UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
EASTERN DISTRICT OF NEW YORK

B & R SUPERMARKET, INC., d/b/a MILAM'S MARKET, a Florida corporation, et al., Individually and on Behalf of All Others Similarly Situated, Plaintiffs, v. VISA, INC., et al., Defendants.	:	Case No. 1:17-cv-02738-BMC-JAM CLASS ACTION

JOINT DECLARATION OF CLASS COUNSEL GEORGE C. AGUILAR AND MICHAEL J. NICOUD IN SUPPORT OF PLAINTIFFS' MOTION FOR ATTORNEYS' FEES, EXPENSES, AND SERVICE AWARDS

I, GEORGE C. AGUILAR, declare as follows:

1. I am a partner with the law firm Robbins LLP, Class Counsel and one of the counsel of record for plaintiffs B & R Supermarket, Inc. (d/b/a Milam's Market), Grove Liquors LLC, Strouk Group LLC (d/b/a Monsieur Marcel), and Palero Food Corp. and Cagueyes Food Corp. (d/b/a Fine Fare Supermarket) (collectively, "Plaintiffs" or "Class Representatives") in the above-captioned action ("Action"). I am a member in good standing of the Bar of the State of California, and I have been admitted to practice pro hac vice before this Court. I have personal knowledge of the matters set forth herein, based on my participation in the prosecution and settlement of this Action. If called upon, I could and would competently testify that the following facts are true and correct based on my personal involvement in the litigation.

I, MICHAEL J. NICOUD, declare as follows:

2. I am a partner with the law firm Robbins LLP, Class Counsel and one of the counsel of record for Plaintiffs in the above-captioned Action. I am a member in good standing of the Bar of the State of California, and I have been admitted to practice pro hac vice before this Court. I have personal knowledge of the matters set forth herein, based on my participation in the prosecution and settlement of this Action. If called upon, I could and would competently testify that the following facts are true and correct based on my personal involvement in the litigation.

I. INTRODUCTION

3. Class Counsel submit this Joint Declaration in support of Plaintiffs' Motion for Attorneys' Fees, Expenses, and Service Awards ("Motion"). This Joint Declaration is intended to provide the Court with information regarding Class Counsel's litigation efforts in reaching the outstanding result Class Counsel have presented to the Court for final approval: a common fund of $231,700,000 (the "Common Fund"). This Joint Declaration explains, from Class Counsel's perspective, the work that went into achieving this result, and the risks that Class Counsel faced throughout the litigation. This Joint Declaration illustrates the work Class Counsel did, building on the initial foundation established by Robbins Geller Rudman & Dowd LLP ("RGRD"), the firm that litigated as lead counsel prior to Class Counsel. The declaration of Alexandra S. Bernay in support of Plaintiffs' Motion, attached hereto as Exhibit 1, describes the work that RGRD did in this Action from the outset, including in investigating and initiating the claims and the early phases of litigation. Together, these declarations are intended to provide facts to support Class Counsel's determination that the requested attorneys' fees ("Fee Request"), request for reimbursement of expenses ("Expense Request"), and the service award request ("Service Awards"), are reasonable, fair, and should be granted. This Motion is the only such motion that will be filed by Plaintiffs' counsel, and with the Court's permission Class Counsel will, in its sole discretion, distribute any attorneys' fees or expenses awarded by the Court to Plaintiffs' counsel who have worked on this Action.

II. HISTORY AND LITIGATION OF THE ACTION

A. Class Counsel Began Working on the Action in 2016 and Transitioned to Lead the Litigation of the Action in Mid-2017

4. Class Counsel first began working on the Action in May 2016. At this time, Class Counsel were working on the Action in a supporting role, assisting and working with RGRD. At the time, RGRD was leading the litigation of the Action as sole lead counsel.

5. Class Counsel's initial role in the Action was primarily to provide substantial assistance with the discovery efforts in the case, which, even in May 2016, were understood to be substantial. Both the size of the productions, and the scope of the case meant that discovery was expected to be a time consuming, complicated, and laborious task that would require many attorney and professional hours to complete effectively. This expectation turned out to be correct, if not understated, as further detailed throughout this declaration.

6. In addition to providing substantial assistance with discovery, Class Counsel's initial efforts in this Action also included an assessment of the potential avenues for settlement, including an assessment of the results of the first mediation (with defendants Visa and Mastercard only)[1] that occurred prior to Class Counsel's involvement. Class Counsel learned of the outcome and progress of this mediation through RGRD, which helped inform our views on the case and how to effectively litigate it going forward.

7. Even during this initial involvement phase, prior to becoming lead counsel (and then later formally appointed Class Counsel), Class Counsel dedicated significant attorney and professional resources to this Action. These efforts centered primarily on discovery, and involved the analysis, review, and coding of document productions from Defendants and third parties and assisting RGRD with preparing for depositions.

8. This initial involvement phase ended in mid-July 2017, when RGRD withdrew from representing Plaintiffs, and Class Counsel took over as the lead firm litigating the Action. We continued to work with co-counsel Devine Goodman & Rasco, LLP ("DG&R"). We also brought in local counsel, the Law Offices of Thomas G. Amon. From mid-July 2017 on, Class Counsel led all aspects of this litigation as sole lead counsel.

9. Class Counsel immediately shifted resources and priorities in recognition of the significant litigation burdens of this Action. Class Counsel's first task was appropriately staffing the Action as lead counsel. This meant adding, and maintaining, significant attorney and professional resources to this Action. Class Counsel understood that this case could last for many years and would require significant investment of time and expenses to litigate effectively on behalf of the Class.

[1] "Defendants" or "Networks" refers collectively to defendants Discover Financial Services ("Discover"), American Express Company ("Amex"), Visa, Inc. and Visa U.S.A., Inc. ("Visa"), and Mastercard International Incorporated ("Mastercard"). Unless otherwise noted, capitalized terms shall have the same meaning as defined in the accompany memorandum in support of Plaintiffs' Motion.

10. Class Counsel also understood from the outset that litigating this Action would be risky. When Class Counsel took over as lead counsel, no class was yet certified, fact discovery was far from complete, and although some expert discovery had occurred, it was limited to class certification issues. Plaintiffs did not know who Defendants' merits experts would be, or what arguments and defenses they would present. As Class Counsel continued to litigate this Action, the litigation risks only intensified. As described in this declaration, this case was replete with motion practice that had the possibility of ending the Action or seriously undermining Plaintiffs' damages arguments.

11. Class Counsel also understood we were taking on the role of lead counsel with no guarantee of payment. Class Counsel have not received any payment for any work done in this Action and have received no promise of payment either. The only certainty for Class Counsel when we took over as lead counsel was that this litigation would be complex, costly, and hard-fought.

12. At the time Class Counsel took over as lead counsel, fact discovery was underway, and there was a motion for class certification fully briefed and pending before the Court. Building on the foundation of the Action built by RGRD during its time as lead counsel, Class Counsel next took this case through the remainder of fact discovery, through expert discovery, and through significant motion practice. This motion practice culminated with the defeat of Defendants' motions for summary judgment and Daubert motions. Class Counsel also engaged in appellate work, including both in the Second Circuit and in preventing Defendants' attempts at obtaining interlocutory review of key decisions. Finally, through years of extensive litigation, Class Counsel, only after using two mediators and going through three unsuccessful mediations, were able to start settling this Action. Though the first three mediations were unsuccessful, the Court's decisions on the motions for class certification, summary judgment, Daubert motions, and other key motions (as described further herein), paved the way for a settlement with Discover, then a second with Amex, and the third and final settlement with Visa and Mastercard (together, the "Settlement"). This Joint Declaration explains Class Counsel's efforts throughout each of these stages.

B. Class Counsel Engaged in Significant Fact Discovery Efforts

13. When Class Counsel took over the lead role, fact discovery was underway but far from complete, particularly with respect to depositions. Class Counsel spent considerable time and effort on completing fact discovery. Fact discovery in this Action was complex and broad, covering numerous areas, including, but not limited to: the structure of the credit and debit payment market in the U.S.; EMV technology, fraud rates, and alternative technologies for combatting fraud; migrations to EMV in other markets, including the Fraud Liability Shift ("FLS") policies of the Networks for these other transitions; merchant steering behavior; related government actions, investigations, and pressure regarding payment technologies and policies; the interactions between the Networks and other links in the payment ecosystem, including especially issuing and acquiring banks; industry groups relating to the payments market and/or fraud, including especially EMVCo, the Electronic Migration Forum, and the Payment Security Taskforce; communications between Defendants regarding EMV and the FLS; technical specifications and requirements for payment terminals in relation to the FLS; technical and practical problems for merchants in implementing FLS-compliant terminals, including bottlenecks, certification problems, and delays; the types of chargebacks issued to merchants, and the amounts of FLS chargebacks assessed to merchants following the FLS; the Networks' EMV migration roadmaps, and their FLS policies; considerations by the Networks for potential delays of the FLS; and considerations by the Networks of potential positive incentives for merchants to incentivize migration to EMV.

14. Class Counsel's discovery efforts included organizing and strategizing for further document review efforts, assessing Defendants' productions and engaging in meet and confers, and extensive deposition practice. These tasks were particularly onerous given the gargantuan size of the evidentiary record in this Action and the scope of the issues involved. Visa's productions alone amount to more than 700,000 documents. Discovery also included dozens of third parties, including primarily acquirers—one of the links in the credit card payment processing chain. These third parties produced hundreds of thousands of documents. In total, Plaintiffs received nearly two million documents in discovery (1.97 million) that spanned tens of millions of pages. This required the use of dedicated document hosting and review platforms, including Relativity and DISCO.

1. Organization and Strategy for Document Review Efforts

15. Given the size and complexity of the evidentiary record, Class Counsel first started by assessing the state of the record, and what had been reviewed, and began to organize the efforts to complete fact discovery. Class Counsel worked to ensure that we understood what had been produced, what had been reviewed, and what we still needed. We also worked with the many attorneys who were diligently assessing the document discovery materials to ensure that everyone working on the Action understood the key issues, what to look for and focus on, and how to prioritize review.

a. Document Review Memorandum and Coding Guide and Guidance for Reviewers

16. Class Counsel reviewed the existing document coding protocol put in place by RGRD and updated the same to address developments in the Action thus far and the remaining challenges. This protocol served as a guide for those working on document analysis in the Action to ensure consistency of document coding, as well as to improve the quality of the review by identifying issues that should be flagged for further consideration or would be useful in establishing Plaintiffs' claims or disputing Defendants' defenses.

17. Class Counsel regularly communicated with the document analysis team to ensure it was appropriately staffed and working efficiently. Class Counsel also regularly communicated with the document analysis team to discuss and update their priorities, discuss the documents that were being uncovered, as well determine where there may be gaps in the productions, and to provide further direction to hone the review process. This was an ongoing effort throughout the lifespan of the fact discovery (and also expert discovery) efforts.

b. Analysis of Deponents

18. Another key task for Class Counsel during fact discovery was to assess potential deponents, both from Defendants and third parties. Class Counsel directed the document analysis team to assess the potential usefulness of certain deponents by engaging in targeted analysis of documents pertaining to those individuals. Class Counsel would then discuss the results of these reviews with the analysis team, in conjunction with other information available regarding the potential deponents, to assess which deponents would be most useful.

19. This process involved significant judgment on the part of Class Counsel. Given how large each of the Defendants are, and how complex the subject matter was in this Action, ensuring the most efficient and useful depositions was a challenging task. Class Counsel attempted to ensure that the individuals deposed would provide the most valuable information to advance the Class's claims or defeat Defendants' defenses.

20. Class Counsel directed the document review team to review the documents pertaining to those individuals selected as deponents. The document review team would create deposition sets of potential exhibits for each deponent. Class Counsel would then work with the document review team to further refine those sets as necessary.

2. Assessment of Document Productions and Privilege Logs

21. As part of the fact discovery efforts, Class Counsel also engaged in significant efforts to assess the completeness of productions and to review and assess the completeness and appropriateness of Defendants' privilege logs.

22. Class Counsel worked to ensure that each Defendant's productions were complete and produced in the agreed-upon fashion. Class Counsel engaged in meet and confer efforts where appropriate to follow up on apparently missing pieces of the production or to correct production errors or other issues.

23. Class Counsel also directed the review of Defendants' privilege logs by the attorneys working on document analysis, who had the best understanding of the production and were well positioned to understand whether the claimed privileges were appropriate and/or appropriately documented. Again, Class Counsel engaged in meet and confer follow-ups with the Defendants as needed to supplement or correct any perceived deficiencies in Defendants' privilege logs.

3. Complete Written Discovery Requests

24. Class Counsel also engaged with Defendants in significant additional written discovery. While some written discovery had been completed, many additional discovery requests were served once Class Counsel took over.

25. Both Discover and Mastercard propounded requests for admission on Plaintiffs, to which Class Counsel prepared Plaintiffs' responses.

26. Each of the Defendants propounded interrogatories on Plaintiffs. Mastercard propounded a second and third set of interrogatories on Plaintiffs. Discover propounded its first and second set of interrogatories on Plaintiffs. Amex propounded a set of interrogatories on Plaintiffs. Finally, Visa propounded a set of interrogatories on Plaintiffs. Class Counsel worked with Plaintiffs and the attorneys working on the Action to prepare Plaintiffs' responses to these interrogatories.

27. Defendants' propounded interrogatories sought detailed information about Plaintiffs' claims, and responding to these interrogatories required a massive effort on the part of Class Counsel. For example, each of the Defendants asked Plaintiffs to identify all documents, deposition testimony, and other evidence supporting Plaintiffs' allegations that the propounding Defendant participated in an unlawful agreement. Class Counsel identified hundreds of documents and not only specific depositions, but portions of those depositions, responsive to these interrogatories. Defendants also asked Plaintiffs to identify all of the specific conduct and communications by each person that was part of the alleged conspiracy. Though Class Counsel objected to these overbroad and otherwise objectionable requests, Plaintiffs nevertheless provided fulsome responses. Plaintiffs' responses and objections to Visa's interrogatories alone spanned over 150 pages, as one example of how significant this undertaking was. These responses included dozens of pages of responsive, narrative information detailing Plaintiffs' claims and the proof thereof, backed by reference to specific documents and testimony relating to each Defendant's involvement in the conspiracy.

28. Class Counsel also drafted twenty-three interrogatories and propounded them on each of the Defendants. Defendants' interrogatory responses helped guide our further fact and expert discovery efforts.

4. Taking Depositions of Defendants and Third Parties and Defending Client Depositions

29. Prior to Class Counsel taking over as lead counsel, seventeen depositions were taken, including each of the Class Representatives, a 30(b)(6) deposition of each Defendant, class certification depositions of Plaintiffs' and Defendants' class certification experts, and a handful of other defendant and third party depositions.

30. Class Counsel took or attended dozens of additional depositions once taking over as lead counsel. Class Counsel prepared for and took the depositions of sixteen current or former employees of Defendants. Many of these depositions were coordinated with plaintiffs in the Interchange action[2] and took place over two days. Class Counsel also took or attended numerous depositions of third parties.

31. Class Counsel took the depositions of leaders and executives at each of the Networks, including some of the highest-ranking individuals. For example, key depositions included Visa's President (at the relevant times), and Mastercard's former President of North America. These depositions significantly advanced Plaintiffs' case and provided useful information for summary judgment and beyond.

[2] "Interchange Action" refers to In re Payment Card Interchange Fee and Merchant Discount Antitrust Litigation, No. 1:05-md-01720-BMC-JAM (E.D.N.Y.).

32. In total, Class Counsel took, defended, or attended fact depositions of thirty-eight witnesses across a total of forty-five days (in addition to the seventeen depositions taken, defended, or attended by RGRD when it was serving as lead counsel).

C. Class Counsel Engaged in Significant Expert Discovery Efforts

33. Expert Discovery proceeded in two phases. First, the parties engaged in expert discovery regarding class certification issues with one expert for Plaintiffs, and one expert for Defendants. Then, the parties later engaged in merits expert discovery, where the scope expanded to two experts for Plaintiffs and seven experts across the Defendants. Like fact discovery, the scope of expert discovery was broad and covered myriad topics, including, among other things: the technological landscape for EMV and the FLS, the economic motivations of the Networks and the other entities in the payment processing chain, other migrations to EMV technology in other countries, the appropriate legal framework to assess alleged collusion, constructing an appropriate but-for world to assess damages and analyze the actions of the Defendants, and numerous issues relating to the parties' damages analyses.

1. Continued Work with Dr. Officer in Support of Class Certification

34. Following the Court's initial denial of Plaintiffs' motion for class certification, Class Counsel worked with Dr. Micah S. Officer to prepare a third report in connection with Plaintiffs' renewed motion for class certification. Dr. Officer's third report covered three main additional issues: the likely date by which Defendants would have imposed the FLS in the but-for world, the likelihood of any chargebacks being absorbed by intermediaries in the payment chain, and to describe deficiencies in Defendants' data productions and the impact of such deficiencies on his analysis.

35. While in Dr. Officer's prior reports he had opined that Defendants' conduct had caused the Class significant damages, and that in the but-for world competitive responses would have led to delays of the FLS by the Networks, in connection with his third report he offered further, more specific testimony regarding the nature of the but-for world. The major issue he addressed was providing a specific model by which Defendants would have imposed the FLS in a realistic but-for world and the date for when the FLS would likely have been delayed in the but-for world.

36. Class Counsel worked extensively with Dr. Officer on this third expert report to develop the information he needed for his analysis. This involved data pertaining to each of his two approaches. First, Dr. Officer analyzed what he determined to be the behavior of Defendants in a different market with similar challenges, after Defendants were aware that their conduct was under scrutiny. To this end, he analyzed the FLS transition that occurred in the automated fuel dispenser ("AFD") market. Dr. Officer's second approach was to examine statements in memoranda, presentations, emails and other documents made by various executives of the Networks, concerning their expectations for enforcement of the FLS in the United States. Dr. Officer thus studied and opined regarding what the executives said about their expectations in the months leading up to the FLS.

37. Class Counsel's work with Dr. Officer on his report in support of Plaintiffs' renewed motion for class certification was a significant undertaking, given the scope of the issues considered by Dr. Officer and the evidentiary record necessary to support those opinions. Class Counsel prepared Dr. Officer and defended him during a second deposition in connection with his class certification work [the first deposition being previously defended by RGRD]. His report notes that he relied on nearly two thousand documents in support.

2. Work with Dr. Officer and Dr. Abrantes-Metz on Developing Merits Reports

38. Following the completion of fact discovery, Class Counsel delved into the extensive merits expert discovery issues. The parties had already completed some expert work, with respect to the class certification issues. However, the merits expert work required new analyses and presented new issues. Plaintiffs retained an additional expert—Dr. Rosa M. Abrantes-Metz, to provide expert testimony and analysis regarding Defendants' conspiracy. For the merits expert work, Plaintiffs worked with both Dr. Officer, who had previously opined on class certification issues, and Dr. Abrantes-Metz.

39. Dr. Officer is a Professor of Finance at Loyola Marymount University, has been an editor and reviewer for the Journal of Financial Economics, the Journal of Law and Economics, the European Economic Review, and the Journal of Accounting and Economics, and has published dozens of peer-reviewed articles involving quantitative analysis of large datasets. Dr. Abrantes-Metz is an economist specializing in industrial organization, econometrics, and asset pricing. She is a Managing Director at BRG and previously served as a Managing Director and Principal at Global Economics Group, as well as a Principal at The Brattle Group. She focuses her work on conspiracies, fraud, and the detection of cartel behavior—including price-fixing conspiracies—through various empirical "screening" methods.

40. Class Counsel worked with Dr. Officer to supplement the work he had previously done in support of class certification. This required supplementing the information available to Dr. Officer with the fact discovery now available to Plaintiffs, as well as clarifying his opinions and responding to the criticisms of Defendants' class certification expert, David Kaplan.

41. Class Counsel worked with Dr. Officer to develop an expert report and testimony primarily regarding the damages suffered by the Class and attributable to Defendants' alleged wrongdoing.

42. Class Counsel worked with Dr. Officer to gather the necessary data for his opinions. This included a massive amount of data from each of the Defendants regarding chargebacks incurred by Class members. These data were not limited to just the FLS chargebacks at issue in this Action, but other forms of chargebacks as well. This, among other complexities in the data sets, greatly increased the difficulty of the analysis. Class Counsel had to engage with each of the Defendants to ensure that we obtained all the data needed for Dr. Officer's analysis.

43. Dr. Officer's analysis also required a significant amount of data from third parties. These data were necessary to respond to contentions from Defendants that acquirers were absorbing significant amounts of the FLS chargebacks at issue. Among other things, Class Counsel worked to gather merchant agreements and annual filings with the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission from major payment processors and acquirers. Class Counsel subpoenaed numerous acquirers and payment processors to obtain data on potential absorption of chargebacks. Class Counsel had to meet and confer with many of these entities to obtain responsive documents and/or statements or declarations in lieu of documents in order to support Dr. Officer's analysis. Identifying the largest and most significant payment processors, then subpoenaing them, then communicating with them and obtaining this information was a substantial undertaking that took months of consistent effort. These pieces of data were vital to Dr. Officer's analysis and to help rebut Defendants' claims that significant portions of the FLS chargebacks at issue were being absorbed by intermediaries in the payment chain.

44. Class Counsel also worked with Dr. Officer to ensure that he had the necessary technical documentation from Defendants relating to their chargeback rules and procedures, so that he could complete his analysis. This included assessment of data dictionaries and sets of rules for the different Networks.

45. In addition to the numerical and technical data analyzed by Dr. Officer, Class Counsel also worked with Dr. Officer to ensure he had the necessary documents from Defendants and third parties to authoritatively opine on the nature of the but-for world. One of Dr. Officer's key opinions was that in the but-for world, Defendants would have delayed the FLS by two years, starting with Visa. Class Counsel worked with Dr. Officer to obtain the necessary documents demonstrating the internal decision making of the Networks and comparing the process with another related field that also experienced a FLS transition—the automated fuel dispenser (AFD) market.

46. The sum of all this work was a 56-page opening merits expert report from Dr. Officer. However, the substance of his report was built on a much larger foundation. Dr. Officer relied on hundreds of documents and generated thousands of pages of schedules and supporting materials that spanned eight volumes.

47. Dr. Abrantes-Metz's opening report was similarly a substantial undertaking. Class Counsel worked with Dr. Abrantes-Metz to obtain the documents she needed to opine on the nature of Defendants' behavior, leading her to opine that the implementation of the FLS in the United States was inconsistent with competitive behavior and consistent with an explicit agreement to set the FLS dates. This required an extensive assessment of the discovery record available. Dr. Abrantes-Metz opined on the nature of the relevant antitrust market, including the economics of multi-sided platforms, explaining the function of the market, and defining the market by geographic bounds. Dr. Abrantes-Metz applied a single-sided analysis to this market, focusing on the actions of the Networks as they affected merchants. Dr. Abrantes-Metz then opined on the alleged conspiracy and the evidence in the record consistent with the alleged conspiracy, including the development of the FLS framework in the United States, communications between the Networks, their participation in industry groups, the concerns of merchants in connection with the EMV migration and the FLS, technical difficulties with the EMV migration, and the Networks' decision making regarding potential delays of the FLS. Dr. Abrantes-Metz also opined regarding the specific industry features that facilitated the emergence and sustainability of the alleged collusion at issue in this Action. Dr. Abrantes-Metz's completed opening merits report was 103 pages long, and relied upon hundreds of pieces of evidence from discovery and external sources like industry publications, white papers, and academic articles. Class Counsel worked extensively with Dr. Abrantes-Metz to complete this work.

3. Analysis of the Expert Reports of Defendants' Combined Seven Experts

48. After Class Counsel served Defendants with Plaintiffs' experts' reports, Defendants had their opportunity to respond. Defendants took this opportunity by retaining seven expert witnesses between the four of them to provide merits reports and testimony, including Kaplan, who had previously provided opinions regarding class certification issues. Class Counsel had to assess each of these reports and proffered expert witnesses to determine how to challenge their opinions, and to assess the potential impact of their opinions and testimony on the Action.

49. Just as Class Counsel did, Defendants—some of the largest companies in the world, represented by some of the largest and most prominent law firms—retained well-regarded experts with impressive backgrounds and experience. Challenging their backgrounds and opinions was a significant undertaking for Class Counsel. These experts also raised a host of issues and challenges for the Action. Class Counsel recognized that each of these experts added risks to the litigation.

50. Visa retained three experts to provide merits reports and testimony: David Kaplan, who had opined already on class certification issues; Dr. Andres V. Lerner; and R. Garrison Harvey.

51. Kaplan's opinions were largely focused on challenging Dr. Officer's view of the but-for world and Dr. Officer's conclusion that a two-year delay of the FLS was the likely outcome. Kaplan also briefly challenged Dr. Abrantes-Metz's view of the but-for world. Kaplan's opening merits report was 258 pages.

52. R. Garrison Harvey's report and opinions were also directed at Dr. Officer's damages analysis. Harvey's opening merits report was 81 pages.

53. Dr. Andres Lerner's opinions and testimony were focused on Dr. Abrantes-Metz's opinions. Dr. Lerner's opening merits report was 288 pages.

54. Mastercard retained two experts of its own: Julie Conroy and Dr. Celeste C. Saravia.

55. Julie Conroy's report and testimony was focused primarily on the EMV industry as a whole. Conroy's opening merits report was 102 pages.

56. Dr. Saravia's report and opinions focused primarily on challenging Dr. Abrantes-Metz's analysis. Dr. Saravia's report was 93 pages.

57. Discover retained one expert: Dr. Daniel L. Rubinfeld, who opined on Discover's business model and challenged Dr. Abrantes-Metz's opinions. Dr. Rubinfeld's report was 84 pages.

58. Amex also retained one expert: Dr. Mark A. Israel, who challenged the opinions of both Dr. Abrantes-Metz and Dr. Officer. Dr. Israel's report was 119 pages.

59. In sum, Defendants' seven experts submitted opening reports—not including exhibits appendices, or other materials, but only the substance of the reports themselves—that spanned a total of 1025 pages. These expert reports cited thousands of documents, articles, and other information in support of their opinions. Class Counsel thus faced a monumental effort in analyzing not only these reports themselves, but the documents and evidence that Defendants' experts relied upon in drafting these reports. Class Counsel, with the assistance of Plaintiffs' experts, worked extensively to analyze Defendants' expert reports and determine how to respond to them.

4. Depositions of Defendants' Experts and Drafting Plaintiffs' Experts' Rebuttal Reports

60. Class Counsel took the depositions of each of the Defendants' experts between July and October 2021. Given the breadth of the issues explored by the experts and the volume of their reports and cited materials, each of these depositions required a significant amount of preparation time. Class Counsel analyzed key documents in the Action, Defendants' experts' reports, and the documents and materials cited by Defendants' experts in support of their reports. Class Counsel also conferred with Plaintiffs' experts to determine areas of each of Defendants' experts' reports that were most susceptible to challenge or were lacking support.

61. Class Counsel then worked with Plaintiffs' experts to prepare rebuttal reports to respond to the contentions of each of Defendants' experts. This required further analysis of the discovery record, the arguments made by each of Defendants' experts, and the materials cited by them in support of those arguments. Class Counsel then conferred with Plaintiffs' experts to develop a strategy to obtain the necessary materials to generate rebuttal reports that would further advance Plaintiffs' claims and undermine Defendants' experts' opinions.

62. Dr. Officer's rebuttal report responded to three main categories of objections from Defendants' experts. First, criticisms of Dr. Officer's conclusions that the FLS chargebacks would not have been incurred by Class members in the but-for world. Second, that his use of the AFD market as a comparison point for the point-of-sale ("POS") market was not well supported or a useful framework. Third, that he had not adequately assessed the potential for "absorption" of FLS chargebacks by intermediary entities in the payment ecosystem. Dr. Officer also challenged a number of other arguments from Defendants' experts in his rebuttal report, including FLS chargebacks after the end of the class period, the Target data breach, merchant readiness concerns, purported benefits to merchants from the FLS, common timing of the FLS between all four Networks, and international experience with EMV. Dr. Officer also updated his damages analysis. Dr. Officer's rebuttal report was 52 pages, although again, his report was supported by many schedules and attachments detailing his analysis.

63. Similarly, Dr. Abrantes-Metz also structured her rebuttal report around several key arguments from Defendants' experts. This included that Defendants' experts had erroneously denied the existence of an economic framework to assess explicit collusion, and that they had wrongly classified an explicit agreement among the Networks as unilateral conduct. Dr. Abrantes-Metz opined further regarding the incentives of each of the Networks, explained in more detail the communications and coordination between the Networks surrounding the EMV migration and the FLS date, and also explained the methods by which the Networks ensured the collusive agreement stayed in place despite merchant pressure for a delay of the FLS. Dr. Abrantes-Metz also responded to the contention from several of Defendants' experts that a one-sided analysis of the market was inappropriate and that a two-sided analysis was required. Dr. Abrantes-Metz further challenged the assertion from certain of Defendants' experts that the coordination of the Networks would be defensible under the Department of Justice and Federal Trade Commission's guidelines on collaborations among competitors. Finally, Dr. Abrantes-Metz further explained her opinion that in the but-for world the Networks would have likely extended the FLS date, even if there was tacit coordination between the Networks. She also opined that the October 2015 FLS was not, as Defendants' experts claimed, effective at achieving better economic outcomes. Dr. Abrantes-Metz's rebuttal report was 127 pages.

5. Depositions of Plaintiffs' Experts

64. After submitting opening merits reports, assessing Defendants' experts' reports, and working with Plaintiffs' experts to draft rebuttal reports, Class Counsel then prepared Plaintiffs' experts for depositions. Dr. Abrantes-Metz, having not been deposed yet in the Action, was deposed by Defendants over the course of two days in February 2022. Dr. Officer, having been deposed twice already in connection with his class certification opinions, was deposed on a single day in March 2022. Class Counsel spent many hours preparing Plaintiffs' experts for these depositions.

6. Close of Discovery on March 8, 2022

65. On March 7, 2022, the parties filed a joint letter with the Court certifying that expert discovery was complete. On March 8, 2022, the Court entered an order certifying that discovery was complete.

D. Class Counsel Engaged in Voluminous Motion Practice, Culminating with Defeating Several Motions for Summary Judgment

66. This Action involved numerous instances of Defendants filing motions that could either end Plaintiffs' case altogether, or seriously damage Plaintiffs' ability to recover damages on behalf of the Class. RGRD had already defeated the Networks' attempts to have the case dismissed at the pleading stage, but no class had yet been certified when Class Counsel took over as lead. Further, Defendants took many more opportunities to try and eliminate the Class's claims. Class Counsel recognized in responding to these motions that we were facing substantial risks at each turn. Given the complexity of antitrust cases in general, and the unique complexities of this case, as well as the fact that each of the four Networks had their own defenses and arguments, we faced substantial challenges on this front.

1. Discover's Motion for Judgment on the Pleadings

67. One of the first challenges Class Counsel faced in terms of additional motion practice was Discover's motion for judgment on the pleadings. On July 6, 2017, Discover submitted a letter brief requesting a pre-motion conference on its intended Rule 12(c) motion for judgment on the pleadings. Discover argued that the Class's claims were fatally inconsistent with claims made by what it asserted was an overlapping Rule 23(b)(3) merchant class in the Interchange Action. Discover asserted those claims were part of the record in this Action. The motion was fully briefed, and Class Counsel vigorously disputed the premise of Discover's argument and its basis for dismissal.

68. Class Counsel prepared an opposition to Discover's motion for judgment on the pleadings explaining that Discover was largely repeating arguments it made and lost on the motion to dismiss briefing, that there were no "contradictions" in Plaintiffs' allegations, and that dismissal was inappropriate.

69. Discover vigorously pursued this motion, first filing a notice of supplemental authority, to which Class Counsel responded. Next, after the parties received a report and recommendation ("R&R") that recommended Discover's motion be denied, Discover briefed objections to the R&R. Once again, Class Counsel vigorously opposed Discover's objections. On September 18, 2018, the Court entered an order adopting the R&R entirely and denying Discover's motion.

2. Initial and Renewed Motions for Class Certification

70. When Class Counsel took over as lead counsel, Plaintiffs' motion for class certification was pending, though it was initially filed in the U.S. District Court for the Northern District of California. On May 4, 2017, the Action was transferred to this Court.

71. Class Counsel first drafted supplemental briefing in support of the initial motion for class certification. This supplemental briefing, submitted in September 2017, identified Second Circuit authority that was different from Ninth Circuit authority on the relevant issues.

72. Class Counsel prepared for a hearing on the motion for class certification and argued the motion on November 29, 2017.

73. On March 11, 2018, the Court denied Plaintiffs' motion for class certification, but concluded that Plaintiffs had satisfied the explicit requirements of Rule 23(a)—numerosity, commonality, typicality, and adequacy of both class representatives and counsel. The Court concluded that Plaintiffs, in offering four potential end dates for the class, had not satisfied Rule 23(a)'s implied requirement of ascertainability.

74. Class Counsel thus worked to further analyze the discovery record and worked with Plaintiffs' damages expert, Dr. Officer, to further assess what the but-for world would look like and determine how to define a class period with definite bounds. Class Counsel thus sought to review key documents pertaining to issues such as merchant readiness, considerations of delay of the FLS by Defendants—especially Visa—requests by merchants for exceptions and delays, and other issues that bore on determining when the Networks would set their FLS dates in the but-for world.

75. After factual analysis of the discovery record, Plaintiffs' counsel concluded, with the assistance of Dr. Officer and his third expert report, that a two-year delay of the FLS was the most likely outcome in the but-for world. Class Counsel prepared a renewed motion proposing a two-year class period, based on the argument that September 30, 2017 "reflects the most likely alternate FLS date, but-for Defendants' collusion." Dkt. No. 706-1 at 1; Dkt. No. 707-1 at 1. Class Counsel argued that the evidence demonstrated that without Defendants' collusion, "the [n]etworks would have delayed the FLS by two years, starting with an announcement of a delay by Visa, and with the other [n]etworks following closely behind." Dkt. No. 725 at 10; Dkt. No. 744 at 10 (alterations in original). Class Counsel's renewed motion for class certification sought certification of the following class: Merchants who incurred one or more unreimbursed chargeback(s) between October 1, 2015 through and including September 30, 2017, pursuant to the Fraud Liability Shift for the assessment of Mastercard, Visa, Discover and/or Amex payment card chargebacks (the "Class"). Excluded from the Class are members of the judiciary and government entities or agencies.

76. Class Counsel served their renewed motion for class certification on July 16, 2018. However, after service of the renewed motion, Amex informed Plaintiffs of an inadvertent error resulting in documents being omitted from Amex's document production. From October 26, 2018 through November 10, 2018, Amex produced those missing documents. Amex produced a privilege log for those documents on November 15, 2018. Class Counsel analyzed this privilege log and production in the following months. Class Counsel then met and conferred with Amex regarding this additional privilege log. Amex produced additional documents in response on January 25, 2019. The parties then agreed upon a new briefing schedule for Plaintiffs' pending renewed motion for class certification.

77. Defendants raised a number of challenges to Plaintiffs' renewed motion for class certification. Defendants argued that "[Dr.] Officer's analysis fails to consider the 'host of evidence that disproves his two-year opinion and in fact disproves the notion of a delay of any length.'" Dkt. Nos. 725 at 36; 744 at 36. Defendants also argued that Plaintiffs had predominance issues because they had not shown how merchants would have responded to networks adopting a later FLS date, and that the "new" but-for world posited by Plaintiffs would lead to individual questions predominating. Defendants argued that it would be necessary to assess whether any merchant incurred chargebacks because of the alleged conspiracy or because of the merchant's individual business decisions regarding when and how merchants would become EMV compliant.

78. Amex also raised two unique defenses to Plaintiffs' renewed motion for class certification. First, Amex argued that Plaintiffs had not met the ascertainability standard because Amex asserted Plaintiffs had not offered a method to determine which merchants had a Card Acceptance Agreement ("CAA") with Amex, and which did not. This, according to Amex, made for an ascertainability problem because those with a CAA were purportedly subject to arbitration. Second, Amex argued that Plaintiffs' theory of the Action had changed from the Networks adopting different FLS dates in the but-for world to the Networks all delaying to the same date two years later.

79. Class Counsel drafted an opposition to Defendants' new arguments regarding class certification and argued that Plaintiffs' selected two-year class period was the missing piece that would permit the Court to grant class certification.

80. Class Counsel successfully obtained certification of the Class, with the full two-year class period sought in the renewed motion. This was a significant victory given that Defendants had suggested a six-month class period was all that Plaintiffs could demonstrate, relying on internal consideration of a six-month delay and prior experience in Canada, where certain Networks provided a six-month delay of the FLS. A shorter class period would have greatly diminished the Class's potential recoverable damages at trial.

81. Demonstrating the complexity of the issues involved in this renewed certification briefing, the Court's August 28, 2020 order granting class certification and denying Defendants' motion to exclude expert testimony was 106 pages long, detailing the various arguments and counterarguments made by the parties.

82. In September 2020, Defendants filed petitions for leave to appeal the Court's class certification decision. Class Counsel opposed these petitions, the granting of which would have complicated and delayed the Action. In January 2021, the Second Circuit denied Defendants' Rule 23(f) petitions.

83. On May 6, 2021, the Court appointed George C. Aguilar and Michael J. Nicoud of Robbins LLP as Class Counsel.

3. Motion to Approve Notice to Class and Notice

84. Following the Court's order granting class certification, Class Counsel engaged Epiq Class Action & Claims Solutions, Inc. ("Epiq") to assist in preparing the class notice ("Notice"), and to plan and effectuate the dissemination of that Notice.

85. In connection with Class Counsel's notice efforts, Class Counsel sought and received notice data from Defendants, which included more than two and a half million rows of data. Class Counsel worked with Epiq to analyze these data and build a dataset for notifying merchants who were, or were likely to be, members of the now-certified Class.

86. Class Counsel filed a motion for approval of the proposed class notice and notice plan on May 19, 2022. The Court approved this plan on June 3, 2022.

87. From June 28, 2022, through July 1, 2022, Epiq carried out the individual notice portion of the Class Notice plan. This consisted of mailing over 1 million postcard notices and emailing over 110,000 email notices. Together, the individual notice efforts reached approximately 96.6% of identified Class members. These direct notice efforts were supplemented by a media plan that ran from July 1, 2022, through July 31, 2022. The media plan included targeted internet advertising including more than 249.6 million impressions nationwide; a publication notice in numerous ethnic newspapers in Korean, Chinese, Russian, Japanese, and Vietnamese; internet search engine sponsored listings displayed more than 50,000 times; an informational release issued over PR Newswire's U.S. Newsline in English and Hispanic Newsline in Spanish to approximately 5,000 general media outlets, and specifically targeted to "Small Business" influencers; a dedicated Case Website (www.FraudLiabilityShiftLitigation.com) that has registered more than 25,000 unique visitor sessions; and the establishment of a toll-free telephone number and postal mailing address.

88. At the conclusion of the Class Notice plan, Class Counsel received only 334 exclusion requests, though the Class is estimated to consist of approximately 400,000 merchants, and notice was directly mailed to over one million merchants.

4. Discover's Motion to Compel Arbitration

89. Discover attempted to file its motion to compel arbitration shortly after the Court granted class certification. Class Counsel met and conferred with Discover regarding this motion, insisting that it would not be properly filed or considered until the Class Notice plan was complete and the period for opt-outs had expired. Plaintiffs were unable to reach an agreement with Discover on the timing of its motion.

90. Discover initially served its motion to compel arbitration on October 30, 2020. Class Counsel opposed this motion both on the merits and on the grounds that it was not timely—given that the period for opt-outs had not expired, and thus, the bounds of the Class was yet to be determined.

91. The Court agreed with Class Counsel that Discover's motion to compel arbitration was prematurely filed, given that it was not yet known which merchants might opt out of the Class. On September 27, 2021, the Court denied Discover's motion to compel arbitration as premature, holding it could be refiled once the notice and opt-out period for the Class had ended.

92. After the close of fact and expert discovery, on November 30, 2022, Defendants served a slew of motions presenting serious risks for Plaintiffs. These motions included two motions to compel arbitration, two motions to decertify the class, five Daubert motions, and three motions for summary judgment.

93. Among this slew of motions was Discover's resubmission of its motion to compel arbitration. This motion presented significant risk given that many of Discover's merchants have a direct relationship with Discover, with an arbitration agreement as part of that relationship. Once again, Class Counsel opposed the motion, though this time purely on the merits. Class Counsel argued that the language of Discover's own arbitration agreement exempted the claims pursued in this Action from arbitration.

94. While Discover's motion to compel arbitration was pending, the Court sought supplemental briefing from the parties regarding the effect, if any, of the Second Circuit's decision in Local Union 97, International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers v. Niagara Mohawk Power Corp., 67 F.4th 107 (2d Cir. 2023) on the pending motion (as well as Amex's motion to compel arbitration, discussed below). Class Counsel drafted and submitted this supplemental briefing.

95. Class Counsel defeated Discover's motion to compel arbitration. In an order dated August 14, 2024, the Court agreed with Plaintiffs that the language of Discover's arbitration agreement excluded the claims at issue in this Action and denied Discover's motion.

5. Amex's Motion to Compel Arbitration and Decertify the Class

96. Amex also filed a motion to compel arbitration, arguing that merchants who accept Amex cards have signed a CAA that subjects them to arbitration. Complicating Amex's motion, however, was that it combined its motion to compel arbitration with a motion to decertify the Class. Amex argued that if the Court granted its motion to compel arbitration, then the Court could not adjudicate liability or damages as to Amex without an individualized inquiry into whether or not class members are bound by a CAA. Amex further argued that because only chargebacks imposed on merchants who did not accept Amex, and were not bound by a CAA, could subject Amex to liability, the Class would need to be decertified as to Amex. Amex argued that Plaintiffs had no way of establishing which chargebacks were attributable to merchants without a CAA.

97. Class Counsel opposed Amex's motion to compel arbitration and decertify the Class. In its August 14, 2024 order, the Court granted Amex's motion to compel arbitration. However, the Court agreed with Class Counsel's arguments that common issues still predominated over individual issues and that Dr. Officer's damages methodology could still be applied class-wide, and denied Amex's request to decertify the Class.

98. Though Class Counsel defeated Amex's motion to decertify the Class, Amex filed an appeal from the Court's order that granted Amex's motion to compel arbitration but denied its motion to decertify the Class.

99. Class Counsel argued on appeal that Amex's appeal was improper because it could not appeal a motion to compel arbitration that was granted. Class Counsel argued that Amex's assertion that it was seeking review of a "denial of a motion to stay," was not an accurate description of what the Court actually did. Class Counsel nevertheless had to brief this appeal. This appeal presented additional risk for the Action. This appeal was fully briefed and set for oral argument when Plaintiffs reached a settlement with Amex.

6. Visa and Mastercard's Motion to Decertify the Class

100. Like Amex, Visa and Mastercard also filed a motion to decertify the class. Visa and Mastercard's motion was premised on the claim that Dr. Abrantes-Metz had introduced a new theory of liability in connection with her rebuttal report. Visa and Mastercard argued that she posited a theory pitting small- and medium-sized merchants against large merchants (Class Counsel disputed this characterization). Visa and Mastercard asserted that this purportedly new theory meant that the Class Representatives' claims were no longer typical, the representatives were no longer adequate to represent large merchants, that individual questions predominated over common questions, and that this new liability theory was inconsistent with Plaintiffs' theory of damages.

101. Class Counsel drafted an opposition to Visa and Mastercard's motion to decertify the class explaining the flaws in each of their arguments. Class Counsel explained that Dr. Abrantes-Metz had not introduced a new theory, and that the portion of her rebuttal report Visa and Mastercard were referring to was only seven paragraphs out of dozens of pages. Class Counsel also refuted the contention that Dr. Abrantes-Metz had pitted any group of merchants against each other. Class Counsel also explained that any reference to benefits certain merchants may have had because of an earlier FLS was far from suggesting that they were involved with the collusion. Class Counsel also reiterated yet again that Plaintiffs' liability theory still matched their damages theory, and that Visa and Mastercard's argument to this effect was an argument the Court had already rejected several times. The Court agreed with Plaintiffs, denying Visa and Mastercard's motion to decertify the class in an order on August 15, 2024.

7. Merits Daubert Motions

102. Class Counsel needed to respond to Defendants' five Daubert motions targeted at Dr. Officer's and Dr. Abrantes-Metz's merits reports and testimony. Class Counsel defeated these motions almost in their entirety. Class Counsel also drafted a Daubert motion against Mastercard's expert Conroy.

a. Defendants' Motions to Exclude Testimony of Dr. Officer

103. On November 30, 2022, Defendants served three motions to exclude the merits testimony of Dr. Officer: a motion by Visa, Mastercard, and Discover to exclude certain of his opinions; a motion by Amex to exclude Dr. Officer's testimony; and a motion by Visa and Mastercard to exclude Dr. Officer's testimony relating to the AFD market. These motions sought to both have Dr. Officer's testimony and opinions rejected in their entirety, and to reduce the damages Plaintiffs could seek at trial by pointing to purported flaws in his analysis. Class Counsel reviewed each of these motions, consulted with Plaintiffs' experts, and drafted oppositions to each. On September 13, 2024, the Court denied all of Defendants' motions directed at Dr. Officer, with the exception of part of Amex's motion.

104. Visa, Mastercard, and Discover's motion to exclude Dr. Officer's testimony and opinions argued that Dr. Officer was not qualified as an expert economist and did not apply well-established economic principles to his analysis of the AFD benchmark. These defendants also asserted that Dr. Officer could not opine on the Action because it involves a two-sided market and Dr. Officer did not purport to have knowledge of the economic literature regarding two-sided transaction platforms. They further argued that Dr. Officer testified he was not familiar with what they well-established economic literature regarding using a benchmark in an antitrust case. Visa, Mastercard, and Discover argued that Dr. Officer's damages model was inconsistent with Plaintiffs' liability theory. They also argued that Dr. Officer's damages calculations were unreliable because they: included reimbursed chargebacks; failed to exclude chargebacks to government entities (excluded from the Class); and failed to exclude cross-border chargebacks. Additionally, Visa, Mastercard, and Discover argued that Dr. Officer's substitution analysis was incorrectly performed.

105. Class Counsel responded to each of these issues, explaining Dr. Officer's significant experience and expertise in the relevant areas, and how his methodology was reliable and appropriate. Class Counsel explained how Dr. Officer's opinions were supported through his use of the discovery record, statements in the public record, and Dr. Officer's own knowledge, experience, and training in assessing economic and competitive responses and behavior. Class Counsel also rebutted Visa, Mastercard, and Discover's contentions regarding purported flaws in Dr. Officer's damages methodology and calculations.

106. Amex's motion to exclude Dr. Officer's testimony on the damages owed by Amex was premised on the idea that Dr. Officer's model applies regardless of whether or not a merchant was bound by a CAA with Amex.

107. Class Counsel argued in response that Amex had failed to articulate any requirement under Daubert, Rule 702, or otherwise for Dr. Officer to segregate his damages analysis between merchants with or without a CAA with Amex. In partly denying this motion, the Court did recognize that it would issue a limiting instruction informing the jury that it could not consider Dr. Officer's testimony for establishing the amount of damages owed by Amex to CAA-bound merchants.

108. Visa and Mastercard's motion to exclude Dr. Officer's AFD opinions sought to exclude his comparison between the FLS policies in the POS market and the AFD market. Their motion was premised on four main arguments: that his "cost-benefit" analysis was unreliable because he could not identify benefits of collusion in either the POS or AFD markets; that his AFD opinions are not based on an established methodology in economics; that the benchmark is "speculative or conjectural"; and that his opinions lack support in the evidentiary record.

109. Class Counsel's opposition rebutted each of these arguments. Class Counsel argued that Dr. Officer established the costs and benefits associated with a traditional economic approach in analyzing Defendants' motives, opportunities, and behavior. Class Counsel also argued that Dr. Officer's methodology of comparing a similar market with similar decisions, close in time and likely free of collusion, was a widely accepted methodology to generate a but-for world to define class-wide damages. Class Counsel also contended that Visa and Mastercard's arguments about the AFD and POS market comparisons only confirmed the reasonableness of Dr. Officer's conclusions.

b. Defendants' Motions to Exclude Testimony of Dr. Abrantes-Metz

110. On November 30, 2022, Defendants served two motions to exclude the opinions and testimony of Dr. Abrantes-Metz: Visa, Mastercard, and Discover's motion to exclude her opinions; and Amex's motion to exclude her opinions. These motions sought to have Dr. Abrantes-Metz's testimony and opinions excluded in their entirety, and to limit her ability to opine on certain issues. Class Counsel reviewed these motions, consulted with Plaintiffs' experts, and drafted oppositions to both of these motions. As with the motions directed at Dr. Officer, in the same September 13, 2024 order, the Court denied all of Defendants' motions directed at Dr. Abrantes-Metz, with the exception of part of Amex's motion.

111. Visa, Mastercard, and Discover's motion to exclude the opinions of Dr. Abrantes-Metz was primarily premised on the argument that her reliance on a single-sided market analysis, as opposed to a two-sided analysis, was in error. These Defendants argued that this analysis was contrary to the law governing transaction platforms, including Second Circuit and Supreme Court precedent. They argued further that certain of her opinions were unreliable and unhelpful, that her opinions on evidence of collusion should be excluded, and that her opinion on anticompetitive effects is contrary to governing law and unreliable.

112. Class Counsel refuted each of these arguments. This involved a significant effort to explain the nature of single-sided and two-sided markets, the law applicable to each, and why Dr. Abrantes-Metz was correct to utilize a single-sided analysis. Class Counsel understood that this was a significant area of risk for the Action, as it could render Dr. Abrantes-Metz's testimony nearly entirely, if not entirely, inadmissible, if the Court were to agree with Defendants. This response required focusing primarily on the Supreme Court decision in Ohio v. American Express Co., 585 U.S. 529 (2018) ("Amex"), and the details of that decision, to support Dr. Abrantes-Metz's methodology. Class Counsel also delved further into the details of the Second Circuit authority cited by Defendants, explaining why this authority also did not compel the conclusion that a two-sided analysis was necessary or appropriate in this Action. Further, Class Counsel highlighted issues regarding the horizontal nature of the agreement at issue in this Action, in explaining why Dr. Abrantes-Metz's methodology was correct and reliable.

113. In addition, Class Counsel refuted Visa, Mastercard, and Discover's other arguments regarding Dr. Abrantes-Metz's testimony. Class Counsel argued that her opinions regarding the timing of liability shifts in other countries were supported with a significant factual basis in the record. Similarly, we argued that Dr. Abrantes-Metz's opinions regarding merchant steering were reliable and supported by proper evidence. Class Counsel also rebutted these defendants' argument that Dr. Abrantes-Metz had not properly defined the relevant product market, noting that she supported in several ways, including among other things, with a review of the DOJ and FTC's Horizontal Merger Guidelines and consideration of competitive constraints in multi-sided platforms.

114. Amex's motion to exclude Dr. Abrantes-Metz's opinions and testimony regarding Amex's participation in the conspiracy was premised on the idea that she employed improper approaches and techniques. Class Counsel responded separately to Amex's contentions as well.

115. Amex argued that many of the communications and documents relied upon by Dr. Abrantes-Metz to demonstrate evidence of the conspiracy did not involve Amex. Amex further asserted that she had miscited or misinterpreted the materials she relied upon.

116. Class Counsel argued in response that Dr. Abrantes-Metz's opinion was reliable as to Amex, even though many of the pieces of evidence she cited were not Amex documents or testimony. Class Counsel noted that case law establishes that a participant in a conspiracy need not have knowledge of all of the details of the conspiracy or its scope to be held to be a participant. Further, Class Counsel rebutted the contention that Dr. Abrantes-Metz had miscited any of the materials she relied upon. The Court agreed with Class Counsel, denying Amex's motion, except in one respect. The Court excluded certain of Dr. Abrantes-Metz's opinions regarding Amex's intent and state of mind.

c. Class Counsel's Motion to Exclude Testimony of Conroy

117. Class Counsel drafted a motion to exclude the testimony of Mastercard's expert Conroy and filed it on November 30, 2022. Class Counsel argued that Conroy's work was largely lifted word for word from prior work produced years ago in a different context, primarily by authors other than Conroy. Thus, we argued that her report and opinions were reverse-engineered. Class Counsel also argued that her opinions were not supported by sufficient facts or data connected to this matter, often evidenced by her assertion that something was supported purely by her unspecified "conversations, experience, or understandings." The Court granted portions of Plaintiffs' motion to exclude the testimony of Conroy, including her testimony as to what merchants would or would not have done had the Networks delayed their respective liability shifts.

8. Motions for Summary Judgment

118. Defendants filed three motions for summary judgment: one from Visa and Mastercard, one from Amex, and one from Discover. Defendants' motions for summary judgment raised key dispositive issues as well as arguments that would severely limit Plaintiffs' ability to recover damages at trial. Combined, these motions comprised 114 pages of briefing, 648 exhibits spanning 32,098 pages, and 496 separate statements of material fact. Class Counsel's oppositions to these motions comprised 125 pages of briefing, 355 exhibits spanning 8,707 pages, and 513 separate statements of material fact as to which Plaintiffs contended there existed a genuine issue to be tried.

119. Responding to Defendants' motions for summary judgment was a massive undertaking given the scope of this Action and the motions themselves. From a legal research and caselaw perspective, the motions presented myriad issues for Class Counsel to address. These included key dispositive issues like Defendants' argument that merchants could not recover because they are, according to Defendants, indirect purchasers of the services at issue, and thus barred from recovery under the Illinois Brick doctrine. Class Counsel also devoted significant efforts to the relevant legal framework for assessing Defendants' alleged collusion. A key issue was whether the law required the collusion at issue to be assessed through a single-sided or two-sided market analysis. Defendants also asserted the analysis should be Rule of Reason. Class Counsel instead argued that the appropriate analysis was per se, or failing that, Quick Look review. Further, Class Counsel needed to respond to Defendants' assertions regarding the necessary evidentiary showing to demonstrate an antitrust conspiracy and caselaw distinguishing unilateral conduct from collusion. Visa and Mastercard argued that the Court "should grant partial summary judgment to limit damages to six months of Visa chargebacks and exclude Mastercard, American Express, and Discover chargebacks, cross-border chargebacks, and chargebacks to government entities."

120. In addition to the legal research and caselaw perspective, the motions for summary judgment involved myriad factual issues. Class Counsel thoroughly combed the discovery record for the best evidence to use in opposition to Defendants' motions. Class Counsel analyzed the materials cited by Defendants and crafted detailed responses and rebuttals to Defendants' statements of material fact, along with appropriate objections. Class Counsel also prepared additional separate statements of material fact for each of Defendants' motions for summary judgment. Given the dozens of depositions, nine experts, and millions of documents that are part of the discovery record in this Action, these tasks were significant.

121. Expert issues were also highly intertwined with the motions for summary judgment. These issues were significant for the motions, ranging from completely dispositive to damages issues that could reduce Plaintiffs' potential damages to a mere fraction of what Plaintiffs were seeking. Class Counsel worked with Plaintiffs' experts to appropriately respond to these issues—which were highly intertwined with the responses to Defendants' Daubert motions.

a. Visa and Mastercard's Motion for Summary Judgment

122. On November 30, 2022, Visa and Mastercard served a 67-page motion for summary judgment, with 272 exhibits, along with a 107-page separate statement of material facts in support, spanning 264 individual statements.

123. Visa and Mastercard raised a number of challenges to Plaintiffs' Action in their motion for summary judgment. These included that the Illinois Brick doctrine barred Plaintiffs' claims. Visa and Mastercard claimed that Second Circuit authority was controlling and dispositive on this issue.

124. Visa and Mastercard also argued that Plaintiffs could not show anticompetitive effects. They argued that the proper analysis for the alleged conduct at issue was the Rule of Reason. Following that argument, Visa and Mastercard then argued that Plaintiffs could not meet that burden, claiming that Plaintiffs did not define a legally permissible antitrust market, did not show anticompetitive effects on output or quality, and could not demonstrate that the FLS led to supracompetitive prices in the relevant market as a whole, and that Plaintiffs were attempting to improperly shift the burden to Defendants regarding demonstrating anticompetitive impact. Part of this argument was Visa and Mastercard's contention that a single-sided analysis like the one performed by Dr. Abrantes-Metz was insufficient and inappropriate.

125. Visa and Mastercard's motion for summary judgment also presented their own versions of what happened, arguing that they each had non-collusive reasons to not delay their FLS. Their motion argued the factual record demonstrated that the decision making was based on the unique decision-making process of each Network, with their own independent reasons not to delay. One of these reasons was the massive Target data breach that occurred shortly before the FLS, which Visa and Mastercard contended was a major driver of refusing the delay the FLS. Visa and Mastercard also challenged Plaintiffs' proferred plus factors, arguing that they were legally and factually insufficient to support Plaintiffs' allegations of conspiracy.

126. In addition to trying to get the Action dismissed entirely, Visa and Mastercard's motion also sought to limit the claims at issue and the damages at issue. They raised arguments that Plaintiffs' state law claims failed. They also raised numerous arguments in an attempt to limit Plaintiffs' damages at trial. These arguments included that at most, any delay in the but-for world would have been six months, rather than two years; that any delay would not have included cross-border transactions; and that Plaintiffs' damages should be lowered to account for government entities or agencies and reimbursed chargebacks.

127. Class Counsel prepared and served a 75-page opposition to Visa and Mastercard's motion to dismiss supported by 355 exhibits. In conjunction with this opposition, Plaintiffs filed a response to Visa and Mastercard's separate statement of material fact, which included an additional 320 statements of material fact as to which there existed a genuine issue to be tried. In total the response and additional statements amounted to 249 pages of material.

128. The Court ultimately agreed with Plaintiffs, denying Visa and Mastercard's motion for summary judgment in its entirety in an order dated September 25, 2024.

129. On October 9, 2024, Visa and Mastercard moved to certify the September 25, 2024 Order for interlocutory appeal. Discover joined in this motion. Visa and Mastercard raised two challenges that it contended qualified for interlocutory appeal: their Illinois Brick standing arguments, and their two-sided vs. one-sided market analysis arguments pursuant to Amex.

130. Class Counsel briefed these issues, explaining how Visa and Mastercard had failed to meet the requirements for certification. In an order dated March 13, 2025, the Court agreed with Class Counsel, denying Visa and Mastercard's motion to certify issues for interlocutory appeal.

b. Discover's Motion for Summary Judgment

131. On November 30, 2022, Discover served its own motion for summary judgment that added its own arguments and version of the facts to the analysis. Discover also cited to 143 of its own exhibits in support. Discover focused on its unique place amongst the Networks as the smallest Network and attempted to differentiate itself because it had not been named as a defendant in other credit card antitrust litigation, unlike the other Networks. Discover challenged Plaintiffs' evidence, arguing that there was no direct or circumstantial evidence of Discover's participation in the alleged agreement. Discover filed a separate statement of material fact in support of its motion that included 157 separate statements.

132. Class Counsel prepared and served a 25-page opposition to Discover's motion, and submitted a response to Discover's separate statement of material fact, which included an additional 78 statements of material fact specific to Discover's motion.

133. The Court agreed with Class Counsel on Discover's motion as well, denying it in its entirety in the Court's September 25, 2024 Order.

134. On October 9, 2024, Discover served a motion for reconsideration of the Court's September 25, 2024 Order denying its motion for summary judgment. Discover argued that the Court had not considered controlling and undisputed facts. Discover's motion focused on several pieces of evidence and argued that the Court had either analyzed them incorrectly or not at all.

135. Class Counsel filed an opposition explaining how Discover was mistaken that there was any error in the Court's analysis, and that it had properly examined the evidence and arguments put forth by the parties. The Court agreed with Class Counsel, denying Discover's motion to reconsider on February 12, 2025.

c. Amex's Motion for Summary Judgment

136. On November 30, 2022, Amex also served a motion for summary judgment, raising a host of issues unique to Amex. Amex's motion also offered its own version of events, arguing that the evidence showed unilateral competitive decision-making as opposed to collusion. Amex also argued that summary judgment was warranted because Plaintiffs' damages evidence could not properly facilitate an award against Amex. In support of its motion, Amex submitted 233 exhibits. Amex also submitted its own separate statement of material fact that included 75 statements.

137. Class Counsel prepared and filed a 25-page opposition to Amex's motion for summary judgment and responded to Amex's separate statement of material facts, which included Plaintiffs submitting an additional 115 separate statements specific to Amex's motion for summary judgment. The Court agreed with Class Counsel, denying Amex's motion for summary judgment in its entirety in the Court's September 25, 2024 Order.

E. Class Counsel Engaged in Hard-Fought, Good-Faith Negotiations with Defendants, Through Two Neutral Mediators, Which Resulted in Three Separate Settlements Totaling $231,700,000

138. Class Counsel's efforts to resolve this Action in a way that provided the greatest possible benefit for the Class took many years of litigation, numerous attempts, and multiple mediators. Class Counsel engaged in six mediations in addition to the first mediation conducted by RGRD. Each of these mediations was a hard-fought, arm's-length attempt to settle the Action in good faith. These efforts led to the creation of a Common Fund of $231,700,000.

139. One key pressure point for the case was class certification. After the Court's order on March 11, 2018, denying class certification, but holding that Plaintiffs had satisfied Rule 23(a)'s explicit requirements of numerosity, commonality, typicality, and adequacy of both class representatives and counsel, Class Counsel believed there may be an opportunity to resolve the matter. Class Counsel scheduled a second mediation with Visa and Mastercard on May 11, 2018.

140. The May 11, 2018 mediation was a full day, in-person session held with a highly regarded and experienced former federal judge as the mediator, the Honorable Edward A. Infante (Ret.) ("Judge Infante") in San Francisco, CA. Attached as Exhibit 4 to this declaration is the Declaration of Edward A. Infante in Support of Plaintiffs' Motion for Attorneys' Fees, Expenses, and Service Awards and Motion for Final Approval of Settlements with Defendants, in which Judge Infante discusses the four mediation sessions he held with Plaintiffs and Visa and Mastercard, and the nature of these negotiations.

141. Class Counsel were unable to reach a settlement with Visa and Mastercard during the May 11, 2018 mediation session. Many dispositive issues and significant damages issues remained unresolved at that point. Among other things, the yet-to-be-filed renewed motion for class certification would clarify the length of the class period. This was a key issue because the length of the class period dictated the length of time for which merchants could recover for FLS chargebacks. A settlement at this time would have avoided the uncertainty regarding class certification, and the possibility that the Court could reject Plaintiffs' motion entirely or approve a much shorter class period than Plaintiffs envisioned. Class Counsel decided it best to continue litigating the case, seeking to further develop Plaintiffs' claims and continue pressuring Defendants rather than reach an early settlement.

142. The next attempt at mediating the claims in this Action did not occur for many years. The next mediation between Plaintiffs and Visa and Mastercard was scheduled with Judge Infante on June 23, 2023. At this point, the Court had granted Plaintiffs' renewed motion for class certification, approving the full two-year class period sought by Plaintiffs. Class Counsel had provided notice to the Class, and the opt-out period had expired. Additionally, the parties had completed fact and expert discovery. Defendants had filed a slew of motions, including three motions for summary judgment, five Daubert motions, two motions to compel arbitration, and two motions to decertify the Class. Class Counsel had served their oppositions to those motions and were awaiting Defendants' reply briefs at the time of the June 23, 2023 mediation.

143. The June 23, 2023 mediation thus had the benefit of occurring following the resolution of some of the uncertainty in the Action—including the major hurdle of whether the Class would be certified and what length the class period would be. However, as evidenced by Defendants' multitude of summary judgment and other motions, there were numerous dispositive issues and significant damages issues yet to be resolved in the Action. Class Counsel understood going into this mediation that Defendants were prepared to point to these defenses to explain their position at mediation. Class Counsel also understood that, as before, we faced numerous dispositive motions that could completely end the Action with no relief for the Class. We were unable to reach a suitable settlement, and determined the best course of action was to press on and await the Court's orders on summary judgment.

144. The next opportunity to potentially resolve the Action presented itself when the Court began issuing its orders on the motions Defendants filed along with summary judgment.

The first of these orders was issued on August 14, 2024. The Court denied Discover's motion to compel arbitration, and granted Amex's motion to compel arbitration, but denied its motion to decertify the class. The next day, on August 15, 2024, the Court issued its order denying Visa and Mastercard's motion to decertify the Class.

145. Plaintiffs and Visa and Mastercard scheduled a fourth mediation with Judge Infante for September 11, 2024. At this point, though some of Defendants' motions had already been denied, serious risks for the case still loomed. These risks included adverse rulings on the Daubert motions or on the motions for summary judgment. Adverse rulings could have meant a total loss or a devastation of the potential ability of Plaintiffs to recover damages at trial. Nevertheless, Class Counsel went into this mediation prepared to try and leverage our recent wins. However, we were again unsuccessful at reaching an appropriate settlement. Though the risks in continued litigation were high, we were confident in the oppositions to Defendants' Daubert and summary judgment motions. We determined that the best course of action for the Class was yet again to go back to litigating and to wait for the Court's rulings.

146. On September 13, 2024, and September 25, 2024, the Court issued its orders on the Daubert motions and the motions for summary judgment, respectively. These orders denying Defendants' motions (except for with respect to a small portion of Amex's Daubert motions as to Dr. Officer and Dr. Abrantes-Metz) paved the way for further settlement negotiations.

147. Having now tried to mediate with Judge Infante and Visa and Mastercard four times, Class Counsel elected to try a different approach. Class Counsel determined it would be valuable to try a new mediator and to try to obtain icebreaker settlements with the smaller Networks first. Class Counsel planned to achieve valuable cooperation agreements with the smaller Networks, put pressure on the remaining Defendants to settle, and help streamline a trial with any remaining Defendants so that Class Counsel could focus the case on the largest Defendants—Visa and Mastercard—who were responsible for a majority of the damages.

148. Class Counsel set up a mediation with Discover on December 6, 2024, in New York, NY, utilizing another highly regarded and very experienced former federal judge—the Honorable Layn R. Phillips (Ret.) of Phillips ADR Enterprises, P.C. ("Judge Phillips"). Attached as Exhibit 5 to this declaration is the Declaration of Layn R. Phillips in Support of Plaintiffs' Motion for Attorneys' Fees, Expenses, and Service Awards and Motion for Final Approval of Settlements with Defendants, which details the mediation with Discover and the subsequent mediations with Amex and then with Visa and Mastercard.

149. The December 6, 2024 mediation was a full-day in-person mediation in New York NY. At the conclusion of this mediation, as the result of a mediator's proposal, Plaintiffs and Discover reached agreement on a settlement in principle. Over the next few weeks, Class Counsel and Discover negotiated and drafted a stipulation of settlement, which was executed on February 10, 2025. Class Counsel and Discover negotiated and executed an amended stipulation of settlement on June 6, 2025 (the "Discover Settlement.").[3] The Discover Settlement provides that Discover will pay $12.2 million to the Common Fund. Discover Settlement, ¶¶36, 65. The Discover Settlement also provided for several forms of cooperation from Discover in further litigation against the remaining Defendants. Id., ¶¶56-57.

150. Following the successful Discover mediation, Class Counsel next turned to Amex. Plaintiffs and Amex attended a full-day in-person mediation on March 28, 2025, also in New York, NY, and again utilizing Judge Phillips. Once again, through a mediator's proposal, Plaintiffs and

[3] The Discover Settlement is Exhibit 1 (Dkt. No. 975-3) to the Declaration of George C. Aguilar in Support of Plaintiffs' Motion for Preliminary Approval of Settlement with Discover and Amex. Dkt. No. 975-2.

Amex were able to reach a settlement in principle at the conclusion of the day of mediation. Thereafter, Class Counsel and Amex negotiated and drafted a stipulation of settlement, which was executed on May 16, 2025 (the "Amex Settlement.").[4] The Amex Settlement. provides that Amex will pay $20 million to the Common Fund. Amex Settlement, ¶¶23, 65. The Amex Settlement also provided for certain terms of cooperation from Amex with Plaintiffs' litigation against the remaining Defendants. Id., ¶¶56-57.

151. Finally, building on the successful icebreaker mediations with the smaller Networks, Plaintiffs tried to mediate for a fifth time with Visa and Mastercard, this time utilizing Judge Phillips. Plaintiffs and Visa and Mastercard attended a full-day in-person mediation on August 13, 2025, in New York, NY with Judge Phillips. At the conclusion of this fifth mediation session, as the result of a mediator's proposal, Plaintiffs and Visa and Mastercard reached agreement on a settlement in principle. Over the next few weeks, Class Counsel and Visa and Mastercard negotiated and drafted a stipulation of settlement, which was executed on September 12, 2025 (the "V/MC Settlement" and together with the Discover Settlement and the Amex Settlement, the "Settlement").[5] The V/MC Settlement provided that Visa and Mastercard will pay $119,700,000, and $79,800,000, respectively, to the Common Fund. V/MC Settlement, ¶¶21, 67.

[4] The Amex Settlement. is Exhibit 2 (Dkt. No. 975-4) to the Declaration of George C. Aguilar in Support of Plaintiffs' Motion for Preliminary Approval of Settlement with Discover and Amex.

[5] The V/MC Settlement is Exhibit 1 (Dkt. No. 980-3) to the Declaration of George C. Aguilar in Support of Plaintiffs' Motion for Preliminary Approval of Settlement with Visa and Mastercard. Dkt. No. 980-2.

F. Class Counsel Have Expended Significant Efforts on Settlement Notice and Preparation for Settlement Administration and Expect to Spend an Even Greater Effort to Administer the Settlement, If Approved

152. Class Counsel prepared and filed a Motion for Preliminary Approval of Settlement with Discover and Amex on June 24, 2025. In connection with this motion, Class Counsel developed a plan of distribution for the common fund established by the Discover and Amex Settlements. Class Counsel also worked with Epiq to determine how to modify the notice plan that had been utilized for class notice, to provide notice of the settlements, when approved. During this process, Class Counsel worked with Epiq and with Plaintiffs' damages expert and his staff to assess the available data and how best to administer the settlement.

153. While the motion was pending, Plaintiffs reached the V/MC Settlement. Class Counsel then submitted a Motion for Preliminary Approval of Settlement with Visa and Mastercard on October 10, 2025. Along with this motion, Class Counsel submitted a proposed order contemplating approval of the Discover, Amex, and V/MC Settlements at the same time.

154. On October 16, 2025, the Court granted preliminary approval of the Discover, Amex, and V/MC Settlements.

155. Class Counsel worked with Epiq to update the notices that had been provided for class certification, modifying them to include all the information the Class would need regarding the Settlement. Class Counsel also oversaw updates to the case website and the phoneline setup for the Action.

156. Class Counsel also continued working with Epiq to revise the distribution plan and preliminarily assess the available data for that process. Class Counsel sent additional data sets to Epiq to help prepare for the settlement administration process. Class Counsel and Epiq also engaged in discussions regarding what information was available and what additional information Class Counsel may be able to obtain.

157. Class Counsel expect that the administration of the Settlement will be a significant undertaking, not only for Epiq but also for Class Counsel. While it is difficult to predict the magnitude of this task at this time, Class Counsel believes it will be a minimum of hundreds of hours in attorney and professional time and could potentially be many more. Class Counsel will remain committed to this Action until the Settlement administration process is fully completed.

III. CLASS COUNSEL'S FEE AND EXPENSE REQUESTS

A. The Time and Labor Devoted to, and Expenses Incurred in, the Action by Plaintiffs' Counsel

158. Class Counsel believe the requested fee is supported by the factors articulated in Goldberger v. Integrated Res., Inc., 209 F. 3d 43, 57 (2d Cir. 2000), and provide further factual support for the analysis of these factors in the following sections. In preparing the expense and lodestar information for submission with this Motion, Class Counsel has utilized a cut-off date for time and expenses of October 16, 2025. This is the date the Court granted preliminary approval of the Settlement.

159. Class Counsel established a set of criteria to review the attorney and professional time and expenses to be claimed as lodestar in connection with this Motion. Class Counsel applied these criteria ourselves to our own expenses and hours, and provided the criteria to RGRD and DG&R and instructed them to apply the criteria to their own records as well. Robbins LLP's time report reflects time recorded and compiled in the firm's electronic time-keeping system. Having carefully reviewed our firm's time records, Class Counsel can aver that the hours reported and the work they reflect were reasonably necessary to the successful commencement, prosecution, and settlement of the Action.

160. Class Counsel conducted a review of all of the time entries for each timekeeper claimed on behalf of Robbins LLP in connection with this Motion. These steps were also communicated to RGRD and DG&R for them to apply to their own timekeepers by the partner(s) in charge of the litigation. Class Counsel reviewed each of our timekeepers' entries to ensure the accuracy of the entries, as well as the reasonableness of the work in relation to this Action. During this process certain reductions were made in the exercise of billing judgment or to reduce the time spent on a task if necessary to ensure it was reasonable. Class Counsel reduced any time for the review or analysis of discovery documents to ten hours per day. Class Counsel ensured that entries were sufficiently detailed to describe the work done or reduced or eliminated the entry accordingly. For travel, any entries that listed only travel without any additional work being performed were reduced by 50%. Any entries relating solely to fee-related work were eliminated. No work in support of this Motion was claimed.

161. In addition, Class Counsel followed the following steps to further refine the time reports of each timekeeper claimed on behalf of Robbins LLP. Class Counsel eliminated any entries for timekeepers who accumulated fewer than twenty hours on the Action. Class Counsel applied current rates to all timekeepers, with the exception of any individuals who left the firm during the pendency of the litigation—those individuals' claimed rates are the rates at the time of their departure.

162. Class Counsel followed all of the above steps regarding the review of all timekeepers claimed on behalf of Robbins LLP and have confirmed that the claimed time was reasonably incurred in service of this Action. The claimed lodestar (which does not include a significant portion of time given the above reductions) for Robbins LLP for purpose of this Motion is: $19,369,205.00. Class Counsel provide timekeeper charts showing the hours incurred, the categories of work performed, and the rates charged for each professional as Exhibit 10. All of this lodestar has been generated on an entirely contingent basis. Class Counsel have no expectation of or right to payment for any of this lodestar from any source other than in connection with this Motion or any other relief that the Court may grant. Robbins LLP's lodestar is based on 33,737.75 hours at hourly rates ranging from $825 to $1,225 for partners, $375 to $560 for associates, and $160 to $350 for staff attorneys, project attorneys, paralegals, and other necessary legal support staff. Robbins LLP's rates are the usual and customary rates charged for each individual in all of our cases, with the exception of the Project Attorneys, tasked primarily with the review and analysis of documents, which has been set solely for purposes of this Action at $300. Robbins LLP's blended hourly rate for this Action is $574.

163. As reported in their own declarations, the lodestar of RGRD is $9,765,555.00 for 18,496.25 hours; the lodestar of DG&R is $3,682,581.25 for 5,034.70 hours; and the lodestar of Amon is $51,600.00 for 64.50 hours. Thus, the total reported lodestar for Plaintiffs' Counsel for purposes of this Motion is $32,868,941.25 for 57,333.20 hours. The blended hourly rate for all plaintiffs' counsel is $573.

164. Class Counsel also engaged in a review of the expenses claimed in support of this Motion. Class Counsel, working with the firm's finance department and other members of the firm's staff as necessary, reviewed each of the expenses that are claimed in connection with this Motion. As with the lodestar, Class Counsel created a set of criteria for the review of the expenses in connection with this Motion, applying those criteria to Robbins LLP's expenses, and providing the criteria to RGRD and DG&R for them to apply to their own expenses. Class Counsel are not claiming any expenses from local counsel Amon in connection with the Motion.

165. The criteria for the review of expenses applied by Robbins LLP, and provided to RGRD and DG&R for them to apply to their firm's respective expenses are: ensuring that the expenses were incurred specifically and only for this Action; ensuring the claimed expenses are the type of expenses appropriately claimed in connection with litigation; removing any upgrade fees to first/business class, and reducing any first class or business class travel to an equivalent fare for economy (or reduced by 30% if the equivalent rate was not available from other travelers); reducing meals to $100/person/meal; removing alcohol where apparent or believed it was consumed; and removing any room upgrade fees.

166. Class Counsel followed all of the above steps regarding the review of expenses and have confirmed that the claimed expenses from Robbins LLP are reasonable, supported by our records, and were incurred in support of litigating this Action. Robbins LLP's claimed expenses for purposes of this Motion are $3,719,222.19. All of these expenses were actually incurred and have been entirely unreimbursed. Class Counsel has no expectation of or right to repayment of these expenses from any source other than in connection with this Motion or any other relief that the Court may grant. Class Counsel provide a chart of the expenses incurred and the categories for such expenses as Exhibit 11.

167. Class Counsel's expenses are for the following categories:

(a) Experts: these expenses are for Plaintiffs' damages and liability experts and their staff;

(b) Discovery Review Platform: these expenses are for the discovery platforms utilized for the review and analysis of discovery, including Relativity and DISCO, along with charges for project management for the same;

(c) Depositions: these expenses are for court reporting, videography, realtime, and other services in connection with depositions;

(d) Mediation: these expenses are for the mediations held with Judge Infante and Judge Phillips, and follow up communications with the mediators;

(e) Travel & Meals: these expenses are for accommodations, transport (including primarily airfare, as well as ubers/taxis/rental cars), parking associated with travel, and meals;

(f) Photocopies: these expenses are for internal printing costs at $0.25 per page and $0.15 per scan;

(g) Research & Investigation: these expenses are for legal research through Westlaw, PACER charges, and research through Bloomberg;

(h) Communications & Messaging: these expenses are for courier costs, postage, and conference call charges; and

(i) Filing/Service Fees: these expenses are for pro hac vice fees and court filing fees.

168. Class Counsel understands from their declarations that RGRD's claimed expenses are $781,985.23 and DG&R's claimed expenses are $47,093.49. Accordingly, the total claimed expenses for purposes of this Motion are $4,548,300.91 (the "Expense Request"). The vast majority of expenses—86%—are for experts, depositions, and discovery review platform costs (72% are for expert costs alone). These expenses amount to 1.96% of the common fund.

169. Class Counsel's expenses do not include any expenses incurred by Epiq in connection with providing notice to the Class of class certification, or notice to the Class of the Settlement. Nor do they include the anticipated costs for administration of the Settlement. Class Counsel expect to submit these expenses, including those already incurred, and those yet-to-be-incurred in service of the Class, to the Court on behalf of Epiq at the appropriate time, with the appropriate support and documentation, to be approved for payment out of the Common Fund. The expenses also do not include the payment of taxes and tax expenses imposed on the Common Fund as defined in the settlement agreements and which will be paid by the Claims Administrator out of the Common Fund.

170. Class Counsel completed sprawling discovery efforts here that included: review and analysis of a massive evidentiary record consisting of 1.97 million documents, spanning tens of millions of pages; expert reports from nine experts, including two of Plaintiffs' experts (with rebuttal reports) and seven for Defendants; and depositions of fifty-five fact witnesses and all nine experts (in some instances multiple times) over seventy-two days of depositions. These efforts were particularly onerous given that Class Counsel built this case without any prior government or related action paving the way. The factual and legal bases for this Action had to be entirely developed from scratch.

171. Class Counsel also defeated motion after motion by Defendants that attempted to have Plaintiffs' claims dismissed outright or greatly diminish Plaintiffs' ability to recover damages at trial. These motions included: motions to dismiss, a motion for judgment on the pleadings, motions to compel arbitration, two motions to decertify the class, five Daubert motions (defeated almost in their entirety), and three motions for summary judgment, among others. Class Counsel obtained certification of the Class after two rounds of briefing with the assistance of Plaintiffs' expert, Dr. Officer.

172. These litigation efforts paved the way for Class Counsel's robust settlement efforts, which included seven mediations with two highly respected and experienced mediators, both of whom are former federal judges.

B. Magnitude and Complexity of the Litigation

173. Additional complexity in this case came from the development of new Supreme Court authority during the pendency of the litigation—Ohio v. American Express Co., 585 U.S.

529 (2018). The Amex case presented an issue that became a focal point of the litigation: does an alleged restraint require a two-sided (i.e. merchant and issuer) analysis as opposed to a one-sided (merchant) analysis. Defendants argued that a two-sided analysis was required, while Plaintiffs maintained that the single-sided analysis performed by Dr. Abrantes-Metz was not only proper, but the more appropriate analysis. This issue permeated Defendants' Daubert motions and summary judgment motions.

C. Risk of the Litigation

174. In taking on this litigation, Class Counsel expected heavy resistance from Defendants, some of the largest companies in the world. The claims pursued here were a novel extension of horizontal price-fixing cases, based on a one-time technological transition in the United States, the adoption of EMV and the accompanying FLS. It was not disputed that the underlying technology being implemented in connection with the FLS—the EMV chip—worked to reduce fraud by being more secure than the magnetic strip technology it supplemented. This presented Defendants with the opportunity to argue—as they did throughout the litigation—that their actions regarding the FLS itself were also designed to reduce fraud and were actually pro-competitive. This supposed pro-fraud-reduction argument fed into Defendants' argument that the Court needed to apply a Rule of Reason analysis to this Action. Similarly, government pressure to adopt EMV and reduce fraud and a significant highly publicized data breach at Target in late 2013 created convenient scapegoats for the lack of any delay of the FLS. Defendants utilized seven experts to ensure they could fully develop these—and myriad other arguments—to defeat Plaintiffs' claims.

175. At no point during this litigation did some external event occur that decreased the risk for Class Counsel. There was no related action that settled, or new government investigation, or public revelation of relevant new evidence.

176. The Supreme Court's decision in Amex created a new point of uncertainty that greatly affected the litigation of this case. Class Counsel devoted significant time and effort to addressing the issues that arose out of this authority in Daubert motions, summary judgment briefing, and in other aspects of the case. This development greatly enhanced the risk for Class Counsel. Defendants seized on this decision to argue that a two-sided market analysis was required and that Dr. Abrantes-Metz's opinions, based on a single-sided analysis, must be rejected. While Class Counsel believed Dr. Abrantes-Metz's opinion was well-founded, Amex presented a significant risk. If the Court were to agree with Defendants that a two-sided analysis was required here, Plaintiffs would have been deprived of Dr. Abrantes-Metz's testimony regarding anticompetitive impact and antitrust injury.

177. Class Counsel also faced serious risk because of Defendants' Illinois Brick defense, where they argued that merchants were not the "direct purchasers" of the chargebacks at issue and thus were barred from recovery.

178. Despite these risks, Class Counsel persevered over nearly a decade of litigation, pressing the case at each stage. Class Counsel took this case on a contingent basis, receiving no payment or promise thereof in exchange for this Action, while taking on $4,548,300.91 in expenses, and devoting 57,333.20 hours of attorney and professional time to this matter. Class Counsel took on the risk that the Action could fail at the motions to dismiss, the motion for judgment on the pleadings, the motion for class certification, the two motions to decertify the class, and Defendants' three summary judgment motions. Class Counsel also faced serious risk through Defendants' five Daubert motions.

D. Quality of Representation

179. Class Counsel provide several measures of the quality of representation here, including the experience of our attorneys and the results achieved. Class Counsel provide further factual support for these measures in this subsection. Robbins LLP is a nationally recognized shareholder rights law firm dedicated to the prosecution of shareholder derivative and class action lawsuits. Since its inception, the firm has been dedicated to complex litigation, and we have achieved significant victories on behalf of shareholders, classes, and companies across the country. The firm has recovered more than $1 billion of value for its clients, classes they represent, and institutions in which they have invested. The firm has received numerous accolades for its work in complex litigation. A true and correct copy of the Firm Resume is attached as Exhibit 9.

180. Dr. Officer's estimates of the chargebacks attributable to each Defendant during the class period are: $762,051,815 for Visa, $544,384,692 for Mastercard, $118,273,655 for Amex, and $29,775,524 for Discover, for a total of $1,454,485,686. However, this figure included chargebacks for merchants who opted-out of the Class, merchants who had their chargebacks reimbursed or absorbed by payment processors or acquiring banks, and government entities who are excluded from the Class. Class Counsel analyzed data available to us, with the assistance of Dr. Officer's staff, including the number and identify of the 334 opt-outs, data regarding absorptions or reimbursements, and data pertaining to government entities, to try to determine an estimate for Plaintiffs' current best-case scenario recoverable damages at trial. After this analysis, Class Counsel believes that the best-case-scenario recoverable damages for Plaintiffs are $1,286,375,666 (Visa: $673,973,571; Mastercard: $481,464,498; Amex: $104,603,540, and Discover: $26,334,057).

181. Visa's experts have provided alternative chargeback calculations for different scenarios for each of the four Defendants through its expert reports. These scenarios include figures for a three-, six-, twelve-, eighteen-, or twenty-four-month delay of the Fraud Liability Shift; along with three different scenarios: 1) a delay of only domestic debit FLS charges, 2) a delay of domestic credit and debit FLS charges, with no delay of cross-border FLS charges; and 3) a delay of credit and debit charges including a delay of cross-border FLS charges. The lowest of these figures is $24,649,294, associated with a three-month delay of only debit transactions. The highest figure is $1,424,068,666 associated with a two-year delay of credit and debit transactions, including cross-border. Visa's experts also provided a figure for a six-month delay of the debit and credit transactions, without cross-border charges (in Visa and Mastercard's summary judgment motion they argued, among other things, that the Court should limit damages to six months and exclude cross-border chargebacks), amounting to $392,390,199, broken up as $223,999,732 (Visa), $126,306,627 (Mastercard), $34,000,000 (Amex), and $8,083,840 (Discover).

E. Requested Fee in Relation to the Common Fund

182. Class Counsel have endeavored to provide the Court with appropriate comparators, and to that end have compiled a list of antitrust class actions that have settled since 2011 with a common fund between $100 and $250 million. Class Counsel filled this list with all such examples that could be located with a diligent search regardless of whether the fee awarded was higher or lower than that sought here. Class Counsel have attached as Exhibit 12 a chart showing those cases, including: (a) the size of the common fund, (b) the fee awarded, and (c) the expenses awarded. Further, the source documents for this chart are attached as Exhibits 13 & 14 (with the Tab numbers corresponding to the chart row number).

183. This Action has always been litigated by a single firm as lead counsel—though assisted throughout by DG&R, and since the transfer to this Court by local counsel.

F. Lodestar Crosscheck

184. Class Counsel's reported lodestar of $32,868,941.25, and resulting multiplier of 2.00, does not take into account the anticipated additional work that Class Counsel will complete relating to administering the settlement. Class Counsel expect to spend hundreds of hours of attorney and professional time, and perhaps more, answering questions from Class members, helping them fill out claims forms, working with Epiq on administering the Distribution Plan, and dealing with any potential disputes or issues that arise.

IV. EXHIBITS

185. Attached hereto are true and correct copies of the following:

Exhibit 1: Declaration of Alexandra S. Bernay in Support of Plaintiffs' Motion for Attorneys' Fees, Expenses, and Service Awards;

Exhibit 2: Declaration of John Devine in Support of Plaintiffs' Motion for Attorneys' Fees, Expenses, and Service Awards;

Exhibit 3: Declaration of Thomas G. Amon in Support of Plaintiffs' Motion for Attorneys' Fees, Expenses, and Service Awards;

Exhibit 4: Declaration of Edward A. Infante in Support of Plaintiffs' Motion for Attorneys' Fees, Expenses, and Service Awards and Motion for Final Approval of Settlements with Defendants;

Exhibit 5: Declaration of Layn R. Phillips in Support of Plaintiffs' Motion for Attorneys' Fees, Expenses, and Service Awards and Motion for Final Approval of Settlements with Defendants;

Exhibit 6: Declaration of Max Milam in Support of Plaintiffs' Motion for Attorneys' Fees, Expenses, and Service Awards and Motion for Final Approval of Settlements with Defendants;

Exhibit 7: Declaration of Stephane Strouk in Support of Plaintiffs' Motion for Attorneys' Fees, Expenses, and Service Awards and Motion for Final Approval of Settlements with Defendants;

Exhibit 8: Declaration of Carlos Collado in Support of Plaintiffs' Motion for Attorneys' Fees, Expenses, and Service Awards and Motion for Final Approval of Settlements with Defendants;

Exhibit 9: Firm Resume of Robbins LLP;

Exhibit 10: Robbins LLP Lodestar Summary;

Exhibit 11: Robbins LLP Expense Summary;

Exhibit 12: Chart: Collection of Antitrust Cases Settling Between 2011 and Now with Common Funds Between $100-250M;

Exhibit 13: Chart Supporting Documents Part I (Tabs 1-27);

Exhibit 14: Chart Supporting Documents Part II (Tabs 28-57);

Exhibit 15: Qsberg v. Foot Locker, Inc., et al., No. 1:07-cv-1358, slip op. (S.D.N.Y. June 8, 2018);

Exhibit 16: 2024 Antitrust Annual Report: Class Actions in Federal Court, Center for Litigation and Courts & Huntington Bank (July 2025); and Exhibit 17: [Proposed] Order Awarding Attorneys' Fees and Expenses and Approving Service Awards.

I declare under penalty of perjury that the foregoing is true and correct. Executed this 23rd day of December, 2025, at San Diego, California.

GEORGE C. AGUILAR

I declare under penalty of perjury that the foregoing is true and correct. Executed this 23rd day of December, 2025, at San Diego, California.

MICHAEL J. NICOUD

CERTIFICATE OF SERVICE

I hereby certify that on December 23, 2025, I authorized the electronic filing of the foregoing, including all exhibits, with the Clerk of the Court using the CM/ECF system, which will send notification of such filing to all registered parties and attorneys of record.

s/ George C. Aguilar

GEORGE C. AGUILAR
ROBBINS LLP
5060 Shoreham Place, Suite 300
San Diego, CA 92122
Telephone: (619) 525-3990
Facsimile: (619) 525-3991
gaguilar@robbinsllp.com

EXHIBIT 1

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
EASTERN DISTRICT OF NEW YORK

B & R SUPERMARKET, INC., d/b/a MILAM'S MARKET, Individually and on Behalf of All Others Similarly Situated, Plaintiff, v. VISA, INC., et al., Defendants.	:	Case No. 1:17-cv-02738-BMC-JAM CLASS ACTION

DECLARATION OF ALEXANDRA S. BERNAY FILED ON BEHALF OF ROBBINS GELLER RUDMAN & DOWD LLP IN SUPPORT OF PLAINTIFFS' MOTION FOR ATTORNEYS' FEES, EXPENSES, AND SERVICE AWARDS

I, ALEXANDRA S. BERNAY, declare as follows:

1. I am an attorney duly licensed to practice before all of the courts of the State of California and was previously admitted pro hac vice in the above-entitled action (the "Action"). I am a member of the law firm of Robbins Geller Rudman & Dowd LLP ("Robbins Geller" or the "Firm"). I have personal knowledge of the matters stated herein and, if called upon, I could and would competently testify thereto. I am submitting this declaration in support of the motion for an award of attorneys' fees, expenses, and service awards (collectively, the "fees and expenses") in connection with services rendered in the Action.

2. This Declaration is intended to assist the Court in assessing the litigation efforts the Firm engaged in, which contributed to the outstanding resolution for the Class as set forth in Plaintiffs' Motion for Preliminary Approval of Settlement with Discover and Amex and Motion for Preliminary Approval of Settlement with Visa and Mastercard, as granted by this Court (Dkt. Nos. 982, 983).

3. This Firm originally represented plaintiffs B & R Supermarket, Inc. (d/b/a Milam's Market), Grove Liquors LLC, Strouk Group LLC (d/b/a Monsieur Marcel), and Palero Food Corp. and Cagueyes Food Corp. (d/b/a Fine Fare Supermarket) (collectively, "Plaintiffs") and the Class herein.

4. The Firm conducted significant, critical work in the Action which supports the Firm's request for fees and expenses. Robbins Geller was counsel of record during a critical and risky time of the case; indeed, the Firm filed the original action on March 8, 2016. Dkt. No. 1. Days later, on March 11, 2016, the Firm filed a motion for injunctive relief, seeking to halt the implementation of the "Liability Shift" that defendants Visa, Inc. and Visa U.S.A., Inc. ("Visa"); Mastercard International Incorporated ("Mastercard"); American Express Company ("Amex");

Discover Financial Services ("Discover," and collectively, the "Networks"); Bank of America, N.A.; Capital One Financial Corporation; Chase Bank USA, National Association, Citibank (South Dakota), N.A.; Citibank, N.A.; PNC Bank, National Association; U.S. Bank National Association; Wells Fargo Bank, N.A.; and EMVCo, LLC (collectively the "Defendants") had announced. Dkt. No. 10. Unlike many antitrust cases, this Action was not a follow-on from a governmental action. Because of this, significant time, investigation and analysis, including the locating and hiring of consultants, was necessary in order to piece together the allegations in a complaint that could withstand a motion to dismiss filed by some of the most sophisticated defense lawyers in the country. Robbins Geller's work in this regard included locating and hiring an expert in EMV technology, becoming subject matter experts on the impact of EMV technology globally and nationwide, meeting with merchants across the country who would be paying fraud liability shifts costs and investigating public statements regarding the change in chargeback policy.

5. Robbins Geller was also retained by additional plaintiffs in the spring and summer of 2016, including plaintiff Fine Fare. This is significant as Fine Fare did not accept Amex cards as a form of payment and was a critically important addition to the case as a party that did not sign an arbitration agreement with Amex.

6. Robbins Geller successfully defeated Defendants' multiple motions to dismiss on September 30, 2016, overcoming a critical hurdle in the Action, as Robbins Geller's successful opposition to the dispositive motions allowed the case to proceed into the discovery phase and ultimately into the settlement/trial phase. Dkt. No. 346. These motions encompassed hundreds of pages of briefing on complex issues ranging from plausibility of the conspiracy pled, to market power and the use of trade organizations as a fora for collusive conduct, and other complex factual matters. To make things more complicated, Defendant Discover filed a motion to compel arbitration. Dkt. No. 308. Robbins Geller opposed that motion (Dkt. No. 319), arguing both the motions to dismiss and the motion to compel arbitration in lengthy hearings in June 2016 and September 2016.

7. Robbins Geller was also responsible for preparing and filing an amended complaint on July 15, 2016. Dkt. No. 291. This included additional investigation to further bolster the claims. The Firm conducted significant legal and factual research, including combing public sources for information regarding Defendants' announcements regarding the Fraud Liability Shift and working with an investigator to find possible former employee witnesses.

8. As the case moved forward, Robbins Geller initiated sprawling discovery efforts, sending out multiple requests for production and interrogatories to the Networks as well as document and data subpoenas to more than 30 third parties. The amount of time spent on discovery was significant as there were multiple defendants and third parties, and the issues were complicated. The enormous amount of discovery resulted in the need for extensive work by lawyers on the case to handle meet-and-confers and deal with disagreements with parties and non-parties. These requests resulted in nearly seven million pages of documents and data being produced to Robbins Geller and hosted on Robbins Geller's internal Relativity hosting platform. In order to properly review this vast number of documents, Robbins Geller developed specific and detailed coding protocols and trained highly qualified and experienced lawyers on an ongoing basis, holding frequent meetings to discuss documents and refine the protocols to ensure the most relevant documents were surfaced. This protocol served as a roadmap for all of the discovery taken in the litigation. Robbins Geller also coordinated and managed Plaintiffs' document production which resulted in thousands of pages of documents being organized, reviewed, and, ultimately, produced to Defendants. This coordination also involved multiple Court hearings regarding discovery disputes as the case moved forward. Robbins Geller lawyers prepared for and argued at these hearings and were responsible for each of the associated filings. See, e.g., Dkt. Nos. 360 (discovery dispute letter), 366 (Order requiring in-person meet-and-confer in Court's jury room).

9. As discovery progressed, Robbins Geller took or defended nearly 20 depositions. These depositions included high-ranking executives, including the Chief Executive Officer of Visa and Vice Presidents and Senior Vice Presidents at Amex, Visa, and Mastercard, substantially progressed the litigation, and contributed to the outstanding settlement. At the same time, Robbins Geller filed the original motion for class certification which required a significant amount of time and effort to synthesize the enormous amount of discovery received and reviewed. The Firm also retained expert Dr. Micah S. Officer and worked closely with him to support the motion for class certification, which was filed on March 10, 2017. Dkt. No. 425. Robbins Geller also handled the response to the multiple oppositions to class certification filed by Defendants, including their proffered expert opinions from David Kaplan. This included researching, preparing, and filing a detailed brief supported by numerous exhibits and a rebuttal report by Dr. Officer. Dkt. No. 503.

10. During the time the Firm was counsel, Robbins Geller participated in a day-long in-person mediation session with the Honorable Edward A. Infante (Ret.) in San Francisco, CA on March 22, 2017. This meeting was attended by parties with settlement authority, and the parties engaged in frank communications regarding the strengths and weaknesses of the Action. Following the mediation session, Judge Infante held numerous calls with the parties in an effort to reach a resolution. Although these sessions did not result in resolution, it helped set the course for the outstanding result reached in this matter.

11. The information in this declaration regarding the Firm's time and fees and expenses is based upon contemporaneously prepared time and fee and expense reports and supporting documentation prepared and/or maintained by the Firm in the ordinary course of business. Although Robbins Geller had a team assigned to this matter, I am the partner who oversaw and/or conducted the day-to-day activities in the Action. During the pendency of the Action, I reviewed the detailed time entries of every timekeeper on a quarterly basis for purposes of ensuring accuracy and reasonableness. I conducted a review of the time and fee and expense reports (and back-up documentation where necessary or appropriate) in connection with the preparation of this declaration. I also worked with other partners at the Firm to review the time and fees and expenses submitted herein. The purpose of this review was to confirm both the accuracy of the entries as well as the necessity for, and reasonableness of, the time and fees and expenses committed to the Action. As a result of this review and the ongoing quarterly reviews, reductions were made in the exercise of billing judgment. Based on this review and the adjustments made, all of which were to write off certain time and/or fees and expenses, I am confident that the time reflected in the Firm's lodestar calculation and the fees and expenses for which payment is sought herein are reasonable and were necessary for the effective and efficient prosecution and resolution of the Action.

12. In addition to the review of the Firm's time and expenses as explained above, I also received instructions from Class Counsel regarding the review of the Firm's time and expense records for submission in connection with the Motion. The Firm followed those instructions, as detailed below, with one caveat: in some instances, the Firm's own policies regarding the review of our time and expenses involved steps or judgments that would reduce our recorded time or expenses even further than the criteria established by Class Counsel. In those instances, we utilized the Firm's more restrictive policies, further reducing our reported time and expenses.

13. I reduced any time for the review or analysis of discovery documents to ten hours per day. I ensured that entries were sufficiently detailed to describe the work done or reduced or eliminated the entry accordingly. For travel, any entries that listed only travel without any additional work being performed were reduced by 50%. Any entries relating solely to fee-related work were eliminated. No work in support of this Motion was claimed.

14. I eliminated any entries for timekeepers who accumulated fewer than 20 hours on the Action. I applied current rates to all timekeepers, with the exception of any individuals who left the Firm during the pendency of the litigation – those individuals' claimed rates are the rates at the time of their departure. The hourly rates applied for each professional are the Firm's current rates in contingent cases set by the Firm, except that in certain instances rates have been decreased as a judgment choice for this Motion specifically, except for the rates for Project Attorneys. Our claimed rates for the Project Attorneys, tasked primarily with the review and analysis of documents, has been set solely for purposes of this Action at $300, a lower rate than we would typically claim for these attorneys. The Firm's regular hourly rates are consistent with hourly rates submitted by the Firm to, and regularly accepted by, state and federal courts in other class action litigations. The Firm's regular rates are set based on periodic analysis of rates charged by firms performing comparable work both on the plaintiff and defense side. Different timekeepers within the same employment category (e.g., partners, associates, paralegals, etc.) may have different rates based on a variety of factors, including, but not limited to, years of practice and the rates of similarly experienced peers at this Firm or other firms. A true and correct copy of the identification and background of the Firm and its partners is attached as Exhibit A.

15. This case was staffed by highly seasoned antitrust litigators, some of whom have since left the firm. I provide here some details regarding the extensive litigation experience of the primary lawyers who worked on the case. I currently serve as co-lead counsel in In re Payment Card Interchange Fee and Merchant Discount Antitrust Litig., in which a settlement of $5.5 billion was upheld by the Second Circuit Court of Appeals. This case was brought on behalf of millions of U.S. merchants against Visa and MasterCard and various card-issuing banks, challenging the way these companies set and collect tens of billions of dollars annually in merchant fees. The settlement is believed to be the largest antitrust class action settlement of all time. In addition, I work on most of the antitrust actions in which the firm is involved including In re American Airlines/JetBlue Antitrust Litig., Leifer v. Live Nation Entertainment, Inc., et al., In re Remicade Antitrust Litig., In re Dealer Mgmt. Sys. Antitrust Litig., and other actions. In this action I was the partner responsible for the day to day work on the case and managed all aspects of the litigation, including briefing, depositions, hearings, discovery and all aspects related to the named plaintiffs in the case. Patrick Coughlin also served as co-lead counsel in In re Payment Card Interchange Fee and Merchant Discount Antitrust Litig., in which a settlement of $5.5 billion was approved in the Eastern District of New York. He also handled a number of large antitrust cases including the Currency Conversion cases in which $360 million was recovered for consumers and the Private Equity litigation (Dahl v. Bain Capital Partners, LLC) in which $590.5 million was recovered for investors. He also served as class counsel in the ISDAfix Benchmark action against 14 major banks and broker ICAP plc, obtaining $504.5 million for plaintiffs. Mr. Coughlin has tried more than 50 cases, including a number of antitrust actions. Mr. Coughlin was responsible for all major strategic decisions in the case. He successfully argued the motion to dismiss and handled mediation efforts as well as taking a key deposition of Visa's top executive. Carmen Medici, formerly a partner, also served as co-lead counsel in the Interchange Fee case. In addition, Mr. Medici was a part of the litigation team in several of Robbins Geller's antitrust actions including In re SSA Bonds Antitrust Litig., In re Dealer Mgmt. Sys. Antitrust Litig., In re Aluminum Warehousing Antitrust Litig., and In re Remicade Antitrust Litig., among other actions. Mr. Medici took a number of depositions, worked on all briefing, including class certification and handled the drafting and filing of the initial and amended complaint. Armen Zohrabian, formerly a senior associate at the firm, worked on several large cases including Persian Gulf v. BP, et al., a massive case against California's gas refiners as well as several of the Firm's complex securities fraud class actions. He also worked as a law clerk for the Federal Trade Commission. Mr. Zohrabian was responsible for all third party discovery and prepared and took many of the depositions in the case. He also worked on briefing the opposition to the motion to dismiss and handled discovery disputes. Lonnie Browne, also a former senior associate, worked on several large antitrust cases including Persian Gulf v. BP, et al., and as class counsel in the ISDAfix Benchmark action against 14 major banks and broker ICAP plc, obtaining $504.5 million for plaintiffs. Mr. Browne was responsible for a number of discovery-related matters in the case, including handling various disputes. He also assisted in briefing various motions.

16. After following all of the above steps, the Firm's claimed lodestar (which does not include a significant portion of time given the above reductions) for purposes of this Motion is 18,496.25 hours, representing $9,765,555.00. The Firm has not been paid for this lodestar, which has been incurred on an entirely contingent basis. I have provided timekeeper charts showing the hours incurred, the categories of work performed, and the rates charged for each professional as Exhibit B.

17. I have also engaged in a review of the expenses claimed by the Firm in connection with this Motion, again with instructions from Class Counsel. Once again, where the Firm's own policies would reduce our reported expenses below what would be reported by following Class Counsel's instructions, we followed our more restrictive approach. The Firm followed the instructions for review of the expenses, as instructed by Class Counsel, as detailed below.

18. I ensured that the expenses claimed by the Firm were incurred specifically and only for this Action; that the expenses were the type of expenses appropriately claimed in connection with litigation; I removed any upgrade fees to first/business class, and reduced any first class or business class travel to an equivalent fare for economy (or reduced by 30% if the equivalent rate was not available from other travelers); I reduced meals to $75.00 person/meal; I removed alcohol where apparent or believed it was consumed; and removed any room upgrade fees.

19. After following all of the above steps for the review of the Firm's expenses, the expense claimed by the Firm in connection with the Motion are $781,985.23. All of these expenses were actually incurred and have been entirely unreimbursed. I have provided a chart of the expenses incurred and the categories for such expenses as Exhibit C.

20. The following is additional information regarding certain of these fees and expenses incurred by the Firm:

(a) Filing and Attorney Service Fees: $14,845.50. These fees and expenses have been paid to the Court for filing fees and to attorney service firms who, among other things, served process of the complaint or subpoenas and delivered courtesy copies of documents to judges' chambers.

(b) Transportation, Hotels, and Meals: $115,039.17. In connection with the prosecution of this Action, the Firm has paid for travel expenses to, among other things, attend Court hearings, meet with witnesses, experts, mediators, and opposing counsel, and take or defend depositions.

(c) Court Hearing Transcripts and Deposition Reporting, Transcripts, and Videography: $47,649.00.

(d) Experts, Consultants, and Investigators: $273,363.18.

(i) Litinomics, Inc.: $186,601.22. Litinomics, Inc. was engaged to provide expert services related to damages and liability.

(ii) Micah S. Officer: $57,426.46. Mr. Officer was hired as an expert to provide reports and opinions concerning class certification and damages.

(iii) Civil Action Group, Ltd.: $14,808.50. Civil Action Group, Ltd. was hired to provide required translation services to properly serve two foreign-based defendants prior to their dismissal from the Action.

(iv) Anadyne Holdings, Inc.: $10,239.00. Anadyne Holdings, Inc. was hired in the initial phase of the case to assist in providing consulting services of its principal, Edward Slominski, related to the history and technical aspects of EMV migration.

(v) Mason Investigative Group, Inc.: $4,288.00. Mason Investigative Group, Inc. was hired to provide research regarding possible witnesses related to Defendants' former employees.

(e) Photocopies: $25,805.07. In connection with this case, the Firm made 26,478 black and white copies. Robbins Geller requests $0.15 per page for a total of $3,971.70. The Firm also made 187 color copies. Robbins Geller requests $0.50 per page for a total of $93.50. Each time an in-house copy machine is used, our billing system requires that a case or administrative billing code be entered, and that is how the number of in-house copies were identified as related to the Action. The Firm also paid $21,739.87 to outside copy vendors.

(f) Online Legal and Financial Research: $18,640.53. This category includes vendors such as LexisNexis Products, PACER, and Westlaw. These resources were used to obtain access to public filings, factual databases, legal research, and for proofreading and "blue-booking" Court filings (including checking all legal authorities cited and quoted in briefs). This category represents the fees and expenses incurred by Robbins Geller for use of these services in connection with this Action. The charges for these vendors vary depending upon the type of services requested. For example, Robbins Geller has flat-rate contracts with some of these providers for use of their services. When Robbins Geller utilizes online services provided by a vendor with a flat-rate contract, access to the service is by a billing code entered for the specific case being litigated. At the end of each billing period in which such service is used, Robbins Geller's costs for such services are allocated to specific cases based on the percentage of use in connection with that specific case in the billing period. As a result of the contracts negotiated by Robbins Geller with certain providers, the Class enjoys substantial savings in comparison with the "market-rate" for à la carte use of such services which some law firms pass on to their clients.

(g) eDiscovery Database Hosting: $228,734.48. Robbins Geller has installed top-tier database software, infrastructure, and security. The platform implemented, Relativity, is offered by over 100 vendors and is currently being used by 198 of the Am Law 200 firms. Over 50 servers are dedicated to Robbins Geller's Relativity hosting environment with all data stored in a secure SSAE 18 Tier III data center with automatic replication to a datacenter located in a different geographic location. By hosting in-house, Robbins Geller is able to charge a reduced all-inclusive rate that includes many services which are often charged as extra fees when hosted by a third-party vendor. Robbins Geller's hosting fee includes user logins, ingestion, processing, OCRing, TIFFing, Bates-stamping, productions, and archiving – all at no additional per unit cost. Robbins Geller is able to provide all these services for a cost that is typically much lower than outsourcing to a third-party vendor. Utilizing this secure, advanced platform in-house has allowed Robbins Geller to prosecute actions more efficiently and has reduced the expense to the Class of maintaining and searching electronic discovery databases. Similar to third-party vendors, Robbins Geller uses a tiered-rate system to calculate hosting charges. This amount reflects charges for managing and hosting from case inception until the Action transitioned to Robbins LLP. There was some overlap between Robbins Geller and Robbins LLP during the transition period where Robbins LLP reviewers continued to access the Relativity database, but Robbins Geller did not. The amount requested reflects charges for the hosting of over 7.1 million pages of documents received by parties and non-parties in this Action.

(h) Database Analytics: $27,760.50. Relativity-structured analytics is a software package that was utilized by the attorneys as part of the electronic review of over 7.1 million pages of documents. This technology allowed Robbins Geller to group email threads together and identify the most inclusive email, which increased the efficiency of the review.

(i) Mediation Fees (JAMS, Inc.): $15,080.00. The parties retained certain mediators to provide mediation services in the Action.

(j) Publications and Subscriptions: $4,219.45. This amount represents the cost of several articles and publication materials used for research during the Action.

21. The fees and expenses pertaining to this case are reflected in the books and records of this Firm. These books and records are prepared from receipts, expense vouchers, check records, and other documents and are an accurate record of the fees and expenses.

I declare under penalty of perjury, under the laws of the United States of America, that the foregoing is true and correct. Executed this 23rd day of December, 2025, at San Diego, California.

ALEXANDRA S. BERNAY

EXHIBIT A

GLOBAL ANTITRUST AND UNFAIR COMPETITION PRACTICE RESUME

Robbins Geller Rudman & Dowd LLP

(800) 449-4900 | rgrdlaw.com

TABLE OF CONTENTS

Introduction

Antitrust

Antitrust Attorneys 3
Notable Antitrust Achievements and Recoveries 6

Additional Practice Areas and Services

Securities Fraud 8
Shareholder Derivative and Corporate Governance Litigation 15
Options Backdating Litigation 17
Corporate Takeover Litigation 18
Consumer Fraud and Privacy 20
Human Rights, Labor Practices, and Public Policy 24
Environment and Public Health 25
Pro Bono 26

Prominent Cases and Judicial Commendations

Prominent Cases 29
Additional Judicial Commendations 38

Precedent-Setting Decisions

Investor and Shareholder Rights 45
Consumer Protection 50

Attorney Biographies

Partners 52
Of Counsel 134
Counsel 157
Special Counsel 158
Forensic Accountants 158

INTRODUCTION

Robbins Geller Rudman & Dowd LLP ("Robbins Geller" or the "Firm") is a 200-lawyer firm with offices in Boca Raton, Chicago, Manhattan, Melville, Nashville, San Diego, San Francisco, Philadelphia, Washington, D.C., and Wilmington (www.rgrdlaw.com). The Firm is actively engaged in complex litigation, emphasizing antitrust, securities, consumer, insurance, healthcare, human rights and employment discrimination class actions. The Firm's unparalleled experience and capabilities in these fields are based upon the talents of its attorneys, who have successfully prosecuted thousands of class action lawsuits and numerous individual cases, recovering billions of dollars.

The Firm's record of success includes some of the largest recoveries in history, including the largest antitrust class action settlement: $5.5 billion (Visa/Mastercard); the largest securities class action recovery: $7.2 billion (Enron); and the largest securities class action recovery following a trial: $1.575 billion (HSBC Finance Corp.).

This successful track record stems from our experienced attorneys, including many who came to the Firm from federal or state law enforcement agencies. The Firm also includes several dozen former federal and state judicial clerks. The depth and breadth of the Firm's resources are unequalled. With hundreds of highly skilled attorneys and employees, including forensic accountants, economists, damage analysts, investigators, paralegals, database programmers and computer security experts, Robbins Geller is able to give the highest level of attention and professionalism to each case and client.

The Firm is committed to practicing law with the highest level of integrity in an ethical and professional manner. We are a diverse firm with lawyers and staff from all walks of life. Our lawyers and other employees are hired and promoted based on the quality of their work and their ability to treat others with respect and dignity.

We strive to be good corporate citizens and work with a sense of global responsibility. Contributing to our communities and environment is important to us. We often take cases on a pro bono basis and are committed to the rights of workers, and to the extent possible, we contract with union vendors. We care about civil rights, workers' rights and treatment, workplace safety and environmental protection. Indeed, while we have built a reputation as the finest securities and consumer class action law firm in the nation, our lawyers have also worked tirelessly in less high-profile, but no less important, cases involving human rights and other social issues.

Private antitrust "suits provide a significant supplement to the limited resources available to the Department of Justice for enforcing the antitrust laws and deterring violations."

- Reiter v. Sonotone Corp., 442 U.S. 330, 344 (1979).

ANTITRUST

Robbins Geller's antitrust attorneys have successfully prosecuted some of the nation's most complicated antitrust actions. Able to draw on exceptional resources and experience, the Firm's cadre of antitrust specialists are willing and able to bring each case to trial. Several of the Firm's antitrust attorneys, including David W. Mitchell, are former Assistant U.S. Attorneys with extensive criminal and civil trial experience, and the Firm's roll of attorneys includes more than 25 former federal and state judicial clerks. Robbins Geller also features a strong appellate department with U.S. Supreme Court experience.

Robbins Geller has been appointed lead counsel in numerous federal antitrust class actions, and has achieved some of the largest recoveries on behalf of antitrust plaintiffs. For example:

- In re Payment Card Interchange Fee and Merchant Discount Antitrust Litigation, MDL No. 1720 (E.D.N.Y.). Co-lead counsel. Settled for $5.5 billion.

- Dahl v. Bain Capital Partners, LLC, No. 07-cv-12388 (D. Mass). Co-lead counsel. Settled for $590.5 million.

- Alaska Electrical Pension Fund v. Bank of America Corp., No. 14-cv-07126 (S.D.N.Y.). Co-lead counsel. Settled for $504 million.

- In re Currency Conversion Fee Antitrust Litig., 01 MDL No. 1409 (S.D.N.Y.). Co-lead counsel. Settled for $336 million.

- Hall v. NCAA (Restricted Earnings Coach Antitrust Litigation), No. 94-2392 (D. Kan.). Lead counsel for one of the three classes of coaches. After successful jury trial, settled for more than $70 million.

- Thomas & Thomas Rodmakers, Inc. v. Newport Adhesives & Composites, Inc. (Carbon Fiber Antitrust Litigation), No. CV-99-07796 (C.D. Cal.). Co-lead counsel. Settled for $67.5 million.

Courts have recognized Robbins Geller's attorneys for the results they have achieved. In approving an antitrust class action settlement in which Robbins Geller served as co-lead counsel, the court praised counsel for providing "extraordinarily high-quality representation" and for litigating with "enormous attention to detail and unflagging devotion to the cause." In re Currency Conversion Fee Antitrust Litig., 263 F.R.D. 110, 129 (S.D.N.Y. 2009). The judge said the attorneys "represented the Class with a high degree of professionalism, and vigorously litigated every issue against some of the ablest lawyers in the antitrust defense bar." Id.

Antitrust Attorneys

Samuel H. Rudman, Partner. Sam Rudman is a founding member of the Firm, a member of the Firm's Executive and Management Committees, and manages the Firm's New York offices.

Rudman is co-lead counsel in several multi-district antitrust class actions pending in federal courts around the country, including In re Aluminum Warehousing Antitrust Litig., No. 13-md-2481 (S.D.N.Y.), and leads the Firm's litigation teams In re Domestic Airline Travel Antitrust Litig., No. 15-mc-01404 (D.D.C.), and In re Treasury Sec. Auction Litig., No. 15-cv-05794 (S.D.N.Y.).

In addition to antitrust litigation, Rudman's practice focuses on recognizing and investigating securities fraud, and initiating securities and shareholder class actions to vindicate shareholder rights and recover shareholder losses. A former attorney with the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission, Rudman has recovered hundreds of millions of dollars for shareholders, including: $129 million recovery in In re Doral Fin. Corp. Sec. Litig., No. 05 MD 1706 (S.D.N.Y.); $74 million recovery in In re First BanCorp Sec. Litig., No. 05-CV-2148 (D.P.R.); $65 million recovery in In re Forest Labs., Inc. Sec. Litig., No. 05-CV-2827 (S.D.N.Y.); and $50 million recovery in In re TD Banknorth S'holders Litig., No. 2557-VCL (Del. Ch.).

In the TD Banknorth litigation, the court appointed Rudman and the Firm to be lead counsel for the plaintiff class only after rejecting as "wholly inadequate" the settlement negotiated for the class by another law firm. When the Firm later achieved a $50 million recovery for the class, the court stated: "This is one of the cases – there's probably been a half a dozen since I've been a judge that I handled which have – really through the sheer diligence and effort of plaintiffs' counsel – resulted in substantial awards for plaintiffs, after overcoming serious procedural and other barriers. . . . [I]t appears plainly from the papers that you and your co-counsel have diligently, and at great personal expense and through the devotion of many thousands of hours of your time, prosecuted this case to a successful conclusion." The court also credited the Firm with raising the inadequacy of the initial settlement.

David W. Mitchell, Partner. David Mitchell is a former Assistant U.S. Attorney in the Southern District of California. While at the United States Attorney's Office, he worked on cases involving narcotics trafficking, bank robbery, murder-for-hire and alien smuggling. He tried nearly 20 cases to verdict before federal criminal juries and made numerous appellate arguments before the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals.

Mitchell's practice focuses on antitrust and securities fraud litigation. He leads the Firm's antitrust benchmark rate litigations as well as the Firm's pay-for-delay actions. He has served as lead or co-lead counsel in numerous cases and has helped achieve substantial settlements for shareholders. His most notable cases include Dahl v. Bain Cap. Partners, LLC, obtaining more than $590 million for shareholders, and In re Payment Card Interchange Fee and Merchant Discount Antitrust Litig., in which a settlement of $5.5 billion was approved in the Eastern District of New York. This case was brought on behalf of millions of U.S. merchants against Visa and MasterCard and various card-issuing banks, challenging the way these companies set and collect tens of billions of dollars annually in merchant fees. The settlement is believed to be the largest antitrust class action settlement of all time. Additionally, Mitchell served as class counsel in the ISDAfix Benchmark action against 14 major banks and broker ICAP plc, obtaining $504.5 million for plaintiffs. Currently, Mitchell serves as court-appointed counsel in In re Aluminum Warehousing Antitrust Litig., City of Providence, Rhode Island v. BATS Global Markets Inc., In re SSA Bonds Antitrust Litig., In re Remicade Antitrust Litig., and In re 1-800 Contacts Antitrust Litig.

Mitchell is a member of the prestigious Enright Inn of Court. He was nationally recognized for his legal work and named an "Antitrust Trailblazer" by The National Law Journal, which honored attorneys for their achievements in various specialties. The American Antitrust Institute 2018 Antitrust Enforcement Awards selected him as an Honoree in the category of Outstanding Antitrust Litigation Achievement in Private Law Practice for his work in Alaska Electrical Pension Fund v. Bank of America Corp. Mitchell has also been named to the Best Lawyers in America and the Southern California Best Lawyers lists by Best Lawyers® and the "Best of the Bar – The Most Outstanding Lawyers in San Diego" list by the San Diego Business Journal. In addition, he has been named multiple times to the Super Lawyers list and the Global Directory of Who's Who. He has also been named a Leading Lawyer in America and a Leading Plaintiff Financial Lawyer by Lawdragon.

Mark J. Dearman, Partner. Mark Dearman is a partner in the Firm's Boca Raton office. Dearman, along with other Robbins Geller attorneys, is currently leading the effort on behalf of cities and counties around the country in In re National Prescription Opiate Litig. He was recently appointed to the Plaintiffs' Steering Committee in In re Zantac (Ranitidine) Prods. Liab. Litig., and as Chair of the Plaintiffs' Executive Committee in In re Apple Inc. Device Performance Litig., Dearman obtained a $310 million settlement. His other recent representative cases include In re FieldTurf Artificial Turf Mktg. Pracs. Litig., No. 3:17-md-02779 (D.N.J.); In re NHL Players' Concussion Injury Litig., MDL No. 14-2551 (SRN), 2015 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 38755 (D. Minn. Mar. 25, 2015); In re Sony Gaming Networks & Customer Data Sec. Breach Litig., 903 F. Supp. 2d 942 (S.D. Cal. 2012); In re Volkswagen "Clean Diesel" Mktg., Sales Pracs., & Prods. Liab. Litig., MDL No. 2672 CRB (JSC), 2016 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 1357 (N.D. Cal. Jan. 5, 2016); In re Ford Fusion & C-Max Fuel Econ. Litig., No. 13-MD-2450 (KMK), 2015 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 155383 (S.D.N.Y. Nov. 12, 2015); Looper v. FCA US LLC, No. 5:14-cv-00700-VAP-DTB (C.D. Cal.); In re Aluminum Warehousing Antitrust Litig., 95 F. Supp. 3d 419 (S.D.N.Y. 2015), aff'd, 833 F.3d 151 (2d Cir. 2016); In re Liquid Aluminum Sulfate Antitrust Litig., No. 16-md-2687 (JLL) (JAD) (D.N.J.); In re Winn-Dixie Stores, Inc. S'holder Litig., No. 16-2011-CA-010616 (Fla. 4th Jud. Cir. Ct., Duval Cnty.); Gemelas v. Dannon Co. Inc., No. 1:08-cv-00236 (N.D. Ohio); and In re AuthenTec, Inc. S'holder Litig., No. 05-2012-CA-57589 (Fla. 18th Jud. Cir. Ct., Brevard Cnty.).

Dearman is a member of the faculty of the inaugural Mass Torts MDL Certificate Program at the Bolch Judicial Institute of Duke Law School (March 2019). He is also a member of The National Trial Lawyers Top 100 (March 2021). He has been rated AV by Martindale-Hubbell (the highest rating available), named a Leading Plaintiff Financial Lawyer by Lawdragon, and has been recognized as a Florida Super Lawyer by Super Lawyers Magazine for seven consecutive years. Dearman has also been recognized by his peers as being in the top 1.5% of Florida Civil Trial Lawyers as published in Florida Trend's Florida Legal Elite.

Before joining the Firm, Dearman spent several years defending Fortune 500 companies in all aspects of litigation, with an emphasis in complex commercial litigation, consumer claims, and mass torts (products liability and personal injury). Dearman went on to found the firm of Dearman & Gerson where he continued to defend many publicly traded corporations for over 12 years. Within the last 20 years of practice, Dearman has obtained extensive jury trial experience on the plaintiffs' side, protecting the rights of investors throughout the United States.

Dearman received a Bachelor of Arts degree from the University of Florida. He earned his Juris Doctor degree from Nova Southeastern University. Upon graduation from law school, he worked in the Miami office of Ruden, McClosky, Smith, Schuster & Russell.

Alexandra S. Bernay, Partner. Xan Bernay is a partner in the Firm's San Diego office, where she specializes in antitrust and unfair competition class-action litigation. She has also worked on some of the Firm's largest securities fraud class actions, including the Enron litigation, which recovered an unprecedented $7.2 billion for investors.

Bernay currently serves as co-lead counsel in In re Payment Card Interchange Fee and Merchant Discount Antitrust Litig., in which a settlement of $5.5 billion was upheld by the Second Circuit Court of Appeals. This case was brought on behalf of millions of U.S. merchants against Visa and MasterCard and various card-issuing banks, challenging the way these companies set and collect tens of billions of dollars annually in merchant fees. The settlement is believed to be the largest antitrust class action settlement of all time.

Additionally, Bernay is involved in In re Remicade Antitrust Litig. pending in the Eastern District of Pennsylvania – a large case that settled for $25 million involving anticompetitive conduct in the biosimilars market, where the Firm was sole lead counsel for the end-payor plaintiffs. She is also part of the litigation team in In re American Airlines/JetBlue Antitrust Litig. pending in the Eastern District of New York. That case is brought on behalf of airline passengers who overpaid for tickets because of alleged anticompetitive conduct between American and JetBlue. She is also a member of the team in In re Dealer Mgmt. Sys. Antitrust Litig. (N.D. Ill.), which involves anticompetitive conduct related to dealer management systems on behalf of auto dealerships across the country. Another representative case is against Lloyd's of London. That action is a massive civil RICO case against the insurance company and its syndicates.

Bernay has also had experience in large consumer class actions, including In re Checking Account Overdraft Litig., which case was brought on behalf of bank customers who were overcharged for debit card transactions and resulted in more than $500 million in settlements with major banks that manipulated customers' debit transactions to maximize overdraft fees. She also helped try to verdict a case against one of the world's largest companies who was sued on behalf of consumers. Her more recent trial experience includes a jury trial related to foreign exchange trading against one of the largest banks in the world, where the jury found that plaintiffs had proved a conspiracy as to a large network of banks. She was responsible for many of the successful trial motions in the case.

Arthur L. Shingler III, Partner. Arthur Shingler is a partner in the Firm's San Diego office. Shingler has successfully represented both public and private sector clients in hundreds of complex, multi-party actions with billions of dollars in dispute. Throughout his career, he has obtained outstanding results for those he has represented in cases generally encompassing shareholder derivative and securities litigation, unfair business practices and antitrust litigation, publicity rights and advertising litigation, ERISA litigation, and other insurance, health care, employment, and commercial disputes.

Representative matters in which Shingler has served as a core member of the litigation team or settlement counsel include, among others: In re EpiPen (Epinephrine Injection, USP) Marketing, Sales Practices & Antitrust Litig., No. 2:17-md-02785 (D. Kan.) ($609 million total recovery achieved weeks prior to trial in certified class action alleging antitrust claims involving the illegal reverse payment settlement to delay the generic EpiPen, which allowed the prices of the life-saving EpiPen to rise over 600% in 9 years); In re Remicade Antitrust Litig., No. 2:17-cv-04326 (E.D. Pa.) ($25 million recovery for indirect purchasers in antitrust action); In re Liquid Aluminum Sulfate Antitrust Litig., No. 2:16-md-02687 (D.N.J.) (direct purchaser class settled in excess of $100 million); NECA-IBEW Health & Welfare Fund v. Goldman Sachs & Co., No. 1:08-cv-10783 (S.D.N.Y.) ($272 million recovery); In re Royal Dutch/Shell ERISA Litig., No. 3:04-cv-00374 (D.N.J.) ($90 million settlement); In re Priceline.com Sec. Litig., No. 3:00-cv-01884 (D. Conn.) ($80 million settlement); In re General Motors ERISA Litig., No. 05-71085 (E.D. Mich.) ($37.5 million settlement, in addition to significant revision of retirement plan administration); Wood v. Ionatron, Inc., No. 4:06-cv-00354 (D. Ariz.) ($6.5 million settlement); In re Lattice Semiconductor Corp. Derivative Litig., No. C 043327CV (Or. Cir. Ct., Wash. Cnty.) (corporate governance settlement, including substantial revision of board policies and executive management); In re 360networks Class Action Sec. Litig., No. 1:02-cv-04837 (S.D.N.Y.) ($7 million settlement); and Rothschild v. Tyco Int'l (US), Inc., 83 Cal. App. 4th 488 (2000) (shaped scope of California's Unfair Practices Act as related to limits of State's False Claims Act).

In addition, Shingler is currently working on behalf of plaintiffs in several class actions, including, for example, In re National Prescription Opiate Litig., No. 1:17-md-02804 (N.D. Ohio), and In re American Airlines/JetBlue Antitrust Litig., No. 1:22-cv-07374 (E.D.N.Y.).

Arthur earned a Bachelor of Arts degree, cum laude, from Point Loma Nazarene College and a Juris Doctor degree from Boston University School of Law.

Vincent M. Serra, Partner. Vincent Serra is a partner in the Firm's Melville office and focuses his practice on complex antitrust, consumer, employment, and securities litigation. His efforts have contributed to the recovery of billions of dollars on behalf of aggrieved plaintiffs and class members. Serra has contributed to several significant antitrust recoveries, including In re Currency Conversion Fee Antitrust Litig. ($336 million recovery).

Serra was also a member of the team of attorneys who secured a $590.5 million settlement on behalf of investors in Dahl v. Bain Capital Partners, LLC, an antitrust action against some of the world's largest and most powerful private equity firms in the world alleging collusive practices in multi-billion dollar leveraged buyouts. Additionally, Serra was part of the litigation team that obtained a $22.75 million settlement fund on behalf of route drivers in an action asserting violations of federal and state overtime laws against Cintas Corp. He was also part of the successful trial team in Lebrilla v. Farmers Grp., Inc., which involved Farmers' practice of using inferior imitation parts when repairing insureds' vehicles. Other notable cases include Alaska Elec. Pension Fund v. Pharmacia Corp. ($164 million recovery), In re Priceline.com Sec. Litig. ($80 million recovery), and In re DouYu Int'l Holdings Ltd. Sec. Litig ($15 million recovery pending final approval).

Serra has been listed as a Best Lawyer in America: One to Watch by Best Lawyers®. He earned his Bachelor of Arts degree in International Relations with a minor in History from the University of Delaware and his Juris Doctor degree from California Western School of Law, where he received the Wiley W. Manuel award for pro bono legal services. He interned and clerked at the Firm during law school.

Notable Antitrust Achievements and Recoveries

Robbins Geller's antitrust practice focuses on representing businesses and individuals who have been the victims of price-fixing, unlawful monopolization, market allocation, tying, and other anti-competitive conduct. The Firm has taken a leading role in many of the largest federal and state price-fixing, monopolization, market allocation, and tying cases throughout the United States.

- In re Payment Card Interchange Fee and Merchant Discount Antitrust Litigation, MDL No. 1720 (E.D.N.Y.). Robbins Geller attorneys, serving as co-lead counsel on behalf of merchants, obtained a settlement amount of $5.54 billion. In approving the settlement, the court noted that Robbins Geller and co-counsel "demonstrated the utmost professionalism despite the demands of the extreme perseverance that this case has required, litigating on behalf of a class of over 12 million for over fourteen years, across a changing legal landscape, significant motion practice, and appeal and remand. Class counsel's pedigree and efforts alone speak to the quality of their representation."

- Dahl v. Bain Cap. Partners, LLC, No. 07-cv-12388 (D. Mass). Robbins Geller attorneys served as co-lead counsel on behalf of shareholders in this antitrust action against the nation's largest private equity firms that colluded to restrain competition and suppress prices paid to shareholders of public companies in connection with leveraged buyouts. Robbins Geller attorneys recovered more than $590 million for the class from the private equity firm defendants, including Goldman Sachs Group Inc. and Carlyle Group LP.

- Alaska Elec. Pension Fund v. Bank of Am. Corp., No. 14-cv-07126 (S.D.N.Y.). Robbins Geller attorneys prosecuted antitrust claims against 14 major banks and broker ICAP plc who were alleged to have conspired to manipulate the ISDAfix rate, the key interest rate for a broad range of interest rate derivatives and other financial instruments in contravention of the competition laws. The class action was brought on behalf of investors and market participants who entered into interest rate derivative transactions between 2006 and 2013. Final approval has been granted to settlements collectively yielding $504.5 million from all defendants.

- In re Currency Conversion Fee Antitrust Litig., 01 MDL No. 1409 (S.D.N.Y.). Robbins Geller attorneys served as lead counsel and recovered $336 million for a class of credit and debit cardholders. The court praised the Firm as "indefatigable," noting that the Firm's lawyers "vigorously litigated every issue against some of the ablest lawyers in the antitrust defense bar."

- In re SSA Bonds Antitrust Litig., No. 1:16-cv-03711 (S.D.N.Y.). Robbins Geller attorneys are serving as co-lead counsel in a case against several of the world's largest banks and the traders of certain specialized government bonds. They are alleged to have entered into a wide-ranging price-fixing and bid-rigging scheme costing pension funds and other investors hundreds of millions. To date, three of the more than a dozen corporate defendants have settled for $95.5 million.

- In re Aftermarket Auto. Lighting Prods. Antitrust Litig., 09 MDL No. 2007 (C.D. Cal.). Robbins Geller attorneys served as co-lead counsel in this multi-district litigation in which plaintiffs allege that defendants conspired to fix prices and allocate markets for automotive lighting products. The last defendants settled just before the scheduled trial, resulting in total settlements of more than $50 million. Commenting on the quality of representation, the court commended the Firm for "expend[ing] substantial and skilled time and efforts in an efficient manner to bring this action to conclusion."

- In re Dynamic Random Access Memory (DRAM) Antitrust Litig., 02 MDL No. 1486 (N.D. Cal.). Robbins Geller attorneys served on the executive committee in this multi-district class action in which a class of purchasers of dynamic random access memory (or DRAM) chips alleged that the leading manufacturers of semiconductor products fixed the price of DRAM chips from the fall of 2001 through at least the end of June 2002. The case settled for more than $300 million.

- Microsoft I-V Cases, JCCP No. 4106 (Cal. Super. Ct., San Francisco Cnty.). Robbins Geller attorneys served on the executive committee in these consolidated cases in which California indirect purchasers challenged Microsoft's illegal exercise of monopoly power in the operating system, word processing, and spreadsheet markets. In a settlement approved by the court, class counsel obtained an unprecedented $1.1 billion worth of relief for the business and consumer class members who purchased the Microsoft products.

ADDITIONAL PRACTICE AREAS AND SERVICES

Securities Fraud

As recent corporate scandals demonstrate clearly, it has become all too common for companies and their executives – often with the help of their advisors, such as bankers, lawyers, and accountants – to manipulate the market price of their securities by misleading the public about the company's financial condition or prospects for the future. This misleading information has the effect of artificially inflating the price of the company's securities above their true value. When the underlying truth is eventually revealed, the prices of these securities plummet, harming those innocent investors who relied upon the company's misrepresentations.

Robbins Geller is the leader in the fight to protect investors from corporate securities fraud. We utilize a wide range of federal and state laws to provide investors with remedies, either by bringing a class action on behalf of all affected investors or, where appropriate, by bringing individual cases.

The Firm's reputation for excellence has been repeatedly noted by courts and has resulted in the appointment of Firm attorneys to lead roles in hundreds of complex class-action securities and other cases. In the securities area alone, the Firm's attorneys have been responsible for a number of outstanding recoveries on behalf of investors. Currently, Robbins Geller attorneys are lead or named counsel in hundreds of securities class action or large institutional-investor cases. Some notable current and past cases include:

- In re Enron Corp. Sec. Litig., No. H-01-3624 (S.D. Tex.). Robbins Geller attorneys and lead plaintiff The Regents of the University of California aggressively pursued numerous defendants, including many of Wall Street's biggest banks, and successfully obtained settlements in excess of $7.2 billion for the benefit of investors. This is the largest securities class action recovery in history.

- Jaffe v. Household Int'l, Inc., No. 02-C-05893 (N.D. Ill.). As sole lead counsel, Robbins Geller obtained a record-breaking settlement of $1.575 billion after 14 years of litigation, including a six-week jury trial in 2009 that resulted in a securities fraud verdict in favor of the class. In 2015, the Seventh Circuit Court of Appeals upheld the jury's verdict that defendants made false or misleading statements of material fact about the company's business practices and financial results, but remanded the case for a new trial on the issue of whether the individual defendants "made" certain false statements, whether those false statements caused plaintiffs' losses, and the amount of damages. The parties reached an agreement to settle the case just hours before the retrial was scheduled to begin on June 6, 2016. The $1.575 billion settlement, approved in October 2016, is the largest ever following a securities fraud class action trial, the largest securities fraud settlement in the Seventh Circuit and the eighth-largest settlement ever in a post-PSLRA securities fraud case. According to published reports, the case was just the seventh securities fraud case tried to a verdict since the passage of the PSLRA.

- In re Valeant Pharms. Int'l, Inc. Sec. Litig., No. 3:15-cv-07658 (D.N.J.). As sole lead counsel, Robbins Geller attorneys obtained a $1.2 billion settlement in the securities case that Vanity Fair reported as "the corporate scandal of its era" that had raised "fundamental questions about the functioning of our health-care system, the nature of modern markets, and the slippery slope of ethical rationalizations." The settlement resolves claims that defendants made false and misleading statements regarding Valeant's business and financial performance during the class period, attributing Valeant's dramatic growth in revenues and profitability to "innovative new marketing approaches" as part of a business model that was low risk and "durable and sustainable." Valeant is the largest securities class action settlement against a pharmaceutical manufacturer and the ninth largest ever.

- In re Am. Realty Cap. Props., Inc. Litig., No. 1:15-mc-00040 (S.D.N.Y.). As sole lead counsel, Robbins Geller attorneys zealously litigated the case arising out of ARCP's manipulative accounting practices and obtained a $1.025 billion settlement. For five years, the litigation team prosecuted nine different claims for violations of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 and the Securities Act of 1933, involving seven different stock or debt offerings and two mergers. The recovery represents the highest percentage of damages of any major PSLRA case prior to trial and includes the largest personal contributions by individual defendants in history.

- In re UnitedHealth Grp. Inc. PSLRA Litig., No. 06-CV-1691 (D. Minn.). Robbins Geller represented the California Public Employees' Retirement System ("CalPERS") and demonstrated its willingness to vigorously advocate for its institutional clients, even under the most difficult circumstances. The Firm obtained an $895 million recovery on behalf of UnitedHealth shareholders, and former CEO William A. McGuire paid $30 million and returned stock options representing more than three million shares to the shareholders, bringing the total recovery for the class to over $925 million, the largest stock option backdating recovery ever, and a recovery that is more than four times larger than the next largest options backdating recovery. Moreover, Robbins Geller obtained unprecedented corporate governance reforms, including election of a shareholder-nominated member to the company's board of directors, a mandatory holding period for shares acquired by executives via option exercise, and executive compensation reforms that tie pay to performance.

- Alaska Elec. Pension Fund v. CitiGroup, Inc. (In re WorldCom Sec. Litig.), No. 03 Civ. 8269 (S.D.N.Y.). Robbins Geller attorneys represented more than 50 private and public institutions that opted out of the class action case and sued WorldCom's bankers, officers and directors, and auditors in courts around the country for losses related to WorldCom bond offerings from 1998 to 2001. The Firm's attorneys recovered more than $650 million for their clients, substantially more than they would have recovered as part of the class.

- Luther v. Countrywide Fin. Corp., No. 12-cv-05125 (C.D. Cal.). Robbins Geller attorneys secured a $500 million settlement for institutional and individual investors in what is the largest RMBS purchaser class action settlement in history, and one of the largest class action securities settlements of all time. The unprecedented settlement resolves claims against Countrywide and Wall Street banks that issued the securities. The action was the first securities class action case filed against originators and Wall Street banks as a result of the credit crisis. As co-lead counsel Robbins Geller forged through six years of hard-fought litigation, oftentimes litigating issues of first impression, in order to secure the landmark settlement for its clients and the class.

- In re Wachovia Preferred Sec. & Bond/Notes Litig., No. 09-cv-06351 (S.D.N.Y.). On behalf of investors in bonds and preferred securities issued between 2006 and 2008, Robbins Geller and co-counsel obtained a significant settlement with Wachovia successor Wells Fargo & Company and Wachovia auditor KPMG LLP. The total settlement – $627 million – is one of the largest credit-crisis settlements involving Securities Act claims and one of the 25 largest securities class action recoveries in history. The settlement is also one of the biggest securities class action recoveries arising from the credit crisis. The lawsuit focused on Wachovia's exposure to "pick-a-pay" loans, which the bank's offering materials said were of "pristine credit quality," but which were actually allegedly made to subprime borrowers, and which ultimately massively impaired the bank's mortgage portfolio. Robbins Geller served as co-lead counsel representing the City of Livonia Employees' Retirement System, Hawaii Sheet Metal Workers Pension Fund, and the investor class.

- In re Cardinal Health, Inc. Sec. Litig., No. C2-04-575 (S.D. Ohio). As sole lead counsel representing Cardinal Health shareholders, Robbins Geller obtained a recovery of $600 million for investors on behalf of the lead plaintiffs, Amalgamated Bank, the New Mexico State Investment Council, and the California Ironworkers Field Trust Fund. At the time, the $600 million settlement was the tenth-largest settlement in the history of securities fraud litigation and is the largest-ever recovery in a securities fraud action in the Sixth Circuit.

- AOL Time Warner Cases I & II, JCCP Nos. 4322 & 4325 (Cal. Super. Ct., Los Angeles Cnty.). Robbins Geller represented The Regents of the University of California, six Ohio state pension funds, Rabo Bank (NL), the Scottish Widows Investment Partnership, several Australian public and private funds, insurance companies, and numerous additional institutional investors, both domestic and international, in state and federal court opt-out litigation stemming from Time Warner's disastrous 2001 merger with Internet high flier America Online. After almost four years of litigation involving extensive discovery, the Firm secured combined settlements for its opt-out clients totaling over $629 million just weeks before The Regents' case pending in California state court was scheduled to go to trial. The Regents' gross recovery of $246 million is the largest individual opt-out securities recovery in history.

- In re HealthSouth Corp. Sec. Litig., No. CV-03-BE-1500-S (N.D. Ala.). As court-appointed co-lead counsel, Robbins Geller attorneys obtained a combined recovery of $671 million from HealthSouth, its auditor Ernst & Young, and its investment banker, UBS, for the benefit of stockholder plaintiffs. The settlement against HealthSouth represents one of the larger settlements in securities class action history and is considered among the top 15 settlements achieved after passage of the PSLRA. Likewise, the settlement against Ernst & Young is one of the largest securities class action settlements entered into by an accounting firm since the passage of the PSLRA.

- Jones v. Pfizer Inc., No. 1:10-cv-03864 (S.D.N.Y.). Lead plaintiff Stichting Philips Pensioenfonds obtained a $400 million settlement on behalf of class members who purchased Pfizer common stock during the January 19, 2006 to January 23, 2009 class period. The settlement against Pfizer resolves accusations that it misled investors about an alleged off-label drug marketing scheme. As sole lead counsel, Robbins Geller attorneys helped achieve this exceptional result after five years of hard-fought litigation against the toughest and the brightest members of the securities defense bar by litigating this case all the way to trial.

- In re Dynegy Inc. Sec. Litig., No. H-02-1571 (S.D. Tex.). As sole lead counsel representing The Regents of the University of California and the class of Dynegy investors, Robbins Geller attorneys obtained a combined settlement of $474 million from Dynegy, Citigroup, Inc., and Arthur Andersen LLP for their involvement in a clandestine financing scheme known as Project Alpha. Most notably, the settlement agreement provides that Dynegy will appoint two board members to be nominated by The Regents, which Robbins Geller and The Regents believe will benefit all of Dynegy's stockholders.

- In re Qwest Commc'ns Int'l, Inc. Sec. Litig., No. 01-cv-1451 (D. Colo.). In July 2001, the Firm filed the initial complaint in this action on behalf of its clients, long before any investigation into Qwest's financial statements was initiated by the SEC or Department of Justice. After five years of litigation, lead plaintiffs entered into a settlement with Qwest and certain individual defendants that provided a $400 million recovery for the class and created a mechanism that allowed the vast majority of class members to share in an additional $250 million recovered by the SEC. In 2008, Robbins Geller attorneys recovered an additional $45 million for the class in a settlement with defendants Joseph P. Nacchio and Robert S. Woodruff, the CEO and CFO, respectively, of Qwest during large portions of the class period.

- Fort Worth Emps.' Ret. Fund v. J.P. Morgan Chase & Co., No. 1:09-cv-03701 (S.D.N.Y.). Robbins Geller attorneys served as lead counsel for a class of investors and obtained court approval of a $388 million recovery in nine 2007 residential mortgage-backed securities offerings issued by J.P. Morgan. The settlement represents, on a percentage basis, the largest recovery ever achieved in an MBS purchaser class action. The result was achieved after more than five years of hard-fought litigation and an extensive investigation.

- Smilovits v. First Solar, Inc., No. 2:12-cv-00555 (D. Ariz.). As sole lead counsel, Robbins Geller obtained a $350 million settlement in Smilovits v. First Solar, Inc. The settlement, which was reached after a long legal battle and on the day before jury selection, resolves claims that First Solar violated §§10(b) and 20(a) of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 and SEC Rule 10b-5. The settlement is the fifth-largest PSLRA settlement ever recovered in the Ninth Circuit.

- NECA-IBEW Health & Welfare Fund v. Goldman Sachs & Co., No. 1:08-cv-10783 (S.D.N.Y.). As sole lead counsel, Robbins Geller obtained a $272 million settlement on behalf of Goldman Sachs' shareholders. The settlement concludes one of the last remaining mortgage-backed securities purchaser class actions arising out of the global financial crisis. The remarkable result was achieved following seven years of extensive litigation. After the claims were dismissed in 2010, Robbins Geller secured a landmark victory from the Second Circuit Court of Appeals that clarified the scope of permissible class actions asserting claims under the Securities Act of 1933 on behalf of MBS investors. Specifically, the Second Circuit's decision rejected the concept of "tranche" standing and concluded that a lead plaintiff in an MBS class action has class standing to pursue claims on behalf of purchasers of other securities that were issued from the same registration statement and backed by pools of mortgages originated by the same lenders who had originated mortgages backing the lead plaintiff's securities.

- Schuh v. HCA Holdings, Inc., No. 3:11-cv-01033 (M.D. Tenn.). As sole lead counsel, Robbins Geller obtained a groundbreaking $215 million settlement for former HCA Holdings, Inc. shareholders – the largest securities class action recovery ever in Tennessee. Reached shortly before trial was scheduled to commence, the settlement resolves claims that the Registration Statement and Prospectus HCA filed in connection with the company's massive $4.3 billion 2011 IPO contained material misstatements and omissions. The recovery achieved represents more than 30% of the aggregate classwide damages, far exceeding the typical recovery in a securities class action.

- In re AT&T Corp. Sec. Litig., MDL No. 1399 (D.N.J.). Robbins Geller attorneys served as lead counsel for a class of investors that purchased AT&T common stock. The case charged defendants AT&T and its former Chairman and CEO, C. Michael Armstrong, with violations of the federal securities laws in connection with AT&T's April 2000 initial public offering of its wireless tracking stock, one of the largest IPOs in American history. After two weeks of trial, and on the eve of scheduled testimony by Armstrong and infamous telecom analyst Jack Grubman, defendants agreed to settle the case for $100 million.

- Silverman v. Motorola, Inc., No. 1:07-cv-04507 (N.D. Ill.). The Firm served as lead counsel on behalf of a class of investors in Motorola, Inc., ultimately recovering $200 million for investors just two months before the case was set for trial. This outstanding result was obtained despite the lack of an SEC investigation or any financial restatement.

- City of Pontiac Gen. Emps.' Ret. Sys. v. Wal-Mart Stores, Inc., No. 5:12-cv-05162 (W.D. Ark.). Robbins Geller attorneys and lead plaintiff City of Pontiac General Employees' Retirement System achieved a $160 million settlement in a securities class action case arising from allegations published by The New York Times in an article released on April 21, 2012 describing an alleged bribery scheme that occurred in Mexico. The case charged that Wal-Mart portrayed itself to investors as a model corporate citizen that had proactively uncovered potential corruption and promptly reported it to law enforcement, when in truth, a former in-house lawyer had blown the whistle on Wal-Mart's corruption years earlier, and Wal-Mart concealed the allegations from law enforcement by refusing its own in-house and outside counsel's calls for an independent investigation. Robbins Geller "achieved an exceptional [s]ettlement with skill, perseverance, and diligent advocacy," said Judge Hickey when granting final approval.

- Bennett v. Sprint Nextel Corp., No. 2:09-cv-02122 (D. Kan.). As co-lead counsel, Robbins Geller obtained a $131 million recovery for a class of Sprint investors. The settlement, secured after five years of hard-fought litigation, resolved claims that former Sprint executives misled investors concerning the success of Sprint's ill-advised merger with Nextel and the deteriorating credit quality of Sprint's customer base, artificially inflating the value of Sprint's securities.

- In re LendingClub Sec. Litig., No. 3:16-cv-02627 (N.D. Cal.). Robbins Geller attorneys obtained a $125 million settlement for the court-appointed lead plaintiff Water and Power Employees' Retirement, Disability and Death Plan of the City of Los Angeles and the class. The settlement resolved allegations that LendingClub promised investors an opportunity to get in on the ground floor of a revolutionary lending market fueled by the highest standards of honesty and integrity. The settlement ranked among the top ten largest securities recoveries ever in the Northern District of California.

- Knurr v. Orbital ATK, Inc., No. 1:16-cv-01031 (E.D. Va.). In the Orbital securities class action, Robbins Geller obtained court approval of a $108 million recovery for the class. The Firm succeeded in overcoming two successive motions to dismiss the case, and during discovery were required to file ten motions to compel, all of which were either negotiated to a resolution or granted in large part, which resulted in the production of critical evidence in support of plaintiffs' claims. Believed to be the fourth-largest securities class action settlement in the history of the Eastern District of Virginia, the settlement provides a recovery for investors that is more than ten times larger than the reported median recovery of estimated damages for all securities class action settlements in 2018.

- Hsu v. Puma Biotechnology, No. SACV15-0865 (C.D. Cal.). After a two-week jury trial, Robbins Geller attorneys won a complete plaintiffs' verdict against both defendants on both claims, with the jury finding that Puma Biotechnology, Inc. and its CEO, Alan H. Auerbach, committed securities fraud. The Puma case is only the fifteenth securities class action case tried to a verdict since the Private Securities Litigation Reform Act was enacted in 1995.

- Marcus v. J.C. Penney Co., Inc., No. 13-cv-00736 (E.D. Tex.). Robbins Geller attorneys obtained a $97.5 million recovery on behalf of J.C. Penney shareholders. The result resolves claims that J.C. Penney and certain officers and directors made misstatements and/or omissions regarding the company's financial position that resulted in artificially inflated stock prices. Specifically, defendants failed to disclose and/or misrepresented adverse facts, including that J.C. Penney would have insufficient liquidity to get through year-end and would require additional funds to make it through the holiday season, and that the company was concealing its need for liquidity so as not to add to its vendors' concerns.

- Monroe County Employees' Retirement System v. The Southern Company, No. 1:17-cv-00241 (N.D. Ga.). As lead counsel, Robbins Geller obtained an $87.5 million settlement in a securities class action on behalf of plaintiffs Monroe County Employees' Retirement System and Roofers Local No. 149 Pension Fund. The settlement resolves claims for violations of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 stemming from defendants' issuance of materially misleading statements and omissions regarding the status of construction of a first-of-its-kind "clean coal" power plant in Kemper County, Mississippi. Plaintiffs alleged that these misstatements caused The Southern Company's stock price to be artificially inflated during the class period. Prior to resolving the case, Robbins Geller uncovered critical documentary evidence and deposition testimony supporting plaintiffs' claims. In granting final approval of the settlement, the court praised Robbins Geller for its "hard-fought litigation in the Eleventh Circuit" and its "experience, reputation, and abilities of [its] attorneys," and highlighted that the firm is "well-regarded in the legal community, especially in litigating class-action securities cases

- Luna v. Marvell Tech. Grp., Ltd., No. 3:15-cv-05447 (N.D. Cal.). In the Marvell litigation, Robbins Geller attorneys represented the Plumbers and Pipefitters National Pension Fund and obtained a $72.5 million settlement. The case involved claims that Marvell reported revenue and earnings during the class period that were misleading as a result of undisclosed pull-in and concession sales. The settlement represents approximately 24% to 50% of the best estimate of classwide damages suffered by investors who purchased shares during the February 19, 2015 through December 7, 2015 class period.

- Garden City Emps.' Ret. Sys. v. Psychiatric Sols., Inc., No. 3:09-cv-00882 (M.D. Tenn.). In the Psychiatric Solutions case, Robbins Geller represented lead plaintiff and class representative Central States, Southeast and Southwest Areas Pension Fund in litigation spanning more than four years. Psychiatric Solutions and its top executives were accused of insufficiently staffing their in-patient hospitals, downplaying the significance of regulatory investigations and manipulating their malpractice reserves. Just days before trial was set to commence, attorneys from Robbins Geller achieved a $65 million settlement that was the fourth-largest securities recovery ever in the district and one of the largest in a decade.

- Plumbers & Pipefitters Nat'l Pension Fund v. Burns, No. 3:05-cv-07393 (N.D. Ohio). After 11 years of hard-fought litigation, Robbins Geller attorneys secured a $64 million recovery for shareholders in a case that accused the former heads of Dana Corp. of securities fraud for trumpeting the auto parts maker's condition while it actually spiraled toward bankruptcy. The Firm's Appellate Practice Group successfully appealed to the Sixth Circuit Court of Appeals twice, reversing the district court's dismissal of the action.

- Villella v. Chemical and Mining Company of Chile Inc., No. 1:15-cv-02106 (S.D.N.Y.) Robbins Geller attorneys, serving as lead consel, obtained a $62.5 million settlement against Sociedad Química y Minera de Chile S.A. ("SQM"), a Chilean mining company. The case alleged that SQM violated the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 by issuing materially false and misleading statements regarding the company's failure to disclose that money from SQM was channeled illegally to electoral campaigns for Chilean politicians and political parties as far back as 2009. SQM had also filed millions of dollars' worth of fictitious tax receipts with Chilean authorities in order to conceal bribery payments from at least 2009 through fiscal 2014. Due to the company being based out of Chile and subject to Chilean law and rules, the Robbins Geller litigation team put together a multilingual litigation team with Chilean expertise. Depositions are considered unlawful in the country of Chile, so Robbins Geller successfully moved the court to compel SQM to bring witnesses to the United States.

- In re BHP Billiton Ltd. Sec. Litig., No. 1:16-cv-01445 (S.D.N.Y.). As lead counsel, Robbins Geller obtained a $50 million class action settlement against BHP, a Australian-based mining company that was accused of failing to disclose significant safety problems at the Fundão iron-ore dam, in Brazil. The Firm achieved this result for lead plaintiffs City of Birmingham Retirement and Relief System and City of Birmingham Firemen's and Policemen's Supplemental Pension System, on behalf of purchasers of the American Depositary Shares ("ADRs") of defendants BHP Billiton Limited and BHP Billiton Plc (together, "BHP") from September 25, 2014 to November 30, 2015.

- In re St. Jude Med., Inc. Sec. Litig., No. 0:10-cv-00851 (D. Minn.). After four and a half years of litigation and mere weeks before the jury selection, Robbins Geller obtained a $50 million settlement on behalf of investors in medical device company St. Jude Medical. The settlement resolves accusations that St. Jude Medical misled investors by utilizing heavily discounted end-of-quarter bulk sales to meet quarterly expectations, which created a false picture of demand by increasing customer inventory due of St. Jude Medical devices. The complaint alleged that the risk of St. Jude Medical's reliance on such bulk sales manifested when it failed to meet its forecast guidance for the third quarter of 2009, which the company had reaffirmed only weeks earlier.

- Deka Investment GmbH v. Santander Consumer USA Holdings Inc., No. 3:15-cv-02129 (N.D. Tex.). Robbins Geller and co-counsel secured a $47 million settlement in a securities class action against Santander Consumer USA Holdings Inc. ("SCUSA"). The case alleges that SCUSA, 2 of its officers, 10 of its directors, as well as 17 underwriters of its January 23, 2014 multi-billion dollar IPO violated §§11, 12(a)(2), and 15 of the Securities Act of 1933 as a result of their negligence in connection with misrepresentations in the prospectus and registration statement for the IPO ("Offering Documents"). The complaint also alleged that SCUSA and two of its officers violated §§10(b) and 20(a) of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 and Rule 10b-5 as a result of their fraud in issuing misleading statements in the IPO Offering Documents as well as in subsequent statements to investors.

- Snap Inc. Securities Cases, JCCP No. 4960 (Cal. Super. Ct., Los Angeles Cnty). Robbins Geller, along with co-counsel, reached a settlement in the Snap, Inc. securities class action, providing for the payment of $32,812,500 to eligible settlement class members. The securities class action sought remedies under §§11, 12(a)(2) and 15 of the Securities Act of 1933. The case alleged that Snap, certain Snap officers and directors, and the underwriters for Snap's Initial Public Offering ("IPO") were liable for materially false and misleading statements and omissions in the Registration Statement for the IPO, related to trends and uncertainties in Snap's growth metrics, a potential patent-infringement action, and stated risk factors.

Robbins Geller's securities practice is also strengthened by the existence of a strong appellate department, whose collective work has established numerous legal precedents. The securities practice also utilizes an extensive group of in-house economic and damage analysts, investigators, and forensic accountants to aid in the prosecution of complex securities issues.

Shareholder Derivative and Corporate Governance Litigation

The Firm's shareholder derivative and corporate governance practice is focused on preserving corporate assets and enhancing long-term shareowner value. Shareowner derivative actions are often brought by institutional investors to vindicate the rights of the corporation injured by its executives' misconduct, which can effect violations of the nation's securities, anti-corruption, false claims, cyber-security, labor, environmental, and/or health & safety laws.

Robbins Geller attorneys have aided Firm clients in significantly enhancing shareowner value by obtaining hundreds of millions of dollars in financial clawbacks and successfully negotiating corporate governance enhancements. Robbins Geller has worked with its institutional clients to address corporate misconduct such as options backdating, bribery of foreign officials, pollution, off-label marketing, and insider trading and related self-dealing. Additionally, the Firm works closely with noted corporate governance consultants Robert Monks and Richard Bennett and their firm, ValueEdge Advisors LLC, to shape corporate governance practices that will benefit shareowners.

Robbins Geller's efforts have conferred substantial benefits upon shareowners, and the market effect of these benefits measures in the billions of dollars. The Firm's significant achievements include:

- City of Westland Police & Fire Ret. Sys. v. Stumpf (Wells Fargo Derivative Litigation), No. 3:11-cv-02369 (N.D. Cal.). Prosecuted shareholder derivative action on behalf of Wells Fargo & Co. alleging that Wells Fargo's executives allowed participation in the mass-processing of home foreclosure documents by engaging in widespread robo-signing, i.e., the execution and submission of false legal documents in courts across the country without verification of their truth or accuracy, and failed to disclose Wells Fargo's lack of cooperation in a federal investigation into the bank's mortgage and foreclosure practices. In settlement of the action, Wells Fargo agreed to provide $67 million in homeowner down-payment assistance, credit counseling, and improvements to its mortgage servicing system. The initiatives will be concentrated in cities severely impacted by the bank's foreclosure practices and the ensuing mortgage foreclosure crisis. Additionally, Wells Fargo agreed to change its procedures for reviewing shareholder proposals and a strict ban on stock pledges by Wells Fargo board members.

- In re Ormat Techs., Inc. Derivative Litig., No. CV10-00759 (Nev. Dist. Ct., Washoe Cnty.). Robbins Geller brought derivative claims for breach of fiduciary duty and unjust enrichment against the directors and certain officers of Ormat Technologies, Inc., a leading geothermal and recovered energy power business. During the relevant time period, these Ormat insiders caused the company to engage in accounting manipulations that ultimately required restatement of the company's financial statements. The settlement in this action includes numerous corporate governance reforms designed to, among other things: (i) increase director independence; (ii) provide continuing education to directors; (iii) enhance the company's internal controls; (iv) make the company's board more independent; and (iv) strengthen the company's internal audit function.

- In re Alphatec Holdings, Inc. Derivative S'holder Litig., No. 37-2010-00058586 (Cal. Super. Ct., San Diego Cnty.). Obtained sweeping changes to Alphatec's governance, including separation of the Chairman and CEO positions, enhanced conflict of interest procedures to address related-party transactions, rigorous director independence standards requiring that at least a majority of directors be outside independent directors, and ongoing director education and training.

- In re Finisar Corp. Derivative Litig., No. C-06-07660 (N.D. Cal.). Prosecuted shareholder

derivative action on behalf of Finisar against certain of its current and former directors and officers for engaging in an alleged nearly decade-long stock option backdating scheme that was alleged to have inflicted substantial damage upon Finisar. After obtaining a reversal of the district court's order dismissing the complaint for failing to adequately allege that a pre-suit demand was futile, Robbins Geller lawyers successfully prosecuted the derivative claims to resolution obtaining over $15 million in financial clawbacks for Finisar. Robbins Geller attorneys also obtained significant changes to Finisar's stock option granting procedures and corporate governance. As a part of the settlement, Finisar agreed to ban the repricing of stock options without first obtaining specific shareholder approval, prohibit the retrospective selection of grant dates for stock options and similar awards, limit the number of other boards on which Finisar directors may serve, require directors to own a minimum amount of Finisar shares, annually elect a Lead Independent Director whenever the position of Chairman and CEO are held by the same person, and require the board to appoint a Trading Compliance officer responsible for ensuring compliance with Finisar's insider trading policies.

- Loizides v. Schramm (Maxwell Technology Derivative Litigation), No. 37-2010-00097953 (Cal. Super. Ct., San Diego Cnty.). Prosecuted shareholder derivative claims arising from the company's alleged violations of the Foreign Corrupt Practices Act of 1977 ("FCPA"). As a result of Robbins Geller's efforts, Maxwell insiders agreed to adopt significant changes in Maxwell's internal controls and systems designed to protect Maxwell against future potential violations of the FCPA. These corporate governance changes included establishing the following, among other things: a compliance plan to improve board oversight of Maxwell's compliance processes and internal controls; a clear corporate policy prohibiting bribery and subcontracting kickbacks, whereby individuals are accountable; mandatory employee training requirements, including the comprehensive explanation of whistleblower provisions, to provide for confidential reporting of FCPA violations or other corruption; enhanced resources and internal control and compliance procedures for the audit committee to act quickly if an FCPA violation or other corruption is detected; an FCPA and Anti-Corruption Compliance department that has the authority and resources required to assess global operations and detect violations of the FCPA and other instances of corruption; a rigorous ethics and compliance program applicable to all directors, officers, and employees, designed to prevent and detect violations of the FCPA and other applicable anti-corruption laws; an executive-level position of Chief Compliance Officer with direct board-level reporting responsibilities, who shall be responsible for overseeing and managing compliance issues within the company; a rigorous insider trading policy buttressed by enhanced review and supervision mechanisms and a requirement that all trades are timely disclosed; and enhanced provisions requiring that business entities are only acquired after thorough FCPA and anti-corruption due diligence by legal, accounting, and compliance personnel at Maxwell.

- In re SciClone Pharms., Inc. S'holder Derivative Litig., No. CIV 499030 (Cal. Super. Ct., San Mateo Cnty.). Robbins Geller attorneys successfully prosecuted the derivative claims on behalf of nominal party SciClone Pharmaceuticals, Inc., resulting in the adoption of state-of-the-art corporate governance reforms. The corporate governance reforms included the establishment of an FCPA compliance coordinator; the adoption of an FCPA compliance program and code; and the adoption of additional internal controls and compliance functions.

- Policemen & Firemen Ret. Sys. of the City of Detroit v. Cornelison (Halliburton Derivative Litigation), No. 2009-29987 (Tex. Dist. Ct., Harris Cnty.). Prosecuted shareholder derivative claims on behalf of Halliburton Company against certain Halliburton insiders for breaches of fiduciary duty arising from Halliburton's alleged violations of the FCPA. In the settlement, Halliburton agreed, among other things, to adopt strict intensive controls and systems designed to detect and deter the payment of bribes and other improper payments to foreign officials, to enhanced executive compensation clawback, director stock ownership requirements, a limitation on the number of other boards that Halliburton directors may serve, a lead director charter, enhanced director independence standards, and the creation of a management compliance committee.

- In re UnitedHealth Grp. Inc. PSLRA Litig., No. 06-CV-1691 (D. Minn.). In the UnitedHealth case, our client, CalPERS, obtained sweeping corporate governance improvements, including the election of a shareholder-nominated member to the company's board of directors, a mandatory holding period for shares acquired by executives via option exercises, as well as executive compensation reforms that tie pay to performance. In addition, the class obtained $925 million, the largest stock option backdating recovery ever and four times the next largest options backdating recovery.

- In re Fossil, Inc. Derivative Litig., No. 3:06-cv-01672 (N.D. Tex.). The settlement agreement included the following corporate governance changes: declassification of elected board members; retirement of three directors and addition of five new independent directors; two-thirds board independence requirements; corporate governance guidelines providing for "Majority Voting" election of directors; lead independent director requirements; revised accounting measurement dates of options; addition of standing finance committee; compensation clawbacks; director compensation standards; revised stock option plans and grant procedures; limited stock option granting authority, timing, and pricing; enhanced education and training; and audit engagement partner rotation and outside audit firm review.

- Pirelli Armstrong Tire Corp. Retiree Med. Benefits Tr. v. Sinegal (Costco Derivative Litigation), No. 2:08-cv-01450 (W.D. Wash.). The parties agreed to settlement terms providing for the following corporate governance changes: the amendment of Costco's bylaws to provide "Majority Voting" election of directors; the elimination of overlapping compensation and audit committee membership on common subject matters; enhanced Dodd-Frank requirements; enhanced internal audit standards and controls, and revised information-sharing procedures; revised compensation policies and procedures; revised stock option plans and grant procedures; limited stock option granting authority, timing, and pricing; and enhanced ethics compliance standards and training.

- In re F5 Networks, Inc. Derivative Litig., No. C-06-0794 (W.D. Wash.). The parties agreed to the following corporate governance changes as part of the settlement: revised stock option plans and grant procedures; limited stock option granting authority, timing, and pricing; "Majority Voting" election of directors; lead independent director requirements; director independence standards; elimination of director perquisites; and revised compensation practices.

Options Backdating Litigation

As has been widely reported in the media, the stock options backdating scandal suddenly engulfed hundreds of publicly traded companies throughout the country in 2006. Robbins Geller was at the forefront of investigating and prosecuting options backdating derivative and securities cases. The Firm has recovered over $1 billion in damages on behalf of injured companies and shareholders.

- In re KLA-Tencor Corp. S'holder Derivative Litig., No. C-06-03445 (N.D. Cal.). After successfully opposing the special litigation committee of the board of directors' motion to terminate the derivative claims, Robbins Geller recovered $43.6 million in direct financial benefits for KLA-Tencor, including $33.2 million in cash payments by certain former executives and their directors' and officers' insurance carriers.

- In re Marvell Tech. Grp. Ltd. Derivative Litig., No. C-06-03894 (N.D. Cal.). Robbins Geller recovered $54.9 million in financial benefits, including $14.6 million in cash, for Marvell, in addition to extensive corporate governance reforms related to Marvell's stock option granting practices, board of directors' procedures, and executive compensation.

- In re KB Home S'holder Derivative Litig., No. 06-CV-05148 (C.D. Cal.). Robbins Geller served as co-lead counsel for the plaintiffs and recovered more than $31 million in financial benefits, including $21.5 million in cash, for KB Home, plus substantial corporate governance enhancements relating to KB Home's stock option granting practices, director elections, and executive compensation practices.

Corporate Takeover Litigation

Robbins Geller has earned a reputation as the leading law firm in representing shareholders in corporate takeover litigation. Through its aggressive efforts in prosecuting corporate takeovers, the Firm has secured for shareholders billions of dollars of additional consideration as well as beneficial changes for shareholders in the context of mergers and acquisitions.

The Firm regularly prosecutes merger and acquisition cases post-merger, often through trial, to maximize the benefit for its shareholder class. Some of these cases include:

- In re Tesla Motors, Inc. S'holder Litig.*, No. 12711-VCS (Del. Ch.). Robbins Geller, along with co-counsel, secured a $60 million partial settlement after nearly four years of litigation against Tesla. This partial settlement is one of the largest derivative recoveries in a stockholder action challenging a merger. This partial settlement resolves the claims brought against defendants Kimbal Musk, Antonio J. Gracias, Stephen T. Jurvetson, Brad W. Buss, Ira Ehrenpreis, and Robyn M. Denholm, but not the claims against defendant Elon Musk.

- In re Kinder Morgan, Inc. S'holders Litig., No. 06-C-801 (Kan. Dist. Ct., Shawnee Cnty.). In the largest recovery ever for corporate takeover class action litigation, the Firm negotiated a settlement fund of $200 million in 2010.

- In re Dole Food Co., Inc. S'holder Litig., No. 8703-VCL (Del. Ch.). Robbins Geller and co-counsel went to trial in the Delaware Court of Chancery on claims of breach of fiduciary duty on behalf of Dole Food Co., Inc. shareholders. The litigation challenged the 2013 buyout of Dole by its billionaire Chief Executive Officer and Chairman, David H. Murdock. On August 27, 2015, the court issued a post-trial ruling that Murdock and fellow director C. Michael Carter – who also served as Dole's General Counsel, Chief Operating Officer, and Murdock's top lieutenant – had engaged in fraud and other misconduct in connection with the buyout and are liable to Dole's former stockholders for over $148 million, the largest trial verdict ever in a class action challenging a merger transaction.

- Nieman v. Duke Energy Corp., No. 3:12-cv-00456 (W.D.N.C.). Robbins Geller, along with co-counsel, obtained a $146.25 million settlement on behalf of Duke Energy Corporation investors. The settlement resolves accusations that defendants misled investors regarding Duke's future leadership following its merger with Progress Energy, Inc., and specifically, their premeditated coup to oust William D. Johnson (CEO of Progress) and replace him with Duke's then-CEO, John Rogers. This historic settlement represents the largest recovery ever in a North Carolina securities fraud action, and one of the five largest recoveries in the Fourth Circuit.

- In re Rural Metro Corp. S'holders Litig., No. 6350-VCL (Del. Ch.). Robbins Geller and co-counsel were appointed lead counsel in this case after successfully objecting to an inadequate settlement that did not take into account evidence of defendants' conflicts of interest. In a post-trial opinion, Delaware Vice Chancellor J. Travis Laster found defendant RBC Capital Markets, LLC liable for aiding and abetting Rural/Metro's board of directors' fiduciary duty breaches in the $438 million buyout of Rural/Metro, citing "the magnitude of the conflict between RBC's claims and the evidence." RBC was ordered to pay nearly $110 million as a result of its wrongdoing, the largest damage award ever obtained against a bank over its role as a merger adviser. The Delaware Supreme Court issued a landmark opinion affirming the judgment on November 30, 2015, RBC Cap. Mkts., LLC v. Jervis, 129 A.3d 816 (Del. 2015).

- In re Del Monte Foods Co. S'holders Litig., No. 6027-VCL (Del. Ch.). Robbins Geller exposed the unseemly practice by investment bankers of participating on both sides of large merger and acquisition transactions and ultimately secured an $89 million settlement for shareholders of Del Monte. For efforts in achieving these results, the Robbins Geller lawyers prosecuting the case were named Attorneys of the Year by California Lawyer magazine in 2012.

- In re TD Banknorth S'holders Litig., No. 2557-VCL (Del. Ch.). After objecting to a modest recovery of just a few cents per share, the Firm took over the litigation and obtained a common fund settlement of $50 million.

- In re Chaparral Res., Inc. S'holders Litig., No. 2633-VCL (Del. Ch.). After a full trial and a subsequent mediation before the Delaware Chancellor, the Firm obtained a common fund settlement of $41 million (or 45% increase above merger price) for both class and appraisal claims.

- Laborers' Local #231 Pension Fund v. Websense, Inc., No. 37-2013-00050879-CU-BT-CTL (Cal. Super. Ct., San Diego Cnty.). Robbins Geller successfully obtained a record-breaking $40 million in Websense, which is believed to be the largest post-merger common fund settlement in California state court history. The class action challenged the May 2013 buyout of Websense by Vista Equity Partners (and affiliates) for $24.75 per share and alleged breach of fiduciary duty against the former Websense board of directors, and aiding and abetting against Websense's financial advisor, Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Smith, Inc. Claims were pursued by the plaintiff in both California state court and the Delaware Court of Chancery.

- In re Onyx Pharms., Inc. S'holder Litig., No. CIV523789 (Cal. Super. Ct., San Mateo Cnty.). Robbins Geller obtained $30 million in a case against the former Onyx board of directors for breaching its fiduciary duties in connection with the acquisition of Onyx by Amgen Inc. for $125 per share at the expense of shareholders. At the time of the settlement, it was believed to set the record for the largest post-merger common fund settlement in California state court history. Over the case's three years, Robbins Geller defeated defendants' motions to dismiss, obtained class certification, took over 20 depositions, and reviewed over one million pages of documents. Further, the settlement was reached just days before a hearing on defendants' motion for summary judgment was set to take place, and the result is now believed to be the second largest post-merger common fund settlement in California state court history.

- Harrah's Entertainment, No. A529183 (Nev. Dist. Ct., Clark Cnty.). The Firm's active prosecution of the case on several fronts, both in federal and state court, assisted Harrah's shareholders in securing an additional $1.65 billion in merger consideration.

- In re Chiron S'holder Deal Litig., No. RG 05-230567 (Cal. Super. Ct., Alameda Cnty.). The Firm's efforts helped to obtain an additional $800 million in increased merger consideration for Chiron shareholders.

- In re Dollar Gen. Corp. S'holder Litig., No. 07MD-1 (Tenn. Cir. Ct., Davidson Cnty.). As lead counsel, the Firm secured a recovery of up to $57 million in cash for former Dollar General shareholders on the eve of trial.

- In re Prime Hosp., Inc. S'holders Litig., No. 652-N (Del. Ch.). The Firm objected to a settlement that was unfair to the class and proceeded to litigate breach of fiduciary duty issues involving a sale of hotels to a private equity firm. The litigation yielded a common fund of $25 million for shareholders.

- In re UnitedGlobalCom, Inc. S'holder Litig., No. 1012-VCS (Del. Ch.). The Firm secured a common fund settlement of $25 million just weeks before trial.

- In re eMachines, Inc. Merger Litig., No. 01-CC-00156 (Cal. Super. Ct., Orange Cnty.). After four years of litigation, the Firm secured a common fund settlement of $24 million on the brink of trial.

- In re PeopleSoft, Inc. S'holder Litig., No. RG-03100291 (Cal. Super. Ct., Alameda Cnty.). The Firm successfully objected to a proposed compromise of class claims arising from takeover defenses by PeopleSoft, Inc. to thwart an acquisition by Oracle Corp., resulting in shareholders receiving an increase of over $900 million in merger consideration.

- ACS S'holder Litig., No. CC-09-07377-C (Tex. Cty. Ct., Dallas Cnty.). The Firm forced ACS's acquirer, Xerox, to make significant concessions by which shareholders would not be locked out of receiving more money from another buyer.

Consumer Fraud and Privacy

In our consumer-based economy, working families who purchase products and services must receive truthful information so they can make meaningful choices about how to spend their hard-earned money. When financial institutions and other corporations deceive consumers or take advantage of unequal bargaining power, class action suits provide, in many instances, the only realistic means for an individual to right a corporate wrong.

Robbins Geller attorneys represent consumers around the country in a variety of important, complex class actions. Our attorneys have taken a leading role in many of the largest federal and state consumer fraud, privacy, environmental, human rights, and public health cases throughout the United States. The Firm is also actively involved in many cases relating to banks and the financial services industry, pursuing claims on behalf of individuals victimized by abusive telemarketing practices, abusive mortgage lending practices, market timing violations in the sale of variable annuities, and deceptive consumer credit lending practices in violation of the Truth-In-Lending Act. Below are a few representative samples of our robust, nationwide consumer and privacy practice.

- In re Nat'l Prescription Opiate Litig. Robbins Geller serves on the Plaintiffs' Executive Committee to spearhead more than 2,900 federal lawsuits brought on behalf of governmental entities and other plaintiffs in the sprawling litigation concerning the nationwide prescription opioid epidemic. In reporting on the selection of the lawyers to lead the case, The National Law Journal reported that "[t]he team reads like a 'Who's Who' in mass torts."

- Apple Inc. Device Performance Litigation. Robbins Geller serves on the Plaintiffs' Executive Committee to advance judicial interests of efficiency and protect the interests of the proposed class in the Apple litigation. The case alleges Apple misrepresented its iPhone devices and the nature of updates to its mobile operating system (iOS), which allegedly included code that significantly reduced the performance of older-model iPhones and forced users to incur expenses replacing these devices or their batteries.

- In re EpiPen (Epinephrine Injection, USP) Mktg., Sales Pracs. & Antitrust Litig. Robbins Geller served as co-lead class counsel in a case against Mylan Pharmaceuticals and Pfizer alleging anti-competitive behavior that allowed the price of ubiquitous, life-saving EpiPen auto-injector devices to rise over 600%, resulting in inflated prices for American families. Two settlements totaling $609 million were reached after five years of litigation and weeks prior to trial.

- Cordova v. Greyhound Lines, Inc. Robbins Geller represented California bus passengers pro bono in a landmark consumer and civil rights case against Greyhound for subjecting them to discriminatory immigration raids. Robbins Geller achieved a watershed court ruling that a private company may be held liable under California law for allowing border patrol to harass and racially profile its customers. The case heralds that Greyhound passengers do not check their rights and dignity at the bus door and has had an immediate impact, not only in California but nationwide. Within weeks of Robbins Geller filing the case, Greyhound added "know your rights" information to passengers to its website and on posters in bus stations around the country, along with adopting other business reforms.

- In re Volkswagen "Clean Diesel" Mktg., Sales Pracs., & Prods. Liab. Litig. As part of the Plaintiffs' Steering Committee, Robbins Geller reached a series of settlements on behalf of purchasers, lessees, and dealers that total well over $17 billion, the largest settlement in history, concerning illegal "defeat devices" that Volkswagen installed on many of its diesel-engine vehicles. The device tricked regulators into believing the cars were complying with emissions standards, while the cars were actually emitting between 10 and 40 times the allowable limit for harmful pollutants.

- In re Facebook Biometric Info. Privacy Litig., No. 3:15-cv-03747 (N.D. Cal.). Robbins Geller served as co-lead class counsel in a cutting-edge certified class action, securing a record-breaking $650 million all-cash settlement, the largest privacy settlement in history. The case concerned Facebook's alleged privacy violations through its collection of its users' biometric identifiers without informed consent through its "Tag Suggestions" feature, which uses proprietary facial recognition software to extract from user-uploaded photographs the unique biometric identifiers (i.e., graphical representations of facial features, also known as facial geometry) associated with people's faces and identify who they are. The Honorable James Donato called the settlement "a groundbreaking settlement in a novel area" and praised the unprecedented 22% claims rate as "pretty phenomenal" and "a pretty good day in class settlement history."

- Yahoo Data Breach Class Action. Robbins Geller helped secure final approval of a $117.5 million settlement in a class action lawsuit against Yahoo, Inc. arising out of Yahoo's reckless disregard for the safety and security of its customers' personal, private information. In September 2016, Yahoo revealed that personal information associated with at least 500 million user accounts, including names, email addresses, telephone numbers, dates of birth, hashed passwords, and security questions and answers, was stolen from Yahoo's user database in late 2014. The company made another announcement in December 2016 that personal information associated with more than one billion user accounts was extracted in August 2013. Ten months later, Yahoo announced that the breach in 2013 actually affected all three billion existing accounts. This was the largest data breach in history, and caused severe financial and emotional damage to Yahoo account holders. In 2017, Robbins Geller was appointed to the Plaintiffs' Executive Committee charged with overseeing the litigation.

- Trump University. After six and a half years of tireless litigation and on the eve of trial, Robbins Geller, serving as co-lead counsel, secured a historic recovery on behalf of Trump University students around the country. The settlement provides $25 million to approximately 7,000 consumers, including senior citizens who accessed retirement accounts and maxed out credit cards to enroll in Trump University. The extraordinary result means individual class members are eligible for upwards of $35,000 in restitution. The settlement resolves claims that President Donald J. Trump and Trump University violated federal and state laws by misleadingly marketing "Live Events" seminars and mentorships as teaching Trump's "real-estate techniques" through his "hand-picked" "professors" at his so-called "university." Robbins Geller represented the class on a pro bono basis.

- In re Morning Song Bird Food Litig. Robbins Geller obtained final approval of a settlement in a civil Racketeer Influenced and Corrupt Organizations Act consumer class action against The Scotts Miracle-Gro Company and its CEO James Hagedorn. The settlement of up to $85 million provides full refunds to consumers around the country and resolves claims that Scotts Miracle-Gro knowingly sold wild bird food treated with pesticides that are hazardous to birds. In approving the settlement, Judge Houston commended Robbins Gelller's "skill and quality of work [as] extraordinary" and the case as "aggressively litigated." The Robbins Geller team battled a series of dismissal motions before achieving class certification for the plaintiffs in March 2017, with the court finding that "Plaintiffs would not have purchased the bird food if they knew it was poison." Defendants then appealed the class certification to the Ninth Circuit, which was denied, and then tried to have the claims from non-California class members thrown out, which was also denied.

- Bank Overdraft Fees Litigation. The banking industry charges consumers exorbitant amounts for "overdraft" of their checking accounts, even if the customer did not authorize a charge beyond the available balance and even if the account would not have been overdrawn had the transactions been ordered chronologically as they occurred – that is, banks reorder transactions to maximize such fees. The Firm brought lawsuits against major banks to stop this practice and recover these false fees. These cases have recovered over $500 million thus far from a dozen banks and we continue to investigate other banks engaging in this practice.

- Visa and MasterCard Fees. After years of litigation and a six-month trial, Robbins Geller attorneys won one of the largest consumer-protection verdicts ever awarded in the United States. The Firm's attorneys represented California consumers in an action against Visa and MasterCard for intentionally imposing and concealing a fee from cardholders. The court ordered Visa and MasterCard to return $800 million in cardholder losses, which represented 100% of the amount illegally taken, plus 2% interest. In addition, the court ordered full disclosure of the hidden fee.

- Sony Gaming Networks & Customer Data Security Breach Litigation. The Firm served as a member of the Plaintiffs' Steering Committee, helping to obtain a precedential opinion denying in part Sony's motion to dismiss plaintiffs' claims involving the breach of Sony's gaming network, leading to a $15 million settlement.

- Tobacco Litigation. Robbins Geller attorneys have led the fight against Big Tobacco since 1991. As an example, Robbins Geller attorneys filed the case that helped get rid of Joe Camel, representing various public and private plaintiffs, including the State of Arkansas, the general public in California, the cities of San Francisco, Los Angeles, and Birmingham, 14 counties in California, and the working men and women of this country in the Union Pension and Welfare Fund cases that have been filed in 40 states. In 1992, Robbins Geller attorneys filed the first case in the country that alleged a conspiracy by the Big Tobacco companies.

- Garment Workers Sweatshop Litigation. Robbins Geller attorneys represented a class of 30,000 garment workers who alleged that they had worked under sweatshop conditions in garment factories in Saipan that produced clothing for top U.S. retailers such as The Gap, Target, and J.C. Penney. In the first action of its kind, Robbins Geller attorneys pursued claims against the factories and the retailers alleging violations of RICO, the Alien Tort Claims Act, and the Law of Nations based on the alleged systemic labor and human rights abuses occurring in Saipan. This case was a companion to two other actions, one which alleged overtime violations by the garment factories under the Fair Labor Standards Act and local labor law, and another which alleged violations of California's Unfair Practices Law by the U.S. retailers. These actions resulted in a settlement of approximately $20 million that included a comprehensive monitoring program to address past violations by the factories and prevent future ones. The members of the litigation team were honored as Trial Lawyers of the Year by the Trial Lawyers for Public Justice in recognition of the team's efforts at bringing about the precedent-setting settlement of the actions.

- In re Intel Corp. CPU Mktg., Sales Pracs. & Prods. Liab. Litig. Robbins Geller serves on the Plaintiffs' Steering Committee in Intel, a massive multidistrict litigation pending in the United States District Court for the District of Oregon. Intel concerns serious security vulnerabilities – known as "Spectre" and "Meltdown" – that infect nearly all of Intel's x86 processors manufactured and sold since 1995, the patching of which results in processing speed degradation of the impacted computer, server or mobile device.

- West Telemarketing Case. Robbins Geller attorneys secured a $39 million settlement for class members caught up in a telemarketing scheme where consumers were charged for an unwanted membership program after purchasing Tae-Bo exercise videos. Under the settlement, consumers were entitled to claim between one and one-half to three times the amount of all fees they unknowingly paid.

- Dannon Activia®. Robbins Geller attorneys secured the largest ever settlement for a false advertising case involving a food product. The case alleged that Dannon's advertising for its Activia® and DanActive® branded products and their benefits from "probiotic" bacteria were overstated. As part of the nationwide settlement, Dannon agreed to modify its advertising and establish a fund of up to $45 million to compensate consumers for their purchases of Activia® and DanActive®.

- Mattel Lead Paint Toys. In 2006-2007, toy manufacturing giant Mattel and its subsidiary Fisher-Price announced the recall of over 14 million toys made in China due to hazardous lead and dangerous magnets. Robbins Geller attorneys filed lawsuits on behalf of millions of parents and other consumers who purchased or received toys for children that were marketed as safe but were later recalled because they were dangerous. The Firm's attorneys reached a landmark settlement for millions of dollars in refunds and lead testing reimbursements, as well as important testing requirements to ensure that Mattel's toys are safe for consumers in the future.

- Tenet Healthcare Cases. Robbins Geller attorneys were co-lead counsel in a class action alleging a fraudulent scheme of corporate misconduct, resulting in the overcharging of uninsured patients by the Tenet chain of hospitals. The Firm's attorneys represented uninsured patients of Tenet hospitals nationwide who were overcharged by Tenet's admittedly "aggressive pricing strategy," which resulted in price gouging of the uninsured. The case was settled with Tenet changing its practices and making refunds to patients.

- Pet Food Products Liability Litigation. Robbins Geller served as co-lead counsel in this massive, 100+ case products liability MDL in the District of New Jersey concerning the death of and injury to thousands of the nation's cats and dogs due to tainted pet food. The case settled for $24 million.

Human Rights, Labor Practices, and Public Policy

Robbins Geller attorneys have a long tradition of representing the victims of unfair labor practices and violations of human rights. These include:

- Does I v. The Gap, Inc., No. 01 0031 (D. N. Mar. I.). In this groundbreaking case, Robbins Geller attorneys represented a class of 30,000 garment workers who alleged that they had worked under sweatshop conditions in garment factories in Saipan that produced clothing for top U.S. retailers such as The Gap, Target, and J.C. Penney. In the first action of its kind, Robbins Geller attorneys pursued claims against the factories and the retailers alleging violations of RICO, the Alien Tort Claims Act, and the Law of Nations based on the alleged systemic labor and human rights abuses occurring in Saipan. This case was a companion to two other actions: Does I v. Advance Textile Corp., No. 99 0002 (D. N. Mar. I.), which alleged overtime violations by the garment factories under the Fair Labor Standards Act and local labor law, and UNITE v. The Gap, Inc., No. 300474 (Cal. Super. Ct., San Francisco Cty.), which alleged violations of California's Unfair Practices Law by the U.S. retailers. These actions resulted in a settlement of approximately $20 million that included a comprehensive monitoring program to address past violations by the factories and prevent future ones. The members of the litigation team were honored as Trial Lawyers of the Year by the Trial Lawyers for Public Justice in recognition of the team's efforts at bringing about the precedent-setting settlement of the actions.

- Liberty Mutual Overtime Cases, No. JCCP 4234 (Cal. Super. Ct., Los Angeles Cnty.). Robbins Geller attorneys served as co-lead counsel on behalf of 1,600 current and former insurance claims adjusters at Liberty Mutual Insurance Company and several of its subsidiaries. Plaintiffs brought the case to recover unpaid overtime compensation and associated penalties, alleging that Liberty Mutual had misclassified its claims adjusters as exempt from overtime under California law. After 13 years of complex and exhaustive litigation, Robbins Geller secured a settlement in which Liberty Mutual agreed to pay $65 million into a fund to compensate the class of claims adjusters for unpaid overtime. The Liberty Mutual action is one of a few claims adjuster overtime actions brought in California or elsewhere to result in a successful outcome for plaintiffs since 2004.

- Veliz v. Cintas Corp., No. 5:03-cv-01180 (N.D. Cal.). Brought against one of the nation's largest commercial laundries for violations of the Fair Labor Standards Act for misclassifying truck drivers as salesmen to avoid payment of overtime.

- Kasky v. Nike, Inc., 27 Cal. 4th 939 (2002). The California Supreme Court upheld claims that an apparel manufacturer misled the public regarding its exploitative labor practices, thereby violating California statutes prohibiting unfair competition and false advertising. The court rejected defense contentions that any misconduct was protected by the First Amendment, finding the heightened constitutional protection afforded to noncommercial speech inappropriate in such a circumstance.

Shareholder derivative litigation brought by Robbins Geller attorneys at times also involves stopping anti-union activities, including:

- Southern Pacific/Overnite. A shareholder action stemming from several hundred million dollars in loss of value in the company due to systematic violations by Overnite of U.S. labor laws.

- Massey Energy. A shareholder action against an anti-union employer for flagrant violations of environmental laws resulting in multi-million-dollar penalties.

- Crown Petroleum. A shareholder action against a Texas-based oil company for self-dealing and breach of fiduciary duty while also involved in a union lockout.

Environment and Public Health

Robbins Geller attorneys have also represented plaintiffs in class actions related to environmental law. The Firm's attorneys represented, on a pro bono basis, the Sierra Club and the National Economic Development and Law Center as amici curiae in a federal suit designed to uphold the federal and state use of project labor agreements ("PLAs"). The suit represented a legal challenge to President Bush's Executive Order 13202, which prohibits the use of project labor agreements on construction projects receiving federal funds. Our amici brief in the matter outlined and stressed the significant environmental and socio-economic benefits associated with the use of PLAs on large-scale construction projects.

Attorneys with Robbins Geller have been involved in several other significant environmental cases, including:

- Public Citizen v. U.S. D.O.T. Robbins Geller attorneys represented a coalition of labor, environmental, industry, and public health organizations including Public Citizen, The International Brotherhood of Teamsters, California AFL-CIO, and California Trucking Industry in a challenge to a decision by the Bush administration to lift a Congressionally-imposed "moratorium" on cross-border trucking from Mexico on the basis that such trucks do not conform to emission controls under the Clean Air Act, and further, that the administration did not first complete a comprehensive environmental impact analysis as required by the National Environmental Policy Act. The suit was dismissed by the United States Supreme Court, the court holding that because the D.O.T. lacked discretion to prevent crossborder trucking, an environmental assessment was not required.

- Sierra Club v. AK Steel. Brought on behalf of the Sierra Club for massive emissions of air and water pollution by a steel mill, including homes of workers living in the adjacent communities, in violation of the Federal Clean Air Act, the Resource Conservation Recovery Act, and the Clean Water Act.

- MTBE Litigation. Brought on behalf of various water districts for befouling public drinking water with MTBE, a gasoline additive linked to cancer.

- Exxon Valdez. Brought on behalf of fisherman and Alaska residents for billions of dollars in damages resulting from the greatest oil spill in U.S. history.

- Avila Beach. A citizens' suit against UNOCAL for leakage from the oil company pipeline so severe it literally destroyed the town of Avila Beach, California.

Federal laws such as the Clean Water Act, the Clean Air Act, and the Resource Conservation and Recovery Act and state laws such as California's Proposition 65 exist to protect the environment and the public from abuses by corporate and government organizations. Companies can be found liable for negligence, trespass, or intentional environmental damage, be forced to pay for reparations, and to come into compliance with existing laws. Prominent cases litigated by Robbins Geller attorneys include representing more than 4,000 individuals suing for personal injury and property damage related to the Stringfellow Dump Site in Southern California, participation in the Exxon Valdez oil spill litigation, and litigation involving the toxic spill arising from a Southern Pacific train derailment near Dunsmuir, California.

Robbins Geller attorneys have led the fight against Big Tobacco since 1991. As an example, Robbins Geller attorneys filed the case that helped get rid of Joe Camel, representing various public and private plaintiffs, including the State of Arkansas, the general public in California, the cities of San Francisco, Los Angeles, and Birmingham, 14 counties in California, and the working men and women of this country in the Union Pension and Welfare Fund cases that have been filed in 40 states. In 1992, Robbins Geller attorneys filed the first case in the country that alleged a conspiracy by the Big Tobacco companies.

Pro Bono

Robbins Geller provides counsel to those unable to afford legal representation as part of a continuous and longstanding commitment to the communities in which it serves. Over the years the Firm has dedicated a considerable amount of time, energy, and a full range of its resources for many pro bono and charitable actions.

Robbins Geller has been honored for its pro bono efforts by the California State Bar (including a nomination for the President's Pro Bono Law Firm of the Year award) and the San Diego Volunteer Lawyer's Program, among others.

Some of the Firm's and its attorneys' pro bono and charitable actions include:

- Representing public school children and parents in Tennessee challenging the state's private school voucher law, known as the Education Savings Account (ESA) Pilot Program. Robbins Geller helped achieve favorable rulings enjoining implementation of the ESA for violating the Home Rule provision of the Tennessee Constitution, which prohibits the General Assembly from passing laws that target specific counties without local approval.

- Representing California bus passengers pro bono in a landmark consumer and civil rights case against Greyhound for subjecting them to discriminatory immigration raids. Robbins Geller achieved a watershed court ruling that a private company may be held liable under California law for allowing border patrol to harass and racially profile its customers. The case heralds that Greyhound passengers do not check their rights and dignity at the bus door and has had an immediate impact, not only in California but nationwide. Within weeks of Robbins Geller filing the case, Greyhound added "know your rights" information to passengers to its website and on posters in bus stations around the country, along with adopting other business reforms.

- Working with the Homeless Action Center (HAC) to provide no-cost, barrier-free, culturally competent legal representation that makes it possible for people who are homeless (or at risk of becoming homeless) to access social safety net programs that help restore dignity and provide sustainable income, healthcare, mental health treatment, and housing. Based in Oakland and Berkeley, the non-profit is the only program in the Bay Area that specializes in legal services to those who are chronically homeless. In 2016, HAC provided assistance to 1,403 men and 936 women, and 1,691 cases were completed. An additional 1,357 cases were still pending when the year ended. The results include 512 completed SSI cases with a success rate of 87%.

- Representing Trump University students in two class actions against President Donald J. Trump. The historic settlement provides $25 million to approximately 7,000 consumers. This means individual class members are eligible for upwards of $35,000 in restitution – an extraordinary result.

- Representing children diagnosed with Autism Spectrum Disorder, as well as children with significant disabilities, in New York to remedy flawed educational policies and practices that cause substantial harm to these and other similar children year after year.

- Representing 19 San Diego County children diagnosed with Autism Spectrum Disorder in their appeal of the San Diego Regional Center's termination of funding for a crucial therapy. The victory resulted in a complete reinstatement of funding and set a precedent that allows other children to obtain the treatments they need.

- Serving as Northern California and Hawaii District Coordinator for the United States Court of Appeals for the Ninth Circuit's Pro Bono program since 1993.

- Representing the Sierra Club and the National Economic Development and Law Center as amici curiae before the U.S. Supreme Court.

- Obtaining political asylum, after an initial application had been denied, for an impoverished Somali family whose ethnic minority faced systematic persecution and genocidal violence in Somalia, as well as forced female mutilation.

- Working with the ACLU in a class action filed on behalf of welfare applicants subject to San Diego County's "Project 100%" program. Relief was had when the County admitted that food-stamp eligibility could not hinge upon the Project 100% "home visits," and again when the district court ruled that unconsented "collateral contacts" violated state regulations. The decision was noted by the Harvard Law Review, The New York Times, and The Colbert Report.

- Filing numerous amicus curiae briefs on behalf of religious organizations and clergy that support civil rights, oppose government-backed religious-viewpoint discrimination, and uphold the American traditions of religious freedom and church-state separation.

- Serving as amicus counsel in a Ninth Circuit appeal from a Board of Immigration Appeals deportation decision. In addition to obtaining a reversal of the BIA's deportation order, the Firm consulted with the Federal Defenders' Office on cases presenting similar fact patterns, which resulted in a precedent-setting en banc decision from the Ninth Circuit resolving a question of state and federal law that had been contested and conflicted for decades.

PROMINENT CASES AND JUDICIAL COMMENDATIONS

Prominent Cases

Over the years, Robbins Geller attorneys have obtained outstanding results in some of the most notorious and well-known cases, frequently earning judicial commendations for the quality of their representation.

- In re Enron Corp. Sec. Litig., No. H-01-3624 (S.D. Tex.). Investors lost billions of dollars as a result of the massive fraud at Enron. In appointing Robbins Geller lawyers as sole lead counsel to represent the interests of Enron investors, the court found that the Firm's zealous prosecution and level of "insight" set it apart from its peers. Robbins Geller attorneys and lead plaintiff The Regents of the University of California aggressively pursued numerous defendants, including many of Wall Street's biggest banks, and successfully obtained settlements in excess of $7.2 billion for the benefit of investors. This is the largest securities class action recovery in history.

  The court overseeing this action had utmost praise for Robbins Geller's efforts and stated that "[t]he experience, ability, and reputation of the attorneys of [Robbins Geller] is not disputed; it is one of the most successful law firms in securities class actions, if not the preeminent one, in the country." In re Enron Corp. Sec., Derivative & "ERISA" Litig., 586 F. Supp. 2d 732, 797 (S.D. Tex. 2008).

  The court further commented: "[I]n the face of extraordinary obstacles, the skills, expertise, commitment, and tenacity of [Robbins Geller] in this litigation cannot be overstated. Not to be overlooked are the unparalleled results, . . . which demonstrate counsel's clearly superlative litigating and negotiating skills." Id. at 789.

  The court stated that the Firm's attorneys "are to be commended for their zealousness, their diligence, their perseverance, their creativity, the enormous breadth and depth of their investigations and analysis, and their expertise in all areas of securities law on behalf of the proposed class." Id.

  In addition, the court noted, "This Court considers [Robbins Geller] 'a lion' at the securities bar on the national level," noting that the Lead Plaintiff selected Robbins Geller because of the Firm's "outstanding reputation, experience, and success in securities litigation nationwide." Id. at 790.

  The court further stated that "Lead Counsel's fearsome reputation and successful track record undoubtedly were substantial factors in . . . obtaining these recoveries." Id.

  Finally, Judge Harmon stated: "As this Court has explained [this is] an extraordinary group of attorneys who achieved the largest settlement fund ever despite the great odds against them." Id. at 828.

- Jaffe v. Household Int'l, Inc., No. 02-C-05893 (N.D. Ill). As sole lead counsel, Robbins Geller obtained a record-breaking settlement of $1.575 billion after 14 years of litigation, including a six-week jury trial in 2009 that resulted in a securities fraud verdict in favor of the class. In 2015, the Seventh Circuit Court of Appeals upheld the jury's verdict that defendants made false or misleading statements of material fact about the company's business practices and financial results, but remanded the case for a new trial on the issue of whether the individual defendants "made" certain false statements, whether those false statements caused plaintiffs' losses, and the amount of damages. The parties reached an agreement to settle the case just hours before the retrial was scheduled to begin on June 6, 2016. The $1.575 billion settlement, approved in October 2016, is the largest ever following a securities fraud class action trial, the largest securities fraud settlement in the Seventh Circuit and the eighth-largest settlement ever in a post-PSLRA securities fraud case. According to published reports, the case was just the seventh securities fraud case tried to a verdict since the passage of the PSLRA.

In approving the settlement, the Honorable Jorge L. Alonso noted the team's "skill and determination" while recognizing that "Lead Counsel prosecuted the case vigorously and skillfully over 14 years against nine of the country's most prominent law firms" and "achieved an exceptionally significant recovery for the class." The court added that the team faced "significant hurdles" and "uphill battles" throughout the case and recognized that "[c]lass counsel performed a very high-quality legal work in the context of a thorny case in which the state of the law has been and is in flux." The court succinctly concluded that the settlement was "a spectacular result for the class." Jaffe v. Household Int'l, Inc., No. 02-C-5892, 2016 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 156921, at *8 (N.D. Ill. Nov. 10, 2016); Jaffe v. Household Int'l, Inc., No. 02-C-05893, Transcript at 56, 65 (N.D. Ill. Oct. 20, 2016).

- Hall v. NCAA (Restricted Earnings Coach Antitrust Litigation), No. 94-2392 (D. Kan.). Robbins Geller attorneys were lead counsel and lead trial counsel for one of three classes of coaches in these consolidated price-fixing actions against the National Collegiate Athletic Association. On May 4, 1998, the jury returned verdicts in favor of the three classes for more than $70 million.

- In re Valeant Pharms. Int'l, Inc. Sec. Litig., No. 3:15-cv-07658 (D.N.J.). As sole lead counsel, Robbins Geller attorneys obtained a $1.2 billion settlement in the securities case that Vanity Fair reported as "the corporate scandal of its era" that had raised "fundamental questions about the functioning of our health-care system, the nature of modern markets, and the slippery slope of ethical rationalizations." The settlement resolves claims that defendants made false and misleading statements regarding Valeant's business and financial performance during the class period, attributing Valeant's dramatic growth in revenues and profitability to "innovative new marketing approaches" as part of a business model that was low risk and "durable and sustainable." Valeant is the largest securities class action settlement against a pharmaceutical manufacturer and the ninth largest ever.

- In re Am. Realty Cap. Props., Inc. Litig., No. 1:15-mc-00040 (S.D.N.Y.). As sole lead counsel, Robbins Geller attorneys zealously litigated the case arising out of ARCP's manipulative accounting practices and obtained a $1.025 billion settlement. For five years, the litigation team prosecuted nine different claims for violations of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 and Securities Act of 1933, involving seven different stock or debt offerings and two mergers. The recovery represents the highest percentage of damages of any major PSLRA case prior to trial and includes the largest personal contributions by individual defendants in history.

  In approving the settlement, the Honorable Alvin K. Hellerstein lauded the Robbins Geller litigation team, noting: "My own observation is that plaintiffs' representation is adequate and that the role of lead counsel was fulfilled in an extremely fine fashion by [Robbins Geller]. At every juncture, the representations made to me were reliable, the arguments were cogent, and the representation of their client was zealous."

- In re UnitedHealth Grp. Inc. PSLRA Litig., No. 06-CV-1691 (D. Minn.). In the UnitedHealth case, Robbins Geller represented the California Public Employees' Retirement System ("CalPERS") and demonstrated its willingness to vigorously advocate for its institutional clients, even under the most difficult circumstances. For example, in 2006, the issue of high-level executives backdating stock options made national headlines. During that time, many law firms, including Robbins Geller, brought shareholder derivative lawsuits against the companies' boards of directors for breaches of their fiduciary duties or for improperly granting backdated options. Rather than pursuing a shareholder derivative case, the Firm filed a securities fraud class action against the company on behalf of CalPERS. In doing so, Robbins Geller faced significant and unprecedented legal obstacles with respect to loss causation, i.e., that defendants' actions were responsible for causing the stock losses. Despite these legal hurdles, Robbins Geller obtained an $895 million recovery on behalf of the UnitedHealth shareholders. Shortly after reaching the $895 million settlement with UnitedHealth, the remaining corporate defendants, including former CEO William A. McGuire, also settled. McGuire paid $30 million and returned stock options representing more than three million shares to the shareholders. The total recovery for the class was over $925 million, the largest stock option backdating recovery ever, and a recovery that is more than four times larger than the next largest options backdating recovery. Moreover, Robbins Geller obtained unprecedented corporate governance reforms, including election of a shareholder-nominated member to the company's board of directors, a mandatory holding period for shares acquired by executives via option exercise, and executive compensation reforms that tie pay to performance.

- Alaska Elec. Pension Fund v. CitiGroup, Inc. (In re WorldCom Sec. Litig.), No. 03 Civ. 8269 (S.D.N.Y.). Robbins Geller attorneys represented more than 50 private and public institutions that opted out of the class action case and sued WorldCom's bankers, officers and directors, and auditors in courts around the country for losses related to WorldCom bond offerings from 1998 to 2001. The Firm's clients included major public institutions from across the country such as CalPERS, CalSTRS, the state pension funds of Maine, Illinois, New Mexico, and West Virginia, union pension funds, and private entities such as AIG and Northwestern Mutual. Robbins Geller attorneys recovered more than $650 million for their clients, substantially more than they would have recovered as part of the class.

- Luther v. Countrywide Fin. Corp., No. 12-cv-05125 (C.D. Cal.). Robbins Geller attorneys secured a $500 million settlement for institutional and individual investors in what is the largest RMBS purchaser class action settlement in history, and one of the largest class action securities settlements of all time. The unprecedented settlement resolves claims against Countrywide and Wall Street banks that issued the securities. The action was the first securities class action case filed against originators and Wall Street banks as a result of the credit crisis. As co-lead counsel Robbins Geller forged through six years of hard-fought litigation, oftentimes litigating issues of first impression, in order to secure the landmark settlement for its clients and the class.

  In approving the settlement, Judge Mariana R. Pfaelzer repeatedly complimented plaintiffs' attorneys, noting that it was "beyond serious dispute that Class Counsel has vigorously prosecuted the Settlement Actions on both the state and federal level over the last six years." Judge Pfaelzer also commented that "[w]ithout a settlement, these cases would continue indefinitely, resulting in significant risks to recovery and continued litigation costs. It is difficult to understate the risks to recovery if litigation had continued." Me. State Ret. Sys. v. Countrywide Fin. Corp., No. 2:10-CV-00302, 2013 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 179190, at *44, *56 (C.D. Cal. Dec. 5, 2013).

  Judge Pfaelzer further noted that the proposed $500 million settlement represents one of the "largest MBS class action settlements to date. Indeed, this settlement easily surpasses the next largest . . . MBS settlement." Id. at *59.

- In re Wachovia Preferred Sec. & Bond/Notes Litig., No. 09-cv-06351 (S.D.N.Y.). In litigation over bonds and preferred securities, issued by Wachovia between 2006 and 2008, Robbins Geller and co-counsel obtained a significant settlement with Wachovia successor Wells Fargo & Company ($590 million) and Wachovia auditor KPMG LLP ($37 million). The total settlement – $627 million – is one of the largest credit-crisis settlements involving Securities Act claims and one of the 25 largest securities class action recoveries in history. The settlement is also one of the biggest securities class action recoveries arising from the credit crisis.

  As alleged in the complaint, the offering materials for the bonds and preferred securities misstated and failed to disclose the true nature and quality of Wachovia's mortgage loan portfolio, which exposed the bank and misled investors to tens of billions of dollars in losses on mortgage-related assets. In reality, Wachovia employed high-risk underwriting standards and made loans to subprime borrowers, contrary to the offering materials and their statements of "pristine credit quality." Robbins Geller served as co-lead counsel representing the City of Livonia Employees' Retirement System, Hawaii Sheet Metal Workers Pension Fund, and the investor class.

- In re Cardinal Health, Inc. Sec. Litig., No. C2-04-575 (S.D. Ohio). As sole lead counsel representing Cardinal Health shareholders, Robbins Geller obtained a recovery of $600 million for investors. On behalf of the lead plaintiffs, Amalgamated Bank, the New Mexico State Investment Council, and the California Ironworkers Field Trust Fund, the Firm aggressively pursued class claims and won numerous courtroom victories, including a favorable decision on defendants' motion to dismiss. In re Cardinal Health, Inc. Sec. Litigs., 426 F. Supp. 2d 688 (S.D. Ohio 2006). At the time, the $600 million settlement was the tenth-largest settlement in the history of securities fraud litigation and is the largest-ever recovery in a securities fraud action in the Sixth Circuit. Judge Marbley commented: "[T]his is an extraordinary settlement relative to all the other settlements in cases of this nature and certainly cases of this magnitude. . . . This was an outstanding settlement. . . . [I]n most instances, if you've gotten four cents on the dollar, you've done well. You've gotten twenty cents on the dollar, so that's been extraordinary. In re Cardinal Health, Inc. Sec. Litig., No. 2:04-CV-575, Transcript at 16, 32 (S.D. Ohio Oct. 19, 2007). Judge Marbley further stated:

  > The quality of representation in this case was superb. Lead Counsel, [Robbins Geller], are nationally recognized leaders in complex securities litigation class actions. The quality of the representation is demonstrated by the substantial benefit achieved for the Class and the efficient, effective prosecution and resolution of this action. Lead Counsel defeated a volley of motions to dismiss, thwarting well-formed challenges from prominent and capable attorneys from six different law firms.

  In re Cardinal Health Inc. Sec. Litigs., 528 F. Supp. 2d 752, 768 (S.D. Ohio 2007).

- AOL Time Warner Cases I & II, JCCP Nos. 4322 & 4325 (Cal. Super. Ct., Los Angeles Cnty.). Robbins Geller represented The Regents of the University of California, six Ohio state pension funds, Rabo Bank (NL), the Scottish Widows Investment Partnership, several Australian public and private funds, insurance companies, and numerous additional institutional investors, both domestic and international, in state and federal court opt-out litigation stemming from Time Warner's disastrous 2001 merger with Internet high flier America Online. Robbins Geller attorneys exposed a massive and sophisticated accounting fraud involving America Online's e-commerce and advertising revenue. After almost four years of litigation involving extensive discovery, the Firm secured combined settlements for its opt-out clients totaling over $629 million just weeks before The Regents' case pending in California state court was scheduled to go to trial. The Regents' gross recovery of $246 million is the largest individual opt-out securities recovery in history.

- Abu Dhabi Commercial Bank v. Morgan Stanley & Co., No. 1:08-cv-07508-SAS-DCF (S.D.N.Y.), and King County, Washington v. IKB Deutsche Industriebank AG, No. 1:09-cv-08387-SAS (S.D.N.Y.). The Firm represented multiple institutional investors in successfully pursuing recoveries from two failed structured investment vehicles, each of which had been rated "AAA" by Standard & Poors and Moody's, but which failed fantastically in 2007. The matter settled just prior to trial in 2013. This result was only made possible after Robbins Geller lawyers beat back the rating agencies' longtime argument that ratings were opinions protected by the First Amendment.

- In re HealthSouth Corp. Sec. Litig., No. CV-03-BE-1500-S (N.D. Ala.). As court-appointed co-lead counsel, Robbins Geller attorneys obtained a combined recovery of $671 million from HealthSouth, its auditor Ernst & Young, and its investment banker, UBS, for the benefit of stockholder plaintiffs. The settlement against HealthSouth represents one of the larger settlements in securities class action history and is considered among the top 15 settlements achieved after passage of the PSLRA. Likewise, the settlement against Ernst & Young is one of the largest securities class action settlements entered into by an accounting firm since the passage of the PSLRA. HealthSouth and its financial advisors perpetrated one of the largest and most pervasive frauds in the history of U.S. healthcare, prompting Congressional and law enforcement inquiry and resulting in guilty pleas of 16 former HealthSouth executives in related federal criminal prosecutions. In March 2009, Judge Karon Bowdre commented in the HealthSouth class certification opinion: "The court has had many opportunities since November 2001 to examine the work of class counsel and the supervision by the Class Representatives. The court finds both to be far more than adequate." In re HealthSouth Corp. Sec. Litig., 257 F.R.D. 260, 275 (N.D. Ala. 2009).

- In re Facebook Biometric Info. Privacy Litig., No. 3:15-cv-03747 (N.D. Cal.). Robbins Geller served as co-lead class counsel in a cutting-edge certified class action, securing a record-breaking $650 million all-cash settlement, the largest privacy settlement in history. The case concerned Facebook's alleged privacy violations through its collection of its users' biometric identifiers without informed consent through its "Tag Suggestions" feature, which uses proprietary facial recognition software to extract from user-uploaded photographs the unique biometric identifiers (i.e., graphical representations of facial features, also known as facial geometry) associated with people's faces and identify who they are. The Honorable James Donato called the settlement "a groundbreaking settlement in a novel area" and praised the unprecedented 22% claims rate as "pretty phenomenal" and "a pretty good day in class settlement history."

- In re Dynegy Inc. Sec. Litig., No. H-02-1571 (S.D. Tex.). As sole lead counsel representing The Regents of the University of California and the class of Dynegy investors, Robbins Geller attorneys obtained a combined settlement of $474 million from Dynegy, Citigroup, Inc., and Arthur Andersen LLP for their involvement in a clandestine financing scheme known as Project Alpha. Given Dynegy's limited ability to pay, Robbins Geller attorneys structured a settlement (reached shortly before the commencement of trial) that maximized plaintiffs' recovery without bankrupting the company. Most notably, the settlement agreement provides that Dynegy will appoint two board members to be nominated by The Regents, which Robbins Geller and The Regents believe will benefit all of Dynegy's stockholders.

- Jones v. Pfizer Inc., No. 1:10-cv-03864 (S.D.N.Y.). Lead plaintiff Stichting Philips Pensioenfonds obtained a $400 million settlement on behalf of class members who purchased Pfizer common stock during the January 19, 2006 to January 23, 2009 class period. The settlement against Pfizer resolves accusations that it misled investors about an alleged off-label drug marketing scheme. As sole lead counsel, Robbins Geller attorneys helped achieve this exceptional result after five years of hard-fought litigation against the toughest and the brightest members of the securities defense bar by litigating this case all the way to trial.

  In approving the settlement, United States District Judge Alvin K. Hellerstein commended the Firm, noting that "[w]ithout the quality and the toughness that you have exhibited, our society would not be as good as it is with all its problems. So from me to you is a vote of thanks for devoting yourself to this work and doing it well. . . . You did a really good job. Congratulations."

- In re Qwest Commc'ns Int'l, Inc. Sec. Litig., No. 01-cv-1451 (D. Colo.). Robbins Geller attorneys served as lead counsel for a class of investors that purchased Qwest securities. In July 2001, the Firm filed the initial complaint in this action on behalf of its clients, long before any investigation into Qwest's financial statements was initiated by the SEC or Department of Justice. After five years of litigation, lead plaintiffs entered into a settlement with Qwest and certain individual defendants that provided a $400 million recovery for the class and created a mechanism that allowed the vast majority of class members to share in an additional $250 million recovered by the SEC. In 2008, Robbins Geller attorneys recovered an additional $45 million for the class in a settlement with defendants Joseph P. Nacchio and Robert S. Woodruff, the CEO and CFO, respectively, of Qwest during large portions of the class period.

- Fort Worth Emps.' Ret. Fund v. J.P. Morgan Chase & Co., No. 1:09-cv-03701 (S.D.N.Y.). Robbins Geller attorneys served as lead counsel for a class of investors and obtained court approval of a $388 million recovery in nine 2007 residential mortgage-backed securities offerings issued by J.P. Morgan. The settlement represents, on a percentage basis, the largest recovery ever achieved in an MBS purchaser class action. The result was achieved after more than five years of hard-fought litigation and an extensive investigation. In granting approval of the settlement, the court stated the following about Robbins Geller attorneys litigating the case: "[T]here is no question in my mind that this is a very good result for the class and that the plaintiffs' counsel fought the case very hard with extensive discovery, a lot of depositions, several rounds of briefing of various legal issues going all the way through class certification."

- Smilovits v. First Solar, Inc., No. 2:12-cv-00555 (D. Ariz.). As sole lead counsel, Robbins Geller obtained a $350 million settlement in Smilovits v. First Solar, Inc. The settlement, which was reached after a long legal battle and on the day before jury selection, resolves claims that First Solar violated §§10(b) and 20(a) of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 and SEC Rule 10b-5. The settlement is the fifth-largest PSLRA settlement ever recovered in the Ninth Circuit.

- NECA-IBEW Health & Welfare Fund v. Goldman Sachs & Co., No. 1:08-cv-10783 (S.D.N.Y.). As sole lead counsel, Robbins Geller obtained a $272 million settlement on behalf of Goldman Sachs' shareholders. The settlement concludes one of the last remaining mortgage-backed securities purchaser class actions arising out of the global financial crisis. The remarkable result was achieved following seven years of extensive litigation. After the claims were dismissed in 2010, Robbins Geller secured a landmark victory from the Second Circuit Court of Appeals that clarified the scope of permissible class actions asserting claims under the Securities Act of 1933 on behalf of MBS investors. Specifically, the Second Circuit's decision rejected the concept of "tranche" standing and concluded that a lead plaintiff in an MBS class action has class standing to pursue claims on behalf of purchasers of other securities that were issued from the same registration statement and backed by pools of mortgages originated by the same lenders who had originated mortgages backing the lead plaintiff's securities.

In approving the settlement, the Honorable Loretta A. Preska of the Southern District of New York complimented Robbins Geller attorneys, noting:

> Counsel, thank you for your papers. They were, by the way, extraordinary papers in support of the settlement, and I will particularly note Professor Miller's declaration in which he details the procedural aspects of the case and then speaks of plaintiffs' counsel's success in the Second Circuit essentially changing the law.
>
> I will also note what counsel have said, and that is that this case illustrates the proper functioning of the statute.
>
> * * *
>
> Counsel, you can all be proud of what you've done for your clients. You've done an extraordinarily good job.

NECA-IBEW Health & Welfare Fund v. Goldman Sachs & Co., No. 1:08-cv-10783, Transcript at 10-11 (S.D.N.Y. May 2, 2016).

- Schuh v. HCA Holdings, Inc., No. 3:11-cv-01033 (M.D. Tenn.). As sole lead counsel, Robbins Geller obtained a groundbreaking $215 million settlement for former HCA Holdings, Inc. shareholders – the largest securities class action recovery ever in Tennessee. Reached shortly before trial was scheduled to commence, the settlement resolves claims that the Registration Statement and Prospectus HCA filed in connection with the company's massive $4.3 billion 2011 IPO contained material misstatements and omissions. The recovery achieved represents more than 30% of the aggregate classwide damages, far exceeding the typical recovery in a securities class action. At the hearing on final approval of the settlement, the Honorable Kevin H. Sharp described Robbins Geller attorneys as "gladiators" and commented: "Looking at the benefit obtained, the effort that you had to put into it, [and] the complexity in this case . . . I appreciate the work that you all have done on this." Schuh v. HCA Holdings, Inc., No. 3:11-CV-01033, Transcript at 12-13 (M.D. Tenn. Apr. 11, 2016).

- Silverman v. Motorola, Inc., No. 1:07-cv-04507 (N.D. Ill.). The Firm served as lead counsel on behalf of a class of investors in Motorola, ultimately recovering $200 million for investors just two months before the case was set for trial. This outstanding result was obtained despite the lack of an SEC investigation or any financial restatement. In May 2012, the Honorable Amy J. St. Eve of the Northern District of Illinois commented: "The representation that [Robbins Geller] provided to the class was significant, both in terms of quality and quantity." Silverman v. Motorola, Inc., No. 07 C 4507, 2012 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 63477, at *11 (N.D. Ill. May 7, 2012), aff'd, 739 F.3d 956 (7th Cir. 2013).

  In affirming the district court's award of attorneys' fees, the Seventh Circuit noted that "no other law firm was willing to serve as lead counsel. Lack of competition not only implies a higher fee but also suggests that most members of the securities bar saw this litigation as too risky for their practices." Silverman v. Motorola Sols., Inc., 739 F.3d 956, 958 (7th Cir. 2013).

- In re AT&T Corp. Sec. Litig., MDL No. 1399 (D.N.J.). Robbins Geller attorneys served as lead counsel for a class of investors that purchased AT&T common stock. The case charged defendants AT&T and its former Chairman and CEO, C. Michael Armstrong, with violations of the federal securities laws in connection with AT&T's April 2000 initial public offering of its wireless tracking stock, one of the largest IPOs in American history. After two weeks of trial, and on the eve of scheduled testimony by Armstrong and infamous telecom analyst Jack Grubman, defendants agreed to settle the case for $100 million. In granting approval of the settlement, the court stated the following about the Robbins Geller attorneys handling the case:

> Lead Counsel are highly skilled attorneys with great experience in prosecuting complex securities action[s], and their professionalism and diligence displayed during [this] litigation substantiates this characterization. The Court notes that Lead Counsel displayed excellent lawyering skills through their consistent preparedness during court proceedings, arguments and the trial, and their well-written and thoroughly researched submissions to the Court. Undoubtedly, the attentive and persistent effort of Lead Counsel was integral in achieving the excellent result for the Class.

In re AT&T Corp. Sec. Litig., MDL No. 1399, 2005 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 46144, at *28-*29 (D.N.J. Apr. 25, 2005), aff'd, 455 F.3d 160 (3d Cir. 2006).

- In re Dollar Gen. Corp. Sec. Litig., No. 01-CV-00388 (M.D. Tenn.). Robbins Geller attorneys served as lead counsel in this case in which the Firm recovered $172.5 million for investors. The Dollar General settlement was the largest shareholder class action recovery ever in Tennessee.

- Carpenters Health & Welfare Fund v. Coca-Cola Co., No. 00-CV-2838 (N.D. Ga.). As co-lead counsel representing Coca-Cola shareholders, Robbins Geller attorneys obtained a recovery of $137.5 million after nearly eight years of litigation. Robbins Geller attorneys traveled to three continents to uncover the evidence that ultimately resulted in the settlement of this hard-fought litigation. The case concerned Coca-Cola's shipping of excess concentrate at the end of financial reporting periods for the sole purpose of meeting analyst earnings expectations, as well as the company's failure to properly account for certain impaired foreign bottling assets.

- Schwartz v. TXU Corp., No. 02-CV-2243 (N.D. Tex.). As co-lead counsel, Robbins Geller attorneys obtained a recovery of over $149 million for a class of purchasers of TXU securities. The recovery compensated class members for damages they incurred as a result of their purchases of TXU securities at inflated prices. Defendants had inflated the price of these securities by concealing the fact that TXU's operating earnings were declining due to a deteriorating gas pipeline and the failure of the company's European operations.

- In re Doral Fin. Corp. Sec. Litig., 05 MDL No. 1706 (S.D.N.Y.). In July 2007, the Honorable Richard Owen of the Southern District of New York approved the $129 million settlement, finding in his order:

> The services provided by Lead Counsel [Robbins Geller] were efficient and highly successful, resulting in an outstanding recovery for the Class without the substantial expense, risk and delay of continued litigation. Such efficiency and effectiveness supports the requested fee percentage.

> Cases brought under the federal securities laws are notably difficult and notoriously uncertain. . . . Despite the novelty and difficulty of the issues raised, Lead Plaintiffs' counsel secured an excellent result for the Class.
>
> . . . Based upon Lead Plaintiff's counsel's diligent efforts on behalf of the Class, as well as their skill and reputations, Lead Plaintiff's counsel were able to negotiate a very favorable result for the Class. . . . The ability of [Robbins Geller] to obtain such a favorable partial settlement for the Class in the face of such formidable opposition confirms the superior quality of their representation . . . .

In re Doral Fin. Corp. Sec. Litig., No. 1:05-md-01706, Order at 4-5 (S.D.N.Y. July 17, 2007).

- In re Exxon Valdez, No. A89 095 Civ. (D. Alaska), and In re Exxon Valdez Oil Spill Litig., No. 3 AN 89 2533 (Alaska Super. Ct., 3d Jud. Dist.). Robbins Geller attorneys served on the Plaintiffs' Coordinating Committee and Plaintiffs' Law Committee in this massive litigation resulting from the Exxon Valdez oil spill in Alaska in March 1989. The jury awarded hundreds of millions in compensatory damages, as well as $5 billion in punitive damages (the latter were later reduced by the U.S. Supreme Court to $507 million).

- Mangini v. R.J. Reynolds Tobacco Co., No. 939359 (Cal. Super. Ct., San Francisco Cnty.). In this case, R.J. Reynolds admitted that "the Mangini action, and the way that it was vigorously litigated, was an early, significant and unique driver of the overall legal and social controversy regarding underage smoking that led to the decision to phase out the Joe Camel Campaign."

- Does I v. The Gap, Inc., No. 01 0031 (D. N. Mar. I.). In this groundbreaking case, Robbins Geller attorneys represented a class of 30,000 garment workers who alleged that they had worked under sweatshop conditions in garment factories in Saipan that produced clothing for top U.S. retailers such as The Gap, Target, and J.C. Penney. In the first action of its kind, Robbins Geller attorneys pursued claims against the factories and the retailers alleging violations of RICO, the Alien Tort Claims Act, and the Law of Nations based on the alleged systemic labor and human rights abuses occurring in Saipan. This case was a companion to two other actions: Does I v. Advance Textile Corp., No. 99 0002 (D. N. Mar. I.), which alleged overtime violations by the garment factories under the Fair Labor Standards Act and local labor law, and UNITE v. The Gap, Inc., No. 300474 (Cal. Super. Ct., San Francisco Cty.), which alleged violations of California's Unfair Practices Law by the U.S. retailers. These actions resulted in a settlement of approximately $20 million that included a comprehensive monitoring program to address past violations by the factories and prevent future ones. The members of the litigation team were honored as Trial Lawyers of the Year by the Trial Lawyers for Public Justice in recognition of the team's efforts in bringing about the precedent-setting settlement of the actions.

- In re Prison Realty Sec. Litig., No. 3:99-0452 (M.D. Tenn.). Robbins Geller attorneys served as lead counsel for the class, obtaining a $105 million recovery.

- In re Honeywell Int'l, Inc. Sec. Litig., No. 00-cv-03605 (D.N.J.). Robbins Geller attorneys served as lead counsel for a class of investors that purchased Honeywell common stock. The case charged Honeywell and its top officers with violations of the federal securities laws, alleging the defendants made false public statements concerning Honeywell's merger with Allied Signal, Inc. and that defendants falsified Honeywell's financial statements. After extensive discovery, Robbins Geller attorneys obtained a $100 million settlement for the class.

- Schwartz v. Visa Int'l, No. 822404-4 (Cal. Super. Ct., Alameda Cnty.). After years of litigation and a six-month trial, Robbins Geller attorneys won one of the largest consumer protection verdicts ever awarded in the United States. Robbins Geller attorneys represented California consumers in an action against Visa and MasterCard for intentionally imposing and concealing a fee from their cardholders. The court ordered Visa and MasterCard to return $800 million in cardholder losses, which represented 100% of the amount illegally taken, plus 2% interest. In addition, the court ordered full disclosure of the hidden fee.

- Thompson v. Metro. Life Ins. Co., No. 00-cv-5071 (S.D.N.Y.). Robbins Geller attorneys served as lead counsel and obtained $145 million for the class in a settlement involving racial discrimination claims in the sale of life insurance.

- In re Prudential Ins. Co. of Am. Sales Pracs. Litig., MDL No. 1061 (D.N.J.). In one of the first cases of its kind, Robbins Geller attorneys obtained a settlement of $4 billion for deceptive sales practices in connection with the sale of life insurance involving the "vanishing premium" sales scheme.

Additional Judicial Commendations

Robbins Geller attorneys have been praised by countless judges all over the country for the quality of their representation in class-action lawsuits. In addition to the judicial commendations set forth in the Prominent Cases and Precedent-Setting Decisions sections, judges have acknowledged the successful results of the Firm and its attorneys with the following plaudits:

- On October 5, 2022, at the final approval hearing of the settlement, the Honorable Paul A. Fioravanti, Jr. stated: "The settlement achieved here is, in short, impressive. . . . This litigation was hard fought. The issues were complex. . . . Plaintiffs' lead counsel here are among the most highly respected practitioners in this Court with a reputation for exacting substantial awards for the classes that they represent. . . . Again, the benefit was outstanding. . . . Counsel, this was an interesting case. I know you worked really hard on it. Fantastic result. The fee was well deserved." City of Warren Gen. Emps.' Ret. Sys. v. Roche, No. 2019-0740-PAF, Transcript at 26-29 (Del. Ch. Oct. 5, 2022).

- On February 4, 2021, in granting final approval of the settlement, the Honorable Mark H. Cohen of the United States District Court for the Northern District of Georgia stated: "Lead Counsel successfully achieved a greater-than-average settlement 'in the face of significant risks.'" Robbins Geller's "hard-fought litigation in the Eleventh Circuit" and "[i]n considering the experience, reputation, and abilities of the attorneys, the Court recognize[d] that Lead Counsel is well-regarded in the legal community, especially in litigating class-action securities cases." Monroe County Employees' Retirement System v. The Southern Company, No. 1:17-cv-00241, Order at 8-9 (N.D. Ga. Feb. 4, 2021).

- On December 18, 2020, at the final approval hearing of the settlement, the Honorable Yvonne Gonzalez Rogers of the United States District Court for the Northern District of California commended Robbins Geller, stating: "Counsel performed excellent work in not only investigating and analyzing the core of the issues, but in negotiating and demanding the necessary reforms to prevent malfeasance for the benefit of the shareholders and the consumers. The Court complements counsel for its excellence." In re RH S'holder Derivative Litig., No. 4:18-cv-02452-YGR, Order and Final Judgment at 3 (N.D. Cal. Dec. 18, 2020).

- On October 23, 2020, at the final approval hearing of the settlement, the Honorable P. Kevin Castel of the United States District Court for the Southern District of New York praised the firm, "[Robbins Geller] has been sophisticated and experienced." He also noted that: "[T]he quality of the representation . . . was excellent. The experience of counsel is also a factor. Robbins Geller certainly has the extensive experience and they were litigating against national powerhouses . . . ." City of Birmingham Ret. & Relief Sys. v. BRF S.A., No. 18 Civ. 2213 (PKC), Transcript at 12-13, 18 (S.D.N.Y. Oct. 23, 2020).

- In May 2020, in granting final approval of the settlement, the Honorable Mark L. Wolf praised Robbins Geller: "[T]he class has been represented by excellent honorable counsel . . . . [T]he fund was represented by experienced, energetic, able counsel, the fund was engaged and informed, and the fund followed advice of experienced counsel. Counsel for the class have been excellent, and I would say honorable." Additionally, Judge Wolf noted, "I find that the work that's been done primarily by Robbins Geller has been excellent and honorable and efficient. . . . [T]his has been a challenging case, and they've done an excellent job." McGee v. Constant Contact, Inc., No. 1:15-cv-13114-MLW, Transcript at 21, 31, 61 (D. Mass. May 27, 2020).

- In December 2019, the Honorable Margo K. Brodie noted in granting final approval of the settlement that "[Robbins Geller and co-counsel] have also demonstrated the utmost professionalism despite the demands of the extreme perseverance that this case has required, litigating on behalf of a class of over 12 million for over fourteen years, across a changing legal landscape, significant motion practice, and appeal and remand. Class counsel's pedigree and efforts alone speak to the quality of their representation." In re Payment Card Interchange Fee & Merch. Disc. Antitrust Litig., No. 1:05-md-01720-MKB-JO, Memorandum & Order (E.D.N.Y. Dec. 16, 2019).

- In October 2019, the Honorable Claire C. Cecchi noted that Robbins Geller is "capable of adequately representing the class, both based on their prior experience in class action lawsuits and based on their capable advocacy on behalf of the class in this action." The court further commended the Firm and co-counsel for "conduct[ing] the [l]itigation . . . with skill, perseverance, and diligent advocacy." Lincoln Adventures, LLC v. Those Certain Underwriters at Lloyd's, London Members, No. 2:08-cv-00235-CCC-JAD, Order at 4 (D.N.J. Oct. 3, 2019); Lincoln Adventures, LLC v. Those Certain Underwriters at Lloyd's, London Members of Syndicates, No. 2:08-cv-00235-CCC-JAD, Order Awarding Attorneys' Fees and Expenses/Charges and Service Awards at 3 (D.N.J. Oct. 3, 2019).

- In June 2019, the Honorable T.S. Ellis, III noted that Robbins Geller "achieved the [$108 million] [s]ettlement with skill, perseverance, and diligent advocacy." At the final approval hearing, the court further commended Robbins Geller by stating, "I think the case was fully and appropriately litigated [and] you all did a very good job. . . . [T]hank you for your service in the court. . . . [You're] first-class lawyers . . . ." Knurr v. Orbital ATK, Inc., No. 1:16-cv-01031, Order Awarding Attorneys' Fees and Expenses at 3 (E.D. Va. June 7, 2019); Knurr v. Orbital ATK, Inc., No. 1:16-cv-01031, Transcript at 28-29 (E.D. Va. June 7, 2019).

- In June 2019, in granting final approval of the settlement, the Honorable John A. Houston stated: Robbins Geller's "skill and quality of work was extraordinary . . . . I'll note from the top that this has been an aggressively litigated action." In re Morning Song Bird Food Litig., No. 3:12-cv-01592-JAH-AGS, Transcript at 4, 9 (S.D. Cal. June 3, 2019).

- In May 2019, in granting final approval of the settlement, the Honorable Richard H. DuBois stated: Robbins Geller is "highly experienced and skilled" for obtaining a "fair, reasonable, and adequate" settlement in the "interest of the [c]lass [m]embers" after "extensive investigation." Chicago Laborers Pension Fund v. Alibaba Grp. Holding Ltd., No. CIV535692, Judgment and Order Granting Final Approval of Class Action Settlement at 3 (Cal. Super. Ct., San Mateo Cnty. May 17, 2019).

- In April 2019, the Honorable Kathaleen St. J. McCormick noted: "[S]ince the inception of this litigation, plaintiffs and their counsel have vigorously prosecuted the claims brought on behalf of the class. . . . When Vice Chancellor Laster appointed lead counsel, he effectively said: Go get a good result. And counsel took that to heart and did it. . . . The proposed settlement was the product of intense litigation and complex mediation. . . . [Robbins Geller has] only built a considerable track record, never burned it, which gave them the credibility necessary to extract the benefits achieved." In re Calamos Asset Mgmt., Inc. S'holder Litig., No. 2017-0058-JTL, Transcript at 87, 93, 95, 98 (Del. Ch. Apr. 25, 2019).

- In April 2019, the Honorable Susan O. Hickey noted that Robbins Geller "achieved an exceptional [s]ettlement with skill, perseverance, and diligent advocacy." City of Pontiac Gen. Emps.' Ret. Sys. v. Wal-Mart Stores, Inc., No. 5:12-cv-5162, Order Awarding Attorneys' Fees and Expenses at 3 (W.D. Ark. Apr. 8, 2019).

- In January 2019, the Honorable Margo K. Brodie noted that Robbins Geller "has arduously represented a variety of plaintiffs' groups in this action[,] . . . [has] extensive antitrust class action litigation experience . . . [and] negotiated what [may be] the largest antitrust settlement in history." In re Payment Card Interchange Fee & Merch. Disc. Antitrust Litig., 330 F.R.D. 11, 34 (E.D.N.Y. 2019).

- On December 20, 2018, at the final approval hearing for the settlement, the court lauded Robbins Geller's attorneys and their work: "[T]his is a pretty extraordinary settlement, recovery on behalf of the members of the class. . . . I've been very impressed with the level of lawyering in the case . . . and with the level of briefing . . . and I wanted to express my appreciation for that and for the work that everyone has done here." The court concluded, "your clients were all blessed to have you, [and] not just because of the outcome." Duncan v. Joy Global, Inc., No. 16-CV-1229, Transcript at 12, 20-21 (E.D. Wis. Dec. 20, 2018).

- In October 2017, the Honorable William Alsup noted that Robbins Geller and lead plaintiff "vigorously prosecuted this action." In re LendingClub Sec. Litig., No. 3:16-cv-02627-WHA, Order at 13 (N.D. Cal. Oct. 20, 2017).

- On November 9, 2018, in granting final approval of the settlement, the Honorable Jesse M. Furman commented: "[Robbins Geller] did an extraordinary job here. . . . [I]t is fair to say [this was] probably the most complicated case I have had since I have been on the bench. . . . I cannot really imagine how complicated it would have been if I didn't have counsel who had done as admirable [a] job in briefing it and arguing as you have done. You have in my view done an extraordinary service to the class. . . . I think you have done an extraordinary job and deserve thanks and commendation for that." Alaska Elec. Pension Fund v. Bank of Am. Corp., No. 1:14-cv-07126-JMF-OTW, Transcript at 27-28 (S.D.N.Y. Nov. 9, 2018).

- On September 12, 2018, at the final approval hearing of the settlement, the Honorable William H. Orrick of the Northern District of California praised Robbins Geller's "high-quality lawyering" in a case that "involved complicated discovery and complicated and novel legal issues," resulting in an "excellent" settlement for the class. The "lawyering . . . was excellent" and the case was "very well litigated." In re Lidoderm Antitrust Litig., No. 14-MDL-02521-WHO, Transcript at 11, 14, 22 (N.D. Cal. Sep. 12, 2018).

- On March 31, 2017, in granting final approval of the settlement, the Honorable Gonzalo P. Curiel hailed the settlement as "extraordinary" and "all the more exceptional when viewed in light of the risk" of continued litigation. The court further commended Robbins Geller for prosecuting the case on a pro bono basis: "Class Counsel's exceptional decision to provide nearly seven years of legal services to Class Members on a pro bono basis evidences not only a lack of collusion, but also that Class Counsel are in fact representing the best interests of Plaintiffs and the Class Members in this Settlement. Instead of seeking compensation for fees and costs that they would otherwise be entitled to, Class Counsel have acted to allow maximum recovery to Plaintiffs and Class Members. Indeed, that Eligible Class Members may receive recovery of 90% or greater is a testament to Class Counsel's representation and dedication to act in their clients' best interest." In addition, at the final approval hearing, the court commented that "this is a case that has been litigated – if not fiercely, zealously throughout." Low v. Trump Univ., LLC, 246 F. Supp. 3d 1295, 1302, 1312 (S.D. Cal. 2017), aff'd, 881 F.3d 1111 (9th Cir. 2018); Low v. Trump University LLC and Donald J. Trump, No. 10-cv-0940 GPC-WVG, and Cohen v. Donald J. Trump, No. 13-cv-2519-GPC-WVG, Transcript at 7 (S.D. Cal. Mar. 30, 2017).

- In January 2017, at the final approval hearing, the Honorable Kevin H. Sharp of the Middle District of Tennessee commended Robbins Geller attorneys, stating: "It was complicated, it was drawn out, and a lot of work clearly went into this [case] . . . . I think there is some benefit to the shareholders that are above and beyond money, a benefit to the company above and beyond money that changed hands." In re Community Health Sys., Inc. S'holder Derivative Litig., No. 3:11-cv-00489, Transcript at 10 (M.D. Tenn. Jan. 17, 2017).

- In November 2016, at the final approval hearing, the Honorable James G. Carr stated: "I kept throwing the case out, and you kept coming back. . . . And it's both remarkable and noteworthy and a credit to you and your firm that you did so. . . . [Y]ou persuaded the Sixth Circuit. As we know, that's no mean feat at all." Judge Carr further complimented the Firm, noting that it "goes without question or even saying" that Robbins Geller is very well-known nationally and that the settlement is an excellent result for the class. He succinctly concluded that "given the tenacity and the time and the effort that [Robbins Geller] lawyers put into [the case]" makes the class "a lot better off." Plumbers & Pipefitters Nat'l Pension Fund v. Burns, No. 3:05-cv-07393-JGC, Transcript at 4, 10, 14, 17 (N.D. Ohio Nov. 18, 2016).

- In September 2016, in granting final approval of the settlement, Judge Arleo commended the "vigorous and skilled efforts" of Robbins Geller attorneys for obtaining "an excellent recovery." Judge Arleo added that the settlement was reached after "contentious, hard-fought litigation" that ended with "a very, very good result for the class" in a "risky case." City of Sterling Heights Gen. Emps.' Ret. Sys. v. Prudential Fin., Inc., No. 2:12-cv-05275-MCA-LDW, Transcript of Hearing at 18-20 (D.N.J. Sep. 28, 2016).

- In August 2015, at the final approval hearing for the settlement, the Honorable Karen M. Humphreys praised Robbins Geller's "extraordinary efforts" and "excellent lawyering," noting that the settlement "really does signal that the best is yet to come for your clients and for your prodigious labor as professionals. . . . I wish more citizens in our country could have an appreciation of what this [settlement] truly represents." Bennett v. Sprint Nextel Corp., No. 2:09-cv-02122-EFM-KMH, Transcript at 8, 25 (D. Kan. Aug. 12, 2015).

- In August 2015, the Honorable Judge Max O. Cogburn, Jr. noted that "plaintiffs' attorneys were able [to] achieve the big success early" in the case and obtained an "excellent result." The "extraordinary" settlement was because of "good lawyers . . . doing their good work." Nieman v. Duke Energy Corp., No. 3:12-cv-456, Transcript at 21, 23, 30 (W.D.N.C. Aug. 12, 2015).

- In July 2015, in approving the settlement, the Honorable Douglas L. Rayes of the District of Arizona stated: "Settlement of the case during pendency of appeal for more than an insignificant amount is rare. The settlement here is substantial and provides favorable recovery for the settlement class under these circumstances." He continued, noting, "[a]s against the objective measures of . . . settlements [in] other similar cases, [the recovery] is on the high end." Teamsters Local 617 Pension & Welfare Funds v. Apollo Grp., Inc., No. 2:06-cv-02674-DLR, Transcript at 8, 11 (D. Ariz. July 28, 2015).

- In June 2015, at the conclusion of the hearing for final approval of the settlement, the Honorable Susan Richard Nelson of the District of Minnesota noted that it was "a pleasure to be able to preside over a case like this," praising Robbins Geller in achieving "an outstanding [result] for [its] clients," as she was "very impressed with the work done on th[e] case." In re St. Jude Med., Inc. Sec. Litig., No. 0:10-cv-00851-SRN-TNL, Transcript at 7 (D. Minn. June 12, 2015).

- In May 2015, at the fairness hearing on the settlement, the Honorable William G. Young noted that the case was "very well litigated" by Robbins Geller attorneys, adding that "I don't just say that as a matter of form. . . . I thank you for the vigorous litigation that I've been permitted to be a part of." Courtney v. Avid Tech., Inc., No. 1:13-cv-10686-WGY, Transcript at 8-9 (D. Mass. May 12, 2015).

- In January 2015, the Honorable William J. Haynes, Jr. of the Middle District of Tennessee described the settlement as a "highly favorable result achieved for the Class" through Robbins Geller's "diligent prosecution . . . [and] quality of legal services." The settlement represents the fourth-largest securities recovery ever in the Middle District of Tennessee and one of the largest in more than a decade. Garden City Emps.' Ret. Sys. v. Psychiatric Sols., Inc., No. 3:09-cv-00882, 2015 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 181943, at *6-*7 (M.D. Tenn. Jan. 16, 2015).

- In September 2014, in approving the settlement for shareholders, Vice Chancellor John W. Noble noted "[t]he litigation caused a substantial benefit for the class. It is unusual to see a $29 million recovery." Vice Chancellor Noble characterized the litigation as "novel" and "not easy," but "[t]he lawyers took a case and made something of it." The court commended Robbins Geller's efforts in obtaining this result: "The standing and ability of counsel cannot be questioned" and "the benefits achieved by plaintiffs' counsel in this case cannot be ignored." In re Gardner Denver, Inc. S'holder Litig., No. 8505-VCN, Transcript at 26-28 (Del. Ch. Sep. 3, 2014).

- In May 2014, at the conclusion of the hearing for final approval of the settlement, the Honorable Elihu M. Berle stated: "I would finally like to congratulate counsel on their efforts to resolve this case, on excellent work – it was the best interest of the class – and to the exhibition of professionalism. So I do thank you for all your efforts." Liberty Mutual Overtime Cases, No. JCCP 4234, Transcript at 20:1-5 (Cal. Super. Ct., Los Angeles Cnty. May 29, 2014).

- In March 2014, Ninth Circuit Judge J. Clifford Wallace (presiding) expressed the gratitude of the court: "Thank you. I want to especially thank counsel for this argument. This is a very complicated case and I think we were assisted no matter how we come out by competent counsel coming well prepared. . . . It was a model of the type of an exercise that we appreciate. Thank you very much for your work . . . you were of service to the court." Eclectic Properties East, LLC v. The Marcus & Millichap Co., No. 12-16526, Transcript (9th Cir. Mar. 14, 2014).

- In February 2014, in approving a settlement, Judge Edward M. Chen noted the "very substantial risks" in the case and recognized Robbins Geller had performed "extensive work on the case." In re VeriFone Holdings, Inc. Sec. Litig., No. C-07-6140, 2014 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 20044, at *5, *11-*12 (N.D. Cal. Feb. 18, 2014).

- In August 2013, in granting final approval of the settlement, the Honorable Richard J. Sullivan stated: "Lead Counsel is to be commended for this result: it expended considerable effort and resources over the course of the action researching, investigating, and prosecuting the claims, at significant risk to itself, and in a skillful and efficient manner, to achieve an outstanding recovery for class members. Indeed, the result – and the class's embrace of it – is a testament to the experience and tenacity Lead Counsel brought to bear." City of Livonia Emps. Ret. Sys. v. Wyeth, No. 07 Civ. 10329, 2013 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 113658, at *13 (S.D.N.Y. Aug. 7, 2013).

- In July 2013, in granting final approval of the settlement, the Honorable William H. Alsup stated that Robbins Geller did "excellent work in this case," and continued, "I look forward to seeing you on the next case." Fraser v. Asus Comput. Int'l, No. C 12-0652, Transcript at 12:2-3 (N.D. Cal. July 11, 2013).

- In June 2013, in certifying the class, U.S. District Judge James G. Carr recognized Robbins Geller's steadfast commitment to the class, noting that "plaintiffs, with the help of Robbins Geller, have twice successfully appealed this court's orders granting defendants' motion to dismiss." Plumbers & Pipefitters Nat'l Pension Fund v. Burns, 292 F.R.D. 515, 524 (N.D. Ohio 2013).

- In November 2012, in granting appointment of lead plaintiff, Chief Judge James F. Holderman commended Robbins Geller for its "substantial experience in securities class action litigation" and commented that the Firm "is recognized as 'one of the most successful law firms in securities class actions, if not the preeminent one, in the country.' In re Enron Corp. Sec., 586 F. Supp. 2d 732, 797 (S.D. Tex. 2008) (Harmon, J.)." He continued further that, "'Robbins Geller attorneys are responsible for obtaining the largest securities fraud class action recovery ever [$7.2 billion in Enron], as well as the largest recoveries in the Fifth, Sixth, Eighth, Tenth and Eleventh Circuits.'" Bristol Cnty. Ret. Sys. v. Allscripts Healthcare Sols., Inc., No. 12 C 3297, 2012 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 161441, at *21 (N.D. Ill. Nov. 9, 2012).

- In June 2012, in granting plaintiffs' motion for class certification, the Honorable Inge Prytz Johnson noted that other courts have referred to Robbins Geller as "'one of the most successful law firms in securities class actions . . . in the country.'" Local 703, I.B. v. Regions Fin. Corp., 282 F.R.D. 607, 616 (N.D. Ala. 2012) (quoting In re Enron Corp. Sec. Litig., 586 F. Supp. 2d 732, 797 (S.D. Tex. 2008)), aff'd in part and vacated in part on other grounds, 762 F.3d 1248 (11th Cir. 2014).

- In June 2012, in granting final approval of the settlement, the Honorable Barbara S. Jones commented that "class counsel's representation, from the work that I saw, appeared to me to be of the highest quality." In re CIT Grp. Inc. Sec. Litig., No. 08 Civ. 6613, Transcript at 9:16-18 (S.D.N.Y. June 13, 2012).

- In March 2012, in granting certification for the class, Judge Robert W. Sweet referenced the Enron case, agreeing that Robbins Geller's "'clearly superlative litigating and negotiating skills'" give the Firm an "'outstanding reputation, experience, and success in securities litigation nationwide,'" thus, "'[t]he experience, ability, and reputation of the attorneys of [Robbins Geller] is not disputed; it is one of the most successful law firms in securities class actions, if not the preeminent one, in the country.'" Billhofer v. Flamel Techs., S.A., 281 F.R.D. 150, 158 (S.D.N.Y. 2012).

- In March 2011, in denying defendants' motion to dismiss, Judge Richard Sullivan commented: "Let me thank you all. . . . [The motion] was well argued . . . and . . . well briefed . . . . I certainly appreciate having good lawyers who put the time in to be prepared . . . ." Anegada Master Fund Ltd. v. PxRE Grp. Ltd., No. 08-cv-10584, Transcript at 83 (S.D.N.Y. Mar. 16, 2011).

- In January 2011, the court praised Robbins Geller attorneys: "They have gotten very good results for stockholders. . . . [Robbins Geller has] such a good track record." In re Compellent Techs., Inc. S'holder Litig., No. 6084-VCL, Transcript at 20-21 (Del. Ch. Jan. 13, 2011).

- In August 2010, in reviewing the settlement papers submitted by the Firm, Judge Carlos Murguia stated that Robbins Geller performed "a commendable job of addressing the relevant issues with great detail and in a comprehensive manner . . . . The court respects the [Firm's] experience in the field of derivative [litigation]." Alaska Elec. Pension Fund v. Olofson, No. 08-cv-02344-CM-JPO (D. Kan.) (Aug. 20, 2010 e-mail from court re: settlement papers).

- In June 2009, Judge Ira Warshawsky praised the Firm's efforts in In re Aeroflex, Inc. S'holder Litig.: "There is no doubt that the law firms involved in this matter represented in my opinion the cream of the crop of class action business law and mergers and acquisition litigators, and from a judicial point of view it was a pleasure working with them." In re Aeroflex, Inc. S'holder Litig., No. 003943/07, Transcript at 25:14-18 (N.Y. Sup. Ct., Nassau Cnty. June 30, 2009).

- In March 2009, in granting class certification, the Honorable Robert Sweet of the Southern District of New York commented in In re NYSE Specialists Sec. Litig., 260 F.R.D. 55, 74 (S.D.N.Y. 2009): "As to the second prong, the Specialist Firms have not challenged, in this motion, the qualifications, experience, or ability of counsel for Lead Plaintiff, [Robbins Geller], to conduct this litigation. Given [Robbins Geller's] substantial experience in securities class action litigation and the extensive discovery already conducted in this case, this element of adequacy has also been satisfied."

- In June 2008, the court commented, "Plaintiffs' lead counsel in this litigation, [Robbins Geller], has demonstrated its considerable expertise in shareholder litigation, diligently advocating the rights of Home Depot shareholders in this Litigation. [Robbins Geller] has acted with substantial skill and professionalism in representing the plaintiffs and the interests of Home Depot and its shareholders in prosecuting this case." City of Pontiac Gen. Emps.' Ret. Sys. v. Langone, No. 2006-122302, Findings of Fact in Support of Order and Final Judgment at 2 (Ga. Super. Ct., Fulton Cnty. June 10, 2008).

- In a December 2006 hearing on the $50 million consumer privacy class action settlement in Kehoe v. Fidelity Fed. Bank & Tr., No. 03-80593-CIV (S.D. Fla.), United States District Court Judge Daniel T.K. Hurley said the following:

> First, I thank counsel. As I said repeatedly on both sides, we have been very, very fortunate. We have had fine lawyers on both sides. The issues in the case are significant issues. We are talking about issues dealing with consumer protection > and privacy. Something that is increasingly important today in our society. . . . I want you to know I thought long and hard about this. I am absolutely satisfied that the settlement is a fair and reasonable settlement. . . . I thank the lawyers on both sides for the extraordinary effort that has been brought to bear here . . . .

Kehoe v. Fidelity Fed. Bank & Tr., No. 03-80593-CIV, Transcript at 26, 28-29 (S.D. Fla. Dec. 7, 2006).

- In Stanley v. Safeskin Corp., No. 99 CV 454 (S.D. Cal.), where Robbins Geller attorneys obtained $55 million for the class of investors, Judge Moskowitz stated:

> I said this once before, and I'll say it again. I thought the way that your firm handled this case was outstanding. This was not an easy case. It was a complicated case, and every step of the way, I thought they did a very professional job.

Stanley v. Safeskin Corp., No. 99 CV 454, Transcript at 13 (S.D. Cal. May 25, 2004).

PRECEDENT-SETTING DECISIONS

Robbins Geller attorneys operate at the vanguard of complex class action of litigation. Our work often changes the legal landscape, resulting in an environment that is more-favorable for obtaining recoveries for our clients.

Investor and Shareholder Rights

- Stoyas v. Toshiba Corp., 896 F.3d 933 (9th Cir. 2018), cert. denied, 588 U.S. __ (2019). In July 2018, the Ninth Circuit ruled in plaintiffs' favor in the Toshiba securities class action. Following appellate briefing and oral argument by Robbins Geller attorneys, a three-judge Ninth Circuit panel reversed the district court's prior dismissal in a unanimous, 36-page opinion, holding that Toshiba ADRs are a "security" and the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 could apply to those ADRs that were purchased in a domestic transaction. Id. at 939, 949. The court adopted the Second and Third Circuits' "irrevocable liability" test for determining whether the transactions were domestic and held that plaintiffs must be allowed to amend their complaint to allege that the purchase of Toshiba ADRs on the over-the-counter market was a domestic purchase and that the alleged fraud was in connection with the purchase.

- Cyan, Inc. v. Beaver Cnty. Emps. Ret. Fund, No. 15-1439 (U.S.). In March 2018, the U.S. Supreme Court ruled in favor of investors represented by Robbins Geller, holding that state courts continue to have jurisdiction over class actions asserting violations of the Securities Act of 1933. The court's ruling secures investors' ability to bring Securities Act actions when companies fail to make full and fair disclosure of relevant information in offering documents. The court confirmed that the Securities Litigation Uniform Standards Act of 1998 was designed to preclude securities class actions asserting violations of state law – not to preclude securities actions asserting federal law violations brought in state courts.

- Mineworkers' Pension Scheme v. First Solar Inc., 881 F.3d 750 (9th Cir. 2018), cert. denied, 588 U.S. __ (2019). In January 2018, the Ninth Circuit upheld the district court's denial of defendants' motion for summary judgment, agreeing with plaintiffs that the test for loss causation in the Ninth Circuit is a general "proximate cause test," and rejecting the more stringent revelation of the fraudulent practices standard advocated by the defendants. The opinion is a significant victory for investors, as it forecloses defendants' ability to immunize themselves from liability simply by refusing to publicly acknowledge their fraudulent conduct.

- In re Quality Sys., Inc. Sec. Litig., No. 15-55173 (9th Cir.). In July 2017, Robbins Geller's Appellate Practice Group scored a significant win in the Ninth Circuit in the Quality Systems securities class action. On appeal, a three-judge Ninth Circuit panel unanimously reversed the district court's prior dismissal of the action against Quality Systems and remanded the case to the district court for further proceedings. The decision addressed an issue of first impression concerning "mixed" future and present-tense misstatements. The appellate panel explained that "non-forward-looking portions of mixed statements are not eligible for the safe harbor provisions of the PSLRA . . . . Defendants made a number of mixed statements that included projections of growth in revenue and earnings based on the state of QSI's sales pipeline." The panel then held both the non-forward-looking and forward-looking statements false and misleading and made with scienter, deeming them actionable. Later, although defendants sought rehearing by the Ninth Circuit sitting en banc, the circuit court denied their petition.

- Local 703, I.B. of T. Grocery & Food Emps. Welfare Fund v. Regions Fin. Corp., No. CV-10-J-2847-S (N.D. Ala.). In the Regions Financial securities class action, Robbins Geller represented Local 703, I.B. of T. Grocery and Food Employees Welfare Fund and obtained a $90 million settlement in September 2015 on behalf of purchasers of Regions Financial common stock during the class period. In August 2014, the Eleventh Circuit Court of Appeals affirmed the district court's decision to certify a class action based upon alleged misrepresentations about Regions Financial's financial health before and during the recent economic recession, and in November 2014, the U.S. District Court for the Northern District of Alabama denied defendants' third attempt to avoid plaintiffs' motion for class certification.

- Omnicare, Inc. v. Laborers Dist. Council Constr. Indus. Pension Fund, No. 13-435 (U.S.). In March 2015, the U.S. Supreme Court ruled in favor of investors represented by Robbins Geller that investors asserting a claim under §11 of the Securities Act of 1933 with respect to a misleading statement of opinion do not, as defendant Omnicare had contended, have to prove that the statement was subjectively disbelieved when made. Rather, the court held that a statement of opinion may be actionable either because it was not believed, or because it lacked a reasonable basis in fact. This decision is significant in that it resolved a conflict among the federal circuit courts and expressly overruled the Second Circuit's widely followed, more stringent pleading standard for §11 claims involving statements of opinion. The Supreme Court remanded the case back to the district court for determination under the newly articulated standard. In August of 2016, upon remand, the district court applied the Supreme Court's new test and denied defendants' motion to dismiss in full.

- NECA-IBEW Health & Welfare Fund v. Goldman Sachs & Co., 693 F.3d 145 (2d Cir. 2012). In a securities fraud action involving mortgage-backed securities, the Second Circuit rejected the concept of "tranche" standing and found that a lead plaintiff has class standing to pursue claims on behalf of purchasers of securities that were backed by pools of mortgages originated by the same lenders who had originated mortgages backing the lead plaintiff's securities. The court noted that, given those common lenders, the lead plaintiff's claims as to its purchases implicated "the same set of concerns" that purchasers in several of the other offerings possessed. The court also rejected the notion that the lead plaintiff lacked standing to represent investors in different tranches.

- In re VeriFone Holdings, Inc. Sec. Litig., 704 F.3d 694 (9th Cir. 2012). The panel reversed in part and affirmed in part the dismissal of investors' securities fraud class action alleging violations of §§10(b), 20(a), and 20A of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 and SEC Rule 10b-5 in connection with a restatement of financial results of the company in which the investors had purchased stock.

The panel held that the third amended complaint adequately pleaded the §10(b), §20A, and Rule 10b-5 claims. Considering the allegations of scienter holistically, as the U.S. Supreme Court directed in Matrixx Initiatives, Inc. v. Siracusano, 563 U.S 27, 48-49 (2011), the panel concluded that the inference that the defendant company and its chief executive officer and former chief financial officer were deliberately reckless as to the truth of their financial reports and related public statements following a merger was at least as compelling as any opposing inference.

- Fox v. JAMDAT Mobile, Inc., 185 Cal. App. 4th 1068 (2010). Concluding that Delaware's shareholder ratification doctrine did not bar the claims, the California Court of Appeal reversed dismissal of a shareholder class action alleging breach of fiduciary duty in a corporate merger.

- In re Constar Int'l Inc. Sec. Litig., 585 F.3d 774 (3d Cir. 2009). The Third Circuit flatly rejected defense contentions that where relief is sought under §11 of the Securities Act of 1933, which imposes liability when securities are issued pursuant to an incomplete or misleading registration statement, class certification should depend upon findings concerning market efficiency and loss causation.

- Matrixx Initiatives, Inc. v. Siracusano, 563 U.S 27 (2011), aff'g 585 F.3d 1167 (9th Cir. 2009). In a securities fraud action involving the defendants' failure to disclose a possible link between the company's popular cold remedy and a life-altering side effect observed in some users, the U.S. Supreme Court unanimously affirmed the Ninth Circuit's (a) rejection of a bright-line "statistical significance" materiality standard, and (b) holding that plaintiffs had successfully pleaded a strong inference of the defendants' scienter.

- Alaska Elec. Pension Fund v. Flowserve Corp., 572 F.3d 221 (5th Cir. 2009). Aided by former U.S. Supreme Court Justice O'Connor's presence on the panel, the Fifth Circuit reversed a district court order denying class certification and also reversed an order granting summary judgment to defendants. The court held that the district court applied an incorrect fact-for-fact standard of loss causation, and that genuine issues of fact on loss causation precluded summary judgment.

- In re F5 Networks, Inc., Derivative Litig., 207 P.3d 433 (Wash. 2009). In a derivative action alleging unlawful stock option backdating, the Supreme Court of Washington ruled that shareholders need not make a pre-suit demand on the board of directors where this step would be futile, agreeing with plaintiffs that favorable Delaware case law should be followed as persuasive authority.

- Lormand v. US Unwired, Inc., 565 F.3d 228 (5th Cir. 2009). In a rare win for investors in the Fifth Circuit, the court reversed an order of dismissal, holding that safe harbor warnings were not meaningful when the facts alleged established a strong inference that defendants knew their forecasts were false. The court also held that plaintiffs sufficiently alleged loss causation.

- Institutional Inv'rs Grp. v. Avaya, Inc., 564 F.3d 242 (3d Cir. 2009). In a victory for investors in the Third Circuit, the court reversed an order of dismissal, holding that shareholders pled with particularity why the company's repeated denials of price discounts on products were false and misleading when the totality of facts alleged established a strong inference that defendants knew their denials were false.

- Alaska Elec. Pension Fund v. Pharmacia Corp., 554 F.3d 342 (3d Cir. 2009). The Third Circuit held that claims filed for violation of §10(b) of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 were timely, adopting investors' argument that because scienter is a critical element of the claims, the time for filing them cannot begin to run until the defendants' fraudulent state of mind should be apparent.

- Rael v. Page, 222 P.3d 678 (N.M. Ct. App. 2009). In this shareholder class and derivative action, Robbins Geller attorneys obtained an appellate decision reversing the trial court's dismissal of the complaint alleging serious director misconduct in connection with the merger of SunCal Companies and Westland Development Co., Inc., a New Mexico company with large and historic landholdings and other assets in the Albuquerque area. The appellate court held that plaintiff's claims for breach of fiduciary duty were direct, not derivative, because they constituted an attack on the validity or fairness of the merger and the conduct of the directors. Although New Mexico law had not addressed this question directly, at the urging of the Firm's attorneys, the court relied on Delaware law for guidance, rejecting the "special injury" test for determining the direct versus derivative inquiry and instead applying more recent Delaware case law.

- Lane v. Page, No. 06-cv-1071 (D.N.M. 2012). In May 2012, while granting final approval of the settlement in the federal component of the Westland cases, Judge Browning in the District of New Mexico commented:

> Class Counsel are highly skilled and specialized attorneys who use their substantial experience and expertise to prosecute complex securities class actions. In possibly one of the best known and most prominent recent securities cases, Robbins Geller served as sole lead counsel – In re Enron Corp. Sec. Litig., No. H-01-3624 (S.D. Tex.). See Report at 3. The Court has previously noted that the class would "receive high caliber legal representation" from class counsel, and throughout the course of the litigation the Court has been impressed with the quality of representation on each side. Lane v. Page, 250 F.R.D. at 647.

Lane v. Page, 862 F. Supp. 2d 1182, 1253-54 (D.N.M. 2012).

In addition, Judge Browning stated: "'Few plaintiffs' law firms could have devoted the kind of time, skill, and financial resources over a five-year period necessary to achieve the pre- and post-Merger benefits obtained for the class here.' . . . [Robbins Geller is] both skilled and experienced, and used those skills and experience for the benefit of the class [Robbins Geller is] both skilled and experienced, and used those skills and experience for the benefit of the class." Id. at 1254.

- Luther v. Countrywide Home Loans Servicing LP, 533 F.3d 1031 (9th Cir. 2008). In a case of first impression, the Ninth Circuit held that the Securities Act of 1933's specific non-removal features had not been trumped by the general removal provisions of the Class Action Fairness Act of 2005.

- In re Gilead Scis. Sec. Litig., 536 F.3d 1049 (9th Cir. 2008). The Ninth Circuit upheld defrauded investors' loss causation theory as plausible, ruling that a limited temporal gap between the time defendants' misrepresentation was publicly revealed and the subsequent decline in stock value was reasonable where the public had not immediately understood the impact of defendants' fraud.

- In re WorldCom Sec. Litig., 496 F.3d 245 (2d Cir. 2007). The Second Circuit held that the filing of a class action complaint tolls the limitations period for all members of the class, including those who choose to opt out of the class action and file their own individual actions without waiting to see whether the district court certifies a class – reversing the decision below and effectively overruling multiple district court rulings that American Pipe tolling did not apply under these circumstances.

- In re Merck & Co. Sec., Derivative & ERISA Litig., 493 F.3d 393 (3d Cir. 2007). In a shareholder derivative suit appeal, the Third Circuit held that the general rule that discovery may not be used to supplement demand-futility allegations does not apply where the defendants enter a voluntary stipulation to produce materials relevant to demand futility without providing for any limitation as to their use. In April 2007, the Honorable D. Brooks Smith praised Robbins Geller partner Joe Daley's efforts in this litigation:

  > Thank you very much Mr. Daley and a thank you to all counsel. As Judge Cowen mentioned, this was an exquisitely well-briefed case; it was also an extremely well-argued case, and we thank counsel for their respective jobs here in the matter, which we will take under advisement. Thank you.

  In re Merck & Co., Inc. Sec., Derivative & ERISA Litig., No. 06-2911, Transcript at 35:37-36:00 (3d Cir. Apr. 12, 2007).

- Alaska Elec. Pension Fund v. Brown, 941 A.2d 1011 (Del. 2007). The Supreme Court of Delaware held that the Alaska Electrical Pension Fund, for purposes of the "corporate benefit" attorney-fee doctrine, was presumed to have caused a substantial increase in the tender offer price paid in a "going private" buyout transaction. The Court of Chancery originally ruled that Alaska's counsel, Robbins Geller, was not entitled to an award of attorney fees, but Delaware's high court, in its published opinion, reversed and remanded for further proceedings.

- Crandon Cap. Partners v. Shelk, 157 P.3d 176 (Or. 2007). Oregon's Supreme Court ruled that a shareholder plaintiff in a derivative action may still seek attorney fees even if the defendants took actions to moot the underlying claims. The Firm's attorneys convinced Oregon's highest court to take the case, and reverse, despite the contrary position articulated by both the trial court and the Oregon Court of Appeals.

- In re Qwest Commc'ns Int'l, 450 F.3d 1179 (10th Cir. 2006). In a case of first impression, the Tenth Circuit held that a corporation's deliberate release of purportedly privileged materials to governmental agencies was not a "selective waiver" of the privileges such that the corporation could refuse to produce the same materials to non-governmental plaintiffs in private securities fraud litigation.

- In re Guidant S'holders Derivative Litig., 841 N.E.2d 571 (Ind. 2006). Answering a certified question from a federal court, the Supreme Court of Indiana unanimously held that a pre-suit demand in a derivative action is excused if the demand would be a futile gesture. The court adopted a "demand futility" standard and rejected defendants' call for a "universal demand" standard that might have immediately ended the case.

- Denver Area Meat Cutters v. Clayton, 209 S.W.3d 584 (Tenn. Ct. App. 2006). The Tennessee Court of Appeals rejected an objector's challenge to a class action settlement arising out of Warren Buffet's 2003 acquisition of Tennessee-based Clayton Homes. In their effort to secure relief for Clayton Homes stockholders, the Firm's attorneys obtained a temporary injunction of the Buffet acquisition for six weeks in 2003 while the matter was litigated in the courts. The temporary halt to Buffet's acquisition received national press attention.

- DeJulius v. New Eng. Health Care Emps. Pension Fund, 429 F.3d 935 (10th Cir. 2005). The Tenth Circuit held that the multi-faceted notice of a $50 million settlement in a securities fraud class action had been the best notice practicable under the circumstances, and thus satisfied both constitutional due process and Rule 23 of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure.

- In re Daou Sys., 411 F.3d 1006 (9th Cir. 2005). The Ninth Circuit sustained investors' allegations of accounting fraud and ruled that loss causation was adequately alleged by pleading that the value of the stock they purchased declined when the issuer's true financial condition was revealed.

- Barrie v. Intervoice-Brite, Inc., 397 F.3d 249 (5th Cir.), reh'g denied and opinion modified, 409 F.3d 653 (5th Cir. 2005). The Fifth Circuit upheld investors' accounting-fraud claims, holding that fraud is pled as to both defendants when one knowingly utters a false statement and the other knowingly fails to correct it, even if the complaint does not specify who spoke and who listened.

- City of Monroe Emps. Ret. Sys. v. Bridgestone Corp., 399 F.3d 651 (6th Cir. 2005). The Sixth Circuit held that a statement regarding objective data supposedly supporting a corporation's belief that its tires were safe was actionable where jurors could have found a reasonable basis to believe the corporation was aware of undisclosed facts seriously undermining the statement's accuracy.

- Ill. Mun. Ret. Fund v. Citigroup, Inc., 391 F.3d 844 (7th Cir. 2004). The Seventh Circuit upheld a district court's decision that the Illinois Municipal Retirement Fund was entitled to litigate its claims under the Securities Act of 1933 against WorldCom's underwriters before a state court rather than before the federal forum sought by the defendants.

- Nursing Home Pension Fund, Local 144 v. Oracle Corp., 380 F.3d 1226 (9th Cir. 2004). The Ninth Circuit ruled that defendants' fraudulent intent could be inferred from allegations concerning their false representations, insider stock sales and improper accounting methods.

- Southland Sec. Corp. v. INSpire Ins. Sols. Inc., 365 F.3d 353 (5th Cir. 2004). The Fifth Circuit sustained allegations that an issuer's CEO made fraudulent statements in connection with a contract announcement.

Consumer Protection

- Dent v. National Football League, No. 15-15143 (9th Cir.). In September 2018, the United States Court of Appeals for the Ninth Circuit issued an important decision reversing the district court's previous dismissal of the Dent v. National Football League litigation, concluding that the complaint brought by NFL Hall of Famer Richard Dent and others should not be dismissed on labor-law preemption grounds. The case was remanded to the district court for further proceedings.

- Kwikset Corp. v. Superior Court, 51 Cal. 4th 310 (2011). In a leading decision interpreting the scope of Proposition 64's new standing requirements under California's Unfair Competition Law (UCL), the California Supreme Court held that consumers alleging that a manufacturer has misrepresented its product have "lost money or property" within the meaning of the initiative, and thus have standing to sue under the UCL, if they "can truthfully allege that they were deceived by a product's label into spending money to purchase the product, and would not have purchased it otherwise." Id. at 317. Kwikset involved allegations, proven at trial, that defendants violated California's "Made in the U.S.A." statute by representing on their labels that their products were "Made in U.S.A." or "All-American Made" when, in fact, the products were substantially made with foreign parts and labor.

- Safeco Ins. Co. of Am. v. Superior Court, 173 Cal. App. 4th 814 (2009). In a class action against auto insurer Safeco, the California Court of Appeal agreed that the plaintiff should have access to discovery to identify a new class representative after her standing to sue was challenged.

- Consumer Privacy Cases, 175 Cal. App. 4th 545 (2009). The California Court of Appeal rejected objections to a nationwide class action settlement benefiting Bank of America customers.

- Koponen v. Pac. Gas & Elec. Co., 165 Cal. App. 4th 345 (2008). The Firm's attorneys obtained a published decision reversing the trial court's dismissal of the action, and holding that the plaintiff's claims for damages arising from the utility's unauthorized use of rights-of-way or easements obtained from the plaintiff and other landowners were not barred by a statute limiting the authority of California courts to review or correct decisions of the California Public Utilities Commission.

- Sanford v. MemberWorks, Inc., 483 F.3d 956 (9th Cir. 2007). In a telemarketing-fraud case, where the plaintiff consumer insisted she had never entered the contractual arrangement that defendants said bound her to arbitrate individual claims to the exclusion of pursuing class claims, the Ninth Circuit reversed an order compelling arbitration – allowing the plaintiff to litigate on behalf of a class.

- Ritt v. Billy Blanks Enters., 870 N.E.2d 212 (Ohio Ct. App. 2007). In the Ohio analog to the West case, the Ohio Court of Appeals approved certification of a class of Ohio residents seeking relief under Ohio's consumer protection laws for the same telemarketing fraud.

- Haw. Med. Ass'n v. Haw. Med. Serv. Ass'n, 148 P.3d 1179 (Haw. 2006). The Supreme Court of Hawaii ruled that claims of unfair competition were not subject to arbitration and that claims of tortious interference with prospective economic advantage were adequately alleged.

- Branick v. Downey Sav. & Loan Ass'n, 39 Cal. 4th 235 (2006). Robbins Geller attorneys were part of a team of lawyers that briefed this case before the Supreme Court of California. The court issued a unanimous decision holding that new plaintiffs may be substituted, if necessary, to preserve actions pending when Proposition 64 was passed by California voters in 2004. Proposition 64 amended California's Unfair Competition Law and was aggressively cited by defense lawyers in an effort to dismiss cases after the initiative was adopted.

- McKell v. Wash. Mut., Inc., 142 Cal. App. 4th 1457 (2006). The California Court of Appeal reversed the trial court, holding that plaintiff's theories attacking a variety of allegedly inflated mortgage-related fees were actionable.

- West Corp. v. Superior Court, 116 Cal. App. 4th 1167 (2004). The California Court of Appeal upheld the trial court's finding that jurisdiction in California was appropriate over the out-of-state corporate defendant whose telemarketing was aimed at California residents. Exercise of jurisdiction was found to be in keeping with considerations of fair play and substantial justice.

- Kruse v. Wells Fargo Home Mortg., Inc., 383 F.3d 49 (2d Cir. 2004), and Santiago v. GMAC Mortg. Grp., Inc., 417 F.3d 384 (3d Cir. 2005). In two groundbreaking federal appellate decisions, the Second and Third Circuits each ruled that the Real Estate Settlement Practices Act prohibits marking up home loan-related fees and charges.

ATTORNEY BIOGRAPHIES

Mario Alba Jr. | Partner

Mario Alba is a partner in the Firm's Melville office. He is a member of the Firm's Institutional Outreach Team, which provides advice to the Firm's institutional clients, including numerous public pension systems and Taft-Hartley funds throughout the United States, and consults with them on issues relating to corporate fraud in the U.S. securities markets, as well as corporate governance issues and shareholder litigation. Some of Alba's institutional clients are currently involved in securities cases involving Avalara, Inc., Clarivate plc, Dentsply Sirona Inc., Generac Holdings Inc., Globe Life Inc., Amgen, Inc., Virtu Financial, Inc., The Walt Disney Company, The Boeing Company, Merck & Co., Inc., Daimler, Novo Nordisk, and National Instruments Corporation.

Alba's institutional clients are/were also involved in other types of class actions, namely, In re National Prescription Opiate Litigation (over $50 billion paid to communities across the country), In re Epipen (Epinephrine Injection, USP) Marketing, Sales Practices and Antitrust Litigation ($609 million total recovery), Forth v. Walgreen Co. ($100 million recovery), and In re Humira (Adalimumab) Antitrust Litigation.

Alba has served as lead counsel in numerous cases and is responsible for initiating, investigating, researching, and filing securities and consumer fraud class actions. He has recovered hundreds of millions of dollars in numerous actions, including cases against Acadia Healthcare Company, Inc. ($179 million recovery); BHP Billiton Limited ($50 million recovery), Equinix, Inc. ($41.5 million recovery), Green Dot Corporation ($40 million recovery), BRF S.A. ($40 million recovery), L3 Technologies, Inc. ($34.5 million recovery), Impax Laboratories Inc. ($33 million recovery), Waste Management, Inc. ($30 million recovery), Reckitt Benckiser Group plc ($19.6 million recovery), Super Micro Computer, Inc. ($18.25 million recovery), and NBTY, Inc. ($16 million recovery).

Education

B.S., St. John's University, 1999; J.D., Hofstra University School of Law, 2002

Honors / Awards

Super Lawyer, Super Lawyers Magazine, 2022-2025; Leading Plaintiff Financial Lawyer, Lawdragon, 2024-2025; Best Lawyer in America: One to Watch, Best Lawyers®, 2024; Rising Star, Super Lawyers Magazine, 2012-2013, 2016-2017; B.S., Dean's List, St. John's University, 1999; Selected as participant in Hofstra Moot Court Seminar, Hofstra University School of Law

Michael Albert | Partner

Michael Albert is a partner in the Firm's San Diego office, where his practice focuses on complex securities litigation. Albert is a member of the Firm's Lead Plaintiff Advisory Team, which advises institutional investors in connection with lead plaintiff motions, and assists them in securing appointment as lead plaintiff.

Albert has been a member of litigation teams that have successfully recovered hundreds of millions of dollars for investors in securities class actions, including: In re Alphabet, Inc. Securities Litigation ($350 million recovery), NECA-IBEW Health & Welfare Fund v. Goldman Sachs & Co. ($272 million recovery), City of Pontiac General Employees' Retirement Systems v. Wal-Mart Stores, Inc. ($160 million recovery), and In re LendingClub Securities Litigation ($125 million recovery). Albert was also a member of the litigation team that obtained a $85 million cash settlement in a consumer class action against Scotts Miracle-Gro.

Education

B.A., University of Wisconsin-Madison, 2010; J.D., University of Virginia School of Law, 2014

Honors / Awards

Leading Litigator in America, Lawdragon, 2024-2026; Best Lawyer in America, Best Lawyers®, 2025-2026; Leading Plaintiff Financial Lawyer, Lawdragon, 2024-2025; Impact Case Award: In re Alphabet, Inc. Securities Litigation, Benchmark Litigation, 2025; 500 X – The Next Generation, Lawdragon, 2023-2024; Rising Star, Super Lawyers Magazine, 2020-2024; Managing Board Member, Virginia Tax Review, University of Virginia School of Law

Matthew I. Alpert | Partner

Matthew Alpert is a partner in the Firm's San Diego office and focuses on the prosecution of securities fraud litigation. Alpert's current cases include securities fraud cases against PayPal (D.N.J.) and Shoals Technologies Group (M.D. Tenn.). Most recently, Alpert and a team of Robbins Geller attorneys obtained a $434 million settlement in In re Under Armour Sec. Litig. (D. Md.) after nearly seven years of hard-fought litigation and less than a month before a jury trial in Baltimore was scheduled to commence. Alpert was also a member of the litigation team that successfully obtained class certification in a securities fraud class action against Regions Financial, a class certification decision that was substantively affirmed by the United States Court of Appeals for the Eleventh Circuit in Loc. 703, I.B. of T. Grocery & Food Emps. Welfare Fund v. Regions Fin. Corp., 762 F.3d 1248 (11th Cir. 2014). Upon remand, the United States District Court for the Northern District of Alabama granted class certification again, rejecting defendants' post-Halliburton II arguments concerning stock price impact. Alpert and the Robbins Geller team litigated the case until it eventually settled for $90 million.

Some of Alpert's previous cases include: the individual opt-out actions of the AOL Time Warner class action – Regents of the Univ. of Cal. v. Parsons (Cal. Super. Ct., Los Angeles Cnty.) and Ohio Pub. Emps. Ret. Sys. v. Parsons (Ohio. Ct. of Common Pleas, Franklin Cnty.) (total settlement over $600 million); In re Under Armour Sec. Litig. (D. Md.); ($434 million settlement); Loc. 703, I.B. of T. Grocery & Food Emps. Welfare Fund v. Regions Fin. Corp. (N.D. Ala.) ($90 million settlement); In re MGM Mirage Sec. Litig. (D. Nev.) ($75 million); In re CIT Grp. Inc. Sec. Litig. (S.D.N.Y.) ($75 million settlement); Luna v. Marvell Tech. Grp., Ltd. (N.D. Cal.) ($72.5 million settlement); Deka Inv. GmbH v. Santander Consumer USA Holdings Inc. (N.D. Tex.) ($47 million settlement); In re Bridgestone Sec. Litig. (M.D. Tenn.) ($30 million settlement); In re Walter Energy, Inc. Sec. Litig. (N.D. Ala.) ($25 million); City of Hialeah Emps.' Ret. Sys. & Laborers Pension Tr. Fund for N. Cal. v. Toll Bros., Inc. (E.D. Pa.) ($25 million settlement); In re Molycorp, Inc. Sec. Litig. (D. Colo.) ($20.5 million settlement); In re Banc of Cal. Sec. Litig. (C.D. Cal.) ($19.75 million); Zimmerman v. Diplomat Pharmacy, Inc. (E.D. Mich.) ($14.1 million); Batwin v. Occam Networks, Inc. (C.D. Cal.) ($13.9 million settlement); Int'l Bhd. of Elec. Workers Loc. 697 Pension Fund v. Int'l Game Tech. (D. Nev.) ($12.5 million settlement); Kmiec v. Powerwave Techs. Inc. (C.D. Cal.) ($8.2 million); In re Sunterra Corp. Sec. Litig. (D. Nev.) ($8 million settlement); and Luman v. Anderson (W.D. Mo.) ($4.25 million settlement).

Education

B.A., University of Wisconsin at Madison, 2001; J.D., Washington University, St. Louis, 2005

Honors / Awards

Rising Star, Super Lawyers Magazine, 2015-2019

Darryl J. Alvarado | Partner

Darryl Alvarado is a partner in the Firm's San Diego office. He focuses his practice on securities fraud and other complex civil litigation. Alvarado was a member of the trial team in Smilovits v. First Solar, Inc., which recovered $350 million for aggrieved investors. The First Solar settlement, reached on the eve of trial after more than seven years of litigation and an interlocutory appeal to the U.S. Supreme Court, is the fifth-largest PSLRA recovery ever obtained in the Ninth Circuit. Alvarado recently litigated Monroe County Employees' Retirement System v. The Southern Company, which recovered $87.5 million for investors after more than three years of litigation. The settlement resolved securities fraud claims stemming from defendants' issuance of misleading statements and omissions regarding the construction of a first-of-its-kind "clean coal" power plant in Kemper County, Mississippi. Alvarado helped secure $388 million for investors in J.P. Morgan residential mortgage-backed securities in Fort Worth Employees' Retirement Fund v. J.P. Morgan Chase & Co. That settlement is, on a percentage basis, the largest recovery ever achieved in an RMBS class action. He was also a member of a team of attorneys that secured $95 million for investors in Morgan Stanley-issued RMBS in In re Morgan Stanley Mortgage Pass-Through Certificates Litigation.

Alvarado was a member of a team of lawyers that obtained landmark settlements, on the eve of trial, from the major credit rating agencies and Morgan Stanley arising out of the fraudulent ratings of bonds issued by the Cheyne and Rhinebridge structured investment vehicles in Abu Dhabi Commercial Bank v. Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated and King County, Washington v. IKB Deutsche Industriebank AG. He was integral in obtaining several precedent-setting decisions in those cases, including defeating the rating agencies' historic First Amendment defense and defeating the ratings agencies' motions for summary judgment concerning the actionability of credit ratings. Alvarado was also a member of a team of attorneys responsible for obtaining for aggrieved investors $27 million in In re Cooper Companies Securities Litigation, $19.5 million in City of Pontiac General Employees' Retirement System v. Lockheed Martin Corporation, and comprehensive corporate governance reforms to address widespread off-label marketing and product safety violations in In re Johnson & Johnson Derivative Litigation.

Education

B.A., University of California, Santa Barbara, 2004; J.D., University of San Diego School of Law, 2007

Honors / Awards

Best Lawyer in America: One to Watch, Best Lawyers®, 2023-2025; Future Star, Benchmark Litigation, 2024; Rising Star, Super Lawyers Magazine, 2015-2022; 40 & Under Hot List, Benchmark Litigation, 2018-2021; Top 40 Under 40, Daily Journal, 2021; "Outstanding Young Attorneys," San Diego Daily Transcript, 2011

Dory P. Antullis | Partner

Dory Antullis is a partner in the Firm's Boca Raton office. Her litigation practice focuses on complex class actions, covering consumer fraud, public nuisance, environmental litigation, privacy litigation, pharmaceuticals, RICO, and antitrust litigation. Antullis also works with the Firm's settlement department, negotiating and documenting intricate, high-stakes settlements.

Antullis is a core member of the Firm's opioids team, leading the effort on behalf of cities, counties, and third-party payors around the country in In re Nat'l Prescription Opiate Litig., No. 1:17-md-02804 (N.D. Ohio). In addition to serving on several committees in the MDL, she was a member of the winning trial team on behalf of the People of the State of California in San Francisco's bellwether case against Allergan, Teva, Walgreens, and others in the prescription opioid supply chain. Together with a trial win against Walgreens, the case has resulted in settlements valued at over $350 million. Antullis was also part of a small group of lawyers who negotiated and drafted settlement documents for the national opioid settlements with major distributors, manufacturers, and pharmacies – now totaling more than $50 billion.

Antullis has also been an integral part of Robbins Geller's history of successful privacy and data breach class action cases. She is currently serving as Interim Co-Lead Class Counsel in In re Luxottica of America, Inc. Data Breach Litig., No. 1:20-cv-00908 (S.D. Ohio), and Liaison Counsel in DeSue v. 20/20 Eye Care Network, Inc., No. 21-cv-61275 (S.D. Fla.) ($3 million class settlement). Antullis's heavy lifting at every stage of the litigation in In re Yahoo! Inc. Customer Data Sec. Breach Litig., No. 5:16-md-02752 (N.D. Cal.), helped to secure a $117.5 million recovery in the largest data breach in history. Antullis successfully defeated two rounds of dispositive briefing, worked with leadership and computer privacy and damages experts to plan a winning strategy for the case, and drafted an innovative motion for class certification that immediately preceded a successful mediation with defendants in that litigation. Antullis also provided meaningful "nuts-and-bolts" support in other data breach class actions, including In re Am. Med. Collection Agency, Inc., Customer Data Sec. Breach Litig., No. 2:19-md-02904 (D.N.J.) (representing class of LabCorp customers), and In re Solara Med. Supplies Customer Data Breach Litig., No. 3:19-cv-02284 (S.D. Cal.) ($5.06 million settlement). And she currently represents consumers in state and federal court against North Broward Hospital District for a 2021 data breach.

Education

B.A., Rice University, 1999; J.D., Columbia Law School, 2003

Honors / Awards

Leading Litigator in America, Lawdragon, 2024-2026; Recommended Lawyer, The Legal 500, 2025; Leading Plaintiff Financial Lawyer, Lawdragon, 2024-2025; Leading Plaintiff Consumer Lawyer, Lawdragon, 2022-2025; National Merit Scholar, Rice University; Golden Key National Honor Society, Rice University; Nominated for The Rice Undergraduate academic journal, Rice University; Michael I. Sovern Scholar, Columbia Law School; Hague Appeal for Peace, Committee for a Just and Effective Response to 9/11, Columbia Law School; Columbia Mediation and Political Asylum Clinics, Columbia Law School; Harlem Tutorial Program, Columbia Law School; Journal of Eastern European Law, Columbia Law School; Columbia Law Women's Association, Columbia Law School

Stephen R. Astley | Partner

Stephen Astley is a partner in the Firm's Boca Raton office. Astley devotes his practice to representing institutional and individual shareholders in their pursuit to recover investment losses caused by fraud. He has been lead counsel in numerous securities fraud class actions across the country, helping secure significant recoveries for his clients and investors.

Most recently, Astley obtained a $434 million settlement in In re Under Armour Sec. Litig. The case settled just prior to the commencement of trial in Baltimore, Maryland, and represents the second largest securities fraud settlement ever in the Fourth Circuit and is among the top 50 largest such recoveries in U.S. history. Other notable settlements include: In re Nutanix Inc. Sec. Litig. (N.D. Cal.) ($71 million settlement); City of Sterling Heights Gen. Emps.' Ret. Sys. v. Hospira, Inc. (N.D. Ill.) ($60 million settlement); In re ADT Inc. S'holder Litig. (Fla. Cir. Ct., 15th Jud. Cir.) ($30 million settlement); In re Red Hat, Inc. Sec. Litig. (E.D.N.C.) ($20 million settlement); Eshe Fund v. Fifth Third Bancorp (S.D. Ohio) ($16 million); City of St. Clair Shores Gen. Emps.' Ret. Sys. v. Lender Processing Servs., Inc. (M.D. Fla.) ($14 million); and In re Synovus Fin. Corp. (N.D. Ga.) ($11.75 million).

Prior to joining the Firm, Astley was with the Miami office of Hunton & Williams, where he concentrated his practice on class action defense, including securities class actions and white collar criminal defense. Additionally, he represented numerous corporate clients accused of engaging in unfair and deceptive practices. Astley was also an active duty member of the United States Navy's Judge Advocate General's Corps where he was the Senior Defense Counsel for the Naval Legal Service Office Pearl Harbor Detachment. In that capacity, Astley oversaw trial operations for the Detachment and gained substantial first-chair trial experience as the lead defense counsel in over 75 courts-martial and administrative proceedings. Additionally, from 2002-2003, Astley clerked for the Honorable Peter T. Fay, U.S. Court of Appeals for the Eleventh Circuit.

Education

B.S., Florida State University, 1992; M. Acc., University of Hawaii at Manoa, 2001; J.D., University of Miami School of Law, 1997

Honors / Awards

J.D., Cum Laude, University of Miami School of Law, 1997; United States Navy Judge Advocate General's Corps., Lieutenant

A. Rick Atwood, Jr. | Partner

Rick Atwood is a partner in the Firm's San Diego office. As a recipient of the California Lawyer Attorney of the Year ("CLAY") Award for his work on behalf of shareholders, he has successfully represented shareholders in securities class actions, merger-related class actions, and shareholder derivative suits in federal and state courts in more than 30 jurisdictions. Through his litigation efforts at both the trial and appellate levels, Atwood has helped recover billions of dollars for public shareholders, including the largest post-merger common fund recoveries on record. Atwood is also part of the Firm's Delaware Practice Group.

Atwood was a key member of the litigation team in In re Kinder Morgan, Inc. S'holders Litig., where he helped obtain an unprecedented $200 million common fund for former Kinder Morgan shareholders, the largest merger & acquisition class action recovery in history. In In re Dole Food Co., Inc. S'holder Litig., which went to trial in the Delaware Court of Chancery on claims of breach of fiduciary duty on behalf of Dole Food Co., Inc. shareholders, Atwood helped obtain $148 million, the largest trial verdict ever in a class action challenging a merger transaction.

Atwood also led the litigation team that obtained an $89.4 million recovery for shareholders in In re Del Monte Foods Co. S'holders Litig., after which the Delaware Court of Chancery stated that "it was only through the effective use of discovery that the plaintiffs were able to 'disturb[ ] the patina of normalcy surrounding the transaction.'" The court further commented that "Lead Counsel engaged in hard-nosed discovery to penetrate and expose problems with practices that Wall Street considered 'typical.'" One Wall Street banker even wrote in The Wall Street Journal that "'Everybody does it, but Barclays is the one that got caught with their hand in the cookie jar . . . . Now everybody has to rethink how we conduct ourselves in financing situations.'" Atwood's other significant opinions include Goldstein v. Denner ($84 million recovery), Brown v. Brewer ($45 million recovery), and In re Prime Hosp., Inc. S'holders Litig. ($25 million recovery).

Education

B.A., University of Tennessee, Knoxville, 1987; B.A., Katholieke Universiteit Leuven, Belgium, 1988; J.D., Vanderbilt School of Law, 1991

Honors / Awards

Best Lawyer in America, Best Lawyers®, 2023-2026; Leading Plaintiff Financial Lawyer, Lawdragon, 2019-2025; Recommended Lawyer, The Legal 500, 2017-2019; M&A Litigation Attorney of the Year in California, Corporate International, 2015; Super Lawyer, Super Lawyers Magazine, 2014-2017; Attorney of the Year, California Lawyer, 2012; B.A., Great Distinction, Katholieke Universiteit Leuven, Belgium, 1988; B.A., Honors, University of Tennessee, Knoxville, 1987; Authorities Editor, Vanderbilt Journal of Transnational Law, 1991

Aelish M. Baig | Partner

Aelish Marie Baig is a partner in the Firm's San Francisco office and specializes in consumer and securities fraud actions. Baig has litigated a number of cases through jury trial, resulting in multi-million and billion dollar awards and settlements for her clients.

Baig was one of the originators of the national opioid litigation, filing among the earliest complaints against the opioid industry defendants and working on all aspects of that litigation. In 2022, Baig served as co-trial counsel in a federal bench trial in San Francisco in a case selected as a bellwether in the national multi-district opioid litigation. The team achieved combined settlements of over $350 million for San Francisco and contributed to securing more than $50 billion for local governments nationwide to be used for abatement of the national opioid epidemic. For her work in co-leading the trial team and securing a historic trial result against Walgreens for the City and County of San Francisco, she was honored by The National Law Journal as one of the "Elite Women of the Plaintiffs Bar" and she received "California Lawyer Attorney of the Year" by the Daily Journal.

Baig was also appointed to leadership in the Juul ($1.7 billion settlement) and McKinsey ($230 million settlement) MDL litigations. She was recently appointed to the Plaintiffs' Steering Committee of the national social media litigation MDL against the country's largest social media platforms (Meta, YouTube, Snapchat, and Tiktok) for fueling addiction and other mental health issues among youth. She represents numerous local and state governments and school districts across the country that have filed federal cases against opioids, McKinsey, Juul, and/or social media defendants. Baig has also prosecuted securities fraud and derivative actions obtaining millions of dollars in recoveries against corporations such as Wells Fargo, Celera, Pall, and Prudential.

Education

B.A., Brown University, 1992; J.D., Washington College of Law at American University, 1998

Honors / Awards

Best Lawyer in America, Best Lawyers®, 2024-2026; Recommended Lawyer, The Legal 500, 2023-2025; Ranked by Chambers USA, 2024-2025; Leading Plaintiff Financial Lawyer, Lawdragon, 2019-2025; Leading Plaintiff Consumer Lawyer, Lawdragon, 2022-2025; Leading Lawyer in America, Lawdragon, 2020-2025; Leading Commercial Litigator, Daily Journal, 2024; Class Action/Mass Tort Litigation Trailblazer, The National Law Journal, 2023; Elite Women of the Plaintiffs Bar, Elite Trial Lawyers, The National Law Journal, 2023; Plaintiffs' Lawyers Trailblazer, The National Law Journal, 2021, 2023; California Lawyer Attorney of the Year (CLAY), Daily Journal, 2023; Best Lawyer in America: One to Watch, Best Lawyers®, 2021-2023; Best Lawyer in Northern California: One to Watch, Best Lawyers®, 2021; Featured in "Lawyer Limelight" series, Lawdragon, 2020; Litigation Trailblazer, The National Law Journal, 2019; California Trailblazer, The Recorder, 2019; Super Lawyer, Super Lawyers Magazine, 2012-2013; J.D., Cum Laude, Washington College of Law at American University, 1998; Senior Editor, Administrative Law Review, Washington College of Law at American University

Randall J. Baron | Partner

Randy Baron is a partner in the Firm's San Diego office. He specializes in securities litigation, corporate takeover litigation, and breach of fiduciary duty actions. For almost two decades, Baron has headed up a team of lawyers whose accomplishments include obtaining instrumental rulings both at injunction and trial phases, and establishing liability of financial advisors and investment banks. With an in-depth understanding of merger and acquisition and breach of fiduciary duty law, an ability to work under extreme time pressures, and the experience and willingness to take a case through trial, he has been responsible for recovering more than a billion dollars for shareholders.

Notable achievements over the years include: In re Kinder Morgan, Inc. S'holders Litig. (Kan. Dist. Ct., Shawnee Cnty.), where Baron obtained an unprecedented $200 million common fund for former Kinder Morgan shareholders, the largest merger & acquisition class action recovery in history; In re Dole Food Co., Inc. S'holder Litig. (Del. Ch.), where he went to trial in the Delaware Court of Chancery on claims of breach of fiduciary duty on behalf of Dole Food Co., Inc. shareholders and obtained $148 million, the largest trial verdict ever in a class action challenging a merger transaction; and In re Rural/Metro Corp. S'holders Litig. (Del. Ch.), where Baron and co-counsel obtained nearly $110 million total recovery for shareholders against Royal Bank of Canada Capital Markets LLC. In In re Del Monte Foods Co. S'holders Litig. (Del. Ch.), he exposed the unseemly practice by investment bankers of participating on both sides of large merger and acquisition transactions and ultimately secured an $89 million settlement for shareholders of Del Monte. Baron was one of the lead attorneys representing about 75 public and private institutional investors that filed and settled individual actions in In re WorldCom Sec. Litig. (S.D.N.Y.), where more than $657 million was recovered, the largest opt-out (non-class) securities action in history. Most recently, Baron successfully obtained a partial settlement of $60 million in In re Tesla Motors, Inc. S'holder Litig., a case that alleged that the members of the Tesla Board of Directors breached their fiduciary duties, unjustly enriched themselves, and wasted corporate assets in connection with their approval of Tesla's acquisition of SolarCity Corp. in 2016.

Education

B.A., University of Colorado at Boulder, 1987; J.D., University of San Diego School of Law, 1990

Honors / Awards

Fellow, Advisory Board, Litigation Counsel of America (LCA); Rated Distinguished by Martindale-Hubbell; Litigation Star, Benchmark Litigation, 2016-2019, 2023-2026; National Practice Area Star, Benchmark Litigation, 2019-2020, 2024, 2026; Lawyer of the Year: Litigation – Mergers and Acquisitions, San Diego, Best Lawyers®, 2026; Best Lawyer in America, Best Lawyers®, 2019-2026; Hall of Fame, The Legal 500, 2020-2025; Ranked by Chambers USA, 2016-2025; Leading Plaintiff Financial Lawyer, Lawdragon, 2019-2025; California - Litigation Star, Benchmark Litigation, 2024; Lawyer of the Year: Derivatives and Futures Law, Best Lawyers®, 2023; Plaintiffs' Lawyer Trailblazer, The National Law Journal, 2022; Leading Lawyer in America, Lawdragon, 2011, 2017-2019, 2021-2022; Southern California Best Lawyer, Best Lawyers®, 2019-2021; Super Lawyer, Super Lawyers Magazine, 2014-2016, 2018-2020; Local Litigation Star, Benchmark Litigation, 2018, 2020; Leading Lawyer, The Legal 500, 2014-2019; California Star, Benchmark Litigation, 2019; State Litigation Star, Benchmark Litigation, 2019; Winning Litigator, The National Law Journal, 2018; Titan of the Industry, The American Lawyer, 2018; Recommended Lawyer, The Legal 500, 2017; Mergers & Acquisitions Trailblazer, The National Law Journal, 2015-2016; Litigator of the Week, The American Lawyer, October 16, 2014; Attorney of the Year, California Lawyer, 2012; Litigator of the Week, The American Lawyer, October 7, 2011; J.D., Cum Laude, University of San Diego School of Law, 1990

James E. Barz | Partner

Jim Barz is a partner with the Firm and manages the Firm's Chicago office. Barz is an experienced trial lawyer who has been lead counsel in dozens of evidentiary and contested hearings, tried 18 cases to verdict, and argued 9 cases in the Seventh Circuit. Barz is a registered CPA, former federal prosecutor, and an adjunct professor at Northwestern University School of Law from 2008 to 2025, teaching courses on trial advocacy and class action litigation.

Barz has represented investors in securities fraud class actions that have resulted in recoveries of over $2 billion. Barz was the lead counsel in In re Valeant Pharms. Int'l, Inc. Sec. Litig., and secured a $1.21 billion recovery for investors, a case that Vanity Fair reported as "the corporate scandal of its era." This is the largest securities class action settlement against a pharmaceutical manufacturer and the ninth largest securities class action settlement ever. Barz was recognized as a Litigator of the Week by The American Lawyer for his work in the case.

Barz has also secured substantial recoveries for investors in HCA ($215 million, M.D. Tenn.); Motorola ($200 million, N.D. Ill.); Exelon ($173 million, N.D. Ill.); Sprint ($131 million, D. Kan.); Orbital ATK ($108 million, E.D. Va.); Walgreens ($105 million, N.D. Ill.); Nutanix ($71 million, N.D. Cal.); Psychiatric Solutions ($65 million, M.D. Tenn.); Oak Street ($60 million, N.D. Ill.); Hospira ($60 million, N.D. Ill.); and other matters. Barz also handles whistleblower, antitrust, and pro bono matters and was honored by the Judges of the United States District Court for the Northern District of Illinois with an Award for Excellence in Pro Bono Service in 2021.

Education

B.B.A., Loyola University Chicago, School of Business Administration, 1995; J.D., Northwestern University School of Law, 1998

Honors / Awards

Litigation Star, Benchmark Litigation, 2025-2026; Leading Plaintiff Financial Lawyer, Lawdragon, 2019-2025; Super Lawyer, Super Lawyers Magazine, 2018-2025; Leading Lawyer in America, Lawdragon, 2025; Recommended Lawyer, The Legal 500, 2024; Best Lawyer in America: One to Watch, Best Lawyers®, 2023; Midwest Trailblazer, The American Lawyer, 2022; Award for Excellence in Pro Bono Service, United States District Court for the Northern District of Illinois, 2021; Litigator of the Week, The American Lawyer, 2021; Leading Lawyer, Law Bulletin Media, 2018; B.B.A., Summa Cum Laude, Loyola University Chicago, School of Business Administration, 1995; J.D., Cum Laude, Northwestern University School of Law, 1998

Lea Malani Bays | Partner

Lea Malani Bays is a partner in the Firm's San Diego office. She focuses on e-discovery issues, from preservation through production, and provides counsel to the Firm's multi-disciplinary e-discovery team consisting of attorneys, forensic analysts, and database professionals. Through her role as counsel to the e-discovery team, Bays is very familiar with the various stages of e-discovery, including identification of relevant electronically stored information, data culling, predictive coding protocols, privilege, and responsiveness reviews, as well as having experience in post-production discovery through trial preparation. Through speaking at various events, she is also a leader in shaping the broader dialogue on e-discovery issues.

Bays was recently part of the litigation team that earned the approval of a $131 million settlement in favor of plaintiffs in Bennett v. Sprint Nextel Corp. The settlement, which resolved claims arising from Sprint Corporation's ill-fated merger with Nextel Communications in 2005, represents a significant recovery for the plaintiff class, achieved after five years of tireless effort by the Firm. Prior to joining Robbins Geller, Bays was a Litigation Associate at Kaye Scholer LLP's New York office. She has experience in a wide range of litigation, including complex securities litigation, commercial contract disputes, business torts, antitrust, civil fraud, and trust and estate litigation.

Education

B.A., University of California, Santa Cruz, 1997; J.D., New York Law School, 2007

Honors / Awards

Law360 Distinguished Legal Writing Award, The Burton Awards Program, 2025; Ranked by Chambers USA, 2019-2022; J.D., Magna Cum Laude, New York Law School, 2007; Executive Editor, New York Law School Law Review; Legal Aid Society's Pro Bono Publico Award; NYSBA Empire State Counsel; Professor Stephen J. Ellmann Clinical Legal Education Prize; John Marshall Harlan Scholars Program, Justice Action Center

Alexandra S. Bernay | Partner

Alexandra Bernay is a partner in the Firm's San Diego office, where she specializes in antitrust and unfair competition class-action litigation. She has also worked on some of the Firm's largest securities fraud class actions, including the Enron litigation, which recovered an unprecedented $7.2 billion for investors.

Bernay currently serves as co-lead counsel in In re Payment Card Interchange Fee and Merchant Discount Antitrust Litig., in which a settlement of $5.5 billion was upheld by the Second Circuit Court of Appeals. This case was brought on behalf of millions of U.S. merchants against Visa and MasterCard and various card-issuing banks, challenging the way these companies set and collect tens of billions of dollars annually in merchant fees. The settlement is believed to be the largest antitrust class action settlement of all time.

Additionally, Bernay is litigating In re American Airlines/JetBlue Antitrust Litig., a large antitrust case pending in the Eastern District of New York. That case is brought on behalf of airline passengers who overpaid for tickets because of alleged anticompetitive conduct between American Airlines and JetBlue. She is also part of the litigation team in a nationwide class action against LiveNation on behalf of concert ticket buyers. Other representative cases include In re Remicade Antitrust Litig., a large case that settled for $25 million involving anticompetitive conduct in the biosimilars market, where the Firm was sole lead counsel for the end-payor plaintiffs, and In re Dealer Mgmt. Sys. Antitrust Litig., which involves anticompetitive conduct related to dealer management systems on behalf of auto dealerships across the country. Another representative case is against Lloyd's of London. That action is a massive civil RICO case against the insurance company and its syndicates.

Bernay has also had experience in large consumer class actions, including In re Checking Account Overdraft Litig., which case was brought on behalf of bank customers who were overcharged for debit card transactions and resulted in more than $500 million in settlements with major banks that manipulated customers' debit transactions to maximize overdraft fees. She also helped try to verdict a case against one of the world's largest companies who was sued on behalf of consumers. Her more recent trial experience includes a jury trial related to foreign exchange trading against one of the largest banks in the world, where the jury found that plaintiffs had proved a conspiracy as to a large network of banks. She was responsible for many of the successful trial motions in the case.

Education

B.A., Humboldt State University, 1997; J.D., University of San Diego School of Law, 2000

Honors / Awards

Super Lawyer, Super Lawyers Magazine, 2023-2025; Leading Plaintiff Financial Lawyer, Lawdragon, 2019-2024; Outstanding Antitrust Litigation Achievement in Private Law Practice, American Antitrust Institute, 2023; Distinguished Alumni, Forever Humboldt Alumni Association, 2023; Litigator of the Week, Global Competition Review, October 1, 2014

Kenneth J. Black | Partner

Kenneth Black is a partner in the Firm's San Francisco office, where his practice focuses on complex securities litigation and shareholder derivative litigation. Before joining the Firm, Black was a Sanctions Investigator at the Office of Foreign Assets Control, U.S. Treasury Department, where he investigated and assembled the evidentiary cases against targets of U.S. financial sanctions, and tracked the finances and assets of those targets.

Education

B.A., University of Michigan, 2004; M.A., American University, 2007; J.D., University of Michigan Law School, 2013

Honors / Awards

Leading Litigator in America, Lawdragon, 2024-2026; 500 X – The Next Generation, Lawdragon, 2023-2025; Comments Editor, Michigan Journal of Private Equity & Venture Capital Law, University of Michigan Law School

Erin W. Boardman | Partner

Erin Boardman is a partner in the Firm's Melville office, where her practice focuses on representing individual and institutional investors in class actions brought pursuant to the federal securities laws. She has been involved in the prosecution of numerous securities class actions that have resulted in millions of dollars in recoveries for defrauded investors, including: Medoff v. CVS Caremark Corp. (D.R.I.) ($48 million recovery); Construction Laborers Pension Tr. of Greater St. Louis v. Autoliv Inc. (S.D.N.Y.) ($22.5 million recovery); In re Gildan Activewear Inc. Sec. Litig. (S.D.N.Y.) (resolved as part of a $22.5 million global settlement); In re L.G. Phillips LCD Co., Ltd., Sec. Litig. (S.D.N.Y.) ($18 million recovery); In re Giant Interactive Grp., Inc. Sec. Litig. (S.D.N.Y.) ($13 million recovery); In re Coventry HealthCare, Inc. Sec. Litig. (D. Md.) ($10 million recovery); Lenartz v. American Superconductor Corp. (D. Mass.) ($10 million recovery); Dudley v. Haub (D.N.J.) ($9 million recovery); Hildenbrand v. W Holding Co. (D.P.R.) ($8.75 million recovery); In re Doral Fin. Corp. Sec. Litig. (D.P.R.) ($7 million recovery); and Van Dongen v. CNinsure Inc. (S.D.N.Y.) ($6.625 million recovery). During law school, Boardman served as Associate Managing Editor of the Journal of Corporate, Financial and Commercial Law, interned in the chambers of the Honorable Kiyo A. Matsumoto in the United States District Court for the Eastern District of New York, and represented individuals on a pro bono basis through the Workers' Rights Clinic.

Education

B.A., State University of New York at Binghamton, 2003; J.D., Brooklyn Law School, 2007

Honors / Awards

Super Lawyer, Super Lawyers Magazine, 2022-2025; Leading Plaintiff Financial Lawyer, Lawdragon, 2022-2025; Rising Star, Super Lawyers Magazine, 2015-2018; B.A., Magna Cum Laude, State University of New York at Binghamton, 2003

Nicolle B. Brito | Partner

Nicolle Brito is a partner in the Firm's Boca Raton office. Her practice focuses on complex class actions and multi-district litigation, covering consumer fraud, public nuisance, environmental litigation, privacy litigation, pharmaceuticals, and RICO.

Brito was a member of the Firm's opioids team, leading the effort on behalf of cities and counties around the country in In re Nat'l Prescription Opiate Litig., No. 1:17-md-02804-DAP (N.D. Ohio). She was a member of the winning trial team on behalf of the People of the State of California in San Francisco's bellwether case against Allergan, Teva, Walgreens, and others in the prescription opioid supply chain, ultimately yielding $350 million in settlement funds after a successful liability trial.

Brito is currently a member of the Firm's PFAS litigation team, filing suit on behalf of governmental entities for PFAS contamination related to AFFF products. She is also a member of the Social Media litigation team, seeking to hold the technology industry accountable for social media youth addiction.

Before joining the Firm, Brito worked in complex arbitration, insurance, and personal injury law, where she gained significant litigation experience.

Education

B.A., Florida International University, 2003; J.D., Nova Southeastern University Shepard Broad College of Law, 2007

Honors / Awards

Best Lawyer in America: One to Watch, Best Lawyers®, 2026; Leading Plaintiff Consumer Lawyer, Lawdragon, 2025; 500 X - The Next Generation, Lawdragon, 2023; J.D., Cum Laude, Nova Southeastern University Shepard Broad College of Law, 2007

Douglas R. Britton | Partner

Doug Britton is a partner in the Firm's San Diego office. His practice focuses on securities fraud and corporate governance. Britton has been involved in settlements exceeding $1 billion and has secured significant corporate governance enhancements to improve corporate functioning. Notable achievements include In re WorldCom, Inc. Sec. & "ERISA" Litig., where he was one of the lead partners that represented a number of opt-out institutional investors and secured an unprecedented recovery of $651 million; In re SureBeam Corp. Sec. Litig., where he was the lead trial counsel and secured an impressive recovery of $32.75 million; and In re Amazon.com, Inc. Sec. Litig., where he was one of the lead attorneys securing a $27.5 million recovery for investors.

Education

B.B.A., Washburn University, 1991; J.D., Pepperdine University School of Law, 1996

Honors / Awards

J.D., Cum Laude, Pepperdine University School of Law, 1996

Luke O. Brooks | Partner

Luke Brooks is a partner in the Firm's securities litigation practice group in the San Diego office. He focuses primarily on securities fraud litigation on behalf of individual and institutional investors, including state and municipal pension funds, Taft-Hartley funds, and private retirement and investment funds. Brooks served as trial counsel in Jaffe v. Household International in the Northern District of Illinois, a securities class action that obtained a record-breaking $1.575 billion settlement after 14 years of litigation, including a six-week jury trial in 2009 that resulted in a verdict for plaintiffs. Other prominent cases recently prosecuted by Brooks include Fort Worth Emps.' Ret. Fund v. J.P. Morgan Chase & Co., in which plaintiffs recovered $388 million for investors in J.P. Morgan residential mortgage-backed securities, and a pair of cases – Abu Dhabi Commercial Bank v. Morgan Stanley & Co. Inc. ("Cheyne") and King County, Washington, et al. v. IKB Deutsche Industriebank AG ("Rhinebridge") – in which plaintiffs obtained a settlement, on the eve of trial in Cheyne, from the major credit rating agencies and Morgan Stanley arising out of the fraudulent ratings of bonds issued by the Cheyne and Rhinebridge structured investment vehicles. Reuters described the settlement as a "landmark" deal and emphasized that it was the "first time S&P and Moody's have settled accusations that investors were misled by their ratings." An article published in Rolling Stone magazine entitled "The Last Mystery of the Financial Crisis" similarly credited Robbins Geller with uncovering "a mountain of evidence" detailing the credit rating agencies' fraud. Most recently, Brooks served as lead counsel in Smilovits v. First Solar, Inc., and obtained a $350 million settlement on the eve of trial. The settlement is fifth-largest PSLRA settlement ever recovered in the Ninth Circuit.

Education

B.A., University of Massachusetts at Amherst, 1997; J.D., University of San Francisco, 2000

Honors / Awards

Litigation Star, Benchmark Litigation, 2023-2026; Leading Plaintiff Financial Lawyer, Lawdragon, 2019-2025; California - Litigation Star, Benchmark Litigation, 2024; Local Litigation Star, Benchmark Litigation, 2017-2018, 2020; California Star, Benchmark Litigation, 2019; State Litigation Star, Benchmark Litigation, 2019; Recommended Lawyer, The Legal 500, 2017-2018; Member, University of San Francisco Law Review, University of San Francisco

Spencer A. Burkholz | Partner

Spence Burkholz is a partner in the Firm's San Diego office and a member of the Firm's Management Committee. He has over 25 years of experience in prosecuting securities class actions and private actions on behalf of large institutional investors. Burkholz was one of the lead trial attorneys in Jaffe v. Household International in the Northern District of Illinois, a securities class action that obtained a record-breaking $1.575 billion settlement after 14 years of litigation, including a six-week jury trial in 2009 that resulted in a verdict for plaintiffs. Burkholz has also recovered billions of dollars for injured shareholders in cases such as Enron ($7.2 billion), WorldCom ($657 million), Countrywide ($500 million), Qwest ($445 million), Wells Fargo ($300 million), Envision ($177.5 million), McKesson ($141 million), Cardinal Health ($109 million), and Cisco Systems ($99.25 million).

Education

B.A., Clark University, 1985; J.D., University of Virginia School of Law, 1989

Honors / Awards

Rated AV Preeminent by Martindale-Hubbell; Litigation Star, Benchmark Litigation, 2023-2026; National Practice Area Star, Benchmark Litigation, 2020, 2024-2026; Best Lawyer in America, Best Lawyers®, 2018-2026; Leading Plaintiff Financial Lawyer, Lawdragon, 2019-2025; Leading Lawyer in America, Lawdragon, 2018-2025; California Lawyer Attorney of the Year (CLAY), Daily Journal, 2024; Top 20 Trial Lawyer in California, Benchmark Litigation, 2019, 2023-2024; Titan of the Plaintiffs Bar, Law360, 2024; Top Plaintiff Lawyer, Daily Journal, 2017, 2023; Plaintiffs' Lawyer Trailblazer, The National Law Journal, 2020, 2022; Top Lawyer in San Diego, San Diego Magazine, 2013-2022; Southern California Best Lawyer, Best Lawyers®, 2018-2021; Super Lawyer, Super Lawyers Magazine, 2015-2016, 2020; Top 100 Trial Lawyer, Benchmark Litigation, 2018-2020; Local Litigation Star, Benchmark Litigation, 2015-2018, 2020; Lawyer of the Year, Best Lawyers®, 2020; Recommended Lawyer, The Legal 500, 2017-2019; California Star, Benchmark Litigation, 2019; State Litigation Star, Benchmark Litigation, 2019; Plaintiff Attorney of the Year, Benchmark Litigation, 2018; B.A., Cum Laude, Clark University, 1985; Phi Beta Kappa, Clark University, 1985

Michael G. Capeci | Partner

Michael Capeci is a partner in the Firm's Melville office. His practice focuses on prosecuting complex securities class action lawsuits in federal and state courts. Throughout his tenure with the Firm, Capeci has led the litigation teams prosecuting numerous class action cases in federal and/or state court alleging violations of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 and/or the Securities Act of 1933, such as: Strougo v. Mallinckrodt plc ($46 million recovery); Gordon v. Vanda Pharmaceuticals, Inc. ($11.5 million recovery); Nayani v. LifeStance Health Group, Inc. ($50 million recovery); and Chester County Emps.' Ret. Fund v. Alnylam Pharmaceuticals, Inc. ($7 million recovery). In addition, Capeci has played an integral role in the teams prosecuting securities class action cases such as: In re BHP Billiton Ltd. Sec. Litig. ($50 million recovery); Galestan v. OneMain Holdings, Inc. ($9 million recovery); and City of Pontiac Gen. Emps.' Ret. Sys. v. Lockheed Martin Corp. ($19.5 million recovery).

Education

B.S., Villanova University, 2007; J.D., Hofstra University School of Law, 2010

Honors / Awards

Super Lawyer, Super Lawyers Magazine, 2022-2025; 500 X – The Next Generation, Lawdragon, 2023-2025; Leading Plaintiff Financial Lawyer, Lawdragon, 2025; Rising Star, Super Lawyers Magazine, 2014-2021; J.D., Cum Laude, Hofstra University School of Law, 2010

Jennifer N. Caringal | Partner

Jennifer Caringal is a partner in the Firm's San Diego office, where her practice focuses on complex securities litigation. Jennifer is a member of the Firm's Lead Plaintiff Advisory Team, which advises institutional investors in connection with lead plaintiff motions, and assists them in securing appointment as lead plaintiff.

Caringal served as lead counsel in In re Am. Realty Cap. Props., Inc. Litig., a case arising out of ARCP's manipulative accounting practices, and obtained a $1.025 billion recovery. For five years, she and the litigation team prosecuted nine different claims for violations of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 and the Securities Act of 1933, involving seven different stock or debt offerings and two mergers. The recovery represents the highest percentage of damages of any major PSLRA case prior to trial and includes the largest personal contributions by individual defendants in history.

Education

B.A., University of Illinois, 2006; J.D., Washington University in St. Louis, School of Law, 2012

Honors / Awards

Leading Litigator in America, Lawdragon, 2025-2026; Leading Plaintiff Financial Lawyer, Lawdragon, 2022-2025; 500 X – The Next Generation, Lawdragon, 2023-2024; Best Lawyer in America: One to Watch, Best Lawyers®, 2021-2024; They've Got Next: The 40 Under 40, Bloomberg Law, 2022; Rising Star, Super Lawyers Magazine, 2021-2022; Best Lawyer in Southern California: One to Watch, Best Lawyers®, 2021

Rachel A. Cocalis | Partner

Rachel Cocalis is a partner in the Firm's San Diego office. She represents pension funds and class members in securities fraud class actions. Cocalis was on the team of Robbins Geller attorneys who obtained a $97.5 million recovery in Marcus v. J.C. Penney Company, Inc.

Most recently, Cocalis was a key member of the Robbins Geller litigation team in Monroe County Employees' Retirement System v. The Southern Company in which a $87.5 million settlement was reached after three years of litigation. The settlement resolved claims for violations of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 stemming from defendants' issuance of materially misleading statements and omissions regarding the status of construction of a first-of-its-kind "clean coal" power plant that was designed to transform coal into synthetic gas that could then be used to fuel the power plant. Cocalis was also on the litigation team that obtained a settlement of up to $85 million in In re Morning Song Bird Food Litigation, resolving claims that Scotts Miracle-Gro knowingly sold wild bird food treated with pesticides that are hazardous to birds.

Education

B.A., Princeton University, 2010; J.D., University of California, Hastings College of the Law, 2016

Honors / Awards

Best Lawyer in America: One to Watch, Best Lawyers®, 2026; Leading Plaintiff Financial Lawyer, Lawdragon, 2025; Rising Star, Super Lawyers Magazine, 2025; 500 X - The Next Generation, Lawdragon, 2024; J.D., magna cum laude, University of California, Hastings College of the Law, 2016; B.A., High Honors, Princeton University, 2010

Brian E. Cochran | Partner

Brian Cochran is a partner in the Firm's San Diego and Chicago offices. He focuses his practice on complex securities, shareholder, consumer protection, and ERISA litigation. Cochran specializes in case investigation and initiation and lead plaintiff issues arising under the Private Securities Litigation Reform Act of 1995. He has developed dozens of cases under the federal securities laws and recovered billions of dollars for injured investors and consumers. Several of Cochran's cases have pioneered new ground, such as cases on behalf of cryptocurrency investors and in blank check companies (a.k.a "SPACs"), and sparked follow-on governmental investigations into corporate malfeasance.

Cochran was a member of the litigation team that achieved a $1.21 billion settlement in the Valeant Pharmaceuticals securities litigation. Cochran also developed the Dynamic Ledger securities litigation, one of the first cases to challenge a cryptocurrency issuer's failure to register under the federal securities laws, which settled for $25 million. In addition, Cochran was part of the team that secured a historic $25 million settlement on behalf of Trump University students, which Cochran prosecuted on a pro bono basis. Other notable recoveries include: Rite Aid Merger ($192.5 million); Exelon ($173 million); Alta Mesa ($126.3 million); Micro Focus ($107.5 million); Walgreens ($105 million); VMWare ($102.5 million); Scotts Miracle-Gro (up to $85 million); Psychiatric Solutions ($65 million); SQM Chemical & Mining Co. of Chile ($62.5 million); GE ERISA ($61 million); HPE-DXC Merger ($47.5 million, subject to court approval); Grubhub ($42 million); Sea, Ltd. ($40 million); Big Lots ($38 million); Credit Suisse ($32.5 million); Waste Management ($30 million, subject to court approval); GoHealth ($29.5 million); Reckitt Benckiser ($19.6 million); DouYu ($15 million); REV Group ($14.25 million); Fifth Street Finance ($14 million); Third Avenue Management ($14 million); Funko ($14 million); LJM ($12.85 million); Sealed Air ($12.5 million); and Camping World ($12.5 million).

Education

A.B., Princeton University, 2006; J.D., University of California at Berkeley School of Law, Boalt Hall, 2012

Honors / Awards

Future Star, Benchmark Litigation, 2026; Leading Litigator in America, Lawdragon, 2025-2026; Best Lawyer in America, Best Lawyers®, 2025-2026; Leading Lawyer, The Legal 500, 2024-2025; Leading Plaintiff Financial Lawyer, Lawdragon, 2024-2025; 500 X – The Next Generation, Lawdragon, 2023-2024; 40 & Under List, Benchmark Litigation, 2021, 2023-2024; Next Generation Partner, The Legal 500, 2020-2023; Rising Star, Super Lawyers Magazine, 2020-2022; Rising Star, The Legal 500, 2019; A.B., with Honors, Princeton University, 2006; J.D., Order of the Coif, University of California at Berkeley School of Law, Boalt Hall, 2012

Mark Conover | Partner

Mark Conover is a partner with Robbins Geller, based in the Firm's San Diego office. With over 50 felony jury trials and a distinguished career as a former federal prosecutor, Conover brings a wealth of trial experience to the Firm. He focuses on complex investigations, securities fraud litigation, and high-stakes trials, drawing on his extensive background in handling large-scale financial fraud, public corruption, and corporate misconduct cases.

Conover began his legal career as a litigation associate at Luce, Forward, Hamilton & Scripps LLP, before joining the U.S. Attorney's Office for the Southern District of California. There, he rose through the ranks to serve as second-in-command, overseeing the day-to-day administration of one of the largest U.S. Attorney's offices in the nation. At the U.S. Attorney's Office, Conover also served as Chief of the Major Frauds and Public Corruption Section, where he oversaw the prosecution of complex cases that resulted in groundbreaking convictions and exceptional outcomes. He played a key role in prosecuting high-profile cases, including the conviction of a sitting U.S. Congressman.

Throughout his tenure at the U.S. Attorney's Office, Conover prosecuted and convicted high-level executives at publicly traded companies and led investigations into violations of the Foreign Corrupt Practices Act (FCPA). His strategic collaborations with agencies such as the FBI, IRS, SEC, and DOJ have been instrumental in tackling multi-jurisdictional investigations and holding corporate and government wrongdoers accountable. These experiences gave him invaluable insights into the investigation of securities fraud by the DOJ and the SEC.

In addition to his legal practice, Conover has served as an adjunct professor at California Western School of Law for over a decade, mentoring the next generation of lawyers. He also served for many years as a DOJ mediator, successfully resolving disputes across the country.

Education

B.S., Utah Valley University, 2001; J.D., University of Southern California School of Law, 2004

Honors / Awards

Leading Litigator in America, Lawdragon, 2026

Sheri M. Coverman | Partner

Sheri Coverman is a partner in the Firm's Boca Raton office. Her practice focuses on complex class actions, including securities, corporate governance, and consumer fraud litigation.

Coverman is a member of the Firm's Institutional Outreach Team, which provides advice to the Firm's institutional clients, including numerous public pension systems and Taft-Hartley funds throughout the United States, on issues related to corporate fraud, shareholder litigation, and corporate governance issues. Coverman frequently addresses trustees regarding their options for seeking redress for losses due to violations of securities laws and assists in ongoing litigation involving many Firm clients. Coverman's institutional clients are also involved in other types of class actions, namely: In re National Prescription Opiate Litigation.

Education

B.A., University of Florida, 2008; J.D., University of Florida Levin College of Law, 2011

Honors / Awards

Best Lawyer in America: One to Watch, Best Lawyers®, 2026

Joseph D. Daley | Partner

Joseph Daley is a partner in the Firm's San Diego office, serves on the Firm's Securities Hiring Committee, and is a member of the Firm's Appellate Practice Group. Precedents include: City of Birmingham Ret. & Relief Sys. v. Davis, 806 F. App'x 17 (2d Cir. 2020); City of Providence v. Bats Glob. Mkts., Inc., 878 F.3d 36 (2d Cir. 2017); DeJulius v. New Eng. Health Care Emps. Pension Fund, 429 F.3d 935 (10th Cir. 2005); Fikes Wholesale, Inc. v. Visa U.S.A., Inc., 62 F.4th 704 (2d Cir. 2023); Frank v. Dana Corp. ("Dana I"), 547 F.3d 564 (6th Cir. 2008); Frank v. Dana Corp. ("Dana II"), 646 F.3d 954 (6th Cir. 2011); Freidus v. Barclays Bank PLC, 734 F.3d 132 (2d Cir. 2013); In re HealthSouth Corp. Sec. Litig., 334 F. App'x 248 (11th Cir. 2009); In re Merck & Co. Sec., Derivative & ERISA Litig., 493 F.3d 393 (3d Cir. 2007); In re Quality Sys., Inc. Sec. Litig., 865 F.3d 1130 (9th Cir. 2017); In re Qwest Commc'ns Int'l, 450 F.3d 1179 (10th Cir. 2006); Luther v. Countrywide Home Loans Servicing LP, 533 F.3d 1031 (9th Cir. 2008); NECA-IBEW Health & Welfare Fund v. Goldman Sachs & Co., 693 F.3d 145 (2d Cir. 2012); Rosenbloom v. Pyott ("Allergan"), 765 F.3d 1137 (9th Cir. 2014); San Diego Cnty. Emps. Ret. Ass'n v. Johnson & Johnson, 2025 U.S. App. LEXIS 18986 (3d Cir. July 30, 2025); Silverman v. Motorola Sols., Inc., 739 F.3d 956 (7th Cir. 2013); Siracusano v. Matrixx Initiatives, Inc., 585 F.3d 1167 (9th Cir. 2009), aff'd, 563 U.S. 27 (2011); and Southland Sec. Corp. v. INSpire Ins. Sols. Inc., 365 F.3d 353 (5th Cir. 2004). Daley is admitted to practice before the U.S. Supreme Court, as well as before 12 U.S. Courts of Appeals around the nation.

Education

B.S., Jacksonville University, 1981; J.D., University of San Diego School of Law, 1996

Honors / Awards

Best Lawyer in America, Best Lawyers®, 2024-2026; Seven-time Super Lawyer, Super Lawyers Magazine; Appellate Moot Court Board, Order of the Barristers, University of San Diego School of Law; Best Advocate Award (Traynore Constitutional Law Moot Court Competition), First Place and Best Briefs (Alumni Torts Moot Court Competition and USD Jessup International Law Moot Court Competition)

Stuart A. Davidson | Partner

Stuart Davidson is a partner in the Firm's Boca Raton office. His practice focuses on complex consumer class actions, including cases involving deceptive and unfair trade practices, privacy and data breach issues, and antitrust violations.

He has served as class counsel in some of the nation's most significant privacy and consumer cases, including: In re Facebook Biometric Information Privacy Litigation, No. 3:15-cv-03747-JD (N.D. Cal.) ($650 million recovery in a cutting-edge class action concerning Facebook's alleged privacy violations through its collection of user's biometric identifiers without informed consent); In re Yahoo! Inc. Customer Data Security Breach Litigation, No. 5:16-md-02752-LHK (N.D. Cal.) ($117.5 million recovery in the largest data breach in history); Kehoe v. Fidelity Federal Bank & Trust, No. 9:03-cv-80593-DTKH (S.D. Fla.) ($50 million recovery in Driver's Privacy Protection Act case on behalf of half-a-million Florida drivers against a national bank); In re Independent Living Systems Data Breach Litigation, No. 1:23-cv-21060-KMW (S.D. Fla.) ($14 million recovery); In re Fortra File Transfer Software Data Security Breach Litigation, No. 1:24-md-03090-RAR (S.D. Fla.) ($20 million recovery, representing Aetna patients); In re American Financial Resources, Inc. Data Breach Litigation, No. 2:22-cv-01757-MCA-JSA (D.N.J.) ($2.5 million recovery); In re Sony Gaming Networks & Customer Data Security Breach Litigation, No. 3:11-md-02258-AJB-MDD (S.D. Cal.) (settlement valued at $15 million concerning the massive data breach of Sony's PlayStation Network); and In re Solara Medical Supplies Data Breach Litigation, No. 3:19-cv-02284-H-KSC (S.D. Cal.) ($5 million all-cash settlement for 114,000 victims of healthcare data breach).

Davidson currently serves as Plaintiffs' Co-Lead Counsel in In re Perry Johnson & Associates Medical Transcription Data Security Breach Litigation, No. 1:24-md-03096-RPK-LGD (E.D.N.Y.), In re American Medical Collection Agency, Inc. Customer Data Security Breach Litigation, No. 2:19-md-02904-MCA-MAH (D.N.J.) (representing class of LabCorp customers), and Garner v. Amazon.com, Inc., No. 2:21-cv-00750-RSL (W.D. Wash.) (certified class of 100 million Amazon Alexa registrants alleging Amazon's deceptive advertising for Alexa-enabled devices); on Plaintiffs' Executive Committee in In re Lakeview Loan Servicing Data Breach Litigation, No. 1:22-cv-20955-DPG (S.D. Fla.); and on Plaintiffs' Steering Committee in In re FTX Cryptocurrency Exchange Collapse Litigation, No. 1:23-md-03076-KMM (S.D. Fla.). Davidson also currently represents the State of Arkansas in a major antitrust enforcement action, State of Arkansas ex rel. Griffin v. Syngenta Crop Protection AG, No. 4:22-cv-01287-BSM (E.D. Ark.) and a privacy enforcement action, State of Arkansas ex rel. Griffin v. General Motors LLC, No. 54CV-25-77 (Ark. Cir. Ct., Phillips Cnty.).

Davidson also spearheaded several aspects of In re EpiPen (Epinephrine Injection, USP) Marketing, Sales Practices & Antitrust Litigation, No. 2:17-md-02785-DDC-TJJ (D. Kan.) ($609 million total recovery achieved weeks prior to trial in certified class action alleging antitrust claims involving the illegal reverse payment settlement to delay the generic EpiPen, which allowed the prices of the life-saving EpiPen to rise over 600% in 9 years), served as Co-Lead Class Counsel in three cases brought against Genworth Life Insurance Company on behalf of long-term care insureds, Skochin v. Genworth Life. Ins. Co., No. 3:19-cv-00049-REP (E.D. Va.); Halcom v. Genworth Life Ins. Co., No. 3:21-cv-00019-REP (E.D. Va.); and Haney v. Genworth Life Ins. Co., No. 3:22-cv-00055-REP (E.D. Va.), recovering hundreds of millions of dollars in cash damages for policyholders, and served as Plaintiffs' Co-Lead Counsel in In re NHL Players' Concussion Injury Litigation, No. 0:14-md-02551-SRN-BRT (D. Minn.) (representing retired National Hockey League players in multidistrict litigation suit against the NHL regarding injuries suffered due to repetitive head trauma and concussions), and in In re Pet Food Products Liability Litigation, No. 1:07-cv-02867-NLH-AMD (D.N.J.) ($24 million recovery in multidistrict consumer class action on behalf of thousands of aggrieved pet owners nationwide against some of the nation's largest pet food manufacturers, distributors, and retailers). He also served as Plaintiffs' Co-Lead Counsel in In re

UnitedGlobalCom, Inc. Shareholder Litigation, C.A. No. 1012-VCS (Del. Ch.) ($25 million recovery weeks before trial); In re Winn-Dixie Stores, Inc. Shareholder Litigation, No. 16-2011-CA-010616 (Fla. Cir. Ct.) ($11.5 million recovery for former Winn-Dixie shareholders following the corporate buyout by BI-LO); and In re AuthenTec, Inc. Shareholder Litigation, No. 5-2012-CA-57589 (Fla. Cir. Ct.) ($10 million recovery for former AuthenTec shareholders following a merger with Apple). The latter two cases are the two largest merger and acquisition recoveries in Florida history.

Davidson is a former lead assistant public defender in the Felony Division of the Broward County, Florida Public Defender's Office. During his tenure at the Public Defender's Office, he tried over 30 jury trials and defended individuals charged with major crimes ranging from third-degree felonies to life and capital felonies.

Education

B.A., State University of New York at Geneseo, 1993; J.D., Nova Southeastern University Shepard Broad College of Law, 1996

Honors / Awards

Litigation Star, Benchmark Litigation, 2023-2026; Leading Litigator in America, Lawdragon, 2024-2026; Best Lawyer in America, Best Lawyers®, 2026; Recommended Lawyer, The Legal 500, 2023-2025; Leading Plaintiff Financial Lawyer, Lawdragon, 2020-2025; Law360 Distinguished Legal Writing Award, The Burton Awards Program, 2025; Leading Plaintiff Consumer Lawyer, Lawdragon, 2022-2025; Leading Lawyer in America, Lawdragon, 2023-2025; Outstanding Antitrust Litigation Achievement in Private Law Practice, American Antitrust Institute, 2022; Super Lawyer, Super Lawyers Magazine, 2021-2022; One of "Florida's Most Effective Lawyers" in the Privacy category, American Law Media, 2020; J.D., Summa Cum Laude, Nova Southeastern University Shepard Broad College of Law, 1996; Associate Editor, Nova Law Review, Book Awards in Trial Advocacy, International Law, and Criminal Pretrial Practice

Jason C. Davis | Partner

Jason Davis is a partner in the Firm's San Francisco office where he practices securities class actions and complex litigation involving equities, fixed-income, synthetic, and structured securities issued in public and private transactions. Davis was on the trial team in Jaffe v. Household Int'l, Inc., a securities class action that obtained a record-breaking $1.575 billion settlement after 14 years of litigation, including a six-week jury trial in 2009 that resulted in a verdict for plaintiffs. Most recently, he was part of the litigation team in Luna v. Marvell Tech. Grp., Ltd., resulting in a $72.5 million settlement that represents approximately 24% to 50% of the best estimate of classwide damages suffered by investors.

Before joining the Firm, Davis focused on cross-border transactions, mergers and acquisitions at Cravath, Swaine and Moore LLP in New York.

Education

B.A., Syracuse University, 1998; J.D., University of California at Berkeley, Boalt Hall School of Law, 2002

Honors / Awards

B.A., Summa Cum Laude, Syracuse University, 1998; International Relations Scholar of the year, Syracuse University; Teaching fellow, examination awards, Moot court award, University of California at Berkeley, Boalt Hall School of Law

Mark J. Dearman | Partner

Mark Dearman is a partner in the Firm's Boca Raton office, where his practice focuses on consumer fraud, securities fraud, mass torts, antitrust, and whistleblower litigation.

Dearman, along with other Robbins Geller attorneys, is currently leading the effort on behalf of cities and counties around the country in In re National Prescription Opiate Litigation, No. 1:17-md-02804 (N.D. Ohio). He was appointed to the Plaintiffs' Steering Committee in In re Zantac (Ranitidine) Products Liability Litigation, No. 9:20-md-02924 (S.D. Fla.), and as Chair of the Plaintiffs' Executive Committee in In re Apple Inc. Device Performance Litigation, No. 5:18-md-02827 (N.D. Cal.), Dearman, along with co-counsel, obtained a $310 million settlement. His other recent representative cases include serving as class counsel in In re Juul Labs, Inc., Marketing, Sales Practices, and Products Liability Litigation, No. 3:19-md-02913 (N.D. Cal.); In re McKinsey & Co., Inc. National Prescription Opiate Consultant Litigation, No. 3:21-md-02996 (N.D. Cal.); In re Facebook Biometric Information Privacy Litigation, No. 3:15-cv-03747 (N.D. Cal.) ($650 million recovery in a class action concerning Facebook's alleged privacy violations through its collection of user's biometric identifiers without informed consent); In re EpiPen (Epinephrine Injection, USP) Marketing, Sales Practices & Antitrust Litigation, No. 2:17-md-02785 (D. Kan.) ($609 million total recovery achieved weeks prior to trial in certified class action alleging antitrust claims involving the illegal reverse payment settlement to delay the generic EpiPen); In re FieldTurf Artificial Turf Sales & Marketing Practices Litigation, No. 3:17-md-02779 (D.N.J.); In re Sony Gaming Networks & Customer Data Security Breach Litigation, 903 F. Supp. 2d 942 (S.D. Cal. 2012); In re Volkswagen "Clean Diesel" Marketing, Sales Practices, & Products Liability Litigation, 2016 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 1357 (N.D. Cal. Jan. 5, 2016); In re Aluminum Warehousing Antitrust Litigation, 95 F. Supp. 3d 419 (S.D.N.Y. 2015); In re Liquid Aluminum Sulfate Antitrust Litigation, No. 2:16-md-2687 (D.N.J.); In re Winn-Dixie Stores, Inc. Shareholder Litigation, No. 16-2011-CA-010616 (Fla. 4th Jud. Cir. Ct., Duval Cnty.); Gemelas v. Dannon Co. Inc., No. 1:08-cv-00236 (N.D. Ohio); and In re AuthenTec, Inc. Shareholder Litigation, No. 05-2012-CA-57589 (Fla. 18th Jud. Cir. Ct., Brevard Cnty.).

Education

B.A., University of Florida, 1990; J.D., Nova Southeastern University, 1993

Honors / Awards

AV rated by Martindale-Hubbell; Leading Litigator in America, Lawdragon, 2024-2026; Best Lawyer in America, Best Lawyers®, 2024-2026; Super Lawyer, Super Lawyers Magazine, 2014-2020, 2025; Recommended Lawyer, The Legal 500, 2023, 2025; Leading Plaintiff Financial Lawyer, Lawdragon, 2020-2025; Leading Plaintiff Consumer Lawyer, Lawdragon, 2022-2025; Leading Lawyer in America, Lawdragon, 2023-2025; In top 1.5% of Florida Civil Trial Lawyers in Florida Trend's Florida Legal Elite, 2004, 2006

Kathleen B. Douglas | Partner

Kathleen Douglas is a partner in the Firm's Boca Raton office. She focuses her practice on securities fraud class actions and consumer fraud. Most recently, Douglas and a team of Robbins Geller attorneys obtained a $1.21 billion settlement in In re Valeant Pharms. Int'l, Inc. Sec. Litig., a case that Vanity Fair reported as "the corporate scandal of its era" that had raised "fundamental questions about the functioning of our health-care system, the nature of modern markets, and the slippery slope of ethical rationalizations." This is the largest securities class action settlement against a pharmaceutical manufacturer and the ninth largest ever.

Douglas was also a key member of the litigation team in In re UnitedHealth Grp. Inc. PSLRA Litig., in which she and team of Robbins Geller attorneys achieved a substantial $925 million recovery. In addition to the monetary recovery, UnitedHealth also made critical changes to a number of its corporate governance policies, including electing a shareholder-nominated member to the company's Board of Directors. Likewise, in Nieman v. Duke Energy Corp., she and a team of attorneys obtained a $146.25 million recovery, which is the largest recovery in North Carolina for a case involving securities fraud and is one of the five largest recoveries in the Fourth Circuit. In addition, Douglas was a member of the team of attorneys that represented investors in Knurr v. Orbital ATK, Inc., which recovered $108 million for shareholders and is believed to be the fourth-largest securities class action settlement in the history of the Eastern District of Virginia. Douglas has served as class counsel in several class actions brought on behalf of Florida emergency room physicians. These cases were against some of the nation's largest Health Maintenance Organizations and settled for substantial increases in reimbursement rates and millions of dollars in past damages for the class.

Education

B.S., Georgetown University, 2004; J.D., University of Miami School of Law, 2007

Honors / Awards

Future Star, Benchmark Litigation, 2025-2026; Leading Plaintiff Consumer Lawyer, Lawdragon, 2023-2025; Best Lawyer in America: One to Watch, Best Lawyers®, 2024-2025; 40 & Under List, Benchmark Litigation, 2023; 40 & Under Hot List, Benchmark Litigation, 2021; Rising Star, Super Lawyers Magazine, 2012-2017; B.S., Cum Laude, Georgetown University, 2004

Daniel S. Drosman | Partner

Dan Drosman is a partner in the Firm's San Diego office and a member of the Firm's Management Committee. He focuses his practice on securities fraud and other complex civil litigation and has obtained significant recoveries for investors in cases such as Morgan Stanley, Cisco Systems, The Coca-Cola Company, Petco, PMI, and America West. Drosman served as lead trial counsel in Jaffe v. Household International in the Northern District of Illinois, a securities class action that obtained a record-breaking $1.575 billion settlement after 14 years of litigation, including a six-week jury trial in 2009 that resulted in a verdict for plaintiffs. Drosman also helped secure a $388 million recovery for investors in J.P. Morgan residential mortgage-backed securities in Fort Worth Employees' Retirement Fund v. J.P. Morgan Chase & Co. On a percentage basis, that settlement is the largest recovery ever achieved in an RMBS class action. Drosman also served as lead counsel in Smilovits v. First Solar, Inc., and obtained a $350 million settlement on the eve of trial. The settlement is fifth-largest PSLRA settlement ever recovered in the Ninth Circuit.

Most recently, Drosman led a team of Robbins Geller attorneys to a record-breaking $809.5 million settlement in In re Twitter, Inc. Sec. Litig., which settled the day before trial was set to commence. The settlement is the largest securities fraud class action recovery in the Ninth Circuit in the last decade and one of the top 20 shareholder class action settlements of all time. Drosman was part of the Robbins Geller litigation team in Monroe County Employees' Retirement System v. The Southern Company in which an $87.5 million settlement was reached after three years of litigation. The settlement resolved claims for violations of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 stemming from defendants' issuance of materially misleading statements and omissions regarding the status of construction of a first-of-its-kind "clean coal" power plant that was designed to transform coal into synthetic gas that could then be used to fuel the power plant. In another recent case, Drosman and the Robbins Geller litigation team obtained a $62.5 million settlement in Villella v. Chemical and Mining Company of Chile Inc., which alleged that Sociedad Química y Minera de Chile S.A. ("SQM") violated the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 by issuing materially false and misleading statements regarding the Company's failure to disclose that money from SQM was channeled illegally to electoral campaigns for Chilean politicians and political parties as far back as 2009. SQM had also filed millions of dollars' worth of fictitious tax receipts with Chilean authorities in order to conceal bribery payments from at least 2009 through fiscal year 2014.

In a pair of cases – Abu Dhabi Commercial Bank, et al. v. Morgan Stanley & Co. Inc. ("Cheyne" litigation) and King County, Washington, et al. v. IKB Deutsche Industriebank AG ("Rhinebridge" litigation) – Drosman led a group of attorneys prosecuting fraud claims against the credit rating agencies, where he is distinguished as one of the few plaintiffs' counsel to defeat the rating agencies' traditional First Amendment defense and their motions for summary judgment based on the mischaracterization of credit ratings as mere opinions not actionable in fraud.

Before joining the Firm, Drosman served as an Assistant District Attorney for the Manhattan District Attorney's Office, and an Assistant United States Attorney in the Southern District of California, where he investigated and prosecuted violations of the federal narcotics, immigration, and official corruption law.

Education

B.A., Reed College, 1990; J.D., Harvard Law School, 1993

Honors / Awards

Litigation Star, Benchmark Litigation, 2023-2026; National Practice Area Star, Benchmark Litigation, 2026; Leading Litigator in America, Lawdragon, 2026; Best Lawyer in America, Best Lawyers®, 2019-2026; Leading Plaintiff Financial Lawyer, Lawdragon, 2019-2025; Legend, Lawdragon, 2025; Leading Lawyer in America, Lawdragon, 2018-2025; Recommended Lawyer, The Legal 500, 2017-2018, 2023-2024; Lawyer of the Year, Best Lawyers®, 2022, 2024; West Trailblazer, The American Lawyer, 2022; Top Plaintiff Lawyer, Daily Journal, 2022; Plaintiff Litigator of the Year, Benchmark Litigation, 2022; Titan of the Plaintiffs Bar, Law360, 2022; Southern California Best Lawyers, The Wall Street Journal, 2021; Southern California Best Lawyer, Best Lawyers®, 2019-2021; Super Lawyer, Super Lawyers Magazine, 2017-2020; Top 100 Lawyer, Daily Journal, 2017; Department of Justice Special Achievement Award, Sustained Superior Performance of Duty; B.A., Honors, Reed College, 1990; Phi Beta Kappa, Reed College, 1990

Thomas E. Egler | Partner

Thomas Egler is a partner in the Firm's San Diego office and focuses his practice on representing clients in major complex, multidistrict litigations, such as Lehman Brothers, Countrywide Mortgage Backed Securities, WorldCom, AOL Time Warner, and Qwest. He has represented institutional investors both as plaintiffs in individual actions and as lead plaintiffs in class actions.

Most recently, along with co-counsel and a team of Robbins Geller attorneys, Egler led the effort on behalf of cities and counties around the country in In re National Prescription Opiate Litigation. In 2022, Egler served on the team of counsel in a federal bench trial in San Francisco in a case that had been selected as a bellwether in the multidistrict litigation. The team achieved combined settlements of nearly $70 million for San Francisco and more than $50 billion nationally from multiple pharmaceutical companies who were defendants in the national litigation. The Honorable Charles R. Breyer of the Northern District of California ruled that Walgreens, the only defendant remaining in the San Francisco case, was liable for its role in the opioid crisis in San Francisco.

Egler also has been a Lawyer Representative to the Ninth Circuit Judicial Conference from the Southern District of California, is a member of the Hon. William B. Enright Inn of Court in San Diego, and in the past has served on the Executive Board of the San Diego chapter of the Association of Business Trial Lawyers. Before joining the Firm, Egler was a law clerk to the Honorable Donald E. Ziegler, Chief Judge, United States District Court, Western District of Pennsylvania.

Education

B.A., Northwestern University, 1989; J.D., The Catholic University of America, Columbus School of Law, 1995

Honors / Awards

Best Lawyer in America, Best Lawyers®, 2024-2026; Leading Lawyer in America, Lawdragon, 2024; Super Lawyer, Super Lawyers Magazine, 2017-2018; Associate Editor, Catholic University Law Review

Alan I. Ellman | Partner

Alan Ellman is a partner in the Firm's Melville office, where he concentrates his practice on prosecuting complex securities fraud cases on behalf of institutional investors. Most recently, Ellman was on the team of Robbins Geller attorneys who obtained a $34.5 million recovery in Patel v. L-3 Communications Holdings, Inc., which represents a high percentage of damages that plaintiffs could reasonably expect to be recovered at trial and is more than eight times higher than the average settlement of cases with comparable investor losses. He was also on the team of attorneys who recovered in excess of $34 million for investors in In re OSG Sec. Litig., which represented an outsized recovery of 93% of bond purchasers' damages and 28% of stock purchasers' damages. The creatively structured settlement included more than $15 million paid by a bankrupt entity.

Ellman was also on the team of Robbins Geller attorneys who achieved final approval in Curran v. Freshpet, Inc., which provides for the payment of $10.1 million for the benefit of eligible settlement class members. Additionally, he was on the team of attorneys who obtained final approval of a $7.5 million recovery in Plymouth County Retirement Association v. Advisory Board Company. In 2006, Ellman received a Volunteer and Leadership Award from Housing Conservation Coordinators (HCC) for his pro bono service defending a client in Housing Court against a non-payment action, arguing an appeal before the Appellate Term, and staffing HCC's legal clinic. He also successfully appealed a pro bono client's criminal sentence before the Appellate Division.

Education

B.S., B.A., State University of New York at Binghamton, 1999; J.D., Georgetown University Law Center, 2003

Honors / Awards

Super Lawyer, Super Lawyers Magazine, 2017-2025; Pro Bono Publico Award, Casa Cornelia Law Center, 2021-2022; Rising Star, Super Lawyers Magazine, 2014-2015; B.S., B.A., Cum Laude, State University of New York at Binghamton, 1999

Jason A. Forge | Partner

Jason Forge is a partner in the Firm's San Diego office. He specializes in complex investigations, litigation, and trials. As a federal prosecutor and private practitioner, Forge has conducted and supervised scores of jury and bench trials in federal and state courts, including the month-long trial of a defense contractor who conspired with Congressman Randy "Duke" Cunningham in the largest bribery scheme in congressional history. He recently obtained a $350 million settlement with Alphabet, Inc., which was made possible only by first winning a unanimous published appellate decision, reversing a district court order that had dismissed the entire case. This is the largest ever post-reversal securities fraud recovery in the Ninth Circuit.

In addition to Alphabet, Forge has secured nine-figure payouts from other corporate goliaths, including Wal-Mart ($160 million) and Pfizer ($400 million). City of Pontiac General Employees' Retirement System v. Wal-Mart Stores, Inc. was the first successful securities fraud case against Wal-Mart. And in the case against Pfizer, Forge led an investigation that uncovered key documents that Pfizer had not produced in discovery. Although fact discovery in the case had already closed, the district judge ruled that the documents had been improperly withheld and ordered that discovery be reopened, including reopening the depositions of Pfizer's former CEO, CFO, and General Counsel. Less than six months after completing these depositions, Pfizer settled the case for $400 million.

Forge also was a key member of the Firm's winning trial team in Hsu v. Puma Biotechnology, Inc. – one of only 13 securities fraud class action verdicts for investors in nearly 30 years. After that trial victory, Forge joined a Robbins Geller litigation team that had defeated 12 motions for summary judgment against 40 defendants and was about to depose 17 experts in the home stretch to trial. Forge led the effort to use these depositions to disprove a truth-on-the-market argument that nine defense experts had embraced. After the last of these expert depositions, the defendants dropped their lead truth-on-the-market expert and the Robbins Geller team secured a $1.025 billion settlement from American Realty Capital Properties and other defendants that included a record $237 million contribution from individual defendants and represented more than twice the recovery rate obtained by several funds that had opted out of the class.

Forge was a key member of the litigation team that secured a historic recovery on behalf of Trump University students in two class actions, including a federal RICO charge, against President Donald J. Trump. The settlement returned over 90% of the money thousands of students paid to "enroll" in Trump University. He represented the class on a pro bono basis. Forge successfully prosecuted another federal RICO case against Scotts Miracle-Gro, resulting in full refunds (totaling over $40 million) for customers who purchased bird feed that Scotts had illegally treated with a pesticide known to be hazardous to birds. He was also a member of the litigation team that obtained a $125 million settlement in In re LendingClub Securities Litigation, a settlement that ranked among the top ten largest securities recoveries ever in the Northern District of California.

Education

B.B.A., The University of Michigan Ross School of Business, 1990; J.D., The University of Michigan Law School, 1993

Honors / Awards

Litigation Star, Benchmark Litigation, 2023-2026; National Practice Area Star, Benchmark Litigation, 2026; Leading Litigator in America, Lawdragon, 2026; Leading Plaintiff Financial Lawyer, Lawdragon, 2019-2025; Plaintiff Litigator of the Year, Benchmark Litigation, 2025; Impact Case Award: In re Alphabet, Inc. Securities Litigation, Benchmark Litigation, 2025; Leading Lawyer in America, Lawdragon, 2022-2025; Recommended Lawyer, The Legal 500, 2023-2024; Best Lawyer in America, Best Lawyers®, 2019-2023; Southern California Best Lawyer, Best Lawyers®, 2019-2021; Local Litigation Star, Benchmark Litigation, 2020; Plaintiffs' Lawyer Trailblazer, The National Law Journal, 2018; Top 100 Lawyer, Daily Journal, 2017; Litigator of the Year, Our City San Diego, 2017; Two-time recipient of Department of Justice's Director's Award for Superior Performance by Litigation Team; numerous commendations from Federal Bureau of Investigation (including commendation from FBI Director Robert Mueller III), Internal Revenue Service, and Defense Criminal Investigative Service; J.D., Magna Cum Laude, Order of the Coif, The University of Michigan Law School, 1993; B.B.A., High Distinction, The University of Michigan Ross School of Business, 1990

William J. Geddish | Partner

William Geddish is a partner with the Firm and is based in the Melville office, where his practice focuses on complex securities litigation. Before joining the Firm, he was an associate in the New York office of a large international law firm, where his practice focused on complex commercial litigation.

Since joining the Firm, Geddish has played a significant role in the following litigations*: In re Barrick Gold Sec. Litig.* ($140 million recovery); Scheufele v. Tableau Software, Inc. ($95 million recovery); Landmen Partners, Inc. v. The Blackstone Grp., L.P. ($85 million recovery); In re Jeld-Wen Holding, Inc. Sec. Litig. ($40 million recovery); City of Austin Police Ret. Sys. v. Kinross Gold Corp. ($33 million recovery); City of Roseville Emps' Ret. Sys. v. EnergySolutions, Inc. ($26 million recovery); Beaver Cnty. Emps' Ret. Fund v. Tile Shop Holdings, Inc. ($9.5 million recovery); and Barbara Marciano v. Schell & Kampeter, Inc. ($2 million recovery).

Education

B.A., Sacred Heart University, 2006, J.D., Hofstra University School of Law, 2009

Honors / Awards

Best Lawyer in America: One to Watch, Best Lawyers®, 2024-2025; Rising Star, Super Lawyers Magazine, 2013-2024; 500 X – The Next Generation, Lawdragon, 2023; J.D., Magna Cum Laude, Hofstra University School of Law, 2009; Gina Maria Escarce Memorial Award, Hofstra University School of Law

Paul J. Geller | Partner

Paul Geller is a founding partner of Robbins Geller and head of the Firm's Consumer Practice Group. Over the last 30 years, Geller has served as lead counsel in some of the country's most high-profile consumer, antitrust, and securities class actions and has recovered billions for communities, consumers, and investors harmed by corporate abuse.

Before devoting his practice to the representation of consumers and investors, Geller defended companies in high-stakes class action and multi-district litigation, providing him with an invaluable perspective from "both sides of the 'v.'" An experienced trial lawyer, he has tried bench and jury trials on behalf of plaintiffs and defendants and has argued before numerous state, federal, and appellate courts throughout the United States.

Geller's ability to earn respect and trust from all sides in difficult negotiations has been recognized by the bar and legal publications. Chambers notes that "Paul is a consummate professional who has the ability to work seamlessly and collaboratively to address daunting challenges that arise in complex mass tort litigation."

He serves as a key leader of the nationwide litigation against the companies responsible for the U.S. opioid addiction crisis. He played a key role in negotiating and architecting the complex settlements that resulted in over $50 billion being paid to communities across the country struggling with the fallout of the opioid crisis.

He has also successfully litigated and negotiated precedent-setting class recoveries in multiple practice areas, including data privacy, antitrust, products liability, and securities cases.

- Facebook Data Privacy Case – $650 Million: He secured the then-largest privacy class action settlement in history – a $650 million recovery in a cutting-edge class action against Facebook. The case concerned Facebook's use of biometric identifiers through its "tag" feature, which Geller's team challenged under a new biometric privacy law that had never before been applied in a class action. The federal judge that presided over the case called it a "landmark result" and a "major win for consumers." In addition to the monetary recovery, Facebook disabled the tag feature altogether, deleting 1 billion facial profiles and discontinuing the related facial recognition program.

- Volkswagen "Clean Diesel" Case – $17 Billion: Geller was a member of the leadership team representing consumers in the massive Volkswagen "Clean Diesel" emissions case. The San Francisco legal newspaper The Recorder labeled the group that was appointed in that case, which settled for more than $17 billion, a "class action dream team."
- "EpiPen" Antitrust Case – $609 Million: As co-lead counsel, Geller secured a recovery of $609 million for overcharged purchasers of the "EpiPen" device in a nationwide class action alleging that the manufacturer and marketer of the EpiPen engaged in anti-competitive and unfair business conduct in their sale and marketing of the auto-injector device. The American Antitrust Institute honored Geller and the litigation team for Outstanding Antitrust Litigation Achievement in Private Law Practice for this result.

Education

B.S., University of Florida, 1990; J.D., Emory University School of Law, 1993

Honors / Awards

Senior Fellow, Litigation Counsel of America (LCA) Proven Trial Lawyers; Rated AV by Martindale-Hubbell; Leading Litigator in America, Lawdragon, 2024-2026; Best Lawyer in America, Best Lawyers®, 2017-2026; Leading Global Litigator, Lawdragon, 2025; Super Lawyer, Super Lawyers Magazine, 2007-2025; Recommended Lawyer, The Legal 500, 2016, 2019, 2023-2025; Ranked by Chambers USA, 2021-2025; Leading Plaintiff Financial Lawyer, Lawdragon, 2019-2025; Global Plaintiff Lawyer, Lawdragon, 2024-2025; Leading Plaintiff Consumer Lawyer, Lawdragon, 2022-2025; Leading Lawyer in America, Lawdragon, 2006-2007, 2009-2025; Outstanding Antitrust Litigation Achievement in Private Law Practice, American Antitrust Institute, 2022; South Trailblazer, The American Lawyer, 2022; Class Action MVP, Law360, 2022; Florida Best Lawyer in America, Best Lawyers®, 2017-2021; One of "Florida's Most Effective Lawyers" in the Privacy category, American Law Media, 2020; Legend, Lawdragon, 2020; Plaintiffs' Lawyer Trailblazer, The National Law Journal, 2018; Lawyer of the Year, Best Lawyers®, 2018; Attorney of the Month, Attorney At Law, 2017; Featured in "Lawyer Limelight" series, Lawdragon, 2017; Top Rated Lawyer, South Florida's Legal Leaders, Miami Herald, 2015; Litigation Star, Benchmark Litigation, 2013; "Legal Elite," Florida Trend Magazine; One of "Florida's Most Effective Lawyers," American Law Media; One of Florida's top lawyers in South Florida Business Journal; One of the Nation's Top "40 Under 40," The National Law Journal; One of Florida's Top Lawyers, Law & Politics; Editor, Emory Law Journal; Order of the Coif, Emory University School of Law

Robert D. Gerson | Partner

Robert Gerson is a partner in the Firm's Melville office, where he practices securities fraud litigation and other complex matters.

Since joining the Firm, Gerson has played a significant role in prosecuting numerous high-stakes investor litigations. Most recently, Gerson and a team of Robbins Geller attorneys obtained a $27.5 million settlement in Luna v. Carbonite, Inc., following a precedent-setting decision by the U.S. Court of Appeals for the First Circuit. Gerson was also a member of the team in In re Dell Technologies Inc. Class V Stockholders Litigation, which settled in 2023 for $1 billion in cash – a record in the Delaware Chancery Court and the largest settlement in U.S. state court history. Other notable cases Gerson has played a critical role in at the Firm include: UA Local 13 & Employers Group Insurance Fund v. Sealed Air Corp. ($12.5 million recovery); In re PPDAI Group Sec. Litig. ($9 million recovery); and Sponn v. Emergent BioSolutions Inc. ($6.5 million recovery).

Education

B.A., University of Maryland, 2006; J.D., New York Law School, 2009

Honors / Awards

Super Lawyer, Super Lawyers Magazine, 2021-2025; Best Lawyer in America: One to Watch, Best Lawyers®, 2024-2025; 500 X – The Next Generation, Lawdragon, 2023; Rising Star, Super Lawyers Magazine, 2015-2020

Jonah H. Goldstein | Partner

Jonah Goldstein is a partner in the Firm's San Diego office and is responsible for prosecuting complex securities cases and obtaining recoveries for investors. He also represents corporate whistleblowers who report violations of the securities laws. Goldstein has achieved significant settlements on behalf of investors including in In re HealthSouth Sec. Litig. (over $670 million recovered against HealthSouth, UBS and Ernst & Young), In re Cisco Sec. Litig. (approximately $100 million), and Marcus v. J.C. Penney Company, Inc. ($97.5 million recovery). Goldstein also served on the Firm's trial team in In re AT&T Corp. Sec. Litig., MDL No. 1399 (D.N.J.), which settled after two weeks of trial for $100 million, and aided in the $65 million recovery in Garden City Emps.' Ret. Sys. v. Psychiatric Solutions, Inc., the fourth-largest securities recovery ever in the Middle District of Tennessee and one of the largest in more than a decade. Most recently, he was part of the litigation team in Luna v. Marvell Tech. Grp., Ltd., resulting in a $72.5 million settlement that represents approximately 24% to 50% of the best estimate of classwide damages suffered by investors. Before joining the Firm, Goldstein served as a law clerk for the Honorable William H. Erickson on the Colorado Supreme Court and as an Assistant United States Attorney for the Southern District of California, where he tried numerous cases and briefed and argued appeals before the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals.

Education

B.A., Duke University, 1991; J.D., University of Denver College of Law, 1995

Honors / Awards

Recommended Lawyer, The Legal 500, 2018-2019; Comments Editor, University of Denver Law Review, University of Denver College of Law

Benny C. Goodman III | Partner

Benny Goodman is a partner in the Firm's San Diego office. He primarily represents plaintiffs in shareholder actions on behalf of aggrieved corporations. Goodman has recovered hundreds of millions of dollars in shareholder derivative actions pending in state and federal courts across the nation. Most recently, he led a team of lawyers in litigation brought on behalf of Community Health Systems, Inc., resulting in a $60 million payment to the company, the largest recovery in a shareholder derivative action in Tennessee and the Sixth Circuit, as well as best-in-class value-enhancing corporate governance reforms that included two shareholder-nominated directors to the Community Health Board of Directors.

Similarly, Goodman recovered a $25 million payment to Lumber Liquidators and numerous corporate governance reforms, including a shareholder-nominated director, in In re Lumber Liquidators Holdings, Inc. S'holder Derivative Litig. In In re Google Inc. S'holder Derivative Litig., Goodman achieved groundbreaking corporate governance reforms designed to mitigate regulatory and legal compliance risk associated with online pharmaceutical advertising, including among other things, the creation of a $250 million fund to help combat rogue pharmacies from improperly selling drugs online.

Education

B.S., Arizona State University, 1994; J.D., University of San Diego School of Law, 2000

Honors / Awards

Best Lawyer in America, Best Lawyers®, 2026; Super Lawyer, Super Lawyers Magazine, 2018-2025; Best Lawyer in America: One to Watch, Best Lawyers®, 2024-2025; Leading Plaintiff Financial Lawyer, Lawdragon, 2019-2021; Recommended Lawyer, The Legal 500, 2017

Elise J. Grace | Partner

Elise Grace is a partner in the San Diego office and counsels the Firm's institutional clients on options to secure premium recoveries in securities litigation both within the United States and internationally. Grace is a frequent lecturer and author on securities and accounting fraud, and develops annual MCLE and CPE accredited educational programs designed to train public fund representatives on practices to protect and maximize portfolio assets, create long-term portfolio value, and best fulfill fiduciary duties. Grace has routinely been named a Recommended Lawyer by The Legal 500 and named a Leading Plaintiff Financial Lawyer by Lawdragon. Grace has prosecuted various significant securities fraud class actions, as well as the AOL Time Warner state and federal securities opt-out litigations, which resulted in a combined settlement of over $629 million for defrauded investors. Before joining the Firm, Grace practiced at Clifford Chance, where she defended numerous Fortune 500 companies in securities class actions and complex business litigation.

Education

B.A., University of California, Los Angeles, 1993; J.D., Pepperdine School of Law, 1999

Honors / Awards

Securities Litigation Lawyer of the Year, Lawyer Monthly, 2023, 2025; Leading Plaintiff Financial Lawyer, Lawdragon, 2019-2025; Recommended Lawyer, The Legal 500, 2016-2017; J.D., Magna Cum Laude, Pepperdine School of Law, 1999; American Jurisprudence Bancroft-Whitney Award – Civil Procedure, Evidence, and Dalsimer Moot Court Oral Argument; Dean's Academic Scholarship Recipient, Pepperdine School of Law; B.A., Summa Cum Laude, University of California, Los Angeles, 1993; B.A., Phi Beta Kappa, University of California, Los Angeles, 1993

Tor Gronborg | Partner

Tor Gronborg is a partner in the Firm's San Diego office and a member of the Firm's Management Committee. He often lectures on topics such as the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure and electronic discovery. Gronborg has served as lead or co-lead counsel in numerous securities fraud cases that have collectively recovered more than $4.4 billion for investors. Most recently, Gronborg and a team of Robbins Geller attorneys obtained an $809 million settlement in In re Twitter, Inc. Sec. Litig., a case that did not settle until the day before trial was set to commence.

In addition to Twitter, Gronborg's work has included significant recoveries against corporations such as Valeant Pharmaceuticals ($1.21 billion), Cardinal Health ($600 million), Motorola ($200 million), Duke Energy ($146.25 million), Sprint Nextel Corp. ($131 million), and Prison Realty ($104 million), to name a few. Gronborg was also a member of the Firm's trial team in Hsu v. Puma Biotechnology, Inc., No. SACV15-0865 (C.D. Cal.), a securities fraud class action that resulted in a verdict in favor of investors after a two-week jury trial and ultimately settled for 100% of the claimed damages plus prejudgment interest.

On three separate occasions, Gronborg's pleadings have been upheld by the federal Courts of Appeals (Broudo v. Dura Pharms., Inc., 339 F.3d 933 (9th Cir. 2003), rev'd on other grounds, 544 U.S. 336 (2005); In re Daou Sys., 411 F.3d 1006 (9th Cir. 2005); Staehr v. Hartford Fin. Servs. Grp., 547 F.3d 406 (2d Cir. 2008)).

Education

B.A., University of California, Santa Barbara, 1991; Rotary International Scholar, University of Lancaster, U.K., 1992; J.D., University of California, Berkeley, 1995

Honors / Awards

Litigation Star, Benchmark Litigation, 2023-2026; National Practice Area Star, Benchmark Litigation, 2025-2026; Best Lawyer in America, Best Lawyers®, 2022-2026; Leading Plaintiff Financial Lawyer, Lawdragon, 2019-2025; Leading Lawyer in America, Lawdragon, 2022-2025; Recommended Lawyer, The Legal 500, 2023-2024; West Trailblazer, The American Lawyer, 2022; Super Lawyer, Super Lawyers Magazine, 2013-2022; Plaintiffs' Lawyer Trailblazer, The National Law Journal, 2019; Moot Court Board Member, University of California, Berkeley; AFL-CIO history scholarship, University of California, Santa Barbara

Ellen Gusikoff Stewart | Partner

Ellen Stewart is a partner in the Firm's San Diego office, and is a member of the Firm's Summer Associate Hiring Committee. She currently practices in the Firm's settlement department, negotiating and documenting complex securities, merger, ERISA, and derivative action settlements. Notable recent settlements include: Evanston Police Pension Fund v. McKesson Corp. (N.D. Cal. 2023) ($141 million); In re Twitter Inc. Sec. Litig. (N.D. Cal. 2022) ($809.5 million); In re Facebook Biometric Info. Privacy Litig. (N.D. Cal. 2021) ($650 million); In re Am. Realty Cap. Props., Inc. Litig. (S.D.N.Y. 2020) ($1.025 billion); Klein v. Altria Group, Inc. (E.D. Va. 2022) ($90 million); KBC Asset Management v. 3D Systems Corp. (D.S.C. 2018) ($50 million); and Luna v. Marvell Tech. Grp. (N.D. Cal. 2018) ($72.5 million).

Stewart has served on the Federal Bar Association Ad Hoc Committee for the revisions to the Settlement Guidelines for the Northern District of California, was a contributor to the Guidelines and Best Practices – Implementing 2018 Amendments to Rule 23 Class Action Settlement Provisions manual of the Bolch Judicial Institute at the Duke University School of Law, and speaks at conferences around country on current settlement and notice issues.

Education

B.A., Muhlenberg College, 1986; J.D., Case Western Reserve University, 1989

Honors / Awards

Rated Distinguished by Martindale-Hubbell

Robert Henssler | Partner

Bobby Henssler is a partner in the Firm's San Diego office, where he focuses his practice on securities fraud and other complex civil litigation. He has obtained significant recoveries for investors in cases such as Under Armour, Blackstone, and J.C. Penney.

Most recently, Henssler led a team of Robbins Geller attorneys in obtaining a $434 million settlement in In re Under Armour Sec. Litig. The case was previously dismissed with prejudice in 2019, but then resurrected through a highly unusual procedural maneuver, a successful motion for an indicative ruling: asking the federal judge who had dismissed the case to issue an indicative opinion informing the Fourth Circuit that he would revive the original case if it were remanded to him. Over the next five years, the Robbins Geller team defeated defendants' motions for summary judgment and to exclude plaintiffs' expert witnesses. The case settled just weeks before a jury trial was set to begin in Baltimore, Maryland. The $434 million recovery is the second largest securities-fraud settlement ever in the Fourth Circuit and is among the top 50 largest such recoveries in U.S. history.

Henssler was also lead counsel in Schuh v. HCA Holdings, Inc., which resulted in a $215 million recovery for shareholders, the largest securities class action recovery ever in Tennessee. The recovery achieved represents more than 30% of the aggregate classwide damages, far exceeding the typical recovery in a securities class action. Henssler has had many other successful results, including in In re Valeant Pharms. Int'l, Inc. Sec. Litig. ($1.21 billion), Marcus v. J.C. Penney Company, Inc. ($97.5 million recovery), Landmen Partners Inc. v. The Blackstone Group L.P. ($85 million recovery), In re Novatel Wireless Sec. Litig. ($16 million recovery), Carpenters Pension Trust Fund of St. Louis v. Barclays PLC ($14 million settlement), and Kmiec v. Powerwave Technologies, Inc. ($8.2 million settlement), to name a few.

Education

B.A., University of New Hampshire, 1997; J.D., University of San Diego School of Law, 2001

Honors / Awards

Leading Litigator in America, Lawdragon, 2024-2026; Best Lawyer in America, Best Lawyers®, 2025-2026; Leading Plaintiff Financial Lawyer, Lawdragon, 2020-2021, 2023-2025; Leading Lawyer in America, Lawdragon, 2025; Top 100 Lawyer, Daily Journal, 2024; California Lawyer of the Year, Daily Journal, 2022; Plaintiffs' Lawyer Trailblazer, The National Law Journal, 2020; Recommended Lawyer, The Legal 500, 2018-2019

Steven F. Hubachek | Partner

Steve Hubachek is a partner in the Firm's San Diego office. He is a member of the Firm's appellate group, where his practice concentrates on federal appeals. He has more than 25 years of appellate experience, has argued over 100 federal appeals, including 3 cases before the United States Supreme Court and 7 cases before en banc panels of the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals. Prior to his work with the Firm, Hubachek joined Perkins Coie in Seattle, Washington, as an associate. He was admitted to the Washington State Bar in 1987 and was admitted to the California State Bar in 1990, practicing for many years with Federal Defenders of San Diego, Inc. He also had an active trial practice, including over 30 jury trials, and was Chief Appellate Attorney for Federal Defenders.

Education

B.A., University of California, Berkeley, 1983; J.D., University of California College of the Law, San Francisco, 1987

Honors / Awards

AV rated by Martindale-Hubbell; Top Lawyer in San Diego, San Diego Magazine, 2014-2022; Super Lawyer, Super Lawyers Magazine, 2007-2009, 2019-2021; Assistant Federal Public Defender of the Year, National Federal Public Defenders Association, 2011; Appellate Attorney of the Year, San Diego Criminal Defense Bar Association, 2011 (co-recipient); President's Award for Outstanding Volunteer Service, Mid City Little League, San Diego, 2011; E. Stanley Conant Award for exceptional and unselfish devotion to protecting the rights of the indigent accused, 2009 (joint recipient); The Daily Transcript Top Attorneys, 2007; J.D., Cum Laude, Order of the Coif, Thurston Honor Society, University of California College of the Law, San Francisco, 1987

Andrew W. Hutton | Partner

Drew Hutton is a partner in the Firm's San Diego office. Hutton has prosecuted a variety of securities actions, achieving high-profile recoveries and results. Representative cases against corporations and their auditors include AOL Time Warner ($2.5 billion) and Williams Cos. ($311 million). Representative cases against corporations and their executives include Broadcom ($150 million), Bank OZK ($45 million), and Clarent (class plaintiff's 10b-5 jury verdict against former CEO). Hutton is also active in shareholder derivative litigation, achieving monetary recoveries and governance changes, including Premier ($71 million), Affiliated Computer Servs. ($30 million), KB Home ($30 million), and KeyCorp (modified CEO stock options and governance). Hutton has also litigated securities cases in bankruptcy court (WorldCom – $15 million for individual claimant), and a complex options case before FINRA (eight-figure settlement for structured products investor).

Hutton is also experienced in complex, multi-district consumer litigation. Representative nationwide insurance cases include Prudential ($4 billion), Metro. Life Ins. Co. ($2 billion), and Conseco Life Ins. Co. ($200 million). Representative nationwide consumer lending cases include a $30 million class settlement of Truth-in-Lending claims against American Express, and a $24 million class settlement of RICO and RESPA claims against Community Bank of Northern Virginia (now PNC Bank).

Before joining Robbins Geller, Hutton was a public company accountant, Certified Public Accountant, and broker of stocks, options, and insurance products. Hutton has also served as an expert litigation consultant in both financial and corporate governance capacities. Hutton is often responsible for working with experts retained by the Firm in litigation and has conducted dozens of depositions of financial professionals, including audit partners, CFOs, directors, bankers, actuaries, and opposing experts.

Education

B.A., University of California, Santa Barbara, 1983; J.D., Loyola Law School, 1994

James I. Jaconette | Partner

James Jaconette is one of the founding partners of the Firm and is located in its San Diego office. He manages cases in the Firm's securities class action and shareholder derivative litigation practices. He has served as one of the lead counsel in securities cases with recoveries to individual and institutional investors totaling over $8 billion. He also advises institutional investors, including hedge funds, pension funds, and financial institutions. Landmark securities actions in which he contributed in a primary litigating role include In re Informix Corp. Sec. Litig., and In re Dynegy Inc. Sec. Litig. and In re Enron Corp. Sec. Litig., where he represented lead plaintiff The Regents of the University of California. Most recently, Jaconette was part of the trial team in Schuh v. HCA Holdings, Inc., which resulted in a $215 million recovery for shareholders, the largest securities class action recovery ever in Tennessee. The recovery achieved represents more than 30% of the aggregate classwide damages, far exceeding the typical recovery in a securities class action.

Education

B.A., San Diego State University, 1989; M.B.A., San Diego State University, 1992; J.D., University of California Hastings College of the Law, 1995

Honors / Awards

Leading Plaintiff Financial Lawyer, Lawdragon, 2019-2025; J.D., Cum Laude, University of California Hastings College of the Law, 1995; Associate Articles Editor, Hastings Law Journal, University of California Hastings College of the Law; B.A., with Honors and Distinction, San Diego State University, 1989

J. Marco Janoski Gray | Partner

Marco Janoski is a partner in the Firm's San Diego office. His practice focuses on complex securities litigation and class actions. An experienced litigator, Janoski has secured record-setting recoveries for investors, including trial verdicts and large recoveries secured on the eve of trial.

Janoski recently served on the litigation team in In re Alphabet, Inc. Securities Litigation representing plaintiffs in a securities fraud case where Robbins Geller achieved a $350 million recovery. The recovery is the largest ever privacy or cybersecurity-related securities class action recovery and the Ninth Circuit's largest ever securities class action recovery following a complete dismissal. Janoski also served on the litigation teams in two securities fraud cases that are among the top ten securities recoveries of 2023: In re Envision Healthcare Corporation Securities Litigation ($177.5 million recovery) and Louisiana Sheriffs' Pension & Relief Fund v. Cardinal Health, Inc. ($109 million recovery). He served on the Firm's trial team in In re Twitter, Inc. Securities Litigation and helped secure an $809.5 million recovery for investors. The Twitter case settled the day before trial was set to commence in 2021 and is the largest securities fraud class action recovery in the Ninth Circuit in the last decade. Likewise, he and a team of Firm lawyers secured a $350 million settlement on the eve of trial in 2020 in Smilovits v. First Solar, Inc., the fifth-largest PSLRA settlement ever recovered in the Ninth Circuit at the time. Janoski also served on the Firm's trial team in Hsu v. Puma Biotechnology, Inc., a securities fraud class action that resulted in a verdict in favor of investors after a two-week jury trial in federal court.

Education

Universidad Complutense de Madrid, 2010-2011; B.A., University of California, Santa Barbara, 2011; J.D., University of California College of the Law, San Francisco (formerly UC Hastings), 2015

Honors / Awards

Leading Litigator in America, Lawdragon, 2024-2026; 40 & Under List, Benchmark Litigation, 2023-2025; Leading Plaintiff Financial Lawyer, Lawdragon, 2023-2025; Rising Star, Super Lawyers Magazine, 2024-2025; California Lawyer Attorney of the Year (CLAY), Daily Journal, 2024; 500 X – The Next Generation, Lawdragon, 2023; J.D., Magna Cum Laude, University of California College of the Law, San Francisco (formerly UC Hastings), 2015

Evan J. Kaufman | Partner

Evan Kaufman is a partner in the Firm's Melville office. He has recovered hundreds of millions of dollars for class members in securities, ERISA, and complex class actions.

Kaufman served as lead counsel in the SandRidge Energy securities litigation and obtained a $35.75 million global settlement, including $21.8 million for SandRidge common stock purchasers. As lead counsel in the TD Banknorth litigation, Kaufman and the Firm achieved a $50 million recovery after successfully objecting to a $3 million settlement submitted to the court on behalf of the class. The court in the TD Banknorth litigation stated: "This is one of the cases – there's probably been a half a dozen since I've been a judge that I handled which have – really through the sheer diligence and effort of plaintiffs' counsel – resulted in substantial awards for plaintiffs, after overcoming serious procedural and other barriers . . . it appears plainly from the papers that you and your co-counsel have diligently, and at great personal expense and through the devotion of many thousands of hours of your time, prosecuted this case to a successful conclusion."

Kaufman served as co-lead class counsel on behalf of 212,000 participants in General Electric's 401(k) plan and obtained $61 million for the class, which was the largest recovery ever in an ERISA case alleging a retirement plan improperly offered proprietary funds. During the GE ERISA final settlement approval hearing, the court described the case as "hard-fought" with "interesting and difficult issues." Kaufman served as lead counsel or as an integral part of the team in other ERISA actions, including on behalf of participants in the retirement plans of Invesco, JP Morgan, and Wakemed.

Kaufman achieved notable results in numerous other securities class actions, including recovering $26 million in the EnergySolutions litigation, and in cases against Lockheed Martin, State Street, Fidelity, Warner Chilcott, Talkspace, Third Avenue Management, and Giant Interactive, among others.

In the Third Avenue Management litigation, when approving the $14.25 million settlement obtained by Kaufman and the Firm, the court commended the parties for their "wisdom" and "diligence" and concluded that "lead counsel diligently and with quality represented the interests of the class." In the Giant Interactive litigation, the court acknowledged the efforts of Kaufman and the Firm in achieving the favorable settlement for the class: "The Court also recognizes the diligence and hard work of plaintiffs' counsel in achieving such a settlement, particularly in light of the fact that this case (unlike many other securities class actions) was independently developed by plaintiffs' counsel, as opposed to following, or piggybacking on, a regulatory investigation or settlement."

Education

B.A., University of Michigan, 1992; J.D., Fordham University School of Law, 1995

Honors / Awards

Super Lawyer, Super Lawyers Magazine, 2013-2015, 2017-2020, 2023-2025; Member, Fordham International Law Journal, Fordham University School of Law

Ashley M. Kelly | Partner

Ashley Kelly is a partner in the Firm's San Diego office, where she represents large institutional and individual investors as a member of the Firm's antitrust and securities fraud practices. Her work is primarily federal and state class actions involving the federal antitrust and securities laws, common law fraud, breach of contract, and accounting violations. Kelly's case work has been in the financial services, oil & gas, e-commerce, and technology industries. In addition to being an attorney, she is a Certified Public Accountant. Kelly was an important member of the litigation team that obtained a $500 million settlement on behalf of investors in Luther v. Countrywide Fin. Corp., which was the largest residential mortgage-backed securities purchaser class action recovery in history.

Education

B.S., Pennsylvania State University, 2005; J.D., Rutgers University-Camden, 2011

Honors / Awards

500 X – The Next Generation, Lawdragon, 2023-2025; Best Lawyer in America: One to Watch, Best Lawyers®, 2024-2025; Rising Star, Super Lawyers Magazine, 2016, 2018-2021

Christopher R. Kinnon | Partner

Christopher Kinnon is a partner in the Firm's San Diego office, where his practice focuses on securities fraud litigation. Kinnon and a team of Robbins Geller attorneys obtained a $1.21 billion settlement in In re Valeant Pharms. Int'l, Inc. Sec. Litig. (D.N.J.), a case that Vanity Fair reported as "the corporate scandal of its era" that had raised "fundamental questions about the functioning of our health-care system, the nature of modern markets, and the slippery slope of ethical rationalizations." This is the largest securities class action settlement against a pharmaceutical manufacturer and the ninth largest ever. In addition, Kinnon and a team of Robbins Geller attorneys obtained an $809 million settlement in In re Twitter, Inc. Sec. Litig., a case that did not settle until the day before trial was set to commence.

Most recently, Kinnon was a key member of a team of Robbins Geller attorneys who obtained a $434 million settlement in In re Under Armour Sec. Litig. The case was previously dismissed with prejudice in 2019, but then resurrected through a highly unusual procedural maneuver, a successful motion for an indicative ruling: asking the federal judge who had dismissed the case to issue an indicative opinion informing the Fourth Circuit that he would revive the original case if it were remanded to him. Over the next five years, the Robbins Geller team defeated defendants' motions for summary judgment and to exclude plaintiffs' expert witnesses. The case settled just weeks before a jury trial was set to begin in Baltimore, Maryland. The $434 million recovery is the second largest securities-fraud settlement ever in the Fourth Circuit and is among the top 50 largest such recoveries in U.S. history.

Kinnon is currently representing investors in securities fraud actions against Green Dot Corporation (C.D. Cal.) and PricewaterhouseCoopers LLP (D.N.J.).

Before law school, Kinnon was a municipal sanitation worker and an elected executive board member with the Canadian Union of Public Employees, Local 1004 (CUPE 1004). Before that, he was a recording artist signed to prominent record labels in Canada and the United States.

Education

B.A., University of British Columbia, 2008; J.D., University of Michigan Law School, 2017

Honors / Awards

Best Lawyer in America: One to Watch, Best Lawyers®, 2026; Rising Star, Super Lawyers Magazine, 2024-2025; California Lawyer of the Year, Daily Journal, 2022

David A. Knotts | Partner

David Knotts is a partner in the Firm's San Diego office. He focuses his practice on shareholder class action litigation in the context of mergers and acquisitions, representing both individual shareholders and institutional investors. Knotts is also part of the Firm's Delaware Practice Group and has taken multiple cases to trial in the Delaware Court of Chancery. Knotts has significant trial experience in high-stakes corporate litigation.

Knotts has been counsel of record for shareholders on a number of significant recoveries in courts throughout the country, including serving as the lead litigator on Chabot v. Walgreens Boots Alliance, Inc., which culminated in a $192.5 million recovery for a class of Rite Aid investors. The Walgreens settlement was approved by the Middle District of Pennsylvania in February 2024 and resulted in the second largest securities recovery in Pennsylvania federal court history. That recovery represents a rarity in securities fraud litigation, whereby target-company investors obtained a significant cash recovery from an unaffiliated acquirer based on allegations that the acquirer issued misleading statements during the pendency of a merger.

Knotts also served as the lead litigator in Murray v. EarthLink Holdings Corp., which, after six years of litigation, resulted in an $85 million settlement for former EarthLink stockholders in connection with the Windstream/EarthLink merger. The EarthLink settlement was approved by the Eastern District of Arkansas in February 2025 and, at the time, resulted in the largest securities class action recovery in the Eighth Circuit over the past five years.

In addition, Knotts served among lead counsel in In re Rural/Metro Corp. S'holders Litig., which resulted in a groundbreaking $110 million post-trial recovery affirmed by the Delaware Supreme Court, as well as In re Del Monte Foods Co. S'holders Litig. ($89.4 million), Websense ($40 million), In re Onyx S'holders Litig. ($30 million), and Harman ($28 million). Websense and Onyx are both believed to be the largest post-merger class settlements in California state court history. When Knotts presented the settlement as lead counsel for the stockholders in Joy Global, the United States District Court for the Eastern District of Wisconsin noted that "this is a pretty extraordinary settlement, recovery on behalf of the members of the class. . . . [I]t's always a pleasure to work with people who are experienced and who know what they are doing."

Education

B.S., University of Pittsburgh, 2001; J.D., Cornell Law School, 2004

Honors / Awards

Litigation Star, Benchmark Litigation, 2026; Leading Plaintiff Financial Lawyer, Lawdragon, 2024-2025; 40 & Under List, Benchmark Litigation, 2023; 40 & Under Hot List, Benchmark Litigation, 2018, 2020-2021; Next Generation Partner, The Legal 500, 2019-2021; Recommended Lawyer, The Legal 500, 2017-2019; Wiley W. Manuel Award for Pro Bono Legal Services, State Bar of California; Casa Cornelia Inns of Court; J.D., Cum Laude, Cornell Law School, 2004

Peter Ko | Partner

Peter Ko is a partner in the Firm's San Diego office focused on complex investigation, litigation, trial, and appeals.

Before joining the Firm, Ko served 27 years as a federal prosecutor in Nevada and the Southern District of California, handling cases involving fraud, corruption, racketeering, and other crimes. He tried dozens of cases and litigated scores of appeals in federal courts and was assigned to handle numerous high-profile prosecutions of national or international significance. Since 2010, Ko also served at points as First Assistant United States Attorney, Chief of Criminal, Chief of Appeals, Chief of National Security and Cybercrimes, and Senior Litigation Counsel. While at the U.S. Department of Justice (DOJ), Ko received the Attorney General's Claudia J. Flynn Award for Professional Responsibility as well as the Director's Award for Superior Performance. He has taught trial advocacy, evidence, discovery, and other litigation subjects for the DOJ and other agencies.

Education

B.A., University of California, San Diego, 1992; J.D., UCLA School of Law, 1997

Honors / Awards

Attorney General's Claudia J. Flynn Award for Professional Responsibility; Director's Award for Superior Performance, United States Attorney's Office

Laurie L. Largent | Partner

Laurie Largent is a partner in the Firm's San Diego, California office. Her practice focuses on securities class action and shareholder derivative litigation and she has helped recover millions of dollars for injured shareholders. Largent was part of the litigation team that obtained a $265 million recovery in In re Massey Energy Co. Sec. Litig., in which Massey was found accountable for a tragic explosion at the Upper Big Branch mine in Raleigh County, West Virginia. She also helped obtain $67.5 million for Wyeth shareholders in City of Livonia Emps.' Ret. Sys. v. Wyeth, settling claims that the defendants misled investors about the safety and commercial viability of one of the company's leading drug candidates. Most recently, Largent was on the team that secured a $64 million recovery for Dana Corp. shareholders in Plumbers & Pipefitters Nat'l Pension Fund v. Burns, in which the Firm's Appellate Practice Group successfully appealed to the Sixth Circuit Court of Appeals twice, reversing the district court's dismissal of the action. Some of Largent's other cases include: In re Sanofi-Aventis Sec. Litig. (S.D.N.Y.) ($40 million); In re Bridgepoint Educ., Inc. Sec. Litig. (S.D. Cal.) ($15.5 million); Ross v. Abercrombie & Fitch Co. (S.D. Ohio) ($12 million); Maiman v. Talbott (C.D. Cal.) ($8.25 million); In re Cafepress Inc. S'holder Litig. (Cal. Super. Ct., San Mateo Cnty.) ($8 million); and Krystek v. Ruby Tuesday, Inc. (M.D. Tenn.) ($5 million). Largent's current cases include securities fraud cases against Dell, Inc. (W.D. Tex.) and Banc of California (C.D. Cal.).

Largent is a past board member on the San Diego County Bar Foundation and the San Diego Volunteer Lawyer Program. She has also served as an Adjunct Business Law Professor at Southwestern College in Chula Vista, California.

Education

B.B.A., University of Oklahoma, 1985; J.D., University of Tulsa, 1988

Honors / Awards

Best Lawyer in America: One to Watch, Best Lawyers®, 2026; Leading Plaintiff Financial Lawyer, Lawdragon, 2019-2025; California Lawyer Attorney of the Year (CLAY), Daily Journal, 2024; Board Member, San Diego County Bar Foundation, 2013-2017; Board Member, San Diego Volunteer Lawyer Program, 2014-2017

Kevin A. Lavelle | Partner

Kevin Lavelle is a partner in the Firm's San Diego office, where his practice focuses on complex securities litigation.

Lavelle has served on numerous litigation teams and helped obtain over $500 million for investors. His work includes several significant recoveries against corporations, including HCA Holdings, Inc. ($215 million); Altria Group and JUUL Labs ($90 million); Endo Pharmaceuticals ($63 million); and Intercept Pharmaceuticals ($55 million), among others.

Education

B.A., College of the Holy Cross, 2008; J.D., Brooklyn Law School, 2013

Honors / Awards

500 X – The Next Generation, Lawdragon, 2023-2025; J.D., Cum Laude, Brooklyn Law School, 2013; B.A., Cum Laude, College of the Holy Cross, 2008

Nathan R. Lindell | Partner

Nate Lindell is a partner in the Firm's San Diego office, where his practice focuses on representing aggrieved investors in complex civil litigation. He has helped achieve numerous significant recoveries for investors, including: In re Enron Corp. Sec. Litig. ($7.2 billion recovery); In re HealthSouth Corp. Sec. Litig. ($671 million recovery); Luther v. Countrywide Fin. Corp. ($500 million recovery); Fort Worth Emps.' Ret. Fund v. J.P. Morgan Chase & Co. ($388 million recovery); NECA-IBEW Health & Welfare Fund v. Goldman Sachs & Co. ($272 million recovery); In re Morgan Stanley Mortg. Pass-Through Certificates Litig. ($95 million recovery); Massachusetts Bricklayers & Masons Tr. Funds v. Deutsche Alt-A Sec., Inc. ($32.5 million recovery); City of Ann Arbor Emps.' Ret. Sys. v. Citigroup Mortg. Loan Trust Inc. ($24.9 million recovery); Plumbers' Union Loc. No. 12 Pension Fund v. Nomura Asset Acceptance Corp. ($21.2 million recovery); and Genesee Cnty. Emps.' Ret. Sys. v. Thornburg Mortg., Inc. ($11.25 million recovery). In October 2016, Lindell successfully argued in front of the New York Supreme Court, Appellate Division, First Judicial Department, for the reversal of an earlier order granting defendants' motion to dismiss in Phoenix Light SF Limited v. Morgan Stanley.

Lindell was also a member of the litigation team responsible for securing a landmark victory from the Second Circuit Court of Appeals in its precedent-setting NECA-IBEW Health & Welfare Fund v. Goldman Sachs & Co. decision, which dramatically expanded the scope of permissible class actions asserting claims under the Securities Act of 1933 on behalf of mortgage-backed securities investors, and ultimately resulted in a $272 million recovery for investors.

Education

B.S., Princeton University, 2003; J.D., University of San Diego School of Law, 2006

Honors / Awards

Rising Star, Super Lawyers Magazine, 2015-2017; Charles W. Caldwell Alumni Scholarship, University of San Diego School of Law; CALI/AmJur Award in Sports and the Law

Ting H. Liu | Partner

Ting Liu is a partner in the Firm's San Diego office, where she represents large institutional and individual investors. Her practice focuses on complex securities litigation. Liu was a member of the trial team that obtained a $350 million settlement on the eve of trial in Smilovits v. First Solar, Inc., the fifth-largest PSLRA settlement recovered in the Ninth Circuit at the time. She was also a member of the Firm's trial team in Hsu v. Puma Biotechnology, Inc., a securities fraud class action that resulted in a verdict in favor of investors after a two-week jury trial.

Education

B.A., University of Washington, 2012; J.D., University of San Diego School of Law, 2015

Honors / Awards

Best Lawyer in America: One to Watch, Best Lawyers®, 2026; 40 & Under List, Benchmark Litigation, 2024-2025; Leading Plaintiff Financial Lawyer, Lawdragon, 2024-2025; Rising Star, Super Lawyers Magazine, 2023-2025; Rising Star, Law360, 2024

Ryan Llorens | Partner

Ryan Llorens is a partner in the Firm's San Diego office. Llorens' practice focuses on litigating complex securities fraud cases. He has worked on a number of securities cases that have resulted in significant recoveries for investors, including: In re HealthSouth Corp. Sec. Litig. ($670 million); AOL Time Warner ($629 million); In re AT&T Corp. Sec. Litig. ($100 million); In re Fleming Cos. Sec. Litig. ($95 million); and In re Cooper Cos., Inc. Sec Litig. ($27 million).

Education

B.A., Pitzer College, 1997; J.D., University of San Diego School of Law, 2002

Honors / Awards

Rising Star, Super Lawyers Magazine, 2015

Andrew S. Love | Partner

Andrew Love is a partner in the Firm's San Francisco office and a member of the Firm's Appellate Practice Group. His practice focuses primarily on appeals of securities fraud class actions. Love has successfully briefed and argued cases on behalf of defrauded investors and consumers in several U.S. Courts of Appeal, as well as in the California appellate courts. Recent published cases include Sherman v. Abengoa, S.A., __ F.4th __ , 2025 WL 2825369 (2d Cir. Oct. 6, 2025), New England Carpenters Guaranteed Annuity Pension Funds v. DeCarlo, 122 F.4th 28 (2d Cir. 2023), Stafford v. Rite Aid Corp., 998 F.3d 862 (9th Cir. 2021), Constr. Indus. & Laborers Joint Pension Tr. v. Carbonite, Inc., 22 F.4th 1 (1st Cir. 2021), and Friedman v. AARP, Inc., 855 F.3d 1047 (9th Cir. 2017). He was also co-counsel in Cyan, Inc. v. Beaver Cnty. Emps. Ret. Fund, 138 S. Ct. 1061 (2018).

Before joining the Firm and for more than two decades, Love represented inmates on California's death row in appellate and habeas corpus proceedings, successfully arguing capital cases in both the California Supreme Court and the Ninth Circuit. He co-chaired the Capital Case Defense Seminar (2004-2013), recognized as the largest conference for death penalty practitioners in the country. Additionally, he was on the faculty of the National Institute for Trial Advocacy's Post-Conviction Skills Seminar. Love is a member of the California Academy of Appellate Lawyers.

Education

University of Vermont, 1981; J.D., University of San Francisco School of Law, 1985

Honors / Awards

J.D., Cum Laude, University of San Francisco School of Law, 1985; McAuliffe Honor Society, University of San Francisco School of Law, 1982-1985

Erik W. Luedeke | Partner

Erik Luedeke is a partner in the Firm's San Diego office, where he represents individual and institutional investors in breach of fiduciary duty and securities fraud litigation in state and federal courts nationwide. Luedeke is a member of the Firm's Delaware Practice Group. As corporate fiduciaries, directors and officers are duty-bound to act in the best interest of the corporation and its shareholders. When they fail to do so they breach their fiduciary duty and may be held liable for harm caused to the corporation. Luedeke's shareholder derivative practice focuses on litigating breach of fiduciary duty and related claims on behalf of corporations and shareholders injured by wayward corporate fiduciaries. Notable shareholder derivative actions in which he recently participated and the recoveries he helped to achieve include In re Community Health Sys., Inc. S'holder Derivative Litig. ($60 million in financial relief and unprecedented corporate governance reforms), In re Lumber Liquidators Holdings, Inc. S'holder Derivative Litig. ($26 million in financial relief plus substantial governance), and In re Google Inc. S'holder Derivative Litig. ($250 million in financial relief to fund substantial governance).

Luedeke's practice also includes the prosecution of complex securities class action cases on behalf of aggrieved investors. Luedeke was a member of the litigation team in Jaffe v. Household Int'l, Inc., No. 02-C-5893 (N.D. Ill.), that resulted in a record-breaking $1.575 billion settlement after 14 years of litigation, including a six-week jury trial ending in a plaintiffs' verdict. He was also a member of the litigation teams in In re UnitedHealth Grp. Inc. PSLRA Litig., No. 06-CV-1691 (D. Minn.) ($925 million recovery), and In re Questcor Pharms., Inc. Sec. Litig., No. 8:12-cv-01623 (C.D. Cal.) ($38 million recovery).

Education

B.S./B.A., University of California Santa Barbara, 2001; J.D., University of San Diego School of Law, 2006

Honors / Awards

Rising Star, Super Lawyers Magazine, 2015-2017; Student Comment Editor, San Diego International Law Journal, University of San Diego School of Law

Christopher H. Lyons | Partner

Christopher Lyons is a partner in the Firm's Nashville and Wilmington offices, and manages the Wilmington office. He focuses his practice on representing institutional and individual investors in merger-related class action litigation and in complex securities litigation. Lyons has been a significant part of litigation teams that have achieved substantial recoveries for investors. Notable Delaware cases that Lyons has co-led include Bioverativ (Goldstein v. Denner) ($124 million recovery), Good Technology ($52 million – about 1.5 times the consideration paid to common stockholders in the challenged private-company merger), Blackhawk Network Holdings ($29.5 million), and The Fresh Market (Morrison v. Berry) ($27.5 million recovered). Lyons has also been part of teams litigating federal securities cases that led to substantial recoveries, including Envision ($177.5 million), CoreCivic (Grae v. Corrections Corporation of America) ($56 million recovered), and Nissan ($36 million). His pro bono work includes representing individuals who are appealing denial of necessary medical benefits by TennCare (Tennessee's Medicaid program), through the Tennessee Justice Center.

Both during and before his time at Robbins Geller, Lyons has litigated extensively in Delaware courts, having tried cases on behalf of both plaintiffs and defendants in the Delaware Court of Chancery. Before joining Robbins Geller, Lyons practiced at a prominent Delaware law firm, where he mostly represented corporate officers and directors defending against breach of fiduciary duty claims in the Delaware Court of Chancery and in the Delaware Supreme Court. Before that, he clerked for Vice Chancellor J. Travis Laster of the Delaware Court of Chancery. Lyons now applies the expertise he gained from those experiences to help investors uncover wrongful conduct and recover the money and other remedies to which they are rightfully entitled.

Education

B.A., Colorado College, 2006; J.D., Vanderbilt University Law School, 2010

Honors / Awards

40 & Under List, Benchmark Litigation, 2023-2025; Recommended Lawyer, The Legal 500, 2024-2025; Leading Plaintiff Financial Lawyer, Lawdragon, 2024-2025; Rising Star, Super Lawyers Magazine, 2018-2020, 2022-2024; Best Lawyer in America: One to Watch, Best Lawyers®, 2022-2024; 500 X – The Next Generation, Lawdragon, 2023; 40 & Under Hot List, Benchmark Litigation, 2021; B.A., Distinction in International Political Economy, Colorado College, 2006; J.D., Law & Business Certificate, Vanderbilt University Law School, 2010

Mark T. Millkey | Partner

Mark Millkey is a partner in the Firm's Melville office. He has significant experience in the areas of securities and consumer litigation, as well as in federal and state court appeals.

During his career, Millkey has worked on a major consumer litigation against MetLife that resulted in a benefit to the class of approximately $1.7 billion, as well as a securities class action against Royal Dutch/Shell that settled for a minimum cash benefit to the class of $130 million and a contingent value of more than $180 million. Since joining Robbins Geller, he has worked on securities class actions that have resulted in more than $1.5 billion in settlements.

Education

B.A., Yale University, 1981; M.A., University of Virginia, 1983; J.D., University of Virginia, 1987

Honors / Awards

Super Lawyer, Super Lawyers Magazine, 2013-2025

David W. Mitchell | Partner

David Mitchell is a partner in the Firm's San Diego office and focuses his practice on antitrust and securities fraud litigation. He is a former federal prosecutor who has tried nearly 20 jury trials. As head of the Firm's Antitrust and Competition Law Practice Group, he has served as lead or co-lead counsel in numerous cases and has helped achieve substantial settlements for shareholders. His most notable antitrust cases include Dahl v. Bain Cap. Partners, LLC, obtaining more than $590 million for shareholders, and In re Payment Card Interchange Fee and Merchant Discount Antitrust Litig., in which a settlement of $5.5 billion was approved in the Eastern District of New York. This case was brought on behalf of millions of U.S. merchants against Visa and MasterCard and various card-issuing banks, challenging the way these companies set and collect tens of billions of dollars annually in merchant fees. The settlement is believed to be the largest antitrust class action settlement of all time.

Additionally, Mitchell served as co-lead counsel in the ISDAfix Benchmark action against 14 major banks and broker ICAP plc, obtaining $504.5 million for plaintiffs. Currently, Mitchell serves as court-appointed lead counsel in In re Aluminum Warehousing Antitrust Litig., City of Providence, Rhode Island v. BATS Global Markets Inc., In re SSA Bonds Antitrust Litig., In re Remicade Antitrust Litig., and In re 1-800 Contacts Antitrust Litig.

Education

B.A., University of Richmond, 1995; J.D., University of San Diego School of Law, 1998

Honors / Awards

Member, Enright Inn of Court; Best Lawyer in America, Best Lawyers®, 2018-2026; Super Lawyer, Super Lawyers Magazine, 2016-2025; Leading Plaintiff Financial Lawyer, Lawdragon, 2019-2024; Leading Lawyer in America, Lawdragon, 2020-2024; Top 50 Lawyers in San Diego, Super Lawyers Magazine, 2021; Southern California Best Lawyer, Best Lawyers®, 2018-2021; Honoree, Outstanding Antitrust Litigation Achievement in Private Law Practice, American Antitrust Institute, 2018; Antitrust Trailblazer, The National Law Journal, 2015; "Best of the Bar," San Diego Business Journal, 2014

Danielle S. Myers | Partner

Danielle Myers is a partner in the Firm's San Diego office and focuses her practice on complex securities litigation. Myers oversees the Portfolio Monitoring Program® and provides legal recommendations to the Firm's institutional investor clients on their options to maximize recoveries in securities litigation, both within the United States and internationally, from inception to settlement.

Myers advises the Firm's clients in connection with lead plaintiff applications and has helped secure appointment of the Firm's clients as lead plaintiff and the Firm's appointment as lead counsel in hundreds of securities class actions, which cases have yielded more than $4 billion for investors, including 2018-2024 recoveries in In re Valeant Pharms. Int'l, Inc. Sec. Litig., No. 3:15-cv-07658 (D.N.J.) ($1.2 billion); In re Am. Realty Cap. Props., Inc. Litig., No. 1:15-mc-00040 (S.D.N.Y.) ($1.025 billion); In re Twitter Inc. Sec. Litig., No. 4:16-cv-05314 (N.D. Cal.) ($809.5 million); In re Apple Inc. Sec. Litig., No. 4:19-cv-02033 (N.D. Cal.) ($490 million); In re Under Armour Sec. Litig., No. 1:17-cv-00388 (D. Md.) ($434 million); Smilovits v. First Solar, Inc., No. 2:12-cv-00555 (D. Ariz.) ($350 million); Dicker v. TuSimple Holdings, Inc., No. 3:22-cv-01300 (S.D. Cal.) ($189 million); Flynn v. Exelon Corp., No. 1:19-cv-08209 (N.D. Ill.) ($173 million); City of Pontiac Gen. Ret. Sys. v. Wal-Mart Stores, Inc., No. 5:12-cv-5162 (W.D. Ark.) ($160 million); Evellard v. LendingClub Corp., No. 3:16-cv-02627 (N.D. Cal.) ($125 million); La. Sheriffs' Pension & Relief Fund v. Cardinal Health, Inc., No. 2:19-cv-03347 (S.D. Ohio) ($109 million); Knurr v. Orbital ATK, Inc., No. 1:16-cv-01031 (E.D. Va.) ($108 million); In re Novo Nordisk Sec. Litig., No. 3:17-cv-00209 (D.N.J.) ($100 million); Karinski v. Stamps.com, Inc., No. 2:19-cv-01828 (C.D. Cal.) ($100 million); and Marcus v. J.C. Penney Co., Inc., No. 6:13-cv-00736 (E.D. Tex.) ($97.5 million). Myers is also a frequent presenter on securities fraud and corporate governance reform at conferences and events around the world.

Education

B.A., University of California at San Diego, 1997; J.D., University of San Diego, 2008

Honors / Awards

Future Star, Benchmark Litigation, 2019-2020, 2023-2026; Leading Litigator in America, Lawdragon, 2026; Best Lawyer in America: One to Watch, Best Lawyers®, 2026; Leading Lawyer, The Legal 500, 2020-2025; Leading Plaintiff Financial Lawyer, Lawdragon, 2022-2025; Global Plaintiff Lawyer, Lawdragon, 2024-2025; Leading Lawyer in America, Lawdragon, 2022-2025; Best Lawyer in America: One to Watch, Best Lawyers®, 2021-2023; Top 100 Leaders in Law Honoree, San Diego Business Journal, 2022; Best Lawyer in Southern California: One to Watch, Best Lawyers®, 2021; Next Generation Lawyer, The Legal 500, 2017-2019; Recommended Lawyer, The Legal 500, 2019; Rising Star, Super Lawyers Magazine, 2015-2018; One of the "Five Associates to Watch in 2012," Daily Journal; Member, San Diego Law Review; CALI Excellence Award in Statutory Interpretation

Eric I. Niehaus | Partner

Eric Niehaus is a partner in the Firm's San Diego office, where his practice focuses on complex securities and derivative litigation. His efforts have resulted in numerous multi-million dollar recoveries to shareholders and extensive corporate governance changes. Notable examples include: In re NYSE Specialists Sec. Litig. (S.D.N.Y.); In re Novatel Wireless Sec. Litig. (S.D. Cal.); Batwin v. Occam Networks, Inc. (C.D. Cal.); Commc'ns Workers of Am. Plan for Employees' Pensions and Death Benefits v. CSK Auto Corp. (D. Ariz.); Marie Raymond Revocable Trust v. Mat Five (Del. Ch.); and Kelleher v. ADVO, Inc. (D. Conn.). He most recently prosecuted a case against Stamps.com in the Central District of California that resulted in a $100 million settlement for shareholders of the company's stock. Before joining the Firm, Niehaus worked as a Market Maker on the American Stock Exchange in New York and the Pacific Stock Exchange in San Francisco.

Education

B.S., University of Southern California, 1999; J.D., California Western School of Law, 2005

Honors / Awards

Rising Star, Super Lawyers Magazine, 2015-2016; J.D., Cum Laude, California Western School of Law, 2005; Member, California Western Law Review

Erika Oliver | Partner

Erika Oliver is a partner in the Firm's San Diego office. Before joining the Firm, Erika served as a judicial law clerk to the Honorable Anthony J. Battaglia of the Southern District of California. At the Firm, her practice focuses on complex securities litigation. Most recently, Erika and Luke Brooks defeated defendants' motion to dismiss securities fraud claims arising from purchases on Israel's Tel Aviv Stock Exchange in In re Teva Sec. Litig. (D. Conn.). Erika was also a member of the litigation teams of Robbins Geller attorneys that successfully recovered hundreds of millions of dollars for investors in securities class actions, including Purple Mountain Trust v. Wells Fargo & Co. (N.D. Cal.) ($300 million recovery), Evanston Police Pension Fund v. McKesson Corp. (N.D. Cal.) ($141 million recovery), In re Novo Nordisk Sec. Litig. (D.N.J.) ($100 million recovery), Fleming v. Impax Labs. Inc. (N.D. Cal.) ($33 million recovery), and In re Banc of California Sec. Litig. (C.D. Cal.) ($19.75 million recovery).

Education

B.S., San Diego State University, 2009; J.D., University of San Diego School of Law, 2015

Honors / Awards

Leading Litigator in America, Lawdragon, 2024-2026; 40 & Under List, Benchmark Litigation, 2023-2025; Leading Plaintiff Financial Lawyer, Lawdragon, 2023-2025; Rising Star, Super Lawyers Magazine, 2024-2025; Best Lawyer in America: One to Watch, Best Lawyers®, 2021-2024; Top 40 Under 40, Daily Journal, 2023; 500 X – The Next Generation, Lawdragon, 2023; Rising Star, Law360, 2023; Best Lawyer in Southern California: One to Watch, Best Lawyers®, 2021; J.D., Magna Cum Laude, University of San Diego School of Law, 2015; B.S., Cum Laude, San Diego State University, 2009

Lucas F. Olts | Partner

Luke Olts is a partner in the Firm's San Diego office, where his practice focuses on securities litigation on behalf of individual and institutional investors. Olts recently served as lead counsel in In re Facebook Biometric Info. Privacy Litig., a cutting-edge class action concerning Facebook's alleged privacy violations through its collection of users' biometric identifiers without informed consent that resulted in a $650 million settlement. Olts has focused on litigation related to residential mortgage-backed securities, and has served as lead counsel or co-lead counsel in some of the largest recoveries arising from the collapse of the mortgage market. For example, he was a member of the team that recovered $388 million for investors in J.P. Morgan residential mortgage-backed securities in Fort Worth Emps.' Ret. Fund v. J.P. Morgan Chase & Co., and a member of the litigation team responsible for securing a $272 million settlement on behalf of mortgage-backed securities investors in NECA-IBEW Health & Welfare Fund v. Goldman Sachs & Co. Olts also served as co-lead counsel in In re Wachovia Preferred Sec. & Bond/Notes Litig., which recovered $627 million under the Securities Act of 1933. He also served as lead counsel in Siracusano v. Matrixx Initiatives, Inc., in which the U.S. Supreme Court unanimously affirmed the decision of the Ninth Circuit that plaintiffs stated a claim for securities fraud under §10(b) of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 and SEC Rule 10b-5. Olts also served on the litigation team in In re Deutsche Bank AG Sec. Litig., in which the Firm obtained a $18.5 million settlement in a case against Deutsche Bank and certain of its officers alleging violations of the Securities Act of 1933. Before joining the Firm, Olts served as a Deputy District Attorney for the County of Sacramento, where he tried numerous cases to verdict, including crimes of domestic violence, child abuse, and sexual assault.

Education

B.A., University of California, Santa Barbara, 2001; J.D., University of San Diego School of Law, 2004

Honors / Awards

Future Star, Benchmark Litigation, 2018-2020, 2023-2026; Global Plaintiff Lawyer, Lawdragon, 2024; Next Generation Lawyer, The Legal 500, 2017; Top Litigator Under 40, Benchmark Litigation, 2017; Under 40 Hotlist, Benchmark Litigation, 2016

Steven W. Pepich | Partner

Steve Pepich is a partner in the Firm's San Diego office. His practice has focused primarily on securities class action litigation, but has also included a wide variety of complex civil cases, including representing plaintiffs in mass tort, royalty, civil rights, human rights, ERISA, and employment law actions. Pepich has participated in the successful prosecution of numerous securities class actions, including: Carpenters Health & Welfare Fund v. Coca-Cola Co. ($137.5 million recovery); In re Fleming Cos. Inc. Sec. & Derivative Litig. ($95 million recovered); In re Boeing Sec. Litig.($92 million recovery); In re Louisiana-Pacific Corp. Sec. Litig. ($65 million recovery); Haw. Structural Ironworkers Pension Trust Fund v. Calpine Corp. ($43 million recovery); In re Advanced Micro Devices Sec. Litig. ($34 million recovery); and Gohler v. Wood, ($17.2 million recovery). Pepich was a member of the plaintiffs' trial team in Mynaf v. Taco Bell Corp., which settled after two months of trial on terms favorable to two plaintiff classes of restaurant workers for recovery of unpaid wages. He was also a member of the plaintiffs' trial team in Newman v. Stringfellow where, after a nine-month trial in Riverside, California, all claims for exposure to toxic chemicals were ultimately resolved for $109 million.

Education

B.S., Utah State University, 1980; J.D., DePaul University, 1983

Daniel J. Pfefferbaum | Partner

Daniel Pfefferbaum is a partner in the Firm's San Francisco office, where his practice focuses on complex securities litigation. He has been a member of litigation teams that have recovered more than $750 million for investors, including: In re Apple Inc. Sec. Litig. ($490 million recovery); City of Westland Police & Fire Ret. Sys. v. Metlife Inc. ($84 million recovery); Garden City Emps.' Ret. Sys. v. Psychiatric Sols., Inc. ($65 million recovery); In re Prudential Fin., Inc. Sec. Litig. ($35 million recovery); In re PMI Grp., Inc. Sec. Litig. ($31.25 million recovery); Hessefort v. Super Micro Computer, Inc. ($18.25 million recovery); and Xiang v. Inovalon Holdings, Inc. ($17 million recovery). Pfefferbaum was a member of the litigation team that secured a historic recovery on behalf of Trump University students in two class actions against President Donald J. Trump. The settlement provides $25 million to approximately 7,000 consumers. This result means individual class members are eligible for upwards of $35,000 in restitution. He represented the class on a pro bono basis.

Education

B.A., Pomona College, 2002; J.D., University of San Francisco School of Law, 2006; LL.M. in Taxation, New York University School of Law, 2007

Honors / Awards

Future Star, Benchmark Litigation, 2018-2020, 2023-2026; 40 & Under Hot List, Benchmark Litigation, 2016-2020; Top 40 Under 40, Daily Journal, 2017; Rising Star, Super Lawyers Magazine, 2013-2017

Theodore J. Pintar | Partner

Ted Pintar is a partner in the Firm's San Diego office. Pintar has over 20 years of experience prosecuting securities fraud actions and derivative actions and over 15 years of experience prosecuting insurance-related consumer class actions, with recoveries in excess of $1 billion. He was part of the litigation team in the AOL Time Warner state and federal court securities opt-out actions, which arose from the 2001 merger of America Online and Time Warner. These cases resulted in a global settlement of $618 million. Pintar was also on the trial team in Knapp v. Gomez, which resulted in a plaintiff's verdict. Pintar has successfully prosecuted several RICO cases involving the deceptive sale of deferred annuities, including cases against Allianz Life Insurance Company of North America ($250 million), American Equity Investment Life Insurance Company ($129 million), Midland National Life Insurance Company ($80 million), and Fidelity & Guarantee Life Insurance Company ($53 million). He has participated in the successful prosecution of numerous other insurance and consumer class actions, including: (i) actions against major life insurance companies such as Manufacturer's Life ($555 million initial estimated settlement value) and Principal Mutual Life Insurance Company ($380+ million), involving the deceptive sale of life insurance; (ii) actions against major homeowners insurance companies such as Allstate ($50 million) and Prudential Property and Casualty Co. ($7 million); (iii) actions against automobile insurance companies such as the Auto Club and GEICO; and (iv) actions against Columbia House ($55 million) and BMG Direct, direct marketers of CDs and cassettes. Pintar and co-counsel recently settled a securities class action for $32.8 million against Snap, Inc. in Snap Inc. Securities Cases, a case alleging violations of the Securities Act of 1933. Additionally, Pintar has served as a panelist for numerous Continuing Legal Education seminars on federal and state court practice and procedure.

Education

B.A., University of California, Berkeley, 1984; J.D., University of Utah College of Law, 1987

Honors / Awards

Rated AV Preeminent by Martindale-Hubbell; Top Lawyer in San Diego, San Diego Magazine, 2013-2022; Super Lawyer, Super Lawyers Magazine, 2014-2017; CAOC Consumer Attorney of the Year Award Finalist, 2015; Note and Comment Editor, Journal of Contemporary Law, University of Utah College of Law; Note and Comment Editor, Journal of Energy Law and Policy, University of Utah College of Law

Ashley M. Price | Partner

Ashley Price is a partner in the Firm's San Diego office. Her practice focuses on complex securities litigation. Price is currently serving as lead counsel in Bucks Cnty. Emps. Ret. Sys. v. Norfolk Southern Corp. (N.D. Ga.), a case brought on behalf of Norfolk Southern's investors following the catastrophic derailment of one of Norfolk Southern's freight trains outside of East Palestine, Ohio. Having prevailed against defendants' attempt to dismiss the case, the team is now pressing forward to obtain evidence for proving at a jury trial investors' claims that defendants fraudulently misrepresented the safety of their railroad operations.

Price also served as lead counsel in In re Am. Realty Cap. Props., Inc. Litig. (S.D.N.Y.), a case arising out of ARCP's manipulative accounting practices, and obtained a $1.025 billion recovery. For five years, she and the litigation team prosecuted nine different claims for violations of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 and the Securities Act of 1933, involving seven different stock or debt offerings and two mergers. The recovery represents the highest percentage of damages of any major PSLRA case prior to trial and includes the largest personal contributions by individual defendants in history.

Price was likewise a key member of many other successful Robbins Geller litigation teams, including Monroe Cnty. Emps.' Ret. Sys. v. Southern Co. (N.D. Ga.) ($87.5 million recovery), Strathclyde Pension Fund v. Bank OZK (E.D. Ark.) ($45 million recovery), Micholle v. Ophthotech Corp. (S.D.N.Y.) ($29 million recovery), and Mart v. Tactile Sys. Tech., Inc. (D. Minn.) ($5 million recovery).

Education

B.A., Duke University, 2006; J.D., Washington University in St. Louis, School of Law, 2011

Honors / Awards

40 & Under List, Benchmark Litigation, 2023-2025; Leading Plaintiff Financial Lawyer, Lawdragon, 2023-2025; Best Lawyer in America: One to Watch, Best Lawyers®, 2023-2025; 500 X – The Next Generation, Lawdragon, 2023-2024; 40 & Under Hot List, Benchmark Litigation, 2021; Rising Star, Super Lawyers Magazine, 2016-2021

Willow E. Radcliffe | Partner

Willow Radcliffe is a partner in the Firm's San Francisco office, where she concentrates her practice in securities class action litigation in federal court. She has been significantly involved in the prosecution of numerous securities fraud claims, including actions filed against Pfizer, Inc. ($400 million recovery), CoreCivic (Grae v. Corrections Corporation of America) ($56 million recovery), Flowserve Corp. ($55 million recovery), Santander Consumer USA Holdings Inc. ($47 million), NorthWestern Corp. ($40 million recovery), Ashworth, Inc. ($15.25 million recovery), and Allscripts Healthcare Solutions, Inc. ($9.75 million recovery). Additionally, Radcliffe has represented plaintiffs in other complex actions, including a class action against a major bank regarding the adequacy of disclosures made to consumers in California related to access checks. Before joining the Firm, she clerked for the Honorable Maria-Elena James, Magistrate Judge for the United States District Court for the Northern District of California.

Education

B.A., University of California, Los Angeles 1994; J.D., Seton Hall University School of Law, 1998

Honors / Awards

Leading Plaintiff Financial Lawyer, Lawdragon, 2019-2025; Best Lawyer in America: One to Watch, Best Lawyers®, 2021-2025; Best Lawyer in Northern California: One to Watch, Best Lawyers®, 2021; Plaintiffs' Lawyer Trailblazer, The National Law Journal, 2020; J.D., Cum Laude, Seton Hall University School of Law, 1998; Most Outstanding Clinician Award; Constitutional Law Scholar Award

Frank A. Richter | Partner

Frank Richter is a partner in the Firm's Chicago office, where he focuses on shareholder, antitrust, and class action litigation.

Richter was an integral member of the Robbins Geller team that secured a $1.21 billion settlement in In re Valeant Pharms. Int'l, Inc. Sec. Litig. (D.N.J.), which is the ninth-largest securities class action settlement in history and the largest ever against a pharmaceutical manufacturer. More recently, Richter's representative matters include Exelon (N.D. Ill., $173 million settlement), which resolved securities claims stemming from the alleged concealment of an eight-year scheme to bribe a public official, as well as Nutanix (N.D. Cal., $71 million settlement), Oak Street Health (N.D. Ill., $60 million settlement), and Grubhub (N.D. Ill., $42 million settlement). In addition, Richter was a member of litigation teams that secured significant settlements in HCA (E.D. Tenn., $215 million), Sprint (D. Kan., $131 million), Orbital ATK (E.D. Va., $108 million), Dana Corp. (N.D. Ohio, $64 million), Diplomat (N.D. Ill., $15.5 million), LJM Funds (N.D. Ill., $12.85 million), and Camping World (N.D. Ill., $12.5 million).

Richter also works on antitrust matters, including serving on the Plaintiffs' Steering Committee in In re Dealer Mgmt. Sys. Antitrust Litig. (N.D. Ill.), and he represents plaintiffs as local counsel in class action and derivative shareholder litigation in Illinois state and federal courts.

Education

B.A., Truman State University, 2007; M.M., DePaul University School of Music, 2009; J.D., DePaul University College of Law, 2012

Honors / Awards

40 & Under List, Benchmark Litigation, 2023-2025; 500 X – The Next Generation, Lawdragon, 2023-2025; Rising Star, Super Lawyers Magazine, 2017-2022; 40 & Under Hot List, Benchmark Litigation, 2021; J.D., Summa Cum Laude, Order of the Coif, CALI Award for highest grade in seven courses, DePaul University College of Law, 2012

Darren J. Robbins | Partner

Darren Robbins is a founding partner of Robbins Geller Rudman & Dowd LLP. Over the last two decades, Robbins has served as lead counsel in more than 100 securities class actions and has recovered billions of dollars for investors. Robbins served as lead counsel in In re Am. Realty Cap. Props., Inc. Litig., a securities class action arising out of improper accounting practices, recovering more than $1 billion for class members. The American Realty settlement represents the largest recovery as a percentage of damages of any major class action brought pursuant to the Private Securities Litigation Reform Act of 1995 and resolved prior to trial. The $1+ billion settlement included the largest personal contributions ($237.5 million) ever made by individual defendants to a securities class action settlement.

Robbins also led Robbins Geller's prosecution of wrongdoing related to the sale of residential mortgage-backed securities (RMBS) prior to the global financial crisis, including an RMBS securities class action against Goldman Sachs that yielded a $272 million recovery for investors. Robbins served as co-lead counsel in connection with a $627 million recovery for investors in In re Wachovia Preferred Securities & Bond/Notes Litig., one of the largest securities class action settlements ever involving claims brought solely under the Securities Act of 1933.

One of the hallmarks of Robbins' practice has been his focus on corporate governance reform. In UnitedHealth, a securities fraud class action arising out of an options backdating scandal, Robbins represented lead plaintiff CalPERS and obtained the cancellation of more than 3.6 million stock options held by the company's former CEO and secured a record $925 million cash recovery for shareholders. He also negotiated sweeping corporate governance reforms, including the election of a shareholder-nominated director to the company's board of directors, a mandatory holding period for shares acquired via option exercise, and compensation reforms that tied executive pay to performance. Recently, Robbins led a shareholder derivative action brought by several pension funds on behalf of Community Health Systems, Inc. that yielded a $60 million payment to Community Health as well as corporate governance reforms that included two shareholder-nominated directors, the creation and appointment of a Healthcare Law Compliance Coordinator, the implementation of an executive compensation clawback in the event of a restatement, the establishment of an insider trading controls committee, and the adoption of a political expenditure disclosure policy.

Education

B.S., University of Southern California, 1990; M.A., University of Southern California, 1990; J.D., Vanderbilt Law School, 1993

Honors / Awards

Litigation Star, Benchmark Litigation, 2023-2026; Best Lawyer in America, Best Lawyers®, 2010-2026; Hall of Fame, The Legal 500, 2023-2025; Ranked by Chambers USA, 2014-2025; California - Litigation Star, Benchmark Litigation, 2024-2025; Lawyer of the Year: Litigation – Securities, Best Lawyers®, 2023, 2025; California Lawyer Attorney of the Year (CLAY), Daily Journal, 2022, 2024; Top 10 Lawyers in San Diego, Super Lawyers Magazine, 2024; Leading Lawyer, The Legal 500, 2020-2022; Top 50 Lawyers in San Diego, Super Lawyers Magazine, 2015, 2021; Litigator of the Week, The American Lawyer, 2021; Southern California Best Lawyer, Best Lawyers®, 2012-2021; Local Litigation Star, Benchmark Litigation, 2013-2018, 2020; Recommended Lawyer, The Legal 500, 2011, 2017, 2019; Benchmark California Star, Benchmark Litigation, 2019; State Litigation Star, Benchmark Litigation, 2019; Lawyer of the Year, Best Lawyers®, 2017; Influential Business Leader, San Diego Business Journal, 2017; Litigator of the Year, Our City San Diego, 2017; One of the Top 100 Lawyers Shaping the Future, Daily Journal; One of the "Young Litigators 45 and Under," The American Lawyer; Attorney of the Year, California Lawyer; Managing Editor, Vanderbilt Journal of Transnational Law, Vanderbilt Law School

Robert J. Robbins | Partner

Robert Robbins is a partner in the Firm's Boca Raton office. He focuses his practice on investigating securities fraud, initiating securities class actions, and helping institutional and individual shareholders litigate their claims to recover investment losses caused by fraud. Representing shareholders in all aspects of class actions brought pursuant to the federal securities laws, Robbins provides counsel in numerous securities fraud class actions across the country, helping secure significant recoveries for investors.

Recently, Robbins was a key member of the Robbins Geller litigation team that secured a $1.21 billion settlement in In re Valeant Pharms. Int'l, Inc. Sec. Litig., a case that Vanity Fair reported as "the corporate scandal of its era" that had raised "fundamental questions about the functioning of our health-care system, the nature of modern markets, and the slippery slope of ethical rationalizations." This is the ninth largest securities class action settlement ever and the largest against a pharmaceutical manufacturer. Robbins has also been a member of Robbins Geller litigation teams responsible for securing hundreds of millions of dollars in securities class action settlements, including: Hospira ($60 million recovery); 3D Systems ($50 million); CVS Caremark ($48 million recovery); Baxter International ($42.5 million recovery); Grubhub ($42 million); R.H. Donnelley ($25 million recovery); Spiegel ($17.5 million recovery); TECO Energy ($17.35 million recovery); AFC Enterprises ($17.2 million recovery); Accretive Health ($14 million recovery); Lender Processing Services ($14 million recovery); Lexmark Int'l ($12 million); Imperial Holdings ($12 million recovery); Mannatech ($11.5 million recovery); Newpark Resources ($9.24 million recovery); CURO Group ($8.98 million); Gilead Sciences ($8.25 million recovery); TCP International ($7.175 million recovery); Cryo Cell International ($7 million recovery); Gainsco ($4 million recovery); and Body Central ($3.425 million recovery).

Education

B.S., University of Florida, 1999; J.D., University of Florida College of Law, 2002

Honors / Awards

Leading Litigator in America, Lawdragon, 2024-2026; Leading Plaintiff Financial Lawyer, Lawdragon, 2019-2025; Best Lawyer in America: One to Watch, Best Lawyers®, 2024; Rising Star, Super Lawyers Magazine, 2015-2017; J.D., High Honors, University of Florida College of Law, 2002; Member, Journal of Law and Public Policy, University of Florida College of Law; Member, Phi Delta Phi, University of Florida College of Law; Pro bono certificate, Circuit Court of the Eighth Judicial Circuit of Florida; Order of the Coif

David A. Rosenfeld | Partner

David Rosenfeld, a partner in the Firm's Melville office, has focused his legal practice for more than 20 years in the area of securities litigation. He has argued in courts throughout the country, has been appointed lead counsel in dozens of securities fraud lawsuits, and has successfully recovered hundreds of millions of dollars for defrauded shareholders.

Rosenfeld works on all stages of litigation, including drafting pleadings, arguing motions, and negotiating settlements. Most recently, he led the teams of Robbins Geller attorneys in recovering $95 million for shareholders of Tableau Software, Inc., $90 million for shareholders of Altria Group, Inc., $40 million for shareholders of BRF S.A, $20 million for shareholders of Grana y Montero (where shareholders recovered more than 90% of their losses), and $34.5 million for shareholders of L-3 Communications Holdings, Inc.

Rosenfeld also led the Robbins Geller team in recovering in excess of $34 million for investors in Overseas Shipholding Group, which represented an outsized recovery of 93% of bond purchasers' damages and 28% of stock purchasers' damages. The creatively structured settlement included more than $15 million paid by a bankrupt entity. Rosenfeld also led the effort that resulted in the recovery of nearly 90% of losses for investors in Austin Capital, a sub-feeder fund of Bernard Madoff. In connection with this lawsuit, Rosenfeld met with and interviewed Madoff in federal prison in Butner, North Carolina.

Rosenfeld has also achieved remarkable recoveries against companies in the financial industry. In addition to being appointed lead counsel in the securities fraud lawsuit against First BanCorp ($74.25 million recovery), he recovered $70 million for investors in Credit Suisse Group and $14 million for Barclays investors.

Education

B.S., Yeshiva University, 1996; J.D., Benjamin N. Cardozo School of Law, 1999

Honors / Awards

Future Star, Benchmark Litigation, 2016-2020, 2023-2026; Super Lawyer, Super Lawyers Magazine, 2014-2025; Recommended Lawyer, The Legal 500, 2018; Rising Star, Super Lawyers Magazine, 2011-2013

Robert M. Rothman | Partner

Robert Rothman is a partner in the Firm's Melville office and a member of the Firm's Management Committee. He has recovered well in excess of $1 billion on behalf of victims of investment fraud, consumer fraud, and antitrust violations.

Recently, Rothman served as lead counsel in In re Am. Realty Cap. Props., Inc. Litig. where he obtained a $1.025 billion cash recovery on behalf of investors. Rothman and the litigation team prosecuted nine different claims for violations of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 and the Securities Act of 1933, involving seven different stock or debt offerings and two mergers. The recovery represents the highest percentage of damages ever obtained in a major PSLRA case before trial and includes the largest personal contributions by individual defendants in history. Additionally, Rothman has recovered hundreds of millions of dollars for investors in cases against First Bancorp, Doral Financial, Popular, iStar, Autoliv, CVS Caremark, Fresh Pet, The Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Company (A&P), NBTY, Spiegel, American Superconductor, Iconix Brand Group, Black Box, OSI Pharmaceuticals, Gravity, Caminus, Central European Distribution Corp., OneMain Holdings, The Children's Place, CNinsure, Covisint, FleetBoston Financial, Interstate Bakeries, Hibernia Foods, Jakks Pacific, Jarden, Portal Software, Ply Gem Holdings, Orion Energy, Tommy Hilfiger, TD Banknorth, Teletech, Unitek, Vicuron, Xerium, W Holding, and dozens of others.

Rothman also represents shareholders in connection with going-private transactions and tender offers. For example, in connection with a tender offer made by Citigroup, Rothman secured an increase of more than $38 million over what was originally offered to shareholders. He also actively litigates consumer fraud cases, including a case alleging false advertising where the defendant agreed to a settlement valued in excess of $67 million.

Education

B.A., State University of New York at Binghamton, 1990; J.D., Hofstra University School of Law, 1993

Honors / Awards

Super Lawyer, Super Lawyers Magazine, 2011, 2013-2025; Leading Plaintiff Financial Lawyer, Lawdragon, 2022-2025; Global Plaintiff Lawyer, Lawdragon, 2024-2025; Leading Lawyer in America, Lawdragon, 2025; Northeast Trailblazer, The American Lawyer, 2022; New York Trailblazer, New York Law Journal, 2020; Dean's Academic Scholarship Award, Hofstra University School of Law; J.D., with Distinction, Hofstra University School of Law, 1993; Member, Hofstra Law Review, Hofstra University School of Law

Samuel H. Rudman | Partner

Sam Rudman is a founding member of the Firm, a member of the Firm's Management Committee, and manages the Firm's New York offices. His 26-year securities practice focuses on recognizing and investigating securities fraud, and initiating securities and shareholder class actions to vindicate shareholder rights and recover shareholder losses. Rudman is also part of the Firm's SPAC Task Force, which is dedicated to rooting out and prosecuting fraud on behalf of injured investors in special purpose acquisition companies. A former attorney with the SEC, Rudman has recovered hundreds of millions of dollars for shareholders, including a $200 million recovery in Motorola, a $129 million recovery in Doral Financial, an $85 million recovery in Blackstone, a $74 million recovery in First BanCorp, a $65 million recovery in Forest Labs, a $62.5 million recovery in SQM, a $50 million recovery in TD Banknorth, a $48 million recovery in CVS Caremark, a $34.5 million recovery in L-3 Communications Holdings, a $32.8 million recovery in Snap, Inc., and a $18.5 million recovery in Deutsche Bank.

Education

B.A., Binghamton University, 1989; J.D., Brooklyn Law School, 1992

Honors / Awards

Litigation Star, Benchmark Litigation, 2013, 2017-2019, 2023-2026; National Practice Area Star, Benchmark Litigation, 2019-2020, 2024-2026; Leading Litigator in America, Lawdragon, 2026; Super Lawyer, Super Lawyers Magazine, 2007-2025; Recommended Lawyer, The Legal 500, 2018-2019, 2023-2025; Ranked by Chambers USA, 2014-2025; Leading Plaintiff Financial Lawyer, Lawdragon, 2019-2025; Global Plaintiff Lawyer, Lawdragon, 2025; Leading Lawyer in America, Lawdragon, 2016-2022, 2025; Top 10 Most Influential Securities Litigation Attorney in New York, Business Today, 2023; New York Trailblazer, New York Law Journal, 2020; Plaintiffs' Lawyer Trailblazer, The National Law Journal, 2020; Local Litigation Star, Benchmark Litigation, 2013-2020; Dean's Merit Scholar, Brooklyn Law School; Moot Court Honor Society, Brooklyn Law School; Member, Brooklyn Journal of International Law, Brooklyn Law School

Joseph Russello | Partner

Joseph Russello is a partner in the Firm's Melville office. He began his career as a defense lawyer and now represents investors in securities class actions at the trial and appellate levels.

Rusello spearheaded the team that recovered $85 million in litigation against The Blackstone Group, LLC, a case that yielded a landmark decision from the Second Circuit Court of Appeals on "materiality" in securities actions. Litwin v. Blackstone Grp., L.P., 634 F.3d 706 (2d Cir. 2011). He also led the team responsible for partially defeating dismissal and achieving a $50 million settlement in litigation against BHP Billiton, an Australia-based mining company accused of concealing safety issues at a Brazilian iron-ore dam. In re BHP Billiton Ltd. Sec. Litig., 276 F. Supp. 3d 65 (S.D.N.Y. 2017).

Recently, Rusello was co-counsel in a lawsuit against Allied Nevada Gold Corporation, recovering $14.5 million for investors after the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals reversed two dismissal decisions. In re Allied Nev. Gold Corp. Sec. Litig., 743 F. App'x 887 (9th Cir. 2018). He was also instrumental in obtaining a settlement and favorable appellate decision in litigation against SAIC, Inc., a defense contractor embroiled in a decade-long overbilling fraud against the City of New York. Ind. Pub. Ret. Sys. v. SAIC, Inc., 818 F.3d 85 (2d Cir. 2016). Other notable recent decisions include: In re Qudian Sec. Litig.,189 A.D. 3d 449 (N.Y. App. Div., 1st Dep't 2020); Kazi v. XP Inc., 2020 WL 4581569 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. Aug. 5, 2020); In re Dentsply Sirona, Inc. S'holders Litig., 2019 WL 3526142 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. Aug. 2, 2019); and Matter of PPDAI Grp. Sec. Litig., 64 Misc. 3d 1208(A), 2019 WL 2751278 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 2019). Other notable settlements include: NBTY, Inc. ($16 million); LaBranche & Co., Inc. ($13 million); The Children's Place Retail Stores, Inc. ($12 million); and Prestige Brands Holdings, Inc. ($11 million).

Education

B.A., Gettysburg College, 1998; J.D., Hofstra University School of Law, 2001

Honors / Awards

Super Lawyer, Super Lawyers Magazine, 2014-2020, 2023-2025; Leading Plaintiff Financial Lawyer, Lawdragon, 2019-2025; Law360 Securities Editorial Advisory Board, 2017-2022

Scott H. Saham | Partner

Scott Saham is a partner in the Firm's San Diego office, where his practice focuses on complex securities litigation. He is licensed to practice law in both California and Michigan. Most recently, Saham was a member of the litigation team that obtained a $125 million settlement in In re LendingClub Sec. Litig., a settlement that ranked among the top ten largest securities recoveries ever in the Northern District of California. He was also part of the litigation teams in Schuh v. HCA Holdings, Inc., which resulted in a $215 million recovery for shareholders, the largest securities class action recovery ever in Tennessee, and Luna v. Marvell Tech. Grp., Ltd., which resulted in a $72.5 million settlement that represents approximately 24% to 50% of the best estimate of classwide damages suffered by investors. He also served as lead counsel prosecuting the Pharmacia securities litigation in the District of New Jersey, which resulted in a $164 million recovery. Additionally, Saham was lead counsel in the In re Coca-Cola Sec. Litig. in the Northern District of Georgia, which resulted in a $137.5 million recovery after nearly eight years of litigation. He also obtained reversal from the California Court of Appeal of the trial court's initial dismissal of the landmark Countrywide mortgage-backed securities action. This decision is reported as Luther v. Countrywide Fin. Corp., 195 Cal. App. 4th 789 (2011), and following this ruling that revived the action the case settled for $500 million.

Education

B.A., University of Michigan, 1992; J.D., University of Michigan Law School, 1995

Honors / Awards

Leading Plaintiff Financial Lawyer, Lawdragon, 2019-2025; Distinguished Pro Bono Attorney of the Year, Casa Cornelia Law Center, 2022

Juan Carlos Sanchez | Partner

Juan Carlos "J.C." Sanchez is a partner in the Firm's San Diego office. He specializes in complex securities litigation and has extensive experience advising investors on their exposure to securities fraud and advising them on their litigation options for recovering losses. He has advised institutional and retail investors in more than 70 securities class actions that yielded more than $1.5 billion in class-wide recoveries.

Sanchez was a key member of the litigation team that secured the largest shareholder derivative recovery ever in Tennessee and the Sixth Circuit and unprecedented corporate governance reforms in In re Community Health Sys., Inc. S'holder Derivative Litig. More recently, Sanchez was a member of the Robbins Geller litigation team that ultimately obtained a $434 million settlement in In re Under Armour Sec. Litig., a case that was previously dismissed with prejudice in 2019 but then resurrected through a highly unusual procedural maneuver – a successful motion asking the federal judge who had dismissed the case to issue an indicative opinion informing the Fourth Circuit that he would revive the original case if it were remanded to him. The $434 million recovery is the second largest securities fraud settlement ever in the Fourth Circuit and is among the top 50 largest such recoveries in U.S. history. Beyond securities litigation, Sanchez's representation of California passengers in a landmark consumer and civil rights case against Greyhound Lines, Inc. led to a ruling recognizing that transit passengers do not check their rights and dignity at the bus door. Law360 honored Sanchez and the Greyhound litigation team as a Consumer Protection Group of the Year in 2019.

Before joining Robbins Geller, Sanchez served as a judicial law clerk to the Honorable Nelva Gonzales Ramos of the U.S. District Court for the Southern District of Texas.

Education

B.S., University of California, Davis, 2005; J.D., University of California, Berkeley School of Law (Boalt Hall), 2014

Honors / Awards

Leading Litigator in America, Lawdragon, 2024-2026; 500 X - The Next Generation, Lawdragon, 2025; Leading Plaintiff Financial Lawyer, Lawdragon, 2023-2025

Vincent M. Serra | Partner

Vincent Serra is a partner in the Firm's Melville office. His practice focuses primarily on complex securities and consumer actions, but has also included antitrust, employment, insurance, and environmental litigation. His efforts have contributed to the recovery of billions of dollars on behalf of aggrieved plaintiffs and class members and significant injunctive relief for individuals and municipalities throughout the country. Notably, Serra has contributed to several noteworthy recoveries, including Dahl v. Bain Cap. Partners, LLC ($590.5 million recovery), an antitrust action against the world's largest private equity firms alleging collusive practices in multi-billion dollar leveraged buyouts, and Samit v. CBS Corp. ($14.75 million recovery), a securities action alleging that defendants made false and misleading statements about their knowledge of former CEO Leslie Moonves's exposure to the #MeToo movement.

Additionally, Serra was a member of the litigation team that obtained a $22.75 million settlement fund on behalf of route drivers in Veliz v. Cintas Corp., an action asserting violations of federal and state overtime laws. He was also part of the successful trial team in Lebrilla v. Farmers Grp., Inc., which involved Farmers' practice of using inferior imitation parts when repairing insureds' vehicles. Other notable cases include In re Payment Card Interchange Fee and Merchant Discount Antitrust Litig. ($5.5 billion recovery), In re DouYu Int'l Holdings Ltd. Sec. Litig. ($15 million state court securities recovery) and Kail v. Wolf Appliance, Inc. (confidential settlement in breach of warranty actions involving faulty blue porcelain oven cavities).

Serra has litigated several actions against manufacturers and retailers alleging the improper marketing and sale of purportedly "flushable" wipes products, including consumer fraud, nuisance, and strict product liability claims. For example, in Commissioners of Public Works of the City of Charleston (d.b.a. Charleston Water System) v. Costco Wholesale Corp., Serra led the prosecution of seven defendants resulting in industrywide settlements that secured commitments from the leading flushable wipes manufacturers and retailers to meet the national municipal wastewater standard for flushability and enhance "do not flush" labeling for non-flushable wipes, helping to meaningfully reduce wipes-related sewer impacts for municipalities and wastewater utilities nationwide. Serra also recently helped secure additional nationwide relief on behalf of the Charleston Water System in an analogous settlement with Dude Products Inc.

Education

B.A., University of Delaware, 2001; J.D., California Western School of Law, 2005

Honors / Awards

Best Lawyer in America: One to Watch, Best Lawyers®, 2024-2025; Wiley W. Manuel Award for Pro Bono Legal Services, State Bar of California

Sam S. Sheldon | Partner

Sam Sheldon is a partner in the Firm's San Diego office, where he focuses on securities fraud and other complex civil litigation. Before joining the Firm in January 2024, Sheldon served more than five years as a United States Magistrate Judge in the Southern District of Texas, primarily in Houston. He wrote opinions in almost every area of the law, including securities fraud, intellectual property, class actions, labor and employment, False Claims Act, and criminal law.

Most recently, Sheldon was a part of a team of Robbins Geller attorneys that successfully obtained a $434 million settlement in In re Under Armour Sec. Litig. The case settled just weeks before a jury trial was set to begin in Baltimore, Maryland. The $434 million recovery is the second largest securities fraud settlement ever in the Fourth Circuit and is among the top 50 largest such recoveries in U.S. history.

Before taking the federal bench, Sheldon was a partner with Quinn Emanuel in the Washington, D.C. office and headed the firm's Health Care Practice Group. He represented plaintiffs in landmark cases brought under the federal False Claims Act.

Sheldon previously served as Chief of the Health Care Fraud Unit in the DOJ Criminal Division in Washington, D.C., where he oversaw the prosecution of federal health care fraud throughout the United States. He also was an Assistant United States Attorney in Texas. Earlier in his career, Sheldon was a partner with Cozen O'Connor in the San Diego office. Sheldon has tried 25 cases as a federal prosecutor and civil litigator. He received numerous awards for his successful federal prosecutions from the DOJ and other federal agencies including the Special Achievement Award presented by the United States Attorney General.

Education

B.A., University of Southern California, 1992; M.A., University of Southern California, 1994; J.D., University of Houston Law Center, 1997

Honors / Awards

Leading Litigator in America, Lawdragon, 2026; Leading Plaintiff Financial Lawyer, Lawdragon, 2024-2025; Prosecutor Leadership Award presented by the Inspector General for the United States Department of Health and Human Services, 2013; Special Award from the Director of the FBI for excellent work with the Medicare Fraud Taskforce, 2013; Exceptional Service Award presented by the United States Assistant Attorney General, 2011; Special Achievement Award presented by the United States Attorney General for Sustained Superior Performance of Duty, 2010; International Achievement Award from the Assistant Director of the Department of Homeland Security for prosecuting the first illegal exportation of goods case in the Southern District of Texas (under 18 U.S.C. §554), 2010; Special Award from the Director of the FBI for prosecuting the first agricultural fraud case in the United States (under 7 U.S.C. §7711), 2009

Arthur L. Shingler III | Partner

Arthur Shingler is a partner in the Firm's San Diego office. Shingler has successfully represented both public and private sector clients in hundreds of complex, multi-party actions with billions of dollars in dispute. Throughout his career, he has obtained outstanding results for those he has represented in cases generally encompassing shareholder derivative and securities litigation, unfair business practices and antitrust litigation, publicity rights and advertising litigation, ERISA litigation, and other insurance, health care, employment, and commercial disputes.

Representative matters in which Shingler has served as a core member of the litigation team or settlement counsel include, among others: In re EpiPen (Epinephrine Injection, USP) Marketing, Sales Practices & Antitrust Litig., No. 2:17-md-02785 (D. Kan.) ($609 million total recovery achieved weeks prior to trial in certified class action alleging antitrust claims involving the illegal reverse payment settlement to delay the generic EpiPen, which allowed the prices of the life-saving EpiPen to rise over 600% in 9 years); In re Remicade Antitrust Litig., No. 2:17-cv-04326 (E.D. Pa.) ($25 million recovery for indirect purchasers in antitrust action); In re Liquid Aluminum Sulfate Antitrust Litig., No. 2:16-md-02687 (D.N.J.) (direct purchaser class settled in excess of $100 million); NECA-IBEW Health & Welfare Fund v. Goldman Sachs & Co., No. 1:08-cv-10783 (S.D.N.Y.) ($272 million recovery); In re Royal Dutch/Shell ERISA Litig., No. 3:04-cv-00374 (D.N.J.) ($90 million settlement); In re Priceline.com Sec. Litig., No. 3:00-cv-01884 (D. Conn.) ($80 million settlement); In re General Motors ERISA Litig., No. 05-71085 (E.D. Mich.) ($37.5 million settlement, in addition to significant revision of retirement plan administration); Wood v. Ionatron, Inc., No. 4:06-cv-00354 (D. Ariz.) ($6.5 million settlement); In re Lattice Semiconductor Corp. Derivative Litig., No. C 043327CV (Or. Cir. Ct., Wash. Cnty.) (corporate governance settlement, including substantial revision of board policies and executive management); In re 360networks Class Action Sec. Litig., No. 1:02-cv-04837 (S.D.N.Y.) ($7 million settlement); and Rothschild v. Tyco Int'l (US), Inc., 83 Cal. App. 4th 488 (2000) (shaped scope of California's Unfair Practices Act as related to limits of State's False Claims Act).

In addition, Shingler is currently working on behalf of plaintiffs in several class actions, including, for example, In re National Prescription Opiate Litig., No. 1:17-md-02804 (N.D. Ohio), and In re American Airlines/JetBlue Antitrust Litig., No. 1:22-cv-07374 (E.D.N.Y.).

Education

B.A., Point Loma Nazarene College, 1989; J.D., Boston University School of Law, 1995

Honors / Awards

B.A., Cum Laude, Point Loma Nazarene College, 1989

Jessica T. Shinnefield | Partner

Jessica Shinnefield is a partner in the Firm's San Diego office. Currently, her practice focuses on initiating, investigating, and prosecuting securities fraud class actions. Shinnefield served as lead counsel in In re Am. Realty Cap. Props., Inc. Litig., a case arising out of ARCP's manipulative accounting practices, and obtained a $1.025 billion recovery. For five years, she and the litigation team prosecuted nine different claims for violations of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 and the Securities Act of 1933, involving seven different stock or debt offerings and two mergers. The recovery represents the highest percentage of damages of any major PSLRA case prior to trial and includes the largest personal contributions by individual defendants in history. Shinnefield also served as lead counsel in Smilovits v. First Solar, Inc., and obtained a $350 million settlement on the eve of trial. The settlement is fifth-largest PSLRA settlement ever recovered in the Ninth Circuit.

Shinnefield was also a member of the litigation team prosecuting actions against investment banks and leading national credit rating agencies for their roles in structuring and rating structured investment vehicles backed by toxic assets in Abu Dhabi Commercial Bank v. Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated and King County, Washington v. IKB Deutsche Industriebank AG. These cases were among the first to successfully allege fraud against the rating agencies, whose ratings have traditionally been protected by the First Amendment. Shinnefield also litigated individual opt-out actions against AOL Time Warner – Regents of the Univ. of Cal. v. Parsons and Ohio Pub. Emps. Ret. Sys. v. Parsons (recovery more than $600 million). Additionally, she litigated an action against Omnicare, in which she helped obtain a favorable ruling for plaintiffs from the United States Supreme Court. Shinnefield has also successfully appealed lower court decisions in the Second, Seventh, and Ninth Circuit Courts of Appeals.

Education

B.A., University of California at Santa Barbara, 2001; J.D., University of San Diego School of Law, 2004

Honors / Awards

Future Star, Benchmark Litigation, 2023-2026; Leading Plaintiff Financial Lawyer, Lawdragon, 2019-2025; California Lawyer Attorney of the Year (CLAY), Daily Journal, 2024; Top Woman Lawyer, Daily Journal, 2024; Best Lawyer in America: One to Watch, Best Lawyers®, 2023; Plaintiffs' Lawyers Trailblazer, The National Law Journal, 2021; Litigator of the Week, The American Lawyer, 2020; Rising Star, Super Lawyers Magazine, 2015-2019; 40 & Under Hot List, Benchmark Litigation, 2018-2019; B.A., Phi Beta Kappa, University of California at Santa Barbara, 2001

Elizabeth A. Shonson | Partner

Elizabeth Shonson is a partner in the Firm's Boca Raton office. She concentrates her practice on representing investors in class actions brought pursuant to the federal securities laws. Shonson has litigated numerous securities fraud class actions nationwide, helping achieve significant recoveries for aggrieved investors. She was a member of the litigation teams responsible for recouping millions of dollars for defrauded investors, including: In re Massey Energy Co. Sec. Litig. (S.D. W.Va.) ($265 million); Nieman v. Duke Energy Corp. (W.D.N.C.) ($146.25 million recovery); In re ADT Inc. S'holder Litig. (Fla. Cir. Ct., 15th Jud. Cir.) ($30 million settlement); Eshe Fund v. Fifth Third Bancorp (S.D. Ohio) ($16 million); City of St. Clair Shores Gen. Emps. Ret. Sys. v. Lender Processing Servs., Inc. (M.D. Fla.) ($14 million); and In re Synovus Fin. Corp. (N.D. Ga.) ($11.75 million).

Education

B.A., Syracuse University, 2001; J.D., University of Florida Levin College of Law, 2005

Honors / Awards

Rising Star, Super Lawyers Magazine, 2016-2019; J.D., Cum Laude, University of Florida Levin College of Law, 2005; Editor-in-Chief, Journal of Technology Law & Policy; Phi Delta Phi; B.A., with Honors, Summa Cum Laude, Syracuse University, 2001; Phi Beta Kappa

Trig Smith | Partner

Trig Smith is a partner in the Firm's San Diego office where he focuses his practice on complex securities litigation. He has been involved in the prosecution of numerous securities class actions that have resulted in over a billion dollars in recoveries for investors. His cases have included: In re Cardinal Health, Inc. Sec. Litig. ($600 million recovery); Jones v. Pfizer Inc. ($400 million recovery); Silverman v. Motorola, Inc. ($200 million recovery); and City of Livonia Emps.' Ret. Sys. v. Wyeth ($67.5 million). Most recently, he was a member of the Firm's trial team in Hsu v. Puma Biotechnology, Inc., a securities fraud class action that resulted in a verdict in favor of investors after a two-week jury trial.

Education

B.S., University of Colorado, Denver, 1995; M.S., University of Colorado, Denver, 1997; J.D., Brooklyn Law School, 2000

Honors / Awards

Best Lawyer in America, Best Lawyers®, 2024-2026; Member, Brooklyn Journal of International Law, Brooklyn Law School; CALI Excellence Award in Legal Writing, Brooklyn Law School

Mark Solomon | Partner

Mark Solomon is a founding and managing partner of the Firm and leads its international litigation practice. Over the last 32 years, he has regularly represented United States and United Kingdom-based pension funds and asset managers in class and non-class securities litigation in federal and state courts throughout the United States. He was first admitted to the Bar of England and Wales as a Barrister (he is non-active) and is an active member of the Bars of Ohio, California, and various United States federal district and appellate courts.

Since joining the practice in 1993, Solomon has spearheaded the prosecution of many significant securities fraud cases, recovering billions of dollars for defrauded investors. The recoveries are the product of multi-million and multi-hundred million dollar pre-trial settlements his teams and his clients have been able to achieve, enhanced by a track record of taking such cases successfully through jury trial where necessary. An additional feature of his practice is the significant corporate governance reforms designed to limit recidivism and promote appropriate standards that he has introduced in the resolution of major cases.

Solomon currently is counsel to a number of U.K. pension funds that are serving or have served as lead plaintiffs in cases throughout the United States in the last ten years. He represented Norfolk Pension Fund in the securities fraud class action against Apple Inc. and Apple executives in In re Apple Inc. Sec. Litig. in the federal district court for the Northern District of California, which resulted in a settlement shortly before trial of $490 million payable by the defendants to the investor class – the third-largest ever securities fraud recovery in the Northern District and the fifth-largest in the Ninth Circuit. He represented North East Scotland Pension Fund in the securities fraud class action against Under Armour and Under Armour executives In re Under Armour Sec. Litig. in the federal district court for the District of Maryland, which resulted in a settlement shortly before trial of $434 million payable by the defendants to the investor class – the second-largest ever securities fraud recovery in the Fourth Circuit. In addition, the monetary recovery was accompanied by important governance reforms, including the separation of the CEO and BOD Chair and restraints on restricted stock awards to senior executives. He represented the British Coal Staff Superannuation Scheme and the Mineworkers' Pension Scheme in Smilovits v. First Solar, Inc. in the federal district court for the District of Arizona in which the class recovered $350 million on the eve of trial. That settlement resulted in the largest-ever securities fraud recovery in the District of Arizona and the seventh-largest in the Ninth Circuit. He represented the U.K.'s Norfolk Pension Fund in Hsu v. Puma Biotechnology, Inc. where, in the federal district court for the Central District of California, after three weeks of trial, the Fund obtained a jury verdict valued at over $54 million in favor of the class against the company and its CEO. He represented Strathclyde Pension Fund in Strathclyde Pension Fund v. Bank OZK, a class action against Bank OZK and its CEO, in the federal district court for the Eastern District of Arkansas in which the class recovered $45 million. He represented Strathclyde Pension Fund in In re Ply Gem Holdings, Inc. Sec. Litig. where the class recovered $26 million. Before all of those cases, in a case in 2000 against Helionetics, Inc. and its senior executives, Solomon had presented to a jury, and won, one of the very few securities fraud class actions ever taken to trial.

In ongoing litigation, Solomon represents Los Angeles County Employees Retirement Association and the class in a securities fraud class action pending against FirstEnergy Corp. and FirstEnergy executives in the federal district court for the Southern District of Ohio and he represents Norfolk Pension Fund and the putative class in the securities fraud class action In re Anadarko Petroleum Corp. Sec. Litig. against Anadarko Petroleum Corporation and former Anadarko executives, pending in the federal district court for the Southern District of Texas.

Education

B.A., Trinity College, Cambridge University, England, 1985; L.L.M., Harvard Law School, 1986; Inns of Court School of Law, Degree of Utter Barrister, England, 1987

Honors / Awards

Best Lawyer in America, Best Lawyers®, 2025-2026; Leading Plaintiff Financial Lawyer, Lawdragon, 2019-2025; Global Plaintiff Lawyer, Lawdragon, 2024-2025; Litigator of the Week, The AmLaw Litigation Daily, 2024; Super Lawyer, Super Lawyers Magazine, 2017-2018; Recommended Lawyer, The Legal 500, 2016-2017; Lizette Bentwich Law Prize, Trinity College, 1983 and 1984; Hollond Travelling Studentship, 1985; Harvard Law School Fellowship, 1985-1986; Member and Hardwicke Scholar of the Honourable Society of Lincoln's Inn

Hillary B. Stakem | Partner

Hillary Stakem is a partner in the Firm's San Diego office, where her practice focuses on complex securities litigation. Stakem was a member of the litigation team in Jaffe v. Household Int'l, Inc., a securities class action that obtained a record-breaking $1.575 billion settlement after 14 years of litigation, including a six-week jury trial in 2009 that resulted in a verdict for plaintiffs. She was also a member of the litigation teams that secured a $388 million recovery for investors in J.P. Morgan residential mortgage-backed securities in Fort Worth Employees' Retirement Fund v. J.P. Morgan Chase & Co., and that obtained a $350 million settlement on the eve of trial in Smilovits v. First Solar, Inc., the fifth-largest PSLRA settlement ever recovered in the Ninth Circuit. Stakem also helped secure a $131 million recovery in favor of plaintiffs in Bennett v. Sprint Nextel Corp, a $100 million settlement for shareholders in Karinski v. Stamps.com, a $97.5 million recovery in Marcus v. J.C. Penney Company, Inc., and an $87.5 million settlement in Monroe County Employees' Retirement System v. The Southern Company.

Education

B.A., College of William and Mary, 2009; J.D., UCLA School of Law, 2012

Honors / Awards

40 & Under List, Benchmark Litigation, 2023-2025; 500 X – The Next Generation, Lawdragon, 2023-2025; California Lawyer Attorney of the Year (CLAY), Daily Journal, 2024; Rising Star, Super Lawyers Magazine, 2021-2022; 40 & Under Hot List, Benchmark Litigation, 2021; B.A., Magna Cum Laude, College of William and Mary, 2009

Jeffrey J. Stein | Partner

Jeffrey Stein is a partner in the Firm's San Diego office, where he practices securities fraud litigation and other complex matters. He was a member of the litigation team that secured a historic recovery on behalf of Trump University students in two class actions against President Donald J. Trump. The settlement provides $25 million to approximately 7,000 consumers. This result means individual class members are eligible for upwards of $35,000 in restitution. Stein represented the class on a pro bono basis.

Before joining the Firm, Stein focused on civil rights litigation, with special emphasis on the First, Fourth, and Eighth Amendments. In this capacity, he helped his clients secure successful outcomes before the United States Supreme Court and the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals.

Education

B.S., University of Washington, 2005; J.D., University of San Diego School of Law, 2009

Christopher D. Stewart | Partner

Christopher Stewart is a partner in the Firm's San Diego office. His practice focuses on complex securities and shareholder derivative litigation. Stewart served as lead counsel in In re Am. Realty Cap. Props., Inc. Litig., a case arising out of ARCP's manipulative accounting practices, and obtained a $1.025 billion recovery. For five years, he and the litigation team prosecuted nine different claims for violations of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 and the Securities Act of 1933, involving seven different stock or debt offerings and two mergers. The recovery represents the highest percentage of damages of any major PSLRA case prior to trial and includes the largest personal contributions by individual defendants in history. Most recently, Stewart served as lead counsel in Smilovits v. First Solar, Inc., and obtained a $350 million settlement on the eve of trial. The settlement is fifth-largest PSLRA settlement ever recovered in the Ninth Circuit.

He was also part of the litigation team that obtained a $67 million settlement in City of Westland Police & Fire Ret. Sys. v. Stumpf, a shareholder derivative action alleging that Wells Fargo participated in the mass-processing of home foreclosure documents by engaging in widespread robo-signing. Stewart also served on the litigation team in In re Deutsche Bank AG Sec. Litig., in which the Firm obtained a $18.5 million settlement in a case against Deutsche Bank and certain of its officers alleging violations of the Securities Act of 1933.

Education

B.S., Santa Clara University, 2004; M.B.A., University of San Diego School of Business Administration, 2009; J.D., University of San Diego School of Law, 2009

Honors / Awards

California Lawyer Attorney of the Year (CLAY), Daily Journal, 2024; Rising Star, Super Lawyers Magazine, 2015-2020; J.D., Magna Cum Laude, Order of the Coif, University of San Diego School of Law, 2009; Member, San Diego Law Review

Sabrina E. Tirabassi | Partner

Sabrina Tirabassi is a partner in the Firm's Boca Raton office, where her practice focuses on complex securities litigation, including the Firm's lead plaintiff motion practice. In this role, Tirabassi remains at the forefront of litigation trends and issues arising under the Private Securities Litigation Reform Act of 1995. Further, Tirabassi has been an integral member of the litigation teams responsible for securing significant monetary recoveries on behalf of shareholders, including: Villella v. Chemical and Mining Company of Chile Inc., No. 1:15-cv-02106 (S.D.N.Y.); In re ADT Inc. S'holder Litig., No. 502018CA003494XXXXMB-AG (Fla. Cir. Ct., 15th Jud. Cir.); KBC Asset Mgmt. NV v. Aegerion Pharms., Inc., No. 1:14-cv-10105-MLW (D. Mass.); Sohal v. Yan, No. 1:15-cv-00393-DAP (N.D. Ohio); McGee v. Constant Contact, Inc., No. 1:15-cv-13114-MLW (D. Mass.); and Schwartz v. Urban Outfitters, Inc., No. 2:13-cv-05978-MAK (E.D. Pa.).

Education

B.A., University of Florida, 2000; J.D., Nova Southeastern University Shepard Broad College of Law, 2006, Magna Cum Laude

Honors / Awards

Best Lawyer in America: One to Watch, Best Lawyers®, 2024-2025; Rising Star, Super Lawyers Magazine, 2010, 2015-2018; J.D., Magna Cum Laude, Nova Southeastern University Shepard Broad College of Law, 2006

Douglas Wilens | Partner

Douglas Wilens is a partner in the Firm's Boca Raton office. Wilens is a member of the Firm's Appellate Practice Group, participating in numerous appeals in federal and state courts across the country. Most notably, Wilens handled successful and precedent-setting appeals in Ind. Pub. Ret. Sys. v. SAIC, Inc., 818 F.3d 85 (2d Cir. 2016) (addressing duty to disclose under SEC Regulation Item 303 in §10(b) case), Mass. Ret. Sys. v. CVS Caremark Corp., 716 F.3d 229 (1st Cir. 2013) (addressing pleading of loss causation in §10(b) case), and Lormand v. US Unwired, Inc., 565 F.3d 228 (5th Cir. 2009) (addressing pleading of falsity, scienter, and loss causation in §10(b) case).

Before joining the Firm, Wilens was an associate at a nationally recognized firm, where he litigated complex actions on behalf of numerous professional sports leagues, including the National Basketball Association, the National Hockey League, and Major League Soccer. He has also served as an adjunct professor at Florida Atlantic University and Nova Southeastern University, where he taught undergraduate and graduate-level business law classes.

Education

B.S., University of Florida, 1992; J.D., University of Florida College of Law, 1995

Honors / Awards

Book Award for Legal Drafting, University of Florida College of Law; J.D., with Honors, University of Florida College of Law, 1995

Shawn A. Williams | Partner

Shawn Williams, a founding partner of the Firm, is the managing partner of the Firm's San Francisco office and a member of the Firm's Management Committee. Williams specializes in complex commercial litigation focusing on securities litigation and has served as lead counsel in a range of precedent-setting actions that recovered billions of dollars for investors and consumers. Williams recently served as lead counsel in a globally watched securities class action case against Apple, In re Apple Inc. Sec. Litig. He and the trial team secured a $490 million recovery for injured investors. Williams was among lead counsel in In re Facebook Biometric Info. Privacy Litig., charging Facebook with violations of the Illinois Biometric Information Privacy Act, resulting in a $650 million recovery for injured Facebook users, which was then the largest ever biometric class action.

Williams also led the team of Robbins Geller attorneys in the investigation and drafting of comprehensive securities fraud claims in Hefler v. Wells Fargo & Co., alleging widespread opening of unauthorized and undisclosed customer accounts. The Hefler action resulted in the recovery of $480 million for Wells Fargo investors. In City of Westland Police & Fire Ret. Sys. v. Metlife, Inc., Williams led the Firm's team of lawyers alleging MetLife's failure to disclose and account for the scope of its use and non-use of the Social Security Administration Death Master File and its impact on MetLife's financial statements. The Metlife action resulted in a recovery of $84 million. Williams also served as lead counsel in the following actions resulting in significant recoveries: Chicago Laborers Pension Fund v. Alibaba Grp. Holding Ltd. ($75 million recovery); In re Krispy Kreme Doughnuts, Inc. Sec. Litig. ($75 million recovery); In re Medtronic, Inc. Sec. Litig. ($43 million recovery); In re Cadence Design Sys., Inc. Sec. Litig. ($38 million recovery); and City of Sterling Heights Gen. Emps'. Ret. Sys. v. Prudential Fin., Inc. ($33 million recovery).

Williams is also a member of the Firm's Shareholder Derivative Practice Group, which has secured tens of millions of dollars in cash recoveries and comprehensive corporate governance reforms in a number of high-profile cases including: In re McAfee, Inc. Derivative Litig.; In re Marvell Tech. Grp. Ltd. Derivative Litig.; In re KLA-Tencor Corp. S'holder Derivative Litig.; The Home Depot, Inc. Derivative Litig.; and City of Westland Police & Fire Ret. Sys. v. Stumpf (Wells Fargo & Co.).

Before joining the Firm in 2000, Williams served for 5 years as an Assistant District Attorney in the Manhattan District Attorney's Office, where he tried over 20 cases to New York City juries.

Education

B.A., The State of University of New York at Albany, 1991; J.D., University of Illinois, 1995

Honors / Awards

Litigation Star, Benchmark Litigation, 2025-2026; Best Lawyer in America, Best Lawyers®, 2022-2026; Super Lawyer, Super Lawyers Magazine, 2014-2017, 2020-2021, 2023-2025; Recommended Lawyer, The Legal 500, 2023-2025; Leading Plaintiff Financial Lawyer, Lawdragon, 2019-2025; Leading Commercial Litigator, Daily Journal, 2025; Leading Lawyer in America, Lawdragon, 2018-2025; Litigator of the Week, The AmLaw Litigation Daily, 2024; Top Plaintiff Lawyer, Daily Journal, 2022; Most Influential Black Lawyers, Savoy, 2022; Legend, Lawdragon, 2022; Top 100 Lawyer, Daily Journal, 2019, 2021; California Trailblazer, The Recorder, 2019; Titan of the Plaintiffs Bar, Law360, 2019; Plaintiffs' Lawyer Trailblazer, The National Law Journal, 2019; Board Member, California Bar Foundation, 2012-2014

Christopher M. Wood | Partner

Christopher Wood is the partner in charge of Robbins Geller Rudman & Dowd LLP's Nashville office, where his practice focuses on complex securities litigation. He has been a member of litigation teams responsible for recoveries totaling hundreds of millions of dollars for investors, including some of the largest securities class action recoveries in Tennessee history. His cases include: In re Massey Energy Co. Sec. Litig. ($265 million recovery); In re Envision Healthcare Co. Sec. Litig. ($177.5 million recovery); In re VeriFone Holdings, Inc. Sec. Litig. ($95 million recovery); Garden City Emps.' Ret. Sys. v. Psychiatric Solutions, Inc. ($65 million recovery); Grae v. Corrections Corporation of America ($56 million recovery); In re Micron Tech., Inc. Sec. Litig. ($42 million recovery); Jackson Cnty. Emps.' Ret. Sys. v. Ghosn ($36 million recovery); and Winslow v. BancorpSouth, Inc. ($29.5 million recovery).

Working together with the ACLU of Tennessee and Public Funds Public Schools (a national campaign founded by the Southern Poverty Law Center and Education Law Center), Wood is litigating an action challenging Tennessee's school voucher program, which diverts critically needed funds from public school students in Nashville and Memphis. Wood has also provided pro bono legal services through Tennessee Justice for Our Neighbors, Volunteer Lawyers & Professionals for the Arts, the Ninth Circuit's Pro Bono Program, and the San Francisco Bar Association's Volunteer Legal Services Program.

Education

B.A., Vanderbilt University, 2003; J.D., University of San Francisco School of Law, 2006

Honors / Awards

Future Star, Benchmark Litigation, 2023-2026; Best Lawyer in America, Best Lawyers®, 2025-2026; Leading Plaintiff Financial Lawyer, Lawdragon, 2024-2025; Best Lawyer in America: One to Watch, Best Lawyers®, 2023-2024; 40 & Under Hot List, Benchmark Litigation, 2021; Rising Star, Super Lawyers Magazine, 2011-2013, 2015-2020

Debra J. Wyman | Partner

Debra Wyman is a partner in the Firm's San Diego office. She specializes in securities litigation and has litigated numerous cases against public companies in state and federal courts that have resulted in over $2 billion in securities fraud recoveries. Wyman served as lead counsel in In re Am. Realty Cap. Props., Inc. Litig., a case arising out of ARCP's manipulative accounting practices, and obtained a $1.025 billion recovery. For five years, she and the litigation team prosecuted nine different claims for violations of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 and the Securities Act of 1933, involving seven different stock or debt offerings and two mergers. The recovery represents the highest percentage of damages of any major PSLRA case prior to trial and includes the largest personal contributions by individual defendants in history. Most recently, Wyman was part of the litigation team in Monroe County Employees' Retirement System v. The Southern Company in which an $87.5 settlement was reached after three years of litigation. The settlement resolved claims for violations of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 stemming from defendants' issuance of materially misleading statements and omissions regarding the status of construction of a first-of-its-kind "clean coal" power plant that was designed to transform coal into synthetic gas that could then be used to fuel the power plant.

Wyman was also a member of the trial team in Schuh v. HCA Holdings, Inc., which resulted in a $215 million recovery for shareholders, the largest securities class action recovery ever in Tennessee. The recovery achieved represents more than 30% of the aggregate classwide damages, far exceeding the typical recovery in a securities class action. Wyman prosecuted the complex securities and accounting fraud case In re HealthSouth Corp. Sec. Litig., one of the largest and longest-running corporate frauds in history, in which $671 million was recovered for defrauded HealthSouth investors. She was also part of the trial team that litigated In re AT&T Corp. Sec. Litig., which was tried in the United States District Court, District of New Jersey, and settled after only two weeks of trial for $100 million. Wyman was also part of the litigation team that secured a $64 million recovery for Dana Corp. shareholders in Plumbers & Pipefitters National Pension Fund v. Burns, in which the Firm's Appellate Practice Group successfully appealed to the Sixth Circuit Court of Appeals twice, reversing the district court's dismissal of the action.

Education

B.A., University of California Irvine, 1990; J.D., University of San Diego School of Law, 1997

Honors / Awards

Litigation Star, Benchmark Litigation, 2023-2026; National Practice Area Star, Benchmark Litigation, 2024-2026; Leading Plaintiff Financial Lawyer, Lawdragon, 2019-2025; Leading Lawyer in America, Lawdragon, 2020-2025; California - Litigation Star, Benchmark Litigation, 2024-2025; California Lawyer Attorney of the Year (CLAY), Daily Journal, 2024; Top 250 Women in Litigation, Benchmark Litigation, 2021, 2023-2024; San Diego Litigator of the Year, Benchmark Litigation, 2021; Plaintiff Litigator of the Year, Benchmark Litigation, 2021; Top Woman Lawyer, Daily Journal, 2017, 2020; MVP, Law360, 2020; Litigator of the Week, The American Lawyer, 2020; Litigator of the Year, Our City San Diego, 2017; Super Lawyer, Super Lawyers Magazine, 2016-2017

Susan K. Alexander | Of Counsel

Susan Alexander is Of Counsel to the Firm and is based in the San Francisco office. Alexander's practice specializes in federal appeals of securities fraud class actions on behalf of investors. With nearly 30 years of federal appellate experience, she has argued on behalf of defrauded investors in circuit courts throughout the United States. Among her most notable cases are Mineworkers' Pension Scheme v. First Solar Inc. ($350 million recovery), In re VeriFone Holdings, Inc. Sec. Litig. ($95 million recovery), and the successful appellate ruling in Alaska Elec. Pension Fund v. Flowserve Corp. ($55 million recovery). Other representative results include: Stoyas v. Toshiba Corp., 896 F.3d 933 (9th Cir. 2018) (reversing dismissal of securities fraud action and holding that the Exchange Act applies to unsponsored American Depositary Shares); W. Va. Pipe Trades Health & Welfare Fund v. Medtronic, Inc., 845 F.3d 384 (8th Cir. 2016) (reversing summary judgment of securities fraud action on statute of limitations grounds); In re Ubiquiti Networks, Inc. Sec. Litig., 669 F. App'x 878 (9th Cir. 2016) (reversing dismissal of §11 claim); Carpenters Pension Tr. Fund of St. Louis v. Barclays PLC, 750 F.3d 227 (2d Cir. 2014) (reversing dismissal of securities fraud complaint, focused on loss causation); Panther Partners Inc. v. Ikanos Commc'ns, Inc., 681 F.3d 114 (2d Cir. 2012) (reversing dismissal of §11 claim); City of Pontiac Gen. Emps.' Ret. Sys. v. MBIA, Inc., 637 F.3d 169 (2d Cir. 2011) (reversing dismissal of securities fraud complaint, focused on statute of limitations); In re Gilead Scis. Sec. Litig., 536 F.3d 1049 (9th Cir. 2008) (reversing dismissal of securities fraud complaint, focused on loss causation); Barrie v. Intervoice-Brite, Inc., 397 F.3d 249 (5th Cir.) (reversing dismissal of securities fraud complaint, focused on scienter), reh'g denied and op. modified, 409 F.3d 653 (5th Cir. 2005); and Pirraglia v. Novell, Inc., 339 F.3d 1182 (10th Cir. 2003) (reversing dismissal of securities fraud complaint, focused on scienter). Alexander's prior appellate work was with the California Appellate Project ("CAP"), where she prepared appeals and petitions for writs of habeas corpus on behalf of individuals sentenced to death. At CAP, and subsequently in private practice, she litigated and consulted on death penalty direct and collateral appeals for ten years.

Education

B.A., Stanford University, 1983; J.D., University of California, Los Angeles, 1986

Honors / Awards

Best Lawyer in America: One to Watch, Best Lawyers®, 2026; Super Lawyer, Super Lawyers Magazine, 2015-2021; American Academy of Appellate Lawyers; California Academy of Appellate Lawyers; Ninth Circuit Advisory Rules Committee; Appellate Delegate, Ninth Circuit Judicial Conference; ABA Council of Appellate Lawyers

Laura M. Andracchio | Of Counsel

Laura Andracchio is Of Counsel in the Firm's San Diego office. Having joined the Firm in 1997, she was a Robbins Geller partner before her role as Of Counsel. As a partner with the Firm, Andracchio led dozens of securities fraud cases against public companies throughout the country, recovering hundreds of millions of dollars for injured investors. Her current focus remains securities fraud litigation under the federal securities laws.

Most recently, Andracchio was a member of the litigation team that obtained a $350 million recovery for the class in 2024 in In re Alphabet, Inc. Sec. Litig. (N.D. Cal.). Andracchio was also part of the litigation teams in In re American Realty Cap. Props., Inc. Litig. (S.D.N.Y.), in which a $1.025 billion recovery was obtained; City of Pontiac Gen. Emps.' Ret. Sys. v. Wal-Mart Stores, Inc. (W.D. Ark.), recovering $160 million for Wal-Mart investors; and In re Cardinal Health, Inc. Sec. Litig. (S.D. Ohio) ($109 million).

Andracchio was also a lead member of the trial team in In re AT&T Corp. Sec. Litig., recovering $100 million for the class after two weeks of trial in district court in New Jersey. Before trial, she managed and litigated the case for four years. She also led the trial team in Brody v. Hellman, a case against Qwest and former directors of U.S. West seeking an unpaid dividend, recovering $50 million for the class, which was largely comprised of U.S. West retirees. Some of Andracchio's other cases include Fort Worth Emps.' Ret. Fund v. J.P. Morgan Chase & Co. (S.D.N.Y.) ($388 million on behalf of investors in residential mortgage-backed securities); City of Hialeah Emps.' Ret. Sys. v. Toll Bros., Inc.; Ross v. Abercrombie & Fitch Co.; In re GMH Cmtys. Tr. Sec. Litig.; In re Vicuron Pharms., Inc. Sec. Litig.; and In re Navarre Corp. Sec. Litig.

Education

B.A., Bucknell University, 1986; J.D., Duquesne University School of Law, 1989

Honors / Awards

Order of the Barristers, J.D., with honors, Duquesne University School of Law, 1989

Jason M. Avellino | Of Counsel

Jason Avellino is Of Counsel in the Firm's Wilmington office. He focuses his practice on corporate governance, shareholder rights, and complex securities litigation.

Before joining Robbins Geller, Avellino practiced at a prominent Delaware law firm, where he was a significant part of litigation teams that achieved substantial recoveries and meaningful governance reforms for investors. He also spent more than a decade representing major product manufacturers, contractors, marine terminal operators, retail establishments, and sports venues (including several Fortune 500 companies) in the evaluation and defense of commercial matters and civil lawsuits. During that time, Avellino was a member of the International Association of Defense Counsel (IADC), a group of approximately 2,500 invitation-only, peer-reviewed members comprised of the world's leading corporate and insurance lawyers and insurance executives.

Education

B.S., Bloomsburg University, 2007; J.D., Villanova University School of Law, 2010

Honors / Awards

B.S., Magna Cum Laude, Bloomsburg University, 2007

Matthew J. Balotta | Of Counsel

Matt Balotta is Of Counsel in the Firm's San Diego office, where his practice focuses on securities fraud litigation. Balotta earned his Bachelor of Arts degree in History, summa cum laude, from the University of Pittsburgh and his Juris Doctor degree from Harvard Law School. During law school, Balotta was a summer associate with the Firm and interned at the National Consumer Law Center. He also participated in the Employment Law and Delivery of Legal Services Clinics and served on the General Board of the Harvard Civil Rights-Civil Liberties Law Review.

Education

B.A., University of Pittsburgh, 2005; J.D., Harvard Law School, 2015

Honors / Awards

Best Lawyer in America: One to Watch, Best Lawyers®, 2026; B.A., Summa Cum Laude, University of Pittsburgh, 2005

Randi D. Bandman | Of Counsel

Randi Bandman is Of Counsel in the Firm's San Diego office. Throughout her career, she has represented and advised hundreds of clients, including pension funds, managers, banks, and hedge funds, such as the Directors Guild of America, Screen Actors Guild, Writers Guild of America, and Teamster funds. Bandman's cases have yielded billions of dollars of recoveries. Notable cases include the AOL Time Warner, Inc. merger ($629 million), In re Enron Corp. Sec. Litig. ($7.2 billion), Private Equity litigation (Dahl v. Bain Cap. Partners, LLC) ($590.5 million), In re WorldCom Sec. Litig. ($657 million), and In re Facebook Biometric Info. Privacy Litig. ($650 million).

Bandman is currently representing plaintiffs in the Foreign Exchange Litigation pending in the Southern District of New York which alleges collusive conduct by the world's largest banks to fix prices in the $5.3 trillion a day foreign exchange market and in which billions of dollars have been recovered to date for injured plaintiffs. Bandman is part of the Robbins Geller Co-Lead Counsel team representing the class in the "High Frequency Trading" case, which accuses stock exchanges of giving unfair advantages to high-speed traders versus all other investors, resulting in billions of dollars being diverted. Bandman was instrumental in the landmark state settlement with the tobacco companies for $12.5 billion. Bandman also led an investigation with congressional representatives on behalf of artists into allegations of "pay for play" tactics, represented Emmy winning writers with respect to their claims involving a long-running television series, represented a Hall of Fame sports figure, and negotiated agreements in connection with a major motion picture. Recently, Bandman was chosen to serve on the Law Firm Advisory Board of the Association of Media & Entertainment Counsel, an organization made up of thousands of attorneys from studios, networks, guilds, talent agencies, and top media companies, dealing with protecting content distributed through a variety of formats worldwide.

Education

B.A., University of California, Los Angeles; J.D., University of Southern California

Mary K. Blasy | Of Counsel

Mary Blasy is Of Counsel to the Firm and is based in the Firm's Melville and Washington, D.C. offices. Her practice focuses on the investigation, commencement, and prosecution of securities fraud class actions and shareholder derivative suits. Blasy has recovered hundreds of millions of dollars for investors in securities fraud class actions against Reliance Acceptance Corp. ($66 million); Sprint Corp. ($50 million); Titan Corporation ($15+ million); Martha Stewart Omni-Media, Inc. ($30 million); and Coca-Cola Co. ($137.5 million). Blasy has also been responsible for prosecuting numerous complex shareholder derivative actions against corporate malefactors to address violations of the nation's securities, environmental, and labor laws, obtaining corporate governance enhancements valued by the market in the billions of dollars.

In 2014, the Presiding Justice of the Appellate Division of the Second Department of the Supreme Court of the State of New York appointed Blasy to serve as a member of the Independent Judicial Election Qualification Commission, which until December 2018 reviewed the qualifications of candidates seeking public election to New York State Supreme Courts in the 10th Judicial District. She also served on the Law360 Securities Editorial Advisory Board from 2015 to 2016.

Education

B.A., California State University, Sacramento, 1996; J.D., UCLA School of Law, 2000

Honors / Awards

Super Lawyer, Super Lawyers Magazine, 2016-2020, 2023-2025; Law360 Securities Editorial Advisory Board, 2015-2016; Member, Independent Judicial Election Qualification Commission, 2014-2018

M. Lamontt Bowens | Of Counsel

Lamontt Bowens is Of Counsel to Robbins Geller in the Firm's Washington, D.C. office. He is a member of the Firm's client outreach team where his focus is working with the Firm's institutional investor clients.

Bowens began his career with Robbins Geller working in the fax and mailroom while attending college and law school at night. After his first year of law school, he worked as a summer associate with the Firm. Following his second year of law school, Bowens worked as a summer intern in the office of the San Diego County Public Defender, where he worked at the direction of his supervising attorneys representing indigent clients. After graduating from law school and passing the bar exam, Bowens was a Staff Attorney where he worked on securities, antitrust, and consumer cases in Robbins Geller's San Diego office.

Bowens has written and regularly speaks about his challenging experiences as a youth in the inner city and his unorthodox journey to becoming a lawyer. He has been a mentor to at-risk youth and is an advocate for programs designed to promote second chances for the formerly incarcerated.

Bowens is a dedicated member of the National Association of Securities Professionals (NASP) and the National Bar Association (NBA).

Education

B.S., University of Phoenix, 2004; J.D., Golden Gate University School of Law, 2010

William K. Cavanagh, Jr. | Of Counsel

Bill Cavanagh is Of Counsel in the Firm's Washington, D.C. office. Cavanagh concentrates his practice in employee benefits law and works with the Firm's Institutional Outreach Team. Prior to joining Robbins Geller, Cavanagh was employed by Ullico for the past nine years, most recently as President of Ullico Casualty Group. The Ullico Casualty Group is the leading provider of fiduciary liability insurance for trustees in both the private as well as the public sector. Prior to that he was President of the Ullico Investment Company.

Preceding Cavanagh's time at Ullico, he was a partner at the labor and employee benefits firm Cavanagh and O'Hara in Springfield, Illinois for 28 years. In that capacity, Cavanagh represented public pension funds, jointly trusteed Taft-Hartley, health, welfare, pension, and joint apprenticeship funds advising on fiduciary and compliance issues both at the Board level as well as in administrative hearings, federal district courts, and the United States Courts of Appeals. During the course of his practice, Cavanagh had extensive trial experience in state and the relevant federal district courts. Additionally, Cavanagh served as co-counsel on a number of cases representing trustees seeking to recover plan assets lost as a result of fraud in the marketplace.

Education

B.A., Georgetown University, 1974; J.D., John Marshall Law School, 1978

Honors / Awards

Rated AV Preeminent by Martindale-Hubbell

Christopher Collins | Of Counsel

Christopher Collins is Of Counsel in the Firm's San Diego office and his practice focuses on antitrust and consumer protection. Collins served as co-lead counsel in Wholesale Elec. Antitrust Cases I & II, charging an antitrust conspiracy by wholesale electricity suppliers and traders of electricity in California's newly deregulated wholesale electricity market wherein plaintiffs secured a global settlement for California consumers, businesses, and local governments valued at more than $1.1 billion. He was also involved in California's tobacco litigation, which resulted in the $25.5 billion recovery for California and its local entities. Collins is currently counsel on the California Energy Manipulation antitrust litigation, the Memberworks upsell litigation, as well as a number of consumer actions alleging false and misleading advertising and unfair business practices against major corporations. He formerly served as a Deputy District Attorney for Imperial County where he was in charge of the Domestic Violence Unit.

Education

B.A., Sonoma State University, 1988; J.D., Thomas Jefferson School of Law, 1995

Vicki Multer Diamond | Of Counsel

Vicki Multer Diamond is Of Counsel to the Firm and is based in the Firm's Melville office. She has over 25 years of experience as an investigator and attorney. Her practice at the Firm focuses on the initiation, investigation, and prosecution of securities fraud class actions. Diamond played a significant role in the factual investigations and successful oppositions to the defendants' motions to dismiss in a number of cases, including Tableau, One Main, Valeant, and Orbital ATK.

Diamond has served as an investigative consultant to several prominent law firms, corporations, and investment firms. Before joining the Firm, she was an Assistant District Attorney in Brooklyn, New York, where she served as a senior Trial Attorney in the Felony Trial Bureau, and was special counsel to the Special Commissioner of Investigations for the New York City schools, where she investigated and prosecuted crime and corruption within the New York City school system.

Education

B.A., State University of New York at Binghamton, 1990; J.D., Hofstra University School of Law, 1993

Honors / Awards

Member, Hofstra Property Law Journal, Hofstra University School of Law

Michael J. Dowd | Of Counsel

Mike Dowd was a founding partner of the Firm. He has practiced in the area of securities litigation for 20 years, prosecuting dozens of complex securities cases and obtaining significant recoveries for investors in cases such as American Realty ($1.025 billion), UnitedHealth ($925 million), WorldCom ($657 million), AOL Time Warner ($629 million), Qwest ($445 million), Under Armour ($434 million), and Pfizer ($400 million).

Dowd served as lead trial counsel in Jaffe v. Household International in the Northern District of Illinois, a securities class action that obtained a record-breaking $1.575 billion settlement after 14 years of litigation, including a six-week jury trial in 2009 that resulted in a verdict for plaintiffs. Dowd also served as the lead trial lawyer in In re AT&T Corp. Sec. Litig., which was tried in the District of New Jersey and settled after only two weeks of trial for $100 million. Dowd served as an Assistant United States Attorney in the Southern District of California from 1987-1991, and again from 1994-1998, where he handled dozens of jury trials and was awarded the Director's Award for Superior Performance.

Education

B.A., Fordham University, 1981; J.D., University of Michigan Law School, 1984

Honors / Awards

Rated AV Preeminent by Martindale-Hubbell; Director's Award for Superior Performance, United States Attorney's Office; Best Lawyer in America, Best Lawyers®, 2015-2026; Recommended Lawyer, The Legal 500, 2016-2019, 2023-2025; Leading Plaintiff Financial Lawyer, Lawdragon, 2019-2025; Hon. David H. Bartick Award for Civility and Professionalism, U.S. District Court for the Southern District of California, 2024; Top Lawyer in San Diego, San Diego Magazine, 2013-2022; Southern California Best Lawyer, Best Lawyers®, 2015-2021; Super Lawyer, Super Lawyers Magazine, 2010-2020; Lawyer of the Year, Best Lawyers®, 2020; Hall of Fame, Lawdragon, 2018; Litigator of the Year, Our City San Diego, 2017; Leading Lawyer in America, Lawdragon, 2014-2016; Litigator of the Week, The American Lawyer, 2015; Litigation Star, Benchmark Litigation 2013; Directorship 100, NACD Directorship, 2012; Attorney of the Year, California Lawyer, 2010; Top 100 Lawyers, Daily Journal, 2009; B.A., Magna Cum Laude, Fordham University, 1981

Travis E. Downs III | Of Counsel

Travis Downs is Of Counsel to the Firm in the Firm's San Diego office. His areas of expertise include prosecution of shareholder and securities litigation, including complex shareholder derivative actions. Downs is a member of the Firm's Delaware Practice Group. Downs led a team of lawyers who successfully prosecuted over 65 stock option backdating derivative actions in federal and state courts across the country, resulting in hundreds of millions in financial givebacks for the plaintiffs and extensive corporate governance enhancements, including annual directors elections, majority voting for directors, and shareholder nomination of directors. Notable cases include: In re Community Health Sys., Inc. S'holder Derivative Litig. ($60 million in financial relief and unprecedented corporate governance reforms); In re Marvell Tech. Grp. Ltd. Derivative Litig. ($54 million in financial relief and extensive corporate governance enhancements); In re McAfee, Inc. Derivative Litig. ($30 million in financial relief and extensive corporate governance enhancements); In re Affiliated Computer Servs. Derivative Litig. ($30 million in financial relief and extensive corporate governance enhancements); In re KB Home S'holder Derivative Litig. ($30 million in financial relief and extensive corporate governance enhancements); In re Juniper Networks Derivative Litig. ($22.7 million in financial relief and extensive corporate governance enhancements); In re Nvidia Corp. Derivative Litig. ($15 million in financial relief and extensive corporate governance enhancements); and City of Pontiac Gen. Emps.' Ret. Sys. v. Langone (achieving landmark corporate governance reforms for investors).

Downs was also part of the litigation team that obtained a $67 million settlement in City of Westland Police & Fire Ret. Sys. v. Stumpf, a shareholder derivative action alleging that Wells Fargo participated in the mass-processing of home foreclosure documents by engaging in widespread robo-signing, and a $250 million settlement in In re Google, Inc. Derivative Litig., an action alleging that Google facilitated in the improper advertising of prescription drugs. Downs is a frequent speaker at conferences and seminars and has lectured on a variety of topics related to shareholder derivative and class action litigation.

Education

B.A., Whitworth University, 1985; J.D., University of Washington School of Law, 1990

Honors / Awards

Rated AV Preeminent by Martindale-Hubbell; Best Lawyer in America, Best Lawyers®, 2018-2026; Recommended Lawyer, The Legal 500, 2023-2024; Leading Plaintiff Financial Lawyer, Lawdragon, 2019-2024; Top 100 Leaders in Law Honoree, San Diego Business Journal, 2022; Top Lawyer in San Diego, San Diego Magazine, 2013-2022; Southern California Best Lawyer, Best Lawyers®, 2018-2021; Super Lawyer, Super Lawyers Magazine, 2008; B.A., Honors, Whitworth University, 1985

Christopher T. Gilroy | Of Counsel

Christopher Gilroy is Of Counsel in the Firm's Manhattan office. His practice focuses on complex securities litigation. Since joining the Firm, Gilroy has played a significant role in the following litigations: Landmen Partners, Inc. v. The Blackstone Grp., L.P ($85 million recovery on the eve of trial); In re OSG Sec. Litig. ($34 million recovery, representing 87% of the maximum Section 11 damages); City of Austin Police Ret. Sys. v. Kinross Gold Corp. ($33 million recovery); Citiline Holdings, Inc. v. iStar Fin. Inc. ($29 million recovery); City of Pontiac Gen. Emps. Ret. Sys. v. Lockheed Martin Corp. ($19.5 million recovery); Carpenters Pension Tr. Fund of St. Louis v. Barclays PLC ($14 million recovery); Beaver Cnty. Emps' Ret. Fund v. Tile Shop Holdings, Inc. ($9.5 million recovery); IBEW Loc. 90 Pension Fund v. Deutsche Bank AG (confidential settlement); In re Ply Gem Holdings, Inc., Sec. Litig. ($25.9 million recovery); In re BRF S.A. Sec. Litig. ($40 million recovery pending final approval); and In re SandRidge Energy, Inc. Sec. Litig. (successfully obtaining class certification in an ongoing litigation). Gilroy also performed an exhaustive factual investigation in In re Satcon Tech. Corp., on behalf of Satcon's Chapter 7 Bankruptcy Trustee, resulting in a seven-figure settlement in an action alleging breaches of fiduciary duties against former Satcon directors and officers.

Education

B.A., City University of New York at Queens College, 2005; J.D., Brooklyn Law School, 2010

Honors / Awards

Rising Star, Super Lawyers Magazine, 2019-2021; B.A., Cum Laude, City University of New York at Queens College, 2005

Richard W. Gonnello | Of Counsel

Richard Gonnello is Of Counsel in the Firm's Manhattan office. He has two decades of experience litigating complex securities actions.

Gonnello has successfully represented institutional and individual investors. He has obtained substantial recoveries in numerous securities class actions, including In re Royal Ahold Sec. Litig. (D. Md.) ($1.1 billion) and In re Tremont Sec. Law, State Law & Ins. Litig. (S.D.N.Y.) ($100 million). Gonnello has also obtained favorable recoveries for institutional investors pursuing direct opt-out claims, including cases against Qwest Communications International, Inc. ($175 million) and Tyco International Ltd ($21 million).

Gonnello has co-authored the following articles appearing in the New York Law Journal: "Staehr Hikes Burden of Proof to Place Investor on Inquiry Notice" and "Potential Securities Fraud: 'Storm Warnings' Clarified."

Education

B.A., Rutgers University, 1995; J.D., UCLA School of Law, 1998

Honors / Awards

B.A., Summa Cum Laude, Rutgers University, 1995

Mitchell D. Gravo | Of Counsel

Mitchell Gravo is Of Counsel to the Firm and is a member of the Firm's institutional investor client services group. With more than 30 years of experience as a practicing attorney, he serves as liaison to the Firm's institutional investor clients throughout the United States and Canada, advising them on securities litigation matters.

Gravo's clients include Anchorage Economic Development Corporation, Anchorage Convention and Visitors Bureau, UST Public Affairs, Inc., International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, Alaska Seafood International, Distilled Spirits Council of America, RIM Architects, Anchorage Police Department Employees Association, Fred Meyer, and the Automobile Manufacturer's Association. Prior to joining the Firm, he served as an intern with the Municipality of Anchorage, and then served as a law clerk to Superior Court Judge J. Justin Ripley.

Education

B.A., Ohio State University; J.D., University of San Diego School of Law

Bailie L. Heikkinen | Of Counsel

Bailie Heikkinen is Of Counsel in the Firm's Boca Raton office. Her practice focuses on complex class actions, including securities, corporate governance, and consumer fraud litigation.

Heikkinen has been an integral member of the litigation teams responsible for securing monetary recoveries on behalf of shareholders that collectively exceed $100 million. Notable cases include: Medoff v. CVS Caremark Corp., No. 1:09-cv-00554 (D.R.I.); City of Lakeland Emps. Pension Plan v. Baxter Int'l Inc., No. 1:10-cv-06016 (N.D. Ill.); Wong v. Accretive Health, Inc., No. 1:12-cv-03102 (N.D. Ill.); and Loc. 731 I.B. of T. Excavators & Pavers Pension Tr. Fund v. Swanson, No. 1:09-cv-00799 (D. Del.).

Education

B.A., University of Florida, 2004; J.D., South Texas College of Law, 2007

Honors / Awards

Best Lawyer in America: One to Watch, Best Lawyers®, 2023-2025; Rising Star, Super Lawyers Magazine, 2014, 2018

Dennis J. Herman | Of Counsel

Dennis Herman is Of Counsel in the Firm's San Francisco office where he focuses his practice on securities class actions. He has led or been significantly involved in the prosecution of numerous securities fraud claims that have resulted in substantial recoveries for investors, including settled actions against Massey Energy ($265 million), Coca-Cola ($137 million), VeriSign ($78 million), Psychiatric Solutions, Inc. ($65 million), St. Jude Medical, Inc. ($50 million), NorthWestern ($40 million), BancorpSouth ($29.5 million), America Service Group ($15 million), Specialty Laboratories ($12 million), Stellent ($12 million), and Threshold Pharmaceuticals ($10 million).

Education

B.S., Syracuse University, 1982; J.D., Stanford Law School, 1992

Honors / Awards

Best Lawyer in America, Best Lawyers®, 2018-2026; Northern Californa Best Lawyer, Best Lawyers®, 2018-2021; Super Lawyer, Super Lawyers Magazine, 2017-2018; Order of the Coif, Stanford Law School; Urban A. Sontheimer Award (graduating second in his class), Stanford Law School; Award-winning Investigative Newspaper Reporter and Editor in California and Connecticut

Helen J. Hodges | Of Counsel

Helen Hodges is Of Counsel in the Firm's San Diego office. She specializes in securities fraud litigation. Hodges has been involved in numerous securities class actions, including: Dynegy, which was settled for $474 million; Thurber v. Mattel, which was settled for $122 million; Nat'l Health Labs, which was settled for $64 million; and Knapp v. Gomez, Civ. No. 87-0067-H(M) (S.D. Cal.), in which a plaintiffs' verdict was returned in a Rule 10b-5 class action. Additionally, beginning in 2001, Hodges focused on the prosecution of Enron, where a record $7.2 billion recovery was obtained for investors.

Education

B.S., Oklahoma State University, 1979; J.D., University of Oklahoma, 1983

Honors / Awards

Rated AV by Martindale-Hubbell; Hall of Fame, Oklahoma State University, 2022; Top Lawyer in San Diego, San Diego Magazine, 2013-2022; served on the Oklahoma State University Foundation Board of Trustees, 2013-2021; Philanthropist of the Year, Women for OSU at Oklahoma State University, 2020; Super Lawyer, Super Lawyers Magazine, 2007

David J. Hoffa | Of Counsel

David Hoffa is Of Counsel in the Firm's Washington D.C. office. He has served as a liaison to over 110 institutional investors in portfolio monitoring, securities litigation, and claims filing matters. His practice focuses on providing a variety of legal and consulting services to U.S. state and municipal employee retirement systems and single and multi-employer U.S. Taft-Hartley benefit funds. In addition to serving as a leader on the Firm's Israel Institutional Investor Outreach Team, Hoffa also serves as a member of the Firm's lead plaintiff advisory team, and advises public and multi-employer pension funds around the country on issues related to fiduciary responsibility, legislative and regulatory updates, and "best practices" in the corporate governance of publicly traded companies.

Early in his legal career, Hoffa worked for a law firm based in Birmingham, Michigan, where he appeared regularly in Michigan state court in litigation pertaining to business, construction, and employment related matters. Hoffa has also appeared before the Michigan Court of Appeals on several occasions.

Education

B.A., Michigan State University, 1993; J.D., Michigan State University College of Law, 2000

Nancy M. Juda | Of Counsel

Nancy Juda is Of Counsel to the Firm and is based in the Firm's Washington, D.C. office. Her practice focuses on advising Taft-Hartley pension and welfare funds on issues related to corporate fraud in the United States securities markets. Juda's experience as an ERISA attorney provides her with unique insight into the challenges faced by pension fund trustees as they endeavor to protect and preserve their funds' assets.

Prior to joining Robbins Geller, Juda was employed by the United Mine Workers of America Health & Retirement Funds, where she began her practice in the area of employee benefits law. She was also associated with a union-side labor law firm in Washington, D.C., where she represented the trustees of Taft-Hartley pension and welfare funds on qualification, compliance, fiduciary, and transactional issues under ERISA and the Internal Revenue Code.

Using her extensive experience representing employee benefit funds, Juda advises trustees regarding their options for seeking redress for losses due to securities fraud. She currently advises trustees of funds providing benefits for members of unions affiliated with North America's Building Trades of the AFL-CIO. Juda also represents funds in ERISA class actions involving breach of fiduciary claims.

Education

B.A., St. Lawrence University, 1988; J.D., American University, 1992

Francis P. Karam | Of Counsel

Frank Karam is Of Counsel to the Firm and is based in the Firm's Melville office. Karam is a trial lawyer with 30 years of experience. His practice focuses on complex class action litigation involving shareholders' rights and securities fraud. He also represents a number of landowners and royalty owners in litigation against large energy companies. He has tried complex cases involving investment fraud and commercial fraud, both on the plaintiff and defense side, and has argued numerous appeals in state and federal courts. Throughout his career, Karam has tried more than 100 cases to verdict.

Karam has served as a partner at several prominent plaintiffs' securities firms. From 1984 to 1990, Karam was an Assistant District Attorney in the Bronx, New York, where he served as a senior Trial Attorney in the Homicide Bureau. He entered private practice in 1990, concentrating on trial and appellate work in state and federal courts.

Education

A.B., College of the Holy Cross; J.D., Tulane University School of Law

Honors / Awards

Super Lawyer, Super Lawyers Magazine, 2019-2025; "Who's Who" for Securities Lawyers, Corporate Governance Magazine, 2015

Arthur C. Leahy | Of Counsel

Art Leahy is a founding partner in the Firm's San Diego office and a member of the Firm's Management Committee. He has over 20 years of experience successfully litigating securities actions and derivative cases. Leahy has recovered well over two billion dollars for the Firm's clients and has negotiated comprehensive pro-investor corporate governance reforms at several large public companies. Most recently, Leahy helped secure a $272 million recovery on behalf of mortgage-backed securities investors in NECA-IBEW Health & Welfare Fund v. Goldman Sachs & Co. In the Goldman Sachs case, he helped achieve favorable decisions in the Second Circuit Court of Appeals on behalf of investors of Goldman Sachs mortgage-backed securities and again in the Supreme Court, which denied Goldman Sachs' petition for certiorari, or review, of the Second Circuit's reinstatement of the plaintiff's case. He was also part of the Firm's trial team in the AT&T securities litigation, which AT&T and its former officers paid $100 million to settle after two weeks of trial. Prior to joining the Firm, he served as a judicial extern for the Honorable J. Clifford Wallace of the United States Court of Appeals for the Ninth Circuit, and served as a judicial law clerk for the Honorable Alan C. Kay of the United States District Court for the District of Hawaii.

Education

B.A., Point Loma Nazarene University, 1987; J.D., University of San Diego School of Law, 1990

Honors / Awards

Rated AV Preeminent by Martindale-Hubbell; Best Lawyer in America, Best Lawyers®, 2024-2026; Top Lawyer in San Diego, San Diego Magazine, 2013-2022; Leading Plaintiff Financial Lawyer, Lawdragon, 2019-2021; Super Lawyer, Super Lawyers Magazine, 2016-2017; J.D., Cum Laude, University of San Diego School of Law, 1990; Managing Editor, San Diego Law Review, University of San Diego School of Law

Avital O. Malina | Of Counsel

Avital Malina is Of Counsel in the Firm's Melville office, where her practice focuses on complex securities litigation.

Malina has been recognized as a Rising Star by Super Lawyers Magazine for the New York Metro area numerous times. Before joining the Firm, she was an associate in the New York office of a large international law firm, where her practice focused on complex commercial litigations.

Education

B.A., Barnard College, 2005, J.D., Fordman University School of Law, 2009

Honors / Awards

Rising Star, Super Lawyers Magazine, 2015-2021; B.A., Magna Cum Laude, Barnard College, 2005

Jerry E. Martin | Of Counsel

Jerry Martin is Of Counsel in the Firm's Nashville office. He specializes in representing individuals who wish to blow the whistle to expose fraud and abuse committed by federal contractors, health care providers, tax cheats, or those who violate the securities laws. Martin was a member of the litigation team that obtained a $65 million recovery in Garden City Emps.' Ret. Sys. v. Psychiatric Solutions, Inc., the fourth-largest securities recovery ever in the Middle District of Tennessee and one of the largest in more than a decade.

Before joining the Firm, Martin served as the presidentially appointed United States Attorney for the Middle District of Tennessee from May 2010 to April 2013. As U.S. Attorney, he made prosecuting financial, tax, and health care fraud a top priority. During his tenure, Martin co-chaired the Attorney General's Advisory Committee's Health Care Fraud Working Group. Martin has been recognized as a national leader in combatting fraud and has addressed numerous groups and associations, such as Taxpayers Against Fraud and the National Association of Attorneys General, and was a keynote speaker at the American Bar Association's Annual Health Care Fraud Conference.

Education

B.A., Dartmouth College, 1996; J.D., Stanford University, 1999

Honors / Awards

Super Lawyer, Super Lawyers Magazine, 2016-2019

Ruby Menon | Of Counsel

Ruby Menon is Of Counsel to the Firm and is a member of the Firm's legal, advisory, and business development group. She also serves as the liaison to the Firm's many institutional investor clients in the United States and abroad.

Menon began her legal career as an Assistant Prosecuting Attorney, gaining extensive training in trials and litigation. Later, for over 12 years, she served as the Chief Legal Counsel to two large multi-employer retirement plans, developing her expertise in many areas of employee benefits and pension administration, including legislative initiatives and regulatory affairs, investments, tax, fiduciary compliance, and plan administration. During her career as Chief Legal Counsel, Menon was a frequent instructor for several certificate and training programs and seminars for pension fund trustees, administrators, and other key decision makers of pension and employee benefits plans. She is a member of various legal and professional organizations in the United States and abroad.

Menon currently serves as a co-chair on the National Association of Public Pension Attorneys Membership Committee and as a board member on the Corporate Advisory Committee of the National Council on Teacher Retirement (NCTR). She has previously served as an advisory board member for the Sovereign Wealth Fund Institute and as a committee member on the International Pension Employee & Benefits Lawyers Association. Menon also organized and participated in the ACAP Shareholder sessions in Singapore and Hong Kong.

Education

B.A., Indiana University, 1985; J.D., Indiana University School of Law, 1988

Honors / Awards

Global Plaintiff Lawyer, Lawdragon, 2024-2025

Sara B. Polychron | Of Counsel

Sara Polychron is Of Counsel in the Firm's San Diego office, where her practice focuses on complex securities litigation. She is part of the litigation team prosecuting actions against investment banks and the leading credit rating agencies for their role in the structuring and rating of residential mortgage-backed securities and their subsequent collapse.

Sara earned her Bachelor of Arts degree with honors from the University of Minnesota, where she studied Sociology with an emphasis in Criminology and Law. As an undergraduate she interned with the Hennepin County Attorney's Office, where she advocated for victims of domestic violence and assisted in sentencing negotiations in Juvenile Court. Sara received her Juris Doctor degree from the University of San Diego School of Law, where she was the recipient of two academic scholarships. While in law school, she interned with the Center for Public Interest Law and was a contributing author and assistant editor to the California Regulatory Law Reporter. She also worked as a legal research assistant at the law school and clerked for two San Diego law firms.

Education

B.A., University of Minnesota, 1999; J.D., University of San Diego School of Law, 2005

Svenna Prado | Of Counsel

Svenna Prado is Of Counsel in the Firm's San Diego office, where she focuses on various aspects of international securities and consumer litigation. She was part of the litigation teams that secured settlements against German defendant IKB, as well as Deutsche Bank and Deutsche Bank/West LB for their role in structuring residential mortgage-backed securities and their subsequent collapse. Before joining the Firm, Prado was Head of the Legal Department for a leading international staffing agency in Germany where she focused on all aspects of employment litigation and corporate governance. After she moved to the United States, Prado worked with an internationally oriented German law firm as Counsel to corporate clients establishing subsidiaries in the United States and Germany. As a law student, Prado worked directly for several years for one of the appointed Trustees winding up Eastern German operations under receivership in the aftermath of the German reunification. Utilizing her experience in this area of law, Prado later helped many clients secure successful outcomes in U.S. Bankruptcy Court.

Education

J.D., University of Erlangen-Nuremberg, Germany, 1996; Qualification for Judicial Office, Upper Regional Court Nuremberg, Germany, 1998; New York University, "U.S. Law and Methodologies," 2001

Harini P. Raghupathi | Of Counsel

Harini Raghupathi is Of Counsel in the Firm's San Diego office. She is a member of the Firm's Appellate Practice Group.

Before joining the Firm, Harini represented victims of serious injury in federal and state appellate courts. Her practice areas included mass torts, consumer protection, and civil rights. Additionally, for over a decade, Harini served as a federal public defender specializing in appeals. In that role, she obtained multiple published reversals on behalf of her clients.

In 2012, The Recorder named Harini an "Attorney of the Year" for her successful appeal in United States v. Leal-Del Carmen, 697 F.3d 964 (9th Cir. 2012). Harini serves as the Chair of the Ninth Circuit Advisory Committee on Rules of Practice. She is also a member of the San Diego Appellate Inn of Court and a volunteer-mentor with The Appellate Project.

Education

B.S., Stanford University, 2004; J.D., University of California, Berkeley School of Law, 2007

Honors / Awards

Attorney of the Year, The Recorder, 2012

Andrew T. Rees | Of Counsel

Andrew Rees is Of Counsel in the Firm's Boca Raton office. His practice focuses on complex class actions, including securities, corporate governance and consumer fraud litigation. He was on the litigation team that successfully obtained a $146.25 million recovery in Nieman v. Duke Energy Corp., which is the largest recovery in North Carolina for a case involving securities fraud and one of the five largest recoveries in the Fourth Circuit.

Before joining the Firm, Rees worked as an associate in the Washington, D.C. office of Hogan & Hartson LLP, where he practiced in the area of commercial transactions, including financings, stock purchases, asset acquisitions and mergers.

Education

B.A., Pennsylvania State University, 1997; J.D., William and Mary School of Law, 2002

Honors / Awards

Best Lawyer in America: One to Watch, Best Lawyers®, 2024-2025

Jack Reise | Of Counsel

Jack Reise is Of Counsel in the Firm's Boca Raton office. Devoted to protecting the rights of those who have been harmed by corporate misconduct, his practice focuses on class action litigation (including securities fraud, shareholder derivative actions, consumer protection, antitrust, and unfair and deceptive insurance practices). Reise also dedicates a substantial portion of his practice to representing shareholders in actions brought under the federal securities laws. He is currently serving as lead counsel in more than a dozen cases nationwide. Most recently, Reise and a team of Robbins Geller attorneys obtained a $1.21 billion settlement in In re Valeant Pharms. Int'l, Inc. Sec. Litig. (D.N.J.), a case that Vanity Fair reported as "the corporate scandal of its era" that had raised "fundamental questions about the functioning of our health-care system, the nature of modern markets, and the slippery slope of ethical rationalizations." This is the largest securities class action settlement against a pharmaceutical manufacturer and the ninth largest ever. As lead counsel, Reise has also represented investors in a series of cases involving mutual funds charged with improperly valuating their net assets, which settled for a total of more than $50 million. Other notable actions include: In re NewPower Holdings, Inc. Sec. Litig. (S.D.N.Y.) ($41 million settlement); In re ADT Inc. S'holder Litig. (Fla. Cir. Ct., 15th Jud. Cir.) ($30 million settlement); In re Red Hat, Inc. Sec. Litig. (E.D.N.C.) ($20 million settlement); and In re AFC Enters., Inc. Sec. Litig. (N.D. Ga.) ($17.2 million settlement).

Education

B.A., Binghamton University, 1992; J.D., University of Miami School of Law, 1995

Honors / Awards

Leading Plaintiff Financial Lawyer, Lawdragon, 2019-2022; American Jurisprudence Book Award in Contracts; J.D., Cum Laude, University of Miami School of Law, 1995; University of Miami Inter-American Law Review, University of Miami School of Law

Kevin S. Sciarani | Of Counsel

Kevin Sciarani is Of Counsel to the Firm and his practice focuses on complex securities litigation.

Kevin was a member of the litigation team that obtained a $300 million recovery in Purple Mountain Trust v. Wells Fargo & Company, which was reached while the parties were preparing for trial. He was also part of the litigation team in Karinski v. Stamps.com, Inc., which secured a $100 million recovery for investors.

Kevin earned Bachelor of Science and Bachelor of Arts degrees from the University of California, San Diego. He graduated magna cum laude from the University of California, Hastings College of the Law with a Juris Doctor degree. During law school, Kevin interned for the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission and the Antitrust Section of the California Department of Justice. In his final semester, he served as an extern to the Honorable Susan Illston of the United States District Court for the Northern District of California. Kevin also received recognition for his pro bono assistance to tenants living in bank-owned foreclosed residential properties due to the subprime mortgage crisis.

Education

B.S., B.A., University of California, San Diego, 2005; J.D., University of California, Hastings College of the Law, 2014

Honors / Awards

J.D., Magna Cum Laude, Order of the Coif, University of California, Hastings College of the Law, 2014; CALI Excellence Award, Senior Articles Editor, Hastings Law Journal, University of California, Hastings College of the Law

Leonard B. Simon | Of Counsel

Leonard Simon is Of Counsel in the Firm's San Diego office. His practice has been devoted to litigation in the federal courts, including both the prosecution and the defense of major class actions and other complex litigation in the securities and antitrust fields. Simon has also handled a substantial number of complex appellate matters, arguing cases in the United States Supreme Court, several federal Courts of Appeals, and several California appellate courts. He has also represented large, publicly traded corporations. Simon served as plaintiffs' co-lead counsel in In re Am. Cont'l Corp./Lincoln Sav. & Loan Sec. Litig., MDL No. 834 (D. Ariz.) (settled for $240 million), and In re NASDAQ Market-Makers Antitrust Litig., MDL No. 1023 (S.D.N.Y.) (settled for more than $1 billion). He was also in a leadership role in several of the state court antitrust cases against Microsoft, and the state court antitrust cases challenging electric prices in California. He was centrally involved in the prosecution of In re Washington Pub. Power Supply Sys. Sec. Litig., MDL No. 551 (D. Ariz.), the largest securities class action ever litigated.

Simon is an Adjunct Professor of Law at Duke University, the University of San Diego, and the University of Southern California Law Schools. He has lectured extensively on securities, antitrust, and complex litigation in programs sponsored by the American Bar Association Section of Litigation, the Practicing Law Institute, and ALI-ABA, and at the UCLA Law School, the University of San Diego Law School, and the Stanford Business School. He is an Editor of California Federal Court Practice and has authored a law review article on the PSLRA.

Education

B.A., Union College, 1970; J.D., Duke University School of Law, 1973

Honors / Awards

Rated AV Preeminent by Martindale-Hubbell; Top Lawyer in San Diego, San Diego Magazine, 2016-2022; Super Lawyer, Super Lawyers Magazine, 2008-2016; J.D., Order of the Coif and with Distinction, Duke University School of Law, 1973

Megan M. Sonney | Of Counsel

Megan Sonney is Of Counsel to the Firm and is based in the San Diego office, where her practice focuses on securities fraud litigation.

Most recently, Sonney was a member of the litigation team that obtained a $434 million settlement in In re Under Armour Sec. Litig. The case settled just prior to the commencement of trial in Baltimore, Maryland, and represents the second largest securities fraud settlement ever in the Fourth Circuit and is among the top 50 largest such recoveries in U.S. history.

Education

B.A., Point Loma Nazarene University, 2007; J.D., University of San Diego School of Law, 2011

Honors / Awards

B.A., cum laude, Point Loma Nazarene University, 2007

Laura S. Stein | Of Counsel

Laura Stein is Of Counsel in the Firm's Philadelphia office. Since 1995, she has practiced in the areas of securities class action litigation, complex litigation, and legislative law. Stein has served as one of the Firm's and the nation's top asset recovery experts with a focus on minimizing losses suffered by shareholders due to corporate fraud and breaches of fiduciary duty. She also seeks to deter future violations of federal and state securities laws by reinforcing the standards of good corporate governance. Stein works with over 500 institutional investors across the nation and abroad, and her clients have served as lead plaintiff in successful cases where billions of dollars were recovered for defrauded investors against such companies as: Alphabet, Apple, AOL Time Warner, TYCO, Cardinal Health, AT&T, Hanover Compressor, 1st Bancorp, Enron, Dynegy, Inc., Honeywell International, Bridgestone, LendingClub, Orbital ATK, Under Armour, and Walmart, to name a few. Many of the cases led by Stein's clients have accomplished groundbreaking corporate governance achievements, including obtaining shareholder-nominated directors. She is a frequent presenter and educator on securities fraud monitoring, litigation, and corporate governance.

Education

B.A., University of Pennsylvania, 1992; J.D., University of Pennsylvania Law School, 1995

Honors / Awards

Leading Plaintiff Financial Lawyer, Lawdragon, 2024-2025

John J. Stoia, Jr. | Of Counsel

John Stoia is Of Counsel to the Firm and is based in the Firm's San Diego office. He is one of the founding partners and former managing partner of the Firm. He focuses his practice on insurance fraud, consumer fraud, and securities fraud class actions. Stoia has been responsible for over $10 billion in recoveries on behalf of victims of insurance fraud due to deceptive sales practices such as "vanishing premiums" and "churning." He has worked on dozens of nationwide complex securities class actions, including In re Am. Cont'l Corp./Lincoln Sav. & Loan Sec. Litig., which arose out of the collapse of Lincoln Savings & Loan and Charles Keating's empire. Stoia was a member of the plaintiffs' trial team that obtained verdicts against Keating and his co-defendants in excess of $3 billion and settlements of over $240 million.

He also represented numerous large institutional investors who suffered hundreds of millions of dollars in losses as a result of major financial scandals, including AOL Time Warner and WorldCom. Currently, Stoia is lead counsel in numerous cases against online discount voucher companies for violations of both federal and state laws including violation of state gift card statutes.

Education

B.S., University of Tulsa, 1983; J.D., University of Tulsa, 1986; LL.M., Georgetown University Law Center, 1987

Honors / Awards

Rated AV Preeminent by Martindale-Hubbell; Top Lawyer in San Diego, San Diego Magazine, 2013-2022; Super Lawyer, Super Lawyers Magazine, 2007-2017; Litigator of the Month, The National Law Journal, July 2000; LL.M. Top of Class, Georgetown University Law Center

Michael A. Troncoso | Of Counsel

Michael Troncoso is Of Counsel to the Firm. His practice focuses on securities fraud class action litigation and other affirmative litigation. Prior to joining the Firm, Troncoso served as a prosecutor, senior in-house counsel, and legal and policy advisor across numerous sectors. He served as chief counsel and chief of public policy to then-California Attorney General Kamala D. Harris, overseeing the office's priority litigation, enforcement, and legislative matters. In this role, he served as lead counsel for the State of California in securing the National Mortgage Settlement, the largest consumer financial protection settlement in state history that brought $20 billion in loan relief and direct payments to California homeowners. He led the state's Mortgage Fraud Task Force and its investigations of securities law violations arising from the issuance of residential mortgage-backed securities. His team recovered nearly $1 billion in RMBS-related losses for California public pension funds.

Earlier in his career, Troncoso served for nearly six years as a trial attorney and assistant chief attorney for policy in the San Francisco District Attorney's office, where he tried multiple criminal cases to jury verdict and led the office's mortgage and investment fraud team, where he was responsible for investigating and prosecuting complex financial crimes from initial report through charging and trial.

Troncoso most recently served as Vice President at the Chan Zuckerberg Initiative, a philanthropic organization, where he led bipartisan policy and advocacy efforts nationwide. He also served in the University of California's Office of General Counsel as managing counsel for health affairs and technology law and chief campus counsel, where he oversaw various litigation, regulatory, and data protection matters.

Education

B.A., University of California at Berkeley, 1999; J.D., Georgetown University Law Center, 2002

Honors / Awards

Top 20 Under 40, Daily Journal, 2012

David C. Walton | Of Counsel

David Walton was a founding partner of the Firm. For over 25 years, he has prosecuted class actions and private actions on behalf of defrauded investors, particularly in the area of accounting fraud. He has investigated and participated in the litigation of highly complex accounting scandals within some of America's largest corporations, including Enron ($7.2 billion), HealthSouth ($671 million), WorldCom ($657 million), AOL Time Warner ($629 million), Countrywide ($500 million), and Dynegy ($474 million), as well as numerous companies implicated in stock option backdating.

Walton is a member of the Bar of California, a Certified Public Accountant (California 1992), and is fluent in Spanish. In 2003-2004, he served as a member of the California Board of Accountancy, which is responsible for regulating the accounting profession in California.

Education

B.A., University of Utah, 1988; J.D., University of Southern California Law Center, 1993

Honors / Awards

Recommended Lawyer, The Legal 500, 2019; Super Lawyer, Super Lawyers Magazine, 2015-2016; California Board of Accountancy, Member, 2003-2004; Southern California Law Review, Member, University of Southern California Law Center; Hale Moot Court Honors Program, University of Southern California Law Center

Jai Chandrasekhar | Counsel

Jai Chandrasekhar is Counsel in the Firm's Manhattan office. Chandrasekhar's background includes the rare combination of experience as a plaintiffs' lawyer and as a corporate lawyer. Chandrasekhar has been representing plaintiffs for 20 years in securities fraud cases that have recovered more than $1.8 billion for investors.

Chandrasekhar's cases in courts across the country have resulted in many outstanding securities litigation recoveries for shareholders, including the Refco securities litigation ($367.3 million recovered for shareholders), the MF Global Holdings securities litigation ($234.3 million recovered for shareholders), the Luckin Coffee securities litigation ($175 million recovered for shareholders), and the JPMorgan Chase ("London Whale") securities litigation ($150 million recovered for shareholders), among others.

Chandrasekhar also advises institutional and other investors about how best to enforce their rights as shareholders in the United States and abroad.

Earlier in his career, Chandrasekhar was an associate at Sullivan & Cromwell, where he represented securities issuers and underwriters in public and private offerings, Securities and Exchange Commission reporting and compliance, and corporate governance matters. He then served as a staff attorney in the Enforcement Division of the Securities and Exchange Commission's New York office.

Education

B.A., Yale University, 1987; J.D., Yale Law School, 1997

Bruce Gamble | Special Counsel

Bruce Gamble is Special Counsel to the Firm in the Firm's Washington D.C. office and is a member of the Firm's institutional investor client services group. He serves as liaison with the Firm's institutional investor clients in the United States and abroad, advising them on securities litigation matters. Gamble formerly served as Of Counsel to the Firm, providing a broad array of highly specialized legal and consulting services to public retirement plans. Before working with Robbins Geller, Gamble was General Counsel and Chief Compliance Officer for the District of Columbia Retirement Board, where he served as chief legal advisor to the Board of Trustees and staff. Gamble's experience also includes serving as Chief Executive Officer of two national trade associations and several senior level staff positions on Capitol Hill.

Education

B.S., University of Louisville, 1979; J.D., Georgetown University Law Center, 1989

Honors / Awards

Executive Board Member, National Association of Public Pension Attorneys, 2000-2006; American Banker selection as one of the most promising U.S. bank executives under 40 years of age, 1992

R. Steven Aronica | Forensic Accountant

Steven Aronica is a Certified Public Accountant licensed in the States of New York and Georgia and is a member of the American Institute of Certified Public Accountants, the Institute of Internal Auditors, and the Association of Certified Fraud Examiners. Aronica has been instrumental in the prosecution of numerous financial and accounting fraud civil litigation claims against companies that include Lucent Technologies, Tyco, Oxford Health Plans, Computer Associates, Aetna, WorldCom, Vivendi, AOL Time Warner, Ikon, Doral Financial, First BanCorp, Acclaim Entertainment, Pall Corporation, iStar Financial, Hibernia Foods, NBTY, Tommy Hilfiger, Lockheed Martin, the Blackstone Group, and Motorola. In addition, he assisted in the prosecution of numerous civil claims against the major United States public accounting firms.

Aronica has been employed in the practice of financial accounting for more than 30 years, including public accounting, where he was responsible for providing clients with a wide range of accounting and auditing services; the investment bank Drexel Burnham Lambert, Inc., where he held positions with accounting and financial reporting responsibilities; and at the SEC, where he held various positions in the divisions of Corporation Finance and Enforcement and participated in the prosecution of both criminal and civil fraud claims.

Education

B.B.A., University of Georgia, 1979

Andrew J. Rudolph | Forensic Accountant

Andrew Rudolph is the Director of the Firm's Forensic Accounting Department, which provides in-house forensic accounting expertise in connection with securities fraud litigation against national and foreign companies. He has directed hundreds of financial statement fraud investigations, which were instrumental in recovering billions of dollars for defrauded investors. Prominent cases include Qwest, HealthSouth, WorldCom, Boeing, Honeywell, Vivendi, Aurora Foods, Informix, Platinum Software, AOL Time Warner, and UnitedHealth.

Rudolph is a Certified Fraud Examiner and a Certified Public Accountant licensed to practice in California. He is an active member of the American Institute of Certified Public Accountants, California's Society of Certified Public Accountants, and the Association of Certified Fraud Examiners. His 20 years of public accounting, consulting, and forensic accounting experience includes financial fraud investigation, auditor malpractice, auditing of public and private companies, business litigation consulting, due diligence investigations, and taxation.

Education

B.A., Central Connecticut State University, 1985

Christopher Yurcek | Forensic Accountant

Christopher Yurcek is the Assistant Director of the Firm's Forensic Accounting Department, which provides in-house forensic accounting and litigation expertise in connection with major securities fraud litigation. He has directed the Firm's forensic accounting efforts on numerous high-profile cases, including In re Enron Corp. Sec. Litig. and Jaffe v. Household Int'l, Inc., which obtained a record-breaking $1.575 billion settlement after 14 years of litigation, including a six-week jury trial in 2009 that resulted in a verdict for plaintiffs. Other prominent cases include HealthSouth, UnitedHealth, Vesta, Informix, Mattel, Coca-Cola, and Media Vision.

Yurcek has over 20 years of accounting, auditing, and consulting experience in areas including financial statement audit, forensic accounting and fraud investigation, auditor malpractice, turn-around consulting, business litigation, and business valuation. He is a Certified Public Accountant licensed in California, holds a Certified in Financial Forensics (CFF) Credential from the American Institute of Certified Public Accountants, and is a member of the California Society of CPAs and the Association of Certified Fraud Examiners.

Education

B.A., University of California, Santa Barbara, 1985

EXHIBIT B

B & R Supermarket, Inc., d/b/a Milam's Market v. VISA, Inc., et al. No. 1:17-cv-02738-BMC-JAM

Firm Name: Robbins Geller Rudman & Dowd LLP
Reporting Period: Inception through July 11, 2017

Categories:
(1) Factual Investigation
(2) Legal Research
(3) Litigation Strategy & Analysis
(4) Draft Initial or Amended Complaint
(5) Discovery
(6) Document Review
(7) Other Pleadings, Briefs and Pretrial Motions
(8) Fact Depositions
(9) Mediation, Settlement Negotiations, Documentation, Preliminary/Final Approval of Settlement and POA
(10) Court Appearance & Preparation
(11) Client/Shareholder Communication

Name		1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9	10	11	Hours	Rate	Lodestar
Bays, Lea M.	(P)			1.50		57.75							59.25	970	$ 57,472.50
Bernay, Alexandra S.	(P)	23.00	5.50	535.55	111.50	527.90	4.00	428.40		31.00	23.50	10.50	1,700.85	1045	1,777,388.25
Egler, Thomas E.	(P)			2.60		123.90	18.00						144.50	1140	164,730.00
Lau, Angel P.	(P)	34.90		5.80	54.10	249.60	34.40	112.30			9.40		500.50	760	380,380.00
Medici, Carmen Anthony	(P)	15.80	7.50	362.90	54.90	372.30	4.00	196.40		38.00	8.50	5.10	1,065.40	850	905,590.00
Lonnie Browne	(A)			9.35	37.80	395.15	0.55	238.40	4.00		33.90	2.65	721.80	625	451,125.00
Wintemute, Lion A.	(A)	4.50				46.50	169.45						220.45	490	108,020.50
Zohrabian, Armen	(A)			1,652.00		16.00		227.25			11.75		1,907.00	630	1,201,410.00
Bandman, Randi D.	(OC)	8.00		3.10	1.40	31.50		4.60			5.40		54.00	1195	64,530.00
Coughlin, Patrick J.	(OC)	33.75	36.00	330.00	39.75	3.00		64.00		3.00	14.25		523.75	1430	748,962.50
Mikolajczyk, Eugene	(OC)					663.00							663.00	460	304,980.00
Espinosa, Jorge F.	(SA)						1,397.50						1,397.50	400	559,000.00
Petix, Andrew T.	(SA)			142.10		556.80	615.90						1,314.80	400	525,920.00
Algover, Endre J.	(PA)						373.75						373.75	300	112,125.00
Chang, Jerome D.	(PA)						346.00						346.00	300	103,800.00
Dizon, Jr, Rommel D.	(PA)						1,334.80						1,334.80	300	400,440.00
Li, Michael S.	(PA)					8.00	1,394.95						1,402.95	300	420,885.00
Marasco, Laura Ann	(PA)					7.25	770.70						777.95	300	233,385.00
McCue, Charles T.	(PA)			2.20		100.90							103.10	300	30,930.00
Schaller, J. Scott	(PA)						537.75						537.75	300	161,325.00
Sterling, Voltaire R.	(PA)					8.00	1,378.70						1,386.70	300	416,010.00
Brandon, Kelley T.	(I)	36.00											36.00	250	9,000.00
Browning, Aaron C.	(LS)					49.25							49.25	250	12,312.50
Camozzi, Miranda C.	(LS)					23.00							23.00	250	5,750.00
Eivazian, Lindsay	(LS)					196.95							196.95	250	49,237.50
Guyer, Nicole	(LS)					215.25	4.00						219.25	250	54,812.50
Lee, Alexander J.	(LS)					47.00							47.00	250	11,750.00
Torres, Michael	(LS)	0.50		15.75		8.50	0.75						25.50	250	6,375.00
Bacci, Melissa A.	(PL)					0.50		27.50					28.00	350	9,800.00
Chateauneuf, Stephanie T.	(PL)				2.00	447.00		146.25					595.25	435	258,933.75
Kopko, Christina S.	(PL)			19.75		21.50		211.50					252.75	435	109,946.25
McCormack, Kirsten M.	(PL)	25.00			5.50			1.00					31.50	435	13,702.50
Morris, Sarah A.	(PL)					2.00		16.50			3.50		22.00	435	9,570.00
Wallbrett, Michele M.	(PL)	2.75		7.50		9.50		63.50		2.00			85.25	350	29,837.50

B & R Supermarket, Inc., d/b/a Milam's Market v. VISA, Inc., et al. No. 1:17-cv-02738-BMC-JAM

Firm Name: Robbins Geller Rudman & Dowd LLP
Reporting Period: Inception through July 11, 2017

Categories:
(1) Factual Investigation
(2) Legal Research
(3) Litigation Strategy & Analysis
(4) Draft Initial or Amended Complaint
(5) Discovery
(6) Document Review
(7) Other Pleadings, Briefs and Pretrial Motions
(8) Fact Depositions
(9) Mediation, Settlement Negotiations, Documentation, Preliminary/Final Approval of Settlement and POA
(10) Court Appearance & Preparation
(11) Client/Shareholder Communication

Name		1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9	10	11	Hours	Rate	Lodestar
Chandiwalla, Nazia	(DC)					25.50							25.50	165	4,207.50
Ki, Wooseok	(DC)					125.00							125.00	165	20,625.00
Mathiopoulos, Andrea A.	(DC)					46.25							46.25	165	7,631.25
Price, Amanda E.	(DC)					86.00							86.00	165	14,190.00
Santana, Andres	(DC)		2.00			20.50	15.00						37.50	165	6,187.50
Wood, Greg A.	(SR)											28.50	28.50	115	3,277.50
TOTAL:		184.20	51.00	3,090.10	306.95	4,491.25	8,400.20	1,737.60	4.00	74.00	110.20	46.75	18,496.25		$ 9,765,555.00

(P) Partner
(A) Associate
(OC) Of Counsel
(SA) Staff Attorney
(PA) Project Attorney
(I) Investigator
(LS) Litigation Support
(LC) Law Clerk
(PL) Paralegal
(DC) Document Clerk
(SR) Shareholder Relations

EXHIBIT C

EXHIBIT C

B & R Supermarket, Inc., d/b/a Milam's Market v. VISA, Inc., et al.,
No. 1:17-cv-02738-BMC-JAM
Robbins Geller Rudman & Dowd LLP
Expense Summary
Inception through September 30, 2018

CATEGORY		AMOUNT
Filing and Attorney Service Fees		$ 14,845.50
Business Wire/PR Newswire		1,350.00
Transportation, Hotels, and Meals		115,039.17
In-House Telephone		1,586.20
Postage		263.69
Messenger/Overnight Delivery		6,470.18
IT Equip. for Litigation Support Production		1,178.28
Court Hearing Transcripts and Deposition Reporting, Transcripts and Videography		47,649.00
Experts, Consultants, and Investigators		273,363.18
Litinomics, Inc.	$ 186,601.22
Micah S. Officer	57,426.46
Civil Action Group, Ltd.	14,808.50
Anadyne Holdings, Inc.	10,239.00
Mason Investigative Group, Inc.	4,288.00
Photocopies		25,805.07
Outside	21,739.87
In-House Black and White (26,478 copies at $0.15 per page)	3,971.70
In-House Color (187 copies at $0.50 per page)	93.50
Online Legal and Financial Research		18,640.53
eDiscovery Database Hosting		228,734.48
Database Analytics		27,760.50
Mediation Fees (Jams Inc.)		15,080.00
Publication and Subscriptions		4,219.45
TOTAL		$ 781,985.23

EXHIBIT 2

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
EASTERN DISTRICT OF NEW YORK

B & R SUPERMARKET, INC., d/b/a MILAM'S MARKET, a Florida corporation, et al., Individually and on Behalf of All Others Similarly Situated, Plaintiff, v. VISA, INC., et al., Defendants.	:	Case No. 1:17-cv-02738-BMC-JAM CLASS ACTION

DECLARATION OF JOHN W. DEVINE ON BEHALF OF DEVINE, GOODMAN & RASCO, LLP IN SUPPORT OF PLAINTIFFS' MOTION FOR ATTORNEYS' FEES, EXPENSES, AND SERVICE AWARDS

I, JOHN W. DEVINE, declare as follows:

1. I am a partner with the law firm Devine Goodman & Rasco, LLP ("DG&R" or the "Firm"), and one of the counsel of record for plaintiffs B & R Supermarket, Inc. (d/b/a Milam's Market) ("B & R"), Grove Liquors LLC ("Grove"), Strouk Group LLC (d/b/a Monsieur Marcel), and Palero Food Corp. and Cagueyes Food Corp. (d/b/a Fine Fare Supermarket) (collectively, "Plaintiffs" or "Class Representatives") in the above-captioned action ("Action"). I have been a member of The Florida Bar since October 7, 1987 (Florida Bar number 708607). I am admitted, pro hac vice, to practice before this Honorable Court in this Action, and to the United States District Court for the Southern District of Florida, and to the United States Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit. I have personal knowledge of the matters set forth herein, based on my participation in the prosecution and settlement of this Action. If called upon, I could and would competently testify that the following facts are true and correct based on my personal involvement in the litigation.

2. I provide this declaration in support of Plaintiffs' Motion for Attorneys' Fees, Expenses, and Service Awards (the "Motion").

3. In early 2016, B & R and Grove, longtime clients of the Firm, alerted us to a growing problem. The four credit card networks—Mastercard International Incorporated ("Mastercard"), Visa, Inc. and Visa U.S.A., Inc. ("Visa"), American Express Company ("Amex"), and Discover Financial Services ("Discover") (collectively, the "Networks")—rolled out a new chip card technology in the United States aimed at reducing fraud. To realize the benefits of the new chip card technology, however, merchants had to upgrade their point-of-sale equipment to work with the new chip cards. In connection with the transition, the Networks each imposed a Fraud Liability Shift ("FLS"), effective October 2015, which shifted certain fraud losses from card issuers to merchants. With the addition of new chip card technology in the credit cards used by their customers, and the concurrent shortage of point-of-sale devices equipped to read the chip cards, combined with the Networks' new FLS policy regarding chargebacks on unread chip cards, B & R and Grove were experiencing a manyfold increase in costly chargebacks.

4. Our research soon revealed that this problem was ubiquitous across broad swaths of the retail sector and especially affected smaller retailers who had less access to the tightly limited supply of chip-card-compatible point-of-sale devices. In short, we determined that many retailers could not make the point-of-sale equipment upgrades to work with the new chip cards prior to October 2015 and, therefore, fraud costs were shifted from the card issuers to the merchants pursuant to the FLS, which was imposed unilaterally by the Networks.

5. With our clients B & R and Grove (now Class Representatives), we determined to take action to recover for their losses.

6. Beginning in January 2016, my firm undertook the representation of Plaintiffs and the Class on an entirely contingent basis. We have been actively involved in the case since its outset, working with co-counsel—first Robbins Geller Rudman & Dowd LLP, and then Robbins LLP (now Class Counsel).

7. Over the nine and a half years of litigation on behalf of the Class, my Firm has staffed this Action with four professionals: three partners, and one paralegal. Each of the three partners working on the Action had decades of experience as did our paralegal.

8. DG&R and I have significant experience in class actions that advanced consumer and privacy rights since the Firm's founding in 1998. In the consumer area, we achieved successful results in cases involving bank overdraft charge abuses (In Re: Checking Account Overdraft Litigation MDL No. 2036 Anderson v. Compass Bank, Case No. 1:09-MD-02036-JLK, S.D. Fla.)

and lender and loan servicing abuses (Coppolo v. Discover Financial Services, Inc., Case No. 99-0856-Civ-(Moreno/Brown), S.D. Fla.; Spund v. Associates Financial Services Company, Inc., Case No. 00-19306-CA-25 in the Circuit Court of the 11th Judicial Circuit in and for Miami-Dade County, Florida; Koffler v. Fairbanks Capital Corp., Case No. 02-12557-CA-01 in the Circuit Court of the 11th Judicial Circuit in and for Miami-Dade County, Florida; and Curry v. Fairbanks Capital Corp., Case No. 03-10895 DPW, D. Mass.). In addition, we protected privacy rights of Florida residents in class actions against data aggregators and Florida Department of Highway Safety and Motor Vehicles employees for obtaining, using, and conveying personal information of Florida-licensed drivers in violation of the Drivers Privacy Protection Act (Brooks v. Softech International, Inc., Case No. 03-61063-Civ-Martinez/Dube, S.D. Fla.; Collier v. Dickinson, Case No. 04-21351-Civ-Martinez, S.D. Fla.; and Fresco v. R.L. Polk & Co., Case No. 07-60695-Civ-Martinez/Brown, S.D. Fla.). In addition to my involvement in the Firm's class actions identified above, I practice in the real estate and corporate areas. I am a founding partner of DG&R.

9. I am familiar with the practice and experience of my former partners Lawrence D. Goodman, Esq. and Robert J. Kuntz, Jr., Esq., who both worked on this Action. Mr. Goodman was very involved in each of the aforementioned class action cases as well as this Action. He was admitted to The Florida Bar in 1987, and was a founding partner of DG&R. He had significant experience in class actions prior to his founding of the Firm, and his practice included commercial litigation. Mr. Goodman passed away on January 1, 2019, following a brief illness.

10. Robert J. Kuntz, Esq. is a seasoned commercial litigator who joined the Firm in 2002 from the Miami office of a national firm. He was admitted to The Florida Bar in 1996. Mr. Kuntz left the firm in 2022.

11. Our paralegal, Susan Mallet, who joined the firm in 2010, had decades of experience in commercial litigation. Her experience with ESI made Ms. Mallet ideally skilled to work on the vast amount of ESI that the Action generated. Ms. Mallet left the firm in 2022.

12. DG&R attorneys and para-professionals performed numerous tasks in this case, including but not limited to the following:

(a) Investigation of the case, including the Fraud Liability Shift, and extensive due diligence regarding the defendants and other components of the payment card industry, including issuers, acquirers, and trade groups;

(b) Review of documents produced by the defendants and third parties;

(c) Extensive legal research of relevant law, including the Sherman Antitrust Act, the Clayton Antitrust Act, and state law causes of action, and case law interpreting such laws, procedural and discovery issues, and dispositive motions;

(d) Preparation, drafting and revisions to the complaint and amended complaint;

(e) Preparation, drafting and revisions to the motions for class certification;

(f) Preparation, drafting and revisions to discovery requests made by Plaintiffs and responding to discovery requests served on Plaintiffs by defendants;

(g) Preparation, drafting and revisions to motions related to discovery and discovery disputes;

(h) Preparation, drafting and revisions to various other motions and responses filed by Plaintiffs;

(i) Preparation for and participation in the taking and defense of depositions of numerous parties and witnesses, including in Miami, New York, Washington, D.C., and San Francisco, including defending multiple depositions of staff or former staff of the Class Representatives;

(j) Preparation for and participation in the taking of depositions of Plaintiffs' experts;

(k) Review of motions for summary judgment and other motions filed by various defendants;

(l) Participation in all but the first mediation with defendants and mediators Hon. Edward A. Infante (Ret.) (2018, 2023, and 2024) and Hon. Layn R. Phillips (Ret.) (2024 and two in 2025) over the course of approximately 8 years in San Francisco (2018), in San Diego (hybrid in-person and remote) (2023), and in New York (2024 and 2025);

(m) Preparation, drafting and revisions to documents exchanged between the parties regarding mediation and settlement proposals;

(n) Numerous conferences with co-counsel to discuss all facets of the case;

(o) Extensive consultations with experts;

(p) Preparation for and attendance at court hearings (in San Francisco and New York).

(q) Keeping Class Representatives B & R and Grove apprised of developments in and posture of the case; and

(r) Responding to merchant inquiries regarding the case.

13. Class Counsel established a set of criteria to review the attorney and professional time and expenses to be claimed as lodestar in connection with this Motion. Class Counsel provided these criteria to DG&R and instructed us to apply these criteria to our time and expense records. I have ensured that we have followed those criteria, as set forth in detail below.

14. I conducted a review of all of the time entries for each timekeeper claimed on behalf of DG&R in connection with this Motion. I reviewed each of the entries to ensure they were accurate and reasonably performed in relation to the Action. I made certain reductions throughout this process in the exercise of billing judgment. I ensured that we did not have any entries for the review of discovery over ten hours per day, as requested by Class Counsel. We had no such entries. I also ensured that entries were sufficiently detailed to describe the work done or reduced or eliminated the entry accordingly. I reduced all travel time by 50%. Any entries relating solely to fee-related work were eliminated. No work in support of this Motion was claimed.

15. In addition, I eliminated the time entries for my Firm's associate who worked on the Action, as they worked less than twenty hours on the Action. I applied my Firm's current rates to all timekeepers, with the exception of any individuals who left the firm during the pendency of the litigation—those individuals' claimed rates are the rates at the time of their departure, including the rate applicable to Lawrence D. Goodman, Esq., at the time of his passing.

16. After following the above steps, the claimed lodestar (which excludes a significant amount of time that I cut because of the above steps) for my Firm for this Action is 5,034.7 hours, amounting to $3,682,581.25. My Firm has received no payment for any of this work and has no expectation of payment for this time other than in connection with this Motion. I have provided a chart showing the hours incurred for each of my Firm's timekeepers, their position, hourly rate, and the categories of work performed as Exhibit A.

17. At the request of Class Counsel, I also engaged in a review of the expenses incurred by my Firm in connection with this Action, with the assistance of my staff. I followed the criteria established by Class Counsel, as set forth below in detail.

18. I ensured that all of the expenses my Firm incurred were incurred specifically and only for this Action and were the type of expenses appropriately claimed in connection with litigation; I removed any upgrade fees to first/business class, and reduced any first class or business class travel to an equivalent fare for economy (or reduced by 30% if the equivalent rate was not available from other travelers); I reduced meals to $100/person/meal; and removed alcohol where apparent or believed it was consumed; and I removed any room upgrade fees.

19. After following the above steps, the expenses claimed by my Firm in connection with the Motion are $47,093.49. These expenses are for the following categories:

(a) Travel and Meals: these expenses are for accommodations, transport (including primarily airfare, as well as ubers/taxis/rental cars), parking associated with travel, and meals;

(b) Research and Investigation: these expenses include legal research platform expenses and PACER charges;

(c) Photocopies and Printing: these expenses include black and white copies at $0.10 each and color copies at $0.25 each, along with printing services from an external vendor;

(d) Pro Hac Vice Fees: these expenses include pro hac vice fees for the Northern District of California and the Eastern District of New York; and

(e) Communications & Messaging: these expenses are for FedEx services and courier costs.

My Firm has not been reimbursed for any of these expenses, and, as with my Firm's lodestar, I have no expectation of repayment, other than in connection with this Motion. I have provided a chart of the expenses incurred by my Firm and the categories for such expenses as Exhibit B.

Pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 1746, I declare under penalty of perjury that the foregoing is true and correct.

Executed on this 22nd day of December, 2025.

John W. Devine

EXHIBIT A

EXHIBIT A

B & R Supermarket, Inc., et al. v. Visa, Inc., et al., No. 1:17-cv-02738-BMC-JAM (E.D.N.Y.)

Devine, Goodman & Rasco, LLP
Lodestar Summary
Inception through October 16, 2025

Categories:

(1)	Appeals	(5)	Investigation
(2)	Case File	(6)	Pleadings
(3)	Client Communication	(7)	Settlement
(4)	Discovery	(8)	Strategy

P = Partner; PI = Paralegal
PROFESSIONAL	Title	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	Total Hours	Rate	Lodestar
John W. Devine	P	34.50	5.60	20.40	538.90	55.10	379.50	218.30	654.40	1906.70	$ 850	$1,620,695.00
Lawrence D. Goodman	P	0.00	10.00	2.60	264.20	54.55	422.65	47.65	1053.60	1855.25	$ 750	$1,391,437.50
Robert J. Kuntz, Jr.	P	33.20	2.90	0.00	407.90	23.60	251.40	0.00	241.20	960.20	$ 625	$600,125.00
Susan Mallet	PI	0.00	195.75	0.00	113.05	0.00	3.75	0.00	0.00	312.55	$ 225	$70,323.75
TOTALS		67.70	214.25	23.00	1324.05	133.25	1057.30	265.95	1949.20	5034.70		$3,682,581.25

Footnotes

1) Appeals captures work associated with petitions for interlocutory review and Amex's appeal
2) Case File captures work associated with generating, preparing, and organizing documents, files, information relating to work product and court filings
3) Client Communication captures work associated with contact with the named plaintiffs
4) Discovery captures document review and production, all forms of written discovery, meet and confers, and all related communications and strategies
5) Investigation captures work associated with gathering, researching, analyzing, and organizing factual information providing the best understanding of the case
6) Pleadings captures developing, researching, drafting, reviewing, editing, and filing court documents, including preparation and attendance at hearings
7) Settlement captures work associated with case settlement from the initial negotiations through to preliminary approval
8) Strategy captures work relating to internal work product, communications, meetings, and overall case analysis, including developing, evaulating and planning

EXHIBIT B

EXHIBIT B

B & R Supermarket, Inc., et al. v. Visa, Inc., et al., No. 1:17-cv-02738-BMC-JAM (E.D.N.Y.)

Devine, Goodman & Rasco, LLP
Expense Summary
Inception through October 16, 2025

CATEGORY	AMOUNT
Travel & Meals	$37,126.31
Research & Investigation	$5,155.05
Photocopies and Printing	$2,315.32
Pro Hac Vice Fees	$1,665.00
Communications & Messaging	$831.81
TOTAL	$47,093.49

EXHIBIT 3

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
EASTERN DISTRICT OF NEW YORK

B & R SUPERMARKET, INC., d/b/a MILAM'S MARKET, a Florida corporation, et al., Individually and on Behalf of All Others Similarly Situated, Plaintiff, v. VISA, INC., a Delaware corporation, et al., Defendants.	:	Case No. 1:17-cv-02738-BMC-JAM CLASS ACTION

DECLARATION OF THOMAS G. AMON IN SUPPORT OF PLAINTIFFS' MOTION FOR ATTORNEYS' FEES, EXPENSES, AND SERVICE AWARDS

I, Thomas G. Amon, declare as follows:

1. I am a partner with the Law Offices of Thomas G. Amon (the "Firm"), and Local Counsel and one of the counsel of record for plaintiffs B & R Supermarket, Inc. (d/b/a Milam's Market) ("B & R"), Grove Liquors LLC ("Grove"), Strouk Group LLC (d/b/a Monsieur Marcel), and Palero Food Corp. and Cagueyes Food Corp. (d/b/a Fine Fare Supermarket) (collectively, "Plaintiffs" or "Class Representatives") in the above-captioned action ("Action"). I have been a member of the New York Bar since 1974 (New York Bar number 1808617). I am admitted to practice before this Honorable Court in this Action, and to the Second Circuit Court of Appeals. I have personal knowledge of the matters set forth herein, based on my participation in the prosecution and settlement of this Action. If called upon, I could and would competently testify that the following facts are true and correct based on my personal involvement in the litigation.

2. I provide this declaration in support of Plaintiffs' Motion for Attorneys' Fees, Expenses, and Service Awards (the "Motion").

3. Beginning in February 2017, my firm undertook the representation of Plaintiffs and the Class on an entirely contingent basis. We have been actively involved in the case as local counsel, ably assisting lead counsel Robbins LLP ("Class Counsel").

4. My experience includes acting as local counsel and liaison counsel for the past twenty years for Class Counsel in numerous securities class action cases and derivative cases brought in this District as well as the Southern District of New York and the New York State Supreme Courts (various counties). As such, we have participated in all aspects of these cases, including preparation and submission of pleadings and motions, oral argument of related motions, liaising with co-counsel and defense counsel, and engaging in settlement and mediation discussions and proceedings.

5. I performed all of the duties required of local counsel, including consulting and assisting Class Counsel with the preparation and filing of documents with the Court, answering inquiries regarding filing requirements and rules of the Court and practices and procedures of the same, meeting and consulting with Class Counsel prior to all court hearings before this Court, preparation for and attendance at hearings before this Court, and participation in all of the mediation sessions in New York City with defendants and mediator Hon. Layn R. Phillips (Ret.) in 2024 and 2025.

6. Class Counsel established a set of criteria to review the attorney and professional time and expenses to be claimed as lodestar in connection with this Motion. Class Counsel provided these criteria to my Firm and instructed us to apply these criteria to our time and expense records. I have ensured that we have followed those criteria, as set forth in detail below.

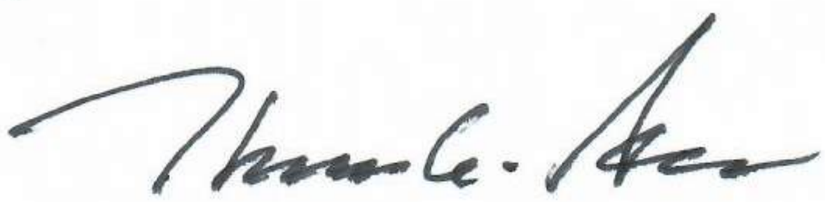
7. I conducted a review of all of the time entries for my work in the case. I reviewed each of the entries to ensure they were accurate and reasonably performed in relation to the Action. I made certain reductions throughout this process in the exercise of billing judgment. I ensured that entries were sufficiently detailed to describe the work done or reduced or eliminated the entry accordingly. Any entries relating solely to fee-related work were eliminated. No work in support of this Motion was claimed.

8. After following the above steps, the claimed lodestar (which excludes a significant amount of time that I cut because of the above steps) for my Firm for this Action is 64.50 hours, amounting to $51,600.00. My Firm has received no payment for any of this work and has no expectation of payment for this time other than in connection with this Motion.

9. At the request of Class Counsel, I also engaged in a review of the expenses incurred by my Firm in connection with this Action. I have determined that I have no material unreimbursed expenses to include for reimbursement in connection with this Action.

Pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 1746, I declare under penalty of perjury that the foregoing is true and correct.

Executed on this 21st day of December 2025.



Thomas G. Amon

EXHIBIT 4

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
EASTERN DISTRICT OF NEW YORK

B & R SUPERMARKET, INC., d/b/a MILAM'S MARKET, Individually and on Behalf of All Others Similarly Situated, Plaintiff, v. VISA, INC., et al., Defendants.	:	Case No. 1:17-cv-02738-BMC-JAM CLASS ACTION

DECLARATION OF EDWARD A. INFANTE IN SUPPORT OF PLAINTIFFS' MOTION FOR ATTORNEYS' FEES, EXPENSES, AND SERVICE AWARDS AND MOTION FOR FINAL APPROVAL OF SETTLEMENTS WITH DEFENDANTS

I, EDWARD A. INFANTE, declare as follows:

1. I am the former Chief Magistrate Judge of the United States District Court, Northern District of California. I currently serve as a mediator with JAMS, the nation's largest private provider of alternative dispute resolution services. As a U.S. Magistrate Judge and then as a mediator at JAMS, I have more than 40 years of dispute resolution experience, having conducted more than 3,000 settlement conferences in all types of litigation, including antitrust, consumer, securities fraud and shareholder class actions.

2. While the above-entitled matter was pending in the U.S. District Court for the Northern District of California, Plaintiffs, then represented by Robbins Geller Rudman & Dowd LLP, and Devine Goodman & Rasco, LLP ("Devine"), and Defendants Visa and Mastercard approached me to mediate settlement negotiations to resolve claims against the two Defendants.[1] The in-person mediation occurred in San Francisco, California, on March 22, 2017. The negotiations were unsuccessful, but I believed that further negotiations could produce a resolution.

3. The case was transferred to the U.S. District Court for the Eastern District of New York on May 4, 2017. Dkt. No. 518. Plaintiffs, now represented by class counsel Robbins LLP and the Devine firm, and Defendants Visa and Mastercard retained me to mediate further negotiations. The parties met for an in-person mediation in San Franscisco, California, on May 11, 2018. Again, the negotiations were not successful. In the weeks that followed I worked with the parties to try and reach a resolution but was unable to do so.

4. Years later, I was retained again by the parties to mediate further negotiations. An in-person mediation occurred in San Diego, California, on June 23, 2023, but once again, the parties could not reach a resolution.

[1] Capitalized terms not otherwise defined have the meaning set forth in the accompanying memorandum in support of the Motion.

5. Finally, I mediated via videoconference with the parties on September 11, 2024. Again, the negotiations did not produce a settlement.

6. During the course of these negotiations, I engaged in numerous telephonic communications with the parties in an effort to clarify positions and to bring the parties closer together. At the conclusion of the last mediation session, I did not believe that the parties were in a position to accept a mediator's proposal and, therefore, I did not issue one.

7. Prior to each of the mediation sessions, the parties submitted written briefs that were extensive and vigorously disputed by the other side. These submissions were very helpful in my understanding of the case and the issues to be negotiated.

8. I found counsel on both sides to be highly experienced antitrust and class action lawyers who demonstrated their understanding of the factual record and the relevant legal authorities during the negotiations. At all times counsel zealously represented the interests of their clients. The settlement negotiations were extended, comprehensive, professionally presented, adversarial, and always conducted at arm's-length.

I declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of the United States of America that the foregoing is true and correct. Executed on December 4, 2025, at Newport Coast, California.

Edward A. Infante

EDWARD A. INFANTE

EXHIBIT 5

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
EASTERN DISTRICT OF NEW YORK

B & R SUPERMARKET, INC., d/b/a MILAM'S MARKET, Individually and on Behalf of All Others Similarly Situated, Plaintiff, v. VISA, INC., et al., Defendants.	:	Case No. 1:17-cv-02738-BMC-JAM CLASS ACTION

DECLARATION OF LAYN R. PHILLIPS IN SUPPORT OF PLAINTIFFS' MOTION FOR ATTORNEYS' FEES, EXPENSES, AND SERVICE AWARDS AND MOTION FOR FINAL APPROVAL OF SETTLEMENTS WITH DEFENDANTS

I, LAYN R. PHILLIPS, declare as follows:

1. I served as the mediator in the three separate in-person mediation sessions that resulted in the Settlement of the above-captioned Action.[1] While the substance of the mediation and settlement communications are confidential,[2] the Parties have authorized me to describe the mediation process and the nature of the Parties' negotiations. I make this declaration based on personal knowledge, and I am competent to testify as to the matters set forth herein.

I. MY CREDENTIALS

2. I am the founder and lead mediator at Phillips ADR Enterprises, P.C. ("PADRE"), which I founded in November 2014. From 1991 until 2014, I was a partner in the law firm of Irell & Manella LLP, where my practice focused on complex civil litigation, internal investigations, and alternative dispute resolution.

3. Before joining Irell & Manella LLP, I served as a United States District Judge in the Western District of Oklahoma from 1987 to 1991. During my years on the bench, I presided over more than 140 trials in Oklahoma, New Mexico, and Texas. I have been appointed special master by various federal courts in complex civil proceedings. I also have sat by designation for the United States Court of Appeals for the Tenth Circuit on several occasions.

4. I have successfully mediated numerous complex commercial cases involving

[1] Capitalized terms not otherwise defined have the meaning set forth in the accompanying memorandum in support of the Motion.

[2] Before the mediation process began, counsel for the Parties executed a confidentiality agreement providing that all verbal and written mediation-related communications, including documents exchanged for purposes of furthering the mediation and settlement discussions, would be kept confidential and subject to Rule 408 of the Federal Rules of Evidence and all other applicable privileges protecting such communications from disclosure. Nothing in my declaration divulges the substance of the protected communications or expressly or impliedly waives any applicable privilege or doctrine protecting those communications from disclosure.

Fortune 500 and other publicly traded companies. I have mediated hundreds of disputes referred by private parties and courts and have been appointed as Special Master by various federal courts in complex civil proceedings. I serve as a Fellow in the American College of Trial Lawyers, and I have been nationally recognized as a mediator by the Center for Public Resources Institute for Dispute Resolution ("CPR"), serving on CPR's National Panel of Distinguished Neutrals.

5. Among the significant complex matters I have mediated are the NFL concussion cases, the Michigan State and USC sexual abuse cases, the Purdue Opioid bankruptcy, the Boeing air crash derivative litigation, the United Healthcare derivative litigation, the Norfolk Southern Ohio trainwreck litigation, multiple Wells Fargo derivative and class actions, the FirstEnergy derivative litigation, the Fox News and News Corp derivative litigation, the Facebook Cambridge Analytica derivative litigation, and numerous other class action and derivative actions in numerous business sectors, including the banking sector.

II. THE MEDIATION PROCESS

6. I was retained three separate times by the Parties to mediate settlement negotiations that involved Plaintiffs and different Defendants over an eight-month period.

7. I was initially retained to mediate settlement negotiations between Plaintiffs and Defendant Discover. The mediation session occurred in-person in New York, New York on December 6, 2024. However, the negotiations throughout the day required that I present the parties with a mediator's proposal to reach a settlement of the claims against Discover. Each party accepted the mediator's proposal, and the parties contemporaneously executed a term sheet containing material terms of the settlement.

8. I was subsequently retained to mediate settlement negotiations between Plaintiffs and Defendant American Express Company ("American Express"). The mediation session occurred in-person in New York, New York on March 28, 2025. Like with the mediation that involved Plaintiffs and Discover, the negotiations throughout the day required that I make a mediator's proposal to reach a settlement of the claims against American Express. Each party accepted the mediator's proposal, and the parties contemporaneously executed a term sheet containing material terms of the settlement.

9. Lastly, I was retained to mediate settlement negotiations between Plaintiffs and Defendants Visa and Mastercard. This mediation session occurred in-person in New York, New York on August 13, 2025. Like with the mediations before, the negotiations throughout the day required that I make a mediator's proposal to reach a settlement of the claims against Visa and Mastercard. Each party accepted the mediator's proposal, and the parties contemporaneously executed a term sheet containing material terms of the settlement.

10. For each of the mediation sessions, I carefully reviewed the relevant pleadings in the Action; the procedural history and status of the Action; detailed mediation briefs submitted by Plaintiffs and Defendants, which addressed the key facts, claims, damages, and anticipated defenses and included numerous citations to documents produced in the litigation and legal authority in support of their positions; and Plaintiffs' monetary settlement demand. Members of my mediation support team, which includes experienced attorneys and other professional staff associated with my firm, assisted me in analyzing the central legal and factual issues.

11. Before each of the mediation sessions, I sent counsel for both Plaintiffs and Defendants separate sets of detailed questions probing weaknesses I perceived in their respective positions and asking them to be prepared to explain how they would address a range of possible litigation scenarios and outcomes.

12. Each of the mediation sessions were attended by counsel for Plaintiffs and outside and in-house counsel for the Defendant(s) involved in the particular mediation session. In each of the mediation sessions, I met with the respective Parties for that particular mediation in a number of joint and separate sessions. The discussions were substantive and productive.

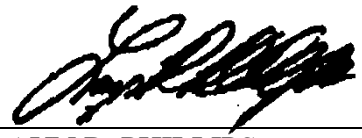
13. For each of the mediation sessions, based on my review of the materials submitted by counsel and my subsequent interactions in group and private sessions with each side, I can aver that all counsel participating in the mediation sessions were fully informed and well prepared, and that they demonstrated great skill as advocates and negotiators.

14. When the agreements were reached on all material substantive terms of the proposed Settlements, counsel for all Parties executed the varying Settlement Term Sheets, which committed them to complete negotiations on a comprehensive stipulation of settlement detailing the Settlement's operational terms. The negotiations of these Settlement Term Sheets took time and effort, reflecting the Parties' determination to diligently represent and zealously pursue their respective clients' interests at every phase of the mediation and settlement process.

III. CONCLUSION

15. Based on my first-hand observations, I am pleased to represent to the Court that the proposed Settlement was the product of challenging arm's-length and good faith negotiations by skilled, experienced, and effective counsel. The result of these efforts, is, in my view, a fair, reasonable, and pragmatic compromise.

I declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of the United States of America that the foregoing is true and correct. Executed on December 9, 2025, at Newport Beach, California.



LAYN R. PHILLIPS
Former U.S. District Judge

EXHIBIT 6

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
EASTERN DISTRICT OF NEW YORK

B & R SUPERMARKET, INC., d/b/a MILAM'S MARKET, Individually and on Behalf of All Others Similarly Situated, Plaintiff, v. VISA, INC., et al., Defendants.	:	Case No. 1:17-cv-02738-BMC-JAM CLASS ACTION

DECLARATION OF MAX MILAM IN SUPPORT OF PLAINTIFFS' MOTION FOR ATTORNEYS' FEES, EXPENSES, AND SERVICE AWARDS AND MOTION FOR FINAL APPROVAL OF SETTLEMENTS WITH DEFENDANTS

I, MAX EDWARD MILAM, declare as follows:

1. I, on behalf of B & R Supermarket, Inc., d/b/a Milam's Market, and Grove Liquors LLC, (collectively "B & R Supermarket"), am a plaintiff and class representative in the above-captioned antitrust class action (the "Action"). I submit this declaration in support of Plaintiffs' Motion for Attorneys' Fees, Expenses, and Service Awards and Plaintiffs' Motion for Final Approval of Settlements with Defendants. I have personal knowledge of the facts set forth in this declaration and would testify truthfully to these matters if called upon as a witness.[1]

2. I am the Chief Executive Officer ("CEO") of B & R Supermarket, Inc., and a managing member of Grove Liquors LLC ("Grove Liquors"). B & R Supermarket, Inc. operates Milam's Market in four separate locations throughout Miami-Dade County, Florida. Grove Liquors is a package liquor store operating in Miami-Dade County. I became CEO of B & R Supermarket, Inc. in 2016. Following the chargeback liability shift in October 2015, B & R Supermarket faced significant and unprecedented chargebacks due to an inability to obtain timely required certifications of newly purchased terminal equipment, as required by the credit card networks, that were supposed to be operational and compliant with the credit card networks' specifications.

3. On March 8, 2016, B & R Supermarket initiated this Action by filing suit in federal court in San Francisco, California, alleging violations of law against the defendants in connection with their collective imposition of network rules that resulted in the shift of certain chargeback liabilities onto merchants. The Action was amended on July 15, 2016, and several additional merchants joined the case as plaintiffs. B & R Supermarket has served as plaintiff and a class representative through the entire litigation. The United States District Court for the Eastern District of New York (the "Court") certified a class of merchants to proceed with the litigation on August 28, 2020.

[1] Unless otherwise defined, all capitalized terms shall have the same meaning set forth in the accompanying memorandum in support of Plaintiffs' Motion for Attorneys' Fees, Expenses, and Service Awards.

4. I and B & R Supermarket sought to be a plaintiff in the Action because I believe that the shifting of chargeback liability onto merchants under the circumstances that existed at the time, and continuing from there, and the way the shift was implemented, was entirely improper and unfair, and had a significant and harmful impact on me and B & R Supermarket as a merchant and on merchants across the country. The rules, tasks, and burdens associated with the transition to the chip card method of payment imposed extraordinary financial and operational burdens on me and B & R Supermarket. B & R Supermarket was placed in a position where, although it timely obtained and installed new point of sale terminals, those terminals could not be certified before the imposed deadline, even as we attempted to do so in good faith to obtain certification. Chargebacks were imposed on B & R Supermarket to a far greater degree than had ever existed or had been anticipated prior to the shifting of chargeback liability. I and B & R Supermarket agreed to serve as plaintiffs and class representatives because I believed that we could represent the interests of the broader class of merchants who faced the same obstacles and financial harm.

5. Throughout the litigation, I have, as CEO and on behalf of B & R Supermarket, maintained continuing direct and personal communication with attorneys of record for the class, primarily John Devine and other attorneys with Devine Goodman & Rasco, LLP ("Devine Goodman"). I maintained communication with Devine Goodman to monitor the litigation, reviewed and approved various pleadings filed by Class Counsel, reviewed numerous orders, including case dispositive orders, from the Court, provided input on decisions affecting the course of the litigation, made myself available for communications and input during the various mediation sessions through the years, and complied with numerous discovery obligations, including preparing for and attending my deposition in the Action on February 28, 2017. On behalf of the Class, I have spent substantial time and effort in the pursuit of this litigation with Devine Goodman and Class Counsel as more fully described below.

6. I and B & R Supermarket required a substantial amount of time and effort to respond to and comply with the various discovery requests submitted by Defendants in this case. Senior management and several long-time employees invested substantial time and effort to meet the obligations to comply with discovery requests, including obtaining documents for production and responding to interrogatories served by Defendants. B&R Supermarket, Inc.'s Chief IT Officer, Bill Millam was deposed by the Defendants in this case on January 23, 2018.

7. Specifically, I directed multiple employees of B&R Supermarket who assisted in responding to case obligations. Their roles were as follows:

- Marie Dixon (B & R Supermarket, Inc. – Treasurer): Assisted with identifying and gathering responsive records and coordinating communications;
- Bill Milam (B & R Supermarket, Inc. – Chief IT Officer): Handled retrieval of electronic files, system logs, merchant data, and other technical documentation; Gave a deposition in the case on January 23, 2018.
- Shella Truntz (B & R Supermarket, Inc. – Executive Assistant): Organized and searched for requested documents, managed scheduling, and supported communications with counsel;
- Chester Borge (Grove Liquors – Manager): Located store-level records, reviewed operational data, and provided factual context for Grove Liquor's experiences; and

- Jordan Abolafia (Grove Liquors – Paid Intern): Assisted with scanning, labeling, organizing, and preparing documents for production.

8. I met and spoke extensively with counsel to identify, locate, deliver, and explain documents requested in the litigation. I oversaw the document retrieval, provided institutional knowledge to assist in the efforts, and worked closely with counsel on factual explanations for responding to the interrogatories. I communicated regularly with counsel throughout the litigation to be updated on the case, and to provide context, answer follow-up questions, and assist with ongoing factual inquiries. I read all case-related filings, including depositions, and prepared for my deposition with counsel's assistance.

9. In all, B & R Supermarket produced nearly 250,000 documents to counsel, of which 12,799 were produced to Defendants to my understanding.

10. I was deposed by counsel for the Defendants on February 28, 2017, which began at 9:03 a.m. and was completed at 5:14 p.m. I was questioned extensively about the operation of B & R Supermarket, generally and specifically as it related to credit card transactions, processing, the transition to chip card purchases and how B & R Supermarket managed the changes that occurred, chargebacks, my role in the businesses, and the effect and impact of the fraud liability shift on B & R Supermarket's operations and on merchants generally, among other topics.

11. All of these efforts required significant diversion of senior leadership time and resources from daily business operations. I spent approximately 200 hours on case-related activities. My employees collectively spent approximately 1,225 hours on document collection, review, and communications. Collection of these documents necessitated retrieval at the actual store level where such records were maintained.

12. The requirements of adequately serving as a class representative represented a substantial economic burden on B & R Supermarket, especially given that many of the employees involved are senior personnel whose regular duties are critical to daily operations.

13. In addition to the work associated with the litigation of the Action, I actively helped inform and update other merchants and industry groups about the Action. I notified the Associated Grocers of Florida, Inc. (AGF)—a retailers' cooperative— of the case and informed AGF members at periodic meetings. I spoke frequently with AGF management and various AGF member stores about the case. I notified the National Grocers Association (NGA) of the case. I understand that the NGA contacted Carlos Collazo of Palero Food Corp. and Cagueyes Food Corp. (d/b/a Fine Fare Supermarket) in New York, who is also a named plaintiff and class representative in this Action. I have spoken with numerous individual class members—including Sedano's Supermarkets in South Florida—to explain the issues, answer factual questions, and ensure that impacted merchants were aware of the litigation. My goal throughout was to help other merchants understand the significance of the issues, the potential scope of the harms, and their rights as class members.

14. I was also apprised of the numerous efforts to settle the Action, including of the mediator's proposals that eventually resolved the case. Through my discussions with my counsel in this case, I feel that I have a clear understanding of the settlements reached. My counsel has also explained to me the amounts requested for attorneys' fees and the reimbursement of expenses in this case. I am in full agreement with the settlements and with the contemporaneous application for attorneys' fees and expenses, and with the application for service awards.

15. Neither I nor B & R Supermarket, has received, nor were promised or offered, and would not accept, any financial incentives or compensation for serving as a plaintiff in the Action, except such payments as the Court expressly approves. Devine Goodman, Class Counsel, or any other counsel of record for the Class have not offered assurance that I or B & R Supermarket would receive any compensation for bringing, and continuing to serve in, the Action, and the prospect of such an award was not a factor in my decision to pursue or settle the litigation.

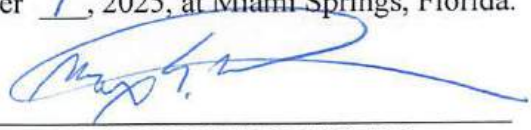
I declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of the United States of America that the foregoing is true and correct. Executed on December 7, 2025, at Miami Springs, Florida.



MAX EDWARD MILAM

EXHIBIT 7

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
EASTERN DISTRICT OF NEW YORK

B & R SUPERMARKET, INC., d/b/a MILAM'S MARKET, Individually and on Behalf of All Others Similarly Situated, Plaintiff, v. VISA, INC., et al., Defendants.	:	Case No. 1:17-cv-02738-BMC-JAM CLASS ACTION

DECLARATION OF STEPHANE STROUK IN SUPPORT OF PLAINTIFFS' MOTION FOR ATTORNEYS' FEES, EXPENSES, AND SERVICE AWARDS AND MOTION FOR FINAL APPROVAL OF SETTLEMENTS WITH DEFENDANTS

I, STEPHANE STROUK, declare as follows:

1. I, on behalf of Strouk Group LLC ("Strouk Group"), am a plaintiff and class representative in the above-captioned antitrust class action (the "Action"). I submit this declaration in support of Plaintiffs' Motion for Attorneys' Fees, Expenses, and Service Awards and Plaintiffs' Motion for Final Approval of Settlements with Defendants. I have personal knowledge of the facts set forth in this declaration and would testify truthfully to these matters if called upon as a witness.[1]

2. I am the owner, founder and Chief Executive Officer ("CEO") of Strouk Group. Founded in 1993, Strouk Group operates restaurants and specialty food locations under the name Monsieur Marcel Gourmet Market and Restaurant ("Monsieur Marcel"). I became CEO in 1993, and Strouk Group became an LLC in 2013. Monsieur Marcel's main location is in the Original Farmers Market in Los Angeles, California. Following the chargeback liability shift in October 2015, Monsieur Marcel faced significant and unprecedented chargebacks due to an inability to obtain timely required certifications of newly purchased terminal equipment, as required by the credit card networks, that were supposed to be operational and compliant with the credit card networks' specifications.

3. On July 15, 2016, Strouk Group was among the merchants who joined the Action as plaintiffs in an amended complaint. The Action alleges violations of law against the defendants in connection with their collective imposition of network rules that resulted in the shift of certain chargeback liabilities onto merchants. The Action was initiated on March 8, 2016, and Strouk Group joined as a plaintiff to the amended complaint and has served as a class representative from that time through the entire litigation. The United States District Court for the Eastern District of New York (the "Court") certified a class of merchants to proceed with the litigation on August 28, 2020.

[1] Unless otherwise defined, all capitalized terms shall have the same meaning set forth in the accompanying memorandum in support of Plaintiffs' Motion for Attorneys' Fees, Expenses, and Service Awards.

4. I and Strouk Group sought to be a plaintiff in the Action because I believe that the shifting of chargeback liability onto merchants under the circumstances that existed at the time, and continuing from there, and the way the shift was implemented, was entirely improper and unfair, and had a significant and harmful impact on me and Strouk Group as a merchant and on merchants across the country. The rules, tasks, and burdens associated with the transition to the chip card method of payment were for me and Strouk Group too difficult, complex, and costly to accomplish and complete in the time provided.

5. Throughout the litigation, I have, as CEO and on behalf of Strouk Group, maintained continuing direct and personal communication with attorneys of record for the Class and Class Counsel—initially with attorneys at Robbins Geller Rudman & Dowd LLP, primarily Alexandra Bernay, and, for most of the case, with George Aguilar of Robbins LLP. I maintained communication with Class Counsel to monitor the litigation, reviewed and approved various pleadings filed by Class Counsel, reviewed numerous orders, including case dispositive orders, from the Court, provided input on decisions affecting the course of the litigation, made myself available for communications and input during the various mediation sessions through the years, and complied with numerous discovery obligations, including preparing for and attending my deposition in the Action on March 14, 2017. On behalf of the Class, I have spent substantial time and effort in the pursuit of this litigation with Class Counsel as more fully described below.

6. Specifically, I directed Strouk Group's accountant, Karen Cason, to spend approximately two and a half days identifying and gathering paper records, electronic files, merchant data, and technical documents, and assisting in organizing and preparing the documents for production.

7. I met and spoke extensively with counsel to identify and explain the documents requested in the litigation, and also worked to locate, retrieve and deliver the documents for production. I further worked with counsel on factual explanations for responding to the interrogatories, and to verify the answers provided in responding to the interrogatories. I communicated regularly with counsel throughout the litigation to be updated on the case, and to provide context, answer follow-up questions, and assist with ongoing factual inquiries. I read certain case-related filings and prepared for my deposition with counsel's assistance.

8. In all, Strouk Group produced nearly 88,000 documents to counsel, of which 4,351 were produced to Defendants to my understanding.

9. I was deposed by counsel for Defendants on March 14, 2017, which began at 10:43 a.m. and was completed at 6:22 p.m. I was questioned extensively about the operation of Strouk Group, generally and specifically as it related to credit card transactions, processing, the transition to chip card purchases and how Strouk Group managed the changes that occurred, chargebacks, my role in the businesses, and the effect and impact of the fraud liability shift on Strouk Group's operations and on merchants generally, among other topics.

10. I spent approximately 200 hours on case-related activities. The requirements of adequately serving as a class representative represented a substantial economic burden on Strouk Group as the work took me away from my duties as CEO.

11. I was also apprised of the numerous efforts to settle the Action, including of the mediator's proposals that eventually resolved the case. Through my discussions with my counsel in this case, and my reading and understanding of the settlement agreements and the pleadings in support of the settlement, I feel that I have a clear understanding of the settlements reached. My counsel has also explained to me the amounts requested for attorneys' fees and the reimbursement of expenses in this case. I am in full agreement with the settlements and with the contemporaneous application for attorneys' fees and expenses, and with the application for service awards.

12. Neither I nor Strouk Group received, nor were promised or offered, and would not accept, any financial incentives or compensation for serving as a plaintiff in the Action, except such payments as the Court expressly approves. Class Counsel or any other counsel of record for the Class have offered no assurance that I or Strouk Group would receive any compensation for bringing, and continuing to serve in, the Action, and the prospect of such an award was not a factor in my decision to pursue or settle the litigation.

I declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of the United States of America that the foregoing is true and correct. Executed on dec 10 , 2025, at Los angeles , California

STEPHANE STROUK

EXHIBIT 8

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
EASTERN DISTRICT OF NEW YORK

B & R SUPERMARKET, INC., d/b/a MILAM'S MARKET, Individually and on Behalf of All Others Similarly Situated, Plaintiff, v. VISA, INC., et al., Defendants.	:	Case No. 1:17-cv-02738-BMC-JAM CLASS ACTION

DECLARATION OF CARLOS COLLADO IN SUPPORT OF PLAINTIFFS' MOTION FOR ATTORNEYS' FEES, EXPENSES, AND SERVICE AWARDS AND MOTION FOR FINAL APPROVAL OF SETTLEMENTS WITH DEFENDANTS

I, CARLOS COLLADO, declare as follows:

1. I, on behalf of Palero Food Corporation ("Palero") and Cagueyes Food Corporation ("Cagueyes") d/b/a Fine Fare Supermarket ("Fine Fare"), am a plaintiff and class representative in the above-captioned antitrust class action (the "Action"). I submit this declaration in support of Plaintiffs' Motion for Attorneys' Fees, Expenses, and Service Awards and Plaintiffs' Motion for Final Approval of Settlements with Defendants. I have personal knowledge of the facts set forth in this declaration and would testify truthfully to these matters if called upon as a witness.[1]

2. I am the owner of Palero and owner and founder of Cagueyes. I have been with Palero since 1992, beginning as an assistant manager. I became owner of Palero in 2006, and I started Cagueyes as founder and owner in 2010. They are independently owned supermarkets doing business as Fine Fare, operating in the Bronx, New York. Following the chargeback liability shift in October 2015, Fine Fare faced significant and unprecedented chargebacks due to an inability to obtain timely required certifications of newly purchased terminal equipment, as required by the credit card networks, that were supposed to be operational and compliant with the credit card networks' specifications.

3. On July 15, 2016, Fine Fare was among the merchants who joined the Action as plaintiffs in an amended complaint. The Action alleges violations of law against the defendants in connection with their collective imposition of network rules that resulted in the shift of certain chargeback liabilities onto merchants. The Action was initiated on March 8, 2016, and Fine Fare joined as a plaintiff to the amended complaint and has served as a class representative from that time through the entire litigation. The United States District Court for the Eastern District of New York (the "Court") certified a class of merchants to proceed with the litigation on August 28, 2020.

[1] Unless otherwise defined, all capitalized terms shall have the same meaning set forth in the accompanying memorandum in support of Plaintiffs' Motion for Attorneys' Fees, Expenses, and Service Awards.

4. I and Fine Fare sought to be a plaintiff in the Action because I believe that the shifting of chargeback liability onto merchants under the circumstances that existed at the time, and continuing from there, and the way the shift was implemented, was entirely improper and unfair, and had a significant and harmful impact on me and Fine Fare as a merchant and on merchants across the country. The rules, tasks, and burdens associated with the transition to the chip card method of payment, imposed uniformly and at the same time by Defendants, were for me and Fine Fare too difficult, complex, and costly to accomplish and complete in the time provided.

5. Throughout the litigation, I have, as owner and on behalf of Fine Fare, maintained continuing direct and personal communication with attorneys of record for the Class and Class Counsel—initially with attorneys at Robbins Geller Rudman & Dowd LLP, primarily Carmen Medici, and, for most of the case, with George Aguilar of Robbins LLP. I maintained communication with Class Counsel to monitor the litigation, reviewed and approved various pleadings filed by Class Counsel, reviewed numerous orders, including case dispositive orders, from the Court, provided input on decisions affecting the course of the litigation, made myself available for communications and input during the various mediation sessions through the years, and complied with numerous discovery obligations, including preparing for and attending my deposition in the Action on February 15, 2017. On behalf of the Class, I have spent substantial time and effort in the pursuit of this litigation with Class Counsel as more fully described below.

6. Specifically, I directed Fine Fare's accountants, Sandra Rodriguez and Maria Flores, and store manager Ramon Gonzalez, to spend approximately two days identifying and gathering paper records, electronic files, merchant data, and technical documents, and assisting in organizing and preparing the documents for production.

7. I met and spoke extensively with counsel to identify and explain the documents requested in the litigation, and also worked to locate, retrieve and deliver the documents for production. I further worked with counsel on factual explanations for responding to the interrogatories, and to verify the answers provided in responding to the interrogatories. I communicated regularly with counsel throughout the litigation to be updated on the case, and to provide context, answer follow-up questions, and assist with ongoing factual inquiries. I read certain case-related filings and prepared for my deposition with counsel's assistance. I also attended hearings in the case: one in San Francisco, California, while the Action was pending in the United States District Court for the Northern District of California, and another before this Court.

8. In all, Fine Fare produced nearly 35,000 documents to counsel, of which 994 were produced to Defendants to my understanding.

9. I was deposed by counsel for Defendants on February 15, 2017, which began at 10:35 a.m. and was completed at 6:12 p.m. I was questioned extensively about the operation of Fine Fare, generally and specifically as it related to credit card transactions, processing, the transition to chip card purchases and how Fine Fare managed the changes that occurred, chargebacks, my role in the businesses, and the effect and impact of the fraud liability shift on Fine Fare's operations and on merchants generally, among other topics.

10. I spent approximately 225 hours on case-related activities. The requirements of adequately serving as a class representative represented a substantial economic burden on Fine Fare as the work took me away from my duties as the primary operator of the stores.

11. In addition to the work associated with the litigation of the Action, I actively helped inform and update other merchants and industry groups about the Action. I notified the National Supermarket Association of the case and continually advised senior management of the status of the case and obtained relevant information about the case that I relayed to Class Counsel. I have spoken with members of the NSA and several other individual class members to explain the case, answer factual questions, and ensure that impacted merchants were aware of the litigation.

12. I was also apprised of the numerous efforts to settle the Action, including of the mediator's proposals that eventually resolved the case. Through my discussions with my counsel in this case, and my reading and understanding of the settlement agreements and the pleadings in support of the settlement, I feel that I have a clear understanding of the settlements reached. My counsel has also explained to me the amounts requested for attorneys' fees and the reimbursement of expenses in this case. I am in full agreement with the settlements and with the contemporaneous application for attorneys' fees and expenses, and with the application for service awards.

13. Neither I nor Fine Fare received, nor were promised or offered, and would not accept, any financial incentives or compensation for serving as a plaintiff in the Action, except such payments as the Court expressly approves. Class Counsel or any other counsel of record for the Class have offered no assurance that I or Fine Fare would receive any compensation for bringing, and continuing to serve in, the Action, and the prospect of such an award was not a factor in my decision to pursue or settle the litigation.

I declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of the United States of America that the foregoing is true and correct. Executed on 12/22, 2025, at New York, New York.

CARLOS COLLADO

EXHIBIT 9

ROBBINS LLP

5060 Shoreham Pl., Ste. 300
San Diego, CA 92122
619.525.3990 phone
619.525.3991 fax
www.robbinsllp.com

FIRM RESUME

Robbins LLP[1] is a nationally recognized shareholder rights law firm dedicated to the prosecution of shareholder derivative and class action lawsuits. We are committed to the principle that the directors and managers of publicly traded corporations must be held accountable to the owners of the enterprise – the shareholders. A leader in corporate governance reform, Robbins LLP has worked with individual and institutional shareholders to improve board oversight, legal compliance, transparency, and responsiveness at more than 400 Fortune 1000 companies. The firm has also helped secure several of the largest monetary recoveries in the history of shareholder derivative litigation and has helped clients to realize more than $1 billion in value for themselves and the companies in which they have invested.

For its achievements, the firm has received numerous accolades, including inclusion in the first Chambers California Spotlight Guide for 2025; recognition from U.S. News & World Report, which named the firm a Best Law Firm for 2017-2026, Daily Journal, which named the firm a 2015 Top 25 Boutique in California, the Legal 500, which named the firm a Leading Firm in Merger and Acquisition Litigation in 2013-2018, the National Law Journal, which included the firm on its 2012 Litigation Boutiques Hot List, and ISS's Securities Class Action Services, which has listed the firm among the nation's top shareholder plaintiffs' firms. Each year, Robbins LLP's attorneys are honored as Super Lawyers and Rising Stars. In addition, Robbins LLP's co-founder, Brian J. Robbins, is featured in Best Lawyers in America for Securities Litigation (2016-2026), in San Diego Business Journal as Best of the Bar (2014-2016), and in The Daily Transcript as a Top Attorney (2015).

Practice Areas

Robbins LLP represents individual and institutional investors in shareholder derivative actions, securities fraud class actions arising from violations of Section 10(b) of the Exchange Act, and class actions arising out of mergers and acquisitions, initial public offerings, and going private transactions that violate Section 11 of the Securities Act. Additional Robbins LLP practice areas include antitrust actions, Employee Retirement Income Security Act (ERISA) actions, whistleblower actions under the Dodd-Frank Wall Street Reform and Consumer Protection Act and the False Claims Act, and consumer class actions.

Leadership

Robbins LLP's experienced attorneys provide skilled representation to clients through all phases of complex litigation. The firm's partners include former federal prosecutors, defense counsel from top corporate law firms, in-house counsel from leading financial institutions, and career shareholder rights litigators. Collectively, they have litigated hundreds of cases in nearly every state, serving in numerous court-appointed leadership roles in complex multi-jurisdictional litigation. They currently serve as lead or co-lead counsel in dozens of cases nationwide. The firm's attorneys are supported by investigators, corporate research analysts, client relations specialists, and legal support professionals, each of whom provides exceptional client service. Our talented team has helped secure significant results for our clients. We feature below some of the firm's achievements across the nation.

- Pirelli Armstrong Tire Corp. Ret. Med. Benefits Trust v. Hanover Compressor Co., No. H-02-0410 (S.D. Tex. Feb. 6, 2004): Shareholders of Hanover Compressor Company, a provider of natural gas compression services operating in the United States and select international markets, brought claims on behalf of the company against company officers and directors for breach of fiduciary duty, waste of corporate assets, abuse of control, and gross mismanagement. The claims arose out of an off-balance-sheet joint venture to build and operate a natural gas processing plant on barges off the coast of Nigeria. Robbins LLP attorneys, serving as lead negotiators for derivative plaintiffs, secured extraordinary results for Hanover, including $57.4 million in compensation (a cash payment of $26.5 million and the return of 2.5 million shares valued at approximately $30.9 million by an entity controlled by certain of the individual defendants) and corporate governance changes that have been noted as having "groundbreaking" and "unprecedented" benefits for Hanover, including the appointment of two shareholder-nominated directors and becoming one of the first companies in the United States to commit to implementing a five-year rotation rule for its outside audit firms.

[1] "Robbins LLP" and "the firm" herein collectively refer to the firm's previous names of Robbins Arroyo LLP, Robbins Umeda LLP, and Robbins Umeda & Fink, LLP.

- In re Nicor, Inc. S'holder Derivative Litig., No. 02 CH 15499 (Ill. Cir. Ct.-Cook Cnty. Mar. 29, 2005): The firm served as co-lead counsel for plaintiffs who brought claims for breach of fiduciary duty and unjust enrichment against several officers and directors of Nicor, Inc., one of the largest natural gas distributors in the United States. Plaintiffs alleged that Nicor's management made material misrepresentations and omitted material information from the Illinois Commerce Commission and the company's shareholders and customers, and unlawfully manipulated the company's operating results. Robbins LLP attorneys recovered $33 million for Nicor and secured personnel changes among Nicor's executive officers and board members.

- In re OM Group, Inc. Derivative Litig., No. 1:03-CV-0020 (N.D. Ohio Nov. 10, 2005): The firm served as lead counsel to plaintiffs in this derivative action arising out of a massive accounting fraud at this global solutions provider and specialty chemical manufacturer. During the litigation, our attorneys opposed and defeated defendants' motions to dismiss, reviewed thousands of documents produced during discovery, conducted expert discovery, and took over forty depositions of witnesses and defendants throughout the United States and Europe. Robbins LLP obtained a settlement that included a $29 million payment to the company, the termination of the company's chief executive officer, the addition of two shareholder-nominated directors, and the implementation of various other beneficial corporate governance procedures at the company.

- Lieb v. Unocal Corp., No. BC331316 (Cal. Super. Ct.-L.A. Cnty. Dec. 20, 2005): Robbins LLP served as co-lead counsel for the public shareholders of Unocal Corporation in this securities class action against Unocal and several of its insiders, officers, and directors for self-dealing and breach of fiduciary duty in connection with the proposed sale of Unocal to Chevron Corporation. Plaintiffs alleged that Unocal's management failed to obtain the highest share price reasonably available by tailoring the proposed acquisition terms to meet the specific needs of acquirer Chevron, and by discouraging alternative bids. After obtaining broad expedited discovery, the firm was credited for helping Unocal shareholders to realize $500 million in additional consideration as a result of Chevron's increased bid of $17.4 billion. The firm also secured supplemental proxy statement disclosures before Unocal shareholders voted on whether to accept Chevron's bid over a nominally higher bid by the Chinese National Offshore Oil Corporation.

- In re Titan, Inc. Sec. Litig., No. 04-CV-0676-LAB (NLS) (S.D. Cal. Dec. 20, 2005): The firm served as co-lead counsel in this securities fraud class action against The Titan Corporation and certain of its officers and directors for violations of Sections 10(b) and 20(a) of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 and breach of fiduciary duty. Robbins LLP's efforts resulted in a recovery of $61.5 million for Titan's shareholders.

- In re Tenet Healthcare Corp. Derivative Litig., No. 01098905 (Cal. Super Ct.-Santa Barbara Cnty. May 5, 2006), aff'd, No. B192252 (Cal. App. Sept. 20, 2007): The firm served as co-lead counsel for the plaintiffs, who alleged that Tenet Healthcare Corp.'s top executives breached their fiduciary duties to the company by failing to monitor, investigate, and oversee Tenet's patient procedures, Medicare billing, and accounting practices. After prosecuting the case for over three years, Robbins LLP's attorneys negotiated a comprehensive settlement, which included $51.5 million in cash contributions to Tenet and sweeping corporate governance reforms and other remedial measures designed to ensure the independence and accountability of the company's board of directors. The new governance regime included separation of the positions of chief executive officer and chairman of the board of directors, strict internal financial controls, enhanced guidelines for stock ownership and stock retention, and a comprehensive insider trading policy. The settlement was upheld on appeal.

- In re Qwest Sav. & Inv. Plan ERISA Litig., No. 02-cv-00464 (D. Colo. Jan. 29, 2007): Robbins LLP served on plaintiffs' executive committee in a class action brought as a civil enforcement suit for ERISA violations. The employees alleged that Qwest's management repeatedly misrepresented the financial status of the company to its employees to encourage employees to make discretionary investments in Qwest common stock. When the truth about Qwest's financial condition and egregious accounting manipulations was revealed, the price of Qwest common stock plummeted, but employees were restricted from selling their retirement fund shares under the terms of the Qwest Savings & Investment Plan. When the restriction was lifted, Qwest stock was trading at an all-time low, devastating the employees' retirement funds. After years of contentious litigation, Robbins LLP helped achieve a $37.5 million settlement for the benefit of the employees who had invested in the retirement plan.

- Staehr v. Walter, No. 02-CVG-11-0639 (Ohio Ct. C.P.-Del. Cnty. Dec. 17, 2007): Robbins LLP led the charge in derivative litigation on behalf of the plaintiff who brought claims against certain Cardinal Health Inc. officers and directors arising out of Cardinal's proposed stock-for-stock acquisition of Syncor International Corp. The action forced Cardinal to reduce the previously negotiated acquisition price for Syncor, saving the company millions of dollars. During its work on the Syncor transaction, Robbins LLP and other firms discovered that Cardinal insiders had engaged in a massive revenue inflation scheme to fraudulently overstate the company's financial performance. Robbins LLP filed an amended complaint against several of Cardinal's officers and directors, defeated multiple motions to dismiss, and pursued and reviewed millions of pages of documents in discovery. The firm ultimately negotiated and resolved the matter by obtaining $70 million for the company—among the largest monetary recoveries ever in a shareholder derivative action. The settlement also required Cardinal's board of directors to implement significant corporate governance and internal accounting controls designed to improve the board's oversight of Cardinal's senior management and to prevent the recurrence of the alleged accounting manipulations.

- In re Juniper Networks, Inc. Derivative Litig., No. 1:06-CV-064294 (Cal. Super. Ct.-Santa Clara Cnty. Dec. 4, 2008): Robbins LLP served as co-lead counsel in this state shareholder derivative suit against several officers and directors of Juniper Networks, Inc., a global networking and communications technology company, for breach of fiduciary duty, abuse of control, gross mismanagement, waste of corporate assets, unjust enrichment, insider selling, accounting, and rescission in connection with a stock option backdating scheme. After extensively prosecuting the case, the firm helped secure substantive corporate governance reforms and the forfeiture of more than $22 million in stock options to the company from four executives and directors of the board.

- In re KB Home S'holder Derivative Litig.,. No. 2:06-CV-05148-FMC (CTx) (C.D. Cal. Feb. 9, 2009): Robbins LLP served as co-lead counsel for the plaintiffs, who alleged that insiders of KB Home, Inc., a prominent builder of single-family homes in the United States and France, manipulated their stock option grant dates to misappropriate millions of dollars in illicit compensation. Robbins LLP's efforts helped return nearly $50 million in value to the company, including a cash payment of over $31 million. In addition, the firm helped KB Home secure corporate governance enhancements and implement remedial measures, including separation of the chairman of the board and chief executive officer positions; declassification of the board of directors; majority voting for elections to the board; adoption of formal written procedures for the grant of stock options; and limits on future executive severance payments, among others.

- Overby v. Tyco Int'l Ltd., No. 02-CV-1357-B (D.N.H. Nov. 23, 2009): Robbins LLP represented a class of employees of Tyco International Ltd., the largest electronics security provider in the world, when employees brought claims against the company for ERISA violations. Robbins LLP helped obtain a $70 million settlement for the beneficiaries of Tyco's defined contribution retirement plan.

- In re Brocade Communications Systems, Inc. Derivative Litigation, No. 1:05-CV-041683 (Cal. Super. Ct.-Santa Clara County Jan. 28, 2010): Robbins LLP represented plaintiffs in this shareholder derivative action against officers and directors of Brocade Communications Systems, Inc., an industry leader in data center networking solutions, following the announcement that Brocade would have to restate two fiscal years of financial statements to correct its improper accounting for stock-based compensation expenses. For years, Brocade's insiders had engaged in a secret stock option backdating scheme designed to reward executives and recruit engineers with stock options priced below their fair market value as of the date of the grants. Robbins LLP successfully petitioned the court to proceed with litigation to prevent an inadequate settlement of a related federal action, which would have released the officers, directors, and agents of the company responsible for the criminal backdating scheme for no money to the company nor a payment of attorney's fees, even as the U.S. Government pursued and ultimately won criminal convictions against the responsible executives. After almost three years of diligently prosecuting the case, during which Robbins LLP engaged in extensive motion practice, reviewed approximately three million pages of documents, and marshaled evidence from related cases involving the conduct at Brocade, Brocade's Special Litigation Committee retained Robbins LLP to serve as its co-counsel, and, after presentations from Robbins LLP, authorized the continued prosecution of claims against Brocade's officers and directors and on behalf of the shareholders.

- In re PETCO Animal Supplies, Inc. S'holder Litig., No. GIC 869399 (Cal. Super. Ct.-San Diego Cnty. Mar. 26, 2010): Robbins LLP served as co-lead counsel to the public shareholders of PETCO Animal Supplies, Inc., in a class action that sought to enjoin PETCO's insiders, directors, and affiliates from consummating any sale of PETCO unless and until the company implemented a procedure to ensure that PETCO's shareholders received the highest possible price for the sale. Over the course of three years, our attorneys engaged in extensive motion practice and document, expert, and witness discovery. Shortly before the case went to trial, Robbins LLP assisted in achieving a settlement that secured a $16 million settlement fund for the class.

- In re Am. Int'l Group, Inc. Derivative Litig., No. 04 Civ. 8406 (DLC) (S.D.N.Y. Mar. 14, 2011): The firm was appointed lead counsel in the consolidated federal action alleging breach of fiduciary duty claims in connection with a bid-rigging scheme with Marsh & McLennan Companies, Inc., sham reinsurance transactions with General Re Corporation, and other activities intended to falsify American International Group, Inc.'s ("AIG") financial results. As part of a global settlement of the derivative claims on AIG's behalf, Robbins LLP helped secure a $90 million payment to AIG, one of the largest monetary recoveries in the history of shareholder derivative actions.

- Kloss v. Kerker, No. 50-2010-CA-018594-XXXX-MB (Fla. Cir. Ct.-Palm Beach Cnty. May 27, 2011): Robbins LLP worked with the parties to derivative litigation filed on behalf of the Internet's leading vitamin and supplement retailer, Vitacost.com, Inc., to save the $158 million market cap company from bankruptcy and to preserve the equity interests of its shareholders. Robbins LLP was instrumental in achieving a settlement that enabled the company to bring its financial statements and Security and Exchange Commission ("SEC") filings current; allowed Vitacost to hold a long overdue shareholder meeting to address fundamental defects in the corporation's formation, board composition, and past stock issuances; and helped the company to persuade NASDAQ to lift its trading moratorium and provide the company and its shareholders access to the capital markets. The firm worked with the company's new board of directors to implement a series of corporate governance best practices, including a robust insider trading policy. Vitacost hired Robbins LLP to evaluate and potentially to prosecute the company's claims against other parties relating to the defects in its formation, stock issuances, and other pre-IPO issues.

- Martinez v. Toll (Toll Bros., Inc.), No. 2:09-cv-00937-CDJ (E.D. Pa. Mar. 27, 2013); Pfeiffer v. Toll, No. 4140-VCL (Del. Ch. Mar. 15, 2013): Robbins LLP represented shareholders in the Toll Brothers, Inc. shareholder derivative litigation in which plaintiffs alleged that certain company officers and directors, including the co-founders, traded on inside information and grossly misled investors about company earnings projections during a housing market downturn. After four years of contentious litigation, the firm helped secure one of the largest Brophy (Brophy v. Cities Serv. Co., 70 A.2d 5 (Del. Ch. 1949)) settlements ever, a $16.25 million cash payment to the luxury homebuilding company. The settlement included a $6.45 million payment from the executive directors—an unprecedented result in shareholder litigation of this type.

- Cook v. McCullough, No. 1:11-cv-09119 (N.D. Ill. Jan. 28, 2014): Robbins LLP served as co-lead counsel in shareholder derivative litigation arising out of Career Education Corp.'s alleged publication of false statements regarding job placement and student loan repayment rates, and failure to ensure compliance with Title IV regulations. The firm played a leading role in negotiating the global resolution of a series of actions brought against and on behalf of the company, and helped secure a $20 million recovery and comprehensive board and management-level corporate governance and oversight reforms for Career Education, including enhanced compliance and whistleblower policies, new director independence standards, improved executive compensation claw-back provisions, a comprehensive director education and employee training program, and an improved regulatory risk management and disclosure regime.

- In re Star Scientific, Inc. Securities Litigation, No. 3:13-CV-00183-JAG (E.D.Va.July 6, 2015): Robbins LLP served as lead counsel in this securities fraud class action against Star Scientific, Inc. alleging that the defendants made materially false and misleading statements regarding Johns Hopkins University School of Medicine's purported involvement in the clinical development and testing of the company's main product - Anatabloc® - to increase Star Scientific's stock price to the detriment of stockholders and to secure the equity financing the company needed to stay in business. The firm successfully defeated defendants' motion to dismiss, engaged in extensive settlement discussions, and ultimately secured a $5.9 million settlement fund on behalf of stockholders who purchased their shares of Star Scientific stock based on these misrepresentations.

- Espinoza v. Zuckerberg, C.A. No. 9745-CB (Del. Ch. Mar. 30, 2016): Robbins LLP served as counsel in shareholder derivative litigation on behalf of Facebook, Inc. arising from the alleged award of unfair excessive compensation by the board of directors to its non-employee members. Certain members of Facebook's board of directors attempted to circumvent corporate law procedures to obtain controlling stockholder approval of compensation awarded by the Board to its non-employee members. After deposing Facebook's Chief Executive Officer Mark Zuckerberg and beating a motion for summary judgment, Robbins LLP convinced Facebook to impose corporate governance reforms designed to ensure the Board awards executive compensation fairly and not to the detriment of the company, including allowing stockholders to vote on non-employee directors' compensation. As such, Robbins LLP helped established that public companies with controlling stockholders must comply with corporate law procedures.

- In re Venoco, Inc. S'holder Litig., No. 6825-VCG (Del. Ch. Oct. 5, 2016): Robbins LLP served as co-lead counsel to the public shareholders of Venoco, Inc. in this class action arising out of a scheme by the energy company's Chief Executive Officer to buy out Venoco's minority shareholders at an inadequate share price. Robbins LLP conducted extensive fact and expert discovery for two years after the closing of the acquisition. During this time, Venoco floundered due to a decline in the price of oil, a burst pipeline, and additional debt from the acquisition, which ultimately led the company to file for bankruptcy. Amidst the company's demise, the firm achieved a settlement fund of $19 million for shareholders—a significant recovery in light of Venoco's dire financial circumstances. At the final approval hearing, the Honorable Sam Glasscock III, Vice Chancellor, in the Court of Chancery of the State of Delaware, touted the settlement as a "good result for all" and "very fortunate for the class," and noted Robbins LLP as "excellent counsel." (Transcript of Proceeding at 19, 22).

- In re Fifth Street Finance Corp. Shareholder Derivative Litigation, Lead Case No. 3:15-cv-01795-RNC (D. Conn. Dec. 13, 2016): Robbins LLP served as lead counsel in shareholder derivative litigation brought on behalf of Fifth Street Finance Corp. to challenge alleged conflicts of interest in Fifth Street's relationship with its investment advisor, FSAM. Plaintiffs alleged that certain Fifth Street and FSAM officers and directors caused Fifth Street to make reckless investments, use bogus accounting, and pay excessive fees to inflate FSAM's perceived value in the lead up to FSAM's initial public offering. The firm's settlement negotiations resulted in advisory fee reductions worth at least $30 million and comprehensive corporate governance, oversight, and conflicts management enhancements.

- In re Community Health Systems, Inc. Shareholder Derivative Litig., No. 3:11-cv-00489 (M.D. Tenn. Jan. 20, 2017): Serving as co-lead counsel against the officers and directors of Community Health, Inc. in shareholder derivative litigation alleging that the fiduciaries systematically steered patients into medically unnecessary inpatient admissions when they should have been treated as outpatient, Robbins LLP was instrumental in obtaining what is believed to be the largest shareholder derivative recovery in the Sixth Circuit to date. After five years of contentious litigation and discovery, defendants agreed to settle the case, which included a $60 million cash payment to Community Health and the implementation of extensive corporate governance reforms, including board modifications to ensure director independence, improved internal disclosure policies to allow for the confidential reporting of suspected violations of healthcare laws, and the establishment of a Trading Compliance Committee to ensure compliance with Community Health's insider stock trading policy, among others.

- In re Saba Software, Inc. Stockholder Litig., No. 10697-VCN (Del.Ch. Sept. 26, 2018): Robbins LLP served as lead counsel in this shareholder class action in the Delaware Chancery Court against the officers and directors of Saba Software, Inc. for breaches of fiduciary duties related to the buyout of Saba by Vector Capital Management. Plaintiffs alleged that because the company was facing mounting financial concerns, including delisting by the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission and a failure to complete its internal review of the accounting treatment of certain international transactions, defendants chose to sell the company in a flawed and self-serving sales process in exchange for inadequate merger consideration of Saba shareholders. After three and a half years of litigation, including extensive discovery, mediation, and a lengthy settlement negotiation process, defendants agreed to pay Saba's former shareholders $19.5 million. In approving the settlement, Vice Chancellor Slights called the firm's representation of the class "exemplary" and touted the settlement as a "strong recovery for the class."

- In re Twitter, Inc*. *Shareholder Derivative Litig., No. 1:18-cv-00062-VAC-MPT (D. Del. July 27, 2021): The firm served as co-lead counsel on behalf of the federal shareholder plaintiffs in a shareholder derivative action that alleged defendants breached their fiduciary duties to Twitter and its stockholders by making materially false and/or misleading statements about Twitter's user growth and user management prospects and that certain individual defendants profited on their inside information. After extensive litigation, including multiple mediations and months of settlement discussions, Robbins LLP's attorneys were instrumental in obtaining a $38 million settlement to Twitter and substantial corporate governance reforms, including enhancements to the Disclosure and Audit Committees, the creation of an independent Chief Compliance Officer position, and improved compliance training and insider trading policies.

- In Re Workhorse Group Inc. Stockholder Derivative Litigation, No. A-21-833050-B (NV. Dist. Ct.-Clark Cnty June 22, 2023): The firm represented the plaintiffs in the Nevada state court derivative action who alleged that defendants made false and misleading statements regarding Workhorse's future business prospects, including its ability to win all, or a significant portion off, the United States Postal Service's multibillion dollar contract to replace its aging fleet of vehicles with electric vehicles, and sales of stock by Workhorse directors and officers while the company's stock price was allegedly inflated by those false and misleading statements. After extensive negotiations that included the parties to various derivative cases involving Workhorse, counsel reached a settlement that included $12.5 million to the company, the creation of a Disclosure Controls Committee and Chief Compliance Officer Position, and numerous other substantial reforms designed to prevent similar future wrongdoing.

- In re Altria Group, Inc. Derivative Litigation, No. 3:20-cv-772 (DJN) (E.D. VA, Feb 20, 2023): Robbins LLP served as additional counsel to the federal plaintiffs in this coordinated litigation on behalf of Altria Group Inc. wherein plaintiffs alleged that Altria's $12.8 billion investment in Juul Labs, Inc. undermined the company's hard-fought reputational progress with regulators and lawmakers after decades of marketing tobacco products and funding misleading research about the harmful effects of smoking. After a yearlong negotiation, Robbins LLP was instrumental in achieving a hard-fought settlement that required multiple mediations, months of continued discussions, informal mediation conferences, and extensive document review of over 35 million pages. When achieved, the settlement contemplated a comprehensive and global resolution of the actions. As a result of the settlement, Altria committed to funding $117 million over five years, with a minimum spend of $20 million each year to address policy and governance measures relating to youth prevention and transaction oversight that may include: (i) positive youth development programs; (ii) smoking and vaping cessation treatment; and (iii) point of sale age verification technology.

- Yu v. RMG Sponsor, LLC, et al., No. 2021-0932-NAC (Del. Ch. Oct. 18, 2024): Robbins LLP served as co-lead counsel for the class that sued defendants asserting claims for breach of fiduciary duty and unjust enrichment in connection with the merger between RMG Acquisition Corp., a SPAC, and Romeo Systems, Inc., a privately held company purportedly engaged in the design and manufacture of lithium-ion battery modules and packs for commercial electric vehicles. Post-merger, Romeo revealed that it had overstated its revenue projections and understated its backlog projections. The company was ultimately acquired by Nikola Corporation in a stock-for-stock transaction that valued Romeo at $144 million ($0.74 a share). After extensive discovery, the parties reached a settlement that resulted in plaintiff securing a $11.99 million settlement for the class, nearly 100% of the damages.

- In Re GeneDx de-SPAC Litigation, No. 2023-0140-PAF (Del. Ch. Dec. 2, 2024): Robbins LLP served as co-lead counsel for the class of CM Life Sciences, Inc. stockholders who were entitled to redeem their stock in connection with the company's merger with a formerly privately held company, Mount Sinai Genomics, Inc. d/b/a Sema4 Holdings Corp. The stockholders claimed that the defendants breached their fiduciary duties by issuing a misleading proxy that impaired their decision on whether to redeem their CML Life Sciences, Inc. stock when it merged with Legacy Sema4. Post-merger, GeneDx reported less revenue than projected in the Proxy Statement issued in support of the merger, lowered revenue expectations, and announced its exit from one of its core businesses. As a result, GeneDx's share price fell below $0.50 per share. After extensive and contested discovery, the parties reached an agreement that resulted in a recovery of $21 million to the class.

- Siseles, et al. v. Lutnick, et al., No. 2023-1152-JTL (Del. Ch. Dec. 6, 2024): Robbins LLP served as co-lead counsel for the class who brought claims arising from the business combination between special purpose acquisition company CF Finance Acquisition Corp. II and Legacy View, Inc., which CF II shareholders voted to approve on March 5, 2021. After reviewing corporate documents and records, plaintiffs filed a complaint against View asserting claims for breach of fiduciary duty resulting from defendants' alleged impairment of CF II stockholders' redemption rights in connection with the merger. View filed for bankruptcy relief under Chapter 11 of the Bankruptcy Code on April 2, 2024, and sought to release defendants and plaintiffs from future claims. Notwithstanding, the parties to the bankruptcy action agreed that certain causes of action of this matter would be carved out of the Chapter 11 Plan. Through mediation, the parties agreed to settle for $12 million.

- Walsh, et al. v. Buchholz, et al., No. 0:19-cv-01856-JWB-DTS (D. Minn. Mar. 12, 2025): Robbins LLP represented a class of unitholders who challenged the fairness of the April 2019 unit-for-unit acquisition of Apollonia, LLC by St. Renatus, LLC. Plaintiffs alleged the acquisition was designed to unlawfully divest Apollonia, LLC unitholders of the company's valuable assets for grossly inadequate consideration via a flawed sales process. After five years of litigation, including multiple private mediation sessions and a settlement conference, plaintiffs achieved a settlement on the eve of trial of $11.6 million for the class of former Apollonia unit holders.

- In re Prudential Financial Inc. Derivative Litigation, No. 2:20-cv-12772-SRC-CLW (Dist. NJ June 9, 2025): Robbins LLP served as co-lead counsel for plaintiffs who sued for damages in connection with oversight and disclosures regarding adverse mortality experience and corresponding reserves for life insurance policies acquired from The Hartford Financial Services Group, Inc. Plaintiffs alleged that defendants knew that adverse mortality experience would require material adjustments in the mortality exceptions, yet misled investors during its June 2019 investor conference by stating that the mortality experience was in the range of normal volatility and below previous experience. After protracted litigation, Robbins LLP obtained $10 million for the company. In approving the settlement, the Honorable Stanley R. Chesler noted that the settlement was "not only a reasonable recovery, it is a remarkable recovery and is a tribute to plaintiffs and plaintiffs' lawyer efforts in this case." (Transcript of Motion on Final Settlement Approval at 19-20).

- Drulias v. Apex Technology Sponsor LLC, et al., No. 2024-0094-LWW (Del. Ch. July 10, 2025): Robbins LLP served as co-lead counsel for the class of Apex Technology Acquisition Corporation stockholders who were entitled to redeem their shares of stock in connection with the company's merger with AvePoint, Inc. Shareholders sued for breach of fiduciary duty alleging that the Proxy contained multiple materially false and misleading representations about AvePoint's value and prospects and the extent of the director and officers' misaligned pecuniary interests. Robbins LLP was able to secure a $14.4 million recovery for the class.

- In re Kensington-QuantumScape De-SPAC Litigation, No. 2022-0721-JTL (Del. Ch. July 11, 2025): Robbins LLP served as co-lead counsel for the class of Kensington Capital Acquisition Corp. stockholders wo were entitled to redeem their shares of stock in connection with the company's merger with Legacy QuantumScape Corporation. Shareholders sued for breach of fiduciary duty alleging the Proxy included misleading claims about the due diligence done by the Kensington Board, the value of Legacy QuantumScape, and the capabilities of Legacy QuantumScape's technology. After more than three of litigation, Robbins LLP secured $8.75 million for the class.

- In re Gores Holdings IV, Inc. Stockholder Litigation, No. 2023-0284-LWW (Del. Ch. July 15, 2025): Robbins LLP served as co-lead counsel for the class who brought claims arising from the business combination between Gores IV, a special purpose acquisition company, and SFS Holdings Corp., United Wholesale Mortgage, LLC, and UWM Holdings, LLC (collectively, "Legacy UWM"). Plaintiffs alleged breach of fiduciary duty noting that the Proxy's patently unattainable financial projections dissuaded them from redeeming their stock in connection with the merger with Legacy UWM. Robbins LLP secured $17.5 million for the class.

- Himstreet, et al. v. Scharf, et al., No. CGC-22-599223 (Cal. Super. Ct.-S.F. Cnty. July 24, 2025): Robbins LLP represented plaintiffs who are shareholders in Wells Fargo & Co in a derivative shareholder action alleging breaches of fiduciary duty by certain Wells Fargo officers and directors stemming from the purported mismanagement of and noncompliance with myriad consent orders and failures relating to the corporate governance and risk management framework of the company. Plaintiffs defeated numerous dispositive motions and a writ of mandate filed in a California appeals court, intervened in federal court to secure a ruling that streamlined all proceedings into the California state court, negotiated the production of two million pages of discovery, worked through complex privilege issues with federal regulators to secure additional documents, and negotiated a settlement providing for a $100 million cash payment to the company. This settlement is the largest payment made directly to a company in a derivative action in California state court history. The settlement also acknowledged that plaintiffs' allegations in the derivative action caused significant corporate governance reforms related to Wells Fargo's risk structure, programs, policies, and procedures, additional training for employees, expanded and enhanced oversight of risk management by Wells Fargo's Board of Directors, and changes to the composition of Wells Fargo's Board of Directors.

- In re Emergent BioSolutions Inc., Stockholder Derivative Litigation, No. 8:21-cv-01595-DLB (D. Md. Aug. 6, 2025): Serving as lead counsel, the firm secured $15 million for Emergent BioSolutions Inc., as well as an agreement by the company to implement and maintain a package of corporate governance reforms, in shareholder derivative litigation arising from Emergent's failed internal controls at its Bayview, Maryland facility, which led to the termination of Emergent's contracts to manufacture COVID-19 vaccine bulk drug substance as part of the U.S. government's "Operation Warp Speed" pandemic response and left the company on the brink of insolvency.

- In re Becton Dickinson and Company Stockholder Derivative Litigation, No. 2:20-cv-15474-SRC-CLW (D.N.J. Aug. 11, 2025): Robbins LLP served as co-lead counsel for plaintiffs in shareholder derivative litigation involving breach of fiduciary duty and other claims arising from alleged false and misleading statements concerning known issues with the company's Alaris infusion pump system. Robbins LLP led a coordinated multi-jurisdictional litigation effort that culminated in a $9 million payment to Beckton Dickinson and significant governance reforms, including enhanced oversight designed to prevent regulatory compliance violations and product-related issues, improvements to the company's disclosure controls, the addition of an independent corporate governance expert, and the implementation of strengthened vetting processes to ensure Board independence.

Awards & Recognition

For our achievements, Robbins LLP and our attorneys have received numerous accolades, including:

- Chambers California Spotlight Guide (2025)
- Best Law Firm, U.S. News & World Report (2017-2026)
- Leading Firm in Merger and Acquisition Litigation, Legal 500 (2013-2018)
- Top 20 Settlements in California (2017)
- Top 25 Boutique Law Firm in California, Daily Journal (2015)
- Litigation Boutiques Hot List, National Law Journal (2012)
- Among Top Shareholder Plaintiffs' Firms by ISS's Securities Class Action Services
- Ten attorneys named to Super Lawyer lists (2025)
- Top 50 Attorney in San Diego, Super Lawyers, George C. Aguilar (2016-2020)
- Top 50 Attorney in San Diego, Super Lawyers, Brian J. Robbins (2014, 2016, 2018-2025)
- Best Lawyers, Brian J. Robbins (2016-2026); Gregory Del Gaizo (2020-2026); Stephen J. Oddo (2020-2026); Shane P. Sanders (2020-2026)
- Best Lawyers, Lawyer of the Year, Brian J. Robbins (2014-2016; 2021, 2026)
- Best of the Bar, San Diego Business Journal, Brian J. Robbins (2016)
- Best Overall Lawyer in San Diego, Fine Magazine, Brian J. Robbins (2016)
- Top Attorney, The Daily Transcript, Brian J. Robbins (2015)
- Attorney of the Year, SD La Raza, George C. Aguilar (2014)

Judicial Accolades

Robbins LLP's achievements in the courtroom have been recognized by respected jurists. We feature a selection of commendations below.

- "The quality of representation by the Derivative Plaintiffs' Counsel was witnessed first hand by this Court through their articulate, high quality, and successful pleadings. Moreover, as shown by their excellent efforts in this case, Derivative Plaintiffs' Counsel are dedicated to vindicating the rights of shareholders …."

  Honorable Ed Kinkeade, Judge of the U.S. District Court for the Northern District of Texas, *In re Heelys, Inc. Derivative Litig., No. 3:07-CV-1682-K

- "I think you've actually set the bar kind of high for future settlements. This looks like an excellent result for the various class members in both the derivative action and the other action.... And it's to the credit of the lawyers that they were able to achieve this result before a lot of discovery and a lot of expenses were undertaken ... And so, I would be quite delighted and satisfied to make the necessary findings that this is an excellent settlement for plaintiffs."

  Honorable Robert S. Lasnik, Judge of the U.S. District Court for the Western District of Washington, In re Cutter & Buck Sec. Litig., No. C02-1948L

- Robbins LLP's lawyers proved "competent, experienced, [and] trustworthy."

  Honorable Larry A. Burns, Judge of the U.S. District Court for the Southern District of California, In re Sequenom, Inc. Derivative Litig., No. 09CV1341-LAB (WMC)

- "Class counsel is highly experienced in bringing both class actions and derivative claims" and have "a nationwide reputation for handling shareholder derivative litigation, various class actions, and complex litigation…. Throughout the litigation, [class counsel] has shown themselves to be capable and qualified to represent the class."

Honorable Darla Williamson, Judge of the Fourth Judicial District of the State of Idaho, County of Ada, Carmona v. Bryant, CV-OC-0601251

- "The court also notes that the settlement appears to place the shareholders in a much better position than that which existed prior to the beginning of this litigation."

  Honorable John A. Houston, Judge of the U.S. District Court for the Southern District of California, In re Wireless Facilities Inc., Derivative Litig., No. 04-CV-1663 JAH (NLS)

- "I have high regard for … your firm."

  Honorable James P. Kleinberg, Judge of the Superior Court of California, County of Santa Clara, In re Altera Corp. Derivative Litig., No. 1-06-CV-063537

- "[W]e had … competent counsel who were able to reach a very handsome settlement for the shareholders who were working here on behalf of the shareholders interests."

  Honorable Denise de Bellefeuille, Judge of the Superior Court of California, County of Santa Barbara, In re Tenet Healthcare Corp. Derivative Litig., No. 01098905

- "Thank you very much for the good work that you all did. And I think that your stockholders will appreciate it, too."

  Honorable Sophia H. Hall, Judge of the Circuit Court of Cook County, Illinois, In re Nicor, Inc. S'holder Derivative Litig., No. 02CH 15499

- "Thank you for your good work on behalf of your clients. I appreciate it."

  Honorable Thomas Barkdull, Circuit Judge of the Fifteenth Judicial Circuit in and for Palm Beach County, Florida, Kloss v. Kerker, No. 50-2010-CA-018594-XXXX-MB

- "I want to tell you what a pleasure it is dealing with talented counsel.… Thank you very much."

  Honorable John G. Evans, Judge of the Superior Court for the State of California, Riverside County, Hess v. Heckmann, No. INC10010407

- "I think the plaintiffs and their counsel did a good job pressing forward with this action and achieving a good result…. I think that all in all, [$16.25 million] is a good value, a significant benefit for the company."

  Honorable J. Travis Laster, Vice Chancellor in the Court of Chancery of the State of Delaware, Toll Bros., No. 2:09-cv-00937-CDJ and No. 4140-VCL

- "It seems to me to be an excellent settlement in light of all the circumstances: and "a good result for all." "[P]laintiffs' counsel [got] a result that I think is very fortunate for the class."

  Honorable Sam Glasscock III, Vice Chancellor in the Court of Chancery of the State of Delaware, In re Venoco, Inc. Shareholder Litigation, C.A. No. 6825-VCG

- "I think y'all have done a great job pulling this thing together. It was complicated, it was drawn out, and a lot of work clearly went into this…. I'll approve this settlement. I appreciate the work you all did on this. I think this is one where – I can't always say this … there is … benefit to the shareholders that are above and beyond money, a benefit to the company above and beyond money that changed hands."

Honorable Kevin H. Sharp, U.S. Chief District Judge, U.S. District Court for the Middle District of Tennessee Nashville Division, In re Community Health Systems, Inc., Shareholder Derivative Litigation, No. 3:11-cv-00489

- "[T]his recovery is a strong recovery for the class. And, it's one, again, that I think counsel should be commended forer achieving.

  Honorable Joseph R. Slights, III, Vice Chancellor in the Court of Chancery of the State of Delaware, In re Saba Software, Inc. Stockholder Litig., C.A. No. 10697-VCN

Partners

George C. Aguilar

George C. Aguilar is a former federal prosecutor and trial lawyer who has tried more than forty federal criminal trials. Mr. Aguilar concentrates his practice on complex litigation that focuses on shareholder rights and antitrust actions. Mr. Aguilar has litigated on behalf of shareholder clients against fraudulent management and company insiders, securing meaningful corporate governance reforms at companies across the U.S, and on behalf of businesses and consumers challenging anticompetitive behavior.

In Himstreet, et al. v. Scharf, et al., No. GCG-22-599223 (Cal. Super. Ct.-S.F. Cnty. July 24, 2025), Mr. Aguilar led the team of attorneys that recovered a $100 million cash payment – the largest payment directly to a company in a derivative action in California state court history – for Wells Fargo & Co. in shareholder derivative litigation alleging breaches of fiduciary duty by certain Wells Fargo & Co. officers and directors stemming from the purported mismanagement of and noncompliance with myriad consent orders that resulted in the opening of deposit and credit card accounts without customer authorization. Plaintiffs defeated multiple rounds of dispositive motions, engaged in multi-jurisdictional litigation to streamline these proceedings into one court, forced the production of millions of pages of discovery, and worked through incredibly complex privilege issues with federal regulators to secure those documents. The settlement also includes significant corporate governance reforms that include improvement to Wells Fargo's risk structure, programs, policies, and procedures, additional training for employees, expanded and enhanced oversight of risk management by Wells Fargo's Board of Directors, and changes to the composition of Wells Fargo's Board of Directors. In Warner v. Lesar, No. 2011-09567 (Tex. Dist. Ct.-Harris Cnty. Oct. 1, 2012), Mr. Aguilar led the firm's efforts on behalf of Halliburton Company arising from defendants' mismanagement of risk, controls, and operations that led to the worst oil spill in U.S. history at the Deepwater Horizon offshore drilling rig in the Gulf of Mexico. Navigating the case through the company's internal investigation, and difficult and complex settlement discussions and mediation sessions, Mr. Aguilar secured comprehensive health, safety, and environmental governance reforms. In shareholder derivative litigation on behalf of Maxwell Technologies, Inc., Loizides v. Schramm, No. 37-2010-00097953-CU-BT-CTL (Cal. Super. Ct.-San Diego Cnty. Apr. 12, 2012), Mr. Aguilar helped secure a settlement in which the company adopted corporate governance and compliance measures addressing its violations of the Foreign Corrupt Practices Act (FCPA) after being investigated by federal agencies for bribery and subcontracting kickbacks. Of note is the creation of a new FCPA and Anti-Corruption Compliance department led by a Chief Compliance Officer to provide for greater effectiveness of Maxwell's board of directors in responding to FCPA compliance issues worldwide. In shareholder litigation involving Brocade Communications Systems, In re Brocade Communications Systems, Inc., Derivative Litigation, No. 1:05-cv-041683 (Cal. Super. Ct.-Santa Clara Cnty. Jan. 28, 2010), the firm prosecuted the shareholder action involving a criminal options backdating scheme at Brocade until the company formed a Special Litigation Committee to consider the plaintiffs' claims. A key player in the prosecution of the action, Mr. Aguilar successfully presented facts and law to the Special Litigation Committee on behalf of the firm's shareholder clients. Brocade ultimately retained the firm as co-counsel to prosecute its claims against Brocade's officers and directors. Mr. Aguilar also led the firm's efforts as part of a consortium of plaintiff firms in a high-profile antitrust class action suit, Dahl v. Bain Capital Partners, No. 1:07-cv-12388 (WGY) (D. Mass. Mar. 17, 2015), against several private equity firms. The case involved allegations of conspiracy among defendants to rig bids, restrict the supply of private equity financing, fix transaction prices, and divide up the market for private equity services for leveraged buyouts. Robbins LLP played a prominent role in this litigation, bearing the responsibility for building the case against a principal defendant, one of the largest private equity firms in the world. In doing so, Mr. Aguilar conducted several depositions of some of the key private equity principals during the initial discovery phase of the case. The defendants settled for more than $590 million.

Before joining Robbins LLP, Mr. Aguilar spent 17 years as a federal prosecutor with the U.S. Attorney's Office in San Diego. During his tenure, Mr. Aguilar served as chief for the Terrorism, Violent Crimes, and General Prosecutions Section; deputy chief for the General Crimes Section; trial lawyer for the Financial Institution Fraud Task Force and the Major Frauds Sections; and as a supervising ethics officer. He led grand jury investigations and indicted and tried complex white collar criminal cases involving corporate, securities, bank, investor, tax, foreign currency and bankruptcy fraud, bank bribery, and money laundering, among others. He authored 35 appellate briefs and argued more than a dozen cases on appeal before the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Ninth Circuit. For his work, Mr. Aguilar received several awards of recognition from the U.S. Department of Justice and federal agencies, including the prestigious Director's Award of the Executive Office for U.S. Attorneys. Prior to joining the U.S. Attorney's Office, Mr. Aguilar worked on complex securities defense litigation at Morrison & Foerster LLP's San Francisco office.

Mr. Aguilar is a recognized leader in the legal and civic communities. He writes and speaks on topics related to shareholder litigation and corporate governance. He was recently appointed as a member of the U.S. District Court's Magistrate Judge's Merit Selection Panel, and is an active member of Association of Business Trial Lawyers, Public Justice Foundation, San Diego La Raza Lawyers Association, and San Diego County Bar Association. He has served in top leadership positions at La Raza Lawyers Association of California, San Diego La Raza Lawyers Association, the State Bar of California, and the City of San Diego. Mr. Aguilar was honored as a Super Lawyers Top 50 attorney in San Diego (2016-2020) and has been named a Super Lawyer for 14 consecutive years (2012-2025). He is also the recipient of the Attorney of the Year Award from San Diego La Raza Lawyers Association (2014) and has received the San Diego Mediation Center's Peacemaker Award for his community service work.

Mr. Aguilar received his law degree in 1986 from the University of California, Berkeley School of Law. While in law school, he served on the Moot Court Board and was managing editor of the La Raza Law Journal. Mr. Aguilar graduated from the University of Southern California in 1983 with a Bachelor of Arts in both Political Science and Journalism. He is licensed to practice law in the State of California and has been admitted to the U.S. District Courts for the Northern, Central, and Southern Districts of California, the Eastern District of Wisconsin, and the District of Colorado, as well as the U.S. Courts of Appeals for the Second, Ninth, and Tenth Circuits, and the U.S. Supreme Court.

Gregory E. Del Gaizo

Gregory E. Del Gaizo focuses his practice on shareholder rights litigation. As the head of Robbins LLP's New Matters Group, he initiates and oversees pre-litigation investigations and analysis of new cases for the firm. Mr. Del Gaizo has prosecuted shareholder litigation that has recouped over one hundred million dollars and secured extensive corporate governance reforms and other pro-investor measures at companies in which his clients invest.

Under Mr. Del Gaizo's guidance, the firm has achieved numerous successes on behalf of classes of shareholders who were misled in connection with business combinations involving special purpose acquisition companies. These cases include: $21 million recovery for CM Life Sciences, Inc. shareholders (In Re GeneDx de-SPAC Litigation, No. 2023-0140-PAF (Del. Ch. Dec. 2, 2024)); $17.5 million for Gores IV shareholders (In re Gores Holdings IV, Inc. Stockholder Litigation, No. 2023-0284-LWW (Del Ch. July 15, 2025)); $14.4 million for Apex Technology Acquisition Corp. shareholders (Drulias v. Apex Technology Sponsor LLC, et al., No. 2024-0094-LWW (Del Ch. July 10, 2025)); $12 million for CF Finance Acquisition Corp. II shareholders (Siseles, et al. v. Lutnick, et al., No. 2023-1152-JTL (Del. Ch. Dec. 6, 2024)); $11.99 million for RMG Acquisition Corp. shareholders (Yu v. RMG Sponsor, LLC, et al., No. 2021-0932-NAC (Del. Ch. Oct. 18, 2024)); $8.75 million for Kensington Capital Acquisition Corp. shareholders (In re Kensington-QuantumScape De-SPAC Litigation, No. 2022-0721-JTL (Del. Ch. July 11, 2025)); and $6 million for Fortress Value Acquisition Corp. II, shareholders and $6.45 million to settle shareholder derivative claims (In re ATI Physical Therapy, Inc. S'Holder Deriv. Litig., No. 1-21-cv-06415 (N.D. Ill Sept. 24, 2024)).

Mr. Del Gaizo's additional successes on behalf of clients include leading the discovery process for Robbins LLP in litigation on behalf of luxury homebuilder Toll Brothers, Inc., which resulted in a $16.25 million settlement, one of the largest Brophy monetary recoveries ever. Martinez v. Toll, No. 2:09-cv-00937-CDJ (E.D. Pa. Mar. 27, 2013). He was also a member of litigation teams in Staehr v. Walter, No. 02-CVG-11-0639 (Ohio Ct. C.P.-Del. Cnty. Dec. 17, 2007), which secured a payment of $70 million to Cardinal Health and In re KB Home S'holder Derivative Litig., No. 2:06-CV-05148-FMC (CTx) (C.D. Cal. Feb. 9, 2009), which obtained $30 million in cash benefits and substantial corporate governance reforms for the home builder.

Mr. Del Gaizo has authored several articles on securities litigation, including State Law Insider Trading Claims See New Light, The Recorder, July 1, 2011; Directors and Officers Can't Hide in Del., Securities Law360, Jan. 14, 2011; Control of Forum in Derivative Actions, The Recorder, Dec. 10, 2010; and Clearing the Path for Double Derivative Suits, The Recorder, Nov. 1, 2010. He also speaks to audiences about shareholder rights. Mr. Del Gaizo has been acknowledged for his hard work and dedication by Super Lawyers (2015-2016, 2022-2025), Best Lawyers for Litigation – Securities (2020-2025), and as a Recommended Attorney in M&A Litigation by Legal 500 (2016).

Mr. Del Gaizo obtained his Juris Doctor degree in 2006 from the University of San Diego School of Law. While in law school, Mr. Del Gaizo served as a research assistant to Frank Partnoy, director of the Center for Corporate and Securities Law at the University of San Diego, and as an intern at Kim & Chang, the largest law firm in Korea. Mr. Del Gaizo attended Providence College and, while there, interned for the New York City Law Department. He graduated cum laude in 2003 with a Bachelor of Arts degree in Political Science. Mr. Del Gaizo is licensed to practice law in the State of California and has been admitted to the U.S. District Courts for the Northern, Central, and Southern Districts of California and the District of Colorado.

Michael J. Nicoud

Michael J. Nicoud represents individuals and institutional investors in complex litigation aimed at improving corporate governance practices and recovering lost assets for shareholders of publicly traded companies, and businesses and consumers challenging anticompetitive behavior. He has litigated cases involving antitrust violations, accounting fraud, insider trading, false and misleading statements, and other types of fiduciary and corporate misconduct at public and private companies. In addition to his experience at Robbins LLP, Mr. Nicoud has worked at several boutique business litigation firms in San Diego, where he worked on trials, arbitrations, and mediations in cases before state and federal courts. For his work, Mr. Nicoud's peers have recognized him as a Super Lawyer Rising Star for ten consecutive years.

Mr. Nicoud was part of the litigation team that recovered a $100 million cash payment – the largest payment directly to a company in a derivative action in California state court history – and the implementation of significant governance reforms for Wells Fargo & Co. in shareholder derivative litigation alleging breaches of fiduciary duty by certain Wells Fargo & Co. officers and directors stemming from the purported mismanagement of and noncompliance with myriad consent orders that resulted in the opening of deposit and credit card accounts without customer authorization. Plaintiffs achieved their success only after defeating multiple rounds of dispositive motions, engaging in multi-jurisdictional litigation to streamline these proceedings into one court, forcing the production of millions of pages of discovery, and working through incredibly complex privilege issues with federal regulators to secure those documents. Himstreet, et al. v. Scharf, et al., No. GCG-22-599223 (Cal. Super. Ct.-S.F. Cnty. July 24, 2025). One of Mr. Nicoud's most important contributions to the firm's success was his role in the litigation against the officers and directors of Community Health Systems, Inc. In re Community Health Systems, Inc. Shareholder Derivative Litig., No. 3:11-cv-00489 (M.D. Tenn. Jan. 20, 2017). Mr. Nicoud deposed multiple hospital CEOs, a physician whistleblower, and other high-level executives. The case ultimately settled for a massive $60 million dollar payment to the company, along with extensive corporate governance reforms.

Mr. Nicoud received his Juris Doctor degree from the University of Colorado Law School. While in law school, Mr. Nicoud served as an intern at the San Diego Public Defender's Office, as an editor of the Colorado Journal of International Environmental Law and Policy, as president of the Student Trial Lawyers Association, and was on the Moot Court Board. As a member of the mock trial team, he earned a best advocate award at the national level and received the Melanie Ruth Vogl Memorial Scholarship for Outstanding Trial Advocacy. Mr. Nicoud received his Bachelor of Science in Environmental Science, with honors, from the University of Calgary in Alberta, Canada. Mr. Nicoud is licensed to practice law in California and has been admitted to the U.S. District Court for the Northern and Southern Districts of California, the U.S. District Court for the District of Colorado, the U.S. District Court for the Central District of Illinois, and the U.S. District Court of Appeals for the Second and Ninth Circuit.

Stephen J. Oddo

Stephen J. Oddo represents the firm's clients in complex litigation. Of particular note, Mr. Oddo spent more than a decade representing individual and institutional shareholders in corporate merger and acquisition class actions. In so doing, he has secured tens of millions of dollars of additional consideration for shareholders whose investments have been adversely impacted by corporate transactions. Mr. Oddo has also achieved disclosure of material information to shareholders so they are informed on the transaction at the time of the vote. His litigation efforts have helped preserve the integrity of the merger process in companies across the country and helped maximize value to shareholders. For his excellence in practice, Mr. Oddo was recognized as a Super Lawyer (2016-2025), by Best Lawyers for Securities Litigation (2020-2025), and as a Recommended Attorney in M&A Litigation by Legal 500 (2016, 2018).

Mr. Oddo's contributions to the firm are extensive. In Walsh, et al. v. Buchholz, et al., Case No. 0:19-cv-01856-JWB-DTS (D. Minn. Mar. 12, 2025), Mr. Oddo represented a class of unitholders who challenged the fairness of the April 2019 unit-for-unit acquisition of Apollonia, LLC by St. Renatus, LLC., and achieved a $11.6 million settlement for the class on the eve of trial. Serving as lead counsel on behalf of a plaintiff who alleged certain Microchip Technology, Inc. officers and directors issued materially false and misleading statements regarding the operations and financial performance of Microsemi Corporation, which Microchip acquired for $10.15 billion, Mr. Oddo obtained a $4 million payment for Microchip from defendants' insurer and significant governance benefits for the Company. Reid v. Sanghi, Case No. CV2019-002389 (Sup. Ct. AZ June 14, 2023). After three years of litigation, Mr. Oddo secured an $8 million settlement for LRR Energy, L.P. unitholders who owned stock when Vanguard Natural Resources, LC acquired LRR Energy for an unfair price and as the result of a misleading proxy. Hurwitz v. Mullins, et al., C.A., No. 15-711 (Del.Ch.Dec. 19, 2018). Serving as lead counsel in In re Saba Software, Inc. Stockholder Litig. C.A. No. 10698-VCN, Mr. Oddo secured a $19.5 million settlement on behalf of former Saba Software shareholders in a class action alleging the company had engaged in a flawed and self-serving sales process in exchange for inadequate merger consideration for Saba Software shareholders. The court acknowledged that the settlement was "exemplary" and a "strong recovery for the class." In In re Venoco, Inc. S'holder Litig., C.A. No. 6825-VCG (Del. Ch. Oct. 5, 2016), Mr. Oddo, serving as co-lead counsel to the public shareholders of the energy company, achieved a $19 million settlement fund for shareholders – a significant recovery in light of Venoco's dire financial circumstances. Mr. Oddo earned praise from the judge for securing a "good result for all" and noted Robbins LLP as "excellent counsel." Mr. Oddo secured a $5.9 million settlement fund as lead counsel in In re Star Scientific, Inc. Securities Litig., No. 3:13-CV-00183-JAG (E.D. VA July 6, 2015), a securities fraud class action alleging that defendants made materially false and misleading statements regarding one of the company's clinical trials. In In re PETCO Animal Supplies, Inc. S'holder Litig., Lead Case No. GIC 869399 (Cal. Super. Ct.-San Diego Cnty. Mar. 26, 2010), Mr. Oddo helped secure a $16 million settlement fund for the shareholder class after three years of contentious litigation. At his former firm, Mr. Oddo represented shareholders of eMachines, Inc., in In re eMachines, Inc. Merger Litigation, No. 01-CC-00156 (Cal. Super. Ct.-Orange Cnty. July 25, 2007), in challenging the efforts of the company's founder to take the company private. Mr. Oddo's litigation efforts helped secure a $24 million common fund for shareholders. In the merger and acquisition-related securities class action In re Electronic Data Systems Class Action Litigation, Master File No. 366-01078-2008 (Tex. Dist. Ct.-Collin Cnty. Dec. 23, 2008), Mr. Oddo served as lead counsel and challenged the acquisition of Electronic Data Systems Corporation by Hewlett-Packard Company. Mr. Oddo negotiated a pre-closing settlement that secured for Electronic Data Systems shareholders a $25 million dividend and the disclosure of previously omitted material information concerning the transaction that allowed for an informed shareholder vote.

Prior to joining Robbins LLP, Mr. Oddo was a partner at the firm now known as Robbins Geller Rudman & Dowd LLP, where Mr. Oddo was part of a team at the forefront of litigating shareholder claims challenging unfair business combinations. Before entering the legal profession, Mr. Oddo served as Press Secretary to U.S. Representative Robert T. Matsui (D-Cal).

Mr. Oddo received his Juris Doctor in 1994 from the University of San Diego School of Law. During law school, he interned for the Honorable Eugene Lynch, U.S. District Judge in the Northern District of California. Mr. Oddo earned his Master of Science in Journalism from Northwestern University, Medill School of Journalism in 1987, and his Bachelor of Arts from Santa Clara University in 1986. Mr. Oddo is licensed to practice law in the State of California and has been admitted to the U.S. District Courts for the Northern, Central, and Southern Districts of California, the District of Colorado, the Northern District of Illinois, the Southern District of Texas, the Eastern District of Michigan, and the Eastern District of Wisconsin.

Brian J. Robbins

Brian J. Robbins is a co-founder and the managing partner of Robbins LLP and oversees the management of the firm and its practice areas. He has committed his entire career to representing shareholders, employees, consumers, and businesses in complex litigation matters. Focusing on shareholder rights litigation, Mr. Robbins has served as lead or co-lead counsel in many complex, multi-party actions across the country on behalf of U.S. and international clients. He has secured hundreds of millions of dollars in monetary recoveries and comprehensive corporate governance enhancements for shareholders and the public corporations in which they have invested.

Mr. Robbins was instrumental in achieving an extraordinary settlement on behalf of his shareholder client in Kloss v. Kerker, No. 50-2010-CA-018594-XXXX-MB (Fla. Cir. Ct.-Palm Beach Cty. May 27, 2011), which virtually saved vitamin and supplement retailer Vitacost.com, Inc. from bankruptcy and helped to preserve the equity interests of its shareholders. In In re Wireless Facilities, Inc. Derivative Litigation, No. 04-CV-1663-JAH-(NLS) (S.D. Cal. Mar. 30, 2010), Mr. Robbins was instrumental in obtaining the forfeiture of stock and/or stock options back to the company by certain officers, restricted voting rights for certain former officers and directors, monetary reimbursement to the company, and corporate governance reforms, such as the addition of two independent directors to the board and an annual review of the chairman's performance. *In re Tenet Healthcare Corporation Derivative Litig*ation, No. 01098905 (Cal. Super Ct.-Santa Barbara Cty. May 5, 2006), aff'd, No. B192252 (Cal. App. Sept. 20, 2007), Mr. Robbins helped recover $51.5 million for Tenet and sweeping corporate governance enhancements and remedial measures, and in Titan, Inc. Securities Litigation, No. 04-CV-0676-LAB (NLS) (S.D. Cal. Dec. 20, 2005*),* Mr. Robbins helped obtain a $61.5 million recovery, one of the largest securities fraud class action recoveries in San Diego's history at the time. In In re OM Group, Inc. Derivative Litigation, No. 1:03-CV-0020 (N.D. Ohio Nov. 10, 2005), Mr. Robbins secured $29 million for OM Group, the removal of the company's long term chief executive officer, the addition of two shareholder-nominated directors, and other corporate governance reforms.

Mr. Robbins is recognized nationally as a leader in the plaintiffs' bar. He has authored articles in several national publications and speaks to audiences as an authority on securities litigation, corporate governance, and shareholder rights topics. For his leadership and achievements, he has been named a Super Lawyer (2007–2025), Best of the Bar by San Diego Business Journal (2014–2016), and a Top 50 Attorney in San Diego by Super Lawyers (2014, 2016, 2018-2025). He was also recognized by Best Lawyers in America for Securities Litigation (2016-2025), and a Top Attorney by The Daily Transcript (2015).

Mr. Robbins earned his Master of Laws (LL.M.) in Securities and Financial Regulation from the Georgetown University Law Center in 1998 and received his Juris Doctor from Vanderbilt Law School in 1997. While at Vanderbilt, Mr. Robbins served as research assistant for two corporate and securities law professors: Professor Donald C. Langevoort, former Special Counsel for the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission in the Office of the General Counsel, and the late Professor Larry D. Soderquist, one of the most respected professors in the field of corporate and securities law. He earned his Bachelor of Arts in Sociology from the University of California, Berkeley in 1993 after only two and a half years of study. Mr. Robbins is licensed to practice law in the State of California and the State of Connecticut, and has been admitted to the U.S. District Courts for the Northern, Central, and Southern Districts of California, the District of Colorado, the District of Connecticut, and the Western District of Texas, as well as the U.S. Courts of Appeals for the Second, Fifth, Sixth, Ninth, and Tenth Circuits.

Shane P. Sanders

Shane P. Sanders represents individual and institutional investors in shareholder derivative actions, securities fraud class actions, and mergers and acquisitions actions. Mr. Sanders has litigated a broad range of matters, including cases addressing stock option backdating, the subprime mortgage crisis, board entrenchment and elections, executive compensation, corporate takeovers, violations of the Foreign Corrupt Practices Act and myriad forms of fraud, including violations of federal securities laws related to insider trading and companies' initial public offerings. He has played a major role in securing monetary recoveries and innovative governance reforms designed to improve the independence, rigor, and transparency of corporate governance at dozens of publicly traded companies.

Mr. Sanders served as lead counsel for the plaintiffs in the consolidated state derivative action alleging that, from the third quarter of 2015 through the first half of 2017, certain Under Armour officers and directors made or permitted the publication of statements intended to create the impression of continued strong demand that had fueled the Company’s year-over-year quarterly revenue growth with the knowledge that Under Armour had been relying on unsustainable sales practices to mask declining demand that created revenue holes in future quarters and undercut future sales and margins by damaging relationships with full-price retailers. After eight years of litigation, Robbins LLP helped to obtain $8,900,000 for Under Armour and significant corporate governance enhancements, including the creation of a disclosure committee, audit committee enhancements, and insider trading policy enhancements. Kenney, et al. v. Plank, et al., Case No. 24-C-18-003939 (Balt. City Cir. Ct. Md. Aug. 14, 2025). Coordinating a multi-jurisdictional litigation effort, Mr. Sanders helped secure $9 million for Becton Dickinson and Company and an agreement by the Company to implement and maintain a package of corporate governance reforms in shareholder derivative litigation arising from alleged false and misleading statements concerning the Company's Alaris infusion pump system. In re Becton, Dickinson and Company Stockholder Derivative Litigation, No. 2:20-cv-15474-SRC-CLW (D.N.J. Aug. 11, 2025). Serving as lead counsel, Mr. Saunders secured $15 million for Emergent BioSolutions Inc., as well as an agreement by the Company to implement and maintain a package of corporate governance reforms, in shareholder derivative litigation resulting from Emergent's failed internal controls at its Bayview, Maryland facility, which had led to the termination of Emergent's contracts to manufacture COVID-19 vaccine bulk drug substance as part of the U.S. government's "Operation Warp Speed" pandemic response and left the Company on the brink of insolvency. In re Emergent BioSolutions Inc., Stockholder Derivative Litigation, Case No. 8:21-cv-01595-DLB (D. Md. Aug. 6, 2025). In Himstreet, et al. v. Scharf, et al., No. GCG-22-599223 (Cal. Super. Ct.-S.F. Cnty. July 24, 2025), Mr. Sanders was part of the team of attorneys that recovered a $100 million cash payment – the largest payment directly to a company in a derivative action in California state court history – for Wells Fargo & Co. in shareholder derivative litigation alleging breaches of fiduciary duty by certain Wells Fargo & Co. officers and directors stemming from the purported mismanagement of and noncompliance with myriad consent orders that resulted in the opening of deposit and credit card accounts without customer authorization. Plaintiffs defeated multiple rounds of dispositive motions, engaged in multi-jurisdictional litigation to streamline these proceedings into one court, forced the production of millions of pages of discovery, and worked through incredibly complex privilege issues with federal regulators to secure those documents. The settlement also includes significant corporate governance reforms that include improvement to Wells Fargo's risk structure, programs, policies, and procedures, additional training for employees, expanded and enhanced oversight of risk management by Wells Fargo's Board of Directors, and changes to the composition of Wells Fargo's Board of Directors. In In re Prudential Financial Inc. Derivative Litigation, No. 2:20-cv-12772-SRC-CLW (Dist. NJ June 9, 2025), Mr. Sanders served as co-lead counsel for plaintiffs in shareholder derivative litigation alleging defendants made false and misleading statements regarding oversight and disclosures of adverse mortality experience and corresponding reserves for life insurance policies acquired from The Hartford Financial Services Group, Inc. After protracted litigation, Robbins LLP obtained $10 million for the Company, which was deemed by the Honorable Stanley R. Chesler as "not only a reasonable recovery, it is a remarkable recovery and is a tribute to plaintiffs and plaintiffs' lawyer efforts in this case." (Transcript of Motion on Final Settlement Approval at 19-20).

Mr. Sanders served as part of the Robbins LLP team that represented plaintiffs who had concerns that Altria Group Inc.'s $12.8 billion investment in Juul Labs, Inc. undermined Altria's hard-fought reputational progress after decades of marketing tobacco products and funding misleading research about the harmful effects of smoking. Our hard-fought settlement requires Altria to commit to funding $117 million over five years, with a minimum spend of $20 million each year to address policy and governance measures relating to youth prevention and transaction oversight. In re Altria Group, Inc. Derivative Litigation, No: 3:20cv772(DJN) (E.D. VA, Feb. 20, 2023). Mr. Sanders helped secure a $38 million settlement for Twitter and substantial corporate governance reforms, including enhancements to the Disclosure and Audit Committees, the creation of an independent Chief Compliance Officer position, and improved compliance training and insider trading policies in In re Twitter, Inc. Shareholder Derivative Litig. No. 1:18-cv-00062-VAC-MPT (D. Del. July 27, 2021). Mr. Sanders served as co-lead counsel on behalf of the federal shareholder plaintiffs on allegations that defendants breached their fiduciary duties to the Company and its stockholders by making materially false and/or misleading statements about Twitter's user growth and user management prospects and that certain individual defendants profited on their inside information. Mr. Sanders achieved this result after extensive litigation, including multiple mediations and months of settlement discussions. Mr. Sanders helped litigate shareholder derivative litigation on behalf of Fifth Street Finance Corp., In re Fifth Street Finance Corp. Shareholder Derivative Litigation, Lead Case No. 3:15-cv-01795-RNC (D. Conn. Dec. 13, 2016), based on allegations that the company's officers and directors caused Fifth Street to pursue reckless asset growth strategies, employ aggressive accounting and financial reporting practices, and pay excessive fees to its investment advisor to inflate the investment advisor's perceived value in advance of its initial public offering. Mr. Sanders was instrumental in the discovery efforts and settlement negotiations and mediations, and helped secure an outstanding settlement for Fifth Street and its stockholders, including advisory fee reductions worth at least $30 million to Fifth Street, and comprehensive corporate governance, oversight, and conflicts management enhancements to substantially improve the compliance control environment at Fifth Street and reduce the likelihood of a recurrence of similar wrongdoing in the future. Mr. Sanders was the lead associate in In re Koss Corporation Shareholder Derivative Litigation, No. 10-CV-2422 (Wis. Cir. Ct.-Milwaukee Cnty. Sept. 22, 2011), a shareholder derivative action that involved the theft of tens of millions of dollars from the company by one of its executive officers. In that case, Mr. Sanders and his fellow counsel defeated defendants' motion to dismiss based on demand futility and negotiated a settlement that provided for the implementation of extensive corporate governance changes, including the separation of the positions of chairman of the board of directors, chief executive officer, and chief financial officer; the appointment of a lead independent director; enhanced accounting and audit functions; and the implementation of a plan requiring the reimbursement of excess incentive-based compensation in the event of a financial restatement. In In re Fossil, Inc. Derivative Litigation, No. 3:06-cv-01672-F (N.D. Tex. July 6, 2011), Mr. Sanders supported a team in multi-year derivative litigation that achieved a settlement securing $8.6 million payment for Fossil from individual defendants and industry leading corporate governance reform, such as declassifying the election of directors to the board. Mr. Sanders was the lead associate in Paschetto v. Shaich, No. 08-SL-CC00805 (Mo. Cir. Ct.-St. Louis Cnty. April 8, 2011), a shareholder derivative action on behalf of Panera Bread Company in which Mr. Sanders helped the firm defeat defendants' motion to dismiss based on demand futility and negotiate a settlement that provided substantial benefits to the company and its shareholders. In In re Vitesse Semiconductor Corporation, No. Civ240483 (Cal. Sup. Ct.-Ventura Cnty. Oct. 17, 2008), Mr. Sanders was part of a team that achieved the return of more than $13 million from company insiders and valuable corporate governance improvements. In In re Ligand Pharmaceuticals, Inc. Derivative Litigation, No. GIC834255 (Cal. Super. Ct.-San Diego Cnty. Oct. 12, 2006), Mr. Sanders supported a team that persuaded the court that demand on the board of directors was futile and subsequently defeated all of defendants' other motions, and helped obtain a $14 million payment to the corporation and significant corporate governance improvements for the company.

For his achievements, Mr. Sanders was recognized by his peers as a Super Lawyer (2021-2025) and Super Lawyer Rising Star (2015), and by Best Lawyers in America for Securities Litigation (2020-2025).

Mr. Sanders received his Juris Doctor degree in 2004 from the University of San Diego School of Law. While in law school, Mr. Sanders served as a law clerk at the San Diego County Public Defender's Office, and he was a member of the Association of Trial Lawyers of America and USD's Sports and Entertainment Law Society. He also participated in USD's Thorsnes Closing Argument Competition and Senior Honors Moot Court Competition, receiving among the highest marks for his written briefs. Mr. Sanders graduated from the University of California, Santa Barbara in 2001 with a Bachelor of Arts degree in Sociology. He is licensed to practice law in the State of California and has been admitted to the U.S. District Courts for the Northern, Central, and Southern Districts of California and the District of Colorado, as well as the U.S. Courts of Appeals for the First, Second, Third, and Ninth Circuits.

Kevin A. Seely

Kevin A. Seely devotes his practice to representing shareholders, whistleblowers, and consumers in complex derivative, qui tam, and class actions throughout the U.S. A tenacious trial lawyer with more than 25 years of litigation experience in both the public and private sectors and in criminal and civil fraud prosecutions, Mr. Seely has successfully prosecuted top corporate executives, high-ranking government officials, and corporate entities for a variety of wrongdoing, including theft of government services, bribery, embezzlement, and health care fraud.

Mr. Seely has achieved significant results for his clients. Serving as co-lead counsel, Mr. Seely has been instrumental in obtaining settlements on behalf of classes of shareholders who were misled in connection with business combinations involving special purpose acquisition companies ("SPAC"). In In re Gores Holdings IV, Inc. Stockholder Litigation, No. 2023-0284-LWW (Del Ch. July 15, 2025), Mr. Seely helped secure $17.5 million for shareholders of Gores IV who sued for breach of fiduciary duty noting the Proxy's patently unattainable financial projections. Mr. Seely helped obtain $21 million for CM Life Sciences, Inc. shareholders in In Re GeneDx de-SPAC Litigation, No. 2023-0140-PAF (Del. Ch. Dec. 2, 2024) when they alleged breach of fiduciary duty resulting from defendants' impairment of their Redemption Right in connection with CM Life Science's merger with Mount Sinai Genomics, Inc. d/b/a/ Sema4 Holdings Corp. In Yu v. RMG Sponsor, LLC, et al., No. 2021-0932-NAC (Del. Ch. Oct. 18, 2024), Mr. Seely helped secure $11.99 million for RMG Acquisition Corp. shareholders who alleged they were misled in connection with the business combination of RMG Acquisition Corp., a SPAC, and privately held Romeo Systems, Inc., which merged to create Romeo Power, Inc., when Romeo overstated its revenue projections and understated its backlog projections.

In In re Community Health Systems, Inc. Shareholder Derivative Litig., No. 3:11-cv-00489 (M.D. Tenn. Jan. 20, 2017), serving as plaintiff's co-lead counsel, Mr. Seely and his team were instrumental in obtaining a $60 million cash payment to Community Health, which is believed to be the largest shareholder derivative recovery in the Sixth Circuit to date, and extensive corporate governance reforms. The firm brought In re Alphatec Holdings, Inc., Derivative Shareholder Litigation, No. 37-2010-00058586-CU-BT-NC (Cal. Super. Ct.–San Diego Cnty. Aug. 21, 2014) on behalf of Alphatec Holdings, Inc. to hold the company's fiduciaries responsible for their role in depleting shareholder equity through their self-serving actions. Mr. Seely's efforts resulted in the resignation of several defendant directors and senior executives, and Alphatec's implementation of reforms providing for director independence, greater review and oversight of related party transactions, and enhanced audit committee responsibilities regarding disclosure of company financial information. In shareholder derivative litigation on behalf of Computer Sciences Corporation, Bainto v. Laphen, No. A-12-661695-B (Nev. Dist. Ct.-Clark Cnty. Nov. 6, 2013), arising out of senior management and board of directors' breaches of fiduciary duties, Mr. Seely obtained extensive governance enhancements, including personnel changes, implementation of a Global Ethics & Compliance Program, and finance and administration training to strengthen accounting procedures and processes. Mr. Seely's settlement in In re SciClone Pharmaceuticals, Inc. Shareholder Derivative Litigation, No. CIV 499030 (Cal. Super. Ct.-San Mateo Cnty. Dec. 13, 2011), was praised by the Honorable Marie S. Weaver as "the most detailed and extensive corporate governance changes I've seen in a derivative settlement," and established consequences to employees for violations of the FCPA and other criminal misconduct. The settlement also created the position of compliance coordinator and a compliance program and code, instituted a due diligence process pertaining to the hiring of all foreign agents and distributors and demanded employee compliance training, established policies for disclosure and clawback of incentive-based compensation for officers in the event of a material restatement of the company's financial statements, and modified the company's whistleblower programs. In In re ArthroCare Corporation Derivative Litigation, No. D-1-GN-08-003484 (W.D. Tex.); Weil v. Baker, No. 08-CA-00787-SS (W.D. Tex Dec. 8, 2011), Mr. Seely obtained a substantial monetary recovery for ArthroCare Corporation, as well as the implementation of enhanced internal controls and reforms designed to curtail future corporate misconduct.

Prior to joining Robbins LLP, Mr. Seely served as an Assistant U.S. Attorney ("AUSA") in the U.S. District Court for the Southern District of California where he prosecuted civil fraud claims under the federal False Claims Act. He also served as an AUSA for the Districts of Guam and Northern Mariana Islands, focusing on white collar crime and public corruption matters. In actions filed on behalf of various U.S. federal agencies, Mr. Seely led the investigation, litigation, and negotiation of numerous settlements resulting in the return of millions of dollars to the victims of complex financial, accounting, and contract fraud schemes. Before becoming a federal prosecutor, Mr. Seely was a partner at a prominent commercial litigation law firm with offices in Guam and the Commonwealth of the Northern Mariana Islands.

Mr. Seely has authored articles in leading legal publications on shareholder and consumer rights topics and was named a Super Lawyer for the past ten years (2015–2025).

Mr. Seely received his Juris Doctor in 1992 from the Northwestern School of Law of Lewis & Clark College. While in law school, he was an associate editor of the Lewis & Clark Law Review. Mr. Seely graduated cum laude from the University of California, Irvine in 1988. He is licensed to practice law in the State of California, the territory of Guam, and the Commonwealth of the Northern Mariana Islands. Mr. Seely has been admitted to the U.S. District Courts for the Northern, Central, Southern, and Eastern Districts of California, the District of Colorado, the Northern District of Florida, the District of Guam, the Northern and Central Districts of Illinois, the Eastern District of Michigan, the District of the Northern Mariana Islands, and the Western District of Texas, as well as the U.S. District Court of Appeals for the Ninth Circuit.

Craig W. Smith

Craig C. Smith represents shareholders in derivative and securities fraud class actions. His clients include shareholders invested in banking and finance, biotechnology, defense, education, information technology, leisure, consumer goods, and pharmaceutical industries. Mr. Smith also serves as the firm's general counsel.

Mr. Smith has led the firm's prosecution of a number of successful actions brought directly on behalf of shareholders and derivatively for the benefit of public corporations.

Mr. Smith served as lead counsel for the plaintiffs in the consolidated state derivative action alleging that, from the third quarter of 2015 through the first half of 2017, certain Under Armour officers and directors made or permitted the publication of statements intended to create the impression of continued strong demand that had fueled the Company's year-over-year quarterly revenue growth with the knowledge that Under Armour had been relying on unsustainable sales practices to mask declining demand that created revenue holes in future quarters and undercut future sales and margins by damaging relationships with full-price retailers. After eight years of litigation, Robbins LLP helped to obtain $8.9 million for Under Armour and significant corporate governance enhancements, including the creation of a disclosure committee, audit committee enhancements, and insider trading policy enhancements. Kenney, et al. v. Plank, et al., Case No. 24-C-18-003939 (Balt. City Cir. Ct. Md. Aug. 14, 2025). Mr. Smith secured $15 million for Emergent BioSolutions Inc. and an agreement by the Company to implement and maintain a package of corporate governance reforms in the firm's role as lead counsel in shareholder derivative litigation resulting from Emergent's failed internal controls at its Bayview, Maryland facility, which had led to the termination of Emergent's contracts to manufacture COVID-19 vaccine bulk drug substance as part of the U.S. government's "Operation Warp Speed" pandemic response and left the Company on the brink of insolvency. In re Emergent BioSolutions Inc., Stockholder Derivative Litigation, Case No. 8:21-cv-01595-DLB (D. Md. Aug. 6, 2025). In Himstreet, et al. v. Scharf, et al., No. GCG-22-599223 (Cal. Super. Ct.-S.F. Cnty. July 24, 2025), Mr. Smith was part of the team of attorneys that recovered a $100 million cash payment – the largest payment directly to a company in a derivative action in California state court history – for Wells Fargo & Co. in shareholder derivative litigation alleging breaches of fiduciary duty by certain Wells Fargo & Co. officers and directors stemming from the purported mismanagement of and noncompliance with myriad consent orders that resulted in the opening of deposit and credit card accounts without customer authorization. Plaintiffs defeated multiple rounds of dispositive motions, engaged in multi-jurisdictional litigation to streamline these proceedings into one court, forced the production of millions of pages of discovery, and worked through incredibly complex privilege issues with federal regulators to secure those documents. The settlement also includes significant corporate governance reforms that include improvement to Wells Fargo's risk structure, programs, policies, and procedures, additional training for employees, expanded and enhanced oversight of risk management by Wells Fargo's Board of Directors, and changes to the composition of Wells Fargo's Board of Directors. In shareholder derivative litigation on behalf of Prudential Financial, Inc., Mr. Smith served as co-lead counsel for plaintiffs who alleged defendants made false and misleading statements regarding oversight and disclosures of adverse mortality experience and corresponding reserves for life insurance policies acquired from The Hartford Financial Services Group, Inc. After protracted litigation, Mr. Smith achieved a $10 million settlement for the Company, which was deemed by the Honorable Stanley R. Chesler as "not only a reasonable recovery, it is a remarkable recovery and is a tribute to plaintiffs and plaintiffs' lawyer efforts in this case." (Transcript of Motion on Final Settlement Approval at 19-20). In re Prudential Financial Inc. Derivative Litigation, No. 2:20-cv-12772-SRC-CLW (Dist. NJ June 9, 2025).

In In re Fifth Street Corp. Shareholder Derivative Litigation, Lead Case No. 3:15-cv-01795-RNC (D. Conn. Dec. 13, 2016), Mr. Smith served as lead counsel in shareholder derivative litigation on behalf of Fifth Street to challenge alleged conflicts of interest in Fifth Street's relationship with its investment advisor after certain Fifth Street officers and directors caused the company to make reckless investments and pay excessive fees to inflate the investment advisor's perceived value in advance of its initial public offering. Mr. Smith led the settlement negotiations that resulted in advisory fee reductions worth at least $30 million and comprehensive corporate governance, oversight, and conflicts management enhancements. Mr. Smith and his team played a leading role in a shareholder derivative suit brought on behalf of Avon Products, Inc., Pritika v. Jung, No. 651479/2015 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. May 1, 2015), against certain officers and directors who plaintiffs allege turned a blind eye to bribes made in violation of the FCPA to secure the first foreign direct sales license in China. Mr. Smith led the negotiations that resulted in Avon's agreement to adopt a comprehensive corporate governance and compliance reform program. The Wall Street Journal praised the settlement as "a victory for shareholders looking for accountability from the business." Mr. Smith also played a leading role in shareholder derivative litigation brought on behalf of Career Education Corporation against officers and directors who plaintiffs alleged allowed its for-profit schools to falsify job placement and student loan repayment rates, fall short of accreditation standards, and jeopardize access to the Title IV federal student loan funds that account for the lion's share of its revenues. Mr. Smith and his co-counsel in Alex v. McCullough, No. 1:12-cv-08834 (N.D. Ill. Dec. 5, 2012); Bangari v. Lesnik, No. 1:11-CH-41973 (Ill. Cir. Ct.-Cook Cty. Dec. 11, 2011); and Cook v. McCullough, No. 1:11-cv-09119 (N.D. Ill. Dec. 22, 2011), negotiated a global settlement that secured a $20 million recovery for Career Education, as well as comprehensive board and management-level governance and oversight reforms.

Mr. Smith has played an important role in improving the quality of corporate governance and oversight at pharmaceutical and bio-technology companies. In In re Forest Labs., Inc., Derivative Litigation, No. 1:05-cv-03489 (RJH) (S.D.N.Y. Feb. 7, 2012), Mr. Smith secured comprehensive regulatory oversight and compliance reforms to address the fallout resulting from Forest Lab's marketing of Celexa and Lexapro for off-label treatment of pediatric depression — violations that cost Forest Labs more than $313 million in fines and sanctions. The reforms included the creation of Chief of Compliance and Chief Medical Officer positions, board oversight and management-level oversight of sales and promotions compliance, comprehensive policies and procedures governing sales and promotional activities, and compliance monitoring programs, including field sampling of interactions with physicians and rigorous reporting procedures and controls. Mr. Smith spearheaded the litigation and settlements in shareholder derivative actions brought on behalf of biotechnology companies, MannKind Corporation, In re MannKind Corp. Derivative Litigation, No. 1:11-cv-05003-GAF-SSx (C.D. Ca. June 13, 2011), and CTI BioPharma (f.k.a. Cell Therapeutics), In re Cell Therapeutics, Inc., Derivative Litigation, No. 2:10-cv-00564-MJP (W.D. Wash.-Seattle Apr. 1, 2010), that led to their adoption of state-of-the-art clinical trial and disclosure oversight and internal controls programs, following costly mismanagement of clinical trials and publication of misleading disclosures.

Mr. Smith played a leading role in securing best-in-class corporate governance for Motorola, Inc. in shareholder derivative litigation arising from Motorola's publication of misleading statements about prospects for its next-generation cell phones and related revenue projections. In re Motorola, Inc. Derivative Litigation, No. 07-CH-23297 (Ill. Cir. Ct.-Cook Cty. Nov. 29, 2012). Mr. Smith was instrumental in drafting and negotiating a comprehensive overhaul of board- and executive-level supervision of financial disclosures, as well as broader corporate governance reforms designed to align director and executive compensation with long-term shareholder interests and to eliminate incentives for executives to manipulate results or withhold negative information from shareholders. As lead counsel in Monday v. Meyer, No. 1:10-cv-01838-DCN (N.D. Ohio Aug. 17, 2012), Mr. Smith challenged the KeyCorp Board of Director's handling of an unlawful tax avoidance scheme, which exposed the bank to billions of dollars in back taxes and fines by the IRS. While the case was on appeal, Mr. Smith negotiated corporate governance reforms that strengthened KeyCorp's internal controls and Board oversight over financial transactions and legal/regulatory risk, capital planning, dividends, and stock repurchases. Mr. Smith played a key role in persuading Brocade Communication Systems, Inc.'s Board Special Litigation Committee to prosecute stock option backdating claims against former officers and directors of Brocade. In re Brocade Communication Systems, Inc., Derivative Litigation, No. 1:05-cv-041683 (Cal. Super. Ct.-Santa Clara Cty. Jan. 28, 2010). As part of a four-lawyer team, Mr. Smith convinced the Committee to retain the firm as co-counsel to pursue the claims. Brocade recovered tens of millions of dollars and extinguished its obligation to fund the criminal defense of its former CEO.

Mr. Smith was recognized by his peers as a San Diego Super Lawyer for ten consecutive years (2015–2025).

Before joining Robbins LLP, Mr. Smith served for four years as division and regional counsel for UBS Financial Services, Inc., a global financial services company, where he advised management regarding litigation, regulatory, and employment matters arising in the company's Northern Pacific region. Mr. Smith spent the first decade of his career at O'Melveny & Myers LLP, where he defended Fortune 500 companies and professional services firms in securities fraud class actions, shareholder derivative litigation, SEC investigations and enforcement actions, and professional malpractice and business tort matters. Mr. Smith served for five years on O'Melveny & Myers' firm-wide Pro Bono Committee.

Mr. Smith earned his Juris Doctor in 1992 from Yale Law School. At Yale, he externed for the U.S. Attorney's Office in New Haven, Connecticut. Mr. Smith graduated with highest honors in Political Science and highest distinction in Letters and Science from the University of California, Berkeley in 1988, and was initiated into Phi Beta Kappa as a junior. He is licensed to practice law in the State of California and has been admitted to the U.S. District Courts for the Northern, Central, and Southern Districts of California, as well as the U.S. Courts of Appeals for the First, Sixth, Eighth, and Ninth Circuits.

Associates

Aaron M. Dumas, Jr.

Aaron M. Dumas, Jr. is an associate of the firm. Mr. Dumas has represented individuals and institutional shareholders in a variety of complex matters. He has experience conducting extensive legal research and document review, drafting motions, settlement offers, and litigation and inspection demands. Mr. Dumas also helps analyze the firm's new matters, including on-boarding the firm's clients, maintaining relationships, and ensuring outstanding client support and engagement throughout the litigation process.

In addition to his experience at Robbins LLP, Mr. Dumas worked for another well-known shareholder rights law firm, was a solo practitioner serving a broad range of clients in criminal, civil, and family law matters, and worked for a consulting firm drafting contracts related to real estate investments and assisting in the acquisition of federal government contracts.

Mr. Dumas received his Juris Doctor from the University of San Diego School of Law. While in law school, Mr. Dumas served as a research assistant for Professor Joseph J. Darby and a summer associate for Sony Electronics Limited. He participated in moot court and studied abroad in Florence, Italy. Mr. Dumas received his Bachelor of Science in Zoology from the University of Texas. He is licensed to practice in the State of California

Grant M. Klasna

Grant M. Klasna is an associate of the firm. Mr. Klasna represents individual and institutional shareholders in a variety of complex matters. He has experience conducting legal research and drafting compliance documents in the areas of corporate, tax, and securities law.

Prior to joining Robbins LLP, Mr. Klasna worked at a boutique law firm, where he practiced corporate, tax, accounting, and estate law. In this role, he drafted and negotiated corporate contracts, assisted clients in structuring business entities, and prepared securities law compliance reports.

Mr. Klasna his received his Juris Doctor from University of San Diego School of Law. While in law school, Mr. Klasna interned at the Office of the United States Trustee, Department of Justice and served as a corporate counsel intern for a medical billing company. Mr. Klasna also participated on the Client Advocacy Negotiations Team and was a member of the Business Law and Sports and Entertainment Law Societies. Mr. Klasna received his Bachelor of Sciences in Business Administration from San Diego State University, where he graduated with honors. While in college, Mr. Klasna participated in the Pre-Law Society and was the VP of Operations for the Sports Business Initiative. Mr. Klasna is licensed in the State of California.

Lauren G. Levi

Lauren G. Levi is an associate of the firm where she represents shareholders in a variety of complex matters. Her experience includes conducting extensive legal research, document review, complaint drafting, and client communications. Ms. Levi also serves as the manager of the firm's business development department, engaging with clients on new matters and overseeing the firm's marketing efforts.

Prior to joining Robbins LLP, Ms. Levi served almost ten years as a research attorney for the Los Angeles County Superior Court where she conducted extensive research, analyzed law and motion ranging from simple discovery disputes to contested motions for summary judgment, and prepared bench memoranda reflecting the tentative rulings of the civil judges. In addition, Ms. Levi supervised and mentored attorneys new to the role and student externs.

Ms. Levi received her Juris Doctor from Pepperdine University School of Law. While in law school, Ms. Levi clerked for the Honorable Ronald S.W. Lew, U.S. District Court Judge for the Central District of California, served as a judicial extern for the Los Angeles Superior Court, and volunteered with the Legal Aid Foundation's Domestic Violence Project preparing retraining orders for domestic violence victims. Ms. Levi received her Bachelor of Arts in History from California State University, Northridge. Ms. Levi is licensed in the State of California.

Maria L. Mansur

Ms. Mansur is an associate of the firm representing shareholders in a variety of complex shareholder matters. Ms. Mansur has experience conducting complex legal research and drafting legal memoranda.

Prior to joining Robbins LLP, Ms. Mansur worked as an ADR Deputy Counsel for the International Chamber of Commerce where she gained extensive mediation experience. In her role, she analyzed complex, disputed legal issues, and facilitated mediations. Ms. Mansur also worked as a legal clerk for JAMS Mediation, Arbitration and ADR Services and as an associate in a general litigation law firm in Brazil.

Ms. Mansur received her Bachelor of Laws from Pontifical Catholic University of Sao Paulo and is currently pursuing a Master of Law in Dispute Resolution from Pepperdine University Caruso School of Law. Ms. Mansur is licensed in Brazil, Paris, and the State of California.

Ryan M. Messina

Mr. Messina represents investors harmed by corporate malfeasance through shareholder derivative litigation and securities fraud class actions. Prior to joining Robbins LLP, Mr. Messina worked for a national shareholder rights law firm where he was involved in all facets of shareholder litigation. He also has experience in real property law.

Mr. Messina received his Juris Doctor degree and Masters of Business Administration from West Virginia University College of Law and College of Business and Economics. While in law school, Mr. Messina interned at the Supreme Court of New York Commercial Division for the Honorable Justice Oing and a private law firm, served as a clinician through the Land Use and Sustainable Development Law Clinic, and worked pro bono as a volunteer income tax assistant. Mr. Messina received his Bachelor of Arts, cum laude, from West Virginia University. Mr. Messina is licensed in the State of New York.

Jacob W. Ogbozo

Jacob W. Ogbozo protects shareholder rights through complex litigation and represents business and consumers in challenging anticompetitive conduct. Mr. Ogbozo has extensive experience in large-scale class action discovery. He is a subject matter expert on multiple e-discovery platforms and his experience includes investigating and helping to develop complex theories of liability, preparing depositions and other discovery, interfacing with expert witnesses and consultants, and supervising the firm's antitrust staff attorneys.

In addition to his experience at Robbins LLP, Mr. Ogbozo worked for several non-profit agencies focusing on environmental and landlord tenant law and several law firms focusing on environmental and securities law. Mr. Ogbozo also worked as an Administrative Hearing Officer in which he conducted administrative appeal hearings on behalf of several local municipalities.

Mr. Ogbozo received his Juris Doctor from the University of San Diego School of Law where he received multiple scholarships in recognition of his academic achievements. While in law school, Mr. Ogbozo interned and clerked for the Honorable Paul A. Magnuson, U.S. District Judge for the District of Minnesota; the City of San Diego, Neighborhood Code Compliance; and the San Diego County Counsel. Mr. Ogbozo received his Bachelor of Arts from the University of Minnesota where he triple majored in Political Science, International Studies and Spanish Language. Mr. Ogbozo is licensed in the State of California.

Mario D. Valdovinos

Mario D. Valdovinos focuses his practice on protecting the rights of shareholders in complex matters involving shareholder derivative and securities fraud class actions. Prior to joining Robbins LLP as an associate, Mr. Valdovinos served as a summer law clerk for the firm. For his work, Mr. Valdovinos has been recognized by his peers as a Super Lawyers Rising Star (2024 – 2025).

Mr. Valdovinos received his Juris Doctor degree from Michigan State University College of Law. While in law school, Mr. Valdovinos participated in moot court, where he was recognized as regional champion and for writing the best brief in the Giles Sutherland Rich Patent Competition. Mr. Valdovinos received his Bachelor of Science in Business Administration from California State University, Long Beach. Mr. Valdovinos is licensed in the State of California.

Of Counsel

Ashley R. Rifkin

Ashley R. Rifkin has over 15 years' experience representing clients in complex litigation, including shareholder rights, consumer class actions, and antitrust matters. She has helped achieve significant recoveries for shareholders in connection with securities class actions involving corporate mergers and acquisitions. For example, in Fuerstenberg v. Mid-State Bancshares, No. CV 060976 (Cal. Super. Ct.-San Luis Obispo County Oct. 4, 2007), Ms. Rifkin was part of the litigation team that obtained waivers of the "confidentiality" and "no-shop" provisions in the sale agreement, which enabled other suitors to participate effectively in the bidding process. In In re HCA Inc. Derivative Litigation, No. 3:05-CV-0968 (M.D. Tenn. Dec. 20, 2007), Ms. Rifkin was part of the litigation team that forced the disclosure of material information to shareholders before they voted on the proposed buyout by a private equity group and founding member.

Ms. Rifkin has litigated shareholder derivative actions on behalf of corporations and shareholders seeking to redress various forms of corporate misconduct including backdating and springloading practices, false and misleading public disclosures, improper Medicare and Medicaid billing practices, claims of off-label marketing, violations of the FCPA, and other state and federal law violations. She has helped achieve considerable monetary recoveries and corporate governance reforms for clients and companies through these actions. In In re Community Health Systems Inc. Shareholder Derivative Litig., No. 3:11-cv-00489 (M.D. Tenn. Jan. 20, 2017), Ms. Rifkin was part of the team that brought shareholder derivative litigation against the officers and directors of Community Health Systems, Inc. alleging that the fiduciaries systematically steered patients into medically unnecessary inpatient admissions when they should have been treated as outpatient. Ms. Rifkin oversaw the extensive document review process and other aspects of discovery. Ms. Rifkin's team obtained a $60 million cash payment to Community Health and the implementation of extensive corporate governance reforms. In shareholder derivative litigation arising from Motorola Inc.'s publication of allegedly misleading statements regarding its next-generation cell phones and revenue projections, In re Motorola, Inc. Derivative Litig., No. 07CH23297 (Ill. Cir. Ct.-Cook Cnty. Nov. 29, 2012), Ms. Rifkin helped negotiate comprehensive governance reforms that overhauled the company's oversight of financial disclosures and achieved structural reforms that better aligned director and executive compensation with long-term shareholder interests. Ms. Rifkin served alongside a team of plaintiff firms in antitrust litigation involving allegations of conspiracy among private equity firms to rig bids, restrict the supply of private equity financing, fix transaction prices, and divide up the market for private equity services for leveraged buyouts. Dahl v. Bain Capital Partners, No. 1:07-cv-12388 (WGY) (D. Mass. Mar. 17, 2015). The defendants settled for more than $590 million.

Ms. Rifkin was named a Super Lawyer (2022-2025), a Super Lawyer Rising Star (2015-2016, 2019-2020), and one of the "Best Young Attorneys in San Diego County" by The Daily Transcript (2011).

Ms. Rifkin received her Juris Doctor in 2006 from Thomas Jefferson School of Law. She graduated summa cum laude second in her class, was on the Dean's List, and received the Outstanding Scholastic Achievement Award for the 2004-2005 school year. While in law school, Ms. Rifkin served as a judicial extern for the Honorable David A. Workman in the Los Angeles Superior Court. She also was chief articles editor and notes editor of the Thomas Jefferson Law Review and vice president of operations of the Tax Society. Ms. Rifkin graduated from the University of California, Santa Barbara in 2002 with a Bachelor of Arts degree in Psychology. She is licensed to practice law in the State of California and has been admitted to the U.S. District Courts for the Northern, Central, and Southern Districts of California, the District of Colorado, the Eastern District of Michigan, and the U.S. Courts of Appeals for the Sixth, Seventh, Ninth, and Tenth Circuits.

Corporate Research Department

The Corporate Research Department is staffed by college graduates with degrees and/or work experience in accounting, economics, finance, health sciences, legal studies, political science, sociology, and statistics. They are trained in the use of public and proprietary databases and search engines, including Bloomberg, Capital IQ, Lexis, and Morningstar. Members of the Corporate Research Department analyze financial statements, various SEC filings, analyst reports, and other public data to prepare complex financial analyses and calculations in support of case filings.

EXHIBIT 10

EXHIBIT 10

B & R Supermarket, Inc., et al. v. Visa, Inc., et al., No. 1:17-cv-02738-BMC-JAM (E.D.N.Y.)

Robbins LLP
Lodestar Summary
Inception through October 16, 2025

Categories:

(1) Appeals
(2) Case File
(3) Client Communication
(4) Discovery
(5) Investigation
(6) Pleading
(7) Settlement
(8) Strategy

P = Partner; A=Associate; SA = Staff Attorney; PA = Project Attorney; PI = Paralegal; Cr = Corporate Research; LS = Litigation Support

Professional	Title	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	Total Hours	Rate	Lodestar
George Aguilar	P	79.5	1	39	593.25	0	1223.25	440.75	29.75	2406.5	$1,225	$2,947,962.50
Michael Nicoud	P	115.25	0	2.25	2611.5	1.75	2489.75	1009.75	96.25	6326.5	$975	$6,168,337.50
Jenny L. Dixon	P	0	0	0	657	8.5	427.75	28	55.75	1177	$825	$971,025.00
Brian Robbins	P	0.25	0	0	11.75	0	15.75	211.5	5	244.25	$1,225	$299,206.25
Eric M. Carrino	P	0	28	0	88.25	1.75	10.75	0	22.75	151.5	$850	$128,775.00
Jacob W. Ogbozo	A	0	0.5	0.5	5262	0	993.25	361.75	11	6629	$560	$3,712,240.00
Lindsey C. Herzik	A	0	0.5	0	561.5	0.5	28	1	1.25	592.75	$375	$222,281.25
David W. Uris	A	0	0	0	130	0	0	0	0	130	$575	$74,750.00
Matthew G. Leagre	A	0	0	0	0	0	111.25	0	0	111.25	$485	$53,956.25
Leonid Kandinov	A	0	0	0	53.5	0	0	0	3	56.5	$475	$26,837.50
Patrick J. McDonough	SA	0	0	0	2160.25	0	0	0	0	2160.25	$275	$594,068.75
Jorge F. Espinosa	SA	0	0	0	1062.25	0	0	0	0	1062.25	$300	$318,675.00
Angela J. Straley	PA	0	1.25	0	3100.5	0	0	28.25	0	3130	$300	$939,000.00
Maureen E. Forsyth	PA	0	0	0	2606	0	0	0	0	2606	$300	$781,800.00
Jonathan D. Smallwood	PA	0	0	0	2147.75	0	0	0	0	2147.75	$300	$644,325.00
Kristina M. Pedroso	PA	0	0	0	479.75	0	0	0	0	479.75	$250	$119,937.50
Voltaire R. Sterling	PA	0	0	0	571.75	0	0	0	0	571.75	$300	$171,525.00
Mike Li	PA	0	0	0	520	0	0	0	0	520	$300	$156,000.00
Rommel Dizon	PA	0	0	0	497	0	0	0	0	497	$300	$149,100.00
Endre Algover	PA	0	0	0	469.75	0	0	0	0	469.75	$300	$140,925.00
Ricardo Salazar	PI	132.25	471.5	0.25	311	0	569	227.25	2.25	1713.5	$350	$599,725.00
Jorgeanne A. Cabuhat	PI	3	3.25	0	0	0.5	83.5	0	0.5	90.75	$350	$31,762.50
Jennifer L. Silverwood	PI	0	0.5	0	28	0	9.75	0	0	38.25	$255	$9,753.75
Melanie P. Jones	PI	0	3.75	0	0	0	44	0	0	47.75	$285	$13,608.75
Michelle B. Gaulin	CR	0	0	0	0	56.25	0	0	0	56.25	$250	$14,062.50
Carlo O. Ybanez	CR	0	0	0	0	37.5	0	0	0.75	38.25	$190	$7,267.50
Jerrad Juanich	LS	0	54.5	0	93.25	0	0.75	0.5	0	149	$295	$43,955.00
Rockne B. Krebs	LS	0	53.75	0	4.25	0	0	0	0	58	$160	$9,280.00
Wesley Hasten	LS	0	0	0	76.25	0	0	0	0	76.25	$250	$19,062.50
TOTALS		330.25	618.50	42.00	24,096.50	106.75	6,006.75	2,308.75	228.25	33,737.75		$19,369,205.00

Footnotes

1) Appeals captures work associated with petitions for interlocutory review and Amex's appeal
2) Case File captures work associated with generating, preparing, and organizing documents, files, information relating to work product and court filings
3) Client Communication captures work associated with contact with the named plaintiffs
4) Discovery captures document review and production, all forms of written discovery, meet and confers, and all related communications and strategies
5) Investigation captures work associated with gathering, researching, analyzing, and organizing factual information providing the best understanding of the case
6) Pleadings captures developing, researching, drafting, reviewing, editing, and filing court documents, including preparation and attendance at hearings
7) Settlement captures work associated with case settlement from the initial negotiations through to preliminary approval
8) Strategy captures work relating to internal work product, communications, meetings, and overall case analysis, including developing, evaulating and planning

EXHIBIT 11

EXHIBIT 11

B & R Supermarket, Inc., et al. v. Visa, Inc., et al., No. 1:17-cv-02738-BMC-JAM (E.D.N.Y.)

Robbins LLP
Expense Summary
Inception through October 16, 2025

CATEGORY	AMOUNT
Experts	$3,019,230.83
Discovery Review Platform	$218,174.86
Mediation	$151,308.90
Travel & Meals	$132,198.95
Depositions	$86,960.31
Photocopies	$63,221.00
Research & Investigation	$38,254.95
Communications & Messaging	$5,832.87
Filing/Service Fees/Court Reporting	$4,039.52
TOTAL	$3,719,222.19

EXHIBIT 12

Collection of Antitrust Cases Settling Between 2011 and Now with Common Funds Between $100-250M

	Case Name	Case No.	Court	Fee Approval Date	Common Fund	Attorneys' Fees	Attys' Fees as % of Fund	Expenses Awarded	Expenses as % of Fund
1	Sidibe, et al. v. Sutter Health	3:12-cv-04854	N.D. Cal.	11/6/2025	$228,500,000	$75,400,000	33.0%	$28,185,752	12.3%
2	In re HIV Antitrust Litig. (KPH Healthcare Servs., Inc. v. Gildead Scis., Inc., et al.)	3:19-cv-02573/ 3:20-cv-06961	N.D. Cal.	1/19/2024	$246,750,000	$75,000,000	30.4%	$2,887,478	1.2%
3	First Impressions Salon, Inc., et al. v. Nat'l Milk Producers Federation, et al.	3:13-cv-00454	S.D. Ill.	4/27/2020	$220,000,000	$73,326,000	33.3%	$5,271,267	2.4%
4	Dial Corp., et al. v. News Corp., et al.	1:13-cv-06802	S.D.N.Y.	10/31/2016	$244,000,000	$48,825,000	20.0%	$7,512,915	3.1%
5	Burnett, et al. v. Nat'l Ass'n of Realtors, et al.	4:19-cv-00332	W.D. Mo.	5/9/2024	$208,500,000	$69,499,931	33.3%	$12,923,266	6.2%
6	In re Capacitors Antitrust Litig. (Direct Purchaser Class Action)	3:17-md-02801/ 3:14-cv-03264	N.D. Cal.	3/6/2023	$165,000,000	$66,000,000	40.0%	$2,459,578	1.5%
7	In re Neurontin Antitrust Litig. (Louisana Wholesale Drug Co., et al. v. Pfizer, Inc., et al.)	2:02-cv-01830/ 2:02-cv-02731	D.N.J.	8/6/2014	$190,416,438	$63,472,146	33.3%	$2,213,537	1.2%
8	In re Domestic Drywall Antitrust Litig. (Direct Purchaser Actions)	2:13-md-02437	E.D. Pa.	7/17/2018	$190,059,056	$63,353,019	33.3%	$2,925,629	1.5%

	Case Name	Case No.	Court	Fee Approval Date	Common Fund	Attorneys' Fees	Attys' Fees as % of Fund	Expenses Awarded	Expenses as % of Fund
9	In re Broiler Chicken Antitrust Litig. (Direct Purchaser Plaintiff Action)	1:16-cv-08637	N.D. Ill.	11/30/2021	$170,261,600	$55,228,867	32.4%	$4,500,000	2.6%
10	In re Titanium Dioxide Antitrust Litig .	1:10-cv-00318	D. Md.	12/13/2013	$163,500,000	$54,500,000	33.3%	$4,569,272	2.8%
11	Standard Iron Works v. Arcelormittal, et al.	1:08-cv-05214	N.D. Ill.	10/22/2014	$163,890,000	$54,087,000	33.0%	$5,471,759	3.3%
12	In re Southeastern Milk Antitrust Litig. (Sweetwater Valley Farm, Inc., et al. v. Dean Foods Co., et al.)	2:08-md-01000/ 2:07-cv-00208	E.D. Tenn.	5/17/2013	$158,600,000	$52,866,667	33.3%	$798,238	0.5%
13	In re Polyurethane Foam Antitrust Litig. (Direct Purchaser Class)	1:10-md-02196	N.D. Ohio	2/26/2015	$147,800,000	$44,340,000	30.0%	$8,113,856	5.5%
14	In re Broiler Chicken Antitrust Litig. (End-User Consumer Plaintiff Actions)	1:16-cv-08637	7th Cir.	10/7/2022	$181,000,000	$48,146,000	26.6%	$8,750,000	4.8%
15	In re Opana ER Antitrust Litig. (Direct Purchaser Class Actions)	1:14-cv-10150	N.D. Ill.	11/3/2022	$145,000,000	$50,528,471	34.8%	$4,343,137	3.0%

	Case Name	Case No.	Court	Fee Approval Date	Common Fund	Attorneys' Fees	Attys' Fees as % of Fund	Expenses Awarded	Expenses as % of Fund
16	In re Flonase Antitrust Litig. (Direct Purchaser Actions)	2:08-cv-03149	E.D. Pa.	6/14/2013	$150,000,000	$50,000,000	33.3%	$2,069,433	1.4%
17	In re Southeastern Milk Antitrust Litig. (Sweetwater Valley Farm, Inc., et al. v. Dean Foods Co., et al.)	2:08-md-01000/ 2:07-cv-00208	E.D. Tenn.	7/11/2012	$145,000,000	$48,333,333	33.3%	$7,408,920	5.1%
18	In re Packaged Seafood Prods. Antitrust Litig. (End Payer Plaintiff Actions)	3:15-md-02670	S.D. Cal.	11/22/2024	$136,000,000	$48,320,739	35.5%	$1,618,489	1.2%
19	In re LIBOR-Based Fin. Instruments Antitrust Litig. (OTC)	1:11-md-02262	S.D.N.Y.	10/17/2023; 1	$191,000,000	$47,100,590	24.7%	$2,597,639	1.4%
20	In re Polyurethane Foam Antitrust Litig. (Indirect Purchaser Class)	1:10-md-02196	N.D. Ohio	1/27/2016	$151,250,000	$36,300,000	24.0%	$5,115,812	3.4%
21	In re LIBOR-Based Fin. Instruments Antitrust Litig. (Exchange-Based)	1:11-md-02262	S.D.N.Y.	11/24/2020	$187,000,000	$45,346,605	24.2%	$5,613,579	3.0%
22	In re Lidoderm Antitrust Litig. (Direct Purchaser Actions)	3:14-md-02521	N.D. Cal.	9/20/2018	$166,000,000	$45,000,070	27.1%	$2,363,380	1.4%

	Case Name	Case No.	Court	Fee Approval Date	Common Fund	Attorneys' Fees	Attys' Fees as % of Fund	Expenses Awarded	Expenses as % of Fund
23	Marchbanks Truck Serv., Inc., et al. v. Comdata Network, Inc., et al.	2:07-cv-01078	E.D. Pa.	7/14/2014	$130,000,000	$43,333,333	33.3%	$6,696,857	5.2%
24	In re Plasma-Derivative Protein Therapies Antitrust Litig.	1:09-cv-07666	N.D. Ill.	1/22/2014; 4/16/2014	$128,000,000	$42,666,666	33.3%	$4,376,850	3.4%
25	Precision Assocs., Inc. et al. v. Panalpina World Transport (Holding) LTD., et al. ("Panalpina 2 ")	1:08-cv-00042	E.D.N.Y.	11/10/2015	$168,986,724	$42,246,681	25.0%	$4,046,323	2.4%
26	In re Novartis and Par Antitrust Litig. (Direct Purchaser Class Actions)	1:18-cv-04361	S.D.N.Y.	7/26/2023	$126,850,000	$42,150,000	33.2%	$0	N/A
27	In re Lithium Ion Batteries Antitrust Litig. (Direct Purchaser Actions)	4:13-md-02420	N.D. Cal.	5/16/2018	$139,300,000	$41,790,000	30.0%	$3,354,573	2.4%
28	In re Automotive Parts Antitrust Litig. (End-Payor Actions) (Round 4 Settlements)	2:13-cv-02703	E.D. Mich.	9/23/2020	$183,958,000	$40,470,760	22.0%	$156,125	0.1%

	Case Name	Case No.	Court	Fee Approval Date	Common Fund	Attorneys' Fees	Attys' Fees as % of Fund	Expenses Awarded	Expenses as % of Fund
29	The Hospital Authority of Metropolitan Government of Nashville and Davidson County, Tennessee v. Momenta Pharmaceuticals, Inc. et al.	3:15-cv-01100	M.D. Tenn.	5/29/2020	$120,000,000	$40,000,000	33.3%	$2,269,269	1.9%
30	Fund Liquidation Holdings LLC, et al. v. Citibank, N.A., et al.	1:16-cv-05263	S.D.N.Y	12/1/2022	$155,458,000	$38,864,500	25.0%	$179,945	0.1%
31	In re Loestrin 24 FE Antitrust Litig. (Direct Purchaser Actions)	1:13-md-02472	D.R.I.	9/1/2020	$120,000,000	$38,678,147	32.2%	$3,965,558	3.3%
32	In re Cathode Ray Tube (CRT) Antitrust Litig. (Direct Action Plaintiffs)	4:07-cv-05944	N.D. Cal.	1/14/2016	$127,450,000	$38,235,000	30.0%	$1,534,749	1.2%
33	In re Pharmaceutical Industry Average Wholesale Price Litig. (Track Two)	1:01-cv-12257	D. Mass.	12/8/2011	$125,000,000	$37,500,000	30.0%	$0	N/A
34	Dennis, et al. v. JPMorgan Chase & Co., et al.	1:16-cv-06496	S.D.N.Y.	5/25/2023	$185,875,000	$36,789,307	19.8%	$845,472	0.5%

	Case Name	Case No.	Court	Fee Approval Date	Common Fund	Attorneys' Fees	Attys' Fees as % of Fund	Expenses Awarded	Expenses as % of Fund
35	Gibson, et al. v. The Nat'l Ass'n of Realtors, et al.	4:23-cv-00788	W.D. Mo.	11/4/2024	$110,600,000	$36,866,630	33.3%	$13,147,775	11.9%
36	In re Lidoderm Antitrust Litig. (End-Payor Actions)	3:14-md-02521	N.D. Cal.	9/20/2018	$104,750,000	$34,916,000	33.3%	$3,948,118	3.8%
37	Laydon v. Mizuho Bank, Ltd., et al. ; Sonterra Capital Master Fund Ltd., et al. v. UBS AG. et al.	1:12-cv-03419 1:15-cv-05844	S.D.N.Y.	12/7/2017	$148,000,000	$34,880,000	23.6%	$0	N/A
38	Sullivan, et al. v. Barclays PLC, et al. (JPMorgan, Chase & Citi Settlements)	1:13-cv-02811	S.D.N.Y.	5/17/2019	$182,500,000	$34,675,000	19.0%	$1,074,650	0.6%
39	In re Peanut Farmers Antitrust Litig.	2:19-cv-00463	E.D. Va.	8/10/2021	$102,750,000	$34,250,000	33.3%	$1,875,615	1.8%
40	In re Automotive Parts Antitrust Litig. (Automobile Dealership Actions) (Round 3 Settlements)	2:12-cv-00502	E.D. Mich.	11/5/2018	$115,180,800	$33,317,881	28.9%	$358,125	0.3%
41	In re Municipal Derivatives Antitrust Litig.	1:08-cv-02516	S.D.N.Y.	7/8/2016	$100,515,000	$33,000,000	32.8%	$2,484,198	2.5%
42	In re Nat'l Collegiate Athletic Ass'n Athletic Grant-in-Aid Cap Antitrust Litig.	4:14-md-02541	N.D. Cal.	12/6/2017	$208,664,445	$41,732,889	20.0%	$3,184,274	1.5%

	Case Name	Case No.	Court	Fee Approval Date	Common Fund	Attorneys' Fees	Attys' Fees as % of Fund	Expenses Awarded	Expenses as % of Fund
43	In re Optical Disk Drive Prods. Antitrust Litig.	3:10-md-02143	N.D. Cal.	12/19/2016	$124,500,000	$31,125,000	25.0%	$3,704,324	3.0%
44	In re Broiler Chicken Antitrust Litig. (Commercial & Institutional Indirect Purchaser Plaintiff Actions)	1:16-cv-08637	N.D. Ill.	4/19/2022	$104,890,000	$31,000,833	29.6%	$10,407,500	9.9%
45	In re Pharmaceutical Industry Average Wholesale Price Litig. (Mass. and Non-Mass. Class Actions Concerning Classes 2 & 3)	1:01-cv-12257	D. Mass.	2/11/2011	$103,000,000	$30,900,000	30.0%	$0	N/A
46	In re Aggrenox Antitrust Litig. (Direct Purchaser Actions)	3:14-md-02516	D. Conn.	12/18/2017	$146,000,000	$29,200,000	20.0%	$988,679	0.7%
47	In re Ranbaxy Generic Drug Application Antitrust Litig.	1:19-md-02878	D. Mass.	9/19/2022	$145,000,000	$29,000,000	20.0%	$2,268,846	1.6%
48	In re Commodity Exchange, Inc. Gold Futures and Options Trading Litig.	1:14-md-02548	S.D.N.Y.	5/4/2022	$102,000,000	$28,200,000	27.6%	$8,027,283	7.9%

	Case Name	Case No.	Court	Fee Approval Date	Common Fund	Attorneys' Fees	Attys' Fees as % of Fund	Expenses Awarded	Expenses as % of Fund
49	In re Automotive Parts Antitrust Litig. (Dealership Actions) (Round 4 Settlements)	2:12-cv-00602	E.D. Mich.	12/29/2019	$103,520,160	$31,210,859	30.1%	$153,720	0.1%
50	Cameron, et al. v. Apple Inc.	4:19-cv-03074	N.D. Cal.	6/10/2022	$100,000,000	$26,000,000	26.0%	$3,500,000	3.5%
51	In re Automotive Parts Antitrust Litigation (Automobile Dealership Actions)	2:13-cv-00702	E.D. Mich.	8/21/2017; 8/07/2020	$124,730,980	$37,419,294	30.0%	$450,047	0.4%
52	Sullivan, et al. v. Barclays PLC, et al. (Société Générale Settlement)	1:13-cv-02811	S.D.N.Y.	11/1/2023	$105,000,000	$16,800,000	16.0%	$98,568	0.1%
53	Nitsch, et al. v. Dreamworks Animation SKG Inc., et al.	5:14-cv-04062	N.D. Cal.	6/5/2017	$168,950,000	$18,538,159	11.0%	$2,051,741	1.2%
54	Precision Assocs., Inc. et al. v. Panalpina World Transport (Holding) LTD., et al. ("Panalpina 1 ")	1:08-cv-00042	E.D.N.Y.	12/27/2013	$112,356,912	$16,853,537	15.0%	$613,386	0.5%
55	In re Disposable Contact Lens Antitrust Litigation	3:15-md-02626	M.D. Fla.	6/1/2021; 10/12/2022	$118,200,000	$38,649,294	32.7%	$2,401,819	2.0%

	Case Name	Case No.	Court	Fee Approval Date	Common Fund	Attorneys' Fees	Attys' Fees as % of Fund	Expenses Awarded	Expenses as % of Fund
56	In re Dealer Management Sys. Antitrust Litig. (Dealership Class Action)	1:18-cv-00864	N.D. Ill.	2/25/2025	$129,500,000	$42,735,000	33.0%	$7,192,134	5.6%
57	Precision Assocs., Inc. et al. v. Panalpina World Transport (Holding) LTD., et al. ("Panalpina 3 ")	1:08-cv-00042	E.D.N.Y.	11/7/2016	$117,774,617	$29,443,654	25.0%	$1,757,082	1.5%
						Average Fee	28.51%	Average Expenses as % of Fund	2.8%
						Median Fee	30.00%	Median Expenses as % of Fund	2.0%
						Requested Fee	28.31%	Requested Expenses as % of Fund	1.96%

Chart Supporting Documents
Part I: Tabs 1-27

EXHIBIT 13

TAB 1A

United States District Court
Northern District of California

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT

NORTHERN DISTRICT OF CALIFORNIA

San Francisco Division

DJENEBA SIDIBE, et al.,

Plaintiffs,

v.

SUTTER HEALTH, et al.,

Defendants.

Case No. 12-cv-04854-LB

FINAL APPROVAL ORDER

Re: ECF Nos. 1754, 1761

INTRODUCTION

This antitrust consumer class action involved multiple motions to dismiss, extensive discovery, two class-certification motions, a Rule 23(f) petition, three summary-judgment motions, a four-week trial that resulted in a defense verdict, and three appeals to the Ninth Circuit. In March 2025, after jury selection for a second trial but before opening statements, the parties reached a settlement. On May 22, 2025, the court approved the settlement preliminarily. The plaintiffs move for final approval of the settlement and for attorney's fees and costs. After a fairness hearing on November 6, 2025, the court grants the motion for final approval and awards the requested fees and costs.

STATEMENT

1. The Lawsuit

The named plaintiffs are individuals who purchased health insurance and employers who provided health insurance for their employees.[1] The plaintiffs filed their first complaint on September 17, 2012, represented solely by The Mehdi Firm. After multiple rounds of motions to dismiss and orders dismissing earlier complaints, Constantine Cannon and other firms joined as plaintiffs' counsel.[2] Following dismissal of the third amended complaint for failure to allege relevant geographic markets, the plaintiffs appealed, and the Ninth Circuit reversed.[3] Discovery spanned 2016 to 2021 and was coordinated with two related state-court cases: UFCW & Employers Benefit Trust v. Sutter Health, CGC-14-538451 (Cal. Super. Ct. Apr. 7, 2014) (the UEBT action), and California ex rel. Xavier Becerra v. Sutter Health, CGC-18-565398 (Cal. Super. Ct. Mar. 29, 2018).[4] Discovery was extensive, involving over 2.5 million documents from parties, nonparty health plans, and third parties and 155 depositions over 223 deposition days. Obtaining discovery from the nonparty health plans was particularly time-consuming, requiring additional counsel, economists, and data analysts.[5]

Expert discovery was substantial. The plaintiffs retained three experts, including Dr. Tasneem Chipty, who issued eleven expert reports on class certification, relevant markets, liability, antitrust impact, and damages.[6] Sutter retained seven experts and produced twenty-three reports.[7] Expert depositions spanned twenty-eight days.[8]

---

[1] Order – ECF No. 962 at 1. Citations refer to the Electronic Case File (ECF); pinpoint citations are to the ECF-generated page numbers at the top of documents.

[2] Dismissal Orders – ECF Nos. 35, 64.

[3] Order – ECF No. 83; Sidibe v. Sutter Health, 667 F. App'x 641 (9th Cir. 2016).

[4] Order – ECF No. 158.

[5] Kim Decl. – ECF No. 1754-1 at 10 (¶¶ 45–48).

[6] Id. at 11 (¶ 49).

[7] Id. (¶ 50).

[8] Id. (¶ 51).

Two rounds of class-certification occurred. Initially, the court certified a Rule 23(b)(2) injunctive-relief class but denied a Rule 23(b)(3) damages class, finding Dr. Chipty's analysis insufficient for class-wide antitrust injury and damages.[9] For the second motion, Dr. Chipty expanded her analysis, incorporating data from all five health plans, regression analyses using Center for Medicare and Medicaid Services (CMS) data, and other sources. On July 30, 2020, the court certified a Rule 23(b)(3) class of premium payers.[10] On August 30, 2020, the court appointed Constantine Cannon as lead trial counsel and The Mehdi Firm as co-lead class counsel.[11] On November 5, 2020, the court approved the plaintiffs' notice plan, executed by mail, email, and print and digital publication. The opt-out deadline was March 8, 2021.[12]

Three summary-judgment motions were filed. On April 12, 2019, Sutter's early summary-motion was denied (except for the Davis market).[13] The motion involved substantial expert discovery from Dr. Chipty and Sutter's expert, Dr. Gautam Gowrisankaran.[14]After fact discovery ended on July 27, 2020, the plaintiffs moved for partial summary judgment on the distinct-products element of their tying claim, which the court granted.[15] Sutter's summary-judgment motion argued that its practices were not anticompetitive, it did not willfully maintain monopoly power in tying markets or pose a dangerous probability of monopolization in tied markets, and the plaintiffs lacked class-wide damages for the 2008–2010 claims. The court granted Sutter summary judgment on the Sherman Act § 2 claim and 2008–2010 damages, denying the remainder.[16] These motions involved extensive briefing and hundreds of exhibits.[17]

---

[9] Order – ECF No. 698 at 50–53.

[10] Order – ECF No. 823.

[11] Kim Decl. – ECF No. 1754-1 at 12 (¶¶ 53–54).

[12] Order – ECF No. 901.

[13] Order – ECF No. 673.

[14] Kim Decl. – ECF No. 1754-1 at 13 (¶¶ 58–59).

[15] Order – ECF No. 886.

[16] Order – ECF No. 962.

[17] Kim Decl. – ECF No. 1754-1 at 13–14 (¶ 61).

In late 2019, Sutter settled the state cases, which involved direct purchasers, for damages and injunctive relief relating to Sutter's contracting practices with insurers, benefitting the indirect purchasers in this action through a monitored injunction.[18] Preparation for trial in this case occurred three times: for October 4, 2021, December 2021/January 2022, and the actual four-week trial in February 2022.[19] Pretrial filings exceeded 18,000 pages, including Daubert and in limine motions.[20] After a defense verdict, the plaintiffs appealed. The appellate record included thirty-three volumes of trial materials.[21] The Ninth Circuit reversed on two issues: exclusion of pre-2006 evidence and a revised CACI jury instruction. Sidibe v. Sutter Health, 103 F.4th 675 (9th Cir. 2024). It affirmed the "relevant purchaser" instruction and denial of sanctions. Sidibe, No. 22-15634, 2024 WL 2826520 (9th Cir. June 4, 2024). It denied Sutter's petition for rehearing and rehearing en banc.[22] After the mandate issued, the parties updated pretrial filings, and the court issued a final pretrial order.[23] Jury selection occurred on February 27, 2025.[24] On March 2, 2025, the parties settled.[25]

2. The Settlement Process

The parties engaged Gregory Lindstrom of Phillips ADR Enterprises for mediation over five weeks, executing the settlement agreement on April 24, 2025.[26] The plaintiffs moved for preliminary approval on April 25, 2025, which the court granted on May 22, 2025.[27] A final fairness hearing was held on November 6, 2025.

---

[18] Id. at 14 (¶ 62).

[19] Docket. The parties picked a jury in December 2021, with a trial date of January 6, 2021. Because of the Omicron surge, the Northern District of California cancelled all jury trials in January.

[20] Orders – ECF No. 1166–67, 1282, 1318, 1363, 1382, 1420.

[21] Kim Decl. – ECF No. 1754-1 at 17 (¶ 77).

[22] Order – ECF No. 1624.

[23] Order – ECF No. 1734.

[24] Minute Entry – ECF No. 1733.

[25] Notice of Settlement – ECF No. 1737.

[26] Settlement Agreement, Ex. A to Kim Decl. – ECF No. 1761-2 at 6–36.

[27] Order – ECF No. 1750.

3. The Settlement Agreement

The certified and settlement class is "All entities in California Rating area 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 8, 9 or 10 (the 'Nine Rating Areas' or 'Nine RAs'), and all individuals that either live or work in one of the Nine RAs, that paid premiums for a fully insured health insurance policy from Blue Shield, Anthem Blue Cross, Aetna, Health Net or UnitedHealthcare from January 1, 2011 to March 8, 2021."[28]

The settlement amount is $228.5 million, to be deposited into a court-approved escrow account within twenty calendar days of this order. Interest from deposit to the Effective Date will be split evenly between the class and Sutter. Proceeds will be distributed pro rata.[29] The release covers:

> Sutter, its past or present parents, subsidiaries, divisions, affiliates, providers (including, but not limited to, hospitals, foundations, doctors, ambulatory surgery centers and any other providers), officers, directors, employees, agents, attorneys, and any of their legal representatives (and the predecessors, heirs, executors, administrators, successors, purchasers, and assigns of each of the foregoing) from any and all claims, whether federal or state, known or unknown, asserted or unasserted, regardless of legal theory, arising from or related to the facts, activities, or circumstances that were alleged in the complaints filed by Plaintiffs, including in the Fourth Amended Complaint, or otherwise alleged in this Action including during the first trial of this matter in 2022, or arising from or related to any purported anticompetitive effect resulting from the conduct alleged by Plaintiffs in this Action, including conduct alleged during the first trial of this matter in 2022.[30]

The release includes a waiver of unknown claims under Cal. Civ. Code § 1542.[31]

Class Counsel's requested fees and costs (to be deducted from the fund) require court approval and include approximately $10 million for notice and administration of the Settlement (discussed below), $28,185,752 in expenses (including $17 million for experts), attorney's fees (without a multiplier and not exceeding one-third of the settlement fund), service awards to Class Representatives ($20,000 each for testifying Class Representatives, $15,000 each for non-testifying Representatives, totaling $95,000 for five representatives).[32]

---

[28] Settlement Agreement, Ex. A to Kim Decl. – ECF No. 1761-2 at 10.

[29] Id. at 18–21 (§ III.A.1, 5).

[30] Id. at 24 (§ VI.A.1).

[31] Id. at 24–25 (§ VI.A.2).

[32] Id. at 25 (§ VII.1); Mot. – ECF No. 1754; Mot. – ECF No. 1761-1 at 15; Kim. Suppl. Decl. – ECF No. 1762.

The court previously established an opt-out period for Class Members from December 15, 2020, to March 8, 2021, stating that any members who did not opt out would be bound by the outcome of the lawsuit, would receive the benefits of any settlement, and would not be able to exclude themselves from the Class in the future.[33]

4. Settlement Administration

JND, a nationally recognized administrator, managed the notice and distribution plan, consistent with the court-approved November 5, 2020, plan. It mailed 6,624,714 Post Card Notices from June 2 to June 24, 2025, using updated addresses from health plans, skip-trace databases, and the U.S. Postal Service. Undeliverable notices were re-mailed to forwarding addresses.[34] It emailed 1,994,468 notices from June 2, 2025, to June 28, 2025, with three follow-up campaigns.[35] Digital ads on LinkedIn, Facebook, Instagram, programmatic advertising (through OMTrade Desk); SHRM.org (the largest trade-association site), Google Display Network (GDN, the leading digital network), and Demand Gen (an AI-powered advertising method) generated 1,885,534 digital impressions from June 2 to July 13, 2025.[36] A press release reached 139.7 million, with 13.5 million via regional outlets.[37] The website, www.SutterHealthPremiumLawsuit.com, provided case details and claim forms.[38] JND's toll-free line received 25,345 calls, and it received 6,169 emails.[39] 206,546 claims were filed by the claim-filing deadline of September 12, 2025.[40] Administration costs are approximately $10 million.[41]

---

[33] Order – ECF No. 955; Settlement Agreement, Ex. A to Kim Decl. – ECF No. 1761-2 at 15–16 (§ II.D).

[34] Kim Decl. – ECF No. 1761-2 at 2–3 (¶ 9); Keough Decl. – ECF No. 1761-3 at 1–3 (¶¶ 2, 5, 9); Order – ECF No. 901.

[35] Keough Decl. – ECF No. 1761-3 at 3–4 (¶¶ 12, 14).

[36] Id. at 4–5 (¶¶ 16–20); Digital Ads, Ex. D to id. at 24–45.

[37] Keough Decl. – ECF No. 1761-3 at 7 (¶¶ 30–31).

[38] Id. at 7–8 (¶¶ 32–33, 35).

[39] Id. at 8 (¶¶ 37–38).

[40] Id. (¶ 40).

[41] Id. (¶ 47) ($4 million for notice and $6 million for claims administration).

5. Objections

Two objections were filed. On August, 26, 2025, William Legler objected to calculating fees on the gross fund.[42] Hao Tze Wang's objection, alleging inadequate notice and discrimination, was withdrawn (after a September 10, 2025, hearing, per Fed. R. Civ. P. 23(e)(5)(B)), with a $900 payment (predicated on his claim that he paid $15,000 in premiums during the class period) and (2) provision of the public opt-out list.[43]

6. Efforts of Class Representatives

Class Representatives, some involved since 2012, contributed significantly through discovery, depositions, and trial preparation.[44]

7. Additional Costs

Since preliminary approval, the plaintiffs and class counsel incurred additional costs for data expert analysis in connection with assisting certain large Class Members (such as CalPERS). The revised costs total $28,185,752.[45]

ANALYSIS

1. Jurisdiction

The court has jurisdiction under the Class Action Fairness Act (CAFA). 28 U.S.C. § 1332(d)(2).

2. Certification of the Settlement Class

The court previously certified the class under Rule 23(a) and (b)(3).[46] The class remains appropriate, with no changed circumstances. Numerosity is satisfied with over three million

---

[42] Obj. – ECF No. 1757.

[43] Minute Entry – ECF No. 1759; Order – ECF No. 1760.

[44] See Pls.' Decls. – ECF Nos. 1754-10–15.

[45] Kim Decl. – ECF No. 1761-2 at 4 (¶ 17); Kim. Suppl. Decl. – ECF No. 1762; Reimbursement Costs, Ex. D to id. – ECF No. 1761-2.

[46] Orders – ECF Nos. 823, 1750.

members. Nelson v. Avon Prods., Inc., No. 14-cv-02276-BLF, 2015 WL 1778326, at *5 (N.D. Cal. Apr. 17, 2015). Commonality exists in questions about Sutter's contracting practices. Typicality is met, as the plaintiffs' claims arise from the same conduct. Adequacy is satisfied: there are no conflicts and counsel is qualified. Fed. R. Civ. P. 23(a); Staton v. Boeing Co., 327 F.3d 938, 953 (9th Cir. 2003); In re Hyundai and Kia Fuel Econ. Litig., 926 F.3d 539, 566 (9th Cir. 2019). A class action is superior to other available methods for fairly and efficiently adjudicating the controversy. Fed. R. Civ. P. 23(b)(3); Brown v. Hain Celestial Grp., Inc., No. 11-cv-03082-LB, 2014 WL 6483216, at *15–20 (N.D. Cal. Nov. 18, 2014).

3. Approval of Settlement

A court may approve a proposed class-action settlement only "after a hearing and only on finding that it is fair, reasonable, and adequate after considering whether":

> (A) the class representatives and class counsel have adequately represented the class;
> (B) the proposal was negotiated at arm's length;
> (C) the relief provided for the class is adequate, taking into account:
> > (i) the costs, risks, and delay of trial and appeal;
> > (ii) the effectiveness of any proposed method of distributing relief to the class, including the method of processing class-member claims;
> > (iii) the terms of any proposed award of attorney's fees, including timing of payment; and > > (iv) any agreement required to be identified under Rule 23(e)(3); and > (D) the proposal treats class members equitably relative to each other.

Fed. R. Civ. P. 23(e)(2). These factors "are substantially similar to those articulated" in Hanlon v. v. Chrysler Corp., 150 F. 3d 1011, 1027 (9th Cir. 1998), overruled on other grounds by Wal-Mart Stores, Inc. v. Dukes, 564 U.S. 338 (2011). Student A v. Berkeley Unified Sch. Dist., No. 17-cv-02510-JST, 2021 WL 6332353, at *2 n.2 (N.D. Cal. July 8, 2021). In Hanlon, the Ninth Circuit identified factors relevant to assessing a settlement proposal: (1) the strength of the plaintiff's case; (2) the risk, expense, complexity, and likely duration of further litigation; (3) the risk of maintaining class-action status throughout trial; (4) the amount offered in settlement; (5) the extent of discovery completed and the stage of the proceeding; (6) the experience and views of counsel;

(7) the presence of a government participant; and (8) the reaction of class members to the proposed settlement. 150 F.3d at 1026.

The settlement is fair, reasonable, and adequate.

First, representation is adequate. Class counsel and the representatives litigated vigorously over thirteen years, navigating motions, discovery, trial, and appeals.

Second, mediation with Mr. Lindstrom, together with experienced and knowledgeable counsel, ensured a non-collusive process. Fed. R. Civ. P. 23(e)(2)(B) advisory committee's note (2018) ("[T]he involvement of a neutral . . . in negotiations may bear on whether they were conducted in a manner that would protect and further the class interests."); Villegas v. J.P. Morgan Chase & Co., No. CV 09-00261 SBA (EMC), 2012 WL 5878390, at *6 (N.D. Cal. Nov. 21, 2012) (private mediation "tends to support the conclusion that the settlement process was not collusive").

Third, the relief is adequate, providing class members with a recovery of over fifty-five percent of single damages, exceeding typical settlements. See, e.g., Rodriguez v. W. Publ'g Corp., 563 F.3d 948, 963 (9th Cir. 2009) (approximately thirty percent of the estimated damages before trebling was fair, adequate, and reasonable); Roe v. SFBSC Mgmt., LLC, No. 14-cv-03616-LB, 2022 WL 17330847, at *12 (N.D. Cal. Nov. 29, 2022) ("[T]welve percent of the best-case scenario is within the range courts approve."); Reynolds v. Direct Flow Med., Inc., No. 17-cv-00204-KAW, 2019 WL 4168959, at *3 (N.D. Cal. Sept. 3, 2019) (approving settlement representing thirteen percent of the plaintiffs' estimated damages); Edwards v. Nat'l Milk Producers Fed'n, No. 11-cv-04766-JSW, 2017 WL 3616638, at *3 (N.D. Cal. June 26, 2017) (settlement of approximately thirty percent of the estimated single damages); In re Lithium Ion Batteries Antitrust Litig., No. 4:13-md-02420-YGR (DMR), 2017 WL 1086331, at 4* (N.D. Cal. Mar. 20, 2017) (settlement of "11.2% of the single damages attributable to Sony sales"); In re Cathode Ray Tube (CRT) Antitrust Litig., No. 14-cv-2058 JST, 2017 WL 565003, at *4, *6 (N.D. Cal. Feb. 13, 2017) (preliminary approval of twenty-four percent of single damages). The settlement is in line with the monetary settlement in the related state-court cases (UEBT and the California AG's affirmative lawsuit), where the direct-purchaser class obtained approximately fifty-seven percent of single damages.[47] The risks of trial, appeal delays, and costs support approval.

Fourth, the settlement is equitable. Pro rata and prompt distribution ensures fairness. See In re: Cathode Ray Tube (CRT) Antitrust Litig., No. 14-cv-2058 JST, 2017 WL 2481782, at *5 (N.D. Cal. June 8, 2017) (approving settlement distribution plan that "fairly treats class members by awarding a pro rata share to the class members based on the extent of their injuries").

Finally, the Hanlon factors overall support approval: strong results, high litigation risk, completed discovery, experienced counsel, and minimal objections (one withdrawn). Ching v. Siemens Indus., No. 11-cv-04838-MEJ, 2014 WL 2926210, at *6 (N.D. Cal. June 27, 2014) (a court "may appropriately infer that a class action settlement is fair, adequate, and reasonable when few class members object to it" (cleaned up)); cf. Staton, 327 F.3d at 959 (the court should consider "reaction of the class members to the proposed settlement").

In sum, the settlement is fair, adequate, and reasonable. Officers for Justice v. Civil Serv. Comm'n of the City and Cty. of S.F., 688 F.2d 615, 625 (9th Cir. 1982).

4. Attorney's Fees and Costs

Class Counsel's $75.4 million fee request (thirty-three percent of the settlement fund) and $28,185,752 in costs are approved.[48]

"In a certified class action, the court may award reasonable attorney's fees and nontaxable costs that are authorized by law or by the parties' agreement." Fed. R. Civ. P. 23(h). The court must ensure that the award is reasonable. In re Bluetooth Headset Prods. Liab. Litig., 654 F.3d 935, 941 (9th Cir. 2011). The court is not bound by the parties' settlement agreement as to the amount of fees. Id. at 941–43. The court must review fee awards with special rigor:

> Because in common fund cases the relationship between plaintiffs and their attorneys turns adversarial at the fee-setting stage, courts have stressed that when awarding attorneys' fees from a common fund, the district court must assume the role of > fiduciary for the class plaintiffs. Accordingly, fee applications must be closely scrutinized. Rubber-stamp approval, even in the absence of objections, is improper.

[47] Mot. – ECF No. 1761-1 at 19 (citing settlement in state cases).

[48] Mot. – ECF No. 1754 at 29–30; Mot. – ECF No. 1761-1 at 15; Kim. Suppl. Decl. – ECF No. 1762.

Vizcaino v. Microsoft Corp., 290 F.3d 1043, 1052 (9th Cir. 2002) (cleaned up). When counsel recovers a common fund that confers a "substantial benefit" on a class, counsel is "entitled to recover their attorney's fees from the fund." Fischel v. Equitable Life Assurance Soc'y of U.S., 307 F.3d 997, 1006 (9th Cir. 2002). In common-fund cases, courts may calculate a fee award under either the "lodestar" or "percentage of the fund" method. Id.; Hanlon, 150 F.3d at 1029.

The "percentage of the fund" method is typically used. The Ninth Circuit's benchmark is twenty-five percent of the settlement, but courts diverge based on factors that include the results obtained, risks undertaken by counsel, the complexity of the issues, the length of the professional relationship, the market rate, and similar awards. Morales v. Stevco, Inc., No. CIV-F-09-0704-AWI-JLT, 2013 WL 1222058, at *2 (E.D. Cal. Mar. 25, 2013); Morris v. Lifescan, Inc., 54 F. App'x 663, 664 (9th Cir. 2003) (thirty-three-percent fee award); In re Pac. Enters. Sec. Litig., 47 F.3d 373, 379 (9th Cir. 1995) (same).

If the court applies the percentage method, it calculates the lodestar as a cross-check to assess the reasonableness of the fees. See, e.g., Weeks v. Kellogg Co., No. CV-09-8102-MMM-RZx, 2013 WL 6531177, at *25 (C.D. Cal. Nov. 23, 2013); see also Serrano v. Priest, 20 Cal. 3d 25, 48–49 (1977); Fed-Mart Corp. v. Pell Enters., 111 Cal. App. 3d 215, 226–27 (1980). The lodestar is the number of hours reasonably expended multiplied by a reasonable hourly rate. Lealao v. Beneficial Cal., Inc., 82 Cal. App. 4th 19, 26 (2000). The court has discretion to apply a multiplier to take into account other factors, "including the quality of the representation, the novelty and complexity of the issues, the results obtained, and the contingent risk presented." Id.; accord Laffitte v. Robert Half Int'l Inc., 1 Cal. 5th 480, 503–06 (2016) (California standard).

The fees are appropriate as a percentage of the common fund, supported by a lodestar cross-check, the complexity and results, and the lack of objections to the settlement amount.[49] See, e.g., Bellinghausen v. Tractor Supply Co., 306 F.R.D. 245, 259–65 (N.D. Cal. 2015) (approving benchmark twenty-five percent of the common fund); Burden v. SelectQuote Ins. Servs., No. C 10-5966-LB, 2013 WL 3988771, at *4–5 (N.D. Cal. Aug. 2, 2013) (thirty-three percent, given extensive litigation, successful results, and contingency risk); Villalpando v. Exel Direct Inc., Nos. 12-cv-04137-JCS, 13-cv-03091-JCS, 2016 WL 7740854, at *2 (N.D. Cal. Dec. 12, 2016) (same). Class counsel collects cases supporting the conclusion that the inherent complexity of antitrust cases is a factor that courts consider in awarding a one-third fee award.[50] The lodestar exceeds the fees sought, and counsel did not seek enhanced rates, which supports the reasonableness of the percentage fee request.[51] Taylor v. Shutterfly, Inc., No. 5:18-CV-00266-BLF, 2021 WL 5810294, at *9 (N.D. Cal. Dec. 7, 2021) (counsel sought less in fees than they reasonably incurred). The objection to the gross-fee calculation is overruled because precedent supports gross-fund calculations. In re Anthem, Inc. Data Breach Litig., No. 15-MD-02617-LHK, 2018 WL 3960068, at *8–9 (N.D. Cal. Aug. 17, 2018); In re Online DVD-Rental Antitrust Litig., 779 F.3d 934, 953 (9th Cir. 2015); Powers v. Eichen, 229 F.3d 1249, 1258 (9th Cir. 2000); Hermosillo v. Davey Tree Surgery Co., No. 18-CV-00393-LHK, 2021 WL 2826697, at *5 (N.D. Cal. July 7, 2021).

[49] See Mot. – ECF No. 1754 at 24–28; Pearl Decl. – ECF No. 1754-16 at 10–30 (¶¶ 15–26); Kim Decl. – ECF No. 1754-1 at 2–5 (¶¶ 5–22), 7 (¶ 32); Report, Ex. E to Kim Decl. – ECF No. 1754-1 at 46.

The expenses are reasonable and compensable, involving experts and other categories routinely charged to paying clients. Fed. R. Civ. P. 23(h) (compensable expenses include "nontaxable costs that are authorized by law or by the parties' agreement"); Harris v. Marhoefer, 24 F.3d 16, 20 (9th Cir. 1994) (can recover reasonable expenses that would be billed to paying clients in non-contingency matters); Van Vranken v. Atl. Richfield Co., 901 F. Supp. 294, 299 (N.D. Cal. 1995) (approving reasonable expenses in class action settlement).[52]

[50] Mot. – ECF No. 1754 at 23–24 (citing In re Flonase Antitrust Litig., 291 F.R.D. 93, 104 (E.D. Pa. 2013) and collecting other cases).

[51] Report, Ex. E to Kim Decl. – ECF No. 1754-1 at 46 (attorney's fees of $81,368,771.00 at historical rates).

[52] Mot. – ECF No. 1761-1 at 34 at 23–24 & n.5 (collecting cases).

5. Service Awards

The court approves the service awards, which reflect the representatives' significant time and effort during this protracted litigation. See, e.g., Bernstein v. Virgin Am., Inc., No. 15-cv-02277-JST, 2023 WL 7284158, at *3–4 (N.D. Cal. Nov. 3, 2023) (service awards of $25,000 and $12,000); Rabin v. PricewaterhouseCoopers LLP, No. 16-cv-02276-JST, 2021 WL 837626, at *10 (N.D. Cal. Feb. 4, 2021) ($20,000); In re Wells Fargo & Co. S'holder Derivative Litig., 445 F. Supp. 3d 508, 534 (N.D. Cal. 2020), aff'd, 845 F. App'x 563 (9th Cir. 2021) ($25,000); Perez v. Rash Curtis & Assocs., No. 4:16-cv-03396-YGR, 2020 WL 1904533, at *22 (N.D. Cal. Apr. 17, 2020) ($25,000 where the plaintiff held regular meetings with class counsel for more than three years, sat for a lengthy deposition, traveled multiple times from Sacramento to Oakland to appear at trial, testified live at trial, and worked with class counsel to pursue collection efforts); Vietnam Veterans of Am. v. Cent. Intel. Agency, No. 09-cv-00037-CW, 2018 WL 4827397, at *1 (N.D. Cal. Oct. 4, 2018) ($20,000); In re Nat'l Collegiate Athletic Ass'n Athletic Grant-in-Aid Cap Antitrust Litig., No. 4:14-md-2541 CW, 2017 WL 6040065, at *11 (N.D. Cal. Dec. 6, 2017), aff'd, 768 F. App'x 651 (9th Cir. 2019) ($20,000).

6. Class Representative, Class Counsel, and Claims Administrator

The court confirms its appointment of the class representative, class counsel, and JND as administrator and approves $10 million in administrative costs.[53] Fed. R. Civ. P. 23(a), (g)(1).

7. Class Notice

The notice plan, executed by JND under the court-approved notice plan, satisfied Rule 23(c)(2) and due process, providing the best notice practicable with information via mail, email, digital mail, and a website. It adequately advised class members of their rights and provided all required information, including (1) a summary of the lawsuit and claims asserted, (2) a clear definition of the class, (3) a description of the material terms of the settlement, (4) a disclosure of the release of the claims, (5) an explanation of class members' opt-out rights, a date by which they must opt out, and information about how to do so, (6) the date, time, and location of the final fairness hearing, and (7) the identity of class counsel and the provisions for attorney's fees, costs, and class-representative service awards.

[53] Order – ECF No. 901 at 2–3; Settlement Agreement, Ex. A to Kim Decl. – ECF No. 1761-2 at 12 (§ I.A.17).

8. Compliance with CAFA

The defendants complied with CAFA notice requirements under 28 U.S.C. § 1715(b), with the fairness hearing held over ninety days after service.[54]

CONCLUSION

The court approves the class-action settlement, including the fees and costs, and will separately enter the plaintiffs' proposed order and proposed form of judgment.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

Dated: November 6, 2025

LAUREL BEELER
United States Magistrate Judge

[54] Settlement Agreement, Ex. A to Kim Decl. – ECF No. 1761-2 at 14 (§ II.B.3).

TAB 1B

CONSTANTINE CANNON LLP
JEAN KIM (pro hac vice)
6 East 43rd Street
New York, NY 10017
(212) 350-2700
(212) 350-2701 (fax)
jkim@constantinecannon.com

Lead Counsel for Plaintiffs and the Class

THE MEHDI FIRM, PC
AZRA Z. MEHDI (220406)
95 Third Street
2nd Floor #9122
San Francisco, CA 94103
(415) 293-0070
(415) 293-0070 (fax)
azram@themehdifirm.com

Co-Lead Counsel for Plaintiffs and the Class

SHINDER CANTOR LERNER LLP
MATTHEW L. CANTOR (pro hac vice)
14 Penn Plaza, Ste. 1900
New York, NY 10122
(646) 960-8601
matthew@scl-llp.com
esnider@scl-llp.com

JAMES J. KOVACS (pro hac vice)
J. WYATT FORE (pro hac vice)
600 14th St NW, 5th Floor
Washington DC 20005
(646) 960-8601
james@scl-llp.com
wyatt@scl-llp.com

(Additional counsel listed on signature page)

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT

NORTHERN DISTRICT OF CALIFORNIA

DJENEBA SIDIBE, JERRY JANKOWSKI, SUSAN HANSEN, DAVID HERMAN, OPTIMUM GRAPHICS, INC., and JOHNSON POOL & SPA, on Behalf of Themselves and All Others Similarly Situated, Plaintiffs,

vs.

SUTTER HEALTH,

Defendant.

Case No. 3:12-cv-4854-LB

CLASS COUNSEL'S MOTION FOR ATTORNEYS' FEES, COSTS, AND SERVICE AWARDS; NOTICE OF MOTION; MEMORANDUM OF POINTS AND AUTHORITIES IN SUPPORT

Date: November 6, 2025
Time: 9:30 AM
Judge: The Honorable Laurel Beeler

NOTICE OF MOTION FOR ATTORNEYS' FEES, COSTS, AND SERVICE AWARDS

Please take notice that Plaintiffs' Motion for Attorneys' Fees, Costs, and Service Awards, will be heard on November 6, 2025 at 9:30 a.m. Pacific Time, or as soon thereafter as the Motion may be heard, in Courtroom B on the 15th Floor of the United States Courthouse, 450 Golden Gate Avenue, San Francisco, California, before the Honorable Laurel Beeler.

Table of Contents

I. PRELIMINARY STATEMENT 1

II. PROCEDURAL BACKGROUND 2

A. The Pleading Stage (2012-2016) 2

B. Fact And Expert Discovery (2016-2021) 4

C. Class Certification (2018-2020) 6

D. Summary Judgment (2017-2019; 2020-2021) 6

E. Settlement in the State Actions (2019-2020) 8

F. Pretrial Work (2021-2022) 8

G. Jury Trial (2022) 9

H. Appeal of Jury Verdict (2022-2024) 10

I. Re-Trial and Settlement (2024-2025) 11

J. Class Counsel's Lodestar and Expense Reports 12

K. Class Representative Participation 14

III. ARGUMENT 15

A. Legal Standard 15

B. The Requested 33% Fee Award Is Reasonable Under the Percentage-of-Recovery Method 17

1. Class Counsel Obtained Outstanding Relief for the Class 18

2. There Were Many Risks in This Case 18

3. The Skill Required and the Quality of the Work Justifies the Request 19

4. The Contingent Fee Nature of the Case and the Financial Burden 20

C. The Requested Fee Is Reasonable Under Lodestar Cross-Check 21

D. The Expenses Are Reasonable and Should Be Reimbursed 23

E. The Requested Service Awards are Reasonable and Should be Approved 24

IV. CONCLUSION 25

Table of Authorities

Cases Page(s)

Aichele v. City of L.A.,
2015 WL 5286028 (C.D. Cal. Sept. 9, 2015) 16

Bernstein v. Virgin Am, Inc.,
2023 WL 7284158 (N.D. Cal. Nov. 3, 2023) 25

Blum v. Stenson,
465 U.S. 886 (1984) 15

Boeing Co. v. Van Gemert,
444 U.S. 472 (1980) 15, 16

Boeing Co.,
327 F.3d 938 (9th Cir. 2003) 25

Carlin v. DairyAmerica, Inc.,
380 F. Supp. 3d 998 (E.D. Cal. 2019) 24

Covillo v. Specialtys Café,
2014 WL 954516 (N.D. Cal. Mar. 6, 2014) 23

Downes v. Unum Life Ins. Co. of Am.,
2024 WL 4876940 (N.D. Cal. Nov. 22, 2024) 22

Fernandez v. CoreLogic Credco, LLC,
2024 WL 3209391 (S,D,. Cal. June 24, 2024) 20

Harris v. Marhoefer,
24 F.3d 16 (9th Cir. 1994) 24

Harris v. Vector Mktg. Corp.,
2012 WL 381202 (N.D. Cal. Feb. 6, 2012) 25

In re Aggrenox Antitrust Litig., 2018 WL 10705542 (D. Conn. July 19, 2018) 17

In re Apple Inc. Device Performance Litig.,
50 F.4th 769 (9th Cir. 2022) 23

In re Apple Inc. Device Performance Litig.,
2025 WL 2090981 (N.D. Cal. Feb. 17, 2023) 20

In re Buspirone Antitrust Litig.,
2023 LEXIS 26538 (S.D.N.Y. Apr. 11, 2003) 17

In re Capacitors Antitrust Litig.,
2023 WL 2396782 (N.D. Cal. Mar. 6, 2023) 16

In re Cathode Ray Tube (CRT) Antitrust Litig.,
2017 WL 565003 (N.D. Cal. Feb. 13, 2017) 18

In re Fine Paper Antitrust Litig.,
751 F.2d 562 (3d Cir. 1984) 22

In re Flonase Antitrust Litig.,
291 F.R.D. 93 (E.D. Pa. 2013) 16

In re Google Inc. Street View Elec. Commc'ns Litig.,
21 F.4th 1102 (9th Cir. 2021) 16

In re Heritage Bond Litig.,
2005 WL 1594403 (C.D. Cal. June 10, 2005) 19, 20

In re Keurig Green Mountain Single-Serve Coffee Antitrust Litig.,
2021 WL 2328431 (S.D.N.Y. June 7, 2021) 17

In re Lidoderm Antitrust Litig.,
2018 WL 4620695 (N.D. Cal. Sept. 20, 2018) 16

In re Linerboard Antitrust Litig.,
2004 WL 1221350 (E.D. Pa. June 2, 2004) 17

In re Lithium Ion Batteries Antitrust Litig.,
2017 WL 1086331 (N.D. Cal. Mar. 20, 2017) 18

In re Media Vision Tech. Sec. Litig.,
913 F. Supp. 1362 (N.D. Cal. 1996) 24

In re Nat'l Collegiate Athletic Ass'n Athletic Grant-in-Aid Cap Antitrust Litig., 2017 WL 6040065 (N.D. Cal. Dec. 6, 2017) 25

In re Pac. Enters. Sec. Litig.,
47 F.3d 373 (9th Cir. 1995) 17

In re Polyurethane Foam Antitrust Litig.,
2015 WL 1639269 (N.D. Ohio Feb. 26, 2015) 17

In re Pork Antitrust Litig.,
2022 WL 4238416 (D. Minn. Sept. 14, 2022) 16

In re Vitamins Antitrust Litig.,
2001 LEXIS 25067 (D.D.C. July 13, 2001) 17

In re Vitamins Antitrust Litig.,
2001 WL 34312839 (D.D.C. July 16, 2001) 20

In re Wash. Pub. Power Supply Sys. Sec. Litig.,
19 F.3d 1291 (9th Cir. 1994) 15

In re Wells Fargo & Co. S'holder Derivative Litig.,
445 F. Supp. 3d 508 (N.D. Cal. 2020) 25

Johnson v. Triple Leaf Tea Inc.,
2015 WL 8943150 (N.D. Cal. Nov. 16, 2015) 23

Khoja v. Orexigen Therapeutics, Inc.,
2021 WL 5632673 (S.D. Cal. Nov. 30, 2021) 16

Koeppen v. Carvana, LLC,
2024 WL 3925703 (N.D. Cal. Aug. 22, 2024) 17, 18

Lusby v. GameStop Inc.,
2015 WL 1501095 (N.D. Cal. Mar. 31, 2015).....23

Lymburner v. U.S. Fin. Funding, Inc.,
2012 WL 398816 (N.D. Cal. Feb. 7, 2012).....23

Meijer, Inc. v. Abbott Lab'ys,
2011 WL 13392313 (N.D. Cal. Aug. 11, 2011).....16

Mills v. Elec. Auto-Lite Co.,
396 U.S. 375 (1970).....15, 24

Morris v. Lifescan, Inc.,
54 F. App'x 663 (9th Cir. 2003).....17

Nucci v. Rite Aid Corp.,
2010 WL 1693711 (N.D. Cal. May 26, 2022).....17

Overbo v. Loews California Theatres, Inc.,
2010 WL 11719051 (N.D. Cal. Aug. 17, 2010).....22

Perez v. Rash Curtis & Assocs.,
2020 WL 1904533 (N.D. Cal. Apr. 17, 2020).....25

Perma Life Mufflers, Inc. v. Int'l Parts Corp.,
392 U.S. 134 (1968).....15

Pillsbury Co. v. Conboy,
459 U.S. 248 (1983).....15

Rabin v. PricewaterhouseCoopers LLP,
2021 WL 837626 (N.D. Cal. Feb. 4, 2021).....25

Reiter v. Sonotone Corp.,
442 U.S. 330 (1979).....15

Reynolds v. Direct Flow Med., Inc.,
2019 WL 4168959 (N.D. Cal. Sept. 3, 2019).....18

Rodriguez v. W. Publ'g Corp.,
563 F.3d 948 (9th Cir. 2009).....18

Roe v. SFBSC Mgmt., LLC,
2022 WL 17330847 (N.D. Cal. Nov. 29, 2022).....17, 18

Schuchardt v. Law Office of Rory W. Clark,
314 F.R.D. 673 (N.D. Cal. 2016).....23

Sidibe et al. v. Sutter Health,
2021 WL 879875 (N.D. Cal. Mar. 9, 2021).....7

Sidibe v. Sutter Health,
103 F.4th 675 (9th Cir. 2024).....10

Sidibe v. Sutter Health,
2019 WL 2078788 (N.D. Cal. May 9, 2019).....7

Six (6) Mexican Workers v. Ariz. Citrus Growers,
904 F.2d 1301 (9th Cir. 1990) 16

Stanger v. China Elec. Motor, Inc.,
812 F.3d 734 (9th Cir. 2016) 16, 18, 22

State of Haw. v. Standard Oil, Corp.,
405 U.S. 251 (1972).....15

Suarez v. Bank of Am., Nat'l Ass'n,
2024 WL 150721 (N.D. Cal. Jan. 11, 2024) 17, 18

Taylor v. Shutterfly, Inc.,
2021 WL 5810294 (N.D. Cal. Dec. 7, 2021).....23

Torrisi v. Tucson Elec. Power Co.,
8 F.3d 1370 (9th Cir. 1993) 21

United States v. J-M Mfg. Co., Inc.,
2025 WL 1148344 (C.D. Cal. Mar. 13, 2025).....22

Vietnam Veterans of Am. v. Cent. Intel. Agency,
2018 WL 4827397 (N.D. Cal. Oct. 4, 2018).....25

Vizcaino v. Microsoft Corp.,
290 F.3d 1043 (9th Cir. 2002) 17, 18, 21, 22

Wehlage v. Evergreen at Arvin LLC,
2012 WL 4755371, (N.D. Cal. Oct. 4, 2012).....23

Williams v. MGM-Pathe Commc'ns Co.,
129 F.3d 1026 (9th Cir. 1997) 16

Rules

Fed. R. Evid. 702 .....8, 9

Fed. R. Civ. P. 23 6

I. PRELIMINARY STATEMENT

Class Counsel obtained an outstanding result for the Class in this hard-fought and grueling indirect purchaser antitrust class action against Sutter Health ("Sutter"). After more than 12 years of litigation, Sutter agreed to settle the case for $228.5 million. Class Counsels' recovery of 56% of the claimed single damages far exceeds the percentage recovery in many of the indirect purchaser class actions settled in this district. As a result of Class Counsel's ingenuity, hard work, and perseverance, millions of Californians will receive compensation from the settlement fund.

Class Counsel overcame substantial challenges to achieve this remarkable result for the Class. They prosecuted a novel indirect purchaser class action on behalf of health insurance subscribers who claimed they were overcharged for their premiums due to Sutter's alleged conduct. Class Counsel's development of the Class's Cartwright Act antitrust tying and course of conduct claims broke new ground in both antitrust and health care law. Indeed, the UFCW & Employers Benefit Trust v. Sutter Health, CGC-14-538451 (Cal. Super. Ct. S.F. filed April 7, 2014) (the "UEBT" action) litigation followed the filing of this case and obtained injunctive relief on behalf of a different class that also benefited the class here.

Class Counsel made a huge investment of time (132,739 hours) and money for expenses ($28,132,680) and shouldered an immense workload for more than 12 years. This included the investigation of Sutter's conduct and conception of claims, several motions to dismiss, four amended complaints, 17 million pages of documents, 223 deposition days, analysis of millions of lines of premium and claims data, 14 expert reports, two rounds of class certification motions and a Rule 23(f) petition, two rounds of summary judgment, two rounds of trial preparation, three rounds of jury selection, a four-week trial, and two trips to the Ninth Circuit. Much of the discovery resided with non-party insurance companies and involved massive amounts of health care claims data that is notoriously expensive and difficult to wrangle and analyze.

The risks in bringing this suit were significant and many. In Sutter, Class Counsel faced a formidable defendant with tremendous financial resources. It was represented by outstanding, and well-staffed counsel. The healthcare industry is multi-tiered and complex, and presents unique challenges in applying antitrust laws and concepts. Class members here are indirect purchasers and never before this case had a class of premium payers been certified to maintain suit against a provider like Sutter. Despite the substantial risks, hurdles and setbacks, Class Counsel never wavered in their advocacy for the Class.

Class Counsel are a dedicated group of attorneys from a handful of small firms specializing in antitrust and class action law. Each firm invested a massive amount of resources in litigating and trying this case. Given the excellent result achieved, and the length and complexity of the case, Class Counsel seek attorneys' fees of 33% of the gross settlement ($75,405,000) and costs totaling $28,132,680. Based on historical rates (rather than current rates, as the Ninth Circuit permits), Class Counsel's total lodestar is $81,368,771. A $75,405,000 recovery would provide Class Counsel with only 93% of their lodestar, a negative multiplier that is well below the norm for high-risk antitrust class actions. The accompanying declaration of Richard Pearl, an expert on attorneys' fees in California, attests to the reasonableness of Class Counsel's rates.

In consideration of the substantial common fund obtained, and tremendous resources devoted by Class Counsel and their respective firms over these many years of litigation, they respectfully request that their motion for fees and costs be granted in full.

II. PROCEDURAL BACKGROUND

A. The Pleading Stage (2012-2016)

Plaintiffs filed their first complaint on September 17, 2012, alleging that Sutter was engaging in anticompetitive conduct in Northern California in violation of state and federal antitrust laws and California's Unfair Competition Law. Initially, there was only one law firm representing Plaintiffs, The Mehdi Firm. Plaintiffs amended their complaint as of right on December 10, 2012. Declaration of Jean Kim in Support of Class Counsel's Motion for Attorneys' Fees, Costs and Service Awards ("Kim. Decl."), submitted herewith, ¶ 33.

Sutter moved to dismiss the First Amended Complaint in March 2013. On June 3, 2013, the Court found that Plaintiffs had standing but dismissed the complaint for failure to allege relevant product and geographic markets. Plaintiffs filed their Second Amended Complaint on July 1, 2013. Id. ¶ 34.

On August 12, 2013, Constantine Cannon LLP ("CC") joined the action as co-lead counsel for Plaintiffs. CC attorneys, Matthew L. Cantor and Jean Kim (and later James Kovacs and Wyatt Fore), entered appearances. In September 2013, the law firms of Steyer Lowenthal Boodrookas Alvarez & Smith LLP ("Steyer Lowenthal") and Farmer Brownstein Jaeger LLP ("Farmer Brownstein") joined the action as counsel for Plaintiffs. Allan Steyer, D. Scott Macrae (and later Jill M. Manning and Suneel Jain), of Steyer Lowenthal and David Brownstein (and later David M. Goldstein) of Farmer Brownstein, among others, entered appearances. Id. ¶ 36. These attorneys constituted the core Class Counsel team throughout the litigation.[1]

On August 2, 2013, Sutter Health filed a Motion to Dismiss the Second Amended Complaint. On November 7, 2013, the Court granted the motion for failure to allege harm in the tied market for Plaintiffs' tying claim and market power and relevant geographic market on Plaintiffs' monopolization and attempted monopolization claims. Id. ¶ 37.

On December 9, 2013, Plaintiffs filed the Third Amended Complaint, alleging that Sutter had engaged in tying arrangements and a course of conduct that violated federal and state antitrust laws. Plaintiffs alleged tying and tied markets for the sale of inpatient hospital services to commercial insurers in several hospital services areas ("HSAs"), based on the Dartmouth Atlas on Health Care, an industry authority.

On January 8, 2014, Sutter moved for the third time to dismiss the complaint. On June 20, 2014, the Court dismissed the Third Amended Complaint with prejudice for failure to allege relevant geographic markets. Plaintiffs appealed and litigated the appeal from December 2014 through July of 2016. Id. ¶ 39. On July 18, 2016, the Ninth Circuit reversed the Court's dismissal and remanded for further proceedings. Id. ¶ 41.

---

[1] On October 1, 2024, Mr. Cantor and other CC attorneys, including Mr. Kovacs and Mr. Fore, founded Shinder Cantor Lerner LLP ("SCL"). They and other SCL attorneys have worked on this matter since that time on behalf of the Class. See Declaration of Matthew L. Cantor ("Cantor Decl."), submitted herewith, ¶¶ 8-9. On November 1, 2024, Ms. Manning founded The Manning Law Firm and continued to prosecute the action on behalf of the Class at her new firm. See Declaration of Jill M. Manning ("Manning Decl."), submitted herewith.

B. Fact and Expert Discovery (2016-2021)

Upon remand, the parties commenced six years of extensive discovery. While the parties litigated Sutter's motions to dismiss and the appeal of the Court's dismissal, a different group of plaintiffs on April 7, 2014, filed a complaint on behalf of a putative class of direct purchasers in California Superior Court challenging similar conduct challenged here. UFCW & Employers Benefit Trust v. Sutter Health, CGC-14-538451 (Cal. Super. Ct. S.F. filed April 7, 2014) (the "UEBT" action). The UEBT action had entered the discovery phase by the time this case was remanded. Given the similarity of the facts and claims between the cases, discovery was consolidated and coordinated. On March 29, 2018, the California Attorney General sued Sutter in California Superior Court, also based upon conduct similar to that at issue here, alleging violations of antitrust law. California ex rel. Xavier Becerra v. Sutter Health, CGC-18-565398 (Cal. Super. Ct. S.F. filed March 29, 2018) (the "AG" action, and together with UEBT, the "State Actions"). Thereafter, discovery was coordinated across all three actions. Id. ¶¶ 42-43.

Plaintiffs propounded and responded to significant discovery that ran from 2016 through 2021. Over 2.5 million documents (over 17 million pages) were produced by the parties and non-party health plans and other third parties. Much of the discovery sought, including paid claims and premium data required to analyze liability and damages, was from non-party health plans who negotiated with Sutter for the provision of inpatient hospital services. Negotiating and obtaining discovery from Anthem Blue Cross, Blue Shield, United Healthcare, Health Net and Aetna (the "Health Plans") was difficult and very time consuming. Id. ¶ 45.

To review the substantial discovery produced by Sutter and the Health Plans, Plaintiffs retained additional law firms, including Keller Grover, Schneider Wallace and Scott & Scott. Class Counsel led discovery efforts and oversaw the review of millions of documents. Id. ¶ 46. Plaintiffs also retained economists and health care data analysists from Berkeley Research Group ("BRG") to "clean" and prepare the millions of lines of paid claims and premium data for economic analysis. This was a huge and expensive undertaking given the size and nature of the data sets from each of the five Health Plans. Id. ¶ 47. Once discovery had been reviewed and analyzed, the parties conducted 155 depositions of fact witnesses, the vast majority in-person, many of them multi-day, amounting to 223 deposition days. Id. ¶ 48.

The parties also engaged in substantial expert work and discovery. Plaintiffs retained three experts: 1) Dr. Tasneem Chipty, an esteemed Ph.D. economist who has testified on behalf of the United States in health care antitrust matters and who, in this case, opined on the issues of class certification, relevant markets, liability, antitrust impact, and damages; 2) Dr. Kenneth Kizer, a former Undersecretary of the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services, who served as Plaintiffs' health care industry expert, opining on hospital quality and competition, integration of care and industry background; and 3) Mr. David Axene, a health care actuarial expert with over 50 years of experience in California, who opined on premium construction, an actuarial approach to tracing the impact of alleged overcharges through to health insurance premiums, and other issues relevant to class certification and common impact. Class Counsel worked with each of these experts in preparing their reports: Dr. Chipty issued eleven different expert reports. Class Counsel also prepared these experts for and defended them in deposition. Dr. Chipty was deposed for a total of five different days over the span of the case. Id. ¶ 49.

Sutter retained seven experts: 1) Dr. Robert Willig, Ph.D., an economist on the Princeton University faculty who previously served as the head of the economics bureau of the Antitrust Division of the U.S. Department of Justice; 2) Dr. Gautam Gowrisankaran, Ph.D., an economist on the Columbia University faculty; 3) Jonathan Orzag, an economist who founded Compass Lexecon; 4) Dr. Jonathan Skinner, Ph.D., a health care economist; 5) Patrick Pilch, a health care industry expert; 6) Shannon Keller, a health care actuarial expert; and 7) Patrick Travis, a health care industry executive with expertise in purchasing and pricing of health insurance. Class Counsel reviewed and analyzed all the reports prepared by these experts – Willig and Orszag produced 9 reports alone – and prepared for and took depositions of the defense experts. Id. ¶ 50.

Plaintiffs' experts, with Class Counsel assistance, produced 14 expert reports and Sutter's produced 23 reports. In total, Class Counsel defended or took 28 days of expert deposition testimony. Id. ¶ 51.

C. Class Certification (2018-2020)

Class Counsel prosecuted two substantial class certification motions between 2018 and 2020. Plaintiffs moved to certify an indirect purchaser class of premium payers on July 27, 2018. Thereafter, the Court issued its opinion certifying a Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 23(b)(2) injunctive class only on October 18, 2019. The Court denied the motion with respect to a Rule 23(b)(3) damages class, concluding that Dr. Chipty's analysis was insufficient to show antitrust injury and damages on a class-wide basis. Id. ¶ 52.

Plaintiffs moved again to certify a Rule 23(b)(3) damages class on January 27, 2020. Dr. Chipty expanded her analysis to include data from all five Health Plans, specified regression analyses based upon Center for Medicare and Medicaid Services (CMS) data, and used other available data that supported her opinions on class-wide injury and damages. Class Counsel worked closely with Dr. Chipty in her development of a rigorous analysis that would support certification of the indirect purchaser premium payer class. On July 30, 2020, the Court granted Plaintiffs' motion and certified a Rule 23(b)(3) class of premium payers. The Court appointed CC as Lead Class Counsel and The Mehdi Firm as Co-Lead Class Counsel on August 3, 2020. Id. ¶¶ 53-54.

Upon certification, Class Counsel vetted claims administrators to prepare and send notice to the Class. Plaintiffs retained JND Legal Administration based on its experience, reputation, and the strength of its proposal. Counsel worked with JND on a proposed notice plan and supporting papers and submitted them for the Court's consideration. Id. ¶ 55. The Court issued an Order approving Plaintiffs' Notice Plan on November 5, 2020.

Thereafter, Class Counsel worked with JND to effectuate notice between November 2020 and March 2021. Notice was provided to class members via mail, email, and print and digital publication. Id. ¶ 56. The deadline to opt out of the Class was March 8, 2021.

D. Summary Judgment (2017-2019; 2020-2021)

On October 5, 2017, Sutter moved for early summary judgment, claiming that Plaintiffs lacked sufficient evidence to prove their alleged relevant geographic markets for inpatient hospital services. Id. ¶ 57.

The parties submitted substantial expert reports and conducted expert discovery of Dr. Chipty's and Dr. Gowrisankaran's geographic market opinions. Dr. Chipty's analysis supported Plaintiffs' market definition allegations for 11 out of the 12 geographic markets alleged for inpatient hospital services in Northern California. Id. ¶ 58. Market definition is a costly and expert-heavy exercise in antitrust litigation. In a typical antitrust case, one or two markets may be contested. Here, Plaintiffs had the burden of supporting the market definition for twelve geographic markets.

Briefing submitted in connection with summary judgment, and for motions to exclude both Dr. Chipty and Dr. Gowrisankaran was voluminous and fully fleshed out each side's arguments and the evidence gathered in discovery. On April 12, 2019, the Court, in a 70-page opinion, denied Sutter's motion for summary judgment with respect to eleven of Plaintiffs' twelve alleged geographic markets and granted Sutter's motion with respect to the Davis market. Sidibe v. Sutter Health, No. 12-cv-04854-LB, 2019 WL 2078788 (N.D. Cal. May 9, 2019) (ECF No. 673). The Court's decision left for trial the complicated and dense fact dispute regarding the scope of the alleged relevant markets. Although the parties stipulated that the product market was inpatient hospital services, they litigated through trial whether the market included or excluded Kaiser Permanente. Kim Decl. ¶ 59.

After fact discovery ended on July 27, 2020, Plaintiffs moved for partial summary judgment on the distinct products element of their tying claim. On October 23, 2020, the Court granted that motion. Id. ¶ 60. On August 22, 2020, Sutter moved for summary judgment on several potentially dispositive issues, including whether Sutter's contracting practices constituted tying arrangements. On March 9, 2021, the Court, denied Sutter's motion aimed at Plaintiffs' per se and rule of reason tying claims and their course of conduct claim. Sidibe et al. v. Sutter Health, No. 12-cv-04854-LB, 2021 WL 879875 (N.D. Cal. Mar. 9, 2021) (ECF No.962). The Court granted Sutter's motion regarding Plaintiffs' Sherman Act Section 2 claims and damages claims from 2008 to 2010. Id. ¶ 61. The summary judgment motions involved exhaustive briefing, hundreds of exhibits, and substantial expert declarations. Id.

E. Settlement in the State Actions (2019-2020)

In late 2019, Sutter settled with the AG and UEBT plaintiffs in the State Actions for monetary relief and significant injunctive relief relating to Sutter's contracting practices with insurers. The injunctive relief also benefitted the Class here. It included terms that prohibit conduct challenged in this case related to Sutter's contracting practices with Health Plans concerning network participation, steering, tiering, out-of-network pricing, and availability of pricing information. The injunction also appointed a monitor to ensure Sutter's compliance. See Id. ¶ 62. The release in the settlement agreement in the State Actions explicitly carved out the claims in this matter. Id. Class Counsel had worked closely and productively with the AG and UEBT plaintiffs' counsel throughout the litigation through the settlement of those actions – that work benefitted the prosecution of the State Actions. Kim Decl. ¶ 63.

F. Pretrial Work (2021-2022)

Due to delays caused by the COVID-19 pandemic and witness availability, the parties prepared for the first trial three separate times. Id. ¶ 64.

Trial was scheduled to commence on October 4, 2021. Starting in January 2021, the parties began working diligently for months to prepare exhibit lists, trial witness lists, and designations of deposition testimony. The parties exchanged those materials and held extensive meet and confers for months regarding exhibits and deposition designations. Collectively, there were thousands of exhibits on the parties' exhibit lists and many hours of deposition designations. Id. ¶ 65. Class counsel spent many hundreds of hours culling the record to identify relevant testimony and exhibits for trial, responding to objections, and meeting and conferring with Sutter's counsel. Id. ¶ 66.

The parties also submitted thirteen in limine and additional Daubert motions to exclude expert evidence under Fed. R. Evid. 702. On August 30, 2021, the Court issued an order denying all seven of Plaintiffs' in limine motions and granting all six of Sutter's in limine motions. The order precluded Plaintiffs from offering any evidence from before January 1, 2006, unless the Court ordered otherwise. In response, Plaintiffs made an offer of proof relating to 23 pieces of evidence otherwise precluded by the Court's pre-2006 in limine ruling: that Offer of Proof was denied as to all 23. The Court also largely denied the parties' Rule 702 motions. Id. ¶ 67.

On September 23, 2021, the Court continued the October 4, 2021 trial date until January 6, 2022. On December 16, 2021, after Class Counsel reviewed scores of completed jury questionnaires, the parties conducted voir dire and selected a jury. But on January 5, 2022, the day before trial was scheduled to commence, the Northern District suspended all jury trials due to the outbreak of another strain of COVID. Trial was rescheduled to commence on February 10, 2022. After Class Counsel again reviewed scores of jury questionnaires, the parties conducted voir dire and selected a jury on February 9, 2022. Id. ¶ 68.

G. Jury Trial (2022)

From February 10, 2022 to March 11, 2022, the Court conducted a four-week trial. Class Counsel spent hundreds of hours preparing Plaintiffs' witnesses for trial, including Plaintiffs' experts. Class Counsel also spent hundreds of hours preparing cross-examinations for numerous witnesses that Sutter would eventually call and a number that Sutter did not. Id. ¶ 69.

During 19 full trial days, over four weeks, Class Counsel examined and elicited testimony from 50 witnesses, including six expert witnesses. Three hundred and fifty-one exhibits were entered into evidence. Id. ¶ 70. Class Counsel secured the testimony from non-party Health Plan witnesses regarding Sutter's contracting practices and the impact of Sutter's conduct on premiums. Three of the six Class Representatives (Djeneba Sidibe, David Herman and Susan MacAusland for Optimum Graphics, Inc.) testified on behalf of the Class regarding their premium payments and the relief they hoped to achieve from the lawsuit. Sutter called 22 witnesses in its case – all of whom Class Counsel cross-examined. Six experts testified at trial. Id. ¶ 71. Dr. Chipty testified to her liability and damages opinions (asserting that the Class had incurred damages of approximately $411 million between January 1, 2011 and March 31, 2020) and explained how the overcharges resulting from Sutter's conduct were passed on through higher premiums to Class Members. Sutter's experts opined that the Class was not injured by Sutter's conduct and did not incur damages. Id. ¶ 72.

On March 11, 2022, the jury rendered a verdict in Sutter's favor. Final judgment was entered on March 29, 2022. Id. ¶ 74.

H. Appeal of Jury Verdict (2022-2024)

Plaintiffs appealed the Final Judgment and in limine and other rulings that precluded Plaintiffs from presenting any pre-2006 evidence at trial. Class Counsel argued that evidence of Health Plan negotiations before and after Sutter's systemwide contracting and anticompetitive contract terms had been forced on health plans supported their tying claims. Class Counsel argued that they were prejudiced at trial as the result of preclusion of this evidence. Id. ¶ 75.

Plaintiffs also appealed the Court's revision of CACI jury instructions on their course of conduct claim, arguing that instruction eliminated consideration of the history and purpose of Sutter's restraints. Lastly, Plaintiffs appealed the Court's Orders denying their request to define the "relevant purchaser" as the health plans and their motion for sanctions. Id. ¶ 76.

The appellate record consisted of 33 volumes of supporting materials culled from the 20 trial transcripts, 351 trial exhibits, and 1,500+ docket entries, including dozens of excluded documents, trial court transcripts and other materials. Class Counsel facilitated and coordinated efforts of several amici who filed amicus curiae briefs in support of the Class. Id. ¶ 77.

On August 24, 2023, the Ninth Circuit heard oral argument on the appeal. On June 4, 2024, the Ninth Circuit, in a 2-1 decision, reversed the jury verdict based on the revisions to the CACI jury instructions and preclusion of pre-2006 evidence. Sidibe v. Sutter Health, 103 F.4th 675 (9th Cir. 2024) (ECF No. 147-1). In a separate memorandum, the Ninth Circuit affirmed the Court's "relevant purchaser" instruction and its denial of Plaintiffs' motion for sanctions (ECF No. 148-1).

On July 18, 2024, Sutter filed a Petition for Rehearing and Rehearing En Banc in the Ninth Circuit (ECF No. 152). Class Counsel prepared an Answer to that Petition, but, ultimately, did not need to file it, as that Petition was denied on August 12, 2024 (ECF No. 153). The Ninth Circuit thereafter issued its mandate reversing and remanding on August 19, 2024 (ECF No. 154).

I. Re-Trial and Settlement (2024-2025)

Plaintiffs immediately sought to schedule a re-trial and began preparations for it. Kim Decl. ¶ 80. On November 6, 2024, the Court ordered a re-trial to commence on March 3, 2025 and the parties began preparing for the second trial. The parties made supplemental pretrial exchanges and met and conferred regarding the witnesses, exhibits, and testimony designations. They also subpoenaed and prepared witnesses for trial testimony. The parties appeared at several pre-trial hearings to argue new in limine motions and jury instructions and coordinate on logistics for trial. Id.

Class Counsel again spent many hours preparing direct and cross exams, preparing witnesses, creating demonstratives, making and opposing motions in limine and briefing verdict form and jury instruction issues. On February 27, 2025, after Class Counsel again reviewed scores of jury questionnaires, the parties conducted voir dire and selected a jury. They finalized trial logistics and prepared to give opening statements a few days later, on March 3, 2025. Id. ¶ 81.

Counsel facilitated and participated in settlement discussions throughout this litigation, including a formal mediation session and follow-up conversations from 2019 through 2021. Id. ¶ 82. In the lead up to the re-trial, the parties retained Gregory Lindstrom of Phillips ADR to mediate their dispute. They had numerous communications with Mr. Lindstrom and held an in-person mediation with him in January 2025. Counsel also participated in direct settlement communications. After the jury was selected, but the day before opening statements, the parties reached an agreement in principle to settle the matter for $228.5 million. The parties informed the Court of their agreement and filed a notice of settlement on March 2, 2025. Id.

Class Counsel and counsel for Sutter thereafter negotiated a settlement agreement over five weeks. These were arms-length negotiations involving multiple rounds of comments and back and forth regarding the terms of settlement. On April 24, 2025, the parties executed the settlement agreement. Class Counsel also prepared a plan of distribution in consultation with the claims administrator, JND. Id. ¶ 20. Plaintiffs submitted their motion for preliminary approval on April 25, 2025. The Court heard the motion and granted preliminary approval and a schedule through the final approval hearing on May 22, 2025. Id. ¶ 21.

J. Class Counsel's Lodestar and Expense Reports

Throughout this case, Class Counsel worked diligently and efficiently to prosecute this matter. Unlike many antitrust class actions of this magnitude, they had no need of a leadership committee because only a handful of law firms were involved. CC, SCL, Farmer Brownstein, Steyer Lowenthal, The Mehdi Firm and The Manning Law Firm are each small law firms with only a few attorneys working on the case. Together, they ran a lean and collegial legal team. Virtually all the senior lawyers litigated this case since almost the very beginning. Kim Decl. ¶ 36. That continuity eliminated the waste and duplication caused by having new attorneys cycling through and billing hours to get up to speed and learn the case. CC, as Lead counsel, conducted regular team calls to coordinate and organize the workflow. Id. ¶ 6.

The Lodestar report of each firm is based upon contemporaneously maintained time records and tracks the attorney hours during this long-running case.[2] CC attorneys had the largest lodestar given their leadership of the strategy, briefing, expert work, appeals, and trial presentation since they joined the case in 2013. Mr. Cantor, is a seasoned healthcare antitrust litigator, and conducted both appellate oral arguments, as well as oral argument on virtually all dispositive motions. He led strategy throughout the litigation and was lead trial counsel. Id. ¶ 10. Ms. Kim is an experienced antitrust litigator with over 20 years of experience; she led all aspects of the litigation and oversaw much of the trial preparation. Id. ¶ 11.

CC provided much of the associate, staff attorney, paralegal and secretarial support in the case. CC's IT staff set up and hosted the discovery, review and trial preparation platforms that were utilized by the plaintiff team. CC's experienced electronic discovery personnel managed the review of millions of documents and the preparation of deposition kits, exhibit lists and provided a full suite of litigation support. Id. ¶¶ 8, 20.

[2] Each Class Counsel firm provides summary hour and lodestar information in declarations submitted herewith. See Kim Decl. for CC; Cantor Decl. for SCL; Declaration of David Brownstein ("Brownstein Decl.") for Farmer Brownstein Jaeger Goldstein Klein & Siegel LLP; Declaration of Azra Mehdi ("Medhi Decl.") for the Mehdi Firm; and Manning Decl. for Ms. Manning's time at Pearson Warshaw and The Manning Law Firm. Scott & Scott LLP, Schneider Wallace Cotrell Kim LLP, and Keller Grover LLP each also submitted declarations in support of their lodestar and expense reports ("Scott Decl.," "JHK Decl." and "Grover Decl." respectively).

Importantly, over $27.5 million of the $28,132,680 of costs were borne by CC alone. Id. ¶ 22 & Ex. C. A large portion of those costs was for the significant economic expert work. Id. Reports of expert fees and expenses, broken out annually, track the work that Dr. Chipty, BRG, Matrix Economics, and Alix Partners did to support Dr. Chipty's opinions on 12 geographic markets, market power, market analysis, class certification, liability and damages and to respond to the opinions of Dr. Willig, Mr. Orszag and Dr. Gowrisankaran on these subjects. Id. Ex. D. Dr. Kizer and Mr. Axene also provided expert opinions and responsive expert materials and were compensated for their work. Discovery costs, including for depositions, transcripts and video, document database storage, and office services costs were borne predominantly by CC. All trial vendor and trial-related costs too were paid by CC. Id. ¶ 22-29 & Ex. C. Funding the costs of this massive litigation for 12.5 years was a huge and risky undertaking for a boutique firm like CC.

Mr. Cantor, after starting his own firm, SCL, in October 2024, continued to act as Lead Trial Counsel. See Cantor Decl. ¶ 8. The Mehdi Firm undertook the initial investigation and filed the original lawsuit, and Ms. Mehdi handled much of the defensive plaintiff discovery and participated in preparing plaintiffs for deposition and trial. See Mehdi Decl. ¶¶ 8-13. Farmer Brownstein participated in all aspects of the litigation and worked closely with the senior team on strategy, briefing, discovery and trial. Mr. Brownstein and Mr. Goldstein brought to the team their experience (predominantly on the defense side) in specialized areas of antitrust law, such as tying claims, as well as their wealth of complex litigation and class action experience. See Brownstein Decl. ¶¶ 2-12. Steyer Lowenthal brought its local expertise in class action and antitrust law and participated in discovery, briefing, legal research, strategy and trial. Mr. Steyer brought his trial expertise and Mr. Macrae was invaluable in supporting the briefing and many written submissions in the litigation. See Steyer Decl. ¶¶ 1-12. Ms. Manning handled Plaintiff defensive discovery, offensive discovery, and participated actively in trial preparation and trial for the first and second trials, including drafting trial documents, negotiating the admission of trial exhibits, and preparing Class Representatives to testify. See Manning Decl. ¶¶ 5, 17.

Daily time and expense records for the 12 years of litigation are not being submitted due to their size but are available for review upon the Court's request. Class Counsel's lodestars are based upon historical rates charged at each firm and are broken out on an annual basis to enable more granular review. As evident from these reports and confirmed by Richard Pearl, a well-regarded fee expert, Class counsels' rates were consistently in line with historical market rates for antitrust litigators of their experience and skill. See Declaration of Richard M. Pearl in Support of Class Counsel's Motion for Attorneys' Fees, submitted herewith.

Had Class Counsel calculated lodestars based upon current rates, the total lodestar would be $97,445,991. Kim Decl. ¶ 32 & Ex. E.

K. Class Representative Participation

Class representatives Djeneba Sidibe and Jerry Jankowski each participated in the litigation during its 12.5 years and diligently represented the interests of the Class. Class Representatives David Herman, Susan Hansen, Optimum Graphics, Inc., through Susan MacAusland, and Johnson Pool & Spa, through Tina Feeney, joined the case in September 2017, when the Fourth Amended Complaint was filed. Ms. Sidibe, Mr. Herman, and Ms. MacAusland testified in person at the first trial in 2022 and all class representatives, with the exception of Mr. Herman, due to health reasons, prepared to provide testimony at the second trial. In preparing for trial testimony, each plaintiff gave many hours of their time to refresh themselves regarding the facts surrounding their claims for relief.

Each Class Representative produced documents, responded to discovery requests and sat for deposition. And each, through Ms. Mehdi or Ms. Manning, kept abreast of major developments in the case. Each has provided a declaration submitted herewith that provides additional detail regarding their involvement and time devoted to maintaining this suit as plaintiffs and fulfilling their duties as class representatives.[3]

[3] The declarations of Djeneba Sidibe, David Herman, Susan Hansen, Susan MacAusland, Jerry Jankowski and Tina Feeney are submitted herewith.

III. ARGUMENT

A. Legal Standard

Counsel who represent a class and produce a benefit for the class members are entitled to be compensated for their services. As the Supreme Court has held, "this Court has recognized consistently that a litigant or a lawyer who recovers a common fund for the benefit of persons other than himself or his client is entitled to a reasonable attorney's fee from the fund as a whole." Boeing Co. v. Van Gemert, 444 U.S. 472, 478 (1980) ("Boeing"); see also Mills v. Elec. Auto-Lite Co., 396 U.S. 375, 393 (1970) ("Mills"). In Blum v. Stenson, 465 U.S. 886, 900 n.16 (1984), the U.S. Supreme Court recognized that, under the common fund doctrine, a reasonable fee may be based "on a percentage of the fund bestowed on the class." The purpose of this doctrine is that "those who benefit from the creation of the fund should share the wealth with the lawyers whose skill and effort helped create it." In re Wash. Pub. Power Supply Sys. Sec. Litig., 19 F.3d 1291, 1300 (9th Cir. 1994) ("WPPSS").

This doctrine applies equally and specifically to antitrust litigation. The Supreme Court repeatedly has recognized the importance of private antitrust litigation as a necessary and desirable tool to ensure the effective enforcement of the antitrust laws. See, e.g., Pillsbury Co. v. Conboy, 459 U.S. 248, 262-63 (1983); Reiter v. Sonotone Corp., 442 U.S. 330, 331 (1979); State of Haw. v. Standard Oil Corp., 405 U.S. 251, 266 (1972). Substantial fee awards in successful cases encourage meritorious class actions and thereby promote private enforcement of, and compliance with, antitrust laws. Perma Life Mufflers, Inc. v. Int'l Parts Corp., 392 U.S. 134, 139 (1968) ("[T]he purposes of the antitrust laws are best served by ensuring that the private action will be an ever-present threat to deter anyone contemplating business behavior in violation of the antitrust laws.").

Courts in the Ninth Circuit regularly award fees as a percentage-of-the-recovery in common fund cases. Six (6) Mexican Workers v. Ariz. Citrus Growers, 904 F.2d 1301, 1311 (9th Cir. 1990). "Many courts and commentators have recognized that the percentage of the available fund analysis is the preferred approach in class action fee requests because it more closely aligns the interests of the counsel and the class, i.e., class counsel directly benefit from increasing the size of the class fund and working in the most efficient manner." Khoja v. Orexigen Therapeutics, Inc., No. 15-cv-00540-JLS-AGS, 2021 WL 5632673, at *8 (S.D. Cal. Nov. 30, 2021); Aichele v. City of L.A., 2015 WL 5286028, at *5 (C.D. Cal. Sept. 9, 2015).

Under the percentage-of-the-fund approach, the district court awards a percentage of the fund created by the attorneys' efforts as their reasonable attorneys' fee. Stanger v. China Elec. Motor, Inc., 812 F.3d 734, 738 (9th Cir. 2016). The percentage-of-recovery for fee computation purposes is based on the total amount of that fund made available. Boeing, 444 U.S. at 479-80; Williams v. MGM-Pathe Commc'ns Co., 129 F.3d 1026, 1027 (9th Cir. 1997). Ninth Circuit cases often treat 25% as a benchmark percentage. See, e.g., In re Google Inc. Street View Elec. Commc'ns Litig., 21 F.4th 1102, 1120 (9th Cir. 2021).

However, "[a] one-third fee award is standard in complex antitrust cases[,]" such as this one. In re Flonase Antitrust Litig., 291 F.R.D. 93, 104 (E.D. Pa. 2013). Many courts, in this Circuit and others, provide for an upward departure due to the inherent complexity of the legal issues involved and the risk assumed by the attorneys involved in complex antitrust cases. See In re Capacitors Antitrust Litig., No. 3:17-md-02801-JD, 2023 WL 2396782 at *1 (N.D. Cal. Mar. 6, 2023) ($66,000,000 attorneys' fees award amounted to 40% of the Settlement Fund created by that round of settlements, and a cumulative 31% of the total settlements); In re Lidoderm Antitrust Litig., MDL No. 2521, 2018 WL 4620695, at 1, 4 (N.D. Cal. Sept. 20, 2018) (awarding fees of $34,916,000 and finding that "a fee award of one-third is within the range of awards in this Circuit."); Meijer, Inc. v. Abbott Lab'ys, No.: No C. 07-5985 CW, 2011 WL 13392313, at *2 (N.D. Cal. Aug. 11, 2011) (awarding 33 1/3% of $52,000,000 recovery); In re Pork Antitrust Litig., No. 18-1776 (JRT/JFD), 2022 WL 4238416, at *7 (D. Minn. Sept. 14, 2022) (awarding 33% of settlement fund as attorneys' fees in consumer indirect purchaser action); In re Keurig Green Mountain Single-Serve Coffee Antitrust Litig., 14-md-02542 (VSB), 2021 WL 2328431, at *1 (S.D.N.Y. June 7, 2021) (awarding 33 1/3% of a $31 million settlement fund as attorneys' fees in indirect purchaser action); In re Aggrenox Antitrust Litig., No. 3:14 MD 2516 (SRU), 2018 WL 10705542, at *5 (D. Conn. July 19, 2018) (awarding 33 1/3% of a $50 million settlement fund as attorneys' fees in indirect purchaser action); In re Polyurethane Foam Antitrust Litig., No. 1:10 MD 2196, 2015 WL 1639269, at *7 (N.D. Ohio Feb. 26, 2015) (awarding 30% fee on $147.8 million settlement fund); In re Linerboard Antitrust Litig., No. MDL 1261, Civ.A. 98–5055, 2004 WL 1221350 (E.D. Pa. June 2, 2004) (30% fee on $202.5 million settlement fund); In re Buspirone Antitrust Litig., 2003 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 26538 (S.D.N.Y. Apr. 11, 2003) (33.3% fee of a $220 million dollar fund); In re Vitamins Antitrust Litig., 2001 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 25067 (D.D.C. July 13, 2001) (34% fee on $365 million settlement fund).

Other class actions in this district awarding 33% or more include Koeppen v. Carvana, LLC, No. 21-cv-01951-TSH, 2024 WL 3925703, at *9-10 (N.D. Cal. Aug. 22, 2024) (awarding attorneys' fees of 35% of recovery); Suarez v. Bank of Am., Nat'l Ass'n, No. 18-cv-01202-LB, 2024 WL 150721, at *2 (N.D. Cal. Jan. 11, 2024) (awarding one third of settlement amount) Roe v. SFBSC Mgmt., LLC, No. 14-cv-03616-LB, 2022 WL 17330847, at *19 (N.D. Cal. Nov. 29, 2022); Nucci v. Rite Aid Corp., No. 19-CV-01434-LB, 2022 WL 1693711, at *8 (N.D. Cal. May 26, 2022) (awarding 33% of settlement amount); see also In re Pac. Enters. Sec. Litig., 47 F.3d 373, 379 (9th Cir. 1995) (affirming award of 33%) Morris v. Lifescan, Inc., 54 F. App'x 663, 664 (9th Cir. 2003) (same).

B. The Requested 33% Fee Award Is Reasonable Under the Percentage-of-Recovery Method

Class Counsel's request of 33% of the gross settlement is more than reasonable given the magnitude, duration, complexity and risks of this litigation, as well as the substantial settlement achieved. In common fund cases, "[s]election of the benchmark or any other rate must be supported by findings that take into account all of the circumstances of the case." Vizcaino v. Microsoft Corp., 290 F.3d 1043, 1048 (9th Cir. 2002). Relevant circumstances of the case include the results counsel achieved for the class, the risk of litigation, counsel's performance, the contingent nature of the representation and the financial burden of the litigation. Id. at 1050-51; see also Stanger, 812 F.3d at 740.

1. Class Counsel Obtained Outstanding Relief for the Class

The $228.5 million cash Settlement provides the Class Members with significant relief. It provides them with approximately 56% of their $411 million in single damages.[4] As the Court has observed, "the quality of relief to the class was extremely strong." Hr'g Tr. 5/22/2025 at 14:2-15:1. Particularly coming back from a jury verdict rendered against them in the first trial, and defeating multiple dispositive motions seeking to defeat Plaintiffs' claims, the amount and fact of the settlement is an outstanding result for the Class. Many class members, especially large employers like CalPERS, the University of California and the City and County of San Francisco stand to recover substantial damages. Others in the over three million member class will also recover from the Settlement Fund. None of these recoveries would have been possible without this litigation. The expense and magnitude of prosecuting the antitrust claims here would have made it highly improbable for any one Class Member to have obtained a similar recovery.

2. There Were Many Risks in This Case

As outlined above, Class Counsel endured and overcame substantial risk in pursuing this litigation Stanger, 812 F.3d at 740 (including risk of litigation as a factor in determining whether the requested attorneys' fees are reasonable); Koeppen, 2024 WL 3925703, at *12 ("the risk that further litigation might result in not recovering at all is a significant factor in the award of fees."); Suarez, 2024 WL 150721, at *3 (Class Counsel "obtained excellent benefits for the class despite a vigorous and skillful defense, and there were significant risks involved with the litigation.) In re Heritage Bond Litig., No. 02–ML–1475 DT, CV 01–5752 DT (RCX), 2005 WL 1594403, at *20

[4] This is a significantly higher percentage than other settlements the courts in this District readily approve. See, e.g., Rodriguez v. W. Publ'g Corp., 563 F.3d 948, 954, 956 (9th Cir. 2009) (settlement of approximately 30% of the estimated single damages); In re Lithium Ion Batteries Antitrust Litig., No. 4:13-md-02420-YGR (DMR), 2017 WL 1086331, at 4* (N.D. Cal. Mar. 20, 2017) ("settlement represents 11.2% of the single damages attributable to Sony sales"); In re Cathode Ray Tube (CRT) Antitrust Litig., No. 14-cv-2058 JST, 2017 WL 565003, at *4, *6 (N.D. Cal. Feb. 13, 2017) (settlement representing 24% of single damages); Roe, 2022 WL 17330847, at *12 ("twelve percent of the best-case scenario is within the range courts approve."); Reynolds v. Direct Flow Med., Inc., No. 17-cv-00204-KAW,2019 WL 4168959 *3 (N.D. Cal. Sept. 3, 2019) (settlement representing 13% of plaintiffs' estimated damages).

(C.D. Cal. June 10, 2005) ("the novelty, difficulty and complexity of the issues involved are significant factors in determining a fee award.").

Antitrust cases typically are risky and high-stakes and this one was no different. The issues of market definition, market power, liability and damages were not easy to prove. Plaintiffs' claims involved 12 geographic markets and the hotly contested issue of market power within each of those markets. The pervasiveness of Kaiser Permanente in Northern California posed a high degree of risk in proving Sutter's market power. Health care markets are inherently complex with its overlay of regulation and multi-tiered stages of distribution. The presence of managed care, added a layer in the chain of distribution that further complicated the analysis, as it is the health insurer who negotiates and pays providers for the care provisioned for its members. Nonetheless, Class Counsel defeated summary judgment motions and moved the case to trial.

Class Counsel also faced the risk of the class not being certified. A premium-payor indirect purchaser class against a provider had never, before this case, been certified. Class counsel had to work through two rounds of class certification motion practice. Dr. Chipty performed two tranches of analyses in support of certification. The briefing was exhaustive and the amount of data analyzed massive. Thousands of attorney hours were expended on developing the predicate for class certification, the Rule 23 briefing, and the expert work in support.

Class Counsel was able to achieve a retrial when the Ninth Circuit reversed the Final Judgment. Convincing an appellate court to order retrial of a four-week jury trial, particularly an antitrust class action that resulted in a defense verdict, was no easy task. This was critical in this case, as the Class would have achieved no recovery had the verdict stood. Finally, the importance of that appellate ruling is demonstrated by the fact that Sutter agreed to settle on the eve of the second trial.

3. The Skill Required and the Quality of the Work Justifies the Request

As noted above, this case involved factual investigation and research, complex and detailed analyses of antitrust law and economics, difficult and protracted discovery, a vast evidentiary record, two successful appeals, and a full jury trial, with a second one imminent at the time of settlement. The settlement was hard-fought and negotiated against formidable and skilled opposing counsel at Jones Day. Both David Kiernan and Jeffrey LeVee, lead counsel for Sutter, are excellent antitrust attorneys who have led numerous successful defenses over their years of practice. Their co-counsel at Bartko Pavia (formerly Bartko Bunzel), were also highly skilled.

Courts also consider "the quality of opposing counsel as a measure of the skill required to litigate the case successfully." In re Apple Inc. Device Performance Litig., No. 5:18-md-02827-EJD, 2023 WL 2090981, at *14 (N.D. Cal. Feb. 17, 2023); Heritage Bond, 2005 WL 1594403, at *20 (noting that quality of opposing counsel is important in evaluating the quality of plaintiff's counsel's work, and stating "[t]here is also no dispute that the plaintiffs in this litigation were opposed by highly skilled and respected counsel with well-deserved local and nationwide reputations for vigorous advocacy in the defense of their clients.") (internal quotations omitted).

Class Counsel are experienced antitrust and class action attorneys. Kim Decl. ¶¶ 5-22. The Court has witnessed the caliber of their written submissions, oral advocacy, and trial presentation. At the preliminary approval hearing, the Court commended both sides for their "extraordinary" representation. 5/22/25 Hr'g Tr. at 14:14-17. Such qualifications should also be taken into account when evaluating an appropriate fee award. See Fernandez v. CoreLogic Credco, LLC, No.: 20cv1262 JM (SBC), 2024 WL 3209391, at *16 (S,D,. Cal. June 24, 2024) (approving a fee award based in part on the experience of counsel); see also In re Vitamins Antitrust Litig., No. 99-197 (TFH), MDL 1285, 2001 WL 34312839, at *11 (D.D.C. July 16, 2001) ("The experience, skill and professionalism of counsel and the performance and quality of opposing counsel all weigh in favor of the requested fee.").

4. The Contingent Fee Nature of the Case and the Financial Burden Carried by Class Counsel

The contingent nature of Class Counsel's representation also supports their fee request. Class Counsel took on this case and the out-of-pocket costs to prosecute it, with the understanding that they would be compensated only if they succeeded. CC alone bore the vast majority of the over $28 million in expenses for many years and devoted enormous attorney and staff resources throughout. The much smaller firms—including the Mehdi firm (one attorney), Steyer Lowenthal (twelve attorneys), and Farmer Brownstein (five attorneys)—devoted a disproportionate percentage of their firm's billable hours to this case for years without any compensation.

Courts have recognized the need to reward Class Counsel who accept a case on a contingent fee basis because of the risk of non-payment. It is an established practice in the private legal market to reward attorneys for taking the risk of non-payment by paying them a premium over their normal hourly rates for winning contingency cases. See Richard Posner, Economic Analysis of Law § 21.9, at 534-35 (3d ed. 1986). Here, Counsel's requested fees have a negative multiplier, and provide only 93% of their fees. If calculated at current rates, Class Counsel's requested fees provide only 77% of their fees. See Kim Decl. ¶ 32 & Ex. E.

The Court should not overlook the real risks that Class Counsel incur by accepting contingent fee cases, such as this one. Large-scale antitrust actions are, by their very nature, expensive and time-consuming. Any law firm undertaking a case such as this must inevitably be prepared to make a tremendous investment of time, energy, and resources. Class Counsel made this investment with the very real possibility of an unsuccessful outcome and no fee available. Indeed, that was exactly the result after the jury verdict.

Class Counsel prosecuted this case for 12.5 years before achieving the settlement. The fact that substantial financial burden was carried for such a long period, with no premium requested, supports the reasonableness of the requested fee request. See Vizcaino, 290 F.3d at 1050 ("These burdens [years of litigation, significant financial expense, foregoing other work] are relevant circumstances."); Torrisi v. Tucson Elec. Power Co., 8 F.3d 1370, 1377 (9th Cir. 1993).

C. The Requested Fee Is Reasonable Under Lodestar Cross-Check

The Ninth Circuit has held that the lodestar method "provides a check on the reasonableness of the percentage award. Where such investment is minimal, as in the case of an early settlement, the lodestar calculation may convince a court that a lower percentage is reasonable. Similarly, the lodestar calculation can be helpful in suggesting a higher percentage when litigation has been protracted." Vizcaino, 290 F.3d at 1050. The 12.5 years of litigation here, along with the fact that the 33% recovery results in total fees that are almost $6 million less than Class Counsel's lodestar based upon historical rates (and $22 million less based on current), demonstrates that the requested fee percentage is appropriate. "Using counsel's current rates to calculate the fee award is an appropriate mechanism to compensate counsel for the delay in receiving payment for their services." Overbo v. Loews California Theatres, Inc., No. C 07-05368 MHP (LB), 2010 WL 11719051, at *5 (N.D. Cal. Aug. 17, 2010) (Beeler, J.).[5] Had Class Counsel calculated fees based upon current rates, as counsel in similarly protracted litigation have been awarded, the total lodestar would be significantly higher, and the shortfall even greater.

The lodestar method is a two-step process. The first step requires ascertaining the "lodestar" figure by multiplying the number of hours reasonably worked by the hourly rate of counsel. Stanger, 812 F.3d at 738. In the second step, a court adjusts the lodestar to account for, among other things, the risk of non-payment, the result achieved, the quality of representation, the complexity and magnitude of the litigation, and public policy considerations. In re Fine Paper Antitrust Litig., 751 F.2d 562, 583 (3d Cir. 1984). To account for the foregoing factors, the court then applies an appropriate multiplier to the lodestar number.

The lodestar for the services performed by Class Counsel in this case results in a negative lodestar multiplier. Class Counsel expended a total of 132,739 hours litigating this case for a total lodestar of $81,368,711. This lodestar is based on historical rates. Kim Decl. ¶ 21. Even so, the total lodestar is greater than the percentage fee award that Class Counsel requests.[6] The requested fee of 33% of $228,500,000 is $75,405,000 which is approximately 92.8% of the lodestar. Had [5] Courts in the Ninth Circuit have consistently awarded attorneys' fees based on current rates to account for the delay in payment. See, e.g., Downes v. Unum Life Ins. Co. of Am., No. 23-cv-01643-RS, 2024 WL 4876940, at *2 (N.D. Cal. Nov. 22, 2024) United States v. J-M Mfg. Co., Inc., No. EDCV 06-55-GW-PJWx, 2025 WL 1148344, at *10 (C.D. Cal. Mar. 13, 2025) ("With this case nearing its second decade, there can be no honest assertion that historical rates without any adjustment to present value represents full compensation today for the work [] Counsel has successfully performed.").

[6] In the UEBT action, class counsel was awarded attorneys' fees of $152,375,000 which represented a positive multiplier of about 1.63 on their lodestar calculated at current rates.

current rates been used, the fee would be a substantially lower percentage of their lodestar. A negative lodestar multiplier supports the reasonableness of the percentage fee request. Taylor v. Shutterfly, Inc., No. 5:18-CV-00266-BLF, 2021 WL 5810294, at *9 (N.D. Cal. Dec. 7, 2021) ("The fact that Plaintiff's counsel are seeking substantially less in fees than they reasonably incurred further demonstrates the reasonableness of the fee award.").[7]

Attorney's fees expert, Richard Pearl, has opined that the historical rates charged by Class Counsel were in line with the market and reasonable. Pearl Decl. ¶¶ 15-27. In short, the lodestar cross-check confirms that the 33% fee requested by Class Counsel is eminently reasonable.

D. The Expenses Are Reasonable and Should Be Reimbursed

Class Counsel also respectfully request that they be reimbursed for the litigation costs and expenses in the amount of $28,132,680. Kim Decl. Ex. E. Under the common fund doctrine, Class Counsel are entitled to all reasonable out-of-pocket expenses and costs in prosecution of the claims and in obtaining a settlement. See In re Apple Inc. Device Performance Litig., 50 F.4th 769, 786 (9th Cir. 2022). Over the many years of this litigation, Class Counsel incurred significant expenses, all of which would have been covered by a fee-for-service client in private litigation.

It is common and appropriate for Class Counsel to be reimbursed out of the common fund for all reasonable litigation expenses, including expenses for: experts and consultants, depositions and transcripts, travel, document production, legal research, printing and copying, and Class administration expenses, including the mailing of class notices. See H. Newberg, Attorney Fee Awards § 2.19 at 69 (1986); Mills, 396 U.S. at 391-92; see also In re Media Vision Tech. Sec. Litig., 913 F. Supp. 1362, 1366 (N.D. Cal. 1996) ("Reasonable costs and expenses incurred by an attorney who creates or preserves a common fund are reimbursed proportionately by those class members who benefit by the settlement."). Expenses are compensable in a common fund case if the expense is of the type typically billed by attorneys to paying clients in the marketplace. See Harris v. Marhoefer, 24 F.3d 16, 19 (9th Cir. 1994) (approving expenses normally charged to a fee-paying client); Carlin v. DairyAmerica, Inc., 380 F. Supp. 3d 998, 1023-24 (E.D. Cal. 2019).

[7] See also Schuchardt v. Law Office of Rory W. Clark, 314 F.R.D. 673, 690-91 (N.D. Cal. 2016) (holding fractional lodestar multiplier to be indication of reasonableness of fee request); Johnson v. Triple Leaf Tea Inc., No. 3:14-cv-01570-MMC, 2015 WL 8943150 at *6 (N.D. Cal. Nov. 16, 2015); Lusby v. GameStop Inc., No. C12–03783 HRL, 2015 WL 1501095 at *4 (N.D. Cal. Mar. 31, 2015); Covillo v. Specialtys Café, No. C–11–00594 DMR, 2014 WL 954516 at *7 (N.D. Cal. Mar. 6, 2014) ("Plaintiffs' requested fee award is approximately 65% of the lodestar, which means that the requested fee award results in a so-called negative multiplier, suggesting that the percentage of the fund is reasonable and fair."); Wehlage v. Evergreen at Arvin LLC, No. 4:10–cv–05839–CW, 2012 WL 4755371, at *1, (N.D. Cal. Oct. 4, 2012) (same); Lymburner v. U.S. Fin. Funding, Inc., No. C–08–00325 EDL, 2012 WL 398816 at *6 (N.D. Cal. Feb. 7, 2012) (same).

A large portion of the expenses incurred by CC went to economist expert fees in the amount of approximately $18.5 million. To put this figure into context, Sutter expended over $20 million on economist expert fees for Dr. Willig and Mr. Orzag and support from Compass Lexicon. Id. ¶ 25. There were three expert firms involved, Matrix Economics, BRG and Alix Partners. As described above, Dr. Chipty was supported by economists, healthcare data analysts and specialists across all three firms in producing her 11 expert reports, and providing many days of deposition and trial testimony. An annual accounting of economist expert expenses has been provided to allow for a careful review of the expert fees incurred. Id. Ex. D.

The other categories of expenses for which Class Counsel seek payment are also of the type routinely charged to paying clients. Details concerning the expenses incurred by each firm are listed in their accompanying declarations. Invoices and further detail regarding expenses are available for inspection upon the Court's request. Accordingly, it is respectfully requested that the out-of-pocket expenses of Class Counsel of $28,132,680 be reimbursed. Again, for context, plaintiffs in the State Actions, which were filed after this case in 2014 and 2018 and settled before trial in 2019, were awarded over $21 million in litigation expenses.

E. The Requested Service Awards are Reasonable and Should be Approved

Plaintiffs also request service awards of $20,000 for the Class Representatives who testified at trial and $15,000 for the Class Representatives who did not testify at trial. Class Representatives who did not testify at the first trial prepared to testify at the second. Given the extent of time and work that the Class Representatives have put into this case over the almost thirteen years it has been litigated, the requested awards are appropriate and well deserved.

It is well-established in the Ninth Circuit that named plaintiffs in a class action are eligible for reasonable service awards. Stanton v. Boeing Co., 327 F.3d 938, 976-77 (9th Cir. 2003). Harris v. Vector Mktg. Corp., No. C–08–5198 EMC, 2012 WL 381202, at *6 (N.D. Cal. Feb. 6, 2012). The requested awards are within the range of awards routinely granted in the Northern District. See, e.g., Bernstein v. Virgin Am, Inc., No. 15-cv-02277-JST, 2023 WL 7284158, at *3-4 (N.D. Cal. Nov. 3, 2023) (approving service awards of $25,000 and $12,000); Rabin v. PricewaterhouseCoopers LLP, No. 16-cv-02276-JST, 2021 WL 837626 *10 (N.D. Cal. Feb. 4, 2021) (approving a $20,000 service award); In re Wells Fargo & Co. S'holder Derivative Litig., 445 F. Supp. 3d 508, 534 (N.D. Cal. 2020), aff'd, 845 F. App'x 563 (9th Cir. 2021) (granting $25,000); Perez v. Rash Curtis & Assocs., No. 4:16-cv-03396-YGR, 2020 WL 1904533, at *23 (N.D. Cal. Apr. 17, 2020) (awarding $25,000); Vietnam Veterans of Am. v. Cent. Intel. Agency, No. 09-cv-00037-CW, 2018 WL 4827397, at *1 (N.D. Cal. Oct. 4, 2018) ($20,000 per representative); In re Nat'l Collegiate Athletic Ass'n Athletic Grant-in-Aid Cap Antitrust Litig., No. 4:14-md-2541 CW, 2017 WL 6040065, at *11 (N.D. Cal. Dec. 6, 2017), aff'd, 768 F. App'x 651 (9th Cir. 2019) (granting $20,000 per plaintiff).

IV. CONCLUSION

For the foregoing reasons, Class Counsel respectfully request that the Court grant their application for an award of attorneys' fees in the amount of $75,405,000, reimbursement of litigation expenses in the amount of $28,132,680, and the requested service awards for Class Representatives.

Dated: July 29, 2025

Respectfully submitted,

/s/ Jean Kim

CONSTANTINE CANNON LLP
JEAN KIM (pro hac vice)
6 East 43rd Street
New York, NY 10017
(212) 350-2700
(212) 350-2701 (fax)
jkim@constantinecannon.com

THE MEHDI FIRM, PC
AZRA Z. MEHDI (220406)
95 Third Street
2nd Floor #9122
San Francisco, CA 94103
(415) 293-0070
(415) 293-0070 (fax)
azram@themehdifirm.com

FARMER BROWNSTEIN JAEGER
GOLDSTEIN KLEIN & SIEGEL LLP
DAVID C. BROWNSTEIN (141929)
DAVID M. GOLDSTEIN (142334)
155 Montgomery Street, Suite 301
San Francisco, CA 94104
(415) 795-2050
(415) 520-5678 (fax)
dbrownstein@fbjgk.com
dgoldstein@fbjgk.com

THE MANNING LAW FIRM
JILL M. MANNING (178849)
50 California St., Ste. 1500
San Francisco, CA 94111
(415) 439-5393
jill@manning-lawfirm.com

SHINDER CANTOR LERNER LLP
MATTHEW L. CANTOR (pro hac vice)
ELLISON A. SNIDER (pro hac vice)
14 Penn Plaza, Ste. 1900
New York, NY 10122
(646) 960-8601
matthew@scl-llp.com
ellison@scl-llp.com

JAMES J. KOVACS (pro hac vice)
J. WYATT FORE (pro hac vice)
600 14th St NW, 5th Floor
Washington DC 20005
(646) 960-8601
james@scl-llp.com
wyatt@scl-llp.com

STEYER LOWENTHAL
BOODROOKAS
ALVAREZ & SMITH LLP
ALLAN STEYER (100318)
D. SCOTT MACRAE (104663)
235 Pine Street, Fifteenth Floor
San Francisco, CA 94104
(415) 421-3400
(415) 421-2234 (fax)
asteyer@steyerlaw.com
smacrae@steyerlaw.com

Counsel for Plaintiffs and the Class

TAB 1C

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT

NORTHERN DISTRICT OF CALIFORNIA

DJENEBA SIDIBE et al

Plaintiffs,

vs.

SUTTER HEALTH

Defendant.

Case No. 3:12-cv-4854-LB

DECLARATION OF RICHARD M. PEARL IN SUPPORT OF CLASS COUNSEL'S MOTION FOR ATTORNEY'S FEES, COSTS AND SERVICE AWARD

Date: November 6, 2025
Time: 9:30AM
Judge: Hon. Laurel Beeler

DECLARATION OF RICHARD M. PEARL

I, Richard M. Pearl, declare as follows:

1. I am a member in good standing of the California State Bar. I am in private practice as the principal of my own law firm, the Law Offices of Richard M. Pearl, in Berkeley, California. I specialize in issues relating to court-awarded attorney fees, including: the representation of parties in fee litigation and appeals; serving as an expert witness; and serving as a mediator and arbitrator in disputes concerning attorney fees and related issues. I have personal knowledge of the facts set forth herein, and if called as a witness, I could and would competently testify thereto. I make this declaration in support of Plaintiffs' Motion for Attorney's Fees in the instant action.

2. Specifically, I have been asked by Plaintiffs' Counsel – Constantine Cannon LLP, The Mehdi Firm, Shinder Cantor Lerner LLP, Steyer Lowenthal Boodrookas, Alvarez & Smith LLP, Farmer Brownstein Jaeger Goldstein Klein & Siegel LLP, and The Manning Law Firm -- "Plaintiffs' Counsel" or just "Counsel" -- to render my opinion as to the reasonableness of the hourly rates submitted in support of Counsel's lodestar cross-check in this case.

3. To form my opinion as to the reasonableness of the hourly rates that Plaintiffs' Counsel submit, I have reviewed and considered numerous documents that describe the history of this matter, counsel's qualifications and experience, their time records, the nature and quality of the work required by this case, the results achieved, and the requested attorney fees. I also have consulted with Plaintiffs' Counsel about this motion and the underlying facts of the case.

MY BACKGROUND AND EXPERIENCE

4. I am now in my 56th year of legal practice. I graduated in 1969 from Berkeley School of Law (then Boalt Hall), University of California, Berkeley. A true and correct copy of my Resume is attached as Exhibit A.

5. Since 1982, my legal work has focused on general civil litigation and appellate practice. More recently, my focus has been almost exclusively on cases and appeals involving court-awarded attorney fees. I have lectured and written extensively on both court-awarded and attorney-client fee disputes. I am the author of California Attorney Fee Awards (3d ed., Cal. Cont. Ed. Of Bar 2010) ("Cal. Fee Awards") and its cumulative annual Supplements and Updates between 2011 and April 2025. I also was the author of California Attorney Fee Awards (2d Ed., Cal. Cont. Ed. of Bar 1994), and its 1995 through 2008 annual Supplements. Several courts have referred to this treatise as "[t]he leading California attorney fee treatise." Calvo Fisher & Jacob LLP v. Lujan, 234 Cal.App.4th 608, 621 (2015); see also, e.g., Int'l Billing Servs., Inc. v. Emigh, 84 Cal.App.4th 1175, 1193 (2000) ("the leading treatise"); Stratton v. Beck, 30 Cal.App.5th 901, 911 (2018) ("a leading treatise"); Orozco v. WPV San Jose, LLC, 36 Cal.App.5th 375, 409 (2019) ("a leading treatise on California attorney's fees"). My treatise also has been cited by the California Supreme Court and the California Court of Appeal on numerous occasions. See, e.g., Graham v. DaimlerChrylser Corp., 34 Cal.4th 553, 576, 584 (2004); Lolley v. Campbell, 28 Cal.4th 367, 373 (2002); In re Conservatorship of Whitley, 50 Cal.4th 1206, 1214–15, 1217 (2010); Sonoma Land Trust v. Thompson, 63 Cal.App.5th 978, 986 (2021); Yost v. Forestiere, 51 Cal.App.5th 509, 530 n.8 (2020); Highland Springs Conference & Training Ctr. v. City of Banning, 42 Cal.App.5th 416, 428 n.11 (2019); Sweetwater Union High Sch. Dist. v. Julian Union Elementary Sch. Dist., 36 Cal.App.5th 970, 988 (2019); Hardie v. Nationstar Mortg. LLC, 32 Cal.App.5th 714, 720 (2019); Syers Props III, Inc. v. Rankin, 226 Cal.App.4th 691, 698, 700 (2014). California Superior Courts also cite my treatise with approval. See, e.g., Davis v. St. Jude Hosp., No. 30201200602596CUOECX, 2018 WL 7286170, at *4 (Orange Cnty. Super. Ct. Aug. 31, 2018); Hartshorne v. Metlife, Inc., No. BC576608, 2017 WL 1836635, at *10 (Los Angeles Super. Ct. May 02, 2017). Federal courts also have cited my treatise with approval. See, e.g., In re Hurtado, No. 09-16160-A-13, 2015 WL 6941127, at *4 n.1 (E.D. Cal. Nov. 6, 2015); TruGreen Companies LLC v. Mower Brothers, Inc., 953 F. Supp. 2d 1223, 1236 nn.50, 51 (D. Utah 2013). I also authored the 1984 through 1993 annual Supplements to the predecessor treatise, CEB's California Attorney's Fees Award Practice. In addition, I authored a federal manual on attorney fees entitled, "Attorneys' Fees: A Legal Services Practice Manual," published by the Legal Services Corporation. I also co-authored the chapter on "Attorney Fees" in Volume 2 of CEB's Wrongful Employment Termination Practice, 2d Ed. (1997).

6. More than 98% of my current practice is devoted to issues involving court-awarded attorney fees. I have appeared as an attorney of record in connection with over 200 attorney fee applications in state and federal courts, both trial and appellate. I have served as a consultant and expert witness in hundreds more. I also have been a member of the California State Bar's Attorneys' Fees Task Force and have testified before the State Bar Board of Governors and the California Legislature on attorney fee issues.

7. I have briefed and argued more than 40 appeals, at least 30 of which have involved attorney fees issues.

8. I have won five cases in the California Supreme Court involving court-awarded attorney fees: (1) Maria P. v. Riles, 43 Cal.3d 1281 (1987), which upheld a C.C.P. section 1021.5 fee award based on a preliminary injunction obtained against the State Superintendent of Education, despite the fact that the case ultimately was dismissed under C.C.P. section 583; (2) Delaney v. Baker, 20 Cal.4th 23 (1999), which held that heightened remedies, including attorney fees, are available in suits against nursing homes under California's Elder Abuse Act; (3) Ketchum v. Moses, 24 Cal.4th 1122 (2001), which reaffirmed that contingent risk multipliers are an essential consideration under California attorney fee law; (4) Flannery v. Prentice, 26 Cal.4th 572 (2001), which held that under California law, in the absence of an agreement to the contrary, statutory attorney fees belong to the attorney whose services they are based upon; and (5) Graham v. DaimlerChrylser Corp., 34 Cal.4th 553 (2004), which held, inter alia, that the "catalyst" theory of fee recovery remained viable under California law and that lodestar multipliers could be applied to fee motion work. I also represented and argued on behalf of amicus curiae in Conservatorship of McQueen, 59 Cal. 4th 602 (2014), which held that attorney fees incurred for appellate work were not "enforcement fees" subject to California's Enforcement of Judgments law. Along with Richard Rothschild of the Western Center on Law and Poverty, I also prepared and filed an amicus curiae brief in Vasquez v. State of California, 45 Ca1. 4th 243 (2009). An expanded list of some of the reported decisions in cases I have handled is set out in Exhibit A at pages 4–8.

MY EXPERT WITNESS EXPERIENCE

9. I am frequently called upon to opine as an expert witness on attorney fee issues, most often regarding the reasonableness of the attorneys' fees requested from a court or arbitrator. I estimate that I have prepared opinions and/or live testimony on attorney fee matters in over two hundred cases.

10. Numerous federal and state courts have relied expressly on my testimony on attorney fee issues. For example:

a. In Wit v. United Behavioral Health, 578 F.Supp.3d 1060, 1079 (N.D. Cal. Jan. 5, 2022), vacated and remanded on the merits, 2023 U.S. App. LEXIS 33343 (9th Cir. 2023), the Court's Fee Order stated that "the Court place[d] significant weight on Pearl's opinion that the rates charged by all of the timekeepers listed above are reasonable and 'in line with the standard hourly noncontingent rates charged by Bay Area law firms that regularly engage in civil litigation of comparable complexity.' . . . Pearl has extensive experience in the area of attorney billing rates in this district and has been widely relied upon by both federal and state courts in Northern California (including the undersigned) in determining reasonable billing rates."

b. In Human Rights Defense Center v. County of Napa, No. 20-cv-01296, 2021 WL 1176640, at *11 (N.D. Cal. Mar. 28, 2021), the Court expressly stated that it had "place[d] significant weight on the opinion of Mr. Pearl that the rates charged by all of the timekeepers listed above are reasonable and in line with the rates charged by law firms that engage in federal civil litigation in the San Francisco Bay Area. Mr. Pearl has extensive experience in the area of attorney billing rates in this district and has been widely relied upon by both federal and state courts in Northern California [] in determining reasonable billing rates."

c. Subsequently, in Andrews v. Equinox Holdings, Inc., No. 20-cv-00485 (N.D. Cal. Nov. 9, 2021), Dkt. 110 (Order on Motion for Attorney Fees and Costs) at 4, the court quoted the above language from the Human Rights Defense Center case and concluded the same: "This Court similarly finds Pearl's opinions well supported and persuasive."

d. California state courts also have recognized my expertise. For example, in Sonoma Land Trust, 63 Cal.App.5th at 986, the Court of Appeal expressly held that my expert declaration provided evidentiary support for the trial court's fee determination.

e. My declaration also was cited favorably by the Second District of the California Court of Appeal in Wood v. Los Angeles County Waterworks Dist. No. 40 (Antelope Valley Groundwater Cases), 2021 Cal.App. Unpub. LEXIS 5506 (2nd Dist. Div. 2021).

11. In addition to the Wit, HRDC, and Andrews awards, the following reported federal decisions also have referenced my testimony favorably:

- Prison Legal News v. Ryan, No. 19-17449 (9th Cir. Mar. 21, 2023), Order filed March 21, 2023, at 4;
- Antoninetti v. Chipotle Mexican Grill, Inc., No. 08-55867 (9th Cir. 2012), Order filed Dec. 26, 2012, at 6;
- Prison Legal News v. Schwarzenegger, 608 F.3d 446, 455 (9th Cir. 2010) (the expert declaration referred to is mine);

- Roe v. SFBSC Mgmt., LLC, 2022 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 215122 (N. D. Cal. Nov. 29, 2022);
- Independent Living Center of S. Cal. v. Kent, 2020 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 13019, at *11-12 (C.D. Cal. Jan. 24, 2020);
- Ridgeway v. Wal-Mart Stores, Inc., 269 F. Supp. 3d 975 (N.D. Cal. 2017), aff'd, 269 F.3d 1066 (9th Cir. 2020);
- Beaver v. Tarsadia Hotels, 2017 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 160214, at *40 (S.D. Cal. Sep. 28, 2017);
- Notter v. City of Pleasant Hill, 2017 WL 5972698, at *3 (N.D. Cal. Nov. 30, 2017);
- Villalpondo v. Exel Direct, Inc., 2016 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 182521, at *3(N.D. Cal. Dec. 12, 2016);
- State Compensation Insurance Fund v. Khan et al., No. 12-cv-01072 (C.D. Cal. July 6, 2016),Dkt. 408 (Order Granting in Part and Denying in Part the Zaks Defendants' Motion for Attorneys' Fees);
- In re Cathode Ray Tube Antitrust Litig., 2016 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 24951 (N.D. Cal. Jan. 28, 2016) (Report And Recommendation Of Special Master Re Motions (1) To Approve Indirect Purchaser Plaintiffs' Settlements With the Phillips, Panasonic, Hitachi, Toshiba, Samsung SDI, Technicolor, And Technologies Displays Americas Defendants, and (2) For Award Of Attorneys' Fees, Reimbursement Of Litigation Expenses, And Incentive Awards To Plaintiffs' Representative), adopted in relevant part, 2016 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 88665;
- Gutierrez v. Wells Fargo Bank, 2015 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 67298, at *14 (N.D. Cal. May 21, 2015);
- Holman v. Experian Information Solutions, Inc., 2014 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 173698, at *13 (N.D. Cal. Dec. 12, 2014);

- In re TFT-LCD (Flat Panel) Antitrust Litig., 2013 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 49885 (N.D. Cal. Nov. 9, 2012) (Report and Recommendation of Special Master Re Motions for Attorneys' Fees And Other Amounts By Indirect-Purchaser Plaintiffs' Plaintiffs And State Attorneys General);
- Walsh v. Kindred Healthcare, 2013 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 176319 (N.D. Cal. 2013);
- A.D. v. California Highway Patrol, 2009 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 110743, at *4 (N.D. Cal. 2009), rev'd on other grounds, 712 F.3d 446 (9th Cir. 2013), reaffirmed and additional fees awarded on remand, 2013 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 169275 (N.D. Cal. 2013);
- Hajro v. United States Citizenship & Immigration Service, 900 F.Supp.2d 1034, 1054 (N.D. Cal. 2012);
- Rosenfeld v. United States Dep't of Justice, 904 F. Supp. 2d 988, 1002 (N.D. Cal. 2012);
- Stonebrae, L.P. v. Toll Bros., Inc., 2011 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 39832, at *9 (N.D. Cal. 2011) (thorough discussion), aff'd, 2013 U.S. App. LEXIS 6369 (9th Cir. 2013);
- Armstrong v. Brown, 2011 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 87428 (N.D. Cal. 2011);
- Lira v. Cate, 2010 WL 727979, at *3 (N.D. Cal. Feb. 26, 2010);
- Californians for Disability Rights, Inc. v. California Dep't of Transp., 2010 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 141030 (N.D. Cal. 2010);
- Nat'l Federation of the Blind v. Target Corp., 2009 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 67139 (N.D. Cal. 2009);
- Prison Legal News v. Schwarzenegger, 561 F.Supp.2d 1095, 1106 (N.D. Cal. 2008) (an earlier motion);
- Bancroft v. Trizechahn Corp., No. 02-cv-02373 (C.D. Cal. Aug. 14, 2006), Dkt. 278 (Order Granting Plaintiffs Reasonable Attorneys' Fees and Costs In the Amount of $168,886.76);

- Willoughby v. DT Credit Corp., No. 05-cv-05907 (C.D. Cal. July 17, 2006), Dkt. 65 (Order Awarding Attorneys' Fees After Remand);
- Oberfelder v. City of Petaluma, 2002 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 8635 (N.D. Cal. 2002), aff'd, 2003 U.S. App. LEXIS 11371 (9th Cir. 2003).

12. In addition to the Sonoma Land Trust and Antelope Valley Groundwater cases, the following California appellate and reported trial court cases also have referenced my testimony favorably:

- Gajanan v. City & County of San Francisco, No. A168328, 2025 WL 1076796, at *3, *17 (Cal. Ct. App. Apr. 10, 2025);
- Kerkeles v. City of San Jose, 243 Cal.App.4th 88, 96 (2015);
- Laffitte v. Robert Half Int'l Inc., 231 Cal.App.4th 860 (2014), aff'd, 1 Cal.5th 480 (2016);
- Habitat and Watershed Caretakers v. City of Santa Cruz, 2015 Cal. App. Unpub. LEXIS 7156 (2015);
- In re Tobacco Cases I, 216 Cal.App.4th 570 (2013);
- Heritage Pacific Financial, LLC v. Monroy, 215 Cal.App.4th 972 (2013);
- Wilkinson v. South City Ford, 2010 Cal. App. Unpub. LEXIS 8680 (2010);
- Children's Hospital & Medical Center v. Bonta, 97 Cal.App.4th 740 (2002);
- Church of Scientology v. Wollersheim, 42 Cal.App.4th 628 (1996).
- Kaku v. City of Santa Clara, No. 17CV319862, 2019 WL 331053, at *3 (Santa Clara Cnty. Super. Ct. Jan. 22, 2019), aff'd, 59 Cal. App. 5th 385, 431 (2020);
- Davis v. St. Jude Hosp., No. 30201200602596CUOECX, 2018 WL 7286170, at *4 (Orange Cnty. Super. Ct. Aug. 31, 2018);
- Hartshorne v. Metlife, Inc., No. BC576608, 2017 WL 1836635, at *10 (Los Angeles Super. Ct. May 2, 2017).

PLAINTIFFS' COUNSEL'S HOURLY RATES ARE REASONABLE

13. Plaintiffs' attorney's fee request and my opinion on the hourly rates requested are based on the lodestar-adjustment method provided for under federal law. Under that law, the hourly rates Plaintiffs' Counsel request are reasonable if they are "in line with" the non-contingent market rates charged by San Francisco Bay Area attorneys of reasonably comparable experience, skill, and expertise for reasonably comparable services. See Blum v. Stenson, 465 U.S. 886, 895 n. 11 (1984); Davis v. City and Cnty. of San Francisco, 976 F.2d 1536, 1545-46 (9th Cir. 1992).

14. The backgrounds, specific hourly rates, and time spent for each biller are set out in Counsel's declarations. See Declaration of Jean Kim in Support of Class Counsel's Motion for Attorneys' Fees, Costs and Service Awards ("Kim Decl."); Declaration of Allan Steyer in Support of Plaintiffs' Motion for Attorneys' Fees and Reimbursement of Costs/Expenses ("Steyer Decl."); Declaration of David C. Brownstein in Support of Plaintiffs' Motion for Attorney's Fees and Reimbursement of Costs and Expenses ("Brownstein Decl."); Declaration of Matthew L. Cantor in Support of Plaintiffs' Motion for Attorneys' Fees and Reimbursement of Costs/Expenses ("Cantor Decl."); Declaration of Azra Z. Mehdi in Support of Class Counsel's Motion for Attorneys' Fees, Costs and Service Awards ("Mehdi Decl."); Declaration of Jill Manning in Support of Class Counsel's Motion for Attorneys' Fees, Reimbursement of Expenses and Service Awards ("Manning Decl."); Declaration of Eric Grover ("Grover Decl."); Declaration of Daryl Scott ("Scott Decl.").; Declaration of Jason Kim ("JHK Decl.") As indicated in those declarations, for purposes of Counsel's lodestar cross-check, Plaintiffs' total adjusted lodestar based upon historical rates is $81,368,771.

15. In my opinion, the hourly rates submitted by Plaintiffs' Counsel as part of their lodestar cross-check are well in line with the hourly rates charged and awarded in the Bay Area for comparably complex, vigorously contested, and highly successful litigation. The following chart summarizes the rates Plaintiffs' Counsel submit to support their lodestar cross check:

Firm	Role	Year	Range of Hourly Rates
CONSTANTINE CANNON LLP	Partners	2013	$425-$1,150
		2014	$425-$865
		2015	$445-$805
		2016	$465-$855
		2017	$655-$875
		2018	$685-$905
		2019	$725-$1,300
		2020	$760 - $1,300
		2021	$830 - $1,350
		2022	$650 - $1,,400
		2023	$725 - $1,450
		2024	$675 - $1,500
		2025	$1,350 - $1,550
	Associates/Staff Attorneys	2013	$325
		2014	$325
		2015	$305
		2016	$285-$315
		2017	$295-$340
		2018	$305-$375
		2019	$325-$405
		2020	$335-440
		2021	$350-$550
		2022	$420-$565
		2023	$450-$625

Firm	Role	Year	Range of Hourly Rates
		2024	$480-$500
		2025	$500-$550
	Other Professionals	2014	$235
		2015	$225-$230
		2016	$175-$350
		2017	$175-$375
		2018	$250-$295
		2019	$295-$410
		2020	$300-$450
		2021	$310-465
		2022	$345-$515
		2023	$370-$400
		2024	$400-590
		2025	$425-$625
STEYER LOWENTHAL BOODROOKAS ALVAREZ & SMITH LLP	Partners	2013	$780-$840
		2014	$790-$860
		2015	$810-$880
		2016	$750-$895
		2017	$800-$980
		2018	$820-$980
		2019	$880-$995
		2020	$910-$1,060
		2021	$960-$1,100
		2022	$1,000-$1,180
		2023	$1,350
		2024	$1,350
		2025	$1,350

Firm	Role	Year	Range of Hourly Rates
	Associates	2016	$240-$300
		2017	$300-$340
		2018	$360
		2019	$390
		2020	$440
		2021	$480
		2022	$540
		2023	$720
	Other Professionals	2016	$195
		2017	$195-$260
		2018	$195-$260
		2019	$220-$260
		2020	$295
		2021	$240-$295
		2022	$295
		2024	$295
		2025	$295
FARMER BROWNSTEIN JAEGER GOLDSTEIN KLEIN & SIEGEL LLP	Partners	2013	$800
		2014	$800
		2015	$850
		2016	$850
		2017	$900
		2018	$900
		2019	$950
		2020	$950
		2021	$1,000
		2022	$1,050

Firm	Role	Year	Range of Hourly Rates
		2023	$1,150
		2024	$1,200
		2025	$1,250
	Other Professionals	2017	$300
		2018	$150-$210
		2019	$150-$210
		2020	$150
		2021	$150-$300
		2022	$250
		2023	$250
		2024	$250
		2025	$250
THE MEHDI FIRM	Partners	2012	$725
		2013	$725
		2014	$775
		2015	$775
		2016	$775
		2017	$775
		2018	$825
		2019	$825
		2020	$825
		2021	$825
		2022	$825
		2023	$900
		2024	$975
		2025	$1,075

	Other Professionals	2012	$285
		2013	$285
		2014	$315
		2018	$350
SHINDER CANTOR LERNER LLP	Partners	2024	$675-$1,400
		2025	$675-$1,400
	Associates	2024	$475-$575
		2025	$475-$575
	Other Professionals	2024	$425
		2025	$425
PEARSON WARSHAW LLP	Partner	2022	$1,000
		2023	$1,000
		2024	$1,000
THE MANNING LAW FIRM	Founder	2024	$1,200
		2025	$1,200

In addition, Daryl Scott's, Eric Grover's, and Jason H. Kim's law firms were retained solely for document review work at the beginning of discovery. Their rates were capped at $350 per hour and totaled approximately $5 million.

16. Through my writing and practice, I have become familiar with the non-contingent market rates charged by attorneys in the San Francisco Bay Area and elsewhere. I have developed this familiarity by: (a) handling attorney fee litigation; (b) discussing fees with other attorneys; (c) obtaining declarations regarding prevailing market rates in cases in which I represent attorneys seeking fees; and (d) reviewing attorney fees applications and awards in other cases, as well as articles on attorney fees in the legal newspapers and treatises. I also have testified before trial courts and arbitrators on numerous occasions and have submitted expert testimony by declaration on hundreds of occasions. Each of these efforts required me to be aware of the hourly rates being charged in the relevant community, especially in the San Francisco Bay Area where I have practiced since 1974.

17. Based on that experience and expertise, and having reviewed Counsel's qualifications, backgrounds, experience, work product, invoices, and the results Counsel have achieved, in my expert opinion, Plaintiffs' Counsel's hourly rates are well in line with the hourly rates charged by and awarded to comparably qualified San Francisco Bay Area attorneys for comparable work and results. Given my extensive background and experience with Bay Area rates, my opinion that Counsel's rates are reasonable is based on four factors:

(1) The exceptional qualifications, experience, and reputations of Plaintiffs' law firms, all of which are top-of-the-line law firms;

(2) The expertise and skill Counsel employed to develop and win this high stakes, complex, hard-fought antitrust case and recover $228.5 million for the Plaintiff class;

(3) The hourly rates found reasonable in other cases for comparably qualified Bay Area attorneys providing similar services; and

(4) The rates stated and charged by numerous other San Francisco Bay Area law firms, as confirmed, inter alia, by the legal media and by well-respected surveys of local hourly rates.

Factor One: Counsel's Top of the Line Qualifications.

19. In addition to my own experience and expertise, my opinion is based on the fact that each of Plaintiffs' six principal law firms – Constantine Cannon LLP, Shinder Cantor Lerner LLP, Steyer Lowenthal Boodrookas, Alvarez & Smith LLP, Farmer Brownstein Jaeger Goldstein Klein & Siegel LLP, The Mehdi Firm, and The Manning Law Firm -- are highly-respected law firms with well-recognized top-of-the-line qualifications, expertise, and reputations for complex antitrust litigation. Hiring such top-rate law firms was perfectly appropriate because the stakes involved here were enormous: Sutter Health's practices allegedly caused the Plaintiffs to pay millions of dollars more for health care than the market reasonably would have required. Given these stakes, it was both reasonable and appropriate for Plaintiffs to retain such top-of-the-line firms who also were willing to litigate this case on a contingent fee basis.

Factor Two: The Skill and Expertise Shown in Litigating this Case and the Excellent Result Achieved.

18. My opinion also is based on my perception of Counsel's performance in this complex, hotly-contested litigation and the excellent results they achieved. Antitrust cases are inherently among the most complex and difficult types of litigation. This case was no different: to prevail in this action, Plaintiffs' Counsel were opposed by savvy and well-resourced opposing counsel who vigorously defended Sutter Health's position, requiring Counsel to try the case over a 19-day period, appeal the adverse decision to the Ninth Circuit and obtain a reversal, then to prepare for a second trial only to settle after a second trial was imminent.

Factor Three: The Rates Found Reasonable by the Courts

19. Counsel's rates here are in line with rates found reasonable by this and other Bay Area courts for comparable attorneys handling complex cases. Those findings are entitled to significant weight. See United Steelworkers of America v. Phelps Dodge Corp., 896 F.2d 403, 407 (9th Cir., 1990). . The judicial rate determinations I rely on include the following:

2024 Rates

- In Sutter' Place, Inc. dba Bay 101 v. S.J. Bayshore Development, Inc., Santa Clara Superior Ct. No. 22CV397119, Order After Hearing on Plaintiff/Cross-Defendants' Motion for Attorney Fees, filed Dec. 23, 2024, a business contract dispute in which the fee award was based on a contractual fee clause, the following hourly rates were determined to be reasonable:

Firm	Role	Law School Grad. Year	Rate
Coblentz, Patch Duffy & Bass LLP	Overall lead attorney and lead for trial	1979	$1225 (2022); $1310 (2023); and $1450 (2024)

Firm	Role	Law School Grad. Year	Rate
	Partner and second chair	1994	$990 (2022); $1090 (2023); and $1200 (2024)
	Partner	2011	$775 (2023); $870 (2024)
		2013	$680 (2022); $775 (2023); and $870 (2024)
	Associate and Partner	2015	$565 (2022); $650 (2023); and $770 (2024)
	Associate	2017	$535 (2022); $600 (2023); and $680 (2024)
	Senior associate	2018	$550 (2023); and $640 (2024)
		2018	$465 (2022); $525 (2023); and $630 (2024)
	Associate	2020	$600 (2024)
	Senior Paralegal	N/A	$340 (2022); $400 (2023); and $450 (2024)
		N/A	$320 (2022); $400 (2023); and $450 (2024)
		N/A	$285 (2023); and $400 (2024)
	Trial technician	N/A	$270 (2023); and $300 (2024)

2023 Rates

- In United States of America v. Academy Mortgage Corp., N.D. Cal. No. 16-cv-02120-EMC, Order Granting in Part Relator Gwen Thrower's Motion re Accrual of Interest and for Supplemental Attorneys' Fees (Doc. No 519), filed September 13, 2024, a qui tam action, the court found the following 2023 hourly rates reasonable for counsel's fee motion work:

Firm	Role	Law School Grad. Year	Rate
Rosen Bien Galvan & Grunfeld LLP	Attorney	1962	$1,475
		2008	$875
		2005	$925
		2018	$525
		2008	$825
	Paralegal	N/A	$435
		N/A	$405
		N/A	$435

- In Prison Legal News v. Ryan, United States Court of Appeal for the Ninth Circuit, Order filed March 21, 2023, the Appellate Commissioner found the following hourly rates reasonable for the Plaintiff-Appellee's appellate work:

Firm	Title	Law School Grad. Year	Rate
Rosen Bien Galvan & Grunfeld LLP	Partner	1962	$1,350
		2006	$850
	Associate	2016	$575
	Paralegal	N/A	$400

2022 Rates

- In Richmond Compassionate Care Collective v. Richmond Patient's Group et al., Contra Costa Superior Ct. No. MSC16-01426, Order Granting Plaintiff RCCC's Motion for Attorneys' Fees etc., filed November 1, 2022, an antitrust case, as part of its lodestar cross-check, the court found that the following hourly rates billed by the prevailing Plaintiff's attorneys were reasonable:

Firm	Title	Years of Experience	Rate
Alioto Law Firm	Joseph M. Alioto	53	$1,500
Foreman & Brasso	Ronald D. Foreman	48	$1,050

2021 Rates

- In Yo LLC v. Krucker, Santa Clara Superior Ct. No. 17CV306261, Fee Order filed February 9, 2022, a contractual fee case involving a disputed lease, the court found the following hourly rates billed by the prevailing Defendant's attorneys reasonable:

Firm	Title	Law School Grad. Year	Rate
Cooley LLP	Partner	1994	$1,275
	Special Counsel	1994	$1,090
	Associate (2020 rate)	2009	$1,010

- In Kang v. Wells Fargo Bank NA, 2021 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 235254, at *53 (N.D. Cal. Dec. 8, 2021), a consumer class action, the court found that plaintiffs' appellate attorneys' rates of $640-$1,150 and trial counsel's rates of $325-$950 were "in line with other fee awards in this district for similarly experienced attorneys".

- In Andrews v. Equinox Holdings, Inc., No. 20-cv-00485 (N.D. Cal. Nov. 9, 2021), Dkt. 110 (Order on Motion for Attorney Fees and Costs), an individual age discrimination case that settled by acceptance of the defendant's Fed. R. Civ. P. Rule 68 offer, the court found the following 2021 rates reasonable (before applying a 1.3 lodestar multiplier):

Firm	Title	Law School Grad. Year	Rate
Rosen Bien Galvan & Grunfeld LLP	Partner	1962	$1,250
		1997	$875
	Senior Counsel	2010	$600
	Associate	2018	$350
	Summer Associates	N/A	$300
	Paralegals	N/A	$240-$275

2020 Rates

- In Planned Parenthood Fed'n of Am., Inc. v. Ctr. for Med. Progress, No. 16-CV-00236-WHO, 2020 WL 7626410, at *3 & n.4 (N.D. Cal. Dec. 22, 2020), a RICO action challenging the Defendants' invasive tactics, the court found that Plaintiffs' counsel's 2020 hourly rates were "reasonable given the scope and complexity of this case, as well as in light of rates approved in this District for partners, associates, and paralegals for similarly experienced counsel and staff at similar firms."

Firm	Title	Bar Admission Date	Rate
Arnold & Porter Kaye Scholer LLP	Partner	1974	$1,280
		1993	$1,150
		1990	$1,085
		2005	$1,015
		2002	$925
	Senior Associate	2005	$910
		2012	$910
		2015	$815
	Associate	2018	$675
	Staff Attorney	2008	$545
	Paralegal	N/A	$405
		N/A	$390
Planned Parenthood	General Counsel	1982	$1,115
	Sr. Staff Attorney	2012	$910

- In Schneider v. Chipotle Mexican Grill, 336 F.R.D. 588, 601 (N.D. Cal. 2020), a consumer class action, the court found that counsel for the putative class's 2020 hourly rates listed below were "on the high end, although in line with prevailing rates in this district for personnel of comparable experience, skill, and reputation."

Firm	Title	Bar Admission Date	Rate
Kobre & Kim LLP	Partner	1993	$1,275
		1987	$1,275
		1997	$995
	Associate	2011	$695
	Analyst	N/A	$495
	Legal Assistant	N/A	$195
		N/A	$195

2019 Rates

- In In re National Collegiate Athletic Assn. Athletic Grant-In-Aid Antitrust Litigation, an antitrust class action, the court found the following 2019 "hourly rates are reasonable." See Order Granting in Part and Denying in Part Plaintiffs' Motion for Attorneys' Fees, Expenses, Service Awards, and Taxed Costs, Doc. 1259, at 4, No. 14-md-02541 (N.D. Cal. Dec. 6, 2019):

Firm	Title	Bar Admission	Rate
Winston & Strawn LLP	Partner	1978	$1,515
	Partner	1985	$1,245
	Partner	2002	$1,105
	Partner	1996	$1,025
	Associate	2012	$825
	Associate	2016	$660
	Associate	2017	$615

2017 Rates

- In an earlier decision in the In re National Collegiate Athletic Assn. Athletic Grant-In-Aid Antitrust Litigation , the court also found the following 2017 hourly rates were "in line with market rates in this District." See id. at Doc. 745 (N.D. Cal. Dec. 6, 2017):

Firm	Title	Bar Admission	Rate
Hagens Berman Sobol Shapiro LLP	Partner	1982	$950
	Associate	1999	$630
	Associate	2014	$475
	Contract Attorney	2013	$350
	Contract Attorney	2006	$300
Pearson, Simon & Warshaw LLP	Partner	1983	$1,035
	Partner	1981	$1,035
	Of Counsel	2001	$900
	Associate	2006	$635
	Associate	2008	$520

2016 Rates

- In Animation Workers Antitrust Litigation, a class action alleging defendants violated the antitrust laws by engaging in a fraudulent conspiracy to fix wages, the court found the following 2016 hourly rates were "fair, reasonable, and market-based, particularly for the 'relevant community' in which counsel work." See Order Granting Plaintiff's Motion for Attorneys' Fees, Expenses, and Service Awards, Doc. 347, at 10, No. 14-CV-4062 (N.D. Cal. Nov. 11, 2016):

Firm	Title	Bar Admission	Rate
Susman Godfrey LLP	Partner	1969	$1,200
	Partner	1998	$700
	Partner	2005	$550
	Associate	2013	$325
	Associate	2008	$475
	Associate	2011	$375
	Associate	2010	$425
	Staff Attorney	2006	$275
	Staff Attorney	2007	$275
	Staff Attorney	2014	$275
	Paralegals	NA	$230-270
Hagens Berman Sobol Shapiro LLP	Partner	1980	$950
	Partner	1994	$735
	Partner	2001	$605
	Partner	1993	$605
	Of Counsel	2002	$575
	Associate	2010	$425
	Associate	2015	$420
	Associate	2008	$400
	Contract Attorney	2007	$250
	Paralegal	NA	$265
	Paralegal	NA	$265
	Paralegal	NA	$190
	Paralegal	NA	$158

20. In my opinion, the foregoing court awards clearly establish that the hourly rates submitted here for the entire length of this litigation in support of Plaintiffs' Counsel's lodestar cross-check are readily in line with the range of Bay Area rates charged and awarded over this period.

21. Plaintiffs' Counsel's hourly rates and rate increases over the years also are consistent with reported rates and rate increases in the legal services marketplace generally. For example, Wells Fargo's Legal Specialty Group reports that its 2023 year-end survey of 130 law firms' rates showed an 8.3% increase for 2023 and 9% for the first half of 2024. As the following reports show, numerous sources confirm these increases and the resulting $2,100-plus rates:

- David Thomas & Mike Scarcella, More lawyers join the $3,000-an-hour club, as other firms close in, Reuters (Feb. 27, 2025), https://www.reuters.com/legal/legalindustry/3000-an-hour-lawyer-isnt-unicorn-anymore-2025-02-27/ (top partners at Quinn Emanuel Urquhart & Sullivan and Susman Godfrey charging $3,000 an hour, with several other firms charging hourly rates above $2,500)
- Matt Hamilton & David Zahniser, DWP secures law firm, at up to $1,975 an hour, to defend against Palisades fire lawsuits, LA Times (Feb. 14, 2025), https://www.latimes.com/california/story/2025-02-14/law-firm-1975-an-hour-defend-against-palisades-fire-lawsuits (Los Angeles Department of Water and Power approved $10-million contract with Munger, Tolles & Olson to defend against lawsuits from residents of homes destroyed in Palisades fire, with partners charging $1,975 an hour);
- Debra Cassens Weiss, Some top partners in BigLaw will bill nearly $3,000 per hour next year, data says, ABA Journal (Sept. 26, 2024), https://www.abajournal.com/news/article/some-top-partners-in-biglaw-will-bill-nearly-3000-an-hour-next-year-report-saysd (listing BigLaw 2024 rates for partners that range up to $2,720 per hour at California's Wilson Sonsini Goodrich & Rosati);
- Dan Roe, Top Big Law Partners Are Earning More Than $2,400 Now, As Rates Continue to Climb, Law.com (Jan. 10, 2024), https://www.law.com/americanlawyer/2024/01/10/top-restructuring-partners-are-earning-more-than-2400-per-hour-as-rates-continue-to-climb/?slreturn=20250329-35134 (listing numerous Big Law firm rates, some approaching $2,600 per hour). Similarly, Wells Fargo's Legal Specialty Group reports that its 2023 year-end survey of 130 law firms' rates showed an 8.3% increase for 2023; its most recent survey showed average rate increases of 9.1% over the first six-months of 2024. See Debra Cassens Weiss, 'Very strong performance' reported for law firms in 2024, with revenue increasing 12.5%, ABA Journal (Jan. 29, 2025) https://www.abajournal.com/news/article/very-strong-performance-reported-for-law-firms-in-2024-with-revenue-increasing-12.5. [new article

- Roy Strom, Bloomberg Law, Rising Rates Are Law Firms' Salve as Layoffs and Pay Cuts Surge (Jan. 19, 2023), https://news.bloomberglaw.com/business-and-practice/rising-rates-are-law-firms-salve-as-layoffs-and-pay-cuts-surge (showing 9%–10% increases in 2023 hourly rates);
- Debra Weiss, This BigLaw firm charges nearly $2,500 per hour for top billers' bankruptcy work, ABA Journal (Dec. 19, 2023), https://www.abajournal.com/news/article/this-biglaw-firm-charges-nearly-2500-an-hour-for-top-billers-bankruptcy-work (referring to Kirkland & Ellis's rates);
- Vaidehi Mehta, Billing Rates Surge Past $2k in the World of High-Stakes Litigation, FindLaw (Sept. 27, 2023), https://www.findlaw.com/legalblogs/practice-of-law/billing-rates-surge-past-2k-in-the-world-of-high-stakes-litigation/ (noting that billing rates among attorneys in high-stakes litigation have "surge[d] past" $2,000 per hour); Andrew Maloney, Aggressive Billing Rate Increases Appear Likely, but Can Clients Stomach It?, The American Lawyer (Jan. 24, 2022) (rates rose "nearly 4%" in 2021).

Factor Four: The Rates Stated by Bay Area Law Firms

22. My opinion that Counsel's rates are in line with the local legal marketplace for comparable services also is based on the standard non-contingent hourly rates for complex litigation charged by many Bay Area law firms or law firms with offices or practices in the Bay Area. I pride myself on keeping up to date on hourly rates being charged and awarded in California, and that expertise has been recognized by this Court. See, e.g., Human Rights Defense Center v. County of Napa, No. 20-cv-01296, 2021 WL 1176640, at *11 (N.D. Cal. Mar. 28, 2021) (stating that it had "place[d] significant weight on the opinion of Mr. Pearl that the rates charged by all of the timekeepers listed above are reasonable and in line with the rates charged by law firms that engage in federal civil litigation in the San Francisco Bay Area. Mr. Pearl has extensive experience in the area of attorney billing rates in this district and has been widely relied upon by both federal and state courts in Northern California [] in determining reasonable billing rates". The following examples illustrate this point:

Firm – Year	Level	Rates
Boies Schiller & Flexner LLP – 2023	Partners	Up to $2,110
	Paralegals	$350
	Staff	$430-$500
	Litig. Support	$350-$380
Kirkland & Ellis LLP – 2024	Partners	$1,195 - $2,465
	Associates	$745 - $1,495
Kirkland & Ellis LLP – 2021	Partners	$1,085-$1,895
	Of Counsel	$625-1,895
	Associates	$625-$1,195
	Paraprofessional	$255-475
	Paraprofessional	$255-475
Morrison & Foerster LLP – 2021	Attorney (2002 graduate)	$1,200
	Attorney (2011 graduate)	$1,075
	Attorney (2014 graduate)	$925
	Attorney (2018 graduate)	$745
	Paralegal	$295

Morrison & Foerster LLP – 2020	Attorney (2002 graduate)	$1,125
	Attorney (2011 graduate)	$975
	Attorney (2014 graduate)	$810
	Attorney (2018 graduate)	$640
	Paralegal	$275
Wilson Sonsini Goodrich & Rosati P.C. – 2023	Attorney (1992 graduate)	$1,430
	Attorney (2013 graduate)	$1,010
	Attorney (2010 graduate)	$1,010
	Attorney (2017 graduate)	$875
	Support Staff	$250-$500
Wilson Sonsini Goodrich & Rosati P.C. – 2022	Members	$975-$2,220
	Associates	$550-$1,175
	Of Counsel	$640-$1,875
	Staff	$225-$935
	Library Personnel	$200-$300

Historical hourly rates reported by other top firms are in accord:

- In 2022, Munger, Tolles & Olson, billed a 19-year attorney at $1,210 per hour and a 9-year attorney at $850. See Campbell v. Barnes, Orange County Superior Court No. 30-2020-01141117-CU-WM-CXC, Order Granting Petitioners' Motion for an Award of Attorneys' Fees, filed January 20, 2022.
- In 2021, Morrison Foerster LLP billed $1,200 for a 2002 law school grad, $1,075 for a 2011 law school grad, and $745 for a 2018 law school grad.
- In 2021, Cooley LLP billed $1,415 for a partner with 27 years of experience. And in 2020, Cooley billed $1,275 for a partner with 26 years' experience and $1,120 for an associate with 12 years of experience.
- In 2020, Paul Hastings LLP billed a 25-year attorney at $1,425 per hour and a 7-year associate at $885 per hour.

23. The filings of PG&E's law firm in the PG&E Bankruptcy case, N.D. Bankr. Case No. 19-30088, also support my opinion. The attached Exhibit B shows that in July 2020, PG&E's attorneys billed two attorneys with 31 years' experience at $1,640 per hour, an attorney with 21 years' experience at $1,535, and an attorney with 15 years' experience at $1,220 per hour. By comparison, and factoring in four years of rate increases, described further in paragraph 30 below, the hourly rates Plaintiffs has paid certainly are in line with those rates.[1]

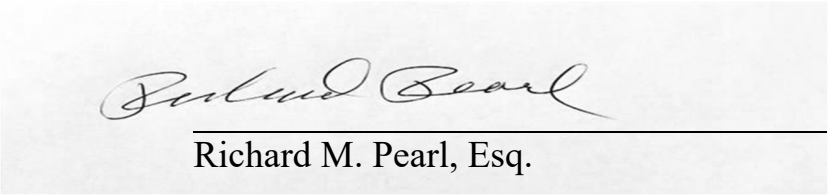
24. I also am aware that in 2020, Gibson Dunn & Crutcher LLP was billing its senior partners at $1,395 to $1,525 per hour, senior associates at $960 per hour, and paralegals at $480 per hour. In June 2021, it was reported that Gibson Dunn had offered to represent the California Redistricting Commission at rates ranging from $775 to $1,625 per hour. See Tiffany Steckler, Gibson Dunn Layers Hired by California Redistricting Commission (June 30, 2021), https://news.bloomberglaw.com/business-and-practice/gibson-dunn; see also Herring Networks, Inc. v. Maddow, 2021 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 23163, at *15-16 (S.D. Cal. Feb. 5, 2021) (anti-SLAPP action in which Gibson Dunn stated that its 2020 Los Angeles area rates were $1,525 and $1,395 for attorneys with "over 30 years of legal experience" and $960 for an attorney with "over ten years of legal experience"). Adjusted for the passage of time during an inflationary period, these Gibson Dunn rates are significantly higher than the rates Plaintiffs has paid here.

25. Lastly, the 2018 Peer Monitor Public Rates survey attached as Exhibit C shows that even as far back as 2018, the rates Plaintiffs' Counsel request here were well in line with the range of hourly rates billed by comparable Northern California law firms at that time.

[1] Bankruptcy rates are relevant here because under Bankruptcy Court rules, attorneys claiming fees must attest that the rates being charged are their regular hourly rates charged to non-bankruptcy clients. See supra Ex. C (Summary Sheet) Doc. #6331 ¶ 17 (attesting that pursuant to applicable Guidelines, rates charged for PG&E case are same rates charged for comparable bankruptcy and non-bankruptcy services).

26. In sum, it is my opinion that in the legal services marketplace, for the reasons stated above, the hourly rates submitted to support Counsel's lodestar cross-check are reasonable.

I declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of the United States that the foregoing is true and correct. Executed this 29th day of July 2025, in Berkeley, California.



Richard M. Pearl, Esq.

TAB 2A

Francis O. Scarpulla (Cal. Bar 41059)
LAW OFFICES OF FRANCIS O. SCARPULLA
3708 Clay Street
San Francisco, CA 94118
Telephone: (415) 751-4193
Facsimile: (415) 751-0889
fos@scarpullalaw.com
pbc@scarpullalaw.com

Liaison Counsel for the Direct Purchaser Classes

Michael L. Roberts
ROBERTS LAW FIRM, P.A.
1920 McKinney Avenue, Suite 700
Dallas, TX 75201
Telephone: (501) 952-8558
mikeroberts@robertslawfirm.us

Dianne M. Nast
NASTLAW LLC
1101 Market Street, Suite 2801
Philadelphia, PA 19107
Telephone: (215) 923-9300
Fax: (215) 923-9302
dnast@nastlaw.com

Co-Lead Counsel for the Direct Purchaser Classes

IN THE UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
FOR THE NORTHERN DISTRICT OF CALIFORNIA
SAN FRANCISCO DIVISION

IN RE : HIV ANTITRUST LITIGATION	Case No. 3:19-cv-02573-EMC (lead case)
	~~[PROPOSED]~~ ORDER GRANTING DIRECT PURCHASER CLASS PLAINTIFFS' MOTION FOR FINAL APPROVAL OF CLASS ACTION SETTLEMENT WTH GILEAD AND ATTORNEYS' FEES, COSTS AND EXPENSES, AND SERVICE AWARD
THIS DOCUMENT RELATES TO : KPH Healthcare Services, Inc. v. Gilead Sciences, Inc. et al., 3:20-cv-06961-EMC

Upon review and consideration of the Settlement Agreement by and between Plaintiff KPH Healthcare Services, Inc. a/k/a Kinney Drugs, Inc. ("KPH"), individually and on behalf of the Direct Purchaser Classes ("DPPs"), and Defendants Gilead Sciences, Inc.; Gilead Holdings, LLC; Gilead Sciences, LLC; Gilead Sciences Ireland UC (collectively, "Gilead"), dated July 24, 2023, and the Direct Purchaser Plaintiffs' Motion for Final Approval of Class Action Settlement with Gilead and Attorneys' Fees, Costs and Expenses, and Service Award (the "Motion"), along with its supporting memorandum and exhibits, IT IS HEREBY ORDERED that the motion is GRANTED as follows:

1. This Court incorporates by reference the definitions in the Settlement Agreement between KPH, on behalf of itself and the Direct Purchaser Classes, and Gilead, filed with this Court (ECF No. 2086-2, Ex. 1), and all capitalized terms used in this Order shall have the meaning set forth in the Settlement Agreement.

2. This Court finds that the Settlement, including the Plan of Allocation attached as Exhibit H thereto, is fair, reasonable, and adequate within the meaning of Fed. R. Civ. P. 23.

3. This Court finds that notice of the Settlement has been given to the Direct Purchaser Classes in substantially the manner approved by this Court in its Preliminary Approval Orders (ECF Nos. 2108, 2109).

4. This Court finds that the manner and forms of notice given constituted the best notice practicable under the circumstances. The manner and forms of notice were due, adequate, and sufficient and met the requirements of due process and the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure.

5. This Court finds that the Members of the Direct Purchaser Classes had a full and fair opportunity to exclude themselves from the Classes, object to the Settlement, and/or participate in the Final Approval Hearing.

6. This Court finds that all Direct Purchaser Class Members that did not timely exclude themselves from the Direct Purchaser Classes shall be bound by the Settlement Agreement and all its terms.

///

7. This Court finds that DPPs shall be bound by the release set forth in Paragraph 13 of the Settlement and shall be forever barred from asserting any Released Claims, as defined in Paragraph 1(o) of the Settlement, against Gilead Release Parties, as defined in Paragraph 1(l) of the Settlement.

8. This Court finds that Gilead Release parties shall be bound by the release set forth in Paragraph 13 of the Settlement and shall be forever barred from asserting any Released Claims against DPPs.

9. This Court directs that this action be dismissed with prejudice as to Gilead, without costs, as provided in the Settlement Agreement. This Court determines under Fed. R. Civ. P. 54(b) that there is no just reason for delay, and thereby directs that the judgment of dismissal with prejudice as to Gilead shall immediately be final and appealable in accordance with Fed. R. Civ. P. 54(b). The Clerk of the Court is directed to enter this Order and Final Judgment as to DPPs' claims against Gilead.

10. This Court directs the parties to consummate the Settlement pursuant to its terms.

11. This Court authorizes Counsel for the Parties and the Settlement Administrator, KCC, to use all reasonable procedures that are not materially inconsistent with this Order or the Settlement Agreement to carry out all remaining aspects of the administration of the Settlement.

12. This Court retains exclusive jurisdiction over the Settlement, including administration and consummation of the Settlement.

13. This Court approves and finds as fair and reasonable the allocation of $75 million of the Gilead Settlement Fund for attorneys' fees to be paid to Co-Lead Class Counsel, as requested in the Motion, in accordance with the terms of the Settlement.

14. This Court approves and finds as fair and reasonable the allocation of $2,887,478.45 million of the Gilead Settlement Fund for to be paid to Co-Lead Class Counsel for reimbursement of their out-of-pocket costs, as requested in the Motion, in accordance with the terms of the Settlement.

15. This Court approves and finds as fair and reasonable the allocation of $40,000 of the Gilead Settlement Fund to KPH for its service in litigating this case on behalf of the Direct Purchaser Classes, as requested in the Motion, in accordance with the terms of the Settlement.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

Dated: January 19, 2024

Hon. Edward M. Chen
United States District Judge

CERTIFICATE OF SERVICE

I certify that on November 21, 2023, I electronically filed the following:

DIRECT PURCHASER CLASS PLAINTIFFS' NOTICE OF MOTION AND MOTION FOR FINAL APPROVAL OF CLASS ACTION SETTLEMENT WITH GILEAD AND ATTORNEYS' FEES, COSTS AND EXPENSES, AND SERVICE AWARD;

DECLARATION OF MICHAEL L. ROBERTS IN SUPPORT OF DIRECT PURCHASER CLASS PLAINTIFFS' MOTION FOR FINAL APPROVAL OF CLASS ACTION SETTLEMENT WITH GILEAD DEFENDANTS, AWARD OF ATTORNEYS' FEES, REIMBURSEMENT OF COSTS AND EXPENSES, AND A CLASS REPRESENTATIVE SERVICE AWARD;

[PROPOSED] ORDER GRANTING DIRECT PURCHASER CLASS PLAINTIFFS' MOTION FOR FINAL APPROVAL OF CLASS ACTION SETTLEMENT WITH GILEAD AND ATTORNEYS' FEES, COSTS AND EXPENSES, AND SERVICE AWARD;

and

CERTIFICATE OF SERVICE

using the CM/ECF system, which will send notification of each filing to all attorneys of record in this matter. I certify under penalty of perjury that the foregoing is true and correct.

DATED this 21st day of November, 2023.

/s/ Francis O. Scarpulla
Francis O. Scarpulla

General Information

Case Name	In re HIV Antitrust Litigation
Court	U.S. District Court for the Northern District of California
Date Filed	Tue May 14 00:00:00 EDT 2019
Judge(s)	Edward Milton Chen
Federal Nature of Suit	Other Statutes: Antitrust [410]
Docket Number	3:19-cv-02573
Parties	Akros Pharma Inc.; Jason Walker; Peter Staley; Josh McDonald; John Carroll; Troy Vazquez-Cain; Andrew R. Spieldenner, PhD; Janssen R&D Ireland; Designating non-party Aurobindo USA, Inc.; Zydus Pharmaceuticals (USA) Inc.; Walgreen Co.; United HealthCare Services, Inc.; Gilead Holdings, LLC; Health Options, Inc.; State of New Mexico ex rel. Hector H. Balderas, New Mexico Attorney General; The Kroger Co.; Japan Tobacco Inc.; John F Cogan; John Doe; Japan Tobacco International U.S.A. Inc; Robert J. Vazquez; Michael Warner; Brenda Emily Goodrow; E. R. Squibb & Sons, LLC; CVS Pharmacy, Inc.; Janssen Products LP; Bristol-Myers Squibb Company; Cipla USA, Inc.; Albertsons Companies, Inc.; Teamsters Local 237 Welfare Fund; Ivy Kwan Arce; Michael Snipe; Gilead Sciences, LLC; Jacob Zydonis; BlueChoice HealthPlan of South Carolina, Inc.; Johnson & Johnson Inc.; Centene Corporation; Triple-S Salud, Inc.; Aetna Inc.; HIV Organizations; Amneal Pharmaceuticals, Inc.; Gabriel Molina; FWK Holdings, LLC; Fraternal Order of Police, Miami Lodge 20, Insurance Trust Fund; Steve Fuller; KPH Healthcare Services, Inc.; Federal Trade Commission; Rite Aid Hdqtrs. Corp.; Blue Cross and Blue Shield of

© 2025 Bloomberg Industry Group, Inc. All Rights Reserved. Terms of Service

Florida, Inc.; Gilead Sciences, Inc.; Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Kansas City; Strides Pharma, Inc.; Gilead Sciences Ireland UC; H-E-B LP; Kaiser Foundation Health Plan, Inc.; Humana Inc.; Jacksonville Police Officers and Fire Fighters Health Insurance Trust; MSP Recovery Claims, Series LLC; Rite Aid Corporation; Health Care Service Corporation, a Mutual Legal Reserve Company; Blue Cross and Blue Shield of South Carolina; Mylan Pharmaceuticals Inc.; Pipe Trades Services MN Welfare Fund; Service Employees International Union, Local No. 1 Health Fund; Blue Cross Blue Shield Association; Teva Pharmaceuticals USA, Inc.; Gregg S. Gonsalves, PhD; Teamsters Local 237 Retirees' Benefit Fund

© 2025 Bloomberg Industry Group, Inc. All Rights Reserved. Terms of Service

TAB 2B

Francis O. Scarpulla (Cal. Bar 41059)
LAW OFFICES OF FRANCIS O. SCARPULLA
3708 Clay Street
San Francisco, CA 94118
Telephone: (415) 751-4193
Facsimile: (415) 788-0706
fos@scarpullalaw.com

Liaison Counsel for the Direct Purchaser Classes

Michael L. Roberts
ROBERTS LAW FIRM US, PC
1920 McKinney Avenue, Suite 700
Dallas, TX 75201
Telephone: (501) 821-5575
mikeroberts@robertslawfirm.us

Dianne M. Nast
NASTLAW LLC
1101 Market Street, Suite 2801
Philadelphia, PA 19107
Telephone: (215) 923-9300
Facsimile: (215) 923-9302
dnast@nastlaw.com

Co-Lead Counsel for the Direct Purchaser Classes

IN THE UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
FOR THE NORTHERN DISTRICT OF CALIFORNIA
SAN FRANCISCO DIVISION

IN RE HIV ANTITRUST LITIGATION
THIS DOCUMENT RELATES TO : KPH Healthcare Services, Inc. v. Gilead Sciences, Inc. et al., 3:20-cv-06961-EMC

Case No. 3:19-cv-02573-EMC (lead case)

DIRECT PURCHASER CLASS PLAINTIFFS' NOTICE OF MOTION AND MOTION FOR FINAL APPROVAL OF CLASS ACTION SETTLEMENT WITH GILEAD AND ATTORNEYS' FEES, COSTS AND EXPENSES, AND SERVICE AWARD

Date: January 18, 2024
Time: 1:30 p.m.
Ctrm: 5 – 17th Floor
Judge: Honorable Edward M. Chen

NOTICE OF MOTION AND MOTION

TO ALL PARTIES AND THEIR ATTORNEYS OF RECORD:

PLEASE TAKE NOTICE that on January 18, 2024, at 1:30 p.m., before the Honorable Edward Chen, United States District Judge, in Courtroom 5 of the United States District Court for the Northern District of California in San Francisco, CA, Plaintiff KPH Healthcare Services, Inc. a/k/a Kinney Drugs, Inc. ("KPH"), on behalf of itself and the Direct Purchaser Classes, will and hereby does move the Court pursuant to Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 23(e) for entry of an Order: (1) finding the Settlement Agreement (ECF No. 2086-2) and Allocation Plan to be fair, reasonable, and adequate, and granting final approval of the Settlement; (2) awarding DPP Counsel $75,000,000 for attorneys' fees and reimbursement of $2,887,478.45 for costs and litigation expenses incurred in the reasonable prosecution of this matter; and approving a $40,000 class representative service award to KPH.

This motion is based on the Notice of Motion, the Supporting Memorandum of Points and Authorities, the supporting declarations and exhibits, and all papers and records on file in this matter.

TABLE OF CONTENTS

I. INTRODUCTION 1

II. BACKGROUND AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY 3

A. The Parties Reached an Agreement on the Eve of Trial After Years of Hard-Fought Litigation. 3

B. This Settlement Provides Significant Monetary Relief to the DPP Classes 7

III. ARGUMENT 9

A. The Settlement Is Fair, Reasonable, and Adequate 9

1. KPH and Class Counsel Have Zealously Represented the DPP Classes, Including Reaching a Settlement Following Good-Faith, Informed, and Arms'-Length Negotiations. 10

2. The Relief provided for the Classes is Adequate, Especially Considering the Risks of Continued Litigation. 11

3. Class Members' Reaction to the Settlement Has Been Positive 16

B. The Requested Attorneys' Fee Award Is Fair and Reasonable. 16

1. The Percentage-of-Recovery Method Supports the Requested Award. 17

2. A Lodestar Crosscheck Confirms the Reasonableness of the Requested Award. 25

C. The Costs and Expenses Requested Are Reasonable. 27

D. The Requested Class Representative Service Award Is Reasonable. 28

IV. CONCLUSION 30

TABLE OF AUTHORITIES

Cases

Alexander v. FedEx Ground Package Sys., Inc.,
No. 05-cv-00038-EMC, 2016 WL 3351017 (N.D. Cal. June 15, 2016) 27

Bellinghausen v. Tractor Supply Co.,
303 F.R.D. 611 (N.D. Cal. 2014) 13

Blum v. Stenson,
465 U.S. 886 (1984) 26

Boeing Co. v. Van Gemert,
444 U.S. 472 (1980) 16

Briseno v. Henderson,
998 F.3d 1014 (9th Cir. 2021) 9, 15

Class Plaintiffs v. Seattle,
955 F.2d 1268 (9th Cir. 1992) 9

Churchill Vill., LLC v. Gen. Elec.,
361 F.3d 566 (9th Cir. 2004) 9

Collins v. Cargill Meat Solutions Corp., 274 F.R.D. 294 (E.D. Cal. 2011) 13

Cook v. Niedert,
142 F.3d 1004 (7th Cir. 1998) 28

Cottle v. Plaid Inc.,
No. 20-cv-03056-DMR, 2021 WL 5415252 (N.D. Cal. Nov. 19, 2021) 9

Cuzick v. Zodiac U.S. Seat Shells, LLC,
No. 16-cv-03793-HSG, 2017 WL 4536255 (N.D. Cal. Oct. 11, 2017) 12, 29

Davis v. Yelp, Inc.,
No. 18-cv-00400-EMC, 2023 WL 3063823 (N.D. Cal. Jan. 27, 2023) 23

Ellis v. Costco Wholesale Corp.,
No. 04-cv-3341-EMC, 2014 WL 12641574 (N.D. Cal. May 27, 2014) 26

Foster v. Adams & Assocs., Inc.,
No. 18-cv-02723-JSC, 2022 WL 425559 (N.D. Cal. Feb. 11, 2022) 19

Garner v. State Farm Mut. Ins. Co.,
No. 08-cv-1365 CW (EMC), 2010 WL 1687832 (N.D. Cal. April 22, 2010) 29

Gutierrez v. Wells Fargo Bank, N.A.,
07-cv-05923-WHA, 2015 WL 2438274 (N.D. Cal. May 21, 2015) 24

Haralson v. U.S. Aviation Servs. Corp.,
383 F. Supp. 3d 959 (N.D. Cal. 2019) 9

Hensley v. Eckerhart,
461 U.S. 424 (1983) 18

Hernandez v. Dutton Ranch Corp.,
No. 19-cv-00817-EMC, 2021 WL 5053476 (N.D. Cal. Sept. 10, 2021) 18

In re Animation Workers Antitrust Litig.,
No. 14-cv-4062-LHK, 2016 WL 6663005 (N.D. Cal. Nov. 11, 2016) 27

In re Apple Inc. Device Performance Litig.,
No. 18-md-02827-EJD, 2023 WL 2090981 (N.D. Cal. Feb. 17, 2023) 17, 18, 22, 25, 27

In re Bluetooth Headset Prod. Liab. Litig.,
654 F.3d 935 (9th Cir. 2011) 17, 29

In re Capacitors Antitrust Litig.,
No. 14-cv-03264-JD, 2023 WL 2396782 (N.D. Cal. Mar. 6, 2023) 22

In re Capacitors Antitrust Litig.,
No. 14-cv-03264-JD, 2018 WL 4790575 (N.D. Cal. Sept. 21, 2018) 25

In re Cathode Ray Tube (CRT) Antitrust Litig.,
No. 07-cv-05944-JST, 2016 WL 721680 (N.D. Cal. Jan. 28, 2016) 14

In re Citric Acid Antitrust Litig.,
145 F. Supp. 2d 1152 (N.D. Cal. 2001) 14

In re Glumetza Antitrust Litig.,
No. 19-cv-05822-WHA, 2022 WL 327707 (N.D. Cal. Feb. 3, 2022) 14, 19, 24

In re High-Tech Employee Antitrust Litig.,
No. 11-cv-02509-LHK, 2015 WL 5158730 (N.D. Cal. Sept. 2, 2015) 27, 29

In re Korean Air Lines Co., Ltd. Antitrust Litig.,
No. 02-cv-05107, 2013 WL 7985367 (C.D. Cal. Dec. 23, 2013) 17

In re Lidoderm Antitrust Litig.,
No. 14-md-02521-WHO, 2018 WL 11375216 (N.D. Cal. Sept. 20, 2018) 14, 18, 24

In re Lithium Ion Batteries Antitrust Litig.,
13-md-02420 (DMR), 2020 WL 7264559 (N.D. Cal. Dec. 10, 2020) 12, 20

In re Nat'l Collegiate Athletic Ass'n Athletic Grant-in-Aid Cap Antitrust Litig.,
No. 14-md-2541-CW, 2017 WL 6040065 (N.D. Cal. Dec. 6, 2017) 20, 24

In re Nexus 6P Prods. Liab. Litig.,
No. 17-cv-02185-BLF, 2019 WL 6622842 (N.D. Cal. Nov. 12, 2019) 25

In re Omnivision Techs., Inc.,
559 F. Supp. 2d 1036 (N.D. Cal. 2007) 11

In re Online DVD-Rental Antitrust Litig.,
779 F.3d 934 (9th Cir. 2015) 18, 27, 28

In re Optical Disk Drive Prods. Antitrust Litig.,
959 F.3d 922 (9th Cir. 2020) 17, 24

In re Pac. Enters. Sec. Litig.,
47 F.3d 373 (9th Cir. 1995) 11

In re Restasis (Cyclosporine Ophthalmic Emulsion) Antitrust Litig.,
No. 18-md-02819, 2020 WL 6193857 (E.D.N.Y. Oct. 7, 2020) 14

In re Rite Aid Corp. Sec. Litig.,
396 F.3d 294 (3d Cir. 2005) 25

In re Robinhood Outage Litig.,
No. 20-cv-01626-JD, 2023 WL 5321525 (N.D. Cal. July 28, 2023) 17

In re TFT-LCD (Flat Panel) Antitrust Litig.,
No. 07-md-01827-SI, 2011 WL 7575004 (N.D. Cal. Dec. 27, 2011) 14

In re Volkswagen "Clean Diesel" Mktg., Sales Pracs., & Prods. Liab. Litig.,
No. 2672 CRB, 2017 WL 1047834 (N.D. Cal. Mar. 17, 2017) 27

In re Wells Fargo & Co. Shareholder Derivative Litig.,
445 F. Supp. 3d 508 (N.D. Cal. 2020) 25

Marshall v. Northrop Grumman Corp.,
No. 16-cv-6794, 2020 WL 5668935 (C.D. Cal. Sept. 18, 2020) 26

McLeod v. Bank of Am., N.A.,
No. 16-cv-03294-EMC, 2019 WL 1170487 (N.D. Cal. Mar. 13, 2019) 27, 29

Mills v. Electric Auto-Lite Co.,
396 U.S. 375 (1970) 27

Moreno v. Beacon Roofing Supply, Inc.,
No. 19-cv-00185, 2020 WL 3960481 (S.D. Cal. July 13, 2020) 15

Moreno v. City of Sacramento,
534 F.3d 1106 (9th Cir. 2008) 25

Nobles v. MBNA Corp.,
No. 06-cv-3723-CRB, 2009 WL 1854965 (N.D. Cal. June 29, 2009) 12

Rodriguez v. W. Publ'g Corp.,
563 F.3d 948 (9th Cir. 2009) 28

Senne v. Kansas City Royals Baseball Corp.,
No. 14-cv-00608-JCS, 2023 WL 2699972 (N.D. Cal. Mar. 29, 2023) 17

Smith v. Am. Greetings Corp.,
No. 14-cv-02577-JST, 2015 WL 4498571 (N.D. Cal. July 23, 2015) 12

Staton v. Boeing Co.,
327 F.3d 938 (9th Cir. 2003) 16, 28

Uschold v. NSMG Shared Servs.,
333 F.R.D. 157 (N.D. Cal. 2019) 10

Vincent v. Hughes Air W., Inc.,
557 F.2d 759 (9th Cir. 1997) 27

Vizcaino v. Microsoft Corp.,
290 F.3d 1043 (9th Cir. 2002) 17, 19, 21, 26, 27

Vizcaino v. Microsoft Corp.,
141 F. Supp. 2d 1299, 1303 (W.D. Wash. 2001) 21

Wal-Mart Stores, Inc. v. Visa U.S.A., Inc.,
396 F.3d 96 (2d Cir. 2005) 20

Federal Rules

Fed. R. Civ. P. 23(e) ..... passim

Fed. R. Civ. P. 23(h) 16

MEMORANDUM OF POINTS AND AUTHORITIES

I. INTRODUCTION

KPH Healthcare Services, Inc. ("KPH" or "Plaintiff"), through its counsel, began investigating this case over four years ago. After years of complex case work and hard-fought litigation and just hours before opening statements, KPH, on behalf of itself and the certified Direct Purchaser Classes ("DPPs" or "DPP Classes"), reached agreement on the material terms of a class action settlement with Gilead.[1] KPH and Gilead subsequently executed the long-form Settlement Agreement after additional negotiations regarding the language of the agreement (including a binding mediation with Kenneth Feinberg).[2] Under the terms of the Settlement, Gilead is required to pay $246,750,000 into a non-reversionary Settlement Fund for the benefit of the DPP Classes.

The Settlement is fair, reasonable, and adequate. It represents an excellent recovery for the DPP Classes, given the novel and complex nature of the antitrust claims at issue and the significant risks DPP Class Members faced of receiving no recovery had their claims proceeded to verdict. See Preliminary Approval Order, ECF No. 2108 at 3 ("with hindsight, it is clear that there were significant risks given that the indirect purchasers chose to proceed to trial and lost"). To receive a cash payment under the Settlement, DPP Class Members need only complete and submit a pre-populated claim form.

The Court-approved notice program is substantially complete. The direct notice, publication notice, and initial reminder notice aspects of the notice program have been fully implemented, and DPP Counsel have already begun the process of contacting DPP Class Members that have not yet filed claims. To complete the notice program, DPP Counsel will finish contacting DPP Class Members, and a second reminder notice will be mailed by December 4, 2023. While DPP Class Members have until January 1, 2024 to submit claim forms, 16 claim forms have already been received from known DPP Class Members, and DPP Co-Lead Class Counsel ("Class Counsel") fully expect a robust claims rate similar to the BMS Settlement's claims rate. DPPs respectfully submit that final approval of the Settlement should be granted.

[1] "Gilead" collectively refers to Defendants Gilead Sciences, Inc., Gilead Holdings, LLC, Gilead Sciences, LLC, and Gilead Sciences Ireland UC.

[2] The Settlement Agreement ("Settlement" or "S.A.") was previously submitted to the Court as Exhibit 1 to the DPPs' Motion for Preliminary Approval. ECF No. 2086-2.

For the substantial results DPP Counsel achieved for the Classes, and for the extensive work required to secure those results, Class Counsel seek an attorneys' fee award of $75,000,000, reimbursement of incurred costs and expenses in the amount of $2,887,478.45, and a $40,000 class representative service award for KPH. The requested fee award translates to 30.39% of the Gilead Settlement Fund (or 29.1% of the total benefits DPP Counsel secured during the litigation from Gilead and BMS), compares favorably to attorneys' fee awards entered in similar cases, and is reasonable and justified, given the results DPP Counsel secured, the risky and complex nature of this case, and the tremendous resources—in the form of 39,091 hours[3] and $5,387,478.45 in total costs and expenses—DPP Counsel devoted to litigating this matter on a contingent basis for more than three years. See Decl. of Brian T. Fitzpatrick ("Fitzpatrick Decl.") ¶¶ 9-33, attached as Exhibit 7 to the Decl. of Michael L. Roberts ("Roberts Decl."), attached hereto as Exhibit A. A lodestar cross-check, which yields a multiplier of 2.19, further confirms the reasonableness of the requested fee award. Id. ¶¶ 18, 32.

Class Counsel's request for reimbursement of $2,887,478.45 for costs and litigation expenses incurred to advance the matter is reasonable and consistent with what the market would award in a private setting. The requested service award of $40,000 is likewise reasonable given that KPH was the sole class representative in this DPP litigation, the significant time and effort KPH's employees put into the litigation, and the fact that without KPH's tireless representative work, the DPP Classes would receive none of the sizeable benefits they will enjoy through the Settlement.

DPPs respectfully request that the Court grant this motion.

[3] The 39,091 hours Class Counsel refer to herein excludes the 520 hours DPP Counsel collectively spent between inception and October 31, 2023 on this filing, BMS Settlement administration, and time from attorneys with less than $20,000 in lodestar on the case. Roberts Decl. ¶ 6 n. 2.

II. BACKGROUND AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

A. The Parties Reached an Agreement on the Eve of Trial After Years of Hard-Fought Litigation.

On the eve of trial, as opening statements were slated to begin the following morning, and after approximately four years of factual investigation, intense litigation, and several rounds of contentious negotiations before one of the most respected mediators in the industry, Kenneth Feinberg, KPH and Gilead reached an agreement to resolve the DPPs' claims against Gilead. See Roberts Decl. ¶¶ 3–5. By the time KPH and Gilead executed a Memorandum of Understanding ("MOU"), KPH had defeated arbitration and a dismissal motion, reviewed millions of pages of discovery, participated in 90 depositions of fact and expert witnesses, successfully moved for certification of two direct purchaser classes, successfully defended the certification before the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals, collaborated with more than a dozen experts to prepare and submit reports supporting the DPPs' case-in-chief, prepared dozens of pretrial briefs and submissions, held multiple DPP-only jury focus exercises including a two-day mock trial, substantively participated in an all-Plaintiffs' mock trial, rigorously prepared for a challenging trial, and participated in jury selection after which a jury was empaneled. See generally Roberts Decl. ¶¶ 5, 8–154. DPPs were prepared to give their opening statement and had exchanged with the other plaintiff groups and Defendants their witness lists and exhibits for the first substantive days of trial. Id. ¶¶ 115, 152.

Each segment of the litigation was hard fought. In the early segment of the litigation, after KPH filed its complaint in October 2020, Defendants responded with motions to compel arbitration, to dismiss, and to stay and for costs. Id. ¶¶ 12, 15. KPH fully briefed and presented oral argument defending against a motion to compel arbitration and a motion to dismiss; it successfully defended against the motion to stay and for costs on the papers alone. Id. ¶¶ 16–17. Defendants raised issues of applicable state law, standing, and damages. Id. ¶ 16. After successfully defeating those motions in large part, KPH dove into discovery efforts in cooperation with the EPPs, which consisted of months of intense negotiations with Defendants, scores of fact depositions, and the review of millions of documents. Id. ¶¶ 26–42. Successfully conducting discovery in this case required DPP Counsel to understand not only complicated patent, pharmaceutical, and regulatory matters, but also the nuances of legal complexities across plaintiff groups and claims.

Between May 26, 2021 and December 17, 2021, DPPs and EPPs (and sometimes Retailers) deposed 42 fact witnesses. Id. ¶ 38. In early October 2021, DPP Counsel were also engaged in settlement negotiations with defendant BMS and preparing their class certification submission. On October 19, 2021, DPPs and BMS reached agreement on the material terms of a proposed class action settlement. Id. ¶ 51. DPPs and BMS notified the Court of that fact the next day. Id. And just hours later, DPPs filed a motion requesting certification of three direct purchaser classes—a Truvada Class, an Atripla Class, and a Complera Class. Id. ¶ 43. DPPs submitted the expert reports of Dr. Russell L. Lamb, Ph.D. (regarding class-wide impact and damages) and Professor Thomas G. McGuire (regarding market power) and approximately two dozen other exhibits in support of their class certification motion. Id.

In connection with EPPs' request for leave to amend their complaint to add an additional plaintiff, on December 14, 2021, the Court extended the time for Gilead to file its opposition to DPPs' class certification motion until June 2022. Id. ¶ 44. But the winter and spring of 2022 were not idly spent in this litigation; far from it. In addition to wrapping up fact discovery depositions in January 2022, DPP Counsel spent this period beginning to collaborate with two new plaintiff groups (IHPPs and United), working on ten expert merits reports, and negotiating the language of the BMS Settlement. Id. ¶¶ 30, 38, 52, 59-60. After months of negotiations, DPPs' motion for preliminary approval of the $10,800,000 BMS Settlement was filed on May 13, 2022. Id. ¶ 52.

On June 2, 2022, approximately two weeks after deposing Dr. Lamb the first of four times in this case, Gilead filed its opposition to DPPs' motion for class certification and moved to exclude Dr. Lamb's opinions in support. Id. ¶ 45. DPPs filed their opposition to Gilead's Daubert motion just twelve days later. Id. On June 23, 2022, DPPs (in coordination with other plaintiff groups) served the merits reports of nine experts. Id. ¶ 59. The next day, June 24, 2022, DPPs deposed Gilead's class certification expert, Dr. Bruce Strombom. Id. ¶ 64. On June 28, 2022, DPPs served the merits expert report of Dr. Russell L. Lamb, Ph.D. on Gilead. Id. ¶ 59. And finally, on June 30, 2022, DPPs filed a reply brief in support of their motion for class certification supported, the supporting expert rebuttal report of Dr. Russell Lamb, Ph.D., and over a dozen other supporting exhibits. Id. ¶ 45.

Intense expert discovery occurred between July 1 and September 15, 2022. On July 22, 2022, Defendants served 12 merits experts reports. Id. ¶¶ 59, 63. Defendants served their expert report on damages five days later. Id. Plaintiffs' 13 merits rebuttal reports were served on August 12, 2022, and Dr. Lamb's merits rebuttal report on DPP damages was served on August 17, 2022. Id. ¶ 59. Additionally, between July 13, 2022 and September 15, 2022, Defendants conducted 20 depositions of Plaintiffs' shared and DPP-only experts, and the plaintiff groups deposed eight of Defendants' experts. Id. ¶¶ 61, 64. The Court also heard arguments on DPPs' and EPPs' motions for class certification on August 25, 2022, which DPP counsel prepared for and successfully argued on behalf of the DPP Classes. Id. ¶ 45.

This Court granted in substantial part DPPs' motion for class certification on September 27, 2022, certifying a class of Atripla Direct Purchasers and a class of Truvada Direct Purchasers and appointing Michael L. Roberts and Dianne Nast as Co-Lead Class Counsel and Francis Scarpulla as Liaison Counsel. Id. ¶¶ 46, 47; ECF No. 1388. Defendants' petition for permission to appeal that order under Rule 23(f) followed, against which DPP Counsel deftly defended, again on the papers. Roberts Decl. ¶ 48. DPPs proceeded to provide notice to the Classes pursuant to the Court's orders. Id. ¶¶ 49-50.

Motions for summary judgment and Daubert motions were under way by early September 2022, when Defendants filed three separate motions for summary judgment against Plaintiffs. Id. ¶ 65. DPPs worked tirelessly in coordination with the other plaintiff groups to oppose those motions, including the identification of over 200 exhibits, and to file Plaintiffs' own motion for partial summary judgment and six Daubert motions against Defendants' experts. Id. ¶¶ 65-66. DPPs and the other plaintiff groups immediately proceeded to defend against Defendants' omnibus Daubert motion against several of Plaintiffs' key experts. Id. ¶ 67. DPPs were prepared to argue a portion of the summary judgment and Daubert briefing. Id. ¶ 68. On January 9, 2023, the Court gave Plaintiffs the green light as to their MFE/MFEP claims, that is, the reverse payment claims. Id. ¶ 69.

The summary judgment and Daubert motion practice transitioned into grueling pretrial motions and submissions. See generally id. ¶¶ 70-125. DPPs' pretrial motions and submissions—in extensive cooperation with the other plaintiff groups, when necessary—included several drafts of witness lists and summaries, multiple drafts of trial exhibits, several rounds of deposition designations, seven motions in limine and oppositions to Defendants' seven motions in limine, a trial structure brief, several iterations of jury instructions and a verdict form, a pretrial conference statement, a trial brief, and several drafts of a joint juror questionnaire. Id. DPPs participated in extensive meet-and-confer meetings with Defendants and other plaintiff groups in the process of developing these pretrial submissions. Id. DPPs further represented the DPP Classes at multiple pretrial conference hearings ahead of trial as well as at voir dire the day before DPPs reached agreement with Gilead. Id.

At the same time that DPPs were preparing pretrial motions and submissions and gearing up for a complex and lengthy trial, they prepared and executed three jury exercises working with trial consultants they had engaged, including an in-person meeting regarding that mock trial and trial strategy and a two-day mock trial in person in the Bay Area. Id. ¶¶ 129-33. In addition, DPPs represented the DPP Classes at the additional all-plaintiffs' mock trial which also took place in the Bay Area during other dates. Id. ¶¶ 5, 128.

By the time the parties reached an agreement, after a jury was empaneled and just before opening statements were to begin, and after months of negotiations with the guidance of Mr. Feinberg, counsel for both sides were keenly aware of the strengths and weaknesses of their respective case and the significant risks in continuing to litigate. Id. ¶ 3. After signing the MOU, DPPs and Gilead continued to negotiate the long-form Settlement Agreement until the parties agreed on all but one of the major provisions, such as the scope of the Classes, the terms of the release, and the timing for funding. Id. ¶ 160. To resolve the one remaining issue, KPH and Gilead engaged mediator Kenneth Feinberg, who issued a decision following a round of binding mediation. Id. ¶ 161. KPH and Gilead thereafter executed the Settlement on July 24, 2023. Id.

KPH moved for preliminary approval of the Settlement on August 9, 2023. ECF No. 2086. The Court heard oral argument on September 21, 2023, and granted preliminary approval on September 25, 2023. ECF Nos. 2109, 2110. The notice plan approved by the Court, which was designed to provide robust notice of the Settlement to the Classes and to satisfy the requirements of Fed. R. Civ. P. 23 and due process, was immediately implemented by the Court-approved claims administrator, KCC[4]: within fourteen days of the preliminary approval order, direct notice consisting of the long-form notice and a pre-populated claim form was mailed to all known Class Members, press releases were published in PR Newswire and Business Wire, and a case-specific website was published. See Decl. of Carla Peak ("Peak Decl.") ¶¶ 4, 8-9, 13, attached as Exhibit 6 to the Roberts Decl. By October 24, 2023, the remainder of the media portion of the notice plan was complete, with banners and leaderboards being published twice each in e-newsletters Becker's Pharmacy Report, NAW SmartBrief, and Pharmaceutical Commerce Direct. Id. ¶¶ 10-12. In the meantime, the first reminder notices were mailed, and Class Members began filing claims. Id. ¶¶ 5, 15. DPP Counsel have already begun directly contacting by phone and email all known Class Members who had not yet submitted claims. Roberts Decl. ¶ 173. The second reminder notice will be mailed by December 4, 2023. Peak Decl. ¶ 7. Class Members have until January 1, 2024 to file their claims. See Preliminary Approval Order ¶ 20, ECF No. 2109.

B. This Settlement Provides Significant Monetary Relief to the DPP Classes

Pursuant to the terms of the Settlement, Gilead paid $246,750,000 into the Gilead Settlement Fund, which will be used to pay valid claims submitted by DPP Class Members in accordance with the Plan of Allocation, all Notice and Administration Expenses and Court-approved attorneys' fees, costs, expenses, and a representative-plaintiff service award. S.A. ¶¶ 1(q), 7. The Gilead Settlement Fund is placed in an interest-bearing, QSF escrow account. The Plan of Allocation provides that the Net Gilead Settlement Fund shall be distributed pro rata to each DPP Class Member that submits a valid claim based on the units of brand and generic Truvada and Atripla purchased, with weights applied based on the drug purchased and whether the drug was brand or generic. S.A. Ex. H, ECF No. 2086-2. Under the Settlement, none of the Settlement Fund shall revert to Gilead. Id. ¶ 16(b), .

[4] See ECF No. 2109 ¶ 12.

KPH entered into the Settlement on behalf of the following previously certified Direct Purchaser Classes:

> Truvada Class: All persons or entities in the United States and its territories who purchased Truvada or generic Truvada directly from any of Defendants or any brand or generic drug manufacturer from February 1, 2018, until the date of the class certification order, September 27, 2022.
>
> Atripla Class: All persons or entities in the United States and its territories who purchased Atripla or generic Atripla directly from any of Defendants or any brand or generic drug manufacturer from February 1, 2018, until the date of the class certification order, September 27, 2022.

S.A. ¶ 1(e). The certification order excludes the following persons and entities from the Classes: (1) Defendants, named co-conspirators, and their officers, directors, employees, subsidiaries, and affiliates; (2) federal, state, and local governmental entities; (3) any judicial officer presiding over the litigation and members of their immediate family and judicial staff; (4) the Retailer Plaintiffs;[5] and (5) United Healthcare Services Inc. Id.

Pursuant to the terms of the Settlement, the members of the DPP Classes:

> [R]elease and forever discharge, and covenant not to sue, Gilead and each and every Gilead Release Party (collectively, the "Releasees"), from all manner of claims, debts, obligations, demands, actions, suits, causes of action, damages whenever incurred, liabilities of any nature whatsoever, including costs, expenses, penalties and attorneys' fees, under federal or state laws, whether known or unknown, foreseen or unforeseen, suspected or unsuspected, contingent or non-contingent, assigned or otherwise, in law or equity, that arise out of or relate, in whole or in part in any manner, to all conduct, acts, or omissions alleged in the Action and/or that could have been alleged in the Action (or arising out of substantially the same subject matter), regardless of legal theory.

S.A. ¶ 13(a).[6]

[5] The Retailer Plaintiffs are: Walgreen Co.; The Kroger Co.; Albertsons Companies, Inc.; H-E-B, L.P.; Rite Aid Corporation; Rite Aid Hdqtrs. Corp.; and CVS Pharmacy, Inc. The Retailer Plaintiffs and United Healthcare Services Inc.("United") opted out of the DPP Classes.

[6] Except as otherwise provided in the Settlement, the release does not extend to any claims arising in the ordinary course of business with Gilead under the Uniform Commercial Code, the laws of negligence, product liability, implied warranty, contract, or personal injury, aside from breach of warranty or contract based in whole or in part on any conduct challenged by DPPs in the Action. Id. Pursuant to the Settlement, Gilead releases "all claims related to the allegations made in letters to KPH's assignor, McKesson, dated: June 2, 2021 and others, relating to alleged noncompliance with ADR provisions contained in the McKesson/Gilead distribution agreement." Id. ¶ 13(b). "For the

III. ARGUMENT

A. The Settlement Is Fair, Reasonable, and Adequate

Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 23(e) requires the Court to approve a class-wide resolution of claims. In doing so, courts are mindful of the Ninth Circuit's "'strong judicial policy' that favors the settlement of class actions." Haralson v. U.S. Aviation Servs. Corp., 383 F. Supp. 3d 959, 966 (N.D. Cal. 2019) (quoting Class Plaintiffs v. Seattle, 955 F.2d 1268, 1276 (9th Cir. 1992)). The Court may approve a settlement that is "fair, reasonable, and adequate." Briseño v. Henderson, 998 F.3d 1014, 1023 (9th Cir. 2021). The factors that support that analysis are set forth in the December 1, 2018 amendments to Fed. R. Civ. P. 23(e)(2):

> (A) the class representatives and class counsel have adequately represented the class; (B) the proposal was negotiated at arm's length; (C) the relief provided for the class is adequate, taking into account: (i) the costs, risks, and delay of trial and appeal; (ii) the effectiveness of any proposed method of distributing relief to the class, including the method of processing class-member claims; (iii) the terms of any proposed award of attorneys' fees, including timing of payment; and (iv) any agreement required to be identified under Rule 23(e)(3); and (D) the proposal treats class members equitably relative to each other.

The Court additionally may consider the Ninth Circuit's Churchill factors:

> (1) the strength of the plaintiff's case; (2) the risk, expense, complexity, and likely duration of future litigation; (3) the risk of maintaining class action status throughout the trial; (4) the amount offered in settlement; (5) the extent of discovery completed and the state of the proceedings; (6) the experience and views of counsel; (7) the presence of a governmental participant; and (8) the reaction of the class members to the proposed settlement.

Churchill Vill., L.L.C. v. Gen. Elec., 361 F.3d 566, 575 (9th Cir. 2004); see also Cottle v. Plaid Inc., No. 20-cv-03056-DMR, 2021 WL 5415252, at *11 (N.D. Cal. Nov. 19, 2021) (court examines Rule 23(e)(2) and Churchill factors in deciding whether to grant preliminary approval). The Court also should consider the extent to which the Settlement complies with the Northern District of avoidance of doubt, Gilead shall not seek indemnification from Direct Purchaser Class member McKesson Corporation as to any and all claims arising out of the Direct Purchaser Class settlement of the above-captions antitrust dispute." Id. Finally, the Settlement provides, generally, that Gilead and the DPPs each release the provisions, rights, and/or benefits conferred by Section 1542 of the California Civil Code and by any similar, comparable, or equivalent law or principle of common law. Id. ¶ 13(c). The scope of the released claims is virtually identical to the claims certified on behalf of the DPPs for class-wide treatment. See Class Certification Order, ECF No. 1388.

---

California's Procedural Guidance for Class Action Settlements. Evaluating the Settlement against these factors demonstrates that the Settlement is fair, reasonable, and adequate and warrants final approval.

1. KPH and Class Counsel Have Zealously Represented the DPP Classes, Including Reaching a Settlement Following Good-Faith, Informed, and Arms'-Length Negotiations.

In evaluating Rule 23(e)(2)(A) and (B)'s requirement that the Class be well represented and that the settlement be reached as a result of arm's length negotiations, the focus is on "the conduct of the litigation and of the negotiations leading up to the proposed settlement," including whether counsel "had an adequate information base" and the "the involvement of a neutral . . . mediator." Fed. R. Civ. P. 23 advisory committee's note to 2018 amendment. The involvement of a neutral mediator "supports the conclusion that Plaintiffs were armed with sufficient information about the case to broker a fair settlement." Uschold v. NSMG Shared Servs., LLC, 333 F.R.D. 157, 170 (N.D. Cal. 2019) (internal quotation marks omitted). Given the involvement of highly respected mediator Kenneth Feinberg and the hard-fought litigation preceding the Settlement—including multiple rounds and months of mediation and negotiations—there is no question that these factors favor final approval.

The DPP Classes have been well represented in this case work and litigation by KPH and Class Counsel for over four years and will continue to be so represented through administration of the Settlement. As described above and in detail in the accompanying Roberts Declaration, DPP Counsel litigated strenuously against sophisticated and well-prepared defense counsel. DPP Counsel defeated motions to dismiss and to compel arbitration, motions for summary judgment, and Daubert motions; successfully certified two DPP Classes; defeated a petition to appeal to the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals; briefed numerous pretrial matters; and comprehensively and thoroughly prepared for trial. Roberts Decl. ¶¶ 8–154. This vigorous advocacy demonstrates the absence of any fraud or collusion underlying the Settlement. DPP Counsel have extended 39,091 hours and incurred total costs and expenses of $5,387,478.45 in litigating this case. Id. ¶¶ 179, 181. The negotiations to settle this matter before the mediator were extensive and contentious. Id. ¶¶ 157-8. By the time the parties entered into an agreement to resolve the matter literally on the eve of trial as opening statements were scheduled to begin on the following morning, each side was intimately familiar with the strengths and weaknesses of its case.

The single class representative KPH has enthusiastically supported DPPs' claims from before the case was even filed, having communicated regularly with Class Counsel, reviewed the complaint and discovery requests, produced over 26,000 pages of internal documents, prepared and sat for a lengthy deposition, and spent numerous hours preparing to testify at trial. Roberts Decl. ¶¶ 36–37, 41, 148, 182.

Class Counsel have extensive experience litigating complex antitrust cases such as this and believe the recovery provided by the Settlement is an excellent result for the DPP Classes in light of the risks of continuing to litigate, which are detailed throughout this Motion. Roberts Decl. ¶¶ 3–5 and Ex. 1 (Roberts Law Firm Resume); Decl. of Dianne Nast ("Nast Decl.") Ex. 1 (NastLaw LLC Firm Resume), attached as Exhibit 3 to the Roberts Decl. "The recommendations of plaintiffs' counsel should be given a presumption of reasonableness." See In re Omnivision Techs., Inc., 559 F. Supp. 2d 1036, 1043 (N.D. Cal. 2008) (internal quotation marks and citation omitted); see also In re Pac. Enters. Sec. Litig., 47 F.3d 373, 378 (9th Cir. 1995) ("Parties represented by competent counsel are better positioned than courts to produce a settlement that fairly reflects each party's expected outcome in the litigation.").

Finally, as discussed below, Class Counsel's request for a fee award, reimbursement for their out-of-pocket costs and expenses, and a service award for KPH, was negotiated and is intended to be considered by the Court separately from the Court's evaluation of the Settlement. S.A. ¶ 12(a). Any amounts requested by counsel but not awarded will be allocated to DPP Class Members and will not be returned to Gilead.

The Classes have been and continue to be well represented by Class Counsel and KPH. This factor supports final approval.

2. The Relief provided for the Classes is Adequate, Especially Considering the Risks of Continued Litigation.

The Settlement provides $246,750,000 for the benefit of the DPP Classes. This relief is adequate when taking into account the following factors under Fed. R. Civ. P. 23(e)(2)(C):

> (i) the costs, risks, and delay of trial and appeal;
> (ii) the effectiveness of any proposed method of distributing relief to the class, including the method of processing class-member claims;
> (iii) the terms of any proposed award of attorneys' fees, including timing of payment; and
> (iv) any agreement required to be identified under Rule 23(e)(3).

"The risks and certainty of recovery in continued litigation are factors for the Court to balance in determining whether the Settlement is fair." Nobles v. MBNA Corp., No. 06-cv-03723-CRB, 2009 WL 1854965, at *2 (N.D. Cal. June 29, 2009).

The risks of continuing to litigate in this case are well-documented at this point. "Antitrust cases are particularly risky, challenging, and widely acknowledge[d] to be among the most complex actions to prosecute." In re Lithium Ion Batteries Antitrust Litig., 13-md-02420-DMR, 2020 WL 7264559, at *15 (N.D. Cal. Dec. 10, 2020). The estimated settlement value cannot be viewed in a vacuum; the court must evaluate the strengths and weaknesses of the case to determine the likelihood of recovering that value. See Cuzick v. Zodiac U.S. Seat Shells, LLC, No. 16-cv-03793-HSG, 2017 WL 4536255, at *6 (N.D. Cal. Oct. 11, 2017); see also Smith v. Am. Greetings Corp., No. 14-cv-02577-JST, 2015 WL 4498571, at *7 (N.D. Cal. July 23, 2015) (evaluating recovery in view of risks).

KPH, on behalf of DPPs, was one of five plaintiff groups proceeding to trial, and the plaintiff groups' claims often required diverging interests and trial strategies, not to mention different proofs at trial. The fact witnesses expected at trial were mostly experts and adverse defense witnesses. In addition, the subject matter was highly academic and complex. Roberts Decl. ¶¶ 4, 120. Although they believed mightily in their case, DPPs understood that there were significant risks in proving that Defendants violated the rule of reason, proving that DPP Class Members suffered damages, and proving that Gilead had market power, particularly after the Court denied Plaintiffs' motion for summary judgment and related motions in limine and Daubert motions on the topic. See ECF Nos. 1599 at 1, 27, (Summary Judgment Order), 1716 at 29-30 (Order re Motions in Limine), 1694 at 12-17 (Order re Plaintiffs' Daubert motions). As this Court has recognized, the jury verdict in favor of Defendants Gilead and Teva in the End Party Payer ("EPP"), Individual Health Plan Plaintiff ("IHPP"), and United trial underscores the seriousness of those risks. See Order Denying Set Aside, ECF No. 2136 at 8 n.5 (observing that "the reason why the Retailer Plaintiffs achieved success was because their counsel prepared for trial and made a good risk assessment, and not simply because they were effortlessly free riding on the coattails of the EPPs who made a different risk assessment"); see also Hrg. Tr. at 5, ECF No. 2114 (N.D. Cal. Sept. 21, 2023) ("there were obviously, [it] has become evident, that there were significant litigation risks. Particularly in light of the experience of the actual trial in this case of the EPPs, I think it underscores the fact that the litigation risks here warrant the recovery rate . . . ; it is nonetheless, still substantial and will yield substantial relief to the plaintiff class.").

The DPP Classes' recovery compares favorably to their potential recovery at trial. Before the Settlement, DPPs' economist, Dr. Russell Lamb, estimated the certified Classes' damages at approximately $2,080,000,000. See Roberts Decl. ¶ 14. Dr. Lamb's analysis calculated the difference between the amount Class Members paid for brand Truvada and Atripla that they purchased directly from Gilead against the amount they would have paid for lower-priced generic versions of Truvada and Atripla as early as May 2019—when generic Truvada and Atripla likely would have entered the market, based upon Plaintiffs' expert testimony, had Gilead not engaged in the anticompetitive conduct that delayed those generic versions. Dr. Lamb's analysis also calculated the difference between the amount Class Members paid for generic equivalents of Truvada and Atripla and the amount they would have paid for the same drugs had robust generic entry occurred as early as May 2019. The monetary relief of $246,750,000 to the Classes is 11.9% of the claimed damages the Classes stood to receive at trial if they successfully prosecuted their claim against Gilead.

Although Class Counsel still believe in the strength of DPPs' claims, the value and certainty of recovery here outweighed the obvious and serious risk of no recovery or a substantially reduced recovery. See Bellinghausen v. Tractor Supply Co., 303 F.R.D. 611, 624 (N.D. Cal. 2014) ("The Court considers that even if 'Plaintiffs were to prevail, they would be required to expend considerable additional time and resources potentially outweighing any additional recovery obtained through successful litigation,' and these delays will affect 'payment to the Class Members and increase the amount of attorneys' fees.'") (quoting Collins v. Cargill Meat Solutions Corp., 274 F.R.D. 294, 302 (E.D. Cal. 2011)). This factor weighs in favor of final approval.

a. The Settlement Treats Class Members Equitably Relative to One Another and the Claims Process is Straightforward.

The standard for approval of a proposed allocation plan is the same as the standard for approval of a class action settlement; each must be "fair, reasonable and adequate." See In re Citric Acid Antitrust Litig., 145 F. Supp. 2d 1152, 1154 (N.D. Cal. 2001) (citations omitted). An allocation plan is reasonable if it "reimburses class members based on the type and extent of their injuries." Id.

Per the Court's preliminary approval order, the first steps of the notice plan have been implemented: direct notice has been mailed along with pre-populated claims forms, a reminder notice has been mailed, media notice has been published, and a Settlement-specific settlement website has gone live. Peak Decl. ¶¶ 4-5, 6-13. Class Members can submit a claim through an online portal on the Settlement-specific website or by mailing their completed claim form. Class Members submitting their claims by either method that believe they have purchased different amounts than the pre-populated figures may submit documentation showing these purchases, subject to review by KCC with assistance from DPPs' economist Dr. Lamb as necessary. Plan of Allocation, S.A. Ex. H, ECF No. 2086-2 at 65 ¶ 9.

The Plan of Allocation provides a standardized method of calculating each Class Member's pro rata share of the Settlement based on the member's purchases, S.A. Ex. H, ECF No. 2086-2, as was previously approved in this case and has been approved in other antitrust cases brought by direct purchasers to recover overcharges. See, e.g., Order Granting DPPs' Mot. for Final Approval of Class Action Settlement with BMS ¶ 2, ECF No. 1524; see also In re Cathode Ray Tube (CRT) Antitrust Litig., No. 07-cv-05944-JST, 2016 WL 721680, at *21 (N.D. Cal. Jan. 28, 2016) (quoting In re TFT-LCD (Flat Panel) Antitrust Litig., No. 07-md-01827-SI, 2011 WL 7575004, at *4 (N.D. Cal. Dec. 27, 2011)) ("[I]n this District, a 'pro-rata [plan] for allocation has been used in many antitrust cases.'"); In re Lidoderm Antitrust Litig., No. 14-md-02521-WHO, 2018 WL 11375216, at *2 (N.D. Cal. Sept. 20, 2018).[7] The pro rata share is determined based on the Class Members' total volume of purchases of generic and brand Truvada and Atripla, weighted based on the drug purchased and whether it was generic or brand. S.A. Ex. H ¶¶ 12-14, ECF No. 2086-2. No set of Class Members are singled out for preferential or advantageous treatment; rather, all Class Members' share is calculated the same way. This factor weighs in favor of final approval.

[7] See also In re Glumetza Antitrust Litig., No. 19-cv-05822-WHA, 2022 WL 327707 (N.D. Cal. Feb. 3, 2022); In re Restasis (Cyclosporine Ophthalmic Emulsion) Antitrust Litig., No. 18-md-02819, 2020 WL 6193857, at *1 (E.D.N.Y. Oct. 7, 2020) ("Restasis"); In re Loestrin 24 Fe Antitrust Litig., No. 13-md-2472 (D.R.I. Jan. 22, 2020), ECF Nos. 1396-8, 1462 (approved Sept. 1, 2020); In re Lidoderm Antitrust Litig., No. 14-md-02521-WHO (N.D. Cal.), ECF Nos. 1004-5, 1004-6, 1054 (approved Sept. 20, 2018); In re Solodyn (Minocycline Hydrochloride) Antitrust Litig., No. 14-md-

b. Class Counsel's Requested Attorneys' Fees, Costs and Expenses, and Representative Plaintiff Service Award Are Reasonable.

Class Counsel's fee request is detailed below, but it is worth emphasizing that the parties agreed that the Court's resolution of Class Counsel's request for attorneys' fees, costs and expenses, and representative plaintiff service awards is not a precursor to the fairness, reasonableness, and adequacy of the Settlement. S.A. ¶ 12(b). Nor does the request impact whether any amount of the $246,750,000 will ever revert to Gilead, as the fund is non-reversionary. See Moreno v. Beacon Roofing Supply, Inc., No. 19-cv-00185-GPC(LL), 2020 WL 3960481, at *5 (S.D. Cal. July 13, 2020) (holding that non-reversionary aspect of settlement supported final approval under Rule 23(e)(2)(C)(ii)). The Settlement contains no "clear sailing arrangements," and Class Counsel do not request a disproportionate share of the Settlement. See Briseno, 998 F.3d at 1023. In other words, there are no red flags suggestive of collusion. When negotiating the Settlement, KPH and Gilead discussed that the Settlement would include a common fund; they otherwise did not discuss attorneys' fees, costs, and expenses or a representative-plaintiff service award until after all substantive elements of the Settlement were agreed upon. See Roberts Decl. ¶ 162. Furthermore, Class Counsel did not seek an award of attorneys' fees in connection with the $10.8 million BMS Settlement. See Roberts Decl. ¶ 56. This factor weighs in favor of final approval.

02503 (D. Mass.), ECF Nos. 1163-4, 1179 (approved July 18, 2018); In re Celebrex (Celecoxib) Antitrust Litig., No. 14-cv-00361 (E.D. Va.), ECF Nos. 609-4, 630 (approved Apr. 18, 2018); In re Aggrenox Antitrust Litig., No. 14-md-02516 (D. Conn.), ECF Nos. 733-1, 740 (approved Dec. 19, 2017); In re Asacol Antitrust Litig., No. 15-cv-12730 (D. Mass.), ECF Nos. 419-9, 648 (approved Dec. 7, 2017); King Drug Co. of Florence, Inc. v. Cephalon, Inc., No. 06-cv-01797 (E.D. Pa.), ECF Nos. 864-17, 870 (approved Oct. 15, 2015).

3. Class Members' Reaction to the Settlement Has Been Positive.

As noted above, the direct notice, publication notice, and initial reminder notice aspects of the notice program have been fully implemented.[8] While DPP Class Members have until January 1, 2024 to submit claim forms, 16 claim forms have already been received from known DPP Class Members and Class Counsel fully expect a robust claims rate similar to that experienced with the BMS Settlement. While DPP Class Members have until December 28, 2023 to object to the Settlement or DPPs' request for attorneys' fees, costs, and a service award, no objections have been filed to date.

This factor supports final approval, and Class Counsel expect DPP Class Members' positive response to the Settlement to continue.[9]

B. The Requested Attorneys' Fee Award Is Fair and Reasonable.

"In a certified class action, the court may award reasonable attorney's fees . . . that are authorized by law or by the parties' agreement." Fed. R. Civ. P. 23(h). The Supreme Court has recognized that "a litigant or a lawyer who recovers a common fund for the benefit of persons other than himself or his client is entitled to a reasonable attorney's fee from the fund as a whole." Boeing Co. v. Van Gemert, 444 U.S. 472, 478 (1980). In deciding whether the requested fee amount is appropriate, the Court's role is to determine whether such amount is "fundamentally fair, adequate, and reasonable." Staton v. Boeing Co., 327 F.3d 938, 963 (9th Cir. 2003) (quoting Fed. R. Civ. P. 23(e)).

Where a settlement creates a common fund, courts have discretion to use either the percentage-of-recovery method or the lodestar method to determine what constitutes a fair and

---

[8] Five notices were returned as undeliverable, and KCC conducted advanced address research and could not locate a different address. Peak Decl. ¶ 6. Once alerted that these notices had been returned as undeliverable, Class Counsel caused PDFs of the notice and relevant pre-populated claim form to be emailed to the respective counsel for four of these entities. Roberts Decl. ¶ 172. Class Counsel also emailed PDFs of the notice and pre-populated claim form to an employee of the fifth entity that Class Counsel had communicated with in connection with the BMS Settlement and confirmed by with a follow-up telephone call that the employee had received the email. Roberts Decl. ¶ 172.

[9] Because the Court did not order a second opt-out period following the opt-out period in connection with class certification, there are no further opt-outs to report. Once the notice plan concludes and the relevant deadlines have passed, Class Counsel will provide a full accounting of the number of claims received.

reasonable attorney fee award. In re Bluetooth Headset Prods. Liab. Litig., 654 F.3d 935, 942 (9th Cir. 2011) ("Bluetooth"). "The use of the percentage-of-the-fund method in common-fund cases is the prevailing practice in the Ninth Circuit for awarding attorneys' fees and permits the Court to focus on showing that a fund conferring benefits on a class was created through the efforts of plaintiffs' counsel." In re Apple Inc. Device Performance Litig., No. 18-md-02827-EJD, 2023 WL 2090981, at *12 (N.D. Cal. Feb. 17, 2023) ("Apple Device Performance Litig.") (quoting In re Korean Air Lines Co., Ltd. Antitrust Litig., No. 02-cv-05107, 2013 WL 7985367, at *1 (C.D. Cal. Dec. 23, 2013)); see In re Robinhood Outage Litig., No. 3:20-cv-01626-JD, 2023 WL 5321525, at *1 (N.D. Cal. July 28, 2023) (same). Courts employing the percentage-of-recovery method are also encouraged to "perform a cross-check by applying the lodestar method to confirm that the percentage-of-recovery amount is reasonable." In re Optical Disk Drive Prods. Antitrust Litig., 959 F.3d 922, 929-30 (9th Cir. 2020).

Although DPPs gave Class Members notice of their intent to seek an attorneys' fee request of up to 33 ⅓%, DPPs request a fee award of $75,000,000, which translates to 30.39% of the $246,750,000 Settlement Fund (or 29.1% of the total recovery DPP Counsel secured for the DPP Classes, including the BMS Settlement).[10] Application of the percentage-of-recovery method demonstrates the requested award compares favorably to awards in similar cases and is reasonable and appropriate considering the facts and circumstances of this litigation. A lodestar crosscheck further confirms the reasonableness of the requested award.

1. The Percentage-of-Recovery Method Supports the Requested Award.

"In common fund cases, the 25 percent benchmark for fee awards is merely a 'starting point for analysis' . . . [and] '[s]election of the benchmark or any other rate must be supported by findings that take into account all of the circumstances of the case.'" Senne v. Kansas City Royals Baseball Corp., No. 14-cv-00608-JCS, 2023 WL 2699972, at *14 (N.D. Cal. Mar. 29, 2023) (quoting Vizcaino v. Microsoft Corp., 290 F.3d 1043, 1048 (9th Cir. 2002), aff'd sub nom, Senne v. Concepcion, 2023 WL 4824938 (9th Cir. June 28, 2023). As the Court recognized in approving a [10] DPP Counsel did not request a fee award in connection with the $10,800,000 BMS Settlement. Roberts Decl. ¶ 56.

33% fee award in Hernandez v. Dutton Ranch Corporation, "[d]istrict courts within this circuit, including this Court, routinely award attorneys' fees that are one-third of the total settlement fund." No. 19-cv-00817-EMC, 2021 WL 5053476, at *6 (N.D. Cal. Sept. 10, 2021) (collecting authorities); see also In re Lidoderm Antitrust Litig., No. 14-md-0521-WHO, 2018 WL 4620695, at *4 (N.D. Cal. Sept. 20, 2018) ("Lidoderm") (recognizing in awarding a 33% fee award to DPP counsel in a pay-for-delay case that "a fee award of one-third is within the range of awards in this Circuit") (collecting authorities).

When determining the appropriate percentage to award, courts consider:

> [W]hether class counsel achieved exceptional results for the class, whether the case was risky for class counsel, whether counsel's performance generated benefits beyond the cash settlement fund, the market rate for the particular field of law (in some circumstances), the burdens class counsel experienced while litigating the case (e.g., cost, duration, foregoing other work), and whether the case was handled on a contingency basis.

Apple Device Performance Litig., 2023 WL 2090981, at *12 (citing In re Online DVD-Rental Antitrust Litig., 779 F.3d 934, 954–55 (9th Cir. 2015)) ("Online DVD") (internal quotations omitted).

Here, DPP Counsel obtained an excellent result for the DPP Classes and took on tremendous risk in expending 39,091 hours and advancing $5,387,478 in total costs and expenses prosecuting this novel and complex antitrust case on a contingent basis, in the face of a vigorous defense mounted by some of the nation's top defense lawyers on behalf of deep-pocketed pharmaceutical companies. DPPs' requested award of 30.39% of the recovery (or 29.1% of the total recovery from both Gilead and BMS) is less than the average fee award of 32.11% of the recovery in direct purchaser pay-for-delay class actions and well below the average fee award of 36% of the recovery in class actions that proceeded to trial. See Fitzpatrick Decl. ¶¶ 18, 20. These facts support approval of the requested award.

a. The Settlement Is an Excellent Result for the Classes.

The first factor, that is, the result achieved, is the "most critical" factor to consider. Apple Device Performance Litig., 2023 WL 2090981, at *12 (quoting Hensley v. Eckerhart, 461 U.S. 424, 436 (1983)). DPP Counsel secured a $246,750,000 non-reversionary settlement fund for the DPP

Classes, which equates to 11.9% of the single damages DPPs were seeking at trial.[11] This result is exceptional, considering the tremendous risks the DPP Class Members faced. Those risks were not theoretical, as three other plaintiff groups that went to trial against Gilead lost and received no recovery.

DPP Class Members' reactions support the reasonableness of the request. The DPP Classes are comprised of sophisticated drug wholesalers and their assignees— a group that has not been shy in the past about objecting to fee requests in reverse payment cases. See, e.g., In re Glumetza Antitrust Litig., No. 19-cv-5822-WHA, 2022 WL 327707, at *7 (Feb. 3, 2022) ("Glumetza") (three national wholesalers "likely represent[ing] over 90% of the subject purchases" objected to direct purchaser counsel's fee request equating to a 4.99 multiplier as "constitute[ing] a windfall"). While the deadline to object has not yet passed, no objections have been filed, and not a single DPP Class Member has informed Class Counsel that they intend to object to the Settlement or the fee request. To the contrary, Class Counsel has spoken with counsel of various DPP Class Members regarding the fee request (including the three largest DPP Class Members, that is, the three largest national wholesalers, which comprise over 90% of Truvada and Atripla purchases). No objections were made by any Class Members with whom Class Counsel spoke. Class Counsel was specifically authorized by counsel of the national wholesalers to confirm in this Motion that they do not object to the fee requested.

The absence of objections supports approval of the requested award. See Foster v. Adams & Assocs., Inc., No. 18-cv-02723-JSC, 2022 WL 425559, at *10 (N.D. Cal. Feb. 11, 2022); see also Fitzpatrick Decl. ¶¶ 16, 24 (noting that DPP Class Members had a strong incentive to object to the fee request and that if they thought the request "was unjustified they would object to it, as they have done in a small number of cases"). This factor supports the reasonableness of the requested award.

b. The Litigation Was Challenging and Posed a High Risk.

"Risk is a relevant circumstance" in analyzing a fee request. Vizcaino, 290 F.3d at 1048. "Antitrust cases are particularly risky, challenging, and widely acknowledge[d] to be among the most complex actions to prosecute." In re Lithium Ion Batteries Antitrust Litig., 2020 WL 7264559, at *15. As the Second Circuit once recognized, "the history of antitrust litigation is replete with cases in which antitrust plaintiffs succeeded at trial on liability, but recovered no damages, or only negligible damages, at trial, or on appeal." Wal-Mart Stores, Inc. v. Visa U.S.A., Inc., 396 F.3d 96, 118 (2d Cir. 2005) (internal quotations omitted). Given the defense verdict entered against other plaintiff groups, it cannot reasonably be disputed that prosecuting this case was a complex, risky, and challenging endeavor.

[11] $246,750,000 / $2,079,900,000 = .0119.

In contrast to certain other high-profile antitrust cases, no government agency prosecuted Defendants for the misconduct at issue in this case. As a result, DPPs did not have the luxury of utilizing or leveraging a preexisting investigation, indictments, or guilty pleas all but guaranteeing a massive recovery. See In re Nat'l Collegiate Athletic Ass'n ("NCAA") Athletic Grant-in-Aid Cap Antitrust Litig., No. 14-md-2541-CW, 2017 WL 6040065, at *6–7 (N.D. Cal. Dec. 6, 2017) (referencing cases in which "mere disclosure of a government investigation all but guarantees the creation of a megafund, notwithstanding what counsel does or does not do"). Instead, DPP Counsel dedicated 39,091 hours and spent $5,387,478 advancing this litigation on a contingent fee basis in the face of a vigorous defense mounted by attorneys from some of the nation's top law firms on behalf of their deep-pocketed clients. Throughout the litigation, DPP Counsel were faced with the real prospect that they may never receive any recovery for their efforts.

There were significant challenges to prosecuting this case. A number of legal theories were dismissed at the pleadings stage (overarching conspiracy) or the summary judgment phrase (conspiracy to monopolize based on reverse payments, no-generic restraints, the shelving of TAF, and other alleged misconduct), and the Court denied the DPPs' request to certify a class of Complera purchasers on numerosity grounds. The surviving reverse payment claim was based on the novel theory that the most-favored-entrant ("MFE") and most-favored-entrant-plus ("MFEP") clauses included the FTC settlement between Gilead and Teva constituted an illegal reverse payment. While DPP Counsel believed in this claim, there was no guarantee it would survive at trial or that they would be able to persuade a jury that the MFE/MFEP clauses constituted an illegal reverse payment to delay generic entry.

Complicating matters further, Teva waived privilege as to its internal assessments of Gilead's patents, the FTC patent litigation, and the FTC settlement, while Gilead cloaked itself in privilege to prevent its internal assessments seeing the light of day. Another obstacle was introduced when Defendants' market power expert took the view that traditional economic tests are inapplicable to the facts of this case, ensuring a battle of the experts on the issue of market power.

DPPs faced significant obstacles to prevailing while staring down the upcoming trial. At the time DPPs and Gilead agreed on the material terms of the Settlement, only two reverse payment cases had been tried to verdict before a jury, and a defense verdict was returned in both instances. DPP Counsel's trial preparation (including a DPP-only mock trial, two DPP-only focus group sessions, an all-plaintiffs' mock trial, and extensive discussions with their trial consultants) revealed that the highly complex terminology and concepts in this case were very likely to confuse many jurors. The trial was further complicated by the reality that DPPs were required to try the case in coordination with four other plaintiff groups (with many times diverging interests and trial strategy), the fact that key fact witnesses were current or former employees of Gilead or Teva or their outside counsel (that is, there were no whistleblowers), and the possibility that a jury could enter a verdict in favor of DPPs on liability but award no damages to DPPs. These risks were compounded by the fact that Gilead—one of the nation's largest and most profitable pharmaceutical companies—would be represented at trial by two of the nation's most well-regarded law firms. Vizcaino v. Microsoft Corp., 142 F. Supp. 2d 1299, 1303 (W.D. Wash. 2001) ("Class Counsel's risk was even greater, and their work made more difficult, because Microsoft is one of the nation's largest and most formidable companies and it, and several law firms, defended the case vigorously for several years."), aff'd 290 F.3d 1043 (9th Cir. 2002). This factor supports approval of the requested award.

c. The Skill and Experience of DPP Counsel Support the Requested Fee Award.

The Classes benefited from DPP Counsel's skill and expertise in prosecuting complex antitrust class actions. DPP Counsel shepherded DPPs' claims through multiple motions to dismiss and to compel arbitration; exhaustive discovery; class certification, a Rule 23(f) petition for leave to appeal certification of two DPP Classes, summary judgment and Daubert proceedings; pretrial briefings; and extensive trial preparation. Throughout that entire lengthy and complex process, DPP Counsel coordinated extensively with counsel from the other four plaintiff groups, DPPs' expert economist, Dr. Russell Lamb, Ph.D., and more than a dozen shared experts and consultants. Leveraging their expertise, DPP Counsel engaged in prolonged and hard-fought negotiations, assisted by Kenneth Feinberg, culminating in their securing the $246,750,000 Settlement for the benefit of the DPP Classes. This factor supports approval of the requested award. See, e.g., In re Capacitors Antitrust Litig., No. 3:14-cv-03264-JD, 2023 WL 2396782, at *1 (N.D. Cal. Mar. 6, 2023) (finding $66,000,000 proposed attorneys' fee award "amount[ing] to 40% of the Settlement Fund created by the present round of settlements, and a cumulative 31.01% of the total settlements reached for the Class . . . [to be] well within the range of reasonable fee[] awards, especially in light of the complexity of these antitrust cases, and the degree of work and skill required to obtain highly beneficial results for the class") (collecting authorities).

The quality of opposing counsel is a further testament to DPP Counsel's skill and expertise. See Apple Device Performance Litig., 2023 WL 2090981, at *14 (recognizing that courts "consider the quality of opposing counsel as a measure of the skill required to litigate the case successfully") (citation and internal quotations omitted). Here, DPP Counsel faced Gilead, BMS and, for all intents and purposes, third party Teva (after the Retailers entered the case). That Gilead, BMS, and Teva had tremendous financial resources at their disposal and were each represented by one or more highly-respected law firms with a history of mounting a vigorous defense on behalf of its clients— Gilead (White & Case, Kirkland & Ellis LLP, Proskauer Rose LLP), BMS (Arnold & Porter), Teva (Goodwin Procter)— evidences DPP Counsel's substantial skill in achieving the nearly quarter billion Settlement for the benefit of the DPP Classes. This factor supports approval of the requested award.

d. The Burden of Prosecuting this Litigation on a Contingent Basis Was Significant.

"When counsel takes cases on a contingency fee basis, and litigation is protracted, the risk of non-payment after years of litigation justifies a significant fee award." Apple Device Performance Litig., 2023 WL 2090981, at * 15 (internal quotation marks and citation omitted). With no guarantee of any recovery for their efforts, DPP Counsel dedicated 39,091 hours and $5,387,478.45 total to litigating this high-risk antitrust case for three years. Roberts Decl. ¶ 181. During the prosecution of this case, there were multiple and lengthy periods of time where litigation was so intense that a number of highly experienced attorneys from DPP Counsel firms were working full-time on this case alone. The resources required of this matter were so significant that Class Counsel were forced to turn down opportunities to work on other cases to devote the resources required to effectively advance this matter. See id. ¶ 70. This factor further supports the reasonableness of the DPPs' requested fee award. See, e.g. Davis v. Yelp, Inc., No. 18-cv-00400-EMC, 2023 WL 3063823, at *2 (N.D. Cal. Jan. 27, 2023) (recognizing that "a larger award of 33% is warranted because counsel risked significant amounts of their own funds and dedicated time and effort to litigate through the class certification process, the motion for summary judgment, expert retention, trial preparation, and the nearly $1 million counsel put at risk in advancing costs").

e. Awards in Similar Cases Support the Reasonableness of the Requested Award.

The requested award compares favorably to awards in similar cases. DPPs have retained Professor Brian T. Fitzpatrick, who is an expert in federal class action settlements and attorneys' fees. See Fitzpatrick Decl. attached as Exhibit 7 to the Roberts Decl. Professor Fitzpatrick's analysis demonstrates the requested award of 30.39% (or 29.1% taking the BMS Settlement into consideration) is substantially less than the 32.11% average fee award in pharmaceutical direct purchaser cases. See Fitzpatrick Decl. ¶ 18 (empirical analysis of fees awarded in connection with 38 direct purchaser pharmaceutical class actions shows that the average fee award in such cases was 32.11% and the median was 33.3%). The requested award is also well below the 36% average fee award in class actions that went to trial. Id. ¶ 20 (referencing William B. Rubenstein declaration recognizing that a 36% average fee award for the class action cases in his study that went to trial). As a result, this factor favors approval of the requested award.

DPPs recognize the $246,750,000 Settlement falls within the definition of settlements frequently referred to as mega-funds (which is of course a positive thing for the DPP Classes). The Ninth Circuit has repeatedly "declined to adopt a bright-line rule requiring the use of sliding-scale fee awards in megafund cases." In re Optical Disk Drive Prod. Antitrust Litig., 959 F.3d at 933 (citing Vizcaino, 290 F.3d at 1047)); see also In re Lidoderm Antitrust Litig., 2018 WL 4620695, at *4 ("There is no rule in the Ninth Circuit that requires a court to decrease the percentage of the fee award as the size of the settlement increases.") (internal quotation marks and citation omitted). "[T]he size of the fund is simply one factor courts look to when determining a reasonable fee . . . [and f]ederal district courts across the country have, in the class action settlement context, routinely awarded class counsel fees in excess of the 25% benchmark, even in so-called mega-fund cases." In re Lidoderm Antitrust Litig., 2018 WL 4620695, at *4 (collecting authorities).

Professor Fitzpatrick's empirical analysis demonstrates that the median and average awards in the direct purchaser pharmaceutical class actions with settlements between $100 million and $250 million were 32.78% and 30.7%, respectively. Fitzpatrick Decl. ¶ 22. Accordingly, the requested award is on par with awards entered in connection with similarly sized mega-fund settlements in direct purchaser pharmaceutical cases.

Importantly, none of the rationales put forth as justifying a sliding-scale approach in mega-fund cases are present. There is no windfall—DPP Counsel spent 39,091 hours litigating this case and the requested fee award equates to a reasonable lodestar multiplier of 2.19. Compare In re Lidoderm Antitrust Litig., 2018 WL 4620695, at *4 ("The rationales for awarding fees at or below the 25% benchmark in some cases – i.e., to avoid a windfall for class counsel – do not apply here."), with Glumetza, 2022 WL 327707, at *12 (concluding that a requested award translating to a 4.99 "would unfairly award class counsel a financial windfall").

The size of the Settlement is also not simply attributable to a large class size. See Gutierrez v. Wells Fargo Bank, N.A., 07-cv-05923-WHA, 2015 WL 2438274, at *5-7 (N.D. Cal. May 21, 2015). Instead, the opposite is true. As a result of their expertise and the incredible resources they devoted to this case, DPP Counsel were able to secure a massive recovery despite the small size of the DPP Classes. In re NCAA Athletic Grant-in-Aid Cap Antitrust Litig., 2017 WL 6040065, at *6–7 ("A megafund was created in this case despite the size of the classes, not because of it").

2. A Lodestar Crosscheck Confirms the Reasonableness of the Requested Award.

"As a final check on the reasonableness of requested attorneys' fees, courts often compare the amount counsel would receive under the percentage-of-recovery method with the amount counsel would have received under the lodestar method." Apple Device Performance Litig., 2023 WL 2090981, at *16 (quoting In re Nexus 6P Prods. Liab. Litig., No. 17-cv-02185-BLF, 2019 WL 6622842, at *13 (N.D. Cal. Nov. 12, 2019)). Courts engaging in a lodestar crosscheck "start by determining how many hours were reasonably expended on the litigation, and then multiply those hours by the prevailing local rate for an attorney of the skill required to perform the litigation." Moreno v. City of Sacramento, 534 F.3d 1106, 1111 (9th Cir. 2008). The aim of the lodestar crosscheck is to "do rough justice, not to achieve auditing perfection," and "trial courts need not, and indeed should not, become green-eyeshade accountants." In re Wells Fargo & Co. Shareholder Derivative Litig., 445 F. Supp. 3d 508, 526 (N.D. Cal. 2020) (citations and internal quotations omitted); see also In re Capacitors Antitrust Litig., No. 14-cv-03264-JD, 2018 WL 4790575, at *6 (N.D. Cal. Sept. 21, 2018) (quoting In re Rite Aid Corp. Sec. Litig., 396 F.3d 294, 306–307 (3d Cir. 2005) ("[T]he lodestar cross-check calculation need entail neither mathematical precision nor bean-counting. The district courts may rely on summaries submitted by the attorneys and need not review actual billing records.").

DPP Counsel spent 39,091 hours prosecuting the litigation for a collective lodestar of $34,281,869 calculated at current rates. Roberts Decl. ¶¶ 179, 181. The requested fee award of $75,000,000 equates to a multiplier of 2.19,[12] which is well within the range of lodestar multipliers regularly deemed reasonable in complex class action cases.

a. DPP Counsel Spent a Reasonable Number of Hours Advancing the Litigation.

This matter was hard-fought and intensely litigated from the beginning. Pursuant to the Court's Common Benefit Order (ECF No. 176), Class Counsel collected monthly common benefit time and expense submissions from DPP Counsel firms and audited those submissions to ensure their compliance with the directives set forth in that Order. Roberts Decl. ¶ 179. Class Counsel also thoroughly reviewed all DPP Counsel time submissions and made reductions and deletions of time as appropriate. Id.

[12] $75,000,000 / $34,281,869 = 2.1877.

As set forth in the accompanying Roberts Declaration, DPP Counsel collectively spent 39,091 hours opposing multiple motions to dismiss and to compel arbitration; engaging in extensive written discovery, including serving and responding to written discovery, serving more than a dozen third party subpoenas, and reviewing millions of pages of documents; preparing for and attending 90 depositions; briefing and arguing class certification; defending the petition for leave to appeal to the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals; working with thirteen testifying experts and various other subject-matter experts and consultants; and coordinating with other plaintiff groups to brief summary judgment and Daubert motions and various other pretrial submissions. Id. ¶¶ 8–125. DPP Counsel also spent significant time preparing for trial and participating in settlement negotiations assisted by Kenneth Feinberg. Id. ¶¶ 126–162. The hours reported by DPP Counsel were reasonable and necessary to effectively prosecute this case.[13]

b. DPP Counsel's Hourly Rates Are Reasonable.

In assessing the reasonableness of an attorney's hourly rate, courts consider whether the claimed rate is "in line with those prevailing in the community for similar services by lawyers of reasonably comparable skill, experience and reputation." Blum v. Stenson, 465 U.S. 886, 895-96 n.11 (1984). Because "attorneys in common fund cases must be compensated for any delay in payment," courts look to "current rates for all work done in the litigation" when applying a cross-check. Marshall v. Northrop Grumman Corp., No. 16-cv-6794, 2020 WL 5668935, at *2 (C.D. Cal. Sept. 18, 2020); see also Vizcaino, 290 F.3d at 1051; Ellis v. Costco Wholesale Corp., No. 04-cv-3341-EMC, 2014 WL 12641574, at *3 (N.D. Cal. May 27, 2014).

Here, the relevant legal community is San Francisco Bay Area attorneys specializing in complex antitrust class action litigation. DPP Counsel are highly regarded members of the bar with significant experience prosecuting antitrust cases and other complex class actions. DPP Counsel submitted the following hourly rates: attorneys with between 35 and 56 years of experience ($1,100 to $1,550 per hour), attorneys with between 20 and 34 years of experience ($760 to $1100 per hour); attorneys with between 8 and 19 years of experience ($650 to $920 per hour); attorneys with between 4 and 6 years of experience ($560 to $660); and paralegals ($150 to $360). Their hourly rates are in line with market rates in the San Franciso Bay Area. See, e.g., In re Animation Workers Antitrust Litig., No. 14-cv-4062-LHK, 2016 WL 6663005, at *6 (N.D. Cal. Nov. 11, 2016) (hourly rates for senior attorneys of between $845 and $1200 deemed reasonable); In re Volkswagen "Clean Diesel" Mktg., Sales Pracs., & Prods. Liab. Litig., No. 2672 CRB, 2017 WL 1047834, at *5 (N.D. Cal. Mar. 17, 2017) (finding hourly rates to be reasonable where the billing rates for partners ranged from $275 to $1600, $150 to $790 for associates, and $80 to $490 for paralegals).

[13] Attached as Exhibit 2 to each DPP Counsel's declaration is a chart detailing for each timekeeper from the declarant's firm: (1) the amount of time the timekeeper spent on each of the Court-approved billing activity codes, (2) the timekeeper's current hourly billing rate, (3) and the timekeeper's total lodestar in the case.

Multiplying the hours DPP Counsel spent advancing the litigation by their hourly rates results in a lodestar multiplier of 2.19, which is well within the range of lodestar multipliers routinely awarded in complex class actions. See Vizcaino, 290 F.3d at 1051 n.6 (9th Cir. 2002) (observing that lodestar multipliers ranging from one to four are frequently awarded in complex class actions); Apple Device Performance Litig., 2023 WL 2090981, at *18 (multiplier of 2.232 deemed reasonable); Glumetza, 2022 WL 327707, at *8 (multiplier of 2.2 deemed reasonable); McLeod v. Bank of Am., N.A., No. 16-cv-03294-EMC, 2019 WL 1170487, at *7 (N.D. Cal. Mar. 13, 2019) (multiplier of 3.5 deemed reasonable); Alexander v. FedEx Ground Package Sys., Inc., No. 05-cv-00038-EMC, 2016 WL 3351017, at *3 (N.D. Cal. June 15, 2016) (multiplier of three deemed reasonable).

C. The Costs and Expenses Requested Are Reasonable.

"In common fund cases, the Ninth Circuit has stated that the reasonable expenses of acquiring the fund can be reimbursed to counsel who has incurred the expense." In re High-Tech Employee Antitrust Litig., No. 11-cv-02509-LHK, 2015 WL 5158730, at *16 (N.D. Cal. Sept. 2, 2015) (citing Vincent v. Hughes Air W., Inc., 557 F.2d 759, 769 (9th Cir. 1997)). This is because "litigation expenses make the entire action possible," Online DVD, 779 F.3d at 953, and "[t]o allow the others to obtain full benefit from the plaintiff's efforts without contributing equally to the litigation expenses would be to enrich the others unjustly at the plaintiff's expense," Mills v. Electric Auto-Lite Co., 396 U.S. 375, 392 (1970).

DPPs request $2,887,478.45 for unreimbursed costs and expenses incurred by DPP Counsel firms in connection with the litigation.[14] Roberts Decl. ¶ 181. These costs and expenses include expert witness and consultant fees, mediation fees, travel costs (airfare, hotel, meals, etc.), document hosting/review platform costs, court fees, electronic research, service of process, deposition and court reporter fees, photocopies, and postage and delivery fees. Id. These costs and expenses were reasonably necessary for the continued prosecution of this litigation and incurred for the benefit of the DPP Classes with no guarantee that they would ever be reimbursed. Id. ¶¶ 185, 186. DPPs' request for reimbursement of $2,887,478.45 is reasonable and appropriate.

D. The Requested Class Representative Service Award Is Reasonable.

Service awards "intended to compensate class representatives for work undertaken on behalf of a class 'are fairly typical in class action cases.'" Online DVD, 779 F.3d at 943 (quoting Rodriguez v. W. Publ'g Corp., 563 F.3d 948, 958 (9th Cir. 2009)). The requested $40,000 service award is reasonable and justified given KPH's importance to DPPs' recovery and the time and effort it devoted to protecting the DPP Classes.[15]

To determine if a requested award is "reasonable," the Court "must evaluate their awards individually, using 'relevant factors include[ing] the actions the plaintiff has taken to protect the interests of the class, the degree to which the class has benefitted from those actions, . . . the amount of time and effort the plaintiff expended in pursuing the litigation . . . and the reasonabl[e] fears of . . . retaliation.'" Staton, 327 F.3d at 977 (quoting Cook v. Niedert, 142 F.3d 1004, 1016 (7th Cir. 1998)). In addition, a court should look to "the number of named plaintiffs receiving incentive payments, the proportion of the payments relative to the settlement amount, and the size of each payment." Online DVD, 779 F.3d at 947.

In this case, the requested service award is well-deserved. The $246,750,000 Settlement would not have been possible absent the actions of KPH and its employees. Prior to filing this case, [14] DPPs' request does not include the $2,500,000 they were reimbursed in connection with the BMS Settlement.

[15] KPH received a service award of $10,000 in connection with the BMS Settlement. As a result, KPH will receive service awards totaling $50,000 for its role in this litigation should the Court grant DPPs' request.

KPH worked with McKesson to obtain an assignment, and KPH reviewed the initial complaint. Roberts Decl. ¶ 182. From that time forward, KPH received regular updates from Class Counsel regarding the status of the litigation and reviewed filings (including additional complaints) brought to its attention by counsel. Working in coordination with Class Counsel, KPH provided responses and supplemental responses to Defendants' interrogatories, searched through hard-copy documents and electronically stored information to collect documents and data requested by Defendants, worked with others at McKesson regarding its collection of documents and data, and signed off on document productions. Id. ¶¶ 36–37. In all, KPH made six productions comprised of 11,152 documents totaling 26,345 pages. Id. ¶ 37.

KPH's employees spent a significant amount of time preparing to testify at KPH's 30(b)(6) deposition and at trial. KPH's corporate designee, Charles Aquilina, spent between eight and ten hours meeting with DPP counsel to prepare to testify at KPH's 30(b)(6) deposition and an additional five hours participating in that deposition. Id. ¶ 41. Additionally, Brian Scott, the KPH corporate representative designated to testify at trial, spent approximately 40 hours reviewing documents and working with Class Counsel preparing to testify (preparing outline, reviewing documents, practicing direct examination and cross-examination, etc.). Id. ¶ 148.

That KPH is the only class representative for the DPP Classes, and thus the only entity entitled to receive a service award, is very significant and further justifies an increased service award. See McLeod, 2019 WL 1170487, at *8 (quoting Garner v. State Farm Mut. Ins. Co., No. 08-cv-1365-CW(EMC), 2010 WL 1687832, at *17 (N.D. Cal. Apr. 22, 2010)) ("[U]nlike many class actions, where there are several class representatives, each of whom are entitled to incentive awards, here there was just one."). A service award in this amount is likewise appropriate relative to the settlement amount obtained from Gilead. This minimal amount represents 0.016% of the Gilead Settlement Fund. See Cuzick, 2017 WL 4536255, at *6 (quoting Bluetooth, 654 F.3d at 947). The requested $40,000 service award is reasonable and appropriate considering KPH's importance to the DPP Classes' recovery as the lone class representative and the significant work it performed to protect the DPP Classes interests. See, e.g., In re High-Tech Employee Antitrust Litig., 2015 WL 5158730, at *18 (noting that the service awards of $80,000 to four class representatives and $120,000 to one class representative were "in line with awards in other 'megafund' cases."); Nitsch v. Dreamworks Animation SKG Inc., No. 14-cv-04422-LHK, ECF 41 at 25-29 (awarding $90,000 each to three class representatives, in addition to the $10,000 each received from a prior settlement); Meijer, Inc. v. Abbott Labs., No. 07-cv-05985-CW, ECF 514 ¶ 14 (N.D. Cal. Aug. 11, 2011) (awarding $60,000 each to three class representatives); In re Static Random Access Memory (SRAM) Antitrust Litig., No. 07-md-01819-CW, ECF 1370 ¶ 6 and ¶ F (N.D. Cal. June 30, 2011) (awarding $50,000 to sole class representative).

IV. CONCLUSION

For all the foregoing reasons, KPH respectfully requests that the Court grant final approval to the Settlement; award $75 million in attorneys' fees and $2,887,478.45 in costs and expenses to be allocated by Class Counsel among the DPP counsel performing common benefit work; and approve a service award of $40,000 to Class Representative KPH.

Respectfully submitted,

Dated: November 21, 2023

LAW OFFICES OF FRANCIS O. SCARPULLA

By: /s/ Francis O. Scarpulla

FRANCIS O. SCARPULLA (SBN 41059)
fos@scarpullalaw.com
PATRICK B. CLAYTON (SBN 240191)
pbc@scarpullalaw.com
3708 Clay Street
San Francisco, CA 94118
Telephone: (415) 751-4193
Facsimile: (415) 788-0706

Liaison Counsel for Direct Purchaser Plaintiff Classes

ROBERTS LAW FIRM US, PC
MICHAEL L. ROBERTS (pro hac vice) mikeroberts@robertslawfirm.us
ERICH P. SCHORK (pro hac vice) erichschork@robertslawfirm.us
SARAH E. DELOACH (pro hac vice) sarahdeloach@robertslawfirm.us
1920 McKinney Avenue, Suite 700
Dallas, TX 75204
Telephone: (501) 821-5575

NASTLAW LLC
DIANNE M. NAST (pro hac vice)
dnast@nastlaw.com
DANIEL N. GALLUCCI (pro hac vice) dgallucci@nastlaw.com
MICHELE S. BURKHOLDER (pro hac vice) mburkholder@nastlaw.com
1101 Market Street, Suite 2801
Philadelphia, PA 19107
Telephone: (215) 923-9300
Facsimile: (215) 923-9302

Co-Lead Counsel fort the Direct Purchaser Plaintiff Classes

HAUSFELD LLP
MICHAEL D. HAUSFELD (pro hac vice) mhausfeld@hausfeld.com
888 16th St. NW, Suite 300
Washington DC 20006
Telephone: (202) 540-7200
Facsimile: (202) 540-7201

HAUSFELD LLP
MICHAEL P. LEHMANN (SBN 77152)
mlehmann@hausfeld.com
600 Montgomery Street, Suite 3200
San Francisco, CA 94111
Telephone: (415) 633-1908
Facsimile: (415) 358-4980

HAUSFELD LLP
BRENT W. LANDAU (pro hac vice) blandau@hausfeld.com
325 Chestnut Street, Suite 900
Philadelphia, PA 19106
Telephone: (215) 985-3273
Facsimile: (215) 985-3271

Counsel for the Direct Purchaser Classes

TAB 3A

IN THE UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
FOR THE SOUTHERN DISTRICT OF ILLINOIS

FIRST IMPRESSIONS SALON, INC., ROY MATTSON, KPH HEALTHCARE SERVICES a/k/a KINNEY DRUGS, INC., PIGGLY WIGGLY MIDWEST, LLC, individually and on behalf of all others similarly situated, Plaintiffs,
v.	Case No. 3:13-CV-00454-NJR
NATIONAL MILK PRODUCERS FEDERATION, COOPERATIVES WORKING TOGETHER, DAIRY FARMERS OF AMERICA, INC., LAND O'LAKES, INC., and AGRI-MARK, INC. d/b/a CABOT CREAMERY COOPERATIVE, INC., Defendants.

ORDER AWARDING ATTORNEY FEES, COSTS, AND CLASS REPRESENTATIVE SERVICE AWARDS

ROSENSTENGEL, Chief Judge:

Pending before the Court is a Motion for Attorney Fees and Costs (Doc. 531). For the reasons stated below, the Court grants the motion.

The Parties agreed to the proposed Settlement of this case in November 2019. (Doc. 521-1). On December 4, 2019, Plaintiffs' Motion for Preliminary Approval of Class Settlement (Doc. 521) was filed with the Court, and the Court's January 10, 2020 Preliminary Approval Order was entered. Notice was timely provided to the Class regarding the terms of the proposed settlement, and Plaintiffs moved for an award of attorney fees, costs, and Class Representative service awards. See Notice to the Court on the Completion of Class Notice Program (Doc. 533). On February 26, 2020, Plaintiffs timely filed their motion requesting Final Approval of the Settlement and their motion for attorney fees, reimbursement of costs, and service awards for the Class Representatives (Docs. 530, 531). Plaintiffs' Motion requested an award of attorney fees in the amount of thirty-three and one-third percent (33 1/3%) of the Settlement Fund, and of the accrued interest (Doc. 531 at 2). Plaintiffs also seek $5,271,266.99 as reimbursement of their attorney costs and Class Representative service awards of $25,000 for each of the four class representatives. Id.

In the Preliminary Approval Order, this Court directed that "[i]n the written objection, the Class Member must state his or her (or company) full name, address, and affirm that he, she or it, is a Class Member, and must state whether they intend to appear at the Final Fairness Hearing . . . Any documents supporting the objection must also be attached to the objection." (Doc. 525, ¶ 12). On February 18, 2020, an objection (Doc. 528) was filed in response to Plaintiffs' Motion for Attorney Fees and Costs by Matthew Robbins. Robbins has not complied with this Court's Preliminary Approval Order because he did not affirm that he is a Class member, he did not state whether he intended to appear at the Final Fairness Hearing, and he did not provide any supporting documentation. Plaintiffs timely responded to the objection on April 10, 2020. (Doc. 537). On April 27, 2020, the Court held a Fairness Hearing to consider whether the proposed Class Action Settlement was fair, reasonable, adequate, and in the best interests of the Class (specifically, the two subclasses). Robbins did not appear at the hearing.

Having thoroughly considered the Settlement Agreement, this Motion, the single objection thereto, memoranda, and the entire record in these proceedings, the Court FINDS:

1. Without proof that Robbins does in fact have standing to object, he lacks standing in this matter. See Pearson v. NBTY, Inc., 772 F.3d 778, 786 (7th Cir. 2014) (the objector must have a stake in the outcome of the award of attorney fees, as a member of the class, to have standing). Robbins did not provide the information required under paragraph fourteen of this Court's Preliminary Approval Order, and he has, therefore, waived his rights to object. (Doc. 525, ¶ 14).
2. Class counsel has requested attorney fees based on a percentage of the fund doctrine. This is the method utilized in this Circuit for calculating common fund attorney fees. Beesley v. Int'l Paper Co., 2014 WL 375432, at *2 (S.D. Ill. Jan. 31, 2014) ("When determining a reasonable fee, the Seventh Circuit Court of Appeals uses the percentage basis rather than a lodestar or other basis.")
3. A lodestar cross-check, although not required, underscores that the amount of Class Counsel's requested fees is reasonable. The fees awarded here are reasonable, based on such factors as: (a) the complexity of this antitrust case, (b) the experience and quality of the attorneys who litigated this case on behalf of Plaintiffs and the Class, (c) the Settlement fund established provides for significant payments to Class members, and (d) significant risks undertaken by Class Counsel.
4. Because there was no guarantee that Class Counsel would secure any recovery for the Class, for their services, or reimbursement for the expenses they had advanced in this contingent class action lawsuit, federal courts apply a risk adjustment multiplier. The average multiplier that results from this fee request falls well within the range approved in this District for contingent class representation.

5. An analysis by this Court of the factors that federal courts in this Circuit regularly consider shows that the proposed attorney fees requested have been well-earned by Class Counsel's litigation efforts, and they are fair, reasonable, and adequate to the Class.

6. The requested attorney fees, litigation costs, and service awards for the Class Representatives are fair, reasonable, and adequate.

7. This Court has previously appointed Don Barrett of Barrett Law Group, Dianne Nast of NastLaw, LLC, and Michael L. Roberts of Roberts Law Firm as Co-Lead Counsel for the Class.

8. The Court previously appointed and confirmed First Impressions Salon, Inc., Roy Mattson, Piggly Wiggly Midwest, LLC and KPH Healthcare Services, Inc. a/k/a Kinney Drugs, Inc. as Class Representatives (Doc. 521, ¶7). The Class Representatives have invested significant time and resources in this litigation by, among other things: familiarizing themselves with pleadings, responding to Defendants' discovery requests, producing documents, sitting for depositions, and preparing for trial.

CONCLUSION

For these reasons, Plaintiffs' Motion for Attorney Fees and Costs is GRANTED in its entirety. It is ORDERED that Class Counsel receive $5,271,266.99 as reimbursement of reasonable litigation costs from the initial payment of the settlement proceeds, which was deposited pursuant to the Settlement Agreement. It is further ORDERED that Class Counsel receive attorney fees in the amount of thirty-three and one-third percent (33 1/3%) of the $220 million common fund, and of accrued interest. The Court designates and authorizes the previously appointed Co-Lead Counsel, John (Don) W. Barrett of Barrett Law Group, PA, Dianne Nast of NastLaw, LLC, and Michael L. Roberts of Roberts Law Firm, in their sole discretion to distribute the attorney fees to co-counsel. Among the factors Co-Lead Counsel should consider are the consistency, quantum, duration, and intensity of the fee applicants' commitment to the litigation, participation and leadership in the various common benefit contributions performed, and the timing the common benefit work was performed. The attorney fees should be paid no sooner than the date when all the settlement proceeds are deposited into the class escrow fund for distribution to the class. It is further ORDERED that the Class Representatives receive service awards of $25,000 each.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

DATED: April 27, 2020

Nancy J. Rosenstengel

NANCY J. ROSENSTENGEL
Chief U.S. District Judge

TAB 3B

IN THE UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
FOR THE SOUTHERN DISTRICT OF ILLINOIS

FIRST IMPRESSIONS SALON, INC., individually and on behalf of all others similarly situated, et al., Plaintiffs v. NATIONAL MILK PRODUCERS FEDERATION, et al., Defendants.	Case No. 3:13-CV-00454-NJR-GCS

PLAINTIFFS' MOTION FOR ATTORNEYS' FEES AND COSTS AND INCORPORATED MEMORANDUM OF LAW

TABLE OF CONTENTS

Page

INTRODUCTION 1

BACKGROUND 2

I. Class Counsel Undertook Extraordinary Risks in Prosecuting This Action..... 2

II. Class Counsel Fiercely Litigated This Case for Eight Years and Settled Close to the Start of Trial. 4

III. The Settlement Is a Big Win for the Class. 5

ARGUMENT 6

I. Class Counsel's Request Reflects a Conservative Estimate of the "Market Price" for Attorneys' Fees—Especially Given That This Case Involved Big Risks and was close to Trial. 6

A. The market price is measured as a percentage of the fund. 6

B. Class Counsel's 33 1/3 % request reflects the ex ante market price under the facts of this case. 7

1. Fee agreements in other litigation support Counsel's fee request. 7

2. Courts in this Circuit regularly award fees of 33 1/3 % or higher. 8

3. The market rewards risk, and this case was tremendously risky..... 9

4. The market price typically increases as cases get closer to trial. 10

5. Class Counsel performed well and achieved a significant result for the Class. 11

6. Under these facts, the market does not reduce or taper fee percentages for larger recoveries, and neither should courts. 12

C. A lodestar cross-check, though unnecessary, also confirms the reasonableness of Class Counsel's request. 14

1. Class Counsel expended a reasonable number of hours on this incredibly hard-fought litigation. 14

2. Class Counsel's rates are reasonable under the facts of this case, and well below those recently approved for class action attorneys in this District. 15

3. The resulting lodestar multiplier reflects the risk Class Counsel undertook and falls below the mean in comparable cases. 16

TABLE OF CONTENTS
(continued)

Page

II. Class Counsel's Requested Costs Are Reasonable. 18
III. The Named Plaintiffs' Service Awards Are Reasonable. 19
CONCLUSION 20

TABLE OF AUTHORITIES

Page

Cases

Abbott v. Lockheed Martin Corp.,
No. 06-CV-701-MJR-DGW, 2015 WL 4398475 (S.D. Ill. July 17, 2015) 19

Banas v. Volcano Corp.,
47 F. Supp. 3d 957 (N.D. Cal. 2014) 18

Beesley v. Int'l Paper Co.,
No. 3:06-CV-703-DRH-CJP, 2014 WL 375432 (S.D. Ill. Jan. 31, 2014) ..... passim

Boeing Co. v. Van Gemert,
444 U.S. 472 (1980) 5, 17

City of Greenville v. Syngenta Crop Prot., Inc., 904 F. Supp. 2d 902 (S.D. Ill. 2012) 8, 14, 15, 16

Cook v. Niedert,
142 F.3d 1004 (7th Cir. 1998) 19

Cooper v. IBM Pers. Pension Plan,
No. CIV. 99-829-GPM, 2005 WL 1981501 (S.D. Ill. Aug. 16, 2005), rev'd and remanded on other grounds,
457 F.3d 636 (7th Cir. 2006) 6

Dial Corp. v. News Corp.,
317 F.R.D. 426 (S.D.N.Y. 2016) 18

Florin v. Nationsbank of Georgia, N.A.,
34 F.3d 560 (7th Cir. 1994) 6, 15, 16

Fosbinder-Bittorf v. SSM Health Care of Wisconsin, Inc.,
No. 11-CV-592-WMC, 2013 WL 5745102 (W.D. Wis. Oct. 23, 2013) 8

George v. Kraft Foods Glob., Inc.,
No. 1:07-CV-1713, 2012 WL 13089487 (N.D. Ill. June 26, 2012) 8

Gross v. Waywell,
628 F. Supp. 2d 475 (S.D.N.Y. 2009) 2, 9

Hale v. State Farm Mut. Auto Ins. Co., No. 12-0660-DRH, 2018 WL 6606079 (S.D. Ill. Dec. 16, 2018) 11, 12, 13, 20

Harman v. Lyphomed, Inc.,
945 F.2d 969 (7th Cir. 1991) 16

In re Air Cargo Shipping Serv. Antitrust Litig.,
No. 06-MD1775-JG-VVP, 2012 WL 3138596 (E.D.N.Y. Aug. 2, 2012) 11

In re Anthem, Inc. Data Breach Litig.,
No. 15-MD-02617-LHK, 2018 WL 3960068 (N.D. Cal. Aug. 17, 2018) 11

TABLE OF AUTHORITIES
(continued)

Page

In re AT & T Mobility Wireless Data Servs. Sales Tax Litig.,
792 F. Supp. 2d 1028 (N.D. Ill. 2011) 17

In re CertainTeed Fiber Cement Siding Litigation,
303 F.R.D. 199 (E.D. Pa. 2014) 18

In re Comverse Tech., Inc. Sec. Litig.,
No. 06-CV-1825 (NGG), 2010 WL 2653354 (E.D.N.Y. June 24, 2010) 11

In re Dairy Farmers of Am., Inc.,
80 F. Supp. 3d 838 (N.D. Ill. 2015) 8, 9, 13

In re Fasteners Antitrust Litigation, Civil Action No. 08–md–1912,
2014 WL 296954 (E.D. Pa. 2014) 18

In re FedEx Ground Package Sys., Inc., Employment Practices Litig., 251 F. Supp. 3d 1225 (N.D. Ind. 2017) 11

In re Flonase Antitrust Litig.,
951 F. Supp. 2d 739 (E.D. Pa. June 14, 2013) 8

In re Lithium Ion Batteries Antitrust Litig.,
No. 13-MD-02420-YGR, 2018 WL 3064391 (N.D. Cal. May 16, 2018) 11

In re Payment Card Interchange Fee and Merch. Discount Antitrust Litig.,
991 F. Supp. 2d 437 (E.D.N.Y. 2014), rev'd on other grounds, 827 F.3d 223 (2d Cir. 2016) 6

In re Relafen Antitrust Litig.,
231 F.R.D. 52 (D. Mass. 2005) 8

In re Synthroid Mktg. Litig. ("Synthroid I"),
264 F.3d 712 (7th Cir. 2001) ..... passim

In re Synthroid Mktg. Litig. ("Synthroid II "),
325 F.3d 974 (7th Cir. 2003) 13

Kirchoff v. Flynn,
786 F.2d 320 (7th Cir. 1986) 6

Kolinek v. Walgreen Co.,
311 F.R.D. 483 (N.D. Ill. 2015) 13

Martin v. Caterpillar Inc.,
No. 07-CV-1009, 2010 WL 11614985 (C.D. Ill. Sept. 10, 2010) 8

Nolte v. Cigna Corp.,
No. 07-cv-2046, Dkt. 413 (C.D. Ill. Oct. 15, 2013) 19

Northbrook Excess & Surplus Ins. Co. v. Procter & Gamble,
924 F.2d 633 (7th Cir. 1991) 17

TABLE OF AUTHORITIES
(continued)

Page

Ohio Sealy Mattress Mfg. Co. v. Sealy, Inc.,
585 F.2d 821 (7th Cir. 1978)……...2

Redman v. RadioShack Corp.,
768 F.3d 622 (7th Cir. 2014) 1

Schulte v. Fifth Third Bank,
805 F. Supp. 2d 560 (N.D. Ill. 2011) 8, 10, 17

Silverman v. Motorola Solutions, Inc.,
739 F.3d 956 (7th Cir. 2013) ..... passim

Spano v. Boeing Co.,
No. 06-CV-743-NJR-DGW, 2016 WL 3791123 (S.D. Ill. Mar. 31, 2016)..... 6, 8, 15, 19

Standard Iron Works v. ArcelorMittal,
No. 08 C 5214, 2014 WL 7781572 (N.D. Ill. Oct. 22, 2014)..... 8

Sutton v. Bernard,
504 F.3d 688 (7th Cir. 2007) 5

Taubenfeld v. AON Corp.,
415 F.3d 597 (7th Cir. 2005) 7, 10

Will v. Gen. Dynamics Corp.,
No. CIV. 06-698-GPM, 2010 WL 4818174 (S.D. Ill. Nov. 22, 2010)..... 9, 14

Williams v. Rohm & Haas Pension Plan,
658 F.3d 629 (7th Cir. 2011) 6

Young v. Cnty. of Cook,
No. 06 C 552, 2017 WL 4164238 (N.D. Ill. Sept. 20, 2017)..... 9, 13

Rules

Fed. R. Civ. P. 23(f)..... 4

Other Authorities

Theodore Eisenberg & Geoffrey P. Miller, Attorney Fees in Class Action Settlements: An Empirical Study, 1 J. Empirical Legal Stud. 27, 70 (2004)..... 19

David L. Schwartz, The Rise of Contingent Fee Representation in Patent Litigation, 64 ALABAMA LAW REVIEW 335 (2012)…….8, 11

In accordance with this Court's January 10, 2020 Memorandum and Order (Doc. No. 525), Plaintiffs hereby respectfully request that the Court grant this Motion for Attorneys' Fees, Costs and Class Representative Service Awards.

INTRODUCTION

This litigation was an eight-year battle that involved a mountain of discovery numerous depositions, multiple discovery hearings, class certification proceedings, and extensive motion practice that was snowballing into potentially an intense and complex antitrust trial. See Declaration of Dianne M. Nast in Support of Plaintiffs' Motions for Final Approval of Settlement and for Attorneys' Fees and Costs ("Nast Decl."), at ¶ 10. Plaintiffs had achieved class certification and survived a motion to dismiss and multiple trips to the Seventh Circuit. Before trial was to begin, summary judgment motions were filed by both parties and were pending along with motions in limine, a Daubert motion to exclude Plaintiffs' expert, and a motion to decertify the Class. Id. at ¶ 14.

The Parties' initial mediation process was overseen by Court-appointed, former Federal District Judge Daniel Weinstein (Ret.), but that mediation process concluded in June of 2018, and the Parties continued to litigate. Id. at ¶ 12. Settlement negotiations resumed in May 2019, several months before this case was scheduled for trial. Id. at ¶ 13. As before, these settlement negotiations were conducted in good faith and at arm's length. Id.

During the second round of mediation—and with the continued assistance of the Court-appointed mediator—the Parties reached an agreement to settle Plaintiffs' antitrust claims for a non-reversionary fund of $220 million. Id. at ¶ 16. In light of the complexity of the issues, the risk of trial, and the appeals that could follow, this is an extraordinary result for the Class.

For the many years of risky, expensive, and labor-intensive work that Class Counsel[1] expended to achieve this result, they seek fees equaling thirty-three and one-third percent (33 1/3%) of the common fund (but net of administrative costs[2]) and $5,271,266. 99 in expenses. As confirmed by well-settled case law concerning attorney fees in the class action context, Class Counsel's request is reasonable, customary and fully supported by both the facts and law. The same is true for the requested service awards for each of the four Class Representatives (First Impressions Salon, Inc., Roy Mattson, Piggly Wiggly Midwest, LLC and KPH Healthcare Services, Inc. a/k/a Kinney Drugs, Inc.).

BACKGROUND

I. Class Counsel Undertook Extraordinary Risks in Prosecuting This Action.

When this case was initially filed, it was in many ways an uphill battle. Successful antitrust actions are very difficult to try to a jury. See, e.g., Ohio Sealy Mattress Mfg. Co. v. Sealy, Inc., 585 F.2d 821, 841 (7th Cir. 1978) ("While the challenges and subtleties of antitrust law often hold a strong fascination for lawyers, a trial such as this one could hardly be expected to keep the average lay juror on the edge of his or her seat….").

Plaintiffs' early effort to obtain partial summary judgment early on was denied, albeit without prejudice, followed by Plaintiffs clash with Defendants over Plaintiffs' motion to substitute a Plaintiff-party, a motion which was granted by this Court. Dkt. 216. See also Nast Decl. at ¶ 6. Next, Defendants filed a motion seeking to dismiss the Complaint and Strike certain Class allegations, resulting in the dismissal of one of the named Plaintiffs that this Court determined did not have antitrust standing. Id. at ¶ 7 (citing Ct. Mem. Op., dated 10/05/2016) (Dkt. 250). Through diligent advocacy, however, Plaintiffs defeated, at least temporarily, the remainder of Defendants' dismissal motion.[3]

[1] The three attorneys serving as Co-Lead Counsel for the Class include: Michael Roberts, Dianne Nast, and Don Barrett. In addition to Co-Lead Counsel's law firms, other law firms participated in this case on behalf of Plaintiffs, and they include Neal & Harwell, Kohn Swift & Graf, Michael Fishbein, Levin Sedran & Berman, Nussbaum Law Group, and Vanek Vickers & Masini/Sperling Slater.

[2] See Redman v. RadioShack Corp., 768 F.3d 622, 630 (7th Cir. 2014) ("[A]dministrative costs should not have been included in calculating the division of spoils between class counsel and class members.").

Subsequently, Plaintiffs successfully sought and were granted certification of two sub-classes on September 29, 2017. However, Defendants continued to challenge Class certification in a Rule 23(f) appeal filed with the Seventh Circuit, which was resolved on February 15, 2018, after Defendants' Petition for Rehearing and Rehearing En Banc was denied. Nast Decl. at ¶ 8.

The parties then engaged in extensive fact discovery on multiple fronts, consisting of review and analysis of hundreds of thousands of pages of document discovery, interrogatories and requests for admissions, thirty-six (36) depositions, preparation of expert reports, and multiple discovery proceedings before Magistrates Williams and Sison regarding discovery disputes that could not be resolved by meet-and-confers between the parties. Id. at ¶ 9.

By the time the parties were able to finally reach an agreement to settle this case, they were well-prepared for trial. But that does not undermine the complexity and uncertainty of the challenges Plaintiffs still faced, as Defendants' summary judgment motion, motions in limine, and their motion to decertify were all pending shortly before trial was scheduled to begin.

Thus, right up until the time of trial, Plaintiffs still faced significant risks, and there was no guarantee they would prevail. Indeed, Defendants repeatedly advanced a number of strong legal challenges, any one of which could have resulted in complete dismissal of the case. Those challenges included, among others: the Capper-Volstead and Filed-Rate doctrines, lack of standing, and the statute of limitations. These issues were briefed extensively in summary judgment filings, which were among other motions that were pending at the time of trial. See, e.g., Dkt. Nos. 430, 436, 453, 512, and 513; see also Nast Decl. at ¶ 10 & Ex. A thereto (list of contested motions).

[3] Other bases for Defendants' motion – including the statute of limitations and the filed-rate doctrine – would later resurface in a summary judgment motion filed by Defendants a few months before trial was scheduled to begin. (Doc. No. 430).

In sum, this lawsuit was always risky, challenging and required unwavering determination by Plaintiffs to forge ahead, despite the obstacles that Defendants and their counsel placed in the path of Plaintiffs every step of the way.

II. Class Counsel Fiercely Litigated This Case for Eight Years and Settled Close to the Start of Trial.

To say this case was hard fought would be an understatement. Some of the Defendants here, Dairy Cooperatives, are among the biggest in the United States. They were operating with virtually unlimited resources, and—as demonstrated in this case—they had little interest in settling. Instead, Defendants mounted a formidable defense, advanced by some of the largest law firms and most reputable litigators in the country.

Over the course of the litigation, Class Counsel (1) engaged in lengthy discovery and investigation; (2) briefed numerous contested motions; (3) carefully reviewed hundreds of thousands of pages of documents and evidence necessary to prove their case; (4) took and defended many depositions; (5) participated in multiple discovery hearings before the Magistrate Judges, most of which were preceded by lengthy meet and confers and letter briefs not filed on the docket; (6) worked with expert witnesses, who prepared expert reports; and (7) were making substantial preparations for trial. See Nast Decl. at ¶ 9 and Exhibits A-C thereto.

This case took substantial resources to litigate. In all, Class Counsel dedicated 44,890.55 hours (and $27,936,103.00 in lodestar) to this litigation. See Nast Decl. ¶ 23. Class Counsel also advanced $5,271,266. 99 in out-of-pocket costs, all of which was needed to secure experts, jury and trial consultants, and other services necessary to go toe-to-toe with motivated and well-funded defendants. Id. at ¶ 28. As a result, Class Counsel essentially have risked tens of millions of dollars – and risked losing it all on the outcome of this case. They did so without hesitation in the years-long pursuit of the best possible result for the Class.

III. The Settlement Is a Big Win for the Class.

The full terms of the Settlement, and the reasons it should receive final approval, are set forth in the simultaneously-filed motion for final approval of the Settlement, but two points are worth mentioning here. First, $220 million, less fees and costs, will go to the Class. Nast Decl., ¶ 16 and Exhibit F to Nast Decl. (Plan of Distribution). Second, the risks at trial and beyond were significant. Plaintiffs believed they had a strong case, but knew that if they did win at trial, an appeal was inevitable.[4] In the best-case scenario, this would have meant several more years before the Class could recover a dime. In the worst case—a very real possibility, for all the reasons stated above—the Class would have recovered nothing at all. See Nast Decl. at ¶ 14 ("Plaintiffs believed they had a strong case; however, given these pending motions were unresolved and could substantially affect the parties' positions, a great deal of uncertainty existed as the trial approached."). Counsel fought long and hard and would never have inked a deal that they did not feel confident was in the best interests of the Class.

[4] Defendants had similar concerns. See NMPF News Release, "Cooperatives Working Together Settlement Lifts Legal Cloud," dated 12/04/2019 at https://www.nmpf.org/cooperatives-working-together-settlement-lifts-legal-cloud/ ("NMPF's decision to enter into this settlement recognized the uncertainties inherent in any jury trial, the very large damages sought by the plaintiffs and the fact that the successful Export Assistance Program is entirely unaffected by the settlement.").

ARGUMENT

I. Class Counsel's Request Reflects a Conservative Estimate of the "Market Price" for Attorneys' Fees—Especially Given That This Case Involved Big Risks and was close to Trial.

"[L]awyer[s] who recover[] a common fund . . . [are] entitled to a reasonable attorney's fee from the fund as a whole." Boeing Co. v. Van Gemert, 444 U.S. 472, 478 (1980); see also Sutton v. Bernard, 504 F.3d 688, 691 (7th Cir. 2007). "[W]hen deciding on appropriate fee levels in common-fund cases," like this one, courts in the Seventh Circuit "must do their best to award counsel the market price for legal services, in light of the risk of nonpayment and the normal rate of compensation in the market at the time." In re Synthroid Mktg. Litig. ("Synthroid I"), 264 F.3d 712, 718 (7th Cir. 2001); accord Williams v. Rohm & Haas Pension Plan, 658 F.3d 629, 635 (7th Cir. 2011) ("[T]he district court must try to assign fees that mimic a hypothetical ex ante bargain between the class and its attorneys."). There is little question that, under the facts of this case, the ex ante market price for Class Counsel's services was no less than thirty-three and one-third percent (33 1/3%) of the common fund.

A. The market price is measured as a percentage of the fund.

Although courts in this Circuit have the discretion to use either a percentage of the fund or lodestar methodology, Florin v. Nationsbank of Georgia, N.A., 34 F.3d 560, 566 (7th Cir. 1994), the percentage method is employed by the Seventh Circuit. Cf. Beesley v. Int'l Paper Co., No. 3:06-CV-703-DRH-CJP, 2014 WL 375432, at *2 (S.D. Ill. Jan. 31, 2014) (Herndon, J.) ("When determining a reasonable fee, the Seventh Circuit Court of Appeals uses the percentage basis rather than a lodestar or other basis.").[5] This makes sense, because "it is essentially unheard of for sophisticated lawyers to take on a case of this magnitude and type on any basis other than a contingency fee, expressed as a percentage of the relief obtained." In re Payment Card Interchange Fee and Merch. Discount Antitrust Litig., 991 F. Supp. 2d 437, 440 (E.D.N.Y. 2014), rev'd on other grounds, 827 F.3d 223 (2d Cir. 2016). Thus, where, as here, "the 'prevailing' method of compensating lawyers for 'similar services' is the contingent fee, then the contingent fee is the 'market rate.'" Kirchoff v. Flynn, 786 F.2d 320, 324 (7th Cir. 1986) (emphasis in original).

[5] See also, e.g., Cooper v. IBM Pers. Pension Plan, No. CIV. 99-829-GPM, 2005 WL 1981501, at *3 (S.D. Ill. Aug. 16, 2005), rev'd and remanded on other grounds, 457 F.3d 636 (7th Cir. 2006) ("The approach favored in the Seventh Circuit is to compute attorney's fees as a

B. Class Counsel's 33 1/3 % request reflects the ex ante market price under the facts of this case.

Here, Class Counsel's request for thirty-three and one-third percent (33 1/3 %) is in line with the percentage class members regularly agree to pay attorneys in complex class actions.[6] This is true for a number of reasons.

1. Fee agreements in other litigation support Counsel's fee request.

Empirical data shows that sophisticated clients and sophisticated named plaintiffs regularly agree to pay thirty-three and one-third percent (33 1/3 %) or more in risky, complex litigation, even when potential rewards are enormous. Indeed, fee percentages in this range are common in patent and other large commercial cases, as well as in class actions led by sophisticated business entities.

For example, one empirical study found that in patent cases "the contingent rates are similar to the 'one-third' that a stereotypical contingent personal injury lawyer charges," and that percentage of the benefit conferred on the class."); Spano v. Boeing Co., No. 06-CV-743-NJR-DGW, 2016 WL 3791123, at *2 (S.D. Ill. Mar. 31, 2016) (same); Nolte v. Cigna Corp., No. 2:07-CV-2046-HAB-DGB, 2013 WL 12242015, at *2 (C.D. Ill. Oct. 15, 2013) (same).

---

[6] The attorney-client agreements in this case do not reference a specific percentage. Instead, they simply say that fees are contingent and will be determined by the Court.

the mean rate percentage was 38.6% for flat percentage contracts:

> On the whole, the contingent rates are similar to the "one-third" that a stereotypical contingent personal injury lawyer charges. There are two main ways of setting the fees for the contingent fee lawyer: a graduated rate and a flat rate. Of the agreements using a flat fee reviewed for this Article, the mean rate was 38.6% of the recovery. The graduated rates typically set milestones such as "through close of fact discovery," "through trial," and "through appeal," and tied rates to recovery dates. As the case continued, the lawyer's percentage increased. Of the agreements reviewed for this Article that used graduated rates, the average percentage upon filing was 28% and the average through appeal was 40.2%.

David L. Schwartz, The Rise of Contingent Fee Representation in Patent Litigation, 64 ALABAMA LAW REVIEW 335, 360 (2012). In a case like this one that lasted about eight years and was settled close to the time that trial was to begin, the high-end of the graduated rates would apply. In addition, there are multiple examples of multi-million-dollar settlements in pharmaceutical antitrust cases awarding thirty-three and one-third percent (33 1/3 %) in fees plus expenses. See, e.g., In re Flonase Antitrust Litig., 951 F. Supp. 2d 739 (E.D. Pa. June 14, 2013) ($150 million settlement with fee award of 33 1/3% plus expenses); In re Relafen Antitrust Litig., 231 F.R.D. 52 (D. Mass. 2005) ($75 million settlement with fee award of 33 1/3% plus expenses). Thus, the market consisting of sophisticated entities in comparable contexts routinely produces fee agreements at and sometimes above the percentage Class Counsel request here.

2. Courts in this Circuit regularly award fees of 33 1/3 % or higher.

Another relevant data point for the market price for attorneys' fees is those awarded in "analogous class action settlements." Taubenfeld v. AON Corp., 415 F.3d 597, 600 (7th Cir. 2005); accord Silverman v. Motorola Solutions, Inc., 739 F.3d 956, 958 (7th Cir. 2013). This metric, too, confirms the reasonableness of Class Counsel's request.

As a starting point, many courts within the Seventh Circuit have awarded percentage fees of thirty-three and one-third percent (33 1/3 %) or higher to class counsel.[7] Moreover, the most recent empirical study on class action fee awards shows that the average fee in the Seventh Circuit—without regard to complexity, risk, duration, or results—is thirty-one and six-tenths percent (31.6%).[8] These statistics alone, however, do not tell the full story, because they do not account for the riskiness of the case, the fact that Class Counsel settled on the verge of the scheduled trial, or the quality of Counsel's performance in litigating the case. Each of these factors, as discussed below, further supports Counsel's request.

3. The market rewards risk, and this case was tremendously risky.

"The greater the risk of walking away empty-handed, the higher the award must be to

---

[7] See, e.g., Young v. Cnty. of Cook, No. 06 C 552, 2017 WL 4164238, at *6 (N.D. Ill. Sept. 20, 2017) (awarding thirty three and one-third percent (33 1/3 %) of $52 million common fund and overruling objections calling for sliding scale approach); Spano, 2016 WL 3791123, at *2 ("A one-third fee is consistent with the market rate in settlements concerning this particularly complex area of law."); In re Dairy Farmers of Am., Inc., 80 F. Supp. 3d 838, 862 (N.D. Ill. 2015) (awarding one third plus expenses of $46 million common fund); Standard Iron Works v. ArcelorMittal, No. 08 C 5214, 2014 WL 7781572, at *1 (N.D. Ill. Oct. 22, 2014) ("The Court finds that a 33 % fee [of $163.9 million common fund] comports with the prevailing market rate for legal services of similar quality in similar cases."); Beesley, 2014 WL 375432, at *4 (Herndon, J.) (awarding one third of common fund); Fosbinder-Bittorf v. SSM Health Care of Wisconsin, Inc., No. 11-CV-592-WMC, 2013 WL 5745102, at *1 (W.D. Wis. Oct. 23, 2013) (same); George v. Kraft Foods Global, Inc., No. 1:07-CV-1713, 2012 WL 13089487, at *4 (N.D. Ill. June 26, 2012) (same); City of Greenville v. Syngenta Crop Prot., Inc., 904 F. Supp. 2d 902, 908–09 (S.D. Ill. 2012) (awarding one-third of $105 million settlement plus roughly $8.5 million in costs and holding that "[w]here the market for legal services in a class action is only for contingency fee agreements, and there is a substantial risk of nonpayment for the attorneys, the normal rate of compensation in the market is 33.33% of the common fund recovered."); Schulte v. Fifth Third Bank, 805 F. Supp. 2d 560, 601 (N.D. Ill. 2011) (awarding one third of common fund); Will v. Gen. Dynamics Corp., No. CIV. 06-698-GPM, 2010 WL 4818174, at *4 (S.D. Ill. Nov. 22, 2010) (same); Martin v. Caterpillar Inc., No. 07-CV-1009, 2010 WL 11614985, at *2 (C.D. Ill. Sept. 10, 2010) ("[C]ourts in the Seventh Circuit award attorney fees 'equal to approximately one-third or more of the recovery.' The Seventh Circuit itself has specifically noted that 'the typical contingent fee is between 33 and 40 percent.'").

[8] Three leading empirical studies of attorney's fee awards[19] have found that the average fee in the Seventh Circuit is thirty one and six-tenths percent (31.6%) (2006-2011 data); 27.4% (2006-2007 data); and 26% (1993-2008 data). These data are set forth, with citations to the underlying studies, in Newberg on Class Actions, supra note 3, at § 15:83 tbl. 2.

attract competent and energetic counsel." Silverman, 739 F.3d at 958; accord, e.g., Synthroid I, 264 F.3d at 721 (The market rate must account for the "risk of non-payment a firm agrees to bear."). That is, if this case was riskier than the average case, we would have expected the lawyers in a competitive market to demand an above-average fee percentage to take it on.") (emphasis in original). Thus, "[w]hen determining the reasonableness of a fee request, courts put a fair amount of emphasis on the severity of the risk (read: financial risk) that class counsel assumed in undertaking the lawsuit." Dairy Farmers, 80 F. Supp. 3d at 847-48.

For all the reasons set forth above, this case was about as risky as a case could be. The case involved highly complex legal and damages issues. Plaintiffs paid out-of-pocket millions in expert fees to hire expert econometric experts, Plaintiffs engaged in intense motion practice, and had this case fully prepared to try, in part, through working closely with their trial consultant and having conducted focus group sessions and mock trial proceedings. Plaintiffs deciphered millions of pages of documents, deposed several witnesses, and defended depositions taken by Defendants. This trial was slated to last several days, and Plaintiffs were fully prepared. Given that courts routinely award thirty-three and one-third percent (33 1/3 %) and that (according to at least one study) the average fee award in this Circuit is thirty-one and six-tenths percent (31.6%), a market that "put[s] a fair amount of emphasis on the severity of the [ex ante] risk" surely would set a reasonable attorneys' fees in this outlier case at no less than thirty-three and one-third percent (33 1/3 %), if not higher. See Dairy Farmers, 80 F. Supp. 3d at 847-48.

4. The market price typically increases as cases get closer to trial.

Sophisticated clients also recognize that even contingent-fee attorneys' compensation should, to a certain degree, reflect the amount of work performed. As mentioned above, plaintiffs in the market for legal representation often pay their lawyers with bifurcated rates that call for a higher percentage as their lawyers get closer to taking their cases to trial. See Schwartz, The Rise of Contingent Fee Representation in Patent Litigation, 64 ALABAMA LAW REVIEW at 360. Courts recognize this as well and award fees reflecting this market tendency and, while trials are rare, it is understandable that cases progressing closer to trial resulted in fees closer to forty percent (40%). See Hale v. State Farm Mut. Auto Ins. Co., No. 12-0660-DRH, 2018 WL 6606079, *11 (S.D. Ill. Dec. 16, 2018) (citing and agreeing with Syngenta, 2018 WL 6436074 at *14, that one-third fee is customary in contingent fee cases and often higher in complex cases or cases that proceed to trial). Taking this into account, and how close this litigation was to trial, Class Counsel's fee request proves even more reasonable.

5. Class Counsel performed well and achieved a significant result for the Class.

Of course, courts consider not just the level of risk and amount of work performed, but also quality of the work. Taubenfeld, 415 F.3d at 600 (7th Cir. 2005) (noting that the "evidence of the quality of legal services rendered" is among the "type[s] of evidence needed to mimic the market per Synthroid I"); Schulte 805 F. Supp. 2d at 597 (Compensation also depends on "the quality of [counsel's] performance."). Class Counsel's work here, and the result they achieved, are both noteworthy. As described above, over the course of eight years that included extensive discovery and numerous contested motions, Counsel navigated a minefield of legal and factual challenges, certified a nationwide class, survived a motion to dismiss, battled for and against motions for summary judgment, defeated a Rule 23(f) appeal of class certification to the Seventh Circuit, and prepped the case for the beginning of trial. Given the difficulty of prevailing with complex antitrust claims, this was no small feat. The result of this diligent advocacy and dogged effort is a substantial Settlement that affords significant cash relief to the Class. This factor, too, supports Class Counsel's request.

6. Under these facts, the market does not reduce or taper fee percentages for larger recoveries, and neither should courts.

Both the actual market for legal services, and the Seventh Circuit, have flatly rejected the notion that counsels' fee percentages should decrease as the recoveries they secure increase. As Judge Easterbrook observed, "[p]rivate parties would never contract for such an arrangement, because it would eliminate counsel's incentive to press for more [money] from the defendants." Synthroid I, 264 F.3d at 718. The Seventh Circuit has therefore disapproved a cap that would limit attorney fee percentages in large cases. Id.; see also In re FedEx Ground Package Sys., Inc., Employment Practices Litig., 251 F. Supp. 3d 1225, 1239 (N.D. Ind. 2017) ("Our court of appeals . . . has rejected the concept behind the 'megafund' theory").

This makes sound economic sense, and scores of courts in this Circuit and elsewhere have awarded high percentages to class counsel in cases involving large settlements. Indeed, Professor Charles Silver, in Hale, 2018 WL 6606079 (S.D. Ill.), compiled a table of 63 cases (in addition to those discussed elsewhere in his report) with recoveries between $100 million and $1.08 billion in which courts awarded fee percentages of 25% or greater, 19 of which were equal to or greater than 33 1/3 %. See Nast Decl., Exhibit D. There are many more examples.[9] Accordingly, there is no sound reason to limit the attorneys' fee percentage in a case settling for a large amount such as this, which presented substantial risks.[10] See Nast Decl. ¶ 10.

[9] See, e.g., Silverman, 739 F.3d 956 (affirming award of twenty seven and five-tenths percent (27.5%) of $200 million settlement); In re Anthem, Inc. Data Breach Litig., No. 15-MD-02617-LHK, 2018 WL 3960068, at *9 (N.D. Cal. Aug. 17, 2018) (twenty-seven percent (27%) of $115 million); In re Lithium Ion Batteries Antitrust Litig., No. 13-MD-02420-YGR, 2018 WL 3064391, at *2 (N.D. Cal. May 16, 2018) (30% of $139.9 million); In re Air Cargo Shipping Servs. Antitrust Litig., No. 06-MD-1775-JG-VVP, 2012 WL 3138596, at *5 (E.D.N.Y. Aug. 2, 2012) (twenty-five percent (25%) of $198 million); In re Comverse Tech., Inc. Sec. Litig., No. 06-CV-1825 (NGG), 2010 WL 2653354, at *6 (E.D.N.Y. June 24, 2010) (twenty-five percent (25%) of $225 million).

In Silverman, as in Synthroid I, 264 F.3d at 721, Judge Easterbrook suggested that courts should consider tapered fee structures that "provide for a recovery that increases at a decreasing rate." Silverman, 739 F.3d at 959. One of the concerns animating this opinion was the perceived absence of "suits seeking more than $100 million in which solvent clients agree ex ante to pay their lawyers a flat portion of all recoveries, as opposed to a rate that declines as the recovery increases." Id. But outside of the securities context, sophisticated clients rarely employ declining percentages, and would have negotiated no less than a fee arrangement of one-third for a resolution reached so close to trial. Cf. Hale, 2018 WL 6606079 at *11 ("[S]ophisticated parties would have negotiated no less than a fee arrangement of 1/3 for a resolution reached after the case progressed to trial.").

Moreover, courts have held declining percentages to be inappropriate in cases like this one, involving a high risk of nonpayment, an enormous amount of work, and where counsel had turned down an earlier settlement offer in a successful effort to obtain more for the class. See Young v. County of Cook, No. 06 C 552, 2017 WL 4164238, *4-5 (N.D. Ill. Sept. 20, 2017); Hale, 2018 WL 6606079 at *12 (finding the reasoning of the court in Young persuasive in finding that a declining marginal percentage scale was not appropriate for all cases).

For these reasons, courts following the market need not—and probably should not—

[10] Silverman does not counsel otherwise. 739 F.3d at 956. There, the Seventh Circuit affirmed the district court's award of twenty-seven and five-tenths percent (27.5%) of a $200 million common fund. In so doing, it noted that such an "award may be at the outer limit of reasonableness." Id. at 959 (emphasis added). But this cannot reasonably be interpreted as a per se ceiling (certainly not in light of Synthroid I), especially given the greater risks this litigation presented. For example, Silverman was a securities fraud case, where class certification is relatively perfunctory, but in the present case, Defendants' motion to decertify the Class was one of several motions pending at the time the parties reached an agreement to settle.

apply declining percentages in large cases, especially under the facts of this case. This is confirmed by the result of Silverman itself, which affirmed a flat percentage in a case involving a large settlement fund. 139 F.3d at 956; see also Dairy Farmers, 80 F. Supp. 3d at 845 (awarding a flat one-third fee notwithstanding a "seemingly tailor-made tiered-pricing arrangement" set by the Seventh Circuit in In re Synthroid Mktg. Litig. ("Synthroid II "), 325 F.3d 974, 979 (7th Cir. 2003)).

C. A lodestar cross-check, though unnecessary, also confirms the reasonableness of Class Counsel's request.

As a threshold matter, a lodestar cross-check is not required in this Circuit. Rohm & Haas Pension Plan, 658 F.3d at 636 ("[C]onsideration of a lodestar check is not an issue of required methodology."); Kolinek v. Walgreen Co., 311 F.R.D. 483, 500 (N.D. Ill. 2015) ("[N]o Seventh Circuit case law suggests that a percentage-of-the-fund approach will yield a reasonable result only where it satisfies a lodestar cross-check."). Indeed, the "use of a lodestar cross-check has fallen into disfavor," Beesley, 2014 WL 375432, at *3 (citing Synthroid II, 325 F. 3d at 979-80)), and, in many cases, can be "counterproductive," Gen. Dynamics Corp., 2010 WL 4818174, at *3 (collecting cases). Nevertheless, to the extent the Court wishes to conduct such a cross-check here, it confirms the reasonableness of Plaintiffs' request.[11]

1. Class Counsel expended a reasonable number of hours on this incredibly hard-fought litigation.

As noted above, this case was intensively litigated for more than seven years. During that time, Defendants mounted a formidable defense. In addition, because of the complex nature of both the facts and law underlying this case, the motion practice and discovery have been protracted and complex. Provided above, is a thorough, non-exhaustive, list of the work Plaintiffs undertook to advance this case through class certification and past motions to dismiss, summary judgment motions, and interlocutory appeals, all the way to trial.

[11] Plaintiffs have submitted a summary of the time expended in connection with this litigation, as well as the blended average billing rate. See Nast Decl. ¶¶ 23-25. These summaries are sufficient. Beesley, 2014 WL 375432, at *3 ("The Court may rely on summaries submitted by attorneys and need not review actual billing records."). However, Counsel stands ready to submit detailed records should the Court request them.

In furtherance of those efforts, and many more, Class Counsel expended 44,890.55 hours (and $27,936,103.00 in lodestar) in a hard-fought litigation that lasted eight years (including a reasonable time for pre-filing investigation and complaint preparation). See also Plaintiff Firm Declarations in Support of Attorneys' Fees and Costs, attached hereto as Exhibit 1. Class Counsel's hours are therefore reasonable in the context of this litigation. Id. Cf. City of Greenville, 904 F. Supp. 2d at 909 (finding reasonable 83,300 hours for two firms over 8 years, which is approximately 10,412 hours/year).

2. Class Counsel's rates are reasonable under the facts of this case, and well below those recently approved for class action attorneys in this District.

Class Counsel calculated their lodestar using the customary, historical billing rates of all timekeepers at the time the services were rendered. See also Plaintiff Firm Declarations in Support of Attorneys' Fees and Costs, attached hereto as Exhibit 1. The blended average rate that results from this analysis is $622.32. Nast Decl., ¶ 25. This is eminently reasonable given (1) the complexity of the issues and the fact that the case proceeded to trial; (2) the resulting need for a relatively high proportion of time from very experienced lawyers; and (3) the presence of counsel with national practices and national expertise, whose participation was essential to prosecuting this difficult case. Id. at ¶ 26 (citing rates approved in 2016 by this Court in Spano).

Notably, this Court recently approved rates for contingent fee class action attorneys that significantly exceed those outlined above. In 2016, this Court found reasonable the following:

"for attorneys with at least 25 years of experience, $998 per hour; for attorneys with 15–24 years of experience, $850 per hour; for attorneys with 5–14 years of experience, $612 per hour; for attorneys with 2–4 years of experience, $460 per hour; for Paralegals and Law Clerks, $309 per hour; for Legal Assistants, $190 per hour." Spano, 2016 WL 3791123, at *4 (approving a lodestar of $18,066,346 with a blended rate of $673.74) (Rosenstengel, J.). Now, four years after Spano was decided, Class Counsel's blended rate still falls well within the range of those approved by this Court in 2016. Viewed in this context, Class Counsel's rates are reasonable.

3. The resulting lodestar multiplier reflects the risk Class Counsel undertook and falls below the mean in comparable cases.

"[A] risk multiplier is not merely available in a common fund case but mandated, if the court finds that counsel 'had no sure source of compensation for their services.'" Florin, 34 F.3d at 565; accord City of Greenville, 904 F. Supp. 2d at 909 ("[W]here counsel 'had no sure source of compensation for their services,' the Court must apply a risk multiplier to compensate the attorneys for the risk of nonpayment in the event the litigation were unsuccessful."). The Seventh Circuit has also observed that "'the need for such an adjustment is particularly acute in class action suits. The lawyers for the class receive no fee if the suit fails, so their entitlement to fees is inescapably contingent.'" Florin, 34 F.3d at 565 (quoting In re Cont'l Ill. Sec. Litig., 962 F.2d 566, 569 (7th Cir. 1992)). It is beyond dispute that here, in this contingent class action lawsuit, there was no guarantee that counsel would secure a single penny for their services or reimbursement for the millions of dollars in out-of-pocket expenses they had advanced. The Court must, therefore, apply a risk adjustment multiplier.

The specific multiplier that results from this fee request is 2.6, which falls well within the rates recently approved in this District for contingent class representation. This is customary and reasonable in the context of this litigation for several reasons.

First, as a general matter, courts in this Circuit regularly approve multipliers between one and four. See, e.g., City of Greenville, 904 F. Supp. 2d at 909 (citing Harman v. Lyphomed, Inc., 945 F.2d 969, 976 (7th Cir. 1991) (noting that the Seventh Circuit, and courts within it, regularly approve multipliers between one and four). In large cases like this one, moreover, empirical studies demonstrate that a 2.6 multiplier is actually below average and is reasonable. See Exhibit E to Nast Decl. (listing more than 100 cases with a multiplier over 3). From a macro perspective, therefore, the multiplier requested here is entirely reasonable.

Second, and more to the point, a multiplier of 2.6 is particularly reasonable under the facts of this case. In the Seventh Circuit, multipliers should reflect the risks counsel faces ex ante. Harman, 945 F.2d at 976 ("The [multiplier] level selected should, to the extent possible, be without regard to most developments during discovery and litigation because it is designed to reflect the riskiness of the case at the outset."). Thus, the 2.6 multiplier is justified here, given the challenges of prevailing when Plaintiffs filed suit, the complex counts and allegations, and the high risks involved in litigating this case.

The lodestar cross-check readily confirms the reasonableness of Class Counsel's request. And with this Court's approval, as is customary in such cases, Co–Lead Counsel shall be responsible for and use their discretion in allocating and distributing counsel fees and costs (discussed below) that the Court approves to be paid to Class Counsel. See In re CertainTeed Fiber Cement Siding Litigation, 303 F.R.D. 199, 228 (E.D. Pa. 2014) ("The attorneys' fees awarded by the Court shall be allocated to class counsel at the sole discretion of co-lead counsel."); In re Fasteners Antitrust Litigation, Civil Action No. 08–md–1912, 2014 WL 296954, *10 (E.D. Pa. 2014) ("Co–Lead Counsel are responsible for allocating and distributing counsel fees and expenses to be paid to Class Counsel.").

II. Class Counsel's Requested Costs Are Reasonable.

"It is well established that counsel who create a common fund like this one are entitled to the reimbursement of litigation costs and expenses, which includes such things as expert witness costs; computerized research; court reports; travel expense; copy, phone and facsimile expenses and mediation." Beesley, 2014 WL 375432, at *3 (Herndon, J.) (citing Boeing, 444 U.S. at 478). Here, Class Counsel seek reimbursement of $5,271,266. 99 in litigation expenses. See Nast Decl., ¶ 28.[12] While these expenses are significant, at two and four-tenths percent (2.4%) of the common fund, the amount is significantly less than the average costs awarded, which is approximately "4 percent of the relief for the class." In re AT & T Mobility Wireless Data Servs. Sales Tax Litig., 792 F. Supp. 2d 1028, 1041 (N.D. Ill. 2011) (citing Theodore Eisenberg & Geoffrey P. Miller, Attorney Fees in Class Action Settlements: An Empirical Study, 1 J. Empirical Legal Stud. 27, 70 (2004)).

Such costs are also commensurate with the stakes and duration of this litigation, and include, among other things: (1) $2,774,952.89 for highly-credentialed testifying experts instrumental to achieving class certification and defeating motions to dismiss and for summary judgment— who submitted multiple reports, were deposed, and had prepared extensively for trial; (2) $1,098,338.21 for consulting experts who advised Class Counsel on difficult legal issues and supported the testifying experts; (3) $36,879.80 to effectuate the Court-approved litigation notice plan; (4) $305,529.35 for the document review platform and services necessary to host millions of pages of documents and assist Counsel's review, and such document review platform purchased by one of the Co-Lead counsel actually saved the class hundreds of thousands of dollars when one compares the retail cost of the class hiring a third party vendor to perform the same service with similar equipment; (5) $409,466.85 for travel and accommodations connected with more than one hundred hearings and depositions, several critical in-person strategy meetings, a number of mediation sessions, and trial preparation; (6) $1,241.70 for investigation, including an investigator whose work was critical to uncovering information on key farmer executives of the defendant coops; (7) $125,954.73 for trial/jury consultants and other trial preparation experts; (8) $87,008.49 for legal research fees, necessary to brief the extremely high volume of motions involving complex legal issues; (9) $270,012.36 for transcripts and court reporters; and (10) $89,649.00 for mediation-related costs. Exhibit H to Nast Decl.

[12] Class Counsel have provided summaries of their expenses, broken down into different categories. See Nast Decl. at ¶ 28 and Exhibit H thereto. This summary is sufficient for the Court to "perform its oversight function." Schulte, 805 F. Supp. 2d at 600 (relying on a "summary document" of expenses); see also Northbrook Excess & Surplus Ins. Co. v. Procter & Gamble, 924 F.2d 633, 643 (7th Cir. 1991).

No doubt, this was an expensive case to prosecute. But Class Counsel had a strong incentive to keep expenses at a reasonable level due to the high risk of no recovery when the fee is contingent. Cf. Beesley, 2014 WL 375432, at *3. Moreover, "the fact that Class Counsel does not seek interest as compensation for the time value of money or costs associated with advancing these expenses to the Class makes this fee request all the more reasonable." Id. Class Counsel's expenses are justified in the context of this extraordinary case.

III. The Named Plaintiffs' Service Awards Are Reasonable.

Plaintiffs request a service award of $25,000 for each of the four Class Representatives: First Impressions Salon, Inc., Roy Matson, KPH Healthcare Services a/k/a Kinney Drugs, Inc., and Piggly Wiggly Midwest, LLC. Each of them has invested significant time and resources in this litigation for many years by, among other things: reviewing pleadings, responding to discovery requests, producing documents, sitting for depositions, preparing for trial, and overseeing the litigation. Nast Decl. at ¶ 27. Under these circumstances, a service award of $25,000 to each representative is reasonable and appropriate. See, e.g., Hale, 2018 WL 6606079 at *15 (awarding each of the three Class Representatives $25,000); Cook v. Niedert, 142 F.3d 1004, 1016 (7th Cir. 1998) (upholding award of $25,000 to class representative); Spano, 2016 WL 3791123, at *4 (awarding $25,000 to two representatives and $10,000 to a third); Beesley, 2014 WL 375432, at *4 (awarding $15,000 and $25,000); Abbott v. Lockheed Martin Corp., No. 06-CV-701-MJR-DGW, 2015 WL 4398475, at *4 (S.D. Ill. July 17, 2015) (awarding $25,000); Nolte v. Cigna Corp., No. 07-cv-2046, Dkt. 413 at 9 (C.D. Ill. Oct. 15, 2013) (same).

CONCLUSION

For all the foregoing reasons, Plaintiffs respectfully request that the Court award the following:

a. Class Counsel shall receive $5,271,266. 99 as reimbursement of reasonable litigation costs from the initial payment of the settlement proceeds, which was deposited pursuant to the Settlement Agreement;

b. Class Counsel shall receive attorneys' fees in the amount of thirty three and one-third percent (33 1/3 %) of the common fund—at the direction of Co-Lead Counsel, no sooner than when the payments of the settlement proceeds are deposited, pursuant to the Settlement Agreement, and/or at some point thereafter, within discretion of the Co-Lead Counsel; and

c. Class Representatives shall receive service awards of $25,000 each.

As is customary in class action settlements, Plaintiffs request this Court grant Co-Lead Counsel authority to reasonably allocate, pursuant to their discretion, the awarded attorneys' fees to the other plaintiff attorneys and law firms who worked on this case.

Plaintiffs respectfully submit that the incurred litigation costs and attorneys' fees are fair, reasonable and adequate. Thus, Plaintiffs respectfully request that their Petition be granted in its entirety.

Dated: February 26, 2020

Respectfully Submitted:

By: /s/Don Barrett
Don Barrett
BARRETT LAW GROUP, P.A.
404 Court Square North
Lexington, Mississippi 39095-0927
Telephone: (662) 834-9168
Facsimile: (662) 834-2628
Email: dbarrett@barrettlawgroup.com

/s/Dianne M. Nast
Dianne M. Nast
NASTLAW LLC
1101 Market Street, Suite 2801
Philadelphia, PA 19107
Telephone: (215) 923-9300
Facsimile: (215) 923-9302
Email: dnast@nastlaw.com

/s/Michael Roberts
Michael Roberts
ROBERTS LAW FIRM
1920 McKinney Avenue, Suite 700
Dallas, TX 75201
Telephone: (501) 952-8558
Email: mikeroberts@robertslawfirm.us

Co-Lead Counsel for Plaintiffs and the Class

CERTIFICATE OF SERVICE

Pursuant to Local Rule 7.1(b), I certify that a copy of the foregoing was served upon counsel via the Court's CM/ECF system.

/s/Dianne M. Nast

TAB 4A

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
SOUTHERN DISTRICT OF NEW YORK

DIAL CORPORATION, et al.,	:
Plaintiffs,	:	13cv6802
-against-	:	OPINION & ORDER
NEWS CORPORATION, et al.,	:
Defendants.	:

WILLIAM H. PAULEY III, District Judge:

Plaintiffs The Dial Corporation, Henkel Consumer Goods, Inc., Kraft Heinz Foods Company f/k/a H.J. Heinz Company, Foster Poultry Farms, BEF Foods Inc., Smithfield Foods Inc., and HP Hood LLC (the "Plaintiffs"), representing a class of non-retailer consumer packaged-goods firms in the United States (the "Class" or "Class Members"), seek final approval of a $244 million settlement with Defendants News Corporation, News America Incorporated, News America Marketing In-Store Services, LLC, and News America Marketing FSI, LLC (the "Defendants"). The proposed settlement (the "Settlement") resolves this class action involving claims that Defendants monopolized the in-store promotion ("ISP") services market. The five law firms purporting to represent the Class—Berry Law PLLC ("Berry"), Kellogg Huber Hansen Todd Evans & Figel PLLC ("Kellogg Huber"), Susman Godfrey LLP ("Susman Godfrey"), Kramer Levin Naftalis & Frankel LLP ("Kramer Levin"), and McKool Smith ("McKool Smith") (collectively, "Counsel")—also seek this Court's approval of their request for attorneys' fees and expenses.

For the following reasons, the motion for approval of the Settlement is granted, and the motion for approval of attorneys' fees and expenses is granted in part and denied in part.

I. Background

A. Investigation and Litigation Leading to Settlement

The factual and procedural background undergirding this class action is described in detail in this Court's prior opinions and orders. See, e.g., Dial Corp. v. News Corp., 13-cv-6802 (WHP), 2016 WL 690895 (S.D.N.Y. Feb. 9, 2016); Dial Corp. v. News Corp., 165 F. Supp. 3d 25 (S.D.N.Y. 2016); Dial Corp. v. News Corp., 314 F.R.D. 108 (S.D.N.Y. 2015). Accordingly, a brief summary suffices for purposes of these motions.

Beginning in 2010, Berry and Kellogg Huber devoted substantial resources and hundreds of hours investigating Defendants' alleged monopolistic activities in the ISP market. In December 2012, they filed an antitrust action in the Eastern District of Michigan, alleging various state and federal antitrust claims against Defendants. In 2013, that putative class action was transferred to this district—where Defendants had filed a related declaratory judgment action[1]—as three more law firms made appearances on behalf of several packaged goods companies alleging injuries from Defendants' anticompetitive conduct.

Because the allegations concerning anticompetitive conduct dated back to the early aughts, discovery was breathtaking: 11 million documents were reviewed and exchanged; dozens of current and former officers and employees were deposed; and six experts in economics and marketing provided reports and testimony. Numerous discovery disputes were resolved by this Court over the course of the litigation.

Motion practice was equally robust and class certification fiercely contested. Eventually, the Class was certified but not before Defendants filed an unsuccessful interlocutory appeal of this Court's certification decision. Defendants followed on with double-barreled motions for summary judgment and to exclude the testimony of Plaintiffs' experts at trial. To suggest that those motions were extensively briefed and argued would be an understatement. In January 2016, this Court denied both. (ECF No. 420.) With trial looming, the parties filed a barrage of 26 in limine motions (see ECF Nos. 461, 465, 471), and Defendants intensified their efforts to mount any challenge to Plaintiffs' claims, raising scores of issues concerning the class period, the admissibility of pre-class period evidence, and the effect of releases entered into between Defendants and various Class Members, to name just a few.

[1] That action was styled News America Marketing In-Store Servs. L.L.C. v. The Dial Corp., No. 13-cv-0055 (S.D.N.Y. 2013), and voluntarily dismissed on February 26, 2014. (ECF No. 45.)

Against this backdrop, the parties explored the prospect of settlement. Beginning in November 2015, Defendants sought to negotiate separate resolutions of these antitrust claims with 23 of the largest Class Members. Those efforts, which were also the subject of motion practice, proved somewhat fruitful—by February 24, 2016, Defendants reported that they had entered into private, individual settlements totaling $30 million with five large, absent Class Members.

Settlement discussions between Counsel and Defendants reached a fever pitch in the days leading up to jury selection and trial. After a concerted effort to negotiate a settlement in the courthouse, the parties executed a term sheet embodying the critical terms of the settlement at the end of the first day of trial. Through March and April, the parties finalized the long form of the settlement and presented it to this Court for its review. On June 2, 2016, this Court preliminarily approved the Settlement, and thereafter, notice of the Settlement was mailed to all Class Members. On September 21, 2016, this Court conducted a final settlement hearing.

B. Terms of the Settlement Agreement

The Settlement provides that Defendants will pay $244 million into a common settlement fund (the "Fund") to be distributed on a pro rata basis to the Class determined by the amount of ISPs purchased by each Class Member during the class period. After the initial distribution, any unclaimed funds will be distributed in subsequent rounds, pro rata, to Class Members that deposited previously distributed checks until all proceeds have been exhausted. No portion of the Fund will be returned to Defendants, nor will any remaining funds be subject to a cy pres provision.

The Settlement also features several forms of structural relief designed to protect Plaintiffs against the anticompetitive conduct alleged in this action. For the next five years, Defendants will not: (i) enter into any exclusive ISP contract with a retailer for a term longer than 30 months other than to meet competition or at the written request of the retailer; (ii) enter into a binding renewal of any contract with a retailer for more than 18 months before the expiration of the contract unless the retailer requests an earlier renewal; and (iii) prohibit retailers from disclosing the termination dates of their ISP contracts to prospective competitors of Defendants.

The Settlement contains an alternative dispute resolution (ADR) clause requiring any dispute involving the Settlement or any antitrust, competition, or comparable claim that accrues five years after approval of the Settlement to be submitted to mediation, and if not resolved by mediation, to binding arbitration. But any dispute relating to Defendants' compliance with the structural relief more than three years after approval of the Settlement is not subject to arbitration. Finally, the Settlement prohibits any additional opportunity to opt out, and forecloses any admission of liability by Defendants.

Notice of the Settlement was sent to Class Members soon after the Court entered its preliminary approval order. It established a deadline to file objections and proofs of claim.

In the Claims Administrator's latest filing with the Court, 317 claims (45.35% of the Class) were submitted, representing 87.44% of Defendants' purchases. (Sept. 20, 2016 Declaration of Rachel Christman ("Christman Decl.") at ¶ 3, ECF No. 594.) On September 30, 2016, Counsel provided an updated count, and the number of filed claims increased marginally to 328 although it is impossible to determine the percentage of qualifying purchases (as determined by Defendants' purchase records) covered by those claims. In the same filing, Counsel provided a list of unfiled claims but noted that several companies associated with some of the largest unfiled claims—amounting to at least $63 million in qualifying purchases at issue—have indicated that they will file late claims or had settled their claims outside of the Class. (See ECF No. 603.)

C. Attorneys' Fees and Expenses

Plaintiffs' Counsel seeks an award of $73.2 million, or 30% of the Fund. Over six years of investigating the claims and litigating this action, Counsel collectively billed a staggering 69,128.95 hours[2]—which equates to more than 35 billable years by "Big Law" standards. At each of the firms' current customary billing rates—a combined blended rate of $526.35 per hour—those hours represent a lodestar of $36,433,985.50. Thus, Counsel's fee request is enhanced by a lodestar multiplier of approximately 2.01. Notably, the lodestar does not account for time billed by independent contract attorneys, which were instead earmarked as an expense. Those costs and other standard out-of-pocket litigation expenses total $7,512,915.20.

In addition to the fees associated with their work on behalf of the Class, Counsel note that they will receive a $6 million payment for Defendants' settlements with five absent Class Members totaling $30 million. While those fees are not a part of the Fund, any payment thereof is contingent upon final approval of the Class Settlement.

[2] This figure does not include approximately 25,000 hours billed for contract attorney time.

Finally, Berry has agreed to reimburse a total of $948,110 in fees that he received from five named Plaintiffs for his work during the first few years investigating and litigating the underlying claims. Reimbursement of those fees will put the named Plaintiffs on an even footing with the rest of the Class to ensure that the total fee award does not exceed $73.2 million.

II. Settlement Approval

For class action settlements, a "district court must determine whether both the negotiating process leading to a settlement and the settlement itself are fair, adequate and reasonable." In re Currency Conversion Fee Antitrust Litig., 263 F.R.D. 110, 122 (S.D.N.Y. 2009) (citing D'Amato v. Deutsche Bank, 236 F.3d 78, 85 (2d Cir. 2001)).

A. Procedural Fairness

Negotiation of a settlement is presumed fair when the settlement is "reached in arm's length negotiations conducted by experienced, capable counsel after meaningful discovery." Wal-Mart Stores, Inc. v. Visa U.S.A., Inc., 396 F.3d 96, 116 (2d Cir. 2005). The parties here were represented by highly skilled attorneys who have substantial experience in class actions. Counsel engaged in arms-length, painstaking negotiations from November 2015 through February 29, 2016, and eventually struck a deal that will substantially benefit the Class. This Court is mindful of Counsel's ability to assess the potential risks and rewards of litigation, and finds that the negotiations were fair, adequate and reasonable. See Wal-Mart, 396 F.3d at 116.

B. Substantive Fairness

In assessing the substantive fairness of a settlement, this Court must consider the following factors: (1) the complexity, expense and likely duration of the litigation; (2) the reaction of the class to the settlement; (3) the stage of the proceedings and the amount of discovery completed; (4) the risks of establishing liability; (5) the risks of establishing damages; (6) the risks of maintaining the class action through trial; (7) the ability of the defendants to withstand a greater judgment; (8) the range of reasonableness of the settlement fund in light of the best possible recovery; and (9) the range of reasonableness of the settlement fund to a possible recovery in light of all the attendant risks of litigation. City of Detroit v. Grinnell Corp., 495 F.2d 448, 463 (2d Cir. 1974). "[N]ot every factor must weigh in favor of settlement, rather the court should consider the totality of these factors in light of the particular circumstances." In re Global Crossing Sec. and ERISA Litig., 225 F.R.D. 436, 456 (S.D.N.Y. 2004) (citation omitted).

1. Complexity, Expense and Likely Duration of the Litigation

This antitrust action was exceptionally complex. It was fueled by Counsel's grassroots investigation of the ISP market unaided by a parallel government inquiry. Litigation ensued, involving the filing of four operative complaints, fact and expert discovery, class certification and an interlocutory appeal, summary judgment, motions in limine, and extensive trial preparation. This case spanned years of hard fought litigation that "impose[d] great expense on all parties as well as huge burdens on the Court." Global Crossing, 225 F.R.D. at 456. The Settlement obviates the need for a trial, calculation of damages, and any post-verdict appeals. This factor weighs strongly in favor of approval.

2. Reaction of the Class

There were no objections to the Settlement. While less than half of the Class appear to have filed proofs of claim, the filed claims nonetheless represent more than 87% of purchases made by Plaintiffs during the relevant period. (See Christman Decl. at ¶ 3.)

Moreover, according to Counsel's most recent submission, there are additional companies that have expressed their intention to file late proofs of claim reflecting sizeable purchases in the relevant period. (See ECF No. 603.) Certainly more Class Members could file proofs of claim. This Court believes that the value in providing a further opportunity to file a proof of claim far outweighs not doing it. As such, this Court orders the Claims Administrator to mail another set of notices, and follow up with a phone call, to potential members of the Class who possess valid claims and have not submitted a proof of claim, to be filed no later than December 1, 2016.

Notwithstanding the additional notice to the Class, the absence of objections "by the class is extraordinarily positive" and "weighs in favor of settlement." Global Crossing, 263 F.R.D. at 123; In re Giant Interactive Grp., Inc. Sec. Litig., 279 F.R.D. 151, 161 (S.D.N.Y. 2011) ("the reaction of the class to date supports approval of the Settlement" where "[n]o class members have objected to the Settlement.").

3. Stage of Proceedings and Amount of Discovery

This action settled at a very advanced stage of the proceedings: the jury trial, anticipated to last at least four weeks, had started. Counsel for both sides had multiple opportunities to appraise the strength of their respective claims and defenses, and were prepared to test their case at trial. But they also took stock of "the factual landscape and the uncertainties confronting them," Currency Conversion, 263 F.R.D. at 123 (S.D.N.Y. 2009), and determined that settlement was in the best interests of the Class. Accordingly, this factor supports approval.

4. Risks of Establishing Liability and Damages and Maintaining Class Action Through Trial

Courts generally consider the fourth, fifth, and sixth Grinnell factors together in "assess[ing] the risks of litigation against the certainty of recovery under the proposed settlement." Global Crossing, 225 F.R.D. at 459. The complexity of Plaintiffs' claims shrouded this case with uncertainty. At trial, Plaintiffs faced substantial challenges to establishing liability—namely, that Defendants' contracting practices in the defined market were exclusionary and harmed Plaintiffs. See Wal-Mart, 396 F.3d at 118 ("[E]stablishing liability was no sure thing for plaintiffs."). But even assuming the jury rendered a favorable verdict, Plaintiffs would have encountered additional challenges to proving damages given the parties' dueling expert reports. As a result, Plaintiffs remained alert to the possibility that they would recover nothing, and constantly operated under the specter of decertification. Factors 4–6 weigh in favor of approval.

5. Ability of Defendants to Withstand a Greater Judgment

Defendants are part of a multi-billion dollar conglomerate recognized as one of the world's largest and most powerful enterprises. In the course of this multi-year litigation, Defendants spared no expense in defending the case at every stage. Although they have now resolved this action through a $244 million settlement, the notion that Defendants could withstand a judgment in the amount of Plaintiffs' damages estimate is not far-fetched. But even if they could, that factor, "standing alone, does not suggest that settlement is unfair." D'Amato, 236 F.3d at 86.

6. Range of Reasonableness of the Settlement Funds in Light of the Best Possible Recovery and All the Attendant Risks of Litigation

The final two Grinnell factors are typically considered together. The $244 million Settlement, in contrast to the $355 million in single damages under their expert's "core" theory, or even the $674 million in single damages under their "adjusted" theory, represents an outstanding result. Again, even if Plaintiffs prevailed on establishing liability at trial, their estimated damages were susceptible to attack by Defendants' experts, leaving them with nothing. And that is not surprising, given that "the history of antitrust litigation is replete with cases in which antitrust plaintiffs succeeded at trial on liability, but recovered no damages, or only negligible damages, at trial or on appeal." In re NASDAQ Market-Makers Antitrust Litig., 187 F.R.D. 465, 476 (S.D.N.Y. 1998).

Notably, the Settlement also features structural relief designed to bring transparency to the ISP market and the way retailer contracts are negotiated. This type of relief squarely addresses Plaintiffs' claims that the length, renewal period, and confidentiality clauses of Defendants' contracts with retailers created barriers to entry and suppressed prices. While those forms of relief are intended to protect Plaintiffs for at least five years, the ADR clause provides that any dispute arising from the Settlement—including Defendants' compliance with the structural relief within three years of the final settlement approval—are subject to mediation and arbitration.

In essence, this Court—having supervised this action for four years and becoming intimately familiar with the parties, issues, and facts of this case—must cede its authority to adjudicate any disputes relating to the very issues that gave rise to the action. The ADR clause affords Defendants a non-public forum to litigate any non-compliance with the structural relief.

And once the settlement is approved, and the distribution of funds completed, the clarity forged by the adversarial process melts away.

But judicial decisions addressing court-approved class settlement agreements with ADR clauses, let alone rejecting them solely on that basis, are scant. Defendants rely principally on Meredith Corp. v. SESAC, LLC, 87 F. Supp. 3d 650 (S.D.N.Y. 2015), as precedent in this district for ceding the judge's authority to an ADR forum. In Meredith, the classwide settlement in an antitrust action provided substantial monetary relief as well as "forward-looking conduct restrictions" tantamount to the structural relief in this action. In finding that the settlement was fair, reasonable, and adequate, the court held that the "compulsory arbitration term supplies a fair proxy." Meredith, 87 F. Supp. 3d at 666; cf. Charron v. Pinnacle Grp. N.Y. LLC, 874 F. Supp. 2d 179, 204 (S.D.N.Y. 2012) (finding that class settlement providing alternative forums to resolving rent-related claims, including by arbitration, is permissible).

This Court's concerns regarding the ADR provision are mitigated by the fact that the Class is comprised of sophisticated businesses far better equipped than the average individual to litigate with Defendants in an opaque arbitral forum should the need arise. Moreover, none of the Class Members, after having adequate time to review the Settlement, objected to its terms. Further, Defendants insisted on adding an arbitration clause, and without it, may not have agreed to the Settlement. (See Sept. 21, 2016 Tr. at 16:6–10 ("Without the arbitration we wouldn't have a deal.").) The ADR provision, while not ideal in this Court's view, represents a "fair proxy" for future disputes.

After weighing all of the Grinnell factors, this Court finds that the Settlement is fair, reasonable, and adequate.

III. Approval of Attorneys' Fees, Expenses, and Incentive Awards

A. Attorneys' Fees

In awarding attorneys' fees, especially in the context of a class action, a court must "ensure that the interests of the class members are not subordinated to the interests of . . . class counsel." Maywalt v. Parker & Parsley Petroleum Co., 67 F.3d 1072, 1078 (2d Cir. 1995). As a fiduciary for the Class, a court must assess the fee request with "a jealous regard to [class members'] rights." Goldberger v. Integrated Res., Inc., 209 F.3d 43, 53 (2d Cir. 2000); McDaniel v. Cty. of Schenectady, 595 F.3d 411, 419 (2d Cir. 2010) (noting that, in approving fees, it is the "district court's duty to act as a fiduciary who must serve as a guardian of the rights of absent class members") (internal quotation marks and citation omitted).

Courts traditionally have employed two methods to calculate reasonable attorneys' fees in class action litigation: (1) the percentage of the fund approach, and (2) the lodestar approach. The percentage of fund approach assigns a proportion of the common settlement fund toward payment of attorneys' fees. The lodestar approach calculates the total amount of fees billed by multiplying the number of hours expended by counsel by a reasonable hourly rate. The lodestar is typically enhanced by an appropriate multiplier which accounts for a number of factors unique to the case, including the contingent nature of success and the quality of counsel's work. While this Court has the discretion to choose between either method, the prevailing trend in the Second Circuit is the percentage method because it "directly aligns the interests of the class and its counsel and provides a powerful incentive for the efficient prosecution and early resolution of litigation." In re WorldCom, Inc. ERISA Litig., No. 02-cv-4816 (DLC), 2005 WL 3101769, at *7 (S.D.N.Y. Nov. 21, 2005). However, the lodestar approach provides an effective "cross-check on the reasonableness of the requested percentage."

Goldberger, 209 F.3d at 50 (2d Cir. 2000).

Under the percentage of fund method, the Court considers the six Goldberger factors: (1) the time and labor expended by counsel; (2) the magnitude and complexities of the litigation; (3) the risk of litigation; (4) the quality of representation; (5) the requested fee in relation to the settlement; and (6) public policy considerations. Goldberger, 209 F.3d at 50. There is no "one-size-fits-all 'benchmark' in determining the appropriate fee"—in fact, courts should avoid that practice because it "'could easily lead to routine windfalls where the recovered fund runs into the multi-millions.'" In re Visa Check/Mastermoney Antitrust Litig., 297 F. Supp. 2d 503, 521 (E.D.N.Y. 2003) (quoting Nasdaq, 187 F.R.D. at 486). Further, in mega-fund settlements totaling more than $100 million, courts have "traditionally accounted for these economies of scale by awarding fees in the lower ranges." Goldberger, 209 F.3d at 52.

1. Time and Labor Expended by Counsel

The time and labor expended by Counsel in this matter was extraordinary. Even before the first operative complaint, Berry and Kellogg Huber conducted a two-year long investigation into the ISP market. While many class actions are filed on the heels of a government investigation, the claims in this case were formulated entirely from the findings of a private investigation. See In re Gulf Oil/Cities Serv. Tender Offer Litig., 142 F.R.D. 588, 597 (S.D.N.Y. 1992) ("[T]his is not a case where plaintiffs' counsel can be cast as jackals to the government's lion, arriving on the scene after some enforcement or administrative agency has made the kill. They did all the work on their own."). As recounted previously, Counsel worked through fact and expert discovery, class certification, dispositive motions, and trial. They surmounted significant challenges and avoided potential setbacks at every turn.

But this Court would be remiss if it did not highlight the fact that the time and labor expended by five law firms—three more than this Court appointed—most certainly led to a duplication of effort and multiplication of attorneys' fees. Some of that redundancy stems from Counsel's circumvention of this Court's initial appointment order, and is therefore self-inflicted. After this Court denied two requests for the appointment of all five law firms as joint lead counsel, Counsel proposed the appointment of Susman Godfrey and Kellogg Huber as co-lead counsel. Satisfied that its message had been received, this Court appointed them. However, Counsel did not apprise this Court that one day before proposing Susman Godfrey and Kellogg Huber as co-lead counsel, they engineered a private work-around among themselves designating Kramer Levin and McKool Smith as co-lead trial and settlement counsel. See Dial Corp. v. News Corp., No. 13-cv-6802 (WHP), 2015 WL 7180667, at *1 (S.D.N.Y. Oct. 15, 2015). Months later, by serendipity, this Court learned of Counsel's subterfuge. At that time, it could have vacated the July 2015 Order. But, to avoid upsetting intricate financial arrangements among the Plaintiffs and delaying trial, this Court opted for a "pragmatic approach." Dial, 2015 WL 7180667, at *2. It permitted Susman Godfrey and Kellogg Huber to "keep their title, even if it [was] just an ornament," and Kramer Levin and McKool Smith to proceed in their role as co-lead trial and settlement counsel. See Dial, 2015 WL 7180667, at *2.

Nevertheless, this Court cautioned Counsel repeatedly "to avoid duplication of effort and multiplication of attorneys' fees." Dial, 2015 WL 7180667, at *2; see also Dial, 314 F.R.D. at 121 (appointment of five firms would not serve to streamline proceedings nor would it introduce efficiencies into case management).

A review of Counsel's time records validates this Court's concern that allowing five firms to represent the Class would result in a duplication of effort and a multiplication of attorneys' fees. From July to December 2014, for example, it appears the five firms staffed nine partners, nine associates, five staff attorneys, and a few paralegals who spent over 1,900 hours briefing and arguing the class certification motion, leaving this Court wondering why so many attorneys—let alone partners—were staffed on the task.

In October 2015, all five firms staffed 12 partners, 10 associates, two staff attorneys, and a handful of paralegals who spent 1,100 hours briefing Plaintiffs' opposition to summary judgment. That too, is beyond the pale. Opposing summary judgment is a fundamental task in any complex litigation—one that readily could have been assumed by the two very capable firms the Court originally appointed for a fraction of the cost and time.

And for the first two months in 2016, the 13 partners, 11 associates, and several paralegals from the five firms logged over 5,300 hours preparing for trial. It was a curious arrangement, given this Court's October 15 order explicitly designating only two of the firms as co-lead trial and settlement counsel. See Dial, 2015 WL 7180667, at *2. But the lawyers from those two firms—Kramer Levin and McKool Smith—appear to have billed a little more than half the hours involved in the final preparation for trial and settlement negotiations.

Moreover, Counsel's allocation of time is heavily weighted towards partners. Such a division of labor is atypical in practice. In such instances, "[c]ourts have reduced the fee percentage requested where, as here, the lodestar value reflects an over-allocation of work to more expensive partners." In re Platinum and Palladium Commodities Litig., No. 10-cv-3617 (WHP), 2015 WL 4560206, at *4 (S.D.N.Y. July 7, 2015) (citing In re Dreyfus Aggressive Growth Mut. Fund Litig., 98-cv-4318 (HB), 2001 WL 709262 (S.D.N.Y. June 22, 2001); Ryan v. Allied Interstate, Inc., 882 F. Supp. 2d 628 (S.D.N.Y. 2012)). Accordingly, this factor weighs against the approval of the Plaintiffs' fee request.

2. Magnitude and Complexities of Litigation

"Federal antitrust cases are complicated, lengthy, and bitterly fought." Wal-Mart, 396 F.3d at 118. These monopolization claims were highly nuanced. Plaintiffs showcased theories of liability that were sharply contested by Defendants, and required both sides to work extensively with economists and marketing experts to define the relevant market and analyze Defendants' contracting practices. This case had far-reaching implications posing an existential threat to Defendants' business model. But even if Plaintiffs prevailed on liability, they faced a serious challenge to establishing damages and the looming threat of decertification. And after deftly navigating the numerous pitfalls and traps set by Defendants' counsel, Plaintiffs were also confronted with the risk that their victories could be overturned on appeal. Accordingly, this factor weighs in favor of approval of Counsel's fee request.

3. Risk of Litigation

The parties faced formidable challenges in litigating the action to a verdict and then prevailing on appeal. Counsel prosecuted this case largely on contingency and assumed the risk of recovering nothing if the claims were dismissed at various stages. Both Counsel and their clients waged a battle against one of the largest corporations in the world, knowing full well that dismissal of the suit could have widespread consequences to their future business. Even at such an advanced stage of litigation, serious obstacles remained. For those reasons, the substantial risks in this litigation should be credited as "the foremost factor to be considered in determining whether to award an enhancement" of fees. Goldberger, 209 F.3d at 54.

4. Quality of Representation

Plaintiffs were represented by some of the finest antitrust lawyers in the nation. Counsel tirelessly litigated this case against Defendants' lawyers, who were of equally high caliber. The results achieved through the efforts of Counsel are a "critical element in determining the appropriate fee to be awarded," and the settlement here will undoubtedly have widespread benefits to the Class. See Maley v. Del Global Tech. Corp., 186 F. Supp. 2d 358, 373 (S.D.N.Y. 2002).

5. Requested Fee in Relation to Settlement

"To avoid routine windfalls where the recovered fund runs into the multi-millions, courts typically decrease the percentage of the fee as the size of the fund increases." In re Interpublic Sec. Litig., No. 02-cv-6527 (DLC), 2004 WL 2397190, at *11 (S.D.N.Y. Oct. 26, 2004) (internal quotation marks and citations omitted). In mega-fund cases such as this, several courts in this Circuit have subscribed to the view that "the percentage used in calculating any given fee award must follow a sliding-scale and must bear an inverse relationship to the amount of the settlement." In re Indep. Energy Holdings PLC, No. 00-cv-6689 (SAS), 2003 WL 22244676, at *6 (S.D.N.Y. Sept. 29, 2003); see also Nasdaq, 187 F.R.D. at 486 (noting that in cases "where a class recovers more than $75–$200 million . . . fees in the range of 6–10 percent and even lower are common"); Platinum and Palladium, 2015 WL 4560206, at *4 ("To avoid a windfall where the recovered funds run into the tens of millions, courts typically decrease the percentage of fee as the size of the fund increases."); Carlson v. Xerox Corp., 596 F. Supp. 2d 400, 404 (D. Conn. 2009) ("[L]ower percentages of the fund" should be awarded "as the size of the fund increase[s].").

Counsel cite a number of decisions in support of their view that 30% of the Fund is reasonable. (See Pl. Mot. for Attorneys' Fees and Expenses and Incentive Awards at 9 ("Pl. Mot. for Fees") (collecting cases).) But those opinions span a broad range, with some awarding proportions that are well below 30%. (Pl. Mot. for Fees at 9–10 (fees representing 13% to 34% of settlement funds totaling anywhere from $12.1 million to $1.86 billion).) And they also stand in stark contrast to other decisions in this Circuit decreasing the amount of fees as the settlement recoveries increase. See In re Citigroup Inc. Bond Litig., 988 F. Supp. 2d 371, 374 (S.D.N.Y. 2013) ("the percentage fee awarded in settlements as large as this one is typically lower—[sometimes] substantially lower—than 20%.") (collecting cases); In re IndyMac Mortgage-Backed Sec. Litig., 385 F. Supp. 2d 363 (S.D.N.Y. 2015) (awarding 12% of $75 million settlement); In re Bristol-Meyers Squibb Sec. Litig., 361 F. Supp. 2d 229 (S.D.N.Y. 2005) (awarding 3% of $300 million settlement); In re Payment Card Interchange Fee & Merch. Disc. Antitrust Litig., 991 F. Supp. 2d 437 (E.D.N.Y. 2014) (awarding 9.6% of $5.7 billion settlement).

As one Class Member, PepsiCo, expressed to this Court, a "fee of 30 percent exceeds the range that this Court has awarded to class counsel in connection with other settlements." (ECF No. 590.) Indeed, this Court has previously held that fee requests of "27.5% [or higher] of the net fund is on the high end of the range of fee awards." Currency Conversion, 263 F.R.D. at 129 (collecting cases). And in earlier class action settlements ranging from $15 million to $336 million, this Court cabined awards to between 12% to 28% of the funds. See Platinum and Palladium, 2015 WL 4560206 (reducing request from 29.5% to 22.5% of $72.5 million fund); In re Currency Conversion Fee Antitrust Litig., 263 F.R.D. 110 (S.D.N.Y. 2009) (reducing fee request from 25.5% to 15.5% in $336 million fund); In re Bayer AG Sec. Litig., 03-cv-1546 (WHP), 2008 WL 5336691 (S.D.N.Y. Dec. 15, 2008) (approving 12% of 18.5 million fund); In re Polaroid ERISA Litig., No. 03-cv-8335 (WHP), 2007 WL 2116398 (S.D.N.Y. July 19, 2007) (reducing request from 30% to 28% of $15 million fund). Accordingly, this Court declines to adopt wholesale Counsel's notion that a 30% fee award is reasonable in relation to a mega-fund settlement.

6. Public Policy Considerations

Public policy encourages the award of reasonable attorneys' fees, but courts must also "guard against providing a monetary windfall to class counsel to the detriment of the plaintiff class." In re NTL Inc. Sec. Litig., No. 02-cv-3013 (LAK), 2007 WL 1294377, at *8 (S.D.N.Y. May 2, 2007) (internal quotation marks omitted). On the one hand, Counsel should be rewarded for concentrating their time, effort, and resources in successfully representing the Class on a contingent basis. On the other hand, permitting five law firms that undermined this Court's appointment order to reap a fee based, in part, on an inflated lodestar would run contrary to public policy. And doing so would impair the Court's "duty to avoid any sense of vicarious generosity or to permit the lodestar to be enhanced without restraint above a fair and reasonable amount under all the facts and circumstances." In re Sumitomo Copper Litig., 74 F. Supp. 2d 393, 396 (S.D.N.Y. 1999).

In applying the Goldberger factors, this Court concludes that the first factor—labor and time expended by Counsel—warrants a reduction in the requested fee. While there is no question that this case involved a substantial investment of time and labor, a portion was duplicative. On multiple occasions, this Court warned Counsel, in the plainest terms, to avoid duplication of effort. (See Sept. 16, 2015 Tr., at 3 ("if this case is settled or if the case is tried and the plaintiffs prevail, I am going to be called upon to determine attorneys' fees in this case . . . I am not going to permit the multiplication of counsel in a case.").) See also Dial Corp., 2015 WL 7180667, at * 2 (reminding Counsel of "their duty to avoid duplication of effort and multiplication of attorneys' fees."). This Court's rationale in appointing only two law firms as class counsel was based on a reasonable and prescient concern that having too many lawyers in one case, no matter how large the case, inevitably invites duplication of tasks with a concomitant escalation of fees.

The lodestar in this action is inflated, and therefore serves no useful purpose as a "cross-check" to the requested fee. The lodestar of $36,433,985.50 was calculated by multiplying 69,218.95 hours billed with a "combined blended rate [among the firms] of $526.35 per hour." (Pl. Mot. for Fees at 18.) But there are many anomalies in the blended rate. First, it is freighted with an inordinate number of partners and overweighted with partner time. For example, five partners at Susman Godfrey billed 42.5% of the firm's total time; four partners at Kramer Levin logged 37% of their firm's total time; and four partners at McKool Smith expended 30% of their firm's total time. (ECF Nos. No. 577-1, 578, 579-1.) Second, the blended rate is enhanced by inflated billing rates. Some mid-level and senior associates billed at rates as high as $855 per hour, and some paralegals billed at a lofty $280 per hour. (See ECF Nos. 578, 579-1, 579-4.) This kind of billing warrants an aggregate, "across-the-board" haircut of at least $2.5 million, resulting in a revised lodestar of $33,900,000. See Capitol Records, Inc. v. MP3tunes, LLC, No. 07-cv-9931 (WHP), 2015 WL 7271565, at *5 (S.D.N.Y. Nov. 12, 2015) (noting that aggregate reductions appropriate where "a precise hour-for-hour reduction would be unwieldy or potentially inaccurate."); Kahlil v. Original Old Homestead Restaurant, Inc., 657 F. Supp. 2d 470, 477 (S.D.N.Y. 2009) ("It is well established that across-the-board reductions are appropriate when billing records are voluminous and numerous billing entries are in dispute.").

Then, there is the separate question of why the bloated billing did not end after this Court's July 2015 Order appointing Susman Godfrey and Kellogg Huber as the only firms authorized to represent the Class. (See ECF No. 257.) Despite that Order, all five firms continued to bill for work in this action. This Court will also account for any duplicative work billed from that day forward in reducing the fee.

Counsel billed approximately 20,190 hours from July 10, 2015 to June 30, 2016. Based on their blended rate of $526.35, the firms billed approximately $10,627,006.50 in fees for work in connection with summary judgment, expert testimony, motions in limine, trial preparation, and settlement negotiations, among other things. This Court, in its discretion, will only credit two-fifths of that amount ($4,250,802.60) as original work on the basis that the remaining three-fifths of those fees ($6,376,203.90) are presumptively multiplicative and superfluous. The lodestar should therefore be further adjusted downward by approximately $6 million to $27,900,000.

And even after this Court's October 15, 2015 order acquiescing in Counsel's decision to deputize Kramer Levin and McKool Smith as lead trial and settlement counsel, it is impossible to determine who actually did what. For example, in the January–February 2016 time frame, co-lead counsel Susman Godfrey and Kellogg Huber should have had little to do, since they had ceded responsibility for trial and settlement to Kramer Levin and McKool Smith. See Dial, 2015 WL 7180667, at *2. But Susman Godfrey appears to have logged more hours than McKool Smith during a period devoted substantially to trial preparation. And Kellogg Huber was a close second. Moreover, Kramer Levin billed disproportionately more than McKool Smith for trial preparation—roughly 2,550 hours versus 875 hours. Knowing the consequences, Counsel nevertheless continued to operate under their own byzantine and exquisite arrangement.

A reasonable multiplier enhancing the lodestar is appropriate in this action because it accounts for "the riskiness of the litigation and quality of the attorneys." Wal-Mart, 396 F.3d at 121. But because Counsel's original lodestar was premised on a blended billing rate saturated by excessive partner time and timekeeper rates, and further bloated by time records reflecting an inscrutable division of labor among the five firms, this Court reduces the multiplier from 2.01 to 1.75. A multiplier of 1.75 recognizes the risk in this litigation, and falls within the range of multipliers awarded in cases of this magnitude. See In re IndyMac Mortgage-Backed Sec. Litig., 94 F. Supp. 3d 517, 528 (S.D.N.Y. 2015) (finding multiplier of 1.33 for $346 million settlement reasonable); Platinum and Palladium, 2015 WL 4560206, at *4 (reducing multiplier from 2.6 to 1.9 on $72.5 million fund); Currency Conversion, 263 F.R.D. at 130 (reducing multiplier from 2.69 to 1.6 on $336 million fund); Penny v. Jenkens & Gilchrist, 230 F.R.D. 317, 352-54 (S.D.N.Y. 2005) (reducing multiplier from 2.04 to 1.5 on $81.5 million settlement); see also In re Cendant Corp. PRIDES Litig., 243 F.3d 722, 742 (3d Cir. 2001) (noting multipliers range from 1.35 to 2.99 based on survey of cases with mega-funds exceeding $100 million). A lodestar of $27.9 million multiplied by 1.75 results in a fee award of $48,825,000.

Accordingly, the "principles of moderation" urged by the Goldberger court, the Court's duty to protect the Class from "the danger of routine overcompensation . . . in the context of mega fund class actions," In re Citigroup Sec. Litig., 965 F. Supp. 2d 369, 401 (S.D.N.Y. 2013), and the broad discretion of this Court compel a fee award of no more than $48,825,000, or 20% of the Settlement.[3]

[3] This is not inconsistent with the proportion of fees that Counsel will receive from News Corp. in connection with the settlement benefiting the five absent Class members (20% of $30 million). The reasons justifying an award in either settlement are not materially different. Simply put, the Goldberger factors, namely risk, complexity, time, and resources in litigating the claims to such an advanced stage of litigation—all of which were satisfied before any one of the settlements were negotiated—serve as the primary basis on which Counsel is entitled to a fee from both the private settlement and the Class settlement. Counsel attempt to distinguish their fee in the private settlement on the basis that it was not derived from "a market rate negotiation with a client, reflects marginally lower work contributed to the individual settlements," lacks the structural relief contained in the Class settlement, and saves them the opportunity cost of pursuing fees relating to that settlement in a separate action. (Pl. Mot. for Fees at 11.) But all of those reasons are settlement-specific, and have no bearing on the Goldberger factors, which are what entitle them to any fee in the first place.

B. Expenses

Plaintiffs seek reimbursement of $7,512,915.12 in expenses. The vast majority of those expenses arise from costs associated with retaining two expert witnesses and retaining contract attorneys to review millions of documents. (Pl. Mot. for Fees at 20.) The contract attorney fees, amounting to a little more than $1 million and were billed "at an average rate of $39/hour without any mark-up applied." (Pl. Mot. for Fees at 20.) Simple math reveals that more than 25,000 hours of attorney time were expended. To Counsel's credit, this attorney time was "accounted as an expense rather than included in the lodestar." (Pl. Mot. for Fees at 20.) That fact weighs heavily in favor of granting the expenses. While courts in this Circuit have permitted attorneys to garnish their lodestars with marked-up contract attorney fees, this Court appreciates Counsel's decision to treat these contractor fees as an expense. It saves the Court from having to "determine a correct spread between the contract attorney's cost and his or her hourly rate and his or her salary." Citigroup Sec. Litig., 965 F. Supp. 2d at 394. This Court encourages the Plaintiffs' class action bar to consider adopting this practice in future actions.

Accordingly, because the "lion's share of these expenses reflect the costs of experts, consultants, litigation and trial support services, document imaging and copying, deposition costs, online legal research, and travel expenses," the court will not "depart from the common practice in this circuit of granting expense requests." Visa Check, 297 F. Supp. 2d at 525.

C. Incentive Awards

Plaintiffs request incentive awards of $50,000 each for the six class representatives: (1) Dial Corporation and Henkel Consumer Goods; (2) Kraft Heinz Foods and H.J. Heinz; (3) Foster Poultry Farms; (4) Smithfield Foods; (5) HP Hood; and (6) BEF Foods.

(Pl. Mot. for Fees at 22.) The incentive awards in the aggregate amount of $300,000 represent 0.12% of the Fund. Plaintiffs contend that the awards are justified in view of each company's investment of resources in pursuing the claims and "risking Defendants' retaliation for bringing claims against the sole source of a product vital to their ability to compete in the marketplace." (Pl. Mot. for Fees at 22.) They also count the "many total hours of executive and employee time," and the "unreimbursed costs in searching and gathering documents . . . preparing for and giving multiple depositions . . . [and] preparing and being ready to testify at trial," as examples of the investment they made in prosecuting this case. (Pl. Mot. for Fees at 22.) Moreover, five of the companies advanced significant fees to Berry for the first few years of the investigation and litigation.

Class representatives may receive an incentive award in addition to their allocable share of the ultimate recovery, but the decision to grant the award, and the amount thereof, rests solely within the discretion of the Court. See Roberts v. Texaco, 979 F. Supp. 185, 200 (S.D.N.Y. 1997). The "guiding standard in determining an incentive award is broadly stated as being the existence of special circumstances including the personal risk (if any) incurred by the plaintiff-applicant in becoming and continuing as a litigant, the time and effort expended by that plaintiff in assisting in the prosecution of the litigation or in bringing to bear added value (e.g., factual expertise), any other burdens sustained by that plaintiff . . . and, of course, the ultimate recovery." Roberts, 979 F. Supp. at 200.

Awards on an individualized basis have generally ranged from $2,500 to $85,000. See Dornberger v. Metro. Life Ins. Co., 203 F.R.D. 118, 125 (S.D.N.Y. 2001). While many of these awards are usually given to individual plaintiffs who have incurred significant personal risk in representing a class, a few courts have recognized the efforts of corporate representatives in granting incentive awards. In re Cardizem CD Antitrust Litig., 218 F.R.D. 508, 535 (E.D. Mich. 2003) ($75,000 each to two corporations); Enterprise Energy Corp. v. Columbia Gas Transmission Corp., 137 F.R.D. 240, 252 (S.D. Ohio 1991) ($50,000 each to six corporations); In re Prandin Direct Purchaser Antitrust Litig., 2015 WL 1396473, at *5 (E.D. Mich. Jan. 20, 2015) ($50,000 each to two corporations). In Cardizem, for example, corporate representatives dedicated "hundreds of hours of time to the prosecution of these cases and responses to discovery," provided the services of their general counsel, senior executives, and other employees during the litigation, investigated the claims with outside counsel, and participated meaningfully in the negotiation of settlement. 218 F.R.D. at 535–36.

Here, five of the six representatives fronted almost $1 million in attorneys' fees for the investigation and early prosecution of the action. Together, they provided more than a million documents in discovery, and made several of their employees and executives available for fact investigation, depositions, and trial. (Pl. Mot. for Fees at 22–23.) Moreover, while this case exclusively involved major companies that arguably were better suited to assume the risk of waging an expensive litigation against a multinational corporation, the decision to fire the first shot on behalf of the Class was fraught with risks. Notably, the named Plaintiffs in this case assumed a substantial risk in antagonizing a longstanding, powerful business partner and suffering sweeping consequences in the marketplace as a result of filing this action. Finally, the size of the incentive awards, relative to the Fund, is consistent with what other courts have awarded in cases of this magnitude. See Roberts, 979 F. Supp. at 200 (0.18% of a $115 million Fund). Accordingly, this Court approves incentive awards in the amount of $50,000 to the six named Class representatives.

CONCLUSION

For the foregoing reasons, in its informed discretion, this Court grants final approval of the Settlement, and awards attorneys' fees in the amount of $48,825,000, expenses in the amount of $7,512,915.12, and incentive awards in the amount of $50,000 each to Henkel Consumer Goods, Inc. f/k/a The Dial Corporation; Kraft Heinz Foods Co. f/k/a H.J. Heinz Company; Foster Poultry Farms; Smithfield Foods, Inc.; HP Hood LLC; and BEF Foods. Further, the Claims Administrator is directed to send another set of notices, and to follow-up with a phone call, informing potential Class Members that have not filed a proof of claim that they may file a late proof of claim by December 1, 2016.

Counsel is directed to submit a revised proposed final judgment forthwith. The Clerk of Court is directed to terminate motions pending at ECF Nos. 574 and 584.

Dated: October 31, 2016
New York, New York

SO ORDERED:

WILLIAM H. PAULEY III
U.S.D.J.

General Information

Case Name	Dial Corporation, et al v. News Corporation et al
Court	U.S. District Court for the Southern District of New York
Date Filed	Thu Sep 26 00:00:00 EDT 2013
Judge(s)	WILLIAM H. PAULEY, III
Federal Nature of Suit	Other Statutes: Antitrust [410]
Docket Number	1:13-cv-06802
Status	Closed
Parties	HP Hood LLC; Spectrum Brands Inc.; Harland Clarke Holding Corp.; PepsiCo, Inc.; Dial Corporation; News America Incorporated; Valassis Communications; Catalina Marketing Corporation; BEF Foods Inc.; Foster Poultry Farms; Crowell & Moring LLP; News America Marketing FSI L.L.C.; Henkel Consumer Goods, Inc.; News America Marketing In Store Services LLC; Smithfield Foods Inc.; News America Marketing FSI, Incorporated; Kraft Heinz Foods Company; H. J. Heinz Company LP; News America Marketing In-Store Services, L. L. C.; MacAndrews & Forbes Holding Inc. n/k/a MacAndrews & Forbes Incorporated; News Corporation

© 2025 Bloomberg Industry Group, Inc. All Rights Reserved. Terms of Service

TAB 4B

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
SOUTHERN DISTRICT OF NEW YORK

THE DIAL CORPORATION, et al., Individually and on behalf of Similarly Situated Companies, Plaintiffs, v. NEWS CORPORATION, et al., Defendants.	Civil Action No. 13-cv-06802-WHP

MEMORANDUM OF LAW IN SUPPORT OF MOTION FOR ATTORNEYS' FEES AND EXPENSES AND INCENTIVE AWARDS TO CLASS REPRESENTATIVES

TABLE OF CONTENTS

INTRODUCTION 1

THE WORK UNDERTAKEN BY PLAINTIFFS' COUNSEL 3

A. Case Investigation and Pleadings 3

B. Discovery Efforts 4

C. Expert Work 5

D. Class Certification 5

E. Summary Judgment and Daubert Motions 6

F. Motions in Limine and Trial 6

ARGUMENT 8

THE FEE REQUEST IS FAIR AND REASONABLE 8

A. The Requested Fee Is Reasonable and Appropriate Under the Second Circuit's Preferred Percentage-Based Method 8

1. Quality of Representation and Time Spent by Counsel 11

2. Complexity of the Case 12

3. Litigation Risk 13

4. The Fee Is Reasonable in Relation to the Settlement 15

5. Public Policy 15

B. The Lodestar Cross-Check Supports the Requested Fee 16

PLAINTIFFS' COUNSEL'S EXPENSES ARE REASONABLE 20

INCENTIVE AWARDS FOR CLASS REPRESENTATIVES 22

CONCLUSION 24

TABLE OF AUTHORITIES

Page

CASES

Adelphia Commc'ns Corp. Sec. & Derivative Litig., In re, No. 03 MD 1529 (LMM), 2006 WL 3378705 (S.D.N.Y. Nov. 16, 2006) 9

Air Cargo Shipping Servs. Antitrust Litig., In re, No. 06 MD 1775*:*

2009 WL 3077396 (E.D.N.Y. Sept. 25, 2009) 9

2011 WL 2909162 (E.D.N.Y. July 15, 2011) 8, 9

2012 WL 3138596 (E.D.N.Y. Aug. 2, 2012) 9

2015 WL 5918273 (E.D.N.Y. Oct. 9, 2015) 23, 24

Allapattah Servs., Inc. v. Exxon Corp., 454 F. Supp. 2d 1185 (S.D. Fla. 2006) 9

Alpine Pharmacy, Inc. v. Chas. Pfizer & Co., 481 F.2d 1045 (2d Cir. 1973) 8

Asare v. Change Grp. of N.Y., Inc., No. 12 Civ. 3371 (CM), 2013 WL 6144764 (S.D.N.Y. Nov. 18, 2013) 17

AT&T Mobility Wireless Data Servs. Sales Tax Litig., In re, 792 F. Supp. 2d 1028 (N.D. Ill. 2011) 9

(Bank of Am.) Checking Account Overdraft Litig., In re, 830 F. Supp. 2d 1330 (S.D. Fla. 2011)$ 9

Beckman v. KeyBank, N.A., 293 F.R.D. 467 (S.D.N.Y. 2013) 17

Cathode Ray Tube (CRT) Antitrust Litig., In re, No. 1917, 2016 WL 153265 (N.D. Cal. Jan. 13, 2016) 24

Cathode Ray Tube (CRT) Antitrust Litig., In re, MDL No. 1917, 2016 WL 721680 (N.D. Cal. Jan. 28, 2016) 9

Citigroup Inc. Sec. Litig., In re, 965 F. Supp. 2d 369 (S.D.N.Y. 2013) 18, 19

City of Detroit v. Grinnell Corp., 495 F.2d 448 (2d Cir. 1974), abrogated on other grounds, Goldberger v. Integrated Res., Inc., 209 F.3d 43 (2d Cir. 2000) 14

Colgate-Palmolive Co. ERISA Litig., In re, 36 F. Supp. 3d 344, 353 (S.D.N.Y. 2014) 16

Credit Default Swaps, In re, No. 13-MD-2476, 2016 WL 2731524 (S.D.N.Y. Apr. 26, 2016).....9, 10, 16, 17, 18, 19

Currency Conversion Fee Antitrust Litig., In re, 263 F.R.D. 110 (S.D.N.Y. 2009), aff'd sub nom. Priceline.com, Inc. v. Silberman, 405 F. App'x 532 (2d Cir. 2010) 15, 16, 19, 23, 24

Donoghue v. Morgan Stanley High Yield Fund, No. 10 Civ. 3131 (DLC), 2012 WL 6097654 (S.D.N.Y. Dec. 7, 2012).....8

Dreyfus Aggressive Growth Mut. Fund Litig., In re, No. 98 CV 4318 HB, 2001 WL 709262 (S.D.N.Y. June 22, 2001).....13

Excess Value Ins. Coverage Litig., In re, 598 F. Supp. 2d 380 (S.D.N.Y. 2005).....12

FTC v. Phoebe Putney Health Sys., Inc., 133 S. Ct. 1003 (2013) 16

Gierlinger v. Gleason, 160 F.3d 858 (2d Cir. 1998).....17

Goldberger v. Integrated Res., Inc., 209 F.3d 43 (2d Cir. 2000).....11, 13, 14, 15, 16

Gulf Oil/Cities Serv. Tender Offer Litig., In re, 142 F.R.D. 588 (S.D.N.Y. 1992) 1

Hi-Crush Partners L.P. Sec. Litig., In re, No. 12-CIV-8557 CM, 2014 WL 7323417 (S.D.N.Y. Dec. 19, 2014).....17

High-Tech. Emp. Antitrust Litig,, In re, No. 11-CV-02509-LHK, 2015 WL 5158730 (N.D. Cal. Sept. 2, 2015) 24

Initial Pub. Offering Sec. Litig., In re, 671 F. Supp. 2d 467 (S.D.N.Y. 2009) 9

LeBlanc-Stemberg v. Fletcher, 143 F.3d 748 (2d Cir.1998) 17

Maley v. Dale Global Techs. Corp., 186 F. Supp. 2d 358 (S.D.N.Y. 2002) 18

Marchbanks Truck Serv. v. Comdata Network, Inc., Case No. 07-CV-1078 (E.D. Pa. July 14, 2014).....24

Missouri v. Jenkins, 491 U.S. 274 (1989).....17

NASDAQ Mkt.-Makers Antitrust Litig., In re, 187 F.R.D. 465 (S.D.N.Y. 1998) 12, 14, 18

Oxford Health Plans. Inc. Sec Litig., In re, MDL 1222, 2003 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 26795 (S.D.N.Y. June 12, 2003).....9

Payment Card Interchange Fee & Merchant Discount Antitrust Litig., In re, 991 F. Supp. 2d 437 (E.D.N.Y. 2014), rev'd on other grounds, No. 12-4671-CV, 2016 WL 3563719 (2d Cir. June 30, 2016) 8, 10, 18

Plastic Tableware Antitrust Litig., In re, No. 94 CV 3564, 1995 WL 723175 (E.D. Pa. Dec. 4, 1995).....23

Platinum & Palladium Commodities Litig., In re, No. 10 CV 3617, 2015 WL 4560206 (S.D.N.Y. July 7, 2015)$ 9, 16

Reiter v. MTA New York City Transit Auth., 457 F.3d 224 (2d Cir. 2006).....19

Relafen Antitrust Litig., In re, Master File No. 01-12239-WGY (D. Mass. 2004 & 2005) 9

Roberts v. Texaco, Inc., 979 F. Supp. 185 (S.D.N.Y.1997).....23

Telik , Inc. Sec. Litig., In re, 576 F. Supp. 2d 570 (S.D.N.Y. 2008).....17, 19

Titanium Dioxide Antitrust Litig., In re, No. 10-CV-00318 RDB, 2013 WL 6577029 (D. Md. Dec. 13, 2013) 24

Tricor Direct Purchaser Antitrust Litig., In re, No. 05-340-SLR, Dkt. No. 543 (D. Del. Apr. 23, 2009) 9

Veeco Instruments Inc. Sec. Litig., In re, No. 05 MDL 01695(CM), 2007 WL 4115808 (S.D.N.Y. 2007) 17

Velez v. Novartis Pharm. Corp., No. 04 CIV 09194 CM, 2010 WL 4877852 (S.D.N.Y. Nov. 30, 2010) 23-24

Visa Check/Mastermoney Antitrust Litig., In re, 297 F. Supp. 2d 503 (E.D.N.Y. 2003), aff'd sub nom. Wal-Mart Stores, Inc. v. Visa U.S.A., Inc., 396 F.3d 96 (2d Cir. 2005).....14, 21

Vitamins Antitrust Litig., In re, Misc. No. 99-197 (TFH), 2001 WL 34312839 (D.D.C. July 16, 2001).....9

Wal-Mart Stores, Inc. v. Visa U.S.A., Inc., 396 F.3d 96 (2d Cir. 2005) 1, 7, 12, 21

WorldCom, Inc., In re, 388 F. Supp. 2d 319 (S.D.N.Y. 2005) 8, 10

STATUTES AND RULE

15 U.S.C. § 1 3

15 U.S.C. § 2 3

Fed. R. Civ. P. Rule 23(h) 1

OTHER AUTHORITIES

Billing Rates Across the Country, National Law J., Jan. 13, 2014, http://www.nationallawjournal.com/id=1202636785489/Billing-Rates-Across-the-Country 19

Newberg on Class Actions § 15:83 (5th ed.) 9

Pursuant to Rule 23(h) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, Co-Lead Class Counsel respectfully move for an award of attorneys' fees and reimbursement of expenses from the common fund established by the class settlement, and incentive awards for the six class representatives.

INTRODUCTION

In December 2012, Berry Law PLLC ("Berry Law") and Kellogg, Huber, Hansen, Todd, Evans & Figel, P.L.L.C. ("Kellogg Huber") filed the initial complaints on behalf of Dial and Heinz in this multi-year, multi-million dollar effort to recover monopoly overcharges imposed by one of the world's largest media companies and to reform the contracting practices that created and sustained that monopoly. The Susman Godfrey, LLP ("Susman Godfrey"), McKool Smith P.C. ("McKool Smith"), and Paul Hastings LLP ("Paul Hastings") firms joined as plaintiffs' counsel in mid-2013, along with named plaintiffs Foster Poultry Farms ("Foster Farms"), BEF Foods Inc. ("BEF"), HP Hood LLC ("HP Hood"), Smithfield Foods, Inc. ("Smithfield Foods"), and Spectrum Brands, Inc. ("Spectrum Brands").

Unlike many antitrust class actions that support substantial fee awards, this case did not have the advantage of per se claims against admitted—or even accused—conspirators. Plaintiffs' counsel did not piggy-back on the work of governmental enforcement efforts or benefit from cooperating amnesty applicants. This was private enforcement from first to last. See Wal-Mart Stores, Inc. v. Visa U.S.A., Inc., 396 F.3d 96, 122 (2d Cir. 2005) (noting that "extraordinary fee" was warranted in part because "plaintiffs' counsel did not have the benefit of 'piggybacking' off of a previous [government action]."); In re Gulf Oil/Cities Serv. Tender Offer Litig., 142 F.R.D. 588, 597 (S.D.N.Y. 1992) (Mukasey, J.) ("[T]his is not a case where plaintiffs' counsel can be cast as jackals to the government's lion, arriving on the scene after some enforcement or administrative agency has made the kill. They did all the work on their own.").

The difficulty of the private enforcement task these plaintiffs and their counsel undertook is underscored by the complete lack of any copycat lawsuits.

The only certainty at the outset of this case was that even reaching class certification would require millions of dollars of expert economic analysis, investigation, and discovery. From its inception, this case faced significant legal hurdles and a tenacious, skilled, and well-funded opposition. And unlike many class actions, this case did not settle after this Court certified the class. Instead, Defendants appealed that decision, moved to disqualify both of Plaintiffs' antitrust and industry experts, and sought summary judgment on all claims. When the Second Circuit rejected their appeal Defendants began directly negotiating settlements with the two dozen largest class members in an attempt to undermine the Class and Plaintiffs' Counsel's efforts on its behalf.

This case proceeded through jury selection before settling on the first trial day for $244,000,000 (the "Settlement Amount") and important reform of Defendants' contracting practices. In consideration of this long fight and superior result, the six law firms that represented the Plaintiff class[1] respectfully request a fee award of $73,200,000 representing 30% of the common fund and a multiplier of 2.01 on Counsel's lodestar of $36,433,985.50. Co-Lead Counsel also requests reimbursement of expenses incurred in the course of prosecuting these claims in the amount of $7,512,915.12, and incentive awards of $50,000 to each of the six named plaintiffs.

[1] The six firms that represented the named plaintiffs and certified class are: Kellogg, Huber, Hansen, Todd, Evans & Figel, P.L.L.C., Susman Godfrey, LLP, Kramer, Levin, Naftalis & Frankel, LLP, McKool Smith, P.C., Berry Law PLLC, and Paul Hastings LLP. See the declarations of Steven Benz, James Southwick, Daniel Goldman, Lewis LeClair, and Steven Berry, filed contemporaneously herewith.

THE WORK UNDERTAKEN BY PLAINTIFFS' COUNSEL

A. Case Investigation and Pleadings

In 2010 Berry Law and Kellogg Huber began investigating the antitrust claims that were ultimately brought to conclusion nearly six years later. From 2010 to the filing of the first complaint, those two firms devoted hundreds of hours of attorney time to the investigation of Plaintiffs' claims. See Berry Decl. ¶¶ 10-11; Benz Decl. ¶ 12. On December 21, 2012, The Dial Corporation filed the first complaint in this action in the Eastern District of Michigan against Defendants, alleging federal and state antitrust claims relating to their provision of in-store promotions products ("ISPs") to customers. (ECF No. 1.) On December 27, 2012, H.J. Heinz Company (now renamed Kraft Heinz Food Company) joined the lawsuit in an Amended Complaint. (ECF No. 3.) On May 2, 2013, a Second Amended Complaint added Foster Farms as a plaintiff and made the first class allegations. (ECF No. 24.) In August 2013, three additional firms – Susman Godfrey, McKool Smith, and Paul Hastings – joined the case as plaintiffs' counsel and sought leave to file a third amended complaint. (ECF No. 46.) In September 2013, the case was transferred from the Eastern District of Michigan to this Court. (ECF No. 50.) Plaintiffs filed a Third Amended Complaint on October 24, 2013, adding HP Hood, BEF, Smithfield Foods, and Spectrum as plaintiffs. (ECF No. 70.) The Fourth Amended Complaint was filed on April 8, 2014 and asserts causes of action for (1) exclusive dealing in the ISP market in violation of Section 1 of the Sherman Antitrust Act, 15 U.S.C. § 1; and (2) monopolization of the ISP market in violation of Section 2 of the Sherman Antitrust Act, 15 U.S.C. § 2. (ECF No. 111.)[2]

[2] The Complaint also asserted causes of action for monopolization of the free-standing insert market, and for violations of Michigan and New York state antitrust laws. With the Court's permission, Plaintiffs later voluntarily dismissed those claims. (ECF No. 543.)

B. Discovery Efforts

Fact discovery began in October 2013. Because Plaintiffs alleged anticompetitive conduct dating back to News's efforts to crush competition in the early 2000s, document discovery was extensive: a total of 10,867,210 documents were produced, representing 48,440,389 pages. This total comprised:

- 5,793,586 documents from Defendants (22,943,421 pages)
- 3,443,921 documents from Plaintiffs (12,445,706 pages)
- 1,629,703 documents from non-parties (13,051,262 pages)

The temporal scope and rule of reason nature of the claims required extensive deposition testimony: the parties took and defended 48 depositions in the case. Benz Decl. ¶ 20. The deponents included Defendants' current and former employees, officers, and corporate designee, as well as Defendants' principal competitor, Valassis Corp. Southwick Decl. ¶¶ 16, 17. Plaintiffs' Counsel also took the depositions of Defendants' four expert witnesses, Dr. Dennis Carlton, Dr. Sanjay Dhar, Dr. Jerry Hausman, and Dr. Kevin Murphy, and defended multiple depositions of their own experts, Dr. Jeffrey MacKie-Mason and Dr. Paul Farris. Benz Decl. ¶ 21; Berry Decl. ¶ 11; Goldman Decl. ¶ 6; LeClair Decl. ¶¶ 5-7; Southwick Decl. ¶¶ 16, 17. Plaintiffs' Counsel defended depositions of current and former employees of Class Plaintiffs and participated in the depositions of current and former employees of non-party CPGs, retailers, and other former competitors of the Defendants. Benz Decl. ¶ 21; Berry Decl. ¶ 11; LeClair Decl. ¶¶ 5, 7, 8; Southwick Decl. ¶¶ 16-17. Together, the parties served approximately 20 non-party subpoenas and 10 expert reports, along with multiple report supplements and expert declarations. Benz Decl. ¶ 20.

In April 2015, with just days to go before discovery was to close and with depositions nearly complete, Defendants informed the Court that they had failed to produce more than one million emails relevant to the case and would endeavor to produce those emails in the coming weeks. (ECF Nos. 222, 224.) As a result, the case schedule was extended and Plaintiffs' Counsel began an intensive effort over the summer of 2015 to review and analyze the late wave of Defendants' emails that were not produced until after discovery was supposed to have been complete.

C. Expert Work

Simultaneous with document discovery and depositions, Plaintiffs' Counsel worked with two experts to establish key facets of class certification (common impact, predominance, common approach to damages) and their affirmative case (market definition, liability, and damages). These experts provided critical opinion evidence on the business context of the use of third-party ISPs offered by News and sound economic theory to establish liability and quantify damages for the class. Plaintiffs describe those experts' qualifications and opinions in the Declaration of Steven F. Benz. Benz Decl. ¶¶ 22-24.

D. Class Certification

On August 11, 2014, Plaintiffs moved the Court under Rule 23(a) and (b)(3) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure for an order certifying the case as a class action. (ECF No. 141.) On June 18, 2015, the Court granted Class Plaintiffs' motion and certified a class of "[n]on-retailer consumer packaged goods firms residing in the United States which have directly purchased in-store promotions from News Corp. at any time on or after April 5, 2008, and were not subject to mandatory arbitration clauses." (ECF No. 243, at 23.) Defendants petitioned to appeal the Court's class certification order under Rule 23(f), (ECF No. 248), which the Second Circuit denied. (ECF No. 327.)

The Court approved a September 21, 2015 opt-out deadline. (ECF Nos. 266, 304.) Only one small putative Class Member opted out. (ECF No. 304-1.) The Court subsequently amended the start of the Class period to April 26, 2009. (ECF No. 484.)

E. Summary Judgment and Daubert Motions

On September 30, 2015, Defendants moved for summary judgment and sought to bar testimony of both of Plaintiffs' experts. (ECF Nos. 282–295.) Those motions, as well as Plaintiffs' responses, were supported by extensive expert reports, exhibits, and declarations. (See id.) On January 15, 2016, the Court denied Defendants' motion for summary judgment and motions to exclude the testimony of Professors MacKie-Mason and Farris. (ECF No. 420.)

F. Motions in Limine and Trial

From December 2015 through February of this year, the parties negotiated and filed all the required pre-trial materials, including a proposed jury questionnaire, jury instructions, verdict forms, voir dire questions, and motions in limine. (ECF Nos. 285, 286, 462, 471, 474, 538-540.) The Court held several pre-trial conferences, in court and by telephone, on important pre-trial issues, such as the parties motions in limine, including critical issues such as the admissibility of pre-class period evidence and the effect of releases entered into between Defendants and various Class Members at various times. (See, e.g., ECF Nos. 365, 484, 520, 523.) In the lead-up to trial, Plaintiffs' Counsel prepared for and conducted a mock trial; selected, exchanged, and objected to trial exhibits; designated and objected to deposition designations; and prepared their trial witnesses to testify. Benz Decl. ¶ 20; Goldman Decl. ¶¶ 12-13; LeClair Decl. ¶¶ 6-8, 10-11.

Throughout these months of trial preparation, Plaintiffs' Counsel was actively involved in discussions with most of the two dozen large class members with whom Defendants were trying to negotiate non-class settlements. (ECF No. 339.) On February 24, less than a week before trial, Defendants informed Plaintiffs' Counsel of settlements worth more than $30 million it had struck the previous day with five substantial class members. (ECF No. 542.) And as described in Plaintiffs' motion for preliminary approval, during January and February of this year Lead Counsel were actively negotiating to settle the Class's claims. (ECF No. 565.)

On February 29 of this year, a venire was brought in and the parties proceeded through voir dire and jury empanelment. Counsel proceeded to give opening statements to the jury before reaching, and then briefing the Court on the details of, the parties' settlement. The Court preliminarily approved the settlement on June 2, 2016. (ECF No. 571.) On June 15, 2016, notice was mailed to all Class Members.

Every minute of work and every dollar of expense incurred by the firms of Kellogg Huber, Susman Godfrey, McKool Smith, Kramer Levin, and Paul Hastings was entirely at risk. Benz Decl. ¶ 43; Goldman Decl. ¶ 5; LeClair Decl. ¶¶ 18-19; Southwick Decl. ¶ 9. The six class representatives paid Berry Law a total of $918,110 during the course of Mr. Berry's pre-suit investigation and during the pendency of the case; all of Berry Law's time in excess of these payments were at risk. Berry Decl. ¶ 15. Ultimately, 80% of Berry Law's lodestar, and 97% of Plaintiffs' Counsel's combined lodestar was undertaken on a contingency basis. Benz Decl. ¶ 17; Berry Decl. ¶ 16.

ARGUMENT

THE FEE REQUEST IS FAIR AND REASONABLE

A. The Requested Fee Is Reasonable and Appropriate Under the Second Circuit's Preferred Percentage-Based Method

The total requested amount of fees is $73,200,000, 30% of the $244 million common fund created by the settlement. Applying the "percentage method" of fee calculation favored in this Circuit confirms that the requested fee is reasonable. See Wal-Mart, 396 F.3d at ("The trend in this Circuit is toward the percentage method"). The percentage method provides "appropriate financial incentives" necessary to "attract well-qualified plaintiffs' counsel who are able to take a case to trial," and "directly align[s] [the] interests of the class and its counsel." WorldCom, Inc., In re, 388 F. Supp. 2d 319, 355 (S.D.N.Y. 2005). Without "adequate attorneys' fee awards, many antitrust actions would not be commenced, since the claims of individual litigants, when taken separately, often hardly justify the expense of litigation." In re Air Cargo Shipping Servs. Antitrust Litig., No. 06 MD 1775 (JG), 2011 WL 2909162, at *6 (E.D.N.Y. July 15, 2011) (quoting Alpine Pharmacy, Inc. v. Chas. Pfizer & Co., 481 F.2d 1045, 1050 (2d Cir. 1973)).

The fee request for Plaintiffs' Counsel here totals 30% of the common fund, which is reasonable on its face. Donoghue v. Morgan Stanley High Yield Fund, No. 10 Civ. 3131 (DLC), 2012 WL 6097654, at *2 (S.D.N.Y. Dec. 7, 2012) (Cote, J.) ("attorney[s]'s fees of one-third or less of the settlement amount are customarily found to be reasonable.") (collecting cases). "Even in large-value cases, courts have sometimes awarded contingency fees exceeding 30% of the overall fund." In re Payment Card Interchange Fee & Merch. Disc. Antitrust Litig., 991 F. Supp. 2d 437, 447 n.11 (E.D.N.Y. 2014) (collecting cases), rev'd on other grounds, No. 12-4671-CV, 2016 WL 3563719 (2d Cir. June 30, 2016).

Thirty percent of a common fund is squarely within the percentage range of fees that courts in this circuit have approved as reasonable in recent large antitrust cases:

Case	Recovery	Percentage
In re Credit Default Swaps Antitrust Litig., No. 13-MD-2476, 2016 WL 2731524 (S.D.N.Y. Apr. 26, 2016) (Cote, J.)	$1.86 billion	13.61%
In re Platinum & Palladium Commodities Litig., No. 10 CV 3617, 2015 WL 4560206 (S.D.N.Y. July 7, 2015) (Pauley, J.) (fee award for Futures Class Counsel)	$72.5 million	22.5%
Id. (fee award for Physical Class Counsel)	$12.1 million	33.3%
In re Air Cargo Shipping Servs. Antitrust Litig., No. 06 MD 1775, 2012 WL 3138596 (E.D.N.Y. Aug. 2, 2012), 2011 WL 2909162 (E.D.N.Y. July 15, 2011), 2009 WL 3077396 (E.D.N.Y. Sept. 25, 2009) (Gleeson, J.)	$422.2 million	25%
In re Initial Pub. Offering Sec. Litig., 671 F. Supp. 2d 467 (S.D.N.Y. 2009) (Scheindlin, J.)	$510 million	33.3%
In re Adelphia Commc'ns Corp. Sec. & Derivative Litig., No. 03 MD 1529 (LMM), 2006 WL 3378705 (S.D.N.Y. Nov. 16, 2006) (Scheindlin, J.)	$455 million	21.4%
In re Oxford Health Plans. Inc. Sec Litig., MDL 1222, 2003 U.S. Dist. Lexis 26795 (S.D.N.Y. June 12, 2003) (Brieant, J.)	$300 million	28%

See generally Newberg on Class Actions § 15:83 (5th ed.) (mean fee award percentage for 26.9% in Second Circuit for 2006-2011 period). Awards in "megafund" cases in other circuits confirm the reasonableness of a 30% award here.

Case	Recovery	Percentage
In re Cathode Ray Tube (CRT) Antitrust Litig., MDL No. 1917, 2016 WL 721680 (N.D. Cal. Jan. 28, 2016)	$576 million	30%
In re AT&T Mobility Wireless Data Servs. Sales Tax Litig., 792 F. Supp. 2d 1028 (N.D. Ill. 2011)	$956 million	20%
In re (Bank of Am.) Checking Account Overdraft Litig., 830 F. Supp. 2d 1330 (S.D. Fla. 2011)	$410 million	30%
In re Tricor Direct Purchaser Antitrust Litig., No. 05-340-SLR, Dkt. No. 543 (D. Del. Apr. 23, 2009)	$250 million	33.33%
Allapattah Servs., Inc. v. Exxon Corp., 454 F. Supp. 2d 1185 (S.D. Fla. 2006)	$1.06 billion	31.33%
In re Relafen Antitrust Litig., Master File No. 01-12239-WGY (D. Mass. 2004 & 2005)	$250 million	33%
In re Vitamins Antitrust Litig., Misc. No. 99-197 (TFH), 2001 WL 34312839 (D.D.C. July 16, 2001)	$365 million	34.06%

Notably, in all but two of the cases above[3], settlement was achieved comparatively early in the case—before class certification, summary judgment, Daubert motions, and trial. The increased risks and difficulty posed by taking the case further here warrants a higher fee award relative to similar cases settled earlier in the course of litigation. See Credit Default Swaps, 2016 WL 2731524, at *17 n.24 (privately negotiated fee schedule increased rate as litigation advanced); WorldCom, 388 F. Supp. 2d at 355 (fee schedule "allows Lead Counsel to collect a higher fee for recoveries achieved in later stages of the litigation"); see also Payment Card Interchange Fee, 991 F. Supp. 2d at 446 ("Privately negotiated fees in complex cases . . . often include a higher fee for cases that proceed past a motion to dismiss, discovery, summary judgment, or other benchmarks; the Goldberger factors also dictate a smaller fee for less work."). In light of awards in other cases of similar scale but requiring comparatively less work, the requested fee is eminently reasonable.

Two additional case-specific issues should be noted in considering this fee request. First, five of the named plaintiffs paid Berry Law a total of $948,110 in fees during the investigation and litigation of this case. Berry Decl. ¶¶ 14, 15. Plaintiffs' counsel will reimburse those fees to the named plaintiffs out of any award of fees to Plaintiffs' Counsel. The repayment will put those Plaintiffs on even footing with the rest of the Class in terms of proportion of individual damages recovered, and will ensure the total fee to Plaintiffs' Counsel from the Class does not exceed the requested $73,200,000.

Second, in addition to the $244 million payment to the Class, Defendants settled with five class members in the week before trial for $30 million cash plus certain future price discounts and true-up payments to match any class settlement. (ECF No. 542.) The class settlement agreement includes a payment to Plaintiffs' Counsel of $6 million as a fee related to work that resulted in those individual settlements. The $6 million fee does not come from the common fund and is thus separate from this fee request, but is contingent on final approval of the class settlement. This $6 million fee should not reduce the fee requested in this motion because if the five settling entities had remained in the Class, Class Counsel would have demanded a correspondingly larger class settlement payment and the percentage fee would also be correspondingly larger. Although $6 million represents only 20% of the individual settlements, that fee is not akin to a market rate negotiation with a client, reflects the marginally lower work contributed to the individual settlements, the lack of structural relief in the individual settlements, and the benefit to Plaintiffs' Counsel of being saved the effort of pursuing their due compensation for those settlements in separate actions.

[3] Oxford Health and Allapattah Servs., which settled in the pre-trial phase and after trial and appeals, respectively.

The reasonableness of the requested fee award is also confirmed using the six-factor test promulgated in Goldberger v. Integrated Resources, Inc., 209 F.3d 43 (2d Cir. 2000). Under that test, courts weigh "(1) the time and labor expended by counsel; (2) the magnitude and complexities of the litigation; (3) the risk of the litigation . . . ; (4) the quality of representation; (5) the requested fee in relation to the settlement; and (6) public policy considerations." Id. at 50.

1. Quality of Representation and Time Spent by Counsel

"[T]he quality of representation is best measured by results." Goldberger, 209 F.3d at 55. As detailed in Plaintiffs' Motion for Preliminary Approval, ECF No. 565, Plaintiffs' Counsel obtained a cash recovery of $244,000,000 for the Class, in excess of the conservative single damages calculated by Dr. MacKie-Mason. (ECF No. 565, at 12). In addition, Plaintiffs' Counsel secured structural reform of Defendants' contracting procedures, which could substantially reinvigorate competition in the third-party ISP market. See In re Excess Value Ins. Coverage Litig., 598 F. Supp. 2d 380, 388 (S.D.N.Y. 2005) (Berman, J.) (holding that when injunctive relief confers substantial benefit upon the class but cannot be ascribed specific monetary value, appropriate to award higher percentage of common fund as attorneys' fees).

This result was achieved efficiently even though Plaintiffs' Counsel faced tenacious, and at times contentious, opposition from one of the nation's largest and best regarded defense firms. See In re NASDAQ Mkt.-Makers Antitrust Litig., 187 F.R.D. 465, 489 (S.D.N.Y. 1998) (Sweet, J.) (noting as factor in reasonableness of hours expended that defense counsel included "the nation's biggest and best defense firms operating on a seemingly unlimited budget over a period of four years"). Indeed, a report in the Wall Street Journal, a publication owned by Defendant News Corp, indicated that Defendants had spent nearly $35 million in legal fees in just the last year of litigation. See Benz Decl. Ex. 8, News Corp Settles In-Store Ads Class-Action Suit, Wall St. J., Feb. 29, 2016 ("The legal fees have been significant—around $35 million last year."), available at http://www.wsj.com/articles/news-corp-settles-in-store-ads-class-action-1456796184. If accurate, Defendants' fees for 2015 dwarf the lodestar of Plaintiffs' Counsel for the same period and nearly matches the entire $37.3 million lodestar for Plaintiffs' Counsel for the roughly five years of this litigation. See infra Part I.D.

2. Complexity of the Case

"[A]ntitrust cases, by their nature, are highly complex." Wal-Mart, 396 F.3d at 122. This case was no exception, and involved an alleged monopolization and the interplay of multiple contracts to restrain trade in a complicated, multi-part marketplace, with conduct spanning more than a decade. As described above, discovery was extensive and made more complicated by Defendants' production of over one million emails after depositions were nearly completed.

The merits of this rule of reason monopolization case required extensive work with economists and marketing experts to analyze Defendants' contracting practices and to define the relevant market and determine whether Defendants' contracting practices were exclusionary or pro-competitive. Unlike per se cases, there are no bright lines in a rule of reason analysis that identify prohibited practices. Each alleged bad act needed to be analyzed in conjunction with the other alleged improper behavior in the context of the relevant market to support an argument why Defendants' conduct, taken as a whole, was anti-competitive and why Defendants' proffered explanations were pretext.

Plaintiffs' Counsel also faced novel statute of limitations questions, complicated not only by ambiguous tolling agreements, but also by many of the hundreds of contracts at issue having contractual provisions purporting to shorten the limitations period to bring a claim. Plaintiffs had to deal with the late surprise assertion by Defendants, only weeks before the trial, that certain Class members had previously released their claims. (ECF No. 429.) Plaintiffs' Counsel also faced the hurdle of preparing for trial and attempting to negotiate a class-wide settlement while also responding to numerous inquiries from the two-dozen largest class members as they were directly courted by Defendants for individual settlements. This substantially increased the difficulty of both the class settlement negotiations and trial preparation.

3. Litigation Risk

"Contingency risk is the principal . . . factor courts should consider in their determination of attorneys' fees." In re Dreyfus Aggressive Growth Mut. Fund Litig., No. 98 CV 4318 HB, 2001 WL 709262, at *6 (S.D.N.Y. June 22, 2001) (Baer, J.); see also Goldberger, 209 F.3d at 54

(identifying risk as "perhaps the foremost factor to be considered in determining whether to award an enhancement") (internal citation and quotations omitted). An evaluation of the risks undertaken by Plaintiffs' Counsel in prosecuting this action supports the reasonableness of the fee request.

"It is well-established that litigation risk must be measured as of when the case is filed," not when the fee application is adjudicated. Goldberger, 209 F.3d at 55. Here, all of Plaintiffs' Counsel's time, with the exception of 20% of Berry Law's time, was undertaken entirely on contingency, risking all of their time and paying out millions of dollars in expenses. Even with the roughly $1 million that class representatives paid to Berry Law during the course of the case, $36 million of the $37.3 million in lodestar was entirely at risk, or 97% of all Plaintiffs' Counsel's time was fully at risk.

Even "despite the most vigorous and competent of efforts, success is never guaranteed." City of Detroit v. Grinnell Corp., 495 F.2d 448, 471 (2d Cir. 1974), abrogated on other grounds, Goldberger, 209 F.3d 43. In antitrust class actions in particular, "[t]he risks of establishing liability and damages at trial" are substantial. In re Visa Check/Mastermoney Antitrust Litig. 297 F. Supp. 2d 503, 511 (E.D.N.Y. 2003), aff'd sub nom. Wal-Mart, 396 F.3d 96; see also NASDAQ Mkt.-Makers Antitrust Litig., 187 F.R.D. at 476 ("[T]he history of antitrust litigation is replete with cases in which antitrust plaintiffs succeeded at trial on liability, but recovered no damages, or only negligible damages, at trial, or on appeal.").

Plaintiffs' Counsel faced risks associated with taking on one of the largest and most powerful corporations in the world, one with extensive resources to support the litigation. The case has thus far taken almost six years to come from investigation to conclusion, with Plaintiffs' Counsel collectively laying out 69,000 hours—representing over $36 million in expended man-hours that may never have been collected. Benz Decl. ¶ 17; Berry Decl. ¶¶ 12, 13; Goldman Decl. ¶¶ 24, 38; LeClair Decl. ¶ 15; Southwick Decl. ¶ 12. Counsel also invested over $7 million in expenses that they may have never recovered but for a successful outcome. Okada Decl. ¶ 9; Benz Decl. ¶¶ 51-52; Berry Decl. ¶ 14; Goldman Decl. ¶¶ 25, 26; LeClair Decl. ¶¶ 19, 21; Southwick Decl. ¶ 18.

The case itself posed substantial burdens for successful prosecution. Plaintiffs' Counsel had to overcome motions for summary judgment, a motion for class certification and an appeal, Daubert motions, and various motions in limine, any of which could have crippled or outright terminated the action. Plaintiffs' Counsel thus faced, and succeeded in overcoming, substantial legal and procedural obstacles to successfully bring the action to the point of settlement.

4. The Fee Is Reasonable in Relation to the Settlement

Courts in this Circuit generally examine the reasonableness of a requested fee in relation to the size of the settlement fund by comparing the fee sought with the requested fee in other similarly sized settlements. See, e.g., In re Currency Conversion Fee Antitrust Litig., 263 F.R.D. 110, 129 (S.D.N.Y. 2009) (Pauley, J.), aff'd sub nom. Priceline.com, Inc. v. Silberman, 405 F. App'x 532 (2d Cir. 2010); but see Goldberger, 209 F.3d at 53 ("a fee award should be assessed based on scrutiny of the unique circumstances of each case"). As shown above at 7-11, a fee award representing 30% of a common fund of this size is well in line with practice in the federal courts where a class action has progressed to trial.

5. Public Policy

Finally, public policy strongly favors the award of the requested fee in order to adequately incentivize lawyers to pursue challenging and high risk work in the antitrust context vital to the proper functioning of the economy. As Judge Cote recently wrote, "[i]t is important to encourage top-tier litigators to pursue challenging antitrust cases such as this one. Our antitrust laws address issues that go to the heart of our economy. Our economic health, and indeed our stability as a nation, depend upon adherence to the rule of law and our citizenry's trust in the fairness and transparency of our marketplace." Credit Default Swaps, 2016 WL 2731524, at *18 (citing FTC v. Phoebe Putney Health Sys., Inc., 133 S. Ct. 1003, 1010 (2013) (noting the "fundamental national values of free enterprise and economic competition that are embodied in the federal antitrust laws").

B. The Lodestar Cross-Check Supports the Requested Fee

The lodestar fee calculation method has "fallen out of favor particularly because it encourages bill-padding and discourages early settlements." In re Colgate-Palmolive Co. ERISA Litig., 36 F. Supp. 3d 344, 353 (S.D.N.Y. 2014) (Schofield, J.). At most, the lodestar method should be used as a cross-check to ensure the award here is not an "unwarranted windfall." Goldberger, 209 F.3d at 49-50. "[W]here used as a mere cross-check, the hours documented by counsel need not be exhaustively scrutinized by the district court." Id. at 50.

"Under the lodestar method, the Court examines the fee petition to ascertain the number of hours reasonably billed to the plaintiff and multiplies that figure by an appropriate hourly rate and a multiplier." Currency Conversion Fee, 263 F.R.D. at 128. "Courts applying the lodestar method generally apply a multiplier to take into account the contingent nature of the fee, the risks of non-payment, the quality of representation, and the results achieved." Platinum & Palladium Commodities Litig., 2015 WL 4560206, at *3.

Plaintiffs' Counsel collectively billed 69,218.95 hours to this matter over roughly six years. Benz Decl. ¶ 17. At each firms' current customary rates, those hours represent $36,433,985.50 in total lodestar as of June 30, 2016. Id. Plaintiffs' Counsel's request for $73,200,000 in attorneys' fees for Plaintiffs' Counsel thus represents a multiplier of approximately 2.01. Plaintiffs' Counsel has deducted from this lodestar the time of any lawyer, legal assistant, or other timekeeper who billed less than 20 hours to the case. Benz Decl. ¶ 48; LeClair Decl. ¶ 15; Southwick Decl. ¶ 12. This time excludes all of the time spent on this motion or supporting declarations. Benz Decl. ¶ 46.

The lodestar is calculated using current rates according to Second Circuit precedent. "[T]he use of current rates to calculate the lodestar figure has been endorsed repeatedly by the Supreme Court, the Second Circuit and district courts within the Second Circuit as a means of accounting for the delay in payment inherent in class actions and for inflation." In re Hi-Crush Partners L.P. Sec. Litig., No. 12-CIV-8557 CM, 2014 WL 7323417, at *15 & n.9 (S.D.N.Y. Dec. 19, 2014) (citing Missouri v. Jenkins, 491 U.S. 274, 283-84 (1989) (endorsing "an appropriate adjustment for delay in payment" by applying "current" rate)), Gierlinger v. Gleason, 160 F.3d 858, 882 (2d Cir. 1998) (rates "should be 'current rather than historic'"), LeBlanc-Sternberg v. Fletcher, 143 F.3d 748, 764 (2d Cir. 1998) (current rates "should be applied in order to compensate for the delay in payment"), In re Telik, Inc. Sec. Litig., 576 F. Supp. 2d 570, 589 n.10 (S.D.N.Y. 2008) (McMahon, C.J.) (same), and In re Veeco Instruments Inc. Sec. Litig., 05 MDL 01695(CM), 2007 WL 4115808, at *9 (S.D.N.Y. 2007) (same).

A multiplier of 2.01x is at the low end for a case of this scale, expense, duration, and complexity. See, e.g., Asare v. Change Grp. New York, Inc., No. 12 Civ. 3371 (CM), 2013 WL 6144764, at *19 (S.D.N.Y. Nov. 18, 2013) (McMahon, C.J.) ("Typically, courts use multipliers of 2 to 6 times the lodestar."); Beckman v. KeyBank, N.A., 293 F.R.D. 467, 481-82 (S.D.N.Y. 2013) ("Courts regularly award lodestar multipliers of up to eight times the lodestar, and in some cases, even higher multipliers."); Credit Default Swaps, 2016 WL 2731524, at *17 (approving fees constituting a "multiple of just over 6" times the lodestar with $1.9 billion settlement fund); Payment Card Interchange Fee, 991 F. Supp. 2d at 448 (multiplier of 3.41 with $5.7 billion fund); Maley v. Dale Global Techs. Corp., 186 F. Supp. 2d 358, 371 (S.D.N.Y. 2002) ("in 'cross-checking' the percentage fee against the lodestar-multiple, it clearly appears that the modest multiplier of 4.65 is fair and reasonable."); NASDAQ Mkt.-Makers Antitrust Litig., 187 F.R.D. at 489 (awarding fees representing a 3.97 multiplier of $36,191,751 lodestar, noting that "multipliers of between 3 and 4.5 have become common.").

By way of comparison to another recent antitrust class action in this Court, Plaintiffs' Counsel in In re Credit Default Swaps produced a lodestar over $41 million in just over two years of litigation, 2016 WL 2731524, at *17, when the action settled mid-way through discovery and before briefing class certification or summary judgment. See generally In re Credit Default Swaps Antitrust Litig., No. 13-MD-2476 (S.D.N.Y). In approving the requested fee award, Judge Cote approved a lodestar multiplier of 6.18. See Credit Default Swaps, 2016 WL 2731524, at *17. Plaintiffs' Counsel successfully settled this action with a lodestar $4 million less than that total. This was achieved despite comparable scale of discovery,[4] over nearly twice the span of time,[5] and despite the lodestar here including full briefing for class certification, summary judgment, and Daubert motion practice, as well as preparation for trial up to the point of jury empanelment and opening statements.

Plaintiffs' Counsel's combined blended rate of $526.35 per hour is below the market average for representation of this caliber in the Southern District of New York.[6] See, e.g., Credit

[4] Forty-eight million pages of documents, Benz Decl. ¶ 20, compared to roughly fifty million in Credit Default Swaps, 2016 WL 2731524, at *2.

[5] Forty months of litigation here vs. twenty four months in CDS. Compare 1:13-cv-06802 (S.D.N.Y.) to 13-MD-2476 (S.D.N.Y).

[6] If the time of outside document reviewers were included in Plaintiffs' Counsel's lodestar, rather than passed through as an expense at no mark-up, the blended rate would be only $393.27 per hour. Benz Decl. ¶ 49.

Default Swaps, 2016 WL 2731524, at *17 (blended hourly rate was roughly $440/hour at historical rates); In re Citigroup Inc. Sec. Litig., 965 F. Supp. 2d 369, 394 (S.D.N.Y. 2013) (Stein, J.) ("[T]he proposed rates for firm attorneys are reasonable. The blended hourly rate for associates here is $402, and the blended rate for partners and counsel is $632."); Currency Conversion Fee, 263 F.R.D. at 128 ("The blended hourly rate of some of the law firms [representing plaintiffs] was above $500. Class Counsel reduced those blended rates to $490 per hour. This resulted in a final blended hourly rate of $416."); Telik, Inc. Sec. Litig., 576 F. Supp. 2d at 589 (eight years ago, partner rates ranging "from $700 to $750 . . . [fell] within the norm . . . Likewise, associate rates . . . . rang[ing] from a low of $300 per hour to a high of $550 per hour. . . . [we]re consistent with rates charged by the defense bar for similar work."); see also Billing Rates Across the Country, National Law J., Jan. 13, 2014, http://www.nationallawjournal.com/id=1202636785489/Billing-Rates-Across-the-Country (for 2014, Paul Weiss average associate rate was $600/hr and average partner rate $1040/hr. The national average partner cost was $604/hour, while the average associate cost was $370/hr); see generally Reiter v. MTA New York City Transit Auth., 457 F.3d 224, 232 (2d Cir. 2006) ("The lodestar figure should be based on market rates in line with those rates prevailing in the community for similar services by lawyers of reasonably comparable skill, experience, and reputation."). Each hour billed is supported by detailed contemporaneous records. See Benz Decl. Ex. 7; Berry Decl. Ex. 1; Goldman Decl. Exs. 3, 6; LeClair Decl. Ex. 1; Southwick Decl. Ex. 2.

The lead partners from each firm conferred weekly to ensure the minimum possible overlap in efforts, and work was largely divided by task and/or phase of litigation to mitigate risk of duplication of efforts, with lower cost staff and contract attorneys used as appropriate.

Southwick Decl. ¶¶ 10-11. Independent contract attorneys were retained at an average rate of $39/hour without any mark-up applied, and their 26,003.25 hours were accounted as an expense rather than included in the lodestar. Benz Decl. ¶ 49; cf. Citigroup, 965 F. Supp. 2d at 398 (approving $200 as "appropriate blended hourly rate for . . . contract-attorney services").

PLAINTIFFS' COUNSEL'S EXPENSES ARE REASONABLE

Over the course of five years of investigation and litigation, Plaintiffs' Counsel incurred out-of-pocket expenses totaling $7,512,915.12. See Okada Decl. ¶ 9; Benz Decl. ¶¶ 51-52; Berry Decl. ¶ 17; Goldman Decl. ¶¶ 25, 26; LeClair Decl. ¶¶ 19, 21; Southwick Decl. ¶ 18. Because all Plaintiffs' Counsel advanced those funds themselves and carried the costs for years with no certainty of recovery, these expenses were undertaken only when it was deemed warranted to advance the cause of the litigation.

Category	Amount
Experts	$3,913,551.43
Contract Attorneys – Document Review	$1,014,156.00
Electronic Discovery and Document Management (Outside)	$940,045.91
Travel/Lodging	$520,603.87
Graphics/Trial Consultants	$435,443.16
On-Line Research (Pacer/Lexis/Westlaw)	$199,544.78
Copying/Printing (Outside)	$149,915.15
Court Reporters	$139,550.82
Litigation Support-Data Hosting and Document Management (Internal)	$97,562.29
Copying (Internal)	$62,298.59
Postage/FedEx/UPS	$14,716.29
Courier Service	$8,674.31
Court Fees	$5,604.20
Telephone	$5,201.91
Deposition Logistics	$3,354.83
Process Servers	$1,696.80
Witness Fees	$649.28
Office Supplies	$303.74
Publications	$41.76

TOTAL	$7,512,915.12

Okada Decl. ¶ 9.

Roughly half of these expenses were incurred in retaining two expert witnesses, Professors Paul Farris and Jeffrey MacKie-Mason, whose curricula vitae are attached in Exhibit 1 to the Benz Declaration. Okada Decl. ¶ 6. These two experts and their extensive reports and testimony were essential to the case, including getting the Class certified, defeating Defendants' motion for summary judgment, and in preparing Plaintiffs' affirmative case for trial. See Benz Decl. ¶¶ 22-24. Costs stemming directly from discovery, such as document review and electronic document management, were the next largest cost base. See Benz Decl. ¶ 49; Okada Decl. ¶¶ 6, 9. Lead Counsel monitored the major expenses as they were incurred and believe the expenses are reasonable and in line with what experience indicates are required to advance these claims. Benz Decl. ¶¶ 15, 16; Southwick Decl. ¶ 24.

The remaining expenses were industry-standard expenses, such as travel and lodging, deposition transcription and videotaping, outside contractors for document review, document imaging and copying, online legal research fees, and other miscellaneous litigation support services. Plaintiffs' Counsel monitored and reviewed these expenses as well, and found them reasonable. Benz Decl. ¶ 16; Southwick Decl. ¶ 24. There is "no reason to depart from the common practice in this circuit of granting expense requests." Visa Check, 297 F. Supp. 2d at 525 (granting $18.7 million expense request where "lion's share of these expenses reflects the costs of experts and consultants, litigation and trial support services, document imaging and copying, deposition costs, online legal research, and travel expenses.

INCENTIVE AWARDS FOR CLASS REPRESENTATIVES

Plaintiffs' Co-Lead Counsel also requests incentive awards of $50,000 for each of the class representatives: the Dial Corporation, Henkel Consumer Goods Inc., Kraft Heinz Foods Co. and H.J. Heinz Co. L.P., Foster Poultry Farms, Smithfield Foods, Inc., HP Hood LLC, and BEF Foods Inc. (collectively, "the Class Representatives"). These awards are justified to compensate these companies for the time and expense they incurred pursuing this case and as a reward for risking Defendants' retaliation for bringing claims against the sole source of a product vital to their ability to compete in the marketplace.

Each Class Representative donated substantial time and support to the prosecution of the Class's claims. Five of them advanced substantial fees as noted above. The Class Representatives willingly aided the entire Class, which includes those Representatives' principal competitors. The Class Representatives gave needed and valuable contributions to the pursuit of this litigation, both by spending many total hours of executive and employee time, and by directly incurring unreimbursed costs in searching and gathering documents, preparing for and giving multiple depositions, and preparing and being ready to testify at trial.

Class Representative	Number of Records Produced (Pages)	Witnesses Provided (Title)	Duration of Deposition
BEF Foods	178,580 records (616,847 pages)	Dave Brotherton (Senior Brand Manager);	5 hrs 23 mins
		Theodor Muir (Senior Director of Marketing)	4 hrs 51 mins
Foster Poultry Farms	449,218 records (1,829,066 pages)	Jennifer Corsiglia-Keim (Senior Marketing Manager)	6 hrs 9 mins
Kraft & Heinz	603,275 records (2,564,015 pages)	Marion Findlay (Group Leader – Licensing, Multi-Brand Partnerships)	8 hrs 8 mins
Henkel & Dial	933,025 records (3,603,814 pages)	Henry Hendrix (Former Senior Brand Manager)	7 hrs 2 mins
		Andrea Jeannet (Senior Manager Media and Integrated Marketing)	5 hrs 22 mins

		Wendy Warus (Vice President of Sales for eCommerce)	6 hrs 57 mins
		Karen Welch (Purchasing Manager)	6 hrs 26 mins
HP Hood	24,857 records (500,017 pages)	Melissa Gilreath (Senior Marketing Manager)	6 hrs 21 mins
		Patrick Maguire (Senior Marketing Manager)	5 hrs 27 mins
		Christopher Ross (Vice President of Marketing)	6 hrs 57 mins
Smithfield Foods	767,168 records (2,059,093 pages)	Erin Turley (Senior Director, Innovation and Commercialization)	5 hrs 44 mins
		Charles Gitkin (Vice President of Marketing, Innovation, and R&D for The John Morrell Food Group)	4 hrs 51 mins

The Class Representatives should be given incentive awards to avoid discouraging corporate class representatives from leading a future meritorious case, and because otherwise their net recovery could be substantially less than those absent class members who bore no risk of antagonizing an important business partner. See In re Air Cargo Shipping Servs. Antitrust Litig., No. 06 MD 1775, 2015 WL 5918273, at *4 (E.D.N.Y. Oct. 9, 2015) ("Payments to class representatives can be properly included in class action settlements to the extent they are needed to fairly compensate the named plaintiffs for the efforts they have made on behalf of the class."); In re Plastic Tableware Antitrust Litig., No. 94 CV 3564, 1995 WL 723175, at *2 (E.D. Pa. Dec. 4, 1995) (incentive awards to named plaintiffs appropriate "as a reward for public service and for the conferring of a benefit on the entire class").

The $300,000 total requested for incentive awards is .12% of the common fund, small in relation to the expected average recovery of the Class and the total size of the fund. See Currency Conversion Fee, 263 F.R.D. at 131 (noting relative size of incentive awards to average recovery and common fund size as factors for approval, and that "0.1% of the total Fund . . . is similar to other cases") (citing Roberts v. Texaco, Inc., 979 F. Supp. 185 (S.D.N.Y. 1997) (permitting incentive award of 0.18% of the settlement fund)); Velez v. Novartis Pharm. Corp.,

No. 04 CIV 09194 CM, 2010 WL 4877852, at *4, *8, *28 (S.D.N.Y. Nov. 30, 2010) (McMahon, C.J.) (awarding $125,000 to named plaintiffs from $175 million settlement); In re Cathode Ray Tube (CRT) Antitrust Litig., MDL No. 1917, 2016 WL 153265, at *3 (N.D. Cal. Jan. 13, 2016) (incentive awards totaling $250,000 "spread among ten named plaintiffs is still only 0.196%" of then $127.45 million common fund); In re High-Tech Emp. Antitrust Litig., No. 11-CV-02509-LHK, 2015 WL 5158730, at *18 (N.D. Cal. Sept. 2, 2015) ("service awards of $120,000 and $80,000 are in line with awards in other 'megafund' cases."); Marchbanks Truck Serv., Inc. v. Comdata Network, Inc., Case No. 07-CV-1078, ECF No. 713, at 2, 8 (E.D. Pa. July 14, 2014) (approving $130 million class action settlement, including service award of $150,000 to one class representative and service awards of $75,000 to two other class representatives); In re Titanium Dioxide Antitrust Litig., No. 10-CV-00318 RDB, 2013 WL 6577029, at *1 (D. Md. Dec. 13, 2013) (awarding $125,000 to lead class representative out of $163.5 million settlement).

Given the duration, expense, and risk involved in leading a case of this magnitude from inception to trial, these incentive awards are appropriate to ensure parity of recovery within the Class and to create proper incentives for future potential antitrust plaintiffs to bring meritorious claims. See, e.g., Air Cargo Shipping Servs., 2015 WL 5918273, at *6 (granting $540,000 in incentive awards out of a total settlement of approximately $330 million); Currency Conversion Fee, 263 F.R.D. at 131 (noting "case law supports payments of between $2,500 and $85,000 to [each] representative plaintiff[] in class actions").

CONCLUSION

For the foregoing reasons, Co-Lead Class Counsel respectfully request that the Court award Plaintiffs' Counsel attorneys' fees of $73,200,000, equaling 30 percent of the common fund, for reimbursement of $7,512,915.12 in costs, and for incentive awards of $50,000 each to the six named plaintiffs.

KELLOGG, HUBER, HANSEN, TODD, EVANS & FIGEL, PLLC

Steven F. Benz (pro hac vice)
1615 M Street, N.W., Suite 400
Washington, DC 20036
Phone: (202) 326-7900
sbenz@khhte.com

SUSMAN GODFREY, LLP

James T. Southwick
Richard W. Hess (pro hac vice)
Ryan V. Caughey (pro hac vice)
1000 Louisiana Street, Suite 5100
Houston, Texas 77002-5096
Phone: (713) 651-9366
jsouthwick@susmangodfrey.com rhess@susmangodfrey.com
rcaughey@susmangodfrey.com

Plaintiffs' Co-Lead Counsel

KRAMER LEVIN NAFTALIS & FRANKEL LLP
Daniel B. Goldman
1177 Avenue of the Americas
New York, NY 10036
Phone: (212) 715-9162
dgoldman@kramerlevin.com

BERRY LAW PLLC
R. Stephen Berry (pro hac vice)
1717 Pennsylvania Ave., NW, Suite 450
Washington, DC 20006
Phone: (202)296-3038
sberry@berrylawpllc.com

MCKOOL SMITH, PC
Lewis T. LeClair (pro hac vice)
300 Crescent Court, Suite 1500
Dallas, Texas 75201
Phone: (214) 978-4984
lleclair@mckooksmith.com

MCKOOL SMITH, PC
John C. Briody
James H. Smith
One Bryant Park, 47th Floor
New York, NY 10036
Phone: (212) 402-9438
jbriody@mckoolsmith.com
smith@mckoolsmith.com

Plaintiffs' Counsel

TAB 5A

IN THE UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT FOR THE WESTERN DISTRICT OF MISSOURI WESTERN DIVISION

RHONDA BURNETT, JEROD BREIT, JEREMY KEEL, HOLLEE ELLIS, and FRANCES HARVEY, on behalf of themselves and all others similarly situated, Plaintiffs, v. THE NATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF REALTORS, REALOGY HOLDINGS CORP., HOMESERVICES OF AMERICA, INC., BHH AFFILIATES, LLC, HSF AFFILIATES, LLC, RE/MAX LLC, and KELLER WILLIAMS REALTY, INC., Defendants.	)	Case No. 4:19-CV-00332-SRB

ORDER

Before the Court is Plaintiffs'[1] Motion for Final Approval of Settlements with Anywhere Real Estate, Inc. (f/k/a Realogy Holdings Corp.) ("Anywhere"); RE/MAX LLC ("RE/MAX"); and Keller Williams Realty, Inc. ("Keller Williams"). (Doc. #1469.) The Court preliminarily approved the Settlements on November 20, 2023, and February 2, 2024, respectively. (Doc. #1321; Doc. #1372.) Notice to the Settlement Classes commenced February 1, 2024, and class members were provided with an opportunity to opt out of, or object to, the Settlements. A small number of class members filed objections. (Doc. #1404; Doc. #1424; Doc. #1430; Doc. #1439; Doc. #1441; Doc. #1445; Doc. #1447; Doc. #1448; Doc. #1453; Doc. #1454; Doc. #1455.) Settling Defendants filed briefs in support of final approval. (Doc. #1471; Doc. #1473; Doc.

[1] Rhonda Burnett, Jerod Breit, Hollee Ellis, Frances Harvey, Jeremy Keel, Christopher Moehrl, Michael Cole, Steve Darnell, Jack Ramey, Daniel Umpa, and Jane Ruh (collectively "Plaintiffs").

#1478.) The Court held a hearing on May 9, 2024, at which arguments were presented for and against final approval. Having considered the arguments at the hearing and reviewed the written submissions, and based on all materials in the record, the motion for final approval is GRANTED.

The Court hereby ORDERS the following:

1. Unless defined herein, all defined terms in this Final Approval Order and any accompanying Judgment shall have the respective meanings set forth in the Settlement Agreements.

2. At preliminary approval, the Court appointed JND Legal Administration ("JND") as the Settlement Administrator. As directed by the Court, JND implemented the parties' Class Notice Plan. Now at the final approval stage, Plaintiffs submitted with their motion a declaration of Jennifer M. Keough from JND summarizing the notice that was given to class members and the resulting claims to date, opt-outs, and objections. (Doc. #1469-3.) Notice was provided by first-class U.S. mail, electronic mail, and digital and print publication. Without repeating all the details from Keough's declaration, the Court finds that the direct notice program was extremely successful and reached more than 95% of the potential Settlement class members. More than 30 million direct notices were mailed or emailed to the Class. The digital effort alone delivered more than 300 million impressions. In addition to the formal class notice process, more than 415 news stories addressed the litigation and settlement, with over 133 million potential viewers. The media effort alone reached at least 71 percent of the Settlement Class members. JND also implemented a Settlement Website that had over 934,000 unique visitors and nearly 5 million page views.

3. As of May 2, 2024, nearly 200,000 claims have been made. This is only the beginning of the claims, because the claims period extends until May 9, 2025. This extended claims period is valuable because additional settlements covering the same Settlement Class (with minor variations on the length of the class periods) have been reached with other defendants, and the notice process for those settlements will provide additional opportunities to submit claims.

4. In contrast to the massive scale of the notice program and the large volume of claims, there were only 12 objectors and 61 opt outs from the Settlement Classes.

5. Based on the record, the Court finds that the notice given to the Settlement Class constituted the best notice practicable under the circumstances and fully satisfied the requirements of due process, Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 23, and all applicable law. The Court further finds that the notice given to the Settlement Class was adequate and reasonable.

6. The notice fully and accurately informed members of the Settlement Class of all material elements of the Settlements. The Settlement Class Members received notice of: (a) the pendency of the Actions; (b) the terms of the proposed Settlements, including the Released Claims, Released Parties, and Releasing Parties; (c) their rights under the proposed Settlement, including how to receive the benefits offered by the Settlements; (d) their right to exclude themselves from the Settlement Class and the proposed Settlements; (e) their right to object to any aspect of the proposed Settlements; (f) their right to appear at the Final Approval Hearing; (g) Class Counsel's request for attorneys' fees and expenses and an incentive award to the Class Representatives; and (h) the binding effect of this Final Judgment and Order Approving Settlement on all Persons who did not timely exclude themselves from the Settlement Class. Some of the objectors challenged certain aspects of the notice program. The Court addresses those objections below and finds that they present no valid challenge to the notice.

7. The Court also finds that the appropriate state and federal officials were timely notified of the Settlement Agreements under the Class Action Fairness Act of 2005 ("CAFA"), 28

U.S.C. § 1715, and that ninety (90) days have passed without comment or objection from any governmental entity.

8. For the purposes of the settlement of the claims against Anywhere and RE/MAX, and only for that purpose, the Court certifies the following class:

a. All persons who sold a home that was listed on a multiple listing service anywhere in the United States where a commission was paid to any brokerage in connection with the sale of the home in the following date ranges:

i. Moehrl MLSs: March 6, 2015 to date of notice;
ii. Burnett MLSs: April 29, 2014 to date of notice;
iii. MLS PIN: December 17, 2016 to date of notice;
iv. All other MLSs: February 1, 2020 to the date of notice.

9. For the purposes of the settlement of the claims against Keller Williams, and only for that purpose, the Court certifies the following class:

b. All persons who sold a home that was listed on a multiple listing service anywhere in the United States where a commission was paid to any brokerage in connection with the sale of the home in the following date ranges:

i. Moehrl MLSs: March 6, 2015 to date of notice;
ii. Burnett MLSs: April 29, 2014 to date of notice;
iii. MLS PIN: December 17, 2016 to date of notice;
iv. All Other MLSs: October 31, 2019 to date of notice.

10. The Court finds that certification of the Settlement Classes is warranted in light of the Settlements under the prerequisites of Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 23(a) because: (1) the members of the Settlement Classes are so numerous that joinder is impracticable; (2) there are issues of law and fact common to the Settlement Classes; (3) Plaintiffs' claims are typical of the claims of the Settlement Class Members; and (4) Plaintiffs and Co-Lead Counsel will fairly and adequately represent the interests of the Settlement Class Members.

11. The Court finds that certification of the Settlement Classes is warranted in light of and solely for purposes of the Settlements under Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 23(b)(3) because common issues, including whether Anywhere, RE/MAX, and Keller Williams entered into any conspiracy, predominate over any questions affecting only individual members of the Settlement Class in the settlement context, and settlement of the Actions on a class basis is superior to other means of resolving the Actions as to Anywhere, RE/MAX, and Keller Williams.

12. The Court reaffirms the appointment of Plaintiffs Rhonda Burnett, Jerod Breit, Hollee Ellis, Frances Harvey, Jeremy Keel, Christopher Moehrl, Michael Cole, Steve Darnell, Jack Ramey, Daniel Umpa, and Jane Ruh as the Settlement Class Representatives. The Court finds that the Settlement Class Representatives will fairly and adequately protect the interests of the Settlement Class because: (1) the interests of the Settlement Class Representatives are consistent with those of Settlement Class Members; (2) there appear to be no conflicts between or among the Settlement Class Representatives and the other Settlement Class Members; (3) the Settlement Class Representatives have been and appear to be capable of continuing to be active participants in both the prosecution and the settlement of this litigation; and (4) the Settlement Class Representatives and Settlement Class Members are represented by qualified, reputable counsel who are experienced in preparing and prosecuting large, complicated class action cases, including those concerning violation of the antitrust laws.

13. In making these findings, the Court has considered, inter alia, (1) the interests of the Settlement Class Members in individually controlling the prosecution or defense of separate actions; (2) the impracticality or inefficiency of prosecuting or defending separate actions; (3) the extent and nature of any litigation concerning these claims already commenced; and (4) the desirability of concentrating the litigation of the claims in a particular forum.

14. The Court has also specifically considered that the settlement class is broader than the class alleged in the complaint. In the settlement context, courts in this district and elsewhere regularly certify broader settlement classes than litigation classes. See, e.g., In re Gen. Am. Life Ins. Co. Sales Pracs. Litig., 357 F.3d 800, 805 (8th Cir. 2004) ("There is no impropriety in including in a settlement a description of claims that is somewhat broader than those that have been specifically pleaded. In fact, most settling defendants insist on this."); Smith v. Atkins, 2:18-cv-04004-MDH (W.D. Mo.). Here, the Court finds that certifying a nationwide class is warranted, including because Plaintiffs have conducted extensive discovery into the alleged nationwide conspiracy and have thoroughly litigated the claims, providing a robust factual record on which to assess the claims and base negotiations, Plaintiffs could have made nationwide allegations in this matter, a nationwide settlement was a necessary condition of obtaining any settlement for the benefit of the class, a nationwide settlement will conserve judicial and private resources, and Class Members were fully apprised of the settlement class definition through the notice process. As the Court explains more thoroughly below, it was both justified and necessary to achieve any settlement for the Settlement Classes to include all multiple listing services for residential real estate nationwide, however the multiple listing services were named (e.g., real estate listing service), and regardless of whether the services were affiliated or associated with NAR or not.

15. As a general matter, "the law strongly favors settlements. Courts should hospitably receive them." Little Rock Sch. Dist. v. Pulaski County Special Sch. Dist. No. 1, 921 F.2d 1371, 1383 (8th Cir. 1990) (noting it is especially true in "a protracted, highly divisive, even bitter litigation"). Courts adhere to "an initial presumption of fairness when a proposed class settlement, which was negotiated at arm's length by counsel for the class, is presented for court approval." 4 Newberg on Class Actions § 11.41; see also Petrovic v. Amoco Oil Co., 200 F.3d 1140, 1148 (8th Cir. 1999) ("A strong public policy favors [settlement] agreements, and courts should approach them with a presumption in their favor."); Marshall v. Nat'l Football League, 787 F.3d 502, 508 (8th Cir. 2015) ("A settlement agreement is 'presumptively valid.'" (quoting In re Uponor, Inc., F1807 Plumbing Fittings Products Liab. Litig., 716 F.3d 1057, 1063 (8th Cir. 2013)); Sanderson v. Unilever Supply Chain, Inc., 10-cv-00775-FJG, 2011 WL 5822413, at *3 (W.D. Mo. Nov. 16, 2011) (crediting the judgment of experienced class counsel that settlement was fair, reasonable, and adequate). The presumption in favor of settlements is particularly strong "in class actions and other complex cases where substantial judicial resources can be conserved by avoiding formal litigation." Cohn v. Nelson, 375 F. Supp. 2d 844, 852 (E.D. Mo. 2005).

16. The standard for reviewing a proposed settlement of a class action is whether it is "fair, reasonable, and adequate." In re Wireless Tel. Cost Recovery Fees Litig., 396 F.3d 922, 932 (8th Cir. 2005). Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 23(e)(2) establishes factors the court must consider reviewing a class settlement. Eighth Circuit precedent also sets forth four factors which overlap with the Rule 23(e)(2) factors that a court should review in determining whether to approve a proposed class action settlement: "(1) the merits of the plaintiff's case, weighed against the terms of the settlement; (2) the defendant's financial condition; (3) the complexity and expense of further litigation; and (4) the amount of opposition to the settlement." Id. (citing Grunin v. Int'l House of Pancakes,, 513 F.2d 114, 124 (8th Cir. 1975); Van Horn v. Trickey, 840 F.2d 604, 607 (8th Cir. 1988)). "The views of the parties to the settlement must also be considered." DeBoer v. Mellon Mortg. Co., 64 F.3d 1171, 1178 (8th Cir. 1995).

17. Under Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 23(e)(2), the Court finds that the Settlements with Anywhere, RE/MAX, and Keller Williams, as set forth in the Settlement Agreements, are fair, reasonable and adequate. The Class Representatives have adequately represented the class, the Settlement Agreements were negotiated at arm's-length by experienced counsel acting in good faith, including mediation with a nationally recognized and highly experienced mediator, and the Settlement Agreements were reached as a result of those negotiations; there has been adequate opportunity for discovery for experienced counsel to evaluate the claims and risks at this stage of the litigation; and the Court therefore approves the Settlements.

18. This Court's Order granting final approval of the Settlements is informed by the risks that the Settlement Class would have faced in continuing to litigate against Anywhere, RE/MAX, and Keller Williams and the cost and complexity of continued litigation. "[E]xperience proves that, no matter how confident trial counsel may be, they cannot predict with 100% accuracy a jury's favorable verdict, particularly in complex antitrust litigation." In re Cardizem CD Antitrust Litig., 218 F.R.D. 508, 523 (E.D. Mich. 2003). "Antitrust cases are particularly risky, challenging, and widely acknowledged to be among the most complex actions to prosecute." In re Lithium Ion Batteries Antitrust Litig., 2020 WL 7264559, at *15 (N.D. Cal. Dec. 10, 2020). Here, some of the Settling Defendants claim to have opposed the rules in question (See Doc. #1478, p. 11), and all of the Settling Defendants challenged this Court's finding of a per se antitrust violation (Doc. #1471, pp. 3-4; Doc. #1473, pp. 5-6, Doc. #1478, p. 14). These defenses presented risks to the Settlement Class in continuing to litigate. Moreover, appeals alone, even if ultimately unsuccessful, would have delayed any recovery to the Settlement Class by more than a year. Therefore, these factors favor approving the Settlements.

19. This Court's Order granting final approval is also supported by the financial condition of the Settling Defendants. Before settling, Plaintiffs used a forensic accountant to confirm each defendant's ability to pay while still maintaining a viable business. This analysis was complicated by the recent and prolonged downturn in the real estate market. The Settlements each capture a significant portion of the Settling Defendants' available assets while still allowing them to continue operations. In contrast, the joint and several liability that would have resulted from a judgment would have been disastrous for any of the defendants. Therefore, this factor also favors approval. See Grunin, 513 F.2d at 125 (affirming antitrust settlement and explaining that a "total victory" for plaintiffs after trial "would have been financially disastrous if not fatal" to the defendant, and the final settlement "gave valuable concessions to the [settlement class] yet maintained [the defendant's] corporate viability"); see also Petrovic., 200 F.3d at 1153 ("While it is undisputed that [the settling defendant] could pay more than it is paying in this settlement, this fact, standing alone, does not render the settlement inadequate."); Meredith v. SESAC, LLC, 87 F. Supp. 3d 650, 665 (S.D.N.Y. 2015) ("class actions are strong medicine" that "confront defendants with potentially ruinous financial exposure," but "a defendant is not required to 'empty its coffers' before a settlement can be found adequate").

20. As discussed above, the minuscule amount of opposition to the Settlements also favors approval. "The Court has an obligation not only to the minority of class members who filed objections, but also to the majority who, by their silence, indicated their approval of the Settlement Agreement." In re Tex. Prison Litig., 191 F.R.D. 164, 175 (W.D. Mo. 1999) (citing DeBoer v. Mellon Mortg. Co., 64 F.3d 1171, 1178 (8th Cir. 1995)). As of May 2, 2024, almost 200,000 claims have been made. In contrast, there were only 12 objections and 61 opt outs from the Settlement Classes. This weighs heavily in favor of granting final approval. See, e.g., Keil v.

Lopez, 862 F.3d 685, 698 (8th Cir. 2017) (with a settlement class of approximately 3.5 million households, and "only fourteen class members submitted timely objections," the "amount of opposition is minuscule when compared with other settlements that we have approved"); In re Wireless Tel. Fed. Cost Recovery Fees Litig., No. MDL 1559 4:03-MD-015, 2004 WL 3671053, at *13 (W.D. Mo. Apr. 20, 2004) (of the 4,838,789 settlement class members who were sent notice, only 620 (0.012%) opted out of the settlement and only 33 (0.00068%) objected to the settlement, which "are strong indicators that the Settlement Agreement was viewed as fair by an overwhelming majority of Settlement Class members and weighs heavily in favor of settlement"); see also, e.g., Van Horn, 840 F.2d at 607 ("the amount of opposition to the settlement" is a key factor to be considered in the settlement approval process).

21. This Court's order granting final approval of the Settlements is further supported both by the substantial monetary compensation to the Settlement Class that will result directly from the Settlements, which collectively totals $208.5 million, and by the icebreaker status of the Anywhere and RE/MAX Settlements. Specifically, following the Anywhere, RE/MAX, and Keller Williams Settlements, this Court preliminary approved settlements by the National Association of Realtors ("NAR"), Compass, The Real Brokerage, At World Properties, Realty ONE Group, and Douglas Elliman. (Doc. #1460; Gibson v. Nat'l Assn of Realtors, No. 23-cv-00788, Doc. #163 (W.D. Mo.)). Collectively, together with the Anywhere, RE/MAX and Keller Williams settlements, these settlements provide a total settlement fund of over $600 million with other settlements announced bringing the total to over $900 million. The NAR settlement also provides opportunities for various multiple listing services and brokerages to opt-in to the settlement, which may provide still further financial compensation to the Settlement Class. All of this further supports approval of the Settlements. In re Packaged Seafood Prods. Antitrust Litig., 2022 WL 228823, at *5 (S.D. Cal. Jan. 26, 2022) ("Courts typically approve settlements that offer the first settling party a discount due to 'the significant value in and of itself as an icebreaker settlement,' particularly when, as here, the settling defendants have agreed to cooperate in the remaining litigation." (quoting In re Domestic Airline Travel Antitrust Litig., 378 F. Supp. 3d 10, 19 (D.D.C. 2019)); see also, e.g., Sonterra Cap. Master Fund, Ltd. v. Barclays Bank PLC, No. 15-CV-3538, 2023 WL 3749996, at *5 (S.D.N.Y. June 1, 2023) (finding that settlement "provides adequate recovery for the Class, not only through its monetary value, but also through . . . the value of serving as an 'ice-breaker' settlement to potentially facilitate future settlements"); accord In re Packaged Seafood, 2022 WL 228823, at *5; In re Packaged Ice Antitrust Litig., 322 F.R.D. 276, 293-94 (E.D. Mich. 2017); Standard Iron Works v. ArcelorMittal, No. 08C5214, 2014 WL 11350176, at *3 (N.D. Ill. Oct. 23, 2014); In re Processed Egg Prods. Antitrust Litig., 284 F.R.D. 278, 304-05 (E.D. Pa. 2012); In re Corrugated Container Antitrust Litig., No. MDL 310, 1981 WL 2093, at *19 (S.D. Tex. June 4, 1981).

22. This Court's order granting final approval of the Settlements is also supported by the substantial benefits to the class afforded by the practice changes obtained by the Settlements. Those changes include:

a. advise and periodically remind the company owned brokerages, franchisees, and their agents that there is no requirement that they must make offers to or must accept offers of compensation from cooperating brokers or that, if made, such offers must be blanket, unconditional, or unilateral;

b. require that any company owned brokerages and their agents (and recommend and encourage that any franchisees and their agents) disclose to prospective home sellers and buyers and state in conspicuous language that broker commissions are not set by law and are fully negotiable (i) in their listing agreement if it is not a government or MLS-specified form, (ii) in their buyer representation agreement if there is one and it is not a government or MLS-specified form, and (iii) in pre-closing disclosure documents if there are any and they are not government or MLS-specified forms. In the event that the listing agreement, buyer representation agreement, or pre-closing disclosure documents are a government or MLS-specified form, then the Settling Defendants will require that any company owned brokerages and their agents (and recommend and encourage that any franchisees and their agents) include a disclosure with conspicuous language expressly stating that broker commissions are not set by law and are fully negotiable;

c. prohibit the company owned brokerages and their agents acting as buyer representatives (and recommend and encourage that franchisees and their agents acting as buyer representatives refrain) from advertising or otherwise representing that their services are free;

d. prohibit the company owned brokerages and their agents (and recommend and encourage that any franchisees and their agents refrain) from utilizing any technology or taking manual actions to filter out or restrict MLS listings that are searchable by and displayed to consumers based on the level of compensation offered to any cooperating broker unless directed to do so by the client (and eliminate any internal systems or technological processes that may currently facilitate such practices);

e. advise and periodically remind the company owned brokerages and their agents of their obligation to (and recommend and encourage that any franchisees and their agents) show properties regardless of the existence or amount of cooperative compensation offered provided that each such property meets the buyer's articulated purchasing priorities;

f. develop educational materials that reflect and are consistent with each provision above, and eliminate educational materials, if any, that are contrary to it.

(Anywhere Agreement ¶ 51; RE/MAX Agreement ¶ 51; Keller Williams Agreement ¶ 53).

23. Additional practice changes are reflected in a subsequent NAR settlement that would impact not only the Settling Defendants but also the broader industry. Collectively, these practice changes provide a substantial additional benefit to the Settlement Class. The NAR practice changes prohibit the communication of any offer of compensation to a cooperating brokerage on an MLS. As a further example, the NAR settlement prohibits efforts to circumvent the prohibition on conveying offers of compensation on MLS by prohibiting the aggregation of MLS data with offers of compensation on public websites. Nothing set forth in the Settlements requires Anywhere, RE/MAX, or Keller Williams to violate the NAR practice changes.

Collectively these practice changes present great value to the Settlement Classes and further support approval of the Settlements.

24. The Court has carefully considered each of the timely filed objections, as well as a handful received after the deadline. The untimely objections are barred by the terms of the Court's orders granting preliminary approval, but the Court has also considered their merits. The Court finds that none of the objections, whether timely or untimely, provides a basis for denying final approval of the Settlements. See Marshall, 787 at 513–14 ("The district court refused to give credence to the vocal minority" and "the court aptly noted that "only one-tenth of one percent of the class objected, and less than ten percent of the class ha[d] requested exclusion from the settlement."). All objections are overruled.

25. Seven objections were submitted by individuals acting without counsel. (Doc. #1404; Doc. #1424; Doc. #1430; Doc. #1439; Doc. #1453; Doc. #1454; Doc. #1455.) These objections cast no doubt on the fairness, adequacy, or reasonableness of the Settlements. All objections are overruled.

26. The Court finds that a number of objectors are not members of the class and do not have standing to object because they did not sell a home within the class period, including several objections from Realtors who have not indicated they are home sellers. See (Doc. #1404; Doc. #1405; Doc. #1416; Doc. #1430; Doc. #1453; Doc. #1454; Doc. #1455.)

27. The Court overrules objections that the injunctive relief does not go far enough because the injunctive relief in the Settlements, either alone or coupled with the relief provided in the NAR settlement, is fair, reasonable, and adequate. The Court oversaw the trial of the Burnett Plaintiffs' claims, and the injunctive relief addresses the issues raised by Plaintiffs.

28. The Court overrules objections that the injunctive relief goes too far. The injunction is reasonably tailored to address the Plaintiffs' claims – which centered on the Mandatory Offer of Compensation Rule.

29. The Court overrules objections that the Settlement Class Period for the Anywhere and RE/MAX Settlements is slightly different from the Class Period for the Keller Williams Settlement. Individuals who do not fall within the respective settlement Class Period are not class members to that Settlement. Moreover, a defendant is free to bargain for a narrower or broader release as it sees fit, consistent with the risks it determines are at issue.

30. The Court overrules objections that the Settlement amounts paid are too low. The Court has presided over the Burnett litigation for five years and is in a superior position to evaluate this objection. The Court finds the settlement amounts are fair, reasonable, and adequate. The Court further finds that there is no suggestion or evidence of collusion or other wrongdoing that would merit additional analysis of the Settling Defendants' ability to pay. The Court finds that Class Counsel acted diligently on behalf of the Settlement Class in obtaining meaningful recoveries for the class without risking bankruptcy by the Settling Defendants. The Court observes that, given the Burnett judgment, Class Counsel's interests are aligned with the Settlement Class to obtain as high of a settlement amount as possible.

31. The Court overrules the objections that attorneys' fees should not be paid out of the common fund or that the requested fees are too high. See Paragraphs 67-80 below.

32. The Court overrules the objections that the notice and claim process is deficient, because, among other things, the notice process meets and exceeds best notice practicable. See Paragraph 2 above.

33. The Pulte Group objection is overruled. First, courts repeatedly hold that parties do not need to include a detailed allocation formula in class notice or formulate one before final settlement approval, rejecting Pulte's contention. See In re Phila. Stock Exch., Inc., 945 A.2d 1123, 1135-36 (Del. 2008); In re Johns-Manville Corp., 340 B.R. 49, 70 (S.D.N.Y. 2006); In re Agent Orange Prod. Liab. Litig. MDL No. 381, 818 F.2d 145, 170 (2d Cir. 1987); In re Polyurethane Foam Antitrust Litig., No. 1:10MD2196, 2015 WL 1639269, at *6 (N.D. Ohio Feb. 26, 2015); In re Wash. Pub. Power Supply Sys. Sec. Litig., No. MDL 551, 1988 WL 158947, at *3 (W.D. Wash. July 28, 1988); In re Brand Name Prescription Drugs Antitrust Litig., No. 94C897, 1996 WL 167347, at *5 (N.D. Ill. Apr. 4, 1996). "[C]ourts frequently approve" class settlements and allocation plans "separately," 2 McLaughlin on Class Actions § 6:23 (20th ed. Oct. 2023 Update), because it "is appropriate, and often prudent, in massive class actions to follow a two-stage procedure" and defer consideration of the plan of distribution until after final settlement approval. In re Domestic Airline Travel Antitrust Litig., 378 F. Supp. 3d 10, 22 (D.D.C. 2019) (quoting In re NASDAQ Mkt.-Makers Antitrust Litig., 187 F.R.D. 465, 480 (S.D.N.Y. 1998)).

34. This is because "court approval of a settlement as fair, reasonable and adequate is conceptually distinct from the approval of a proposed plan of allocation." 2 McLaughlin on Class Actions § 6:23 (20th ed. Oct. 2023 Update). "The prime function of the district court in holding a hearing on the fairness of the settlement is to determine that the amount paid is commensurate with the value of the case," which "can be done before a distribution scheme has been adopted so long as the distribution scheme does not affect the obligations of the defendants under the settlement agreement." In re Agent Orange, 818 F.2d at 170. Further, the formation of a plan of allocation "is a difficult, time-consuming process." Id. "To impose an absolute requirement that a hearing on the fairness of a settlement follow adoption of a distribution plan would immensely complicate settlement negotiations and might so overburden the parties and the district court as to prevent either task from being accomplished." Id. Relatedly, "if a hearing on a settlement must follow formulation of a distribution plan, then reversal of any significant aspect of the plan on appeal . . . would require a remand for reconsideration of the settlement, followed by yet another appeal." Id. As courts have held, "[t]here is no sound reason to impose such procedural straitjackets upon the settlements of class actions." Id.

35. It is particularly appropriate to defer creation of an allocation plan when, as here, there are multiple defendants, only some have settled, and additional settlements may add to the fund to be distributed. Washington Pub. Power Supply Sys., 1988 WL 158947, at *4 (citing In re Chicken Antitrust Litig., 560 F. Supp. 957, 959 (N.D. Ga. 1980), aff'd, 669 F.2d 228 (5th Cir. 1982)); see also In re Domestic Airline Travel Antitrust Litig., 378 F. Supp. 3d 10, 22 (D.D.C. 2019); In re Packaged Ice Antitrust Litig., No. 08-MD-01952, 2011 WL 717519, at *2 (E.D. Mich. Feb. 22, 2011) (developing plan of allocation is properly delayed until after final approval of settlement where "the potential for additional settlements with other Defendants . . . may affect the final plan of allocation").

36. Among the cases rejecting Pulte's contention is the primary authority Pulte relies on: Petrovic. The Eighth Circuit in Petrovic stated that it did "not agree with the objectors' contention that a mailed notice of settlement must contain a formula for calculating individual awards" and dismissed the same objection Pulte raises because "[t]he notice described with sufficient particularity the stakes involved: the settlement of environmental claims against [the defendant], the award of significant injunctive relief, and the potential aggregate payout of over seven million dollars in compensatory damages." Petrovic, 200 F.3d at 1152–53. The same is true here. The notice explains the claims being settled and released. (Doc. #1442-2, pp. 4, 6 (Anywhere & RE/MAX notice); Doc. #1442-3, pp. 4, 6 (Keller Williams notice).) It also states the total settlement amounts. (Doc. #1442-2, p. 5 (Anywhere & RE/MAX notice); Doc.#1442-3, p. 5 (Keller Williams notice).)

37. Further, just as in Petrovic, class members could obtain more information on the allocation process by contacting counsel or the settlement administrator. 200 F.3d at 1153. For those class members who did email and/or call and inquire about allocation, class counsel explained that class members are unlikely to receive the full value of their claims, but that settlement proceeds will be distributed equitably and reduced on a pro rata basis. Class counsel further explained that—subsequent to notice going out—there were additional settlements benefitting the class, and others expected, making it premature to set a detailed allocation formula or provide estimates of how much each class member would recover. Dirks Decl. ¶ 29.

38. Second, Pulte's objection that there is no mechanism for homebuilding companies to make bulk claim submissions is meritless. Pulte Objs. at 1–2, 4–6. Class Counsel have submitted evidence that, the claims administrator worked with bulk filers who wished to submit multiple claims—exactly what Pulte is requesting through its objections. Keough Decl. 54. The objection is overruled.

39. Third, Pulte's objection to the notice campaign previously approved by the Court does not raise any due process concerns. Pulte Objs. at 1–2, 6–7. Pulte complains that it "did not receive notice," Pulte Objs. at 6, but obviously it did—otherwise it would not have been able to raise its objections before the deadline. Thus, as Pulte itself acknowledges, the "notice issues" it raises are "moot." Pulte Objs. at 7; see also In re Pinterest Derivative Litig., No. C21-05385-WHA, 2022 WL 2079712, at *2 (N.D. Cal. June 9, 2022) ("[T]hough delayed, Mr. Sweeney received actual notice of the proposed settlement, voiced his objections, and has been heard. Having been heard, Mr. Sweeney's objections [to notice] are OVERRULED.").

40. The Court has already found that the notice program constituted the best notice practicable. Pulte's objection is overruled.

41. Three objections were lodged by counsel for plaintiffs in other cases alleging the same or similar as those in Moehrl and Burnett. None of these cases is a certified class. All are at the infancy of the litigation. All were filed after and appear to have been derived from Moehrl and Burnett. The Court finds that none of these objections advances the best interest of the class members who stand to gain monetary and practice change relief from the Settlements.

42. The attorneys prosecuting Burton v. National Association of Realtors, 23-05666 (D. S.C.) filed an objection on behalf of three home sellers in South Carolina. Instead of a global resolution, certainty, and practice changes, they seek to unwind the Settlements This would result in protracted and costly piecemeal litigation, the risk of inconsistent results, and a redo of the last five years of litigation on a state-by-state basis.

43. South Carolina objectors claim that the scope of the Settlements is broader than the certified litigation classes in Burnett and Moehrl. (Doc. #1441, p. 2.) But as noted above, in the settlement context, courts regularly certify broader classes. See, e.g., In re Gen. Am. Life Ins. Co. Sales Pracs. Litig., 357 F.3d at 805; Smith v. Atkins, 2:18- cv-04004-MDH (W.D. Mo.); Spann v. J.C. Penney Corp., 314 F.R.D. 312, 318 (C.D. Cal. 2016) (court can "expand the scope of a settlement class"); In re TFT-LCD (Flat Panel) Antitrust Litig., No. 07-cv-1827, 2011 WL 13152270, at *9 (N.D. Cal. Aug. 24, 2011) ("For the history of class certifications, courts have generally certified settlement classes broader than the previously-certified litigation classes; the claims released are typically more extensive than the claims stated. Courts have noted that the concerns about manageability and/or the class-wide applicability of proof (which can serve to limit or defeat class certification for trial) are in large part no longer relevant when establishment of a defendant's liability is replaced by a settlement."); In re Initial Pub. Offering Sec. Litig., 226 F.R.D. 186, 190 (S.D.N.Y. 2005) ("[A] court may approve a settlement class broader than a litigation class that has already been certified."); In re MicroStrategy, Inc. Sec. Litig., 148 F. Supp. 2d 654, 661 (E.D. Va. 2001) (certifying settlement class broader than previously certified litigation class); In re Ikon Office Solutions, Inc., Sec. Litig., 194 F.R.D. 166, 172 (E.D. Pa. 2000) (same).

44. Often, broad classes are a practical prerequisite to reaching any settlement because a defendant will not agree to any meaningful settlement unless it can obtain global peace. See, e.g., Albin v. Resort Sales Missouri, Inc., No. 20-03004-CV-S-BP, 2021 WL 5107730, at *5 (W.D. Mo. May 21, 2021) (reasoning that the absence of "a single nationwide class action" would "discourage class action defendants from settling" (quotation omitted)); accord Wal-Mart Stores, Inc. v. Visa U.S.A., Inc., 396 F.3d 96, 103 n.5, 106 (2d Cir. 2005) ("Broad class action settlements are common, since defendants and their cohorts would otherwise face nearly limitless liability from related lawsuits in jurisdictions throughout the country. Practically speaking, class action settlements simply will not occur if the parties cannot set definitive limits on defendants' liability" (quotation omitted)) (affirming nationwide settlement in an antitrust case); In re Literary Works in Elec. Databases Copyright Litig., 654 F.3d 242, 247-48 (2d Cir. 2011) ("Parties often reach broad settlement agreements encompassing claims not presented in the complaint in order to achieve comprehensive settlement of class actions, particularly when a defendant's ability to limit his future liability is an important factor in his willingness to settle."); Sullivan v. DB Invs., Inc., 667 F.3d 273, 310-11 (3d Cir. 2011) (en banc) ("[Without] global peace . . . there would be no settlements.") (affirming nationwide settlement in an antitrust case). Conversely, because global peace is most valuable to defendants, defendants will pay more to obtain it, thus benefitting class members. See, e.g., In re BankAmerica Corp. Sec. Litig., 210 F.R.D. 694, 705 (E.D. Mo. 2002) ("[Defendants] paid both classes of plaintiffs more in the instant global settlement out of a desire to obtain 'total peace' than they would have paid either group of plaintiffs individually.").

45. The Court finds these considerations apply here. The record supports the view that the Settling Defendants would not have settled on anything less than a nationwide basis, because doing so would have left them exposed to potentially crippling liability. (Doc. ##1473, pp. 8-10; Doc. #1478, pp. 20-22.) They therefore insisted that the Settlement Class include all "multiple listing services," regardless of whether they were affiliated with NAR. To get the benefits of the Settlements, Plaintiffs therefore agreed to settle on a nationwide basis. Thus, the Settlements are in the best interest of the Burnett and Moehrl classes, in addition to the nationwide class as a whole, because, among other things, Settlement was not possible on a piecemeal basis, and enforcement of the Burnett verdict alone would have bankrupted the Settling Defendants.

46. South Carolina objectors claim that the rules at issue are different in South Carolina. The Court is intimately familiar with the record of the case and alleged conspiracy and agrees with Plaintiffs that it is, as alleged, nationwide in scope. Plaintiffs here were well positioned to adequately represent a nationwide settlement class because they alleged a nationwide conspiracy. As expressly alleged in Umpa, and as supported by expert analysis in Moehrl, the vast majority of MLSs nationwide are formally controlled by local NAR associations that are required to implement the challenged rules. Umpa v. Nat'l Assn of Realtors, No. 23-cv-00945 (W.D. Mo.), Doc. #1, ¶ 2. Only a small number of MLSs are not exclusively owned or operated by NAR associations, and even those MLSs are not fully independent from NAR. Id. at ¶ 4. For example, most of those MLSs have adopted rules identical or similar to the NAR rule mandating blanket unilateral offers of compensation, and NAR's Code of Ethics applies to Realtors participating even in non-NAR MLSs. Id. at ¶¶ 4-5. In both Burnett and Moehrl, Plaintiffs' experts specifically analyzed rules implemented by non-NAR MLSs, including Northwest MLS, WPMLS, and REBNY/RLS (8-10-22 Schulman Reply Rept., Burnett Doc. #922-3, pp. 23-25) and concluded that Realtors® operating in these jurisdictions "remain obligated to compensate the buyer's agent per the NAR Code of Ethics and are thereby incentivized to require sellers to make unilateral offers of compensation to buy-side brokers/agents." Id. at ¶ 75; see also Elhague Report, Appendix C (Moehrl v. Nat'l Assn of Realtors (N.D. Ill.) Doc. #324-6, pp. 231-250, addressing Non-NAR MLSs and concluding "it was common among these MLSs to adopt restrains that were identical or similar to those imposed by NAR"). Therefore, Plaintiffs adequately represented the nationwide class that is subject to the Settlements.

47. South Carolina objectors argue that the cooperation provisions in the Settlements apply only to Burnett and Moerhl. The Court finds that while cooperation is unnecessary for the Settlements to be fair, reasonable, and adequate, there are good reasons for the scope of cooperation Class Counsel obtained. At the time of the Anywhere and RE/MAX settlements the South Carolina case had not even been filed. When Plaintiffs settled with Keller Williams, Burton had been filed and a motion to coordinate the cases was pending before the JPML, so the Keller Williams Agreement specifically included cooperation in the nationwide cases Gibson and Umpa as well as in the pending MDL. (Keller Williams Agreement at ¶ 57). The South Carolina Objectors opposed the formation of an MDL with the JPML; had one been formed, the cooperation agreement would have extended to Burton as well. Nothing about the cooperation agreement makes the Settlement unfair, unreasonable, or inadequate.

48. South Carolina objectors next state that the Settlement amounts are too low. The Court finds this argument unsubstantiated, and even if the Court believed the Settlements could have been higher, that does not make them unfair, unreasonable, or inadequate. Keil v. Lopez, 862 F.3d 685, 696 (8th Cir. 2017); see also Pro. Firefighters Ass'n of Omaha, Loc. 385 v. Zalewski, 678 F.3d 640, 649 (8th Cir. 2012) ("Appellant falls far short of establishing the settlement agreement was unfair or inadequate simply because the retirees did not get as much as they believed they should."); Marshall, 787 F.3d at 520 ("The plaintiffs who opted out of the settlement could have brought their own individual or collective action against the NFL and potentially obtained the direct financial payout they allege is lacking in this settlement."); In re Domestic Air Transp. Antitrust Litig., 148 F.R.D. 297, 312–13 (N.D. Ga. 1993) ("In determining whether to approve a proposed settlement, the Court is entitled to rely upon the judgment of the parties' experienced counsel. The trial judge, absent fraud, collusion, or the like, should be hesitant to substitute its own judgment for that of counsel.") (cleaned up) (citing Cotton v. Hinton, 559 F.2d 1326, 1330 (5th Cir. 1977); Flinn v. FMC Corp., 528 F.2d 1169, 1173 (4th Cir. 1975)); In re Agent Orange Prod. Liab. Litig., 597 F. Supp. at 762 (approving settlement despite the fact that "the settlement amount would not begin to cover the total costs of medical treatment for the class which easily could amount to billions of dollars" and holding "[t]he fact that the settlement amount may equal but a fraction of potential recovery does not render the settlement inadequate").

49. The standard the Court applies is whether the settlement is fair, reasonable, and adequate -- not perfection. See Godson v. Eltman, Eltman, & Cooper, P.C., 328 F.R.D. 35, 54 (W.D.N.Y. 2018) ("The court's task, then, is simply to decide whether the settlement agreement as written is fair, reasonable, and adequate, not whether the parties or the court could conceivably have come up with a 'better' agreement.") (emphasis in original). Class counsel, having strenuously litigated the case for years, were in the best position to determine the extent of the best relief that reasonably could be obtained for the class. There is no suggestion, nor could there be, that they were uninformed, lacked experience and expertise, or that they had any inability that kept them from negotiating the best deal possible for the class.

50. Moreover, Class Counsel made clear in their filings and declarations that they analyzed the finances of Settling Defendants and determined this was the most they could reasonably pay. The Settlement amounts were reached at arms-length between experienced counsel. Obtaining relief now, rather than risk bankruptcy or reversal on appeal, was the most prudent thing Class Counsel could have done. See Meredith Corp., 87 F. Supp. 3d at 665 ("[A] defendant is not required to 'empty its coffers' before a settlement can be found adequate." (quoting In re Sony SXRD Rear Projection T.V. Class Action Litig., No. 06-cv-5173, 2008 WL 1956267, at *8 (S.D.N.Y. May 1, 2008)) (alteration in original)); see also Petrovic v. Amoco Oil Co., 200 F.3d 1140, 1153 (8th Cir. 1999) ("While it is undisputed that [the settling defendant] could pay more than it is paying in this settlement, this fact, standing alone, does not render the settlement inadequate."); Grunin, 513 F.2d at 125 (affirming antitrust settlement and explaining that a "total victory" for plaintiffs after trial "would have been financially disastrous if not fatal" to the defendant, and the final settlement "gave valuable concessions to the [settlement class] yet maintained [the defendant's] corporate viability").

51. The Court gives little weight to the Declaration of Professor Alford. His analysis does not seek to (and in any event, does not) answer the question of whether the Settlements are fair, reasonable, and adequate.

52. South Carolina Objectors next say that the Keller Williams Settlement releases Keller Williams franchisees without formally binding Keller Williams Franchisees to do anything.

The Court disagrees with this characterization and, having overseen this case for five years, finds that the practice change relief is significant. Nor is it unfair or inappropriate to release corporate affiliates or franchisees (or agents affiliated with those affiliates or franchisees). In re Am. Inv'rs Life Ins. Co. Annuity Mktg. and Sales Practices Litig., 263 F.R.D. 226, 240 (E.D. Pa. 2009) (overruling objection to release of independent sales agents of insurance company because "the release of agents is a necessary component of the settlement agreement in order to provide finality. Otherwise, dissatisfied policyholders could sue the defendants' agents who would then, in turn, look to the defendants for indemnity or contribution." (citing In re Prudential Ins. Co. of Am. Sales Prac. Litig. Agent Actions, 962 F. Supp. 450, 522-23 (D.N.J. 1997), aff'd, 148 F.3d 283 (3d Cir. 1998))); Shay v. Apple Inc., No. 3:20-cv-1629, 2024 WL 1184693, at *8 (S.D. Cal. Mar. 19, 2024) ("The release of non-party retailers is common practice in cases such as this, where the released claims against these non-parties concern an identical injury arising from common facts." (citing Hesse v. Sprint Corp., 598 F.3d 581, 590-91 (9th Cir. 2010))); Maine State Ret. System v. Countrywide Fin. Corp., No. 10-CV-00302, 2013 WL 6577020, at *7, *17 (C.D. Cal. Dec. 5, 2013) (overruling objection that argued "non-parties cannot be released for the claims asserted in the Settlement Actions"); Retta v. Millennium Products, Inc., No. 15-CV-1801, 2017 WL 5479637, at *8 (C.D. Cal. Aug. 22, 2017) (overruling objection that release of third party retailers was inappropriate: "this argument is meritless because the purpose of the settlement is to prevent duplicative litigation of identical claims. . . . Millennium is a manufacturer that sells its products through various retailers, so any claims Ference purports to have against third-party retailers of the Subject Products are going to be based on the same false or misleading labeling allegations asserted here. This objection is overruled." (citations omitted)); Wal-Mart Stores, Inc. v. Visa U.S.A., Inc., 396 F.3d 96, 108–09 (2d Cir. 2005) (approving class settlement with broad releases against non-parties, including member banks, insurance companies and Swiss governmental entities); Flaum v. Doctor's Associates, Inc., No. 16-CV-61198, 2019 WL 2576361, at *3 (S.D. Fla. Mar. 11, 2019) (final approval of settlement releasing all Subway franchisees in suit against Subway franchisor); Adkins v. Nestle Purina PetCare Co., No. 12-CV-2871, 2015 WL 10892070, at *4 (N.D. Ill. June 23, 2015) (final approval of settlement releasing variety of non-parties, including suppliers, manufacturers, retailers, and franchisees); McCabe v. Six Continents Hotels, Inc., No. 12-CV-4818, 2015 WL 3990915, at *3 (N.D. Cal. June 30, 2015) (preliminary approval of settlement releasing franchisees) ECF No. 167 (Feb. 8, 2016) (ordering final approval of settlement).

53. Finally, the South Carolina Objectors question the duration of practice change relief. See, e.g., (Doc. #1371-1 (Keller Williams Settlement) ¶ 54) (business practice changes "will sunset 5 years after the Effective Date" unless automatically terminated at an earlier time by another provision). The Court finds that the time limitation on these practice changes is reasonable. No company wishes to stay under the enforcement power of a court indefinitely, nor does a court wish to retain such indefinite jurisdiction. Injunctive relief settlements with sunset provisions are routinely approved, often for shorter periods than the five-year periods at issue here. See, e.g., Smith v. Atkins, 2:18- cv-04004-MDH, Order Approving Settlement, at ECF 53 (W.D. Mo. June 26, 2020) (approving settlement of nationwide class with 2-year practice change requirement); Zepeda v. PayPal, Inc., No. 10-CV-1668, 2017 WL 1113293, at *13 (N.D. Cal. Mar. 24, 2017) (approving final settlement with expiration of injunctive relief after two years, "ensuring that Defendants maintain such practices until two years following the date of the Preliminary Approval Order"); In re Colgate-Palmolive Softsoap Antibacterial Hand Soap Mktg. and Sales Practices Litig., No. 12-MD-2320, 2015 WL 7282543, at *10 (D.N.H. Nov. 16, 2015) (approving final settlement and overruling objections "that the injunctive remedies go away in five years" and observing the injunctive relief "provides a valuable benefit to the class" and just because the injunction is not as broad as some class members wanted "does not make this settlement inadequate"); Fla. ex rel. Crist v. HCA, Inc., No. 03-CV-177, 2002 WL 32116840, at *4 (M.D. Fla. Apr. 23, 2002) (entering a final consent judgment in a Sherman Act case, in which monetary payments and injunctive relief were provided and the judgment was set to expire in five years); In re HP Inkjet Printer Litig., No. 05-CV-3580, 2011 WL 13156938, at *5 (N.D. Cal. Mar. 29, 2011) (order approving settlement with injunctive relief expiring within at least three years).

54. The Pennsylvania objection was filed by the plaintiff and lawyers who brought a case filed on December 6, 2023 – again, after the Anywhere and RE/MAX Settlements and after the Burnett verdict. Their objections closely track the South Carolina objections, and the arguments are nearly identical. The Pennsylvania objection is overruled for the same reasons discussed above.

55. James Mullis has filed objections based on his status as a plaintiff in the homebuyer actions pending in the Northern District of Illinois, Batton v. Nat'l Ass'n of Realtors, et al., No. 21-cv-430 (N.D. Ill.) (Batton I) and Batton v. Compass, et al., No. 23-cv-15618 (N.D. Ill.) (Batton II). The Batton buyer case objections are also overruled. As discussed above, when approving a proposed settlement, courts regularly certify broader classes and release broader claims than those originally pleaded in the action. Achieving this kind of broad relief is often a prerequisite to reaching a settlement in the first place, because a defendant will not agree to a meaningful settlement unless it can obtain global peace. See, e.g., Albin, 2021 WL 5107730, at *5 (reasoning that the absence of "a single nationwide class action" would "discourage class action defendants from settling") (quotation omitted). The record in this case shows that a nationwide settlement class and release of all potential claims arising out of the same alleged antitrust conspiracy was necessary to enable the settlements to occur. (Doc. #1473, pp. 7-10; Doc. #1478, pp. 20-22.)

56. Releases in antitrust direct-purchaser settlements commonly cover all claims the settlement class members could raise against the Settling Defendant arising out of the same conspiracy, including indirect-purchaser claims. See, e.g., In re Transpacific Passenger Air Transportation Antitrust Litigation (N.D. Cal, 07-cv-5634), ECF No. 900-2 § 1.11 (releasing "any and all claims . . . on account of, arising from, or in any way related to, the pricing of passenger air transportation by JAL or Defendants . . . with respect to the facts, occurrences, transactions or other matters that were alleged or could have been alleged [in the action] . . . regardless of legal theory, and regardless of the type or amount of relief or damages claimed"); In re: Processed Egg Products Antitrust Litigation (E.D.P.A., MDL 2002), ECF No. 349-1 ¶ 25 (similar); In re Intuniv Antitrust Litigation (D. Mass., 16-cv-12653), ECF No. 480-1 ¶ 10 (similar); In re: Prograf Antitrust Litigation (D. Mass. 1:11-md-2242), ECF No. 652-2 ¶ 10(a) (similar); In re Pre-Filled Propane Tank Antitrust Litigation (W.D. Mo. 14-md-2567 / MDL No. 2567), ECF No. 362-1 ¶ 12 (similar); In re HIV Antitrust Litigation (N.D. Cal, 19-cv-02573), ECF No. 711-2 at 11-12 (similar); In re Broiler Chicken Antitrust Litigation (N.D. Ill. 16-cv-8637), ECF No. 3324, ¶ 26 (similar). Courts have approved these settlements even over objections that the settlement improperly releases or otherwise devalues a subset of claims. See In re Transpacific Passenger Air Transportation Antitrust Litig., 701 F. App'x 554, 555-56 (9th Cir. 2017) ("The district court properly certified the settlement class and was not obligated to create subclasses for purchasers of U.S.-originating travel and direct purchasers of airfare. Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 23(a) does not require a district court to weigh the prospective value of each class member's claims or conduct a claim-by-claim review when certifying a settlement class."); In re HIV Antitrust Litig., No. 19-cv-02573, 2023 WL 7397567, at *1 (N.D. Cal. Nov. 8, 2023) (rejecting indirect purchasers' request to set aside portion of direct-purchaser settlement).

57. The Batton objection that Settlement Class members who both sold and bought houses during the class period could not release of all their claims arising out of the same alleged conspiracy is therefore overruled. The homebuyer claims by homeseller Class Members indisputably arise out of the same alleged conspiracy and the same factual predicates as the asserted homeseller claims. See Batton I Am. Compl., ECF No. 84 ¶¶ 1-11 (describing background of conspiracy centered around NAR and the buyer-broker commission rules); Batton II Compl., ECF No. 1 ¶¶ 1-12 (same). The releases in the Settlements are thus consistent with Eighth Circuit authority holding that parties may release all claims—even those not pleaded—so long as they are based on the same factual predicate as the pleaded claims. See, e.g., In re Uponor, Inc., F1807 Plumbing Fittings Prods. Liab. Litig., 716 F.3d 1057, 1065 (8th Cir. 2013) (rejecting objection that "the settlement contained an overbroad release" and finding that it permissibly released only claims "[]related to leaky brass fittings," i.e., the subject of the litigation); Thompson v. Edward D. Jones & Co., 992 F.2d 187, 190-91 (8th Cir. 1993) (affirming district court's approval of settlement that released claims which could have been but were not brought and finding that "the situation is analogous to the barring of claims [under res judicata] that could have been asserted in the class action"); Huyer v. Wells Fargo & Co., 314 F.R.D. 621, 628 (S.D. Iowa 2016) (release was "not overly broad" because it was "only applicable to claims 'arising out of, or relating to'" the factual predicate giving rise to the plaintiffs' claims), aff'd sub nom. Huyer v. Njema, 847 F.3d 934 (8th Cir. 2017).

58. Mullis's complaints about adequacy are likewise unfounded. See Petrovic, 200 F.3d at 1146 ("If the objectors mean to maintain that a conflict of interest requiring subdivision is created when some class members receive more than other class members in a settlement, we think that argument is untenable. It seems to us that almost every settlement will involve different awards for various class members."). Several of the named Plaintiffs in this case both bought and sold homes within the class period.

59. This is not a case where there are different groups of plaintiffs with non-overlapping claims that might conflict.

60. And of course, if a homeseller believed that they would be better off by opting out of the settlement to be able to pursue additional buyer claims, they were entitled to do so.

61. The requirements of Rule 23(g) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure are met, and the Court reaffirms the appointment of the law firms of Ketchmark and McCreight P.C., Williams Dirks Dameron LLC, Boulware Law LLC, Hagens Berman Sobol Shapiro LLP, Cohen, Milstein, Sellers & Toll, PLLC, and Susman Godfrey LLP as Co-Lead Counsel for the Settlement Class.

62. The 61 persons and entities identified in the Parties paperwork (see Exhibit J to Keough Decl.) have timely and validly requested exclusion from the Settlement Class and are therefore excluded from the Settlement Class and are not bound by this Order, and may not make any claim upon or receive any benefit from the Settlements, whether monetary or otherwise. These excluded persons and entities may not pursue any Released Claims on behalf of those who are bound by this Order. Nothing in this order should be construed as a determination by this Court that the excluded persons and entities are members of the Settlement Class or that they meet other prerequisites, such as standing, for bringing claims alleged in the Actions. Each Settlement Class member who is not listed in Exhibit J to the Keough Declaration is bound by this Order and will remain forever bound, including by releasing all Released Claims of Releasing Parties against Released Parties. The Court specifically approves these releases as set forth in the Settlement Agreements.

63. Members of the Settlement Class, unless they excluded themselves from the Settlement Class, are hereby enjoined from filing, commencing, prosecuting, intervening in, or pursuing as a plaintiff or class member any Released Claims against any of the Released Parties, which include Settling Defendants' franchisees and affiliated brokerages, and agents affiliated with those franchisees or affiliated brokerages. See 28 U.S.C. § 1651; Bank of Am., N.A. v. UMB Fin. Servs., Inc., 618 F.3d 906, 914 (8th Cir. 2010) (noting that "the district court has the inherent ability to protect its own jurisdiction over the dispute pending before it"); Janson v. LegalZoom.com, Inc., 2012 WL 13047852, at *2 (W.D. Mo. Apr. 30, 2012) ("In order to protect the continuing jurisdiction of the Court, prevent a multiplicity of lawsuits, and protect and effectuate the Court's Judgment in this Litigation, Plaintiffs and Class Members . . . are barred and enjoined from instituting, commencing, or continuing to prosecute . . . any action in this Court, any other state or federal court, or any other tribunal or forum of any kind, against any Released Party that asserts any claims that are Released Claims under the terms of the Settlement[.]") (granting final approval); accord Almanzar v. Home Depot U.S.A., Inc., No. 2:20-cv-0699-KJN, 2024 WL 36175, at *13 (E.D. Cal. Jan. 3, 2024); Smith v. Floor & Decor Outlets of Am., Inc., No. 1:15-cv-04316-ELR, 2017 WL 11495273, at *6 (N.D. Ga. Jan. 10, 2017); In re Ortho. Bone Screw Prods. Liab. Litig., 176 F.R.D. 158, 188 (E.D. Pa. 1997). Released Claims include claims that arise from or relate to conduct that was alleged or could have been alleged in the Actions based on any or all of the same factual predicates for the claims alleged in the Actions, including but not limited to commissions negotiated, offered, obtained, or paid to brokerages in connection with the sale of any residential home. This injunction extends to claims arising from or relating to transactions where Settlement Class Members either sold or purchased a home on any multiple listing service nationwide, regardless of affiliation or association with NAR or not, and thus includes, e.g., NWMLS, WPMLS, and REBNY/RLS. This injunction does not extend to any individual claims that a plaintiff or class member may have against his or her own broker or agent based on breach of contract, breach of fiduciary duty, malpractice, negligence or other tort claim, other than a claim that a class member paid an excessive commission or home price due to the claims at issue in the Actions.

64. This Order does not settle or compromise any claims by Class Representatives or the Settlement Classes against entities or persons other than Released Parties, and all rights against any other person or entity are specifically reserved.

65. Settling Defendants shall issue payment in accordance with the Settlement Agreement.

66. Plaintiff's request for service awards for current and former Class Representatives and other individuals as set forth in the Settlement is hereby approved. The Court finds these individuals not only put their names on the line to advance the litigation, but that they also sat for lengthy depositions and approved multiple settlements. Some even testified at trial. Courts routinely approve service awards to compensate class representatives for the services they provide and the risks they incur on behalf of the class. The factors for deciding whether the service awards are warranted are: "(1) actions the plaintiffs took to protect the class's interests, (2) the degree to which the class has benefited from those actions, and (3) the amount of time and effort the plaintiffs expended in pursuing litigation." Caligiuri, 855 F.3d at 867. Here, Plaintiffs seek a service award of $15,000 per Settlement Class Representative and $25,000 for Class Representatives who testified at trial. The Settlement Class Representatives performed important work on the case, including time-consuming gathering of facts and documents, assisting Class Counsel with the specifics of their transactions, preparing for and sitting for depositions, reviewing the Settlement Agreements, and for some, attending and testifying at trial. That work materially advanced the litigation and protected the Settlement Class's interests. Id. Indeed, without their time and effort, these Settlements would have been impossible. Finally, the requested service awards are consistent with other awards approved in the Eighth Circuit. Tussey, 850 F.3d 951, 961–62 (8th Cir. 2017) (approving $25,000 service awards); Rogowski, 2023 WL 5125113, at *6 (approving $25,000 service awards for named plaintiffs); Wolfert v. UnitedHealth Group, Inc., No. 08-CV-01643 (E.D. Mo. Aug. 21, 2009), ECF No. 38 at 4–5 (approving a service award of $30,000). Accordingly, Plaintiffs' request falls within a fair range of service awards—especially given the landmark nature of this litigation. The Court should therefore approve the requested service awards for each Settlement Class Representative.

67. Class Counsel has adequately represented the Class. Their application for an award of attorneys' fees and reimbursement of costs as set forth in the Motion for Attorneys' Fees and Costs (Doc. #1392) is hereby GRANTED and shall be paid in accordance with the Settlement Agreements.

68. Courts in the Eighth Circuit typically use the "percentage-of-the-fund method" to award attorneys' fees from a common fund. See, e.g., Rawa v. Monsanto Co., 934 F.3d 862, 870 (8th Cir. 2019). "In the Eighth Circuit, use of a percentage method of awarding attorney fees in a common-fund case is not only approved, but also 'well established,'" In re Xcel Energy, Inc., Sec., Derivative & "ERISA" Litig., 364 F. Supp. 2d 980, 991 (D. Minn. 2005) (quoting Petrovic v. Amoco Oil Co., 200 F.3d 1140, 1157 (8th Cir. 1999)), or even "preferable,'" Barfield v. Sho-Me Power Elec. Co-op., No. 11-CV-4321, 2015 WL 3460346, at *3 (W.D. Mo. June 1, 2015) (quoting West v. PSS World Med., Inc., No. 13-CV-574, 2014 WL 1648741, at *1 (E.D. Mo. Apr. 24, 2014)). The percentage method aligns the interests of the attorneys and the class members by incentivizing counsel to maximize the class's recovery. See Johnston v. Comerica Mortg. Corp., 83 F.3d 241, 245 (8th Cir. 1996) ("[T]he Task Force [established by the Third Circuit] recommended that the percentage of the benefit method be employed in common fund situations." (citing Court Awarded Attorneys Fees, Report of the Third Circuit Task Force, 108 F.R.D. 237, 255 (3rd Cir. 1985))). The Court will therefore use the percentage approach to award fees in this case. This Court and others within the Eighth Circuit confirm that one-third of the common fund is an appropriate amount for class counsels' fees in complex class actions, including antitrust litigation. Eighth Circuit and Missouri courts "have frequently awarded attorney fees between twenty-five and thirty-six percent of a common fund in other class actions." Huyer v. Buckley, 849 F.3d 395, 399 (8th Cir. 2017) (quoting In re Xcel, 364 F. Supp. 2d at 998); see also Rawa, 934 F.3d at 870 ("courts have frequently awarded attorneys' fees ranging up to 36% in class actions" (quoting Huyer, 849 F.3d at 399)); Yarrington v. Solvay Pharm., Inc., 697 F. Supp. 2d 1057, 1064 (D. Minn. 2010) (holding fee award of 33% reasonable); In re U.S. Bancorp Litig., 291 F.3d 1035, 1038 (8th Cir.2002) (affirming fee award representing 36% of the settlement fund as reasonable)); In re Xcel, 364 F.Supp.2d at 998 (collecting cases demonstrating that district courts routinely approve fee awards between 25% and 36%). Just recently, this District approved one-third of the fund in a settlement valued at $325 million. See Rogowski v. State Farm Life Ins. Co., No. 22-CV-203, 2023 WL 5125113, *4-5 (W.D. Mo. April 18, 2023). Thus, judges in the Western District of Missouri and the Eighth Circuit routinely apply the one-third-of-the-fund fee calculation, even to large settlements.

69. In doing so, courts typically consider some or all of the relevant factors listed in Johnson v. Georgia Highway Express, Inc., 488 F.2d 714, 717–19 (5th Cir. 1974). See In re Target Corp. Customer Data Security Breach Litig., 892 F.3d 968, 977 (8th Cir. 2018). The Johnson factors are:

> (1) the time and labor required; (2) the novelty and difficulty of the questions; (3) the skill requisite to perform the legal service properly; (4) the preclusion of employment by the attorney due to acceptance of the case; (5) the customary fee; (6) whether the fee is fixed or contingent; (7) time limitations imposed by the client or the circumstances; (8) the amount involved and the results obtained; (9) the experience, reputation, and ability of the attorneys; (10) the "undesirability" of the case; (11) the nature and length of the professional relationship with the client; and (12) awards in similar cases.

In re Target, 892 F.3d at 977 n.7. To be sure, "[m]any of the Johnson factors are related to one another and lend themselves to being analyzed in tandem." Swinton v. SquareTrade, Inc., 454 F. Supp. 3d 848, 886 (S.D. Iowa 2020). Therefore, courts in the Eighth Circuit often focus on the most relevant Johnson factors in evaluating fee requests. See Huyer, 849 F.3d at 398–400 (affirming trial court's award of one-third of the common fund after review of Johnson factors 1-5 only); In re Xcel, 364 F. Supp. 2d at 993; Tussey v. ABB, Inc., No. 06-CV-4305, 2019 WL 3859763, at *2 (W.D. Mo. Aug. 16, 2019); Yarrington, 697 F. Supp. 2d at 1062; Hardman v. Bd. of Educ. of Dollarway, Arkansas Sch. Dist., 714 F.2d 823, 825 (8th Cir. 1983). The Court has considered the Johnson factors here, and finds that each weighs in favor of Plaintiffs' fee request.

70. Here, Class Counsel's time and labor invested was substantial and necessarily precluded other work. In addition to the substantial number of hours it took to reach the Settlements, Class Counsel were also required to expend $12,923,266.48 of their own money toward the litigation through the date of the initial settlements. That work was undertaken without any guarantee of payment. Moreover, this case faced low odds of early settlements given the attack on practices that were central to the real estate brokerage industry. See, e.g., How the $1.8

Billion Real-Estate Commissions Lawsuit Came to Be, Wall Street Journal, November 26, 2023 ("Antitrust cases almost always settle before trial, giving attorneys some assurance they will get paid something. But in this case, the damages were so high and the threat to the industry so existential that plaintiff attorneys thought it unlikely NAR would settle."). Indeed, from the outset, NAR took the position that the cases were "baseless." See, e.g., Realtor Group Moves to Dismiss Class Action Lawsuit Alleging Collusion, Forbes, May 21, 2019 ("According to John Smaby, president of NAR, all three claims have no merit. 'In today's complex real estate environment, REALTORS and Multiple Listing Services promote a pro-consumer, pro-competitive market for home buyers and sellers, contrary to the baseless claims of these class action attorneys,' he said. 'Our filing today shows the lawsuit is wrong on the facts, wrong on the economics and wrong on the law.'").

71. "Courts have recognized that the risk of receiving little or no recovery is a major factor in awarding attorney fees." Yarrington, 697 F. Supp. 2d at 1062 (quoting In re Xcel, 364 F. Supp. 2d at 994); Theodore Eisenberg & Geoffrey Miller, Attorney Fees In Class Action Settlements: An Empirical Study, 1 J. Emp. L. Studies 27, 27, 38 (2004) ("Fees are also correlated with risk: the presence of high risk is associated with a higher fee, while low-risk cases generate lower fees . . . . [This] is widely accepted in the literature.")). "Unless that risk is compensated with a commensurate award, no firm, no matter how large or well-financed, will have the incentive to consider pursuing a case such as this." Tussey, 2019 WL 3859763, at *3. "Courts agree that a larger fee is appropriate in contingent matters where payment depends on the attorney's success." Been v. O.K. Industries, Inc., No. 02-CV-285, 2011 WL 4478766, at *9 (E.D. Okla. Aug. 16, 2011). And critically, "[t]he risks plaintiffs' counsel faced must be assessed as they existed in the morning of the action, not in light of the settlement ultimately achieved at the end of the day." In re Xcel, 364 F. Supp. 2d at 994.

72. Because antitrust claims are especially complex, expensive, and difficult to prosecute, courts have recognized that antitrust settlements should result in attorneys' fees equal to one-third of the fund. See In re Peanut Farmers Antitrust Litig., No. 19-CV-00463, 2021 WL 9494033, at *6 (E.D. Va. Aug. 10, 2021) ("[A]n award of one-third is also common in antitrust class actions.") (citing cases); In re Urethane Antitrust Litig., No. 04-CV-1616, 2016 WL 4060156, at *5 (D. Kan. July 29, 2016) (awarding one-third of $835 million settlement, noting "a one-third fee is customary"); In re Flonase Antitrust Litig., 291 F.R.D. 93, 100, 106 (E.D. Pa. 2013) (awarding one-third of the settlement fund as attorneys' fees in which court relied upon the fact that class counsel had litigated a number of hotly contested Daubert challenges).

73. Here it is undeniable that the antitrust claims at issue in these cases were challenging to prosecute.

74. Courts often judge class counsel's skill against the "quality and vigor of opposing counsel[.]" In re Charter Commc'ns, Inc., MDL No. 1506, No. 02-CV-1186, 2005 WL 4045741, at *29 (E.D. Mo. June 30, 2005) (citing In re IBP, Inc. Sec. Litig., 328 F. Supp. 2d 1056, 1064 (D.S.D. 2004)). Here, Class Counsel faced off against no fewer than twenty highly-respected law firms over the course of the litigation. Although Class Counsel's team included some of the country's most accomplished class action and trial lawyers, Defendants also hired some of the country's most prominent and respected defense attorneys. This weighs heavily in favor of the requested award.

75. In the Eighth Circuit, courts have "frequently awarded attorneys' fees ranging up to 36% in class actions." Huyer, 849 F.3d at 399. Courts have recognized that prosecution of antitrust claims should result in a one-third-of-the-fund fee award. See In re Peanut Farmers, 2021 WL 9494033, at *6 ("[A]n award of one-third is also common in antitrust class actions.") (citing cases); In re Urethane, 2016 WL 4060156, at *5 (awarding one-third of $835 million antitrust settlement, noting "a one-third fee is customary").

76. Moreover, the requested one-third fee award is equal to or less than what the actual Named Plaintiffs—those with the most on the line and most involved in the case—agreed to at the outset of the case. Class representatives in Burnett agreed to 35%. Dirks Decl. at ¶27. Class representative in Moehrl agreed to up to 33.3%. Berman Dec. at ¶ 16.

77. Here, the Fund is pure cash and non-reversionary; so, the Settlements, plus interest earned until its distribution, require no further valuation. In requesting a fee as a percentage of the Fund, Class Counsel necessarily seeks a fee proportionate to the degree of monetary success obtained.

78. Equally important, the Settlements include significant practice change relief which require the Settling Defendants, among other things, to not enforce the Mandatory Offer of Compensation Rule and to train their agents that commissions are negotiable. Counsel is not seeking any additional fee for this valuable relief on these Settlements, but the value of that relief is substantial in itself and should be considered when evaluating the fee that is sought.

79. Here, the request is supported by both the size of the recovery and the results obtained as compared to the risk of a lesser recovery or none at all. Moreover, the Settlements represent the first recovery on behalf of the Class. Rather than stop at these settlements and move on to less risky litigation, Class Counsel have continued to prosecute these joint and several liability claims against other Defendants. Thus, any future settlements or judgments will also benefit the Class. This factor supports a contingency percentage of one-third, particularly given the benefits achieved. Importantly, success—including "exceptional success"—is not measured solely by the maximum damages alleged but must be evaluated against any "unusually difficult or risky circumstances and the size of plaintiffs' recovery." Allapattah Servs., Inc. v. Exxon Corp., 454 F. Supp. 2d 1185, 1204–05 (S.D. Fla. 2006).

80. A lodestar crosscheck is "not required" in the Eighth Circuit, Keil v. Lopez, 862 F.3d 685, 701 (8th Cir. 2017); PHT Holdings II, LLC v. N. Am. Co. Life & Health Ins., 2023 WL 8522980, *7 (S.D. Iowa November 30, 2023). The Court declines to do one here. But in any event, a crosscheck here confirms that the requested fee is reasonable and should be approved. The hours and rates submitted are consistent with the large undertaking of this case. Class Counsel's request is reasonable and the Court approves their requested fee of one-third of the Settlement Fund.

81. The Court also grants Plaintiffs' request for their costs. The expenses submitted were reasonable expenses in such a large and complex litigation.

82. The Settlement Administrator shall be paid in accordance with the Settlement Agreement.

83. The Court authorizes payments to be made from the Escrow Accounts under the Settlement Agreements as qualified settlement funds ("QSF") as defined in Section 1.468B-1(a) of the U.S. Treasury Regulations and retains continuing jurisdiction as to any issue that may arise in connection with the formation or administration of the QSFs. Co-Lead Counsel are, in accordance with the Settlement Agreements, authorized to withdraw up to the amounts allowed by the Settlement Agreements out of the Escrow Accounts.

84. Co-Lead Counsel are directed to prepare and submit for Court approval a plan of allocation for the Settlement Fund, and to propose a schedule for comment and Court review. The proposed plan of allocation must be posted to https://www.realestatecommissionlitigation.com and emailed to all individuals who submit a claim in order to provide those individuals an opportunity to comment on the plan. After the plan of allocation is proposed and an opportunity to comment has been provided, the Court will evaluate the proposed plan and any objections thereto. The Court's review of the plan of allocation will be conducted separately from this final review of the Settlements.

85. Pursuant to Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 54(b), this Court directs entry of final judgment of dismissal with prejudice and without costs (except as provided in the Settlements) as to the defendants covered by the Settlements. This case contains claims against multiple parties, and there is no just reason to delay the entry of final judgment as to these Settling Defendants.

86. Settling Defendants have denied any liability, fault, or wrongdoing of any kind in connection with the allegations in the Actions, and as such, neither the Settlements, nor any of their respective terms or provisions, nor any of the negotiations or proceedings connected with the Settlements shall be construed as an admission or concession of the truth of any of the allegations, or of any liability, fault, or wrongdoing of any kind by Settling Defendants.

87. The Court expressly retains continuing and exclusive jurisdiction over all matters relating to the administration and consummation of the Settlements and to interpret, implement, administer and enforce the Settlements (including with respect to the scope of the Settlement Classes, Released Claims, and Released Parties), in accordance with their terms, and to implement and complete the claims administration process, in accordance with the Settlements, for the benefit of the Settlement Class. The Court does this for the purpose of satisfying the requirements of Kokkonen v. Guardian Life Ins. Co. of Am., 511 U.S. 375 (1994), concerning the obligation of a Court entering a settlement agreement to speak clearly when it wishes to retain jurisdiction.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

/s/ Stephen R. Bough
STEPHEN R. BOUGH
UNITED STATES DISTRICT JUDGE

Dated: May 9, 2024

TAB 5B

IN THE UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT FOR THE WESTERN DISTRICT OF MISSOURI WESTERN DIVISION

RHONDA BURNETT, JEROD BREIT, HOLLEE ELLIS, FRANCES HARVEY, and JEREMY KEEL, on behalf of themselves and all others similarly situated, Plaintiffs, v. THE NATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF REALTORS, REALOGY HOLDINGS CORP., HOMESERVICES OF AMERICA, INC., BHH AFFILIATES, LLC, HSF AFFILIATES, LLC, RE/MAX LLC, and KELLER WILLIAMS REALTY, INC., Defendants.	Case No. 19-CV-00332-SRB

PLAINTIFFS' MOTION FOR ATTORNEYS' FEES, COSTS, EXPENSES AND SERVICE AWARDS AND SUGGESTIONS IN SUPPORT THEREOF

INTRODUCTION

After years of hard-fought litigation in two separate jurisdictions, Plaintiffs achieved nationwide settlements with three Defendants: Anywhere, RE/MAX and Keller Williams (the "Settlements"). Plaintiffs reached settlements with Anywhere and RE/MAX on October 5, 2023 ("the initial settlements"). Subsequently, Plaintiffs reached a settlement with Keller Williams on February 1, 2024.

Combined, the Settlements provide a non-reversionary common fund of $208,500,000. To achieve this result, Class Counsel worked over the past five years filing and prosecuting two separate lawsuits pending in different jurisdictions, Moehrl and Burnett. Class Counsel faced large risk representing the Settlement Class. They worked on a fully contingent basis, investing over 96,500 hours of labor— through the date of the last of the three settlements —and advancing nearly $13 million in out-of-pocket costs without any guarantee of success. They did so despite this case having no roadmap or pre-established path to a recovery. Indeed, far from any guarantee that they would be paid for their work or reimbursed their expenses, Class Counsel faced off against well-funded and entrenched opponents represented by at least twenty of the top defense firms in the country.

Class Counsel performed a massive amount of legal work leading to the Settlements, including more than 100 motions and responses, such as motions to dismiss, motions to transfer, motions to stay, motions to compel arbitration (and related appeals), class certification, Rule 23(f) appeal petitions, summary-judgment motions, Daubert motions, trial motions, and over 180 depositions. Class Counsel did not rely on any governmental prosecution or litigation by other private attorneys. To the contrary, Class Counsel are comprised of a diverse group of well-respected antitrust, complex litigation, and trial lawyers who spearheaded the litigation. This Settlement therefore represents the culmination of their wholly contingent, risky, costly, and time-intensive work seeking a recovery against Defendants, not the work of anyone else.

Under well-established precedent, Class Counsel is entitled to an award of attorneys' fees representing one-third of the settlement fund and their case expenses. In the Eighth Circuit, a fee based on a percentage of the fund recovered is the favored approach for calculating attorney's fees in contingent representation, including class actions. Such a fee provides an incentive for attorneys like Class Counsel to pursue claims for those whose individual claims are otherwise too small to justify the costs of litigation. And a percentage-based recovery allows individuals without the means to pay counsel by the hour to nonetheless assert their claims. A percentage-based recovery also aligns Class Counsel's interests with those of their clients because the greater the recovery Class Counsel obtains, the greater the fee to which Class Counsel is entitled.

FACTUAL BACKGROUND

A background of the litigation and Settlements is well-known to the Court and can be found in Plaintiffs' Motion for Preliminary Settlement Approval (Doc. 1192 at ECF 8-19; ECF 1371). The Settlements are non-reversionary meaning the entire amount will be distributed and no amount will revert to the Settling Defendants. Moreover, the Settlements include substantial injunctive relief aimed at ending the Defendants' support for the challenged restraints, including their enforcement of the Mandatory Offer of Compensation Rule. To achieve this result for the Class, Class Counsel performed more than 96,500 hours through the date of the Keller Williams settlement (January 31, 2024) and invested almost $13 million of their own money. Counsel continue to work on behalf of the Class even after these settlements, defending a verdict in Burnett and continuing to press forward to trial in Moehrl against the remaining Defendants.

I. CLASS COUNSEL PERFORMED EXTRAORDINARY WORK AND ASSUMED SIGNIFICANT RISK ON A CONTINGENT BASIS ON BEHALF OF THE SETTLEMENT CLASS TO OBTAIN THE SETTLEMENTS.

Plaintiffs alleged that various participants in the residential real estate industry, including Anywhere, RE/MAX, and Keller Williams carried out a conspiracy to inflate or stabilize broker commissions by following and enforcing NAR's Mandatory Offer of Compensation Rule as well as associated restraints promulgated by NAR and its members. Defendants have fought this litigation at every conceivable step.[1] To date, Defendants have been represented by at least twenty defense firms – including many of the most highly-regarded defense firms in the world. Dirks Dec. at ¶ 13. Defendants contested every aspect of the cases – including through jurisdictional challenges, motions to compel arbitration, to motions to dismiss, to Daubert motions, class certification, summary judgment motions, and—in the case of Keller Williams and other co-Defendants—even a jury trial. Id. at ¶¶ 14, 20. Anywhere and RE/MAX fully litigated the cases right up to the courthouse steps, with the settlements only reached on the precipice of trial. Id. at ¶ 23. Keller Williams went even further, litigating the case through a jury trial; and settlement was not achieved until after the verdict in Burnett. Id.

Moreover, in undertaking this substantial commitment on behalf of the Settlement Class, Class Counsel assumed significant risk. There was no roadmap of previous cases or settlements, and no assistance from governmental entities or regulators through parallel litigation. Id. at ¶¶ 12, 14. Despite the odds, Class Counsel was successful in their efforts on behalf of the Settlement Class in the Litigation. They obtained favorable rulings on key issues including class-certification,

---

[1] See generally Declaration of Eric L. Dirks ("Dirks Decl.") for an overview of the procedural history and efforts to reach the Settlements. Attached as Ex. 1. Also attached are the declarations of Michael S. Ketchmark (Ex. 2), Brandon J.B. Boulware (Ex. 3), Steve W. Berman Ex. 4), Marc M. Seltzer (Ex. 5), Robert A. Braun (Ex. 6), Daniel C. Hedlund (Ex. 7), George Farah (Ex. 8), Benjamin D. Elga (Ex. 9), Vildan A. Teske (Ex. 10), Russell E. Marsh (Ex. 11). These declarations cover many of the same topics set out in the Dirks Decl. as well as each firm's individual lodestar and expense amounts.

summary judgment, and Daubert. Id. at ¶¶ 14, 20, 23. But it took years of briefing, review of over 5 million pages of documents, retention of at least 20 experts and consultants, and approximately 180 depositions to achieve this result. Id. at ¶ 14. Reflecting these efforts, Burnett and Moehrl have over 1,800 docket entries as of the date of this filing.

Complex litigation, especially against experienced and sophisticated defense counsel, takes extra skill and effort, and that was true here. Id. at ¶ 36. Despite the work required and the risk in light of Defendants' stalwart defense, Class Counsel did not waver in their investment of time and money on behalf of the Settlement Class. Class Counsel pushed the Settling Defendants for the best possible settlement they could pay, which included at least three unsuccessful mediations. Id. at ¶¶ 24-26. During the subsequent settlement negotiations with Anywhere and RE/MAX which were ultimately successful, Class Counsel had completed all pretrial work in Burnett and were on the precipice of the trial. There was no guarantee whatsoever of success at trial and the Settlements represent the culmination of years of work.

Despite the uncertainty, Class Counsel's work necessarily hampered their ability to take on other work. Id. at ¶¶ 17-18. That was time and money spent and invested on behalf of the Settlement Class that could have been spent on less risky cases, where liability or damages were more certain, or where the claims had been advanced by previous litigation, government prosecutions or public admissions. Id. And even after a trial victory, risks remain given the Defendants' stated inability to pay a judgment – not to mention any risks on appeal.

ARGUMENT

I. THE REQUESTED ATTORNEY'S FEES ARE REASONABLE UNDER THE FACTS AND CIRCUMSTANCES PRESENTED HERE.

Under well-established Eighth Circuit law, a fee equal to one-third of the Settlement Fund should be approved.

A. Contingent Fees Are Awarded Using the Percentage-of-the-Fund Approach.

Courts typically use the "percentage-of-the-fund method" to award attorneys' fees from a common fund. See, e.g., Rawa v. Monsanto Co., 934 F.3d 862, 870 (8th Cir. 2019). "In the Eighth Circuit, use of a percentage method of awarding attorney fees in a common-fund case is not only approved, but also 'well established,'" In re Xcel Energy, Inc., Sec., Derivative & "ERISA" Litig., 364 F. Supp. 2d 980, 991 (D. Minn. 2005) (quoting Petrovic v. Amoco Oil Co., 200 F.3d 1140, 1157 (8th Cir. 1999)), or even "preferable,'" Barfield v. Sho-Me Power Elec. Co-op., No. 11-CV-4321, 2015 WL 3460346, at *3 (W.D. Mo. June 1, 2015) (quoting West v. PSS World Med., Inc., No. 13-CV-574, 2014 WL 1648741, at *1 (E.D. Mo. Apr. 24, 2014)). The percentage method aligns the interests of the attorneys and the class members by incentivizing counsel to maximize the class's recovery. See Johnston v. Comerica Mortg. Corp., 83 F.3d 241, 245 (8th Cir. 1996) ("[T]he Task Force [established by the Third Circuit] recommended that the percentage of the benefit method be employed in common fund situations.") (citing Court Awarded Attorneys Fees, Report of the Third Circuit Task Force, 108 F.R.D. 237, 255 (3rd Cir. 1985))).[2] The Court should therefore use the percentage approach to award fees in this case.

B. A Fee Equal to One-third of the Fund is Reasonable.

This Court and other courts within the Eighth Circuit confirm that one-third of the common fund is an appropriate amount for class counsels' fees in complex class actions, including antitrust litigation. Eighth Circuit and Missouri courts "have frequently awarded attorney fees between twenty-five and thirty-six percent of a common fund in other class actions." Huyer v. Buckley, 849

---

[2] In contrast, undue focus on hours or hourly rates "creates an unanticipated disincentive to early settlements, tempts lawyers to run up their hours, and compels district courts to engage in a gimlet-eyed review of line-item fee audits." Wal-Mart Stores, Inc. v. Visa U.S.A., Inc., 396 F.3d 96, 121 (2d Cir. 2005) (cleaned up).

F.3d 395, 399 (8th Cir. 2017) (quoting In re Xcel, 364 F. Supp. 2d at 998); see also Rawa, 934 F.3d at 870 ("courts have frequently awarded attorneys' fees ranging up to 36% in class actions") (quoting Huyer, 849 F.3d at 399); Yarrington v. Solvay Pharm., Inc., 697 F. Supp. 2d 1057, 1064 (D. Minn. 2010) (holding fee award of 33% reasonable); In re U.S. Bancorp Litig., 291 F.3d 1035, 1038 (8th Cir.2002) (affirming fee award representing 36% of the settlement fund as reasonable)); In re Xcel, 364 F.Supp.2d at 998 (collecting cases demonstrating that district courts routinely approve fee awards between 25% and 36%).

Just recently, this District approved one-third of the fund in a settlement valued at $325 million. See Rogowski v. State Farm Life Ins. Co., No. 22-CV-203, 2023 WL 5125113, *4-5 (W.D. Mo. April 18, 2023). Thus, judges in the Western District of Missouri and the Eighth Circuit routinely apply the one-third-of-the-fund fee calculation, even to large settlements.

In doing so, courts typically consider some or all of the relevant factors listed in Johnson v. Georgia Highway Express, Inc., 488 F.2d 714, 717–19 (5th Cir. 1974). See In re Target Corp. Customer Data Security Breach Litig., 892 F.3d 968, 977 (8th Cir. 2018). The Johnson factors are:

> (1) the time and labor required; (2) the novelty and difficulty of the questions; (3) the skill requisite to perform the legal service properly; (4) the preclusion of employment by the attorney due to acceptance of the case; (5) the customary fee; (6) whether the fee is fixed or contingent; (7) time limitations imposed by the client or the circumstances; (8) the amount involved and the results obtained; (9) the experience, reputation, and ability of the attorneys; (10) the "undesirability" of the case; (11) the nature and length of the professional relationship with the client; and (12) awards in similar cases.

In re Target, 892 F.3d at 977 n.7. To be sure, "[m]any of the Johnson factors are related to one another and lend themselves to being analyzed in tandem." Swinton v. SquareTrade, Inc., 454 F. Supp. 3d 848, 886 (S.D. Iowa 2020). Therefore, courts in the Eighth Circuit often focus on the most relevant Johnson factors in evaluating fee requests. See Huyer, 849 F.3d at 398–400 (affirming trial court's award of one-third of the common fund after review of Johnson factors 1-5 only); In re Xcel, 364 F. Supp. 2d at 993; Tussey v. ABB, Inc., No. 06-CV-4305, 2019 WL 3859763, at *2 (W.D. Mo. Aug. 16, 2019); Yarrington, 697 F. Supp. 2d at 1062; Hardman v. Bd. of Educ. of Dollarway, Arkansas Sch. Dist., 714 F.2d 823, 825 (8th Cir. 1983).

Class Counsel worked on a contingent basis, despite the numerous risks and time commitments.
(Factors 1, 4, 6-7 and 10)

Here, Class Counsel's time and labor invested was substantial and necessarily precluded other work. Dirks Decl. (Ex. 1) at ¶ 18. Prosecuting the Litigation required over $80,000,000 in lodestar through January 31, 2024. Dirks Decl. at ¶ 41. In addition to the substantial number of hours it took to reach the Settlements, Class Counsel were also required to expend $12,923,266.48 of their own money toward the litigation through the date of the initial settlements. All that work, which precluded other less-risky employment, was the result of Class Counsels' efforts undertaken without any guarantee of payment. Dirks Decl. at ¶ 10, 17-18, 27. Moreover, this case faced low odds of early settlements given the attack on practices that were central to the real estate brokerage industry. See, e.g., How the $1.8 Billion Real-Estate Commissions Lawsuit Came to Be, Wall Street Journal, November 26, 2023 ("Antitrust cases almost always settle before trial, giving attorneys some assurance they will get paid something. But in this case, the damages were so high and the threat to the industry so existential that plaintiff attorneys thought it unlikely NAR would settle."). Indeed, from the outset, NAR took the position that the cases were "baseless." See, e.g., Realtor Group Moves to Dismiss Class Action Lawsuit Alleging Collusion, Forbes, May 21, 2019 ("According to John Smaby, president of NAR, all three claims have no merit. 'In today's complex real estate environment, REALTORS and Multiple Listing Services promote a pro-consumer, pro-competitive market for home buyers and sellers, contrary to the baseless claims of these class action attorneys,' he said. 'Our filing today shows the lawsuit is wrong on the facts, wrong on the economics and wrong on the law.'").

"Courts have recognized that the risk of receiving little or no recovery is a major factor in awarding attorney fees." Yarrington, 697 F. Supp. 2d at 1062 (quoting In re Xcel, 364 F. Supp. 2d at 994); Theodore Eisenberg & Geoffrey Miller, Attorney Fees In Class Action Settlements: An Empirical Study, 1 J. Emp. L. Studies 27, 27, 38 (2004) ("Fees are also correlated with risk: the presence of high risk is associated with a higher fee, while low-risk cases generate lower fees . . . . [This] is widely accepted in the literature."). "Unless that risk is compensated with a commensurate award, no firm, no matter how large or well-financed, will have the incentive to consider pursuing a case such as this." Tussey, 2019 WL 3859763, at *3. "Courts agree that a larger fee is appropriate in contingent matters where payment depends on the attorney's success." Been v. O.K. Industries, Inc., No. 02-CV-285, 2011 WL 4478766, at *9 (E.D. Okla. Aug. 16, 2011). And critically, "[t]he risks plaintiffs' counsel faced must be assessed as they existed in the morning of the action, not in light of the settlement ultimately achieved at the end of the day." In re Xcel, 364 F. Supp. 2d at 994.

This was the riskiest case some Class Counsel have ever prosecuted, due not only to the possibility of no recovery but also due to the amount of time and money they were required to expend in order to be in a position to reach the Settlements (or judgment) against entrenched defendants. Dirks Decl. at ¶22; Berman Dec. at ¶ 5. See also Caligiuri v. Symantec Corp., 855 F.3d 860, 866 (8th Cir. 2017) (affirming fee award where lower court reasoned, in part, that "[p]laintiffs' counsel, in taking this case on a contingent fee basis, was exposed to significant risk"); In re Equifax Inc. Customer Data Sec. Breach Litig., No. 17-md-2800, 2020 WL 256132, at *33 (N.D.

Ga. Mar. 17, 2020) ("This action was prosecuted on a contingent basis and thus a larger fee is justified.").

The claims were difficult to prosecute.
(Factor 2)

Because antitrust claims are especially complex, expensive, and difficult to prosecute, courts have recognized that antitrust settlements should result in attorneys' fees equal to one-third of the fund. See In re Peanut Farmers Antitrust Litig., No. 19-CV-00463, 2021 WL 9494033, at *6 (E.D. Va. Aug. 10, 2021) ("[A]n award of one-third is also common in antitrust class actions.") (citing cases);[3] In re Urethane Antitrust Litig., No. 04-CV-1616, 2016 WL 4060156, at *5 (D. Kan. July 29, 2016) (awarding one-third of $835 million settlement, noting "a one-third fee is customary"); In re Flonase Antitrust Litig., 291 F.R.D. 93, 100, 106 (E.D. Pa. 2013) (awarding one-third of the settlement fund as attorneys' fees in which court relied upon the fact that class counsel had litigated a number of hotly contested Daubert challenges).

Here it is undeniable that the antitrust claims at issue in these cases were challenging to prosecute. As the Court saw, no stone was left unturned by Defendants and challenges were made at every stage (i.e. motions to dismiss, motions for summary judgment, Daubert motions, efforts to appeal from class certification orders, appeals on arbitration issues, and trial). See Dirks Decl. at ¶¶ 14, 23.

Class Counsel's reputation and skillful resolution of the Litigation supports the award.
(Factors 3 and 9)

Courts often judge class counsel's skill against the "quality and vigor of opposing counsel . . . ." In re Charter Commc'ns, Inc., MDL No. 1506 All Cases, No. 02-CV-1186, 2005

[3] And observing that "[o]ther courts have determined that a higher percentage rate is appropriate where discovery has been completed and the case is ready for trial." Id.

WL 4045741, at *29 (E.D. Mo. June 30, 2005) (citing In re IBP, Inc. Sec. Litig., 328 F. Supp. 2d 1056, 1064 (D.S.D. 2004)).

Here, Class Counsel faced off against no fewer than twenty highly-respected law firms over the course of the litigation. Although Class Counsel's team included some of the country's most accomplished class action and trial lawyers, Defendants also hired some of the country's most prominent and respected defense attorneys. This weighs heavily in favor of the requested award.

Class Counsel in their own right are well-known on both a national level and local level. See generally Exhibits 1-6. Indeed, trial counsel for the Burnett case was named as this year's Missouri Lawyer of the Year. See Ketchmark named Lawyer of the Year, Missouri Lawyers Weekly, December 7, 2023. And Class Counsel for the Moehrl case have been repeatedly recognized for their skill and expertise in antitrust litigation. See, e.g., Berman Dec. at ¶ 2; Seltzer Dec. at ¶ 3; Braun Dec. at ¶ 2.

The percentage requested is supported by other awards under the facts and circumstances of this Litigation.
(Factors 5 and 12)

In the Eighth Circuit, courts have "frequently awarded attorneys' fees ranging up to 36% in class actions." Huyer, 849 F.3d at 399.[4] Courts have recognized that prosecution of antitrust claims should result in a one-third-of-the-fund fee award. See In re Peanut Farmers, 2021 WL 9494033, at *6 ("[A]n award of one-third is also common in antitrust class actions.") (citing cases); In re Urethane, 2016 WL 4060156, at *5 (awarding one-third of $835 million antitrust settlement, noting "a one-third fee is customary").

[4] See also supra pp. 5-6.

Moreover, the requested one-third fee award is equal to or less than what the actual named plaintiffs—those with the most on the line and most involved in the case—agreed to at the outset of the case. Class representative in the Burnett case agreed to at least 35%. Dirks Decl. at ¶27. Class representative in the Moehrl case agreed to up to 33.3%. Berman Dec. at ¶ 16.

The amount involved and results obtained for the Settlement Class given the risks of the Litigation support the percentage requested.
(Factor 8)

Here, the Fund is pure cash and non-reversionary; so, the Settlements, plus interest earned until its distribution, requires no further valuation.[5] In requesting a fee as a percentage of the Fund, Class Counsel necessarily seeks a fee proportionate to the degree of monetary success obtained.

Equally important, the Settlements include significant injunctive relief which require the Settling Defendants, among other things, to not enforce the Mandatory Offer of Compensation Rule and to train their agents that commissions are negotiable. See also National Association of Realtors Verdict Will Send "Shock Waves" Through the Industry, The Wall Street Journal, November 1, 2023 ("There is no question that Tuesday's nearly $1.8 billion verdict against the National Association of Realtors and brokerage firms is going to send shock waves through the industry. Commissions have stayed pretty stable at about 5% to 6% of the sales price for decades now, despite major technological upheaval in the industry. We may finally start to see those costs for home buyers and sellers go down quite a bit."). Counsel is not seeking any additional fee for this valuable relief in this motion, but the value of that relief is substantial in itself and should be considered when evaluating the fee that is sought.

This factor supports a contingency percentage of one-third, particularly given the benefits achieved. Importantly, success—including "exceptional success"—is not measured solely by the maximum damages alleged but must be evaluated against any "unusually difficult or risky circumstances and the size of plaintiffs' recovery." Allapattah Servs., Inc. v. Exxon Corp., 454 F. Supp. 2d 1185, 1204–05 (S.D. Fla. 2006). Here, the request is supported by both the size of the recovery and the results obtained as compared to the risk of a lesser recovery or none at all. Moreover, the Settlements represent the first recovery on behalf of the class. Rather than stop at these settlements and move on to less risky litigation, Class Counsel have continued to prosecute these joint and several liability claims against other Defendants. Thus, any future settlements or judgments will also benefit the Class.

[5] The value of the injunctive relief obtained is also substantial.

Finally, the Settlements represent the most Anywhere, RE/MAX and Keller Williams can reasonably pay. Dirks Decl. at ¶ 26.

C. The Requested Fee Is Reasonable Under a Lodestar Crosscheck.

Although a lodestar crosscheck is "not required" in the Eighth Circuit, Keil v. Lopez, 862 F.3d 685, 701 (8th Cir. 2017); PHT Holdings II, LLC v. N. Am. Co. Life & Health Ins., 2023 WL 8522980, *7 (S.D. Iowa November 30, 2023)—and should be disfavored[6]—performing such a crosscheck here confirms that the requested fee is reasonable and should be approved. As noted above, Class Counsel have spent over 96,500 hours through January 31, 2024. These hours result in an overall lodestar through January 31, 2024 of $80,354,706.40. Dirks Decl. at ¶ 41.

Thus, under these Settlements, class counsel's lodestar exceeds the fee request.

[6] "'[T]o overly emphasize the amount of hours spent on a contingency fee case would penalize counsel for obtaining an early settlement and would distort the value of the attorneys' services.'" Rawa, 934 F.3d at 870 (quoting In re Charter Commc'ns, 2005 WL 4045741, at *18).

II. THE COURT SHOULD APPROVE CLASS COUNSEL'S REQUEST FOR REIMBURSEMENT OF REASONABLY INCURRED EXPENSES.

"Reasonable costs and expenses incurred by an attorney who creates or preserves a common fund are reimbursed proportionately by those class members who benefit by the settlement." Yarrington, 697 F. Supp. 2d at 1067 (quoting In re Media Vision Tech. Sec. Litig., 913 F. Supp. 1362, 1366 (N.D. Cal. 1996)). Under the Settlements, Class Counsel are entitled to recover their expense reimbursement. The costs and expenses through January 31, 2024 were reasonable and necessary in order to reach these Settlements. Dirks Decl. ¶ 42; see also Exhibits 2-11.

The largest components of these costs are for experts, class notice and administration, depositions and mediations, travel and online research. See Tussey, 2019 WL 3859763, at *5 ("Reimbursable expenses include many litigation expenses beyond those narrowly defined 'costs' recoverable from an opposing party under Rule 54(d), and includes: expert fees; travel; long-distance and conference telephone; postage; delivery services; and computerized legal research.") (citing Alba Conte, 1 Attorney Fee Awards § 2:19 (3d ed.))). Here, the litigation required a large number of depositions due to the complex nature of the claims, the size of the case, and the number of relevant witnesses. Experts were critical because they are virtually essential in antitrust cases. The Moehrl and Burnett cases were partly coordinated but litigated separately, involving different geographical regions and case schedules, and therefore it was necessary for Class counsel in each case to retain separate experts. A platform for storing documents and facilitating their review was required given the large volume of documents produced. Class notice administration was required under Rule 23. Legal research was required given the innumerable legal disputes and briefs. When possible, the Moehrl and Burnett plaintiffs coordinated in order to reduce expenses. For example, Class Counsel shared document repositories and coordinated numerous depositions to occur on the same day. Dirks Decl. at ¶ 45.

All of the expenses submitted were reasonable expenses in such a large litigation. The Court should thus approve Class Counsel's expense reimbursement request.

III. THE COURT SHOULD APPROVE THE REQUESTED SERVICE AWARDS.

Courts routinely approve service awards to compensate class representatives for the services they provide and the risks they incur on behalf of the class. The factors for deciding whether the service awards are warranted are: "(1) actions the plaintiffs took to protect the class's interests, (2) the degree to which the class has benefited from those actions, and (3) the amount of time and effort the plaintiffs expended in pursuing litigation." Caligiuri, 855 F.3d at 867.

Here, Plaintiffs seek a service award of $15,000 per Settlement Class Representative and $25,000 for Class Representatives who testified at trial. The Settlement Class Representatives performed important work on the case, including time-consuming gathering of facts and documents, assisting Class Counsel with the specifics of their transactions, preparing for and sitting for depositions, reviewing the Settlement Agreements, and for some, attending and testifying at trial. Dirks Decl. at ¶ 46. That work materially advanced the litigation and protected the Settlement Class's interests. Id. Indeed, without their time and effort, these Settlements would have been impossible. Finally, the requested service awards are consistent with other awards approved in the Eighth Circuit. Tussey, 850 F.3d 951, 961–62 (8th Cir. 2017) (approving $25,000 service awards); Rogowski, 2023 WL 5125113, *6 (approving $25,000 service awards for named plaintiffs); Wolfert v. UnitedHealth Group, Inc., No. 08-CV-01643 (E.D. Mo. Aug. 21, 2009), ECF No. 38 at 4–5 (approving a service award of $30,000).

Accordingly, Plaintiffs' request falls within a fair range of service awards—this is especially so given the landmark nature of this litigation. The Court should therefore approve the requested service awards for each Settlement Class Representative.[7]

CONCLUSION

Class Counsel respectfully request that the Court approve the requested fee of one-third of the Settlement Fund, reimbursement of current expenses in the amount of $12,923,266.48 (subject to being updated before the final approval hearing), and service awards of $15,000-25,000 to each of the Settlement Class Representatives.

Respectfully Submitted,

WILLIAMS DIRKS DAMERON LLC

/s/ Eric L. Dirks
Eric L. Dirks MO #54921
Matthew L. Dameron MO #52093
1100 Main Street, Suite 2600
Kansas City, Missouri 64105
Tel: (816) 945-7110
Fax: (816) 945-7118
dirks@williamsdirks.com
matt@williamsdirks.com

BOULWARE LAW LLC
Brandon J.B. Boulware MO # 54150
Jeremy M. Suhr MO # 60075
Erin D. Lawrence MO # 63021
1600 Genessee, Suite 416
Kansas City, MO 64102
Tel: (816) 492-2826
brandon@boulware-law.com jeremy@boulware-law.com
erin@boulware-law.com

[7] To the extent a Settlement is reached with the additional defendants, Plaintiffs may seek additional service awards for class representatives who further participated.

TAB 6A

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT

NORTHERN DISTRICT OF CALIFORNIA

IN RE CAPACITORS ANTITRUST LITIGATION

THIS DOCUMENT RELATES TO: THE DIRECT PURCHASER CLASS ACTION

Master File No. 3:17-md-02801-JD
Civil Action No. 3:14-cv-03264-JD

ORDER RE DPP ATTORNEYS' FEES AND COSTS, AND SERVICE AWARDS

This long-running antitrust litigation is now fully resolved for all class members who did not opt out of prior settlements. The final issue before the Court is Direct Purchaser Class Counsel's application for Attorneys' Fees, Reimbursement of Expenses and Service Awards ("Motion") (MDL ECF No. 1714[1]) made in connection with the Class's Motion for Final Approval of Settlements with Defendants Matsuo Electric Co., Ltd., Nippon Chemi-Con Corp. and United Chemi-Con, Inc. (collectively "Settling Defendants").

These settlements total $165,000,000 in cash (the "Settlement Fund"). They follow earlier rounds of settlements with 17 other defendant corporate families totaling $439,550,000, and result in a final settlement fund of $604,550,000. The Court entered orders granting final approval of the prior four rounds of settlements on June 27, 2017, June 28, 2018, May 16, 2019, and November 6, 2020. ECF No. 1713[2]; MDL ECF Nos. 249, 597, 1422.

Class counsel for the Direct Purchaser Class (the "Class") have requested attorneys' fees in the amount of $66,000,000. Class counsel also request reimbursement of $3,636,429.21 in costs and expenses, and "service awards" for the named plaintiffs.

The Court appointed Special Master Monica Ip to review the costs requests. Special Master Ip has provided the same auditing review of prior costs requests. She recommends an award of costs in the amount of $2,459,577.54. See MDL ECF No. 1730 at 7. Class counsel do not object to this figure, and costs are awarded in that amount.

For attorneys' fees, the Court has used a proposed order lodged by class counsel and modified pursuant to the Court's practices and conclusions. The Court set out the governing standards and discussion in a prior fees order, ECF No. 2196, which apply fully here and are incorporated by reference.

The proposed $66,000,000 in attorneys' fees amounts to 40% of the Settlement Fund created by the present round of settlements, and a cumulative 31.01% of the total settlements reached for the benefit of the Class. These amounts are well within the range of reasonable fees awards, especially in light of the complexity of these antitrust cases, and the degree of work and skill required to obtain highly beneficial results for the class. See, e.g., In re Lenovo Adware Litig., No. 15-md-02624, 2019 WL 1791420, at *7-9 (N.D. Cal. Apr. 24, 2019) (30% of $8,300,000 recovery); In re Lithium Ion Batteries Antitrust Litig., No. 13-md-02420-YGR, 2018 WL 3064391, at *1 (N.D. Cal. May 16, 2018) (30% of $139,000,000 recovery); In re TFT-LCD (Flat Panel) Antitrust Litig., No. M 07-1827 SI, 2013 WL 149692, at *2 (N.D. Cal. Jan. 14, 2013) (30% of $68,000,000 recovery); Meijer, Inc. v. Abbott Labs, No. C-07-05985 CW, 2011 WL 13392313, at *2 (N.D. Cal. Aug. 11, 2011) (33 1/3% of $52,000,000 recovery); see also, e.g., In re Polyurethane Foam Antitrust Litig., No. 1:10 MD 2196, 2015 WL 1639269, at *7 (N.D. Ohio Feb. 26, 2015) (30% of $147,800,000 recovery); In re Checking Account Overdraft Litig., 830 F. Supp. 2d 1330, 1366 (S.D. Fla. 2011) (30% of $410,000,000 recovery); In re Linerboard Antitrust Litig., No. MDL 1261, 2004 WL 1221350, at *19 (E.D. Pa. June 2, 2004) (30% of $202,572,489 recovery); In re Ikon Office Sols., 194 F.R.D. 166, 170 (E.D. Pa. 2000) (30% of net $116,000,000 recovery).

[1] "MDL ECF No. __" citations are to Case No. 3:17-md-02801-JD.

[2] "ECF No. ____" citations are to Case No. 3:14-cv-03264-JD.

The Vizcaino factors weigh decidedly in favor of the fees request for the same reasons stated in the prior award order. See ECF. No. 2196 at 5-10; Vizcaino v. Microsoft Corp., 290 F.3d 1043, 1048 (9th Cir. 2002). No class member or other person has objected to the proposed fees award.

A lodestar cross-check supports the requested fees. See Vizcaino, 290 F.3d at 1050; Lobatz v. U.S. W. Cellular of Cal., Inc., 222 F.3d 1142, 1149-50 (9th Cir. 2000). Class counsel's cumulative lodestar as of the filing of their motion for fees, is $103,802,430.30. Class counsel's cumulative fee awards to date including the present request is $187,490,000. Using a lodestar cross-check, the fees sought here in addition to the attorneys' fees previously awarded by the Court for prior settlements result in a lodestar multiplier of 1.81. This multiplier is amply justified by the demands and duration of the litigation, and is well within acceptable parameters. See Vizcaino, 290 F.3d at 1051 (multiplier of 3.65 held "within the range of multipliers applied in common fund cases"); Van Vranken v. Atlantic Richfield Co., 901 F. Supp. 294, 298 (N.D. Cal. 1995) ("Multipliers in the 3-4 range are common in lodestar awards for lengthy and complex class action litigation.") (citations omitted); see also In re Lidoderm Antitrust Litig., No. 14-md-02521-WHO, 2018 WL 4620695, at *3 (N.D. Cal. Sept. 20, 2018) (approving 1.37 multiplier).

Consequently, the Court concludes that the $66,000,000 fee request is fair and reasonable. Fees in that amount are awarded to class counsel.

For the "service awards," the Court has expressed substantial doubt about outsized awards to named plaintiffs in light of Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 23(e)(2)(D) and fundamental fairness in not giving such plaintiffs many multiples of the amounts a typical class members will recover. See, e.g., Myles v. AlliedBarton Security Services, LLC, No. 12-cv-05761-JD, 2014 WL 6065602, at *6 (N.D. Cal. Nov. 12, 2014); Arnold v. DMG Mori USA, Inc., No. 18-cv-02373-JD, 2022 WL 18027883, at *6 (N.D. Cal. Dec. 30, 2022). Those concerns apply here with respect to the proposal of awarding $100,000 to plaintiffs Chip-Tech Ltd. and eIQ Energy, Inc.; $75,000 to plaintiff Dependable Component Supply Corp.; and $50,000 to plaintiff Walker Component Group, Inc. These will be the first and only service awards granted in this litigation, and class counsel has documented the work the named plaintiffs invested in the case. See Krzyowinski Decl., ¶¶ 7-9; Lubman Decl., ¶¶ 5-16; Ryan Decl., ¶¶ 7-9; Walker Decl., ¶¶ 6-8. Class counsel say that Chip-Tech and eIQ took particularly significant actions to protect the interests of the class by testifying twice at trial, among other measures.

Even so, the proposed awards are excessive. The Court grants service awards in these amounts: $50,000 each to Chip Tech and eIQ; $25,000 to Dependable Component; and $15,000 to Walker Component.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

Dated: March 6, 2023

HON. JAMES DONATO
United States District Judge

TAB 6B

Joseph R. Saveri (State Bar No. 130064)
Steven N. Williams (State Bar No. 175489)
Christopher K.L. Young (State Bar No. 318371)
Elissa A. Buchanan (State Bar No. 249996)
Abraham Maggard (State Bar No. 339949)
JOSEPH SAVERI LAW FIRM, LLP
601 California Street, Suite 1000
San Francisco, California 94108
Telephone: (415) 500-6800
Facsimile: (415) 395-9940
Email: jsaveri@saverilawfirm.com
swilliams@saverilawfirm.com
cyoung@saverilawfirm.com
eabuchanan@saverilawfirm.com
amaggard@saverilawfirm.com

Lead Counsel for the Direct Purchaser Class

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT

NORTHERN DISTRICT OF CALIFORNIA

IN RE CAPACITORS ANTITRUST LITIGATION

THIS DOCUMENT RELATES TO: THE DIRECT PURCHASER CLASS ACTION

Master File No. 3:17-md-02801-JD
Civil Action No. 3:14-cv-03264-JD

DIRECT PURCHASER'S CLASS COUNSEL'S MOTION FOR ATTORNEY FEES, REIMBRSEMENT OF EXPENSES AND SERVICE AWARDS

Date: September 15, 2022
Time: 10:00 a.m.
Courtroom: 11, 19th Floor

NOTICE OF MOTION AND MOTION

TO ALL PARTIES AND THEIR COUNSEL OF RECORD:

PLEASE TAKE NOTICE that at 10:00 a.m. on September 15, 2022, at the United States District Court for the Northern District of California located at 450 Golden Gate Avenue, San Francisco California 94102, or as soon thereafter as the matter may be heard, the Direct Purchaser Class (the "Class") will and hereby do move, pursuant to Rules 23(h) and 54(d)(2) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, to grant Class Counsel: (1) attorneys' fees of $66,000,000 in accordance with Ninth Circuit precedent; (2) reimbursement for incurred expenses; and to grant (3) Class Counsel's request for service awards.

Specifically, the Class requests that the Court:

1. Grant Counsel's request for a payment of $66,000,000 of the additional $165,000,000 settlement fund ("Settlement Fund") established in connection with the Class's settlements with Defendants Matsuo Electric Co., Ltd., Nippon Chemi-Con Corp. and United Chemi-Con, Inc. (collectively "Settling Defendants), now pending before the Court for final approval.

2. Grant Counsel's request for a payment of $3,636,429.21 of the additional Settlement Fund) to reimburse incurred litigation costs and expenses.

3. Grant Counsel's request for service awards for the named plaintiffs of the additional Settlement Fund. Specifically, awards of $100,000 for Plaintiff Chip-Tech Ltd. ("Chip-Tech"); $100,000 for Plaintiff eIQ Energy, Inc. ("eIQ"); $75,000 for Plaintiff Dependable Component Supply Corp. ("Dependable"); and $50,000 for Plaintiff Walker Component Group, Inc. ("Walker").

The Class's motion is based on this Notice of Motion and Motion, the accompanying Memorandum of Points and Authorities, the Declaration of Joseph R. Saveri and the exhibits thereto, the Declaration of Eugene Krzywinski, the Declaration of Barry Reed Lubman, the Declaration of Shawn Ryan, the Declaration of John Walker, the Court's files and records in this matter, argument of counsel, and such other and further matters as the Court may consider.

Dated: June 23, 2022

Respectfully Submitted,

JOSEPH SAVERI LAW FIRM, LLP

By: /s/ Joseph R. Saveri
Joseph R. Saveri

Joseph R. Saveri (State Bar No. 130064)
Steven N. Williams (State Bar No. 175489)
Christopher K.L. Young (State Bar No. 318371)
Elissa Buchanan (State Bar No. 249996)
Abraham A. Maggard (State Bar No.339949)
JOSEPH SAVERI LAW FIRM, LLP
601 California Street, Suite 1000
San Francisco, California 94108
Telephone: (415) 500-6800
Facsimile: (415) 395-9940
Email: jsaveri@saverilawfirm.com
swilliams@saverilawfirm.com
cyoung@saverilawfirm.com
eabuchanan@saverilawfirm.com
amaggard@saverilawfirm.com

Lead Counsel for the Direct Purchaser Class

TABLE OF CONTENTS

Page

I. INTRODUCTION 1
A. The Pending Settlements 1
B. The Prior Round One, Round Two, Round Three and Round Four Settlements 2
C. The Pending Requests for Attorneys' Fees and Reimbursement of Expenses 3
II. LEGAL STANDARD 5
A. Attorneys' Fees 5
B. Costs Reimbursement 5
III. THE COURT SHOULD AWARD THE CLASS'S COUNSEL $66,000,000—40 PERCENT OF THE FUND—AS PARTIAL PAYMENT OF THEIR FEES ACCRUED AS OF DATE 5
A. The Percentage-of-the-Fund Method for Calculating Fees Is Appropriate Here 5
B. The Vizcaino Factors Warrant Granting Counsel's Fee Request 6
1. Counsel Obtained an Exceptional Result for the Direct Purchaser Class with The Settlements. 7
2. Counsel Have Taken Significant Risks Prosecuting This Litigation. 8
3. Advancing the Litigation to this Point and Obtaining the Settlements Has Required Professional Skill. 9
4. Awards in Similar Complex Antitrust Cases Demonstrate That Class Counsel Seek a Reasonable Fee Award. 9
5. Counsel Undertook a Significant Financial and Resource Burden in Prosecuting the Direct Purchaser Class's Claims 10
C. Lodestar Cross-Check Confirms That the Fees Sought by Class Counsel Are Reasonable. 11
D. The Court Should Grant Attorneys' Fees Based on Work Counsel Has Performed on the Case as a Whole. 12
IV. THE COURT SHOULD GRANT CLASS COUNSEL $3,636,429.21 FOR THEIR COSTS ADVANCED FROM JANUARY 1, 2020, TO PRESENT 12
V. THE COURT SHOULD GRANT SERVICE AWARDS TO THE NAMED PLAINTIFFS IN LIGHT OF THEIR SUBSTANTIAL CONTRIBUTIONS TO THE LITIGATION 13
VI. CONCLUSION 15

TABLE OF AUTHORITIES

Page(s)

Cases

In re Air Cargo Shipping Servs. Antitrust Litig., No. 06-MD-1775 JG VVP, 2012 WL 3138596 (E.D.N.Y. Aug. 2, 2012) 4, 12

In re Am. Apparel, Inc. S'holder Litig., Case No. CV 10-06352 MMM, 2014 WL 10212865 (C.D. Cal. Jul. 28, 2014) 5

In re Anthem, Inc. Data Breach Litig., No. 15-MD-02617-LHK, 2018 WL 3960068 (N.D. Cal. Aug. 17, 2018) 6

Barbosa v. Cargill Meat Sols. Corp., 297 F.R.D. 431 (E.D. Cal. 2013) 9

Bellinghausen v. Tractor Supply Co., 306 F.R.D. 245 (N.D. Cal. 2015) 6

In re Bluetooth Headset Prods. Liab. Litig., 654 F.3d 935 (9th Cir. 2011) 5

Boeing Co. v. Van Gemert, 444 U.S. 472 (1980) 5

Cameron v. Apple Inc., Case No. 4:19-cv-03074-YGR (N.D. Cal. June 10, 2022), ECF No. 491 15

In re Cardizem CD Antitrust Litig., 218 F.R.D. 508 (E.D. Mich. 2003) 15

Carlin v. DairyAmerica, Inc., 380 F.Supp.3d 998 (E.D. Cal. 2019) 6, 7

In re Checking Account Overdraft Litig., 830 F. Supp. 2d 1330 (S.D. Fla. 2011) 9

Cook v. Niedert, 142 F.3d 1004 (9th Cir. 1998) 14

In re Facebook Biometric Info. Priv. Litig., 522 F. Supp. 3d 617 (N.D. Cal. 2021) 14

Fischel v. Equitable Life Assur. Soc'y of U.S., 307 F.3d 997 (9th Cir. 2002) 5

Hanlon v. Chrysler Corp., 150 F.3d 1011 (9th Cir. 1998) 6

Harris v. Marhoefer, 24 F.3d 16 (9th Cir. 1994) 13

In re High-Tech Emp. Antitrust Litig., Case No. 11-CV-02509-LHK, 2015 WL 5158730 (N.D. Cal. Sep. 2, 2015) 15

In re Media Vision Tech. Sec. Litig., 913 F. Supp. 1362 (N.D. Cal. 1996) 13

Indep. Living Ctr. of S. Cal., Inc. v. Kent, 909 F.3d 272 (N.D. Cal. 2018) 5

In re Korean Air Lines Co. Antitrust Litig., No. CV 07-05107 SJO, 2013 WL 7985367 (C.D. Cal. Dec. 23, 2013) 6

Lemus v. H & R Enters. LLC, No. C 09-3179 SI, 2012 WL 3638550 (N.D. Cal. Aug. 22, 2012) 15

In re Lenovo Adware Litig., No. 15-MD-02624-HSG, 2019 WL 1791420 (N.D. Cal. Apr. 24, 2019) 9

In re Lidoderm Antitrust Litig., No. 14-md-02521-WHO, 2019 WL 4620695 (N.D. Cal. Sep. 20, 2018) 7

In re Lithium Ion Batteries Antitrust Litig., No. 13-md-02420-YGR, 2018 WL 3064391 (N.D. Cal. May 16, 2018) 6, 9

Lobatz v. U.S. W. Cellular of Cal., Inc., 222 F.3d 1142 (9th Cir. 2000) 12

Marshall v. Northrop Grumman Corp., Case No. 16-CV-6794 AB, 2020 WL 5668935 (C.D. Cal. Sep. 18, 2020) 7, 8

Mauss v. NuVasive, Inc., Case No. 13cv2005 JM (JLB), 2018 WL 6421623 (S.D. Cal. Dec. 6, 2018) 13

In re Mercury Interactive Corp. Sec. Litig., 618 F.3d 988 (9th Cir. 2010) 2

Mills v. Elec. Auto-Lite Co., 396 U.S. 375 (1970) 5

Morris v. Lifescan, Inc., 54 Fed.Appx. 663 (9th Cir. 2003) 7

In re Nat'l Collegiate Athl. Ass'n Athl. Grant-In-Aid Cap Antitrust Litig., 768 F. App'x 651 (9th Cir. 2019) 3

Norcia v. Samsung Telecomms. Am., LLC, No. 14-cv-00582-JD, 2021 WL 3053018 (N.D. Cal. July 20, 2021) 14

In re Omnivision Techs., Inc., 559 F. Supp. 2d 1036 (N.D. Cal. 2008) 7

In re Online DVD-Rental Antitrust Litig., 779 F.3d 934 (9th Cir. 2015) 14, 15

In re Packaged Seafood Prods. Antitrust Litig., Case No. 3:15-md-002670-DMS-MDD, 2022 WL 228823 (S.D. Cal. Jan. 26, 2022) 8

Paul, Johnson, Alston & Hunt v. Graulty, 886 F.2d 268 (9th Cir.1989) 9

Perez v. Rash Curtis & Assocs., No. 16-cv-03396-YGR, 2020 WL 1904533 (N.D. Cal. Apr. 17, 2020) 5

In re Polyurethane Foam Antitrust Litig., 135 F. Supp. 679 (W.D. Ohio 2015) 15

Powers v. Eichen, 229 F.3d 1249 (9th Cir. 2000) 5

In re Quantum Health Resources, Inc. Sec. Litig., 962 F. Supp. 1254 (C.D. Cal. 1997) 5

In re Rite Aid Corp. Sec. Litig., 396 F.3d 294 (3d Cir. 2005) 11

Rodriguez v. W. Publ'g Corp., 563 F.3d 948 (9th Cir. 2009) 13

In re Se. Milk Antitrust Litig., No. 2:07-CV 208, 2013 WL 2155387 (E.D. Tenn. May 17, 2013) 12

In re Skelaxim (Metaxalone) Antitrust Litig., No. 2:12-cv-83, 2014 WL 2946459 (E.D. Tenn. June 30, 2014) 15

Staton v. Boeing Co., 327 F.3d 938 (9th Cir. 2003) 14

Thornberry v. Delta Air Lines, Inc., 676 F.2d 1240 (9th Cir. 1982), remanded on other grounds, 461 U.S. 952(1983) 13

In re Transpac. Passenger Air Transp. Antitrust Litig., No. 3:07-cv-05634-CBR, 2019 WL 6327363 (N.D. Cal. Nov. 26, 2019) 4

Trosper v. Stryker Corp., No. 13-CV-00607-LHK, 2015 WL 5915360 (N.D. Cal. Oct. 9, 2015) 13

United States v. Matsuo Elec. Co. Ltd., 4:17-cr-00073-JD (N.D. Cal. filed on Feb. 8, 2017) 8

In re Urethane Antitrust Litig., No. 04-1616-JWL, 2016 WL 4060156 (D. Kan., July 29, 2016) 8, 9

Van Vranken v. Atl. Richfield Co., 901 F. Supp. 294 (N.D. Cal. 1995) 6, 12

Vincent v. Hughes Air W., Inc., 557 F.2d 759 (9th Cir. 1977) 13

Vizcaino v. Microsoft Corp., 290 F.3d 1043 (9th Cir. 2002) 6, 10, 11, 12

In re Wash. Pub. Power Supply Sys. Sec. Litig., 19 F.3d 1291 (9th Cir. 1994) 5

Wolf v. Permanente Med. Grp., Inc., Case No. 3:17-cv-05345-VC, 2018 WL 5619801 (N.D. Cal. Sep. 14, 2018) 14

Statutes

Crime Victims' Rights Act, 18 U.S.C. § 3771 ..... 8, 10

Sherman Act, 15 U.S.C. §1 9

I. INTRODUCTION

Counsel for the Direct Purchaser Class (the "Class") submit this motion for attorneys' fees and reimbursement of litigation expenses, seeking an award in the amounts of (1) $66,000,000 for fees accrued as of January 1, 2020; (2) $3,636,429.21 to fully reimburse incurred litigation costs and expenses incurred since January 1, 2020 (the "Motion") and (3) service awards for the named plaintiffs of the additional Settlement Fund in the amount of $100,000 for Plaintiff Chip-Tech Ltd.;$100,000 for Plaintiff eIQ Energy, Inc.; $75,000 for Plaintiff Dependable Component Supply Corp.; and $50,000 for Plaintiff Walker Component Group, Inc.

Pursuant to the Procedural Guidance for Class Action Settlements, the background history and facts are set forth in the Class's motion for Final Approval of Class Action Settlement with the Settling Defendants, MDL ECF No. 1713, ("Final Approval Motion") and will not be repeated here, except to summarize where relevant to this motion past settlements and their related awards of attorneys' fees reimbursement of expenses, and service awards. Having presided over the litigation from its inception, including two jury trials, the first of which commenced on March 2, 2020, before being suspended due to the commencement of the COVID-19 pandemic, and the second of which commenced on November 29, 2021 and concluded when Class Counsel settled with the remaining Defendants on the final day of trial, right before the case was to be handed to the jury, the Court is aware of the substantial work performed on behalf of the Class by Counsel to date.

A. The Pending Settlements

The settlements with the Settling Defendants (the "Settlements") provide for cash payments totaling $165,000,000. Adding the $439,550,000 in settlements from the First, Second and Third Round Settlements, Class Counsel has recovered a total of $604,550,000 for the Class, which represents a recovery of 141.4% of the Class's single damages as calculated by the Class's expert. Declaration of Joseph R. Saveri ("Saveri Decl."), ¶ 13.

This case began in 2014. Since then, Class Counsel—all of whom work on a contingency basis—have devoted substantial time which has not been compensated and have advanced costs on behalf of the Class. The Settlements, if finally approved, provide Class Counsel the opportunity to be compensated for their hard and successful work for the benefit of the Class, and to receive reimbursement for costs incurred in the litigation. On a cumulative basis, the total amount of attorneys' fees—the requested $66,000,000 added to the fee awards for the First, Second, Third, and Fourth Round Settlements—amounts to 31.01% of the common fund which Class Counsel has recovered for the benefit of the Class in this case.

The Motion is being publicly filed at-least thirty-five days before the deadline for objecting to the Settlements, as required by the Court's order granting preliminary approval of the present settlements, MDL ECF No. 1707, is consistent with the requirements set forth in the Northern District of California's Procedural Guidance for Class Action Settlements, and satisfies the requirements of In re Mercury Interactive Corp. Sec. Litig., 618 F.3d 988, 995 n.2 (9th Cir. 2010). Saveri Decl., ¶ 3.

B. The Prior Round One, Round Two, Round Three and Round Four Settlements

On June 27, 2017, the Court granted final approval of the Class's first round of settlements with the NEC Tokin, Fujitsu, Nitsuko, Okaya, and ROHM defendants totaling $32.6 million (the "First Round Settlements"). ECF No. 1713. On June 28, 2018, the Court granted final approval of the Class's second round of settlements with the Hitachi Chemical and Soshin defendants totaling $66.9 million (the "Second Round Settlements"). MDL ECF No. 249. On February 21, 2020, the Court entered an order granting final approval of the Class's third round of settlements with the Nichicon and Rubycon defendants totaling $108 million plus up to an additional $12 million in contingent payments based on Rubycon's financial results through fiscal year 2019. MDL ECF No. 587 at 11. These settlements demonstrate that Class Counsel and the named class representatives have diligently and successfully represented the Class. On June 27, 2017, the Court awarded $8,150,000 (25% of the settlement fund) as partial payment of their fees accrued as of September 30, 2016, in connection with the First Round Settlements. ECF No. 1714, at 3. The Court also approved $3 million for partial reimbursement of Counsel's costs and expenses. Id. at 9-10.

For the Second Round Settlements, the Court granted $16,725,000 in attorneys' fees (25% of the settlement fund) as partial payment of their fees accrued as of December 31, 2017. MDL ECF No. 332 at 3. The Court also approved $6,690,000 in expenses (10% of the settlement fund). Id. at 10.

For the Third Round Settlements, The Court granted $27,000,000 in attorneys' fees (25% of the of the settlement fund) as partial payment of their fees accrued as of December 31, 2018. Id. The Court also approved $1,997,809.74 in expenses (approximately 1.85% of the settlement fund).[1] Id. On May 7, 2020, the Court granted the Class's Supplemental Motion for Reimbursement of Expenses and awarded $1,002,190.62 for unreimbursed expenses incurred by Class Counsel. MDL ECF No. 1295.

For the Fourth Round Settlements, Special Master Monica Ip conducted an audit of Class Counsel's request for fees and costs as documented in MDL ECF No. 1366 and issued a Report and Recommendation (MDL ECF No. 1397) that was approved and adopted in full by the Court. MDL ECF No. 1423. The Court granted $69,615,000 in attorney fees (approximately 30% of the settlement fund). Id. The Court further granted $9,548,764.41 for unreimbursed expenses incurred by Class Counsel. Id.

C. The Pending Requests for Attorneys' Fees and Reimbursement of Expenses

Counsel's request for an award of attorneys' fees from the pending settlements in the amount of $66,000,000 is consistent with the Ninth Circuit's permitted fee awards calculated using the "percentage-of-the-fund" approach. See In re Nat'l Collegiate Athl. Ass'n Athl. Grant-In-Aid Cap Antitrust Litig., 768 F. App'x 651, 653 (9th Cir. 2019). Counsel have taken a significant risk, invested substantial amounts of their time and money on a contingent basis, and forgone other work opportunities to dedicate their professional efforts to this case.[2]

Lead Class Counsel submits declarations for its time and expenses, and expenses incurred by the Litigation Fund[3] (Saveri Decl., Exs. 1-3) together with declarations from Class Counsel that have worked under Lead Counsel's direction in this case. Saveri Decl., Exs. 4-17. Attached to each of these

---

[1] Special Master Monica Ip conducted an audit of Class Counsel's request for fees and costs as documented in MDL ECF Nos. 498, 594, and issued a Report and Recommendation (MDL ECF No. 1019) that was approved and adopted in full by the Court. MDL ECF No. 1036. The Court granted the Class's motion for attorneys' fees and reimbursement of expenses after adopting and approving in full the findings and recommendations as set forth in Special Master Monica Ip's Report and Recommendation. MDL ECF No. 1021.

[2] Indeed, Counsel overcame significant challenges in litigating this case. This case was tried twice, the first trial was interrupted by the COVID-19 pandemic after the Class had nearly completed presenting its case-in-chief. Counsel is unaware of any other case that was so interrupted.

[3] JSLF established a litigation fund to finance the joint prosecution of this case against the Defendants. The Litigation Fund has been used to pay necessary costs and expenses including expert and consulting fees, the costs of document hosting, certification of translations and trial expenses declarations from Class Counsel are documents that summarize the time their respective firms have billed from January 1, 2020, to May 31, 2022, as reported by timekeeper. Ex. 1; Ex. A to each Counsel's declaration. Class Counsel have also attached a summary of the expenses they incurred in this case during the same period. Ex. 2; Ex. B to each Counsel's declaration. Lead Class Counsel has reviewed each of Class Counsel's daily time records. Duplicative, unnecessary, or unauthorized work has been removed and will not be compensated. See id., ¶ 40.

Lead Class Counsel has also reviewed all costs submitted by Class Counsel for reimbursement to ensure their compliance with the instructions set forth in the Court's October 31, 2014, Order Appointing Interim Lead Class Counsel (ECF No. 319 at 4-5). See id. Expenses that were unauthorized or in excess of the Court's guidelines will not be compensated. See id. Consistent with the Court's guidance, the fees, and costs in connection with the present round of Settlements will be submitted to Special Master Ip in the first instance. MDL ECF No. 1708; Saveri Decl., ¶ 14. The Class's request for $3,636,429.21 is a request to reimburse Class Counsel for incurred litigation costs and expenses that have not yet been reimbursed. Saveri Decl., ¶ 20.

On a cumulative basis, the total amount of attorneys' fees—the requested $66,000,000 added to the fee awards for the First, Second, Third, and Fourth Round Settlements—is $187,490,000. Id., ¶¶ 15-18. This represents attorneys' fees of 31.01% of the common fund which Class Counsel has recovered for the benefit of the Class in this case. See In re Air Cargo Shipping Servs. Antitrust Litig., No. 06-MD-1775 JG VVP, 2012 WL 3138596, at *5 (E.D.N.Y. Aug. 2, 2012); see also In re Transpac. Passenger Air Transp. Antitrust Litig., No. 3:07-cv-05634-CBR, 2019 WL 6327363, at *6 (N.D. Cal. Nov. 26, 2019). Including the $66,000,000 request, Class Counsels' cumulative fee amounts to 31.01% of the total settlements reached for the benefit of the Class.

The requested expenses of $3,636,429.21 added to the expenses and costs reimbursements for the First, Second Third, and Fourth Round Settlements brings the cumulative total expenses and costs to $25,875,194. Saveri Decl., ¶¶ 15-18, 45. The Class's request for $3,636,429.21 fully reimburses Class Counsel for their expenses incurred but unreimbursed to date. Id., ¶ 22-23, and reimburses Class Counsel for Litigation Fund expenses incurred between July 24, 2020, to date.

II. LEGAL STANDARD

A. Attorneys' Fees

The Supreme Court has explained that "'a lawyer who recovers a common fund for the benefit of persons other than himself or his client is entitled to a reasonable attorney's fee from the fund as a whole.'" Indep. Living Ctr. of S. Cal., Inc. v. Kent, 909 F.3d 272, 284 (N.D. Cal. 2018) (quoting Boeing Co. v. Van Gemert, 444 U.S. 472, 478 (1980)); see also Mills v. Elec. Auto-Lite Co., 396 U.S. 375, 393 (1970). "The rationale behind awarding a percentage of the fund to counsel in common fund cases is the same that justifies permitting contingency fee arrangements in general. . . . The underlying premise is the existence of risk—the contingent risk of non-payment." In re Quantum Health Resources, Inc. Sec. Litig., 962 F. Supp. 1254, 1257 (C.D. Cal. 1997) (emphasis in original). In addition, attorneys' fees are awarded as a means of ensuring the beneficiaries of a common fund share with those whose labors created the fund. See In re Wash. Pub. Power Supply Sys. Sec. Litig., 19 F.3d 1291, 1300 (9th Cir. 1994).

B. Costs Reimbursement

Counsel may obtain reimbursement for costs from a common fund settlement. In re Am. Apparel, Inc. S'holder Litig., Case No. CV 10-06352 MMM (JCGx), 2014 WL 10212865, at *28 (C.D. Cal. Jul. 28, 2014). "'The prevailing view is that expenses are awarded in addition to the fee percentage.'" Perez v. Rash Curtis & Assocs., No. 16-cv-03396-YGR, 2020 WL 1904533, at *21 (N.D. Cal. Apr. 17, 2020) (citations omitted).

III. THE COURT SHOULD AWARD THE CLASS'S COUNSEL $66,000,000—40 PERCENT OF THE FUND—AS PARTIAL PAYMENT OF THEIR FEES ACCRUED AS OF DATE

A. The Percentage-of-the-Fund Method for Calculating Fees Is Appropriate Here

District courts in the Ninth Circuit use either the "percentage-of-the-fund" or the "lodestar" method in calculating fees in common fund settlements. Fischel v. Equitable Life Assur. Soc'y of U.S., 307 F.3d 997, 1006 (9th Cir. 2002). Using either method, the ultimate inquiry is whether the end result is reasonable. Powers v. Eichen, 229 F.3d 1249, 1258 (9th Cir. 2000).

Where there is an easily quantifiable benefit to the class—namely, the cash recovery achieved through the settlement—the percentage of the fund approach is appropriate. See In re Bluetooth Headset

Prods. Liab. Litig., 654 F.3d 935, 942 (9th Cir. 2011). "The use of the percentage-of-the-fund method in common-fund cases is the prevailing practice in the Ninth Circuit for awarding attorneys' fees and permits the Court to focus on a showing that a fund conferring benefits on a class was created through the efforts of plaintiffs' counsel." In re Korean Air Lines Co. Antitrust Litig., No. CV 07-05107 SJO (AGRx), 2013 WL 7985367, at *1 (C.D. Cal. Dec. 23, 2013); see also Bellinghausen v. Tractor Supply Co., 306 F.R.D. 245, 260 (N.D. Cal. 2015). Courts supervising antitrust cases in this District regularly apply the percentage of the fund approach. See, e.g., In re Anthem, Inc. Data Breach Litig., No. 15-MD-02617-LHK, 2018 WL 3960068, at *5 (N.D. Cal. Aug. 17, 2018); In re Lithium Ion Batteries Antitrust Litig., No. 13-md-02420-YGR, 2018 WL 3064391, at *1 (N.D. Cal. May 16, 2018); Van Vranken v. Atl. Richfield Co., 901 F. Supp. 294, 298 (N.D. Cal. 1995). The Court should do so as well here.

"In the Ninth Circuit, the benchmark for percentage of recovery awards is 25 percent of the total settlement award, which may be adjusted up or down." Carlin v. DairyAmerica, Inc., 380 F.Supp.3d 998, 1019 (E.D. Cal. 2019) (citing Hanlon v. Chrysler Corp., 150 F.3d 1011, 1029 (9th Cir. 1998)). Selection of the benchmark or any other rate, however, must be supported by findings that account for all of the circumstances of the case. Vizcaino v. Microsoft Corp., 290 F.3d 1043, 1048 (9th Cir. 2002). The benchmark is subject to adjustment—upward or downward—based on the Court's analysis of the factors the Ninth Circuit considered in Vizcaino: (1) the results achieved for the class; (2) the complexity of the case and the risk of and expense to counsel of litigating it; (3) the skill, experience, and performance of counsel on both sides; (4) the contingent nature of the fee; and (5) fees awarded in comparable cases. See id. at 1048-50. The complexity of this case, the significant benefits achieved for the Class and the excellent work performed support an upwards adjustment.

B. The Vizcaino Factors Warrant Granting Counsel's Fee Request

Here, each of the Vizcaino factors weighs in favor of awarding the requested $66,000,000, which amounts to 40% of the Settlement Fund associated with the latest settlements, or, when accounting for the fee awards granted in the prior rounds of settlements, 31.01% of the cumulative settlements recovered for the benefit of the Class, a well-warranted upwards adjustment.

1. Counsel Obtained an Exceptional Result for the Direct Purchaser Class with The Settlements.

"The overall result and benefit to the class from the litigation is the most critical factor in granting a fee award." In re Omnivision Techs., Inc., 559 F. Supp. 2d 1036, 1046 (N.D. Cal. 2008). The pending Settlements—the fifth round in the consolidated Direct Purchaser Class Action—provide the Class with significant and valuable monetary benefits.

The Settling Defendants' all-cash payments for the benefit of the Class together combined with the prior settlements achieved in this case will total $604,550,000, significantly exceeding single damages. This is a large amount of money relative to the Settling Defendants' individual and collective capacitor sales to Class members between 2002 and 2014 and is over 141.4% of the total overcharges ($427,530,613) as calculated by the Class's expert—an extraordinary result. Courts have approved equal or higher upward adjustments from the benchmark in cases where the settlement was a much lesser percentage of single damages. See, e.g., Carlin, 380 F. Supp. 3d at 1020 (33% fee award approved where settlement recovered 48% of experts' estimate damages); Marshall v. Northrop Grumman Corp., Case No. 16-CV-6794 AB (JCx), 2020 WL 5668935, at *2-3 (C.D. Cal. Sep. 18, 2020) (recovery of 29% of claimed damages at trial justified fee award of one-third of settlement fund); In re Lidoderm Antitrust Litig., No. 14-md-02521-WHO, 2019 WL 4620695, at *1-2 (N.D. Cal. Sep. 20, 2018) (approving 33% fee award in end-payor class action settlement recovering 46% of single damages estimate).[4]

The settlements represent an excellent, valuable, and significant recovery to the Class. The Class's $5,000,000 settlement with Matsuo represents a significant recovery given evidence of Matsuo's lack of resources, notwithstanding its participation in the price-fixing conspiracy. NCC and UCC's $160,000,000 settlement represents approximately 212% of NCC and UCC's overcharges during the class period (based on the Class's calculation of $75,447,114 in overcharges attributable to NCC and UCC) and nearly 17.6% of the total overcharges as calculated by the Class's experts. Additionally, NCC and UCC's settlement is the largest settlement among all defendant families in this case. These settlements are further evidence that the settlements pending approval are excellent and warrant the granting of attorney fees. See, e.g., In re Packaged Seafood Prods. Antitrust Litig., Case No. 3:15-md-002670-DMS-MDD, 2022 WL 228823, at *23 (S.D. Cal. Jan. 26, 2022) (finding settlement totaling $20 million "compares favorably to other antitrust and class action settlements") (citation omitted); Marshall, 2020 WL 5668935, at *3 ("great effort on behalf of the Class" justifies "an award of one-third of the settlement fund in attorney fees"); In re Urethane Antitrust Litig., No. 04-1616-JWL, 2016 WL 4060156, at *4 (D. Kan., July 29, 2016) ("This enormous success in a highly contingent case favors an award of a substantial percentage of the . . . settlement fund to the counsel who achieved that success for the class members"). In addition to financial consideration, the Class has also benefitted from the cooperation that Lead Class Counsel secured from previously settling defendants.

[4] See also Morris v. Lifescan, Inc., 54 Fed.Appx. 663, 664 (9th Cir. 2003) (33% fee award justified as "class counsel achieved exceptional results in this risky and complicated class action and despite Lifescan's vigorous opposition throughout the litigation").

The Settlements' monetary component—all cash—greatly benefits the Class by providing and, in fact, accelerating the Class's chances for monetary recovery in this case through the claims administration process. Saveri Decl., ¶13. Here, a substantial amount of money stands to be distributed to the Direct Purchaser Class. Id.

2. Counsel Have Taken Significant Risks Prosecuting This Litigation.

Counsel assumed a significant risk in undertaking this litigation. See Saveri Decl., ¶¶ 30-31. By its nature, recovery is never guaranteed in contingency litigation. Id., ¶ 30. Counsel committed their time, money, and energy to the prosecution of a multi-year, international price-fixing cartel case against 22 sprawling Defendant corporate families based almost entirely in Japan. See id., ¶ 24. This cartel case is complex, and complex antitrust cases often take years to resolve through settlement, trial, or appeal—indeed, this litigation has now lasted over 7 years. See id. As the case has advanced, certain Defendants have claimed poor financial health that could ultimately impede or diminish recovery for the Class.[5] As set forth in Lead Class Counsel's declaration, Class Counsel have expended millions of dollars of their time and incurred millions of dollars in expenses, all on a purely contingent basis. Counsel have turned away other case opportunities over the last six years to dedicate the time and resources needed to prosecute the Class's claims. This entails substantial risk.[6] Id., ¶¶ 30-34.

[5] The Class has worked diligently to maximize compensation and restitution for those injured by Defendants. Lead Class Counsel retained experts and filed submissions under the Crime Victims' Rights Act, 18 U.S.C. § 3771, in connection with the Court's sentencing of Matsuo in United States v. Matsuo Elec. Co. Ltd., 4:17-cr-00073-JD (N.D. Cal. filed on Feb. 8, 2017) In particular, Lead Class Counsel submitted briefing and a declaration from the Class's expert analyzing Matsuo's claimed inability to pay its criminal fine and suggesting appropriate restitution for those injured by Defendants' anticompetitive conduct. See id., at ECF No. 58 & 58-1.

3. Advancing the Litigation to this Point and Obtaining the Settlements Has Required Professional Skill.

The docket and the procedural history in this this case demonstrate Class Counsel's expertise and the Class's successes to date. See, e.g., ECF No. 332, at pp. 5-8. Counsel have done much to prosecute the Class's claims effectively and efficiently. Counsels' success was hard won. Defendants have hired excellent antitrust defense counsel to defend them against the Class's Sherman Act claims. See Barbosa v. Cargill Meat Sols. Corp., 297 F.R.D. 431, 449 (E.D. Cal. 2013) ("The quality of opposing counsel is important in evaluating the quality of Class Counsel's work."). Indeed, Class Counsel has litigated this case to a successful conclusion despite two rounds of summary judgment, motions to decertify the class, motions to disqualify experts and two trials due to the COVID-19 pandemic.

4. Awards in Similar Complex Antitrust Cases Demonstrate That Class Counsel Seek a Reasonable Fee Award.

The requested award of $66,000,000 matches and is in keeping with fee awards in similar cases, both in the Ninth Circuit and elsewhere. See Paul, Johnson, Alston & Hunt v. Graulty, 886 F.2d 268, 272 (9th Cir.1989). Class Counsel's request is comparable to percentages awarded plaintiffs' counsel in other similarly and arguably less complex antitrust cases in this District and elsewhere in the United States. See, e.g., In re Lenovo Adware Litig., No. 15-MD-02624-HSG, 2019 WL 1791420, at *7-9 (N.D. Cal. Apr. 24, 2019) (30% of $8,300,000 recovery); In re Lithium Ion Batteries Antitrust Litig., No. 13-MD-02420-YGR, 2018 WL 3064391, at *1 (N.D. Cal. May 16, 2018) (30% of $139,000,000 recovery); see also, e.g., Urethane, 2016 WL 4060156, at *6 (33.33% of $835,000,000 recovery); In re Checking Account Overdraft Litig., 830 F. Supp. 2d 1330, 1366 (S.D. Fla. 2011) (30% of $410,000,000 recovery).

[6] Class Counsel also incurred risk associated with having a parallel criminal proceeding, addressing the impact of the FTAIA, and evaluating massive amounts of electronic transactional data necessary to prove their case. Counsel also faced significant difficulty due to the unprecedented nature of the COVID-19 pandemic. Due to the pandemic, Counsel faced challenges including securing witness travel from Japan. Each of these risks weigh in favor of granting Class Counsel the requested fee award.

As these precedents demonstrate, Class Counsel's request is easily consistent with recognized "market rates," i.e., rates typically awarded in similar contingency fee cases in this District and across the United States, see Vizcaino, 290 F.3d at 1050, particularly in light of the posture of the litigation and the state of the Class's evidence here.

5. Counsel Undertook a Significant Financial and Resource Burden in Prosecuting the Direct Purchaser Class's Claims

Class Counsel have invested significant amounts of time, money, and resources in this case for over six years, as shown in their time and expense records. Lead Class Counsel's time submissions—$9,395,583.75 for 2021 and $43,604,109.00 total lodestar billed to date—illustrate the point. Saveri Decl., ¶ 45. This litigation has required a significant devotion of Lead Class Counsel's resources for the last six years. For example, Lead Class Counsel has performed the following tasks:

- Discovery: Lead Class Counsel undertook significant discovery efforts in this case. Discovery included drafting discovery responses, evaluating and analyzing defendants' discovery responses, including document productions, managing multiple foreign language document review projects, supervising all depositions, preparing for and taking key depositions, identifying and interviewing cooperating witnesses, and taking pre-trial depositions. Much of the document discovery involved the review and analysis of documents in Japanese and in Chinese. Many of the depositions were taken abroad and required translation from Japanese and Chinese.

- Motion Practice: Lead Class Counsel prepared, edited, and briefed various court filings, including several dispositive motions. Plaintiffs successfully moved for class certification. Defendants opposed the motion and sought appellate review of the Court's decision. Defendants sought to decertify the action on numerous occasions. This included appearances before the Judicial Panel on Multidistrict Litigation, briefing and arguing the motion for class certification, and briefing two rounds of motions for summary judgment. Lead Class Counsel also selected and prepared the Class's expert witnesses and reports, oversaw and coordinated the work of its experts, and responded to Daubert motions in relation to its experts. Additionally, Lead Class Counsel hired forensic accountants, and filed submissions pursuant to the Crime Victims' Rights Act, 18 U.S.C. § 3771 in connection with the criminal cases against certain Defendants.

- Case Management: Lead Class counsel interfaced, communicated and negotiated with various entities during the course of this litigation, including, the United States Department of Justice, the indirect purchaser plaintiffs, and opt-out plaintiffs. In addition to conducting various settlement negotiations, Lead Class Counsel has diligently communicated with Class members, responded to inquiries concerning the status of the case and settlement and coordinated various notice and claims management issues. The high degree of class participation in the settlements to date evidences the success of those efforts.

- Trial and Pre-Trial: Most recently, Lead Class Counsel prepared, supervised, and presented two weeks of evidence at the jury trial in November 2021. Trial preparation > included the preparation of all pretrial filings and submissions, presentation of witnesses (including witnesses from Japan), attendance of pre-trial conferences, taking pre-trial depositions, defending trial depositions, and organizing pre-trial meet and confers. Trial preparation also included arranging for precautions and safety measures to address the risks of trying a case during the ongoing pandemic. Class Counsel had tried the case once before in March 2020 until the COVID-19 pandemic forced the suspension and eventual termination of that trial. Additionally, given Defendants' lack of U.S. assets, Class Counsel also assessed the risk associated with enforcing a treble-damage judgment in Japan should the jury return with a favorable verdict for the Class.

Saveri Decl., ¶ 25.

Lead Class Counsel have relied on Class Counsel to assist the prosecution of this case. Each of the firms have wide and deep experience in the field and has successfully resolved numerous cases, and the Class has benefitted from that experience here. Id., ¶ 43. The Court has seen the quality of legal work on behalf of the Class. Under the active supervision of Lead Class Counsel, the firms have worked closely together as an efficient team. See id. ¶ 24. Assignments have been given based on the particular expertise and skill of individual lawyers. See id. Duplication of effort has been minimized, and as noted above, duplicative or unnecessary work has been excluded as a basis for the attorney fee award. Id. Class Counsel have set forth for the Court the details regarding their contributions in their declarations attached to the Saveri Declaration. Id., Exs. 4-17 ¶ 3 in each declaration.

C. Lodestar Cross-Check Confirms That the Fees Sought by Class Counsel Are Reasonable.

A lodestar cross-check may be used to ensure that class counsel has done the work necessary to justify the fee sought. Vizcaino, 290 F.3d at 1050. "[T]he lodestar cross-check calculation need entail neither mathematical precision nor bean-counting. The district courts may rely on summaries submitted by the attorneys and need not review actual billing records." In re Rite Aid Corp. Sec. Litig., 396 F.3d 294, 306-07 (3d Cir. 2005)) (citation omitted).

On a cumulative basis, the total amount of attorneys' fees—the requested $66,000,000 added to the fee awards for the First, Second, Third Round, and Fourth Round Settlements—is $187,490,000.00 Id., ¶¶ 15-18. Counsel's cumulative lodestar in the case as of today is $103,082,430.30. Saveri Decl., ¶ 45; id., Exs. 1-17. Consistent with the Court's instructions, time was reported on a monthly basis and those historical rates are used as the basis for the fee request here. Id. ¶ 45-46, and Exs. 2, 4-17. In the Ninth Circuit, a lodestar multiplier of around four has frequently been awarded in common fund cases such as this. See Vizcaino, 290 F.3d at 1051 (multiplier of 3.65 held "within the range of multipliers applied in common fund cases"); see also Van Vranken, 901 F. Supp. 294 at 298 ("Multipliers in the 3-4 range are common in lodestar awards for lengthy and complex class action litigation."). The lodestar cross-check thus confirms that Counsel's $66,000,000 fee request is reasonable and should be awarded.[7]

D. The Court Should Grant Attorneys' Fees Based on Work Counsel Has Performed on the Case as a Whole.

Because the total work performed by counsel from inception of the case makes each settlement possible, courts typically base fee awards in subsequent settlements on all work performed in the case. Lobatz v. U.S. W. Cellular of Cal., Inc., 222 F.3d 1142, 1149-50 (9th Cir. 2000); In re Se. Milk Antitrust Litig., No. 2:07-CV 208, 2013 WL 2155387, at *4 (E.D. Tenn. May 17, 2013). Indeed, when considering fee awards for subsequent settlements, courts typically calculate the lodestar multiplier by dividing all past and requested fee awards by all of counsel's time from inception of the case. See, e.g., Se. Milk, 2013 WL 2155387, at *4; see also, e.g., Air Cargo, 2012 WL 3138596, at *5. Class Counsel has devoted a tremendous amount of time to prosecuting the Class's claims from the case's inception—to the Class's great benefit. The Court should consider Class Counsel's total efforts and find Class Counsel's requested fee award appropriate and reasonable. See Lobatz, 222 F.3d at 1149-1150. (affirming that counsel should be awarded fees based on work on entire litigation.)

IV. THE COURT SHOULD GRANT CLASS COUNSEL $3,636,429.21 FOR THEIR COSTS ADVANCED FROM JANUARY 1, 2020, TO PRESENT

Counsel requests the amount of $3,636,429.21 (approximately 2.20 % of the Settlement Fund) to reimburse incurred litigation costs and expenses that have not been reimbursed. Saveri Decl., ¶ 20.

[7] For the First Round, the lodestar incurred was $44,454,689.20, and the fees granted were $8,150,000. For the Second Round, the lodestar incurred was $26,307,241.50 and the fees granted were $16,725,000. For the Third Round, the lodestar incurred was $11,877,369 and the fees granted were $27,000,000. For the Fourth Round, the lodestar incurred was $6,794,035.75 and the fees granted were incurred was $69,615,000. On a cumulative basis, if the Court grants Counsel's fee request of $66,000,000, the lodestar multiplier would be 1.81.

It is appropriate to reimburse attorneys prosecuting class claims on a contingent basis for "reasonable expenses that would typically be billed to paying clients in non-contingency matters," i.e., costs "incidental and necessary to the effective representation of the Class." Trosper v. Stryker Corp., No. 13-CV-00607-LHK, 2015 WL 5915360, at *1 (N.D. Cal. Oct. 9, 2015) (citing Harris v. Marhoefer, 24 F.3d 16, 19 (9th Cir. 1994)). Reasonable reimbursable litigation expenses include those for document production, experts and consultants, depositions, translation services, travel, mail, and postage costs.[8] Under the common fund doctrine, plaintiffs' counsel should receive reimbursement of all reasonable out-of-pocket expenses and costs in prosecution of the claims and in obtaining a settlement. See generally Vincent v. Hughes Air W., Inc., 557 F.2d 759 (9th Cir. 1977).

Aside from the typical litigation-related costs necessarily incurred in a complex antitrust litigation like this one (e.g., travel and lodging, legal research, court reporters), Class Counsel have incurred many other expenses that warrant reimbursement. In the four prior rounds of Class settlements, Class Counsel had informed the Court of the extraordinary expenses entailed by this complex litigation, including the substantial costs in reviewing, translating, and analyzing 39 million Bates-numbered pages, mostly in Japanese, from over 100 document custodians, and significant expert fees and related expenses from submitting expert reports. ECF No. 1713; MDL ECF No. 249. Since the last round of settlements, the Class incurred significant expenses including those associated with preparing for and conducting the November 2021 trial. Saveri Decl., ¶¶ 20, 22.

V. THE COURT SHOULD GRANT SERVICE AWARDS TO THE NAMED PLAINTIFFS IN LIGHT OF THEIR SUBSTANTIAL CONTRIBUTIONS TO THE LITIGATION.

Class Counsel seeks service awards for the four named class representatives: $100,000 for Plaintiff Chip-Tech Ltd. ("Chip-Tech"); $100,000 for Plaintiff eIQ Energy, Inc. ("eIQ"); $75,000 for Plaintiff Dependable Component Supply Corp.; and $50,000 for Plaintiff Walker Component Group, Inc. Service awards are "fairly typical in class action cases." Rodriguez, 563 F.3d at 958. Service awards are particularly appropriate when the litigation is "complicated" and "took up quite a bit of the class representatives' time." In re Online DVD-Rental Antitrust Litig., 779 F.3d 934, 947-48 (9th Cir. 2015); accord In re Facebook Biometric Info. Priv. Litig., 522 F. Supp. 3d 617, 633-34 (N.D. Cal. 2021). "In deciding whether such an award is warranted, relevant factors include the actions the plaintiff has taken to protect the interest of the class, the degree to which the class has benefited from those actions, and the amount of time and effort the plaintiff expended in pursuing the litigation." Cook v. Niedert, 142 F.3d 1004, 1016 (9th Cir. 1998); accord Staton v. Boeing Co., 327 F.3d 938 (9th Cir. 2003).

[8] See, e.g., Media Vision, 913 F. Supp. at 1366 (court fees, experts/consultants, service of process, court reporters, transcripts, deposition costs, computer research, photocopies, postage, telephone/fax); Thornberry v. Delta Air Lines, Inc., 676 F.2d 1240, 1244 (9th Cir. 1982) (travel, meals and lodging), remanded on other grounds, 461 U.S. 952(1983); Mauss v. NuVasive, Inc., Case No. 13cv2005 JM (JLB), 2018 WL 6421623, at *8-9 (S.D. Cal. Dec. 6, 2018) (online research, press release and newswires).

The named Plaintiffs undertook significant action to protect the interests of the class. Each of the named Plaintiffs maintained close contact with Class Counsel throughout the case, produced thousands of documents during the course of this complex litigation, were subject to multiple depositions, and devoted dozens to hundreds of hours in assisting Class Counsel in this case, expending a great deal of time and effort. See Krzywinski Decl., ¶¶ 7-9; Lubman Decl., ¶¶ 5-16; Ryan Decl., ¶¶ 7-9; Walker Decl., ¶¶ 6-8. Plaintiffs Chip-Tech and eIQ in particular devoted significant time and effort on behalf of the Class as Barry Lubman of Chip-Tech and Gene Krzywinski of eIQ, in addition to providing significant discovery in this case, twice presented testimony before a jury, including at the prior trial that was interrupted by the onset of the COVID-19 pandemic. Krzywinski Decl., ¶ 8; Lubman Decl., ¶¶ 13-14. "[T]he Court knows firsthand from seeing plaintiff[s] [Lubman and Krzywinski] on the witness stand during the . . . trial[s] that [they] ha[ve] put time and effort into this case, likely more than is asked of the usual named class action representative." Norcia v. Samsung Telecomms. Am., LLC, No. 14-cv-00582-JD, 2021 WL 3053018, at *5 (N.D. Cal. July 20, 2021).

The requested total service awards are well within the fair and reasonable awards approved by courts in this Circuit and resulted in a significant benefit to the Class. See Wolf v. Permanente Med. Grp., Inc., Case No. 3:17-cv-05345-VC, 2018 WL 5619801, at *1, ¶ 5 (N.D. Cal. Sep. 14, 2018); Saveri Decl., ¶ 35. The average recovery unnamed class members received for the first four rounds of settlement is $630,521.82. That is before accounting for the distribution of the pending settlements with Matsuo and Chemi-Con. See Online DVD-Rental, 779 F.3d at 947. The aggregate service awards requested by Class Counsel amounts to 51% of the average recovery for an unnamed class member, and courts have approved individual service awards which are many times that ratio. See In re High-Tech Emp. Antitrust Litig., Case No. 11-CV-02509-LHK, 2015 WL 5158730, at *18 (N.D. Cal. Sep. 2, 2015) (approving service awards of about 14 to 21 times average class member recovery); Lemus v. H & R Enters. LLC, No. C 09-3179 SI, 2012 WL 3638550, at *5-6 (N.D. Cal. Aug. 22, 2012) (approving $15,000 service awards where average class recovery about $1,200). This recovery was due, in no small part, to the work of the named Plaintiffs. Further, the requested service awards cumulatively make up a mere 0.06% of the total settlement fund of $604,550,000, which is fair and reasonable in light of the significant benefit to the Class resulting from Plaintiffs' efforts. See, e.g., Online DVD-Rental, 779 F.3d at 948 (approving service awards of $45,000 totaling 0.17% of the total settlement fund).[9] Indeed, courts have granted similar service awards even in cases which did not proceed to jury trial once, let alone twice. See, e.g., High-Tech, 2015 WL 5158730, at *17-18 (approving service awards of $120,000 and $80,000); see also Cameron v. Apple Inc., Case No. 4:19-cv-03074-YGR (N.D. Cal. June 10, 2022), ECF No. 491 at 15 (granting service awards in pre-summary judgment case).[10]

VI. CONCLUSION

For the reasons set forth above, Counsel requests the Court grant its request for payment of $66,000,000 in attorneys' fees, $3,636,429.21 in reimbursable costs, and request for a total of $325,000 in service awards.

[9] See also, e.g., In re Polyurethane Foam Antitrust Litig., 135 F. Supp. 679, 694 (W.D. Ohio 2015) (approving $35,000 award to each plaintiff amounting to .00005% of total settlement of $433.1 million).

[10] See also, e.g., High-Tech at *18 (collecting cases granting service awards in excess of $125,000); In re Skelaxim (Metaxalone) Antitrust Litig., No. 2:12-cv-83, 2014 WL 2946459, at *3-4 (E.D. Tenn. June 30, 2014) ($50,000 service award for each class representative); In re Cardizem CD Antitrust Litig., 218 F.R.D. 508, 535-36 (E.D. Mich. 2003) (granting $75,000 service awards).

Dated: June 23, 2022

Respectfully Submitted,

JOSEPH SAVERI LAW FIRM, LLP

By: /s/ Joseph R. Saveri
Joseph R. Saveri

Joseph R. Saveri (State Bar No. 130064)
Steven N. Williams (State Bar No. 175489)
Christopher K.L. Young (State Bar No. 318371)
Elissa Buchanan (State Bar No. 249996)
Abraham A. Maggard (State Bar No.339949)
JOSEPH SAVERI LAW FIRM, LLP
601 California Street, Suite 1000
San Francisco, California 94108
Telephone: (415) 500-6800
Facsimile: (415) 395-9940
Email: jsaveri@saverilawfirm.com
swilliams@saverilawfirm.com
cyoung@saverilawfirm.com
eabuchanan@saverilawfirm.com
amaggard@saverilawfirm.com

Lead Counsel for the Direct Purchaser Class

TAB 7A

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
FOR THE DISTRICT OF NEW JERSEY

In re Neurontin Antitrust Litigation
THIS DOCUMENT RELATES TO:	Civil Action No. 02-1830
LOUISIANA WHOLESALE DRUG COMPANY, INC., MEIJER, INC. and MEIJER DISTRIBUTION, INC., on behalf of themselves and all others similarly situated,	Civil Action No. 02-2731
Plaintiffs,
v.
PFIZER, INC. and WARNER-LAMBERT CO.,
Defendants.

FINAL JUDGMENT AND ORDER OF DISMISSAL APPROVING PROPOSED CLASS SETTLEMENT AND DISMISSING ACTIONS

Pursuant to Rule 23(e) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, and in accordance with the terms of the Settlement Agreement dated April 17, 2014, it is hereby ORDERED as follows:

1. This Final Judgment and Order of Dismissal hereby incorporates by reference the definitions in the Settlement Agreement among the parties to these actions on file with this Court, and all capitalized terms used and not otherwise defined herein shall have the meanings set forth in the Settlement Agreement.

2. The Court has jurisdiction over these actions and over each of the parties and over all members of the Class.

3. The notice of settlement (in the forms presented to this Court as Exhibits B-1 and B-2 to the Settlement Agreement) (the "Notice") directed to the members of the Class, constituted the best notice practicable under the circumstances. In making this determination, the Court finds that the Notice provided for individual notice to all Class members who were identified through reasonable efforts. Pursuant to, and in accordance with, Rule 23 of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, the Court hereby finds that the Notice provided Class members due and adequate notice of the Settlement, the Settlement Agreement, these proceedings and the rights of Class members to object to the Settlement.

4. The Court held a preliminary fairness hearing on May 1, 2014 and a final fairness hearing on July 31, 2014, regarding the reasonableness of the parties' settlement. Pursuant to Rule 23 of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, this Court hereby approves the Settlement, and finds that the Settlement is, in all respects, fair, reasonable and adequate to Class members. Accordingly, the Settlement shall be consummated in accordance with the terms and provisions of the Settlement Agreement.[1]

---

[1] The Court has fully considered the Girsh factors and finds that, considered together, the factors overwhelming favor approval of the Class settlement. Girsh v. Jepson, 521 F.2d 153, 157 (3d Cir. 1975); see also In re Prudential Ins. Co. Am. Sales Practice Litig. Agent Actions, 148 F.3d 283, 323 (3d Cir. 1998). As the Court indicated at the fairness hearing, every issue in this complex antitrust case has been vigorously litigated by both sides for over twelve years. Class Plaintiffs faced significant risks in taking the case to trial, which this Court has discussed in its opinions on dispositive motions and recent status conferences. This Court agrees with counsel's position, as discussed in the extensive briefing and supporting affidavits, that the Settlement Agreement is fair and reasonable for all Class members. The value of the settlement to the Class is confirmed by the fact that no members of the Class of identifiable, sophisticated business

5. The Court hereby approves the Plan of Allocation of the Settlement Fund as proposed by Class Counsel (the "Plan"), which was summarized in the Notice of Proposed Settlement. The Claims Administrator is directed to distribute the net Settlement Fund as provided in the Plan.

6. The Court has certified a Class consisting of "[a]ll persons or entities in the United States that purchased Neurontin from Pfizer at any time during the period of December 11, 2002 through August 31, 2008 and who have purchased generic gabapentin. Excluded from the Class are Defendants and each of their respective parents, employees, subsidiaries, affiliates, and franchisees, and all government entities."

7. Also excluded from the Class are CVS Pharmacy Inc., Caremark, L.L.C., Rite Aid Corporation, Rite Aid HDQTRS Corp., Walgreen Co., American Sales Co, Inc., HEB Grocery Co. LP, Safeway Inc., SuperValu Inc., and The Kroger Co., in their own right as direct purchasers of Neurontin from Pfizer and as assignees limited to their purchases of Neurontin from Class members.

8. The Court has found that the Class meets all the requirements of Fed. R. Civ. P. 23. The Class, made up of sophisticated business entities, had a full and fair opportunity to request exclusion at the time of class certification and, therefore, there is no reason for the Court to afford a new opportunity to individual Class members to request exclusion who had an earlier opportunity to request exclusion but did not do so.

---

entities have objected, rather many have explicitly approved of the Settlement.

9. The Court has appointed Louisiana Wholesale Drug company, Inc., Meijer, Inc., and Meijer Distribution, Inc. as class representatives (the "Class Representatives").

10. The Court has found that Co-Lead Counsel, listed below, along with other Class Counsel, have fairly and adequately represented the interests of the Class and satisfied the requirements of Fed. R. Civ. P. 23(g):

Bruce E. Gerstein, Esq.
GARWIN GERSTEIN & FISHER LLP
88 Pine Street, 10th Floor
New York, NY 10005

Richard J. Kilsheimer, Esq.
KAPLAN FOX & KILSHEIMER LLP
850 Third Avenue, 14th Floor
New York, NY 10022

11. The following actions are hereby dismissed with prejudice, as provided in the Settlement Agreement, and without costs, except as provided for herein and in the Settlement Agreement:

- Louisiana Wholesale Drug Company, Inc., et al. v. Pfizer, Inc. and Warner-Lambert, No. 2:02-cv-01830-FSH (D.N.J.)
- Meijer, Inc., et al. v. Pfizer, Inc. and Warner-Lambert, No. 2:02-cv-02731 (D.N.J.)

12. Each of the foregoing dismissals shall become effective upon the date the Settlement becomes final in accordance with paragraph 4 of the Settlement Agreement.

13. Upon this Settlement becoming final in accordance with paragraph 4 of the Settlement Agreement, Defendants and their past, present and future parents, subsidiaries, divisions, affiliates, joint ventures, stockholders, officers, directors, management, supervisory boards, insurers, general or limited partners, employees, agents, trustees, associates, attorneys and any of their legal representatives (and the predecessors, heirs, executors, administrators, successors and assigns of each of the foregoing) (the "Released Parties") are and shall be unconditionally, fully and finally released and forever discharged from all manner of claims, debts, obligations, demands, actions, suits, causes of action, damages whenever incurred, liabilities of any nature whatsoever, including costs, expenses, penalties and attorneys' fees, known or unknown, suspected or unsuspected, accrued in whole or in part, in law or equity, that Plaintiffs or any member or members of the Class (including any of their past, present or future officers, directors, insurers, general or limited partners, divisions, stockholders, agents, attorneys, employees, legal representatives, trustees, parents, associates, affiliates, joint ventures, subsidiaries, heirs, executors, administrators, predecessors, successors and assigns, acting in their capacity as such) (the "Releasors"), whether or not they object to the Settlement and whether or not they make a claim upon or participate in the Settlement Fund, ever had, now has, or hereafter can, shall or may have, directly, representatively, derivatively or in any other capacity, arising out of or relating in any way to any conduct alleged or asserted in any of Plaintiffs' complaints filed in this Class Action, relating to any alleged delay in the marketing, sale, manufacture, pricing, or purchase of, or the enforcement of intellectual property related to Neurontin or its generic equivalents, prior to the date hereof, except the Settlement does not release any claims between Plaintiffs, members of the Class and the Released Parties concerning product liability, breach of contract, breach of warranty or personal injury (the "Released Claims").

14. In addition, Plaintiffs and each Class member, on behalf of themselves and all other Releasors, hereby expressly waive, release and forever discharge, upon the Settlement becoming final, any and all provisions, rights and benefits conferred by § 1542 of the California Civil Code, which reads:

> Section 1542. General Release; extent. A general release does not extend to claims which the creditor does not know or suspect to exist in his or her favor at the time of executing the release, which if known by him or her must have materially affected his or her settlement with the debtor; or by any law of any state or territory of the United States or other jurisdiction, or principle of common law, which is similar, comparable or equivalent to § 1542 of the California Civil Code. Each Class member may hereafter discover facts other than or different from those which he, she or it knows or believes to be true with respect to the claims which are the subject matter of this paragraph 13, but each Class member hereby expressly waives and fully, finally and forever settles, releases and discharges, upon this Settlement becoming final, any known or unknown, suspected or unsuspected, asserted or un-asserted, contingent or non-contingent claim that would otherwise fall within the definition of Released Claims, whether or not concealed or hidden, without regard to the subsequent discovery or existence of such different or additional facts. Each Class member also hereby expressly waives and fully, finally and forever settles, releases and discharges any and all claims it may have against any Released Party under § 17200, et seq, of the California Business and Professions Code or any similar, comparable or equivalent provision of the law of any other state or territory of the United States or other jurisdiction, which claims are expressly incorporated into the definition of Released Claims.

15. The releases set forth in paragraphs 13 and 14 of this Order shall not release any claims between Plaintiffs, Class members and the Released Parties concerning product liability, breach of contract, breach of warranty, or personal injury.

16. Upon consideration of Class Counsel's petition for fees, costs and expenses, Co-Lead Counsel, on behalf of all counsel for the Class, are hereby awarded attorneys' fees in the amount of 33⅓% of the Settlement Fund and costs and expenses totaling $2,213,537.35, together with a proportionate share of the interest thereon from the date the funds are deposited in the Escrow Account until payment of such attorneys' fees, costs and expenses, at the rate earned by the Settlement Fund, to be paid solely from the Settlement Fund and only if and after the Settlement becomes final in accordance with paragraph 4 of the Settlement Agreement. Upon consideration of Class Counsel's petition for incentive payments for Plaintiffs in these actions, LWD and Meijer are each hereby awarded an incentive award in the amount of $100,000.00, to be paid solely from the Settlement Fund, and only if and after the Settlement becomes final in accordance with paragraph 4 of the Settlement Agreement. Co-Lead Counsel shall allocate and distribute such attorneys' fees, costs and expenses among the various Class Counsel that have participated in this litigation. Co-Lead Counsel shall distribute such incentive awards to the Plaintiffs as provided herein. The Released Parties (as defined in paragraph 10 of the Settlement Agreement) shall have no responsibility for, and no liability whatsoever with respect to, any payment or disbursement of attorneys' fees, expenses, costs or incentive awards among Class Counsel and/or Plaintiffs, or with respect to any allocation of attorneys' fees, expenses, costs or incentive awards to any other person or entity who may assert any claim thereto. The attorneys' fees, costs and expenses, and incentive award authorized and approved by this Final Judgment and Order shall be paid to Co-Lead Counsel within five (5) business days after this Settlement becomes final pursuant to paragraph 4 of the Settlement Agreement and in accordance with the terms of the Settlement Agreement and the Escrow Agreement. The attorneys' fees, costs and expenses, and incentive awards authorized and approved by this Final Judgment and Order shall constitute full and final satisfaction of any and all claims that Plaintiffs and any Class member, and their respective counsel, may have or assert for reimbursement of fees, costs, and expenses, and incentive awards, and Plaintiffs and members of the Class, and their respective counsel, shall not seek or demand payment of any fees and/or costs and/or expenses and/or incentive awards from any source other than the Settlement Fund. The Court retains exclusive jurisdiction over the Settlement and the Settlement Agreement as described therein, including the award of attorneys' fees to Plaintiffs' Counsel, the reimbursement of expenses, the award of incentive payments to Plaintiffs, and the administration and consummation of the Settlement, and over this Final Judgment and Order.

17. The Court finds that this Final Judgment and order adjudicates all of the claims, rights and liabilities of the parties to the Settlement Agreement (including the members of the Class), and is final and shall be immediately appealable. Neither this Order nor the Settlement Agreement nor any other Settlement-related document shall constitute any evidence or admission of liability by Defendants or any other Released Party, nor shall either the Settlement Agreement or this Order or any other Settlement-related document be offered in evidence or used for any other purpose in this or any other matter or proceeding except as may be necessary to consummate or enforce the Settlement Agreement of the terms of this Order or if offered by any Released Party in responding to any action purporting to assert Released Claims.

18. Class Counsel for the Direct Purchaser Class Plaintiffs have moved for an award of attorneys' fees, reimbursement of expenses, and incentive awards for class representatives. (Doc. No. 749). Pursuant to Rule 23(h) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, and pursuant to the factors for assessing the reasonableness of a class action fee request as set forth in Gunter v. Ridgewood Energy Corp., 223 F.3d 190, 195 n.1 (3d Cir. 2000), this Court makes the following findings of fact and conclusions of law with respect to Class Counsel's request for an award of attorneys' fees, reimbursement of expenses, and incentive awards for Class Representatives:

19. The Settlement of $190,416,438.36 million (the "Settlement Fund"), representing the agreed-upon $190 million plus 1% per annum interest that had accrued from March 14, 2014 (the date that the parties first orally agreed to the Settlement's terms) to June 2, 2014 (the date that defendants deposited such amount into an escrow account held in trust by UBS AG that is earning interest for the benefit of the Class), plus interest on the Settlement Fund from June 2, 2014, confers a monetary benefit on the Direct Purchaser Class that is substantial, both in absolute terms and when assessed in light of the risks of establishing liability and damages in this case. The Settlement was reached following negotiations held in good-faith and in the absence of collusion, with the aid of a highly-renowned mediator, over the course of three mediation sessions, covering six days.

20. The Court-approved Notice of Proposed Settlement of Class Action (Doc. No. 727) advised Class Members that Class Counsel intended to move for an award of attorneys' fees in an amount up to 33-1/3% of the gross Settlement Fund (including the interest accrued thereon), plus reimbursement of reasonable costs and expenses incurred in the prosecution of this action.

21. Class Counsel have moved for an award of attorneys' fees in the amount of 33-1/3% of the gross Settlement Fund (including the interest accrued thereon), plus reimbursement of reasonable costs and expenses incurred in the prosecution of this action, which such motion has been on the docket and publicly available since July 1, 2014.

22. In prosecuting this action, Class Counsel expended over 60,570 hours of uncompensated time, and incurred substantial out of pocket expenses, with no guarantee of recovery. Class Counsel's hours were reasonably expended in this complex case that was vigorously litigated for over twelve years, and their time was expended at significant risk of nonpayment.

23. No Class Members objected to Class Counsel's fee request. In fact, as described below, the reaction of the Class has been entirely positive and supportive of the Settlement generally and Class Counsel's requested fee award specifically.

24. The Settlement achieved for the benefit of the Direct Purchaser Class was obtained as a direct result of Class Counsel's skillful advocacy. This is confirmed by the entirely positive reaction of the Class Members to the Settlement and Class Counsel's request for a fee award of 33-1/3% of the Settlement. Outside antitrust counsel for the country's three largest pharmaceutical distributors, who made in excess of 70% of the branded and generic Neurontin purchases at issue in this case, wrote to the Court on behalf of their clients to express their clients' support for the Settlement and Class Counsel's request for an award of one-third of the Settlement amount. See Exhibits 2-4 to the Joint Declaration of Bruce E. Gerstein and Richard J. Kilsheimer in Support of Direct Purchaser Class Plaintiffs' Motions for Final Approval of Settlement and for an Award of Attorneys' Fees, Reimbursement of Expenses and Incentive Awards to Class Representatives (the "Joint Declaration" or "Joint Decl.," Doc. No. 748-5) (Doc. Nos. 748-7 – 748-9) (letters to the Court from outside counsel to AmerisourceBergen Corporation, Cardinal Health, Inc., and McKesson Corporation). In addition, a number of other Class Members wrote directly to the Court stating their belief that Class Counsel's requested fees are justified in light of the time and expense that Class Counsel expended prosecuting and favorably resolving this complex litigation. See Exhibits 5-12 to the Joint Declaration (Doc. Nos. 748-9 – 748-17) (letters from Class Members Burlington Drug Company, Inc., Dakota Drug, Inc., Drogueria Betances, Inc., King Drug Company of Florence, Inc., Miami-Luken, Inc., Prescription Supply, Inc., J M Smith Corporation d/b/a Smith Drug Co., and Value Drug Co.). All of the above-mentioned Class Members who have written to the Court to express their support for the Settlement and Class Counsel's fee request account for approximately 93% of the purchases at issue in this litigation.

25. The "percentage-of-the-fund" method is the proper method for calculating attorneys' fees in common fund class actions in this Circuit. See, e.g., In re Rite Aid Sec. Litig., 396 F.3d 294, 305 (3d Cir. 2005). The Court concludes that that the fees requested by Class Counsel are comparable to recent awards in similar cases in the Third Circuit and elsewhere, including direct purchaser class actions similarly alleging anticompetitive practices in the pharmaceutical industry.

26. The Court finds that Class Counsel's request for a 33-1/3% fee is consistent with what would have been negotiated for a contingent-fee case of this complexity. For example, the current and former presidents of class representative Louisiana Wholesale Drug Co., Inc. ("LWD") attested that "had LWD retained the law firms and/or attorneys . . . to represent it in an individual action in this complex litigation, LWD would have retained these same attorneys based on a 33 1/3% contingency fee in the event of settlement or compromise without trial and/or based on a 40% contingency fee in the event of trial, with any applicable contingency fee percentage computed in addition to out-of-pocket expenses." Exhibit 13 to the Joint Decl., Declaration of Chad Gielen, President/Chief Executive Office of LWD, at ¶ 6, and Exhibit 14 to the Joint Decl., Declaration of Gayle White, former President and General Manager of LWD, at ¶ 3. Furthermore, the letters from the Class Members supporting Class Counsel's fee award is further evidence that the 33-1/3% fee award is consistent with what those entities would have assented to had they retained Class Counsel in private litigation.

27. As detailed in Class Counsel's affidavits, a one-third fee award would equate to a lodestar multiplier of approximately 1.99. The Court concludes that, based on recently-approved multipliers in other Third Circuit antitrust class actions alleging similar anticompetitive practices in the pharmaceutical market, the multiplier requested here is well within the acceptable range. See, e.g., In re Flonase Antitrust Litigation, 951 F. Supp. 2d 739, 750 (E.D. Pa. 2013) (approving 33 1/3% fee award of $150 million settlement that amounted to multiplier of 2.99).

28. In light of the factors and findings described above, the Court finds that the requested 33-1/3% fee award is within the applicable range of reasonable percentage fund awards.

29. The Court finds this fee award is reasonable pursuant to Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 23(h). The Court orders that Class Counsel request for attorneys' fees of 33-1/3% of the Settlement Fund, which equates to $63,472,146.12, plus one-third of the interest earned on the Settlement Fund from June 2, 2014 (the date of funding of the Settlement Fund) to the date of payment, at the same net interest rate earned by the Settlement Fund, is granted.

30. Further, the Court orders that Class Counsel is awarded $2,213,537.35 out of the Settlement Fund to reimburse them for the expenses incurred in prosecution of this case, which such expenses the Court finds to be fair and reasonably incurred to achieve the benefits to the Direct Purchaser Class obtained by the Settlement.

31. Further, the Court orders payment of two incentive awards of $100,000 each for each of the Class Representatives – one incentive award of $100,000 to LWD and one incentive award to "Meijer", which consists of Meijer, Inc. and Meijer Distribution, Inc. (together, "Meijer") – for their active participation and assistance in the prosecution of this case, including responding to document requests and interrogatories, appearing for deposition and keeping apprised of the progress of the case, including settlement efforts. The Class Representatives' efforts contributed to the benefits conferred upon the Class through the Settlement. In addition, no Class Member has objected to the awarding of these incentive awards. Moreover, the three largest pharmaceutical distributors have specifically supported granting incentive awards in the requested amounts. See Exhibits 2-4 to the Joint Decl. (Doc. Nos. 748-7 – 748-9) (letters to the Court from outside counsel to AmerisourceBergen Corporation, Cardinal Health, Inc., and McKesson Corporation).

IT IS SO ORDERED.

Dated: 8-6-14

Hon. Faith S. Hochberg, U.S.D.J.

TAB 7B

Jonathan D. Clemente
CLEMENTE MUELLER, P.A.
222 Ridgedale Avenue
Cedar Knolls, NJ 07927
(973) 455-8008
Liaison Counsel for Direct Purchaser Class Plaintiffs

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
FOR THE DISTRICT OF NEW JERSEY

In re Neurontin Antitrust Litigation	Master File No. 02-1390
THIS DOCUMENT RELATES TO: LOUISIANA WHOLESALE DRUG COMPANY, INC., MEIJER, INC. and MEIJER DISTRIBUTION, INC., on behalf of themselves and all others similarly situated, Plaintiffs, v. PFIZER, INC. and WARNER-LAMBERT CO., Defendants.	Civil Action No. 02-1830 Civil Action No. 02-2731

MEMORANDUM OF LAW IN IN SUPPORT OF CLASS COUNSEL'S MOTION FOR AN AWARD OF ATTORNEYS' FEES, REIMBURSEMENT OF EXPENSES, AND INCENTIVE AWARDS FOR CLASS REPRESENTATIVES

TABLE OF CONTENTS

TABLE OF CONTENTS i
TABLE OF AUTHORITIES iii
I. INTRODUCTION. 1
II. HISTORY OF THE LITIGATION. 7
A. Nature of the Claims 7
B. Class Counsel's Litigation Efforts. 8
1. Discovery and Related Disputes. 9
2. Motion Practice. 11
3. Trial Preparation. 13
4. Mediation. 14
III. ARGUMENT. 15
A. Class Counsel's Fee Request Is Reasonable. 15
1. The Percentage-of-Recovery Method is the Appropriate Method for Calculating Attorneys' Fees in This Case 15
2. Application of the Third Circuit's Reasonableness Factors Supports the Requested Fee Here. 16
a. The Size of the Fund Created and the Number of Class Members Benefitted Favors the Requested Fee Award. 17
b. The Overwhelming Class Support and Absence of Objections to Date Favor Awarding the Fees Requested by Counsel 19
c. Class Counsel Are Skilled in Antitrust Class Actions and Efficiently Resolved this Protracted Case 20
d. The Complexity and Duration of the Litigation Favors the Requested Fee Award. 22
e. The Risk of Nonpayment Favors Approval of Class Counsel's Fee Request. 23

f. The Significant Time Devoted by Class Counsel Supports Approval of the Requested Fee Award. 26

g. Plaintiffs' Counsel's Fees are Comparable to Awards in Similar Cases.....27

h. The Benefits of the Settlement to the Class Are Attributable to the Efforts of Class Counsel. 29

i. The Percentage Fee Requested Is Consistent With The Fee That Would Have Been Negotiated If The Case Had Been Subject To A Private Contingent Fee Agreement.....30

3. A Lodestar Cross-Check Confirms the Reasonableness of Class Counsel's Requested Fee. 32

B. Class Counsel's Costs And Expenses Are Reasonable And Were Necessarily Incurred To Achieve The Benefit Obtained. 33

C. Incentive Awards For the Class Representatives Are Appropriate and Reasonable. 36

IV. CONCLUSION 37

TABLE OF AUTHORITIES

FEDERAL CASES

In re AT&T Corp.,
455 F.3d 160 (3d Cir. 2006) 15, 17, 29, 30

Am. Soc'y of Mech. Engineers v. Hydrolevel Corp.,
456 U.S. 556 (1982).....36

Blum v. Stenson,
465 U.S. 886 (1984).....15

Boeing Co. v. Van Gemert,
444 U.S. 472 (1980).....15

Bradburn Parent Teacher Store, Inc. v. 3M,
513 F. Supp. 2d 322 (E.D. Pa. 2007).....37

Brumley v. Camin Cargo Control, Inc., 2012 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 40599
(D.N.J. Mar. 26, 2012).....28

Buspirone Antitrust Litig., No. 01-C 2003 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 26538
(S.D.N.Y. April 11, 2003) 28, 33

In re Cardizem CD Antitrust Litig.,
218 F.R.D. 508 (E.D. Mich. 2003).....28, 37

In re Cendant Corp.Litig.,
232 F. Supp. 2d 327 (D.N.J. 2002).....34

Chemi v. Champion Mortg.,
No. 2:05-cv-1238 (WHW), 2009 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 44860 (D.N.J.
May 26, 2009).....21

Court Awarded Attorney Fees, Report of the Third Cir. Task Force, 108 F.R.D. 237 (3d Cir. 1985).....16

Cullen v. Whitman Med. Corp.,
197 F.R.D. 136 (E.D. Pa. 2000) 28

Daubert v. Merrell Dow Pharm. Inc.,
509 U.S. 579 (1993).....12

Drazin v. Horizon Blue Cross Blue Shield of New Jersey, Inc.,
832 F. Supp. 2d 432 (D.N.J. 2011).....32

In re Fasteners Antitrust Litig.,
No. 08-md-1912, 2014 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 9993 (E.D. Pa. Jan. 27, 2014) 24

In re Flonase Antitrust Litig.,
951 F. Supp. 2d 739 (E.D. Pa. 2013).....22

Gunter v. Ridgewood Energy Corp.,
223 F.3d 193 (3d Cir. 2000) .....passim

Hall v. AT&T Mobility LLC,
No. 07-5325(JLL), 2010 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 109355 (D.N.J. Oct. 13, 2001) 22, 30

In re Ikon Office Solutions, Inc., Sec. Litig.,
194 F.R.D. 166 (E.D. Pa. 2000) 32

In the Matter of Continental Illinois Sec. Litig.,
962 F.2d 566 (7th Cir. 1992) 30

In re Ins. Brokerage Antitrust Litig.,
282 F.R.D. 92 (D.N.J. 2012) 18

In re Lloyd's Am. Trust Fund Litig.,
96 Civ. 1262 2002 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 22663 (S.D.N.Y. Nov. 26, 2002) 16

In re Lupron Mktg. & Sales Practices Litig., MDL No. 1430, 2005 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 17456 (D. Mass. Aug. 17, 2005) 37

McCoy v. Health Net, Inc.,
569 F. Supp. 2d 448 (D.N.J. 2008).....35

In re Motorsports Merchandise Antitrust Litig.,
112 F. Supp. 2d 1329 (N.D. Ga. 2000).....22

Nichols v. Smithkline Beecham Corp.,
No. 00-6222, 2005 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 7061 (E.D. Pa. Apr. 22, 2005) 33

Oh v. AT&T Corp.,
225 F.R.D. 142 (D.N.J. 2004) 35

In re Orthopedic Bone Screw Prods. Liab. Litig.,
No. 97-381, 2000 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 15980 (E.D. Pa. Oct. 23, 2000).....31

Planned Parenthood of Central New Jersey v. Attorney General of State of New Jersey,
297 F.3d 253 (3d Cir. 2002) 34

In re Prudential Ins. Co. Sales Practice Litig. Agent Actions,
148 F.3d 283 (3d Cir. 1998) .....passim

In re Relafen Antitrust Litig.,
No. 01-12239, 2004 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 28801 (D. Mass. April 9, 2004) 18, 28

In re Remeron Direct Purchaser Antitrust Litig., No. 03-0085 2005 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 27013 (D.N.J. Nov. 9, 2005) .....passim

In re Rite Aid Corp. Sec. Litig.,
146 F. Supp. 2d 706 (E.D. Pa. 2001).....28

In re Rite Aid Sec. Litig.,
396 F.3d 294 (3d Cir. 2005) 19, 20, 23, 27, 31, 32

In re Schering-Plough Corp.,
2013 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 147981, *71 (D.N.J. Aug. 28, 2013),.....22, 24

Stop & Shop Supermarket Co. v. SmithKline Beecham Corp.,
No. 03-4578, 2005 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 9705 (E.D. Pa. May 20, 2005) 24, 33

Sullivan v. DB Investments, Inc.,
667 F.3d 273 (3d Cir. 2011) 15

Terazosin Hydrochloride Antitrust Litig., No. 99-M 2005 U.S. Dist. LEXIS
43082 (S.D. Fla. Apr. 19, 2005) 27

Varacallo v. Massachusetts Mut. Life Ins. Co.,
226 F.R.D. 207 (D.N.J. 2005) 26

West Virginia v. Chas. Pfizer & Co., 314 F. Supp. 710 (D.C.N.Y. 1970), aff'd, 440 F.2d 1079 (2d Cir.
1971) 25

DOCKETED CASES

Meijer, Inc. et al. v. Barr Pharmaceuticals, Inc.,
Civ. Action No. 05-2195 (CKK), Dkt. No. 210 (D.D.C. Apr. 20, 2009) 37

In re Nifedipene Antitrust Litig.,
MDL No. 1515, Civil Action No. 1:03-MC-223 (RJL), Dkt No. 333
(D.D.C. Jan. 31, 2011).....37

FEDERAL STATUTES

Fed. R. Civ. P. 23(c)(1)(B) 1

Sherman Act, 15 U.S.C. § 2.....8

I. INTRODUCTION.

Class Counsel,[1] on behalf of Louisiana Wholesale Drug Company, Inc. ("LWD"), Meijer, Inc., and Meijer Distribution, Inc. (together, "Meijer")[2] and the Class[3] (LWD, Meijer and the Class collectively, "Plaintiffs"), respectfully submit this Memorandum of Law in Support of their Motion for an Award of Attorneys' Fees, Reimbursement of Expenses and Incentive Awards for the Class Representatives, under Federal Rules of Civil Procedure 23(h)(1) and 54(d)(2).

---

[1] This Court designated the following law firms to serve as "Class Counsel" pursuant to Fed. R. Civ. P. 23(c)(1)(B) and 23(g): Garwin Gerstein & Fisher, LLP and Kaplan Fox & Kilsheimer LLP as Co-Lead Counsel; Clemente Mueller, P.A. as Liaison Counsel; and Odom & Des Roches, LLP, Smith Segura & Raphael, LLP (formerly The Smith Foote Law Firm), Sperling & Slater, P.C., and Berger & Montague, P.C., to serve as an Executive Committee in combination with Co-Lead counsel. Doc. No. 412 at ¶ 7. Heim, Payne & Chorush LLP served as patent counsel.

[2] This Court appointed LWD and Meijer as representatives of the Class (the "Class Representatives"). Id. at ¶ 6.

[3] On January 25, 2011, this Court certified a class (the "Class") consisting of:

> All persons or entities in the United States that purchased Neurontin from Pfizer at any time during the period of December 11, 2002 through August 31, 2008 and who have purchased generic gabapentin. Excluded from the Class are Defendants and each of their respective parents, employees, subsidiaries, affiliates, and franchisees, and all government entities.

Id. at ¶ 4. Also excluded from the Class are CVS Pharmacy Inc., Caremark, L.L.C., Rite Aid Corporation, Rite Aid HDQTRS Corp., Walgreen Co., American Sales Co, Inc., HEB Grocery Co. LP, Safeway Inc., SuperValu Inc., and The Kroger Co., in their own right as direct purchasers of Neurontin from Pfizer and as assignees limited to their purchases of Neurontin from Class members.

For a dozen years, Class Counsel have prosecuted this complex, hotly-contested antitrust class action (the "Action")[4] against Defendants Pfizer Inc. and Warner-Lambert Co. (together, "Defendants" or "Pfizer") on a wholly contingent basis, without any guarantee of success. In all, Class Counsel expended over 60,000 hours of uncompensated professional time and incurred over $2,213,537.35 in unreimbursed out-of-pocket expenses prosecuting this Action. Through its efforts, Class Counsel obtained a settlement (the "Settlement") in the amount of $190 million plus interest for the benefit of the Class (the "Settlement Fund").[5] This remarkable recovery was achieved as a result of Class Counsel's skill, competence, perseverance and diligence in the face of significant legal and factual hurdles during the course of litigation against vigorous and skillful opponents. As compensation for its efforts, Class Counsel seeks an award of attorneys' fees in the aggregate amount of 33⅓% of the total Settlement Fund, and reimbursement of litigation expenses in the amount of $ 2,213,537.35 and interest thereon. Class

---

[4] This Action consolidated the cases Louisiana Wholesale Drug Company, Inc., et al. v. Pfizer, Inc. and Warner-Lambert, No. 2:02-cv-01830-FSH (D.N.J.) and Meijer, Inc., et al. v. Pfizer, Inc. and Warner-Lambert, No. 2:02-cv-02731 (D.N.J.).

[5] Pursuant to the terms of the Settlement, on June 2, 2014, Defendants deposited $190,416,438.36, representing the agreed-upon $190 million plus 1% per annum interest that had accrued since March 14, 2014 (the date that the parties first orally agreed to the terms of the Settlement), into an escrow account held in trust by UBS AG that is earning interest for the benefit of the Class. See Joint Decl. at ¶ 91.

Counsel also seeks incentive awards in the amount of $100,000 for each of the Class Representatives, LWD and Meijer, to compensate them for their extensive participation in this Action.

A detailed description of this Action, Class Counsel's work in achieving the Settlement, and the numerous and substantial risks that Class Counsel faced (and would have faced in the future absent the Settlement) are set forth in the accompanying Joint Declaration of Co-Lead Counsel Bruce E. Gerstein and Richard J. Kilsheimer (the "Joint Declaration" or "Joint Decl.").[6] That said, certain of this case's important and unique characteristics bear mention at the outset.

First and foremost, as a result of its experience with this Action, as well as its prior experience with In re Remeron,[7] this Court is already aware that the Action is unique. In a typical class action, a class's evaluation of counsel's efforts is limited to counsel's performance in that particular case. Here, the Class consists [6] Class Counsel submits, as Exhibits 19 through 31 of the Joint Decl., affidavits of the 10 individual firms (in addition to Co-Lead Counsel) that worked on this Action. These affidavits detail the professional experience and qualifications of each of these firms, the services each firm rendered, the hours each firm expended, and the expenses incurred by each firm.

---

[7] In re Remeron was another Hatch-Waxman direct purchaser antitrust class action litigated in this Court by many of the same firms that comprise Class Counsel here.

of approximately 45 national and regional pharmaceutical resellers. The core of the Class – a group of sophisticated business entities that made approximately 93% of all Class purchases in this case – have been class members in a series of Hatch-Waxman antitrust cases (most of which were prosecuted by the same Class Counsel as here) that challenged conduct that allegedly impeded generic competition. These core Class members have closely monitored the work of Class Counsel in this case, as they have in other cases.

The Class Representatives, the "Big 3" national wholesalers (consisting of Cardinal Health, Inc., McKesson, Inc. and AmerisourceBergen Co.) and 11 regional wholesalers, all of whom collectively made approximately 93% of all Class purchases in this case, have expressed their support for Class Counsel's requests for attorneys' fees of one-third of the Settlement Fund and expense reimbursement. See Exhibits 2 through 16 to the Joint Decl. These Class members recognize the legal hurdles and risks involved in this twelve-year-old case, the extraordinary results obtained, and Class Counsel's superior efforts in obtaining those results. As this Court has recognized, the percentage fee requested by Class Counsel "should approximate the fee that would be negotiated if the lawyer were offering his or her services in the private marketplace." In re Remeron Direct Purchaser Antitrust Litig., No. 03-0085 (FSH), 2005 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 27013, at, at *46 (D.N.J. Nov. 9, 2005) (Hochberg, J.). Given the affirmative support by these Class members for Class Counsel's fee request, the Court need not speculate on this issue.

Second, this Action has been vigorously fought, both by Class Counsel and Defendants' highly-respected counsel. Besides the typical motion to dismiss and summary judgment battles, this case also included (1) protracted disputes regarding Defendants' privilege logs (which, ultimately, required the involvement of a Special Master), see Joint Decl. at ¶¶ 38-40; (2) litigation of Plaintiffs' two motions designed to obtain discovery on the basis of the crime-fraud exception (which also required the involvement of a Special Master), see Joint Decl. at ¶¶ 41-46; and (3) Defendants' failure to provide, on multiple occasions, an appropriate Rule 30(b)(6) witness on issues relating to the illegal marketing of Neurontin for off-label uses and the factual bases for Defendants' denials concerning their promotion of Neurontin for off-label uses in their Answer in this case, which led to Plaintiffs' partially-successful motion for sanctions, adjudicated by a Magistrate Judge and the Court (on appeal), see Joint Decl. at ¶¶ 47-57. Not surprisingly, the prosecution of this Action required Class Counsel to expend tens of thousands of hours doing sophisticated legal work, and to incur millions of dollars in as-yet unreimbursed out-of-pocket expenses.

Third, this Action was atypically and exceptionally complicated. It raised a multitude of difficult and complicated factual and legal matters regarding highly-technical subjects. Plaintiffs alleged that Defendants, among other things, improperly maintained their exclusivity for Neurontin by delaying generic competition through an overarching, multi-faceted scheme over a ten-year period that included a host of interrelated acts. Plaintiffs' case required an understanding of all of the complicated details involved in a multi-year overall scheme. In turn, Defendants presented sophisticated defenses to each aspect of Plaintiffs' case, including that Plaintiffs would be unable to establish causation; namely, whether the cause of the delay in generic entry was due to Pfizer's alleged scheme (which Defendants denied), or rather was the result of actions unrelated to Defendants' conduct. Embracing this case's complexity, Class Counsel retained and worked closely with expert witnesses in such varied fields as antitrust economics, patent prosecution and chemistry, and dove into extensive discovery of facts surrounding all elements and defenses.

In light of the above (and as explained in further detail below), the reasonableness of Class Counsel's "percentage-of-recovery" fee request is strongly supported by analyses of the "Gunter factors" derived from Gunter v. Ridgewood Energy Corp., 223 F.3d 193 (3d Cir. 2000) and the relevant factors outlined in In re Prudential Ins. Co. Sales Practice Litig. Agent Actions, 148 F.3d 283, 338-40 (3d Cir. 1998) (the "Prudential factors"). Additionally, a "lodestar cross-check" confirms the reasonableness of Class Counsel's requested fee. See Gunter, 223

F.3d at 195 n.1. Because Class Counsel's unreimbursed expenses were incidental and necessary to representation of the Class, and were reasonably expended to prosecute this Action, this Court should also approve Class Counsel's request for reimbursement of such expenses. See Remeron, 2005 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 27013, at *48-49.

Additionally, Class Counsel seeks incentive awards of $100,000 for each of the Class Representatives, LWD and Meijer.[8] Given that each Class Representative participated actively throughout the twelve years of this litigation, including, among other things, responding to multiple discovery requests, appearing at depositions, and regularly communicating with Class Counsel concerning the progress of the litigation and settlement negotiations, this Court should approve such awards.

II. HISTORY OF THE LITIGATION.

A. Nature of the Claims.

Plaintiffs are direct purchasers of Defendants' brand-name drug, Neurontin, which was initially approved by the FDA for the treatment of epilepsy. Plaintiffs filed this Action in 2002 and alleged that Defendants maintained and enhanced their monopoly power with respect to Neurontin (also known by its generic name, gabapentin) in violation of the Sherman Act, 15 U.S.C. § 2. Among other things, Defendants allegedly delayed generic competition for Neurontin through an overarching, multi-faceted scheme that included illegal off-label promotion, manipulation of the patent application process, violation of Hatch-Waxman Act procedures, repeated filing and maintenance of sham patent suits, and perpetration of fraud on the courts hearing those cases. Defendants' alleged conduct delayed the market entry of less expensive generic versions of Neurontin, thereby forcing members of the Class to pay artificially inflated prices for Neurontin and/or its AB-rated generic equivalents. See Joint Decl. at ¶ 3, 67(b).

[8] Plaintiffs Meijer, Inc. and Meijer Distribution, Inc. (together referred to as "Meijer") would, pursuant to Class Counsel's request for incentive rewards, together receive one incentive award of $100,000, if allowed by the Court.

Defendants denied Plaintiffs' allegations and asserted a number of defenses. See Joint Decl. at ¶¶ 16, 65-66. Having ruled on extensive cross-motions for summary judgment, this Court is quite familiar with the parties' factual and legal positions.

B. Class Counsel's Litigation Efforts.

The team assembled by Class Counsel (drawn primarily from the firms listed in footnote 1 above) includes lawyers from some of the preeminent antitrust law firms in the country.[9] These firms have over fifteen years of extensive experience

---

[9] In addition to the firms listed in footnote 1 above, other firms that participated in the prosecution of this case on behalf of the Class have submitted affidavits in support of Class Counsel's motion, which are appended as Exhibits 27 through 31 to the Joint Declaration.

prosecuting and trying Hatch-Waxman antitrust cases on behalf of the same core class of direct purchasers, and have been involved in many of the critical decisions made by various courts in this emerging area of antitrust law. See Joint Decl. at ¶ 113. Class Counsel took advantage of each firm's particular area of expertise to litigate this case in the most effective and efficient manner possible. See Joint Decl. at p. 3.

1. Discovery and Related Disputes.

Prior to filing the first class action on March 26, 2002, Class Counsel undertook an exhaustive investigation of the facts and law giving rise to the claims alleged. This investigation included monitoring various patent infringement litigations filed by Defendants against manufacturers of generic Neurontin and investigating Defendants' efforts to block or delay the entry of generic Neurontin. See Joint Decl. at ¶¶ 1-3. In the subsequent process of preparing an amended complaint, Class Counsel reviewed, analyzed, and marshalled facts from, millions of pages of documents produced in the patent infringement litigations, as well as hearing transcripts, plea agreements and information released to the public as part of criminal proceedings related to Defendants' illegal off-label promotion. See Joint Decl. at ¶¶ 12-15.

After defeating Defendants' motion to dismiss, Class Counsel conducted substantial fact and expert discovery. See Joint Decl. at ¶¶ 16-27, 31-37. During this lengthy and hotly-contested litigation, Class Counsel, among other things, (1) drafted and served comprehensive document requests, interrogatories and requests for admission, as well as subpoenas directed to multiple third parties; (2) obtained and analyzed millions of pages of documents received from Defendants and third parties; (3) objected to Defendants' discovery requests and worked with the Class Representatives to respond and to prepare and defend Rule 30(b)(6) witnesses at deposition; (4) took a leading role in identifying fact witnesses from Defendants and non-parties, and then took a leading or substantial role in more than 40 fact depositions, including negotiating, arranging for, and taking a third-party deposition outside of the United States; (5) retained and worked closely with expert witnesses in such varied fields as antitrust economics, patent prosecution and chemistry, who provided analysis and testimony in support of Plaintiffs' claims and to rebut Defendants' defenses, including the preparation for, and defense of, such experts' depositions; (6) responded to, and took depositions of, experts retained by Defendants on a wide variety of issues; and (7) litigated and argued multiple important discovery disputes before the Court, including (a) protracted disputes regarding Defendants' privilege logs, (b) two motions to obtain discovery on the basis of the crime-fraud exception, (c) a motion for sanctions, which was renewed multiple times, related to Defendants' failure to produce an adequate Rule 30(b)(6) witness on issues related to Pfizer's illegal marketing of Neurontin for off-label uses, and (d) motion practice relating to the admissibility of, and production of discovery regarding settlements of the patent infringement actions. See Joint Decl. at ¶¶ 22-23, 31-57, 76.

2. Motion Practice.

On April 1, 2008, Defendants' moved to dismiss Plaintiffs' amended complaint on a variety of grounds. Class Counsel researched and developed responsive arguments and drafted a brief in opposition. On August 28, 2009, the Court denied Defendants' motion to dismiss, holding that Plaintiffs had sufficiently alleged an overall anticompetitive scheme, rejecting Defendants' attempts to bind the Court with opinions and statements from the related patent infringement litigation, and noting that Plaintiffs' amended complaint raised myriad factual issues that could not be resolved at that stage of the case. See Joint Decl. at ¶¶ 16-18.

Class Counsel also played the lead role in obtaining class certification. Working closely with Plaintiffs' expert, Dr. Gary French, Class Counsel conducted extensive document analyses to support Plaintiffs' claims of class-wide impact and to rebut Defendants' defenses to class certification, and submitted the requisite motion and briefing, including a trial plan. See Joint Decl. at ¶¶ 58-61. On January 25, 2011, the Court granted Plaintiffs' motion for class certification and certified the Class. See Doc. No. 412.

At the summary judgment stage, Plaintiffs moved for partial summary judgment on two related issues: (a) Pfizer's monopoly power in the market for gabapentin prior to generic entry and (b) Pfizer's improper maintenance of that monopoly power. Plaintiffs also moved for an order that Defendants be collaterally estopped from relitigating certain findings from the government's criminal action related to Defendants' off-label marketing and related litigations. Defendants, too, moved for summary judgment with respect to all of Plaintiffs' claims, asserting a variety of arguments. Class Counsel's extensive efforts, including researching and briefing the motions and opposition, as well as working with Defendants' counsel to draft, revise and submit a joint statement of undisputed material facts, were, on the whole, successful. On August 8, 2013, the Court denied Defendants' motion for summary judgment (which put the case on a course for trial) and, though it also denied Plaintiffs' motion for partial summary judgment, granted Plaintiffs' request for collateral estoppel with respect to several key findings. See Joint Decl. at ¶¶ 64-71.

Plaintiffs also moved, pursuant to Daubert v. Merrell Dow Pharm. Inc., 509 U.S. 579 (1993), to exclude the opinions of several of Defendants' experts. Preparation of these motions involved considerable effort on Class Counsel's part, including thorough review of those experts' opinions, prior testimony and publications. Plaintiffs also filed oppositions to Defendants' Daubert motions that sought to exclude certain opinions offered by Plaintiffs' experts. These Daubert motions were still pending as of the time the parties reached agreement to settle in March 2014. See Joint Decl. at ¶¶ 77-78.

3. Trial Preparation.

Following the Court's August 8, 2013 summary judgment decision, Class Counsel began to prepare for trial. In the roughly seven months between the Court's summary judgment decision and Class Plaintiffs' signing of an agreement settling the class action, Class Counsel engaged in final preparations for trial, including drafting motions in limine; identifying trial exhibits; devising a chronological ordering of fact and expert witnesses; designating deposition testimony for likely non-live witnesses; preparing cross-examinations for likely live witnesses; working on opening statements; creating demonstratives; and attending to all the other details of preparing for trial. As part of its trial preparation, Class Counsel retained a nationally-known jury consultant and, over two days in December 2013, presented to focus groups made up of members of the prospective jury pool from northern New Jersey. Class Counsel devoted significant time preparing for these focus groups, which were convened to test different case theories and means of presentation. Class Counsel carefully reviewed the report produced by the jury consultant, and took its recommendations into account as trial preparations proceeded. See Joint Decl. at ¶ 79.

4. Mediation.

Class Counsel prepared for, and participated in, mediation sessions (in December 2010, February 2013 and February/March 2014) conducted by Eric Green, a well-respected mediator with extensive experience mediating settlements in pharmaceutical cases. For certain of these mediation sessions, Class Counsel prepared detailed mediation statements for Professor Green and delivered live presentations for both Professor Green and the Defendants that outlined key theories and supporting evidence.

Besides serving as a mediator, Professor Green is a well-respected authority on evidence, having written many books and articles on the subject. He also teaches several courses at Boston University School of Law. Throughout the mediation sessions, Professor Green probed both parties regarding the legal and evidentiary weaknesses in their cases. Familiar with Professor Green and his methods, Class Counsel knew that it was necessary to be well-prepared to respond with vigorous and well-supported advocacy, as well as with intimate knowledge of all aspects of the case.

Representatives from LWD and Meijer traveled to New York to attend and participate in the mediation session held in December 2010, and Class Counsel was in close communication with key decision-makers at LWD and Meijer during all mediation sessions and settlement discussions.

III. ARGUMENT.

A. Class Counsel's Fee Request Is Reasonable.

1. The Percentage-of-Recovery Method is the Appropriate Method for Calculating Attorneys' Fees in This Case

The Supreme Court has long recognized that a lawyer who recovers a "common fund" on behalf of a class is entitled to reasonable attorneys' fees and expenses from the fund. See Boeing Co. v. Van Gemert, 444 U.S. 472, 478 (1980). In common fund cases, it is appropriate for attorneys' fees to be determined "based on a percentage of the fund bestowed upon the class." Blum v. Stenson, 465 U.S. 886, 930 n.16 (1984).

The Third Circuit has stated a preference for the use of the "percentage-of-recovery" method in determining fees. See, e.g., In re AT&T Corp., 455 F.3d 160, 164 (3d Cir. 2006) (noting that "the percentage-of-recovery method is generally favored [in common fund cases] because it allows courts to award fees from the fund in a manner that rewards counsel for success and penalizes it for failure") (citations and internal quotations omitted); Sullivan v. DB Investments, Inc., 667 F.3d 273, 330 (3d Cir. 2011) (en banc) (citations omitted). Among other reasons, courts generally favor this method because:

> The percentage method directly aligns the interests of the class and its counsel and provides a powerful incentive for the efficient > prosecution and early resolution of litigation, which clearly benefits both litigants and the judicial system. The percentage approach is also the most efficient means of rewarding the work of class action attorneys, and avoids the wasteful and burdensome process – to both counsel and the courts – of preparing and evaluating fee petitions, which the Third Circuit Task Force described as "cumbersome, enervating, and often surrealistic."

In re Lloyd's Am. Trust Fund Litig., 96 Civ. 1262 (RWS), 2002 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 22663, at *74 (S.D.N.Y. Nov. 26, 2002) (quoting Court Awarded Attorney Fees, Report of the Third Cir. Task Force, 108 F.R.D. 237, 258 (3d Cir. 1985).)

2. Application of the Third Circuit's Reasonableness Factors Supports the Requested Fee Here.

Class Counsel's fee request is consistent with applicable law. The Third Circuit has identified ten factors for district courts to consider when applying the percentage-of-recovery method and considering the reasonableness of a request for attorney's fees. The first seven factors – the Gunter factors – derive from Gunter v. Ridgewood Energy Corp., 223 F.3d 193, 195 n.1 (3d Cir. 2000):

> (1) the size of the fund created and the number of persons benefitted; (2) the presence or absence of substantial objections by members of the class to the settlement terms and/or fees requested by counsel; (3) the skill and efficiency of the attorneys involved; (4) the complexity and duration of the litigation; (5) the risk of nonpayment; (6) the amount of time devoted to the case by plaintiffs' counsel; and (7) the awards in similar cases.

These Gunter factors "need not be applied in a formulaic way. Each case is different, and in certain cases, one factor may outweigh the rest." Gunter, 223 F.3d at 195 n.1.

The remaining three potentially relevant factors considered by courts weighing the reasonableness of fee requests – the Prudential factors – derive from In re Prudential Ins. Co. Sales Practice Litig. Agent Actions, 148 F.3d 283, 338-40 (3d Cir. 1998): (1) the value of benefits accruing to class members that are attributable to the efforts of class counsel as opposed to other groups, such as government agencies conducting investigations; (2) the percentage fee that would have been negotiated had the case been subject to a private contingent fee arrangement; and (3) any "innovative" terms of settlement. Because each case is different, these factors "need not be applied in a formulaic way" or be given the same weight. AT&T, 455 F.3d at 166 (quotation omitted)

Analyses of these factors strongly supports approval of Class Counsel's requested fee.

a. The Size of the Fund Created and the Number of Class Members Benefitted Favors the Requested Fee Award.

The Settlement provides a significant recovery for the Class, which is comprised of approximately 45 members that will share in the $190 million plus interest, net of any attorneys' fees, expenses, and incentive awards granted by the Court. Upon the Settlement becoming final, the only thing Class members will need to do in order to receive their pro rata share of the net Settlement Fund is to submit a claim form that will be made available to them via multiple sources, including direct mailing. Accordingly, the recovery is both substantial and immediate. See In re Relafen Antitrust Litig., No. 01-12239-WGY, 2004 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 28801, at *19 (D. Mass. Apr. 9, 2004) (multi-million dollar cash settlement fund for direct purchasers of prescription drug conferred a substantial benefit on the class).

Additionally, the magnitude of this recovery is substantial – both in absolute terms and, particularly, when assessed in light of the significant obstacles and risks faced by Class Counsel in this case. See In re Ins. Brokerage Antitrust Litig., 282 F.R.D. 92, 105 (D.N.J. 2012) ($41 million settlement represented a reasonable and adequate settlement for the class in view of the "substantial risks" plaintiffs faced and the "immediate benefits" provided by the settlement). Indeed, absent the Settlement, Class Counsel would have to win a favorable jury verdict in the face of the numerous defenses raised by Defendants and their able counsel. See Joint Decl. at ¶¶ 84-87. As in any case, receipt of a favorable jury verdict would be uncertain. And, even if Class Counsel succeeded in obtaining a favorable jury verdict, given the size and complexity of the case, Defendants would likely appeal any such verdict – perhaps even multiple times (e.g., motions for reconsideration, rehearing en banc and potentially certiorari). Upholding a verdict through such appeals would be an obstacle to Class Counsel's ability to obtain any recovery for the Class.

Accordingly, analysis of this Gunter factor supports Class Counsel's fee request.

b. The Overwhelming Class Support and Absence of Objections To Date Favor Awarding the Fees Requested by Counsel

The overwhelmingly favorable response of the Class strongly militates in favor of approval of Class Counsel's fee request. The Third Circuit has recognized that the lack of objection to a fee request and positive view of Class Counsel's efforts, particularly from sophisticated class members, is highly relevant to an evaluation of the fairness of a fee request. See, e.g., In re Rite Aid Sec. Litig., 396 F.3d 294, 305 (3d Cir. 2005) (fact that a number of class members were "'sophisticated' institutional investors that had considerable financial incentive to object had they believed the fees were excessive" was a factor supporting the requested fee) (citation omitted).

As described above, in the wake of the dissemination of detailed notice describing the Settlement, Class members have overwhelmingly affirmatively supported the Settlement and Class Counsel's requests for fees, expense reimbursement and incentive awards. Indeed, core Class members who made approximately 93% of the purchases at issue in this case (entitling them to a like percentage of the Settlement Fund, net of fees, costs, and incentive awards) have written to this Court to support the Settlement and Class Counsel's one-third fee request. See Exhibits 19 through 31 to Joint Decl.

Furthermore, though the period for lodging objections does not expire until July 17, 2014, not a single Class member has objected to date.[10] This is particularly significant because the Class consists of sophisticated businesses that possess both the incentive and the knowledge to object if they believed that Class Counsel's requests are inappropriate. The lack of any objection, particularly in a class that consists of sophisticated entities, is a "rare phenomenon," see Rite Aid, 396 F.3d at 305 (citation and internal quotation omitted), and strongly supports the requested fee.

Thus, analysis of this Gunter factor favors the reasonableness of the fee request.

c. Class Counsel Are Skilled in Antitrust Class Actions and Efficiently Resolved this Protracted Case.

Class Counsel's skill and efficiency supports the fee request here. Many of the firms that comprise Class Counsel are among the preeminent antitrust firms in the United States, with decades of experience prosecuting and trying complex antitrust actions. See Joint Decl. at ¶ 112. These firms have a particular expertise in litigating Hatch-Waxman pharmaceutical antitrust cases on behalf of direct purchasers, having litigated such cases for over fifteen years on behalf of the core class of such direct purchasers. This experience enables each law firm involved to specialize in particular areas of expertise, thus providing Class Counsel with the ability to quickly and efficiently coordinate, organize, and implement litigation strategies. See Joint Decl. at p. 3; ¶ 112.

[10] In the event that any objection is received, Class Counsel will promptly inform the Court.

"The skill and efficiency of the attorneys involved is measured by the quality of the result achieved, the difficulties faced, the speed and efficiency of the recovery, the standing, experience and expertise of counsel, the skill and professionalism with which counsel prosecuted the case and the performance and quality of opposing counsel." Chemi v. Champion Mortg., No. 2:05-cv-1238 (WHW), 2009 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 44860, at *31 (D.N.J. May 26, 2009) (citation and internal quotations omitted). Class Counsel's experience and skill is evidenced by their effective prosecution of this case, including the highly favorable Settlement achieved.[11]

---

[11] In Remeron, a Hatch-Waxman case involving many of the same lawyers comprising Class Counsel here, this Court noted that "[t]he settlement entered with Defendants is a reflection of Class Counsel's skill and experience." Remeron, 2005 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 27013, at *37.

Additionally, the Court should consider the quality of defense counsel when evaluating Class Counsel's work. See, e.g., In re Schering-Plough Corp., 2013 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 147981, *71 (D.N.J. Aug. 28, 2013); Hall v. AT&T Mobility LLC, 2010 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 109355, at *64 (D.N.J. Oct. 13, 2001). Over the course of this case, Pfizer has been represented by some of the country's leading law firms: Kaye Scholer LLP; Skadden, Arps, Slate, Meagher & Flom, LLP; Paul, Weiss, Rifkind, Wharton & Garrison LLP; and Drinker Biddle & Reath, LLP. Achieving such a successful result for the Class when faced by such capable defense counsel further demonstrates Class Counsel's skill.

Accordingly, analysis of this Gunter factor weighs in favor of Class Counsel's fee request.

d. The Complexity and Duration of the Litigation Favors the Requested Fee Award.

In evaluating a fee award, the complexity and duration of the litigation is a factor to be considered by the court. See Gunter, 223 F.3d at 195 n.1. "An antitrust class action is arguably the most complex action to prosecute." In re Motorsports Merchandise Antitrust Litig., 112 F. Supp. 2d 1329, 1337 (N.D. Ga. 2000). See also In re Flonase Antitrust Litig., 951 F. Supp. 2d 739, 743 (E.D. Pa. 2013) ("Antitrust class actions are particularly complex to litigate and therefore quite expensive"). And this twelve-year old case is no exception.

This case raised many complex legal and factual issues regarding highly-technical subjects. Among other things, Plaintiffs' case required an understanding of the complicated details involved in a multi-year overall scheme that consisted of myriad components that, at first blush, might appear disparate and unrelated. Additionally, as evidenced by Defendants' motion for summary judgment, Defendants presented sophisticated defenses to each aspect of Plaintiffs' case that the Class had to overcome in order to succeed. Indeed, Defendants asserted that Plaintiffs could not prove the existence of monopoly power, exclusionary conduct, or causation. Accordingly, the complexity and duration of this twelve-year litigation supports the requested fee. See In re Rite Aid Corp. Sec. Litig., 396 F.3d at 305.

Analysis of this Gunter factor therefore favors approval of Class Counsel's fee request.

e. The Risk of Nonpayment Favors Approval of Class Counsel's Fee Request.

Class Counsel achieved the $190 million plus interest Settlement despite facing the significant risk that they would receive no compensation whatsoever for the hard work and long hours, as well as the millions of dollars in cash outlays, expended litigating this Action. Class Counsel represented the Class Representatives and the Class entirely on a contingency fee basis, with no up-front retainer fees or allowance for expenses. And, despite devoting over 60,570 hours prosecuting this case, Class Counsel received no compensation during the course of this litigation. See, e.g., In re Fasteners Antitrust Litig., No. 08-md-1912, 2014 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 9993, at *15 (E.D. Pa. Jan. 27, 2014) (noting that "Plaintiffs' Counsel undertook this case on a purely contingent fee basis, and that this poses a significant risk of not being paid or reimbursed for the costs of litigating the case").

A determination of a fair fee must include consideration of the characteristics of contingent antitrust actions, including the uncertain nature of the fee, the wholly contingent outlay of large out-of-pocket sums by class counsel, and the fact that the risk of failure (and thus nonpayment) in an antitrust case may be extremely high. See, e.g., Stop & Shop Supermarket Co. v. SmithKline Beecham Corp., No. 03-4578, 2005 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 9705, at *37-40 (E.D. Pa. May 20, 2005) (risk of overcoming Noerr-Pennington defense, among others defenses, "favors approval of the percentage of recovery requested as a fee in this case"). In Gunter, the Third Circuit noted the "stated goal in percentage fee-award cases of ensuring that competent counsel continue to be willing to undertake risky, complex and novel litigation." Gunter, 223 F.3d at 198 (citations and internal quotation omitted). Indeed, attorneys' risk is a critical factor in determining an appropriate fee award. See, e.g., Schering-Plough, 2013 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 147981, at *79-80 ("Plaintiffs' Counsel undertook this Action on a purely contingent fee basis, assuming an enormous risk that the litigation would yield potentially little, or no, recovery and leave them uncompensated for their significant investment of time and very substantial expenses. This Court and others have consistently recognized that this risk is an important factor favoring an award of attorneys' fees.") (citation omitted).

The risks of non-recovery were abundant from the outset of this Action, as Class Counsel expended tens of thousands of hours and millions of dollars in out-of-pocket expenses investigating the Class's claims, taking extensive discovery, retaining and working with experts, briefing numerous motions, and preparing for trial. See Joint Decl. at ¶ 113. Moreover, Defendants' counsel vigorously asserted defenses to each element of the Class's claims. Success in complex litigation is highly unpredictable. As one court observed in another antitrust class action: "It is known from past experience that no matter how confident one may be of the outcome of the litigation, such confidence is often misplaced." West Virginia v. Chas. Pfizer & Co., 314 F. Supp. 710, 743-44 (D.C.N.Y. 1970), aff'd, 440 F.2d 1079 (2d Cir. 1971).

These risk considerations have particular application to complex Hatch-Waxman antitrust cases, where several cases litigated by the same Class Counsel as here have been unsuccessful and have yielded no recovery, even after expending thousands of hours in time and millions of dollars in expenditures.

Accordingly, the substantial risks of non-payment assumed by Class Counsel in order to achieve the Settlement for the benefit of the Class support the fee requested.

f. The Significant Time Devoted by Class Counsel Supports Approval of the Requested Fee Award.

Plaintiffs' Counsel expended 60,572.12 hours litigating this twelve-year case, and have advanced out-of-pocket outlays of $2,213,537.35 in that effort to date. See Joint Decl. at ¶ 113. As a court in this district has observed, "[o]ver the course of years, it is reasonable that so much time would have been spent on these complex cases, particularly given the excellent counsel of Defendants and their contested nature." Varacallo v. Massachusetts Mut. Life Ins. Co., 226 F.R.D. 207, 253 (D.N.J. 2005). Such was the case here. From the pre-complaint investigation through comprehensive trial preparation, Class Counsel expended an enormous amount of time, energy and resources on this case. See Joint Decl. at ¶¶ 1-79.

Moreover, Class Counsel will likely continue to work a significant number of hours in connection with administering the Settlement and carrying out the Plan of Allocation. See Varacallo, 226 F.R.D. at 253 (fee award will be sole compensation for counsel "despite the continuing responsibilities [counsel] will have in responding to Class Member inquiries…").

Analysis of this Gunter factor therefore supports the reasonableness of the fee request.

g. Plaintiffs' Counsel's Fees are Comparable to Awards in Similar Cases.

A comparison of Class Counsel's fee request with attorneys' fees awarded in similar cases, see Gunter, 223 F.3d at 198-99; Rite Aid, 396 F.3d at 303, supports the instant fee request. Indeed, Class Counsel's requested fee is consistent with awards granted in the most analogous cases previously settled – other complex Hatch-Waxman antitrust class action cases brought by classes of direct purchasers (that overlap substantially with the Class here) alleging impeded generic entry – as the following chart indicates:

Case	Fee Award
Meijer, Inc. v. Abbott Labs., No. C07-5985 CW (N.D. Cal. Aug. 11, 2011)	33⅓% of $52 million settlement
In re Nifedipine Antitrust Litig., No. 03-mc-223-RJL (D.D.C. Jan. 31, 2011)	33⅓% of $35 million settlement
In re Oxycontin Antitrust Litig., 04-md-1603-SHS (S.D.N.Y. Jan. 25, 2011)	33⅓% of $16 million settlement
In re Tricor Direct Purchaser Antitrust Litig., No. 05-cv-340 (D. Del. April 23, 2009)	33⅓% of $250 million settlement
In re Remeron Direct Purchaser Antitrust Litig., 2005 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 27013 (D.N.J. Nov. 9, 2005)	33⅓% of $75 million settlement
In re Terazosin Hydrochloride Antitrust Litig., No. 99-MDL-1317, 2005 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 43082 (S.D. Fla. Apr. 19, 2005)	33⅓% of $74 million settlement
In re Relafen Antitrust Litig., No. 01-12239, 2004 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 28801	33⅓% of $175 million settlement

(D. Mass. April 9, 2004)
In re Buspirone Antitrust Litig., No. 01-CV-7951, 2003 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 26538 (S.D.N.Y. April 11, 2003)	33⅓% of $220 million settlement
In re Cardizem CD Antitrust Litig.,MDL No. 1278 (E.D. Mich. Nov. 26, 2002)	30% of $110 million settlement

The percentage requested in this case –33[1]/3% of the total $190 million (plus interest) Settlement – is consistent with these fee awards.

Additionally, district courts in the Third Circuit have consistently awarded fees similar to Class Counsel's request. See, e.g., Cullen v. Whitman Med. Corp., 197 F.R.D. 136, 150 (E.D. Pa. 2000) ("the award of one-third of the fund for attorneys' fees is consistent with fee awards in a number of recent decisions within this district"). Indeed, a one-third fee from a common fund has been found to be typical by several courts that have undertaken surveys of awards within the Third Circuit, as well as other circuits. See, e.g., In re Rite Aid Corp. Sec. Litig., 146 F. Supp. 2d 706, 735 (E.D. Pa. 2001) (review of 289 settlements demonstrates "average attorney's fees percentage [of] 31.71%" with a median value that "turns out to be one-third"); Remeron, 2005 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 27013, at *42-43 (collecting cases); Brumley v. Camin Cargo Control, Inc., Nos. 08-1798 (JLL), 10-2461 (JLL), 09-6128 (JLL), 2012 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 40599, *36 (D.N.J. Mar. 26, 2012) ("Counsel's request for one-third of the settlement fund falls within the range of reasonable allocations in the context of awards granted in other, similar cases").

Accordingly, analysis of this Gunter factor weighs in favor of approval of Class Counsel's fee request.

h. The Benefits of the Settlement to the Class Are Attributable to the Efforts of Class Counsel.

The Third Circuit has suggested that, in evaluating a fee request, it "may be relevant and important to consider" whether the benefits of the Settlement were attributable to the efforts of others, such as government investigators, rather than class counsel. AT&T, 455 F.3d at 165 (citing Prudential, 148 F.3d at 338). Here, the benefits of the Settlement are directly attributable to the efforts of Class Counsel, rather than a separate antitrust investigation or litigation. No government agency investigated whether, or brought a proceeding alleging that, Pfizer had violated the antitrust laws by illegally extending their monopoly over Neurontin. And although the Department of Justice investigated Defendants' off-label promotion, and ultimately Defendants pled guilty to engaging in such illegal conduct, see Joint Decl. at ¶ 13, that conduct was only one element of Defendant's overall anticompetitive scheme. No government entity (or any other entity, for that matter) compiled the evidence of the overarching scheme that Plaintiffs alleged here. In short, there was no government agency investigating or litigating this case for the benefit of the Class.

Accordingly, application of this Prudential factor supports Class Counsel's fee request.

i. The Percentage Fee Requested Is Consistent With The Fee That Would Have Been Negotiated If The Case Had Been Subject To A Private Contingent Fee Agreement

The percentage fee requested by Class Counsel is consistent with the fee that would have been negotiated had this case been subject to a private contingent fee arrangement. See, e.g., AT&T, 455 F.3d at 165 (citing Prudential, 148 F.3d at 338). "The percentage-of-the-fund method of awarding attorneys' fees in class actions should approximate the fee that would be negotiated if the lawyer were offering his or her services in the private marketplace." Remeron, 2005 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 27013, at *46. In In the Matter of Continental Illinois Sec. Litig., 962 F.2d 566, 572 (7th Cir. 1992) (Posner, C.J.), the court explained that:

> The object in awarding a reasonable attorney's fee . . . is to give the lawyer what he would have gotten in the way of a fee in an arm's length negotiation, had one been feasible. In other words the object is to simulate the market where a direct market determination is infeasible.

Indeed, the 33[1]/3% requested fee is "consistent with a privately negotiated contingent fee in the marketplace." Hall, 2010 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 109355, at *71. "Attorneys regularly contract for contingent fees between 30% and 40% with their clients in non-class commercial litigation." Remeron, 2005 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 27013, at *46. See also In re Orthopedic Bone Screw Prods. Liab. Litig., No. 97-381, 2000 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 15980, at *29 (E.D. Pa. Oct. 23, 2000) (noting that "plaintiffs' counsel in private contingency fee cases regularly negotiate agreements providing for thirty to forty percent of any recovery").

Here, the Class Representatives, LWD and Meijer, have independently represented that, had they individually retained certain members of Class Counsel to represent them in this complex litigation, they would have engaged counsel based on a one-third contingency fee. See Declaration of Gayle White at ¶3, attached as Exhibit 15 to the Joint Decl.; Declaration of Chad Gielen at ¶5, attached as Exhibit 14 to the Joint Decl.; Declaration of Cynthia Rogowski at ¶ 4, attached as Exhibit 16 to the Joint Decl.

Accordingly, Class Counsel's requested fee is supported by application of this Prudential factor.[12]

---

[12] Where, as here, the attorneys' fees requested as part of a large class action settlement satisfy the Gunter/Prudential factors, courts in the Third Circuit decline to apply the so-called "declining percentage" approach to awarding fees, where a district court reduces the percentage of requested attorneys' fees because the proposed settlement is particularly large. See Rite Aid, 396 F.3d at 303 (rejecting an attempt to apply the declining percentage approach to a $126.6 million settlement, pointing out that "there is no rule that a district court must apply a declining percentage reduction" and concluding that "put simply, the declining percentage concept does not trump the fact-intensive Gunter/Prudential analysis" utilized for evaluating attorney fee awards). The "declining percentage" approach has been criticized as failing to recognize the enormous risk of non-recovery that class counsel undertakes in prosecuting class actions. See In re Ikon Office Solutions, Inc., Sec. Litig., 194 F.R.D. 166, 197 (E.D. Pa. 2000).

3. A Lodestar Cross-Check Confirms the Reasonableness of Class Counsel's Requested Fee.

The Third Circuit has suggested that district courts cross-check the percentage award against the "lodestar" to help ensure the reasonableness of the fee. See Gunter, 223 F.3d at 195 n.1. See also Drazin v. Horizon Blue Cross Blue Shield of New Jersey, Inc., 832 F. Supp. 2d 432, 440 (D.N.J. 2011) (Hochberg, J.) ("The percentage of recovery is usually . . . 'cross-checked' against the lodestar, to ensure that the fee is reasonable and appropriate."). As part of the cross check, the lodestar is determined by multiplying the hours reasonably expended on the case by a reasonable hourly rate. See Gunter, 223 F.3d at 195 n.1 (citation omitted). The Third Circuit has recognized that "[m]ultiples ranging from one to four are frequently awarded in common fund cases when the lodestar method is applied.'" Prudential, 148 F.3d at 341 (quotation omitted). In calculating the lodestar for cross check purposes, the court does not need to scrutinize the documented hours. See Rite Aid, 396 F.3d at 306-07 ("The lodestar cross-check calculation need entail neither mathematical precision nor bean counting. The district courts may rely on summaries submitted by the attorneys and need not review actual billing records.").

Class Counsel's requested fee award is reasonable when analyzed in light of a lodestar crosscheck. As detailed in the Joint Declaration, Class Counsel have worked 60,570.12 hours on this case, which is collectively $31,807,227.57 in time based on current billing rates. See Joint Decl. at ¶ 113.[13] A one-third fee award would equate to a lodestar multiplier of 1.99. See Joint Decl. at ¶ 114. This is well within the acceptable multiplier range of 1-4 noted in Prudential. It is also well below the multiplier granted in some other Hatch-Waxman antitrust cases. See, e.g., Nichols v. Smithkline Beecham Corp., No. 00-6222, 2005 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 7061, at *78 (E.D. Pa. Apr. 22, 2005) (noting that "[t]he fee awarded in [the Buspar antitrust litigation] resulted in a multiplier of 8.46"); Stop & Shop, 2005 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 9705, at *60 (approving multiplier of 15.6 in Paxil antitrust litigation).

Accordingly, the lodestar cross check in this case supports the requested fee.

B. Class Counsel's Costs And Expenses Are Reasonable And Were Necessarily Incurred To Achieve The Benefit Obtained.

It is well-settled that counsel who have created a common fund for the benefit of a class are entitled to be reimbursed for out-of-pocket expenses reasonably incurred in creating the fund. See Remeron, 2005 U.S. Dist. LEXIS

---

[13] As detailed in the Joint Declaration, Co-Lead Counsel carefully allocated assignments based on the experience and expertise of each member of Class Counsel in a manner that effectively prosecuted the case and avoided duplication of effort. See Joint Decl. at p.3. A description of the expenditures from the litigation fund is included in the Declaration of Richard J. Kilsheimer on Behalf of Kaplan Fox & Kilsheimer LLP in Support of Direct Purchaser Class Counsel's Motion for an Award of Attorneys' Fees and Reimbursement of Expenses, attached as Exhibit 20 to the Joint Declaration.

27013, at *48-49 ("Counsel in common fund cases is entitled to reimbursement of expenses that were adequately documented and reasonably and appropriately incurred in the prosecution of the case.") (citing In re Cendant Corp., 232 F. Supp. 2d 327, 343 (D.N.J. 2002) (internal citation omitted)). Attorneys may be reimbursed for costs that are "incidental and necessary expenses incurred in furnishing effective and competent representation." Planned Parenthood of Central New Jersey v. Attorney General of State of New Jersey, 297 F.3d 253, 267 (3d Cir. 2002).

Class Counsel's unreimbursed expenses, which total $ 2,213,537.35, were incidental and necessary to representation of the Class. These expenses were reasonably expended to prosecute this litigation, and they include fees paid to experts and consultants who were instrumental in helping Plaintiffs obtain class certification, establish monopoly power and exclusionary conduct, calculate damages, refute Defendants' defenses, prepare for trial, and obtain this favorable Settlement for the Class. See Joint Decl. at ¶¶ 36-37, 71, 79, 80-81. These expenses also include costs for computerized research, the creation of an electronic document database, travel and lodging expenses, copying, court reporters, deposition transcripts, mediation, and preparation for trial.[14] See Joint Decl. at ¶¶

[14] Certain of the individual declarations and affidavits of Class Counsel may list "contribution to the litigation fund" (or similar phrase) as an expense. Class 20-23; Exhibits 19 through 31 to Joint Declaration. Such expenses are of the type routinely charged to hourly fee-paying clients.

Reimbursement of such expenses is routinely permitted. See, e.g., Remeron, 2005 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 27013, at *49-50 (finding the following expenses to be reasonable: "(1) travel and lodging, (2) local meetings and transportation, (3) depositions, (4) photocopies, (5) messengers and express services, (6) telephone and fax, (7) Lexis/Westlaw legal research, (8) filing, court and witness fees, (9) overtime and temp work, (10) postage, (11) the cost of hiring a mediator, and (12) NJ Client Protection Fund-pro hac vice.") (citing Oh v. AT&T Corp., 225 F.R.D. 142, 154 (D.N.J. 2004)); McCoy v. Health Net, Inc., 569 F. Supp. 2d 448, 479 (D.N.J. 2008).

Additionally, Class members comprising approximately 93% of Class purchases have written to support Class Counsel's request for reimbursement of expenses. See Exhibits 2 through 16 to Joint Decl.

Accordingly, the Court should approve reimbursement of Class Counsel's expenses in full.

Counsel made individual contributions to this fund, which was, in turn, used to pay certain of the reasonable expenses described herein.

C. Incentive Awards For the Class Representatives Are Appropriate and Reasonable.

Class Counsel requests that the Court approve an incentive award in the amount of $100,000 each for each of the Class Representatives, LWD and Meijer. To date, no Class member has objected to the requested incentive awards. To the contrary, Class members with the largest stake in this litigation have expressly supported the requested incentive awards to the Class Representatives. See Joint Decl. at ¶ 117; Exhibits 2 through 4 to the Joint Decl.

Courts have long held that private class action suits are a primary weapon in the enforcement of the laws for the protection of the public. See, e.g., Am. Soc'y of Mech. Engineers v. Hydrolevel Corp., 456 U.S. 556, 573 n.10 (1982) (noting "private suits are an important element of the Nation's antitrust enforcement effort"). LWD and Meijer actively pursued the Class's interests by filing suit on behalf of the Class and undertaking the responsibilities attendant upon them as representative plaintiffs, including responding to document requests and interrogatories, appearing for deposition and keeping apprised of the progress of the case, including settlement efforts. See Joint Decl. at ¶ 116.

Numerous courts have found it appropriate to reward named class plaintiffs for the benefits they have conferred on a class of plaintiffs, and the amount requested here is in line with typical awards in the Third Circuit and elsewhere. See, e.g., In re Nifedipene Antitrust Litig., MDL No. 1515, Civil Action No. 1:03-

MC-223 (RJL), Dkt No. 333 at ¶ 3 (D.D.C. Jan. 31, 2011) (attached as Exhibit 17 to the Joint Decl.) (awarding $60,000 to each of four class representatives, for a total of $240,000 in incentive awards); Meijer, Inc. et al. v. Barr Pharmaceuticals, Inc., Civ. Action No. 05-2195 (CKK), Dkt. No. 210 at ¶ 17 (D.D.C. Apr. 20, 2009) (attached as Exhibit 18 to the Joint Decl.) (approving $50,000 to each of five class representatives for a total of $250,000 in incentive awards); Bradburn Parent Teacher Store, Inc. v. 3M, 513 F. Supp. 2d 322, 347 (E.D. Pa. 2007) ($75,000 incentive award); In re Lupron Mktg. & Sales Practices Litig., MDL No. 1430, 2005 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 17456, at *24-25 (D. Mass. Aug. 17, 2005) (awarding a total of $100,000 to named plaintiffs and noting that "the named plaintiffs participated actively in the litigation…"); In re Cardizem CD Antitrust Litig., 218 F.R.D. 508, 535-36 (E.D. Mich. 2003) (awarding $75,000 to each of two corporate class representatives).

This Court should therefore approve these appropriate and reasonable incentive awards to Class Representatives, LWD and Meijer.

IV. CONCLUSION

For the reasons set forth above and in the Joint Declaration, Class Counsel respectfully request that this Court approve their fee and expense request and enter an Order awarding Class Counsel fees in the amount of 33⅓% of the Settlement Fund (which includes the $190 million Settlement plus interest, and a proportionate share of the interest thereon through the date of the award), and reimbursement of expenses in the amount of $ $2,213,537.35 plus interest. Class Counsel also request that this Court approve incentive awards of $100,000 to each of the Class Representatives, LWD and Meijer, for their efforts on behalf of the Class in the prosecution of this action.

Dated: July 1, 2014

Respectfully submitted,

CLEMENTE MUELLER, P.A.
222 Ridgedale Avenue
Cedar Knolls, NJ 07927
Tel.: (973) 455-8008

By: /s/ Jonathan D. Clemente
Jonathan D. Clemente
Liaison Counsel

GARWIN GERSTEIN & FISHER, L.L.P.
Bruce E. Gerstein
88 Pine Street, 10th Floor
New York, NY 10005
Tel.: (212) 398-0055
Fax: (212) 764-6620

KAPLAN FOX & KILSHEIMER LLP
Robert N. Kaplan
Richard J. Kilsheimer
850 Third Avenue, 14th Floor
New York, NY 10022
Tel.: (212) 687-1980
Fax: (212) 687-7714

Co-lead Counsel for the Direct Purchaser Class Plaintiffs

ODOM & DES ROCHES, LLP
John Gregory Odom
Stuart E. Des Roches
Suite 2020, Poydras Center
650 Poydras Street
New Orleans, LA 70130
Tel.: (504) 522-0077
Fax: (504) 522-0078

SMITH SEGURA & RAPHAEL LLP
David P. Smith
720 Murray Street
P.O. Box 1632
Alexandria, LA 71309
Tel.: (318) 445-4480
Fax: (318) 487-1741

SPERLING & SLATER, P.C.
Paul E. Slater
55 West Monroe Street
Suite 3200
Chicago, IL 60603
Tel.: (312) 641-3200
Fax: (312) 641-6490

BERGER & MONTAGUE, P.C.
Daniel Berger
Eric L. Cramer
Ellen T. Noteware
1622 Locust Street
Philadelphia, PA 19103
Tel.: (215) 875-3000
Fax: (215) 875-4604

VANEK, VICKERS & MASINI, P.C.
Joseph M. Vanek
David P. Germaine
111 S. Wacker, Suite 4050
Chicago, IL 60606
Tel.: (312) 224-1500
Fax: (312) 224-1510

HEIM, PAYNE & CHORUSH LLP
Russell A. Chorush
600 Travis, suite 6710
Houston, Texas 77002
Tel.: (713) 221-2000
Fax: (713) 221-2021

GRANT & EISENHOFER PA
Linda P. Nussbaum
485 Lexington Ave., 29th Fl.
New York, NY 10017
Tel.: (646) 722-8504
Fax: (646) 722-8501

KOHN, SWIFT & GRAF, P.C.
Joseph C. Kohn
One South Broad Street
Suite 2100
Philadelphia, PA 19107
Tel.: (215) 238-1700
Fax: (215) 238-1968

KOZYAK TROPIN &
THROCKMORTON, P.A.
Adam Moskowitz
2800 First Union Financial Center
200 South Biscayne Boulevard
Miami, FL 33131-2335
Tel.: (305) 377-0652
Fax: (305) 372-3508

TAB 8A

IN THE UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
FOR THE EASTERN DISTRICT OF PENNSYLVANIA

IN RE: DOMESTIC DRYWALL ANTITRUST LITIGATION
THIS DOCUMENT RELATES TO: All Direct Purchaser Actions	MDL No. 2437 13-MD-2437

MEMORANDUM

Baylson, J. July 17, 2018

As part of the class settlement for Direct Purchasers in these cases, Plaintiffs have appropriately filed a Motion for Award of Attorneys' Fees and Expenses. The Court has reviewed the supporting documents filed by Plaintiffs' counsel and the applicable legal precedents and files this Memorandum in support of the award.

As the first step in the outstanding success of Plaintiffs' counsel, this case started as a traditional price-fixing antitrust case. Counsel had located several direct purchasers of drywall, extensively used in construction and renovation work, as Plaintiffs on behalf of class of similarly situated direct purchasers. The initial Complaint in this Court was filed on December 20, 2012, and shortly thereafter a number of other Complaints were filed and the Judicial Panel on Multidistrict Litigation consolidated all of the cases in this Court. An initial pretrial conference and scheduling order set in motion the start of discovery, and the Court determined other relatively routine issues that commonly arise in complex litigation.

The course of this litigation can be succinctly summarized by cross-reference to the major decisions issued by the undersigned on various issues in the case, as a prelude to the award of attorneys' fees:

A. Major Opinions in Drywall

1. Use of contention statements rather than answers to interrogatories

On May 12, 2014, Defendants served interrogatories asking Plaintiffs to state "all acts and omissions that you contend each took in furtherance of the alleged conspiracy." In re Domestic Drywall Antitrust Litig., 300 F.R.D. 228, 229 (E.D. Pa. 2014). Defendants then filed a motion to compel. The Court decided Defendants' request was not premature, but that "[r]ather than compel individual Plaintiffs to answer Defendants' interrogatories at this time, the Court will adopt a sequence of pretrial statements under which Plaintiffs' counsel will be required to set forth facts in their possession supporting their allegations … Defendants must reciprocate." Id. at 231. The contention statements filed by Plaintiffs were detailed, thorough and reflected a great deal of high-quality work in assembling and the results of the discovery which they had conducted on a highly professional basis.

2. Thompson Research Group, LLC's motion to quash

On May 15, 2014, the Court granted in part and denied in part the motion to quash subpoena of a non-party analyst Thompson Research Group, LLC, which had allegedly served as a "conduit" for information regarding pricing among Defendants. In re Domestic Drywall Antitrust Litig., 300 F.R.D. 234 (E.D. Pa. 2014). The Court allowed some discovery as to Thompson, but asked the parties to insure the confidentiality of Thompson Research Group's sources, limit the intrusion into Thompson's investigative files, and required Plaintiffs to pay for the costs of complying with the subpoena. Id. This third party discovery was appropriate and indeed, in retrospect, necessary because one of the theories of liability of the Plaintiffs was that the Defendants had used these third party marketing research firms as "conduits" for providing information from one Defendant to another as to their pricing plans, pricing decisions, and other normally confidential competitive strategies. Although the conduit theory is not completely novel in antitrust litigation, the results of this third party discovery proved to be very important in the Plaintiffs' building a successful dossier of evidence on liability issues as well as damages.

3. Denial of summary judgment as to all Defendants except CertainTeed

Following the direct and indirect purchaser settlements with USG and TIN, the remaining Defendants moved for summary judgment, with voluminous affidavits, deposition testimony and documents, asserting that there were no genuine issues of fact as to any alleged agreement to fix prices, and that the Court should conclude that the Plaintiffs had failed to gather sufficient evidence to warrant a jury trial. On February 18, 2016, the Court granted CertainTeed's motion for summary judgment, finding that "Plaintiffs' evidence as to Defendant CertainTeed is not sufficient to show that CertainTeed participated in the conspiracy," but denied summary judgment as to all other moving Defendants. In re Domestic Drywall Antitrust Litig., 163 F. Supp. 3d 175, 230–31 (E.D. Pa. 2016). The Plaintiffs' responsive briefs were outstanding in all respects, with thorough responses, excellent briefs, and persuasive citations – all of which warranted the Court to deny summary judgment except as to CertainTeed, as noted above.

4. Appointment of independent expert on class issues

The Court decided not to appoint an independent expert on class action issues, but on June 16, 2017, it instead appointed a "technical advisor," Dr. Jeffrey Church of the University of Calgary, to assist the Court on limited econometric issues. (Letter, ECF 601.) Because both Plaintiffs and Defendants had retained highly skilled and knowledgeable expert economists on the class action issue, the Court determined to retain its own expert as to some of the economic issues in this case. Although this independent technical adviser generally sided with the Defendants' view of the economic theories, the Court concluded that the Plaintiffs' evidence warranted certification of a class of Direct Purchasers, but did not warrant a class of Indirect Purchasers.

5. Grant of Direct Purchaser Litigation Class

On August 23, 2017, the Court approved a litigation class of direct purchasers of drywall, finding that the requirements of Rule 23(a) and Rule 23(b)(3), as interpreted by the Third Circuit, had been met. In re: Domestic Drywall Antitrust Litig., 322 F.R.D. 188 (E.D. Pa. 2017).

6. Denial of Indirect Purchaser Litigation Class

On August 24, 2017, the Court denied certification of a litigation class of indirect purchasers of drywall. In re Domestic Drywall Antitrust Litig., No. 13-MD-2437, 2017 WL 3700999 (E.D. Pa. Aug. 24, 2017). The Court found that although the indirect purchaser plaintiffs had satisfied the requirements of Rule 23(a), they had not met the Third Circuit's implied ascertainability requirement for Rule 23(b)(3) class actions, and had not shown that common issues predominated or that a class action was the superior method for adjudicating their claims, as was required under Rule 23(b)(3).

7. Third Circuit Rulings

The Third Circuit rejected appeals under Rule 23(f), filed by Defendants as to the Court's grant of a Direct Purchaser class action, and filed by Plaintiffs as to the denial of class certification of Indirect Purchasers.

Also, previously, although the undersigned had certified the denial of Defendants' motions for summary judgment for interlocutory appeal under 28 U.S.C. § 1292(b), the Third Circuit rejected the interlocutory appeal.

B. Determining Attorneys' Fees in Class Action Common Fund Settlements: the Percentage-of-Recovery Method

There are two methods of calculating attorneys' fees—the percentage-of-recovery method and the lodestar method. Under the percentage-of-recovery method, counsel will typically take a certain percentage of the plaintiffs' total recovery, with the understanding that the attorney is working on a contingent basis. The percentage-of-recovery method is favored in class action settlements involving a common fund, allowing the court to award attorneys' fees "in a manner that rewards counsel for success and penalizes it for failure." In re GMC Pick-Up Truck Fuel Tank Prods. Liab. Litig., 55 F.3d 768, 821 (3d Cir. 1995). The theory underlying the use of the percentage-of-recovery method is that "the class would be unjustly enriched if it did not compensate the counsel responsible for generating the valuable fund bestowed on the class." Id. Therefore, counsel's compensation depends directly on the value created for the class.

Under the lodestar method, attorneys' fees are calculated by multiplying the hours worked by counsel by the average hourly rate. This method is often used in the context of fee-shifting statutes, or to reward counsel for undertaking socially beneficial litigation in cases where the expected recovery is small enough such that utilizing the percentage-of-recovery method would yield inadequate compensation for counsel. Id. Even though the lodestar method is not the primary method for calculating attorneys' fees in class action common fund settlements, "it is sensible for a court to use [this] second method of fee approval to cross check" the award calculated under the percentage-of-recovery method. Id. at 820. What is often referred to as the "lodestar cross-check" is performed by dividing the total recovery requested under the percentage-of-recovery method by counsel's lodestar value, yielding a "lodestar multiplier." Thus, a lodestar multiplier of 2 would mean that under the percentage-of-recovery method, counsel would receive twice the amount of compensation that they would typically request for the same number of hours expended on the litigation.

1. Krell v. Prudential Ins. Co. of Am. (in Re Prudential Ins. Co. Am. Sales Practice Litig. Agent Actions), 148 F.3d 283 (3d Cir. 1998)

a. Overview

In Prudential, the Third Circuit established three factors ("the Prudential factors") that courts will consider when determining whether the requested attorneys' fees are appropriate. They are:

(1) whether the entire value of benefits to the class is attributable to the efforts of class counsel;

(2) whether the percentage-of-recovery request reflects the fee that would result from private negotiations; and

(3) whether there are any particularly innovative terms in the settlement.

In re Prudential Ins. Co. Am. Sales Practice Litig. Agent Actions, 148 F.3d 283, 338-40 (3d Cir. 1998).

These factors supplement the seven Gunter factors, discussed infra, in the balancing of whether a request for attorneys' fees is reasonable under the settlement agreement. Ultimately, the Third Circuit remanded the issue of attorneys' fees upon a finding that the district court inappropriately (1) failed to separate the value of the settlement created by administrative investigation from the value created by class counsel, and (2) gave weight to the contingency fee rates typical of smaller class actions or individual actions, but found that the district court's consideration of "innovative terms" of settlement was appropriate. Id.

b. Procedural Posture and Factual Background

This case was before the Third Circuit as an appeal of the district court's approval of the settlement of a nationwide class action against Prudential Life Insurance Company, including the district court's creation of a bifurcated attorneys' fee award valued as high as $90 million in a nearly $2 billion settlement.

Beginning in 1994, lawsuits against Prudential Life Insurance Company alleging improper sales and marketing practices were filed across the United States. Id. at 290. In response to the growing number of lawsuits against Prudential, the New Jersey Insurance Commissioner assembled a task force to investigate the allegations and develop a remedial plan to compensate injured policyholders. Id. In 1996, the task force issued a remedial action plan creating two options—alternative dispute resolution or "no-fault" basic claim relief—across four types of claims. Id. at 291. While the task force was investigating, individual parties and classes continued to file actions against Prudential in both state and federal court. Id. at 292. Following the publication of the task force report, lead counsel in the underlying class action and Prudential entered into a settlement agreement in September of 1996. Id. at 294. The settlement agreement largely adopted the substance and structure of the task force remedial plan, but the district court found that the settlement made some enhancements. Id. at 296-97. Under the Stipulation of Settlement filed in October of 1996, lead counsel would request $90 million in attorneys' fees to be paid by Prudential. Id. at 329.

c. The District Court's Analysis of Lead Counsel's Attorneys' Fees Request

The district court found the remedy structure analogous to a common fund, and thus determined that the percentage-of-recovery method was to apply. Id. An expert retained by lead counsel estimated that $863.7 million of the settlement agreement's value of $1.987 billion was created by the task force plan, while the remaining $1.123 billion was created by class counsel. Id. The district court rejected the lead counsel's fee petition, instead creating a bifurcated fee award designed to provide between $45 million and $90 million to class counsel. Id. Notably, the district court recognized that the fee awards in cases where the recovery exceeded $100 million ranged between 4.1 and 17.92%; it also concluded that private parties would likely have negotiated a contingent fee of 10 to 15%. Id. at 331-332. The district court calculated that if the full $90 million in attorneys' fees were awarded, this would result in approximately 6.7% of the minimum recovery guaranteed by Prudential under the settlement agreement. Id. at 332. With a lodestar value of $17.7 million and expenses at just over $3 million, a $90 million fee would generate a lodestar multiplier of 5.1 at an average hourly rate at $1,148.70. Id.

d. The Third Circuit's Rejection of the District Court's Analysis and Remand on the Issue of Attorneys' Fees

In its analysis of the appropriateness of the attorneys' fees, the Third Circuit primarily took issue with the high value of attorneys' fees despite the presence of substantial government investigation. In remanding the issue of attorneys' fees back to the district court, the Third Circuit emphasized that "[i]t is not clear on the record before us that class counsel had so significant a role in the institution of the Task Force proceedings that the district court was justified in crediting counsel for all of the benefits created under the Task Force plan." Id. at 337.

Next, the Third Circuit focused on the district court's conclusion that a contingent fee of 10 to 15% would be privately negotiated in class actions of such a large size. "While such private fee arrangements might be appropriate in smaller class actions or litigation involving individual plaintiffs, we do not believe they provide much guidance in cases involving the aggregation of over 8 million plaintiffs and a potential recovery exceeding $1 billion," it noted. Id. at 340. The Third Circuit additionally took issue with the size of the lodestar multiplier of 5.1, stressing that the district court did not "take care to explain how the application of a multiplier is justified by the facts of a particular case." Id.

Finally, though the Court found the above issues to be problematic in the district court's fee structure, it did consider the bifurcated fee award to be "an appropriate and innovative response to the structure of the settlement." Id. at 334.

2. Gunter v. Ridgewood Energy Corp., 223 F.3d 190 (3d Cir. 2000)

a. Overview

In Gunter v. Ridgewood Energy Corp., the Third Circuit adopted a discrete seven-factor test, listed in subsection d, infra, that courts use in determining the reasonableness of attorneys' fees in class action common fund settlements. Gunter v. Ridgewood Energy Corp., 223 F.3d 190, 195 n.1 (3d Cir. 2000). The Third Circuit also added a separate lodestar cross-check generating a "lodestar multiplier" that is used to gauge the difference between the class counsel's lodestar and the fee under the percentage-of-recovery method. Id. The Gunter factors are typically combined with the Prudential factors (discussed supra) in a court's analysis, resulting in a comprehensive ten-factor balancing test. Ultimately, the Third Circuit remanded the issue of attorneys' fees to the district court for a correct and clear articulation of its analysis in determining what amount of attorneys' fees ought to be awarded. Id. at 192, 196.

b. Procedural Posture and Factual Background

Gunter was before the Third Circuit on the plaintiffs' appeal of the district court's grant of attorneys' fees at only 18% of the $9.5 million settlement fund, instead of the 33 1/3% fee that the parties agreed to under the settlement agreement. 223 F.3d at 191. The underlying class action arose from a series of failed oil and gas investments, with the class alleging that the defendants fraudulently marketed and sold about $150 million of interests in partnerships between 1986 and 1990. Id. at 192. The class action was brought under the Racketeer Influenced and Corrupt Organization Act and §§ 10(b) and 20(a) of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934, as well as various state common law claims. Id. After discovery and pre-trial motion practice, including class certification and a round of summary judgment argument, the parties reached a settlement agreement in June of 1999. Id. at 193.

The terms of the settlement included a common fund of $9.5 million, which represented more than half of the total amount lost by class members to the fraudulent practices of the defendants. Id. In its submissions to the district court, class counsel requested reimbursement of $300,000 in costs as well as one third of the $9.5 million common fund (about $3.16 million). Id. Class counsel calculated the lodestar multiplier to be 1.1, and noted that none of the class members objected to the requested fee amount. Id. at 194.

c. The District Court's Analysis of Class Counsel's Attorneys' Fees Request

In its brief analysis of class counsel's request for one-third of the common settlement fund, the district court decided to reduce the fee to 18% of the recovery. Gunter v. Ridgewood Energy Corp., No. CIV. 95-438 (WHW), 1999 WL 33266979, at *2 (D.N.J. Nov. 16, 1999), vacated, 223 F.3d 190 (3d Cir. 2000). The factors considered by the district court included class counsel's submissions and statements regarding their efforts to settle the litigation, and the number of hours expended. Id. The district court ultimately held that "[t]he nature of this litigation, its resolution at this stage without the necessity of trial, the nature of the settlement, and its value, convince the court that it would place a reasonable burden on the class to award attorneys' fees of 18% of the Settlement Fund, or $1,700,000." Id. The district court denied class counsel's motion for reconsideration on the grounds that it was wary of the number of hours class counsel reported, stating "[t]he Court is of the opinion that these hours merely serve as a hindsight prop to the one-third percentage of plaintiffs' recovery sought by counsel as their fee." Gunter v.

Ridgewood Energy Corp., Civ. No. 95-438 (WHW), at 2-3 (D.N.J. Dec. 29, 1999). Noting that "[c]ounsel had their opportunity to provide full information to the Court upon their original submission. They did not. And, interestingly, they did not even attempt to do so by their motion for reconsideration." Id.

d. The Third Circuit's Remand of the Issue of Attorneys' Fees Based on Inadequate Reasoning on the Part of the District Court

After analyzing the district court's award of reduced attorneys' fees, the Third Circuit ultimately remanded the issue back to the district court, since "if the district court's fee-award opinion is so terse, vague, or conclusory that we have no basis to review it, we must vacate the fee-award order and remand for further proceedings." Gunter, 223 F.3d at 196. The Third Circuit then identified seven factors that courts ought to consider when determining the appropriateness of an attorneys' fee request in common fund class action settlements:

(1) the size of the fund created and the number of persons benefitted;

(2) the presence or absence of substantial objections by members of the class to the settlement terms and/or fees requested by counsel;

(3) the skill and efficiency of the attorneys involved;

(4) the complexity and duration of the litigation;

(5) the risk of nonpayment;

(6) the amount of time devoted to the case by plaintiffs' counsel; and

(7) the awards in similar cases.

Id. at 195 n.1. It also noted that in mega-fund cases, like those valued at over one billion dollars, courts may give these factors less weight. Id. Finally, the Third Circuit suggested that after a court's has analyzed the seven factors, it should perform a lodestar "cross-check," in which it calculates the lodestar multiplier to determine whether the difference between counsel's lodestar and the fee request is reasonable under the circumstances of the case. Id.

In reviewing the district court's analysis of the factors, the Third Circuit found that, in the original fee award opinion as well as in the opinion denying class counsel's motion for reconsideration, the district court either failed to apply some of the seven factors it identified, or misapplied them. Id. at 201. The following analysis does not follow the order of the factors listed explicitly by the Third Circuit, 223 F.3d at 191 n.1.

i. Third Circuit Review of the First Factor Analyzed by the District Court: The Complexity and Duration of the Litigation

Regarding the first factor analyzed by the district court—the complexity and duration of the litigation—the Third Circuit found, unlike the district court, that the underlying litigation was both complex (involving federal securities law and a plethora of state claims), and that its four-and-a-half year duration weighed in favor of granting class counsel's fee request. Id. at 197.

ii. Third Circuit Review of the Second Factor Analyzed by the District Court: The Existence of a Settlement Between the Parties

The Third Circuit then addressed the second factor that the district court analyzed, and found that the district court inappropriately considered the existence of a settlement to warrant a reduction in the attorneys' fee award. Id. at 198. The Third Circuit held that "[p]rocuring a settlement, in and of itself, is never a factor that the district court should rely upon to reduce a fee award. To utilize such a factor would penalize efficient counsel, encourage costly litigation, and potentially discourage able lawyers from taking such cases." Id.

iii. Third Circuit Review of the Third Factor Analyzed by the District Court: The Size of the Settlement and the Number of Persons Benefitted

Turning to the next factor the district court analyzed—the size of the settlement and the number of persons benefitted—the Third Circuit found that the district court provided scant analysis of whether the attorneys' fee request was appropriate in light of the litigation in similar cases. Id.

iv. Third Circuit Review of Two Factors Not Analyzed by the District Court: The Absence of Objections from Class Members, and the Risk of Non-Payment

The Third Circuit next identified two factors that the district court failed to include altogether: the absence of objections from class members to class counsel's request for fees, and the risk of non-payment. Id. at 199. On the first issue, the Third Circuit did not make any explicit finding on the significance of the lack of objection to the requested fee amount. On the second issue, the Third Circuit noted "it seems that the risk of non-payment in this case was present both because the defendants were close to insolvency, and because other classes of plaintiffs in similar cases against the defendants had lost on similar legal theories." Id.

v. Third Circuit Review of the District Court's Use of the Lodestar Cross-Check

Finally, the Third Circuit found that the district court failed to adequately apply the lodestar cross-check, noting that "the District Court neither reduced its lodestar calculations to writing, nor gave Counsel a chance to justify their hours billed or their hourly rates." Id. While in its opinion denying the motion for reconsideration the district court stated that it had considered the lodestar value in arriving at its original fee award, the Third Circuit observed that any mention or discussion of either the lodestar value or multiplier was notably absent. Id. For all of these reasons—either a lack of analysis or improper analysis—the Third Circuit remanded the issue of attorneys' fees back to the district court. Id. at 192, 196. No subsequent district court order or opinion could be found following the Third Circuit's remand.

3. Welch & Forbes, Inc. v. Cendant Corp. (In re Cendant Corp. Prides Litig.), 243 F.3d 722 (3d Cir. 2001)

a. Overview

This case presents an example of where a percentage-of-recovery award appeared to be reasonable on its face, but analysis under the Gunter factors and a lodestar cross-check demonstrated the award's unreasonableness. As in Gunter, the Third Circuit found the district court's analysis to be too cursory, and also determined that the district court had either failed to analyze or mis-analyzed several factors that it had outlined in Gunter. In re Cendant Corp. Prides Litig., 243 F.3d 722, 733, 735-36 (3d Cir. 2001). While a percentage-of-recovery figure of 5.7% appeared reasonable given the range suggested by other cases, the Third Circuit found that such a percentage was materially undermined by a projected lodestar multiplier between 7 and 10. Id. at 742. After reviewing the district court's analysis, the Third Circuit vacated the award of attorneys' fees and remanded the issue to the district court. Id. at 743.

b. Procedural Posture and Factual Background

This case was before the Third Circuit on appeal of the district court's approval of a class settlement and award of attorneys' fees to lead counsel, and was ultimately remanded by the Third Circuit to the district court for proper analysis under the Gunter factors. Id. The underlying class action was filed on behalf of investors in the Cendant Corporation after it had disclosed some prior "accounting irregularities" in April of 1998. Id. at 725. On behalf of one of the classes of the consolidated class action (the "PRIDES class,") a law firm, Kirby, entered into a settlement agreement with Cendant in March of 1999 under which Cendant agreed to issue Rights to new PRIDES (a type of share); with 29,161,474 shares each valued at $11.71, the total approximate value of the settlement agreement was $341,500,000. Id. Under the terms of the settlement agreement, Kirby would not ask for more than 10% of the $341,500,000 stated value, plus reasonable expenses. Id.

c. The District Court's Analysis of Kirby's Attorneys' Fees Request

In June of 1999, the district court approved the settlement, granted Kirby's expenses of $2,367,493, but found that for attorneys' fees, Kirby should receive 5.7% (instead of the 10% requested) of the settlement rights, totaling 1,650,680 rights valued at $19,329,463. Id. at 726. The district court's lodestar analysis found that approximately 5,600 hours were expended, and that senior partners charge an hourly rate of $495. In re Cendant Corp. Prides Litig., 51 F. Supp. 2d 537, 542 (D.N.J. 1999). Using this hourly rate, the district court calculated the lodestar multiplier to be 7. Cendant, 243 F.3d at 732. The $495 hourly rate of senior partners artificially lowered the lodestar multiplier, as inferior legal staff expended hours on the litigation. Id.

d. The Third Circuit Review of the District Court's Analysis and Remand on the Issues of Attorneys' Fees

The Third Circuit found the district court's analysis problematic for several reasons, not the least of which was the fact that "[a]s in Gunter, the District Court's fee opinion in this case was too cursory for us to 'have a sufficient basis to review for abuse of discretion.'" Id. at 733 (quoting Gunter, 223 F.3d at 196). The Third Circuit itemized a list of factors that the district court either failed to recognize or misjudged in its analysis of the adequacy of Kirby's attorneys' fee request:

> 1) the case was relatively simple in terms of proof, in that Cendant had conceded liability and no risks pertaining to liability or collection were pertinent;
>
> 2) the case was settled at a very early stage of the litigation, with an agreement being announced two months after Kirby filed for class certification and a proposed settlement being submitted to the District Court two months after that;

> 3) there was a minimal amount of motion practice in this case—before settlement, Kirby submitted only the Complaint and three motions, all on the same day;
>
> 4) discovery was virtually nonexistent—indeed the District Court did not mention any depositions taken or document review conducted by Kirby;
>
> 5) Kirby spent a relatively small amount of time on this case compared to the amount of time expended in most other large class actions."

Id. at 735-36. In other words, the attorneys' fee amount requested by Kirby did not actually reflect the amount of work it expended on litigating the case. Because the high value of the settlement might have arguably come from the number of class members or the values of the PRIDES shares, the law firm might receive a windfall under the requested amount. These notions supported the Third Circuit's observation that "[i]n In re GMC Trucks, we observed that 'one court has noted that the fee awards have ranged from nineteen percent to forty-five percent of the settlement fund.' . . . These varying ranges confirm that a district court may not rely on a formulaic application of the appropriate range in awarding fees but must consider the relevant circumstances of the particular case." Id. at 736 (quoting 55 F.3d at 822) (internal citations omitted).

The Third Circuit noted that the district court failed to compare the requested attorneys' fee to those granted in similar cases. Id. The Third Circuit provided a chart listing class action common fund settlements, their value, and the percentage-of-recovery. Id. at 737. Looking at the cases listed in the chart, the Third Circuit noted that the attorneys' fees awards ranged from 2.8% to 36% of the total common settlement fund. Id. at 738. While the 5.7% fee awarded by the district court appeared to fall within this range, the Third Circuit again emphasized the fact that the work counsel performed was not deserving of an award of that size, writing "a brief review of the facts and posture of these other cases makes clear that, when examined through the seven-factor lens of Gunter, the higher fees awarded in the other cases were far more justified than the high award in this case." Id. (italics added). Finally, the lodestar multiplier would likely fall between 7 and 10, a value the Third Circuit found inappropriately high. Id. at 742. The Third Circuit observed: "[i]n all the cases in which high percentages were applied to arrive at attorneys' fees, the courts explained the extensive amount of work that the attorneys had put into the case, and appropriately the lodestar multiplier in those cases never exceeded 2.99." Id. Thus, this case highlights the importance of the multiplier resulting from the lodestar cross-check, as even low percentage-of-recovery values may nevertheless leave law firms with windfall fee awards.

4. In re AT&T Corp. Sec. Litig., 455 F.3d 160 (3d Cir. 2006)

a. Overview

Where a district court granted the request for an attorneys' fee that was the product of a pre-arranged scale (not a traditional sliding scale where the percentage of recovery decreases as the settlement value increases), the Third Circuit found that because the attorneys' fee award conformed with the Gunter and Prudential factors, the district court did not abuse its discretion in granting the request. In re AT&T Corp. Sec. Litig., 455 F.3d 160, 175 (3d Cir. 2006).

b. Procedural Posture and Factual Background

This case was before the Third Circuit from an appeal of three class members on the issue of attorneys' fees in a class action common fund settlement, specifically that they were excessive and did not employ a traditional sliding scale where the percentage of recovery for attorneys' fees decreases as the size of the settlement increases. Id. at 163.

Beginning in October of 2000, several plaintiffs filed federal securities fraud lawsuits under the Securities and Exchange Act of 1934, alleging that defendants made knowingly false statements over the course of 7 months regarding anticipated performance for the year of 2000 to artificially inflate stock price. Id. at 162. After two years of discovery and two weeks of trial (beginning of October of 2004), the parties entered into a tentative settlement agreement in which AT&T agreed to a $100 million common settlement fund, with attorneys' fees set at 21.25%, or $21,500,000, and costs valued at $5,465,996.79. Id. at 163. The district court preliminarily approved the settlement agreement, and after notice was mailed to over one million potential class members, eight objections were received pertaining to the attorneys' fees arrangements. Id.

c. The District Court's Analysis of the Request for Attorneys' Fees

In this securities case brought under the Private Securities Litigation Reform Act, the district court noted that in the Third Circuit, attorneys' fees requests are presumed reasonable unless the district court finds the fee to be clearly excessive on its face. Id. at 167 (citing Cendant, 264 F.3d at 220). The district court found that the sliding scale arrangement between the parties, which resulted in the 21.25% attorneys' fee, was reasonable and had not been shown to be unreasonable by the challengers. Id. The district court concluded that the fee was also reasonable under the Gunter factors, specifically noting that the fee arrangements had been approved by each court-appointed lead plaintiff. Id. The district court subsequently found that a lodestar value of $16.6 million and a lodestar multiplier of 1.28 represented a "truly reasonable fee award." Id. at 169. The district court also approved reimbursement of costs. Id.

d. The Third Circuit's Affirmance of the District Court's Approval of Attorneys' Fees

The Third Circuit affirmed the district court's grant of attorneys' fees, finding that "[t]he district court's analysis and discussion demonstrates it considered the fee award reasonableness factors relevant to the facts of the case[.]" Id. The first Gunter factor—the size of the settlement and the number of persons benefitted—did not require any analysis, as the settlement was for $100 million and the class could potentially consist of over a million members. Id. at 169-70.

i. The Second Gunter Factor: The Presence of Substantial Objections from Class Members on the Issue of Attorneys' Fees

The Third Circuit found that with regard to the second Gunter factor, the presence of eight objections out of a potential class of one million members represented a "low level of objection," and thus the district court did not abuse its discretion by not considering these objections "substantial." Id. at 170.

ii. The Third and Fourth Gunter Factors: The Skill and Efficiency of Counsel and the Complexity and Duration of Litigation

The Third Circuit found that the third and fourth factors—the skill/efficiency of counsel and the complexity/duration of litigation—also weighed in favor of granting the fee award, as the litigation was long and even began trial, on complex securities law issues. Id.

iii. The Fifth Gunter Factor: The Risk of Non-Payment

There was only a slight risk of nonpayment under the fifth factor, but the Third Circuit found that the district court did not abuse its discretion in finding such a risk. Id. at 171.

iv. The Sixth Gunter Factor: The Amount of Time Devoted by Class Counsel

The lengthy litigation lent support to the sixth factor—the amount of time devoted by counsel, which was apparent from the number of pre-trial motions, the scope of discovery, and two weeks of trial. Id. Typically, a discussion of the number of hours devoted takes place under this factor, but such a figure is absent in this Third Circuit opinion.

v. The Seventh Gunter Factor: Awards in Similar Cases

With regard to the seventh factor—awards in similar cases—the district court did not abuse its discretion when it held that objectors had failed to present sufficient evidence to rebut a presumption of reasonableness (under the PSLRA). Id. Thus, under the Gunter factors and the lodestar cross-check, the Third Circuit found that the circumstances weighed toward granting the requested attorneys' fees. Id. at 173.

vi. The Prudential Factors: Whether the Entire Value of the Settlement is Attributable to Class Counsel, Whether the Fee Reflects What Private Parties Would Have Negotiated, and Whether the Settlement Contained Innovative Terms

Turning to the Prudential factors, the Third Circuit noted that there was no government investigation into the defendants' conduct, thus class counsel created the value of the settlement on their own. On the issue of privately negotiated contingency fees (the second Prudential factor), and in response to the appellants' contention that the percentage of recovery should not increase alongside the value of the settlement, the Third Circuit held that there is "no rule that a district court must apply a declining percentage reduction in every settlement involving a sizable fund." Id. at 174 (citing Rite Aid Corp. Sec. Litig., 396 F.3d 294, 303 (3d Cir. 2005)) (internal quotation marks omitted). As there were no particularly innovative terms of the settlement, the final Prudential factor was not analyzed. Thus, the district court's approval of the requested attorneys' fees was affirmed by the Third Circuit.

5. In re Diet Drugs Prod. Liab. Litig., 582 F.3d 524 (3d Cir. 2009)

a. Overview

In a case where $567 million in attorneys' fees were requested from a settlement valued at $6.44 billion, the Third Circuit found that the district court did not abuse its discretion in granting the requested amount. Since "the lawyers involved were primarily concerned with obtaining relief for their clients and members of the class," the district court "correctly applied the method better designed to 'reward counsel for success and penalize it for failure.'" In re Diet Drugs Prod. Liab. Litig., 582 F.3d 524, 541 (3d Cir. 2009) (citing GMC, 55 F.3d at 821).

b. Procedural Posture and Factual Background

In this case, the appellants challenged the district court's findings on three of the Gunter/Prudential factors in its opinion granting attorneys' fees in the amount of 6.75% of a settlement totaling $6.44 billion—a fee award of roughly $567 million. Id. at 537. Specifically, appellants challenged the district court's findings on the following factors:

(1) the presence or absence of substantial objections,

(2) the risk of nonpayment, and

(3) the value of benefits attributable to the efforts of other groups.

Id. at 541. Ultimately, the Third Circuit affirmed the findings of the district court, upholding the award of attorneys' fees. Id. at 553.

Beginning in 1997, a wave of products liability actions arose after researchers discovered a correlation between some then-commonly prescribed appetite suppressants and a heart disorder known as valvular heart disease ("VHD"). Id. at 559. Scientific evidence of serious coronary side effects from the drugs prompted the FDA to issue a public health alert, and prompted the pharmaceutical company responsible for the development of the drugs, Wyeth, to withdraw the drugs from the market. Id. In November of 1999, Wyeth, the plaintiffs' management committee of the class action, and counsel from state court class actions executed a nationwide settlement. Id. at 530. The settlement included several options for eligible class members, which were ultimately valued at a total of $6.44 billion. Id. at 536. Class counsel from 72 different firms filed a joint petition for attorneys' fees in which they requested a total of approximately $567 million. Id. at 533. An auditor reported that the 72 firms had performed 354,431.49 hours of work on the litigation and found a lodestar value of $101,076,658.54. Id.

c. The District Court's Analysis of the Requested Attorneys' Fees

When presented with class counsel's request for $567 million in attorneys' fees, the district court made several findings. First, the plaintiffs' management committee faced significant risk at the beginning of the litigation that their work would ultimately be unsuccessful and uncompensated. Id. at 534. Second, that the discovery undertaken by the plaintiffs' management committee paved the way for the class settlement and individual settlements—in other words, the plaintiffs' management committee could rightly be considered to have created the entire value of the settlement benefitting the class. Id. Thirdly and lastly, that the plaintiffs' management committee conferred great benefits on all litigants and performed well. Id. Ultimately, in April of 2008, eleven years after the commencement of litigation against Wyeth, the district court awarded class counsel attorneys' fees in the amount of approximately $567 million. Id. at 536.

When applying the percentage-of-recovery method, the district court concluded that an award equaling 6.75% of the recoveries under the settlement agreement was appropriate. Id. at 536. The lodestar cross-check yielded a lodestar multiplier of 2.6; while it recognized that this might have been artificially low, the district court was confident that the actual multiplier would not be excessive. Id.

d. The Third Circuit's Review and Affirmance of the District Court's Award of Attorneys' Fees

As to the first factor challenged—the presence or absence of substantial objections—the district court found it "remarkable" that there were fewer than thirty objections out of the approximately six million potential class members. Id. at 542 (citing In re Diet Drugs Prods. Liabl. Litig., 553 F. Supp. 2d 442, 473 (E.D. Pa. 2008) (internal quotation marks omitted). In response to appellants' argument that the district court inappropriately relied on the absence of objections to the final joint fee petition, the Third Circuit stated that "[w]hatever weight the Court gave to this factor it gave based on the dearth of objections throughout the settlement and fee adjudication process, instead of focusing only on the objections to the final joint fee petitions." Id. This suggests that the scope of this factor takes into account the nature and volume of objections by class members throughout the litigation process, though arguably this is a fact-intensive inquiry.

As to the second factor challenged, the risk of nonpayment, the appellants argue that the district court erred as a matter of law when it considered the risk of nonpayment only at the beginning of litigation and not throughout the course of the action, as the risk of nonpayment dissipated after a settlement was reached. Id. at 543. However, the Third Circuit found that the district court indeed considered the risk of nonpayment throughout the action, specifically when it considered the risk of a "'second wave' of litigation" following the execution of the settlement agreement; the district court found that "[a]t the inception, and throughout this litigation, there was a substantial risk that the efforts of [Class Counsel] would not be successful." Id. (citing Diet Drugs, 553 F. Supp. 2d at 479).

As to the third factor challenged, the value of benefits attributable to others, the district court found that while class counsel was somewhat beholden to the researchers who linked the diet drugs to the illness, as well as to the FDA for its efforts to remove the drugs from the market, these entities had not performed the investigative legal work on which class counsel could then rely. Id. at 544. The appellants challenged the district court's finding as to this factor, pointing as well to the efforts of Texas lawyers in state litigation. Id. The Third Circuit upheld the reasoning of the district court on this factor, and noted that even if the efforts of the Texas state claim lawyers were undervalued, this alone is not grounds to vacate a fee award. "Our task is to discern whether the Court's percentage-of-recovery analysis, when examined in its totality, supports the fee that it finally determined was appropriate," it held. Id. at 545. In Prudential, however, this factor was one of the overwhelming reasons (if not the primary reason) the Third Circuit vacated the fee award. However, this factor is one of degree; that is, the question is not whether there were efforts from outside groups, but rather whether class counsel relied on them to such an extent that it would not be appropriate to grant attorneys' fees based on the entire value of the settlement. The Third Circuit supported this notion when it stated that "the [District] Court determined that, whatever the Texas cases may have added, the recoveries arising from the MDL were due to the 'herculean efforts' of the [plaintiffs' management committee]—in developing the case against [the defendants], in negotiating an agreement that allowed [the defendants] to resolve the claims against it, and in amending the Settlement Agreement when it appeared to be in jeopardy." Id. at 544 (citing Diet Drugs, 553 F. Supp. 2d at 474).

6. In re Ins. Brokerage Antitrust Litig., 579 F.3d 241 (3d Cir. 2009)

In this case, the Third Circuit upheld the district court's award of attorneys' fees totaling $29,950,000, where the attorneys' fees were to be paid separately from the settlement fund benefiting class members, which was valued at $100,000,000. In re Ins. Brokerage Antitrust Litig., 579 F.3d 241, 248 (3d Cir. 2009). Beginning in October of 2004, various state attorneys general and state insurance departments began investigating alleged bid-rigging and steering activities of insurance brokers and insurers in the property and casualty insurance industry, in violation of antitrust law; at the same time, private parties commenced class actions in federal courts throughout the country (which were consolidated in February of 2005 in the District of New Jersey). Id. One of the defendants, the Zurich Defendants, also subject to state-level investigations, entered into a Memorandum of Understanding ("MOU") with the class plaintiffs in October of 2005, under which the Zurich Defendants would establish a settlement fund valued at $100,000,000. Id. at 250. Of the settlement fund, $29,900,000 would be earmarked to fund a separate settlement award. Id. at 252. The Zurich Defendants agreed to pay attorneys' fees up to $29,950,000, paid separately from the settlement fund. Id. at 253. After preliminary approval of the settlement, class counsel requested the distribution of the $29,950,000 as follows: $3,957,000 for litigation expenses, $150,000 for incentive awards for fifteen class representatives, and $25,803,000 for fees. Id.

The district court found that while attorneys' fees are to be paid separately from the settlement fund, this case was nevertheless analogous to the typical class action common fund settlement, in which attorneys' fees were drawn from the fund under the percentage-of-recovery method. Id. at 280. Thus, the value of the settlement would be a combined $129,950,000. Id. The district court then proceeded to engage in an abbreviated Gunter analysis.

7. In re Linerboard Antitrust Litig., MDL No. 1261, 2004 WL 1221350 (E.D. Pa. June 2, 2004)

a. Overview

In this case, the district court found that, after analysis of the Gunter/Prudential factors, the requested attorneys' fees of 30% of a $202,572,489 settlement was reasonable. In re Linerboard Antitrust Litig., MDL No. 1261, 2004 WL 1221350, at *19 (E.D. Pa. June 2, 2004). The district court also approved reimbursement of litigation costs in the amount of $1,391,203.36. Id. The court found that where class counsel was particularly skilled and able to litigate the case with fewer hours expended, attorneys' fees should serve to reward such efficiency, and any downward adjustment would inappropriately punish counsel for skilled lawyering. Id. at *16.

b. Procedural Posture/Factual Background

This district court opinion addresses the request for attorneys' fees resulting from an antitrust action involving allegations that a number of US manufacturers of linerboard engaged in a continuing combination of conspiracy and unreasonable restraint of trade and commerce in violation of the Sherman Act. Linerboard, 2004 WL 1221350, at *1. Seven lawsuits were instituted after an administrative complaint was filed by the FTC against defendant Stone Container Corporation was resolved by a consent decree. Id. The lawsuits were consolidated in the Eastern District of Pennsylvania by the Judicial Panel on Multidistrict Litigation. Id. The total settlement amount among all the defendants totaled $202,572,489, with class counsel requesting 30% of the settlement value (approximately $60 million) plus reimbursement of $1,391,203.36 in litigation costs. Id. at *2.

c. The District Court's Finding that the Requested Fees are Reasonable

i. The First Gunter Factor: The Size of the Fund Created and the Number of Persons Benefitted

The district court found that this factor weighed in favor of approving the attorneys' fees request, on the ground that the size of the fund represented more than half of the claimed damages, and the class size of 80,000 was sufficiently large. Id. at *4-5. The plaintiffs had retained an economic expert that estimated that during the class period, the costs of boxes and sheets were 2.7% higher than they would have been absent the alleged conspiracy, representing a total of $478 million. Id. Thus, the settlements represented about 55% of the damages. Id. Furthermore, the class size of 80,000 companies weighed in favor of granting the request. Id. at *5.

ii. The Second Gunter Factor: The Presence or Absence of Substantial Objections by Members of the Class to the Fee Request

The district court found that "in this case class members are represented by counsel. Further, the classes in this cases [sic] include many of the largest corporations in America . . . Based on the foregoing, the Court concludes that consideration of the of the second Gunter factor . . . supports granting the Fee Petition." Id.

iii. The Third Gunter Factor: the Skill and Efficiency of Counsel

The district court found that this factor weighed in favor of granting the requested attorneys' fees, observing that "[t]hroughout every phase of the litigation petitioners managed a major discovery effort . . . In terms of document discovery alone, defendants produced more than 430 boxes of documents containing more than one (1) million pages of records." Id. at *10. The district court also observed that "most [of the] informal efforts at resolution [between class and defense counsel] have proved successful and the Court's involvement has only been required on a few occasions." Id. (internal citations omitted). This suggests that under this factor, courts may consider the ability for counsel to resolve issues cooperatively and independently.

iv. The Fourth Gunter Factor: the Complexity and Duration of Litigation

The district court noted that the litigation had been going on for six years, and that there was a high possibility that should the case proceed to trial, it could continue for several more years. Id. The district court also noted that there was previous authority for granting a similar fee award in a case where the settlement occurred much earlier in the litigation process, such as in In re Ikon Office Solutions Inc. Sec. Litig., 194 F.R.D. 166, 194 (E.D. Pa. 2000), where the court had awarded 30% of a $111 million settlement in attorneys' fees after one and a half years of litigation. Linerboard, 2004 WL 1221350, at *10.

v. The Fifth Gunter Factor: the Risk of Non-Payment

The district court called attention to several important facts in this case pertaining to this factor. First, the district court noted that the FTC investigation into one of the defendants had been, according to one antitrust expert, "at the cutting edge of single firm antitrust liability." Id. at *11 (internal citations omitted) (internal quotation marks omitted). Because there had "never been a successfully litigated antitrust claim of a single firm attempt to conspire to raise prices or reduce out-put based solely, or even primarily, on market conduct by the defendant firm," the class faced significant risks of non-payment stemming from the uncertainty or the low success rate of this type of litigation. Id. (internal citations omitted) (internal quotation marks omitted).

Second, even though the district court found that the FTC had launched an investigation into one of the defendants, the district court adopted the view of the Second Circuit, which asked whether the defendants' liability was "prima facie established by the government's successful action." Id. (quoting City of Detroit v. Grinnell Corp., 495 F.2d 448, 455 (2d Cir. 1974), abrogated on other grounds by Goldberger v. Integrated Res., Inc., 209 F.3d 43 (2d Cir. 2000)). Here, the FTC did not successfully establish, prima facie, the defendant's liability. Linerboard, 2004 WL 1221350, at *11. The emphasis on this factor may also be considered to be an analysis under one of the Prudential factors, which analyzes the degree to which class counsel has relied on other entities to create the value of the settlement. In this case, the district court found that the FTC investigation had not played any significant role, and therefore class counsel could be considered to have created the entire value of the settlement. Id.

Finally, the defendants stated their intention to exploit several perceived weaknesses in the class' evidence of liability, such as the lack of direct evidence of a meeting among the defendants where the alleged conspiracy to violate antitrust laws would have taken place. This, supplemented by the fact that there might have been other reasons for the increase of prices, made it much more difficult for the class to establish liability at trial. Id. at *12.

vi. The Sixth Gunter Factor: the Amount of Time Devoted by Counsel

Where counsel reported spending 51,268 hours on the litigation, the district court found it remarkable that "[f]ewer hours of attorney time were expended in this case than in comparable litigation. . . . This development should be rewarded when it reflects, as in this case, the efficiency of counsel in maximizing total recovery to the class by minimizing attorneys' fees expenses." Id. at *13. This weighed in favor toward granting the fee request.

vii. The Seventh Gunter Factor: Awards in Similar Cases

The district court found that this factor weighed in favor of granting the requested attorneys' fees, since "[m]any of the decisions cited by the Third Circuit involved settlements similar in size to the settlement in this litigation and the courts awarded fees in those cases comparable to the 30 percent fee requested by petitioners." Id. at *13 (citing Cendant, 243 F.3d at 737). The district court also took note of a then-recent Judicial Center study finding the median attorney fee awards in federal class actions to range between 27 and 30%. Id. at *14. The district court observed that "recent empirical data analyzing fee awards in securities cases indicates that regardless of size, fees average 32 percent of the settlement." Id. (internal citations omitted) (internal quotation marks omitted). The district court found these studies to be persuasive and that this factor weighed in favor of granting the requested fees.

viii. The Lodestar Cross-Check

At an average mixed rate of $440, the lodestar value for 51,268 hours of work would be $22,557,920. Id. at *16. This would mean that under the requested 30% fee, the lodestar multiplier would be 2.66. Id. The district court found that since the Third Circuit has found the appropriate lodestar multiplier ceiling to be either 3 (Cendant, 243 F.3d at 742), or 4 (Prudential, 148 F.3d at 341), a lodestar multiplier of 2.66 was within the appropriate range. Id. Furthermore, the district court took note of empirics suggesting that "during 2001-2003, the average multiplier approved in common fund class actions was 4.35 and during the 30 year period from 1973-2003, the average multiplier approved in common fund class actions was 3.89." Id.

ix. An Exception to the Traditional "Sliding Scale" Approach

While most courts consider a sliding scale approach (where the percentage of recovery decreases as the settlement value increases) to be appropriate for awarding attorneys' fees, here the district court rejected that notion. The district court stated: "[o]ne might argue that a fee award of 20 percent of settlements in excess of $200 [sic] [million] is excessive given the absolute figure, approximately $60 million, that such an award produces. The Court rejects that thinking in this case because the highly favorable settlement was attributable to the petitioners' skill and it is inappropriate to penalize them for their success." Id. at *16.

8. In re Flonase Antitrust Litig., 951 F. Supp. 2d 739 (E.D. Pa. 2013)

a. Overview

In this case, the district court granted a request for attorneys' fees in the amount of one-third of the settlement fund—$50 million of $150 million—and reimbursement of expenses in the amount of $2,069,433. In re Flonase Antitrust Litig., 951 F. Supp. 2d 739, 746 (E.D. Pa. 2013). While class counsel also requested incentive awards of $85,000 and $75,000 for two of the class representatives, the district court reduced these awards to $50,000 and $40,000, respectively. Id. at 752.

b. Procedural Posture and Factual Background

In this opinion, the district court was presented with a request for attorneys' fees in the amount of one-third of the settlement value, reimbursement of costs, and incentive awards. The plaintiff class of 33 direct purchasers of Flonase, a brand-name nasal corticosteroid used to treat nasal inflammation caused by allergies, brought suit alleging that defendant SmithKline Beecham Corporation ("GSK") improperly delayed the entry of a generic version of the drug, resulting in overcharges to the class. Id. at 741. The complaint was filed in 2008; discovery began in late 2008 and continued through mid-2010. Id. The class was certified after a round of oral argument in November of 2010. Id. Two years later, in November of 2012, the parties reached a settlement agreement whereby GSK agreed to create a $150 million common settlement fund. Id. at 742. The settlement itself was preliminarily approved in January of 2013. Id. Class counsel was requesting $50 million for attorneys' fees, $2,069,433 in costs, and $85,000 and $75,000 in incentive awards to two class representatives. Id. at 746.

c. The District Court's Gunter/Prudential Analysis

i. The First Gunter Factor: the Size of the Fund and the Number of Beneficiaries

The district court found that the $150 million settlement, distributed pro rata among the 33 class members, to be "sizable." Id. at 747. Even though the class size is small as compared to other antitrust litigation, the district court observed that the "immediate and certain payment" to class members weighed in favor of approving the fee. Id.

ii. The Second Gunter Factor: the Presence of Substantial Objections by Class Members to the Requested Fees

Succinctly, the district court found that "there are no objections by any class members to this settlement. This factor strongly supports approval of the requested fee." Id.

iii. The Third Gunter Factor: The Skill and Efficiency of Counsel

The district court found that this factor weighed in favor of granting the request for attorneys' fees, stating that counsel "have extensive experience in plaintiff-side class action, with particular expertise in delayed generic entry cases. Indeed, counsel for both sides were knowledgeable, tenacious, and highly skillful. . . . [T]he $150 million settlement award represents a substantial amount and clearly demonstrates the value of class counsel's efforts." Id.

iv. The Fourth Gunter Factor: the Complexity and Duration of Litigation

With regard to this factor, the district court noted that the action "involve[d] highly complex antitrust issues, FDA bioequivalence standards for suspension nasal spray products, pharmaceutical manufacturing and supply issues, and pharmaceutical regulatory issues, all of which were investigated and litigated for more than four years." Id. at 743. Furthermore, the parties settled after performing significant trial preparation, including "litigating Daubert challenges, identifying hundreds of trial exhibits, and briefing over a dozen motions in limine between them." Id.

v. The Fifth Gunter Factor: the Risk of Non-Payment

The district court considered the risk of non-payment here "not negligible," as "success in this litigation was in no way guaranteed." Id. at 747-48. In addition, it was not enough to say that the plaintiff-class would likely have succeeded on the merits at establishing liability, as "there [was] no guarantee they would have recovered damages." Id. at 748. Of course, since most plaintiff-side counsel in class actions work on a contingency-basis, there was a risk of nonpayment in the event that the class was unsuccessful at trial. Id. All of these reasons supported granting the fee request.

vi. The Sixth Gunter Factor: the Time Devoted by Counsel to the Case

According to the declaration of class counsel, more than 40,000 hours was spent in total on the litigation in this case. Id. The district court noted that "[t]he record of this litigation also indicated that the time spent by Plaintiffs' counsel was necessary for the successful prosecution of this case, considering the complexity of the issues and the robust defense mounted by the defendants." Id. The district court found this factor to weigh in favor of granting the fee request.

vii. The Seventh Gunter Factor: Awards in Similar Cases

The district court noted that, at the time of the opinion in 2013, "in the last two-and-a-half years, courts in eight direct-purchaser antitrust actions approved one-third fees." Id. The district court looked more to the subject matter of the underlying litigation when comparing class action settlements than to the size.

viii. The First Prudential Factor: the Value of Benefits Attributable to the Efforts of Class Relative to the Efforts of Other Groups

In this case, there was no government investigation on which class counsel could rely to aid in its litigation efforts. Id. at 748-49. This factor weighed strongly in favor of granting the fee request.

ix. The Second Prudential Factor: the Percentage that Would Have Been Negotiated

While other district court opinions have cited to empirical data on the average contingency fee set between parties, the district court here chose to "not give great weight to this hypothetical exercise," thus leaving the factor neutral. Id. at 749 (quoting Prudential, 148 F.3d at 340) (internal quotation marks omitted).

x. The Third Prudential Factor: Innovative Terms of Settlement

The district court also found this factor to be neutral, as the settlement agreement was fairly standard. Id.

xi. Lodestar Cross-Check

The lodestar value, based on nearly 41,000 hours and rates between $120 and $795, was calculated to be $16,750,000 at an average of $407 per hour. Id. at 750. The lodestar multiplier was determined to be 2.99, which the district court found to be "generally within the acceptable range." Id. at 751.

d. The District Court's Grant of Litigation Costs

With litigation costs reported at $2,069,433, the district court found that the expenses, which were primarily attributable to the payment of experts and document management, to be reasonable. Id. at 750.

e. The District Court's Grant of Incentive Awards

Interestingly, the district court adjusted the value of the incentive awards downward from what was requested. While counsel requested $85,000 and $75,000 awards for two of the class representatives, the district court lowered the values to $50,000 and $40,000, respectively. Id. at 751. The district court provided a rather cursory reason for the downward adjustment, stating "[t]hough incentive awards are appropriate in this case, the requested amounts are too large." Id. The district court went on to state that "an incentive award of $50,000 and $40,000 is within the range of payments awarded by courts within the Third Circuit in other direct purchaser antitrust litigation." Id. at 752.

C. Summary of Conclusions

Considering the outstanding conduct of Plaintiffs' counsel throughout this litigation, as reflected in the opinions cited above, and the Third Circuit precedents on award of attorneys' fees, the Court now turns to counsel's performance in this case and in the context of the factors in Gunter and the other cases cited above (not necessarily in order of importance).

1. Plaintiffs' counsel are experienced antitrust lawyers who have been working in this field of law for many years and have brought with them a sophisticated and highly professional approach to gathering persuasive evidence on the topic of price-fixing.

2. The briefs filed by Plaintiffs' counsel were consistently of high quality.

3. Plaintiffs' counsel were up against highly skilled defense counsel, who represented the Defendants in this case with vigor and substantive briefing to try to persuade this Court that Plaintiffs did not have a case, and should not be allowed to represent a class of direct purchasers. The Court considered the defense arguments carefully and considerably, but generally sided with the Plaintiffs because of the outstanding work of Plaintiffs' counsel as presented in this petition for approval of fees.

4. There was no government case or investigation, on which Plaintiffs could build their own case. Few cases with no government action, or investigation, result in class settlements as large as this one.

5. The Plaintiffs' conduct in discovery, particularly the use of digital searching methods, yielded a number of incriminating documents, which together with deposition testimony and other evidence, persuaded the Court that Defendants' motions for summary judgments should be denied and that a class of direct purchasers should be certified.

6. The use of the conduit theory in pursuing third-party research/marketing firms in this industry was very innovative and important in gathering evidence.

7. The performance of Plaintiffs' counsel on the class action issues was imaginative, bringing forth great quantity of persuasive evidence that common issues predominated and that the Plaintiffs' case had merit.

8. These cases also attracted a number of very large homebuilders, who had filed their own Complaint in the Northern District of California, which was consolidated with these class actions. The Court believes that the Plaintiffs in those cases have benefitted greatly from the work done by the class plaintiffs who have filed this motion for attorneys' fee. The class attorneys are obviously not entitled to any compensation from the individual plaintiffs, but as a "reality check," the Court believes that the homebuilder plaintiffs have benefitted from the work of the class plaintiffs.

9. Number of persons benefitted – the Direct Purchasers of drywall constitute a very large class of both entities involved in distribution and resale of drywall such as major so-called "big box" retailers: Home Depot, Lowe's, e.g., and also Homebuilders (12 large homebuilders, as noted above, have their own litigation pending).

10. Skill and efficiency of the attorneys – although the Court has commented on this above, it bears repeating that the result attained is directly attributable to having highly skilled and experienced lawyers represent the class in these cases. The Court has had personal (and pleasant) experiences with many of the lawyers in this case, representing both Plaintiffs and Defendants, for many years, including during my extensive practice on antitrust litigation while in private practice, and is personally knowledgeable of the high degree of their competence.

11. Antitrust litigation is complex and challenging. This is particularly true for Plaintiffs' counsel in a case where there has been no government investigation.

12. Duration of the litigation – this case was filed in 2013 and although approximately years may seem like a long time for a case to be pending, it is not that long when compared to other antitrust cases brought as class actions.

13. Class action status – although much has been written of some abuses in the bringing of class actions, in the Court's view, the substantial results warrant a conclusion that in an antitrust price-fixing case, class actions have resulted in multi-billion dollars in damages, that have been paid out by defendants who were either convicted of price-fixing in criminal cases, found liable in civil cases, or as in this case, agreed to settle. Thus, as far as antitrust price-fixing cases are concerned, Rule 23 has been not only generous to the attorneys who bring these cases, but much more so to individuals who have paid higher prices for various goods, over many decades, and would not have collected anything but for the efforts of plaintiffs' class action counsel.

14. Innovative Terms in the Settlement Agreement – the Court is not aware of any innovative terms in this settlement agreement. However, class counsel have had extensive experience in other class settlements in antitrust cases and bring that experience to this case. Also, the Court is assured that the settlement process will be moving forward, including the distribution of the settlement funds to class members, will be handled efficiently and expertly.

15. The Amount of Costs – although the expenses involved are considerable, the costs involved in securing the facts, largely through detailed electronic discovery strategies, which inherently involve consultants and expertise, and through the experts retained on both the class action and liability aspects of the case. In addition, the Court finds that the expenses that will be incurred in the distribution of the funds are reasonable and that class counsel will be using firms with expertise in this area and will supervise them carefully.

Although the above discussion covers most of the Gunter issues, the Court will review them for sake of completeness:

1. The size of the fund created and the number of the class are both large and reflect outstanding work by counsel.

2. There are no objections to this settlement. The only opt-outs are the homebuilders who have filed their own separate case which is still pending on pretrial matters in this Court but will be remanded to the Northern District of California after the completion of pretrial proceedings.

3. As noted above extensively, the class counsel exhibited skill and efficiency at all times.

4. This case is obviously a complex price-fixing case which had large volumes of discovery and legal briefing on many issues.

5. The risk of non-payment is unknown but quite possible that some of the Defendants who were adversely affected by the recent recession may have been at risk of filing for bankruptcy.

6. Although Plaintiffs' counsel spent many hours working on this case, the Court finds that the amount of time was warranted and if Plaintiffs' counsel had not worked as many hours as they did, this case may have resulted in summary judgment being granted for all Defendants, or Plaintiffs being unable to proceed to trial.

7. Awards in similar cases support the award in this case. A cross-check of the percentage awarded with the multiplier, based on total hours multiplied by hourly rates, shows the total fee requested and awarded is not excessive.

8. Under many precedents, the general rubric in this geographical area is that a 1/3 attorneys' fee is often the standard in contingent fee cases in "routine" personal injury and product liability cases, plus reimbursement to counsel for expenses.

CONCLUSION

As the above discussion shows, very few precedents have awarded this percentage amount in antitrust and securities cases. The Court finds the total hours claimed is accurate and reasonable. The lodestar $38,058,631.50 is also reasonable because the rates claimed are well within the range of rates charged by counsel in this district in complex cases. The Court finds the hours and rates to have been presented in an accurate and credible manner.

The Court follows Judge Brody's decision in In re Flonase Antitrust Litig., 951 F. Supp. 2d 739 (E.D. Pa. 2013), which has many similar features to this case.

In considering all of the factors above, the Court has decided to award the requested one-third of the $190,059,056 Combined Settlement Fund as attorneys' fees, in the amount of $63,353,019. A significant factor in awarding the full one-third requested is the delay in payment. Class counsel have labored for approximately six years, including pre-suit investigation, without any payment.

Class counsel will also be awarded expenses in the amount of $2,925,629, and the funds in the opt-out fee and expense account of $610,236. The Court will award incentive awards to the four named Plaintiffs in the amount of $50,000 each as in line with other cases. The Court will not award accrued interest.

A cross-check with the lodestar confirms that this award of attorneys' fees is reasonable. Dividing the net amount of attorneys' fees, $63,353,019, by the lodestar, $38,058,631.50, yields a lodestar multiplier of 1.66, which is reasonable and lower than in some of the cases described above.

Applying a reasonable multiplier of the lodestar, for judicial factors such as contingency, delay and payment risk, etc., the Court finds there is a reasonable correlation between an award of fees of one-third of the Combined Settlement Fund plus costs.

BY THE COURT:

/s/ Michael M. Baylson

MICHAEL M. BAYLSON
United States District Court Judge

O:\13-MD-2437 - drywall\13md2437 Memorandum DPP Action re Atty Fees.docx

TAB 8B

IN THE UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
FOR THE EASTERN DISTRICT OF PENNSYLVANIA

IN RE: DOMESTIC DRYWALL ANTITRUST LITIGATION	MDL No. 2437 13-MD-2437
THIS DOCUMENT RELATES TO: ALL DIRECT PURCHASER ACTIONS	Hon. Michael M. Baylson

MEMORANDUM OF LAW IN SUPPORT OF DIRECT PURCHASER PLAINTIFFS' MOTION FOR AN AWARD OF ATTORNEYS' FEES, REIMBURSEMENT OF LITIGATION EXPENSES, AND SERVICE AWARDS FOR THE CLASS REPRESENTATIVES

TABLE OF CONTENTS

I. INTRODUCTION 1

II. BACKGROUND 3

A. Prosecution of the Case.....3

B. The Settlements and the Combined Settlement Fund.....6

C. Notice Regarding Co-Lead Counsel's Request for Attorneys' Fees, Reimbursement of Litigation Expenses, and Service Awards.....8

III. THE REQUESTED ATTORNEYS' FEES ARE REASONABLE.....9

A. A Reasonable Percentage of the Fund Recovered Is the Appropriate Method for Awarding Class Counsel's Attorneys' Fees in this Common Fund Settlement 9

B. A Fee Award of One-Third of the Combined Settlement Fund Is Fair and Reasonable 10

1. An award of one-third is reasonable based on the size of the Combined Settlement Fund and the number of entities benefitted. 11

2. Analysis of any potential objections to the fee request is premature.....12

3. Class Counsel are skilled and efficient litigators. 12

4. The complexity and duration of the litigation.....13

5. Class Counsel faced a risk of nonpayment. 14

6. Class Counsel devoted nearly 80,000 hours to prosecuting this action. 15

7. One-third of the Combined Settlement Fund is a typical and reasonable fee award for cases like this one. 15

8. Class Counsel prosecuted the litigation without help from government agencies. 17

9. The requested fee is consistent with the percentage fee that would have been negotiated in a private contingent fee arrangement.....18

10. The factor of any innovative terms is neutral. 19

C. A Cross-Check of Class Counsel's Lodestar Confirms the Reasonableness of the Requested Fee 19

1. Class Counsel's lodestar is reasonable. 20

2. The multiplier mitigates in favor of the requested fee. 21

D. The Court Should Award Class Counsel the Funds in the Opt-Out Fee and Expense Account 22

IV. CLASS COUNSEL SHOULD BE REIMBURSED FOR THEIR REASONABLE LITIGATION EXPENSES 23

V. CLASS REPRESENTATIVES SHOULD BE AWARDED THE REQUESTED SERVICE AWARDS 24

VI. CONCLUSION 26

TABLE OF AUTHORITIES

Cases Page(s)

In re Aetna Inc. Securities Litig.,
No. CIV. A. MDL 1219, 2001 WL 20928 (E.D. Pa. Jan. 4, 2001) 23

In re AremisSoft Corp. Sec. Litig.,
210 F.R.D. 109 (D.N.J. 2002).....16

In re AT&T Corp. Sec. Litig.,
455 F.3d 160 (3d Cir. 2006).....9, 17

In re Auto. Refinishing Paint Antitrust Litig.,
No. 1426, 2008 WL 63269 (E.D. Pa. Jan. 3, 2008) 16

In re Automotive Refinishing Paint Antitrust Litig.,
MDL Docket No. 1426, 2004 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 29162 (E.D. Pa. Oct. 13, 2004) 21

In re Blech Sec. Litig.,
No. 94 Civ. 7696 (RWS), 2002 WL 31720381 (S.D.N.Y. Dec. 4, 2002) 17

Blum v. Stenson,
465 U.S. 886 (1984).....10

Boeing Co. v. Van Gemert,
444 U.S. 472 (1980).....10

Bradburn Parent Teacher Store, Inc. v. 3M,
513 F. Supp. 2d 322 (E.D. Pa. 2007) 16, 18, 25

Castro v. Sanofi Pasteur Inc.,
Civ. No. 11-7178, 2017 WL 4776626 (D. N.J. Oct. 23, 2017).....10, 15

Caudle v. Bristow Optical Co., Inc.,
224 F.3d 1014 (9th Cir. 2000) 20

In re Cendant Corp. Prides Litig.,
243 F.3d 722 (3d Cir. 2001).....13, 21

In re Cendant Corp. Sec. Litig.,
404 F.3d 173 (3d Cir. 2005).....10

In re Continental Ill. Sec. Litig.,
962 F.2d 566 (7th Cir. 1992) 18

In re Corel Corp. Sec. Litig.,
293 F. Supp. 2d 484 (E.D. Pa. 2003) 16, 23

Cullen v. Whitman Medical Corp.,
197 F.R.D. 136 (E.D. Pa. 2000).....12

In re Diet Drugs Prod. Liab. Litig.,
553 F. Supp. 2d 442, 481 (E.D. Pa. 2008).....17

In re Diet Drugs Prod. Liab. Litig.,
582 F.3d 524 (3d Cir. 2009)..... passim

In re Fasteners Antitrust Litig.,
No. 08-md-1912, 2014 WL 296954 (E.D. Pa. Jan. 27, 2014).....3, 15, 18

In re Flonase Antitrust Litig.,
291 F.R.D. 93 (E.D. Pa. 2013).....14, 16

In re Flonase Antitrust Litig.,
951 F. Supp. 2d 739 (E.D. Pa. 2013).....11, 15, 16

In re Gen. Instrument Sec. Litig.,
209 F. Supp. 2d 423 (E.D. Pa. 2001).....16

In re GMC Pick-Up Truck Fuel Tank Prods. Liab. Litig.,
55 F.3d 768 (3d Cir. 1995).....10

In re Graphite Electrodes Antitrust Litig.,
No. 2:10-md-01244-NS, ECF 527 (E.D. Pa. Sep. 8, 2003).....26

Gunter v. Ridgewood Energy Corp.,
223 F.3d 190 (3d Cir. 2000).....10, 11, 17, 19

Hall v. Best Buy Co.,
274 F.R.D. 154 (E.D. Pa. 2011).....14

In re High-Tech Employee Antitrust Litig.,
No. 11–CV–02509, 2015 WL 5158730 (N.D. Cal. Sept. 2, 2015).....26

In re Hypodermic Prods. Antitrust Litig.,
No. 05-1602, ECF 461 (D.N.J. Apr. 10, 2013).....16

In re Ikon Office Solutions, Inc.,
194 F.R.D. 166 (E.D. Pa. 2000).....12, 18, 23

In re Ins. Brokerage Antitrust Litig.,
579 F.3d 241 (3d Cir. 2009).....9

In re K-Dur Antitrust Litig.,
No. 01-cv-1652, ECF 1058 (D.N.J. Oct. 5, 2017).....15

Kirsch v. Delta Dental,
534 Fed. Appx. 113 (3d Cir. 2013) 3, 9

Lazy Oil Co. v. Wotco Corp.,
95 F. Supp. 2d 290 (W.D. Pa. 1997) 15

In re Linerboard Antitrust Litig.,
292 F. Supp. 2d 644 (E.D. Pa. 2003) 22

In re Linerboard Antitrust Litig.,
MDL 1261, 2004 WL 1221350 (E.D. Pa. June 2, 2004) ..... passim

Maley v. Del Global Techs. Corp.,
186 F. Supp. 2d 358 (S.D.N.Y. 2002) 17

Marchbanks Truck Serv. v. Comdata Network, Inc.,
No. 07-1078-JKG, 2014 WL 12738907 (E.D. Pa. July 14, 2014) 3, 11, 16, 25

McCoy v. Health Net, Inc.,
569 F. Supp. 2d 448 (D.N.J. 2008) 26

McGee v. Ann's Choice, Inc.,
No. 12-2664, 2014 WL 2514582 (E.D. Pa. June 4, 2014) 25

In re Mego Fin. Corp. Sec. Litig.,
213 F.3d 454 (9th Cir. 2000) 16

Mehling v. New York Life Ins. Co.,
248 F.R.D. 455 (E.D. Pa. 2008) 18

Meijer, Inc. v. 3M,
No. 04-5871, 2006 WL 2382718 (E.D. Pa. Aug. 14, 2006) 21, 23

Menkes v. Stolt-Nielsen S.A.,
No. 3:03CV00409(DJS), 2011 WL 13234815 (D. Conn. Jan. 25, 2011) 17

In re Merck & Co. Vytorin ERISA Litig., Civ. No. 08-CV-285, 2010 WL 547613 (D.N.J. Feb. 9, 2010) 19

In re Metoprolol Succinate Antitrust Litig.,
No. 06-52, ECF 193 (D. Del. Feb. 21, 2012) 16

Mohney v. Shelly's Prime Steak, Stone Crab & Oyster Bar,
No. 06 Civ. 4270 (PAC), 2009 WL 5851465 (S.D.N.Y. Mar. 31, 2009) 17

Montague v. Dixie Nat. Life Ins. Co.,
No. 3:09-00687-JFA, 2011 WL 3626541 (D.S.C. Aug. 17, 2011) 18

In re Motorsports Merch. Antitrust Litig.,
112 F. Supp. 2d 1329 (N.D. Ga. 2000) 13

Mylan Pharmaceuticals, Inc. v. Warner Chilcott Public Limited Company,
No. 12-3824, 2014 WL 12778314 (E.D. Pa. Sep. 15, 2014) 16, 18

In re Neurontin Antitrust Litig.,
No. 02-1830, ECF 114 (D.N.J. Aug. 6, 2014) 11, 16

Nichols v. SmithKline Beecham Corp.,
No. Civ.A.00-6222, 2005 WL 950616 (E.D. Pa. April 22, 2005) 21, 23

Nitsch v. DreamWorks Animation SKG Inc.,
No. 14-CV-04062, 2017 WL 2423161 (N.D. Cal. June 5, 2017).....26

In re OSB Antitrust Litig.,
No. 2:06-cv-00826-PD, Order, ECF 947 (E.D. Pa. Dec. 9, 2008)..... passim

In re Plastic Tableware Antitrust Litig.,
No. 94-3564, 1995 WL 723175 (E.D. Pa. Dec. 4, 1995).....25

In re Prudential Ins. Co. Am. Sales Practice Litig. Agent Actions,
148 F.3d 283 (3d Cir. 1998).....10, 11, 20, 22

In re Ravisent Techs., Inc. Sec. Litig.,
No. Civ.A.00-CV-1014, 2005 WL 906361 (E.D. Pa. Apr. 18, 2005) 16, 21

In re Remeron Direct Purchaser Antitrust Litig.,
No. Civ. 03-0085, 2005 WL 3008808 (D.N.J. Nov. 9, 2005) 18

In re Rent-Way Sec. Litig.,
305 F. Supp. 2d 491 (W.D. Pa. 2003).....14, 21, 23

In re Revco Securities Litig.,
Nos. 851 & 89CV593, 1992 WL 118800 (N.D. Ohio May 6, 1992) 26

In re Rite Aid Corp. Securities Litigation,
396 F.3d 294 (3d Cir. 2005).....19, 20, 21

Rochester Drug Co-Operative, Inc. v. Braintree Labs., Inc.,
No. 1:07-cv-00142, ECF 243 (D. Del. May 31, 2012) 16

Shaw v. Interthinx, Inc.,
No. 13–cv–01229–REB–NYW, 2015 WL 1867861 (D. Colorado Apr. 21, 2015) 17

In re Southeastern Milk Antitrust Litig.,
No. 2:07-CV 208, 2013 WL 2155387 (E.D. Tenn. May 17, 2013).....17

Sprague v. Ticonic Nat'l Bank,
307 U.S. 161 (1939).....10

Standard Iron Works v. ArcelorMittal,
No. 08 C 5214, 2014 WL 7781572 (N.D. Ill. Oct. 22, 2014).....16

Steele v. Welch,
No. 03-6596, 2005 WL 3801469 (E.D. Pa. May 20, 2005) (Baylson, J.) 16, 21

Sullivan v. DB Invs., Inc.,
667 F.3d 273 (3d Cir. 2011).....24

In re Tricor Direct Purchaser Antitrust Litig.,
No. 05-cv-340, 2009 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 133251 (D. Del. April 23, 2009) 16

In re U.S. Foodservice, Inc. Pricing Litig.,
No. 07-md-01894, ECF 521 (D. Conn. Dec. 9, 2014).....16

In re Universal Service Fund Telephone Billing Practices Litigation,
No. 02–MD–1468–JWL, 2011 WL 1808038 (D. Kan. May 12, 2011).....17

Varacallo v. Mass. Mut. Life Ins. Co.,
226 F.R.D. 207 (D.N.J. 2005).....21

Velez v. Novartis Pharm. Corp.,
No. 04 Civ. 09194, 2010 WL 4877852 (S.D.N.Y. Nov. 30, 2010) 26

In re Viropharma Inc. Sec. Litig.,
No. 12-2714, 2016 WL 312108 (E.D. Pa. Jan. 25, 2016).....10

In re Washington Pub. Power Supply Sys. Sec. Litig.,
19 F.3d 1291 (9th Cir. 1994) 10

In re Wellbutrin SR Antitrust Litig.,
No. 04-5525, 2011 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 158833 (E.D. Pa. Nov. 21, 2011) 16

In re Wellbutrin XL Antitrust Litig.,
No. 08-cv-2431, ECF 485 (E.D. Pa. Nov. 7, 2012).....16

Other Authorities

Denise N. Martin, Vinita M. Juneja, Todd S. Foster & Frederick C. Dunbar, Recent Trends IV: What Explains Filings and Settlements in Shareholder Class Actions? 2 STAN. J.L. BUS. & FIN. (1996).....17

Eisenberg & Miller, Attorney Fees in Class Action Settlements: An Empirical Study.....18

Manual for Complex Litigation, § 14.121 (4th ed. 2004).....10

Report of Third Circuit Task Force: Court Awarded Attorney Fees, 108 F.R.D. 237 (1985).....10

Report of Third Circuit Task Force: Selection of Class Counsel, 208 F.R.D. 340 (2002).....10, 19

Direct Purchaser Plaintiffs Sierra Drywall Systems, Inc., Janicki Drywall, Inc., New Deal Lumber & Millwork Co., and Grubb Lumber Co., Inc., as representatives of the direct purchaser class ("Class Representatives"[1] or "Plaintiffs"), respectfully move the Court for an Order (1) awarding Direct Purchaser Plaintiffs' Counsel ("Class Counsel") one-third of the Combined Settlement Fund as attorneys' fees,[2] (2) reimbursing Class Counsel's $2,925,628.98 in litigation costs and expenses, and (3) awarding each Class Representative a service award of $75,000 for its contributions to the litigation, to be paid from the Combined Settlement Fund.

I. INTRODUCTION

Through more than five years of litigation, Class Counsel devoted tremendous effort and expended millions of dollars of unreimbursed out-of-pocket expenses to pursue antitrust claims on behalf of direct purchasers of paper-backed gypsum wallboard ("Wallboard" or "Drywall").[3] This work included:

- Claim development. The initial complaint was filed in December 2012, and stemmed not from a prior government investigation but from Co-Lead Class Counsel's pre-filing factual investigation. The allegations of the consolidated class complaint were so robust that Defendants did not even seek to dismiss it.

- Merits discovery. Plaintiffs engaged in substantial merits discovery, including the review of voluminous business records from the nine Defendants and various third parties, and taking 33 depositions, as well as reviewing and producing the Class Representatives' documents and defending their depositions. Plaintiffs also worked with their economics expert who produced two rounds of reports

[1] The Court appointed Sierra Drywall Systems, Inc., Janicki Drywall, Inc., New Deal Lumber & Millwork Co., and Grubb Lumber Co., Inc. as representatives of the direct purchaser class. ECF No. 631, (class certification) Order, ¶ 3, and has also appointed them as class representatives for each of the direct purchaser settlement classes.

[2] As discussed below, Co-Lead Class Counsel also request that the Court award Class Counsel all funds that have been deposited in the Opt-Out Fee and Expense Account (currently $610,236, plus accrued interest) created by the settlement agreements.

[3] Class Counsel includes the three firms appointed as Co-Lead Class Counsel, as well as the other firms representing direct purchaser plaintiffs who contributed to the class litigation. See Class Counsel's Fee and Expense Declarations ("Class Counsel's Decls."), attached hereto as Exhibit 1. The extensive efforts of Class Counsel are detailed more fully in the Declaration of H. Laddie Montague ("Montague Decl.") attached hereto as Exhibit 2.

(regarding merits), and took and defended 6 expert depositions in the direct purchaser action.

- Summary judgment. Following extensive summary judgment briefing, covering hundreds of pages and thousands of exhibits, the Court largely denied Defendants' motions and permitted the majority of Plaintiffs' case to move forward.

- Class certification. Direct Purchaser Plaintiffs prevailed in a hotly-contested class certification process that involved six separate party expert submissions, a technical advisor's report, oral argument, and a two-day evidentiary hearing with live expert testimony.

- Trial Preparation. Prior to the Joint Settlement negotiations, Co-Lead Class Counsel had commenced preparing for trial, including conducting a mock trial exercise with a jury research firm.

The success of those efforts is evident in the four substantial settlements negotiated by Co-Lead Class Counsel. As a result of the efforts of Class Counsel and the initiative and participation of the Class Representatives, settlements with eight Defendants, totaling approximately $190.7 million plus interest,[4] have now been achieved.[5] The settlements were obtained after prolonged and difficult negotiations with Defendants, each of which had significant resources at its disposal and was represented by highly capable and experienced counsel. For each settlement, Co-Lead Class Counsel prepared the settlement agreement and the attendant notices, orders, and preliminary and final approval documents, and supervised the work of the settlement administrator. The work is, of course, not over, as Co-Lead Class Counsel are preparing for the June 28, 2018 final approval hearing on the Joint Settlement, and will oversee the claims processing and the distribution of settlement funds to the class member claimants.

[4] This total includes the $610,236, plus interest, that has been deposited in the Opt-Out Fee and Expense Account created by the settlements.

[5] By no later than March 28, 2018, all these funds have been deposited into a Qualified Settlement Account and are earning interest for the Class.

Despite over five years of litigation and tens of millions of dollars in accrued lodestar, and despite earlier settlements of $65.7 million, Co-Lead Class Counsel have waited until now—the conclusion of the litigation—to request an award of attorneys' fees, reimbursement of Class Counsel's out-of-pocket litigation expenses, and service awards for the Class Representatives. The record in this case and the law of this Circuit fully support Class Counsel's request for a fee award of one-third of the Combined Settlement Fund, a request that is reasonable and well within the range of approval in the Third Circuit. See, e.g., Kirsch v. Delta Dental, 534 Fed. Appx. 113, 116 (3d Cir. 2013) (upholding fee of "roughly 36% of the District Court's conservative valuation" of the settlement value); Marchbanks Truck Serv. v. Comdata Network, Inc., No. 07-1078-JKG, 2014 WL 12738907, at *2-3 (E.D. Pa. July 14, 2014); In re Fasteners Antitrust Litig., No. 08-md-1912, 2014 WL 296954, at *7 (E.D. Pa. Jan. 27, 2014); see also § III.B.7, infra. Moreover, this fee request represents a multiple of only approximately 1.68 of Class Counsel's lodestar, based on historical hourly rates and time expended through December 31, 2017. Accordingly, Plaintiffs respectfully request that the Motion be granted.

II. BACKGROUND

A. Prosecution of the Case

This litigation began in 2012, when Plaintiffs filed lawsuits against Defendants on behalf of a class of direct purchasers of Drywall. The filing followed Co-Lead Class Counsel's investigation, which included interviews with many industry contacts and significant analysis of economic conditions, historical pricing, and the particular conduct that formed the gravamen of the claims. On February 7, 2013, the Court appointed the undersigned law firms to serve as interim co-lead counsel for the Direct Purchaser Plaintiffs. The Court also ordered consolidation of the direct purchaser actions and instructed Direct Purchaser Plaintiffs to file a consolidated amended complaint.[6]

For over five years, Co-Lead Class Counsel, along with other Class Counsel working under their supervision, have devoted nearly 80,000 hours developing and advancing the direct purchasers' claims, without the benefit of any preceding government investigation or criminal indictment.[7] The work done by Class Counsel included, but was not limited to:

- Investigating the building products industry generally, and the Drywall market specifically, and working with the Class Representatives to draft and file a comprehensive consolidated amended class action complaint, Montague Decl. ¶¶ 5-6, 9, 12-13;

- Negotiating with Defendants and coordinating with the indirect purchaser plaintiffs on discovery matters and status reports to the Court, id. ¶¶ 14-15, 17, 113, 116;

- Negotiating a comprehensive protocol for production of electronically stored information, and consulting with an outside expert regarding technology-assisted methods of review, id. ¶ 14;

- Drafting and negotiating a Protective Order governing confidential information, id.;

- Responding to a multitude of written discovery requests (including several sets of interrogatories, requests for production of documents, and requests for admission), negotiating the scope of that discovery, and processing, reviewing, and analyzing document productions from each Class Representative for potential production to Defendants, id. ¶¶ 24-25;

- Drafting discovery requests directed to all Defendants, followed by extensive meet-and-confer negotiations, in coordination with the indirect purchaser plaintiffs, with counsel for each Defendant, id. ¶¶ 9, 20-21;

- Processing more than 1.4 million documents (over 3.5 million pages) produced by Defendants and third parties, and reviewing, analyzing and coding documents

[6] ECF No. 59, Pretrial Order No. 1 and Report of Pretrial Conference.

[7] While there was no preceding government investigation or criminal indictment at the time Plaintiffs initiated their cases in 2012, well into the direct purchaser case, and likely because of it, the United States Department of Justice ("DOJ") issued document subpoenas to some Defendants in July 2015. See July 13, 2015 letter from Steven Bizar to Hon. Michael M. Baylson. To the best of Co-Lead Class Counsel's knowledge, the DOJ has not pursued its investigation any further.

selected with the aid of technology-assisted review tools, in coordination with the indirect purchaser plaintiffs, id. ¶¶ 19-23;

- Briefing and arguing discovery motions, e.g., id. ¶¶ 17, 25;

- Consulting with expert economists to analyze Defendants' transactional data, cost data, and other information produced in discovery to develop opinions relating to the Drywall market, antitrust impact, and damages, for purposes of class certification, summary judgment, and trial, e.g., id. ¶¶ 39, 44, 67, 75, 90;

- Preparing for and taking the depositions of 33 defense and third-party fact witnesses, in coordination with the indirect purchaser plaintiffs, id. ¶¶ 26-27;

- Preparing for and serving as the lead examiners in the depositions of 3 defense expert witnesses, 2 of which were done in coordination with the indirect purchaser plaintiffs, id. ¶ 43, 72;

- Preparing for and defending 5 depositions of corporate representatives of the 4 Class Representatives,[8] id. ¶ 28;

- Preparing for and defending 3 depositions of Dr. Russell Lamb, Plaintiffs' expert economist, id. ¶¶ 40, 68, 77;

- Briefing and arguing multiple motions for summary judgment filed by Defendants, as well as successfully opposing Defendants' petition to the Third Circuit for an interlocutory appeal of the Court's decision denying four out of five of those motions, id. ¶¶ 45-59, 98-101;

- Successfully briefing and arguing their motion for class certification and opposing to Defendants' Daubert motion to exclude Plaintiffs' economist, including preparing for oral argument and a two-day evidentiary hearing with live expert testimony, id. ¶¶ 66-97;

- Providing responses to the report of a Court-appointed technical advisor on econometric issues relating to class certification, id. ¶¶ 89-90;

- Successfully opposing Defendants' Rule 23(f) petition for appeal of the Court's decision certifying the direct purchaser class, id. ¶¶ 95-97;

- Beginning preparations for trial against the remaining Defendants, including a full-day jury research exercise and other extensive work with jury consultants, id. ¶ 102;

[8] In addition, 2 of the 5 third party depositions noticed and taken by Defendants were of representatives from PRSCO, the purchasing group to which Class Representative New Deal belonged, and which assigned New Deal its own share of PRSCO's direct purchaser claims in this litigation.

- Selecting a mediator, and preparing for and attending a full-day mediation, which resulted in the Joint Settlement, id. ¶ 103;

- Negotiating 4 settlements with 8 Defendants and preparing the settlement agreements and attendant notices, orders, and preliminary and final approval briefs; obtaining approval from the Court; and working with the claims administrator to design and send notices to the members of the settlement classes and to create and maintain a settlement website, id. ¶¶ 30-38, 60-65, 103-107; and

- Co-Lead Class Counsel's directing and supervising the participation of numerous law firms to assist in Co-Lead Class Counsel's prosecution of the case, including efficiently managing all firms' assignments, e.g., id. ¶¶ 21, 113.[9] Co-Lead Class Counsel performed these duties in accordance with Pretrial Order No.3, which included collecting time and expense reports from all Class Counsel on a monthly basis and submitting those reports to the Court on a quarterly basis. ECF No. 11 (Pretrial Order No. 3 – Case Management) at 6-8.

B. The Settlements and the Combined Settlement Fund

The Court approved three direct purchaser settlements (now final) in this case and dismissed those settling Defendants from the litigation. The first and second settlements, reached separately in February 2015 with Defendants TIN and USG[10] for $5.25 million and $39.25 million, respectively, were granted final approval on August 20, 2015.[11] In June 2016, Plaintiffs reached a settlement with Lafarge for $23 million, which was granted final approval on December 7, 2016.[12] While Co-Lead Class Counsel have not yet sought a fee or full reimbursement of their substantial [9] The Court applauded Co-Lead Class Counsel for including such management procedures in Pretrial Order No. 3 and on their proposed management of plaintiffs' firms' assignments. See ECF No. 12, Memorandum Re: Plaintiffs' Attorneys' Fees and Expenses; ECF No. 11, Pretrial Order No. 3 – Case Management. On February 7, 2013, the Court appointed now-designated Co-Lead Class Counsel as "interim co-lead counsel," which allowed them to begin managing plaintiffs' firms' assignments. See Case No. 2:12-cv-07106, ECF No. 59, Pretrial Order No. 1 and Report of Pretrial Conference, at 2; see also ECF No. 11, Pretrial Order No. 3 – Case Management, at 5.

[10] The USG entities are Defendants USG Corporation and United States Gypsum Company, and USG Corporation's former subsidiary L&W Supply Corporation.

[11] ECF Nos. 273, Memorandum Approving Class Action Settlement; ECF No. 276, USG Settlement Final Judgment Order; ECF No. 277, TIN Settlement Final Judgment Order.

[12] ECF No. 503, Lafarge Settlement Final Judgment Order. The Lafarge settlement payment was reduced to $21,169,292 due to requests for exclusion. In accordance with paragraphs 34 and 35 of the Lafarge Settlement Agreement, $610,236 of the Lafarge settlement payment was placed in the Opt-Out Fee and Expense Account. Id. ¶ 12.

out-of-pocket costs from these first three settlements, the Court did authorize the use of (1) $300,000 from the four settlement funds for notice and administration expenses,[13] and (2) approximately $3,300,000 from the USG, TIN, and Lafarge settlement funds to pay ongoing pretrial litigation expenses incurred in connection with Plaintiffs' economic expert.[14]

On January 29, 2018, the Court preliminarily approved a $125 million Joint Settlement with AG, Eagle, NGC, and PABCO and authorized dissemination of notice to the class.[15] If the Joint Settlement is finally approved, the combined direct purchaser settlements in this case will total approximately $190.7 million. This total, plus accrued interest, but minus the funds in the Opt-Out Fee and Expense Account, constitutes the "Combined Settlement Fund" from which Co-Lead Class Counsel now seek an award of attorneys' fees, reimbursement of reasonable litigation expenses, and service awards to the Class Representatives.

[13] ECF No. 183, Order Granting Preliminary Approval of Direct Purchaser Plaintiffs' Proposed Settlement with Defendant TIN, Inc.; Certifying the TIN Settlement Class for the Purpose of Providing Notice; and Authorizing Dissemination of Notice to the TIN Settlement Class Members, ¶ 30; ECF No. 185, Order Granting Preliminary Approval of Direct Purchaser Plaintiffs' Proposed Settlement with Defendant USG Corporation, Defendant United States Gypsum Company, and L&W Supply Corporation; Certifying the USG Settlement Class for the Purpose of Providing Notice; and Authorizing Dissemination of Notice to the USG Settlement Class Members, ¶ 30; ECF No. 427, Order Granting Preliminary Approval of Direct Purchaser Plaintiffs' Proposed Settlement with Defendant Lafarge North America Inc.; Certifying the Lafarge Settlement Class for the Purpose of Providing Notice; and Authorizing Dissemination of Notice to the Lafarge Settlement Class Members, ¶ 30; ECF No. 695, Order Granting Preliminary Approval of Direct Purchaser Plaintiffs' Proposed Joint Settlement with American Gypsum Company LLC, Eagle Materials Inc., New NGC, Inc., and PABCO Building Products, LLC, Preliminary Approval of the Distribution Plan, and Authorization to Disseminate Notice, ¶ 27. To date, $190,485.13 has been spent from those authorized funds.

[14] ECF No. 275, Order Re DPP Settlement Class Counsel's Request to Utilize Settlement Funds for Ongoing Litigation Expenses; ECF No. 480, Order Authorizing Portion of USG and TIN Settlement Funds for Ongoing Litigation Expenses; ECF No. 659, Order.

[15] ECF No., 695, Joint Settlement Preliminary Approval Order. The Joint Settlement amount may be reduced due to requests for exclusion, which are not due until May 7, 2018. To date, no requests for exclusion have been received.

C. Notice Regarding Co-Lead Counsel's Request for Attorneys' Fees, Reimbursement of Litigation Expenses, and Service Awards

In its Joint Settlement Preliminary Approval Order, the Court approved the dissemination of notice to the members of the four settlement classes (the "Notice").[16] As required by Fed. R. Civ. P. 23(h), the Notice (copy attached as Exhibit 4) informed potential members of all the settlement classes that Co-Lead Class Counsel would request attorneys' fees, reimbursement of litigation expenses, and service awards for the Class Representatives, and explained how class members could object to these requests:

> 3.4 How will the lawyers be paid?
>
> Since they filed this case, the attorneys representing the Litigation Class and the Settlement Classes have not received any payment for their services in prosecuting the lawsuit, nor have they been reimbursed for any out-of-pocket expenses. Consistent with disclosures in the prior notices, the Court previously approved payments totaling approximately $3.3 million from the TIN, USG, and Lafarge settlement funds to cover ongoing pretrial litigation expenses, primarily for expenses incurred in connection with economic experts.
>
> If the Court approves the proposed Joint Settlement, Co-Lead Counsel will ask the Court to award attorneys' fees of up to one-third of the Combined Settlement Fund, plus reimbursement of expenses that they incurred in the litigation and administering the settlement funds (not to exceed $4 million). Co-Lead Counsel will file their petition for attorneys' fees and reimbursement of expenses with the Court by April 9, 2018. A copy of the petition will be posted on www.DrywallDirectPurchaserLitigation.com or can be obtained by calling 1-888-706-3401.
>
> Any attorneys' fees and reimbursement of litigation expenses will be awarded only as approved by the Court in amounts determined to be fair and reasonable. If you wish to object to the petition for [16] In accordance with the Court's Joint Settlement Preliminary Approval Order, the Notice was sent to more than 27,000 class members on February 14, 2018 and published in the March edition of the LBM Journal. See Affidavit of Markham Sherwood Regarding Dissemination of Notice to Potential Members of the American Gypsum Company LLC, Eagle Materials Inc., New NGC, Inc., and PABCO Building Products, LLC Settlement Class and to Potential Members of The Combined Settlement Class ("Sherwood Affidavit") attached hereto as Exhibit 3.

> attorneys' fees and reimbursement of litigation expenses, you may do so, but only by following the instructions in Section 3.6 below.

The deadline for objections is May 7, 2018, and Co-Lead Class Counsel will provide the Court with a final report on any objections and responses thereto on May 29, 2018.

III. THE REQUESTED ATTORNEYS' FEES ARE REASONABLE

Plaintiffs, on behalf of Class Counsel, respectfully request an award of attorneys' fees of one-third of the Combined Settlement Fund ($190,059,056, plus accrued interest), as well as payment of the total Opt-Out Fee and Expense Accounts ($610,236, plus accrued interest).[17] Class Counsel's fee request is well within the range of awards regularly approved by courts in this Circuit, particularly in light of the length and complexity of this case, the nature and extent of Co-Lead Class Counsel's efforts in negotiating substantial settlements, and the litigation risks assumed. Moreover, cross-checking this fee request against Class Counsel's lodestar of $38,058,631.50 (based upon historical rates) validates its reasonableness.

A. A Reasonable Percentage of the Fund Recovered Is the Appropriate Method for Awarding Class Counsel's Attorneys' Fees in this Common Fund Settlement

In this Circuit, district courts have discretion to award fees in common fund cases based on either the lodestar/multiplier method or the percentage-of-the-fund method. See In re Diet Drugs Prod. Liab. Litig., 582 F.3d 524, 539 (3d Cir. 2009); In re AT&T Corp. Sec. Litig., 455 F.3d 160, 164 (3d Cir. 2006). However, the percentage-of-the-fund method of awarding fees is the preferred method for awarding fees in common fund cases in this Circuit and throughout the United States. See, e.g., Kirsch, 534 Fed. Appx. at 115 ("'The percentage of recovery method is generally favored in common fund cases.'") (quoting In re Ins. Brokerage Antitrust Litig., 579 F.3d 241, 280 (3d [17] Depending on the final amount of opt-outs, if any, from the Joint Settlement Class, the total amount in the Combined Settlement Fund may decrease and the Opt-Out Fee and Expense Account may increase.

Cir. 2009)); Diet Drugs, 582 F.3d at 540 ("the percentage-of-recovery method is generally favored."); In re Prudential Ins. Co. Am. Sales Practice Litig. Agent Actions, 148 F.3d 283, 333 (3d Cir. 1998) ("percentage-of-recovery method preferred in common fund cases").[18] Courts have long recognized that "'a private plaintiff, or plaintiff's attorney, whose efforts create, discover, increase, or preserve a fund to which others also have a claim, is entitled to recover from the fund the costs of his litigation, including attorneys' fees.'" In re Cendant Corp. Sec. Litig., 404 F.3d 173, 187 (3d Cir. 2005) (quoting In re GMC Pick-Up Truck Fuel Tank Prods. Liab. Litig., 55 F.3d 768, 820 n.39 (3d Cir. 1995)). The purpose of compensating counsel in this manner means that "those who benefit from the creation of the fund should share the wealth with the lawyers whose skill and effort helped create it." In re Washington Pub. Power Supply Sys. Sec. Litig., 19 F.3d 1291, 1300 (9th Cir. 1994). Furthermore, the Supreme Court has consistently endorsed awarding attorneys' fees using the percentage-of-the-fund method. See, e.g., Blum v. Stenson, 465 U.S. 886, 900 n.16 (1984).[19] Thus, the percentage-of-the-fund method is properly applied here.

B. A Fee Award of One-Third of the Combined Settlement Fund Is Fair and Reasonable

In determining what constitutes a reasonable percentage fee award, a district court must consider the ten factors identified by the Third Circuit in Gunter v. Ridgewood Energy Corp., 223

[18] See also Report of Third Circuit Task Force: Court Awarded Attorney Fees, 108 F.R.D. 237, 255-56 (1985); Report of Third Circuit Task Force: Selection of Class Counsel, 208 F.R.D. 340, 355 (2002) ("A percentage fee, tailored to the realities of the particular case, remains superior to any other means of determining a reasonable fee for class counsel."); Castro v. Sanofi Pasteur Inc., Civ. No. 11-7178, 2017 WL 4776626, at *7 (D. N.J. Oct. 23, 2017) ("In common fund cases such as this one, attorneys' fees are typically awarded through the percentage-of-recovery method."); In re Viropharma Inc. Sec. Litig., No. 12-2714, 2016 WL 312108, at *15 (E.D. Pa. Jan. 25, 2016) ("The percentage-of-recovery method is 'generally favored' in cases involving a settlement that creates a common fund."); In re Linerboard Antitrust Litig., MDL 1261, 2004 WL 1221350, at *3 (E.D. Pa. June 2, 2004) ("the percentage of recovery method is the proper one to calculate attorneys' fees."); Manual for Complex Litigation, § 14.121 (4th ed. 2004) (reporting that "the vast majority of courts of appeals now permit or direct district courts to use the percentage method in common-fund cases").

[19] See also Boeing Co. v. Van Gemert, 444 U.S. 472, 478-79 (1980); Sprague v. Ticonic Nat'l Bank, 307 U.S. 161, 165-67 (1939).

F.3d 190 (3d Cir. 2000), and Prudential, 148 F.3d at 283. As the Third Circuit explained in Diet Drugs, the Gunter/Prudential factors for which this Court must conduct a "robust assessment" are:

> (1) the size of the fund created and the number of beneficiaries, (2) the presence or absence of substantial objections by members of the class to the settlement terms and/or fees requested by counsel, (3) the skill and efficiency of the attorneys involved, (4) the complexity and duration of the litigation, (5) the risk of nonpayment, (6) the amount of time devoted to the case by plaintiffs' counsel, (7) the awards in similar cases, (8) the value of benefits attributable to the efforts of class counsel relative to the efforts of other groups, such as government agencies conducting investigations, (9) the percentage fee that would have been negotiated had the case been subject to a private contingent fee arrangement at the time counsel was retained, and (10) any innovative terms of settlement.

582 F.3d at 541 (internal citations omitted). Applying these factors clearly demonstrates that Class Counsel's request for one-third of the Combined Settlement Fund as a fee award is reasonable.

1. An award of one-third is reasonable based on the size of the Combined Settlement Fund and the number of entities benefitted.

The total recovery achieved in this case—over $190 million—is substantial, particularly in light of the complexity, duration, and expense of ongoing litigation and the potential 27,000-plus class members who may participate. A one-third fee is routinely awarded for settlement funds of comparable size.[20] Establishing liability and damages at trial and securing recovery for those class members would have been risky and uncertain, and at the time of the Joint Settlement (which constitutes the majority of the Combined Settlement Fund), Plaintiffs also faced motions from the remaining Defendants to significantly limit Plaintiffs' damages at trial, as well as indications that Defendants were going to seek additional expert discovery. Accordingly, this factor weighs in favor of the requested fee award.

[20] See, e.g., In re Neurontin Antitrust Litig., No. 02-1830, ECF 114 (D.N.J. Aug. 6, 2014) (awarding one-third fee of $191 million settlement); Marchbanks Truck Serv. v. Comdata Network, Inc., No. 07-1078-JKG, 2014 WL 12738907 (E.D. Pa. July 14, 2014) (awarding requested one-third of $130 million settlement fund); In re Flonase Antitrust Litig., 951 F. Supp. 2d 739, 746, 748 (E.D. Pa. 2013) ("Flonase Direct Purchasers") (approving requested one-third of $150 million settlement fund); In re OSB Antitrust Litig., 2:06-cv-00826-PD, Order, ECF 947, at *5 (E.D. Pa. Dec. 9, 2008) (approving requested one-third of $120 million settlement fund). See also § III.B.7 & ns.25-26, infra (citing numerous cases awarding one-third fee).

2. Analysis of any potential objections to the fee request is premature.

The Notice advised class members that Co-Lead Class Counsel would apply for an award of attorneys' fees, reimbursement of litigation expenses, and service awards for the Class Representatives. It also advised class members that they could object to Co-Lead Class Counsel's application or the Joint Settlement, and provided instructions on how to do so. Because the deadline for objections is May 7, 2018, Co-Lead Class Counsel will address this factor, and any objections to their application or the Joint Settlement, in their responsive filing due on May 29, 2018. As of April 9, 2018, no objections have been filed.

3. Class Counsel are skilled and efficient litigators.

Class Counsel are highly experienced in litigating complex class actions and antitrust cases. Class Counsel combed through millions of pages of documents and took scores of depositions to build the necessary evidentiary record in this case, successfully moved for class certification, defeated Defendants' 23(f) petition of the Court's class certification decision, largely defeated Defendants' multiple summary judgment motions, and defeated Defendants' 1292(b) appeal to the Third Circuit. Indeed, "[t]he result achieved is the clearest reflection of petitioners' skill and expertise." Linerboard, 2004 WL 1221350, at *5.[21] Here, the total recovery achieved over a span of five years – over $190 million – is substantial, thus further evidencing the skill and efficiency of Class Counsel. Class Counsel achieved this result despite a vigorous defense by Defendants, which were represented by skilled counsel at some of the leading defense law firms in the United States. Accordingly, this factor weighs in favor of the requested fee award.

[21] See also In re OSB Antitrust Litig., No. 2:06-cv-00826-PD, Order, ECF 947 at *5 ("'[T]he most significant factor [in evaluating claims for counsel fees] . . . is the quality of representation, as measured by the quality of the result achieved, the difficulties faced, the speed and efficiency of the recovery, the standing, experience and expertise of the counsel, the skill and professionalism with which counsel prosecuted the case and the performance and quality of opposing counsel.'") (quoting In re Ikon Office Solutions, Inc., 194 F.R.D. 166, 194 (E.D. Pa. 2000)); Cullen v. Whitman Medical Corp., 197 F.R.D. 136 at 149 (E.D. Pa. 2000) ("[t]he single clearest factor reflecting the quality of class counsel's services to the class are the results obtained.").

4. The complexity and duration of the litigation

"[C]omplex and/or novel legal issues, extensive discovery, acrimonious litigation, and tens of thousands of hours spent on the case by class counsel" are the "factors which increase the complexity of class litigation." In re Cendant Corp. Prides Litig., 243 F.3d 722, 741 (3d Cir. 2001). This case involved extensive efforts by Class Counsel (as well as this Court) over a period of five years, as reflected in the over 700 entries in MDL Docket No. 2437.

During the course of the action, Plaintiffs were faced with several rounds of intense briefing, including summary judgment (spanning hundreds of pages and thousands of exhibits); a hard-fought class certification proceeding that included six separate expert submissions (including responses to the opinion of a Court-appointed technical advisor), Daubert briefing, argument, and two days of live testimony; and two separate petitions by Defendants for interlocutory appellate review. Moreover, the parties completed merits and class certification discovery, which included production of 1.4 million documents (amounting to over 3.5 million pages) from Defendants, Plaintiffs, and third parties; 43 depositions of fact witnesses, including 5 depositions of corporate designees of the Class Representatives; 6 expert depositions in the direct purchaser case; and the production by Plaintiffs of their Rule 26(a)(2) expert reports.

As to the complexity of the case, "'[a]n antitrust class action is arguably the most complex action to prosecute. . . . The legal and factual issues involved are always numerous and uncertain in outcome.'" Linerboard, 2004 WL 1221350, at *10 (quoting In re Motorsports Merch. Antitrust Litig., 112 F. Supp. 2d 1329, 1337 (N.D. Ga. 2000)). This case is no exception. Regarding duration, the case, now pending for more than five years, could continue for substantial additional time if it were to go to trial.[22] Accordingly, this factor weighs in favor of finding the fee request reasonable.

5. Class Counsel faced a risk of nonpayment.

Class Counsel undertook this case on a wholly contingent basis and ran a substantial risk of no recovery whatsoever, and "did not benefit from the fruits of a prior government investigation." See Linerboard, 2004 WL 1221350, at *11 (lack of prior government investigation or prosecution increased risk of nonpayment). Class Counsel have devoted enormous time and resources to the vigorous litigation of this case for more than five years, while deferring all compensation for their time during that lengthy period (and risking receipt of little or no compensation if the case was not litigated to a successful conclusion). See In re Flonase Antitrust Litig., 291 F.R.D. 93, 104 (E.D. Pa. 2013) ("Flonase Indirect Purchasers") ("as a contingent fee case, counsel faced a risk of nonpayment in the event of an unsuccessful trial. Throughout this lengthy litigation, Class Counsel have not received any payment. This factor supports approval of the requested fee.").[23] Class Counsel advanced just under $3 million in unreimbursed expenses to prosecute the litigation,[24] which would not have been reimbursed absent a successful result. See In re Rent-Way Sec. Litig., 305 F. Supp. 2d 491, 516 (W.D. Pa. 2003) ("Aside from investing their time, counsel had to front copious sums of money . . . Thus, the risks that counsel incurred in prosecuting this case were substantial and further support the requested fee award."). Accordingly, this factor weighs in favor of the requested fee award.

[22] See Linerboard, 2004 WL 1221350, at *10 (noting "there is authority for approving a 30 percent fee in litigation that concluded much earlier in the proceeding.").

[23] See also Hall v. Best Buy Co., 274 F.R.D. 154, 173 (E.D. Pa. 2011) ("while this case has been pending, Class Counsel have not received any payment, and, by proceeding on a contingent-fee basis, ran substantial risk of nonpayment….").

[24] See Montague Decl. ¶¶ 111, 117.

6. Class Counsel devoted nearly 80,000 hours to prosecuting this action.

Class Counsel devoted considerable time and effort to prosecuting the Direct Purchaser Plaintiffs' antitrust claims during the pendency of the litigation, and even beforehand in their investigation that led to the initial complaints. As set forth in the declarations submitted with this application, through December 31, 2017, Class Counsel devoted 79,998.05 hours to prosecuting this case, resulting in a total lodestar of $38,058,631.50. Class Counsel could have spent those attorney hours litigating other matters, which counsels in favor of awarding the requested fees. See, e.g., Flonase Direct Purchasers, 951 F. Supp. 2d at 748 (finding factor weighed in favor of 33% fee award where class counsel devoted more than 40,000 combined hours to prosecuting the antitrust class action); Lazy Oil Co. v. Wotco Corp., 95 F. Supp. 2d 290, 323 (W.D. Pa. 1997) ("In addition to noting the vast amount of work which was required in prosecuting this case, we also note Class Counsels' representation that their involvement in this litigation required them to abstain from working on other matters.").

7. One-third of the Combined Settlement Fund is a typical and reasonable fee award for cases like this one.

The law is well-established that a one-third fee is typical, reasonable, and justified by extensive authority from courts in this District and Circuit. See, e.g., Castro v. Sanofi Pasteur Inc., 2:11-cv-07178, 2017 WL 4776626, at *9 (D. N.J. Oct. 23, 2017) ("The one-third fee is within the range of fees typically awarded within the Third Circuit through the percentage-of-recovery method; the Circuit has observed that fee awards generally range from 19% to 45% of the settlement fund…Thus, the requested fee in this matter [of one-third of the settlement fund] is within the normal range." (internal citation omitted)); In re K-Dur Antitrust Litig., No. 01-cv-1652, ECF 1058 (D.N.J. Oct. 5, 2017) (awarding 33⅓% of settlement). See also Fasteners, 2014 WL 296954, at *7 ("Counsel's request for one third of the settlement fund is consistent with other direct purchaser antitrust actions.") (internal citation omitted); Flonase Direct Purchasers, 951 F. Supp. 2d at 746, 748 (approving requested one-third of $150 million settlement fund (plus interest), and noting that "in the last two-and-a-half years, courts in eight direct purchaser antitrust actions approved one-third fees"); Flonase Indirect Purchasers, 291 F.R.D. at 104 ("A one-third fee award is standard in complex antitrust cases of this kind."); Marchbanks Truck Serv., Inc. v. Comdata Network, Inc., No. 07-1078-JKG, 2014 WL 12738907, at *2 (E.D. Pa. July 14, 2014) ("fee awards of one-third of the settlement amount are commonly awarded in this Circuit"); In re Wellbutrin XL Antitrust Litig., No. 08-cv-2431, ECF 485 (E.D. Pa. Nov. 7, 2012) (awarding fee of 33⅓% of settlement); In re Wellbutrin SR Antitrust Litig., No. 04-5525, 2011 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 158833, *14-15 (E.D. Pa. Nov. 21, 2011) (same); In re Auto. Refinishing Paint Antitrust Litig., No. 1426, 2008 WL 63269, at *1, *8 (E.D. Pa. Jan. 3, 2008) (same); OSB, No. 2:06-cv-00826-PD, Order, ECF 947, at *3 (finding fee award of one-third of $120 million in settlement funds "reasonable and well-earned"); Bradburn Parent Teacher Store, Inc. v. 3M, 513 F. Supp. 2d 322, 342 (E.D. Pa. 2007) (approving a percentage of recovery of 35%, plus reimbursement of expenses).[25] Moreover, a one-third fee award is consistent with awards nationwide.[26] A fee that

[25] See also Steele v. Welch, No. 03-6596, 2005 WL 3801469, at *2 (E.D. Pa. May 20, 2005) (finding requested fee of 33%, plus expenses, to be reasonable) (Baylson, J.); Mylan Pharms., Inc. v. Warner Chilcott Public Ltd., Co., No. 12-3824, 2014 WL 12778314 (E.D. Pa. Sept. 15, 2014) ("Doryx") (awarding 33⅓% of settlement); In re Neurontin Antitrust Litig., No. 02-1830 (D.N.J. Aug. 6, 2014) (same); In re Hypodermic Prods. Antitrust Litig., No. 05-1602, ECF 461 (D.N.J. Apr. 10, 2013) (same); Rochester Drug Co-Operative, Inc. v. Braintree Labs., Inc., No. 1:07-cv-00142, ECF 243 (D. Del. May 31, 2012) ("Miralax") (same); In re Metoprolol Succinate Antitrust Litig., No. 06-52, ECF 193 (D. Del. Feb. 21, 2012) (same); In re Tricor Direct Purchaser Antitrust Litig., No. 05-cv-340, 2009 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 133251, *17 (D. Del. April 23, 2009) (same); In re Corel Corp. Sec. Litig., 293 F. Supp. 2d 484, 497-98 (E.D. Pa. 2003) (awarding 331/3% of settlement fund and noting, "[t]his District has observed that fee awards frequently range between nineteen and forty-five percent of the common fund."); In re Ravisent Techs., Inc. Sec. Litig., No. Civ.A.00-CV-1014, 2005 WL 906361, at *11 (E.D. Pa. Apr. 18, 2005) ("courts within this Circuit have typically awarded attorneys' fees of 30% to 35% of the recovery, plus expenses"); In re AremisSoft Corp. Sec. Litig., 210 F.R.D. 109, 134 (D.N.J. 2002) ("Scores of cases exist where fees were awarded in the one-third to one-half of the settlement fund.") (citations omitted); In re Gen. Instrument Sec. Litig., 209 F. Supp. 2d 423, 433-34 (E.D. Pa. 2001) (approving one-third fee request).

[26] See, e.g., In re Mego Fin. Corp. Sec. Litig., 213 F.3d 454, 460 (9th Cir. 2000) (affirming award of fees equal to one-third of total recovery); In re U.S. Foodservice, Inc. Pricing Litig., No. 07-md-01894, ECF 521 (D. Conn. Dec. 9, 2014) (attorneys awarded one-third of a $297 million settlement fund); Standard Iron Works v. ArcelorMittal, No.

fully compensates counsel for their time and the inherent risk posed by antitrust litigation of this magnitude and complexity is also strongly supported by the policies favoring private enforcement of the antitrust laws.[27] Accordingly, this factor supports the requested fee.

8. Class Counsel prosecuted the litigation without help from government agencies.

Courts in this Circuit are instructed to consider whether counsel benefitted from "the efforts of other groups, such as government agencies conducting investigations." AT&T, 455 F.3d at 165 (citation omitted). As in In re Diet Drugs Prods. Liab. Litig., "this case is quite different from the typical antitrust or securities litigation" in which the Gunter/Prudential factors are often considered, "where government prosecutions frequently lay the groundwork for private litigation." 553 F. Supp. 2d 442, 481 (E.D. Pa. 2008). Here, Class Counsel did not rely on "the Government or other public agencies to do their work for them as has occurred in some cases." Id. at 481-82. Indeed, Class Counsel conducted their own comprehensive investigation of the Drywall industry,

---

08 C 5214, 2014 WL 7781572 (N.D. Ill. Oct. 22, 2014) (attorneys awarded 33% of a $163.9 million settlement fund); Shaw v. Interthinx, Inc., No. 13–cv–01229–REB–NYW, 2015 WL 1867861 at *6 (D. Colorado Apr. 21, 2015) ("The customary fee awarded to class counsel in a common fund settlement is approximately one-third of the total economic benefit bestowed on the class."); Menkes v. Stolt-Nielsen S.A., No. 3:03CV00409(DJS), 2011 WL 13234815 (D. Conn. Jan. 25, 2011) (granting fee request of 33⅓ percent of common fund in class action settlement); In re Universal Service Fund Telephone Billing Practices Litigation, No. 02–MD–1468–JWL, 2011 WL 1808038 at *2 (D. Kan. May 12, 2011) ("an award of one-third of the fund falls within the range of awards deemed reasonable by courts"); Mohney v. Shelly's Prime Steak, Stone Crab & Oyster Bar, No. 06 Civ. 4270 (PAC), 2009 WL 5851465, at *5 (S.D.N.Y. Mar. 31, 2009) (holding that "Class Counsel's request for 33% of the Settlement Fund is typical in class action settlements in the Second Circuit" and collecting cases); Maley v. Del Global Techs. Corp., 186 F. Supp. 2d 358, 369 (S.D.N.Y. 2002) (33.33% fee award); In re Blech Sec. Litig., No. 94 Civ. 7696 (RWS), 2002 WL 31720381, at *1 (S.D.N.Y. Dec. 4, 2002) (finding fee request of 33-1/3% reasonable); see also Denise N. Martin, Vinita M. Juneja, Todd S. Foster & Frederick C. Dunbar, Recent Trends IV: What Explains Filings and Settlements in Shareholder Class Actions? 2 STAN. J.L. BUS. & FIN. (1996) ("Regardless of case size, fees average approximately 32 percent of the settlement.").

[27] See, e.g., In re Southeastern Milk Antitrust Litig., No. 2:07-CV 208, 2013 WL 2155387, at *5 (E.D. Tenn. May 17, 2013) ("[F]ailing to fully compensate class counsel for the excellent work done and the various substantial risks taken would undermine society's interest in the private litigation of antitrust cases. Society's interests are clearly furthered by the private prosecution of civil cases which further important public policy goals, such as vigorous competition by marketplace competitors. Simply put, anti-competitive conduct such as that alleged in this case would likely go unchallenged absent the willingness of attorneys to undertake the risks associated with such expensive and complex litigation.").

developed their own theory of liability and damages, and reviewed millions of pages of documents, without the assistance of a federal investigation or government indictments. Accordingly, "the benefit to the Class is directly and entirely attributable to Class Counsel's efforts," OSB, No. 2:06-cv-00826-PD, Order, ECF 947, at *7, and this factor weighs in favor of the requested fee award.

9. The requested fee is consistent with the percentage fee that would have been negotiated in a private contingent fee arrangement.

"What the market would pay" for fees in a similar litigation is "significant because…the goal of the fee setting process it [sic] to 'determine what the lawyer would receive if he were selling his services in the market rather than being paid by Court Order.'" Linerboard, 2004 WL 1221350, at *15 (citing In re Continental Ill. Sec. Litig., 962 F.2d 566, 568 (7th Cir. 1992)). There is widespread consensus that "a 33 1/3% contingent fee is [what is] commonly negotiated in the private market." OSB, No. 2:06-cv-00826-PD, Order, ECF 947, at *7 (citing Linerboard, 2004 WL 1221350, at *15); see also Eisenberg & Miller, Attorney Fees in Class Action Settlements: An Empirical Study, 1 J. Empirical Legal Stud. 27 (2004), at 35 ("Substantial empirical evidence indicates that a one-third fee is a common benchmark in private contingency fee cases.").[28] Indeed, "a one-third contingency fee arrangement is not out of the ordinary in a complex [antitrust] case like this one." Fasteners, 2014 WL 296954, at *7.[29] Therefore, this factor weighs in favor of approval of the fee request.

[28] Accord In re Remeron Direct Purchaser Antitrust Litig., No. Civ. 03-0085, 2005 WL 3008808, at *16 (D.N.J. Nov. 9, 2005) ("Attorneys regularly contract for contingent fees between 30% and 40% with their clients in non-class, commercial litigation."); Montague v. Dixie Nat. Life Ins. Co., No. 3:09-00687-JFA, 2011 WL 3626541, at *2 & *3 (D.S.C. Aug. 17, 2011) ("In non-class contingency fee litigation, a 30% to 40% contingency fee is typical.").

[29] See also Mylan Pharms. Inc. v. Warner Chilcott Public Ltd. Co., 2014 WL 12778314 at *7 ("[A] one-third contingency is standard in individual litigation; in antitrust litigation, a higher contingency would be reasonable, given the complexities and risks involved. In these circumstances, the requested 33⅓% fee award is fair and reasonable."); Mehling v. New York Life Ins. Co., 248 F.R.D. 455, 464 n.18 (E.D. Pa. 2008) (citing Bradburn Parent Teacher Store, Inc., 513 F. Supp. 2d at 340 (finding a fee of 35% to be consistent with private contingent fee arrangements)); In re Ikon, 194 F.R.D. at 194 ("[I]n private contingency fee cases … plaintiffs' counsel routinely negotiate agreements providing for between thirty and forty percent of any recovery.").

10. The factor of any innovative terms is neutral.

This factor neither weighs in favor of nor detracts from a decision to award the requested fee. See, e.g., In re Merck & Co. Vytorin ERISA Litig., Civ. No. 08-CV-285, 2010 WL 547613, at *12 (D.N.J. Feb. 9, 2010) (finding factor neutral when no innovative terms are highlighted).

* *

In sum, at least eight of the ten Prudential/Gunter factors support Class Counsel's request for one-third of the Combined Settlement Fund as a fee award, and none of the Prudential/Gunter factors counsels against that request.

C. A Cross-Check of Class Counsel's Lodestar Confirms the Reasonableness of the Requested Fee

Courts in the Third Circuit often examine the lodestar calculation as a cross-check on the percentage fee award. See, e.g., Linerboard, 2004 WL 1221350, at *4. The cross-check is not designed to be a "full-blown lodestar inquiry," but rather an estimation of the value of counsel's investment in the case. Report of Third Circuit Task Force, Selection of Class Counsel, 208 F.R.D. 340, 422-23 (2002) (noting that "[t]he lodestar remains difficult and burdensome to apply"); In re Rite Aid Corp. Securities Litigation, 396 F.3d 294 at 307 n.17 (3d Cir. 2005) ("[T]he lodestar cross-check does not trump the primary reliance on the percentage of common fund method."). The Third Circuit recommends the use of the lodestar cross-check "as a means of assessing whether the percentage-of-recovery award is too high or too low," not as a substitute for the percentage-of-the-fund method. Diet Drugs, 582 F.3d at 545 n.42 (citing Rite Aid, 396 F.3d at 306-07).

The cross-check analysis is a two-step process. First, the lodestar is determined by multiplying the number of hours reasonably expended by the reasonable rates requested by the attorneys.[30] Second, the court determines the multiplier required to match the lodestar to the percentage-of-the-fund request made by counsel, and determines whether the multiplier falls within the accepted range for such a case. Here, the lodestar cross-check confirms that the one-third fee request is eminently reasonable.

1. Class Counsel's lodestar is reasonable.

As of December 31, 2017, Class Counsel had spent 79,998.05 hours working on this case on behalf of the class.[31] As explained in the Declaration of Laddie Montague, Jr. and Class Counsel's Fee and Expense Declarations, the stated hours were incurred by, among other things, investigating the claims against Defendants; preparing the initial complaints and Consolidated Amended Class Action Complaint; conducting necessary legal research; conducting extensive discovery; briefing Defendants' multiple motions for summary judgment; briefing and presenting Plaintiffs' motion for class certification at the March 2017 oral argument and at a two-day evidentiary hearing with live testimony in April 2017; working with experts submitting Rule 26(a)(2) reports and responding to a Court-appointed technical advisor report; beginning trial preparation; engaging in a mediation and extensive negotiations of the initial three settlements; and preparing the necessary agreements and pleadings related to the four settlements.[32] Given this effort, the complexity of the legal issues involved, and the intensity of the defense mounted by skillfully-represented Defendants, the hours incurred by Class Counsel are reasonable. Further, Co-Lead Class Counsel has excluded from this petition time incurred in this litigation that did not provide a common benefit to the Class. Co-Lead Class Counsel also audited and confirmed the validity of Plaintiffs' Counsels' time and expense submissions. Last, Co-Lead Class Counsel anticipate expending substantial additional hours on this litigation to bring it to a close, for which Co-Lead Class Counsel will not seek additional compensation; these additional hours should be considered in evaluating the reasonableness of the fee request.

[30] See Caudle v. Bristow Optical Co., Inc., 224 F.3d 1014, 1028 (9th Cir. 2000).

[31] See Class Counsel's Decls.; Montague Decl.

[32] "The lodestar cross-check calculation need entail neither mathematical precision nor bean-counting. The district courts may rely on summaries submitted by the attorneys and need not review actual billing records." Rite Aid, 396 F.3d at 306-307. See also Prudential, 148 F.3d at 341 (finding no abuse of discretion where district court "reli[ed] on time summaries, rather than detailed time records"). Of course, Class Counsel will make detailed billing records available to the Court in camera upon request.

The historical hourly rates charged by Class Counsel are reasonable based on each person's position, experience level, and location. Moreover, Co-Lead Class Counsel capped the hourly billing rate for attorneys conducting first-level document review. Taking into account the several factors discussed above, including the result achieved, the complexity and risk of the litigation, and the skill and experience of counsel, Class Counsel's rates are reasonable and appropriate. These reasonable rates resulted in a total lodestar of $38,058,631.50.

2. The multiplier mitigates in favor of the requested fee.

Courts may increase or decrease the lodestar amount by applying a multiplier. "Consideration of multipliers used in comparable cases may be appropriate" to gauge the reasonableness of a percentage fee award." Rite Aid, 396 F.3d at 307 n.17. Multipliers of up to four are frequently awarded in common fund cases.[33] Here, the multiplier, at 1.68, produced by cross-checking the requested one-third fee award against the reported lodestar of $38,058,631.50 (based upon historical hourly rates), is well below the accepted range in the Third Circuit.[34] The [33] See, e.g., Steele, 2005 WL 3801469, at *2 (finding multiplier of two reasonable, "given the complexity of the case, the risk of undertaking a case of this nature, and the delay in payment following the performance of services") (Baylson, J.). See also Meijer, Inc. v. 3M, No. 04-5871, 2006 WL 2382718, at *24 (E.D. Pa. Aug. 14, 2006) (4.77 multiplier); Nichols v. SmithKline Beecham Corp., No. Civ.A.00-6222, 2005 WL 950616, at *24 (E.D. Pa. April 22, 2005) (3.15 multiplier); Ravisent, 2005 WL 906361, at *12 (3.1 multiplier); Varacallo v. Mass. Mut. Life Ins. Co., 226 F.R.D. 207, 256 (D.N.J. 2005) (2.83 multiplier); In re Automotive Refinishing Paint Antitrust Litig., MDL Docket No. 1426, 2004 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 29162, *35 (E.D. Pa. Oct. 13, 2004) (2.3 multiplier is within an acceptable range); Linerboard, 2004 WL 1221350, at *16 (2.66 multiplier); Rent-Way, 305 F. Supp. 2d at 517 (2.36 multiplier).

[34] See, e.g., Diet Drugs, 582 F.3d at 542 n.42 (finding that a multiplier, in a lodestar crosscheck, in the range of "2.6, 3.4, or somewhere in that neighborhood, [] is not problematically high. It is either below or near the average multiplier…."); Cendant Prides, 243 F.3d at 735-36, 742 ("strongly suggest[ing]" a multiplier of 3 as the ceiling for settlements achieved here resolved this litigation before trial and any other steps in the proceedings that would have generated a substantially larger lodestar than presented at this point. Accordingly, a lodestar cross-check further evidences the reasonableness of the requested fee.

D. The Court Should Award Class Counsel the Funds in the Opt-Out Fee and Expense Account

Each of the settlement agreements established an Opt-Out Fee and Expense Account, though of the first three settlements, only the Lafarge settlement resulted in any funds being deposited in that account.[35] For any reductions to the settlement amount resulting from opt-outs, 25% of the reduction was deposited into the Opt-Out Fee and Expense Account, with the remainder returned to the settling Defendant.[36] It is appropriate to award Class Counsel the full amount contained in the Opt-Out Fee and Expense Account, in light of the significant benefit Class Counsel provided opt-out class members in litigating the action and developing the evidentiary record in the case. See In re Linerboard Antitrust Litig., 292 F. Supp. 2d 644, 657 (E.D. Pa. 2003) (establishing an account to compensate class counsel using funds from settlements between defendants and plaintiffs in tag along actions, and noting that "[i]n carrying out the duties of lead and liaison counsel, designated counsel have done much to craft the case against defendants. That work has benefitted all litigants in the class action and the tag-along actions."); OSB, No. 2:06-cv-00826-PD, Order, ECF 947, at *3 (finding class counsel's fee request for one-third of the total an award in a simple case where "no risks pertaining to liability or collection were pertinent"); Prudential, 148 F.3d at 341 ("[M]ultiples ranging from one to four are frequently awarded in common fund cases when the lodestar method is applied.") (internal quotation and citation omitted).

---

[35] See n.12, supra. The current value of the Opt-Out Fee and Expense Account is $610,236, plus accrued interest. Additional money may be deposited into the account as a result of any timely requests for exclusion from the Joint Settlement.

[36] See ECF No. 180-3, USG Settlement Agreement ¶ 34; ECF No. 276, USG Settlement Final Judgment Order ¶¶ 13, 16; ECF No. 180-2, TIN Settlement Agreement ¶ 23; ECF No. 277, TIN Settlement Final Judgment Order ¶¶ 13, 16; ECF No. 414-2, Lafarge Settlement Agreement ¶ 34; ECF No. 503, Lafarge Settlement Final Judgment Order, ¶¶ 12, 15; ECF No. 692-2, Joint Settlement Agreement ¶ 33.

settlement funds, and the funds that reverted back to class members from opt-outs that did not pursue separate claims against the defendants "reasonable and well-earned").

IV. CLASS COUNSEL SHOULD BE REIMBURSED FOR THEIR REASONABLE LITIGATION EXPENSES

Plaintiffs also request reimbursement to Class Counsel for the reasonable and necessary expenses they advanced to prosecute this litigation since its inception in December 2012. "Attorneys who create a common fund for the benefit of a class are entitled to reimbursement of reasonable litigation expenses from the fund." Nichols, 2005 WL 950616, at *24 (quoting In re Aetna Inc. Securities Litig., No. CIV. A. MDL 1219, 2001 WL 20928 at *13 (E.D. Pa. Jan. 4, 2001)); see also Rent-Way, 305 F. Supp. 2d at 519 ("There is no doubt that an attorney who has created a common fund for the benefit of the class is entitled to reimbursement of . . . reasonable litigation expenses from that fund."); In re Corel Corp. Inc. Sec. Litig., 293 F. Supp. 2d 484, 498 (E.D. Pa. 2003) (same) (quoting Ikon, 194 F.R.D. at 192).[37]

Since the inception of the case, Class Counsel have incurred $2,925,628.98 in unreimbursed expenses.[38] The categories of expenses for which reimbursement is now sought are [37] See also Meijer, 2006 WL 2382718 at *18 (granting plaintiffs' motion for approval of expenses "incurred in connection with the prosecution and settlement of the litigation, and include costs related to the following: travel; computerized legal research; copying; postage; telephone and fax; transcripts; retention of a mediator; the document database; expert services; and claims administration.").

[38] These expenses are detailed in the Declaration of Jeffrey J. Corrigan Regarding Expenses Paid by Plaintiffs from the Domestic Drywall Litigation Fund (Corrigan Decl.), attached hereto as Exhibit 5 and Class Counsel's Fee and Expense Declarations. The Court previously (1) approved payments totaling approximately $3.3 million from the TIN, USG, and Lafarge settlement funds to cover ongoing pretrial litigation expenses for expenses incurred in connection with economic experts, and (2) authorized the use of $300,000 total from the four settlement funds for notice and administration expenses, of which $190,485.13 has been spent. Additionally, certain common expenses were paid from the common litigation fund, which was funded with assessments paid by Class Counsel. The requested reimbursement includes a reduction of $27,172.18 from the total expenses, reflecting the remaining balance in the common litigation fund. See Corrigan Decl. If the Court approves reimbursement of these expenses, total expenses for the case paid out of the Combined Settlement Fund (e.g., including the approximately $3.5 million previously authorized by the Court) will total approximately $6,412,924.51. See Corrigan Decl; Class Counsel's Decls.

There are additional expenses relating to settlement administration and the claims process that will necessarily be incurred if the Court grants final approval of the settlement. While Co-Lead Class Counsel have sought to ascertain and minimize these expenses, the exact amount will not be known until it is time to complete the distribution. Co-

the type of expenses routinely charged to hourly clients, such as expert costs, document repository rent, document management, travel,[39] photocopying, overnight mail, deposition services and transcripts, legal research, and jury research costs, among others. See Corrigan Decl. As the Court previously acknowledged, certain of these expenses, such as experts and "[d]ata collecting, storage and production" would be expensive, but "essential."[40]

V. CLASS REPRESENTATIVES SHOULD BE AWARDED THE REQUESTED SERVICE AWARDS

Plaintiffs also request approval for a $75,000 service award for each of the four named plaintiffs to be paid from the Combined Settlement Fund. Such awards are common in class actions resulting in a common fund for distribution to the class, because the class representatives "have conferred benefits on all other class members and they deserve to be compensated accordingly." In re Linerboard Antitrust Litig., No. 98-5055, 2004 WL 1221350, at *18 (E.D. Pa. June 2, 2004), amended, 2004 WL 1240775 (E.D. Pa. June 4, 2004). As the Third Circuit has noted, such awards exist "to compensate named plaintiffs for the services they provided and the risks they incurred during the course of class action litigation." Sullivan v. DB Invs., Inc., 667 F.3d 273, 333 n.65 (3d Cir. 2011) (citation omitted). They are also "particularly appropriate" where, as in this case, "there was no preceding governmental action alleging a conspiracy and taking a high-profile role threatened to jeopardize class representatives' relationships with their suppliers." Linerboard, Lead Class Counsel anticipate seeking approval for these expenses when they seek authority to distribute the settlement funds to class members, at the conclusion of the claim submission and evaluation process.

[39] Throughout the litigation, Class Counsel were careful to comply with the Court's instructions that, "As to travel expenses, government per diems will be a guideline as to what will be awarded . . . ." While government per diem rates vary by city, year and even month, Class Counsel were mindful of the Court's direction on this point. See ECF No. 12, Memorandum Re: Plaintiffs' Attorneys' Fees and Expenses, at 4 ("Counsel with appetites for luxury are welcome to spend more, but should not expect reimbursement for luxury travel out of a common fund achieved for the benefit of the class."). In addition, Co-Lead Class Counsel note that Class Counsel were not eligible for government discounted rates for hotels.

[40] See ECF No. 12, Memorandum Re: Plaintiffs' Attorneys' Fees and Expenses, at 4.

2004 WL 1221350, at *18. Factors that courts consider in determining service awards include the risks to the plaintiffs in commencing the litigation (financially and otherwise), the extent of the plaintiffs' personal involvement in the lawsuit, the duration of the litigation, and the plaintiffs' personal benefits (or lack thereof) purely in their capacity as members of the class. McGee v. Ann's Choice, Inc., No. 12-2664, 2014 WL 2514582, at *3 (E.D. Pa. June 4, 2014) (citing In re Plastic Tableware Antitrust Litig., No. 94-3564, 1995 WL 723175, at *2 (E.D. Pa. Dec. 4, 1995)).

Here, each of the four named plaintiffs spent a significant amount of time assisting the litigation of this case. Each plaintiff responded to written discovery and produced documents relating to its claims; at least one individual representing each plaintiff was examined at deposition by defense counsel for a full day regarding its claims; each plaintiff reviewed and approved the consolidated amended class action complaint and other substantive pleadings; and each plaintiff reviewed and approved the settlements.[41] The plaintiffs pursued the litigation with no preceding government investigation, and did so knowing that Defendants might—and in one instance did—retaliate against them and threaten their businesses.[42] The plaintiffs took on this risk and responsibility, on behalf of the entire class, even though their claims were not among the largest in the class.[43]

The requested service awards are also in accord with amounts approved in other class action litigations in this Circuit and around the country. See, e.g., Marchbanks Truck Serv. v. Comdata Network, Inc., No. 07-1078-JKG, 2014 WL 12738907, at *3-4 (E.D. Pa. July 14, 2014) (awarding $150,000 to one class representative and $75,000 each to two others); Bradburn Parent

[41] See Class Representative Declarations, attached hereto as Exhibit 6.

[42] See id.

[43] See ECF No. 432, Ex. 1, Expert Report Regarding Class Certification Issues, Impact, and Damages, Tables 1 & 2 (Aug. 3, 2016) (named plaintiffs' purchases from the alleged conspirators in 2012 and 2013 totaled $346,259, out of approximately $4.555 billion in class sales during the same period).

Teacher Store, Inc. v. 3M, 513 F. Supp. 2d 322, 342 (E.D. Pa. 2007) (awarding $75,000 to class representative); In re Graphite Electrodes Antitrust Litig., No. 2:10-md-01244-NS, ECF 527 (E.D. Pa. Sep. 8, 2003) (awarding $80,000 each to three class representative); McCoy v. Health Net, Inc., 569 F. Supp. 2d 448, 480 (D.N.J. 2008) (awarding $60,000 to each class representative); Nitsch v. DreamWorks Animation SKG Inc., No. 14-CV-04062, 2017 WL 2423161, at *14-16 (N.D. Cal. June 5, 2017) (awarding each of three class representatives $100,000 total for all settlements); In re High-Tech Employee Antitrust Litig., No. 11–CV–02509, 2015 WL 5158730, at *16-18 (N.D. Cal. Sept. 2, 2015) (awarding $100,000 to each of four original class representatives); Velez v. Novartis Pharm. Corp., No. 04 Civ. 09194, 2010 WL 4877852, at *8, 25-28 (S.D.N.Y. Nov. 30, 2010) (awarding $125,000 each to multiple named plaintiffs); In re Revco Securities Litig., Nos. 851 & 89CV593, 1992 WL 118800 (N.D. Ohio May 6, 1992) (awarding $200,000 to single class representative).

VI. CONCLUSION

For the reasons discussed above, Plaintiffs respectfully request that the Court: (1) award Class Counsel one-third of the Combined Settlement Fund, as well as the total amount in the Opt-Out Fee and Expense Account, as attorneys' fees; (2) order reimbursement of litigation expenses incurred by Class Counsel in the amount of $2,925,628.98; and (3) award each Class Representative a service award of $75,000.

Dated: April 9, 2018

Respectfully submitted,

/s/ H. Laddie Montague, Jr.
H. Laddie Montague, Jr.
Eric L. Cramer
Ruthanne Gordon
Michael C. Dell'Angelo
Candice Enders
BERGER & MONTAGUE, P.C.
1622 Locust Street
Philadelphia, PA 19103
Tel: (215) 875-3000
Email: hlmontague@bm.net
ecramer@bm.net
rgordon@bm.net
mdellangelo@bm.net
cenders@bm.net

/ s / Kit A. Pierson
Kit A. Pierson
Brent W. Johnson
David A. Young
COHEN MILSTEIN SELLERS & TOLL PLLC
1100 New York Ave., NW, Suite 500
Washington, DC 20005
Tel: (202) 408-4600
Email: kpierson@cohenmilstein.com bjohnson@cohenmilstein.com dyoung@cohenmilstein.com

/s/ Jeffrey J. Corrigan
Eugene A. Spector
Jeffrey J. Corrigan
Rachel E. Kopp
Jeffrey L. Spector
SPECTOR ROSEMAN
& KODROFF, P.C.
1818 Market Street, Suite 2500
Philadelphia, PA 19103
Tel: (215) 496-0300
Email: espector@srkattorneys.com jcorrigan@srkattorneys.com rkopp@srkattorneys.com
jspector@srkattorneys.com

Co-Lead Counsel for Direct Purchaser Plaintiffs and the Class

TAB 9A

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
FOR THE NORTHERN DISTRICT OF ILLINOIS
EASTERN DIVISION

IN RE BROILER CHICKEN ANTITRUST LITIGATION	No. 16 C 8637 Judge Thomas M. Durkin

MEMORANDUM OPINION AND ORDER

In this lawsuit alleging a price-fixing conspiracy in the chicken industry against more than 20 defendants, the Court appointed interim counsel to represent a putative class of direct-purchaser plaintiffs (the "DPPs" and their "Appointed Counsel"). See R. 144.[1] The Court approved settlements Appointed Counsel negotiated with six defendant corporate families, totaling $170,261,600.00, while the case continues to proceed against the remaining defendants.[2] Appointed Counsel have now moved for: an interim fee award; reimbursement of litigation expenses; and incentive awards to the five named class representatives. R. 4550. That motion is granted in accordance with this order.

[1] The Court appointed Lockridge Grindal Nauen P.L.L.P. and Pearson, Simon & Warshaw, LLP as Interim Co-Lead Counsel, and Hart, McLaughlin & Eldridge, LLC as Interim Liaison Counsel.

[2] This Court granted final approval to settlements with: Fieldale Farms Corporation on November 16, 2018, R. 1414; Amick Farms LLC on October 26, 2020, R. 3934; George's Inc., George's Farms, Inc. and Peco Foods, Inc. on October 27, 2020, R. 3944; and Pilgrim's Pride Corp., Tyson Foods, Inc., Tyson Chicken, Inc., Tyson Breeders, Inc., and Tyson Poultry, Inc. on June 29, 2021, R. 4789.

Background

Without the benefit of a prior government investigation to guide them, Appointed Counsel filed the first complaint in this case in September 2016. Since then, the Court has appointed counsel for two additional classes and more than 100 entities have opted out of the classes to file their own direct actions. The more than 20 defendants are represented by some of the most prominent law firms in the country.

Appointed Counsel successfully defended the case against a significant motion to dismiss. They have shepherded the case through extensive discovery, as is recounted in the declaration supporting their motion, see R. 4552, and is reflected in the more than 5,000 docket entries that make up the case, including 16 scheduling orders. Appointed Counsel have briefed numerous motions, including a motion for class certification that is currently pending.

Appointed Counsel have been assisted by 20 other firms. Appointed Counsel and the assisting firms have submitted their hours for the Court's review on a quarterly basis. Their collective lodestar is 100,608.25 hours representing $50,928.159.75 in fees. See R. 4552 ¶ 24.

Appointed Counsel seek a fee award of one-third of the settlement total of $170,261,600.00, or $56,753,866.00. They also seek payment of $4.5 million of the $5,104,566.48 in litigation expenses they have incurred. And they seek a $25,000 incentive award for each of the five named plaintiffs.[3]

Analysis

It is customary for class counsel in large and complex cases to seek an interim fee award. See, e.g., Kleen Prod. LLC v. Int'l Paper Co., 2017 WL 5247928, at *4 (N.D. Ill. Oct. 17, 2017); see also In re Endotronics, Inc., 1989 WL 6746, at *1 (D. Minn. Jan. 30, 1989) ("Untoward delay could discourage [class counsel] from engaging in matters such as these. The Court, therefore, must have discretion to award interim fees and costs."). The "starting point" for determining such an award is the "market rate" for such services. In re Synthroid Mktg. Litig., 264 F.3d 712, 719 (7th Cir. 2001); see also Silverman v. Motorola Sols., Inc., 739 F.3d 956, 957 (7th Cir. 2013) ("[A]ttorneys' fees in class actions should approximate the market rate that prevails between willing buyers and willing sellers of legal services."); Williams v. Rohm & Haas Pension Plan, 658 F.3d 629, 635 (7th Cir. 2011) ("[T]he district court must try to assign fees that mimic a hypothetical ex ante bargain between the class and its attorneys."). Estimation of the market rate "is inherently conjectural," In re Trans Union Corp. Priv. Litig., 629 F.3d 741, 744 (7th Cir. 2011), because "there is no market in class cases." Brian T. Fitzpatrick, A Fiduciary Judge's Guide to Awarding Fees in Class Actions, 89 Fordham L. Rev. 1151, 1155 (2021). But the Seventh Circuit has explained that the goal of approximating the market rate can be "informed by a number of factors, including: (1) the actual agreements between the parties as well as fee agreements reached by sophisticated entities in the market for legal services; (2) the risk of non-payment at the outset of the case; (3) the caliber of Class Counsel's performance; and [4] information from other cases, including fees awarded in comparable cases." Hale v. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co., 2018 WL 6606079, at *8 (S.D. Ill. Dec. 16, 2018) (citing Synthroid, 264 F.3d at 719)).

[3] The named plaintiffs are: Maplevale Farms, Inc.; John Gross and Company, Inc.; Ferraro Foods, Inc. and Ferraro Foods of North Carolina, LLC; Joe Christiana Food Distributors, Inc.; and Cedar Farms Co., Inc. See R. 4552 ¶ 36.

A. Actual Agreements

Appointed Counsel in this case do not have a fee agreement with the named plaintiffs other than that they would take a percentage of any award. See R. 5048-1 ¶ 11, Fitzpatrick Decl. ("According to [Appointed Counsel], the representative class members signed retainer agreements that did not specify a fee percentage; they specified only that any fees would be awarded by the Court.").[4] However, 2,808 claims have been filed by potential class member entities in the class, the majority of whom are sophisticated business entities. See id., Fitzpatrick Decl. ("In light of the sophistication of the class members, all of whom are businesses and some of whom are quite large, the conclusion that can be drawn from their decision not to object is that they favor the flat fee proposed by DPPs—not a sliding-scale fee."). None of them have objected to the fee award request. Courts have found that the lack of opposition by sophisticated business entities is evidence that the award is reasonable. See Silverman, 739 F.3d at 959 (holding that for large, sophisticated investors, it would be "worth a complaint to the district judge if the lawyers' cut seems too high. Yet none of the institutional investors has protested."); In re Dairy Farmers of Am., Inc., 80 F. Supp. 3d 838, 847 (N.D. Ill. 2015) (observing, in finding that the requested one-third fee award was reasonable, that "the plaintiffs here are sizable, sophisticated entities capable of reviewing (and objecting to) the proposed fee arrangement"),

[4] Appointed Counsel submitted a declaration from Brian Fitzpatrick, who is a professor at Vanderbilt University Law School and has studied and written about class action litigation. See R. 5048-1. In addition to requesting further briefing from Appointed Counsel, the Court invited briefs from counsel for the other two putative classes in the case. The Commercial and Institutional Indirect Purchaser Class submitted a declaration by Robert Klonoff, who is a professor at Lewis & Clark Law School, and who has also studied and written about class action litigation. See R. 5050-1. The Court found both declarations very helpful and has relied on them in preparing this opinion and order.

No other actual agreements have been presented to the Court. There is, however, case law describing court-ordered auctions in which potential class counsel bid for appointment. See In re Cap. One Tel. Consumer Prot. Act Litig., 80 F. Supp. 3d 781, 800 (N.D. Ill. 2015) (collecting cases, including In re Amino Acid Lysine Antitrust Litig., 918 F. Supp. 1190 (N.D. Ill. 1996)). The courts in In re Amino Acid and the other cases collected by In re Capital One sought fee award structure bids from attorneys hoping to represent the classes in those cases. The courts in those cases chose counsel who submitted declining fee scale award structures. (In other words, counsel proposed that their fee percentage decrease as the settlement amount increased.) These cases are relatively outdated, none being less than 20 years old. See R. 5048-1 ¶ 8, Fitzpatrick Decl. (court "experimentation with auctions has all but ceased"). But the Court is also aware that counsel for the End-User Plaintiff Class in this case bid a declining fee scale in other cases within the last ten years. See R. 5182 (citing In re Lithium Ion Batteries Antitrust Litig., Case No. 13-MD-2420-YGR (N.D.

Cal), Dkt. 2630-2; In re Optical Disk Drive Prods. Antitrust Litig., Case No. 10-MD-2134-VRW (N.D. Cal) Dkt. 2900, reported in In re Optical Disk Drive Antitrust Litig., 959 F.3d 922, 934 (9th Cir. 2020)).

The Court does not put much stock in these examples. First, no other attorneys bid to be appointed counsel for the DPPs in this case. Without competition, a bid auction was not feasible. And without competition, no attorney would offer to take a case under a declining fee scale award structure.

Furthermore, the Seventh Circuit has explained that declining fee scale award structures do not reflect market realities and impose a perverse incentive "ensuring that at some point attorneys' opportunity cost will exceed the benefits of pushing for a larger recovery, even though extra work could benefit the client." Synthroid, 264 F.3d at 721; see also Silverman, 739 F.3d at 957 ("[S]olvent litigants do not select their own lawyers by holding auctions, because auctions do not work well unless a standard unit of quality can be defined and its delivery verified. There is no 'standard quantity' of legal services, and verification is difficult if not impossible."). "Subsequent cases within the Seventh Circuit have similarly recognized that the auction concept is flawed[.]" R. 5050-1 at 17 n.15, Klonoff Decl. Of course, when confronted with a court ordered competitive auction that permits declining scale bids, some attorneys will likely make such a bid in order to win the auction. But for the reasons expressed by the Seventh Circuit, the Court questions whether it is appropriate to permit declining scale bids in an auction. Thus, cases with auctions that permitted such bids carry little weight in the Court's consideration here.

B. Risk of Non-Payment & Caliber of Class Counsel's Performance

A declining scale fee award structure might be appropriate in cases in which settlement is a more likely outcome and in which the "marginal costs" of increasing the settlement recovery amount are low. See Silverman, 739 F.3d at 959. As Professor Fitzpatrick surmised, this "may explain the use of [declining scale fee award structures] in the two [Telephone Consumer Protection Act] cases" the Court asked the parties to address. See R. 5048-1 at 17 n.6, Fitzpatrick Decl.

The Court ordered the parties to address the use of declining sliding scale fee award structures in Gehrich v. Chase Bank USA, N.A., 316 F.R.D. 215, 236 (N.D. Ill. 2016), and In re Cap. One Tel. Consumer Prot. Act Litig., 80 F. Supp. 3d 781, 805 (N.D. Ill. 2015). See R. 4915. Unlike those cases in which "settlement was likely," Gehrich, 316 F.R.D. at 230, settlement in a complex antitrust case like this is far from a foregone conclusion. See R. 505-1 ¶ 37, Klonoff Decl. ("In terms of risk and complexity, TCPA cases are the polar opposite of the present case, a complicated multi-party antitrust conspiracy case.").[5] Appointed Counsel invested massive resources of time and money when no other counsel expressed interest, with little assurance of success. See Silverman, 739 F.3d at 958 ("When this suit got under way, no other law firm was willing to serve as lead counsel. Lack of competition not only implies a higher fee but also suggests that most members of the securities bar saw this litigation as too risky for their practices."). As noted, no government investigation preceded the complaint in this case for Appointed Counsel to piggy-back. And Plaintiffs have been opposed by many defendants, including a number of very large and well-funded corporations, which have retained some of the most prominent and sophisticated law firms in the United States. The Court's 92-page decision denying the motions to dismiss was a relatively close call. Discovery proceeded while the motions to dismiss were briefed and decided, so Appointed Counsel was immediately incurring costs of time and money without any assurance of an award. Furthermore, issues raised in the motions to dismiss show that success on class certification and summary judgment, let alone trial, is no guarantee.

[5] Moreover, research by both Professors Fitzpatrick and Klonoff shows that the use of declining sliding scale fee awards in the Seventh Circuit is rare. See R. 5048-1 at 13 n.5, Fitzpatrick Decl.; R. 5050-1 at 26-31, Klonoff Decl.

Appointed Counsel have devoted thousands of hours to this case. Their performance to date has been exemplary. The road to some of the settlements was eventually smoothed by later criminal indictments. But Appointed Counsel's work appears to have prompted the government investigations that led to those indictments, rather than the reverse. A substantial award is warranted here as a proper incentive for high quality counsel to take on complex cases, requiring a massive investment of time and money, with such a high risk of non-payment.

C. Fee Awards in Comparable Cases

The Seventh Circuit has recognized that academic studies of attorney fees awards in common fund class settlement cases reveal a declining percentage with the size of the settlement. See Silverman, 739 F.3d at 959. But as Professor Fitzpatrick noted, "these findings are based on fee awards from other Circuits . . . that are not even trying to capture how clients pay lawyers in the market like the Seventh Circuit does." R. 5048-1 at 20 n.7, Fitzpatrick Decl. These decisions are infected by default rules recommending smaller attorney fee award percentages for "megafunds." See, e.g., Wal-Mart Stores, Inc. v. Visa U.S.A., Inc., 396 F.3d 96, 123 (2d Cir. 2005) (affirming a 6.5 percent fee award from a common fund over $3 billion, reasoning that "the sheer size of the instant fund makes a smaller percentage appropriate"); Dial Corp. v. News Corp., 317 F.R.D. 426 (S.D.N.Y. 2016) ("[I]n class actions where the recovered settlement fund runs into the multi-millions, courts typically decrease the percentage of the fees amount as the size of the fund increases."). The Seventh Circuit has expressly rejected a megafund rule because it is a perverse incentive. See Synthroid, 264 F.3d at 718 (reversing district court's fee award in part because it imposed a lower fee percentage because the settlement fund was more than $100 million, holding that "[m]arkets would not tolerate that effect"). Clients generally want to incentivize their counsel to pursue every last settlement dollar, and a declining percentage award operates to the contrary. Thus, to the extent that courts in other circuits have awarded percentages smaller than what Appointed Counsel seek here, the Court finds those awards relatively unpersuasive.

Most persuasive are the large number of antitrust cases in this circuit that have awarded one-third of the common fund as attorney's fees. See R. 5050-1 at 45-46 (table citing cases), Klonoff Decl. The fact that fee awards in antitrust cases in this circuit are almost always one-third is a strong indication that this should be considered the "market rate." See R. 5048-1 ¶ 14, Fitzpatrick Decl. (in "a series of antitrust class actions . . . . recover[ing] more than $2 billion . . . . not a single class member ever objected to the fee request in any of these cases" showing that "sophisticated corporations are happy to play flat fees of 33.33% and they are happy to do so even in the largest cases."). There is simply little to no precedent recommending anything other than an award of 33 percent. With the only real evidence of the "market rate" being one-third, that is what the Court will award.

D. Expenses

Appointed Counsel seek $4.5 million out of $5,104,566.48 in expenses. Appointed Counsel "informed the class" that they would not seek to recover the full amount of their expenses at this time. See R. 4551 at 2 n.7. The request for $4.5 million in expenses is granted.

Expenses, however, should be deducted from the common fund before the fee award percentage is applied. The "ratio that is relevant to assessing the reasonableness of the attorneys' fee that the parties agreed to is the ratio of (1) the fee to (2) the fee plus what the class members received." Redman v. RadioShack, 768 F.3d 622, 630 (7th Cir. 2014). Out-of-pocket costs, although paid through the settlement fund, are not benefits to the class and thus not part of "what the class members received." Id.; see also In re Wells Fargo Secs. Litig., 157 F.R.D. 467, 471 (N.D. Cal. 1994) ("If an attorney risks losing some portion of his fee award for each additional dollar in expenses he incurs, the attorney is sure to minimize expenses."). Therefore, Appointed Counsel will be paid fees of one-third of the settlement fund minus $4.5 million in expenses.

E. Named Plaintiff Incentive Awards

"Because a named plaintiff is an essential ingredient of any class action, an incentive award is appropriate if it is necessary to induce an individual to participate in the suit." Cook v. Niedert, 142 F.3d 1004, 1016 (7th Cir. 1998). "To determine if an incentive award is warranted, a district court evaluates the actions the plaintiff has taken to protect the interests of the class, the degree to which the class has benefitted from those actions, and the amount of time and effort the plaintiff expended in pursuing the litigation." Camp Drug Store, Inc. v. Cochran Wholesale Pharm., Inc., 897 F.3d 825, 834 (7th Cir. 2018) (citing Cook, 142 F.3d at 1016). Incentive awards based on a percentage of the settlement fund "are disfavored, if not altogether forbidden." See William B. Rubenstein, 5 Newberg on Class Actions § 17:16 (5th ed. 2018); see also In Re EpiPen Mktg., Sales Pracs. & Antitrust Litig., 2021 WL 5369798, at *7 (D. Kan. Nov. 17, 2021).

The declarations submitted in support of incentive awards give no indication of the number of hours the named plaintiffs have spent on the case. Appointed Counsel relies on Cook v. Niedert in which the Seventh Circuit affirmed an incentive award of $25,000 per named plaintiff. See R. 4551 at 21 (citing 142 F.3d at 1016). But in Cook the named plaintiff was an individual who "reasonably feared workplace retaliation" by "filing the suit." Id. at 1016. No such risk is present here, and the named plaintiffs are business entities, not individual people. Presumably, businesses serving as named plaintiffs for the DPP class believe that the chance of collecting from this lawsuit was worth the cost of participating in it. Litigation is convenient for no one. But business entities are in a much better position to devote time to a lawsuit and delegate the burdens among their officers and employees than a person who must bear the entire burden individually.

"Empirical evidence shows that incentive awards are now paid in most class suits and average between $10-$15,000 per class representative." See William B. Rubenstein, 5 Newberg on Class Actions § 17:1 (5th ed. 2018). Appointed Counsel cite one antitrust case from this district which awarded $15,000 to named plaintiffs from a $90 million settlement. See In re Potash Antitrust Litig., No. 1:08-cv-06910 (ECF No. 589) (N.D. Ill. June 12, 2013). Without specific hour totals indicating a higher award is appropriate, and without evidence that the role of class representative imposed anything other than a professional (as opposed to a personal) burden, the Court will not ignore what appears to be a customary maximum of a $15,000 incentive award.

Conclusion

Therefore, Appointed Counsel's motion [4550] is granted as follows: (1) expenses are awarded in the amount of $4.5 million; (2) incentive awards in the amount of $15,000 are awarded to each of the five class representatives; and (3) fees are awarded in the amount of $55,228,866.70, which is one third of the settlement fund after deducting the expenses and incentive awards.

ENTERED:

Thomas M Durkin

Honorable Thomas M. Durkin
United States District Judge

Dated: November 30, 2021

TAB 9B

IN THE UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
FOR THE NORTHERN DISTRICT OF ILLINOIS
EASTERN DIVISION

IN RE BROILER CHICKEN ANTITRUST LITIGATION This Document Relates To: Direct Purchaser Actions	No. 1:16-cv-08637 Hon. Thomas M. Durkin Magistrate Judge Jeffrey T. Gilbert

MEMORANDUM IN SUPPORT OF DIRECT PURCHASER PLAINTIFFS' MOTION FOR INTERIM PAYMENT OF ATTORNEYS' FEES, REIMBURSEMENT OF EXPENSES, AND CLASS REPRESENTATIVE INCENTIVE AWARDS

TABLE OF CONTENTS

I. INTRODUCTION 1

II. CLASS COUNSEL DEDICATED ENORMOUS RESOURCES TO THIS MATTER AND FACED SIGNIFICANT RISKS TO SUCCESSFULLY RESOLVE THIS CASE WITH THE SETTLING DEFENDANTS 3

A. Class Counsel Dedicated Tremendous Resources to Resolve DPPs' Claims. 3

B. Class Counsel Faced Significant Risk of Nonpayment. 6

1. Antitrust Class Actions are Inherently Risky 7

2. Class Counsel Faced Complex Issues. 8

3. Defendants Marshalled Tremendous Resources for Their Defense. 9

III. THE REQUESTED INTERIM FEE AWARD IS APPROPRIATE UNDER CONTROLLING LAW 11

A. DPPs Seek a Percentage of the Settlement Fund as an Interim Award of Fees. 11

B. Plaintiffs' Requested Fee is an Appropriate Market-Based Fee. 13

1. Judicial Fee Awards in Other Class Actions Using a Form of Market-Mimicking Approach Support a 30% to 40% Fee as the Market Rate Here. 15

2. Reported Statistical Data Support a Market Rate in Antitrust Class Actions of 30% to 40%. 16

C. A Lodestar Cross-Check Confirms that the Fee Requested is Proper. 17

IV. COUNSEL'S LITIGATION EXPENSES WERE REASONABLY INCURRED AND SHOULD BE APPROVED, AND AT THIS TIME THEY SHOULD BE REIMBURSED UP TO $4.5 MILLION 19

V. THE CLASS REPRESENTATIVES SHOULD RECEIVE INTERIM SERVICE AWARDS 21

VI. CONCLUSION 22

TABLE OF AUTHORITIES

Page(s)

Cases

Allapattah Servs., Inc. v. Exxon Corp.,
454 F. Supp. 2d 1185 (S.D. Fla. 2006) 16

Americana Art China Co., Inc. v. Foxfire Printing and Packaging, Inc.,
743 F.3d 243 (7th Cir. 2014) 12

Arenson, et al. v. Bd. of Trade of City of Chicago,
372 F. Supp. 1349 (N.D. Ill. 1974) 10

In re Avandia Mktg., Sales Practices and Prods. Liab. Litig., MDL No. 1871, 2012 WL 6923367 (E.D. Pa. Oct. 19, 2012) 9

Blue Shield of Va. v. McCready,
457 U.S. 465 (1982) 14

Blum v. Stenson,
465 U.S. 886 (1984) 13

Boeing Co. v. Van Gemert,
444 U.S. 472 (1980) 11

Brewer v. S. Union Co.,
607 F. Supp. 1511 (D. Colo. 1984) 10

Burkholder v. City of Ft. Wayne,
750 F. Supp. 2d 990 (N.D. Ind. 2010) 14

In re Cabletron Sys., Inc. Secs. Litig., 239 F.R.D. 30 (D.N.H. 2006) 16

Campbell v. Advantage Sales & Mktg. LLC,
No. 1:09-cv-01430, 2012 WL 1424417 (S.D. Ind. Apr. 24, 2012) 14

In re Capital One Telephone Consumer Protection Act Litig., 80 F. Supp. 3d 781 (N.D. Ill. 2015) 7

In re Cardizem CD Antitrust Litig.,
218 F.R.D. 508 (E.D. Mich. 2003) 8

In re Cathode Ray Tube (CRT) Antitrust Litig.,
MDL No. 1917, 2016 WL 721680 (N.D. Cal. Jan. 28, 2016) 8

Matter of Cont'l Illinois Sec. Litig.,
962 F.2d 566 (7th Cir. 1992),
as amended on denial of reh'g (May 22, 1992).....6, 14

Cook v. Niedert,
142 F.3d 1004 (7th Cir. 1998) 17, 18, 21, 22

In re Dairy Farmers of Am., Inc.,
80 F. Supp. 3d 838 (N.D. Ill. 2015) 12, 13, 17, 19

Denius v. Dunlap,
330 F.3d 919 (7th Cir. 2003) 17

Florin v. Nationsbank of Ga., N.A.,
34 F.3d 560 (7th Cir. 1994) 6, 12, 18

Gaskill v. Gordon,
160 F.3d 361 (7th Cir. 1998) 11

Gaskill v. Gordon,
942 F. Supp. 382 (N.D. Ill. 1996) 12, 13

Gastineau v. Wright,
592 F.3d 747 (7th Cir. 2010) 18

George v. Kraft Foods Glob., Inc.,
Nos. 1:08-cv-03799; 1:07-cv-01713,
2012 WL 13089487 (N.D. Ill. June 26, 2012).....17

Goldsmith v. Tech. Sols. Co.,
No. 1:92-cv-04374, 1995 WL 17009594 (N.D. Ill. Oct. 10, 1995).....14

Hale v. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co.,
No. 3:12-cv-00660, 2018 WL 6606079 (S.D. Ill. Dec. 16, 2018).....11

Harman v. Lyphomed, Inc.,
945 F.2d 969 (7th Cir. 1991) 18, 19

Heekin v. Anthem, Inc.,
No. 1:05-cv-01908, 2012 WL 5878032 (S.D. Ind. Nov. 20, 2012).....11, 13, 17

Hensley v. Eckerhart,
461 U.S. 424 (1983).....12

In re Hyundai and Kia Fuel Economy Litig.,
926 F.3d 539 (9th Cir. 2019) 19

In re Ins. Brokerage Antitrust Litig.,
282 F.R.D. 92 (D.N.J. Mar. 30. 2012) 10

In re Ins. Brokerage Antitrust Litig.,
MDL No. 1663, 2009 WL 411856 (D.N.J. Feb. 17, 2009).....15

Jeffboat, LLC v. Dir., Office of Workers' Comp. Programs,
553 F.3d 487 (7th Cir. 2009) 17

Kelly v. Wengler,
822 F.3d 1085 (9th Cir. 2016) 19

Kirchoff v. Flynn,
786 F.2d 320 (7th Cir. 1986) 6, 12

Kitson v. Bank of Edwardsville,
No. 3:08-cv-00507, 2010 WL 331730 (S.D. Ill. Jan. 25, 2010) 14

In re Lawnmower Engine Horsepower Mktg. & Sales Practices Litig., 733 F. Supp. 2d 997 (E.D. Wis. 2010).....19

Leung v. XPO Logistics, Inc.,
326 F.R.D. 185 (N.D. Ill. 2018).....17

In re Linerboard Antitrust Litig.,
No. 2:98-cv-05055, 2004 WL 1221350 (E.D. Pa. June 2, 2004), amended, No. 2:98-cv-05055, 2004 WL 1240775 (E.D. Pa. June 4, 2004) 8

In re Lithotripsy Antitrust Litig.,
No. 1:98-cv-08394, 2000 WL 765086 (N.D. Ill. June 12, 2000).....12, 13, 14

Martin v. Caterpillar Inc.,
No. 1:07-cv-01009, 2010 WL 11614985 (C.D. Ill. Sept. 10, 2010) 14

Mills v. Elec. Auto-Lite Co.,
396 U.S. 375 (1970).....11, 19

Montgomery v. Aetna Plywood, Inc.,
231 F.3d 399 (7th Cir. 2000) 11

In re NASDAQ Mkt-Makers Antitrust Litig., 187 F.R.D. 465 (S.D.N.Y. 1998) 8

Nilsen v. York Cnty.,
400 F. Supp. 2d 266 (D. Me. 2005) 15

In re Northfield Lab., Inc. Secs. Litig.,
No. 1:06-cv-01493, 2012 WL 2458445 (N.D. Ill. June 26, 2012).....11

Pavlik v. FDIC,
No. 1:10-cv-00816, 2011 WL 5184445 (N.D. Ill. Nov. 1, 2011) 14

Paz v. Portfolio Recovery Assocs., LLC,
924 F.3d 949 (7th Cir. 2019) 18

In re Ready-Mixed Concrete Antitrust Litig.,
No. 1:05-cv-00979, 2010 WL 3282591 (S.D. Ind. Aug. 17, 2010) 12, 14, 19

In re Remeron Direct Purchaser Antitrust Litig.,
No. 2:03-cv-00085, 2005 WL 3008808 (D.N.J. Nov. 9, 2005) 16

Retsky Family Ltd. Partnership v. Price Waterhouse LLP,
No. 1:97-cv-07694, 2001 WL 1568856 (N.D. Ill. Dec. 10, 2001) 14

In re Schering-Plough Corp. Enhance Secs. Litig., No2:08-cv-02177, 2013 WL 5505744 (D.N.J. Oct. 1, 2013) 9

Schulte v. Fifth Third Bank,
805 F. Supp. 2d 560 (N.D. Ill. 2011) 14, 19

Sec. & Exch. Comm'n v. First Secs. Co. of Chicago,
528 F.2d 449 (7th Cir. 1976) 13

Silverman v. Motorola Sols., Inc.,
739 F.3d 956 (7th Cir. 2013) 6

Skelton v. Gen. Motors Corp.,
860 F.2d 250 (7th Cir. 1988) 18, 19

Spicer v. Chicago Bd. Options Exch., Inc.,
844 F. Supp. 1226 (N.D. Ill. 1993) 22

Standard Iron Works v. ArcelorMittal,
No. 1:08-cv-05214, 2014 WL 7781572 (N.D. Ill. Oct. 22, 2014) 19

Matter of Superior Beverage/Glass Container Consol. Pretrial,
133 F.R.D. 119 (N.D. Ill. 1990) 8

Sutton v. Bernard,
504 F.3d 688 (7th Cir. 2007) 12

In re Synthroid Mktg. Litig.,
264 F.3d 712 (7th Cir. 2001) 6, 7, 15, 19

In re Trans Union Corp. Privacy Litig.,
No. 1:00-cv-04729, 2009 WL 4799954 (N.D. Ill. Dec. 9, 2009), order modified and remanded, 629 F.3d 741 (7th Cir. 2011) 15

Trist v. First Fed. Savings & Loan Ass'n of Chester,
89 F.R.D. 8 (E.D. Pa. 1980).....10

Vizcaino v. Microsoft Corp.,
290 F.3d 1043 (9th Cir. 2002).....19

In re Warner Comm'ns. Secs. Litig.,
618 F. Supp. 735 (S.D.N.Y. 1985), aff'd, 798 F.2d 35 (2d Cir. 1986).....10

Will v. Gen. Dynamics Corp.,
No. 3:06-cv-00698, 2010 WL 4818174 (S.D. Ill. Nov. 22, 2010).....14

Williams v. Gen. Elec. Cap. Auto Lease,
No. 1:94-cv-07410, 1995 WL 765266 (N.D. Ill. Dec. 26, 1995).....11

Williams v. Rohm & Haas Pension Plan,
658 F.3d 629 (7th Cir. 2011).....11, 12, 17

Williams v. Rohm & Haas Pension Plan,
No. 4:04-cv-00078, 2010 WL 4723725 (S.D. Ind. Nov. 12, 2010), aff'd, 658 F.3d 629 (7th Cir. 2011).....21

In re WorldCom, Inc. Secs. Litig.,
388 F. Supp. 2d 319 (S.D.N.Y. 2005).....10

Wright v. Nationstar Mortg. LLC,
No. 1:14-cv-10457, 2016 WL 4505169 (N.D. Ill. Aug. 29, 2016).....17

Zenith Radio Corp. v. Hazeltine Rsch., Inc.,
395 U.S. 100 (1969).....14

Other Authorities

Alba Conte, Attorney Fee Awards § 2.08 (3d ed. 2004).....19

Joshua P. Davis, Toward an Empirical and Theoretical Assessment of Private Antitrust Enforcement, 36 SEAULR 1269, 1293-95 (2013).....16

Lester Brickman, ABA Regulation of Contingency Fees: Money Talks, Ethics Walks, 65 FORDHAM L. REV. 247, 248 (1996).....13

Nicholas M. Pace, Stephen J. Carroll, Ingo Vogelsang, & Laura Zakaras, Insurance Class Actions in the United States, 47 (tbl. 3.16) (2007).....7

Robert H. Lande & Joshua P. Davis, Benefits from Private Antitrust Enforcement: An Analysis of Forty Cases, 42 U.S.F. L. REV. 879 (July 2008).....16

Theodore Eisenberg & Geoffrey P. Miller, Attorneys' Fees and Expenses in Class Action Settlements: 1993-2008, 7 J. Empir. L. Stud. 248 (2010).....7, 19

Rules

Fed. R. Civ. P. 23(h) 19

Fed. R. Civ. P. 30(b)(1).....4

Fed. R. Civ. P. 30(b)(6).....4

I. INTRODUCTION

After more than four and one-half years of hard-fought litigation in this complex antitrust class action with no guarantee of compensation, Interim Co-Lead Counsel for the Direct Purchaser Plaintiffs ("Co-Lead Counsel")[1] have secured settlements with six Defendant families: Amick Farms LLC, Fieldale Farms Corporation, Peco Foods, Inc., Pilgrim's Pride Corporation, the George's Defendants,[2] and the Tyson Defendants[3] (collectively, "Settling Defendants").[4] Under the terms of these settlements, the Settling Defendants have paid into escrow a total of $170,261,600.00 ("Settlement Fund"), and Co-Lead Counsel have commenced the claims process to disburse the net proceeds of the Settlement Fund to qualified class members.

These settlements reflect the skill, expertise, and hard work of Co-Lead Counsel and other Direct Purchaser Plaintiff Counsel (collectively, "Class Counsel"),[5] and the benefit to class

[1] The Court appointed Lockridge Grindal Nauen P.L.L.P. ("LGN") and Pearson, Simon & Warshaw, LLP ("PSW") as Interim Co-Lead Counsel, and Hart, McLaughlin & Eldridge, LLC as Interim Liaison Counsel. (ECF No. 144, Oct. 14, 2016 Order.)

[2] The George's Defendants are George's Inc. and George's Farms, Inc. (ECF No. 3919, DPPs' Fifth Amended and Consolidated Class Action Complaint, ¶¶ 61-62.)

[3] The Tyson Defendants are Tyson Foods, Inc., Tyson Chicken, Inc., Tyson Breeders, Inc., and Tyson Poultry, Inc. (Id., ¶¶ 33-36.)

[4] This Court granted final approval to the DPPs' settlements with Defendant Fieldale Farms Corporation on November 16, 2018 (ECF No. 1414); Amick Farms LLC on October 26, 2020 (ECF No. 3934); and the George's Defendants and Peco Foods, Inc. on October 27, 2020 (ECF No. 3944). This Court granted preliminary approval to DPPs' settlements with Pilgrim's Pride Corporation and the Tyson Defendants on February 25, 2021 (ECF No. 4341). The Court has scheduled a fairness hearing on final approval of the Pilgrim's and Tyson settlements on June 29, 2021, at which time Co-Lead Counsel also will seek to have this motion heard.

[5] Under Co-Lead Counsel's direction, 20 other firms prosecuted this case on DPPs' behalf and, together with DPPs' Co-Lead Counsel, they are referred to collectively in this Memorandum as "Class Counsel." At all times, Co-Lead Counsel directed and organized Class Counsel's work. See Declaration of W. Joseph Bruckner in Support of Direct Purchaser Plaintiffs' Motion for Interim Award of Attorneys' Fees, Reimbursement Expenses, and Class Representative Incentive Awards, dated April 16, 2021 ("Bruckner Decl."). Co-Lead Counsel will have discretion to allocate an award of attorneys' fees among Direct Purchaser Plaintiff Counsel. Co-Lead Counsel's good-faith members is substantial, real, and concrete, compared to the significant litigation risks in this case. As such, Direct Purchaser Plaintiffs ("DPPs") respectfully ask the Court to award Class Counsel 33 1/3% of the Settlement Fund or $56,753,866.00[6] as attorneys' fees, $4,500,000.00 as reimbursement for litigation expenses, and $25,000.00 in incentive awards to each of the five named class representatives.[7]

All class members will have notice and an opportunity to be heard on this motion. In the Court-approved notice to class members of the Tyson and Pilgrim's settlements, Class Counsel informed all class members that they would seek an award of attorneys' fees in an amount not to exceed 33 1/3% of the Settlement Proceeds and $4.5 million in litigation expenses.[8] As class members also were informed, this motion will be posted on the case website, https://www.broilerchickenantitrustlitigation.com, contemporaneously with the filing of this motion. Class Counsel also informed class members that the Court will determine the amount of the attorneys' fees and litigation expenses to be paid to Class Counsel in this case. Finally, class determination will reflect each individual Class Counsel's contribution to the commencement, prosecution, and resolution of the litigation.

---

[6] There are opt-out reduction mechanisms in the Pilgrim's and Tyson settlement agreements that could result in a reduction in the total amounts of those settlements, depending on how many class members opt out of those settlements (ECF No. 4259-1, at 22-24 (Pilgrim's) and 53-55 (Tyson)). The deadline to opt out of those settlements is May 17, 2021. If those reduction mechanisms are triggered, Plaintiffs will advise the Court in advance of the hearing on June 29, 2021, provide the amounts of the reductions, and provide a new calculation of 1/3 of the Settlement Fund as a proposed award of attorneys' fees.

[7] As discussed in Section IV below, although Class Counsel's current litigation expenses exceed $4.5 million, Class Counsel informed the class that their request for reimbursement of litigation expenses from these settlements would not exceed $4.5 million.

[8] See https://www.broilerchickenantitrustlitigation.com/admin/services/connectedapps.cms.extensions/1.0.0.0/asset?id=d1618bee-26ea-4ac1-8583-56e80f11113c&languageId=1033&inline=true (last visited April 8, 2021); see also ECF No. 4259-2 at 25 (proposed class notice); ECF No. 4341 (Feb. 25, 2021 Order granting DPPs' motion for preliminary approval of the Tyson and Pilgrim's settlements and accompanying class notice).

members were told that they may object to any aspect of the Tyson and Pilgrim's settlements and that the deadline to do so is May 17, 2021.[9] Prior to the Court's fairness hearing on June 29, 2021, Class Counsel will report to the Court on any objections received, including to this motion for fees and expenses.

II. CLASS COUNSEL DEDICATED ENORMOUS RESOURCES TO THIS MATTER AND FACED SIGNIFICANT RISKS TO SUCCESSFULLY RESOLVE THIS CASE WITH THE SETTLING DEFENDANTS

From the inception of their investigation into this matter, Class Counsel dedicated their time, expertise, and capital to ensure the Class would recover for Defendants' wrongful conduct. A summary of those efforts is provided below.

A. Class Counsel Dedicated Tremendous Resources to Resolve DPPs' Claims.

Class Counsel have dedicated tremendous time, effort, and expense to this litigation, and they have done so entirely on a contingent basis, with no guarantee of compensation or even reimbursement of expenses. Since the inception of this case (many months before it was actually filed in September 2016), Class Counsel invested 100,608.25 hours of attorney and other legal professional time through December 31, 2020.[10] (Bruckner Decl. ¶ 24.) Co-Lead Counsel have worked diligently to ensure that throughout the case, Class Counsel's efforts have been coordinated, detailed, vigorous, and efficient. To date, the result of these efforts is a substantial recovery for the DPPs: a Settlement Fund of $170,261,600.00.

[9] Id.

[10] Class Counsel have limited the reporting of their time and lodestar through December 31, 2020 for the purpose of this motion. They will continue to dedicate significant time and resources to the litigation until it is resolved.

This Court is well acquainted with the history of this case, so it is unnecessary to describe in depth the litigation, its procedural history, expert analysis, and other work needed to build a case of this magnitude. Instead, following is an overview of Class Counsel's efforts to date:

- Co-Lead Counsel filed the first antitrust complaint on behalf of Broiler chicken purchasers in September 2016. This complaint was the product of Co-Lead Counsel's extensive preparation, independent investigation, and research into the Broiler chicken industry. Unlike other matters, there were no prior or contemporaneous government investigations or enforcement proceedings; instead, the U.S. Department of Justice's ("DOJ") related investigation and criminal proceedings followed this civil litigation. Class Counsel have prepared and filed multiple amended and consolidated complaints reflecting information Class Counsel obtained from additional investigation and discovery. (Bruckner Decl. ¶ 4.)
- Class Counsel have developed numerous case management plans and worked cooperatively with indirect purchaser class counsel, direct action plaintiffs, the DOJ, and Defendants to implement those plans. (Bruckner Decl. ¶ 5.)
- Class Counsel have prepared and filed comprehensive memoranda of law: (a) in opposition to Defendants' motions to dismiss, (b) regarding numerous discovery issues, (c) in support of class certification, including expert reports and other exhibits, and (d) seeking preliminary and final approval of settlements with the Settling Defendants. (Bruckner Decl. ¶ 6.)
- Class Counsel have conducted extensive fact and expert discovery, including preparing for and taking well over 100 Rule 30(b)(1), 30(b)(6), and expert depositions. Class Counsel reviewed, analyzed, and coded a database containing more than 8 million documents and other records produced by Defendants and third parties in the litigation, utilized in support of depositions, class certification, and additional facets of the case. (Bruckner Decl. ¶ 7.)

- Class Counsel have consulted with experts during their pre-suit investigation and the discovery phase of this case, including their agricultural economist Dr. Colin Carter, who prepared a 119-page opening report and a 137-page reply report in support of class certification. (Bruckner Decl. ¶ 8.)
- Class Counsel engaged in extensive adversarial negotiations and mediations and ultimately negotiated six settlement agreements with the Settling Defendants. (Bruckner Decl. ¶ 9.)
- Class Counsel have taken evidence proffers and interviewed witnesses made available by Settling Defendants. (Bruckner Decl. ¶ 10.)
- Class Counsel have prepared and executed the Court-approved class notice and settlement claims administration programs. (Bruckner Decl. ¶ 11.)

In addition to the 100,608.25 hours of attorney and other legal professional time invested in this case through December 31, 2020, to date Class Counsel have incurred total litigation expenses in the amount of $5,104,566.48.[11] These expenses, discussed in detail below, were required to carefully frame the complex issues of fact and law in the pleadings, to defeat Defendants' motions to dismiss, to effectively manage the case, to undertake well-organized [11] As noted above at p. 2 and in Section IV below, in this motion Class Counsel seek payment of $4.5 million in litigation costs.

attempts to discover a complex antitrust case against enormous (and enormously wealthy) business entities, and to support class certification. (Bruckner Decl. ¶¶ 28-35.)

Class Counsel will continue to vigorously litigate this case against the remaining Defendants, including discovery, motion and litigation practice, and trial. With respect to the settlements, Class Counsel will seek final approval of the settlements preliminarily approved by this Court, supervise all aspects of settlement and claims administration, and supervise the final distribution of settlement proceeds to qualified DPPs. (Bruckner Decl. ¶ 12.)

B. Class Counsel Faced Significant Risk of Nonpayment.

A material consideration in determining an appropriate fee is the risk of nonpayment. See Silverman v. Motorola Sols., Inc., 739 F.3d 956, 958 (7th Cir. 2013); In re Synthroid Mktg. Litig., 264 F.3d 712, 718 (7th Cir. 2001). "The lawyers for the class receive no fee if the suit fails." Matter of Cont'l Illinois Sec. Litig., 962 F.2d 566, 568 (7th Cir. 1992), as amended on denial of reh'g (May 22, 1992). "Contingent fees compensate lawyers for the risk of nonpayment. The greater the risk of walking away empty-handed, the higher the award must be to attract competent and energetic counsel." Silverman, 739 F.3d at 958 (citing Kirchoff v. Flynn, 786 F.2d 320 (7th Cir. 1986)).

To determine a fee award in a class action settlement, a court must assess counsel's risk of taking a particular case and the probability of success as it existed "at the outset of the litigation." Florin v. Nationsbank of Ga., N.A., 34 F.3d 560, 565 (7th Cir. 1994). Therefore, a court must do its best to estimate the terms of the contract that private plaintiffs would have negotiated with their lawyers at the outset of the case, when the risk of loss still existed, rather than at the end of a successful case:

> The best time to determine this rate is the beginning of the case, not the end (when hindsight alters the perception of the suit's riskiness, > and sunk costs make it impossible for the lawyers to walk away if the fee is too low). This is what happens in actual markets.

In re Synthroid, 264 F.3d at 718; see also In re Capital One Telephone Consumer Protection Act Litig., 80 F. Supp. 3d 781, 788–89 (N.D. Ill. 2015) (the probability of success at the outset of litigation helps determine the reasonableness of the fee).

As discussed below, Class Counsel faced a significant risk of nonpayment. The scope of this case is extensive: DPPs alleged a price-fixing conspiracy by the United States' leading Broiler chicken producers and claimed that they and the Class paid significant overcharges as a result. Class Counsel believed in DPPs' case, invested extensive time, effort, and money, and prosecuted it vigorously. Class Counsel did so at the risk of no recovery and declined other opportunities because of the complexity, time, and expense this case demanded. (Bruckner Decl. ¶ 13.)

Class Counsel also conceived and brought this case without the benefit of any related government investigation or enforcement action. (Bruckner Decl. ¶ 4.) Indeed, only after DPPs had prosecuted this case for two-and-a-half years did the DOJ convene grand jury proceedings. And then, the first step the DOJ took was to subpoena DPP Co-Lead Counsel for the documents they already obtained in discovery from Defendants and third parties, after which the DOJ moved to intervene in this case. (Bruckner Decl. ¶ 4; ECF No. 2302.)

In the face of these risks, Class Counsel have achieved significant recoveries on behalf of the DPP Class after over four years of litigation, with 14 Defendants left in the case. (Bruckner Decl. ¶¶ 9, 12-13.) A brief overview of the relevant factors considered by courts is provided below.

1. Antitrust Class Actions are Inherently Risky.

In a study analyzing class actions against insurers, only 12% of 564 attempted class actions led to a class settlement. Theodore Eisenberg & Geoffrey P. Miller, Attorneys' Fees and Expenses in Class Action Settlements: 1993-2008, 7 J. EMPIR. L. STUD. 248, at 24 (2010) (citing Nicholas

M. Pace, Stephen J. Carroll, Ingo Vogelsang, & Laura Zakaras, Insurance Class Actions in the United States, 47 tbl.3.16 (2007)). Antitrust class actions are riskier still, due in part to their unpredictable nature, as well as the tremendous time and expense required to obtain a successful resolution. In re Cathode Ray Tube (CRT) Antitrust Litig., MDL No. 1917, 2016 WL 721680, at *17 (N.D. Cal. Jan. 28, 2016) (quoting In re NASDAQ Mkt-Makers Antitrust Litig., 187 F.R.D. 465, 475 (S.D.N.Y. 1998)); see In re Cardizem CD Antitrust Litig., 218 F.R.D. 508, 530 (E.D. Mich. 2003) (emphasizing a strong public interest in encouraging settlement of complex, class-action lawsuits because they are "notoriously difficult and unpredictable" and settlement preserves judicial resources). "The 'best' case can be lost and the 'worst' case can be won, and juries may find liability but no damages. None of these risks should be underestimated." Matter of Superior Beverage/Glass Container Consol. Pretrial, 133 F.R.D. 119, 127 (N.D. Ill. 1990).

Here, the stakes were extremely high. DPPs alleged a nationwide conspiracy to fix, raise, maintain, and stabilize the price of Broilers—the nation's most popular meat product. While Fieldale settled prior to November 2017 when the Court denied Defendants' motions to dismiss DPPs' complaint (ECF No. 541), the other five Settling Defendants continued to aggressively litigate the case, fighting DPPs on the merits. In the face of these risks, Class Counsel vigorously represented DPPs and obtained a substantial recovery on behalf of the Class.

2. Class Counsel Faced Complex Issues.

Investigating and proving an unlawful conspiracy is difficult, especially when not derived from a related criminal investigation. In re Linerboard Antitrust Litig., No. 2:98-cv-05055, 2004 WL 1221350, at *10 (E.D. Pa. June 2, 2004), amended, No. 2:98-cv-05055, 2004 WL 1240775 (E.D. Pa. June 4, 2004) (observing that "an antitrust class action is arguably the most complex action to prosecute."). DPPs allege that Defendants conspired to artificially inflate prices by, among other things, suppressing production and manipulating the Georgia Dock price index.

Defendants spared no effort in challenging DPPs' complaint. They argued that DPPs' claims were conjectural and implausible under Twombly, that DPPs did not allege facts showing that Defendants acted in parallel to reduce output or to raise prices for Broilers, and that their parallel production and pricing decisions were the result of legitimate market forces. (ECF Nos. 274-298; 360; 363-373; 471.) After extensive briefing, the Court denied each of Defendants' motions to dismiss. (id.; see also ECF Nos. 343-345; 440; 541.)

DPPs then turned to litigating the case against 20 Defendants. Discovery has involved more than 200 document custodians, more than 8 million documents and communications, millions of telephone calls and messages, many third parties, and the depositions of more than 120 fact witnesses (with more than 200 anticipated by the time depositions end). (Bruckner Decl. ¶ 7.) Class Counsel took the lead in coordinating this discovery with Defendants, two other classes, and nearly 100 Direct Action Plaintiffs. Plaintiffs and Class Counsel also fulfilled their own discovery obligations, in response to fulsome discovery by Defendants.

3. Defendants Marshalled Tremendous Resources for Their Defense.

Not only did Class Counsel confront the inherent uncertainties of an antitrust class action alleging a global conspiracy, but they also faced some of the world's wealthiest multinational corporations, whose skilled and experienced legal counsel mounted a strong, united defense. The fact that the nation's top legal counsel represented Defendants is an important factor in analyzing the value of Class Counsel's services. E.g., In re Schering-Plough Corp. Enhance Secs. Litig., No2:08-cv-02177, 2013 WL 5505744, at *25 (D.N.J. Oct. 1, 2013) (emphasizing the importance of evaluating the result in light of the fact that the case was "litigated to the hilt by highly-experience [sic] and first-rate defense counsel to the eve of trial"); In re Avandia Mktg., Sales Practices and Prods. Liab. Litig., MDL No. 1871, 2012 WL 6923367, at *5 (E.D. Pa. Oct. 19, 2012) (collecting cases) (considering "the performance and quality of opposing counsel" as a factor in awarding attorneys' fees); In re Ins. Brokerage Antitrust Litig. ("In re Ins. Brokerage II"), 282 F.R.D. 92, 121 (D.N.J. Mar. 30, 2012) (concluding the skill and efficiency of the attorneys involved favored approval of attorneys' fees in part because the settling defendants were represented by experienced attorneys from prominent law firms); In re WorldCom, Inc. Secs. Litig., 388 F. Supp. 2d 319, 357-58 (S.D.N.Y. 2005) (finding that counsel "obtained remarkable settlements for the Class while facing formidable opposing counsel from some of the best defense firms in the country."); In re Warner Comm'ns. Secs. Litig., 618 F. Supp. 735, 749 (S.D.N.Y. 1985), aff'd, 798 F.2d 35 (2d Cir. 1986) ("The quality of opposing counsel is also important in evaluating the quality of plaintiffs' counsels' work."); Arenson, et al. v. Bd. of Trade of City of Chicago, 372 F. Supp. 1349, 1354 (N.D. Ill. 1974) (noting that the quality, vigor, and prior success of opposing counsel is an important factor when assessing the quality of work performed by plaintiffs' counsel).

Here, Settling Defendants were represented by Weil, Gotshal & Manges LLP; Skadden, Arps, Slate, Meagher & Flom LLP; Axinn, Veltrop & Harkrider LLP; Alston & Bird LLP; Stinson LLP; and Dykema Gossett PLLC, leading multinational and national law firms, three of which are ranked among the Vault Law 100 for most prestigious law firms. (Bruckner Decl. ¶ 9.)

The breadth and disparity of resources available to opposing parties is also significant when considering the gravity of the risk class counsel faced. See Brewer v. S. Union Co., 607 F. Supp. 1511, 1531 (D. Colo. 1984); Trist v. First Fed. Savings & Loan Ass'n of Chester, 89 F.R.D. 8, 13 (E.D. Pa. 1980). In Brewer, the court remarked that inequality of resources available to the parties greatly increases the risk to class counsel. Brewer, 607 F. Supp. at 1531. That inequality was prominent here; available resources vastly favored Defendants, who are among the world's largest and wealthiest businesses. The class, meanwhile, was represented by small regional distributors who purchased Broilers.

III. THE REQUESTED INTERIM FEE AWARD IS APPROPRIATE UNDER CONTROLLING LAW

A. DPPs Seek a Percentage of the Settlement Fund as an Interim Award of Fees.

When a party obtains compensation for the class's benefit in the form of a common fund, courts have long recognized that the costs of the litigation, including an award of attorneys' fees, should be recovered from that common fund. Boeing Co. v. Van Gemert, 444 U.S. 472, 478 (1980); Mills v. Elec. Auto-Lite Co., 396 U.S. 375, 392 (1970). This approach equitably apportions the costs of litigation, including attorneys' fees, among the class members who benefit from the common fund. Boeing Co., 444 U.S. at 478.

The Seventh Circuit has repeatedly endorsed the percentage-of-the-fund methodology. See Gaskill v. Gordon ("Gaskill II"), 160 F.3d 361, 363 (7th Cir. 1998) (collecting cases) ("When a class suit produces a fund for the class, it is commonplace to award the lawyers for the class a percentage of the fund, in recognition of the fact that most suits for damages in this country are handled on the plaintiffs' side on a contingent-fee basis."); Williams v. Gen. Elec. Cap. Auto Lease, No. 1:94-cv-07410, 1995 WL 765266, at *9 (N.D. Ill. Dec. 26, 1995) (collecting cases) ("The approach favored in the Seventh Circuit is to compute attorney's fees as a percentage of the benefit conferred on the class."); see also Williams v. Rohm & Haas Pension Plan ("Rohm & Haas II"), 658 F.3d 629, 635-36 (7th Cir. 2011); Montgomery v. Aetna Plywood, Inc., 231 F.3d 399, 408 (7th Cir. 2000); Hale v. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co., No. 3:12-cv-00660, 2018 WL 6606079, at *7 (S.D. Ill. Dec. 16, 2018); Heekin v. Anthem, Inc., No. 1:05-cv-01908, 2012 WL 5878032, at *2 (S.D. Ind. Nov. 20, 2012); In re Northfield Lab., Inc. Secs. Litig., No. 1:06-cv-01493, 2012 WL 2458445, at *3 (N.D. Ill. June 26, 2012). The percentage-of-the-fund method utilizes an ex ante approach, in which courts award a fee approximating a hypothetical ex ante bargain between the class and its attorneys. Americana Art China Co., Inc. v. Foxfire Printing and Packaging, Inc., 743 F.3d 243, 246-47 (7th Cir. 2014); Rohm & Haas II, 658 F.3d at 635.

A contingent fee based on a percentage of the recovery is the most common form of compensation for counsel representing classes in class action litigation. Similarly, in antitrust class action litigation, "the 'market price for legal services, in light of the risk of nonpayment and the normal rate of compensation in the market at the time' is a contingent fee in the amount of one-third (1/3) of the common fund recovered." In re Ready-Mixed Concrete Antitrust Litig., No. 1:05-cv-00979, 2010 WL 3282591, at *3 (S.D. Ind. Aug. 17, 2010) (citing Sutton v. Bernard, 504 F.3d 688, 692 (7th Cir. 2007)); In re Dairy Farmers of Am., Inc., 80 F. Supp. 3d 838, 862 (N.D. Ill. 2015); In re Lithotripsy Antitrust Litig., No. 1:98-cv-08394, 2000 WL 765086, at *2 (N.D. Ill. June 12, 2000) (emphasis in original) (noting that "[m]any courts in this district have utilized" the percentage method to set fees in class actions); Kirchoff, 786 F.2d at 324 ("When the 'prevailing' method of compensating lawyers for 'similar services' is the contingent fee, then the contingent fee is the 'market rate.'").

The percentage-of-the-fund method also conserves judicial resources. Unlike a lodestar calculation, percentage fees are easy to calculate and are not subject to manipulation by counsel. Courts are not forced to review years of bills or scrutinize each decision made by counsel during the course of a complex, multi-year case. See Florin, 34 F.3d at 565-66 (noting "there are advantages to utilizing the percentage method in common fund cases because of its relative simplicity of administration."); Gaskill v. Gordon ("Gaskill I"), 942 F. Supp. 382, 386 (N.D. Ill. 1996) (citing Hensley v. Eckerhart, 461 U.S. 424, 437 (1983) (observing that "the percentage of the fund method saves the court the time it would have to spend reviewing eight years of billing documents."). Instead, compensation is based on the level of class counsel's success, as it would be in a similar contingency case on behalf of a private party. The percentage-of-the-fund method also allows a court to "dispose of [the] last issue in [] prolonged proceedings as expeditiously as possible." Gaskill I, 942 F. Supp. at 386. (quoting Sec. & Exch. Comm'n v. First Secs. Co. of Chicago, 528 F.2d 449, 454 (7th Cir. 1976)).

B. Plaintiffs' Requested Fee is an Appropriate Market-Based Fee.

A fee award of 33 1/3% in this case reflects a real-world arm's length transaction between the Class and Class Counsel, and is a generally accepted percentage in the Seventh Circuit. In re Dairy Farmers, 80 F. Supp. 3d at 846; In re Lithotripsy, 2000 WL 765086, at *2. It is justified by the remarkable results obtained for the Class and the risks faced by Class Counsel. The fee award requested here is well within the acceptable range of attorneys' fee awards in protracted, complex, and expensive litigation such as this.

Thirty-three and one-third percent is a standard percentage in many fee agreements, including large, complex non-class cases. See Lester Brickman, ABA Regulation of Contingency Fees: Money Talks, Ethics Walks, 65 FORDHAM L. REV. 247, 248 (1996) (noting that "standard contingency fees" are "usually thirty-three percent to forty percent of gross recoveries"); see also Blum v. Stenson, 465 U.S. 886, 903 (1984) (Brennan, J., concurring) ("In tort suits, an attorney might receive one-third of whatever amount the plaintiff recovers. In those cases, therefore, the fee is directly proportional to the recovery.").

Courts in the Seventh Circuit routinely award contingency fees of 33 1/3% or more. E.g., In re Dairy Farmers, 80 F. Supp. 3d at 862 (awarding one-third of the common fund); In re Potash Antitrust Litig., No. 1:08-cv-06910 (ECF No. 589) (N.D. Ill. June 12, 2013) (Bruckner Decl. Ex. 32) (awarding fees of one-third of the $90 million fund, plus $791,124.63 in expenses); Heekin, 2012 WL 5878032, at *5 (awarding one-third fee of $90 million fund, plus $6,243,278.10 in expenses); Pavlik v. FDIC, No. 1:10-cv-00816, 2011 WL 5184445, at *4 (N.D. Ill. Nov. 1, 2011) (one-third fee); In re Lithotripsy, 2000 WL 765086, at *2 ("33.3% of the fund plus expenses is well within the generally accepted range of the attorneys' fee awards"); Goldsmith v. Tech. Sols. Co., No. 1:92-cv-04374, 1995 WL 17009594, at *8 (N.D. Ill. Oct. 10, 1995) (citing Cont'l Illinois, 962 F.2d at 572) ("Thirty three percent appears to be in line with what attorneys are able to command on the open market in arms-length negotiations with their clients."); Schulte v. Fifth Third Bank, 805 F. Supp. 2d 560, 597 (N.D. Ill. 2011) (one-third fee); Retsky Family Ltd. Partnership v. Price Waterhouse LLP, No. 1:97-cv-07694, 2001 WL 1568856, at *4 (N.D. Ill. Dec. 10, 2001) ("A customary contingency fee would range from 33 1/3% to 40% of the amount recovered."); Martin v. Caterpillar Inc., No. 1:07-cv-01009, 2010 WL 11614985, at *4 (C.D. Ill. Sept. 10, 2010) (one-third fee); Kitson v. Bank of Edwardsville, No. 3:08-cv-00507, 2010 WL 331730, at *2 (S.D. Ill. Jan. 25, 2010) (one-third fee); Will v. Gen. Dynamics Corp., No. 3:06-cv-00698, 2010 WL 4818174, at *3 (S.D. Ill. Nov. 22, 2010) (one-third fee); Burkholder v. City of Ft. Wayne, 750 F. Supp. 2d 990, 997 (N.D. Ind. 2010) (one-third fee); Campbell v. Advantage Sales & Mktg. LLC, No. 1:09-cv-01430, 2012 WL 1424417, at *2 (S.D. Ind. Apr. 24, 2012) (one-third fee); In re Ready-Mixed Concrete, 2010 WL 3282591, at *3 (one-third fee).

Public policy also favors an attorneys' fee award at the market rate. The Supreme Court has repeatedly held that private enforcement of antitrust laws is essential to effective antitrust enforcement. See, e.g., Blue Shield of Va. v. McCready, 457 U.S. 465, 472 (1982); Zenith Radio Corp. v. Hazeltine Rsch., Inc., 395 U.S. 100, 130–31 (1969). And a market-rate fee award incentivizes competent, experienced counsel to take on high-risk, complex class action litigation.

1. Judicial Fee Awards in Other Class Actions Using a Form of Market-Mimicking Approach Support a 30% to 40% Fee as the Market Rate Here.

When a court employs the market-mimicking approach, "[o]ther judicial fee awards are relevant" because they "affect the expectations of lawyers, and therefore, what they might agree to in a voluntary negotiation." Nilsen v. York Cnty., 400 F. Supp. 2d 266, 282–83 (D. Me. 2005); In re Trans Union Corp. Privacy Litig., No. 1:00-cv-04729, 2009 WL 4799954, at *10 (N.D. Ill. Dec. 9, 2009), order modified and remanded, 629 F.3d 741 (7th Cir. 2011) (explaining the Seventh Circuit has endorsed the market-mimicking approach). These results inform the market-mimicking approach, which tries to reach the market price for legal services "in light of the risk of nonpayment and the normal rate of compensation in the market." Nilsen, 400 F. Supp. 2d at 278 (quoting In re Synthroid, 264 F.3d at 718) (internal quotation marks omitted).

The market-mimicking approach led the Seventh Circuit to expressly reject a "megafund" cap on attorneys' fees:

> We have never suggested that a 'megafund rule' trumps these market rates, or that as a matter of law no recovery can exceed 10% of a 'megafund' even if counsel considering the representation in a hypothetical arms' length bargain at the outset of the case would decline the representation if offered only that prospective return . . . Why there should be such a notch is a mystery. Markets would not tolerate that effect . . . .

In re Synthroid, 264 F.3d at 718. Imposing such a cap could chill the willingness of counsel to take large cases and change the expectation that negotiated fee percentages in market-determined fee agreements would prevail.

Likewise, courts in other class actions using a form of market-mimicking have determined that the market rate for legal services warrants a fee award of 30% to 40%. See In re Aftermarket Filters Antitrust Litig., No. 1:08-cv-04883 (ECF No. 1063) (N.D. Ill. Feb. 22, 2013) (Bruckner Decl. Ex. 31) (utilizing percentage-of-the-fund method in antitrust class action to award attorneys' fees of 30% of common fund); In re Ins. Brokerage Antitrust Litig. ("In re Ins. Brokerage I"), MDL No. 1663, 2009 WL 411856, at *56–58 (D.N.J. Feb. 17, 2009) (determining market rate for privately-negotiated contingent fees was between 30% and 40% in non-class, commercial litigation); Allapattah Servs., Inc. v. Exxon Corp., 454 F. Supp. 2d 1185, 1212 (S.D. Fla. 2006) (requested 31 1/3% fee was "within the range of, if not below, the market rate" using Seventh Circuit "market approach"); In re Remeron Direct Purchaser Antitrust Litig., No. 2:03-cv-00085, 2005 WL 3008808, at 14, 16 (D.N.J. Nov. 9, 2005) (employing percentage-of-the-fund method to approximate a fee negotiated in the private marketplace, emphasizing risk of nonpayment, noting "the sometimes undesirable characteristics" of contingent-fee antitrust class actions, including "the uncertain nature of the fee, the wholly contingent outlay of large out-of-pocket sums by plaintiffs, and the fact that the risk of failure and nonpayment in an antitrust case are extremely high," and determining market rate between 30% and 40%).

2. Reported Statistical Data Support a Market Rate in Antitrust Class Actions of 30% to 40%.

Courts often rely on academic and government reports to determine the "market price" for class action contingent fees. See, e.g., In re Cabletron Sys., Inc. Secs. Litig., 239 F.R.D. 30, 41-42 (D.N.H. 2006) (relying on "comprehensive studies evaluating fee awards in class action cases" and collecting those studies).

Relevant here is a study of 40 antitrust class actions . Robert H. Lande & Joshua P. Davis, Benefits from Private Antitrust Enforcement: An Analysis of Forty Cases, 42 U.S.F. L. REV. 879 (July 2008). The study shows that courts in the majority of antitrust class actions awarded a contingent fee of 30% or more where the recoveries were up to $100 million. Id. at 911, tlb.7A. The median fee was 33.3% and the average 28.2%. Id. The majority of courts in antitrust class actions where the recoveries ranged from $100 million to $500 million also awarded attorney's fees in excess of 30% of the fund. Id. at 911, tbl.7B. A more recent study found the same results. Joshua P. Davis, Toward an Empirical and Theoretical Assessment of Private Antitrust Enforcement, 36 SEATTLE U.L. REV. 1269, 1293-95 (2013) ("[I]n the twenty newer cases counsel tended to recover approximately 30% to 33.3% in cases with recoveries below $100 million and a similar or smaller percentage in cases with recoveries between $100 and $500 million").

C. A Lodestar Cross-Check Confirms that the Fee Requested is Proper.

While the percentage-of-the-fund method is favored in the Seventh Circuit for calculating fees in common fund cases, In re Dairy Farmers, 80 F. Supp. 3d at 844, courts may use a lodestar cross-check to understand class counsel's time and effort and determine the reasonableness of a fee. Id. But this cross-check is not required. Rohm & Haas II, 658 F.3d at 636 ("[C]onsideration of a lodestar check is not an issue of required methodology"); accord Leung v. XPO Logistics, Inc., 326 F.R.D. 185, 204 (N.D. Ill. 2018) ("The Court is not required to check its percentage-of-fee determination against the lodestar."); Wright v. Nationstar Mortg. LLC, No. 1:14-cv-10457, 2016 WL 4505169, at *17 (N.D. Ill. Aug. 29, 2016) (noting that a lodestar cross-check is not required); Heekin, 2012 WL 5878032, at *2 (criticizing a class member for "overstat[ing] the importance of the lodestar method in this Circuit."). In fact, "[t]he use of a lodestar cross-check has fallen into disfavor." George v. Kraft Foods Glob., Inc., Nos. 1:08-cv-03799; 1:07-cv-01713, 2012 WL 13089487, at *3 (N.D. Ill. June 26, 2012). And the Seventh Circuit has "never ordered [a] district judge to ensure that the lodestar result mimics that of the percentage approach." Cook v. Niedert, 142 F.3d 1004, 1013 (7th Cir. 1998).

The lodestar is derived by multiplying the hourly rate of the attorney or professional by the number of hours reasonably expended. Wright, 2016 WL 4505169, at *14. A reasonable hourly rate is one that is consistent with the common rate in the "community for similar services by lawyers of reasonably comparable skill, experience and reputation." See Jeffboat, LLC v. Dir.,

Office of Workers' Comp. Programs, 553 F.3d 487, 489 (7th Cir. 2009); see also Denius v. Dunlap, 330 F.3d 919, 930 (7th Cir. 2003) (holding that the attorney's billing rate for comparable work is generally appropriate).

The base lodestar is often augmented by a multiplier that takes into account factors that affect the amount of the fees awarded. See Cook, 142 F.3d at 1015; Florin, 34 F.3d at 565; Skelton v. Gen. Motors Corp., 860 F.2d 250, 255 (7th Cir. 1988). These include the complexity of the legal issues, the degree of success, and the public interest advanced by the litigation. Paz v. Portfolio Recovery Assocs., LLC, 924 F.3d 949, 954 (7th Cir. 2019); Gastineau v. Wright, 592 F.3d 747, 748 (7th Cir. 2010). Also considered is the risk of non-payment. See Harman v. Lyphomed, Inc., 945 F.2d 969, 976 (7th Cir. 1991).

A lodestar cross-check in this case supports the requested fee. The risks, complexities and challenges Class Counsel faced are discussed in detail above. During that time, Class Counsel invested 100,608.25 hours of attorney and other professional time from case inception through December 31, 2020. (See Bruckner Decl. ¶ 24; Bruckner Decl. Exs. 5-24, and 29.) The average hourly rate by Class Counsel and their associated professional staff is approximately $506 (with a cap of $350.00 per hour on document review (see Bruckner Decl. ¶ 17)), a rate comparable to those charged by other law firms with similar experience, expertise, and reputation, for similar services in the nation's leading legal markets. Class Counsel's base lodestar is $50,928,159.75.[12] Awarding a 33 1/3% fee would result in a conservative multiplier of 1.114. Such a multiplier is well within accepted ranges,[13] and is warranted here.

---

[12] Since the inception of this litigation Co-Lead Counsel have submitted Class Counsel's lodestar and expense information to the Court in camera on a quarterly basis and have further reviewed it in preparing this motion. (Bruckner Decl. ¶¶ 20, 22.)

[13] E.g., Cook, 142 F.3d at 1015 (upholding the district court's decision to "enhance[] the lodestar by a multiplier of 1.5"); Florin, 34 F.3d at 565 ("Because class counsel have requested a

IV. COUNSEL'S LITIGATION EXPENSES WERE REASONABLY INCURRED AND SHOULD BE APPROVED, AND AT THIS TIME THEY SHOULD BE REIMBURSED UP TO $4.5 MILLION

Under the common fund doctrine, class counsel customarily are entitled to reimbursement of reasonable expenses incurred in the litigation. Fed. R. Civ. P. 23(h); Mills, 396 U.S. at 392 (recognizing the right to reimbursement of expenses where a common fund has been produced or preserved for the benefit of a class); Alba Conte, Attorney Fee Awards § 2.08, at 50-51 (3d ed. 2004). Reimbursable expenses are those "that are consistent with market rates and practices." In re Ready-Mixed Concrete, 2010 WL 3282591, at *3; see also In re Synthroid, 264 F.3d at 722 ("Reducing litigation expenses because they are higher than the private market would permit is fine; reducing them because the district judge thinks costs too high in general is not.").

In notifying class members of the Tyson and Pilgrim's settlements, Class Counsel informed class members that they would seek repayment of such litigation expenses in an amount not to multiplier of 1.53, the district court need not worry about exceeding what we have suggested is a sensible ceiling of double the lodestar."); Harman, 945 F.2d at 976 (internal citations omitted) (observing that "[m]ultipliers anywhere between one and four have been approved."); Skelton, 860 F.2d at 258 (suggesting "that a doubling of the lodestar would provide a sensible ceiling."); In re Dairy Farmers, 80 F. Supp. 3d at 849 (awarding a fee that equated to a multiplier of 1.34 on a lodestar cross-check); Standard Iron Works v. ArcelorMittal, No. 1:08-cv-05214, 2014 WL 7781572, at *2 (N.D. Ill. Oct. 22, 2014) (finding that the requested lodestar multiplier of approximately 1.97 was "well within the range of reasonable multipliers awarded in similar contingent cases."); Schulte, 805 F. Supp. 2d at 598 (approving an award that "represent[s] a multiplier of less than 2.5, which is not an unreasonable risk multiplier."); In re Lawnmower Engine Horsepower Mktg. & Sales Practices Litig., 733 F. Supp. 2d 997, 1015 (E.D. Wis. 2010) (awarding a fee that represented a multiplier of 2.07 on a lodestar cross-check and recognizing that "the mean risk multiplier in cases involving class settlements comparable in size to the present settlement is 2.70.") (citing Theodore Eisenberg & Geoffrey P. Miller, Attorney Fees & Expenses in Class Action Litigation: 1993–2008, 7 J. OF EMPIRICAL LEGAL STUD. 248, 274 tbl.15 (2010)); accord In re Hyundai and Kia Fuel Economy Litig., 926 F.3d 539, 572 (9th Cir. 2019) (affirming lodestar multipliers of 1.5521 and 1.22 as "modest or in-line with others"); Kelly v. Wengler, 822 F.3d 1085, 1093, 1105 (9th Cir. 2016) (affirming lodestar multipliers of 2.0 and 1.3); Vizcaino v. Microsoft Corp., 290 F.3d 1043, 1051 (9th Cir. 2002) (upholding a lodestar multiplier cross-check showing a multiplier of 3.65).

---

exceed $4.5 million.[14] Class Counsel's actual current and ongoing expenses total $5,104,566.48, and consist of the following three categories of expenses: (1) $585,059.45 in expenses incurred individually by each firm (primarily travel-related expenses), (2) $3,811,209.23 in expenses paid by the common Litigation Fund, and (3) $708,297.80 in invoiced but as-yet unpaid amounts relating to expert and consultant costs, and database and deposition expenses (which are not contingent, and will be paid regardless of the outcome of this motion or the action).[15] Expenses in each of these categories are described in detail in the Bruckner Decl. ¶¶ 28-35 and its exhibits, and were reasonably necessary to advance the interests of the Class and to obtain the favorable results achieved to date. Due to the risk that they might never be recovered, Class Counsel endeavored to keep expenses to a minimum. Accordingly, DPPs respectfully request that the Court approve these [14] See https://www.broilerchickenantitrustlitigation.com/admin/services/connectedapps.cms.extensions/1.0.0.0/asset?id=d1618bee-26ea-4ac1-8583-56e80f11113c&languageId=1033&inline=true (last visited April 8, 2021); see also ECF No. 4259-2 at 25 (proposed class notice); ECF No. 4341 (Feb. 25, 2021 Order granting DPPs' motion for preliminary approval of the Tyson and Pilgrim's settlements and accompanying class notice).

[15] In addition to the expenses described here and for which Class Counsel now seek reimbursement, payments totaling $365,597.10 have been made from the settlement escrow accounts for settlement-related expenses; specifically, class notice as directed by the Court, related expenses regarding preliminary or final approval of the settlements, and related bank fees. These payments were made pursuant to each Settling Defendant's Settlement Agreement which reserved a specific amount of such Settling Defendant's payment to be used to pay notice and related costs, and which would be non-refundable to the Settling Defendant in the event the settlement was not finally approved. (ECF No. 447-2 at 18, ¶ II(C)(2) (Fieldale); ECF No. 3324 at 18-19, ¶ II(C)(2), 46-47, ¶ II(C)(2), and 74-75, ¶ II(C)(2) (Peco, George's, and Amick); ECF No. 4259-1 at 15, ¶ 6(c)-(d), 45, ¶ 6(c)-(d) (Tyson and Pilgrim's).) While these payments are not included in the requested reimbursement in this petition and have already been paid or may be paid from those escrow accounts, we describe those expenditures here to fully describe all litigation-related expenses incurred in this case. (Bruckner Decl. ¶ 28 n.2.)

expenses in their total amount of $5,104,566.48, and that the Court presently award litigation expenses in the amount of $4,500,000.00.[16]

V. THE CLASS REPRESENTATIVES SHOULD RECEIVE INTERIM SERVICE AWARDS

Courts regularly grant service awards to class representatives in recognition of the time and effort they invested in the case. Like in this case, class representatives frequently contribute to the successful resolution of a class action by assisting with the preparation of the pleadings, participating in discovery, continually providing information to class counsel, and participating in settlement negotiations. Williams v. Rohm & Haas Pension Plan ("Rohm & Haas I"), No. 4:04-cv-00078, 2010 WL 4723725, at *2 (S.D. Ind. Nov. 12, 2010), aff'd, 658 F.3d 629 (7th Cir. 2011) ("Because a named plaintiff plays a significant role in a class action, an incentive award is appropriate as a means of inducing that individual to participate in the expanded litigation on behalf of himself and others."). Their contributions undoubtedly benefit the class as a whole, and courts in this circuit often see fit to compensate class representatives for their service to the class. See Cook, 142 F.3d at 1016 (affirming $25,000.00 incentive award); In re Potash Antitrust Litig., No. 1:08-cv-06910 (ECF No. 589) (N.D. Ill. June 12, 2013) (Bruckner Decl. Ex. 32) (awarding $15,000.00 apiece in incentive awards).

Courts consider various factors when determining an appropriate service award, including "the actions the [representative] has taken to protect the interests of the class, the degree to which the class has benefitted from those actions, and the amount of time and effort the [representative] expended in pursuing the litigation." Cook, 142 F.3d at 1016 (citing Spicer v. Chicago Bd. Options Exch., Inc., 844 F. Supp. 1226, 1267 (N.D. Ill. 1993)).

[16] In the event of future recoveries for the DPP Class, Class Counsel will petition the Court for reimbursement of the difference, $604,566.48, together with necessary and reasonable expenses incurred in the remainder of the litigation.

Here, DPPs request that the Court confer an interim service award of $25,000.00 on each of the five Class Representatives: Maplevale Farms, Inc.; John Gross and Company, Inc.; Ferraro Foods, Inc. and Ferraro Foods of North Carolina, LLC; Joe Christiana Food Distributors, Inc.; and Cedar Farms Co., Inc. Throughout this litigation, the Class Representatives advised Class Counsel and approved pleadings, reviewed and responded to written discovery, searched for, gathered, preserved, and produced documents, prepared for and stood for depositions, kept up to date on the progress of the case, and performed other similar activities. (Bruckner Decl. ¶ 37; see also ECF Nos. 3962-39 to 3962-43 (declarations from each class representative in support of DPPs' motion for class certification).) They were never promised that they would receive any additional compensation for leading the case. (Id. ¶ 38.) Rather, they devoted their time and efforts solely to recovery some portion of their own overcharges and to enable other class members to recover theirs. (Id.) Their help has been instrumental to the success of this litigation and, DPPs respectfully submit, they are deserving of these service awards.

VI. CONCLUSION

For these reasons, DPPs respectfully request that this Court award interim attorneys' fees in the amount $56,753,866.00, which is equivalent to 33 1/3% of the Settlement Fund, litigation expenses in the amount of $4,500,000.00, and incentive awards to the five Class Representatives in the amount of $25,000.00 apiece.

Dated: April 16, 2021

LOCKRIDGE GRINDAL NAUEN P.L.L.P.

s/W. Joseph Bruckner
W. Joseph Bruckner
Brian D. Clark
Simeon A. Morbey
100 Washington Avenue South, Suite 2200
Minneapolis, MN 55401
T: (612) 339-6900
F: (612) 339-0981
wjbruckner@locklaw.com bdclark@locklaw.com
samorbey@locklaw.com

Bruce L. Simon
Neil Swartzberg
PEARSON, SIMON & WARSHAW, LLP
350 Sansome Street, Suite 680
San Francisco, CA 94104
T: (415) 433-9000
F: (415) 433-9008
bsimon@pswlaw.com
nswartzberg@pswlaw.com

Clifford H. Pearson
Daniel L. Warshaw
Thomas J. Nolan
Michael H. Pearson
Bobby Pouya
PEARSON SIMON & WARSHAW, LLP
15165 Ventura Boulevard, Suite 400
Sherman Oaks, CA 92403
T: (818) 788-8300
F: (818) 788-8104
cpearson@pswlaw.com
dwarshaw@pswlaw.com tnolan@pswlaw.com
mpearson@pswlaw.com
bpouya@pswlaw.com

Direct Purchaser Plaintiffs
Interim Co-Lead Class Counsel

Steven A. Hart (#6211008)
Brian Eldridge (#6281336)
John Marrese (#6306516)
Kyle Pozan (#6306761)
HART MCLAUGHLIN & ELDRIDGE, LLC
22 West Washington Street, Suite 1600
Chicago, IL 60602
T: (312) 955-0545
F: (312) 971-9243
shart@hmelegal.com
beldridge@hmelegal.com jmarrese@hmelegal.com
kpozan@hmelegal.com

Direct Purchaser Plaintiffs
Interim Liaison Class Counsel

TAB 10A

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
DISTRICT OF MARYLAND
(Northern Division)

IN RE: TITANIUM DIOXIDE ANTITRUST LITIGATION	Master Docket No. 10–CV–00318(RDB)
THIS DOCUMENT RELATES TO: All Actions

ORDER GRANTING MOTION FOR AN AWARD OF ATTORNEYS' FEES, REIMBURSEMENT OF EXPENSES, AND PAYMENT OF SERVICE AWARDS TO THE CLASS REPRESENTATIVES

The Court has considered Plaintiffs' Motion for an Award of Attorneys' Fees, Reimbursement of Expenses, and for Service Awards to the Class Representatives (ECF No. 546), including all materials filed in support thereof (collectively, "Fee Motion"), as well as Plaintiffs' Motion for Final Approval of Class Action Settlements with Defendants E. I. du Pont de Nemours and Company ("DuPont"), Cristal USA, Inc., formerly known as Millennium Inorganic Chemicals, Inc. ("Cristal"), Kronos Worldwide, Inc. ("Kronos"), and Huntsman International LLC ("Huntsman") (ECF No. 545), and the Settlement Agreements between Plaintiffs and DuPont (ECF No. 496-3), Cristal (ECF No. 530-1), Kronos (ECF No. 530-2) and Huntsman (ECF No. 480-3); and the Court has held a duly noticed Final Approval Hearing on November 25, 2013, at which the Fee Motion was considered by the Court.

For good cause shown, and for the reasons set forth in detail on the record by this Court at the Final Approval Hearing, and after consideration of the factors set forth in Barber v. Kimbrell's, Inc., 577 F.2d 216, 226 n. 28 (4th Cir. 1978) and in Singleton v. Domino's Pizza,

LLC, ___ F. Supp. 2d ___ , 2013 WL 5506027, at *10 (D. Md. Oct. 2, 2013), and having received no objections to the requests for attorneys' fees, reimbursement of expenses, and payment of service awards to the Class Representatives, IT IS HEREBY ORDERED, ADJUDGED, AND DECREED as follows:

1. The Court finds that due and adequate notice was given to the Class of the requests by Class Counsel for an award of attorneys' fees, reimbursement of expenses, and for service awards to the Class Representatives; that the form and content of the notices and the publication, mailing, and distribution thereof satisfy the requirements of both Rule 23(e) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure and due process, and constitute the best notice practicable under the circumstances; and that no objections to the requests for an award of attorneys' fees, reimbursement of expenses, and for service awards were received;

2. Class Counsel is hereby awarded thirty-three and one-third percent (33⅓ %) in reasonable attorneys' fees from the $163.5 million in Settlement Funds that have been or will be deposited in the Escrow Account at Union Bank, N.A. that has been established pursuant to the Settlement Agreements to receive the funds by DuPont, Cristal, Kronos and Huntsman (specifically, $54,500,000); Class Counsel are also authorized to allocate to other Plaintiffs' counsel the fees awarded herein, taking into account their relative contributions to this litigation;

3. Class Counsel shall be paid $4,569,271.86 from the Settlement Funds as reimbursement for the costs and expenses incurred by Plaintiffs' counsel during the course of this litigation;

4. Class Representative Haley Paint Company shall be paid $125,000, and Class Representatives Isaac Industries Inc. and East Coast Colorants d/b/a Breen each shall be paid

$25,000, from the Settlement Funds as service awards for their respective contributions to this litigation;

5. After payment to Class Counsel of the award of attorneys' fees and the amount for reimbursement of costs and expenses, and the payment of service awards to the Class Representatives, and after the Claims Administrator concludes its processing and auditing of claims, Class Counsel shall file a Motion for Distribution of Settlement Funds for consideration by the Court, and the balance of the Settlement Funds shall be distributed in accordance with the Plan of Allocation to those claimants who submitted valid and timely claims, upon further order of the Court;

6. Without affecting the finality of this Order, the Court retains exclusive jurisdiction over: (a) the enforcement of this Order; (b) the enforcement of the Settlement Agreements; and (c) the distribution of the balance of the Settlement Funds.

Dated: December 13, 2013

Richard D. Bennett
United States District Judge

TAB 10B

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
DISTRICT OF MARYLAND
(Northern Division)

IN RE: TITANIUM DIOXIDE ANTITRUST LITIGATION	Master Docket No. 10-CV-00318 (RDB)
THIS DOCUMENT RELATES TO: All Actions

MEMORANDUM OF LAW IN SUPPORT OF PLAINTIFFS' MOTION FOR AN AWARD OF ATTORNEYS' FEES, REIMBURSEMENT OF EXPENSES, AND FOR SERVICE AWARDS TO THE CLASS REPRESENTATIVES

TABLE OF CONTENTS

Page(s)

I. INTRODUCTION 1

II. HISTORY OF THE LITIGATION 5

III. THE COURT SHOULD AWARD THE REQUESTED FEES 5

A. Class Counsel's Fees Should Be Calculated By The Percentage Of The Common Fund Approach 5

B. The Fee Requested By Plaintiffs Is Fair And Reasonable. 8

C. Class Counsel's Fee Request Is Fair And Reasonable Under Numerous Fourth Circuit Authorities 11

1. The Amount In Controversy And The Results Obtained 12

2. The Time And Labor Expended 15

3. The Novelty And Difficulty Of The Questions Raised 17

4. The Skill Required To Properly Perform The Legal Services 18

5. The Attorneys' Opportunity Costs In Pressing The Litigation 19

6. Customary Fee For Like Work (Fee Awards In Similar Cases) 19

7. The Attorneys' Expectation At The Outset Of The Litigation 20

8. The Time Limitations Imposed By The Client Or Circumstances 21

9. The Experience, Reputation, And Ability Of The Attorneys 22

10. The Undesirability Of The Case Within The Legal Community Within Which The Suit Arose 22

11. The Nature And Length Of The Professional Relationship Between The Attorney And Client 23

12. Risk Of Non-Payment 23

13. Objections To The Settlements Or Fees Requested 24

14. Complexity And Duration Of The Case 25

15. Public Policy 26

D. A Lodestar Cross-Check Confirms The Reasonableness Of The Requested Fee 27

IV. REIMBURSEMENT AND PAYMENT OF EXPENSES 29

V. THE PROPOSED PLAINTIFF SERVICE AWARDS ARE REASONABLE 30

VI. CONCLUSION 32

TABLE OF AUTHORITIES

Cases

All American Title Loans, Inc. v. Title Cash of South Carolina, Inc.
2007 WL 1464580 (D.S.C. May 17, 2007) 23

Barber v. Kimbrell's, Inc.
577 F.2d 216 (4th Cir.1978) 11, 12, 20, 23

Behrens v. Wometco Enter., Inc.
118 F.R.D. 534 (S.D. Fla.1988) aff'd 899 F.2d 21 (11th Cir.1990) 28

Blum v. Stenson
465 U.S. 886 (1984) 6

Boeing Co. v. Van Gemert
444 U.S. 472 (1980) 6

Bradburn Parent Teacher Store, Inc. v. 3M
513 F. Supp. 2d 322 (E.D. Pa. 2007) 10

Braun v. Culp, Inc.
1985 WL 5857 (M.D.N.C. April 26, 1985) 19

Brewer v. School Bd. of City of Norfolk Virginia
456 F.2d 943 (4th Cir. 1972) 5

Brown v. Phillips Petroleum Co.
838 F.2d 451 (10th Cir. 1998) 7

Brzonkala v. Morrison
272 F.3d 688 (4th Cir. 2001) 5

Camden I Condominium Ass'n. v. Dunkle
946 F.2d 768 (11th Cir. 1991) 7

Clark v. Cameron-Brown Co.
1981 WL 1637 (M.D.N.C. April 6, 1981) 20, 23

Cohen v. Chilcott Pub. Ltd. Co.
522 F. Supp. 2d 105 (D.D.C. 2007) 32

Cullen v. Whiteman Medical Corp.
197 F.R.D. 136 (E.D. Pa. 2000) 31

DeLoach v. Philip Morris Companies
2003 WL 23094907 (M.D.N.C. Dec. 19, 2003) 5, 7, 28

E.E.O.C. v. Service News Co.
898 F.2d 958 (4th Cir.1990) 12, 23

Edmonds v. U.S.
658 F. Supp. 1126 (D.S.C. Mar. 24, 1987) 8, 11

F. Hoffmann-La Roche Ltd. v. Empagran S.A.
542 U.S. 155 (2004) 18

Fisher Bros., Inc. v. Mueller Brass Co.
630 F. Supp. 493 (E.D. Pa. 1985) 14

Franklin Container Corp. v. Int'l Paper Co.
No. 77-3204 (E.D. Pa. 1987) 31

Goldenberg v. Marriott PLP Corp.,
33 F. Supp. 2d 434 (D. Md. 1998) 6, 7, 28

Haley Paint Co. v. E.I. DuPont de Nemours and Co.
804 F. Supp. 2d 419 (D. Md. 2011) 18

In re Aftermarket Auto. Lighting Prods. Antitrust Litig.
09 MDL 2007-GW PJWX, 2013 WL 4536569 (C.D. Cal. Aug. 26, 2013) 13

In re Auction Houses Antitrust Litig.
00 CIV. 0648 (LAK), 2001 WL 170792 (S.D.N.Y. Feb. 22, 2001), aff'd 42 F. App'x. 511 (2d Cir. 2002) 13

In re Automotive Refinishing Paint Antitrust Litig.
2004 WL 1068807 (E.D. Pa. May 11, 2004) 14

In re Automotive Refinishing Paint Antitrust Litig.
2008 WL 63269 (E.D. Pa. Jan. 3, 2008) 10

In re Blood Reagents Antitrust Litig.
283 F.R.D. 222 (E.D. Pa. 2012) 13

In re Bromine Antitrust Litig.
203 F.R.D. 403 (S.D. Ind. 2001) 13

In re Buspirone Antitrust Litig.
01-MD-1413 (S.D.N.Y. April 17, 2003) 11

In re Cendant Corp. Prides Litig.
243 F.3d 722 (3d Cir. 2002) 6, 28

In Re Continental Illinois Sec. Litig.
962 F.2d 566 (7th Cir. 1992) 7

In re Dun & Bradstreet Credit Services Customer Litig.
130 F.R.D. 366 (S.D. Ohio 1990) 31

In re Elec. Carbon Prods. Antitrust Litig.
447 F. Supp. 2d 389 (D.N.J. 2006) 13

In re Ethylene Propylene Diene Monomer (EPDM) Antitrust Litig.
681 F. Supp. 2d 141 (D. Conn. 2009) 13

In re Flat Glass Antitrust Litig.,
MDL No. 1200 (W.D. Pa. May 28, 2003) 10

In re Flonase Antitrust Litig.
291 F.R.D. 93 (E.D. Pa. 2013) 18

In re General Motors Corp. Pick-Up Truck Fuel Tank Prod. Liab. Litig.
55 F.3d 768 (3d Cir. 1995) 6

In re Ins. Brokerage Antitrust Litig.
MDL 1663, 2013 WL 3956378 (D.N.J. Aug. 1, 2013) 10

In Re Linerboard Antitrust Litig.
2004 WL 1221350 (E.D. Pa. 2004) 2, 20, 29, 31

In Re Linerboard Antitrust Litig.
321 F. Supp. 2d 619 (E.D. Pa. 2004) 14

In re Lorazepam & Clorazepate Antitrust Litig.
2003 WL 22037741 (D.D.C. June 16, 2003) 30

In re Merrill Lynch Tyco Research Sec., Litig.
249 F.R.D. 124 (S.D.N.Y. 2008) 26

In re Microcrystalline Cellulose Antitrust Litig.
01-CV-111; 01-MDL-1402 (E.D. Pa. Nov. 22, 2006) 10

In Re Microstrategy, Inc. Sec. Litig.
172 F. Supp. 2d 778 (E.D. Va. 2001) 26

In re Nasdaq Mkt.-Makers Antitrust Litig.
94 CIV. 3996 (RWS), 1997 WL 805062 (S.D.N.Y. Dec. 31, 1997) 13

In re Packaged Ice Antitrust Litig.
723 F. Supp. 2d 987 (E.D. Mich. 2010) 13

In re Polyester Staple Antitrust Litig.
MDL 3:03CV1516, 2007 WL 2111380 (W.D.N.C. July 19, 2007) 13

In re Polyester Staple Antitrust Litig.
MDL 3:03CV1516, (W.D.N.C. June 24, 2008) 10

In re Puerto Rican Cabotage Antitrust Litig.
815 F. Supp. 2d 448 (D.P.R. 2011) 13

In re Relafen Antitrust Litig.
231 F.R.D. 52 (D. Mass. 2005) 11

In re Relafen Antitrust Litig.
No. 01-12239 (D. Mass. April 9, 2004) 11

In re Remeron Direct Purchaser Antitrust Litig.
2005 WL 3008808 (D.N.J. Nov. 9, 2005) 10

In re Rite Aid Corp. Sec. Litig.
396 F.3d 294 (3d Cir. 2005) 27

In re Royal Ahold N.V. Sec. & ERISA Litig.
461 F. Supp. 2d 383 (D. Md. 2006) 4, 11, 27, 29

In re Terazosin Hydrochloride Antitrust Litig., 99-MDL-1317 (S.D. Fla. April 19, 2005) 11

In re The Mills Corp. Sec. Litig.
265 F.R.D. 246 (E.D. Va. 2009) 12, 26

In re Titanium Dioxide Antitrust Litig.
-- F. Supp. 2d ---, 2013 WL 4110501 (D. Md. Aug. 14, 2013) 18, 27

In re Titanium Dioxide Antitrust Litig.,
2013 WL 5182093 (D. Md. Sep. 12, 2013) 22, 27

In Re Titanium Dioxide Antitrust Litig.
284 F.R.D. 328 (D. Md. 2012) 18, 22, 27

In re Vitamins Antitrust Litig.
2001 WL 34312839 (D.D.C. July 16, 2002) 7, 10

In re Xcel Energy, Inc,. Sec., Derivative & "ERISA" Litig.
364 F. Supp. 2d 980 (D. Minn. 2005) 31

Ivax Corp. v. Aztec Peroxides, LLC, et al.
Case No. 1:02CV00593 (D.D.C. Aug. 24, 2005) 31

Jones v. Dominion Res. Servs., Inc.
601 F. Supp. 2d 756 (S.D. W.Va. 2009) 12, 26, 28

Kay Co. v. Equitable Prod. Co.
749 F. Supp. 2d 455 (S.D. W.Va. 2010) 6, 12, 28

Kidrick v. ABC Television & Appliance Rental
1999 WL 1027050 (N.D. W.Va. May 12, 1999) 8

Longden v. Sunderman
979 F.2d 1095 (5th Cir. 1992) 7

Marino v. Pioneer Edsel Sales, Inc.
349 F.3d 746 (4th Cir. 2003) 4

McKnight v. Circuit City Stores, Inc.
14 Fed.App'x. 147 (4th Cir. 2001) 13

Mills v. Electric Auto-Lite Co.
396 U.S. 375 (1970) 5

Minnesota Mining & Mfg. Co. v. New Jersey Wood Finishing Co.
381 U.S. 311 (1965) 26

Nichols v. SmithKline Beecham Corp. (Paxil Antitrust Litig.)
2005 WL 950616 (E.D. Pa. 2005) 2

Nigh v. Koons Buick Pontiac GMC, Inc.
478 F.3d 183 (4th Cir. 2007) 11

Rawlings v. Prudential-Bache Properties
9 F.3d 513 (6th Cir. 1993) 7

Singleton v. Domino's Pizza, LLC
2013 WL 5506027 (D. Md. Oct. 2, 2013) ..... passim

Six (6) Mexican Workers v. Arizona Citrus Growers
904 F.2d 1301 (9th Cir. 1990) 7

Smith v. Krispy Kreme Doughnut Corp.
2007 WL 119157 (M.D.N.C. Jan. 10, 2007) 20

Spell v. McDaniel
852 F.2d 762 (4th Cir. 1988) 30

Strang v. JHM Mortgage Sec. Ltd. Partnership
890 F. Supp. 499 (E.D. Va. 1995) 8

Swedish Hospital Corp. v. Shalala
1 F.3d 1261 (D.C. Cir. 1993) 7

Teague v. Bakker
213 F. Supp. 2d 571 (W.D.N.C. 2002) 6, 7

Temp. Servs., Inc. v. Am. Int'l Grp., Inc.
3:08-CV-00271-JFA, 2012 WL 4061537 (D.S.C. Sept. 14, 2012) 7

Tiro v. Public House Investments, LLC
2013 WL 4830949 (S.D.N.Y. Sept. 10, 2013) 21

United States v. Topco Associates, Inc.
405 U.S. 596 (1972) 26

Statutes, Rules and Regulations

15 U.S.C. § 1 25

Sherman Act
Section 1 ..... 18, 25

Other Authorities

Albert Conte and Herbert B. Newberg, 4 Newberg on Class Actions, §11:38 (4th ed.) 31

Thomas E. Kauper & Edward A. Snyder, Symposium: An Inquiry into the Efficiency of Private Antitrust Enforcement: Follow-on and Independently Initiated Cases Compared, 74 Geo. L.J. 1163 (1986) 9

I. INTRODUCTION

Pursuant to the Order of this Court dated September 10, 2013 (ECF No. 533), Plaintiffs respectfully submit this memorandum of law in support of their motion for an attorneys' fee award of thirty-three and one third (33⅓) percent of the $163,500,000 total Settlement Funds (collectively, "Settlement Funds") achieved in the settlements with the Defendants[1], as well as reimbursement of the costs and litigation expenses incurred by Class Counsel and the nine firms that assisted them (collectively, "Plaintiffs' Counsel" [2]), and payment of service awards to the three class representatives. This motion is also supported by the Declaration of Lewis A. Noonberg, Class Counsel's Expert Witness on the Reasonableness of Class Counsel's Request for Final Approval of Attorneys' Fees (the "Noonberg Decl."), filed herewith.

This action was investigated beginning in September 2008 and then commenced more than three years ago on February 9, 2010. (ECF No. 1) During the course of prosecuting the claims on behalf of the Class, Plaintiffs' Counsel engaged in extensive discovery and motion practice, obtained class certification, opposed numerous motions filed by the Defendants (including Daubert motions and motions for summary judgment), prepared extensive expert damages analyses, and prepared the case up to the eve of trial. See generally, Declaration of C.

---

[1] "Defendants" are Huntsman International, LLC ("Huntsman"), E. I. du Pont de Nemours and Company ("DuPont"), Cristal USA, Inc. ("Cristal USA," formerly known as Millennium Inorganic Chemicals, Inc. ("Millennium")), and Kronos Worldwide, Inc. ("Kronos").

[2] "Plaintiffs' Counsel" consists of the firms of (1) Gold Bennett Cera & Sidener LLP, (2) Joseph Saveri Law Firm, Inc., and (3) Lieff Cabraser Heimann & Bernstein LLP (collectively, "Class Counsel"); (4) Shapiro Sher Guinot & Sandler (Liaison Counsel); (5) Berger & Montague P.C. and (6) Grant & Eisenhofer P.A. (Executive Committee members along with Class Counsel and Liaison Counsel); (7) Heins Mills & Olson P.L.C.; (8) Cohen Milstein Sellers & Toll PLLC; (9) Faruqi & Faruqi LLP; (10) Criden & Love P.A.; (11) Freed Kanner London & Millen LLC; and (12) Lite DePalma Greenberg LLC. Pursuant to Case Management Order No. 2 (ECF No. 106), Class Counsel continue to be responsible for coordinating and organizing Plaintiffs in the conduct of this litigation, including allocating fees among Plaintiffs' Counsel. (ECF No. 106 at 4).

Andrew Dirksen in Support of Plaintiffs' Motion for Final Approval of Class Action Settlements with Defendants and Plan of Allocation; and Plaintiffs' Motion for an Award of Attorneys' Fees and Reimbursement of Expenses, and for Service Awards to the Class Representatives ("Dirksen Decl.").[3]

The Settlement Funds were obtained solely through the efforts of Plaintiffs' Counsel after more than three years of intense litigation with the Defendants. In light of the risks and costs of continued litigation and trial, the Settlement Funds represent an outstanding result for the Class.

As reflected in their firms' respective declarations submitted herewith, Plaintiffs' Counsel expended more than 45,000 hours litigating this highly complex action, with an unpaid lodestar of approximately $23 million. See Exs. A - M. These hours comprise the professional services that were rendered by the twelve law firms that worked for Plaintiffs on a wholly contingent basis. This huge effort was necessary in the context of this action, which was vigorously defended by experienced and well-financed defense counsel. As discussed below, the attorneys' fees requested amount to a risk multiplier of 2.39, which is lower than the risk multipliers awarded in many other complex antitrust cases, including those that settled long before trial, and even before class certification. See, e.g., Nichols v. SmithKline Beecham Corp. (Paxil Antitrust Litig.), 2005 WL 950616 at *24 (E.D. Pa. 2005) (multiplier of over 3.15 awarded as fees before the class was certified); In Re Linerboard Antitrust Litig., 2004 WL 1221350, *12, *16 n. 9 (E.D. Pa. 2004) (awarding attorneys' fees of 30% of the $202.6 million recovery months before trial, which corresponded with a multiplier on lodestar of 3.67 using current hourly rates).

[3] Unless otherwise stated, references herein to "¶__" and "Ex. __" are to paragraphs within, and exhibits to, the Dirksen Declaration, filed herewith and also in support of the Motion for Final Approval of Class Action Settlements with Defendants.

Plaintiffs' Counsel also incurred $4,555,204.66 in expenses. See Ex. A, a summary of each firm's total expenses, and the accompanying declarations from the twelve firms comprising Plaintiffs' Counsel.[4] These expenses were reasonably and necessarily incurred by Plaintiffs' Counsel in the course of efficiently prosecuting this action, without any guarantee that these sums would be reimbursed.

Notice of Plaintiffs' request for an award of attorneys' fees, reimbursement of expenses, and payment of service awards to the class representatives was disseminated to the Class by mail and publication, including publication on a publicly accessible website[5], as well as nationwide publication in The Wall Street Journal, ICIS Chemical Business magazine, and Paint & Coatings Industry Magazine. See Declaration of Markham Sherwood Regarding Dissemination of Notices to the Settlement Class and Status of Claims Administration (hereinafter "Sherwood Decl."), accompanying Plaintiffs' Motion for Final Approval of Class Action Settlements (also filed herewith), at ¶¶7-11. Notice of the hearing on the motion for final approval of the settlements with the Defendants, the Plan of Allocation, and the motion for attorneys' fees, reimbursement of expenses, and for payment of service awards to the class representatives, was mailed on September 19, 2013 directly to more than 5877 addresses of known Class members. Id. at ¶7. Publication of the notice of the settlements occurred nationwide in The Wall Street Journal on September 23, 2013. Id. at ¶¶9-10. The last day to object to the terms of the settlements between Plaintiffs and the Defendants, or to the Plan of Allocation, the request for attorneys' fees and reimbursement of expenses, and for payment of service awards to the class representatives, is November 4, 2013. No Class members have objected to date. Id. at ¶16. In [4] Exhibit A to the Dirksen Declaration lists each firm's incurred expenses. Exhibit B to the Dirksen Declaration is the Declaration of Solomon B. Cera, which includes a list of the expenses paid out of the Plaintiffs' litigation fund at Exhibit 3 thereto.

[5] http://www.tio2antitrustlitigation.com/

fact, even though the deadline for the submission of Proofs of Claim is January 31, 2014, at least 58 companies already have submitted Proofs of Claim. Id. at ¶15. In addition, one company that previously opted-out has requested to re-enter the Class and participate in the distribution. Id. at ¶17. This indicates widespread support from many Class members for the significant settlements achieved by Class Counsel.

Plaintiffs respectfully request that the Court approve the 33⅓% fee request, the reimbursement of expenses, and payment of service awards to the class representatives. Payment of attorneys' fees from a common fund settlement is established in the Fourth Circuit. See, e.g., Marino v. Pioneer Edsel Sales, Inc., 349 F.3d 746, 753 (4th Cir. 2003) ("To be sure, in a class action, whether the attorney's fees come from a common fund or are otherwise paid, the district court must exercise its inherent authority to assure that the amount and mode of payment of attorney's fees are fair and proper."). An attorney fee award of 33⅓% is within the guidelines for awards of attorneys' fees in antitrust and other contingent class action cases. As discussed below, the amount requested is warranted given the factors considered by courts in this circuit and elsewhere in determining such awards. See, e.g., In re Royal Ahold N.V. Sec. & ERISA Litig., 461 F. Supp. 2d 383, 385-87 (D. Md. 2006) (using percentage method to award attorneys' fees in the amount of $130.65 million, or 12% of a $1.1 billion settlement fund, where settlements were achieved well before trial).

The settlements with the Defendants were achieved through the skill, expertise, creativity, perseverance and hard work of Plaintiffs' Counsel. Significantly, there was no federal or state government civil or criminal action to pave the way. The result here is solely the result of counsel's work. Plaintiffs' Counsel's extensive efforts in obtaining the Settlement Funds, and in achieving an outstanding result for the benefit of the Class, are summarized below. Indeed, Class

Counsel believe that should the settlements with Defendants be finally approved in this matter, the resulting $163.5 million in Settlement Funds will constitute one of the largest recoveries in an antitrust action in the Fourth Circuit. In sum, the requested attorneys' fees, expenses, and service awards are fair, reasonable and adequate. Accordingly, Plaintiffs respectfully submit that this motion should be granted.

II. HISTORY OF THE LITIGATION

The relevant background of this case—from its investigation through the eve of trial, including a summary of the risks undertaken, the obstacles overcome, and the results achieved—is described in detail in the Dirksen Declaration, which is incorporated herein by reference.

III. THE COURT SHOULD AWARD THE REQUESTED FEES

A. Class Counsel's Fees Should Be Calculated By The Percentage Of The Common Fund Approach

A common fund exists when there is a sum of money to be shared by class members, created as a consequence of litigation. Brzonkala v. Morrison, 272 F.3d 688, 690-91 (4th Cir. 2001) (citing Mills v. Electric Auto-Lite Co., 396 U.S. 375, 393-95 (1970)). Where, as here, a common fund has been created for the general benefit of a class as a result of litigation, an attorneys' fee award is generally considered appropriate. Brewer v. School Bd. of City of Norfolk Virginia, 456 F.2d 943, 948 (4th Cir. 1972) (allowing for an award of fees where a plaintiff has maintained a suit that generates a fund in which others share.). "In common fund cases, attorneys' fees are borne not by the defendants, 'but by members of the plaintiff class, who shoulder the burden of paying their own counsel out of the common fund.'" DeLoach v. Philip Morris Companies, 2003 WL 23094907 at *3 (M.D.N.C. Dec. 19, 2003) (citation omitted).

The Supreme Court has consistently held that, in common fund cases such as this, it is appropriate for attorneys' fees to be determined on a percentage-of-fund basis. See Blum v.

Stenson, 465 U.S. 886, 900 n. 16 (1984) ("[U]nder the 'common fund doctrine' . . . a reasonable fee is based on a percentage of the fund bestowed on the class."); see also Boeing Co. v. Van Gemert, 444 U.S. 472, 478 (1980) ("[A] litigant or a lawyer who recovers a common fund for the benefit of persons other than himself or his client is entitled to a reasonable attorney's fee from the fund as a whole."). The same holds true in district courts within the Fourth Circuit. "The percentage-of-fund recovery method is generally favored in cases involving a common fund, and is designed to allow courts to award fees from the fund 'in a manner that rewards counsel for success and penalizes it for failure.'" Teague v. Bakker, 213 F. Supp. 2d 571, 582 (W.D.N.C. 2002) (citing In re Cendant Corp. Prides Litig., 243 F.3d 722, 732 (3d Cir. 2002)); see also Kay Co. v. Equitable Prod. Co., 749 F. Supp. 2d 455, 463 (S.D. W.Va. 2010) ("In light of the prevailing view among courts that the percentage method is the superior method for calculating attorneys' fees from a common fund, and with special concern for the perverse incentives associated with the lodestar method, I find that the percentage method is the appropriate method for determining reasonable attorneys' fees in this case.").

"[C]ourts have become increasingly critical of the lodestar method, which requires scrutiny of Class Counsel's billing practices—a time consuming process—whereas the percentage method is more akin to the common litigation practice of setting contingency fees based on a percentage of the recovery." Goldenberg v. Marriott PLP Corp., 33 F. Supp. 2d 434, 437 (D. Md. 1998). "In all, eight Circuits (the Third, Fifth, Sixth, Seventh, Ninth, Tenth, Eleventh, and District of Columbia) have adopted the percentage method." Id. (citing In re General Motors Corp. Pick-Up Truck Fuel Tank Prod. Liab. Litig., 55 F.3d 768, 821-22 (3d Cir. 1995) (approving use of the percentage-of-recovery approach); Longden v. Sunderman, 979 F.2d 1095, 1099 (5th Cir. 1992) (same); Rawlings v. Prudential-Bache Properties, 9 F.3d 513, 517 (6th Cir. 1993) (same); In Re Continental Illinois Sec. Litig., 962 F.2d 566, 572 (7th Cir. 1992) (same); Six (6) Mexican Workers v. Arizona Citrus Growers, 904 F.2d 1301, 1311 (9th Cir. 1990) (same); Brown v. Phillips Petroleum Co., 838 F.2d 451, 456 (10th Cir. 1998) (same); Camden I Condominium Ass'n v. Dunkle, 946 F.2d 768, 775 (11th Cir. 1991) (requiring use of the percentage-of-recovery approach); Swedish Hospital Corp. v. Shalala, 1 F.3d 1261, 1271 (D.C. Cir. 1993) (also requiring use of the percentage-of-recovery approach)).

"[I]n the Fourth Circuit, courts have discretion to choose between the lodestar method and the percentage method in the common fund cases." DeLoach v. Philip Morris Companies, 2003 WL 23094907 at *3 (M.D.N.C. December 19, 2003) (referring to Teague, 213 F. Supp. 2d at 583). "The United States Court of Appeals for the Fourth Circuit has not decided which of the general approaches to adopt, although the 'current trend among the courts of appeal favors the use of a percentage method to calculate an award of attorneys' fees in common fund cases.'" Singleton v. Domino's Pizza, LLC, 2013 WL 5506027, *10 (D. Md. Oct. 2, 2013) (quoting Goldenberg v. Marriott PLP Corporation, 33 F. Supp. 2d 434, 438 (D. Md. 1998)); Temp. Servs., Inc. v. Am. Int'l Grp., Inc., 3:08-CV-00271-JFA, 2012 WL 4061537, *8-*9 (D.S.C. Sept. 14, 2012) ("[T]he requested percentage award in this case of one-third of the common fund for past work, future work, and future expenses is reasonable in light of the evidence establishing that the market rate for private contingency fees is in the range of 33 1/3 percent to 40 percent, the precedent finding that attorneys' fees in the range of one-third of a settlement fund are reasonable, and the additional circumstances of this case addressed in further detail below."); In re Vitamins Antitrust Litig., 2001 WL 34312839, at *3 (D.D.C. July 16, 2002) ("A growing number of courts, including those in this Circuit, recently have embraced the percentage-of-recovery method in common fund cases."); Kidrick v. ABC Television & Appliance Rental, 1999

WL 1027050, at *1 (N.D. W.Va. May 12, 1999) ("Where there is a common fund in a class settlement, application of a percentage method to calculate an attorney's fee award is now favored.") (citations omitted); Strang v. JHM Mortgage Sec. Ltd. Partnership, 890 F. Supp. 499, 502 (E.D. Va. 1995) (holding that although the Fourth Circuit has not yet ruled on this issue, the current trend among the courts of appeal favors the use of a percentage method to calculate an award of attorneys' fees in common fund cases, and adopting the percentage method); Edmonds v. U.S., 658 F. Supp. 1126, 1143 (D.S.C. Mar. 24, 1987) ("[T]he preferred method of computation of fees in this common fund case is the percentage of the fund method.").

B. The Fee Requested By Plaintiffs Is Fair And Reasonable.

Class Counsel request that this Court grant a fee award of 33⅓% of the $163.5 million in Settlement Funds, with interest from the dates of the deposits of each settlement fund at the same rate earned by the funds. This is a fair and reasonable request in light of the numerous obstacles overcome, the significant risks undertaken, and the outstanding result achieved.

The Court's docket in this action is a testament to the complex nature of this case and how hard the parties litigated. This action was investigated beginning in September 2008, when Defendants and Tronox announced an identical price increase over three days to be effective immediately, not only in a period of dramatically declining demand, but also after Defendants had increased prices numerous times earlier in the year. (¶¶13, 22) Unlike many other cases, there was no criminal proceedings and no federal or state investigation upon which Class Counsel could rely. Class Counsel's prefiling investigation was thorough, lasting for more than a year. Then the first action was filed by class representative Haley Paint on February 9, 2010 (ECF No.1). (¶20) Thereafter, Plaintiffs' Counsel vigorously litigated this matter for more than three and a half years. The parties engaged in extensive motion practice, including numerous dispositive motions. (¶¶78-91) These motions presented formidable risks, including from adverse rulings in other circuits, or even by the Supreme Court, that could have delayed, complicated or even overturned this Court's rulings. The parties took nearly 100 depositions in Maryland, Pennsylvania, California, Texas, Florida, Nevada, Illinois, New York, New Jersey, Ohio, Kentucky, Georgia, Alabama, Oklahoma, Delaware and Washington, D.C., and also in Canada, Italy, Singapore (by telephone), and the United Kingdom. (¶¶74-76) More than one million documents, constituting over 14.4 million pages, were analyzed and organized by Plaintiffs' Counsel. (¶¶62-65)

The Defendants were represented by some of the leading law firms in the United States. They mounted an aggressive, vigorous and well-financed defense from the inception of this action and throughout its course. Plaintiffs faced substantial factual and legal hurdles in establishing their core allegations at every turn. These circumstances show that Plaintiffs' Counsel undertook enormous risks in their pursuit of this litigation, which was brought with no guarantee of success, and without piggybacking on any federal or state government, civil or criminal, antitrust investigation. See, e.g., Thomas E. Kauper & Edward A. Snyder, Symposium: An Inquiry into the Efficiency of Private Antitrust Enforcement: Follow-on and Independently Initiated Cases Compared, 74 Geo. L.J. 1163, 1166-68 (1986) ("[T]he filing of an antitrust complaint or the return of an antitrust indictment by the government sends a signal to potential plaintiffs and plaintiffs' counsel that the defendant may have violated the antitrust laws and thereby triggers the filing of private suits. . . . [P]laintiff's counsel can increase its gain by depending upon the government to undertake 'test runs' of liability in advance. . . . [C]ounsel can then profitably free ride on the government's successes by initiating their own actions once liability has been established. . . . A more significant advantage . . . is the availability to private plaintiffs of data that the government has collected in preparation of its case. . . . Plaintiffs may also obtain access to other data including, in some instances, government staff memoranda . . ." (internal quotation marks and citations omitted)).

The requested 33⅓% fee is appropriate and justified under the circumstances of this case. Courts have consistently found 33⅓% or more to be reasonable in the class action context. Indeed, there are numerous common fund antitrust class actions in which courts have awarded attorneys' fees equivalent to those being claimed here. See, e.g., In re Polyester Staple Antitrust Litig., MDL 3:03CV1516, Order and Final Judgment at ¶10 (W.D.N.C. June 24, 2008) (awarding 33% of $33 million fund before rulings on Daubert and summary judgment) (a copy of this order is attached to the Dirksen Decl. as Ex. N); Vitamins, 2001 WL 34312839 at *14 (the court awarded counsel 34.6% of $365 million in an early settlement of a case in which there had been government criminal investigation and prosecution); In re Automotive Refinishing Paint Antitrust Litig., 2008 WL 63269 at *3 (E.D. Pa. Jan. 3, 2008) (33⅓% of $39 million); Bradburn Parent Teacher Store, Inc. v. 3M, 513 F. Supp. 2d 322, 342 (E.D. Pa. 2007) (approving a percentage recovery of 35% of a $39,750,000 settlement); In re Microcrystalline Cellulose Antitrust Litig., 01-CV-111; 01-MDL-1402 (E.D. Pa. Nov. 22, 2006) (awarding 33⅓% of a $50 million settlement fund); In re Flat Glass Antitrust Litig., MDL No. 1200 (W.D. Pa. May 28, 2003) (awarding 33% of $54 million settlement fund); In re Remeron Direct Purchaser Antitrust Litig., 2005 WL 3008808 at * 17 (D.N.J. Nov. 9, 2005) (approving a fee award of 33⅓% of a $75 million settlement); In re Ins. Brokerage Antitrust Litig., MDL 1663, 2013 WL 3956378 at *19 (D.N.J. Aug. 1, 2013) (awarding 33% of $10.5 million fund); In re Terazosin Hydrochloride Antitrust Litig., 99-MDL-1317 (S.D. Fla. April 19, 2005) (awarding attorneys' fees of 33⅓% of $75 million); In re Relafen Antitrust Litig., 231 F.R.D. 52, 82 (D. Mass. 2005) (approving an award of one third of the $75 million fund); In re Relafen Antitrust Litig., No. 01-12239 (D. Mass. April 9, 2004) (awarding 33⅓% fee of a $175 million settlement); In re Buspirone Antitrust Litig., 01-MD-1413 (S.D.N.Y. April 17, 2003) (awarding 33⅓% of a $220 million settlement fund).

Accordingly, as illustrated by the case law, a 33⅓% fee award is routinely accepted by the courts and is reasonable in light of the circumstances of this action.

C. Class Counsel's Fee Request Is Fair And Reasonable Under Numerous Fourth Circuit Authorities

Under Fourth Circuit precedent, a district court is required to consider certain factors when evaluating the reasonableness of an attorneys' fee award. See Barber v. Kimbrell's, Inc., 577 F.2d 216, 226 n. 28 (4th Cir. 1978); Nigh v. Koons Buick Pontiac GMC, Inc., 478 F.3d 183, 189 (4th Cir. 2007); Royal Ahold, 461 F. Supp. 2d at 385 n. 5 (D. Md. 2006). The twelve factors set forth in Barber are: (1) the time and labor expended; (2) the novelty and difficulty of the questions raised; (3) the skill required to properly perform the legal services rendered; (4) the attorney's opportunity costs of accepting the case; (5) the customary fee for similar work; (6) counsel's expectations at the outset of the litigation; (7) the time limitations imposed by the client or the circumstances; (8) the amount in controversy and the results obtained; (9) the experience, reputation and ability of the attorneys; (10) the undesirability of the case within the legal community in which the suit arose; (11) the nature and length of the professional relationship between attorney and client; and (12) attorneys' fee awards in similar cases. Barber, 577 F.2d at 226 n. 28. These factors "can be used in analyzing a fee either based on the percentage method, or the lodestar method." Edmonds, 658 F. Supp. at 1143 n. 37. The Fourth Circuit has stated that while these twelve factors should be considered in determining a reasonable fee, some factors may "not seem to affect the fee" in certain cases, and therefore each factor need not be strictly applied. See E.E.O.C. v. Service News Co., 898 F.2d 958, 965-66 (4th Cir. 1990). Thus, while the Court should review all of the factors, it need only issue specific findings regarding those factors it deems relevant to its determination. Id.

More recently, however, courts in the Fourth Circuit have focused on the following seven factors in awarding fees using a percentage-of-fund approach: "(1) the results obtained for the class; (2) the quality, skill, and efficiency of the attorneys involved; (3) the risk of nonpayment; (4) objections by members of the class to the settlement terms and/or fees requested by counsel; (5) awards in similar cases; (6) the complexity and duration of the case; and (7) public policy." Singleton, 2013 WL 5506027 at *11 (D.Md. Oct. 2, 2013) (citing Kay Company, 749 F. Supp. 2d at 464 (S.D. W.Va. 2010), and other cases). Although these seven factors are largely duplicative of the twelve Barber factors, there are areas that do not entirely overlap. These and the Barber factors are addressed below. Consideration of each of these factors provides support for the fee requested here. When taken together, they show that the requested fee is deserved and has been earned.

1. The Amount In Controversy And The Results Obtained

"The result achieved by the attorneys for the class is often cited as one of the most significant factors in determining the reasonableness of a fee award." Jones v. Dominion Res. Servs., Inc., 601 F. Supp. 2d 756, 761 (S.D. W.Va. 2009). A "central advantage of the percentage of the fund method is that it looks to the results actually obtained by Lead Counsel rather than just the number of hours they expended, which should be an important point in awarding fees." In re The Mills Corp. Sec. Litig., 265 F.R.D. 246, 261 (E.D. Va. 2009). Indeed, in the Fourth Circuit, "the most critical factor in calculating a reasonable fee award is the degree of success obtained." McKnight v. Circuit City Stores, Inc., 14 Fed.App'x. 147, 149 (4th Cir. 2001).

If the Court were to approve the settlements, Plaintiffs' Counsel will have obtained a common fund of $163,500,000 for the benefit of the Class. This is an outstanding result given the enormous risks described above, and particularly because there was no state or federal government criminal or civil action. Many antitrust class actions, especially those alleging secret price-fixing, follow a government criminal or civil investigation. See, e.g., In re Ethylene Propylene Diene Monomer (EPDM) Antitrust Litig., 681 F. Supp. 2d 141, 147 (D. Conn. 2009); In re Auction Houses Antitrust Litig., 00 CIV. 0648 (LAK), 2001 WL 170792 at *1 (S.D.N.Y. Feb. 22, 2001), aff'd 42 F. App'x. 511 (2d Cir. 2002); In re Blood Reagents Antitrust Litig., 283 F.R.D. 222, 231 (E.D. Pa. 2012); In re Puerto Rican Cabotage Antitrust Litig., 815 F. Supp. 2d 448, 453 (D.P.R. 2011); In re Packaged Ice Antitrust Litig., 723 F. Supp. 2d 987, 998 (E.D. Mich. 2010); In re Bromine Antitrust Litig., 203 F.R.D. 403, 405 (S.D. Ind. 2001); In re Aftermarket Auto. Lighting Prods. Antitrust Litig., 09 MDL 2007-GW PJWX, 2013 WL 4536569 at *1 (C.D. Cal. Aug. 26, 2013); In re Nasdaq Mkt.-Makers Antitrust Litig., 94 CIV. 3996 (RWS), 1997 WL 805062 at *2 (S.D.N.Y. Dec. 31, 1997); In re Polyester Staple Antitrust Litig., MDL 3:03CV1516, 2007 WL 2111380 at *8 (W.D.N.C. July 19, 2007); In re Elec. Carbon Prods. Antitrust Litig., 447 F. Supp. 2d 389, 408 (D.N.J. 2006).

This case was fully investigated and brought by Class Counsel, and then litigated for more than three years to the verge of trial. Even though Defendants' experts contended that there were zero damages resulting from Plaintiffs' alleged claim of price-fixing, Plaintiffs' experts estimated damages of potentially more than $2 billion to the originally certified Class, and damages of hundreds of millions of dollars after the Class was re-defined by the Court, and certain members of the Class were excluded, in the weeks before trial. The amount in controversy was thus potentially so great that had a verdict at trial been achieved in Plaintiffs' favor, and then the judgment trebled in accord with the law, it plausibly could have caused the bankruptcy of more than one Defendant. Should the settlements and the Plan of Allocation be approved, hundreds of direct purchasers of TiO2 not only will be compensated in cash for a portion of their estimated damages from the alleged price-fixing, but also their competitive options for purchasing TiO2 (a key ingredient in the manufacture of coatings, plastics, and paper products) will be preserved. This is an excellent result for Class members given the risks of this case, the financial circumstances of several Defendants, and the nature of the oligopolized TiO2 industry in which consumers depend upon competition among manufacturers.

The settlements with Defendants also represent a cash payment of approximately 1.2% of the amount of the Defendants' and Tronox's estimated sales of TiO2 to members of the Class during the 2003-2010 time period.[6] This compares favorably, in terms of percentage of sales recovered, with other class action antitrust settlements, including where the actions followed on the heels of government investigations. See, e.g., In re Automotive Refinishing Paint Antitrust Litig., 2004 WL 1068807 at *2 (E.D. Pa. May 11, 2004) (recovery represented approximately 2% of sales); In Re Linerboard Antitrust Litig., 321 F. Supp. 2d 619, 627 (E.D. Pa. 2004) (recovery represented 1.62% of sales); Fisher Bros., Inc. v. Mueller Brass Co., 630 F. Supp. 493, 499 (E.D. Pa. 1985) (noting recoveries from certain defendants equal to 0.2%, 0.3%, 0.65%, 0.88% and 2.4% of total sales, and finding the recovery of 0.2% of sales from one defendant to be reasonable because of "its financial condition" and status in the case).

[6] The Settlement Funds represent approximately 1.5% of Defendants' estimated 2003-2010 sales of TiO2 to Class members.

2. The Time And Labor Expended

As detailed in the declarations submitted by the twelve law firms comprising Plaintiffs' Counsel (see the Dirksen Decl. and Exs. A through M thereto), Class Counsel began to investigate this case more than five years ago, and Plaintiffs' Counsel have been prosecuting it since February 9, 2010. (ECF No. 1) Plaintiffs' Counsel have spent more than 45,000 hours on work performed during the course of the litigation, including:

- Investigating the background facts giving rise to Plaintiffs' claims, and analyzing hundreds of documents in connection with preparing and filing the complaints (¶¶22-23);
- Analyzing and organizing over one million documents, constituting more than 14 million pages, produced by the parties and many non-parties during discovery (¶¶56-66);
- Developing a protocol for the production of electronically stored information (¶¶32, 35, 38);
- Propounding and responding to written discovery (¶¶67-70);
- With the assistance of professional economists, analyzing more than ten years of economic information and transactional sales data from each of the Defendants and non-party Tronox (¶¶15-16, 40);
- Opposing motions to dismiss (¶¶27-30);
- Defending or taking nearly 100 depositions in numerous states throughout the United States and in four foreign countries (¶¶74-76);
- Engaging in extensive motion practice addressing class certification, not only before this Court, but also before the Fourth Circuit (¶¶40-54);
- Attending numerous conferences and hearings before this Court in person and by telephone and arguing motions not specifically identified here (¶¶38, 71, 73);
- Extensive research and briefing of various other legal issues litigated throughout this action (Id.);
- Completion of fact and expert discovery (¶¶55-77);
- Opposing Daubert motions brought by the Defendants (¶¶78-81);

- Opposing Defendants' motions to amend the class definition in order to exclude hundreds of purchasers as class members who had arbitration, forum selection, class action waiver, and jury waiver clauses within their contracts with Defendants (¶¶85-91);

- Opposing summary judgment motions filed by each Defendant individually, and all Defendants jointly (¶¶82-84);

- Participating in a two-day mock trial before two mock juries, with experts and others, and with the assistance of a nationally prominent jury consultant (¶93);

- Completion of virtually all pretrial tasks, e.g., service of trial subpoenas; exchange of witness lists and lists of trial exhibits and designations of deposition testimony; filing of motions in limine and opposing of Defendants' motions in limine; exchange of voir dire and verdict forms; drafting and filing of the joint pretrial order and attendance at the pretrial conference; arguments before the Court on the motions in limine; conferences with defense counsel, and with the Court, regarding the admissibility of certain trial exhibits and demonstratives, and deposition testimony (¶¶93-94);

- Engaging in extensive settlement discussions with each Defendant, and preparing the appropriate papers in connection with preliminary and final approval of the four settlements reached in the litigation (¶¶95-105); and

- Responding to Class member inquiries (¶112).[7]

The demands and risks of complex antitrust litigation involving multi-national corporate adversaries are great. Class Counsel very closely managed and coordinated the efforts of the lawyers and paralegals who worked on this matter, in order to maximize efficiency. The substantial expenditure of time in this case was reasonable given the nature of the work performed, especially during discovery, when a mountain of relevant evidence produced by the parties and non-parties needed to be analyzed and organized (and numerous witnesses deposed) in a short amount of time. This factor supports the requested fee award.

[7] If the settlements are approved, Class Counsel will also spend many hours in the future with the Escrow Agent, the Claims Administrator and members of the Class concerning the processing of their claims and distribution of the Settlement Funds (net of any Court-approved attorneys' fees, interest, expenses, service awards, and claims administration costs). Class Counsel will also file a motion in 2014 requesting authorization to distribute the net Settlement Funds pursuant to the Court-approved Plan of Allocation to authorized claimants (members of the Class who timely submitted claims on or before January 31, 2014, that were approved by the Claims Administrator). Although it is not possible now to quantify this time, the attorneys' fees requested by Class Counsel by this motion necessarily include this additional work to be performed for the benefit of the Class through the distribution of all net Settlement Funds and the termination of this action.

3. The Novelty And Difficulty Of The Questions Raised

Antitrust law is a complex and specialized area of the law, requiring the engagement of attorneys who practice in the field on a national level and who devote considerable time both to keeping up with the ever-evolving body of law, and to gaining the experience necessary to successfully litigate such cases. Plaintiffs' Counsel were opposed by highly skilled lawyers from some of the finest law firms in the country. There were many contentious, hard-fought issues in this case, including, for example: (1) the plausibility of the allegations of the complaint; (2) the propriety of jurisdiction in Maryland over the Saudi Arabian parent company of defendant Cristal USA, which had been named originally as a defendant; (3) whether questions concerning proof of liability, impact and damages were sufficiently common among those who had purchased TiO2 directly from the Defendants such that they predominated over individualized issues and warranted certification of a class; (4) the nature and extent of Defendants' and their co-conspirators' alleged price-fixing conspiracy and anti-competitive conduct, including the details of meetings among competitors and the identities and whereabouts of meeting participants, and the specifics of the (formerly secret) Global Statistics Program and the Program's purported impact on industry price increases and pricing generally; (5) whether any testimony of three of Plaintiffs' experts should be excluded at trial under Daubert; (6) whether Defendants' pricing practices were illegally coordinated or simply expressions of lawful conscious parallelism; (7) whether the characteristics of the TiO2 industry were conducive to collusion, or innocuous traits of lawful oligopolistic interdependence; (8) whether the econometric tool of multiple regression analysis was capable in this case of reliably estimating the level of the overcharge from Defendants' alleged price-fixing to members of the Class on a classwide basis, and the measure of such damages; and (9) the admissibility of certain deposition testimony, and important documentary trial exhibits and demonstratives. Many of these issues were central to various rulings of the Court throughout the litigation, including in its orders certifying the Class and denying Defendants' motions for summary judgment. See, e.g., Haley Paint Co. v. E.I. DuPont de Nemours and Co., 804 F. Supp. 2d 419, 426 (D. Md. 2011); In Re Titanium Dioxide Antitrust Litig., 284 F.R.D. 328, 351 (D. Md. 2012); In re Titanium Dioxide Antitrust Litig., -- F. Supp. 2d ---, 2013 WL 4110501 (D. Md. Aug. 14, 2013). The legal questions raised were often challenging, and they were also invariably intertwined with complex factual questions. Simply put, there was great complexity and difficulty in the issues addressed in this case by the Court and the parties. This factor also supports the requested fee award.

4. The Skill Required To Properly Perform The Legal Services

The Supreme Court considers class actions such as this one alleging a price-fixing claim—a violation of Section 1 of the Sherman Act—against numerous defendants on a global basis to be "complex." F. Hoffmann-La Roche Ltd. v. Empagran S.A., 542 U.S. 155, 163-64 (2004). Indeed, "[a]ntitrust class actions are particularly complex to litigate and therefore quite expensive. An antitrust class action is arguably the most complex legal issue to prosecute. . . .." In re Flonase Antitrust Litig., 291 F.R.D. 93, 99 (E.D. Pa. 2013) (citations and quotations omitted) (approving a fee award of one-third of a $35 million common fund).

Plaintiffs' Counsel have vast experience in complex federal civil litigation, particularly in antitrust and other class actions. As a result of this professional expertise, Plaintiffs' Counsel adeptly and efficiently analyzed the facts, legal claims, and defenses in this litigation, employing various strategies to prosecute this matter to the eve of trial and, ultimately, to settle this litigation in the most efficient and effective manner possible in light of the great factual and legal complexity of the claims. The skill of Plaintiffs' Counsel made certain that the settlements were negotiated at arm's length on the sole basis of an informed and realistic weighing of the merits of the claims and the risks of trial. Further, Plaintiffs' Counsel were opposed by sophisticated corporate defendants with highly qualified defense counsel, requiring additional skill. Id.

5. The Attorneys' Opportunity Costs In Pressing The Litigation

This factor requires the Court to examine how the demands of the present litigation foreclosed other opportunities for Plaintiffs' Counsel. As demonstrated by the factors discussed above, the sheer magnitude of time and effort involved in litigating this complex action over more than three years required counsel to forgo other opportunities, particularly Class Counsel and the three Executive Committee firms. Plaintiffs' Counsel invested more than 45,000 hours in this case and incurred $4,555,204.66 in costs and expenses with no guarantee of payment either for their time or expenses. Ex. A; see also Exs. 2 and 3 of the Cera Decl. (which is Ex. B to the Dirksen Decl.). In addition, each law firm involved in this litigation enjoys a national reputation for their work in this field and is highly regarded, with considerable demands for their expertise in numerous matters. While the firms devoted the time and effort to this case, it meant that these firms could not pursue other matters, represent other clients, or provide legal services to others. See, e.g., Braun v. Culp, Inc., 1985 WL 5857, at *2 (M.D.N.C. April 26, 1985) ("In the complex field of securities class actions, there are only a few cases that may be worked on at a time.").

6. Customary Fee For Like Work (Fee Awards In Similar Cases)

As discussed above, and below, the requested fee in this case is similar to those awarded in numerous comparable antitrust and other complex class actions. See Section III(B) above, and

III(D) below; see also, e.g., Linerboard, 2004 WL 1221350 at *14-*15 (noting opinions of experts that the request for 30% of a $202.6 million recovery as a fee was "at or below the market rate."); Smith v. Krispy Kreme Doughnut Corp., 2007 WL 119157 at *2 (M.D.N.C. Jan. 10, 2007) ("In this jurisdiction, contingent fees of one-third [33.3%] are common."); Clark v. Cameron-Brown Co., 1981 WL 1637 at *2 (M.D.N.C. April 6, 1981) (applying the Barber factors to a class action and noting "that in matters in which fees are contingent upon recovery, the fee is usually expressed as a percentage of the recovery and ranges from 25% to 40%, depending on the stage of the litigation at which recovery occurs."). Here, as in Linerboard, Class Counsel offer expert testimony in the form of a declaration on the reasonableness of the fee request in this case as compared with fee awards in other class actions. See the Noonberg Decl., submitted herewith. This factor likewise supports the requested fee award.

7. The Attorneys' Expectation At The Outset Of The Litigation

From the time they undertook this litigation to the present, Plaintiffs' Counsel understood that they faced a significant risk that, if they were unsuccessful, they would receive nothing. They accepted the risk they would receive no compensation for their time and no reimbursement for their substantial expert and other expenses. In cases such as this, a determination of a fair fee must include consideration of the unfavorable characteristics of a contingent antitrust action, including the uncertain nature of the fee, the wholly contingent expenditure of large out-of-pocket sums by Plaintiffs' Counsel, and the fact that the risk of failure and nonpayment in an antitrust case is extremely high. Indeed, in the Second Circuit, courts "have recognized the risk of litigation to be perhaps the foremost factor to be considered in determining the award of appropriate attorneys' fees [in part because] despite the most vigorous and competent of efforts, success is never guaranteed." Tiro v. Public House Investments, LLC, 2013 WL 4830949 at *13 (S.D.N.Y. Sept. 10, 2013) (citations and quotations omitted).

From the outset, this case had enormous risks. There was no amnesty application. There was no government investigation of the TiO2 industry. There was no direct evidence of the conspiracy alleged. In fact, Plaintiffs relied wholly on circumstantial evidence to prove liability. This is a case in which Plaintiffs had to prove an illegal cartel or conspiracy. Such cases are notoriously hard to prove because price-fixing is inherently self-concealing. At the same time, this case was taken on a fully contingent basis with Plaintiffs' Counsel's compensation to occur only at the discretion of the Court upon achieving success for the Class. There were thus formidable risks in not achieving a result that would allow for compensation sufficient to justify the large outlay of hours and money that Plaintiffs' Counsel knew would need to be invested to successfully prosecute this litigation.

8. The Time Limitations Imposed By The Client Or Circumstances

Much of the work in this case was performed under deadline pressures according to a strict, ambitious schedule set by the Court. That schedule required Plaintiffs to review and assimilate the mammoth discovery record in a short period of time to propound written discovery and to take depositions. At the same time, Plaintiffs had to meet deadlines for class certification, summary judgment, and other key milestones. Meeting these deadlines required Class Counsel to muster significant resources without delay. For example, the discovery schedule required Plaintiffs' Counsel to master over 14 million pages of documents produced by Defendants and non-parties, and to prepare for and take depositions of more than seventy witnesses, in only six months, at the same time that class certification was being litigated. (¶¶41-49, 58-62) This priority work precluded the performance of valuable services by Plaintiffs' Counsel in other pending litigation. Such time pressures are atypical of ordinary federal civil litigation and, in fact, discovery in even typical complex antitrust class actions occurs over the course of several years, not months.

9. The Experience, Reputation, And Ability Of The Attorneys

This Court has recognized that Plaintiffs' Counsel are highly competent in successfully prosecuting antitrust class actions. "This case was hard fought by experienced, highly qualified counsel on both sides. Their [settlement] negotiations certainly raise no suspicion of collusion." (ECF No. 534 at 8); see also In re Titanium Dioxide Antitrust Litig., 2013 WL 5182093 at *4 (D. Md. Sep. 12, 2013). In granting class certification, the Court also noted the qualifications of Class Counsel. See In re Titanium Dioxide Antitrust Litig., 284 F.R.D. 328, 351 (D. Md. 2012) (". . . Plaintiffs' proposed co-lead counsel are well qualified to represent the class in this case."). The experience, reputation, and skill for which each of the Plaintiffs' firms is known, as recognized by the Court, supports the reasonableness of the requested fee award.

10. The Undesirability Of The Case Within The Legal Community Within Which The Suit Arose

Cartel cases require a commitment of large amounts of time and money to have a reasonable chance at success, and even that is far from guaranteed. After Class Counsel initiated this litigation in the District of Maryland, no other cases were filed on behalf of a direct purchaser of TiO2 anywhere, by anyone. Given how antitrust class action cases usually proceed, this fact suggests that at least at the inception of this case, many highly skilled class action plaintiffs' firms located nationwide viewed this case as too risky to pursue, and chose to devote their time and resources elsewhere. (¶¶20,126) Thus, despite the participation in this case by 12 firms, there is no question that many other lawyers found this case undesirable to file and litigate.

11. The Nature And Length Of The Professional Relationship Between The Attorney And Client

The nature and length of the relationship between attorneys and clients is not particularly relevant here because this is a class action. "While the court must consider all of the [Barber] factors, they need not be applied in any strict manner as not all may affect the fee in a given case." All American Title Loans, Inc. v. Title Cash of South Carolina, Inc., 2007 WL 1464580 at *4 (D.S.C. May 17, 2007) (citing E.E.O.C. v. Service News Co., 898 F.2d 958, 965 (4th Cir. 1990)). As a class action, there is little likelihood that this representation will lead to other business matters between members of the Class and Plaintiffs' Counsel that might arguably warrant a reduction in the requested fee in this case. This is true even though some members of the Class (which comprises hundreds of companies) are current or former clients of some of the law firms who assisted Plaintiffs in this case. Class members and, indeed, Plaintiffs' Counsel, are scattered throughout the country, and complex antitrust litigation involving alleged cartel practices has a scope that is nationwide and usually global. Therefore, "[t]he attorneys' relationship with class members is thus not analogous to one in which a lawyer may 'discount' certain work to a client because of the likelihood of a continuing profitable association." Clark v. Cameron-Brown Co., 1981 WL 1637 at *3 (M.D.N.C. April 6, 1981).

12. Risk Of Non-Payment

As discussed above, there were substantial risks that Plaintiffs could have recovered nothing from this suit. Moreover, had Plaintiffs obtained a verdict at trial in the full amount of the damages they sought, and had this amount been trebled in accord with the law, Defendants would have been jointly and severally liable for at least hundreds of millions if not billions of dollars. If a judgment in excess of a billion dollars had been entered, there was a theoretical risk that one or more Defendants would have declared bankruptcy, even before the exhaustion of any appeals.

13. Objections To The Settlements Or Fees Requested

Members of the Class have until November 4, 2013, to submit any objections to the settlements or to the requests for attorneys' fees, reimbursement of expenses, and service awards for the class representatives. Pursuant to the Order of the Court, thousands of detailed notices concerning the settlements and requests for fees, reimbursement of expenses, and payment of service awards were mailed to members of the Class in September. See Sherwood Decl. at ¶¶7-8. A summary notice concerning the settlements and foregoing requests was published in the Wall Street Journal and in industry publications. Id. at ¶¶9-10. The Class includes hundreds of business entities, sophisticated in class action settlements of this type.

To date, no objection has been received. Id. at ¶16. In fact, one direct purchaser of TiO2 who opted-out of the Class in January 2013 recently requested permission to re-enter the Class and participate in the distribution of the Settlement Funds. [8] Id. at ¶17. In addition, at least 58 members of the Class already have submitted proof of claim forms to the Claims Administrator, even though the deadline for submission of such forms is January 31, 2014. Id. at ¶15. These responses indicate widespread support of the Settlements.

[8] Class Counsel do not oppose this company's request because its request to opt-out was apparently based on mistake and because its claim will not materially affect the recoveries of the other claimants. Class Counsel will permit this entity to submit its claim before the deadline. When Class Counsel seek an order of the Court in 2014 authorizing distribution of the Settlement Funds (net of any Court-approved attorneys' fees, interest, expenses, and claims administration costs) pursuant to the Plan of Allocation, Class Counsel will request that the Court permit this entity to re-enter the class at that time.

14. Complexity And Duration Of The Case

It has been more than five years since the allegations of the complaint were first investigated, and more than three years since Haley Paint filed the initial complaint. (ECF No. 1) Although this case involves only a single claim—a violation of Section 1 of the Sherman Act, 15 U.S.C. § 1—Plaintiffs alleged a secret conspiracy involving cartel practices lasting nearly a decade in a global industry dominated by five companies with combined annual global revenues in the billions. The alleged cartel and conspiracy also involved a number of individuals located in the United States and Europe, who had participated in dozens of multi-lateral meetings in many different locations over many years. In addition, as acknowledged by the Court in its order denying summary judgment, even after Plaintiffs' Counsel had pored through millions of pages of documents and conducted or participated in nearly 100 depositions nationwide and abroad, there was no direct evidence discovered of a price-fixing agreement among the Defendants. The effort to prove a decade-long price-fixing conspiracy at trial based on circumstantial evidence thus would have been very complicated and risky, particularly because Plaintiffs would have had to rely largely on their experts and on the live and videotaped testimony of hostile witnesses who vociferously denied wrongdoing.

Beyond the factual complexity of this case, as the Court is aware, this case raised a number of complex and difficult legal issues. Plaintiffs' Counsel also researched, briefed and argued numerous partially or fully dispositive motions throughout this case that raised issues of great complexity, including motions to dismiss on jurisdictional and other grounds, for class certification, to exclude expert testimony under Daubert, for re-definition of the Class, for arbitration, and for summary judgment. See, e.g., ¶¶40-44, 78-89. Many issues were novel or involved evolving legal precedent. Some of the issues in these motions were impacted by rulings of circuit courts and even the Supreme Court throughout the history of the case.

15. Public Policy

"Congress has expressed its belief that private antitrust litigation is one of the surest weapons for effective enforcement of the antitrust laws." Minnesota Mining & Mfg. Co. v. New Jersey Wood Finishing Co., 381 U.S. 311, 318 (1965). In complex cases, fee awards have been enhanced by courts in order to encourage the filing of meritorious claims by future plaintiffs. See, e.g., In Re Microstrategy, Inc. Sec. Litig., 172 F. Supp. 2d 778, 788 (E.D. Va. 2001) (permitting the use of a multiplier in a securities case "to provide an incentive for competent lawyers to pursue such actions in the future."). Public policy "generally favors attorneys' fees that will induce attorneys to act and protect individuals who may not be able to act for themselves but also will not create an incentive to bring unmeritorious actions." Jones, 601 F. Supp. 2d at 765 (citing In re Merrill Lynch Tyco Research Sec., Litig., 249 F.R.D. 124, 142 (S.D.N.Y. 2008); Microstrategy, 172 F. Supp. 2d at 789 n. 36). "The cost and difficulty [of bringing a meritorious complex class action] naturally stands as a deterrent from doing so, and one object of an award of attorneys' fees should be to counteract this deterrence and incentivize competent attorneys to pursue these cases when necessary." In re The Mills Corp. Sec. Litig., 265 F.R.D. 246, 263 (E.D. Va. 2009).

The federal government and the states as well have limited resources. The enforcement of antitrust law is crucial to the United States economy. "Antitrust laws in general, and the Sherman Act in particular, are the Magna Carta of free enterprise. They are as important to the preservation of economic freedom and our free enterprise system as the Bill of Rights is to the protection of our individual freedoms." United States v. Topco Associates, Inc., 405 U.S. 596, 610 (1972).

Plaintiffs' Counsel have recovered Settlement Funds of $163.5 million in a case they investigated and filed many years ago without the help of a government investigation. They then prosecuted this case to the eve of trial in September 2013. Tens of thousands of hours of time were committed by Plaintiffs' Counsel in litigating this case without any guarantee of success or compensation. They also risked millions of dollars in expenses with no guarantee of reimbursement. Attorneys who face substantial costs and risks with no guarantee of recovery should be encouraged to investigate and file meritorious claims on behalf of their clients and those injured by anti-competitive conduct. They should also be rewarded when having to face multi-national Defendants with significant resources who are represented by lawyers of the highest caliber. A substantial fee will provide the proper incentives for expert lawyers to pursue vigorously antitrust claims and to enforce the antitrust laws.

In Re Titanium Dioxide Antitrust Litigation has truly been an action brought and litigated by "private attorneys' general" on behalf of purchasers of TiO2 at considerable sacrifice. It is a type of action that ought to be encouraged by reasonably compensating counsel for their risk and their ultimate success.

D. A Lodestar Cross-Check Confirms The Reasonableness Of The Requested Fee

Although it is not necessary for the Court to conduct a lodestar analysis, most courts in this and other circuits use the lodestar methodology as a "cross-check" on the reasonableness of the fee derived using the percentage-of-the-fund methodology. "Where the lodestar fee is used as a mere cross-check to the percentage method of determining reasonable attorneys' fees, the hours documented by counsel need not be exhaustively scrutinized by the district court." Royal Ahold, 461 F. Supp. 2d at 385 (internal quotations and citations omitted); see also In re Rite Aid Corp. Sec. Litig., 396 F.3d 294, 306-07 (3d Cir. 2005) ("[T]he lodestar cross-check calculation need entail neither mathematical precision nor bean-counting. The district courts may rely on summaries submitted by the attorneys and need not review actual billing records.").

The aggregate unpaid lodestar of the firms comprising Plaintiffs' Counsel is $22,812,576.12. Ex. A. This figure is based on a total of 45,585.33 professional hours of work on this matter. Id. The requested fee of 33⅓% of the Settlement Funds, or $54,500,000, thus results in a lodestar cross-check calculation, also known as a multiplier, of 2.39.

This multiplier is on the low end of the range when compared with similar cases. Many courts nationwide have noted that a multiplier within the range of 2 and 4.5 is a reasonable multiplier that is warranted in complex class actions such as this one, in order to take into account the tremendous risk inherent in such contingent representations, and the long delay in payment. See, e.g., Jones, 601 F. Supp. 2d at 766 ("Courts have generally held that lodestar multipliers falling between 2 and 4.5 demonstrate a reasonable attorneys' fee."); Kay Company, 749 F. Supp. 2d at 470 (same); Goldenberg v. Marriott PLP Corp., 33 F. Supp. 2d 434, 439 n. 6 (D. Md. 1998) (citing Behrens v. Wometco Enter., Inc., 118 F.R.D. 534, 549 (S.D. Fla.1988) aff'd 899 F.2d 21 (11th Cir.1990) ("[L]odestar multiples in large and complicated class actions ranges from a low of 2.26 to a high of 4.5.")); Deloach v. Philip Morris Companies, 2003 WL 23094907, *9 (M.D.N.C. Dec. 19, 2003) (citing numerous cases awarding fees with multipliers greater than 3); Cendant Corp., 243 F.3d at 737-42 (recommending on remand that the district court award fees at a multiplier of 3, after surveying cases with funds over $100 million and finding lodestar multipliers of 1.35 to 2.99 common). See also Singleton, 2013 WL 5506027 at *10 (summarizing the range of multipliers in Fourth Circuit and other cases in reducing class counsel's requested multiplier of 3.8 to a figure "closer to 3," because of the nature of the litigation "and the limited discovery" it involved).

Indeed, in the Linerboard antitrust class action, which was also litigated without any government action, the attorneys received a fee approximating a lodestar multiplier of 3.67 using current hourly rates. Linerboard, 2004 WL 1221350 at *12, *16 n. 9 (E.D. Pa. 2004) (awarding attorneys' fees of 30% of the $202.6 million recovery months before trial). The Linerboard multiplier was thus far higher than the 2.39 requested here, which is also lower than the multiplier in Royal Ahold, even though—quite unlike the situation here—that case settled "well before trial" and there were parallel criminal proceedings. See also Royal Ahold, 461 F. Supp. 2d at 387 (awarding fees of 12% of the $1.1 billion common fund, which translated to a multiplier of 2.57). Moreover, in Linerboard as here, expert testimony has confirmed the reasonableness of Class Counsel's fee request. See Noonberg Decl., submitted herewith.

Accordingly, the use of the lodestar methodology—whether used as a cross-check or otherwise—also supports the requested fee.

IV. REIMBURSEMENT AND PAYMENT OF EXPENSES

Class Counsel also request reimbursement of unpaid litigation costs and expenses which Plaintiffs' Counsel have incurred in connection with the prosecution of this action in the amount of $4,555,204.66. See Ex. A (a summary of each firm's incurred expenses), and Ex. B, Cera Decl. at Ex. 3 (litigation fund's incurred expenses). In the Fourth Circuit, expenses are compensable in a common fund case if they are reasonable in nature and amount. "It is well-established that plaintiffs who are entitled to recover attorneys' fees are also entitled to recover reasonable litigation-related expenses as part of their overall award." Singleton, 2013 WL 5506027 at *17 (D. Md. Oct. 2, 2013) (citing cases). Such costs may include "those reasonable out-of-pocket expenses incurred by the attorney which are normally charged to a fee-paying client, in the course of providing legal services." Spell v. McDaniel, 852 F.2d 762, 771 (4th Cir. 1988) (internal quotations omitted). In addition, the fact that Plaintiffs' Counsel were willing to expend their own money, as an investment whose reimbursement was entirely contingent on the success of this litigation, is perhaps the best indicator that the expenditures were reasonable and necessary. See In re Lorazepam & Clorazepate Antitrust Litig., 2003 WL 22037741 at *10 (D.D.C. June 16, 2003) (approving reimbursement of expenses that equaled "only about 3% of the total recovery obtained for the Direct Purchaser Class.").

The amount requested, approximately 2.8% of the Settlement Funds, is based on the declarations of all Plaintiffs' Counsel submitted herewith. Expenses are broken down in each declaration by the type of expense. The total amount of the incurred expenses is 17% less than the amount stated in the Notice to members of the Class, which stated that Class Counsel would request up to $5,500,000 for reimbursement of litigation expenses.

These expenses were incurred by counsel for, among other things, computerized research, photocopying and duplicating, travel expenses, and contributions to a common litigation fund. This fund was used primarily to pay the fees and costs of economic consultants and experts, which usually constitute the largest type of expense incurred in antitrust cases. These expenses thus were the type of costs typically billed by attorneys to paying clients in the marketplace. Spell, 852 F.2d at 771. Accordingly, the request by Class Counsel for the reimbursement of expenses from the common fund is reasonable and should be approved.

V. THE PROPOSED PLAINTIFF SERVICE AWARDS ARE REASONABLE

Plaintiffs also request that the Court approve incentive awards for the class representatives of $125,000 for Haley Paint, and $25,000 each for Isaac Industries and East Coast Colorants (d/b/a Breen). The notices informed the Class of Plaintiffs' request for these awards, and allowed for members of the Class to object to them. No objection has been received to date.

Many courts have approved "incentive" or service awards to class representative plaintiffs on the basis that they take on risks and perform services for the benefit of the class. Albert Conte and Herbert B. Newberg, 4 Newberg on Class Actions, §11:38 (4th ed.). Such awards are common in complex class action cases. See, e.g., Ex. O, Ivax Corp. v. Aztec Peroxides, LLC, et al., Case No. 1:02CV00593 (D.D.C. Aug. 24, 2005) (awarding service awards to each class representative plaintiff in an antitrust price-fixing class action of $100,000 each); In re Xcel Energy, Inc., Sec., Derivative & "ERISA" Litig., 364 F. Supp. 2d 980, 1000 (D. Minn. 2005) ($100,000 collectively to the lead plaintiff group); In re Dun & Bradstreet Credit Services Customer Litig., 130 F.R.D. 366, 376 (S.D. Ohio 1990) (court approved two incentive awards of $55,000.00 and three of $35,000.00 to five representative plaintiffs); Franklin Container Corp. v. Int'l Paper Co., No. 77-3204 (E.D. Pa. 1987) (court awarded $100,000.00 to each of two named plaintiffs in an antitrust case).

Indeed, "[s]uch awards are particularly appropriate in this case because there was no preceding governmental action alleging a conspiracy and taking a high-profile role threatened to jeopardize class representatives' relationships with their suppliers." Linerboard, 2004 WL 1221350 at *18 (E.D. Pa. 2004), citing Cullen v. Whiteman Medical Corp., 197 F.R.D. 136 (E.D. Pa. 2000) ("Courts routinely approve incentive awards for the services they provide and the risks they incurred during the course of the class action litigation."). See also Singleton, 2013 WL 5506027 at *18 (D. Md. Oct. 2, 2013) ("Incentive payments to class representatives have been awarded in Rule 23 class actions.").

The class representatives in this case performed many hours of work on behalf of the Class. The representatives "fully complied with all demands placed on them during this litigation and assisted Class Counsel's investigation of this case by providing documents and information to aid counsel, and undergoing cross examination during depositions." Cohen v. Chilcott Pub. Ltd. Co., 522 F. Supp. 2d 105, 124 (D.D.C. 2007). For example, the President of Haley Paint Company, Robert Haley, who participated in the prefiling investigation and first brought this action on February 9, 2010, sat for a deposition in March 2011 that lasted approximately nine hours on the record. ¶129. Three of his former employees also were deposed by the Defendants. Id. Mr. Haley's company produced thousands of documents responsive to Defendants' document requests, and Mr. Haley reviewed and verified numerous responses to Defendants' interrogatories and other discovery. Id. Mr. Haley participated in the mock trial, prepared for trial, and planned to attend the trial before the settlement with Kronos occurred on the last business day before trial. Id. The other representatives, Isaac and Breen, also produced documents, responded to Defendants' discovery requests, and sat for deposition. Id. The service awards to them are fair and reasonable in light of their respective investments of time and effort for the benefit of the Class, and the awards should be approved.

VI. CONCLUSION

For all of the foregoing reasons, Plaintiffs respectfully request that this Court grant their motion awarding attorneys' fees, reimbursement of expenses, and payment of service awards to the class representatives.

Dated: October 18, 2013

GOLD BENNETT CERA & SIDENER, LLP

By: /s/ Solomon B. Cera
Solomon B. Cera (Pro hac vice)
C. Andrew Dirksen (Pro hac vice)
Louis A. Kessler (Pro hac vice)

TAB 11A

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
FOR THE NORTHERN DISTRICT OF ILLINOIS
EASTERN DIVISION

STANDARD IRON WORKS, on behalf of itself and all others similarly situated,

Plaintiffs,

v.

ARCELORMITTAL; ARCELORMITTAL USA, INC.; UNITED STATES STEEL CORPORATION; NUCOR CORPORATION; GERDAU AMERISTEEL CORPORATION; STEEL DYNAMICS, INC.; AK STEEL HOLDING CORPORATION; SSAB SWEDISH STEEL CORPORATION; COMMERCIAL METALS, INC.,

Defendants.

Case No. 08 C 5214

Judge James B. Zagel

ORDER AWARDING ATTORNEYS' FEES AND REIMBURSEMENT OF LITIGATION EXPENSES TO CLASS COUNSEL FROM THE COMMON SETTLEMENT FUNDS, AND APPROVING PLAN OF ALLOCATION AND DISTRIBUTION

The Court, having considered Class Counsel's Motion for Award of Attorneys' Fees and Reimbursement of Litigation Expenses and the Memorandum of Law and exhibits in support thereof (Dkt. No. 519); having held hearings on October 17, 2014 and October 21, 2014 concerning final settlement approval, attorneys' fees and other related issues; and having considered all of the submissions and arguments with respect thereto, pursuant to Rules 23 and 54 of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure it is hereby ORDERED, ADJUDGED AND DECREED that Class Counsel's Motion for Attorneys' Fees and Reimbursement of Litigation Expenses is GRANTED as follows:

1. Settlement Class Counsel have moved for attorneys' fees and reimbursement of litigation expenses out of the total common settlement funds in this litigation. As a result of the Settlements with ArcelorMittal and U. S. Steel, and prior settlements with Defendants Commercial Metals, AK Steel, and Gerdau Ameristeel, Class Counsel has secured a total common fund recovery of $163.9 million for the benefit of the Settlement Class.

2. After two appropriate notices to the Settlement Class of their intention to seek up to one-third of the total common settlement fund as attorneys' fees and to seek reimbursement of litigation expenses, and after a third notice to the Class providing a third opportunity to object to Class Counsel's motion for attorneys' fees after that motion was filed, and upon consideration of the motion and all related submissions and argument, and the response of the Settlement Class thereto; now therefore pursuant to Rules 23(h) and 54(d) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, this Court awards Settlement Class Counsel 33% of the total Settlement Fund (i.e., 33% of the sum of all five settlements obtained to date) as a fair and reasonable attorneys' fee.

3. The Court finds that a 33% fee comports with the prevailing market rate for legal services of similar quality in similar cases. The Court rests this conclusion on, inter alia, data provided by Class Counsel concerning market rates; the Court's consideration of fee awards in similar complex litigation, including many recent antitrust class actions in which 33% fees were awarded for similar work; the nature and complexity of this particular litigation; the substantial risks of non-recovery borne by Class Counsel in prosecuting this matter on a purely contingent basis while advancing all litigation costs; the amount and quality of Class Counsel's work; and the results obtained on behalf of the Class.

4. Class Counsel initiated and developed this case with no assistance from any prior government investigation or prosecution, and handled the matter effectively and without compensation through more than six years of hard-fought litigation. The issues were risky and difficult, and Class Counsel's ultimate success in recovering $163.9 million for the Class—payable promptly in cash—supports the requested fee award.

5. A lodestar "cross check" further supports a 33% fee award. Class Counsel devoted more than $27.7 million in professional time at current billing rates (or approximately $23.6 million at historical rates) to litigating this case. The work involved, inter alia, extensive pre-complaint investigation; motion to dismiss and case management briefing; litigating numerous discovery issues with all eight Defendants; reviewing over 3.5 million pages of documents produced in class certification discovery; collecting, reviewing and producing documents from the five class representatives; preparing for and taking the depositions of defendants' expert and lay witnesses; preparing for and defending the depositions of the class representatives; preparing for and conducting a 3-day class certification hearing and numerous other hearings, arguments and conferences over the past six years; preparing thousands of pages of class certification, Daubert and expert submissions; and much more. All of this work led directly to the creation of the common Settlement Fund.

6. The Court finds that Class Counsel performed their work reasonably and efficiently, that their billing rates are appropriate and consistent with market rates for attorneys of similar skill doing similar work, and that the lodestar totals are reasonable.

7. Based on current billing rates, the requested lodestar "multiplier" is approximately 1.97, which the Court finds is well within the range of reasonable multipliers awarded in similar contingent cases. The requested multiplier is further supported by the fact that Class Counsel bore all the risk of litigating this complex case (including millions of dollars in litigation expenses) with no guarantee of reimbursement. Having shouldered these risks, and having achieved outstanding results for the Class, Class Counsel have earned their requested multiplier.

8. The reaction of the Class supports the requested fee award. The Settlement Class in this case includes approximately 5,300 direct purchasers, many of which are sophisticated business entities. The absence of objections indicates that the fee is fair and reasonable and consistent with prevailing market rates.

9. The Court directs that Co-Lead Counsel allocate the fee award among co-counsel in a reasonable manner consistent with Co-Lead Counsel's assessment of each firm's contribution to the prosecution of the case.

10. Class Counsel also requests reimbursement for $406,850.08 in expenses they have advanced in the prosecution of this lawsuit. The Court grants that request and finds the expenses to be fair and reasonably incurred to achieve the benefits to the Settlement Class obtained in the Settlement, as well as the continued litigation of this Action against non-settling Defendants.

11. After deducting Court-approved attorneys' fees and expenses (including the previously approved costs of notice and settlement administration), the balance of the common settlement funds shall be distributed to Class members in accordance with Plaintiffs' proposed Plan of Allocation and Distribution, attached hereto as Exhibit 1. The Court finds that the Plan of Allocation and Distribution is fair, reasonable and adequate, and the Court therefore approves the proposed Plan of Allocation and Distribution as submitted. After final approval of the Settlements and entry of this order awarding attorneys' fees and expenses, the claims administrator (Garden City Group) will mail pre-printed claim forms to all Class members identified as direct purchasers in Defendants' transaction data. The pre-printed claim forms shall be in a format substantially similar to the proposed claim form contained in Exhibit 1. Class members will be asked to verify the accuracy of certain purchase information on the pre-printed claim forms and return those forms to the claims administrator, and they will be given an opportunity to submit additional or corrective information if they wish. Following expiration of the deadline for the return of claim forms, and after consideration of any supplemental information submitted by Class members, the claims administrator will calculate each claiming Class member's pro rata share of the Settlement Funds, net of then-due and estimated future settlement administration costs. Class Counsel will supervise the claims process, and Class Counsel will file a motion to update the Court on the claims process and to request approval of the final schedule of distributions prior to any checks being mailed to the Class.

WHEREFORE the Court grants an attorneys' fee award of 33% of the total common settlement funds (i.e., 33% of $163.9 million, or a total fee of $54,087,000), authorizes Co-Lead Counsel to allocate the fee award among co-counsel at Co-Lead Counsel's discretion, awards Class Counsel reimbursement of their requested "out of pocket" litigation costs and expenses from the Settlement funds in the amount of $406,850.08 (in addition to the reimbursement of $5,064,908.97 in litigation expenses approved in connection with the earlier Settlements), and approves the proposed Plan of Allocation and Distribution for the Settlement funds.

SO ORDERED this the 22nd day of October, 2014.

Honorable James B. Zagel
United States District Judge

TAB 11B

IN THE UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
FOR THE NORTHERN DISTRICT OF ILLINOIS

IN RE: STEEL ANTITRUST LITIGATION

THIS DOCUMENT RELATES TO ALL DIRECT PURCHASER ACTIONS:

Standard Iron Works v. ArcelorMittal, et al., Case No. 08-cv-5214

Wilmington Steel Processing Co., Inc. v. ArcelorMittal, et al., Case No. 08-cv-5371

Capow, Inc. d/b/a Eastern States Steel v. ArcelorMittal, et al., Case No. 08-cv-5633

Alco Industries, Inc. v. ArcelorMittal, et al., Case No. 08-cv-6197

Gulf Stream Builders Supply, Inc. v. ArcelorMital, et al., Case No. 10-cv-4236

Case No. 08-cv-5214

Honorable James B. Zagel

MEMORANDUM OF LAW IN SUPPORT OF CLASS COUNSEL'S MOTION FOR AWARD OF ATTORNEYS' FEES AND REIMBURSEMENT OF LITIGATION EXPENSES

INTRODUCTION

Since this case began in 2008, Plaintiffs' counsel have represented the proposed Class vigorously, effectively, and without compensation through years of hard-fought litigation. With the recent all-cash settlements totaling $163.9 million, and the case continuing against three remaining Defendants, counsel have achieved an outstanding result for the Class, supporting a reasonable fee award from the settlement funds. See Boeing Co. v. Van Gemert, 444 U.S. 472, 478 (1980) ("this Court has recognized consistently that a [lawyer] who recovers a common fund for the benefit of persons other than himself or his client is entitled to a reasonable attorney's fee from the fund as a whole").

Class Counsel respectfully move for attorneys' fees of one-third (33.33%) of the common settlement funds as fair and reasonable compensation for their work—a percentage well within the range accepted by this Court, others in the Seventh Circuit, and courts around the country. See page 10, infra. Indeed, a one-third fee is particularly warranted here. This case was not the product of a government investigation or prosecution, but was developed solely by Plaintiffs' counsel and litigated effectively at every stage against eight sophisticated Defendants and dozens of well-compensated lawyers from prestigious defense firms. Prosecuting the matter has required more than $33 million dollars of attorney time and litigation expenses, all of which was advanced by Class Counsel on a fully contingent basis with no guarantee of recovery. If the claims had failed for any reason, Class Counsel would have gotten nothing. Having incurred these substantial risks, and having secured a very large settlement fund for the benefit of the Class, Class Counsel have earned their requested fee.

BACKGROUND

I. CLASS COUNSEL'S WORK

A. Pre-Complaint Investigation and Motion to Dismiss

This action began in September 2008 with the filing of a detailed complaint alleging that Defendants, the nation's largest steelmakers, conspired to restrict raw steel output on an industry-wide basis, causing injury to a class of direct purchasers. Dkt. No. 1. Unlike most other large antitrust class actions, Class Counsel built the case from the ground up. Class Counsel developed the theory in the first instance, interviewed witnesses and steel buyers, studied industry documents, retained experts, and performed extensive legal research to evaluate the claims—all of which informed the complaint.

The next stage was opposing Defendants' motion to dismiss. In the wake of Bell Atlantic Corp. v. Twombly, 550 U.S. 544 (2007), Defendants introduced a lengthy factual record in support of their arguments for dismissal, requiring considerable time and effort to respond. See Dkt. Nos. 111-115; Dkt. No. 132 (Plaintiffs' memorandum). Class Counsel then prepared for and argued the motion on February 26, 2009.

The detailed factual record developed by Class Counsel ultimately informed the Court's June 12, 2009, order and opinion denying Defendants' motion. See Dkt. No. 170; see also Ex. 1, Joint Declaration of Co-Lead Counsel Jeffrey Istvan and Michael Guzman ("Joint Decl."), ¶ 45 (approximately 9,488 hours and $5.4 million of time required to investigate, draft complaint, organize the related cases, and prevail on motion to dismiss).[1]

[1] The Joint Declaration includes, inter alia, an overview of the case, a summary of Class Counsel's work, detail on time and expenses, information on fees in similar cases, and an assessment of the risks of continued litigation and the benefits of settlement.

B. Discovery, Class Certification, and Settlements

Discovery and document review often requires substantial time and expense in complex litigation, and this case was no exception. Class Counsel's discovery-related work included, inter alia:

- Drafting and negotiating proposed case management, discovery, and protective orders (see, e.g., Dkt. Nos. 19, 31, 40, 78, 181, 221, 226-235);
- Drafting and serving discovery requests on all eight Defendants;
- Filing motions and briefs on various case management and discovery issues (see, e.g., Dkt. Nos. 211, 261-63, 276 and 343);
- Resolving dozens of discovery issues and disputes through meet and confers with Defendants, without the need for Court involvement;
- Reviewing and synthesizing over 3.5 million pages of documents produced by Defendants;
- Collecting, reviewing, and producing requested document discovery from the named Plaintiffs, and preparing for and defending their depositions;
- Coordinating discovery and analysis of Defendants' transactional, financial and operational data, including sales data for nearly 30 million steel transactions as well as monthly price, cost, production, margin and other data from all eight Defendants;
- Serving, negotiating, and reviewing discovery from various trade associations and other non-parties.

Class Counsel also managed the work relating to class certification, which required years of legal, factual, and strategic development. Specific tasks included drafting hundreds of pages of class certification and Daubert briefs; identifying and organizing thousands of pages of exhibits; working with three experts on a total of five expert reports; researching, preparing for and deposing Defendants' experts and witnesses; preparing for and defending Plaintiffs' expert depositions; preparing and presenting Plaintiffs' argument during a three-day class certification and Daubert hearing; and drafting proposed post-hearing findings of fact and conclusions of law.

See Ex. 1, Joint Decl. ¶ 45 (approximately 38,400 hours and $19.6 million in time devoted to class certification and Daubert discovery, briefing and case management).[2]

All of this work was necessary to advance Plaintiffs' claims and lay the groundwork for the recent settlements: a total of $163.9 million from Commercial Metals ($3.99 million), AK Steel ($5.8 million), Gerdau ($6.1 million), ArcelorMittal ($90 million), and U.S. Steel ($58 million). Furthermore, each of the settlements required protracted negotiation and drafting on monetary and other terms, as well as extensive work with the class administrator and bank on class notice, administration and escrow issues, representing another key aspect of the case handled effectively by Class Counsel.

C. Outstanding Result for the Class

The Settlements provide for a guaranteed cash recovery payable promptly to Class members upon final approval, with no funds reverting to the Defendants at any time or for any reason. In other words, all of the settlement money will go directly to the Class in cash after deducting Court-approved attorneys' fees and expenses.

The reaction of Class members has been overwhelmingly favorable. Direct notice was mailed to the vast majority of the approximately 5,300 direct purchaser Class members, and (to date) no Class member has objected to the Settlements or the proposed one-third fee award. The number of opt outs (between 3 and 6, depending on the settlement) is miniscule. And given that Class members include many large and sophisticated businesses, this response underscores the value of the Settlements and the reasonableness of the requested fee award.

[2] Additional time and expense detail is provided in the attached Joint Declaration of Co-Lead Counsel, Ex. 1 hereto, which underscores that all of Class Counsel's efforts were reasonable and necessary given the complexity of the issues, the number of Defendants, the volume of discovery, and the length of the case.

D. Total Time and Expense

In total, Class Counsel devoted more than 53,000 hours and $27.7 million in time to prosecuting the claims on behalf of the Class while advancing $5.5 million in litigation expenses, all of which was advanced on a fully contingent basis with no guarantee of recovery. See Ex. 1, Joint Decl., at ¶¶ 18, 44, 53.

The requested one-third fee award of $54.63 million thus represents a "multiplier" of 1.97 on Class Counsel's total hourly fees (or "lodestar"), which is well within the range of multipliers awarded in similar common fund antitrust litigation, particularly in light of the success achieved on behalf of the Class. See page 16-19, infra (collecting cases).

ARGUMENT

I. THE REQUESTED ATTORNEYS' FEES ARE FAIR AND REASONABLE

A. Legal Standards

It is well-established that attorneys whose work creates a common class action settlement fund are "entitled to a reasonable attorney's fee from the fund as a whole." Boeing Co. v. Van Gemert, 444 U.S. at 478; see also Sutton v. Bernard, 504 F.3d 688, 691 (7th Cir. 2007) ("this payment scheme is based on the equitable notion that those who have benefited from litigation should share in its costs.") (internal quotation marks and citations omitted); In re Continental Illinois Sec. Litig., 962 F.2d 566, 568 (7th Cir. 1992) ("Having employed their professional skills to create a cornucopia for the class, the lawyers for the class were entitled under the principles of restitution to suitable compensation for their efforts."); Fed. R. Civ. P. 23(h) (authorizing reasonable fee awards to class counsel).

It is equally well-established that attorneys' fees are properly awarded where, as here, common fund settlements are achieved with certain defendants while the litigation continues against others. See, e.g., In re Plasma-Derivative Protein Therapies Antitrust Litig., 1:09-cv-07666, Dkt. No. 693 (N.D. Ill. 2014) (awarding one-third interim fee from initial settlement in multi-defendant case) (copy attached as Ex. 2); In re Southeastern Milk Antitrust Litig., 2:08-MD-1000, 2013 WL 2155387, at *1 (E.D. Tenn. May 17, 2013) (noting initial one-third fee award from early settlements and approving additional fee from later settlements); In re Urethane Antitrust Litig., MDL No. 1616, Dkt. No. 2210 (D. Kan. Dec. 13, 2011) (awarding one-third fee from initial settlements with litigation continuing) (copy attached as Ex. 3); In re Automotive Refinishing Paint Antitrust Litig., No. MDL 1426, 2008 WL 63269, *1 (E.D. Pa. Jan. 3, 2008) (noting prior 32% fee award from initial settlements and approving additional fee from later settlements).

Courts in the Seventh Circuit take a market-based approach in evaluating class action fee requests. See, e.g., Americana Art China Co., Inc. v. Foxfire Printing and Packaging, Inc., 743 F.3d 243, 246-47 (7th Cir. 2014) ("because we always seek to replicate the market value of an attorney's services—and because the market would assign value up front—a district court that leaves the matter of fees until the end of the litigation process must set a fee by approximating the terms that would have been agreed to ex ante, had negotiations occurred.") (internal quotation marks and citations omitted); In re Trans Union Corp. Privacy Litig., 629 F.3d 741, 744 (7th Cir. 2011) (same); Williams v. Rohm and Haas Pension Plan, 658 F.3d 629, 635-36 (7th Cir. 2011) (same).

Relevant considerations include, inter alia, the ordinary market rate for class counsel's services, fee awards in similar matters, the nature of the particular case (including the risks of non-recovery), and the amount and quality of class counsel's work. See, e.g., In re Synthroid Marketing Litig., 264 F.3d 712, 718 (7th Cir. 2001) ("courts must do their best to award counsel the market price for legal services, in light of the risk of nonpayment and the normal rate of compensation in the market at the time."); id. at 721 ("The market rate for legal fees depends in part on the risk of nonpayment a firm agrees to bear, in part on the quality of its performance, in part on the amount of work necessary to resolve the litigation, and in part on the stakes of the case."); see also Taubenfeld v. Aon Corp., 415 F.3d 597, 600 (7th Cir. 2005) (affirming fee award based on "awards made by courts in other class actions"; "the quality of legal services rendered"; and "the contingent nature of the case"); Williams, 658 F.3d at 636 (7th Cir. 2011) (affirming award based on "available market evidence"; "the amount of work involved, the risks of nonpayment, and the quality of representation").

Balancing these and any case-specific factors is a matter committed to the sound discretion of the trial court. See, e.g., Americana Art, 743 F.3d at 246 (court of appeals reviews attorney fee methodology de novo and reviews trial court's application of an accepted methodology for abuse of discretion).

B. The Requested Fees Are Fair and Reasonable as a Percentage of the Fund

Two approaches are commonly used in awarding class action attorneys' fees: (i) the "percentage of recovery" method, under which the Court awards a percentage of the total common settlement fund; and (ii) the "lodestar" method, under which the fee award is a function of class counsel's lodestar (i.e., reasonable hourly rates multiplied by the hours devoted to the case) times a "multiplier" adjustment to account for risk, quality, and outcome. See generally Pearson v. NBTY, Inc., No. 11 CV 7972, 2014 WL 30676, *5-6 (N.D. Ill. Jan. 3, 2014). The Court has discretion to apply either method, see Americana Art, 743 F.3d at 247, but because the requested fee here falls squarely within the customary range of outcomes in similar cases, the Court should reach the same conclusion regardless of the methodology used.

The "percentage of recovery" method is a framework accepted by the private market and often used by courts in antitrust class actions, particularly where, as here, class counsel secures an all-cash settlement fund for the benefit of the class. See Ex. 4, Declaration of Professor Geoffrey P. Miller in Support of Class Counsel's Motion for Attorneys' Fees and Expenses ("Miller Decl."), at ¶ 26 (percentage method is overwhelmingly favored by the market in contingent cases); In re ShagrinGas Co. v. BP Products, No. 1:06-cv-03621, Dkt. No. 209 (N.D. Ill. June 24, 2010) (Zagel, J.) (applying percentage methodology) (copy attached as Ex. 5); In re Plasma-Derivative Protein Therapies Antitrust Litig., Dkt. Nos. 693 and 701 (N.D. Ill. 2014) (awarding one-third percentage fee in similar antitrust class action involving $128 million in total settlements) (Ex. 2); see generally Gaskill v. Gordon, 160 F.3d 361, 362 (7th Cir. 1998) ("When a class suit produces a fund for the class, it is commonplace to award the lawyers for the class a percentage of the fund[.]").

The percentage of recovery method has many advantages, including ease of administration, consistency with traditional "common fund" principles, and alignment of class/lawyer interests. See, e.g., Miller Decl. ¶ 26; Florin v. Nationsbank of Ga., N.A., 34 F.3d 560, 566 (7th Cir. 1994) ("there are advantages to utilizing the percentage method in common fund cases because of its relative simplicity of administration"); Blum v. Stenson, 465 U.S. 886, 890 n.16 (1984) ("under the common fund doctrine . . . a reasonable fee is based on a percentage of the fund bestowed on the class"); Kirchoff v. Flynn, 786 F.2d 320, 326 (7th Cir. 1986) (contingent percentage fee "automatically aligns interests of lawyer and client, rewards exceptional success, and penalizes failure").[3]

[3] See also Federal Judicial Center, Manual For Complex Litigation § 14.121 (4th ed. 2004) ("the vast majority of courts of appeals now permit or direct district courts to use the

As explained in more detail below, Class Counsel's one-third fee request is consistent with the market rate for comparable legal services as demonstrated by Co-Lead Counsel's representation of sophisticated paying clients in other contingent matters, as well as fee awards in similar class actions. Furthermore, a one-third fee is appropriate to compensate Class Counsel for the risks of the case, the amount and quality of their work, and the success achieved on behalf of the Class.

1. A One-Third Contingent Fee Is Consistent with Class Counsel's Market Rate in Similar Cases.

The attached Joint Declaration of Co-Lead Class Counsel details the extent to which a one-third contingent fee comports with the ex ante market rate for Class Counsel's services. See Ex. 1 ¶¶ 54-61. Class Counsel, including Co-Lead Counsel, are recognized nationally as effective high-stakes litigators; are retained often by sophisticated clients in antitrust and other complex matters; and commonly negotiate retainer agreements providing for a one-third (or sometimes greater) contingent fee from any successful recovery. Id.

Where, as here, a proposed contingent case involves large claims against sophisticated parties, Class Counsel typically negotiate for (i) full reimbursement of all litigation expenses, either concurrently or from any settlement or judgment and (ii) a percentage of recovery fee in the range of 25-50%. Id. A one-third fee falls well within that range and is both standard and accepted by the market, including in cases with large potential recoveries. Id. This data percentage-fee method in common-fund cases" in part because "[i]n practice, the lodestar method is difficult to apply, time-consuming to administer, inconsistent in result, and capable of manipulation" and "creates inherent incentive to prolong the litigation"); In re Skelaxin (Metaxalone) Antitrust Litig., MDL No. 2343, 2014 WL 2946459, *1 (E.D. Tenn. Jun. 30, 2014) ("The percentage-of-the-fund method is the proper method to compensate Class Counsel" in antitrust litigation because "the lodestar method is cumbersome; the percentage-of-the-fund approach more accurately reflects the result achieved; and the percentage-of-the-fund approach has the virtue of reducing the incentive for plaintiffs' attorneys to over-litigate or 'churn' cases.") (citations omitted).

---

provides direct evidence of Counsel's standard market rate. See, e.g., Montgomery v. Aetna Plywood, Inc., 231 F.3d 399, 408 (7th Cir. 2000) (one "measure of what is reasonable is what an attorney would receive from a paying client in a similar case.").

The same contingent rate typically applies when Co-Lead Counsel represents a class. See Ex. 1, Joint Decl. ¶¶ 56-58 (collecting cases). In the recent Urethane Antitrust Litigation, for example, Co-Lead Counsel handled complex claims for nearly a decade on behalf of direct purchasers. As in Steel, Urethane settled with some (but not all) defendants before trial and, consistent with the common fund principles described above, the court awarded one-third of the settlement amounts as an interim fee award to compensate class counsel for years of hard-fought litigation. See In re Urethane Antitrust Litig., MDL No. 1616, Dkt No. 2210 (D. Kan. Dec. 13, 2011) (Ex. 3). After the settlements, Co-Lead Counsel successfully tried the case to verdict against the last remaining defendant. In re Urethane Antitrust Litig., No. 13-3215 (10th Cir. Sept. 29, 2014) (affirming judgment on behalf of class).

2. A One-Third Contingent Fee Is Consistent with the Market Rate Approved by Courts in Similar Cases.

"[A]ttorneys' fees from analogous class action settlements" can be used to evaluate the market rate for legal services, Taubenfeld, 415 F.3d at 600, and further demonstrate the reasonableness of Class Counsel's requested fee.

In fact, "[c]ourts throughout the Seventh Circuit routinely . . . conclude that a one-third contingency fee is standard" in class actions. City of Greenville v. Syngenta Crop Prot., Inc., 904 F. Supp. 2d 902, 909 (S.D. Ill. 2012) (collecting cases and awarding one-third fee from $105 million settlement fund). Accord In re ShagrinGas Co., No. 1:06-cv-03621, Dkt. No. 209 (N.D. Ill. June 24, 2010) (Zagel, J.) (crediting plaintiffs' evidence "that the market range for legal service in a contingency matter such as this . . . is 30-33%") (Ex. 5); In re Plasma-Derivative Protein Therapies Antitrust Litig., 1:09-cv-07666, Dkt. Nos. 693, 697, 697-1 and 701 (N.D. Ill. 2014) (awarding one-third fee from settlements totaling $128 million) (Ex. 2); Gaskill, 160 F.3d at 364 (7th Cir. 1998) (affirming 38% fee award); cf. Pearson, 2014 WL 30676, at *6 (Zagel, J.) (noting that 25% is the benchmark but special risks and circumstances can justify a higher award). See also Schulte v. Fifth Third Bank, 805 F. Supp. 2d 560, 598 (N.D. Ill. 2011) ("common-fund cases from within the Seventh Circuit show that an award of 33.3% of the settlement fund is within the reasonable range."); Retsky Family Ltd. Partnership v. Price Waterhouse LLP, No. 97 C 7694, 2001 WL 1568856, at *4 (N.D. Ill. Dec. 10, 2001) (in a complex class action, "[a] customary contingency fee would range from 33 1/3% to 40%"); In re Lithotripsy Antitrust Litig., No. 98 C 8394, 2000 WL 765086, *2 (N.D. Ill. June 12, 2000) ("33.3% of the fund plus expenses is well within the generally accepted range of attorneys[']fees in class-action antitrust lawsuits"); Goldsmith v. Tech. Solutions Co., 92 C 4374, 1995 WL 17009594, at *8 (N.D. Ill. Oct. 10, 1995) ("courts in this District commonly award attorneys' fees equal to approximately one-third or more of the recovery"); Heekin v. Anthem, Inc., No. 1:05-CV-01908-TWP-TAB, 2012 WL 5878032 (S.D. Ind. Nov. 20, 2012) (reviewing Seventh Circuit authority and awarding one-third fee from $90 million settlement fund); In re Ready-Mixed Concrete Antitrust Litig., 1:05-CV-00979-SEB-TAB, 2010 WL 3282591, at *3 (S.D. Ind. Aug. 17, 2010) (approving one-third fee).

The recent Plasma-Derivative Protein Therapies case is illustrative. As here, Plasma involved complex antitrust claims including alleged supply restriction. As here, Plasma class counsel devoted tens of millions of dollars in time and expenses to litigating the case on a purely contingent basis. As here, Plasma settled favorably before class certification, for a total recovery of $128 million. And the Plasma court awarded a one-third fee as a fair and reasonable percentage from the settlement fund. See Ex. 2.

Many recent complex antitrust cases are in accord, including many with comparable class recoveries. See, e.g. In re Southeastern Milk Antitrust Litig., No. 2:08–MD–1000, 2013 WL 2155387, *8 (E.D. Tenn. May 17, 2013) (one-third fee from settlements totaling $158.6 million); In re Titanium Dioxide Antitrust Litig., 10–CV–00318(RDB), 2013 WL 6577029, *1 (D. Md. Dec. 13, 2013) (one-third fee from $163.5 million fund); Skelaxin, 2014 WL 2946459 at *1 ("one third fee is fair and reasonable and fully justified" and "within the range of fees ordinarily awarded" in case involving $73 million settlement fund) (collecting cases); In re Flonase Antitrust Litig., 951 F. Supp. 2d 739, 748-52 (E.D. Pa. 2013) (noting that "in the last two-and-a-half years, courts in eight direct purchaser antitrust actions approved one-third fees" and awarding one-third fee from $150 million fund); In re Fasteners Antitrust Litig., CIV.A. 08-md-1912, 2014 WL 296954, *7 (E.D. Pa. Jan. 27, 2014) ("Co–Lead Counsel's request for one third of the settlement fund is consistent with other direct purchaser antitrust actions."); In re Tricor Direct Purchaser Antitrust Litig., No. 05-340-SLR, Dkt. No. 543 (D. Del. 2009) (copy attached as Ex. 6) (one-third fee from $250 million settlement fund); Miller Decl. at ¶¶ 34-40 (empirical data supports one-third fee award).[4]

This authority confirms that a one-third fee award is within the range of reasonableness in comparable antitrust litigation, particularly given the case-specific risks described below.

[4] See also Automotive Refinishing Paint, 2008 WL 63269, *1 ($34.5 million attorneys' fee from settlements totaling $105.75 million); In re Linerboard Antitrust Litig., No. MDL 1261, 2004 WL 1221350, *19 (E.D. Pa. June 2, 2004) (30% fee from $202.6 million settlement fund); In re Relafen Antitrust Litig., No. 1:01-cv-12239-WGY, Dkt. No. 297, at 8 (D. Mass. 2004) (copy attached as Ex. 7) (one-third fee from $175 million settlement fund); In re Vitamins Antitrust Litig., No. Misc. 99-197(TFH), 2001 WL 34312839, *10, 14 (D.D.C. July 16, 2001) (34% fee from $359 million settlement fund); William B. Rubenstein, Newberg on Class Actions § 14:6 (4th ed.) ("Empirical studies show that … fee awards in class actions average around one-third of the recovery.")

3. A One-Third Contingent Fee Is Justified by the Risks of the Litigation.

The Seventh Circuit has emphasized that fee awards must be evaluated "in light of the risk of nonpayment," Synthroid, 264 F.3d at 718, and that "a higher risk of loss does argue for a higher fee." In re Trans Union, 629 F.3d at 746. See also Florin, 34 F.3d at 565 ("a court must assess the riskiness of the litigation by measuring the probability of success of this type of case at the outset of the litigation.") (emphasis in original).

The risk here was significant. From an ex ante perspective, Class Counsel bore the risks of (i) motions to dismiss under the Supreme Court's then relatively new Twombly standard; (ii) potential discovery limitations and delays; (iii) dozens of defense arguments and Daubert challenges relating to class certification; (iv) the possibility of Rule 23(f) review and attendant delays; and, of course, (v) all the post-certification risks of litigation on the merits, including summary judgment, renewed Daubert motions, other evidentiary challenges, trial risks on liability and damages, post-trial motions, appeals, and much more. See Ex. 1 (Joint declaration detailing case-specific risks); Linerboard, 2004 WL 1221350, at *10 ("an antitrust class action is arguably the most complex action to prosecute" because the "legal and factual issues are always numerous and uncertain in outcome") (citations omitted).

Given these potential pitfalls, the ex ante risk of the case justifies a substantial fee award to compensate Class Counsel for pursuing the claims in the first instance, litigating effectively for years without compensation, financing millions of dollars of case costs with no guarantee of reimbursement, and ultimately achieving outstanding results. See, e.g., Syngenta, 904 F. Supp. 2d at 909 ("Given the extreme difficulty presented by this matter and the attendant risk in investing years of attorney time carrying millions of dollars in litigation expenses with no guarantee of recovery, a substantial risk multiplier is warranted" and a "fee award of one-third of the fund is thus appropriate[.]"); Southeastern Milk Antitrust Litig., 2013 WL 2155387, at *5 ("counsel undertook this case on a contingency-fee basis and accepted a substantial risk of non-payment for legal work and reimbursement of out-of-pocket expenses advanced. The Court finds that the fee awarded should fully reflect the risk taken by these lawyers and is a very substantial factor in this case that weighs in favor of the requested [one-third] fee."); Miller Decl. at ¶¶ 36-40 (risks of the litigation support one-third fee award).

The risks are further underscored by the fact that Class Counsel investigated and developed this case on their own. There were no government investigations or indictments available to use as foundation for the claims. Counsel handled the case alone, with their own resources, and courts have long recognized that class counsel should be awarded a larger percentage fee in this situation to account for the greater risk of loss and the fact that, absent class counsel's independent work, class members would not have recovered anything at all.[5]

As Professor Miller has explained, it is important to reward class counsel in this situation to incentivize "capable attorneys to act as 'private attorneys-general' in policing against illegal anticompetitive behavior" and to enforce the "antitrust laws [which are] essential to a market economy." Miller Decl. at ¶ 23. See also Southeastern Milk Antitrust Litig., 2013 WL 2155387 at *5 ("failing to fully compensate class counsel for the excellent work done and the various substantial risks taken would undermine society's interest in the private litigation of antitrust cases. Society's interests are clearly furthered by the private prosecution of civil cases which further important public policy goals, such as vigorous competition by marketplace competitors."); Mitsubishi Motors Corp. v. Soler Chrysler-Plymouth, Inc., 473 U.S. 614, 635 (1985) ("[w]ithout doubt, the private cause of action plays a central role in enforcing this [antitrust] regime."); Pillsbury Co. v. Conboy, 459 U.S. 248, 262-63 (1983) ("This court has emphasized the importance of the private action as a means of furthering the policy goals of certain federal regulatory statutes, including the federal antitrust laws."); In re High Fructose Corn Syrup Antitrust Litig., 295 F.3d 651, 664 (7th Cir. 2002) (same).

[5] See, e.g., Automotive Refinishing Paint Antitrust Litig., 2008 WL 63269, at *5 ("The risk of nonpayment is even higher when a defendants' prima facie liability has not been established by the government in a criminal action" and thus "warrants approval" of class counsel's one-third fee request.); Linerboard Antitrust Litig., 2004 WL 1221350, at *11 (same); In re Brand Name Prescription Drugs Antitrust Litig., No. 94 C 897, 2000 WL 204112, at *1 (N.D. Ill. Feb. 10, 2000) ("This case was not marked by any governmental investigations or prosecutions, leaving the development of the facts in the hands of private litigants . . . Because of the uncertainty of the outcome of the case and the enormous amount of work necessary to the prosecution of the charges, counsel for the Class Plaintiffs had to invest a great deal of time and money even while faced with the risk of non-recovery.").

4. A One-Third Fee Is Supported by the Amount and Quality of Class Counsel's Work and the Results Achieved for the Class.

The Court should further consider the amount and quality of Class Counsel's work in its fee analysis, Synthroid, 264 F.3d at 721, as well as "the litigation's ultimate degree of success." Americana Art, 743 F.3d at 247 (court is permitted to consider success of the case as another factor supporting fee award). Accord In re Brand Name Prescription Drugs, 2000 WL 204112, at *2 ("There is no question that the results achieved by class counsel were extraordinary and that they are entitled to a substantial award."). Both factors fully support a one-third fee.

A large volume of work supports the requested fee. Reaching this point has required six years and more than 53,000 hours of Class Counsel's time, and the very nature of the case—a nationwide antitrust class action against eight large Defendants represented by dozens of lawyers from the country's preeminent defense firms—underscores the scope of the undertaking. See Linerboard Antitrust Litig., 2004 WL 1221350, at *8 ("the quality and vigor of opposing counsel is relevant in evaluating the quality of plaintiffs' counsel."). The Court is well aware of the hundreds of docket entries that comprise only the most public aspects of the litigation.[6]

The quality of counsel's work and the outcome achieved also supports a one-third fee. On each and every issue raised by Defendants and their capable lawyers—from the motion to dismiss stage, to major discovery disputes, to dozens of contested class certification and Daubert issues—Class Counsel have argued their case professionally, and kept the litigation moving forward. Class Counsel also have attempted to minimize the number of disputes requiring Court involvement by meeting and conferring exhaustively (and often productively) with defense counsel. Class Counsel believe the case has been relatively unusual in that regard, allowing the Court to focus the bulk of its attention on the central substantive issues rather than skirmishes among the parties. Id. at *10 (similar case management efforts demonstrate "skill and efficiency" and support requested fee).

Class Counsel respectfully submit that their representation has been vigorous, efficient and effective, and that the facts, arguments and credibility they developed over the past six years played the central role in achieving the recent settlements for the Class. As such, the quality of Class Counsel's representation supports the requested fee.

Finally, Class Counsel believe the results speak for themselves. Id. at *5 ("The result achieved is the clearest reflection of petitioners' skill and expertise."). A class action settlement fund of $163.9 million (in cash) with no possibility of reversion to a defendant and no reduction for opt outs represents an outstanding outcome.[7] And because the proposed claims process is straightforward, Class members will be in a position to receive their pro rata share of the settlement fund with a minimum of effort and delay after this Court rules on the motion for final settlement approval and attorneys' fees. See Plaintiffs' Plan of Allocation and Distribution (attached as Exhibit 5 to contemporaneously-filed motion for final settlement approval). Furthermore, the Class will enjoy these Settlement benefits now while the case proceeds against three remaining Defendants under principles of joint and several liability. See Dkt. No. 494-1, at 8 (explaining that non-settling Defendants remain jointly and severally liable for the full damages caused by the alleged conspiracy).

[6] Class Counsel have made every effort to work the case efficiently and, in Co-Lead Counsel's experience, the total reported lodestar is reasonable for a multi-defendant case of this nature. See, e.g., Plasma Antitrust Litig., MDL No. 2109, Dkt. No. 697-1, at 9 (N.D. Ill. 2014) (lodestar of $39 million at class certification stage); Southeastern Milk Antitrust Litig., 2013 WL 2155387, at *5, 7 (lodestar over $53 million after five years of litigation); Brand Name Prescription Drugs Antitrust Litig., 2000 WL 204112, at *3 (lodestar of $84 million after approximately six years of litigation).

Accordingly, for all the reasons stated in Plaintiffs' final approval papers, see Dkt. No. 517 (incorporated herein by reference), the settlements deliver a significant common fund benefit for class members, and support the requested one-third fee award.

C. Lodestar/Multiplier Analysis Supports the Requested Fee Award

The Court may in its discretion "cross-check a percentage of recovery fee award with the lodestar method" to confirm its reasonableness. Pearson, 2014 WL 30676, at *6 (citing Synthroid, 264 F.3d at 718). As explained at page 7, supra, the lodestar method involves multiplying the hours devoted to the case by the relevant professional's hourly rate, then applying a case-specific "multiplier" to compensate class counsel for risk, outcome, and quality [7] As the Court is aware, class action settlements sometimes raise challenging issues of valuation and claims administration, e.g., in cases involving coupon settlements, reversion of unclaimed funds to defendants after the claims process, or reduction of the settlement to account for opt outs. Here, in contrast, the Class will benefit substantially from the straightforward nature of the deals: large all-cash settlement funds with no possibility of reversion, no opt out reductions, and a simple claims process.

of work. Id.[8]

When using the lodestar method, a multiplier is generally "mandated" in successful contingent cases in which counsel bore the risk of loss. See, e.g., Florin, 34 F.3d at 565; Continental, 962 F.2d at 659 ("the need for such an adjustment is particularly acute in class action suits"); Florin II, 60 F.3d 1245, 1247 (7th Cir. 1995) ("court[s] must also be careful to sustain the incentive for attorneys to continue to represent such clients on an 'inescapably contingent' basis"); Skelton v. Gen. Motors Corp., 860 F.2d 250, 253 (7th Cir. 1988) ("the higher the risk . . . the greater the multiplier necessary to compensate plaintiff's attorney for bringing the action").

Typical multipliers range from 1-4 depending on the facts. See, e.g., Harman v. Lyphomed, Inc., 945 F.2d 969, 976 (7th Cir. 1991) (multipliers from 1-4 have been approved); Southeastern Milk Antitrust Litig., 2013 WL 2155387, at * 4 (awarding one-third fee and "multiplier of 1.9, clearly within, but in the bottom half of, the range of typical lodestar multipliers"); Skelaxin Antitrust Litig., 2014 WL 2946459, at *2 (collecting cases and awarding "multiplier between 2.1 and 2.5," which is "reasonable in light of what has been routinely accepted as fair and reasonable in complex matters such as this one"); Flonase Antitrust Litig., 951 F. Supp. 2d at 750-51 ([m]ultipliers of 1-4 are common in antitrust cases, and awarding one-third fee and 2.99 multiplier); Miller Decl. at ¶¶ 53-61 (empirical data on multipliers supports requested fee in this case); Newberg on Class Actions §14.6 (4th ed. 2009) ("multiples ranging [8] The hourly rates on which this calculation is based are the same rates charged to paying clients for similar work. See Jeffboat, LLC v. Dir., Office of Workers' Comp. Programs, 553 F.3d 487, 489-90 (7th Cir. 2009) (recognizing "presumption that an hourly rate is reasonable where the attorney demonstrates that the hourly rate she has requested is in line with what she charges other clients for similar work."); Joint Decl., Ex. 1, at ¶ 48 (lodestar submissions here are based on the same rates charged to paying clients for similar work); Miller Decl. at ¶¶ 47-52 (Class Counsel rates are reasonable and consistent with the market).

from one to four frequently are awarded in common fund cases when the lodestar method is applied.").

Here, the lodestar method shows that the requested fee award falls squarely within the range of reasonableness. Depending on whether Class Counsel's current or historical rates are used for the analysis, the total lodestar from the inception of the case to the present is $27.7 million (using current rates) or $23.6 million (using historical rates, i.e., the rates that were in effect at the time each hour was billed), which translates to a requested multiplier of 1.97 based on current rates, or 2.31 based on historical rates.[9]

Whether based on current or historical rates, Class Counsel's requested multiplier falls well within the range of reasonableness and properly compensates Class Counsel for bearing the significant litigation risks described above. Success did not come easy in this matter. After six years, millions of dollars in expenses, tens of millions of dollars in professional time, material risk of loss at every step, and outstanding results for the Class, Class Counsel believe a one-third fee and multiplier of 1.97 on current rates (or 2.31 on historical rates) is fair and reasonable. See Miller Decl. at ¶¶ 37, 53-61 (requested multiplier is appropriate given risks and results achieved); Southeastern Milk Antitrust Litig., 2013 WL 2155387, at*4-5 (one-third fee and 1.9 multiplier from settlements totaling $158.6 million); Skelaxin Antitrust Litig., 2014 WL

[9] Use of current billing rates is permitted under Seventh Circuit authority to account for the delay of payment in a protracted case (as distinct from the risk of loss, which is compensated by the "multiplier"). Smith v. Vill. of Maywood, 17 F.3d 219, 221 (7th Cir. 1994). The Court has discretion to rely on either current or historical rates in its lodestar analysis, Mather v. Board of Trustees of Southern Illinois University, 317 F.3d 738, 744-45 (7th Cir. 2003), but Class Counsel respectfully submit that, after six years of litigation, the use of current rates is appropriate to account for the passage of time without payment. See, e.g., In re Southwest Airlines Voucher Litig., 11-cv-8176, 2014 WL 2809016, at *5 n.2 (N.D. Ill. June 20, 2014) (using current rates to account for payment delay and awarding multiplier on current rates to compensate for risk); Smith, 17 F.3d at 221 (reversing fee award for failure to compensate for delay in payment). Regardless, the requested multiplier is reasonable under either approach.

2946459, at *2 (one-third fee and multiplier of 2.1-2.5 from $73 million settlement fund); In re TFT-LCD (Flat Panel) Antitrust Litig., No. M 07-1827 SI, 2013 WL 1365900, at *8 (N.D. Cal. Apr. 3, 2013) (average multiplier of 2.4-2.6 from $1.08 billion settlement fund); Flonase Antitrust Litig., 951 F. Supp. 2d at 750-51 (one-third fee and 2.99 multiplier from $150 million fund); Tricor Antitrust Litig., Ex. 6 attached (one-third fee and 3.93 multiplier from $250 million fund); Linerboard Antitrust Litig., 2004 WL 1221350, at *16 (2.66 multiplier to "reflect the risks of nonpayment facing counsel, to serve as an incentive for counsel to undertake socially beneficial litigation" and "as a reward to counsel for an extraordinary result"); Brand Name Prescription Drugs Antitrust Litig., 2000 WL 204112, at *3 ($175 million fee and 2.06 multiplier from $696.7 million settlement fund); see generally Gaskill, 160 F.3d at 363 ("Because they shift part of the risk of loss from client to lawyer, contingent-fee contracts usually yield a larger fee in a successful case than an hourly fee would.").

D. The Absence of Objections Supports the Requested Fee Award.

As of the date of this filing, not one of the more than 5,300 class members has objected to Class Counsel's fee request. Two Class Notices expressly informed class members of Class Counsel's intention to seek attorneys' fees of up to one-third of the common settlement funds, see Dkt. No. 488-4 at 6 and Dkt. No. 496-3 at 6, and the Notices were disseminated by direct mail to over 5,300 entities identified as direct purchasers, including many large and sophisticated businesses.

In these circumstances, the absence of objections supports Class Counsel's requested one-third fee award. See, e.g., Flonase, 951 F. Supp. 2d at 747 (lack of objections "strongly supports approval of the requested fee"); Automotive Refinishing Paint, 2008 WL 63269, at *4 ("A lack of objections demonstrates that the Class views the settlement as a success and finds the request for counsel fees to be reasonable."); Linerboard, 2004 WL 1221350, at *5 ("The absence of objections supports approval of the Fee Petition," particularly given that class members "include many of the largest corporations in America—entities that are hardly unfamiliar with civil litigation.").[10]

II. THE REQUESTED EXPENSE REIMBURSEMENT IS FAIR AND REASONABLE

Beyond attorneys' fees, Class Counsel are entitled to reimbursement of litigation costs of the type ordinarily charged to paying clients. See Synthroid, 264 F.3d at 722; Pearson, 2014 WL 30676, at *8 (awarding costs and expenses incurred by class counsel).

Here, Class Counsel previously moved for reimbursement of several major categories of litigation expenses from the "icebreaker" (CMC, Gerdau and AK Steel) settlement funds. See Dkt. No. 494-1 at 15 (seeking reimbursement of $5,064,098.97 in litigation expenses, including expert fees, e-discovery and deposition costs, courtroom technology, etc.); see also 7/10/2014 Final Approval Hearing Tr. at 13-14 (Class Counsel submitting backup for all requested expenses).

Class Counsel now respectfully move for reimbursement of the balance of their litigation expenses in the amount of $406,850.08 which represents "out of pocket" costs incurred by Class Counsel for, inter alia, inside and outside copying, travel, computer research (e.g., Westlaw, LEXIS and PACER costs), filing fees, phone charges, courier and postage costs, and the like, all of which was necessary to the prosecution of the case. See Ex. 1, Joint Decl. ¶ 52 (detailed itemization). Such costs are billed routinely to paying clients in similar matters, id., and are well accepted as recoverable in the class action context. See, e.g., In re ShagrinGas, Dkt. No. 209 ("under the common fund doctrine attorneys may collect their related expenses") (copy attached as Ex. 5); Syngenta, 904 F. Supp. 2d at 910 (approving similar cost reimbursement); Brown v. Pro Football, Inc., 839 F. Supp. 905, 916 (D.D.C. 1993) ("Plaintiffs' out-of-pocket costs for telephone, telecopier, air and local couriers, postage, photocopying, WESTLAW research, secretarial overtime, and counsel's travel expenses are routinely billed to fee-paying clients, and thus are all compensable") (citations omitted), rev'd on other grounds, 50 F.3d 1041 (D.C. Cir. 1995).

[10] To assure compliance with the Seventh Circuit's recent decision in Redman v. RadioShack Corp., No. 11-cv-6741, 2014 WL 4654477 (7th Cir. Sept. 19, 2014) (expressing preference for objection deadline closing after fee petition is submitted), a third notice was mailed to all Class members on September 30, 2014, advising that Plaintiffs' final settlement approval and attorneys' fee submissions are now available on the Steel website at www.steelantitrustsettement.com, and that the objection deadline has been extended to October 15, 2014. See Dkt. No. 514 (Plaintiffs' motion to extend objection deadline); Dkt. No. 516 (granting motion).

CONCLUSION

Based on the foregoing, Class Counsel respectfully request that their Motion for Attorneys' Fees and Reimbursement of Litigation Expenses be granted.[11]

[11] Having managed the litigation from the outset, Co-Lead Counsel are familiar with the contributions of the various law firms and, consistent with standard practice in similar cases, propose to handle the allocation of any fee award among co-counsel without the need for further Court involvement. See, e.g., Plasma, Dkt. No. 693 at 3 (recent case in this district awarding one-third fee and authorizing co-lead counsel to allocate fee based on each law firm's respective contributions to the litigation) (copy attached as Ex. 2); Urethane, Dkt. No. 2210 (same) (Ex. 3); Auto Refinishing Paint, 2008 WL 63269, at *7 ("Courts generally approve joint fee applications which request a single aggregate fee award with allocations to specific firms to be determined by Co-Lead Counsel, who are most familiar with the work done by each firm and each firm's overall contribution to the litigation."); Linerboard, 2004 WL 1221350, at *17 (same); In re Warfarin Sodium Antitrust Litig., 391 F.3d 516, 533 n.15 (3d Cir. 2004) (noting "the accepted practice of allowing counsel to apportion fees among themselves").

TAB 12A

IN THE UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
FOR THE EASTERN DISTRICT OF TENNESSEE
GREENEVILLE DIVISION

IN RE: SOUTHEASTERN MILK ANTITRUST LITIGATION	)
	)	Master File No. 2:08-MD-1000
THIS DOCUMENT RELATES TO: Sweetwater Valley Farm, Inc., et al. v. Dean Foods Co., et al., No. 2:07-CV 208.	)	Judge J. Ronnie Greer

MEMORANDUM OPINION AND ORDER

This matter has come before the Court on the "Plaintiffs' Motion For Award Of Attorneys' Fees, Reimbursement Of Expenses, And Incentive Awards For Class Representatives," [Doc. 1926]. The motion is supported by the declaration of Robert G. Abrams, [Doc. 1927], the declaration of Boies Schiller & Flexner, LLP, [Doc. 1927-5], the declaration of Brewer & Terry, P.C., [Doc. 1927-6], the declaration of Cohen Milstein Sellers & Toll, PLLC, [Doc. 1927-7], the declaration of Fine, Kaplan & Black, R.P.C., [Doc. 1927-8], the declaration of Hausfeld, LLP, [Doc. 1927-9], the declaration of Jessee & Jessee, [Doc. 1927-10], the declaration of Whitfield Bryson & Mason, LLP, [Doc. 1927-11], and the declaration of Freed Kanner London & Millen, LLC, [Doc. 1927-12]. The Court conducted a hearing on the motion on April 3, 2013. For the reasons set forth below, the Court GRANTS the motion and awards attorneys' fees, expenses, and incentive awards as detailed below.

I. Background

This is a multi-district antitrust case involving allegations by the plaintiffs that defendants violated §§ 1 and 2 of the Sherman Act. The plaintiffs have previously entered into settlement agreements with Dean Foods Company, Southern Marketing Agency, Inc. and James Baird, [see Docs. 1889, 1890], and final judgment was entered as to those defendants on June 15, 2012, [Doc. 1892]. The Court previously awarded attorneys' fees in the amount of $48,333,333.00 (one-third of the recovery from the previously settling defendants), reimbursement of expenses for class counsel in the amount of $7,408,920.00, and incentive awards for the class representatives in the amount of $10,000.00 each, [Doc. 1897].

The plaintiffs have now entered into a settlement agreement with the remaining defendants, Dairy Farmers of America, Inc., Dairy Marketing Services, LLC, Mid-Am Capital, LLC, National Dairy Holdings, LP, and Gary Hanman, (collectively "DFA Defendants"), [see Doc. 1922-3]. In short, plaintiffs have now negotiated a settlement with the remaining defendants in an amount totaling $158,600,000 and substantial structural changes with respect to how these defendants conduct their business in the Southeast. The Court has now, by order filed contemporaneously with this order, given final approval to the settlement, [Docs. 1941, 1942]. Through the motion currently pending before the Court, plaintiffs request an additional award of attorneys' fees of $52,866,666.67 from the settlement reached with the DFA defendants (one-third of the settlement), $798,237.66 as reimbursement for class counsel's unreimbursed out-of-pocket expenses, and an additional $10,000.00 incentive award for each of the class representatives.

II. Analysis

A. Applicable Law

"In a certified class action, the court may award reasonable attorney's fees . . . that are authorized by law or by the parties' agreement." Fed. R. Civ. P. 23(h). The Court must ensure "that counsel is fairly compensated for the amount of work done as well as for the results achieved."

Rawlings v. Prudential-Bache Props., Inc., 9 F.3d 513, 516 (6th Cir. 1993). Courts have broad discretion in determining an award of attorney's fees in class actions. See Bowling v. Pfizer, Inc., 102 F.3d 777, 779 (6th Cir. 1996); Rawlings, 9 F.3d at 516.

One of two methods for calculation of attorney's fees is generally employed in the Sixth Circuit: The lodestar [1] and the percentage-of-the-fund. [2] The district court may "select the more appropriate method for calculating attorney's fees in light of the unique characteristics of class actions in general, and of the unique circumstances of the actual cases before them." Van Horn v. Nationwide Prop. and Cas. Ins. Co., 436 Fed. App'x 496, 2011 WL 3792362, at *1 (6th Cir. Aug. 26, 2011) (quoting Rawlings, 9 F.3d at 516). The district court, however, generally must explain its "reasons for adopting a particular methodology and the factors considered in arriving at the fee." Moulton v. U.S. Steel Corp., 581 F.3d 344, 352 (6th Cir. 2009) (internal quotation marks omitted).

This is a common fund case and plaintiffs urge the Court to apply the percentage of the fund method. As a general matter, "[t]he lodestar method better accounts for the amount of work done, while the percentage of the fund method more accurately reflects the results achieved." Rawlings, 9 F.3d at 516. It appears that the trend in the Sixth Circuit is "toward adoption of a percentage of the fund method" in common fund cases. Stanley v. United States Steel Company, 2009 WL 4646647 (E.D. Mich. Dec. 8, 2009) (quoting Rawlings, 9 F.3d at 515). "[T]he vast majority of courts of appeal now permit or direct district courts to use the percentage-fee in common-fund cases." Manual For Complex Litigation Fourth ("MCL") § 14.121. "In practice, the lodestar method is difficult to apply, time-consuming to administer, inconsistent in result, and capable of manipulation" and "creates inherent incentive to prolong the litigation." Id. At least one circuit court of appeals has recognized that the percentage method "directly aligns the interests of the class and its counsel and provides a powerful incentive for the efficient prosecution and early resolution of litigation." Wal-Mart Stores, Inc. v. Visa U.S.A., Inc., 396 F.3d 96, 121 (2d Cir. 2005).

[1] With the lodestar method, the Court multiplies the number of hours reasonably expended on the litigation by a reasonable hourly rate. Reed v. Rhodes, 179 F.3d 453, 471 (6th Cir. 1999).

[2] When using the percentage-of-the-fund method, the Court simply determines a percentage of the settlement to award to class counsel. Rawlings, 9 F.3d at 516.

1. Selecting the Method

In the Sixth Circuit, it is within the discretion of the district court to decide which method to use in a given case. Bowling, 102 F.3d at 779; Rawlings, 9 F.3d at 516. The percentage-of-the-fund method, however, clearly appears to have become the preferred method in common fund cases. Stanley, supra; see Brian T. Fitzpatrick, An Empirical Study of Class Action Settlements and Their Fee Awards, 7; J. Empirical Legal Stud. 811, 832 (December, 2010).

As noted above, plaintiffs urge the Court to award a percentage of the common fund in this case. Although the Court acknowledges its discretion to use the lodestar method, the Court finds that the percentage-of-the-fund method is the more appropriate method in this case, especially when employed with a lodestar cross-check. Here, a substantial common fund has been established for the benefit of class members through the efforts of class counsel. Given the commitment of time and resources committed by class counsel and the complexity of this litigation, it simply would not have been practicable for individual members of this class to pursue litigation challenging the alleged illegal conduct in this case. Given the clear trend in the Sixth Circuit and the Court's belief that the percentage-of-the-fund method, when employed in connection with a lodestar cross-check, accounts for both the amount of the work done and reflects the results achieved by class counsel, this Court will use the percentage-of-the funds method and a lodestar cross-check. [3] In addition, given the number of hours expended by counsel in this case (approximately 127,000) use of a percentage-of-the-fund method here is much more efficient and less time consuming for the Court to administer.

2. The Reasonableness of the Requested Fee

As noted above, the attorneys' fees requested represent one-third of the settlement fund. Although the total fee requested is a very large amount ($52,866,667, for a total fee award of $101,200,000 when combined with the previously awarded fees of $48,333,333), the percentage requested is certainly within the range of fees often awarded in common fund cases, both nationwide and in the Sixth Circuit. Bessey v. Packerland Plainwell, Inc., 2007 WL 3173972, at *4 (W.D. Mich. Oct. 26, 2007) (approving an award of 33 percent, including costs and expenses, and noting that "[e]mpirical studies show that . . . fee awards in class actions average around one-third of recovery") (quoting Shaw v. Toshiba America Inf. Sys., Inc. 91 F.Supp.2d 942, 972 (E.D. Tex. 2000)); Worthington v. CDW Corp. 2006 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 23100, at *22 (S.D. Ohio May 22, 2006); MCL § 14.121 ("[a]ttorney fees awarded under the percentage method are often between 25% and 30% of the fund."); see also Brian T. Fitzpatrick, Do Class Action Lawyers Make Too Little? 158 U. Pa. L. Rev. 2043, 2063 (2010) ("although the mean and median fee awards in federal court are 25%, there are many awards at the 33% level, ...").

In the Sixth Circuit, several factors have been identified for consideration in [3] Counsel have provided to the Court summary schedules indicating the number of hours spent by the attorneys involved in this litigation and the lodestar calculation based on historical billing rates. Those schedules were prepared from contemporaneous time records not produced by counsel. Unlike the situation when the Court employs the lodestar method in full, "the hours documented by counsel need not be exhaustively scrutinized by the district court" where a lodestar cross-check is used. In re WorldCom Sec. Litig., 388 F. Supp.2d 319, 355 (S.D.N.Y. 2005) (citing Goldberger v. Integrated Res., Inc., 209 F.3d 43, 50 (2d Cir. 2000)).

determining the reasonableness of the requested fee. These include:

> (1) the value of the benefit rendered to the plaintiff class . . . ; (2) the value of services on an hourly basis; (3) whether the services were undertaken on a contingent fee basis; (4) society's stake in rewarding attorneys who produce such benefits in order to maintain an incentive to others; (5) the complexity of the litigation; and (6) the professional skill and standing of counsel involved on both sides."

Bowling, 102 F.3d at 780. See also Smillie v. Park Chemical Co., 710 F.2d 271, 275 (6th Cir. 1983).

All of the relevant factors here support the requested fee. First, the result obtained by counsel for the plaintiff class is extraordinary and will result in an average total cash payment to each class member of more than $25,000 after payment of attorneys' fees, out of pocket expenses and incentive awards to class representatives. The total settlement, when combined with the prior settlement, is over 70% of the total damages calculated by plaintiffs' damages expert.[4] [5] In addition, the settlement will result in very significant structural changes in the way milk is marketed in the future in the Southeast. The structural changes agreed to by DFA go to the very heart of some of the challenged conduct in this case, such as the use of full supply agreements, and will almost certainly result in increased uniform milk prices in Orders 5 and 7. DFA members will have greater access to information about DFA's operations and greater ability to terminate their membership agreements with DFA. The dollar value of these significant structural changes cannot be reasonably estimated; however, there is no doubt they address many of the concerns voiced by dairy farmers and the lone objection to the Dean settlement. The overall value of the settlement to the class is further illustrated

[4] Plaintiffs claim the settlement is likely the largest settlement of any antitrust case litigated in this district. Although the Court has not attempted to confirm the accuracy of that claim, the Court is not aware of any settlement for a larger amount.

[5] The Court has not considered the possibility of treble damages. See Rodriguez v. W. Publ'g Corp., 563 F.3d 948, 955 (9th Cir. 2009).

by the relative lack of objections from class members to the requested fees. Of the more than 7000 members of the class, none objected to the settlement, and that only three have voiced objection to the requested fees. Their objections will be discussed below.

Second, there is absolutely no question that counsel has spent a remarkable amount of time preparing and litigating this case-- more than 126,000 hours of legal work. Counsel spent a year investigating the antitrust allegations, consulting experts and mapping strategy before filing suit. The case has been extensively and vigorously litigated for more than five years and all defendants, especially those now settling, have aggressively defended the suit. Counsel has reviewed and organized over 5,000,000 pages of documents and multiple motions to compel discovery have been litigated. Over 100 depositions have been conducted, including those of numerous plaintiff and defense experts. The Court's docket entries for the case are approaching 2,000, fully illustrating the extensive nature of the legal work done, from the initial motions to dismiss through the summary judgment stage and extensive litigation of a host of other pretrial motions. Counsel have participated in extensive and lengthy court ordered mediation sessions, as well as settlement discussions with defendants. There have been two requests for interlocutory appeal to the Sixth Circuit, requiring extensive briefing in that court. The quality of the work done by class counsel has been exceptional, not only with respect to the pleadings filed but also the oral advocacy during oral argument on various motions.

Using the lodestar method as a cross-check on the reasonableness of the requested fee likewise supports the award of fees requested. As noted above, counsel spent nearly 127,000 hours on this case, which, when multiplied by a reasonable hourly rate, results in a lodestar of $56,126,310.17, combined with the fees previously awarded. The requested fee represents a lodestar multiplier of 1.90, clearly within, but in the bottom half of, the range of typical lodestar multipliers. See In re Cardinal Health, Inc. Sec. Litig., 528 F. Supp.2d 752, 767 (S.D. Ohio 2007) (typical lodestar in large securities class actions ranges from 1.3 to 4.5); Newberg on Class Action § 14.6 (4th ed. 2009) ("Multiples ranging from one to four frequently are awarded in common fund cases when the lodestar method is applied."). See also In re TFT-LCD (Fleet Panel) Antitrust Litig., 2013 WL 1365900 (N.D. Cal. April 3, 2013) (awarding $309,725,250 in attorney's fees to class counsel, 28.63 percent of the settlement fund and employing a lodestar multiplier averaging 2.4-2.6 as a "cross-check"). It is also worth noting that class counsel seek no fees related to the structural relief achieved by the settlement, except for the $18.6 million to be paid into the settlement escrow fund to guarantee the DFA defendants' promise to increase uniform prices to farmers in Orders 5 and 7 in calendar years 2014-2015.

The complexity of the litigation also supports the requested fees. This Court has observed several times the complexity of the case. Almost every aspect of this case has been hotly contested and litigated extensively and the case presents several somewhat novel issues. The complexity of the case is further illustrated by the number of pages of documents produced, as noted above, a list of potential trial exhibits that numbers in the thousands and literally hundreds of potential witnesses who have been interviewed and/or deposed in preparation for trial. Class counsel, who have extensive experience in complex class action litigation, have efficiently and competently managed their enormous task and have vigorously and effectively prosecuted the case on behalf of the class. They have also been opposed by equally experienced and highly competent counsel for defendants and have achieved an excellent result for their clients.

Furthermore, counsel undertook this case on a contingency-fee basis and accepted a substantial risk of non-payment for legal work and reimbursement of out-of-pocket expenses advanced. This Court finds that the fee awarded should fully reflect the risk taken by these lawyers and is a very substantial factor in this case which weighs in favor of the requested fee. Not only did counsel risk not being paid for more than $53 million in legal work, they also ran the risk of losing nearly $8.2 million in out-of-pocket expenses. If counsel are not rewarded for this risk, few attorneys will undertake "the representation of a class client given the investment of substantial time, effort, and money, especially in light of the risks of recovering nothing." Behrens v. Wometco Enter., Inc., 118 F.R.D. 534, 548 (S.D. Fla. 1988). Indeed, it was represented to the Court at the hearing that "not every firm wanted the milk case" given the enormous commitment of time and money required and the attendant risk.

Finally, failing to fully compensate class counsel for the excellent work done and the various substantial risks taken would undermine society's interest in the private litigation of antitrust cases. Society's interests are clearly furthered by the private prosecution of civil cases which further important public policy goals, such as vigorous competition by marketplace competitors. See Pillsbury Co. v. Conboy, 459 U.S. 248, 262-63 (1983) ("This court has emphasized the importance of the private action as a means of furthering the policy goals of certain federal regulatory statutes, including the federal antitrust laws.").

Simply put, anti-competitive conduct such as that alleged in this case would likely go unchallenged absent the willingness of attorneys to undertake the risks associated with such expensive and complex litigation. No single class member could have undertaken the litigation prosecuted here on his own. The sheer size of the outlay for out-of-pocket expenses by class counsel illustrates one of the reasons why. Awards of substantial attorneys' fees in cases like this are necessary to incentivize attorneys to shoulder the risk of nonpayment to expose violations of the law and to achieve compensation for injured parties.

Finally, the issues raised by the objectors need to be addressed. The class notices mailed informed the entire class that plaintiffs "will ask the Court for one-third of the settlement funds in attorneys' fees, plus reimbursement of the costs and expenses . . ." In response, the Court received two letters from class members regarding plaintiffs' requests for attorneys' fees. One, [Doc. 1928], from Weldon J. Keiger of Tobaccoville, North Carolina, opines that $52.86 million in attorneys' fees "is obscenely excessive" and a "huge amount of money per lawyer," especially when considered in the context of the amount of attorneys' fees already awarded from the Dean settlement. Keiger asked the Court to consider providing more of the settlement fund to the dairy farmers of the Southeast and awarding a "reasonable" fee of "10-12 percent."

The second letter, [Doc. 1930], from Tom Mareth, T&M Dairy, LLC, refers to plaintiffs' request as "excessive" and "double billing for work already done . . . given they have been compensated once" (presumably referring to the prior award of fees from the Dean settlement). Mr. Mareth acknowledges, however, that he is "not privy to all the dealings necessary on behalf of the attorneys." A third class member, Craig Frazier, and one of the DFA member subclass representatives, made an oral objection of a different sort at the Court's April 3 hearing. Mr. Frazier claims that his fee agreement with counsel was for one-third of the net settlement, i.e. after payment of expenses, not one-third of the settlement before deduction of counsels' out-of-pocket expenses.

Plaintiffs' respond to the letters of Mr. Keiger and Mr. Mareth that the letters do not constitute a "cognizable objection to a request for attorneys' fees," and that such generalized objections do not suffice, citing McLennan v. LG Elecs. USA, Inc., 2012 WL 686020, at *8 (D. N.J.

March 2, 2012). Plaintiffs suggest that such generalized objections should be summarily overruled. Plaintiffs may be correct as a legal matter; however, the Court, as a matter of basic fairness, will consider the letters as objections from members of the class worthy of consideration.

Mr. Mareth's reference to "double billing" is interpreted by the Court as an argument that counsel should receive a lower fee than their contingency agreement provides because they have already "been compensated once," that is, from the Dean/SMA/Baird settlement. It is true that the prior award of fees from the earlier settlement comes close to compensating counsel for their substantial investment of time and advanced expenses in the case, considering only their lodestar. Such an approach, however, is flawed from both a legal and policy perspective.

Other courts have considered similar requests for an award of attorney's fees based on successive settlements with different defendants. In Lobatz v. U.S. West Celluar of California, Inc., 222 F.3d 1142 (9th Cir. 2000), the Ninth Circuit considered and rejected a very similar claim. There, the objector argued that fees for a second settlement two years after the first should be awarded by reference to counsel's time spent on the case after the first settlement and not for the time spent on the entire litigation. The Ninth Circuit correctly disagreed and affirmed the district court's award of fees by considering all of the litigation effort, and cross-checking the fees requested with a lodestar multiplier, while subtracting the fees counsel had been paid from the first settlement. Id. at 1149-50. See also In re Insurance Brokerage Antitrust Litig., 282 F.R.D. 92 (D. N.J. March 30, 2012) (calculating attorney's fees from second settlement based on total lodestar for entire litigation). The same legal principles apply to Mr. Keiger's suggestion that 10-12 percent of the current settlement is a reasonable attorney's fee.

The approach taken by Mr. Mareth and Mr. Keiger is likewise flawed from a policy perspective. First, if an award of fees for a successive settlement were limited and calculated only on the basis of time and expenses incurred since the preceding settlement, counsel would have little or no incentive to vigorously or efficiently pursue litigation or settlement of claims with non-settling defendants, or to seek non-monetary relief, even though the remaining defendants might be equally as culpable or have greater culpability. Secondly, such an approach would effectively eliminate consideration of the risk taken by counsel who take on these kind of cases where liability is hotly contested and the chances of recovery uncertain. Here, as plaintiffs point out, counsel invested very significant time worth $53,126,310 if compensated at usual hourly rates plus $8,207,158 in out-of-pocket expenses with no guarantee of recovery or return. Plaintiffs correctly point out that no law firm, or association of firms, would chance over $61,000,000 million pursuing risky, complex and lengthy litigation if the possibility of return was less than or only equal to the amount invested. In other words, counsel should be rewarded commensurate with the risk taken.

The objection made by Mr. Frazier at the April 3 hearing is different. Mr. Frazier, one of the class representatives for the DFA member subclass, while expressing some concern about the settlement because it gives up the breach of contract claims originally asserted by plaintiffs, nonetheless expressed his comfort with the "compromise" agreement. He did argue, however, that the attorneys' fee award should be based on the net settlement after deduction of out-of-pocket expenses, consistent with the contingency contract he believed he signed with class counsel. The contract, delivered to chambers for in camera review, does not support Mr. Frazier's recollection. The contract clearly and unambiguously provides for a contingency fee "not to exceed 33 1/3 percent by all counsel" of the "total amount recovered." The contract further provides that "costs and expenses are to be paid out of the recovery after deduction of attorney's fees." This part of Mr.

Frazier's objection lacks merit. Mr. Frazier also claimed that some hours[6] , in particular those invested by counsel appointed by the Court to represent the DFA member subclass, were unnecessary and caused by original counsel's failure to recognize the potential conflict of interest by counsel representing both subclasses. That development in the case was not entirely foreseeable, however, at an earlier stage of the litigation, and is not a proper basis for reducing the requested fees. Even if the Court disregarded the hours spent on the case by court appointed counsel for the DFA member subclass, it would only slightly change the lodestar and would not otherwise affect the Court's decision on the fee award.

One more thing should be addressed. Some studies have identified the size of the underlying class action settlement as the factor with the most influence on the fee and have found an inverse relationship between fee percentage and size of the settlement fund. See Fitzpatrick, Do Class Action Lawyers Make too Little?, at 2055 (citing Theodore Eisenberg & Geoffrey P. Miller, Attorney Fees In Class Action Settlements: An Empirical Study, 1 J. Empirical Legal Stud. 27, 35-36 (2004)). Indeed, it is fairly widely recognized that lower percentages are often appropriate in cases in which large settlements serve as the basis for calculating a percentage. MCL, § 14.121 (citing In re Prudential Ins. Co. of Amer. Sales Practices Litig. 148 F.3d 283, 339-40 (3d Cir. 1998) (remanding award of 6.7% of common fund for further consideration "in light of the magnitude of the recovery")). In cases involving settlements exceeding 100,000,000, fee percentages have ranged from 4.1% to 17.92%. Id.

This Court finds, however, that such an inverse approach would not be appropriate [6] Mr. Frazier stated that the number of hours was 4,800; however, the declaration submitted by Gary E. Brewer, Esquire, clarifies that about 500 of these hours were attributable to time spent by "other professionals" and generally paid at a much lower hourly rate.

in this case for several reasons. First, the Court has not found any Sixth Circuit case endorsing such an approach. Second, a declining percentage-of-the fund based on the size of the settlement "can create an incentive to settle quickly and cheaply when the returns to effort are highest" and discourage counsel from "investing additional time and maximizing plaintiffs' recovery." In re Auction Houses Antitrust Litig., 197 F.R.D. 71, 80 (S.D. N.Y. 2000). In addition, the Court sees no good reason why class action lawyers who represent clients on a contingency-fee basis in a case such as this should receive lower fees on a percentage basis than due contingency-fee lawyers in litigation representing individual clients, which typically amount to 33% or more of the recovery. Lastly, such an approach would penalize these class action attorneys given the actual number of hours spent on the case, rather than compensate them fairly. In other words, the requested fees do not result in an excessive windfall for class counsel.[7]

After consideration of all these factors and the entire and lengthy record of this complex litigation, the Court concludes that, although the requested fee is a very, very substantial amount, it is fair and reasonable under the circumstances. Accordingly, the Court will approve the requested fees in the amount of thirty-three and one-third percent (33 1/3%) of the common fund, i.e. $52,866,667 and will authorize lead counsel to allocate fees to specific firms.[8]

B. Reimbursement of Expenses

In addition to their petition for attorney's fees, class counsel seek reimbursement of out-of-

[7] The Court acknowledges that it has been bothered somwhat by the sheer size of the fee awarded and the need for the dairy farmers class members to receive the maximum possible amount of money, especially in view of the difficult economic environment in which they toil. The Court has ultimately decided, however, that it is not the size of the request, although a very large number, that is necessarily relevant but the size of the award when compared to the size of the risk taken.

[8] The Court, of course, retains jurisdiction to resolve any fee disputes which may arise.

pocket expenses incurred during the representation of the class in the additional amount of $798,237.66. "Expense awards are customary when litigants have created a common settlement fund for the benefit of a class." See In re F & M Distributors, Inc., 19 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 11090, at *19 (E.D. Mich. June 29, 1999). Based upon the Court's review of the various declarations submitted by class counsel, it appears that the requested expenses are the type typically billed by attorneys to paying clients in similar cases, see In re Synthroid Marketing Litig., 264 F.3d 712, 722 (7th Cir. 2001), and are fair and reasonable under the circumstances of this case. Although the declarations submitted by class counsel are not itemizations of all of the expenses incurred but rather an aggregate listing of the expenses for each category, the Court finds the declarations submitted sufficiently detailed and the Court is persuaded that the expenses are legitimate and are reasonable in the case and will approve payment to class counsel from the common settlement fund in the amount of $798,237.66 as reimbursement for their out-of-pocket expenses.

C. Incentive Awards to Class Representatives

Plaintiffs request that the Court approve additional incentive awards for the sixteen (16) class representatives in the amount of $10,000 each. "Such awards are discretionary and are intended to compensate class representatives for work done on behalf of the class, to make up for financial or reputational risk undertaken in bringing the action, and, sometimes, to recognize their willingness to act as a private attorney general." Rodriguez v. West Publ'g. Corp., 563 F.3d 948, 958-59 (9th Cir. 2009) (citations omitted). Based on this Court's knowledge of these lengthy proceedings, it appears that the class representatives have had extensive involvement in this litigation and deserve compensation above and beyond the amounts they will be entitled to by virtue of class membership alone.[9] They have been crucial in the preparation of the case and the requested incentive awards are reasonable in light of other incentive awards approved by courts in this circuit. See Hainey v. Parrott, 2007 WL 3308027 at * 5 (S.D. Ohio Nov. 6, 2007) (approving $50,000 incentive awards); Worthington, 2006 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 32100, at *24 (approving $10,000 incentive awards); In re F&M Distributors, 1999 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 11090, at * 20-21 (approving $2,500 incentive awards).

III. Conclusion

For all the foregoing reasons, plaintiffs' motion for award of attorneys' fees, reimbursement of expenses, and incentive awards for class representatives, [Doc. 1926], will be GRANTED and the Court will award $52,866,667 in attorneys' fees, reimbursement for out-of-pocket expenses in the amount of $798,237.66, and$10,000.00 as an incentive award to each of the class representatives. The clerk is ORDERED to mail a copy of this order to Mr. Keiger, Mr. Mareth and Mr. Frazier.

So ordered.

ENTER:

s/J. RONNIE GREER
UNITED STATES DISTRICT JUDGE

[9] No affidavits or other documentation have been submitted in support of the incentive award request. Class representatives, however, have clearly been extensively involved in the litigation, settlement discussions and court proceedings and have committed substantial time to the case as confirmed by the Court's own observations. See also Declaration of Robert G. Abrams, [Doc. 1927]. ("During the litigation, class representatives have communicated with class counsel regarding case issues, produced documents and information, been deposed, and prepared for trial.")

TAB 12B

IN THE UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
FOR THE EASTERN DISTRICT OF TENNESSEE
GREENEVILLE DIVISION

IN RE SOUTHEASTERN MILK ANTITRUST LITIGATION	)	Master File No. 2:08-MD-1000
	)	Judge J. Ronnie Greer
THIS DOCUMENT RELATES TO:	)
Sweetwater Valley Farm, Inc., et al. v. Dean Foods, et al.*, No. 2:07-CV-208	)

PLAINTIFFS' MOTION FOR AWARD OF ATTORNEYS' FEES, REIMBURSEMENT OF EXPENSES, AND INCENTIVE AWARDS FOR CLASS REPRESENTATIVES

TABLE OF CONTENTS

Page

I. THE REQUESTED AWARD OF FEES IS FAIR AND REASONABLE 4

A. An Award of Fees Based on a Percentage of the Common Fund Created by the Settlement Is Appropriate 4

B. Application of the Sixth Circuit's Test for Reasonableness Strongly Supports the Requested Award 6

1. Class Counsel Secured a Valuable Benefit for the Class 7

2. Class Counsel Expended Significant Time and Labor 11

3. The Complexity of the Litigation Supports the Requested Award 15

4. The Contingent Nature of the Fee and the Financial Risk Carried by Class Counsel 17

5. Skill and Experience of Class Counsel 18

6. Society Has an Important Stake in this Lawsuit 19

C. The Court Should Authorize Lead Counsel to Determine Allocations to Specific Firms 20

II. THE EXPENSES REQUESTED ARE REASONABLE 21

III. THE COURT SHOULD APPROVE THE REQUESTED INCENTIVE AWARD TO CLASS REPRESENTATIVES 22

IV. CONCLUSION 24

TABLE OF AUTHORITIES

Page(s)

Behrens v. Wometco Enter., Inc.,
118 F.R.D. 534 (S.D. Fla. 1988) 21

Bessey v. Packerland Plainwell, Inc.,
2007 WL 3173972 (W.D. Mich. Oct. 26, 2007) 10

Boeing Co. v. Van Gemert,
444 U.S. 472 (1980) 8

Bowling v. Pfizer, Inc.,
102 F.3d 777 (6th Cir. 1996) 11

Hainey v. Parrott,
2007 WL 3308027 (S.D. Ohio Nov. 6, 2007) 27

In re Automotive Refinishing Paint Antitrust Litigation,
2008 WL 63269 (E.D. Pa. Jan. 3, 2008) 25

In re Cardinal Health Sec. Litig.,
528 F. Supp. 2d 752 (S.D. Ohio 2007) 9, 19

In re Cardizem CD Antitrust Litig.,
218 F.R.D. 508 (E.D. Mich. 2003) 19, 24

In re Cardizem CD Antitrust Litig.,
Case No. 99-md-1278 (E.D. Mich. Nov. 26, 2002) ..... passim

In re Domestic Air Transp. Antitrust Litig., 148 F.R.D. 297 (N.D. Ga. 1993) 25

In re F&M Distrib., Inc. Sec. Litig.,
1999 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 11090 (E.D. Mich. June 29, 1999) ..... passim

In re Folding Carton Antitrust Litig.,
84 F.R.D. 245 (N.D. Ill. 1979) 23

In re Foundry Resins Antitrust Litig.,
Case No. 2:04-md-1638 (S.D. Ohio Mar. 31, 2008) 11

In re Linerboard Antitrust Litig.,
2004 WL 1221350 (E.D. Pa. June 2, 2004) 24, 25

In re Linerboard Antitrust Litig.,
296 F. Supp. 2d 568 (E.D. Pa. 2003) 19

In re Shopping Carts Antitrust Litig., 1983 WL 1950 (S.D.N.Y. Nov. 18, 1983).....19

In re Sulzer Ortho. Inc.,
398 F.3d 778 (6th Cir. 2005) 9, 10

In re Visa Check/ Mastermoney Antitrust Litig., 297 F. Supp. 2d 503 (E.D.N.Y. 2003) 14

Isabel v. City of Memphis,
404 F.3d 404 (6th Cir. 2005) 18

Jones v. Diamond,
636 F.2d 1364 (5th Cir. 1981) 21

Kogan v. AIMCO Fox Chase, L.P.,
193 F.R.D. 496 (E.D. Mich. 2000) 10, 11, 22, 24

Lazy Oil Co. v. Witco Corp.,
95 F. Supp. 2d 290 (W.D. Pa. 1997).....11

Lonardo v. Travelers Indem. Co.,
706 F. Supp. 2d 766 (N.D. Ohio 2010).....27

Pillsbury Co. v. Conboy,
459 U.S. 248 (1983).....24

Rawlings v. Prudential-Bach Prop.,
9 F.3d 513 (6th Cir. 1993) 9

Rodriguez v. West Publ'g Corp.,
563 F.3d 948 (9th Cir. 2009) 27

Rotuna v. W. Customer Mgm't Group, LLC,
2010 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 58912 (N.D. Ohio June 15, 2010).....9, 10

Stanley v. U.S. Steel Co.,
2009 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 114065 (E.D. Mich. Dec. 8, 2009)..... passim

United States Football League v. NFL,
644 F. Supp. 1040 (S.D.N.Y. 1986).....22

Wal-Mart Stores, Inc. v. Visa U.S.A. Inc.,
396 F.3d 96 (2d Cir. 2005).....19

Worthington v. CDW Corp.,
2006 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 32100 (S.D. Ohio May 22, 2006) 10, 18, 27

Plaintiffs submit this motion seeking an award of attorneys' fees, reimbursement of expenses, and incentive awards for class representatives as a result of the settlement of this case with remaining Defendants DFA, DMS, Mid-Am Capital, NDH, and Gary Hanman (collectively "DFA Defendants"). Consistent with the DFA Settlement Agreement and the Class Notice, Plaintiffs request an award of attorneys' fees of $52,866,666.67 from the settlement reached with DFA Defendants (one-third of the settlement), $798,237.66 as reimbursement for Class Counsel's unreimbursed out-of-pocket expenses, and $10,000 for each of the class representatives.[1]

The current settlement of $158,600,000 is in addition to $145,000,000 in prior settlements with Dean and SMA/Baird, resulting in a total settlement for the class of $303,600,000. Plaintiffs believe this is by far the largest and most substantial antitrust settlement obtained in this District. The settlement with DFA Defendants also provides substantial changes to how they conduct their business – greater transparency, reduction of full-supply agreements to less than 30 percent of the market, increased prices, greater access to markets, and better access to information – in addition to the structural relief provided in the prior settlements.

In approving counsel's prior request for fees, reimbursement of expenses, and incentive awards as a result of the Dean and SMA/Baird settlements, the Court analyzed and applied the relevant standards for those awards. Application of those standards support the awards requested as a result of the current settlement with DFA Defendants.

- The requested fee award of one-third of the settlement is the same percentage previously approved by the Court in connection with the first settlements which was, as the Court noted, "certainly within the range of fees often awarded in common fund cases, both nationwide and in the Sixth Circuit." 7/11/12 Order at 4, Dkt No. 1897.

[1] Class Counsel incurred over $8,200,000 in expenses throughout the prosecution of this case. The Court previously reimbursed Class counsel $7,408,920. Class Counsel now seeks reimbursement only for those expenses not reimbursed by the Court's July 11, 2012 Order.

- It is also supported by Class Counsel's actual lodestar (fees absent any multiplier), as well as the factors considered by the Sixth Circuit for determining the reasonableness of a fee award. Class Counsel's lodestar in this matter is over $53,000,000, and out-of-pocket expenses of more than $8,200,000 have been incurred. Combining the requested fee with fees previously awarded would yield a lodestar multiplier of 1.90, which is well within the "typical" lodestar range of one to four. See id. at 6-7.[2]
- The Court recognized that the prior settlement was an "extraordinary" result for class members. Id. at 5. The current settlement more than doubles the class recovery to about three-quarters of the total damages calculated by plaintiffs' damages expert. Compare id. at 5 (prior settlement represented "approximately one-third" of total damages). In addition, the settlement with DFA Defendants provides important behavioral and market-structural relief to class members.
- The requested award is also supported by the complexity of the matter and the critical public policies advanced by private actions to enforce the antitrust laws. The Court has "observed several times the complexity of the case," id. at 7, as well as the fact that "society's interests are clearly furthered by the private prosecution of civil cases [such as this one] which further important public policy goals, such as vigorous competition by marketplace competitors" id. at 8.

[2] Counsel's fee request of $52,866,666.67 plus $48,333,333.33 previously awarded in connection with the Dean and SMA Settlements would result in a total of $101,200,000 in fees. Given Counsel's investment of $53,126,310.17, the lodestar multiplier would be 1.90 percent.

- Of particular importance is the fact that although the U.S. Department of Justice investigated the alleged anticompetitive conduct of some Defendants, the government never brought lawsuits against Defendants. Thus, unlike many antitrust class actions, Class Counsel conducted the pre-complaint investigation and discovery largely on a clean slate.
- The requested fee award also is appropriate because of the degree of risk entailed in this litigation. As the Court noted, Class Counsel "undertook this case on a contingency-fee basis, and accepted a substantial risk of non-payment for legal work and reimbursement of out-of-pocket expenses advanced." Id. at 7. "Almost every aspect of this case has been hotly contested and litigated extensively" and "opposed by equally experienced and highly counsel for Defendants", id., who were represented by premier law firms – Williams & Connolly (DC), Dechert (DC), Winston & Strawn (Chicago), Andrews Kurth (Dallas), Stinson Morrison Hecker (Kansas City), and Patton Tidwell Schroeder (Texas).
- Finally, Plaintiffs believe the quality of the representation in this case supports the requested award. As the Court recognized in approving the prior award, "class counsel…have efficiently and competently managed their enormous task and have vigorously and effectively prosecuted the case on behalf of the class." Id.

The factual predicate for this fee and expense request are set forth in the accompanying declarations by Class Counsel. (See Declaration of Robert G. Abrams, Lead Class Counsel, Baker & Hostetler ("Abrams Decl."), and attached supporting Declarations from individual Plaintiffs' firms.)[3]

I. THE REQUESTED AWARD OF FEES IS FAIR AND REASONABLE

A. An Award of Fees Based on a Percentage of the Common Fund Created by the Settlement Is Appropriate

Class Counsel created a substantial benefit for the Settlement Class and are entitled to reasonable attorneys' fees. See Boeing Co. v. Van Gemert, 444 U.S. 472, 478 (1980) ("a lawyer who recovers a common fund for the benefit of persons other than himself or his client is entitled to a reasonable attorney's fee from the fund as a whole."); Stanley v. U.S. Steel Co., 2009 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 114065, at *4 (E.D. Mich. Dec. 8, 2009) ("[W]here counsel's efforts create a substantial common fund for the benefit of [ ] a class, they are entitled to payment from the fund based on a percentage of that fund.").

This award is particularly appropriate here, where Defendants' conduct could not practicably have been challenged without the commitment of significant time and resources by Class Counsel willing to pursue Plaintiffs' claims on a contingency basis. (See 7/11/12 Order at 8 ("Simply put, anti-competitive conduct such as that alleged in this case would likely go unchallenged absent the willingness of attorneys to undertake the risks associated with such expensive and complex litigation."); 9/7/10 Order, Dkt No. 934 ("This litigation is complex, its prosecution costly, and the [class] members with smaller damages claims likely have fewer resources with which to fund individual litigation.")). Defendants vigorously defended the case and had great resources at their disposal, requiring Class Counsel to devote substantial amounts of time and resources at a significant risk.

---

[3] The Petition is supported with the lodestar and expense information for nine firms: Baker & Hostetler LLP/Howrey LLP; Boies Schiller & Flexner LLP; Brewer & Terry P.C.; Cohen Milstein Sellers & Toll, PLLC; Fine, Kaplan, & Black R.P.C.; Freed Kanner London & Millen, LLC; Hausfeld LLP; Jessee & Jessee; and Whitfield Bryson & Mason LLP.

As the Court previously ruled, in awarding fees paid out of a common fund, the Court has the discretion to apply either the percentage of the fund or lodestar methods in determining the appropriate amount of the award. See 7/11/12 Order at 4; Stanley, 2009 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 114065, at *3-4; In re Sulzer Ortho. Inc., 398 F.3d 778, 780 (6th Cir. 2005) ("it is within the district court's discretion to determine the appropriate method for calculating attorney's fees in light of the unique characteristics of class actions in general, and of the unique circumstances of the actual cases before it") (quoting Rawlings v. Prudential-Bach Prop., 9 F.3d 513, 516-17 (6th Cir. 1993)).

In approving the requested fee award in connection with the prior settlements, the Court found that the percentage-of-the-fund method is the more appropriate method, especially when employed with a lodestar cross-check. See 7/11/12 Order at 3. Plaintiffs believe the same approach should be adopted here and that all of the reasons why the Court adopted that approach in connection with the prior settlements are equally applicable to the settlement with the DFA Defendants. See id. at 3 (quoting Stanley, 2009 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 114065, at *4).[4] When courts employ the percentage of the fund method, the lodestar may still be useful to cross-check the reasonableness of the percentage. See Stanley, 2009 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 114065, at *9-10 (citing Manual for Complex Litig. (Third) § 14.121, n.504 (1995)); Cardinal Health, 528 F. Supp. 2d at [4] The percentage-of-the-fund method prevents "inequity by assessing attorneys' fees against the entire fund," and "decreases the burden imposed on the [c]ourt by eliminating a full-blown, detailed and time consuming lodestar analysis." Stanley, 2009 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 114065, at *4-5; see also In re Cardinal Health Sec. Litig., 528 F. Supp. 2d 752, 762 (S.D. Ohio 2007) ("[T]he [c]ourt [is] spared from the costly task of scrutinizing counsel's billable hours"). The percentage-of-the-fund method is also advantageous because it "establish[es] reasonable expectations on the part of class counsel as to their expected recovery and encourag[es] early settlement before substantial fees and expenses have accumulated." Rotuna v. W. Customer Mgm't Group, LLC, 2010 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 58912, at *20 (N.D. Ohio June 15, 2010). In addition, the percentage of the fund approach "more accurately reflects the results achieved." Rawlings, 9 F.3d at 516.

767 (performing lodestar cross-check). Under either method, the fees requested here are appropriate. Plaintiffs accordingly seek fees based on a percentage of the common fund, with a lodestar cross-check, the approach previously employed by this Court in awarding fees from the Dean and SMA/Baird settlements. (See 7/11/12 Order.).

B. Application of the Sixth Circuit's Test for Reasonableness Strongly Supports the Requested Award

Plaintiffs' requested fee of one-third of the settlement fund falls well within the 20-50% range of fees awarded in the Sixth Circuit on a percentage basis in complex common fund cases. See id. at 4 (explaining one-third requested fee was "certainly within the range of fees often awarded in common fund cases, both nationwide and in the Sixth Circuit"); Worthington v. CDW Corp., 2006 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 32100, at *22 (S.D. Ohio May 22, 2006) ("[C]ounsel's requested percentage of 38 and one-third of the total gross settlement is solidly within the typical 20 to 50 percent range."); Rotuna, 2010 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 58912, at *23 ("one-third of the total award[] is…reasonable"); Bessey v. Packerland Plainwell, Inc., 2007 WL 3173972, at *4 (W.D. Mich. Oct. 26, 2007) (approving award of approximately 33% and noting "[e]mpirical studies show that…fee awards in class actions average around one-third of the recovery") (internal quotations omitted); Sulzer Ortho., 398 F.3d at 779, 782 (affirming award of "thirty-two per cent of the settlement fund"); Kogan v. AIMCO Fox Chase, L.P., 193 F.R.D. 496, 505 (E.D. Mich. 2000) (awarding approximately 31%); In re Cardizem CD Antitrust Litig., Case No. 99-md-1278 (E.D. Mich. Nov. 26, 2002) (unreported, Edmunds, J.) (awarding 30% of settlement to counsel for "Sherman Act Plaintiffs")[5]; In re F&M Distrib., Inc. Sec. Litig., 1999 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 11090, at *10 (E.D. Mich. June 29, 1999) ("the excellent performance of the attorneys merits an award of thirty percent of the settlement fund"); In re Foundry Resins Antitrust Litig., Case No. 2:04-md-1638 (S.D. Ohio Mar. 31, 2008) (unreported, Frost, J.) (awarding approximately 30%).[6]

[5] This unreported decision (hereafter "Cardizem (unreported)") is attached hereto as Exhibit A.

Plaintiffs' requested fee is fair and reasonable compensation for Class Counsel's efforts in light of the following factors considered by the Sixth Circuit: (1) "the value of the benefit rendered to the plaintiff class"; (2) "the value of the services on an hourly basis"; (3) "the complexity of the litigation"; (4) "whether the services were undertaken on a contingent fee basis"; (5) "the professional skill and standing of counsel involved on both sides"; and (6) "society's stake in rewarding attorneys who produce such benefits in order to maintain an incentive to others." Bowling v. Pfizer, Inc., 102 F.3d 777, 780 (6th Cir. 1996); see also Kogan, 193 F.R.D. at 503 (laying out factors). As the Court previously found, "[a]ll of the relevant factors here support the requested fee." (7/11/12 Order at 5.)

1. Class Counsel Secured a Valuable Benefit for the Class

A recovery of $303,600,000 from Defendants is a significant success and of substantial benefit to the class. These settlements are likely by far the largest settlement of any antitrust case litigated in this District. Class members will be eligible to receive settlement payments based on their pro rata share of the class-eligible milk volume, estimated to be, on average, $26,000 per class member. (See 2/14/12 Order, Ex. A at ¶ 15, Dkt No. 1782-1 (estimating $13,000 per class member for the first $145 million payments).) In addition, $303,600,000 is almost three-quarters of the total damages calculated by Plaintiffs' expert in December 2012. (See 12/5/12 Supp. Rpt. of Dr. Gordon Rausser at 12 (calculating class damages of $415,000,000).) It is unquestionable that this monetary recovery is of substantial benefit to the class. See Lazy Oil Co. v. Witco Corp., 95 F. Supp. 2d 290, 339 (W.D. Pa. 1997) ("[C]ourts have determined that a settlement can be approved even if the benefits amount to a small percentage of the recovery sought.… '[T]here is no reason…why a satisfactory settlement could not amount to a hundredth or even a thousandth part of a single percent of the potential recovery.'") (quoting Detroit v. Grinnell Corp., 495 F.2d 448, 455 n.2 (2d Cir. 1974)).

[6] This unreported decision is attached hereto as Exhibit B.

The settlements with DFA Defendants and SMA/Baird include many valuable and important changes in the manner in which DFA and SMA conduct business, the way in which milk is marketed in the Southeast, and how DFA and SMA interact with Southeast dairy farmers.[7] (1/17/13 DFA Defs. Settlement Agmt. § 7, Dkt No. 1922-3.) The significance of the conduct and structural remedies has already been demonstrated: For example, Dean recently cancelled its Outsourcing Agreement with DMS; Dean cancelled full-supply agreements for several of its Southeast bottling plants; and, as a result of the present settlement, DFA will remove the penalty provisions for the cancellation of additional full-supply agreements. With these changes, DFA has gone from controlling approximately 90% of the fluid Grade A milk produced in the Southeast (see Amend. Compl. at ¶ 36) to only 30% of the Class I volume in the Southeast (see DFA Defs. Settlement Agmt. at ¶ 7.4(a)).

In addition to the structural relief obtained in the SMA/Baird settlement, DFA Defendants have agreed to implement the following meaningful changes in how they conduct their business. First, DFA will increase Class I utilization by reducing or eliminating milk shipped to one or more facilities in Orders 5 and 7 where milk is currently processed for Class III usage, pursuant to Settling Defendants' guarantee to increase uniform prices in those Orders by $9.3 million per year. (See id. at ¶ 7.2(a)-(c).) Second, DFA will remove monetary penalties for cancellation of full-supply agreements for Country Delite in Nashville and Ryan Foods in Murray. (See id. at ¶ 7.4(a).) Also, DFA will not, during the term of the Agreement, enter into any other full-supply agreements with bottling plants in Orders 5 or 7. (See id.) Third, Settling Defendants agree to release the materials previously agreed in filings at Docket Nos. 1829 and 1848, which amounts to hundreds of documents, in addition to all discovery materials previously made public. (See id. at ¶ 7.4(b).) Fourth, DFA will amend the membership agreements for Orders 5 and 7 members to make it easier for them to change marketers.[8] (See id. at ¶ 7.4(c).) Fifth, DFA will reconfigure checks for Orders 5 and 7 members to reflect the monies received for their milk and the deductions from their mailbox price.[9] (See id. at ¶ 7.4(d).) Sixth, DFA financial reports will be prepared in accordance with generally accepted accounting principles (see id. at ¶ 7.4(e)), and DFA will be audited by a nationally-recognized accounting firm (see id. at ¶ 7.4(e)(vi)). Seventh, DFA senior management and Audit Committee members will affirmatively represent they are responsible for the preparation, integrity, and accuracy of DFA's annual financial report. (See id. at ¶ 7.4(e)(vii).) Eighth, DFA will post on its member-only website an annual disclosure of all material related-party transactions, specifically broken out and identified by transaction. (See id. at ¶ 7.4(e)(iii).) Ninth, at its annual meeting, DFA will disclose to its delegates all material related-party transactions (see above) as well as DFA's

[7] Class Counsel previously explained in detail the structural relief achieved in the SMA/Baird Settlement. (See 4/2/12 Mot. for Attorneys' Fees at 6-7, Dkt No. 1808.)

---

[8] DFA Defendants agreed to add this language: "However, this Agreement may be terminated by either party during the ninety (90) day period immediately prior to the Anniversary Date by giving at least thirty (30) days written notice to the other party. The termination will be effective on the Anniversary Date unless otherwise modified, at the request of the member, for a period not to exceed fifteen days after the Anniversary Date to accommodate members' particular milk marketing needs." (See DFA Defendants' Settlement Agmt, at ¶ 7.4(c).)

[9] Specifically, DFA Defendants agreed to reconfigure milk checks to reflect revenues received/proceeds available to pay, agency and cooperative deductions, each shown as an average per hundredweight of milk, and the individual member's applicable premiums, incentive payments, and mailbox price. Also, the checks will show the average Federal Order blend price for each member's pay zone. (See id. at ¶ 7.4(d).)

financial results from its participation in joint ventures and off-balance sheet transactions, specifically broken out and identified by transaction. (See id. at ¶¶ 7.4(e)(iii) and (v).) Tenth, DFA will disclose the identity of the members of its board of directors and its committees and their generally applicable per diem payment rate compensation. (See id. at ¶ 7.4(e)(ii).) Eleventh, DFA senior executive management and board members will execute annual conflict of interest certifications, which will be subject to review by DFA's Audit Committee and a report by the Committee at DFA's annual meeting. (See id. at ¶ 7.4(e)(iv).) Twelfth, DFA will facilitate a vote by its delegates on resolutions considering whether: (1) DFA should annually disclose its top five senior executives' compensation and incentives; (2) DFA members should be allowed to opt out of DFA's block vote; and (3) delegates and candidates to be delegates may obtain a list of DFA members in their districts. For each resolution, DFA's CEO will provide a neutral presentation as to the pros and cons as part of DFA's communications to delegates regarding its annual meeting. In addition, DFA's Southeast Area Council will provide to its members the text of the CEO's pros and cons as well as the names and contact information for the council member and delegate from each member's district who will be attending the annual meeting at which the resolutions will be considered. (See id. at ¶¶ 7.4(e)(i), 7.4(f), and 7.4(g).)

This important structural relief, which would not have been undertaken absent this litigation, will provide significant long-term economic benefits to all Southeast dairy farmers in addition to the substantial cash payments. Achieving these significant benefits for thousands of dairy farmers supports Class Counsel's fee request. See In re Visa Check/ Mastermoney Antitrust Litig., 297 F. Supp. 2d 503, 524 (E.D.N.Y. 2003) (considering the injunctive relief awarded in determining an appropriate fee award).

2. Class Counsel Expended Significant Time and Labor

Final approval of the DFA Settlements will represent a benefit obtained from over 126,000 hours of legal work. (See Abrams Decl., ¶ 3.) This matter involves very complex issues, which where vigorously litigated by all nine Defendants. Unquestionably, Class Counsel's efforts in this case have been extensive. Class Counsel began prosecuting this case over five and a half years ago, after a one-year investigation of the dairy industry in the Southeast. The formidable defense began shortly after the complaints were filed, when Class Counsel (and separate counsel prior to consolidation) responded to numerous motions to dismiss. (See id. at ¶ 4.) The Court previously acknowledged "there is absolutely no question that counsel has spent a remarkable amount of time preparing and litigating this case…[and] [t]he quality of the work done by class counsel has been exceptional, not only with respect to the pleadings filed but also the oral advocacy during oral argument on various motions." (7/11/12 Order at 6.)

During discovery, Class Counsel reviewed, analyzed, and organized for use over 5,000,000 pages of documents produced by Defendants, in addition to the over 95,000 pages produced by third parties. (See Abrams Decl., ¶ 5.) Obtaining these documents from Defendants and third parties required hundreds of hours of Class Counsel's time participating in meet and confer sessions and exchanging dozens of letters, in an effort to resolve discovery issues without Court intervention. (See id.) While disputes were sometimes resolved informally, the parties were often unable to reach agreement, forcing Plaintiffs to file 17 motions to compel and other discovery motions. (See id. at ¶ 6.) Many of these motions were subject to another round of briefing after both sides moved to reconsider or appeal Magistrate Judge Inman's decisions, and sometimes decisions of this Court. (See id.) In addition, Plaintiffs produced over ten thousand pages of documents, (See id. at ¶ 5), and opposed several discovery motions filed by Defendants.

(See id. at ¶ 6.) Class Counsel and Plaintiffs also produced hundreds of pages of interrogatory responses. (See id. at ¶ 5.)

During discovery, Class Counsel took 80 depositions of fact witnesses, and defended or otherwise attended 30 depositions taken by Defendants. (See id.) Plaintiffs also conducted extensive expert discovery. In the class certification phase of the case, Class Counsel consulted extensively with John Beyer, Plaintiffs' expert, and deposed Defendant's class expert, Catherine Morrison-Paul. (See id. at ¶ 7.) Towards the end of discovery and throughout trial preparation, Class Counsel frequently consulted with two experts, Frank Scott and Gordon Rausser. (See id.) In addition, Class Counsel deposed Defendants' five experts (Kalt, Elzinga, Peterson, Ortego, and Herbein). (See id.) Class Counsel also filed three Daubert motions to exclude Defendants' experts, and opposed Defendants' five motions to exclude Professors Scott and Rausser. (See id.)

Class Counsel filed extensive briefs and evidence in support of class certification and responded to Defendants' six motions for summary judgment and voluminous statements of fact. (See id.) Class Counsel also performed significant work in opposing Defendants' two Rule 23(f) Petitions for Leave to Appeal (which entailed supplemental briefing) as well as several motions to decertify the class. (See id.)

Class Counsel's ability to prosecute this case was further complicated by the robust protection afforded by the Protective Order. (See id. at ¶ 8.) Defendants designated significant parts of their document productions and almost all deposition transcripts as "Confidential" or "Highly Confidential." (See id.) These designations prohibited Class Counsel from filing many of its briefs and supporting evidence on the public record. (See id.) Plaintiffs filed multiple motions requesting the Court modify the Protective Order, and were also required to follow the sealing procedures put in place by the Court. (See id.) Accordingly, for many of Plaintiffs' filings, Class Counsel would: (1) file a brief and exhibits under seal, which required multiple hard copies and a CD hand delivered to the Court; (2) confer with Defendants and third parties about the materials contained in the briefs to determine whether information must remain sealed; (3) file a redacted version of the brief and exhibits, redacting all purported "Confidential" and "Highly Confidential" information; and (4) draft responses to Defendants' objections to unsealing the information. (See id.) Complying with this procedure required a significant amount of time and resources by Class Counsel. (See id.)

As trial approached, Class Counsel prepared pretrial submissions including over 1,000 exhibits and hundreds of deposition designations, and identified dozens of potential witnesses. (See id. at ¶ 9.) Class Counsel filed 18 motions in limine, and opposed Defendants' 57 motions in limine. (See id.) Plaintiffs and Class Counsel were prepared to commence the 6-7 week trial when the trial was postponed in August 2011. (See id.) Plaintiffs and Class Counsel continued to prepare for trial after it was rescheduled several times until the settlement with DFA Defendants was reached in January 2013.

Finally, Class Counsel participated in many mediation sessions over the past five years. (See id. at ¶ 10.) Each of these sessions required preparation of materials for the mediator's consideration and took the time of Class Counsel's most senior lawyers. (See id.) Class Counsel also participated in countless settlement meetings and discussions with DFA Defendants, Dean, SMA, and Baird to secure the settlements.

In total, Class Counsel spent over 126,000 hours prosecuting this case. In addition, Class Counsel will continue to spend time handling the administration and payment of the three settlements over the next four years. Presently, for example, Class Counsel confers with Rust Consulting on an almost daily basis regarding submitted claim forms, audits of those claim forms, distribution of payments, and correspondence with Class members. (See id. at ¶ 12.) Class Counsel also frequently consults with JPMorgan, the bank maintaining the escrow accounts with the Settling Defendants' settlement payments. (See id.)

The Court "cross-checked" the prior percentage-of-the-fund fee request by using the lodestar method. Cross-checking the current percentage of the fund fee request using the lodestar method confirms that the requested award is fair and reasonable. As the Court is aware, a lodestar calculation requires the court to multiply the number of hours counsel reasonably expended on the case by their reasonable hourly rate. See Isabel v. City of Memphis, 404 F.3d 404, 415 (6th Cir. 2005). The Sixth Circuit also typically adds a "multiplier" to that number to account for the risk in handling the case on a contingency basis. Id.; see also Stanley, 2009 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 114065, at *9.

Here, Class Counsel expended over 126,000 hours during the litigation, and multiplying the historical hourly rates of counsel (with no multiplier) results in a lodestar of $53,126,310.17. (See Abrams Decl., ¶ 3.) Plaintiffs recognize that the Court previously awarded counsel $48,333,333.33 in fees in connection with the Dean and SMA/Baird settlements. Taking this into account results in a total fee request of $101,200,000 for the three settlements. Thus, Class Counsel's request for $101,200,000 in total fees from all settlements against an investment of $53,126,310 yields a lodestar multiplier of 1.90 percent, which is well within the range permitted in this Circuit. See 7/11/12 Order at 7 (citing In re Cardinal Health, 528 F. Supp. 2d at 767 (noting that "[m]ost courts agree that the typical lodestar multiplier in a large . . . class action[] ranges from is 1.3 to 4.5")); Worthington, at *19 (range of 1.5 to 5 is appropriate lodestar multiplier); Cardizem (unreported) (approving 30% fee award that equates to lodestar multiplier of 3.7). Notably, in Cardinal Health, counsel and their staff worked 51,970 hours at a "reasonable average hourly billing rate of approximately $353.63" for a total lodestar of $18,378,122.75. 528 F. Supp. 2d at 767. The court approved a $108,000,000 fee award – 18% of the settlement, but almost six times the counsel's lodestar. Id. at 768. The court reasoned that it was "not uncomfortable with deviating from the normal range of lodestar multipliers.…[g]iven the outstanding settlement in this case and the noticeable skill of counsel." Id.

3. The Complexity of the Litigation Supports the Requested Award

Antitrust class actions are "arguably the most complex action[s] to prosecute. The legal and factual issues involved are always numerous and uncertain in outcome." In re Linerboard Antitrust Litig., 296 F. Supp. 2d 568, 577 (E.D. Pa. 2003) (quoting In re Motorsports Merchandise Antitrust Litig., 112 F. Supp. 2d 1329, 1337 (N.D. Ga. 2000)); see also In re Cardizem CD Antitrust Litig., 218 F.R.D. 508, 533 (E.D. Mich. 2003) (observing that "[a]ntitrust class actions are inherently complex"); Wal-Mart Stores, Inc. v. Visa U.S.A. Inc., 396 F.3d 96, 122 (2d Cir. 2005) (affirming district court's [fee award] because, inter alia, "antitrust cases, by their nature, are highly complex"); In re Shopping Carts Antitrust Litig., 1983 WL 1950, at *1, *7 (S.D.N.Y. Nov. 18, 1983) ("antitrust price fixing actions are generally complex, expensive and lengthy"). This Court previously recognized the complexity of this case, explaining that "[a]lmost every aspect of this case has been hotly contested and litigated extensively and the case presents several somewhat novel issues." (7/11/12 Order at 7.) In addition, unlike many private antitrust class actions brought on a contingency basis, Plaintiffs did not have the benefit of the Department of Justice narrowing complex issues through prior pleas, agreements, or lawsuits against Defendants.

This case also required Class Counsel to become well-versed in the "inner workings of the dairy industry [which] are complicated in the extreme." (12/8/10 Order at 3, Dkt No. 1186.) Class Counsel consulted extensively with the class representatives, industry and economic experts, and other witnesses to master the complex concepts at issue in this case. The Court has repeatedly acknowledged the complexity of this case: "This is an incredibly complex case, involving arcane issues far beyond the understanding of the average juror." (12/8/10 Order at 4, Dkt No. 1193; see also 1/6/09 Tr., at 13, Dkt No. 214 ("THE COURT: I don't think in the years I practiced law I was ever involved in a case that is quite this complicated"); 8/17/10 Order at 23, Dkt No. 934 ("This litigation is complex.").)

In addition to the issues, this litigation was procedurally complex. It began with six different dockets, all of which were consolidated into one MDL. (See Abrams Decl. at ¶ 4.) Defendants were located in several different states, requiring substantial coordination and negotiation with defense counsel on scheduling matters – including the dates and locations of over 100 depositions. (See id. at ¶ 5.) As described in part I.B.2, supra, millions of pages of documents were reviewed, over 100 depositions taken or defended, scores of briefs filed – including multiple motions to dismiss, class certification, summary judgment, and Daubert motions – and nine different expert opinions provided. (See id. at ¶¶ 4-7.)

The Cardizem court's reasoning for awarding a 30% fee to the Sherman Act plaintiffs is instructive. In that case, the court explained:

> The complexity of this case cannot be overstated. Antitrust class actions are inherently complex. The complexity of this antitrust case was enhanced by additional, highly technical, causation-related issues; i.e., regulatory issues . . . . Despite its complexity, Class Counsel was able to efficiently and effectively prosecute and settle this matter.

Id. (unreported), at 20-21. The extensive amount of work and coordination by Class Counsel supports the award here. See F&M, 1999 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 11090, at *12 (approving fee award because attorneys had to "survive numerous motions to dismiss," "face[] vigorous opposition to their efforts to obtain class certification," and "manage complex discovery").

4. The Contingent Nature of the Fee and the Financial Risk Carried by Class Counsel

Courts in this Circuit recognize that the risk of the litigation is an important factor to consider when awarding fees. Stanley, 2009 U.S. Dist. LEXIS, at *8 ("Numerous cases recognize that the contingent fee risk is an important factor in determining the fee award."); see also 7/11/12 Order at 7 (factor weighs in favor of fee award where "counsel undertook this case on a contingency-fee basis and accepted a substantial risk of non-payment for legal work and reimbursement of out-of-pocket expenses advanced"). Class Counsel undertook this case on a contingency basis with the expectation that a successful result would be rewarded with a fee to reflect the risk of non-payment. "Lawyers who are to be compensated only in the event of victory expect and are entitled to be paid more when successful than those who are assured of compensation regardless of the result." Jones v. Diamond, 636 F.2d 1364, 1382 (5th Cir. 1981), overruled on other grounds by Int'l Woodworkers of Am. v. Champion Int'l Corp., 790 F.2d 1174 (5th Cir. 1986). "If this 'bonus' methodology did not exist, very few lawyers could take on the representation of a class client given the investment of substantial time, effort, and money, especially in light of the risks of recovering nothing." Behrens v. Wometco Enter., Inc., 118 F.R.D. 534, 548 (S.D. Fla. 1988).

An antitrust case of this complexity and magnitude, involving monopsony claims, which are rarely brought, and in which Defendants have significant resources, experienced counsel, and a long track record of litigating rather than settling, posed very significant risks for Plaintiffs. Plaintiffs successfully navigated Defendants' pretrial challenges over the course of five years including motions to dismiss, class certification, summary judgment, Daubert motions, motions in limine and two petitions to appeal. To do so, Plaintiffs needed to overcome Defendants' vigorous arguments concerning the relevant market, the relative merits of full-supply agreements, Capper-Volstead immunity, filed rate exemption, and alleged class conflicts. Even if Plaintiffs succeeded in overcoming those arguments and established liability at trial, Plaintiffs would risk recovering minimal – or no – damages. See, e.g., United States Football League v. NFL, 644 F. Supp. 1040, 1042 (S.D.N.Y. 1986) (finding liability, but awarding nominal damages). And, even if Plaintiffs were to establish liability and damages at trial, they would still be at risk of having the judgment overturned after years of appeal.

This case is no exception to the rule. Here, Class Counsel have invested tens of thousands of hours and advanced many millions of dollars, despite the very real risk of recovering nothing for their efforts. Class Counsel alone have borne the risk of the case being dismissed or of not prevailing at trial. This risk carried by Class Counsel supports the requested fee award. See Kogan, 193 F.R.D. at 504 (factor weighed in favor of fee where "[p]laintiffs' counsel undertook this action on a contingency fee basis and made significant cash outlays to finance it"); Stanley, 2009 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 114065, at *8 (awarding fees because, inter alia, "class counsel worked for over four years without payment, risking recovery of nothing in the event they were to generate no benefit for the class").

5. Skill and Experience of Class Counsel

Class Counsel – and defense counsel – have extensive experience in complex litigation, antitrust litigation, and class actions. (See Abrams Decl. at ¶ 3; see also 7/11/12 Order at 7 (explaining that Class Counsel "have efficiently and competently managed their enormous task and have vigorously and effectively prosecuted the case on the behalf of the Class. They have also been opposed by equally experienced and highly competent counsel for defendants and have achieved an excellent result for their clients.").) The Settlements were reached only after vigorous prosecution of the case and significant arms-length negotiations with highly-competent and experienced opposing counsel. A recovery of $303,600,000 plus substantial and valuable conduct and structural relief is a significant success and of enormous benefit to class members, and speaks volumes to Class Counsel's competence, experience, and diligence in obtaining the Settlements. As the Court previously observed, "Class Counsel in this case are experienced in antitrust and class action litigation…and they have to date aggressively and vigorously prosecuted this case." (9/7/10 Order, Dkt No. 934.) Class Counsel have been confronted with highly-skilled attorneys and have achieved an excellent result for the class in the face of such challenges. See F&M, 1999 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 11090, at *19 ("The skill and competence of the attorneys for the plaintiffs was evident, especially when viewed on the basis of the results that they obtained in this case, while the excellent advocacy skills of the defense counsel . . . were equally evident").

6. Society Has an Important Stake in this Lawsuit

It is well-established that there is a "need in making fee awards to encourage attorneys to bring class actions to vindicate public policy (e.g., the antitrust laws) as well as the specific rights of private individuals." In re Folding Carton Antitrust Litig., 84 F.R.D. 245, 260 (N.D. Ill. 1979). Courts in the Sixth Circuit weigh "society's stake in rewarding attorneys who [win favorable outcomes] in order to maintain an incentive to others.… Society's stake in rewarding attorneys who can produce such benefits in complex litigation such as in the case at bar counsels in favor of a generous fee.…Society also benefits from the prosecution and settlement of private antitrust litigation." Cardizem, 218 F.R.D. at 534 (quoting F&M, 1999 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 11090, at *18).

Further, the Supreme Court has recognized the need for private litigation to enforce the antitrust laws. See Pillsbury Co. v. Conboy, 459 U.S. 248, 262-63 (1983) ("This Court has emphasized the importance of the private action as a means of furthering the policy goals of certain federal regulatory statutes, including the federal antitrust laws."). Here, the significant recovery Class Counsel achieved makes clear to the dairy industry, and to other businesses, that collusion will not be tolerated. Society as a whole stands to benefit from the work of Class Counsel.

Fee awards in cases like this incentivize attorneys to act as private attorneys' general to enforce compliance with the antitrust laws and secure relief for injured parties (particularly injured parties challenging anticompetitive conduct by defendants with far greater resources). Awards of attorneys' fees allow and ensure the zealous enforcement of class members' legal rights. See 7/11/12 Order at 8 ("anti-competitive conduct such as that alleged in this case would likely go unchallenged absent the willingness of attorneys to undertake the risks associated with such expensive and complex litigation"); Kogan, at 504 (approving 31% fee because "the amount…is substantial and therefore, would create an incentive for other attorneys to take on similar cases").

C. The Court Should Authorize Lead Counsel to Determine Allocations to Specific Firms

Class Counsel have collaborated on this litigation for five years under the supervision of Lead Counsel appointed by the Court in accordance with the Court's Case Management Order. (See Abrams Decl. at ¶ 3.) Courts generally approve joint fee applications that request a single aggregate fee award with allocations to specific firms determined by lead counsel. See, e.g., In re Linerboard Antitrust Litig., 2004 WL 1221350, at *17-18 (E.D. Pa. June 2, 2004) (approving joint fee petition with specific allocations to be determined by liaison counsel); In re Domestic Air Transp. Antitrust Litig., 148 F.R.D. 297, 357 (N.D. Ga. 1993) ("Ideally, allocation is a private matter to be handled among class counsel."). Class Counsel has directed this case from its inception and are "better able to describe the weight and merit of each [counsel's] contribution." Linerboard, 2004 WL 1221350, at *18. Allowing lead counsel to allocate the fee award "relieves the Court of the difficult task of assessing counsels' relative contributions." Id. (internal quotations omitted).

Plaintiffs request that the Court approve the aggregate amount of the fee award and allow Lead Counsel to allocate the fee among the firms representing Plaintiffs, in Lead Counsel's good faith judgment, and consistent with the authority delegated to Lead Counsel by the Case Management Order. The Court would, of course, retain jurisdiction for any disputes that cannot be resolved by counsel over the allocation of the award. See In re Automotive Refinishing Paint Antitrust Litigation, 2008 WL 63269, at *8 (E.D. Pa. Jan. 3, 2008) (holding lead counsel shall allocate the fees, but the court will retain jurisdiction to address any disputes).

II. THE EXPENSES REQUESTED ARE REASONABLE

Plaintiffs request reimbursement of costs incurred in litigating this case and obtaining the settlements through February 28, 2013, in the amount of $798,237.66. (See Abrams Decl. at ¶ 3.) It is well-settled that plaintiffs who have created a common fund for the benefit of a class are entitled to be reimbursed for their out-of-pocket expenses reasonably incurred in creating the fund. See F&M, 1999 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 11090, at *20 ("Expense awards are customary when litigants have created a common settlement fund for the benefit of a class."). The touchstone for reimbursing expenses is whether they are of the type typically billed to paying clients in the similar cases. See Cardizem (unreported), at 22.

Here, a large percentage of Class Counsel's out-of-pocket expenses consist of fees paid to experts who were pivotal in helping Plaintiffs to certify the class, defend against summary judgment, prepare for trial, and obtain these settlements. (See Abrams Decl. at ¶¶ 13-14.) In addition, Class Counsel had to travel across the country for depositions, hearings, and meetings with witnesses, experts, and class representatives. (See id.) Other expenses include the cost of payments to court reporters for depositions, computerized research, copying costs, and delivery. (See id.) These are the types of expenses customarily charged to paying clients. Class Counsel's expenses, detailed in the attached declarations, are reasonable and should be reimbursed in full. See 7/11/12 Order at 10 (approving reimbursement of $7,408,920.39 in expenses as "legitimate and [] reasonable"); Cardizem (unreported) at 22 ("The Court finds that the categories of expenses for which Class Counsel seek reimbursement are the type routinely charged to their hourly fee-paying clients and thus should be reimbursed out of the Settlement Fund.").

III. THE COURT SHOULD APPROVE THE REQUESTED INCENTIVE AWARD TO CLASS REPRESENTATIVES

Plaintiffs request that the Court approve incentive awards for the 16 class representatives, in the amount of $10,000 each, or $160,000 total.[10] The Notice to the Settlement Class advised class members that Class Counsel would apply for incentive awards for the class representatives. (See Settlement Notice at 1, Dkt No. 1922-5.)

"Incentive awards are fairly typical in class action cases. Such awards are discretionary and are intended to compensate class representatives for work done on behalf of the class, to make up for financial or reputational risk undertaken in bringing the action, and sometimes, to recognize their willingness to act as a private attorney general." Rodriguez v. West Publ'g Corp., 563 F.3d 948, 958-59 (9th Cir. 2009) (citations omitted). The common fund theory allows courts to award additional compensation to the class representatives for their efforts including investigation, document production, and deposition appearances. Hainey v. Parrott, 2007 WL

[10] The class representatives are: Sweetwater Valley Farm, Inc., Barbara & Victor Arwood, Jeffrey Bender, Randel Davis, Farrar & Farrar Dairy, Inc., Fred Jaques, John Moore, D.L. Robey Farms, Robert Stoots, Virgil Willie, Thomas Watson, James & Eva Baisley, Stephen Cornett, McCain Dairy, Payne Dairy, and Jerry Holmes.

3308027, at *5-6 (S.D. Ohio Nov. 6, 2007) (approving incentive awards of $50,000 each for class representatives out of a settlement fund of $6 million); Lonardo v. Travelers Indem. Co., 706 F. Supp. 2d 766, 787 (N.D. Ohio 2010) ("Courts within the Sixth Circuit…recognize that, in common fund cases and where the settlement agreement provides for incentive awards, class representatives who have had extensive involvement in a class action litigation deserve compensation above and beyond amounts to which they are entitled to by virtue of class membership alone.").

Throughout this litigation, the class representatives have communicated closely with Class Counsel, provided documents and information essential to the litigation of this case, submitted to depositions, and assisted with the preparation of this case for settlement and trial. (See Abrams Decl. at ¶ 16.) This Court previously observed that "it appears that the class representatives have had extensive involvement in this litigation and deserve compensation above and beyond the amounts they will be entitled to by virtue of class membership alone." (7/11/12 Order at 11.) The amounts requested by Plaintiffs are reasonable in light of other incentive awards approved by courts in this Circuit. See Hainey, 2007 WL 3308027, at *5 (approving $50,000 incentive awards); Cardizem (unreported) at 23 (approving $20,000 incentive awards); Worthington, 2006 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 32100, at *24 (approving $10,000 incentive awards); F&M, 1999 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 11090, at *20-21 (approving $7500 incentive awards).

IV. CONCLUSION

For the foregoing reasons, Plaintiffs respectfully request the Court grants its motion and award $52,866,666.67 in attorneys' fees, reimburse $798,237.66 in expenses, and award $160,000 in incentive awards for the class representatives.

TAB 13A

IN THE UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
FOR THE NORTHERN DISTRICT OF OHIO
WESTERN DIVISION

In re Polyurethane Foam Antitrust Litigation	Case No. 1:10 MD 2196
	MEMORANDUM OPINION AND ORDER GRANTING SETTLEMENT MOTIONS
This document relates to: DIRECT PURCHASER CLASS	JUDGE JACK ZOUHARY

INTRODUCTION

Pending before this Court are the Direct Purchaser Class's Motion for Final Approval of the Leggett & Platt and Carpenter Settlements (Doc. 1439) and Motion for an Award of Attorneys' Fees and for Reimbursement of Expenses (Doc. 1441).

BACKGROUND

In these consolidated proceedings, direct purchasers allege Defendants conspired to fix, raise, and maintain the price of slabstock, fabricated foam, and carpet underlay. The litigation has been lengthy, hard fought, and complex. A substantial segment of this multidistrict litigation -- representing about three-quarters of Defendants' sales to direct purchasers -- involves the claims of a nationwide class of direct purchasers ("Direct Purchasers"). Direct Purchasers and Defendants have battled through motions to dismiss; engaged in extensive document, deposition, and expert discovery, including many discovery disputes; litigated class certification (which this Court granted in April 2014), including a Federal Civil Rule 23(f) petition for review (which the Sixth Circuit denied in September 2014), and briefed a pending petition for writ of certiorari, seeking review of the Sixth Circuit's order declining to accept Defendants' petition; and (most recently) briefed summary judgment, which this Court largely denied. Trial will begin in April 2015.

The Proposed Settlement Terms

In November 2014, Direct Purchasers moved for preliminary approval of a classwide settlement with Defendant Leggett & Platt, Inc. ("Leggett & Platt"), and for approval of notices of class certification and settlement (Doc. 1379). Later that month, Direct Purchasers moved for preliminary approval of a classwide settlement with Defendants Carpenter Co., E.R. Carpenter L.P, and Carpenter Holdings, Inc. (the "Carpenter Defendants"), and for approval of notices of class certification and settlement (Doc. 1400). This Court granted the motions, as well as related stipulations (Docs. 1391, 1397, 1406 & 1411).

Under the proposed settlements, and in exchange for a release of all Direct Purchaser claims against Leggett & Platt (as well as the "Leggett & Platt Released Parties") and the Carpenter Defendants (as well as the "Carpenter Released Parties"), Direct Purchasers receive:

- $39.8 million from Leggett & Platt, including an initial $4 million cash payment;
- $108 million from the Carpenter Defendants, including an initial $20 million cash payment (this Court refers to the two funds together as the "Settlement Fund"); and
- Trial testimony from up to two Leggett & Platt employees and up to two Carpenter Defendant employees for the purpose of admitting Leggett & Platt and Carpenter documents at trial.

Leggett & Platt and the Carpenter Defendants deny all allegations of wrongdoing.

Expert discovery in this case helps put those sums in perspective. Direct Purchasers' primary impact and damages expert, Dr. Jeffrey Leitzinger, constructed multiple regression models to calculate whether and to what extent class members suffered antitrust impact. He then used those impact results to calculate a classwide damages figure. If credited by a jury, and based on best-case-scenario liability findings and late-December 2014 opt-out estimates, Leitzinger's model estimates classwide overcharges (prior to trebling) of $815 million. (At the fairness hearing, and based on the result of the opt-out period, Class Counsel put the figure closer to $750 million) (Doc. 1499 at 6). Leggett & Platt and Carpenter Defendant sales would account for nearly $310 million of those overcharges, based on their 38 percent share of the affected product markets. The Settlement Fund therefore equals roughly 48 percent of the Leggett & Platt and Carpenter Defendant overcharges Direct Purchasers might prove following a best-case outcome at trial.

This Court set a January 26, 2015 deadline for commenting on or objecting to the proposed settlements. Direct Purchasers' approved short- and long-form notice (issued to class members by direct mail and by publication notice) explained how an absent class member could comment on or object to the proposed settlements. Out of more than 48,000 direct mail recipients and the likely thousands more class members who received publication notice of the settlement (see Doc. 1475-1 at 3), only one individual, Michael Narkin ("Narkin"), and one business, Hall Furniture ("Hall"), objected to the settlement. Narkin objects to both settlements (see Doc. 1475-6), Hall, only to the Leggett & Platt settlement (see Doc. 1475-7). Direct Purchasers responded to the objections (see Doc. 1475).

Leggett & Platt and the Carpenter Defendants also complied with the Class Action Fairness Act of 2005 ("CAFA") requirement to provide certain federal and state government officials notice of the settlement (see Docs. 1413 & 1427). Leggett & Platt's CAFA notice period expired on February 11, 2015 (see Doc. 1498), and the Carpenter Defendants' CAFA notice period expired on February 22, 2015 (see Doc. 1521). No CAFA-noticed parties objected to either settlement.

Class Counsel's Fee And Expense Request

Following preliminary settlement approval and dissemination of class notice, in late December 2014 Direct Purchaser Class Counsel ("Class Counsel")[1] moved for an award of attorneys' fees and reimbursement of expenses, to be paid out of the $147.8 million Settlement Fund. Specifically, Class Counsel seek a $52,473,855.80 cut of the Settlement Fund, including:

- Thirty percent of the Settlement Fund for attorneys' fees, or roughly $44.34 million; and
- Reimbursement of Class Counsel's incurred expenses, amounting to $8,133,855.80.

If granted, Class Counsel's fee and expense award would leave roughly $95,326,144.20 to be divided among class members, or 64.5 percent of the Settlement Fund.

The Leggett & Platt and Carpenter Defendant settlements are (respectively) the second and third cash settlements in the Direct Purchaser case. In June 2013, this Court granted final approval of a Direct Purchaser settlement with (among others) Vitafoam, Inc. and Vitafoam Products Canada Ltd. (see Doc. 597). This Court also granted Class Counsel's motion for an award of attorneys' fees and reimbursement of costs. Class Counsel received as a fee award $3,101,267.63, a 30 percent share of the Vitafoam settlement fund (see Doc. 1441 at 8). Class Counsel received an additional $908,315.35 for reimbursement of expenses (Doc. 598 at 4). As a cross-check to the Vitafoam settlement fee request, Class Counsel provided a lodestar of roughly $25 million, an estimate supported by time logs submitted upon this Court's request (see Doc. 556 at 50; see also Doc. 561-1).

[1] Class Counsel includes an Executive Committee comprised of six law firms, in addition to the Co-Lead Counsel firms of Boies, Schiller & Flexner LLP and Quinn Emanuel Urquhart & Sullivan, LLP.

Class Counsel again estimate a lodestar cross-check for their percentage-of-the-fund fee request, and this Court again requested time logs supporting that request (see Doc. 1492). Through late December 2014, Class Counsel's estimated lodestar totals $52,274,968.55. Accounting for the portion of the Vitafoam settlement paid over to attorneys' fees, Class Counsel's request would leave them roughly $4,833,700.92 short of their December 2014 lodestar.

This Court held a fairness hearing on February 3, 2015 to consider the proposed settlements, objections to the settlements, and Class Counsel's request for an award of attorneys' fees and reimbursement of costs (see Doc. 1499).

STANDARDS OF REVIEW

"The claims, issues, or defenses of a certified class may be settled, voluntarily dismissed, or compromised only with the court's approval." Federal Civil Rule 23(e). When a settlement proposal "would bind class members, the court may approve it only after a hearing and on finding that it is fair, reasonable, and adequate." Federal Civil Rule 23(e)(2). The fairness hearing should provide interested parties an opportunity to comment on or object to the proposed settlements; the hearing may otherwise be limited to probing only those issues necessary for finding that a proposed settlement is fair, reasonable, and adequate. See Tenn. Ass'n of Health Maint. Orgs. v. Grier, 262 F.3d 559, 567 (6th Cir. 2001).

"Several factors guide the inquiry: (1) the risk of fraud or collusion; (2) the complexity, expense and likely duration of the litigation; (3) the amount of discovery engaged in by the parties; (4) the likelihood of success on the merits; (5) the opinions of class counsel and class representatives;

(6) the reaction of absent class members; and (7) the public interest." Int'l Union, United Auto., Aerospace, & Agr. Implement Workers of Am. v. Gen. Motors Corp., 497 F.3d 615, 631 (6th Cir. 2007). A settlement class, like a litigation class, must satisfy Federal Civil Rules 23(a) and 23(b). While this Court has discretion to accept or reject a proposed settlement, federal law favors settlement of complex class actions. See In re Warfarin Sodium Antitrust Litig., 391 F.3d 516, 535 (3d Cir. 2004).

In a common-fund case like this one, this Court's award of attorneys' fees need only be "reasonable under the circumstances." In re Sulzer Orthopedics, Inc., 398 F.3d 778, 780 (6th Cir. 2005) (internal quotations marks omitted).

> In assessing the reasonableness of requests for fees in class actions resulting in the creation of a common fund, a court must consider factors that are not present in statutory fee shifting cases. The interest of class counsel in obtaining fees is adverse to the interest of the class in obtaining recovery because the fees come out of the common fund set up for the benefit of the class. In addition, there is often no one to argue for the interests of the class (that their recovery should not be unfairly reduced), since it is to be expected that class members with small individual stakes in the outcome will not file objections, and the defendant who contributed to the fund will usually have scant interest in how the fund is divided between the plaintiffs and class counsel.

Rawlings v. Prudential-Bache Prop., Inc., 9 F.3d 513, 516 (6th Cir. 1993). Facing a percentage-of-the-fund fee request, "[i]t is not difficult to demonstrate why courts cannot rationally apply any particular percentage -- whether 13.6 percent, 25 percent or any other number -- in the abstract, without reference to all the circumstances of the case." In re Wash. Pub. Power Supply Sys. Sec. Litig., 19 F.3d 1291, 1298 (9th Cir. 1994). Therefore, a district court may consider: "(1) the value of the benefit rendered to the plaintiff class; (2) the value of the services on an hourly basis; (3) whether the services were undertaken on a contingent fee basis; (4) society's stake in rewarding attorneys who produce such benefits in order to maintain an incentive to others; (5) the complexity of the litigation; and (6) the professional skill and standing of counsel involved on both sides." Bowling v. Pfizer, Inc., 102 F.3d 777, 780 (6th Cir. 1996) (internal quotation marks and ellipsis omitted). And of course, different approaches to awarding fees come with different strengths and weaknesses. See Rawlings, 9 F.3d at 516–17 (comparing percentage-of-the-fund and lodestar fee awards).

ANALYSIS

The Class Settlements are Fair, Reasonable, and Adequate

Risk of Fraud or Collusion in Negotiating the Class Settlements. "Courts presume the absence of fraud or collusion in class action settlements unless there is evidence to the contrary." Thacker v. Chesapeake Appalachia, L.L.C., 695 F. Supp. 2d 521, 531 (E.D. Ky. 2010) (internal quotation marks omitted). There is no hint in the record that the $147.8 million Settlement Fund is the result of fraud or collusion between Class Counsel and defense counsel. Rather, the parties employed experienced mediators to engage in extensive discussions in four cities over the course of many weeks (see Doc. 1441-1 at 11–12). This Court is confident that the settlement terms are the product of hard-fought, arms-length negotiation between experienced antitrust lawyers.

Complexity, Expense, and Likely Duration of Litigation. In five weeks, Direct Purchasers will begin presenting their case to a jury. The trial will be lengthy, costly, and time consuming. If Direct Purchasers obtain a jury verdict, they then would have to defend that verdict through post-trial motions (inevitable in any complex litigation) and on appeal, when this Court's class certification decision (among other important interlocutory rulings) also will be fair game for appellate review. Direct Purchasers' lodestar cross-check reflects that the largest portion of attorney time and expense has been spent in discovery, which has now run its course. But, this litigation is far from complete.

See In re Telectronics Pacing Sys., Inc., 137 F. Supp. 2d 985, 1013 (S.D. Ohio 2001). Settlement avoids further expense, as well as the risks associated with further litigation.

Amount of Discovery to Date. The discovery record in this case is enormous. Direct Purchasers combed through 219 Defendant and third-party document productions, totaling 2.4 million documents that (combined) span 5.4 million pages and participated in or attended over 200 depositions (Doc. 1441-1 at 7).

They and their experts engaged in complex expert discovery. Leitzinger (for example) constructed several dozen multiple regression models to assess impact (if any) suffered by Direct Purchasers. He worked with a transactional dataset with roughly 50 million entries. Direct Purchasers and their experts then responded to many defense expert reports submitted by nearly a dozen experts. And each expert -- plaintiff and defendant -- was then deposed, some multiple times. This Court examined some of the experts during an evidentiary hearing.

All of this discovery matters for settlement purposes because it provides Direct Purchasers and the settling Defendants a clear picture of the relative merits of claims and defenses. The parties entered into these settlements with full view of the evidentiary record to assess the class claims.

Likelihood of Success on the Merits. "The fairness of each settlement turns in large part on the bona fides of the parties' legal dispute. Although this inquiry understandably does not require [this Court] to decide the merits of the case . . . [it] cannot judge the fairness of a proposed compromise without weighing the plaintiff's likelihood of success on the merits against the amount and form of the relief offered in the settlement." Int'l Union, UAW, 497 F.3d at 631 (internal quotation marks omitted).

The recent summary judgment briefing provides this Court insight into the relative strengths and weaknesses of Direct Purchasers' claims. The merits of those claims need not be recited here in detail except to note Defendants have strong jury arguments regarding how a fact-finder should treat competitor communications, industry competition, price increase announcement history and usage, market structure, and "opportunities-to-conspire" evidence. Defendants also have retained prominent economists and a statistician to testify that the jury should not credit Direct Purchasers' expert evidence. And Direct Purchasers, who carry the burden of proof, face the threat that their experts will fail to communicate their testimony in a way that is comprehensible to laypeople. All of which is to say, "[e]xperience proves that, no matter how confident trial counsel may be, they cannot predict with 100% accuracy a jury's favorable verdict, particularly in complex antitrust litigation." In re Cardizem CD Antitrust Litig., 218 F.R.D. 508, 523 (E.D. Mich. 2003). In this Court's view, a jury could return (1) a no-liability verdict with respect to some or all Defendants, or (2) a substantially smaller damages figure than is contemplated by Leitzinger's best-case scenario assumptions, or (3) a "home run" for the Class. A settlement figure that equates to roughly 18 percent of the best-case-scenario classwide overcharges is an impressive result in view of these possible trial outcomes.

Opinions of Class Counsel. "Class Counsel's judgment that settlement is in the best interests of the class is entitled to significant weight, and supports the fairness of the class settlement." In re Packaged Ice Antitrust Litig., 2011 WL 717519, at *11 (E.D. Mich. 2011) (internal quotation marks omitted). Class Counsel are rightly proud of the result in these settlements. At the fairness hearing, Class Counsel further explained the risks they run litigating this case on (effectively) a contingency fee basis and without the benefit of an active parallel criminal investigation, which exists in some other antitrust multidistrict litigation. Class Counsel compared the workload in this case to similar cases (see Doc. 1499 at 8–15, 29–32, 36–37). Settling defense counsel likewise agreed that the settlement result is impressive, given the substantial risks Direct Purchasers face in further litigation (see id. at 20, 23).

Reaction of Absent Class Members to the Proposed Settlements. The Direct Purchaser Class reacted favorably to news of the settlement. First, the overwhelming majority of direct purchasers opted to remain members of the settlement classes. Substantial direct purchasers did not, but because those same direct purchasers have proceeded directly against Defendants (more or less actively) for several years, Class Counsel, Leggett & Platt, and the Carpenter Defendants no doubt anticipated these opt outs. Second, despite tens of thousands of class members receiving notice of the class settlement, only one class member objected.

Hall "objects to final approval of the proposed settlement on grounds that the the [sic] Notice does not include the Plan of Allocation which will describe the manner in which the net settlement funds will be distributed" (Doc. 1475-7 at 3). Hall "is left to decide whether the [sic] participate in the settlement without knowing whether, for example, the proposed plan will impose a minimum payment, cap his [sic] recovery, force him [sic] to choose between remedies or otherwise value his [sic] claim differently from those of other class members" (id. at 12). Hall likewise lacks information on how the Leggett & Platt settlement fund will be reduced if a certain opt-out threshold is crossed, triggering a settlement agreement provision that would reduce the size of the Leggett & Platt settlement fund (id.).

But the Leggett & Platt opt-out threshold has not been triggered. Hall's objection is therefore moot to that extent. This Court overrules Hall's objection to the extent it argues the approved notice is insufficient because it fails to explain the basis for divvying up the Settlement Fund among class members. Even assuming the notice must contain an explanation of the plan of allocation (see Doc. 1475 at 12) (extensively collecting case law for the proposition that a plan of allocation need not be proposed prior to final settlement approval), Hall received an adequate explanation of how funds will be allocated to class members -- on a pro rata basis, based on Class Period purchases.

Narkin also objects. Direct Purchasers give this objection more attention than it deserves in their response, which this Court adopts. Narkin may not even be a class member -- no evidence, offered by Narkin or accessible to the Direct Purchaser Class, substantiates his vague claim of class membership. Further, he raises meritless allegations of collusion; worries about whether the settlement protects "sub-classes," which do not in fact exist; complains about his need to review discovery in this matter to assess his "claim," despite caselaw that states a class member has no such right to discovery (or only a qualified right, which Narkin's meritless objection does not warrant); speculates that Class Counsel "may have seen no need to engage in real discovery to determine what the case was worth," speculation that is resoundingly rejected by the discovery record; implies that courts have removed "Class Counsel" from class leadership positions they held in other cases, owing to "lack of integrity," when in fact Class Counsel in this case have no connection with the cases he cites; appears to believe attorneys' fees were part of the settlement agreement and "were acceptable to the defense," when in fact defense counsel played no role in Class Counsel's separately filed fee motion; and is a serial objector, whose carbon-copy objections district courts frequently reject as baseless (see Doc. 1475-6; see also Doc. 1475 at 4–11). This Court overrules his objection.

The Public Interest. Finally, there is a strong public interest in voluntary resolution of complex antitrust actions, see In re Cardizem CD Antitrust Litig., 218 F.R.D. at 530, and no legitimate countervailing interest that weighs in favor of denying settlement approval.

Based on these considerations, the Leggett & Platt and Carpenter settlements are finally approved.

Class Counsel's Fee and Expense Request

Class Counsel seek a 30 percent share of the Settlement Fund, or roughly $44.34 million. In their briefs and during the fairness hearing, Class Counsel emphasized that they have pursued this case on their own. With the exception of certain information gained early in this litigation from government investigations, "[t]his is certainly not a case where class counsel have simply 'piggy-backed' on a government investigation or the work of others" (Doc. 1441 at 8).

For many of the reasons supporting a finding that the settlement is fair, reasonable, and adequate, this Court concludes Class Counsel's fee request is reasonable. The value of Class Counsel's work to the Direct Purchaser Class is apparent. Even deducting fees from the Settlement Fund, to date Direct Purchasers have recovered more than $100 million from settling Defendants. Counsel will still be substantially "under water," relative to their estimated lodestar, even after a second 30 percent fee award. Class Counsel represented to this Court that work in this case caused them to turn away billable hours from other clients, who would have been willing to pay Class Counsel's full hourly rates on a rolling basis (Doc. 1499 at 32). Finally, Class Counsel are respected antitrust practitioners. Class Counsel faced off against top members of the antitrust defense bar. See Bowling, 102 F.3d at 780. Considering these and other circumstances, this Court grants the 30 percent fee request with respect to each settlement fund.

In approving Class Counsel's prior fee request, this Court noted a 30 percent fee award "is not an indicator of future fee awards" and that this Court "may adjust fee awards downward to achieve a reasonable benchmark and prevent windfall" (Doc. 598 at 3). It reiterates that point today. As in this ruling, this Court will assess any future fee requests in the context of prior settlements, prior fee awards, and updated lodestar cross-checks and supporting time logs. Today's fee award makes Class Counsel substantially whole. Depending on the nature of any future settlement, another 30 percent fee request may not be appropriate.

Finally, this Court awards Class Counsel $8,113,855.80 for reimbursement of expenses (see Doc. 1441-1 at 13 (listing expense categories)). "[T]he categories of expenses for which Plaintiffs' Counsel seek reimbursement are the type routinely charged to their hourly fee-paying clients and thus should be reimbursed out of the Settlement Fund." In re Cardizem CD Antitrust Litig., 218 F.R.D. at 535.

This Court grants Co-Lead Counsel authority to "distribute the fees in a manner that, in the judgment of Co-Lead Counsel, fairly compensates each firm for its contribution to the prosecution of Plaintiffs' claims" (Doc. 1441 at 13 n.3).

CONCLUSION

For these reasons, Motion for Final Approval of the Leggett & Platt and Carpenter Settlements (Doc. 1439) and Motion for an Award of Attorneys' Fees and for Reimbursement of Expenses (Doc. 1441) are granted. Therefore:

1. Final approval of the Settlement Agreements is granted pursuant to Federal Civil Rule 23(e).

2. The Direct Purchaser Settlement Class consists of the certified Direct Purchaser Litigation Class minus the persons and entities who request exclusion from the Direct Purchaser Settlement Class. For the reasons explained in this Court's Order on Class Certification (see Doc. 1408), the Direct Purchaser Settlement Class meets the requirements of Rule 23 and is therefore certified for the purposes of this settlement.

3. The persons and entities identified in Exhibit A (for the Leggett & Platt settlement) and Exhibit B (for the Carpenter Settlement) have timely and validly requested exclusion from the specified Direct Purchaser Settlement Class and therefore are excluded from the Direct Purchaser Settlement Class and not bound by this Order, and may not make any claim or receive any benefit from the settlement, whether monetary or otherwise. These excluded persons and entities may not pursue any Released Claims on behalf of those who are bound by this Order. Each Direct Purchaser Settlement Class member who has not requested to be excluded from the Direct Purchaser Settlement Class, and is not listed in Exhibit A, is bound by this Order, and will remain forever bound.

4. As to the Leggett & Platt Released Parties and the Carpenter Released Parties, as defined in the respective Settlement Agreements, the Class Action and any and all currently pending direct purchaser class action lawsuits directly related to the subject matter of this litigation are dismissed with prejudice and in their entirety, on the merits, and, except as provided for in the Settlement Agreement, without costs. This dismissal shall not affect, in any way, Direct Purchasers' right to pursue claims, if any, outside the scope of the releases set forth in the Settlement Agreement.

5. The Releasing Parties are permanently enjoined and barred from instituting, commencing, or prosecuting any action or other proceeding asserting any claims released in the Settlement Agreement (1) against any Leggett & Platt Released Party or (2) against any Carpenter Released Party, either directly, individually, representatively, derivatively, or in any other capacity, by whatever means, in any local, state, or federal court, or in any agency or other authority or arbitral or other forum wherever located.

6. The Releasing Parties release, forever discharge, and covenant not to sue the Leggett & Platt Released Parties from and for claims as set forth in the Settlement Agreement. Likewise, the Releasing Parties release, forever discharge, and covenant not to sue the Carpenter Released Parties from and for claims as set forth in the Settlement Agreement

7. This Order does not settle or compromise any claims by Class Representatives or the Direct Purchaser Settlement Class against the Defendants or other persons or entities other than the Leggett & Platt Released Parties or the Carpenter Released Parties, and all rights against any other Defendant or other person or entity are specifically reserved. The sales of Polyurethane Foam to members of the Direct Purchaser Settlement Class by the Leggett & Platt Released Parties and the Carpenter Released Parties shall remain against the non-settling Defendants as a basis for damage claims, and shall be part of any joint and several liability claims against any non-settling Defendant or other person or entity other than the Leggett & Platt Released Parties or the Carpenter Released Parties.

8. Pursuant to Federal Civil Rule 54(b), this Court directs entry of final judgment of dismissal as to the Released Parties.

9. Without affecting the finality of this Order, this Court retains exclusive jurisdiction over the Class Action and the Settlement Agreements, including the administration, interpretation, consummation, and enforcement of the Settlement Agreements.

10. The Escrow Account established by certain of the parties, and into which Settlement Funds have been and will be deposited, plus accrued interest, is approved as a Qualified Settlement Fund pursuant to Internal Revenue Code Section 468B and related Treasury Regulations.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

s/ Jack Zouhary
JACK ZOUHARY
U. S. DISTRICT JUDGE

February 26, 2015

TAB 13B

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
FOR THE NORTHERN DISTRICT OF OHIO

In re POLYURETHANE FOAM ANTITRUST LITIGATION	MDL Docket No. 2196 Index No. 10-MD-2196 (JZ)
This document relates to: ALL DIRECT PURCHASER CLASS ACTIONS

MEMORANDUM OF LAW IN SUPPORT OF DIRECT PURCHASER CLASS PLAINTIFFS' MOTION FOR AN AWARD OF ATTORNEYS' FEES AND FOR REIMBURSEMENT OF EXPENSES

TABLE OF CONTENTS

Page

I. INTRODUCTION 1

II. BACKGROUND 2

A. Designated Counsel's Vigorous Prosecution of the Case. 2

1. Meet and confers and disputes concerning discovery 3

2. Review of Defendants' voluminous document productions. 3

3. Deposition discovery. 4

4. Class certification 4

5. Summary judgment briefing. 5

6. Trial preparation 5

B. Notice of Proposed Settlements, Plan of Allocation, and Petition for Attorneys' Fees, Reimbursement of Expenses and Incentive Awards. 5

III. DESIGNATED COUNSEL SHOULD BE AWARDED THE REQUESTED FEES AND REIMBURSEMENT OF LITIGATION EXPENSES. 6

A. Plaintiffs' Request for Attorneys' Fees Falls Within The Range of Approval. 7

1. Designated Counsel secured significant benefits for the Class. 9

2. The value of Designated Counsel's services on an hourly basis in comparison to the settlement amount is extremely high. 10

3. Designated Counsel's efforts significantly benefit society and thus merit a reward in order to maintain an incentive to others. 11

4. Designated Counsel undertook their services on a contingent fee basis 12

5. The complexity of the litigation supports the application. 12

6. Designated Counsel have exhibited professional skill 12

B. Designated Counsel Has Not "Piggybacked" On A Government Investigation. 13

C. A Lodestar Cross-Check Demonstrates That The Requested Fee Is Reasonable. 13

D. The Request Is Also Reasonable In Light Of Expenses Incurred. 14

IV. CONCLUSION 15

TABLE OF AUTHORITIES

Page(s)

Cases

Boeing Co. v. Van Gemert,
444 U.S. 472 (1980).....7

Bowling v. Pfizer,
102 F.3d 777 (6th Cir. 1996) 7, 13

Bowling v. Pfizer,
922 F. Supp. 1261 (S.D. Ohio 1996) 7, 9

Boyd v. Coventry Health Care Inc.,
299 F.R.D. 451 (D. Md. 2014).....13

Brotherton v. Cleveland,
141 F. Supp. 2d 907 (S.D. Ohio 2001) 9

In re Cardizem CD Antitrust Litig.,
No. 99-md-1278 (E.D. Mich. Nov. 25, 2002).....6, 8

In re Cardizem CD Antitrust Litig.,
218 F.R.D. 508 (E.D. Mich. 2003) 14

Chakejian v. Equifax Info. Servs., LLC,
275 F.R.D. 201 (E.D. Pa. 2011).....13

In re Cincinnati Gas & Electric Co. Securities Litigation,
643 F. Supp. 148 (S.D. Ohio 1986) 8

Connectivity Sys. Inc. v. Nat'l City Bank,
2:08-CV-1119, 2011 WL 292008 (S.D. Ohio Jan. 26, 2011).....13

In re Delphi Corp. Sec., Derivative & "ERISA" Litig.,
248 F.R.D. 483 (E.D. Mich. 2008) 14

In re F&M Distribs. Inc. Sec. Litig.,
1999 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 11090 (E.D. Mich. June 29, 1999).....6

Fidel v. Farley,
534 F.3d 508 (6th Cir. 2008) 14

In re Flonase Antitrust Litig.,
291 F.R.D. 93 (E.D. Pa. 2013).....13

Godec v. Bayer Corp.,
2013 WL 1089549 (N.D. Ohio Mar. 14, 2013) 9

Goldberger v. Integrated Resources, Inc.,
209 F.3d 43 (2d Cir. 2000).....9

Harris v. Marhoefer,
24 F.3d 16 (9th Cir. 1994) 15

Hawaii v. Standard Oil Co.,
405 U.S. 251 (1972).....11

Hensley v. Eckhart,
461 U.S. 424 (1983).....9

In re Linerboard Antitrust Litig.,
2004 WL 1221350 (E.D. Pa. June 2, 2004).....12

In re M.D.C. Holdings Sec. Litig., 1990 WL 454747 (S.D. Cal. Aug. 30, 1990).....11

Maley v. Del Global Technologies Corp.,
186 F. Supp. 2d 358 (S.D.N.Y. 2002) 8

Minnesota Min. & Mfg. Co. v. New Jersey Wood Finishing Co.,
381 U.S. 311 (1965).....11

New England Health Care Employees Pension Fund v. Fruit of the Loom, Inc., 234 F.R.D. 627 (W.D. Ky. 2006).....14

Pillsbury Co., v. Conboy,
459 U.S. 248 (1983).....11

Ramey v. Cincinnati Enquirer, Inc.,
508 F.2d 1188 (6th Cir. 1974) 7

Rawlings v. Prudential-Bache Properties, Inc.,
9 F.3d 513 (6th Cir. 1993) 7, 8, 9

Reitner v. Sonotone Corp.,
442 U.S. 330 (1979).....11

In re Rio Hair Naturalizer Products Liab. Litig., MDL 1055, 1996 WL 780512 (E.D. Mich. Dec. 20, 1996) 8

Rosenbaum v. Macallister,
64 F.3d 1439 (10th Cir. 1995) 7

In re Scrap Metal Antitrust Litig.,
No. 1:02-cv-0844 (N.D. Ohio Mar. 24, 2005).....6, 8

In re Southeastern Milk Antitrust Litig.,
No. 2:08-MD-1000, 2013 WL 2155387 (E.D. Tenn. May 17, 2013).....6

In re Sulzer Hip Prosthesis and Knee Replacement Liability Litig., 268 F. Supp. 2d 907 (N.D. Ohio 2003).....12

In re Synthroid Mktg. Litig.,
264 F.3d 712 (7th Cir. 2001) 15

In re Telectronics Pacing System, Inc.,
137 F. Supp. 2d 1029 (S.D. Ohio 2001) 9

In re Vitamins Antitrust Litig.,
2001 WL 34312839 (D.D.C. July 16, 2001).....8

Statutes

28 U.S.C.§ 1711 5

Fed. R. Civ. P. 23(e) 1

Miscellaneous

Newberg on Class Actions, §14:6 8

I. INTRODUCTION

Pursuant to Rule 23(e) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, the Direct Purchaser Class representatives ("Plaintiffs"), through Boies Schiller & Flexner, LLP and Quinn Emanuel Urquhart & Sullivan, LLP ("Co-Lead Counsel"), as well as the Direct Purchaser Class Executive Committee,[1] respectfully move for an award of attorneys' fees and reimbursement of litigation expenses from the settlement with Leggett & Platt, Incorporated (the "L&P Settlement") and the settlement with Carpenter Co., E. R. Carpenter, L.P., and Carpenter Holdings, Inc. (the "Carpenter Settlement"). These settlements are the product of the initiative, investigation, and hard work of skilled counsel over the course of more than four years. They provide significant benefits to members of the proposed Settlement Classes (which overlap with the certified Direct Purchaser Class): cash payments totaling $147.8 million ($108 million from Carpenter, and $39.8 million from L&P), and important trial cooperation that will enhance Plaintiffs' ability to prosecute this action against non-settling Defendants.[2]

Class counsel have achieved extraordinary results for the class in a case with only limited government activity. These highly valuable settlements were achieved only after counsel spent years and expended millions of dollars in expenses, working doggedly to build a compelling factual and expert record in support of class certification, winning certification in the District Court and also defeating Defendants' related Daubert motions; and after class counsel brought their experience and insight to bear in lengthy arms' length settlement negotiations. Even before

[1] The Executive Committee consists of the following law firms: Bernstein Liebhard LLP; Grant & Eisenhofer P.A.; Hausfeld LLP; Pearson, Simon, Warshaw & Penny LLP; Robins, Kaplan, Miller, Ciresi LLP; Seeger Weiss LLP; Strange & Carpenter; and Weinstein Kitchenoff & Asher LLC. (Co-Lead Counsel and the Executive Committee firms are collectively referred to herein as "Designated Counsel").

[2] Plaintiffs have moved for final approval of the proposed L&P and Carpenter Settlements concurrently with this application.

filing preliminary approval papers, class counsel also defeated Defendants' Rule 23(f) petition to the Sixth Circuit, earning a unanimous written opinion from the three-judge panel. Moreover, class counsel respectfully submit that their work to date has created a very credible trial threat reflected in the value of the settlements. This is certainly not a case where class counsel have simply "piggy-backed" on a government investigation or the work of others.

In light of the substantial benefits Designated Counsel conferred on members of the proposed Settlement Classes, Plaintiffs and Designated Counsel respectfully request an award of 30% of the L&P Settlement and Carpenter Settlement Funds for attorneys' fees, as well as an additional $8,133,855.80 for reimbursement of expenses to date. The requested attorneys fees, even when added to the $3,101,267.63 million in fees previously awarded in connection with the Vitafoam settlement, are still substantially below plaintiffs' counsel's total lodestar to date of $52,274,968.55 million). The total amount proposed to be paid to Designated Counsel remains well within the parameters established by courts in this Circuit.

II. BACKGROUND

A. Designated Counsel's Vigorous Prosecution of the Case.

Over the past four years, Designated Counsel has expended significant time and effort pursuing Plaintiffs' claims against all Defendants. As set forth in Direct Purchaser Plaintiffs' Memorandum of Law in Support of Their Motion for an Award of Attorneys' Fees and for Reimbursement of Expenses ("Prior Fee Application") (Dkt. 539-1), Designated Counsel undertook significant investigation prior to filing their initial complaints and Consolidated Amended Complaint, expended significant effort opposing Defendants' motions to dismiss and motions for reconsideration, organizing and managing the case, negotiating the Vitafoam and Domfoam Settlements and opposing Defendants' efforts to prevent approval of these settlements and distribution of notice to the Settlement Classes. As set forth below, since the time of the Prior Fee Application, Designated Counsel have continued to expend significant time litigating Plaintiffs' claims, while being cognizant of the need to work efficiently, avoid duplication, and prudently manage expenses.

1. Meet and confers and disputes concerning discovery.

Designated Counsel have continued to expend considerable effort in addressing discovery issues with the numerous Defendants in this case on a Defendant-by-Defendant basis. These individual negotiations and meet and confers—which spurred several different motions to compel and hearings with the Court—spanned several years and have even continued into the current post-fact discovery period. Neuwirth Decl. ¶¶ 5-6. Throughout, Designated Counsel coordinated with other plaintiffs' counsel, including counsel for the Direct Action Plaintiffs and Indirect Purchaser Plaintiffs. Neuwirth Decl. ¶ 7.

2. Review of Defendants' voluminous document productions.

Designated Counsel have continued to review and analyze documents and data produced by Defendants. As the direct result of Designated Counsel's efforts, Defendants and third parties have produced 5.4 million pages of responsive materials in 219 separate productions, representing 2.4 million total documents. Neuwirth Decl. ¶ 15. Defendants have also produced transactional data that encompasses millions of transactions. Id.

It is no exaggeration to say that reviewing and analyzing these productions has been a monumental task. As the collective size of Defendants' productions indicates, Designated Counsel have had to spend a huge amount of time, money, and effort separating the wheat from the chaff and identifying the documents and data that prove liability, damages, and the bases for class certification, summary judgment, and claims at trial.

3. Deposition discovery.

In addition to document discovery, Designated Counsel also spent a substantial amount of time preparing for, taking, and attending the more than 200 fact and expert depositions in these consolidated actions, approximately 100 of which were of Defendants and third parties. Neuwirth Decl. ¶¶ 16. These depositions yielded an extensive amount of useful liability and class certification evidence, which Plaintiffs extensively cited in their class certification and more recent summary judgment briefing.

4. Class certification.

Toward the end of fact discovery, Plaintiffs moved for litigation class certification. Their opening brief was 45 pages and included 91 numbered exhibits and a collection of declarations and deposition transcripts, along with the expert reports of Dr. Jeffrey Leitzinger and Dr. Matthew Gordon. In all, Plaintiffs' opening submission totaled over 1500 pages. Dkt. 584. Defendants opposed with their own brief and exhibits totaling 1716 pages, including the expert reports of Drs. Janusz Ordover and Michelle Burtis. Dkt. 682. Plaintiffs' reply again was an extremely voluminous submission and included the rebuttal expert reports of Dr. Leitzinger, Dr. Abba Krieger, and Dr. Matthew Gordon. Dkt. 744. Following this reply, Defendants submitted even more materials that required Plaintiffs' attention, reply, and, in some cases, briefing.

Ultimately, the Court held oral argument on Plaintiffs' class certification motion on January 15, 2014, at which time Plaintiffs presented their case for certification in response to multiple detailed questions from the Court. This Court granted class certification. Dkt. 1102, 1115. On numerous occasions, Defendants subsequently attempted to negate this Court's certification order and/or to delay the case because of it, and Plaintiffs have expended significant time and resources opposing Defendants' efforts. Dkt. 1169, 1384, 1415.

5. Summary judgment briefing.

On August 25, 2014, all of the then-non-settling Defendants, which included Carpenter and L&P, filed separate motions for summary judgment and collective Daubert motions against all of Plaintiffs' merits experts. Dkt. 1321-1329. Plaintiffs responded to these motions on September 25, 2014, submitting with their briefs a voluminous set of exhibits demonstrating why summary judgment is not warranted. Dkt. 1343. Defendants replied and the parties are currently scheduled to argue the motions before the Court on January 15, 2015. In all, the summary judgment briefing was an enormous task, yielding 140 pages of briefing from Plaintiffs, 276 pages from Defendants, and hundreds of exhibits.

6. Trial preparation.

Trial is now scheduled to being on March 31, 2015. Designated Counsel is engaged in substantial preparations for trial and will continue to prepare through the time trial begins.

B. Notice of Proposed Settlements, Plan of Allocation, and Petition for Attorneys' Fees, Reimbursement of Expenses and Incentive Awards.

Consistent with the Class Action Fairness Act, 28 U.S.C.§ 1711 et seq., counsel for L&P sent notice of the proposed settlement to the appropriate State and Federal Officials on November 13, 2014. Dkt. 1413. Carpenter sent notice of the proposed settlement to the appropriate State and Federal Officials on November 22 and 24, 2014. Dkt. 1427. To date, those entities have not lodged any objections to the settlement. Id.

By Order of the Court, the Garden City Group, which Designated Counsel retained to serve as the settlement claims administrator, directly mailed the Notice to approximately 48,624 unique addresses on November 24, 2014. Neuwirth Decl. ¶ 39. This Notice advised potential Class Members of the material terms of the proposed L&P and Carpenter Settlements, including the intent of Designated Counsel to apply to the Court for an award on attorneys' fees and expenses. The notice further stated that Designated Counsel could seek up to 30% of the settlement fund, as well as expenses. Id. ¶ 40.

The potential Class is composed of thousands of entities nationwide, many of which are sophisticated companies with their own in-house legal counsel. As of the date of this brief, no potential Class member has made any objection to the proposed settlement or to the notice of the anticipated fee and expense request. Neuwirth Decl. ¶ 2.

III. DESIGNATED COUNSEL SHOULD BE AWARDED THE REQUESTED FEES AND REIMBURSEMENT OF LITIGATION EXPENSES.

To date, Designated Counsel have received $3,101,267.63 in fees and $908,315.35 in expenses, (Dkt. 598), the combined total of which represents only a small portion of what Designated Counsel have incurred in prosecuting this case. Given this, Designated Counsel respectfully request that the Court award to them 30% of each of the L&P and Carpenter Settlement Funds for fees and an additional $8,113,855.80 for reimbursement of expenses. This will result in an award of $52,453,855.80, total, which is less than total amount of fees and expenses Designated Counsel has incurred to date.

The proposed award would be well within the range approved by Courts in this and other districts. See In re Scrap Metal Antitrust Litig., No. 1:02-cv-0844 (N.D. Ohio Mar. 24, 2005) (awarding 30% fee plus expenses); In re Southeastern Milk Antitrust Litig., No. 2:08-MD-1000, 2013 WL 2155387 (E.D. Tenn. May 17, 2013) (awarding antitrust counsel 33% fee plus expenses from $158.6 million settlement); In re Cardizem CD Antitrust Litig., No. 99-md-1278 (E.D. Mich. Nov. 25, 2002) (granting antitrust class action counsel 30% fee award plus expenses); In re F&M Distribs. Inc. Sec. Litig., 1999 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 11090 (E.D. Mich. June 29, 1999) (awarding a 30% fee award plus expenses in common fund case).

Plaintiffs respectfully submit that the requested fees and expenses award is appropriate, given (a) the nature and extent of Designated Counsel's efforts in creating settlements beneficial to the Class in this hard-fought litigation, and (b) the risks Designated Counsel assumed in prosecuting this complex matter with no guarantee of recovery. Notably, no Class member has objected to the potential for this fee award or expense reimbursement.

A. Plaintiffs' Request for Attorneys' Fees Falls Within The Range of Approval.

Courts have long recognized that a lawyer who recovers a "common fund" is entitled to a reasonable attorneys' fee from the fund as a whole. Boeing Co. v. Van Gemert, 444 U.S. 472, 478 (1980); Rawlings v. Prudential-Bache Properties, Inc., 9 F.3d 513, 516 (6th Cir. 1993).[3] The rationale for such awards is that "persons who obtain the benefit of a lawsuit without contributing to its costs are unjustly enriched . . ." Boeing, 444 U.S. at 478; see also Rosenbaum v. Macallister, 64 F.3d 1439, 1444 (10th Cir. 1995); Ramey v. Cincinnati Enquirer, Inc., 508 F.2d 1188, 1196 (6th Cir. 1974).

"[T]he preferred method in common fund cases has been to award a reasonable percentage of the fund." Bowling v. Pfizer, 922 F. Supp. 1261, 1278–79 (S.D. Ohio 1996) (discussing the method's return to favor in the 1980s), aff'd, 102 F.3d 777 (6th Cir. 1996). This is because the lodestar method is cumbersome and often wasteful of the Court's resources, and disincentivizes counsel from achieving efficient results. Rawlings, 9 F.3d at 516 ("[T]he lodestar method has been criticized for being too time-consuming of scarce judicial resources."). A one-third recovery is a common percentage arrived at in private contingency fee cases. Dkt. 598 at 3 (awarding 30% of Vitafoam Settlement Fund to Designated Counsel); In re Vitamins Antitrust Litig., 2001 WL 34312839 at *12 (D.D.C. July 16, 2001).

[3] As with the Vitafoam Settlement, Co-Lead Counsel also requests the Court's authorization to distribute the fees in a manner that, in the judgment of Co-Lead Counsel, fairly compensates each firm for its contribution to the prosecution of Plaintiffs' claims. This is consistent with the Co-Lead Counsel's duties (Dkt. 29) to "[c]oordinat[e] the activities of Plaintiffs' counsel and implement[] procedures to ensure that schedules are met and avoid[] unnecessary expenditures of time and funds," and to "[c]ollect[] time and expense reports on a periodic basis, endeavor[] to keep attorneys' fees reasonable, and choos[e] appropriate levels of staffing for the tasks required." Dkt. 598 at 4 (granting the same request in connection with the Vitafoam settlement).

In this circuit, typically, the fee percentage awarded in a common fund case ranges from 20 to 50 percent of the fund. See In re Rio Hair Naturalizer Products Liab. Litig., MDL 1055, 1996 WL 780512 (E.D. Mich. Dec. 20, 1996) (observing that "more commonly, fee awards in common fund cases are calculated as a percentage of the fund created, typically ranging from 20 to 50 percent of the fund"); In re Cincinnati Gas & Electric Co. Securities Litigation, 643 F. Supp. 148, 150 (S.D. Ohio 1986) (same). In antitrust common fund cases, fee awards in this district have commonly been 30 percent plus expenses. In re Scrap Metal Antitrust Litig., No. 1:02-cv-0844 (N.D. Ohio Mar. 24, 2005) (Neuwirth Decl., Ex. C); In re Cardizem CD Antitrust Litig., No. 99-md-1278 (Neuwirth Decl., Ex. D) (E.D. Mich. Nov. 26, 2002).

For a total award of fees and expenses, "[u]sually 50 per cent of the fund is the upper limit of a reasonable fee award from a common fund, in order to assure that fees do not consume a disproportionate part of the recovery obtained for the class, though somewhat larger percentages are not unprecedented." Newberg on Class Actions, §14:6; see also In re Scrap Metal Antitrust Litig., No. 1:02-cv-0844 (March 24, 2005 N.D. Ohio); Maley v. Del Global Technologies Corp., 186 F. Supp. 2d 358, 367–68, 370 (S.D.N.Y. 2002) (awarding 33.3% of an $11.5 million settlement fund as fees, plus $200,371 in expenses, and noting that "courts in this Circuit have awarded fees ranging from 15% to 50% of the settlement fund"); Vitamins, 2001 WL 34312839 at *10 (approving award of 34 percent of settlement fund as fees alone, before expenses, and noting that "while fee awards in common fund cases range from fifteen to forty-five percent, the normal range of fee recovery in antitrust suits is twenty to thirty percent of the common fund").

In determining what exact percentage fee is appropriate, "[a]ll the Sixth Circuit requires is that the award of attorneys' fees in common fund cases must be reasonable under the circumstances." Brotherton v. Cleveland, 141 F. Supp. 2d 907, 911 (S.D. Ohio 2001) (citing Rawlings, 9 F.3d at 516). Courts within the Sixth Circuit weigh six factors when making this analysis: "(a) the value of the benefits rendered to the class; (b) society's stake in rewarding attorneys who produce such benefits in order to maintain an incentive to others; (c) whether the services were undertaken on a contingent fee basis; (d) the value of the services on an hourly basis; (e) the complexity of the litigation; and (f) the professional skill and standing of all counsel." In re Telectronics Pacing System, Inc., 137 F. Supp. 2d 1029, 1042 (S.D. Ohio 2001). "Most important among these factors are the value of the benefit rendered to the plaintiff class and the value of Counsel's services on an hourly basis." Bowling, 922 F. Supp. at 1280. Nevertheless, "[t]here is no formula for weighing these factors. Rather, this Court must be mindful to the facts and circumstances of this specific case." Godec v. Bayer Corp., 2013 WL 1089549 at *2 (N.D. Ohio Mar. 14, 2013).

1. Designated Counsel secured significant benefits for the Class.

The result achieved is a major factor to consider in making a fee award. Hensley v. Eckhart, 461 U.S. 424, 436 (1983) ("the most critical factor is the degree of success obtained"); Goldberger v. Integrated Resources, Inc., 209 F.3d 43, 55 (2d Cir. 2000) ("the quality of representation is best measured by results").

The results achieved from the settlements and Designated Counsel's other efforts fully support the requested fee. The collective proposed $147.8 million collection, plus accrued interest, is substantial in both absolute terms and in light of the circumstances of this litigation. Specifically, the cash payment is not just a considerable sum (which it is), but also an indication of the further total damages the Class may collect, whether in settlement or at trial. In addition, both L&P and Carpenter have offered cooperation at trial, as set forth in their respective settlements submitted concurrently with this fee application in support of Plaintiffs' motion for final approval of the Settlements. This cooperation will help Plaintiffs introduce evidence at trial that will be critical in prosecuting the remainder of the case against the non-settling Defendants.

Moreover, considering L&P and Carpenter's size relative to the remaining Defendants, the payments constitute a substantial recovery for the Class. L&P and Carpenter collectively constitute approximately 38% of the overall market. Based on the current known opt outs from the Direct Purchaser Class, Plaintiffs expect to seek between $815-867 million at trial, before trebling. The L&P and Carpenter Settlements thus represent a substantial portion of Plaintiffs' proposed trial damages.

2. The value of Designated Counsel's services on an hourly basis in comparison to the settlement amount is extremely high.

Designated Counsel have been litigating this case for over four years. Thousands of hours were—and continue to be—spent developing a case against Defendants, obtaining relevant and critical documents from Defendants and third parties, obtaining damages information, eliciting admissible testimony from witnesses, working with experts, briefing large motions (including, among other things, class certification and summary judgment), and negotiating, documenting, and moving for approval of the previous Vitafoam and Domfoam Settlements and the current L&P and Carpenter Settlements. Neuwirth Decl. ¶¶ 9-40.

A lodestar cross-check confirms that to date, Designated Counsel have incurred fees of $52,274,968.55. Because there is no question that the considerable amount of time and effort

Designated Counsel expended to date resulted in excellent positioning for trial and continuing value in the litigation for the Class, this factor weighs in favor of the requested fee award.

3. Designated Counsel's efforts significantly benefit society and thus merit a reward in order to maintain an incentive to others.

The Supreme Court has repeatedly recognized the importance of private antitrust litigation as a necessary and desirable tool to assure the effective enforcement of the antitrust laws. Pillsbury Co., v. Conboy, 459 U.S. 248, 262–63 (1983); Reitner v. Sonotone Corp., 442 U.S. 330, 344 (1979); Hawaii v. Standard Oil Co., 405 U.S. 251, 265–66 (1972); Minnesota Min. & Mfg. Co. v. New Jersey Wood Finishing Co., 381 U.S. 311, 317–18 (1965). Fee awards similar to that requested here encourage and support meritorious class actions, and thereby promote private enforcement of, and compliance with, the antitrust laws. Here, through their efforts, Plaintiffs have substantially contributed to enforcement of the antitrust laws and have helped restore market efficiency in an important segment of the U.S. economy that yields such everyday and commonplace products as mattresses, packaging, and carpet underlay.

Additionally, this litigation, and the amount of money that L&P and Carpenter will pay to the Class, sends a clear message that direct purchasers of flexible polyurethane foam will not tolerate collusive and conspiratorial behavior. The settlements will hopefully lead to increased competition because they will deter foam manufacturers from similar future misconduct.

Moreover, encouraging qualified counsel to bring highly risky but beneficial class actions like this one benefits society in general. In re M.D.C. Holdings Sec. Litig., 1990 WL 454747 at *10 (S.D. Cal. Aug. 30, 1990) ("[W]ithout able lawyers handling these matters not only do some of them go unprosecuted, but . . . you don't get the highest recovery"). Payment of attorneys' fees in the requested amount fairly compensates Designated Counsel for the significant risk they undertook and the benefits they have achieved for the class.

4. Designated Counsel undertook their services on a contingent fee basis.

Designated Counsel undertook this action on a wholly contingent basis, assuming significant risk with the possibility of no recovery whatsoever. In addition, Designated Counsel advanced significant expenses over the past four years that, absent a successful result, would not be reimbursed. All of this supports an award to Designated Counsel from the common fund. In re Sulzer Hip Prosthesis and Knee Replacement Liability Litig., 268 F. Supp. 2d 907, 936–38 (N.D. Ohio 2003).

5. The complexity of the litigation supports the application.

It is no exaggeration to say that this case represents multidistrict litigation at its most complex. As is evident from the summary of Designated Counsel's efforts provided in Section II.B., supra, this case has involved a large expenditure of time and effort against up to fourteen different Defendant groups. Moreover, "[a]n antitrust class action is arguably the most complex action to prosecute . . . The legal and factual issues involved are always numerous and uncertain in outcome." In re Linerboard Antitrust Litig., 2004 WL 1221350 at *10 (E.D. Pa. June 2, 2004) (quotations omitted). As the Court is aware, this case presents no exception.

6. Designated Counsel have exhibited professional skill.

The benefit conferred on Class members here is the result of the skill and efficiency of Co-Lead Counsel and other Designated Counsel. Without these efforts, the entities that will benefit from this settlement may never have seen any recovery for what Plaintiffs allege was a nationwide price-fixing conspiracy causing significant overcharge damages to flexible polyurethane foam purchasers. Designated Counsel submit that they exhibit the highest levels of professional skill and standing in the antitrust field. For their part, the Defendants, including L&P and Carpenter, have all been zealously represented by preeminent defense counsel from large, national law firms and with decades of experience litigating antitrust actions.

B. Designated Counsel Has Not "Piggybacked" On A Government Investigation.

This is not a case where Plaintiffs and Designated Counsel have "piggybacked" off a government investigation. The government's ongoing investigation has proceeded slowly over the past four years. Because of this, Plaintiffs have developed their case against Defendants largely on their own and without government aid or pressure. This fact warrants a higher attorneys' fee, given the heightened risk Designated Counsel faced without the aid that an active governmental investigation or set of indictments brings. In re Flonase Antitrust Litig., 291 F.R.D. 93, 104-05 (E.D. Pa. 2013) (awarding proposed fee because, inter alia, "class counsel was not assisted by a government investigation."); Chakejian v. Equifax Info. Servs., LLC, 275 F.R.D. 201, 219 (E.D. Pa. 2011) ("All of the benefits obtained for class members are due to the efforts of class counsel; there were no government agencies or other groups conducting investigations and contributing to this settlement."); see also Boyd v. Coventry Health Care Inc., 299 F.R.D. 451, 464 (D. Md. 2014) ("the risk undertaken by class counsel is evaluated by, among other things, the presence of government action preceding the suit").

C. A Lodestar Cross-Check Demonstrates That The Requested Fee Is Reasonable.

The reasonableness of the fees Designated Counsel request is further confirmed by a lodestar cross-check. Bowling, 102 F.3d at 780 (6th Cir. 1996) (affirming district court's methodology which based the fee award on a percentage of the fund and then cross-checked the fee against class counsel's lodestar); Connectivity Sys. Inc. v. Nat'l City Bank, 2:08-CV-1119, 2011 WL 292008 at *13 (S.D. Ohio Jan. 26, 2011) ("In this Circuit, the lodestar figure is used to confirm the reasonableness of the percentage of the fund award"). Here, the cumulative lodestar value of Designated Counsel's time spent on the case is more than $52 million (through the end of November 2014), which is more than the amount of fees sought by Designated Counsel.

Neuwirth Decl. ¶ 41. Indeed, the current requested fee award and the fees previously awarded to Designated Counsel following the Vitafoam and Domfoam settlements is over $2 million less than the cumulative lodestar value of Designated Counsel's time on this case. Accordingly, the lodestar cross-check confirms the reasonableness of the requested fee.

D. The Request Is Also Reasonable In Light Of Expenses Incurred.

To date, Designated Counsel have incurred $8,133,855.80 in expenses, excluding expenses that have already been reimbursed. These expenses were reasonable and necessary to the litigation of this case, and included, among other things, costs for experts, document collection and management, electronic hosting for Defendants' document productions, travel, photocopying, overnight mail, process service fees, long distance telephone, electronic research, and contributions to the common expense litigation fund. Neuwirth Decl. ¶¶ 42-43.

"Under the common fund doctrine, 'class counsel is entitled to reimbursement of all reasonable out-of-pocket litigation expenses and costs in the prosecution of claims and settlement, including expenses incurred in connection with document production, consulting with experts and consultants, travel and other litigation-related expenses.'" New England Health Care Employees Pension Fund v. Fruit of the Loom, Inc., 234 F.R.D. 627, 634-35 (W.D. Ky. 2006), aff'd sub nom. Fidel v. Farley, 534 F.3d 508 (6th Cir. 2008) (quoting In re Cardizem CD Antitrust Litig., 218 F.R.D. 508, 535 (E.D. Mich. 2003)); see also In re Delphi Corp. Sec., Derivative & "ERISA" Litig., 248 F.R.D. 483, 504 (E.D. Mich. 2008) ("Expense awards are customary when litigants have created a common settlement fund for the benefit of a class"). The appropriate analysis to apply in deciding whether expenses are compensable in a common fund case is whether the particular costs are of the type typically billed by attorneys to paying clients in the marketplace. In re Synthroid Mktg. Litig., 264 F.3d 712, 722 (7th Cir. 2001)

(expenses paid by private clients in similar cases should be paid to class counsel from common fund); Harris v. Marhoefer, 24 F.3d 16, 19 (9th Cir. 1994) ("Harris may recover as part of the award of attorney's fees those out-of-pocket expenses that 'would normally be charged to a fee paying client.'") (citation omitted). The categories of expenses for which Designated Counsel seek reimbursement here are the type of expenses routinely charged to hourly-fee paying clients and are described in further detail in the accompanying Neuwirth Declaration. Designated Counsel believe that the expenses were all reasonably incurred, and should be reimbursed in full.

IV. CONCLUSION

For the reasons set forth herein, it is respectfully submitted that this Court should award 30 percent of each of the L&P Settlement Fund and Carpenter Settlement Fund to Designated Counsel, plus expenses of $8,113,855.80.

DATED: December 23, 2014

Respectfully Submitted,

/s/ William A. Isaacson
William A. Isaacson
BOIES, SCHILLER & FLEXNER LLP
5301 Wisconsin Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20015
Phone: 202-237-2727
Fax: 202-237-6131

/s/ Stephen R. Neuwirth
Stephen R. Neuwirth
QUINN EMANUEL URQUHART & SULLIVAN, LLP
51 Madison Avenue, 22nd Floor
New York, NY 10010
Phone: 212-849-7000
Fax: 212-849-7100

Co-Lead Counsel for the Direct Purchaser Class Plaintiffs

CERTIFICATE OF SERVICE

I hereby certify that on December 23, 2014, I served via the Court's Electronic Case Filing system, MEMORANDUM OF LAW IN SUPPORT OF DIRECT PURCHASER CLASS PLAINTIFFS' MOTION FOR AN AWARD OF ATTORNEYS' FEES AND FOR REIMBURSEMENT OF EXPENSES, on all counsel of record.

/s/ Adam Wolfson

TAB 14A

KeyCite Red Flag
Vacated and Remanded by In re Broiler Chicken Antitrust Litigation, 7th Cir.(Ill.), August 30, 2023

2022 WL 6124787
Only the Westlaw citation is currently available.
United States District Court, N.D. Illinois, Eastern Division.

IN RE BROILER CHICKEN ANTITRUST LITIGATION

No. 16 C 8637
|
Signed October 7, 2022

MEMORANDUM OPINION AND ORDER

Thomas M. Durkin, United States District Judge

1 In this lawsuit alleging a price-fixing conspiracy in the chicken industry against more than 20 defendants, the Court appointed the law firm Hagens Berman Sobol Shapiro LLP as interim counsel to represent a putative class of end-user consumer plaintiffs (the "End Users"). See R. 248. On December 20, 2021, the Court approved settlements for the End Users that interim counsel negotiated with six defendant corporate families, totaling $181 million, see R. 5304, while the case continues to proceed against the remaining defendants. [1] In approving the settlements, the Court appointed Hagens Berman and the law firm Cohen Milstein Sellers & Toll PLLC as co-lead counsel for the settlement class ("Appointed Counsel"). Following that order, the Court certified the End User Class on May 27, 2022. See R. 5644.

Appointed Counsel seek an interim award of attorney's fees and costs and incentive awards for the 26 named class representatives. R. 5160. Two objections were filed, and one of the objectors sought discovery on issues related to counsel's fees. After briefing on the objections and whether discovery was proper, the Court ordered Appointed Counsel to disclose certain information about their prior fee requests and awards in other antitrust cases, and their agreements with the named plaintiffs in this case. R. 5798; R. 5818; R. 5835. Appointed Counsel's motion for fees and costs and incentive awards is granted in accordance with this order. [2]

Background

Without the benefit of a prior government investigation to guide them, Appointed Counsel sought to represent a class of consumers in this case shortly after it was filed in September 2016. Since then, the Court has appointed counsel for three classes and more than 100 entities have opted out of the classes to file their own direct actions. The more than 20 defendants are represented by some of the most prominent law firms in the country.

Appointed Counsel successfully defended the case against a significant motion to dismiss and achieved class certification. They have shepherded the case through extensive discovery, as is recounted in the declaration supporting their motion, see R. 5161-1, and is reflected in the more than 5,800 docket entries that make up the case, including 18 scheduling orders. Appointed Counsel have briefed numerous motions in addition to the motions to dismiss and for class certification.

 © 2025 Thomson Reuters. No claim to original U.S. Government Works.

2 Appointed Counsel have been assisted by four other firms. Appointed Counsel and the assisting firms have submitted their hours for the Court's review on a quarterly basis. Their collective lodestar is 67,522.2 hours representing $32,853,802.00 in fees. See R. 5161-1 ¶ 17.

Appointed Counsel seek a fee award of 33% of the settlement total of $181 million, or $59,730,000.00. They also seek payment of $8.75 million of the more than $9 million in litigation expenses they have incurred. And they seek a $2,000 incentive award for each of the named class representatives. [3] As of December 6, 2021, 1.2 million class members filed claims, with only seven opt-outs and three objections. See R. 5248 at 15.

Analysis

It is customary for class counsel in large and complex cases to seek an interim fee award. See, e.g., Kleen Prod. LLC v. Int'l Paper Co., 2017 WL 5247928, at *4 (N.D. Ill. Oct. 17, 2017); see also In re Endotronics, Inc., 1989 WL 6746, at *1 (D. Minn. Jan. 30, 1989) ("Untoward delay could discourage [class counsel] from engaging in matters such as these. The Court, therefore, must have discretion to award interim fees and costs."). The "starting point" for determining such an award is the "market rate" for such services. In re Synthroid Mktg. Litig., 264 F.3d 712, 719 (7th Cir. 2001); see also Silverman v. Motorola Sols., Inc., 739 F.3d 956, 957 (7th Cir. 2013) ("[A]ttorneys' fees in class actions should approximate the market rate that prevails between willing buyers and willing sellers of legal services."); Williams v. Rohm & Haas Pension Plan, 658 F.3d 629, 635 (7th Cir. 2011) ("[T]he district court must try to assign fees that mimic a hypothetical ex ante bargain between the class and its attorneys."). Estimation of the market rate "is inherently conjectural," In re Trans Union Corp. Priv. Litig., 629 F.3d 741, 744 (7th Cir. 2011), because "there is no market in class cases." Brian T. Fitzpatrick, A Fiduciary Judge's Guide to Awarding Fees in Class Actions, 89 Fordham L. Rev. 1151, 1155 (2021). [4] But the Seventh Circuit has explained that the goal of approximating the market rate can be "informed by a number of factors, including: (1) the actual agreements between the parties as well as fee agreements reached by sophisticated entities in the market for legal services; (2) the risk of non-payment at the outset of the case; (3) the caliber of Class Counsel's performance; and [4] information from other cases, including fees awarded in comparable cases." Hale v. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co., 2018 WL 6606079, at *8 (S.D. Ill. Dec. 16, 2018) (citing Synthroid, 264 F.3d at 719).

A. Actual Agreements

3 Appointed Counsel's agreements with the named plaintiffs simply provide that they will take a percentage of any recovery as determined by the Court. See R. 5835. No other actual agreements have been presented to the Court.

There is, however, case law describing court-ordered auctions in which potential class counsel bid for appointment. See In re Cap. One Tel. Consumer Prot. Act Litig., 80 F. Supp. 3d 781, 800 (N.D. Ill. 2015) (collecting cases, including In re Amino Acid Lysine Antitrust Litig., 918 F. Supp. 1190 (N.D. Ill. 1996)). The courts in In re Amino Acid and the other cases collected by In re Capital One sought fee award structure bids from attorneys hoping to represent the classes in those cases. The courts in those cases chose counsel who submitted declining fee scale award structures. (In other words, counsel proposed that their fee percentage decrease as the settlement amount increased.) These cases are relatively outdated, none being less than 20 years old. See R. 5048-1 ¶ 8, Fitzpatrick Decl. (court "experimentation with auctions has all but ceased"). However, Appointed Counsel have bid a declining fee scale in at least three other cases within the last ten years. See R. 5818-3 (In re Optical Disk Drive Prods. Antitrust Litig., Case No. 10-MD-2134-VRW (N.D. Cal.)); R. 5818-4 (In re Lithium Ion Batteries Antitrust Litig., Case No. 13-MD-2420-YGR (N.D. Cal.)); R. 5821 (Microsystems Devel. Tech., Inc. v. Panasonic Corp., No. 15-cv-03820-RMW (N.D. Cal.)).

The Court does not put much stock in these bids. First, the most recent is more than seven years old. Furthermore, the Seventh Circuit has explained that declining fee scale award structures do not reflect market realities and impose a perverse incentive "ensuring that at some point attorneys' opportunity cost will exceed the benefits of pushing for a larger recovery, even though extra work could benefit the client." Synthroid, 264 F.3d at 721; see also Silverman, 739 F.3d at 957 ("[S]olvent litigants do not select their own lawyers by holding auctions, because auctions do not work well unless a standard unit of quality can be defined and its delivery verified. There is no 'standard quantity' of legal services, and verification is difficult if not impossible."). "Subsequent cases within the Seventh Circuit have similarly recognized that the auction concept is flawed[.]" R. 5050-1 at 17 n.15, Klonoff Decl. Of course, when confronted with a court ordered competitive auction that permits declining scale bids, some attorneys will likely make such a bid in order to win the auction. But for the reasons expressed by the Seventh Circuit, the Court questions whether it is appropriate to permit declining scale bids in an auction. Thus, cases with auctions that permitted such bids carry little weight in the Court's consideration here.

B. Risk of Non-Payment & Caliber of Class Counsel's Performance

A declining scale fee award structure might be appropriate in cases in which settlement is a more likely outcome and in which the "marginal costs" of increasing the settlement recovery amount are low. See Silverman, 739 F.3d at 959. As Professor Fitzpatrick surmised, this "may explain the use of [declining scale fee award structures] in the two [Telephone Consumer Protection Act] cases" noted above. See R. 5048-1 at 17 n.6, Fitzpatrick Decl.; see, e.g., Gehrich v. Chase Bank USA, N.A., 316 F.R.D. 215, 236 (N.D. Ill. 2016), and In re Cap. One Tel. Consumer Prot. Act Litig., 80 F. Supp. 3d 781, 805 (N.D. Ill. 2015). Unlike TCPA cases in which "settlement was likely," Gehrich, 316 F.R.D. at 230, settlement in a complex antitrust case like this is far from a foregone conclusion. See R. 5050-1 ¶ 37, Klonoff Decl. ("In terms of risk and complexity, TCPA cases are the polar opposite of the present case, a complicated multi-party antitrust conspiracy case."). [5] Appointed Counsel invested massive resources of time and money when few other counsel expressed interest, with little assurance of success. See Silverman, 739 F.3d at 958 ("When this suit got under way, no other law firm was willing to serve as lead counsel. Lack of competition not only implies a higher fee but also suggests that most members of the securities bar saw this litigation as too risky for their practices."). As noted, no government investigation preceded the complaint in this case for Appointed Counsel to piggy-back. And Plaintiffs have been opposed by many defendants, including a number of very large and well-funded corporations, which have retained some of the most prominent and sophisticated law firms in the United States. The Court's 92-page decision denying the motions to dismiss was a relatively close call. Discovery proceeded while the motions to dismiss were briefed and decided, so Appointed Counsel was immediately incurring costs of time and money without any assurance of an award. Furthermore, issues raised in the motions to dismiss show that success on summary judgment, let alone trial, is no guarantee.

4 Appointed Counsel have devoted thousands of hours to this case. Their performance to date has been exemplary. The road to some of the settlements was eventually smoothed by later criminal indictments and corporate plea agreements. But Appointed Counsel's work appears to have prompted the government investigations that led to those indictments, rather than the reverse. A substantial award is warranted here as a proper incentive for high quality counsel to take on complex cases, requiring a massive investment of time and money, with such a high risk of non-payment.

C. Fee Awards in Comparable Cases

The Seventh Circuit has recognized that academic studies of attorney fees awards in common fund class settlement cases reveal a declining percentage with the size of the settlement. See Silverman, 739 F.3d at 959. But as Professor Fitzpatrick noted, "these findings are based on fee awards from other Circuits ... that are not even trying to capture how clients pay lawyers in the market like the Seventh Circuit does." R. 5048-1 at 20 n.7, Fitzpatrick Decl. These decisions are infected by default rules recommending smaller attorney fee award percentages for "megafunds." See, e.g., Wal-Mart Stores, Inc. v. Visa U.S.A., Inc., 396 F.3d 96, 123 (2d Cir. 2005) (affirming a 6.5 percent fee award from a common fund over $3 billion, reasoning that "the sheer size of the instant fund makes a smaller percentage appropriate"); Dial Corp. v. News Corp., 317 F.R.D. 426 (S.D.N.Y. 2016) ("[I]n class actions where the recovered settlement fund runs into the multi-millions, courts typically decrease the percentage of the fees amount as the size of the fund increases."). The Seventh Circuit has expressly rejected a megafund rule because, as already noted, it is a perverse incentive. See Synthroid, 264 F.3d at 718 (reversing district court's fee award in part because it imposed a lower fee percentage because the settlement fund was more than $100 million, holding that "[m]arkets would not tolerate that effect"). Clients generally want to incentivize their counsel to pursue every last settlement dollar, and a declining percentage award operates to the contrary. Thus, to the extent that courts in other circuits have awarded percentages smaller than what Appointed Counsel seek here, the Court finds those awards and their reasoning relatively unpersuasive.

 © 2025 Thomson Reuters. No claim to original U.S. Government Works.

Most persuasive are the large number of antitrust cases in this circuit that have awarded one-third of the common fund as attorney's fees. See R. 5050-1 at 45-46 (table citing cases), Klonoff Decl. The fact that fee awards in antitrust cases in this circuit are almost always one-third is a strong indication that this should be considered the "market rate." See R. 5048-1 ¶ 14, Fitzpatrick Decl. (in "a series of antitrust class actions.... recover[ing] more than $2 billion.... not a single class member ever objected to the fee request in any of these cases" showing that "sophisticated corporations are happy to play flat fees of 33.33% and they are happy to do so even in the largest cases.").

Additionally, Appointed Counsel's requested fee award is in line with awards they have received in cases of similar magnitude. In response to an Objector's motion for discovery on this motion, see R. 5182, the Court ordered Appointed Counsel to submit data regarding fees they have been awarded in antitrust cases since the inception of this case, see R. 5798. Appointed Counsel submitted two charts containing this information. See R. 5820; R. 5823. In reviewing this information, the Court discounted awards from the Ninth Circuit due to its megafund rule, and cases in which the settlement amount was less than $50 million, which are not of the scale of this case. Of the 18 remaining awards, all but one were either for at least 30% of the settlement fund or were greater in absolute amount than what Appointed Counsel seek here. The Objector sought this discovery insisting that Appointed Counsel's fee request was "exorbitant" and "substantially above-market," and demanding that "there must be consequences" for such "selfish" conduct. See R. 5182 at 6, 15. But in large cases like this, the only available evidence of the "market rate" is past awards. And Appointed Counsel's fee request here is well within the range of awards they have received since 2016. The Court has no reason to characterize the request as "exorbitant" or "selfish."

5 There is simply little to no precedent recommending anything other than an award of 30-33 percent. With this being the only real evidence of the "market rate," the Court will grant Appointed Counsel's motion for 33% of the relevant fund amount.

D. Expenses

Appointed Counsel seek $8.75 million out of more than $9 million in expenses. Appointed Counsel informed the class that they would not seek to recover the full amount of their expenses at this time. See R. 5161 at 18. The request for $8.75 million in expenses is granted.

Expenses, however, should be deducted from the common fund before the fee award percentage is applied. The "ratio that is relevant to assessing the reasonableness of the attorneys' fee that the parties agreed to is the ratio of (1) the fee to (2) the fee plus what the class members received." Redman v. RadioShack, 768 F.3d 622, 630 (7th Cir. 2014). Out-of-pocket costs, although paid through the settlement fund, are not benefits to the class and thus not part of "what the class members received." Id.; see also In re Wells Fargo Secs. Litig., 157 F.R.D. 467, 471 (N.D. Cal. 1994) ("If an attorney risks losing some portion of his fee award for each additional dollar in expenses he incurs, the attorney is sure to minimize expenses."). Therefore, Appointed Counsel will be paid fees of 33% of the settlement fund minus $8.75 million in expenses.

E. Named Plaintiff Incentive Awards

"Because a named plaintiff is an essential ingredient of any class action, an incentive award is appropriate if it is necessary to induce an individual to participate in the suit." Cook v. Niedert, 142 F.3d 1004, 1016 (7th Cir. 1998). "To determine if an incentive award is warranted, a district court evaluates the actions the plaintiff has taken to protect the interests of the class, the degree to which the class has benefitted from those actions, and the amount of time and effort the plaintiff expended in pursuing the litigation." Camp Drug Store, Inc. v. Cochran Wholesale Pharm., Inc., 897 F.3d 825, 834 (7th Cir. 2018) (citing Cook, 142 F.3d at 1016). Incentive awards based on a percentage of the settlement fund "are disfavored, if not altogether forbidden." See William B. Rubenstein, 5 Newberg on Class Actions § 17:16 (5th ed. 2018); see also In Re EpiPen Mktg., Sales Pracs. & Antitrust Litig., 2021 WL 5369798, at *7 (D. Kan. Nov. 17, 2021).

According to Appointed Counsel, each named plaintiff has spent at least 40 hours on the case. See R. 5161 at 20. Each named plaintiff was required to comply with discovery including a deposition. Id. This is not an insignificant burden for individual people to bear. Furthermore, an award of $2,000 for each named plaintiff is less than is customary. See William B. Rubenstein, 5 Newberg on Class Actions § 17:1 (5th ed. 2018) ("Empirical evidence shows that incentive awards are now paid in most class suits and average between $10-$15,000 per class representative."); see also In re Potash Antitrust Litig., No. 1:08-cv-06910 (ECF No. 589) (N.D. Ill. June 12, 2013) ($15,000 awarded to named plaintiffs from a $90 million settlement). The Court finds that $2,000 per named plaintiff is a reasonable award.

Conclusion

Therefore, Appointed Counsel's motion [5160] is granted as follows: (1) expenses are awarded in the amount of $8.75 million; (2) incentive awards in the amount of $2,000 are awarded to each of the 24 class representatives, with a twenty-fifth $2,000 award being shared by class representatives David and Leslie Weidner; and (3) attorney's fees are awarded in the amount of $57,400,000.00, which is 33 percent of the settlement fund after deducting the expenses and incentive awards. Lastly, while the Court appreciates the spirit of the objections, including the most recent filing of October 6, 2022, see R. 5836, they were not material to a case of this size, alleging antitrust violations, subject to Seventh Circuit precedent, so no objector "incentive award" is appropriate.

All Citations

Not Reported in Fed. Supp., 2022 WL 6124787

Footnotes

1 This Court granted final approval to settlements with: Fieldale Farms Corporation ("Fieldale"); George's Inc. and George's Farms, Inc. ("George's"); Mar-Jac Poultry, Inc., Mar-Jac AL/MS, Inc., Mar-Hac Holdings, Inc.; Mar-Jac Poultry AL, LLC, Mar-Jac Poultry MS, LLC, and Mar-Jac Poultry, LLC ("Mar-Jac"); Peco Foods, Inc. ("Peco"); Pilgrim's Pride Corporation ("Pilgrim's"); and Tyson Foods, Inc., Tyson Chicken, Inc., Tyson Breeders, Inc., and Tyson Poultry, Inc. ("Tyson"). R. 5304.

2 The Court entered an opinion and order on November 30, 2021 awarding fees and costs to counsel for the Direct Purchaser Class resulting from a group of settlements. See R. 5225. Because the relevant legal issues are the same here, and the Court's analysis of those issues has not changed, the Court could simply incorporate by reference the prior opinion. Instead, this opinion largely tracks that opinion to provide a self-contained record of the Court's decision on this motion.

3 The named plaintiffs are: Ian Adams; Angela Ashby; Linda Cheslow; Kenneth Cote; Kristin Davis; Abraham Drucker; James D. Flasch; Cristina Hall; Matthew Hayward; Richard Heftel; Stephen Holt; Joshua Madsen; William David Marino; Dorothy Monahan; Dina Morris; Alison Pauk; Daniel Percy; Michael Perry; Catherine Senkle; Diane Spell; Margo Stack; Marilyn Stangel; Eric Thomas; David Weidner; Leslie Weidner; and Natalie Wilbur. See R. 4921-1. Two of the class representatives are a married couple, and counsel has stated that they will share one incentive award. See 5835. Thus, the total amount of incentive award money is $2,000 multiplied by 25, or $50,000.

4 Professor Fitzpatrick also filed a declaration in support of the Direct Purchaser Plaintiffs' class counsel's motion for fees. See R. 5048-1. At the Court's invitation, the Commercial and Institutional Indirect Purchaser Plaintiffs also submitted an expert declaration on the previous motion by Professor Robert Klonoff. See R. 5050-1. The Court has referenced and cited these declarations in deciding this motion as well.

 © 2025 Thomson Reuters. No claim to original U.S. Government Works.

5 Moreover, research by both Professors Fitzpatrick and Klonoff shows that the use of declining sliding scale fee awards in the Seventh Circuit is rare. See R. 5048-1 at 13 n.5, Fitzpatrick Decl.; R. 5050-1 at 26-31, Klonoff Decl.

End of Document

© 2025 Thomson Reuters. No claim to original U.S. Government Works.

142 F.4th 568
United States Court of Appeals, Seventh Circuit.

IN RE: BROILER CHICKEN ANTITRUST LITIGATION
End User Consumer Plaintiff Class, Plaintiff-Appellee,
v.
Tyson Foods, Inc., et al., Defendants.
Appeal of: John Andren, Objector.

No. 24-2387
|
Argued May 14, 2025
|
Decided July 2, 2025

Synopsis

Background: Purchasers of broiler chickens, including end-user consumers, filed antitrust class action claiming price fixing in broiler chicken market. After $181 million settlement of portion of action against subset of defendants, the United States District Court for the Northern District of Illinois, Thomas M. Durkin, J., 2022 WL 6124787, awarded $57.4 million in attorney fees to settling plaintiffs and declined to order additional discovery from experts. Objector appealed. The United States Court of Appeals for the Seventh Circuit, Brennan, Circuit Judge, 80 F.4th 797, vacated and remanded with directions. On remand, the District Court, Durkin, J., 2024 WL 3292794, awarded class counsel 30% of net common fund resulting in fee award of $51.66 million, which was decrease of $5.74 million from initial 33.3% award. Objector appealed.

Holdings: The Court of Appeals, Brennan, Circuit Judge, held that:

[1] reliance on ex post fee awards to reconstruct ex ante market was not abuse of discretion;

[2] weighing of evidence to determine ex ante comparators was not abuse of discretion;

[3] class counsel were entitled to reduced award of 26.6% of net common fund;

[4] any error in excluding two outliers from award calculation was harmless; and [5] award accounted for stage of litigation at which class action settled.

Affirmed, as modified, and remanded.

Procedural Posture(s): On Appeal; Motion for Attorney's Fees.

West Headnotes (17)

[1] Costs, Fees, and Sanctions Customary or Usual Charges for Similar Services

A class often does not agree on a fee with its attorneys before class action litigation; therefore, when awarding fees after the case concludes, district courts must do so according to a hypothetical ex ante bargain, giving counsel the market price for legal services, in light of the risk of nonpayment and the normal rate of compensation in the market at the litigation's outset.

 © 2025 Thomson Reuters. No claim to original U.S. Government Works.

[2] Federal Courts Costs and attorney fees

Court of Appeals reviews de novo whether the district court followed the correct methodology in awarding attorney's fees.

[3] Federal Courts Costs and attorney fees

So long as the district court understood its obligation to award attorney's fees according to the hypothetical ex ante bargain, in a class action in which the class did not agree on a fee with its attorneys before litigation, Court of Appeals reviews how district court arrived at its fee only for abuse of discretion.

[4] Federal Courts Costs and attorney fees

The district court has substantial latitude in calculating attorney's fees because it is closer to the case than the Court of Appeals, and reasonable fees often fall within a broad range.

[5] Costs, Fees, and Sanctions Customary or Usual Charges for Similar Services

Ex ante agreements for attorney's fees are particularly useful guideposts for determining the market rate, in a class action in which the class did not agree on a fee with its attorneys before litigation so the district court awards fees after the case concludes according to a hypothetical ex ante bargain, giving counsel the market price for legal services; those agreements most accurately shed light on the compensation attorneys are willing to accept in the shadow of the litigation's uncertainty, when there is still a risk of loss and when counsel has the highest incentive to offer competitive fees.

[6] Costs, Fees, and Sanctions Customary or Usual Charges for Similar Services

Though a district court must treat any prior bids that counsel made as potentially relevant evidence to recreate the ex ante market, in awarding attorney's fees according to a hypothetical ex ante bargain to give class counsel the market price for legal services, those bids do not necessarily set a cap for later cases; instead, because the district court is closer to the case than the Court of Appeals, district court is permitted to distinguish what it believes are inapposite cases.

[7] Antitrust and Trade Regulation Amount of fees

District court's reliance on ex post fee awards to reconstruct ex ante market price was not abuse of discretion, in awarding attorney's fees according to hypothetical ex ante bargain, after settlement of antitrust class action claiming price fixing in broiler chicken market, even though court disregarded three ex ante bids that class counsel made in other litigation, which objector asserted were more relevant than ex post awards, since court explained that three bids had little bearing on award, as they were all for civil antitrust suits following governmental criminal investigations, which greatly reduced work required of class counsel.

More cases on this issue

 © 2025 Thomson Reuters. No claim to original U.S. Government Works.

[8] Antitrust and Trade Regulation Amount of fees

District court's weighing of evidence to determine ex ante comparators was not abuse of discretion, in awarding attorney's fees according to hypothetical ex ante bargain, after settlement of antitrust class action claiming price fixing in broiler chicken market; court reasonably concluded that one case in which fee agreement was negotiated with sophisticated pension fund was not "perfect" comparator due to its high anticipated settlement value which meant counsel was willing to accept correspondingly lower percentage of higher recovery, but court then reasonably gave fee award in that case ten times the weight of any other case, for total of 49 awards upon finding case to be "good" comparator, even though that case was in effect diluted by volume of 39 ex post awards in calculation.

More cases on this issue

[9] Costs, Fees, and Sanctions Customary or Usual Charges for Similar Services

In awarding attorney's fees according to a hypothetical ex ante bargain, giving counsel the market price for legal services after the class action concludes, the ex post recovery amount of comparator cases does not change the district court's reasoning for why class counsel may have accepted a lower percentage fee award ex ante.

[10] Costs, Fees, and Sanctions Evidence

District courts should consider all evidence bearing on an ex ante award of attorney's fees in a class action, according to a hypothetical ex ante bargain, giving counsel the market price for legal services.

[11] Attorneys and Legal Services Antitrust

District court's fees award to class counsel in amount of 30% of net common fund required minor adjustment resulting in award of 26.6%, according to calculation based on hypothetical ex ante bargain, after settlement of antitrust class action claiming price fixing in broiler chicken market, since court had relied on expert's declaration containing skewed sample of cases limited only to awards of 33% or greater, so those non-representative cases were required to be excluded from calculation of award.

More cases on this issue

[12] Costs, Fees, and Sanctions Customary or Usual Charges for Similar Services

To the extent a district court relies on a sampling of ex post awards of attorney's fees to recreate the hypothetical ex ante market in awarding fees for a class action, the court must ensure that sample is representative.

[13] Costs, Fees, and Sanctions Customary or Usual Charges for Similar Services

In awarding attorney's fees according to a hypothetical ex ante bargain, giving counsel the market price for legal services, after the class action concludes, district court may not include data improperly skewing, either high or low, the resulting award.

[14] Federal Courts Costs and attorney fees

When reviewing attorney's fee awards, Court of Appeals does not focus solely on the percentage; rather, what matters most is the process the district court used to calculate the award.

 © 2025 Thomson Reuters. No claim to original U.S. Government Works.

[15] Federal Courts Costs and attorney fees

Any error in district court excluding two Ninth Circuit outliers from its fees calculation was harmless, in awarding attorney's fees according to hypothetical ex ante bargain, after settlement of antitrust class action claiming price fixing in broiler chicken market, since adding those cases back into calculation changed average somewhat, but median remained 26.6% of net common fund, which was same award whether those outlier cases were included or excluded.

More cases on this issue

[16] Costs, Fees, and Sanctions Amount involved in litigation; relation to amount of award

A large award of attorney's fees is unwarranted if it is disproportionate to the amount of work expended by class counsel.

[17] Antitrust and Trade Regulation Amount of fees

District court soundly considered amount of work expended by class counsel, in awarding attorney's fees according to hypothetical ex ante bargain, after settlement of antitrust class action claiming price fixing in broiler chicken market, even though case settled before ruling on class certification, since class counsel had fully briefed certification issue and put forth significant effort, including investing massive resources of time and money, over 67,500 attorney hours, in guiding litigation through extensive discovery, and surviving relatively close motion to dismiss with assistance of in-depth briefing that resulted in 92-page court order denying dismissal, so case was not one in which no litigation occurred, and court examined in detail work that counsel devoted to case.

More cases on this issue

Appeal from the United States District Court for the Northern District of Illinois, Eastern Division. No. 1:16-cv-08637 — Thomas M. Durkin, Judge.

Attorneys and Law Firms

Steve W. Berman, Attorney, Hagens Berman Sobol Shapiro LLP, Seattle, WA, Benjamin D. Brown, Attorney, Brent W. Johnson, Attorney, Cohen Milstein Sellers & Toll PLLC, Washington, DC, for Plaintiff-Appellee.

Michael Frank Bednarz, Attorney, Hamilton Lincoln Law Institute, Chicago, IL, Theodore H. Frank, Attorney, Anna St. John, Attorney, Hamilton Lincoln Law Institute, Washington, DC, for Appellant.

Bradley D. Justus, Attorney, Axinn, Washington, DC, for Defendant Tyson Foods, Inc.

Boris Bershteyn, Attorney, Skadden, Arps, Slate, Meagher & Flom LLP, New York, NY, for Defendant Peco Foods, Inc.

Edward C. Konieczny, Attorney, Edward C. Konieczny LLC, Atlanta, GA, for Defendant Mar-Jac Poultry, Inc.

Emily M. Asp, Attorney, Stinson LLP, Minneapolis, MN, for Defendant George's Inc.

Stephen Novack, Attorney, Armstrong Teasdale LLP, Chicago, IL, for Defendant Koch Foods, Inc.

Before Sykes, Chief Judge, and Brennan and Pryor, Circuit Judges.

 © 2025 Thomson Reuters. No claim to original U.S. Government Works.

Opinion

Brennan, Circuit Judge.

571 In this successive appeal, one class member again objects to the district court's award of attorney's fees. The court's analysis was thorough, and we commend the detailed steps it took to calculate the award. Its sole slip was to include a handful of skewed fee awards when recreating the ex ante market for legal services. Those awards can be easily removed from the calculation, so we affirm the award as modified.

I

[1] Because this appeal is successive, we need not recount much of the procedural history. See In re Broiler Chicken Antitrust Litig. (Broiler I), 80 F.4th 797 (7th Cir. 2023). As a brief refresher, a class often does not agree before litigation on a fee with its attorneys. When awarding fees after the case concludes, then, district courts must do so according to a "hypothetical ex ante bargain"—giving "counsel the market price for legal services, in light of the risk of nonpayment and the normal rate of compensation in the market" at the litigation's outset. Id. at 801–02 (italicization added) (first quoting Williams v. Rohm & Haas Pension Plan, 658 F.3d 629, 636 (7th Cir. 2011); and then quoting In re Synthroid Mktg. Litig. (Synthroid I), 264 F.3d 712, 718 (7th Cir. 2001)).

We previously agreed with objector John Andren and held that, when reconstructing the ex ante market for attorney's fees, the district court erred in two ways. First, the court improperly discounted auction bids made by class counsel in other litigation because the bids incorporated a "declining fee scale" format. Id. at 803. Regardless of the fee structure, auction bids made at the outset of litigation are typically probative of the rate counsel is willing to accept while the risk of loss still exists—the goal of this circuit's ex ante calculus. Id. at 801–02. We caveated our discussion, though, by saying it was an error only for the district court to "categorically" discount these bids. Id. at 803–04. The court retained discretion to "accord" them "appropriate weight," as "[o]ther aspects of the cases in which the bids were made may show the bids to be poor indicators of what bargain would have been struck ex ante." Id.

Second, the district court abused its discretion in excluding fee awards from the Ninth Circuit. Id. at 804. The court had done so because that circuit, unlike ours, imposes a megafund rule, which caps fees once a recovery reaches a certain amount. Synthroid I, 264 F.3d at 717–18. We said that although fees in this circuit are not similarly limited, class counsel, "as rational actors," "assess the risk of being awarded fees below the market rate of their legal services when they seek to represent plaintiffs in the Ninth Circuit." Broiler I, 80 F.4th at 804. The district court should have accordingly "assigned appropriate weight" to fees awarded in the Ninth Circuit. Id.

On remand, after thoroughly analyzing the parties' arguments, the district court awarded a new fee. A few aspects of its award are relevant here. The court first disregarded three bids class counsel had made to represent plaintiffs in different 572 antitrust suits in the six years before filing this suit. All those bids entitled class counsel to between 13.5% and 20% of the recovery amount. The district court, though, thought these three bids were poor indicators of the ex ante market, as each case was preceded by a government antitrust investigation. Given that the government already laid the groundwork for later private litigation, class counsel had a lighter workload and higher chance of success compared to suits beginning from scratch. As a result, the court did not consider these bids when recreating the ex ante market.

Class counsel also agreed to represent a pension fund in an antitrust action against large financial institutions, in a case called In re Interest Rate Swaps Antitrust Litigation (IRS). That agreement used a declining fee approach taken from another antitrust case. See In re Payment Card Interchange Fee & Merch. Disc. Antitrust Litig., 991 F. Supp. 2d 437, 445 (E.D.N.Y. 2014). Nobody disputes that if the Payment Card schedule were adopted in this case, class counsel would be entitled to a $47.2 million award, representing 26.6% of the net common fund.

 © 2025 Thomson Reuters. No claim to original U.S. Government Works.

The district court thought IRS and this case were "good comparators." Yet it did not award 26.6% here due to a material difference: Because the defendants in IRS were large financial institutions with significant assets, the court concluded that the cases' potential settlement values were not comparable. Even though the court did not incorporate the 26.6% award here wholesale, it still gave IRS an outsized weight in its final calculation, as discussed below.

Next up for the district court's consideration were awards from the Ninth Circuit. It said fees capped under that circuit's megafund rule are not evidence of the market rate, else there would be no need for an artificial limit. So, although counsel make the informed decision to continue litigating there, all other circuits maintain a higher "market" rate for class-action awards.

