responses;
- Researched, drafted, and served contention interrogatories to Defendants;
- Researched and drafted Plaintiffs' privilege logs;
- Negotiated with Defendants regarding issues with Plaintiffs' privilege log entries;
- Reviewed and analyzed Defendants' privilege log entries;
- Negotiated with Defendants regarding Defendants' privilege log deficiencies;
- Reviewed Defendant DHL documents produced for inspection in Seattle, Washington;
- Drafted and served requests for admissions on Defendants;
- Researched and drafted responsive briefing on Defendant Hellmann's motion to compel responses to requests for admissions and motion for protective order;
- Researched documents regarding fraudulent concealment issues;
- Researched documents regarding built-in surcharge issues;
- Drafted, served, and filed motion to quash subpoena served by Defendant Hellmann on claims administrator in the Air Cargo case;

- Corresponded with Defendants regarding their demand that Plaintiffs amend their complaint;
- Drafted stipulation regarding the amended complaint;
- Drafted, served, and filed correspondence to the Court regarding proposed amended complaint;
- Drafted, served, and filed a proposed agenda for the status conference in August 2015 before Magistrate Judge Pohorelsky and a case management statement in connection with the status conference in March 2016 before Judge Cogan;
- Attended Court status conferences;
- Reviewed issues and strategized with co-counsel regarding settlement issues with remaining Defendants;
- Reviewed issues and strategies regarding settlement mediation;
- Negotiated settlement terms with the remaining two Defendants, DHL and Hellmann;
- Drafted a Memorandum of Understanding regarding the proposed settlement with the DHL Defendants;
- Assisted in drafting and finalizing settlement agreements and escrow agreements with the DHL Defendants and with the Hellmann Defendants;
- Assisted in drafting motions for preliminary approval of settlements with the DHL Defendants and with the Hellmann Defendants;
- Assisted in drafting motions for final approval of Second Round settlements;
- Researched and verified the status of Defendants' Class Action Fairness Act notices to state attorneys general and other government entities for the Second Round settlements, and apprised the Court on the progress of those CAFA notices;
- Prepared for and attended the hearing before Judge Gleeson regarding final approval for the Second Round settlements;
- Assisted in drafting a third notice plan to class members regarding the Third Round settlements with DHL and Hellmann;
- Calculated and verified pro-rata payment amounts for class notice costs allowed by settlement agreements;
- Directed the escrow agent regarding payments to vendors for allowed class notice costs;
- Conferred frequently and extensively with many class members, third-party claim filers, and the claims administrator on questions regarding claim filing and issues regarding claims administration;
- Analyzed and researched issues regarding claims administration, including deficient claims and late-filed claims;
- Researched currency conversion issues in preparation for claims administration and distributions;
- Monitored filed claims and worked with claims administrator to verify claims;

- Monitored whether entities opted out of the proposed settlement classes;
- Researched and confirmed Most Favored Nation refunds to two Defendants, and coordinated those refund payments and directed escrow agent for same;
- Researched Defendants' revenues which were affected by the conspiracies alleged in Plaintiffs' complaint; analyzed, calculated, and drafted settlement allocation matrix consistent with Plan of Allocation in preparation for distribution;
- Analyzed and defined strategies for claims processing, auditing, and verification;
- Drafted updates for settlement web site and coordinated posting same with the claims administrator;
- Reviewed and processed settlement escrow account statements;
- Monitored settlement escrow account activity and balances and verified receipt of settlement payments with escrow agent;
- Held multiple conferences with defense counsel regarding the status and timing of subsequent settlement payments;
- Verified receipt of settlement payments with escrow agent;
- Negotiated with counsel for Settling Defendant Jet Speed a modification of settlement payment schedule and researched options and proposals for same;
- Reviewed and processed vendor invoices regarding case expenses;
- Maintained litigation common cost fund and related ledger report; and
- Corresponded with named Plaintiffs regarding case issues, status and progress.

II. New Settlements And Settlement Administration Since August 15, 2015

A. Third Round Settlements

4. Since August 15, 2015, Plaintiffs have entered into settlement agreements with the last two defendant groups in this case, DHL (comprising Deutsche Post AG, Danzas Corporation (doing business as DHL Global Forwarding), DHL Express (USA) Inc., DHL Forwarding Japan K.K., DHL Japan Inc., Exel Global Logistics, Inc., and Air Express International USA, Inc.) and Hellmann (comprising Hellmann Worldwide Logistics GmbH & Co. KG, Hellmann Worldwide Logistics Ltd. Hong Kong, and Hellmann Worldwide Logistics, Inc.). The Court has granted preliminary approval to both of those settlements.

5. Under those settlement agreements, described more fully in their respective motions for preliminary approval filed at ECF Nos. 1340 and 1355, and in the forthcoming final approval briefs, DHL has paid Plaintiffs $53,000,000 and Hellmann has paid Plaintiffs $550,000. Those funds have been received and deposited into interest-bearing escrow accounts. Each of those settlement agreements also includes funds reserved to pay for notice to the Class of these proposed settlements and other related expenses, and requires the settling Defendant to cooperate with Plaintiffs in prosecuting their claims if the Court does not finally approve both settlements.

B. Jet Speed

6. A handful of the Second Round Settlement agreements — Jet Speed's among them — required the Settling Defendant to make a future payment of a sum certain on a date certain. Because the scheduled dates and amounts of those payments were discernable, the second interim fee petition sought fees on those definite future payments, but stated that Class Counsel would not deduct any fees on scheduled future payments until the funds were actually in the escrow account and available for distribution to Class members. See ECF No. 1282 at 4 nn.2-4. The Court's order approving the requested second interim fee award implicitly assumed, therefore, that 75% ($187,500) of Jet Speed's final scheduled payment would be available for payment to qualified Class members and that 25% ($62,500) would be paid as attorneys' fees.

7. In May 2016, Jet Speed failed to timely make its final payment of $250,000. Class Counsel has not withdrawn any part of that delinquent amount which the Court previously awarded as fees. Jet Speed has agreed to a payment plan with Plaintiffs. Pursuant to that payment plan, Jet Speed will make monthly payments of $10,000 for one year, totaling $120,000, with a balloon payment of $130,000 due on June 30, 2017. To date, Jet Speed has paid $20,000 in monthly payments and is current on this modified payment plan. Class Counsel reiterate that they will not withdraw any fees from any portion of Jet Speed's delinquent payment unless and until $187,500 of that payment is available for payment to the Class. Class Counsel anticipate that Jet Speed will pay all amounts still due under its settlement agreement. Nevertheless, if Jet Speed does not fully pay all amounts still due, Class Counsel bear the primary risk of any eventual underpayment, which would reduce the fees paid to Class Counsel and similarly reduce the multiplier resulting from the lodestar cross-check.

C. Future Work Anticipated

8. Going forward, my firm and other Class Counsel will continue to be active in all aspects of settlement and claims administration, including working with the Claims Administrator and Settling Defendants to obtain customer data that may be useful to Class members in filing claims, and supervise final distribution of settlement proceeds to qualified class members.

III. Class Counsel's Time And Expense Reporting To Co-Lead Counsel

9. The four Co-Lead firms and three other law firms which, at the Co-Leads' direction, performed work on behalf of Plaintiffs now submit lodestar information for the period of August 16, 2015 through July 31, 2016.

10. Co-Lead Counsel have carefully managed the allowable time to be included in the lodestar cross-check for this third application including, among other things, the exclusion of time previously submitted as part of the lodestar cross-check for the first and second interim fee petitions. At the inception of this case and in an effort to control Class Counsel's lodestar, Co-Lead Counsel instituted a protocol for reporting time and expenses of all Class Counsel on a monthly basis. Pursuant to that protocol, all Class Counsel including Co-Lead Counsel have been instructed not to submit time for certain categories of work, including work not requested by Co-Lead Counsel, duplicative work, reading and reviewing, preparing time and expense reports, routine clerical tasks, or for work related to any client not retained. Additionally, the protocol required that each firm submit, via email, all litigation-related expenses incurred by the firm for the month. Finally, time spent reviewing documents was capped at $400 per hour.

11. After Co-Lead Counsel received time submissions from Plaintiffs' Counsel, Co-Lead Counsel ensured that time and expenses had been submitted in accordance with the protocol, and only for work to be included in this fee petition, by thoroughly vetting each firm's submission, including a line-by-line review of their time entries. If any non-compensable time was submitted by Plaintiffs' Counsel, such entries were excluded.

IV. Calculation Of Current Available Settlement Fund And Fees Sought

12. In the notices sent to Class members following preliminary approval of the Third Round Settlements, Co-Lead Counsel advised the Class that, as compensation for their time and the risk in prosecuting this case on a wholly contingent fee basis, they would ask the Court for an award of attorneys' fees to be deducted from the Settlement Fund in an amount not to exceed 33% of the Settlement Fund, as well as reimbursement for their expenses actually incurred in the prosecution of the litigation. See ECF No. 1364-1 at 18. This information also was posted contemporaneously on the case website, www.freightforwardcase.com, as will be this Petition For A Third Award Of Attorneys' Fees And Reimbursement Of Expenses, this Declaration, and all other supporting papers.

13. Co-Lead Counsel are requesting interim attorneys' fees of 25% of the Current Available Settlement Fund, for a total third fee award of $29,443,654.19, as well as reimbursement of interim expenses totaling $1,762,803.75.

14. The currently available portion of each settlement from which Class Counsel are requesting an award of attorneys' fees of 25% is as follows:

	Settlement	Settlement Fund (Paid)	Explanation
Third Round Settlements	DHL Settlement (Non-severed claims)	$53,000,000.00
	Hellmann Settlement	$550,000.00
	Subtotal	$53,550,000.00
	Settlement	Additional Current Settlement Fund	Explanation
Second Round Settlements	SDV Settlement	$947,501.35
	Panalpina	$4,379,227.40
	Geodis	$0.00
	Jet Speed	$0.00
	DSV	$2,017,061.41	DSV has paid $2,010,814.88; DSV will deposit its final Air Cargo Round 4 check for the balance of $6,264.53 when it received that re-issued check (see ¶ 15 below).
	Toll	$287,618.14
	Agility	$2,126,245.60
	UPS	$16,628,765.02
	Dachser	$304,345.51
	Japanese Defendants	$10,000,000.00	Excluded from second interim fee request for ratchet down
	DHL (severed claims)	$0.00
	Subtotal	$36,690,764.43

		Additional Current Settlement Fund	Explanation
First Round Settlements	Schenker	$0.00
	Vantec	$1,038,568.11
	EGL	$0.00	Reached cap under settlement agreement
	Expeditors	$11,790,137.30
	Nishi-Nippon	$0.00	Reached cap under settlement agreement
	UAC	$14,922.86
	K+N	$7,330,453.63
	Morrison	$3,254,554.49
	UTi	$4,105,215.96
	ABX	$0.00
	Subtotal	$27,533,852.35
Current Available Settlement Fund		$117,774,616.77

15. With one exception, all of the funds described in the above chart have been received and deposited into the settlement escrow account. As for the one exception: as described above, DSV has paid $2,010,814.88 in Round 4 Air Cargo recoveries. DSV did not receive one Air Cargo Round 4 claim check it was owed, in the amount of $6,264.53, and that check is in the process of being reissued and sent to DSV. Once DSV receives those funds, it will deposit them into the Settlement Fund. Because there is no dispute about whether those funds will be reissued by the Air Cargo claims administrator or deposited into the Settlement Fund by DSV, those funds are included in the Current Available Settlement Fund on which Class Counsel now seek fees. If the Court grants Class Counsel's fee petition, Class Counsel will not deduct any fees from DSV's forthcoming payment of $6,264.53 until those funds are actually paid in the escrow account and available for distribution to qualified Class member claimants.

V. Calculation Of Fees Sought From Future Available Settlement Fund

16. The Class Notice approved by this Court informed potential Class members that Class Counsel would seek an award of up to 33% of the settlement fund. That Notice has been distributed to potential Class members in accordance with the Court's order approving notice. As described in the Memorandum In Support Of Co-Lead Counsel's Petition For A Third Award Of Attorneys' Fees And Reimbursement Of Expenses, filed contemporaneously with this Declaration, Class Counsel also seek a future-looking award of fees to be paid out of any future payments by Settling Defendants (the "Future Available Settlement Fund"). Specifically, Class Counsel seek a future-looking award of 25% of any Future Available Settlement Fund, up to a maximum of $90 million in future payments by Settling Defendants,[2] for a maximum possible future-looking fee award of $22,500,000.00. In addition to the notices already received by the Class, this Petition and its supporting papers will be filed contemporaneously on the case website, www.freightforwardcase.com, for all Class Members' notice and review.

VI. Lodestar Cross-Check Calculation

17. Attached to this Declaration are summary descriptions by Counsel (Exhibits A-G), including other Co-Lead Counsel (Exhibits B-D), whose work underlies this Petition for

[2] The amount and timing of any future payments by Settling Defendants can only be reasonably estimated at this time. If such future payments exceed $90 million, Class Counsel will make a supplemental request for attorneys' fees at that time.

attorneys' fees and unreimbursed expenses. As set forth above, we are describing for this lodestar cross-check and fee-reimbursement request only work not previously covered by the first and second interim fee awards. Counsel's prior work and lodestar were described in detail in ECF Nos. 875, 875-8, 1281, 1282-15.[3]

18. Each firm's declaration submitted with this Petition includes two exhibits. One exhibit details the hours and value of the applicable time spent by personnel at the firm and included in the lodestar cross-check. The other exhibit details the nature and amount of unreimbursed expenses.

19. Attached as Exhibit H to this declaration is a chart summarizing the individual declarations of counsel showing lodestar cross-check amounts not included in either of the two prior interim fee petitions.

A. Lockridge Grindal Nauen Lodestar: August 16, 2015 Through July 31, 2016

20. The schedule attached hereto as Exhibit A is a detailed summary indicating the amount of time spent by the partners, attorneys, and other professional support staff of my firm who have been involved in this litigation. The lodestar calculation described in Exhibit A is based on my firm's current hourly billing rates, except that work done on document review was capped at $400 per hour from August 16, 2015 through July 31, 2016.

21. The total number of hours expended on this litigation by my firm from August 16, 2015 through July 31, 2016, is 1,538.00 hours. The total lodestar for my firm is $916,510.00. My firm's lodestar figures are based on my firm's current hourly billing rates. The hourly rates

[3] As noted in our Memorandum In Support of this Petition, in performing the lodestar cross-check and to ensure an apples-to-apples comparison, we respectfully submit that the Court should compare the total of all fees previously awarded and fees requested in this petition, to the total case lodestar from inception until July 31, 2016. Memorandum In Support Of Co-Lead Counsel's Petition For A Third Award Of Attorneys' Fees And Reimbursement Of Expenses, September 2, 2016 (filed herewith) at 22.

for the partners, attorneys, and professional support staff in my firm are the same as the usual and customary hourly rates charged for their services in contingent billable matters. We determined the total number of hours from contemporaneous, daily time records regularly prepared and maintained by my firm and which have been made available to other co-lead counsel for their review.

B. Aggregate Lodestar For All Class Counsel From Inception Through July 31, 2016

22. At Judge Gleeson's direction, the first interim award of attorneys' fees and expenses used as a lodestar cross-check attorneys' work time only to the extent that it related directly to the First Round Settlements. The lodestar cross-check for the first interim award was based on 33,060.04 hours in professional time, yielding a lodestar of $13,796,633.27 at Class Counsel's then-current hourly rates. ECF No. 875 at ¶ 16.

23. The second interim award of attorneys' fees and expenses used as a lodestar cross-check all attorneys' work time from the inception of this case through August 15, 2015, excluding time already included in the first fee petition relating solely to the First Round Settlements. ECF No. 1281. The sum of the second petition lodestar in ECF No. 1281 and the first petition lodestar in ECF No. 875 gave the Court the total lodestar from inception until August 15, 2015. The lodestar cross-check for the second interim award was based on a cumulative total of 153,782.18 hours of professional time since inception through August 15, 2015, for an aggregate lodestar for that period of $69,869,851.59 at Class Counsel's then-hourly rates. ECF No. 1281.

24. For this third period, from August 16, 2015 through July 31, 2016, based on the monthly attorney and paralegal time reports submitted to Co-Lead Counsel, Class Counsel have reported over 4,451 hours of professional time expended for the benefit of the Class, none of which was encompassed by either of the prior fee petitions. This additional work represents a $2,395,101.75 using Class Counsel's current hourly rates. This work, like all legal work done in this case, was performed on an entirely contingent basis.

25. This third fee petition proposes as a lodestar cross-check attorney work from the inception of the case through July 31, 2016, at Class Counsel's current hourly rates, to be compared to the total of all fees previously awarded and fees requested in this petition. Therefore and in sum, the total professional time expended by all Class Counsel from the inception of this case through July 31, 2016 represents 158,233.55 hours of work, for an aggregate lodestar of $72,264,953.34. Attached as Exhibit I to this declaration is a chart summarizing the aggregate lodestar for that time period.

VII. Class Counsel's Unreimbursed Expenses

A. Deferred Billings

26. Co-Lead Counsel entered into deferred billing agreements with three competitively priced vendors that have performed work necessary to the prosecution of this case.[4] These vendors provided deposition transcription, claims administration, and document-hosting services, respectively, and agreed not to seek payment for all or part of their services

[4] In addition to the expenses described here and for which Class Counsel now seek reimbursement, a total of $10,367,569.82 has been paid from the settlement escrow accounts for class notice expenses and other expenses regarding preliminary or final approval, and related bank fees. Of that total, $1,834,833.00 has been spent during the time period of August 16, 2015 through July 31, 2016. To the extent appropriate, any similar future expenses also will be paid from the settlement escrow accounts. These payments were, or will be, made pursuant to language in each of the Settling Defendant's Settlement Agreements reserving a specific amount of such Settling Defendant's payment that may be used for payment of notice and related costs (and which would be non-refundable to the Settling Defendant in the event the settlement was not finally approved), and have already been authorized by the Court. While these payments are not included in the requested reimbursement in this petition, and have already been paid or have been authorized by the Court to be paid from those escrow accounts, we describe those expenditures here to fully describe all litigation-related expenses incurred in this case.

from Class Counsel on an ongoing (e.g., monthly) basis, to allow Co-Lead Counsel the opportunity to recover those expenses as part of a fee petition. Class Counsel now seek reimbursement of $1,639,871.47 in unreimbursed deferred billings.

27. These deferred billings are summarized at Exhibit J hereto, and include three components: (1) deferred billings from U.S. Legal Support, for deposition transcription services, totaling $3,938.25; (2) deferred billings from Epiq Systems, Inc., for claims administration work totaling $1,602,552.99;[5] and (3) deferred billings from Shepherd Data Services, Inc., for data hosting totaling $33,380.23.

B. Class Counsel's Recorded Expenses

28. Class Counsel also request reimbursement of $122,932.28 in unreimbursed costs and expenses paid by those firms. This total is based on monthly expense reports submitted to Co-Lead Counsel.

29. Exhibit K hereto summarizes the expenses reported as having been incurred by all Class Counsel and paid by those firms, separately from those expenses that were paid out of the Litigation Fund. Class Counsel have itemized their costs separately in their requests for reimbursement accompanying this motion (see Exhibits A-G), and have thereby attested to the reasonableness and accuracy thereof. Each firm requesting reimbursement of expenses has averred that the expenses are reflected in the books and records maintained by the firm. These expenses include, for example, the costs for photocopying, computer research, postage and courier expenses, telephone and fax costs, and travel and accommodations.

[5] This total comprises deferred billings from Epiq dating from August 1, 2015 through July 31, 2016. Class Counsel previously received reimbursement for deferred billings from Epiq through July 2015 only. No billings from Epiq for services provided August 1, 2015 or later were available at the time of Class Counsel's second fee petition, and in that petition Class Counsel informed the Court that they intended to seek reimbursement of such expenses at a later time. Joint Decl. ¶ 328 n.41.

30. As detailed in Exhibit A, my firm has incurred a total of $28,822.19 in unreimbursed expenses during the period August 16, 2015 through July 31, 2016.

31. The expenses incurred in this action are reflected on the books and records of my firm. These books and records are prepared from expense vouchers, check records, and other source materials and represent an accurate recordation of the expenses incurred.

32. In Co-Lead Counsel's judgment, all the expenses sought by this petition were reasonable and necessary to prosecute this litigation and to obtain the substantial settlements here, and all were made for the direct benefit of the Settlement Class and the putative litigation Class.

C. Class Counsel's Common Cost Litigation Fund

33. On behalf of all Class Counsel, my firm has established, monitored, and administered a Common Cost Litigation Fund ("Litigation Fund") from which to pay litigation costs incurred for the case overall in its prosecution. The Litigation Fund is used as a source to pay ongoing litigation expenses on behalf of the Class in this matter. The Litigation Fund initially was funded and is replenished as required from assessment payments from Class Counsel. The total received in Litigation Fund assessments from August 28, 2015[6] through July 31, 2016 is $36,000. See Ex. K line 1. No part of those assessments has been reimbursed.

34. The expenses paid from the Litigation Fund from August 28, 2015 through July 31, 2016 are in addition to the expenses incurred by each Class Counsel, which are described in each Class Counsel's individual declaration and summarized in Exhibit K. As noted above, the Litigation Fund is funded by assessments paid by Class Counsel. As part of this petition to the Court for reimbursement of litigation-related expenses, Class Counsel seeks reimbursements for assessments paid to the Litigation Fund from August 28, 2015 through July 31, 2016. Therefore, to avoid double-counting, the instant petition does not seek reimbursement of any expenditures made directly from the Litigation Fund. Nevertheless, I describe the Litigation Fund's expenditures from August 28, 2015 through July 31, 2016 below and in Exhibit L, in order to fully describe all new litigation-related expenses incurred in this case and to attest to their accuracy and necessity.

[6] Although in general the second interim fee petition sought reimbursement of expenses only through August 15, 2015, it sought reimbursement for contributions to the Litigation Fund that were made through August 27, 2015. Joint Decl. ¶ 333 n.42. Therefore Class Counsel now seek reimbursement for only those contributions to the Litigation Fund that were made from August 28, 2015 through July 31, 2016.

35. In Co-Lead Counsel's judgment, all expenses paid from the Litigation Fund have been reasonably incurred and necessary to the prosecution of this case. The recorded costs and expenses incurred by Class Counsel from August 28, 2015 through July 31, 2016 are itemized in Exhibit L attached hereto.

36. Class Counsel spent $404.28 for court reporters and hearing transcripts. Those transcripts were necessary for briefing and efficient management of the case.

37. Class Counsel spent $183,403.07 for expert consultants. Those expert consultants were necessary for investigation of the case, to guide discovery efforts, and for settlement evaluation

38. Class Counsel incurred $73,926.28 in expenses paid to a document database vendor. These services were necessary to enable Class Counsel to house, review, and code documents produced through discovery and cooperation to assist in briefing and mediation.

39. As of July 31, 2016, the Litigation Fund had a zero balance.

I declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of the United States of America that the foregoing is true and correct.

Executed on this 1st day of September 2016 at Minneapolis, Minnesota.

s/ W. Joseph Bruckner
W. Joseph Bruckner

EXHIBIT 15

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
SOUTHERN DISTRICT OF NEW YORK

GEOFFREY OSBERG	:
	:
On behalf of himself and on behalf of all others similarly situated,	:
	:	Case No.: 07 CV 1358 (KBF)
Plaintiff,	:
	:
- against -	:
	:
FOOT LOCKER, INC.,	:
	:
FOOT LOCKER RETIREMENT PLAN,	:
	:
Defendants.	:

~~[PROPOSED]~~ ORDER AWARDING ATTORNEYS' FEES AND EXPENSES AND SERVICE AWARDS FOR PLAINTIFF AND TESTIFYING CLASS MEMBERS

This matter came on for hearing on June 8, 2018 on Class Counsel's motion for attorneys' fees and expenses from the common fund created by this Court's October 2015 judgment (Dkt. 399) and for approval of service awards to Mr. Osberg and the eight Class members who were deposed by Defendants and testified at the July 2015 trial, to be paid out of Class Counsel's fee award.

Now, the Court, having heard argument and having reviewed all of the evidence and other submissions presented with respect to the motion and the record of all proceedings in this case, enters the following findings:

1. On or about April 10, 2018, the Notice Administrator caused the Notice to be mailed via first-class mail to the last known address of each individual identified as a Class member, as evidenced by the Notice Administrator's June 1, 2018 filed proof of mailing (Dkt.

415). In addition, follow-up efforts were made to send the Notice to individuals whose original notice was returned as undeliverable, as the Notice Administrator has attested. Id. at 2.

2. The Court finds that the Notice gave Class members notice "in a reasonable manner" of Class Counsel's motion for attorneys' fees and expenses and approval of service awards for Plaintiffs and the testifying Class members, and properly informed them of their right to comment or object in accordance with Fed. R. Civ. P. 23(h).

3. In response to the Notice, no Class member submitted an objection.

4. As reflected in the jointly proposed Class Notice, Dkt. 407-1, the parties have stipulated and their actuaries agree that the estimated value of the Class's total recovery as of June 1, 2018 is $290 million.

5. Class Counsel have sought an award of attorneys' fees equal to 33% of this $290 common fund, net of the $1,520,057 in out-of-pocket expenses incurred during the litigation of this matter for which Counsel seek reimbursement. Hence, the fee award sought is 33% of $288,479,943, which equals $95,198,381.

6. Under Goldberger v. Integrated Resources Inc., 209 F.3d 43 (2d Cir. 2000), "the traditional criteria in determining a reasonable common fund fee, includ[e]: (1) the time and labor expended by counsel; (2) the magnitude and complexities of the litigation; (3) the risk of the litigation; (4) the quality of representation; (5) the requested fee in relation to the [recovery]; and (6) public policy considerations." Id. at 50. In addition to the criteria set forth in Goldberger, courts in the Second Circuit consider the reaction of the class to the fee request in deciding how large a fee to award. In re Hi-Crush Partners L.P. Sec. Litig., 2014 WL 7323417, at *18 (S.D.N.Y. Dec. 19, 2014). The Court finds, consistent with "'a jealous regard to the rights of those who are interested in the fund,'" id. at 53, that all six Goldberger factors, and the absence of any objection from even a single member of the Class, weigh in favor of a 33% award, and Class Counsel's requested fee award is hereby approved.

7. The Court finds that the requested 33% fee is fair and reasonable in light of the following facts and circumstances:

(a) Quality of Representation. Class Counsel took this case to trial and prevailed, and then successfully defended the Court's judgment on appeal and in opposition to Defendants' petition for certiorari in the United States Supreme Court;

(b) Extraordinary 100% Recovery. Counsel thereby achieved an exceptional, perhaps unprecedented 100% recovery of the Class's maximum possible damages claim against a formidable opponent represented by first-rate legal counsel;

(c) Risk. Counsel faced very high risks of non-recovery from the inception of the case in 2007 through the denial of certiorari in 2018, including very high merits risk, very high statute of limitations risk, and very high class-certification risk that could have easily resulted in zero recovery for the Class and Class Counsel—as is confirmed by the fact that this Court dismissed this case in its entirety with prejudice on multiple grounds in 2012;

(d) Scope and Magnitude. The case was exceedingly difficult and complex and of considerable scope and extraordinarily long duration;

(e) Time and Effort. Class Counsel expended very significant time and resources in prosecuting this action, all with no guarantee of payment;

(f) Awards in Other Cases. The requested award compares very favorably to awards in other successful class cases tried to verdict, see Rubenstein Decl. ¶¶ 9, 19, Dkt. 461-1, Krakauer v. Dish Network, No. 14-333 (M.D.N.C. May 7, 2018) (36% on average), as well as awards in settled cases involving large ($100 million-plus) "mega-funds" where courts, including many within this Circuit, have awarded attorneys' fees that equal or exceed the 33% fee sought here, in circumstances that do not approach the efficacy and value that Class Counsel's tenacity and commitment—and assumption of great financial risk by litigating the case to judgment—created for the Class here;

(g) Public Policy. As a matter of public policy, the requested 33% common fund is necessary to ensure that counsel in future meritorious cases will not hesitate to be equally persistent and press forward as Class Counsel did here to achieve maximum recovery for their clients despite the complications, difficulties, and risk.

(h) The Class's Reaction. Under the circumstances here, the Class's lack of objection should be taken to mean that the Class consents to Counsel's request and finds it reasonable. See In re Kentucky Grilled Chicken Coupon Marketing & Sales Practices Litig., 280 F.R.D. 364, 380 (N.D. Ill. 2011) ("the day has long since passed when class members simply accepted the amount of proposed fees"). Here, the notice campaign was unusually successful, with only a very small number of notices returned as undeliverable. Yet not a single Class member objected. Had Class members found the requested one-third fee unreasonable, they could have easily registered an objection—and had every incentive to do so since, as the notice made clear, they stood to gain material additional benefits if the Court agreed with their objection.

8. When a percentage-of-the-fund approach is used, the Court may also use a lodestar "cross-check" based on a summary of hours to test the reasonableness of the percentage. Wal-Mart Stores, Inc. v. Visa U.S.A., Inc., 396 F.3d 96, 123 (2d Cir. 2005). Applying the lodestar method as a cross check, this Court finds that the fee Class Counsel seeks is reasonable. Based on Class Counsel's reported lodestar, the requested 33% award equates to an implied multiplier of 4.8, which is in line with implied multipliers approved in other comparable cases in this Circuit and elsewhere.

9. The Court finds that the $1,520,057 in requested out-of-pocket litigation expenses and costs incurred have been adequately documented, were reasonably incurred in connection with the prosecution of the action, and are reasonable for a case of this complexity, scope, and duration. Reimbursement of the requested amount is also hereby approved.

10. The Court directs the Foot Locker Qualified Settlement Trust (the "Fund") – a $150 million trust fund established by Foot Locker with the intent it be utilized in the first instance to satisfy the Court's award of attorneys' fees and expenses – to disburse, within 7 business days of this Order, the attorneys' fees and expenses approved in ¶¶ 5-9 above in accordance with Class Counsel's payment instructions.

11. The Court finds that the service awards requested for Plaintiff Geoffrey Osberg in the amount of $50,000 and for the eight Class members who were deposed and testified at trial—Ada Cardona, Russell Howard, Rita Welz, Ralph Campuzano, Doris Albright, Richard Schaeffer, Michael Steven and Ellen Glickfield—in the amount of $15,000 each, are well-deserved, appropriate, and in line with those awarded in other cases. The Court authorizes and directs Class Counsel to pay these awards within 10 business days of this Order.

SO ORDERED.

Dated: New York, New York
6/8, 2018.

KATHERINE B. FORREST
United States District Judge

EXHIBIT 16

2024 Antitrust Annual Report

Class Actions in Federal Court

Published July 2025

Center for Litigation and Courts
UC Law SF

Huntington Bank

Foreword

We are pleased to present the 2024 Antitrust Annual Report produced in partnership with the Center for Litigation and Courts at UC Law SF and The Huntington National Bank. Key findings include:

- From 2009-2024, a mean number of 123 consolidated complaints were filed per year, with outlier years as low as 72 and as high as 220.
- From 2009-2024, there were Defendant Wins in 146 cases as a result of judgments on the pleadings, summary judgment, judgment as a matter of law, or trial.
- From 2009-2024, most antitrust class actions that reached final approval did so within 5-7 years.
- The mean settlement amount varied by year from $6 million to $184 million, and the median amount varied by year from $2 million to $18.5 million.
- The total annual settlements ranged from $225 million to $9.6 billion per year.
- The cumulative total of settlements was $44.8 billion from 2009-2024.

We want to acknowledge several people who helped with the report including Lindsay Schuch and Abby Van Nostran. We would also like to acknowledge Lex Machina as our primary data source.

We hope that you find this information interesting and helpful.

Professor Joshua Davis
Center for Litigation and Courts
UC Law SF
davisjosh@uclawsf.edu

Rose Kohles Clark
Vice President
The Huntington National Bank
rose.clark@huntington.com

Table of Contents

Foreword....2
2024 Year at a Glance....5
Federal Antitrust Class Action Filings:
- Consolidated Filings by Year....6
- Consolidated Filings by District Court....7
- Time from Filing to Final Approval....8

Federal Antitrust Class Actions with Defendant Win:
- Defendant Wins by Case Resolution....10
- Defendant Wins by Length of Case Resolution....11
- Top Defense Counsel in Defendant Wins....12

Federal Antitrust Class Action Settlements:
- Total Settlement Amount by Year....13
- Average Settlement Amount by Year....14
- Aggregate Settlement Value by Size....15
- Settlements by Industry....16
- Recoveries by Class Type....17
- Settlements by Alleged Antitrust Violation....18
- Cases with Settlements Reaching Final Approval in 2024....20
- Top 50 Cases with Settlements Reaching Final Approval 2009-2024....24
- Class Recovery by Settlement Size....30

Top Firms in Antitrust Class Actions:
- Top 25 Firms Acting as Defense Counsel....34
- Top 25 Lead Counsel in Complaints Filed....36
- Top 25 Lead Counsel in Number of Settlements....36
- Top 25 Lead Counsel in Class Recovery....37
- Top Claims Administrators....38

Methodology and Sources....40
About Us....41

EQUAL JUSTICE UNDER LAW

2024 Year at a Glance

Federal Antitrust Class Actions

Total # Consolidated Filings	# Cases with Defendant Win	# Cases with Settlements Reaching Final Approval	Total Settlements
135	9	28	$2.9B

Consolidated Filings by Year

In 2024, the number of consolidated filings rebounded significantly, reaching a total of 135. This marks a strong recovery from 2023, which saw only 87 filings—the third lowest total in the past 16 years. Over this period, the average number of consolidated filings has been 123, with a standard deviation of 81. Notably, only four years have strayed beyond one standard deviation from the mean:

- 2011 (72 filings),
- 2017 (74 filings),
- 2019 (211 filings), and
- 2020 (220 filings).

These years fall short of being considered true outliers, but as stand out years they still highlight the relative stability of filing volumes across most of the timeframe, with 2024's total aligning closely with the long-term average.

Figure 1: Federal Antitrust Filings
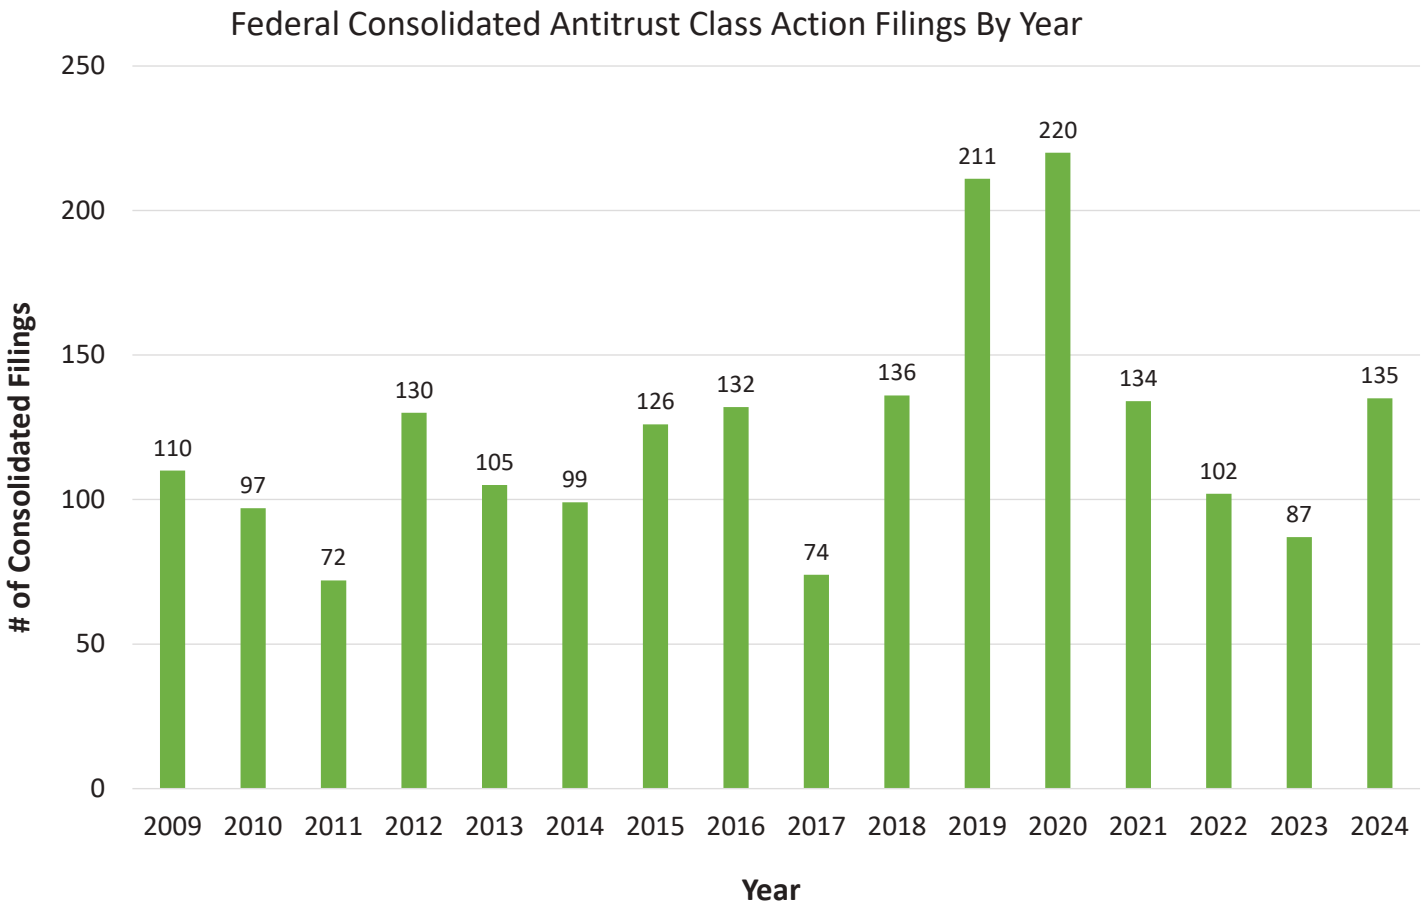
2009 - 2024



Consolidated Filings by District Court

Since 2009, there were 1,970 consolidated antitrust class action filings across all federal district courts in the United States. Of these districts, the Northern District of California (275), the Southern District of New York (252), and the Northern District of Illinois (204) have been the most frequent forums. There appears to be five district courts—add the District of New Jersey and the Eastern District of Michigan to the others listed above—in which plaintiffs file the most cases.

We may wonder whether the filing behaviors are based on the law in the district and circuit, a desire for judicial expertise based on experience in antitrust law, geography of the defendants, or some combination of the three. The relatively large number of antitrust cases filed in these five courts may be a characteristic of the underlying cases and defendants themselves.

Figure 2: Federal Antitrust Filings by District Court
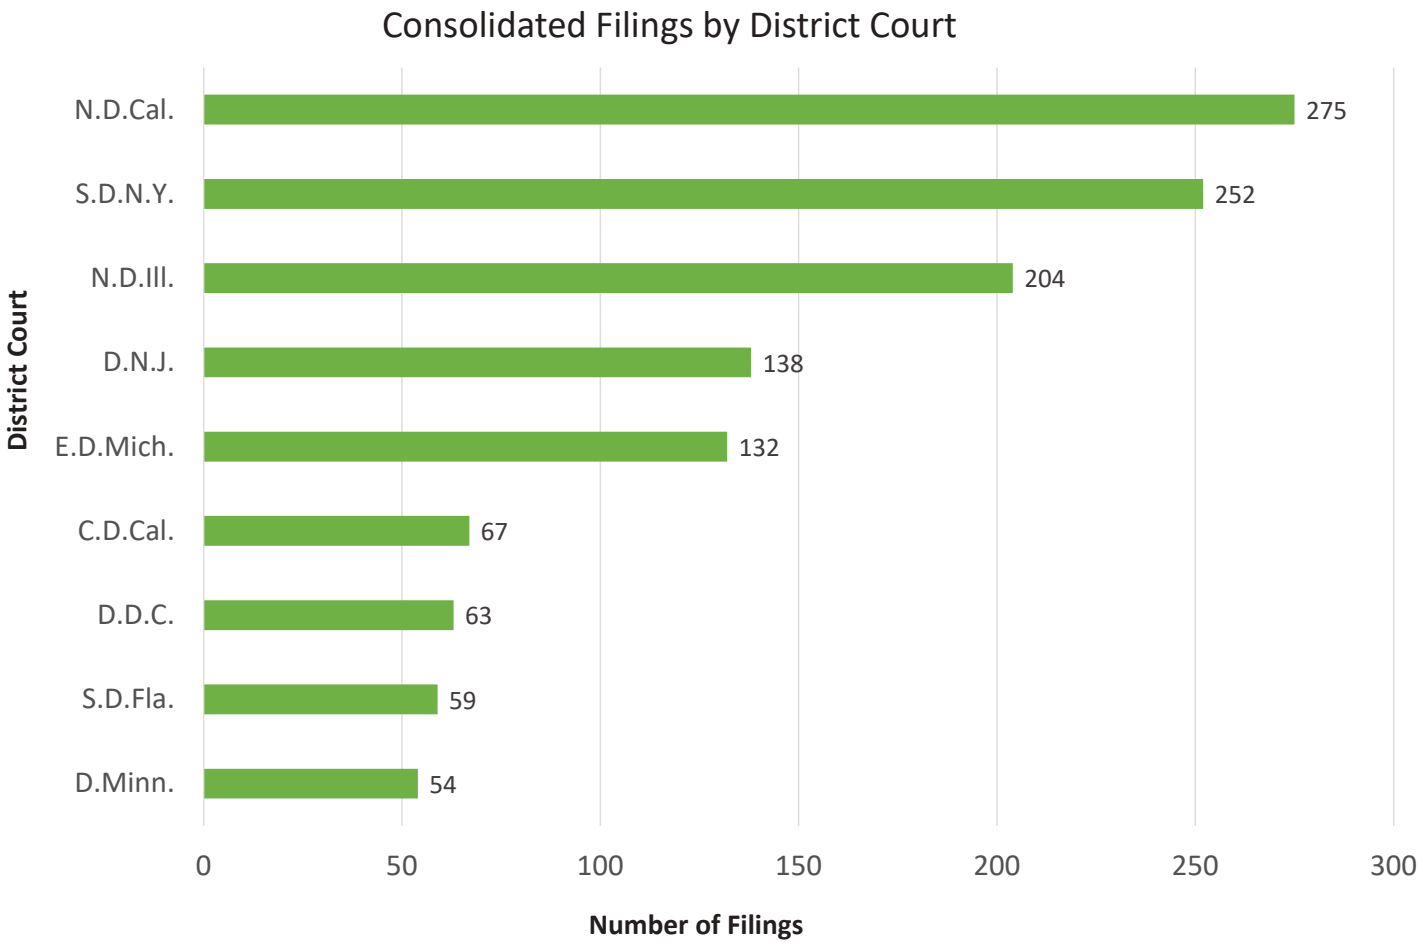
2009 - 2024



Time from Filing to Final Approval

During the period from 2009-2024, the median time from the filing of the complaint to the order granting final approval of a settlement was 5.3 years. Figure 3 illustrates a general increase in the length of time to reach final approval from 4.5 years in 2009 to 5.8 years in 2024.

Figure 3: Percentage of Cases Settled by Number of Years from Filing to Final Approval
2009 - 2024

Percentage of Cases Settled by Number of Years from Filing to Final Approval
Year	≤2 years	3-4 years	5-7 years	8+ years	Mean
2009	15.4%	34.6%	46.2%	3.8%	4.5
2010	17.9%	43.6%	33.3%	5.1%	4.3
2011	9.9%	51.6%	33.0%	5.5%	4.4
2012	13.2%	42.6%	36.8%	7.4%	4.7
2013	8.0%	18.0%	52.0%	22.0%	5.5
2014	6.0%	11.9%	50.7%	31.3%	7.4
2015	20.2%	23.9%	26.6%	29.4%	5.1
2016	27.2%	38.6%	16.5%	17.7%	4.3
2017	6.7%	57.8%	26.7%	8.9%	4.5
2018	11.4%	24.4%	60.2%	4.0%	4.9
2019	1.8%	42.2%	47.7%	8.3%	5.5
2020	10.1%	26.2%	34.2%	29.5%	6.1
2021	14.6%	18.8%	35.4%	31.3%	6.1
2022	14.0%	11.6%	50.0%	24.4%	6.0
2023	7.7%	13.5%	36.5%	42.3%	7.4
2024	18.5%	23.1%	24.6%	33.8%	5.8
All Years	13.0%	30.9%	37.8%	18.3%	5.3

Figure 4: Number of Years from Filing to Final Approval for Federal Cases
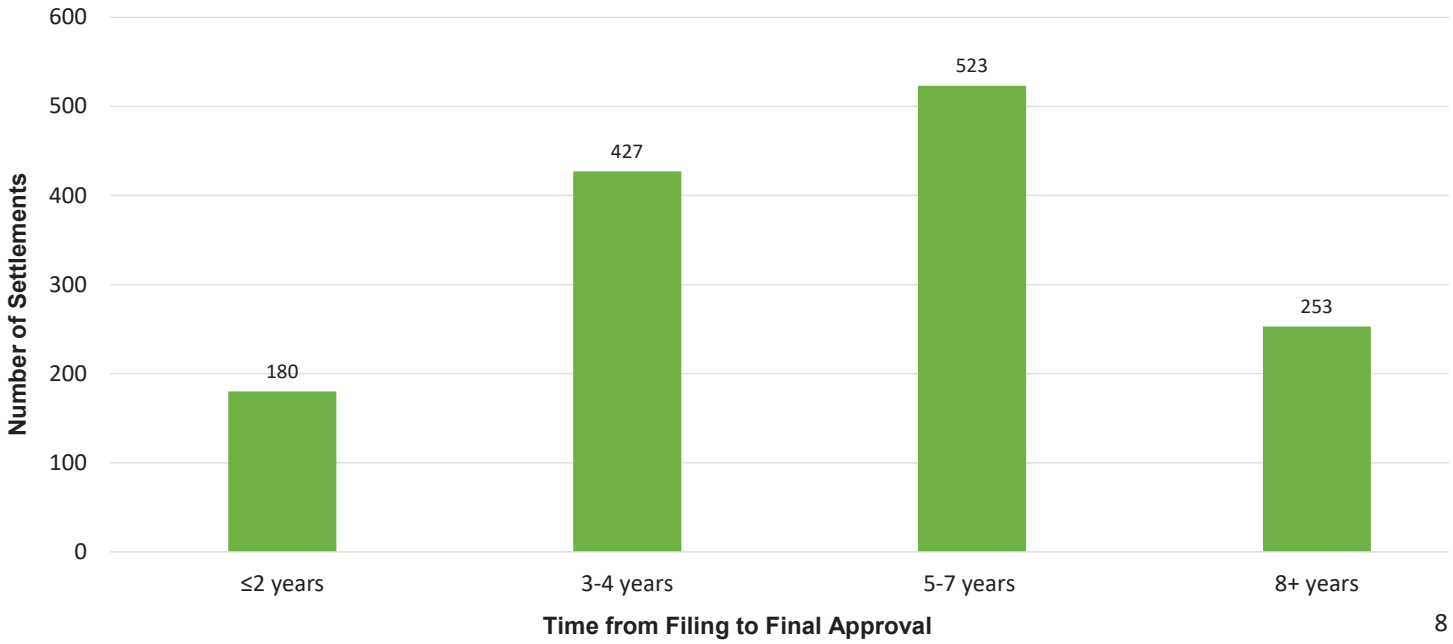
2009 - 2024



Defendant Wins by Case Resolution

Of the 146 cases won by defendants with all appeals resolved between 2009-2024, nearly two-thirds were based upon judgment on the pleadings. Over one quarter of them were won at summary judgment.

Figure 5: Defendant Wins by Case Resolution
2009 - 2024

Defendant Wins by Case Resolution
Case Resolution	# of Cases	% of Cases
Judgment on the Pleadings	96	66%
Summary Judgment	38	26%
Trial	9	6%
Judgment as a Matter of Law	3	2%
Total	146	100%

Figure 6: Percentage of Defendant Wins by Case Resolution
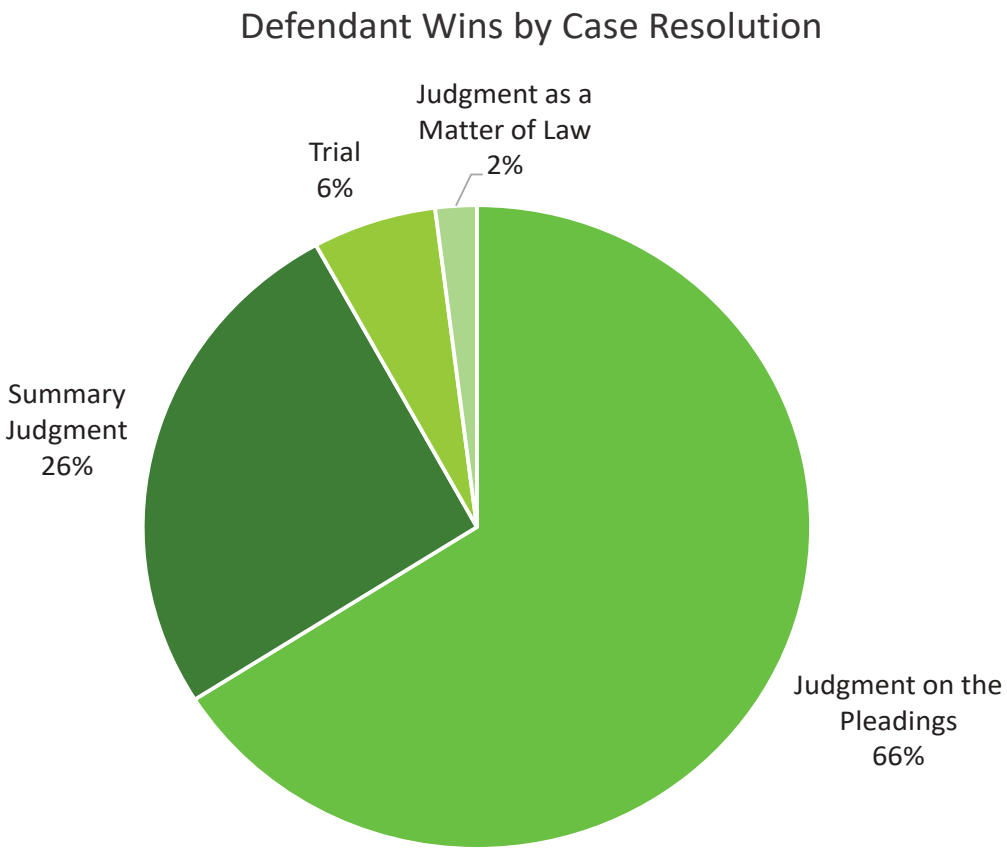
2009 - 2024



Defendant Wins by Length of Case Resolution

Comparing figures 5, 6, and 7, Judgment on the Pleadings was the quickest resolution in favor of defendants, and the most frequently awarded by the courts. Judgments on the Pleadings were ordered on average 1.7 years after filing. Summary Judgment was ordered on average 4.2 years after filing, and was also a frequent way for a defendant to prevail. Judgment as a Matter of Law during trial was ordered on average 3.6 years after filing. As expected, a resolution by trial was the most time consuming, lasting on average for 8.1 years between filing and a Court's order to resolve a case.

Figure 7: Defendant Wins by Length of Case Resolution
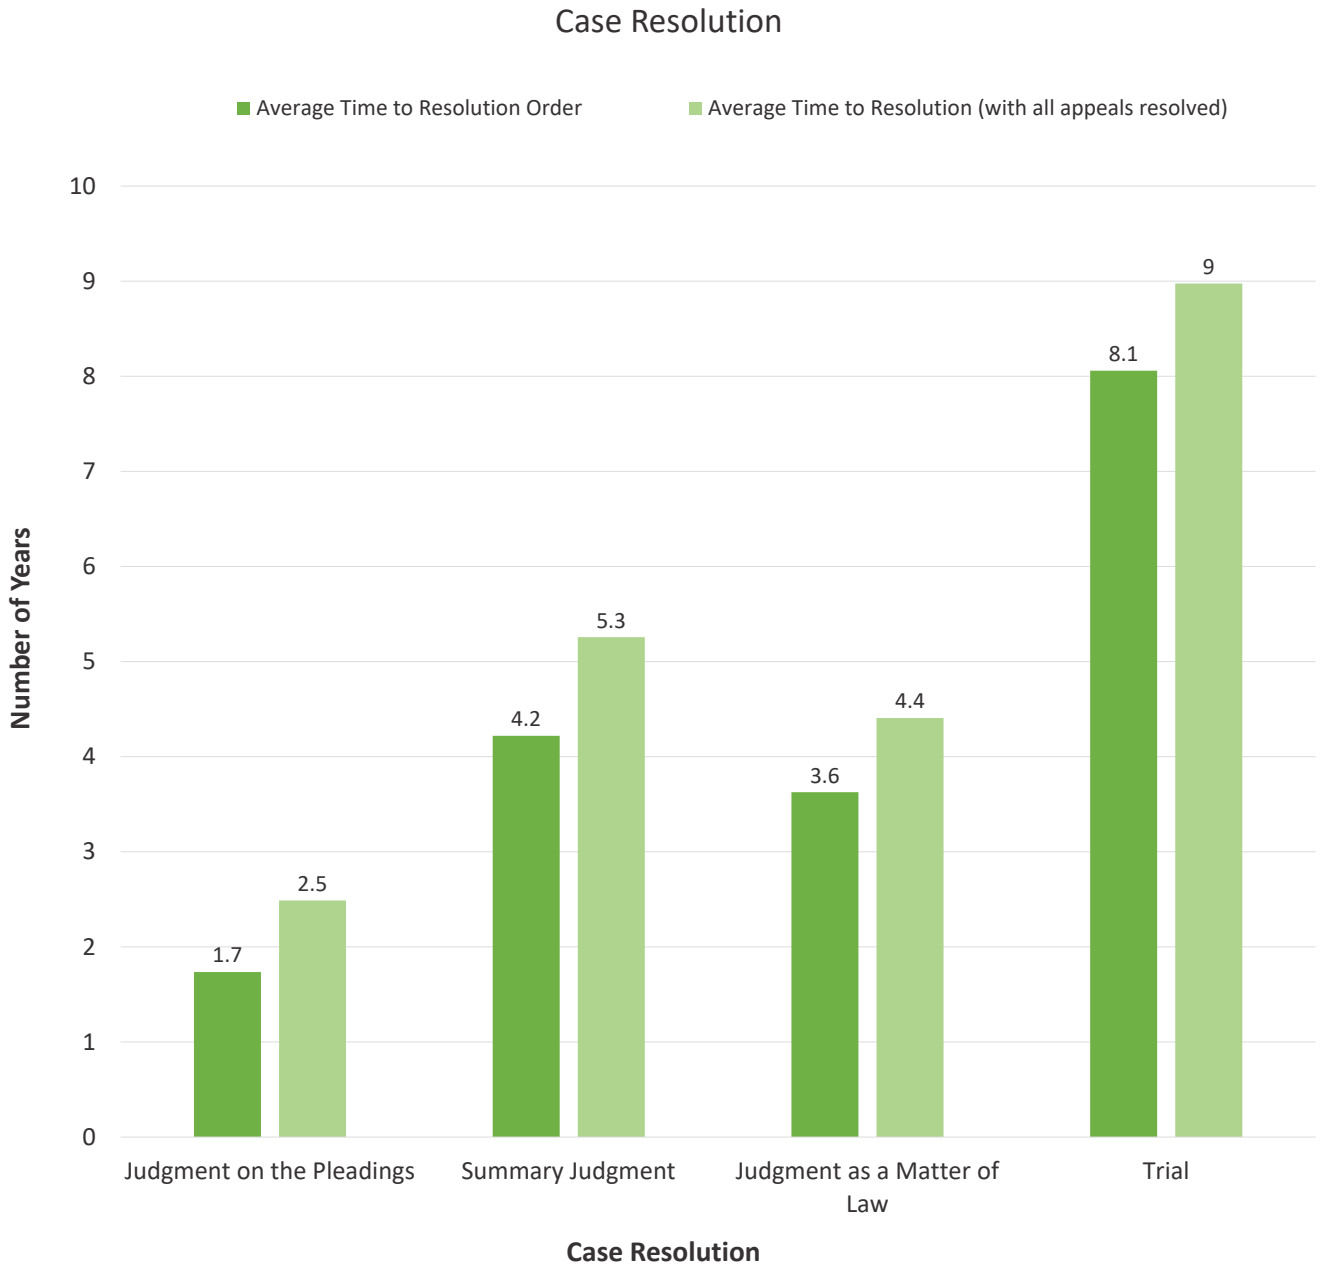
2009 - 2024



Top Defense Counsel in Defendant Wins

Rank	Firm	# of Cases 2009-2024
1	Gibson, Dunn & Crutcher LLP	22
2	Kirkland & Ellis LLP	14	(tie)
2	Skadden, Arps, Slate, Meagher & Flom LLP	14	(tie)
4	Latham & Watkins LLP	13	(tie)
4	Morgan, Lewis & Bockius LLP	13	(tie)
4	Paul, Weiss, Rifkind, Wharton & Garrison LLP	13	(tie)
4	Sullivan & Cromwell LLP	13	(tie)
8	Sidley Austin LLP	12
9	Boies Schiller Flexner LLP	11	(tie)
9	Covington & Burling LLP	11	(tie)
9	Davis Polk & Wardwell LLP	11	(tie)
9	Jones Day	11	(tie)
9	Locke Lord LLP	11	(tie)
9	Simpson Thacher & Bartlett LLP	11	(tie)
9	White & Case LLP	11	(tie)
16	Ballard Spahr LLP	10	(tie)
16	Hogan Lovells	10	(tie)
16	Mayer Brown LLP	10	(tie)
16	O'Melveny & Myers LLP	10	(tie)
16	WilmerHale	10	(tie)
21	Baker Botts LLP	9	(tie)
21	DLA Piper	9	(tie)
21	Faegre Drinker Biddle & Reath LLP	9	(tie)
21	Greenberg Traurig LLP	9	(tie)
25	King & Spalding LLP	8	(tie)
25	Winston & Strawn LLP	8	(tie)

Note: Cases with more than one law firm as listed on complaint are attributed to each firm.

Total Settlement Amount by Year

We observe a 2024 Total Settlement Amount of $2.9B, which aligns closely with the median of this dataset at $2.5B. With respect to prior years, 2023 stands apart as an outlier. Falling just over 3 standard deviations (one standard deviation is approximately $2.5 billion) over the median settlement amount over the 16 year period, 2023 realized a significant $9.6 billion in aggregate over 52 settlements. This figure is driven primarily by two high dollar settlements that received final approval and resolved all appeals in 2023:

- The Payment Card Interchange Fee and Merchant Discount Antitrust Litigation -23(b) Monetary Class settling for $5.5 billion
- The Blue Cross Blue Shield Antitrust Litigation - Subscriber Class settling for $2.7 billion

Other notably high years (though within 1 standard deviation of the mean) include 2016, where 154 settlements reached final approval for a total of $4.7 billion, and 2018, where 176 settlements reached final approval for a total of $5.3 billion.

High dollar settlements in 2016 include:

- In re: Credit Default Swaps Antitrust Litigation: $1.8B
- In re: Urethane Antitrust Litigation: $835M
- In re: Automotive Parts Antitrust Litigation: $224M for end payors class (first round of settlements)

High dollar settlements in 2018 include:

- In re: Foreign Exchange Benchmark Rates Antitrust Litigation: $2.3B
- In re: LIBOR Based Financial Instruments Antitrust Litigation: $590M
- In re: ISDAfix Antitrust Litigation: $504M

Figure 8: Total Settlement Amount by Year
2009 - 2024

Average Settlement Amount by Year

Figure 9: Median and Mean Federal Case Settlement Amount by Year
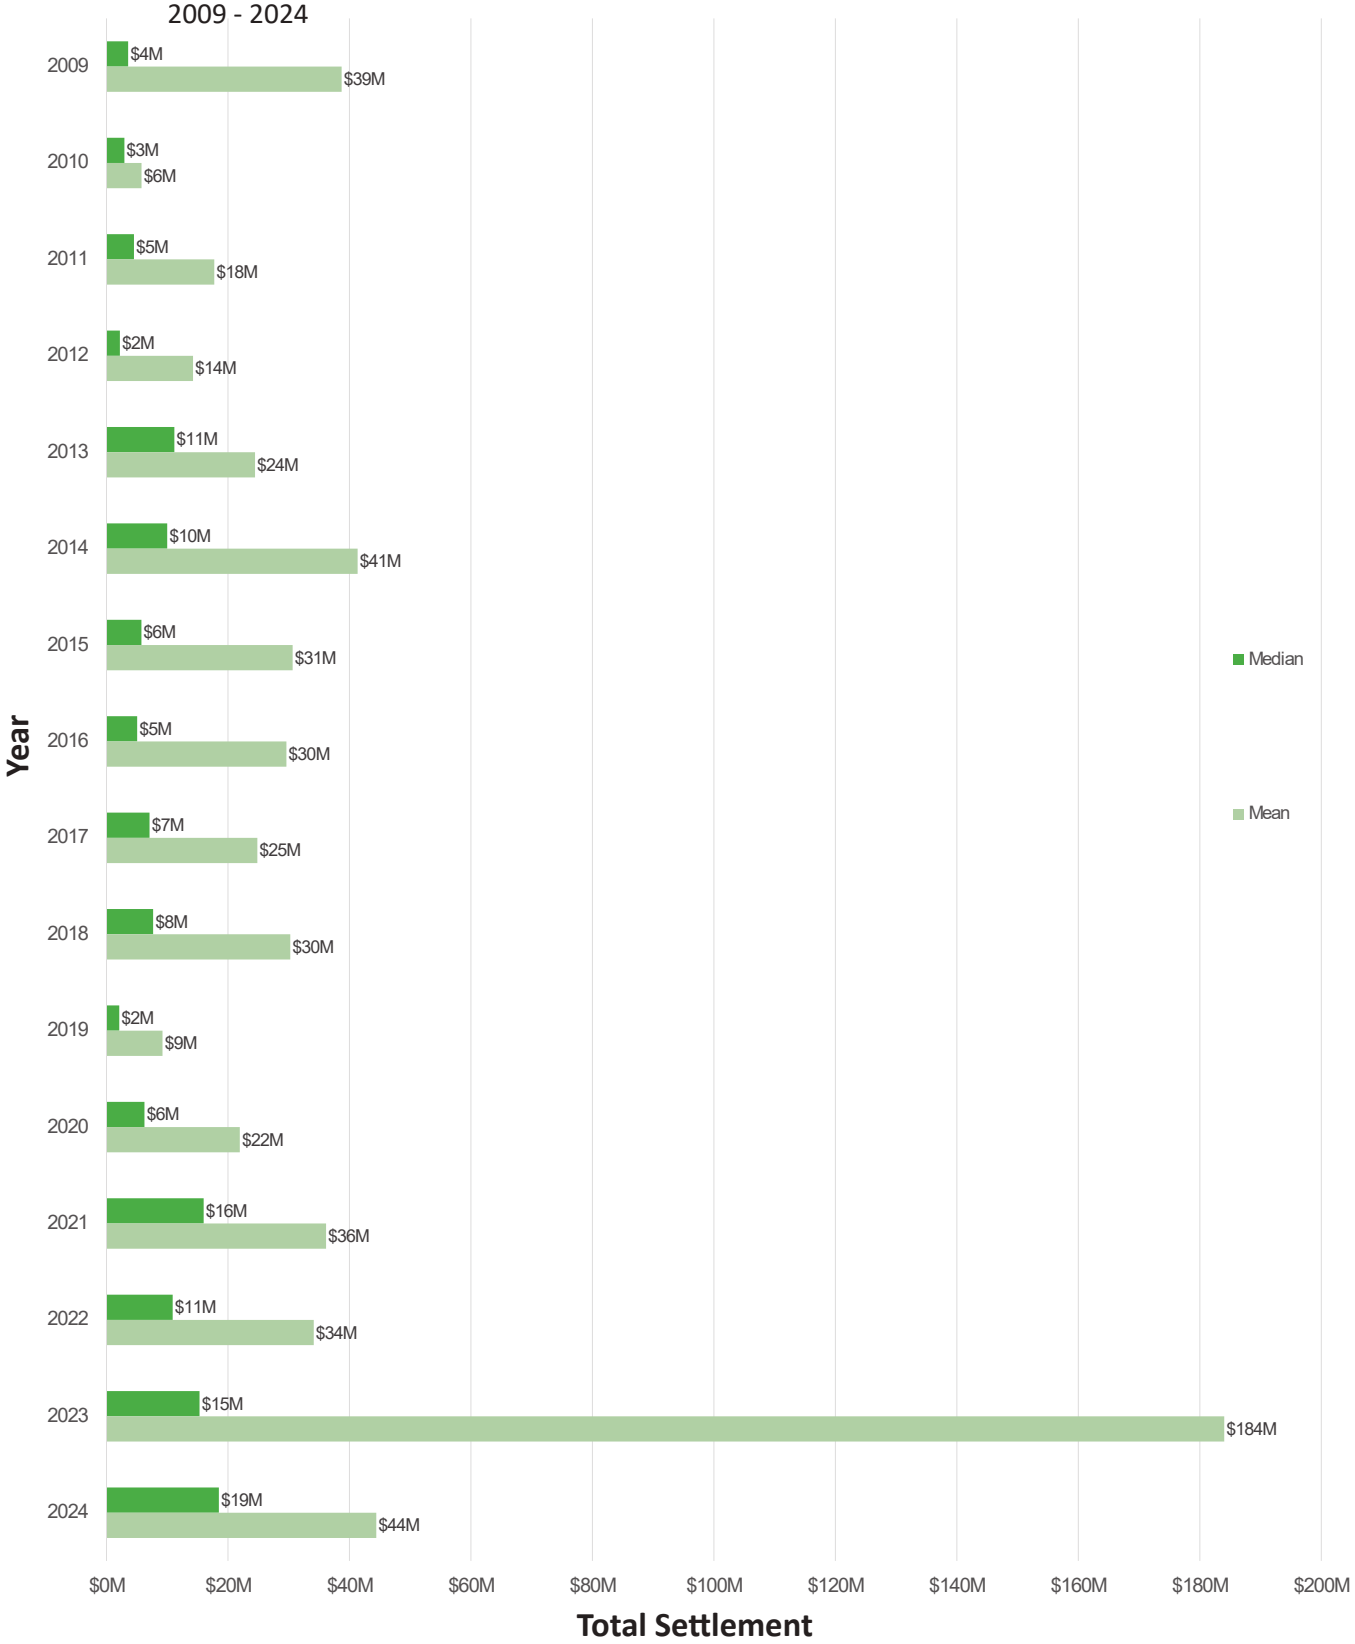
2009 - 2024



Aggregate Settlement Value by Size

Figure 10: Aggregate Settlement Value by Size
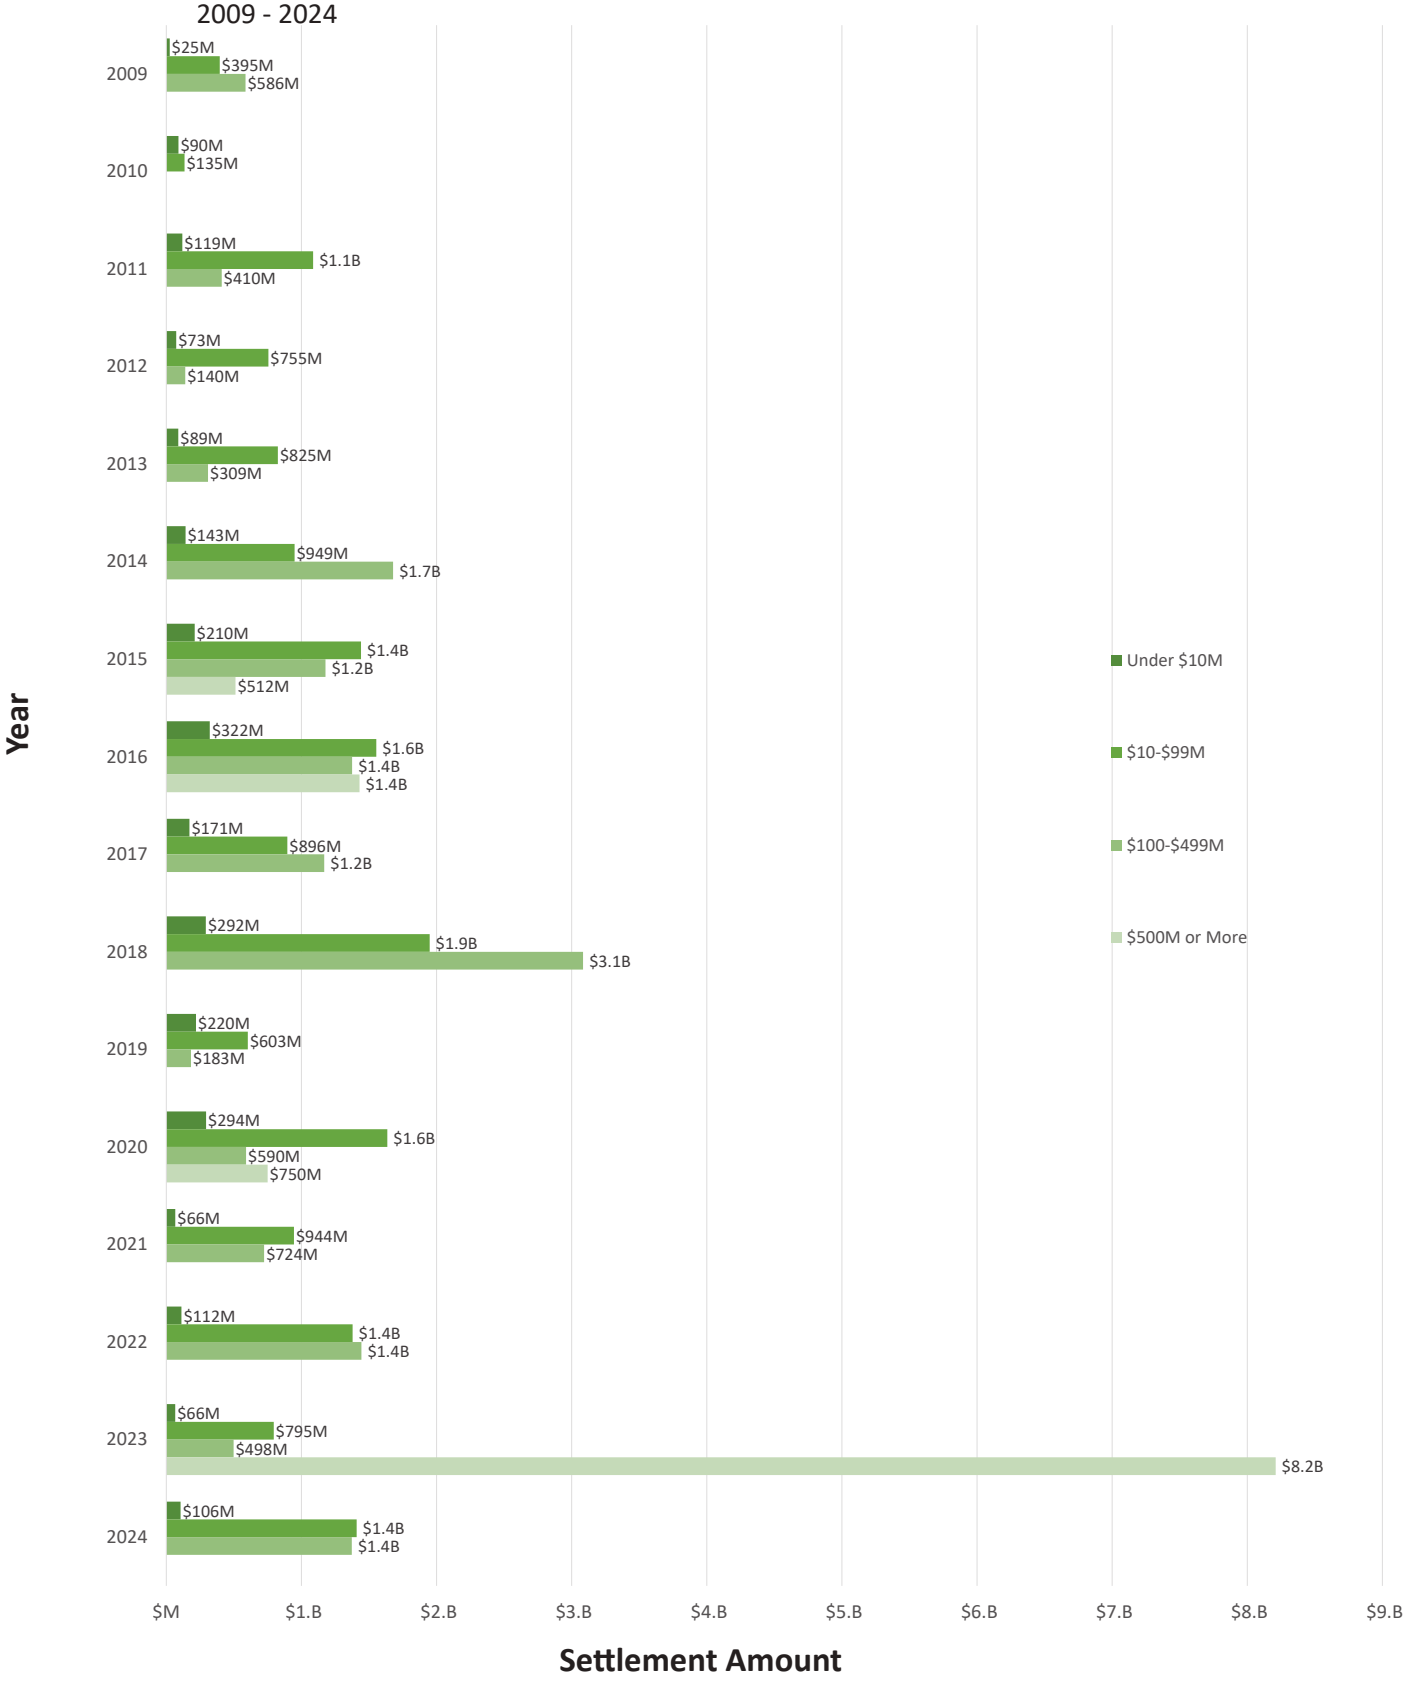
2009 - 2024



Settlements by Industry

Figure 11: Aggregate Settlement Amount by Industry
2009 - 2024

Industry	Aggregate Settlement Amount	# of Settlements	Average Settlement Amount
Financial Services	$15,753,485,057	183	$86,084,618
Pharmaceuticals	$7,342,332,378	119	$61,700,272
Electronics Manufacturing	$4,244,339,565	167	$25,415,207
Insurance	$2,847,365,769	7	$406,766,538
Automotive Manufacturing	$2,510,244,520	431	$5,824,233
Chemical Manufacturing	$1,836,925,300	56	$32,802,238
Logistics and Freight	$1,826,212,670	70	$26,088,752
Food Processing	$1,403,441,762	56	$25,061,460
Agriculture	$1,221,194,250	52	$23,484,505
Entertainment	$749,566,763	10	$74,956,676
Publishing	$584,419,000	9	$64,935,444
Media	$522,000,000	8	$65,250,000
Construction	$420,770,000	21	$20,036,667
Manufacturing - Wood Products	$376,400,000	3	$125,466,667
Healthcare	$372,274,187	50	$7,445,484
All Others	$2,778,870,255	141	$19,708,300

Recoveries by Class Type

The number of settlements and the amount of the class recoveries are strikingly different for direct purchaser class actions than for indirect purchaser class actions. From 2009 through 2024, direct purchaser actions recovered far more in total than indirect purchaser actions—$32.9 billion and $10.2 billion, respectively.

That is because there were more direct purchaser settlements than indirect purchaser settlements, and because the direct purchaser settlements averaged $44.3 million while the indirect purchaser settlements averaged approximately $16.5 million.

The ultimate result is that direct purchaser settlements recovered more than three times as much --3.2 times as much, to be precise -- as indirect purchaser actions.

Figure 12: Recoveries by Class Type
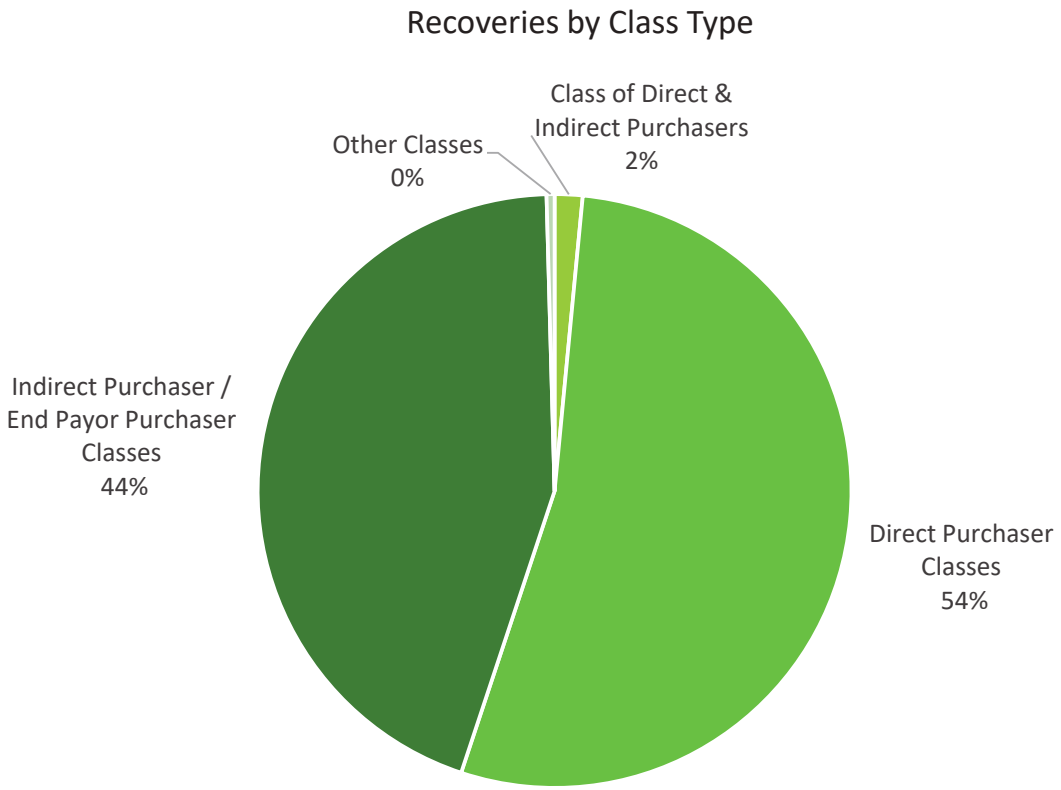
2009 - 2024

Recoveries by Class Type	# of Settlements	% of Settlements	Aggregate Amount	% of Amount
Direct Purchaser Classes	741	54%	$32,857,784,680	73%
Indirect Purchaser / End Payor Purchaser Classes	615	44%	$10,167,272,278	23%
Class of Direct & Indirect Purchasers	21	2%	$1,655,684,519	4%
Other Classes	6	0%	$109,100,000	0%
Total	1,383	100%	$44,789,841,477	100%



Settlements by Alleged Antitrust Violation

The vast majority of antitrust recoveries in federal court—just shy of 90%—were in cases brought only under Section 1 of the Sherman Act. These entail allegations of a contract, combination or conspiracy—sometimes called concerted action—and would include traditional horizontal agreements to fix prices. Far fewer recoveries occurred in actions—approximately 2%—based solely on Section 2 of the Sherman Act, which does not require concerted action and would include illegal monopolization. Approximately 9% of recoveries came in actions pursuing claims under both Section 1 and Section 2. The recoveries were more balanced when measured not by number of settlements but by amounts recovered. Section 1 claims accounted for $31 billion of recoveries—69%—Section 2 claims for slightly over $2.1 billion—5%—and cases involving claims under Section 1 and Section 2 for Approximately $10.5 billion—23%.

Figure 13: Settlements by Alleged Antitrust Violation
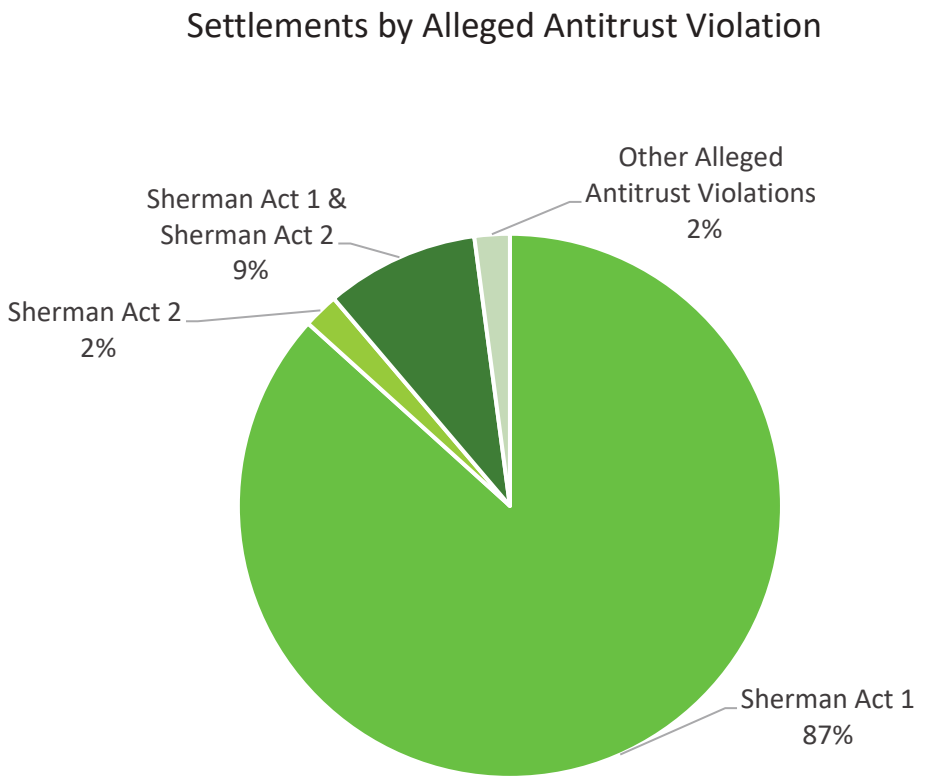
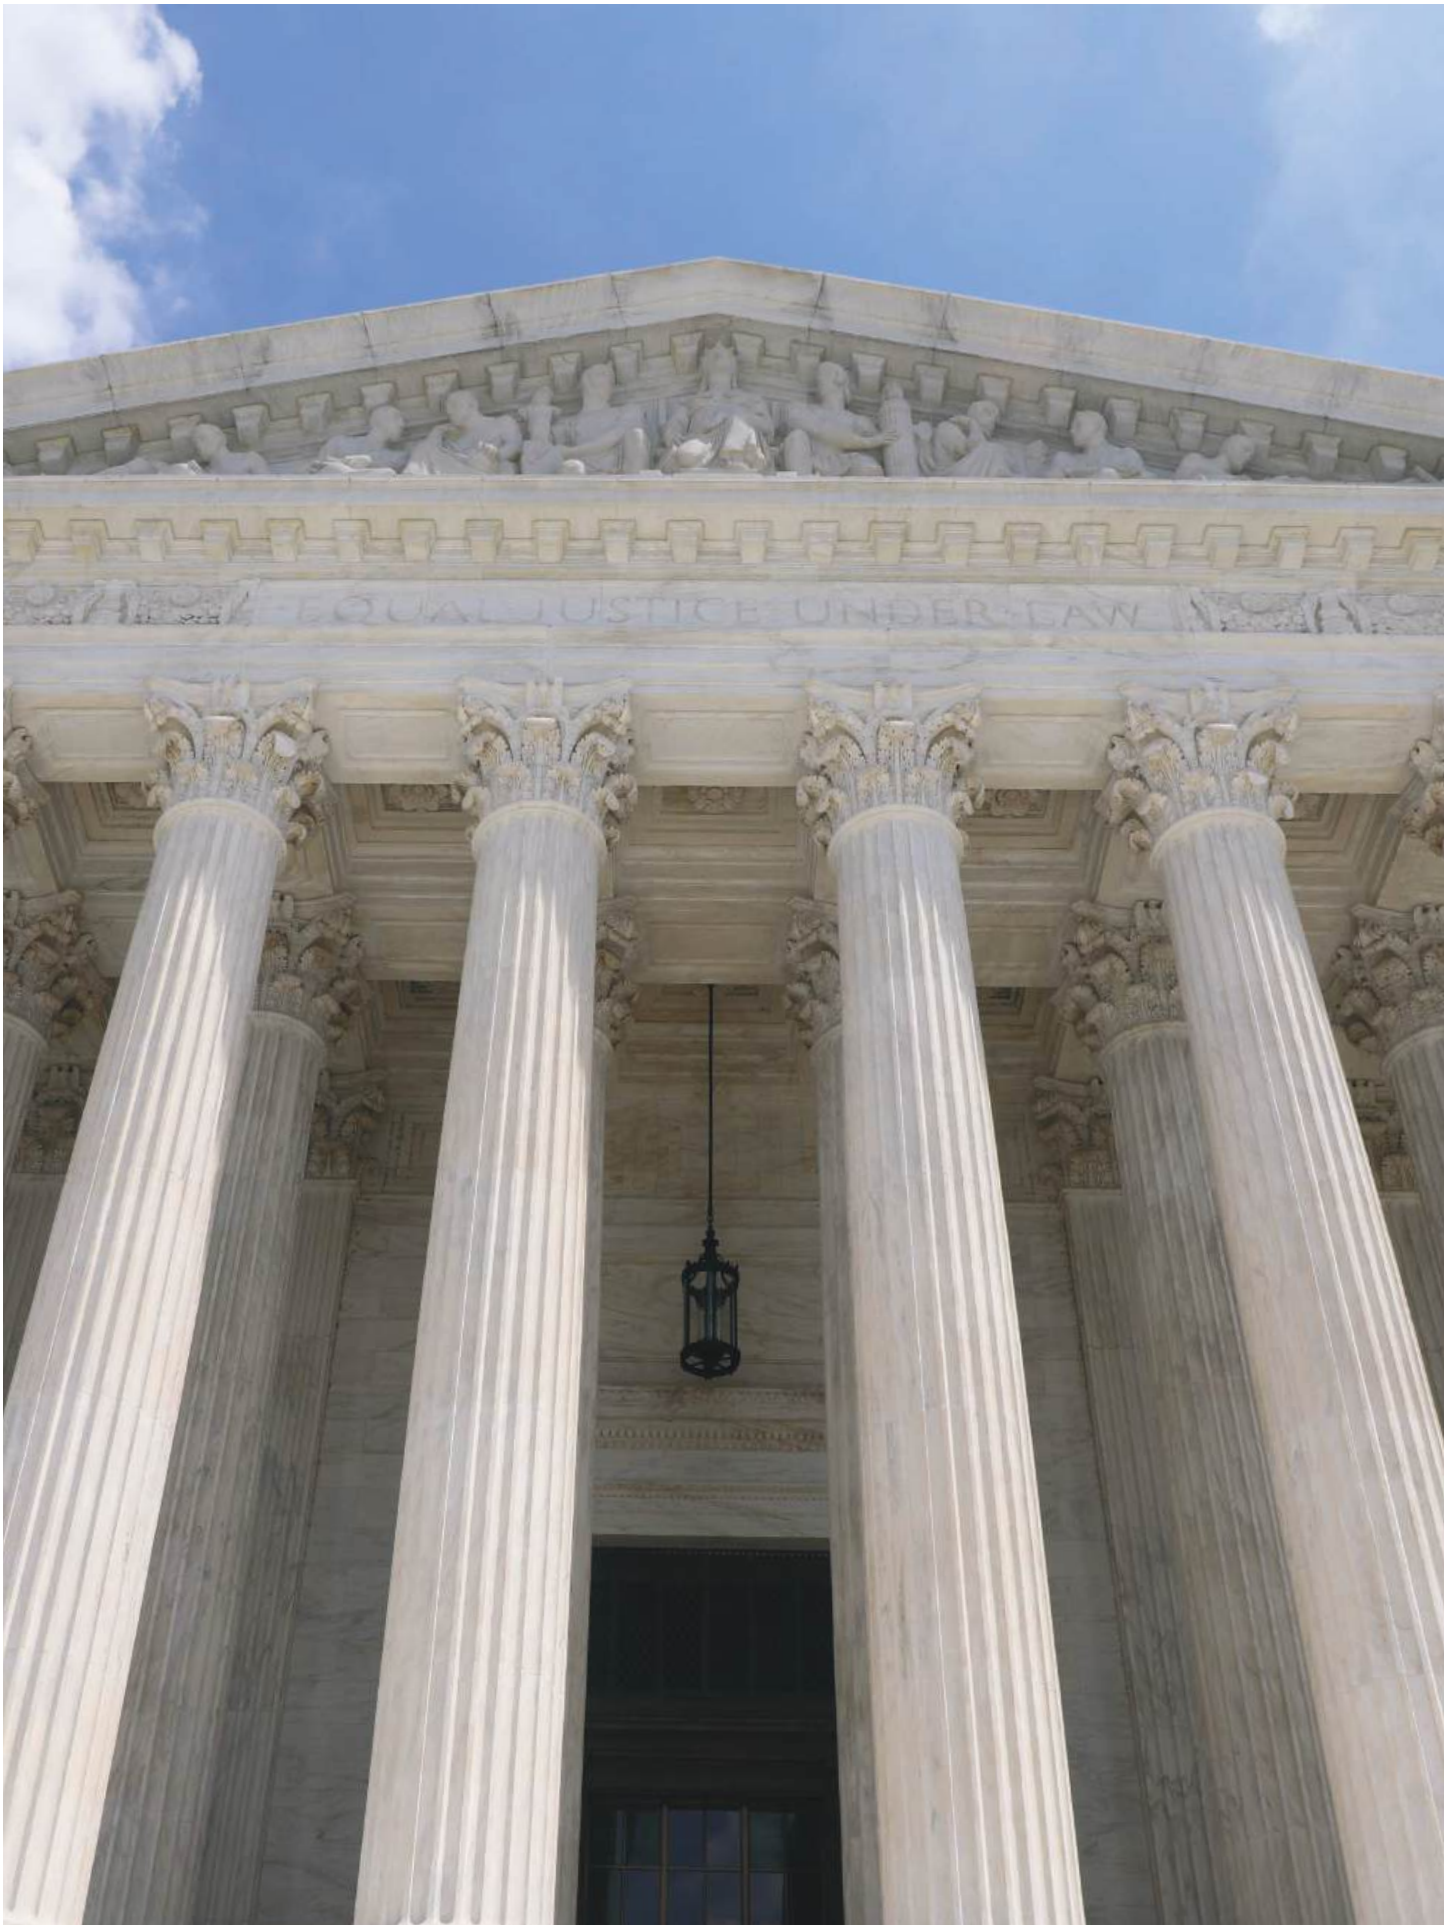
2009 - 2024

Alleged Antitrust Violation	# of Settlements	% of Settlements	Aggregate Amount	% of Amount
Sherman Act 1	1,199	87%	$30,992,998,478	69%
Sherman Act 2	29	2%	$2,119,988,000	5%
Sherman Act 1 & Sherman Act 2	126	9%	$10,477,754,999	23%
Other Alleged Antitrust Violations	29	2%	$1,199,100,000	3%
Total	1,383		$44,789,841,477	100%





EQUAL JUSTICE UNDER LAW

Cases with Settlements Reaching Final Approval in 2024

Rank	Case Name	Co-Lead Counsel	Aggregate Settlement Amount in 2024
1	Iowa Public Employees' Retirement System et al v Bank of America Corp et al (Stock Loan)	Cohen Milstein Sellers & Toll PLLC Quinn Emanuel Urquhart & Sullivan LLP	$580,008,750
2	Suboxone (Buprenorphine Hydrochloride and Naloxone) Antitrust Litigation - Direct Purchasers	Faruqi & Faruqi LLP Garwin Gerstein & Fisher LLP Hagens Berman Sobol & Shapiro LLP	$385,000,000
3	Burnett et al v National Association of Realtors et al (Real Estate Broker Commissions) - Direct Purchasers	Boulware Law LLC Cohen Milstein Sellers & Toll PLLC Hagens Berman Sobol & Shapiro PLLC Ketchmark and McCreight PC Susman Godfrey LLP Williams Dirks Dameron LLC	$319,100,000
4	Henry et al v. Brown University et al (Elite School Financial Aid) - Direct Purchasers	Berger Montague PC Freedman Normand Friedland LLP Gilbert Litigators & Counselors PC	$284,000,000
5	HIV Antitrust Litigation - Direct Purchasers	NastLaw LLC Roberts Law Firm	$246,750,000
6	Packaged Seafood Products Antitrust Litigation - End Payors	Wolf Haldenstein Adler Freeman & Herz LLC	$136,000,000
7	European Government Bonds Antitrust Litigation - Direct Purchasers	Berman Tabacco DiCello Levitt LLC Lowey Dannenberg Scott + Scott Attorneys at Law	$120,000,000
8	Google Play Developer Antitrust Litigation - Developers	Hagens Berman Sobol & Shapiro LLP Hausfeld LLP Sperling Kennedy Nachwalter	$112,000,000
9	Lipitor Antitrust Litigation - Direct Purchasers	Berger Montague PC Garwin Gerstein & Fisher LLP Hagens Berman Sobol & Shapiro LLP	$93,000,000
10	Varsity Brands Cheer Antitrust Litigation - Indirect Purchasers	Gustafson Gluek PLLC Hartley LLP Joseph Saveri Law Firm Inc Paul LLP Turner Field PLLC	$82,500,000

Cases with Settlements Reaching Final Approval in 2024 (Continued)

Rank	Case Name	Co-Lead Counsel	Aggregate Settlement Amount in 2024
11	Broiler Chicken Antitrust Litigation - Direct Purchasers	Lockridge Grindal Nauen PLLP Pearson Warshaw LLP	$75,000,000
12	Packaged Seafood Products Antitrust Litigation - Direct Purchasers	Hausfeld LLP	$64,750,000
13	FWK Holdings LLC v Shire et al (Intuniv) - Direct Purchasers	Hagens Berman Sobol & Shapiro LLP	$58,000,000
14	Northshore University HealthSystem Antitrust Litigation - Direct Patients and Third Party Payors	Miller Law LLC	$55,000,000
15	KPH Healthcare Services Inc v Mylan (EpiPen) - Direct Purchasers	Nussbaum Law Group PC Roberts Law Firm	$50,000,000
16	Generic Pharmaceuticals Pricing Antitrust Litigation - Direct Purchasers	Berger Montague PC Hagens Berman Sobol & Shapiro LLP Kaplan Fox & Kilsheimer LLP NastLaw LLC Nussbaum Law Group PC Roberts Law Firm	$45,000,000
17	Effexor XR Antitrust Litigation - Direct Purchasers	Barrett Law Group PA Berger Montague PC Faruqi & Faruqi LLP Hagens Berman Sobol & Shapiro LLP NastLaw LLC Taus Cebulash & Landau LLP	$39,000,000
18	Laydon v Mizuho Bank, Ltd. Et al (Euroyen) - Direct Purchasers	Lowey Dannenberg PC	$35,000,000
19	Lipitor Antitrust Litigation - Indirect Purchasers	Cohen Milstein Sellers & Toll PLLC Grant & Eisenhofer PA Motley Rice LLC Wexler Boley & Elgersma LLP	$35,000,000
20	Effexor XR Antitrust Litigation - Indirect Purchasers	Carella Byrne Cecchi Brody & Agnello PC	$25,500,000

Cases with Settlements Reaching Final Approval in 2024 (Continued)

Rank	Case Name	Co-Lead Counsel	Aggregate Settlement Amount in 2024
21	Pork Antitrust Litigation - Direct Purchasers	Lockridge Grindal Nauen PLLP Pearson Warshaw LLP	$14,606,000
22	Robinson et al v Jackson Hewitt Inc et al (Jackson Hewitt No Poach) - Employees	Adhoot & Wolfson PC Freed Kanner London & Millen LLC Gustafson Gluek PLLC Hartley LLP Joseph Saveri Law Firm Inc Lite DePalma Greenberg & Afandor LLC Paul LLP	$10,800,000
23	Pork Antitrust Litigation - Commercial and Institutional Indirect Purchasers	Cuneo Gilbert LaDuca LLP Larson King LLP	$7,389,000
24	Packaged Seafood Products Antitrust Litigation - Commercial Food Preparers	Cuneo Gilbert LaDuca LLP	$3,875,000
25	LIBOR Based Financial Instruments Antitrust Litigation - Exchange Based Plaintiffs	Kirby McInerney LLP Lovell Stewart Halebian Jacobson LLP	$3,450,000
26	Xyrem (Sodium Oxybate) Antitrust Litigation - Direct Purchasers	Girard Sharp LLP Motley Rice LLC	$3,400,000
27	LIBOR Based Financial Instruments Antitrust Litigation - Lender Class	Pomerantz LLP	$1,900,000
28	Automotive Parts Antitrust Litigation - Dealership Plaintiffs	Barrett Law Group PA Cuneo Gilbert & LaDuca LLP Larson King LLP	$948,000

Top 50 Cases with Settlements Reaching Final Approval 2009-2024

Rank	Case Name	Co-Lead Counsel	Aggregate Settlement Amount
1	Payment Card Interchange Fee and Merchant Discount Antitrust Litigation	Berger Montague PC Robbins Geller Rudman & Dowd LLP Robins Kaplan LLP	$5,540,000,000
2	Blue Cross Blue Shield Antitrust Litigation - Subscriber Plaintiffs	Boies Schiller & Flexner LLP Hausfeld LLP	$2,670,000,000
3	Foreign Exchange Benchmark Rates Antitrust Litigation - Direct Purchasers	Hausfeld LLP Scott + Scott, Attorneys at Law LLP	$2,310,275,000
4	Credit Default Swaps Antitrust Litigation - Direct Purchasers	Pearson Warshaw LLP Quinn Emanuel Urquhart & Sullivan LLP	$1,864,650,000
5	Air Cargo Shipping Services Antitrust Litigation - Direct Purchasers	Hausfeld LLP Kaplan Fox & Kilsheimer LLP Levin Sedran & Berman LLP Robins Kaplan LLP	$1,235,907,442
6	Automotive Parts Antitrust Litigation - End Payor Plaintiffs	Cotchett Pitre & McCarthy LLP Robins Kaplan LLP Susman Godfrey LLP	$1,224,004,658
7	TFT-LCD (Flat Panel) Antitrust Litigation - Indirect Purchasers	Alioto Law Firm Zelle LLP	$1,082,055,647
8	Urethane Antitrust Litigation - Direct Purchasers	Cohen Milstein Sellers & Toll PLLC Fine Kaplan & Black RPC	$919,000,000
9	LIBOR Based Financial Instruments Antitrust Litigation - OTC Class	Hausfeld LLP Susman Godfrey LLP	$781,000,000
10	Namenda Direct Purchaser Antitrust Litigation - Direct Purchasers	Berger Montague PC Garwin Gerstein & Fisher LLP	$750,000,000

Top 50 Cases with Settlements Reaching Final Approval 2009-2024 (Continued)

Rank	Case Name	Co-Lead Counsel	Aggregate Settlement Amount
11	Sullivan v. Barclays PLC et al (Euribor) - Direct Purchasers	Lovell Stewart Halebian & Jacobson LLP Lowey Dannenberg PC	$651,500,000
12	Automotive Parts Antitrust Litigation - Direct Purchaser Plaintiffs	Freed Kanner London & Millen LLC Kohn Swift & Graf PC Preti Flaherty Beliveau & Pachios LLP Spector Roseman & Kodroff PC	$631,693,335
13	EpiPen (Epinephrine Injection, USP) Marketing, Sales Practices and Antitrust Litigation - Consumer Class	Burns Charest LLP Keller Rohrback LLP Pritzker Levine LLP Robbins Geller Rudman & Dowd LLP Sharp Law LLP	$609,000,000
14	Capacitors Antitrust Litigation - Direct Purchasers	Joseph Saveri Law Firm, Inc	$604,550,000
15	Klein et al v. Bain Capital Partners, LLC et al (Leveraged Buyouts) - Direct Purchasers	Robbins Geller Rudman & Dowd LLP Robins Kaplan LLP Scott + Scott, Attorneys at Law LLP	$590,500,000
16	Iowa Public Employees' Retirement System et al v Bank of America Corp et al (Stock Loan)	Cohen Milstein Sellers & Toll PLLC Quinn Emanuel Urquhart & Sullivan LLP	$580,008,750
17	Electronic Books Antitrust Litigation - Direct Purchasers	Cohen Milstein Sellers & Toll PLLC Hagens Berman Sobol Shapiro LLP	$566,119,000
18	Cathode Ray Tube (CRT) Antitrust Litigation - Indirect Purchasers	Trump Alioto Trump & Prescott	$545,750,000
19	King Drug Company of Florence, Inc vs Cephalon, Inc et al (Provigil) - Direct Purchasers	Garwin Gerstein & Fisher LLP	$512,000,000
20	ISDAfix Antitrust Litigation - Direct Purchasers	Robbins Geller Rudman & Dowd LLP Quinn Emanuel Urquhart & Sullivan LLP Scott + Scott, Attorneys at Law	$504,500,000

Top 50 Cases with Settlements Reaching Final Approval 2009-2024 (Continued)

Rank	Case Name	Co-Lead Counsel	Aggregate Settlement Amount
21	TFT-LCD (Flat Panel) Antitrust Litigation - Direct Purchasers	Lieff Cabraser Heimann & Bernstein LLP Pearson Warshaw LLP	$473,022,242
22	Glumetza Antitrust Litigation - Direct Purchasers	Hagens Berman Sobol Shapiro LLP Hilliard & Shadowen LLP Sperling Kenny Nachwalter	$453,850,000
23	High-Tech Employee Antitrust Litigation - Direct Plaintiffs	Berger Montague PC Grant & Eisenhofer PA Joseph Saveri Law Firm Inc Lieff Cabraser Heimann & Bernstein LLP	$435,000,000
24	Polyurethane Foam Antitrust Litigation - Direct Purchasers	Boies Schiller Flexner LLP Quinn Emanuel Urquhart & Sullivan LLP	$432,300,000
25	Automotive Parts Antitrust Litigation - Dealership Plaintiffs	Barrett Law Group PA Cuneo Gilbert & LaDuca LLP Larson King LLP	$403,327,787
26	GSE Bonds Antitrust Litigation - Indirect Purchasers	Lowey Dannenberg PC Scott + Scott, Attorneys at Law, LLP	$386,500,000
27	Currency Conversion Fee Antitrust Litigation	Berger Montague PC Hulett Harper Stewart LLP Robbins Geller Rudman & Dowd LLP	$385,500,000
28	Suboxone (Buprenorphine Hydrochloride and Naloxone) Antitrust Litigation - Direct Purchasers	Faruqi & Faruqi LLP Garwin Gerstein & Fisher LLP Hagens Berman Sobol & Shapiro LLP	$385,000,000
29	Kleen Products LLC et al v. International Paper et al - Direct Purchasers	Freed Kanner London & Millen LLC MoginRubin LLP	$376,400,000
30	Laydon v Mizuho Bank, Ltd. Et al (Euroyen) - Direct Purchasers	Lowey Dannenberg PC	$364,500,000

Top 50 Cases with Settlements Reaching Final Approval 2009-2024 (Continued)

Rank	Case Name	Co-Lead Counsel	Aggregate Settlement Amount
31	Precision Associates, Inc et al v. Panalpina World Transport (Freight Forwarders) - Direct Purchasers	Cotchett Pitre & McCarthy LLP Gustafson Gluek PLLC Lockridge Grindal Nauen PLLP Lovell Stewart Halebian & Jacobson LLP	$344,315,228
32	Ranbaxy Generic Drug Application Antitrust Litigation - Direct Purchasers	Hagens Berman Sobol Shapiro LLP Hilliard & Shadowen LLP	$340,000,000
33	Burnett et al v National Association of Realtors et al (Real Estate Broker Commissions) - Direct Purchasers	Boulware Law LLC Cohen Milstein Sellers & Toll PLLC Hagens Berman Sobol & Shapiro PLLC Ketchmark and McCreight PC Susman Godfrey LLP Williams Dirks Dameron LLC	$319,100,000
34	Southeastern Milk Antitrust Litigation - Direct Purchasers	Baker Hostetler Brewer & Terry PC	$303,600,000
35	Dynamic Random Access Memory (DRAM) Antitrust Litigation - Indirect Purchasers	BoiesBattin LLP Cooper & Kirkham PC Gustafson Gluek PLLC MoginRubin LLP	$287,650,000
36	Broiler Chicken Antitrust Litigation - Direct Purchasers	Lockridge Grindal Nauen PLLP Pearson Warshaw LLP	$284,651,750
37	Henry et al v. Brown University et al (Elite School Financial Aid) - Direct Purchasers	Berger Montague PC Freedman Normand Friedland LLP Gilbert Litigators & Counselors PC	$284,000,000
38	HIV Antitrust Litigation - Direct Purchasers	NastLaw LLC Roberts Law Firm	$257,550,000
39	Tricor Direct Purchaser Antitrust Litigation	Berger Montague PC Garwin Gerstein & Fisher LLP Kaplan Fox & Kilsheimer LLP Odom & Des Roches LLC Rosenthal Monhait & Goddess PA The Smith Foote Law Firm	$250,000,000
40	Pharmaceutical Industry Average Wholesale Price Litigation - Indirect Purchasers	Hagens Berman Sobol Shapiro LLP Hoffman & Edelson LLC Spector Roseman & Kodroff PC Wexler Boley & Elgersma LLP	$247,000,000

Top 50 Cases with Settlements Reaching Final Approval 2009-2024 (Continued)

Rank	Case Name	Co-Lead Counsel	Aggregate Settlement Amount
41	Dial Corporation, et al v. News Corporation et al - Direct Purchasers	Kellogg Hansen Todd Figel & Frederick PLLC Susman Godfrey LLP	$244,000,000
42	Municipal Derivatives Antitrust Litigation - Direct Purchasers	Boies Schiller Flexner LLP Hausfeld LLP Susman Godfrey LLP	$223,514,307
43	Fresh Dairy Products Antitrust Litigation - Direct Purchasers	Barrett Law Group PA NastLaw LLC Roberts Law Firm	$220,000,000
44	Cathode Ray Tube - Direct Purchasers	Saveri & Saveri Inc	$212,200,000
45	National Collegiate Athletic Association Athletic Grant-in-Aid Cap Antitrust Litigation	Hagens Berman Sobol Shapiro LLP Pearson Warshaw LLP	$208,664,445
46	Optical Disk Drive Products Antitrust Litigation - Indirect Purchasers	Hagens Berman Sobol Shapiro LLP	$205,000,000
47	Steel Antitrust Litigation - Direct Purchasers	Fine Kaplan & Black RPC Kellogg Hansen Todd Figel & Frederick PLLC	$193,899,999
48	Domestic Drywall Antitrust Litigation - Direct Purchasers	Berger Montague PC Cohen Milstein Sellers & Toll PLLC Spector Roseman & Kodroff PC	$192,500,000
49	LIBOR Based Financial Instruments Antitrust Litigation - Exchange Based Plaintiffs	Kirby McInerney LLP Lovell Stewart Halebian Jacobson LLP	$190,450,000
50	Neurontin Antitrust Litigation - Direct Purchasers	Garwin Gerstein & Fisher LLP Kaplan Fox Kilsheimer LLP	$190,000,000

Class Recovery by Settlement Size

This report analyzes class recoveries by dividing settlements by a category, with the smallest settlements included in a single category of recoveries under $10 million and the largest settlements in a category of $1 billion or more.

Generally speaking, the larger the class settlement recovery by category, the higher the median percentage the class retained, the lower the median percentage awarded in attorneys' fees, and the lower the median percentage paid in expenses. As shown in Figure 14, for recoveries under $10 million, the median percentage the class received was 63% and the median fees and costs awarded were 30% and 7%, respectively. In contrast, for settlement recoveries greater than or equal to $1 billion the median class recovery was 86%, the median fee award 13%, and the median expenses 1%.

While the median class recovery on the whole increased incrementally as a percentage of the class settlement, and the median expenses incrementally decreased, the awards of attorneys' fees varied less. The median award of attorneys' fees remained largely around 30-33% for recoveries up to $249 million. Between $250 - $999 million, attorneys' fees were 25-27%. The median fee award decreased significantly—again, to 13%—only for recoveries greater than or equal to $1 billion.

Looking at the data as a whole, Figure 15 illustrates the median class recovery was 67% of the settlement amount, the median award of attorneys' fees was 30%, and the median expenses were 3%. When we move from the median to totals, we see that plaintiff classes received 74% of the total settlement recoveries between 2009 and 2024, attorneys' fees awards were 23%, and expenses were 3%.

Many of these numbers would be expected. For example, as the settlement recoveries increase in size, the percentage allocated in expenses decreases. That likely reflects economies of scale, ones that have generally been recognized by commentators.

The median numbers in this Report, however, reveal that a typical award in antitrust class actions is actually 25 to 32%. They also indicate that 30% is typical unless the recovery is greater than $250 million. Further, they suggest that so-called "mega-funds"—in which attorneys receive a significantly smaller percentage fee award when there is a really large class recovery—arise only when there is a settlement in excess of $1 billion. To confirm this last point, additional analyses of awards just below and just above $1 billion would be helpful.

This analysis largely involves medians. It does so because medians are informative about typical cases. It protects against weighing larger settlements more heavily than smaller settlements in assessing patterns. Note, for example, that we get different results when we analyze the median fees and expenses for all of the settlements than when we consider the total percentages allocated to fees and expenses. Yet these results are perfectly consistent. As for the typical antitrust class action from 2009 through 2024, the court awarded 30% of the class recovery in fees and 3% in expenses, and 67% of the recovery was available to class members. Medians help to analyze a typical case, weighing large and small cases equally.

In contrast, an analysis of overall percentages as illustrated in Figure 16, weighs cases with larger recoveries more heavily than cases with smaller recoveries. But that approach can be valuable too. The overall amounts and percentages can be particularly instructive if we want to assess the benefits and efficiency of private antitrust enforcement. In that case, it is useful to know that the total recovery over 16 years was $44.8 billion, that lawyers received 23% of this amount—about $10.5 billion—that expenses totaled 3%—about $1.3 billion—that the plaintiff classes had available 74% of the total settlements—about $33 billion.

Class Recovery by Settlement Size (continued)

While the attorneys' fees total percentage has remained consistent throughout the period of our analyses (23%), expenses have increased over time from 2% of the total settlement to 3% of the total settlement. This could potentially indicate that antirust class actions are becoming more expensive to litigate for reasons such as discovery, expert witness fees, length and complexity of litigation, trial preparation, and appeals.

Figure 14: Class Recovery by Settlement Size - Median
2009 - 2024

Settlement Amount	Class Recovery	Attys Fees	Expenses	Total
$1B+	86%	13%	1%	100%
$500-$999M	71%	27%	2%	100%
$250-$499M	74%	25%	1%	100%
$100-$249M	68%	30%	2%	100%
$50-$99M	64%	33%	3%	100%
$10-$49M	63%	33%	4%	100%
<$10M	63%	30%	7%	100%
All Settlements	67%	30%	3%	100%

Class Recovery by Settlement Size (continued)

Figure 15: Class Recovery by Settlement Size - Median
2009 - 2024

Figure 16: Class Recovery by Settlement Size - Total Percentages
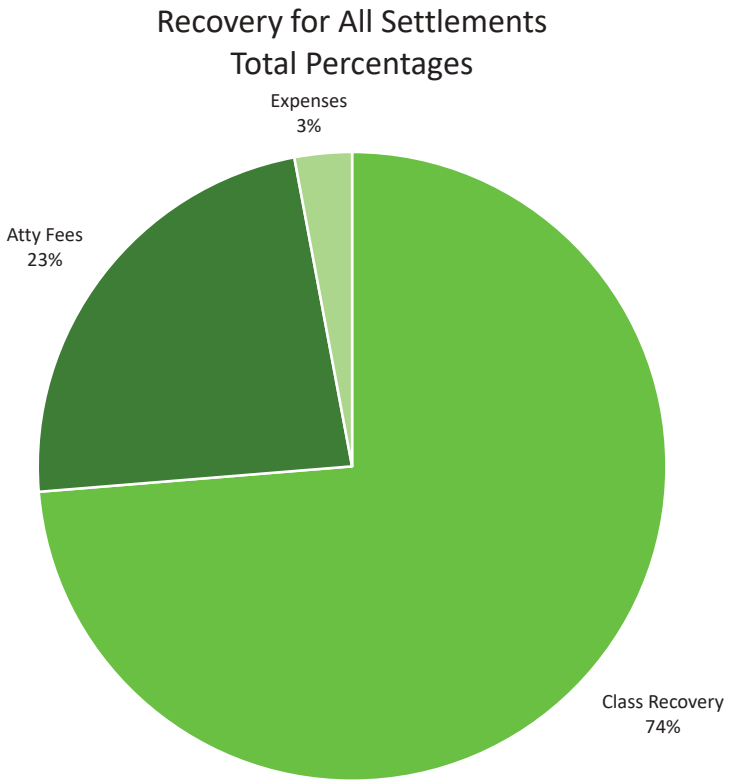
2009 - 2024



Top 25 Firms Acting as Defense Counsel

Rank	Firm	# Cases Defended 2009-2024
1	Latham & Watkins LLP	584
2	Gibson, Dunn & Crutcher LLP	545
3	Skadden, Arps, Slate, Meagher & Flom LLP	415
4	Kirkland & Ellis LLP	401
5	Hogan Lovells	330
6	Jones Day	296
7	O'Melveny & Myers LLP	294
8	Freshfields Bruckhaus Deringer LLP	267
9	Morgan Lewis & Bockius LLP	255
10	Crowell & Moring LLP	253
11	Arnold & Porter Kaye Scholer LLP	235
12	Vinson & Elkins LLP	230
13	Cleary Gottlieb Steen & Hamilton LLP	224
14	Mayer Brown LLP	218
15	Simpson Thacher & Bartlett LLP	216
16	Covington & Burling LLP	214
17	Paul, Weiss, Rifkind, Wharton & Garrison LLP	211
18	Wilson Sonsini Goodrich & Rosati	204
19	Winston & Strawn LLP	201
20	WilmerHale	200
21	Sidley Austin LLP	195
22	White & Case LLP	194
23	Foley & Lardner LLP	176
24	Faegre Drinker Biddle & Reath LLP	175	(tie)
24	Sullivan & Cromwell LLP	175	(tie)

Note: Cases with more than one law firm listed on the docket are attributed to each firm.

Top 25 Lead Counsel in Complaints Filed

Rank	Firm	# of Complaints Filed 2009-2024
1	Hagens Berman Sobol Shapiro LLP	373
2	Hausfeld LLP	356
3	Berger Montague PC	312
4	Spector Roseman & Kodroff PC	309
5	Gustafson Gluek PLLC	302
6	Lockridge Grindal Nauen PLLP	276
7	Cohen Milstein Sellers & Toll PLLC	269
8	Freed Kanner London & Millen LLC	258
9	Cuneo Gilbert & LaDuca LLP	246
10	Scott + Scott, Attorneys at Law, LLP	233
11	Susman Godfrey LLP	226
12	Cotchett, Pitre & McCarthy LLP	223
13	The Miller Law Firm (millerlawpc.com)	206	(tie)
13	Robins Kaplan LLP	206	(tie)
15	Nussbaum Law Group PC	199
16	Glancy Prongay & Murray LLP	191
17	NastLaw LLC	190
18	Labaton Sucharow LLP	184	(tie)
18	Mantese Honigman PC	184	(tie)
20	Barrett Law Office (barrettlawoffice.com)	182
21	Grant & Eisenhofer PA	181
22	Kaplan Fox & Kilsheimer LLP	175
23	Lowey Dannenberg PC	168
24	Joseph Saveri Law Firm Inc	162
25	Lieff Cabraser Heimann & Bernstein LLP	159

Note: Filings with more than one law firm as listed on complaint are attributed to each firm.

Top 25 Lead Counsel in Number of Settlements

Rank	Firm	# of Settlements 2009-2024
1	Cotchett Pitre & McCarthy LLP	227
2	Susman Godfrey LLP	210
3	Robins Kaplan LLP	174
4	Cuneo Gilbert & LaDuca LLP	158
5	Larson King LLP	153
6	Barrett Law Group PA	151
7	Hausfeld LLP	132
8	Hagens Berman Sobol Shapiro LLP	111
9	Freed Kanner London & Millen LLC	108
10	Berger Montague PC	103
11	Spector Roseman & Kodroff PC	103
12	Preti Flaherty Beliveau & Pachios LLP	96
13	Kohn Swift & Graf PC	94
14	Cohen Milstein Sellers & Toll PLLC	80
15	Lovell Stewart Halebian Jacobson LLP	69
16	Gustafson Gluek PLLC	65
17	Labaton Sucharow LLP	61
18	Pearson Warshaw LLP	57
19	Quinn Emanuel Urquhart & Sullivan LLP	57
20	Lockridge Grindal Nauen PLLP	56
21	Lowey Dannenberg PC	56
22	Kaplan Fox & Kilsheimer LLP	55
23	Scott + Scott, Attorneys at Law, LLP	53
24	Garwin Gerstein & Fisher LLP	43
25	Robbins Geller Rudman & Dowd LLP	42

Note: Settlements with more than one law firm as lead counsel are attributed to each firm.

Top 25 Lead Counsel in Class Recovery

Rank	Firm	Aggregate Settlement Class Recovery 2009-2024	# of Settlements 2009-2024	Average Settlement Class Recovery 2009-2024
1	Berger Montague PC	$9,491,778,068	103	$92,153,185.13
2	Hausfeld LLP	$8,656,793,711	132	$65,581,770.54
3	Robins Kaplan LLP	$8,204,734,600	174	$47,153,647.13
4	Robbins Geller Rudman & Dowd LLP	$7,903,050,000	42	$188,167,857.14
5	Hagens Berman Sobol Shapiro LLP	$5,110,201,895	111	$46,037,854.91
6	Cohen Milstein Sellers & Toll PLLC	$4,119,167,369	80	$51,489,592.11
7	Scott + Scott, Attorneys at Law, LLP	$4,096,975,000	53	$77,301,415.09
8	Quinn Emanuel Urquhart & Sullivan LLP	$3,902,098,750	57	$68,457,872.81
9	Boies Schiller Flexner LLP	$3,523,264,307	37	$95,223,359.66
10	Susman Godfrey LLP	$3,394,971,465	210	$16,166,530.79
11	Pearson Warshaw LLP	$3,212,408,737	57	$56,358,048.02
12	Garwin Gerstein & Fisher LLP	$3,161,549,000	43	$73,524,395.35
13	Lowey Dannenberg PC	$2,252,983,000	56	$40,231,839.29
14	Cotchett Pitre & McCarthy LLP	$2,239,699,363	227	$9,866,517.02
15	Kaplan Fox & Kilsheimer LLP	$2,025,973,692	55	$36,835,885.31
16	Lovell Stewart Halebian Jacobson LLP	$1,824,420,228	69	$26,440,872.87
17	Lieff Cabraser Heimann & Bernstein LLP	$1,650,122,242	41	$40,246,883.95
18	Freed Kanner London & Millen LLC	$1,359,067,085	108	$12,583,954.49
19	Spector Roseman & Kodroff PC	$1,356,020,935	103	$13,165,251.80
20	Joseph Saveri Law Firm, Inc	$1,351,125,000	30	$45,037,500.00
21	Levin Sedran & Berman LLP	$1,331,023,917	34	$39,147,762.26
22	Fine Kaplan and Black RPC	$1,190,818,749	21	$56,705,654.71
23	Zelle LLP	$1,142,427,647	29	$39,394,056.79
24	Gustafson Gluek PLLC	$1,141,911,703	65	$17,567,872.35
25	Alioto Law Firm	$1,083,199,397	17	$63,717,611.59

Note: Settlements with more than one law firm as lead counsel are attributed to each firm.

Top Claims Administrators

Figure 17: Top Claims Administrators by Aggregate Settlement Amount
2009 - 2024

Rank	Claims Administrator	Aggregate Settlement Amount 2009-2024	# of Settlements 2009-2024	Average Settlement Amount 2009-2024
1	Epiq	$18,916,377,839.62	472	$40,077,071.69
2	Rust Consulting	$7,536,510,284.90	182	$41,409,397.17
3	A.B. Data	$5,496,380,399.99	198	$27,759,496.97
4	JND Legal Administration	$3,832,526,211.86	61	$62,828,298.56
5	Verita Global	$3,323,203,889.39	265	$12,540,392.04
6	Angeion Group	$1,689,584,050.00	45	$37,546,312.22
7	RG/2 Claims Administration	$1,283,669,068.17	57	$22,520,509.97
8	Berdon Claims Administration	$1,004,200,000.00	8	$125,525,000.00
9	Kroll Settlement Administration	$848,305,000.00	37	$22,927,162.16
10	The Notice Company	$547,562,500	10	$54,756,249.95

Figure 18: Top Claims Administrators by Number of Settlements
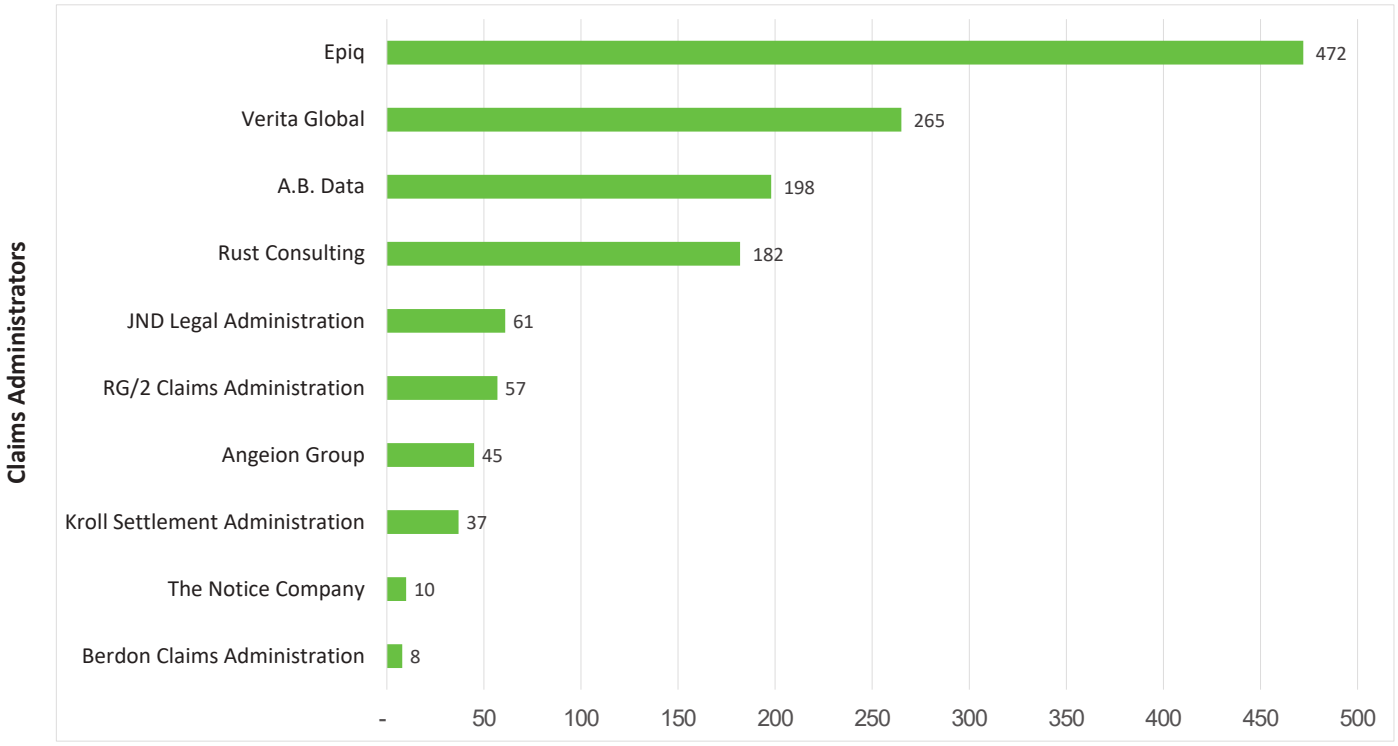
2009 - 2024



Notes:
1. Epiq includes the Garden City Group (GCG)
2. Rust Consulting includes Complete Claims Solutions
3. Verita includes KCC, Administar, and Rosenthal & Company
4. Kroll Settlement Administration includes Heffler Claims Group
5. JND Legal Administration includes Class Action Administration

Methodology and Sources

Cases Analyzed

The cases analyzed in the preceding report represent three individual data sets: complaints filed from 2009-2024, cases won by defendants from 2009-2024, and cases with settlements reaching final approval or verdicts awarded within the time period of 2009-2024. Settlement data analyzed within the 2009-2024 period are not first evaluated by complaint filing date; which is to say, any settlement granted final approval during the sixteen year analysis period is represented in the data, regardless of when the complaint was filed. Only settlements granted final approval within the sixteen year analysis period are represented in the data. Regarding cases with multiple settlements, settlements reaching final approval outside of the sixteen year period of the study are excluded. Settlement Amounts refer to the full dollar value awarded by the court, inclusive of awards to lead plaintiffs, attorneys' fees, expenses, etc.

Sources

Data for this report are collected primarily through Lex Machina's Legal Analytics Platform. Lex Machina uses artificial intelligence to categorize federal court case data from PACER (Public Access to Court Electronic Records). The case data obtained from Lex Machina was verified by the supporting court docket and supplemented with additional data points also available through the Lex Machina platform. All analysis, commentary, and conclusions were reviewed by each member of the authoring team.

Historical data in this report may vary from last year's edition due to updates in case status, additional sources of information, or new methodology for analysis. The authors will continually update the data set for accuracy to provide the most recent information available.

The data gathered are not necessarily exhaustive of every settlement during the analyzed period. While this is intended to be an accurate reflection of class action matters in federal courts, there is a possibility that cases have been excluded due to source limitations or unintentional error.

Disclaimer

The information in this document is provided solely for informational purposes and with the understanding that neither the Center for Litigation and Courts at UC Law SF of the Law nor The Huntington National Bank, their respective affiliates, or any other party is rendering financial, legal, technical, or other professional advice or services. This information should be used only in consultation with a qualified and licensed professional who can take into account all relevant factors and desired outcomes in the context of the facts of your particular circumstances. For any inquiries into the underlying data or specific cases, please allow for 5 business days for a response.

This information is not intended as a solicitation, is not intended to convey or constitute legal advice, and is not a substitute for obtaining legal advice from a qualified attorney. The authors make no express or implied warranties or representations with respect to the information.

About Us

Center for Litigation and Courts at UC Law SF

The nonpartisan Center for Litigation and Courts was established in 2021 to expand the knowledge of civil litigation, alternative dispute resolution, and the courts; to disseminate that knowledge to the bench, bar, legal academy, and public; and to supply resources and guidance to members of the UC Law SF community interested in civil litigation.

UC Law SF was established in 1878 as the original law department of the University of California in the heart of San Francisco. The University of California Law San Francisco is an American Bar Association-approved law school and is accredited by the Accrediting Commission for Senior Colleges and Universities of the Western Association of Schools and Colleges. UC Law SF is also a member of The Association of American Law Schools.

The Huntington National Bank

Huntington's National Settlement Team provides one of the leading settlement account programs in the country. Our National Settlement Team has handled more than 6,500 settlements for law firms, claims administrators and regulatory agencies. These cases represent over $80 Billion with more than 220 million checks. Huntington Bancshares Incorporated is a regional bank holding company headquartered in Columbus, Ohio, with $210 billion in assets and a network of approximately 968 branches across 13 states. Select financial services and other activities are also conducted in various other states. The Huntington National Bank is Member FDIC. ®, Huntington® and Huntington® are federally registered service marks of Huntington Bancshares Incorporated.

Credit: All photos contained herein courtesy of Melissa Villain, Managing Director, The Huntington National Bank

Center for Litigation and Courts
UC Law SF
200 McAllister Street
San Francisco, CA 94102
www.uclawsf.edu

The Huntington National Bank
41 South High Street
Columbus, OH 43287
www.huntington.com

Copyright © 2025
UC Law SF and Huntington Bancshares Incorporated

EXHIBIT 17

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
EASTERN DISTRICT OF NEW YORK

B & R SUPERMARKET, INC., d/b/a MILAM'S MARKET, a Florida corporation, et al., Individually and on Behalf of All Others Similarly Situated, Plaintiffs, v. VISA, INC., et al., Defendants.	:	Case No. 1:17-cv-02738-BMC-JAM CLASS ACTION

[PROPOSED] ORDER AWARDING ATTORNEYS' FEES AND EXPENSES AND APPROVING SERVICE AWARDS

This Court, having considered the Motion for Attorneys' Fees, Expenses, and Service Awards (the "Motion") submitted by plaintiffs B & R Supermarket, Inc. (d/b/a Milam's Market) ("B & R"), Grove Liquors LLC ("Grove"), Strouk Group LLC (d/b/a Monsieur Marcel) ("Strouk"), and Palero Food Corp. and Cagueyes Food Corp. (d/b/a Fine Fare Supermarket) ("Fine Fare, and collectively, "Plaintiffs" or "Class Representatives") in the above-captioned matter (the "Action"), and all of the submissions and arguments submitted with respect to the Motion, and after having held a duly noticed fairness hearing on April 27, 2026, hereby finds as follows:

1. The Motion seeks (1) an award of attorneys' fees of $65,594,270, or 28.31% of the $231,700,000 common fund ("Common Fund") obtained, and (2) reimbursement of $4,548,300.91 in expenses, along with any interest earned on both the attorneys' fees and the expenses.

2. The amount of attorneys' fees requested is fair and reasonable under the percentage-of-the-fund method, which is confirmed by a lodestar "cross-check." Goldberger v. Integrated Res., Inc., 209 F.3d 43, 50 (2d Cir. 2000). Class Counsel provided for the Court detailed lodestar information and a detailed description of the work performed by Plaintiffs' counsel. Class Counsel made the Motion, and the supporting documents are available for review by the Class at the website www.fraudliabilityshiftlitigation.com.

3. The attorneys' fees requested by Class Counsel are appropriate and consistent with the awards in similar cases, and represent a reasonable percentage of the Common Fund, in view of the applicable legal principles and the particular facts and circumstances of the action.

4. The attorneys' fees requested by Class Counsel were entirely contingent upon a successful outcome for the Class. The risk undertaken by Class Counsel was significant, especially considering that this Action did not benefit from a prior or concurrent government investigation or litigation. Among other things, Class Counsel faced risks in the motions to dismiss, the class certification oppositions, the Daubert motions, the motions to decertify the class, and the summary judgment motions. Class Counsel also faced risks in litigating complex antitrust theories and the Supreme Court's decision in Ohio v. American Express Co., 585 U.S. 529 (2018), which was issued during the litigation of this Action, and in addressing Defendants' indirect purchaser arguments based on Illinois Brick Co. v. Illinois, 431 U.S. 720 (1977). Class Counsel also faced risk litigating against the vigorous efforts of experienced defense counsel representing defendants.

5. An award of 28.31% of the $231,700,000 Common Fund is reasonable and warranted for the reasons set forth in the memorandum in support of Plaintiffs' Motion (the "Memorandum"), including, but not limited to, the following: the significant time and labor expended by Plaintiffs' counsel over nearly a decade of litigation; the broad magnitude and scope of this Action—as demonstrated by the breadth of fact and expert discovery and the motion practice engaged in by the parties—and high complexity of this antitrust Action; the risks faced by Class Counsel throughout the litigation; the quality of representation, as demonstrated by the results achieved, among other things; and public policy considerations of incentivizing private antitrust enforcement actions like this one, particularly where there is no separate government investigation or action.

6. In addition to risking the substantial time and effort that Class Counsel invested into this case on a contingent basis, Plaintiffs' counsel also incurred $4,548,300.91 in unreimbursed expenses with no guarantee of repayment. The primary expense in this case was for experts. Together with Class Counsel's claimed expenses for discovery platform costs and deposition costs, these expenses account for 86% of Class Counsel's expense reimbursement request. As a whole, the expenses were necessarily and reasonably incurred in service of the Class, with no reimbursement or promise of repayment. Accordingly, Class Counsel's request for reimbursement of $4,548,300.91 in expenses is reasonable.

7. Class Counsel also seek service awards for each of the three Class Representatives in this Action. Each of the three Class Representatives has provided valuable service to the Class in maintaining this Action for nearly a decade, including through providing discovery, working with and monitoring counsel throughout the litigation, and sitting for depositions. The requested service awards are in line with service awards granted in other comparable cases, and collectively reflect just 0.06% of the Common Fund. Accordingly, the requested service awards are reasonable and appropriate.

8. Therefore, upon consideration of the Motion, the accompanying Memorandum, and all documents submitted in support thereof, and based upon all matters of record in this Action, the Court hereby finds that: (1) the requested attorneys' fees are warranted and just; and (2) the requested expense were necessary, reasonable, and proper; and (3) the requested service awards are appropriate and reasonable.

Having considered the Motion, the Memorandum, including all documents submitted in support thereof, and all matters of record in this Action,

IT IS HEREBY ORDERED, ADJUDGED, AND DECREED:

1. Notice of the Motion was provided to potential Class members in a reasonable manner, and such notice complies with Rule 23(h)(1) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure and due process requirements;

2. The Court awards Class Counsel attorneys' fees of $65,594,270 (28.31% of the $231,700,000 Common Fund), and litigation expenses of $4,548,300.91, together with interest on the fees and expenses for the same time period and at the same rate as earned by the Common Fund until paid.

3. Class Counsel shall have the sole authority to allocate and distribute any attorneys' fees and expenses awarded pursuant to this Order in a manner which, in the opinion of Class Counsel, fairly compensates Plaintiffs' counsel for their services.

4. Service awards in the amount of $50,000 to each of the named Plaintiffs are approved, to be paid from the Common Fund.

5. Without affecting the finality of this Order in any respect, this Court reserves jurisdiction over any matters related to or ancillary to this Order.

6. Finding that there is no just reason for delay, this Order shall constitute a final judgment pursuant to Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 54(b). The Clerk of the Court is directed to enter this Order on the docket.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

DATED:

THE HONORABLE BRIAN M. COGAN
UNITED STATES DISTRICT JUDGE